Puck luck — the final chapter?

Thanks and a tip of the hockey helmet to George Krappman and Pete Guzzardo, members respectively of the South and North hockey squads, who wandered into the newsroom this week along with pal Dean Pierce.

And the boys of winter were nice enough to bring me lunch. Why, you may ask? Because they owed it to me.

It's a long story, getting longer all the time. At the first North-South hockey game, I was nearly decapitated by a slap shot launched by a South player. A year later, at a North-South basketball game, young Mr. Krappman introduced himself and sheepishly admitted it was he who did me wrong.

Then at this year's NHS-SHS match-up, I watched as a North skater nailed Tower photographer Kip Monahan in the back with a puck. The assailant this time was left-winger Pete Guzzardo.

When I wrote it up for FYI, I ended by saying Krappman and Guzzardo owed Monahan and me a lunch. As the Eagles say, "Are you with me so far?"

The firm of Krappman, Guzzardo and Pierce brought me a nice stale "hamburger" in a box marked the "Whopper." Inside was a sesame seed bun nicely covering a hockey puck. An old, scarred hockey puck made in Czechoslovakia, no less. That's right, folks, a commie hockey puck.

But anyhow, it's the thought that counts. I don't know what Monahan got to eat. Probably an old Bulgarian hockey stick in a hot dog bun.

Oh yes, George also included an autographed photo of himself in uniform, giving the camera his brightest smile behind a pair of aviator sunglasses worthy of Jack Nicholson.

Did Eddie Shack get started this way?

John is our boy

Well, tonight's the night it all goes on the line for John Brucia, of Moorland Drive, in the Woods. John, 23, is the Pointe's only entry in this year's Bachelor of the Year contest to benefit the March of Dimes.

Showtime is 8 p.m. tonight at the Michigan Inn in Southfield. Admission is $5 and entitles the ticket holder to participate in a drawing.

FYI talked to John and found out he's definitely up for the contest, although he appeared pretty laid back over the phone. "I think it'll be kind of fun and I'm not nervous about it," John said. "I was entered by my girlfriend. She mentioned it to me and I said it sounded pretty good on paper. I sort of forgot about it after that.

"We sent in five or six photos of me when I appeared on the MTV party. They showed me with Peter Wolf, Martha Quinn

Farms turns down contested ordinance

By Harriet Nolan

The Farms city council voted against adopting the "first floor retail only" ordinance which would have restricted service-oriented businesses in the Hill district in favor of retail businesses.

The majority of the council agreed to rely on assurances from Realtors, owners and retailers attending Monday night's meeting that a growing wave of harmony between the various businesses, operators and owners would be the key to future success for the entire Hill area.

"I believe without an ordinance we can accomplish mutual goals," said Dennis Andrus, a Realtor with Schweitzer Real Estate Inc. and a member of the Hill Merchants Association. "The ordinance would only pit people against one another and cause unneeded friction."

Real estate broker Robert Edgar, who is also the publisher of the Grosse Pointe News and vice president of the Hill Merchants Association, also asked council members to turn down the ordinance, requesting the council "to give all involved a chance to work in the free enterprise system."

Sandy Gillespie, co-owner of the Something Special shop and president of the Hill Merchants Association, said she had been notified of one meeting of the six held with representatives of retailers, Realtors and property owners attending.

"I believe cooperation is possible, but I haven't seen it yet," she added.

Mayor James Dingeman expressed hope that talks between those representing various interests on the Hill would continue, but cautioned that "the ordinance could be resurrected at a future date."

The ordinance was first suggested in 1982 and recommended in a land use study conducted by planning consultant Brandon Rogers. Under the proposed ordinance, when occupancy changed new non-retail businesses or service-related offices would have been limited to the rear-half of the building's first floor or the second floor. Only retail stores would be allowed on the first floor or the front 50 percent or more of the street level.

The only time the ordinance would not have applied would have been if the property being sold or leased would be occupied by the same-type business. Otherwise the property owner would have to try to lease or sell his or her property to a retail establishment, according to Richard Solak, Farms city clerk.

"Primarily, the concern of the city has been to establish and maintain the retail nature of the Hill," he said. "We commissioned studies of the market use of the Hill and they point in that direction."

Mayor Dingeman and councilpersons Bruce Rockwell, Harry Echlin and Mary Anne Ghesquiere voted against the ordinance. Joseph Fromm, Nancy Waugaman and Gail Kaess cast votes in favor.

Ready, aim, fire!

You'd better prepare to duck when you're around these two. Heather Whitten, 8, and brother Andrew, 5, are standing on the entranceway to a nearly 10-foot-tall igloo built in the backyard of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Fabian, of Ballantyne Road. This ice palace, which also measures nearly 10 feet in diameter, was the handiwork of the snowballers' mother, Cynthia Whitten, who teaches at the Neighborhood Club, and their uncle, The Rev. Jack Fabian, pastor of St. Charles Church in Newport. The igloo took nearly two days to finish, and the kids liked it so much they ate pizza in there for dinner one night last week.

Merge Park police, fire, report says

By Pat Paholsky

Grosse Pointe Park should combine its police and fire functions into one department, according to a report released by a commission charged with studying the issue.

Following a year of meetings, discussion and investigation, the Citizens Commission on Public Safety voted 11-2 to recommend consolidation. As an advisory group, the commission's findings and endorsement will be considered by the council which has the final say in the matter.

The council received the report Monday and voted to discuss it publicly in one month. Councilwoman Patricia Forster, who served as a council representative on the commission, proposed that members "digest it, talk around and come back in a month to begin discussion."

According to the report, consolidation will expand the availability and improve the quality of service to the community at a lower cost per unit of service. Adding that it did not recommend the move for budget-cutting purposes, the commission said it agreed with the one-department format to improve police and fire services.

The report further cited that the number of officers on patrol would be increased, that police community relations would improve and that morale among personnel would improve.

There are 30 police officers assisted by nine civilians and 19 firefighters in the Park. According to the report, a merger of the departments "could have the same effect as hiring 13 additional police officers."

Voting in favor of combining departments were the chairman, Stephen Wasinger, Jerome F. Driscoll, David E. Easlick Jr., William Harder, John Hausner, John W. Hibbard, Fred Olds, Camille Peterson, Phillip G. Tannian, Jim Waterston and Mrs. Forster.

The two commission members who voted to maintain separate agencies, John A. Molinari and Louis J. Mleczko, presented a five-page minority report that included suggestions on improving police and fire service.

They quoted comments from the National Fire Protection Association about public safety departments. "We are convinced that there is no advantage either from the point of view of economic or efficiency, in combining police and fire department functions. It is our considered opinion that a community needs both good police service and good fire service and that the combination of two results in poorer police service and poorer fire service."

The minority report also said the matter should be put to the citizens for a vote.

Three of the five Grosse Pointes operate under the public safety format and the fourth, the Farms, is in the process of consolidation. More than 95 percent of the cities in the United States maintain separate departments.

Sunshine Club! It's for special kids

By Tom Greenwood

Bill Koch pushed the photographs across the table. "Here she is at Tiger Stadium just before the game," he said. "She's the one smiling in the Tiger hat. Pretty, isn't she? That was taken the first of July. She died a week later."

Other photographs show a young boy smiling at the camera, holding up a fish almost as big as himself. "That's some fish, isn't it?" Koch said. "He caught an 11-pound walleye and perhaps a dozen other fish. He really had a ball that day. He died on Jan. 2. He was just four years old."

Koch has lots of photos of many different children. The kids are all special, because they're all facing terminal illnesses.

Because special kids have special needs, Koch and fellow members of the Grosse Pointe Woods Kiwanis have founded the Sunshine Club, aimed at providing happy times for those who may not have much time left.

Koch started the project on his own, because of his love of children and the feeling that he should do something for kids everywhere.

"I sort of make my living from kids," said Koch, a big man well over six feet tall. "You know those kids that ring your bell and are selling candy, candles or flowers for the class trips? Well, I supply those items.

"It always seemed to me that so much is done for other kids, but not the terminally ill. Not on a full-time, permanent basis. So I started helping kids on my own last summer. I'd take them fishing or to ball games at Tiger Stadium. Then I approached my club about it and the enthusiasm has been incredible from the guys."

The Kiwanis works in conjunction with the pediatric department of St. John's Hospital, visiting the wards and talking with doctors about special patients.

"We draw on the same communities that the hospital serves," Koch said. "Right now we have 10 kids in the club who live anywhere from Sterling Heights to Harsens Island. It's terribly hard to do anything together as a group with these kids, because their conditions vary so that you can't get them all healthy at the same time."

In this case, healthy is a relative term meaning the kids are mostly pain-free, ambulatory and able to travel.

"We took one girl to the fireworks last July on a stretcher," Koch said. "She really got a kick out of it. Right now we have one boy from north of here down in Disneyland. He was in remission a long time, then turned bad. He knows he's in trouble, but isn't sure how serious it is. We sent him to Florida, along with his parents, just in case.

"I received a post card from him today," added Koch. "He said he loves it there and wants to live near Disneyland when he grows up."

Naturally, trips to Florida, ballgames, fireworks, concerts or just plain fishing cost money. The Woods Kiwanis generally has one big fundraiser a year, according to Koch, although they're planning something special for the Sunshine Club in the next few months.

"Generally, we just beg," laughed Koch. "For this Florida trip we received contributions from the Grosse Pointe Rotary and the Sterling Height Kiwanis. We also got a big break from Delta Airlines. We called around asking for special consideration for our child, but all the airlines turned us down flat.

"Then we called Delta and they gave us a break on the fare, throwing in a free ticket for the boy's mother. At the airport they took the family into the VIP lounge and really made them feel welcome. I don't mind giving Delta a plug."

But things aren't always that easy or successful. When asked for donations, many businesses have turned them down, saying any club from Grosse Pointe must be loaded with millionaires.

"We had one guy tell us we should be able to write it off with no problem," Koch said. "Nobody in our club is especially wealthy. We do the best we can."

Another frustration is trying to arrange for the kids to meet some of their favorite ballplayers down at Tiger Stadium. "Maybe I'm dumb," Koch said. "All I got was a brusque secretary who brushed me off with 'we get those requests all the time. Tell us the child's name and we'll send a picture.'

"I know they get those request a lot," said Koch. "But it doesn't make it any easier to disappoint a child."

Anyone who might be interested in donating to the club should address their envelopes to the Grosse Pointe Woods Kiwanis Sunshine Club, attention Bill Koch, Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236.

Teen orders braces off at gunpoint, two shots fired

Two gunshots were fired in a Mack Avenue dentist's office late Friday morning when police subdued a 13-year-old Woods boy who was forcing a dentist at gunpoint to remove his braces.

According to police reports, the incident occurred at 11 a.m. Feb. 8 when the Woods station received a call reporting that a young patient armed with a .45 caliber automatic was threatening a doctor.

Responding to the scene were Woods Director of Public Safety Jack Patterson, detectives John Albrecht and Thomas Morowski and officers Kirk Risk, James Fowler and Gerald Kensora.

After securing the building, the officers entered and spoke with a nurse who said a young man had requested to see a dentist and have his braces removed. When the doctor refused, saying the youth didn't show any proof of parental permission, the boy allegedly pulled the .45, cocked it and aimed it at the doctor. He was immediately taken to a dental chair.

The police had the nurse page the doctor, asking him to leave his office on a pretext. After he left, the police reportedly entered the room and saw the suspect, with his back to the officers, leaning over and spitting into a sink. He was holding the cocked pistol in his left hand.

Director Patterson spoke to the boy, and when the youth turned to look, he was rushed by the officers.

During the ensuing scuffle, the boy allegedly squeezed off one shot from his weapon, which was directed at the floor. A second shot was fired when reports say the boy grabbed an officer's pistol and squeezed his hand. The second shot also went into the floor.

The teen was handcuffed and transported to the Woods police station where he was photographed and fingerprinted. His parents were notified and the suspect was sent to the Hawthorne Center for psychiatric evaluation.

According to Director Patterson, the boy spent a few hours at the facility and then was signed out by his parents. After further investigation, it was discovered that the suspect was not a patient of the dentist and had selected the office at random.

Police have also ascertained that the weapon involved was owned by the boy's father. After it was recovered at the scene, police found it was loaded with eight rounds of ammunition.

Because the suspect is a juvenile, the Woods police are petitioning the courts to have the teen charged with felonious assault.

Former Mayor Patterson dead at 84

Matthew Cross Patterson Sr., former mayor of Grosse Pointe park for 17 years and councilman for five, died Feb. 9 in Bon Secours Hospital. He was 84.

He was born May 30, 1900, in Scotland. He came to Detroit in 1921 and began a 40-year career with Dodge. When he retired in 1961, he was president of Dodge Division of Chrysler Corp. and vice president of Chrysler Corp.

Mr. Patterson was elected to the Park council in 1959 and he served the city for 22 years. At the time of his death, he was president of the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation.

He was honored at a testimonial dinner last October held in appreciation of his 37 years of service as a member of the board of directors of William Tyndale College, formerly Detroit Bible College, in Farmington Hills. He had served the last 17 years as chairman of the board. Four hundred friends and colleagues attended the dinner.

He was actively involved in the ministry of Knox Presbyterian Church for 60 years, where he had been an elder, Sunday school teacher and superintendent.

Mr. Patterson served on the boards of Dallas Theological Seminary and Taylor University. In appreciation, Taylor bestowed an honorary doctorate on him.

Matthew Cross Patterson Sr.

He also served on the board of directors of the national and Detroit Goodwill Industries.

Mr. Patterson was a member of the Grosse Pointe Rose Society, the Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe, the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club, the Commandary of the Masons, Lochmoor Golf Club and the Friends of Bon Secours. He was a past member of the Detroit Boat Club and Detroit Athletic Club.

In recognition for his service to the city and his accomplishments as mayor, the Three Mile Drive Park was dedicated as the Matthew C. Patterson Park in May 1982.

He and his wife, Jeanie Allan, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary in 1983. Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Jean Strachan of Grosse Pointe; a son, Matthew C. Jr. of Louisville, Ky.; two sisters, Mrs. Arthur Temske of Florida and Margaret Schultz of Kansas; six grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Services were held Feb. 12 at Verheyden Funeral Home. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Pick up petitions for school board

Mark Monday, Feb. 25, on your calendars.

That's the first day that nominating petitions for this year's Grosse Pointe Board of Education election will be available.

Two trustees, Catherine Brierly and Dr. Ernest Buechler, are up for re-election this June 11.

Any resident of the school district may pick up and circulate nominating petitions. Candidates need not be registered voters, according to school officials.

To be considered a candidate, a person must collect valid signatures from registered voters of the district totaling 1 percent of the number of votes cast for the leading candidate in last year's election.

In 1984, board President Joan Hanpeter collected 7,559 votes. That means this year, a potential candidate must collect at least 76 valid signatures.

Nominating petitions must be returned to the secretary of the school board of the board offices by 4 p.m. Monday, April 8, school officials said.

and Alan Hunter. Maybe that influenced the judges. Anyhow, if I get a laugh out of it, it'll all be worth it."

For your information, John describes himself as a 5 feet, 8 inches, 155 pounds, University of Detroit dental student with brown eyes, brown hair and a moustache. He's also a graduate of North High School.

Judges for the contest, in which the contestants will model suits, sports clothes and bathing suits, will include: Linda Solomon of the Detroit News; Colleen Burcar of WCZY Radio; Jyl Jackson of WCXI Radio; Cynthia Canty of WNIC; Syvil Little of the Oakland Press; Marcia Biggs, Detroit News singles writer; Rosa Robinson, co-ordinator of the Miss Black America contest; and Carol Reams, special events director at J.C. Penney's.

Everyone involved as a contestant will receive some sort of prize package, but the ultimate best bachelor will receive a Caribbean cruise.

According to Beverly Lubin, of the PR firm of Yaffe, Berline, Inc., more than 150 entries were received for the contest. Most of them were in the same vein, she said, concentrating on "my boyfriend is really a wonderful guy, etc., etc." Ms. Lubin said they looked for entrants who were mostly community-oriented and/or had done things that were out of the ordinary, such as supporting their families after their parents died, or having overcome some serious setbacks in their health.

A word to the wise for those of you contemplating next year's contest.

New library director arrives April 15

By Mike Andrzejczyk

April 15 will be a busy day in Grosse Pointe schools. Just about everyone knows, that besides being tax day, it's the day Dr. John Whritner will take over as superintendent of the school district.

It's also the day that Dr. Charles Hanson takes over as director of public and school libraries for the district.

Hanson is currently assistant professor and library director at Ohio State University, Lima branch. The professorship is part of the rank and title of his position, not a teaching assignment, he adds.

The unmarried 40-year-old Hanson says he applied for the position when he saw it called for backgrounds in handling both public and school libraries.

"The combination of these two areas and my background in both made it wise for me to apply," he adds.

He's been to the area and heard about the community's reputation for fine libraries and was in town Monday looking for a place to live when he makes the move, Hanson says.

He started as an English teacher in Wauwatosa High School, and there was encouraged to take up library science, Hanson says.

"Because I was using the library so extensively, the director at the time encouraged me to look into library science as a career," he says. "I started working on my master's part time at the University of Wisconsin and afterward became director of the high school library.

Besides his degree in library science, Hanson also has a bachelor's degree from Eau Claire University and a doctorate from Bowling Green in English. He has published dozens of articles as well as books of poetry.

His two disciplines go well together, Hanson says. The literary background he has gained from his English studies fits in very well with development of libraries.

Hanson has experience with computerized library records through his work with Ohio State.

The university branch in Lima has a library circulation listing system that permits the user to access the more than 4 million titles in the university's libraries. The system is also helpful as a circulation and inventory control, Hanson says.

The university also developed a computer literary project which it shared with Lima's public library system, he adds.

Besides his two years with Ohio State, Hanson has worked as librarian at Aquinas High School in Grand Rapids from 1971 to 1975. He then moved to the directorship of the North Baltimore Public Library system, a post he held until 1982.

Hanson's appointment is the product of a national search begun with the announced retirement of William Peters last year. Peters' retirement became offficial in June after his 17 years of service to the community and libraries.

In September, Peters was named director emeritus of the public libraries by the school board at the urging of the Friends of the Library. The title was in honor of his outstanding contributions to the growth and development of the library under his leadership, according to school officials.

Gerda Bielitz has served as acting director of the public libraries since Peters' retirement.

Classes start this month

Although most long-term winter non-credit leisure time classes for adults scheduled by the Grosse Pointe Community Education Department have already begun, 29 offerings are scheduled to begin between now and the end of the month.

Five classes will begin Thursday, Feb. 21: Nail Grooming, Ask the Doctor: Arthritis, Chamber Music: An Introduction, Soft-Sculptured Vacuum Cleaner Doll, and Rapid Reading.

Three classes for adults will begin Friday, Feb. 22. They are: Bridge: Slam Bidding, Bac-Kare Class by Vital Options, and a Seminar for Seniors sampler, Sprechen Sie Deutsch?

The offerings will also be held on Saturday, Feb. 23: The Art of Problem-Solving, Sweatshirt Design, and Job Interviewing.

The department schedule for Monday, Feb. 25, has five classes beginning. They are Computers: A Hands-On Introduction, Dance: Jitterbug Jump, Paralegal Training, Computers: Introduction to Commodore 64, and Crewel Embroidery.

Four adult classes that begin Tuesday, Feb. 26, are Do It Yourself: Plumbing Demonstration, Hypnosis: Special Stress Clinic, Golf Clinic: The Woods, and Assertiveness Training.

Five classes to begin Wednesday, Feb. 27, are Adventures in Understanding Art: Development of Modern Art, Computers: A Hands-On Introduction, a planetarium program A Comet Called Halley, Photography - Advanced, and Wok Cooking.

Ending the list are five classes Feb. 28: Food Processor Cookery, Golf Clinic: Pitch, Chipping, Sand Shots, Health Maintenance: Cardiovascular Risk Factor Identification and Management, Ask the Doctor: Diabetes, and Real Soup.

Educator to close book on career

By Mike Andrzejczyk

When the school year ends in June, it will mark the close of Frances French's almost 35-year tenure at South High School as teacher and administrator.

Miss French will become principal at the school effective April 16, taking over the position held by Dr. Joseph Spagnoli, who will become deputy superintendent of the district. Miss French has been acting principal at the school since last fall.

"I presume it's odd, but I never considered any other profession," she says. "Ever since I was old enough to talk, I wanted to be a teacher."

Her first year of teaching was 1939 in Otsego, a small community near Kalamazoo, Miss French says. From there, she moved to Port Huron and later to Roosevelt High School in Wyandotte before settling at South High School in 1950.

A graduate of Western Michigan University and University of Michigan, Miss French says there were adjustments to be made when she changed districts.

Port Huron was a small community, proud of itself and its history. It was a bedroom community of sorts, with a mixture of upper and lower middle class lacking heavy industry when she taught there, Miss French says.

From there it was to Wyandotte, a blue-collar steel town, where parents used the "union method" to settle disputes, she says.

"Before I left there, I became very appreciative of that community," she says of Wyandotte. Once they knew who you were, parents there became open and friendly, she adds.

It was 1950 when she got to South halfway through the school year. It was the year of leather jackets, Brylcreem and permanent waves. From her first classroom, she could see the kids in their leather jackets collecting about their lockers before heading across the street to a greasy spoon.

At first, she wondered what she'd gotten herself into, Miss French says. "But once you got past the outward appearances, you began to recognize that these were fine, young people," she adds.

The students during the '50s were active in school activities and open and friendly in their relationships with teachers and adults, she adds. The curriculum was staid, heavy with requirements.

With the '60s came a deterioration in relationship between teachers and students as part of the prevalent patterns of belief, Miss French says. The curriculum also loosened up, with one of the catchwords of the day being relevancy.

Students relationships with teachers and changes in the curriculum have come back nearer to what they were during the '50s, Miss French says. Graduation requirements have been increased in recent years and the district has put together packages of suggested studies for students who intend to go to college.

"Students and teachers have very wonderful, open relationships," she says, noting that students pursue their extracurricular activities "in a polite, orderly manner."

"What we are experiencing now is much like it was many years ago," she adds. "Maybe it's just more obvious in a small community like this."

In that time, teaching hasn't changed, Miss French says. It's still one teacher trying to involve students in their education and make them participate in their own learning, she adds.

The equipment has changed as electronics and computers have entered the classroom. Students learn computer language and apply that to math and science. Word-processors and electric typewriters have taken over in business education classes. But education is the major concern of teachers and how well it's done, Miss French says.

"For the general classroom teacher, the tools will never change. That's the ability to get students to participate in their own education," she adds.

"Basically, it's still the teacher and the skill of that teacher," she says. "The crux of the learning process is that human being performing with that class."

While she never regrets becoming a teacher, there was a time when she almost left South, Miss French says.

She was on sabbatical, doing post-graduate work at Michigan State University, where she was listed as a visiting professor. During the year, she was very tempted to teach vocational and teacher education at the college level.

"But I was committed to come back to South the next year. That year, North High School opened up and an assistant principal position became open. I applied for it and was accepted.

"I suppose I have just become imbedded in here," she laughs.

Adjusting to retirement takes time. Just the other day, Miss French says, she was looking over the school's North Central Accreditation report, planning ways the school could improve next year. Then it dawned on her that for her, there was to be no next school year.

"I will miss everything about South High School. I take a fierce price in everything about it," she says. "I'm going to miss the challenge of working all along the line with department chairpersons and the director of secondary curriculum to improve our programs and find solutions to problems."

One thing she won't miss is the pressure of her job, Miss French says. Shifts in administrative positions last fall meant increased workloads. And the work has built up, she adds.

Getting out of the routine will also be enjoyable as well as having time for an extra cup of coffee on cold February mornings, Miss French says.

"It'll probably take me a year to get organized in the whole new world," she says. "I will enjoy being able to decide how to use my time." That will include taking advantage of the variety of cultural opportunities available in the metropolitan area, she adds.

"A few years ago, a friend of mine who retired told me, 'You'll know when it's time,'" Miss French says. "Retirement is a very personal thing. I could have retired last year, I suppose, but I didn't want to. I wasn't ready."

Farms fire

A fire that Farms Fire Chief Samuel Candela said started when the resident smoked in bed caused about $90,000 worth of damage to a Vendome Court home Feb. 6. The department was assisted by firefighters from the City, Woods and Harper Woods. Damage was limited to the bedroom, but there was extensive water and smoke damage to the rest of the house. Candela asked homeowners to help the department by cleaning snow from hydrants.

School board gets first raise in 30 years

The board of education Monday night voted itself its first pay raise in almost 30 years.

Starting in March, a trustee will get $30 for attending conference, regular and special meetings of the boards, not exceeding 52 events yearly.

The recommendation for the near-quadruple increase, from $400 to a possible $1,560, came in a report from a sub-committee of Dorothy Kennel, Vincent LoCicero and board President Joan Hanpeter.

The compensation rules adopted by the board are those contained in the state revised School Code of 1976, board members said.

The $400 was set in 1956, the year of the previous revision of the state school code.

The change would cost the district $8,120 more next year if each of the seven members got the full $1,560.

The $400 is meant to cover some of the expenses of being on the board not reimbursable under the expense policies of the district.

A $400 salary in 1956 is equivalent to $1,377 in 1983, according to data from the 1984 Economic Report to the President.

LoCicero said inquiries were made of the Michigan Association of School Boards, which said 75 to 80 percent of school boards were paid by the state's rules.

Mrs. Hanpeter said at last week's conference meeting she is paid per meeting for attending Wayne County Intermediate School District meetings. Last year, she received $450, she added.

Gandelot opposed the change, saying he didn't see what good would come from changing the amount. The increase won't attract better people to the board and still won't compensate current members, he said.

"You don't necessarily get paid what you're worth for community service," Gandelot said. "The amount is so ridiculously low, it's almost a badge of courage for service.

"This won't do one thing for the quality of the board of education . . . The only thing it's going to do is put more money in our pockets," he added.

LoCicero disagreed, saying the change may not affect attendance of current board members, but could in the future help control meeting attendance. Regardless of the increase, service on the board was still community service hardly compensated by the increase, he added.

Mrs. Kennel said the amount wasn't out of line, pointing out that few things haven't increased in price since 1956.

While it may not control attendance, the increase will cover some of the costs of being on the school board that trustees pay out of their own pocket, she added.

Gandelot said the compensation question wasn't a struggle of wills, adding he respected the views of other board members, "even when they're wrong," eliciting laughter from the audience.

The matter passed by a 5-2 vote, with Gandelot and Dr. Ernest Buechler opposing passage. It takes effect in March and will be paid quarterly, with the current compensation level pro-rated for the last two months.

In researching the change, the board discovered that before 1956, members set their own level of compensation. The amount varied from $1 to $1,000, according to Christian Fent on, director of business affairs.

Car thefts up, reflect national crisis

By Pat Paholsky

Equip your car with a kill switch. That's what top law enforcement officers in the Pointes say they've done to protect their personal cars from theft.

Also known as a cut-off switch, the device is installed inside of the vehicle in hard-to-see places. The driver activates the switch when leaving the vehicle and until it's deactivated, the car will not start.

"A kill switch is a very good deterrent, because it takes time to find it," said Jack Patterson, director of public safety for the Woods. "And it's about one-tenth the cost of a good alarm."

While the officials agreed that a burglar alarm system is another deterrent, none of them had one in their cars. One of the reasons they gave was cost. Farms Chief of Police Robert K. Ferber added that a child on a bicycle colliding into the parked vehicle could set the alarm off.

Lt. Chuck Wenrich of the Shores said an alarm doesn't do much good as long as people don't want to get involved. "A good citizen just might call, but in Detroit there is sometimes a half-hour response time by the police."

All of the officials agreed, however, that it doesn't matter what kind of security system the car has. As the anti-theft devices become more sophisticated, so do the thieves. And finally, they can simply tow the car away.

Vehicle thefts have reached epidemic proportions and is now a national crisis. Detroit, with one of the highest car theft rates in the country, recorded 33 thefts for every 1,000 residents.

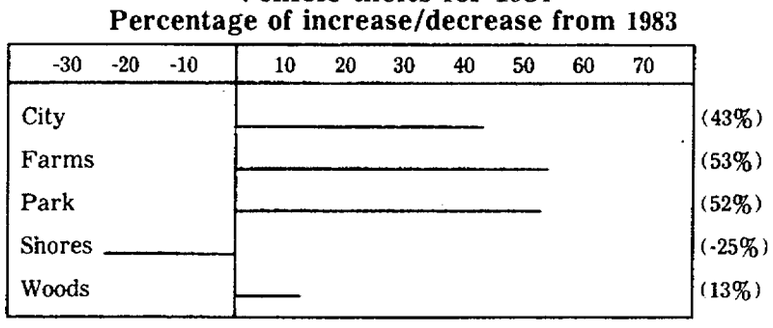
The theft rate in each of the Grosse Pointes for 1984 are as follows:

City — three for every 1,000 residents;
Farms — eight for every 1,000;
Park — 11 for every 1,000;
Shores — one for every 1,000; and
Woods — three for every 1,000.

The lawmen offered the following advise to make a vehicle harder to steal:

• Lock the doors and take the keys with you, even if you're running into a store for several seconds. Also don't get into the habit of "warming up" the car, according to Deputy Director Richard Clarke of the City. "In this type weather, people will pop out of the house to warm up the car and go back inside. It's a blatant invitation to someone walking down the street — the temptation is too great."

Vehicle thefts for 1984
Percentage of increase/decrease from 1983



• Shopping mall parking lots are a shopper's paradise for thieves looking for specific cars. Choose a lot that is patrolled or has camera surveillance.

• Always park where it's well-lighted.

• If you have a garage, park your car inside and close the garage door. Director Patterson said people will leave their garage door open with two late-model cars parked inside, bicycles, a snow blower and other expensive equipment, all openly displayed for potential thieves looking over the area.

• If you are parking in downtown Detroit, pay the extra dollar or two for a lot that has an attendant.

Lt. Thomas Martin, acting police chief in the Park, said since it is estimated that a Corvette has an average street life of about one-half hour, "buy an ugly car from which nobody wants the parts. And if you have an old car, hit it with a sledge hammer a couple of times," he added, tongue in cheek.

Deputy Director Clarke said owners of older cars should replace their door locks that have a knob on the end with smooth buttons, eliminating at least the coat hanger as a means of entry.

Lt. Wenrich told of arresting a man who stole a pick-up truck a day to support his drug habit. He was given $200 to $300 by the owner of a chop shop. "He bragged he could steal a truck in 30 seconds."

The victim, however, suffers in more ways than the obvious loss of time in arranging for alternate transportation. Besides the trauma of being victimized, the person suffers from a loss of personal security. Also any personal items in the vehicle may never be recovered. In the end, everyone pays with higher insurance rates.

"Most of the cars that are recovered are shells — totally stripped," Lt. Martin said.

Chief Ferber fixes the responsibility for auto theft on the automobile industry.

"The real impact upon this crime must come from the American automobile manufacturer in terms of building anti-theft security systems within the automobile itself," he wrote in his year-end report.

He predicted that the high cost of auto parts and the numerous chop shops operating in the area guaranteed an increase in vehicle thefts in 1985.

A Valentine's Day story

Couples reminisce on early courtships

By Harriet Nolan

Falling in love is easy. Making the transition from light-headed exhilaration to deep caring comes later. Several Pointe couples recall memories of early courtships and loves that are still going strong.

"He was the new boy in the senior class at St. Ambrose," says Helen Garvey of husband Paul. "I had a crush on him, but no idea he would be the one I would marry."

Two years older, Garvey didn't ask her for a date until she graduated from high school.

"He made the first move and asked me out on New Year's Eve," she remembers. "Money was tight during the Depression. When we would date, we'd go downtown to see a movie and then to Tassie's Tavern in Mount Clemens for roast beef sandwiches."

As time went by she began to discover he possessed qualities she admired, along with "coming from a nice family, being handsome and athletic and having been in the seminary the first three years of high school," she says. "I knew he'd provide a good home."

Garvey popped the question by slipping a ring on her finger while on the way to a dance at the General Motors Building.

"We were married on Thanksgiving, a popular day for weddings then," she says. "People couldn't afford to take vacations, so they had a long weekend instead."

Garvey, a self-employed accountant, did prove to be a good provider, husband and father of 10 children, according to Mrs. Garvey, who says of the 50 years they've spent together, "I'd do it all again."

While Harold and Loretta Cross knew each other for 12 years, her mother thought that his future dreams to be a surgeon were so insecure that he had to ask twice for permission to marry her.

"I remember the last time he asked," says Mrs. Cross. "He was in the pantry and when my mother said yes, he gave me a ring. Then we sat on the back porch steps and figured how much money we had."

On a typical date she would read, with the aid of the car's dome light, class notes he'd taken earlier as they delivered recall notices to laid-off factory workers.

Even though Cross had signed an agreement with the hospital not to marry while he was an intern, they did. Their honeymoon, a one-night stay at the Statler Hotel in Detroit, found them face-to-face in an elevator with many of his teachers who were attending a medical convention there.

"We didn't say anything, nor did they," she remembers. "But we felt that we had been caught."

A belated honeymoon for the struggling couple came while Cross served as the house physician on the South America, a cruise ship sailing the Great Lakes.

Mrs. Cross says the consideration and respect they've shown each other throughout the past 45 years has helped their love endure.

Thirty-one years ago economic times were better and Maria Valente describes her wedding day as "an extravaganza where 500 people attended the reception at the Park Shelton Hotel."

She recalls that she was dating a classmate at Michigan State University when she met her future husband Marco at a family dinner. But it wasn't until he visited her at school, loaded with packages her mother had sent, that she felt they could be serious.

"I had leaned over the back seat to see what was in the boxes and everything spilled," she says. "We started laughing and for some crazy reason I felt that just from the way we laughed and got along, this is the one I'm going to marry."

Although they dated less than a year before becoming engaged, she remembers her father telling her "not to let him dangle if she really wasn't interested.

"I wanted to be sure, so I waited for a little more time to pass," says Mrs. Valente. "This independence, shared by both of us, has enabled us to blend into close, yet separate identities.

"He hasn't intervened whenever I wanted to work on charity functions and a lot of husbands won't tolerate that. He just sits back and beams. I do the same for him and we support each other," she adds.

While they may have had a better start financially than the other couples, they've both worked hard at creating a successful business.

Valente's father had hoped he'd join him in the jewelry and photography business, but the son opted to follow his own dreams. Less then 10 months after they married, the young couple opened a store that offered rented formal wear to men.

The first shop, at Whittier and Kelly, provided 100 Denby students with fancy dress to celebrate their prom in style.

"I shortened 100 pairs of pants by hand," says Mrs. Valente. "My husband tried desperately to get the stock from New York and Philadelphia. It all came."

Looking back on the years that produced four sons, Mark, 28, and Deano, 25, both lawyers; Richard, 24, who works for the Mariott Hotels and James (J.B.), 17, still in high school, Mrs. Valente says "it doesn't seem like 31 years.

"It's been great being married to Mr. Tux."

Paperboy robbed

A paperboy was robbed Friday afternoon Feb. 8, in the 1300 block of Wayburn, according to Park police.

The 12-year-old was confronted by a knife-wielding assailant who took $17 from the boy and fled.

The boy was not hurt, according to reports.

Jeff Strauch, director of buildings and grounds at the Grosse Pointe Academy, proved to be a perfect study in black and white last week as he rehung lights in the academy's chapel. The lights, which were purchased for the chapel in 1929, were removed recently when the chapel's ceiling was cleaned and repainted with intricate gold stenciling. The ceiling renovation went hand in hand with the altar restoration completed by the academy last year.

College Bound?

As a college preparatory school, our curriculum from pre-kindergarten through high school teaches the basics. Students can choose from a variety of courses in the liberal arts and sciences, including honors and advanced placement courses. They can move through the curriculum at a pace commensurate with their readiness to understand the next concept.

At ULS our small size allows every student to be well-rounded by participating in a number of extracurricular activities.

Led by a nationally recognized expert on college admissions, our college counseling team begins working with students in the 10th grade. They work individually with 11th and 12th grade students and their parents in selecting the best college for the student. Colleges and universities in Michigan and around the country know the caliber of our students and seek them out.

At ULS we help students make the most of their college experience by making the most of their high school experience. If this is what you want, investigate University Liggett School.

Come and learn more at our all-school Open House on Sunday, February 24th, from 2:00-4:00 p.m.

Curran named to prison post

James Curran, elected to the Grosse Pointe City Council in November 1981, was appointed prison construction supervisor by Gov. James Blanchard last week.

The position is a first in Michigan and Curran acknowledges that he is taking on a tough job. He said he accepted, because "when the governor asks, you don't say no," and added:

"I think it's a real challenge to oversee a capital improvement of this amount. The governor called for six regional prisons in the state and he's made a challenge to bring them on-line, on time, within budget and he's asked me to assume that responsibility."

New prisons are planned for Northville Township, Detroit, Jackson, Lapeer and Ionia. There are also plans to convert the Detroit House of Correction to a state prison this year.

James Curran

Curran, who will be traveling extensively within the state, has the job of convincing residents of the need for prisons in their area.

He plans to commute to his office in Lansing and said he will maintain his seat on the council.

Correction

Dr. Charles Hanson, named director of public and school libraries for Grosse Pointe this week, was incorrectly identified in a news story last week. He is currently library director and assistant professor at Ohio State University, Lima branch.

A tribute to the meter

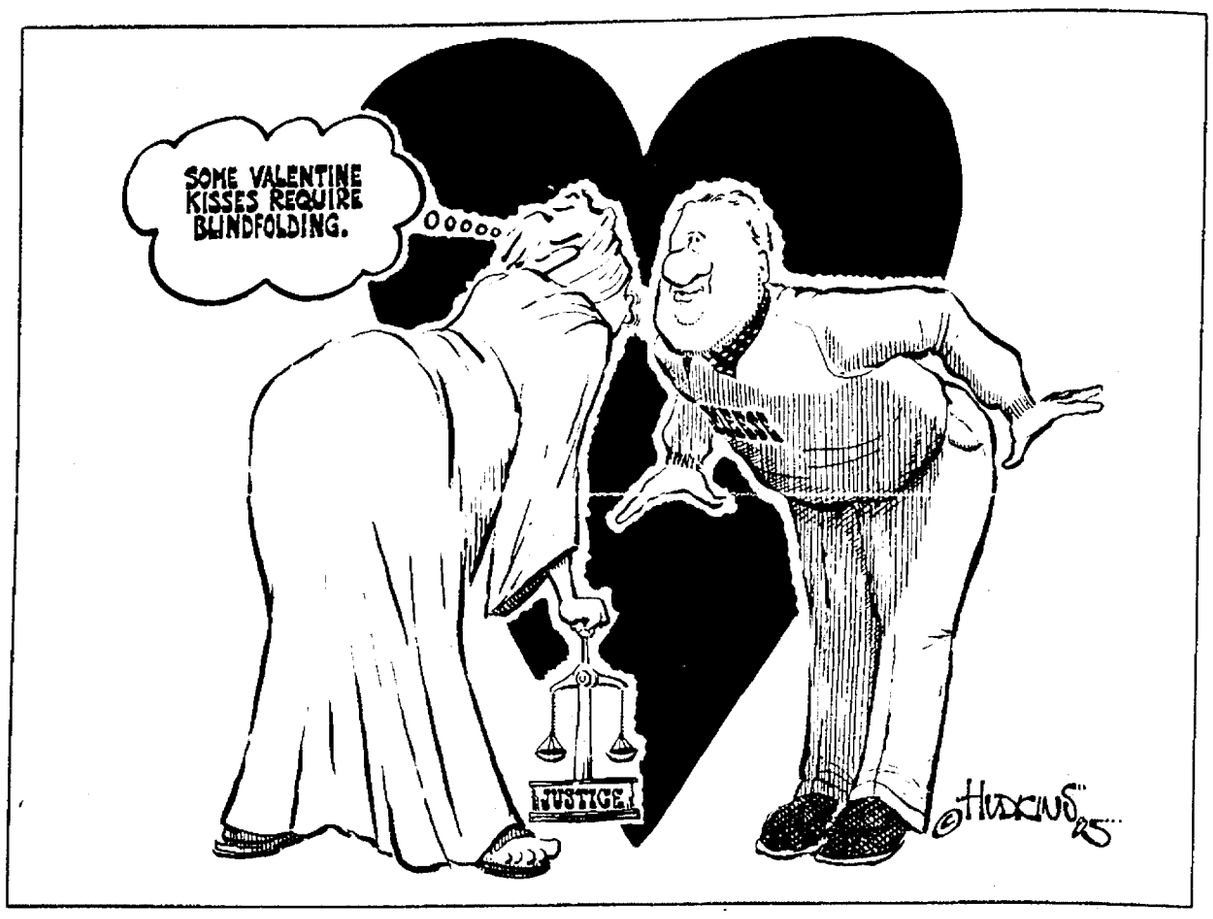
That blizzard of parking tickets that Pat Paholsky described in the news columns last week was so deep that once again it would have provided slightly more than one ticket on the average for every resident of the Grosse Pointes.

In fact, the 56,496 tickets issued in the Pointes would not only have covered every one of the 51,989 residents, but it would have provided more than three tickets for every one of the 18,572 households in the five Pointe communities. Truly, it was a blizzard.

True, there still are plenty of scofflaws in the Pointes. They are people who scorn the payment of their parking tickets. But for most scofflaws there usually is a day of reckoning when their nonpayment is discovered and they are finally forced to pay up. They then discover their false economy. They have to pay higher fees the longer they delay. And some can even be required to pay up before they can get their driver's license renewed.

But most Pointers obey the law. They pay for their parking and they pay for their tickets when they overpark. Some, it is true, are meter hunters who seek a meter with some minutes remaining. Others are meter feeders who find they need more time to complete their shopping, and return to add another dime or quarter to their contribution to their meter. And some lease their parking spaces by the month and no longer have to engage in that most exasperating of adventures: searching for a parking place.

Yet perhaps we owe a debt to the parking meter, even though it does account for most of the ticket blizzard. The meter in effect allocates both space and time for the busy motorist and as such is both a necessity and a nuisance. But without the meter what a traffic and parking mess we would have much of the time. Often derided and reviled, the meter still serves as a useful policeman and unobtrusive tax collector, and a silent monument to law and order in our modern society.



A Republican majority?

In the euphoric aftermath of President Reagan's sweeping victory in November, some Republicans claim that their party now is the majority party in the country. They point not only to the fact the Republicans have won four of the last five presidential elections but also to some national polls showing a slight majority leaning toward the GOP.

Even in Michigan, long regarded as a Democratic bastion, more respondents inclined toward the Republican Party than toward the Democrats in a recent Detroit News poll. It showed that Republicans in December led the Democrats by a 46 to 43 percent margin with 11 percent remaining independents. As recently as last August, the Democrats had led by a 47 to 40 margin with 13 percent declaring themselves to be independent.

Yet there is other evidence indicating that the president's personal popularity has not yet been translated into increased support for Republicans in other offices. Even though the Republicans gained slightly more than 300 legislative seats last fall, they still control the legislatures in only 11 states. At present, they control fewer legislatures than they did in 1956 and 1972, which were the years of the second-term victories of Republican Presidents Eisenhower and Nixon. And while they retained control of the U.S. Senate last fall, they still lost several Senate seats.

Furthermore, there is strong evidence to indicate that the improving economy was the strongest factor in President Reagan's smashing victory. So if the GOP is to bring about a lasting shift in the electorate from Democrats to Republicans, the party will have to deliver on its promise to bring lasting improvement to the economy. That may be difficult to do since some economists already are predicting a new recession by the time of the midterm elections in November, 1986.

In addition, the public appears to be divided on how lasting prosperity is to be achieved. One polling firm reported overwhelming support for cutting domestic spending but almost as strong support for protecting social welfare programs such as Medicare and Social Security. President Reagan has promised not to cut Social Security unless Congress proposes a freeze on cost of living increases, but he has advocated sharp cutbacks in Medicare.

Even on tax reform, which many special interests are criticizing, the public does not appear to be of one mind. Many people have been critical of the elimination of deductions for charitable contributions, state and local taxes and home mortgage interest for more than one residence. Yet all of these proposals were included in the Treasury Department proposals that the president has generally endorsed.

The GOP undoubtedly still has the "big mo," meaning the momentum built up by the president's 1984 victory. But whether it will be able to convince the American public that it should guide the nation through Congress and the state legislatures and lesser offices, as well as the presidency, still remains a question. The election of 1986 may give some hints as to whether the party can build on Reagan's gains or whether it will fail to achieve its goal of becoming the majority party just as it did after President Eisenhower's triumph of 1956.

Stockman still speaking out

You have to give David Stockman credit for courage, at least, for his attacks last week on the U.S. military pension program, the farm price support system and the federal student loan program. He was, of course, being a "good soldier" for President Reagan and his administration in proposing deep cuts in all of these federal programs, but that did not save him from criticism from his bosses as well as the beneficiaries of the federal programs he was talking about.

Stockman saved his toughest words for the military pension system which he described as a "scandal" and then added that the military would put its own pensions ahead of national security. President Reagan, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan all felt that Stockman went too far and the budget chief promptly issued a clarification saying he had not meant to impugn the patriotism of military retirees.

It is generally believed the former Michigan congressman, who now is President Reagan's budget director, lost his cool because of his frustration with efforts to cut the defense budget. Alone among the operating agencies, the defense department has sought and obtained presidential approval for a substantial budget increase, despite the efforts being made to cut the federal deficit. Stockman had been unable to make much headway in trimming Secretary Weinberger's proposals in earlier years, either.

Stockman's criticism of farm price supports, at a time when farm income is in decline, and of the student loan fund also had repercussions. In part, the reaction occurs because Stockman attacked the rationale for such programs. He said the farmers were in trouble in part because they had been speculating in farm land on which prices now have declined. And Stockman contended the colleges had a vested financial interest in preserving the student loan program which he wants to cut back. There may be some truth to those Stockman viewpoints, but federal farm programs have also saved many farmers from bankruptcy and educational loans have made it possible for many students who otherwise never would have seen the inside of a college classroom to graduate and move into responsible and well-paid positions in society.

President Reagan and many observers believe the 1984 election was a referendum that showed strong public opposition to any tax increases. Perhaps it was. But it is possible that the public, given its choice of sharp cutbacks or even elimination of specific public services, might opt to continue some of them even if some tax boosts were required. A strong case can be made that continued federal funding of education, health, protection of natural resources and similar programs serves the national interest, just as the defense program serves national security.

Nor is it necessarily true that the American public supports the extent of the military buildup called for in the federal budget, especially when the Pentagon increase is offset by further cuts in non-military programs. A Detroit Free Press poll the other day found that 98 percent of the respondents backed Stockman's criticisms of military pensions and colleges that are more worried about financing their budgets than the students. One wonders whether similar support might have been expressed if the public had been asked about the large cuts in the Pentagon budget proposed by some Republican senators.

Sale of Amtrak, ending of mass transit subsidies, elimination of the Small Business Administration, and cuts in other services to low- and middle-income people are other proposals drawing flak around the country. The proposed closing of six Coast Guard stations in Michigan, part of a cutback in Great Lakes stations, also will have an impact on many people in this state. Michigan GOP Congressman Bob Davis is among those protesting this move.

Clearly a reordering of priorities in federal spending is under way. But while the president proposes, Congress still must dispose of his plans. And even with Stockman serving as the point man for the administration's budget, it is not yet clear that the president will get the budget results he wants. Congress still may come up with its own set of priorities and programs that it believes are in the national interest.

Blue boat covers are temporary

To the Editor

As a long-standing resident of the Grosse Pointes, as well as commodore of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, I share the same concern as the recent writer to the News concerning the "shocking blue" covers currently on some of the larger boats docked at the club. These covers represent a new technology and the aesthetic impact when installed on larger boats was not apparent until after the material was in place. It is not re-usable and at the time installed, was the only color available in a size suitable for large yachts. The manufacturer now indicates that henceforth it will be available in all sizes in pleasing, unobtrusive colors. Nothing of the sort currently in place will be permitted in the future.

Boats have been docked at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club for 55 years without this kind of incident and we regret the temporary unpleasantness.

The club just recently completed a new gate house and is in the midst of a very substantial three-year program to beautify the area adjacent to Lake Shore Drive. Extensive landscaping has already been installed in the vicinity of the sailboard racks and the new shrubbery will soon shroud them from view. When this project is completed, I feel the Grosse Pointe community, of which we are a part, will be justifiably proud of the club's appearance.

We are, and will continue to be, responsive good neighbors.

How to tax without taxing

To the Editor:

Grosse Pointe Park's government under Mayor Palmer Heenan is taking an interesting tack in how to tax people without really trying.

While Park residents are paying extremely high taxes for rather basic services — think about it, what are we really getting that's so special? — the Heenan/Crawford (John Crawford, city manager, no relation to the writer) administration is asking residents to donate to a special foundation to renovate the bath house at the park and to chip in to improve the pool's diving facilities.

Next we'll probably be asked to donate money for adequate police protection and to resurface our roads.

I may be naive, but aren't these legitimate tax expenditures? It's easy to be a mayor, councilperson or city manager if all you have to do is ask for donations instead of making tough budget decisions.

But both of these projects should be scrutinized as to whether or not they're worthwhile for all residents. If they are, then the council should include them in the budget process. How else is the council to be held accountable?

Of course, let's not rock the boat. After all, we all want to go along and get along. That's the credo here, right? Who really cares what the city does with our taxes? After all, this is Camelot.

Choose chief from within

To the Editor:

As a former police officer in Grosse Pointe Park with 18 years service, I know the department and the men in it. Our Chief of Police Henry Coonce, has retired and a search is on for a new chief.

With all the talent and dedication of the men within the department. I must ask those in power: "Why look elsewhere for a replacement? Why bring a stranger into our community, when you have qualified and caring potential successors available in the Grosse Pointe Park Police Department?"

I feel the residents and the elected officials of Grosse Pointe Park should stand behind the men who serve and protect our City.

School enrollment, census discussed

Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series of articles emanating from a two-hour taped interview between Woods resident Joseph Callahan and school board President Joan Hanpeter. The variety of subjects initiated by Callahan will be of interest to readers.

Q: Doesn't the school census show that there will be a 25 percent decline in our enrollment in the next five years?

A: That's where I think the school system has been a little bit in error. We're going through the same mathematical process that you did, looking at our incoming kindergarteners and our kids graduating. This year in particular we've been fooled on that because we've had so many kids come in, whether they move into the community or they come from parochial or private schools.

I think particularly in relation to the private schools, there are a lot of people who just can't afford the cost of tuition and are finding that our system is good enough educationally that when they have to make a choice, they say 'Well, we'll go to the public schools.'

Q: Again, isn't there a school system projection of about a 25 percent decline in students by 1989?

A: We've been projecting a possible leveling off at about 6,600 students which would be less than the 25 percent decline in the next five years. I don't think it's as great as 25 percent.

Q: I've checked the 25 percent number with a member of the administration and the person in charge of the census (David R. King) and he reports that the administration has been anticipating an enrollment of 5,500 or 5,400 by that time.

A: I didn't realize they were projecting that.

Q: Can you shed any light on the substantial error or errors in the school census. For example, on one page it was reported that the school system had 7,800 students last May when it really had only 7,500. Also some parents claim that many people in the Grosse Pointes were never surveyed for the census.

A: I've heard that comment, too. I have no way of knowing for sure. We require that each of the part-time census workers make a contact at each house. It's going to be increasingly difficult to make a good census because so many parents are working in the daytime.

Q: What about the explanation for the inflated number of Grosse

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marion Trainor

The gnome is no more.

He's been taken over by the Pepsi generation.

It's a sad state of affairs for those who have been in Detroit long enough to recognize the logo. He was as much a part of the local scene as any number of real-life notables who became synonymous with the city.

For the enlightenment of those who never knew him, he was the winsome little fellow in the green suit and matching cap who presided over those casks that contained the world's best soft drink — Vernor's gingerale.

"Aged in wood" was its claim to fame and children and adults alike never questioned the statement. In their mind's eye they envisioned the little gnome and all his fellow gnomes manfully rolling barrels of the sparkling essence into a secret recess in a cellar deep in the innermost depths of the city, letting it set until the flavor and color like no other developed.

Then, and only then, did they tap the barrels.

It was fun to imagine the delight and pleasure they might have experienced at the first taste of the just-right sweetness of the golden concoction. Did they hold a secret ceremony to celebrate the magical essence of the brew? We were certain that those who partook of the finished product were quaffing more than a soft drink. They were drinking a magic elixir, a drink beyond the power of human ken to imagine, something born of mystery, of hidden cellars and the power of the Druids of wood. Out of such conjectures was folklore made.

If the process was secret, the merchandising was not. For all their other-worldliness, those gnomes were down-to-earth merchandisers. They established themselves at the foot of Woodward, right in the hub of the city. From that strategic point came innumerable thirsty customers who never passed beyond an intriguing giant-sized glass that slowly filled up as electric lights simulated the pouring of a ginger ale that has never been duplicated.

Parents and children, retirees and those on a holiday would come off the Bob-Lo boat after a day on the island with one thought in mind; to top off the day by stopping for a special treat at Vernor's.

If you had been careful with your money, you could enhance that memorable visit by ordering a Boston Cooler, a drink made rich and creamy with the added pleasure of sweet cream mixed in with the golden sweetness of Vernors. If you had been reckless and spent all of your money on rides, save enough for just the ginger ale, you still felt blessed. After walking miles around the island, running from one attraction to another and dancing on the boat, you were ready for this very special refreshment.

If this rhapsody seems to be overdrawn, it should be remembered that once upon a time, our citizenry was not as indulged as it is now. Automobiles were a luxury item. There were no bargain airfares and, my dears, there was not even television. A trip to Bob-Lo and a stop at Vernors was often the highlight of a summer vacation. It was saved for, planned for and even used by parents frazzled from arbitrating backyard disagreements as a threat, much as, "If you don't behave, Santa Claus won't come." It was paraphrased as follows:

"If I have to come out there once more to settle these arguments, no trip to Bob-Lo, and even if we do go, I'm not taking you to Vernors."

Believe it or not, it worked. Who wants the highlight of a vacation shot over whose turn it is to be up at bat?

It should be remembered also that even in that 'dark' age, Vernors came in bottles. But everyone agrees that it didn't come up to the fine high standard of the inimitable drink that flowed from the taps at the foot of Woodward. Even drawn from a tap at soda fountains, it lost some of its essence.

One does not live in a time warp. Progress and economics work their ways even in the caverns of the gnomes.

What is prized by one generation as the ultimate is reorganized and streamlined to conform with what is expedient.

And so in the course of events, the glass that so invitingly hung outside the porticos of Detroit's most famous drink was dismantled, the gnomes disappeared and the operation moved to a more efficient and impersonal plant farther out Woodward.

If you wanted a Vernors now — no one added ginger ale to their request because Detroiters acknowledged that Vernor's covered it all — you bought it in a bottle. It was not the same as the tap but it was still the best.

It was still so good that visitors to Detroit bought it by the case to take home with them. Those who moved from the city ordered it sent to them.

If you have vacationed somewhere and ordered ginger ale you know why. Not one company, even the big ones with all their facilities for testing and mixing brews, have ever approached Detroit's Vernor's.

To those who grew up with it, it is a nectar, something beyond the common, everyday variety of soft drinks. It can be served in so many ways. You can pour it over ice, listen to it fizz and taste its sweet bite. If you have a cold, you can heat it for a warming drink. You can pour it over ham to enhance the meat's natural goodness. It's a favorite remedy for upset stomachs.

But you can no longer point with pride and say, "Vernor's is a Detroit product."

It was born here. It was supported and grew here. It is part of Detroit history, but Vernors has been taken from us and somehow it matters.

Looking at it from an economic view, it matters because 300 jobs have been lost; 300 jobs that fan out to affect other jobs that pump life into the arteries of service industries and retailers.

It matters because it is one more setback for a city trying desperately to hold on to what it has.

In rather a strange way, it matters because it is one more evidence of the insensitivity of big business. Strange, because even after years of being exposed to the plain facts that people most always take second place to profits, there remains that naive hope that maybe this time, conglomerates will make room in their master plan to consider what a landmark, a tradition, a product with a history can mean to a city!

And what a romantic history it had.

James Vernor, who founded the company, was a native Detroiter. After graduating from the old Capitol High School, he opened a pharmacy.

He enlisted in the Union Army in 1861. He was captured by the Rebs, but later escaped and rejoined his unit.

Before his stint in the army he had experimented with a ginger drink. When he returned four years later he opened a wooden cask. He sampled a ginger ale mellowed by aging and the Vernors soft drink was born.

The city grew and so did a company that carried its founder's name. It became part of the fabric of a burgeoning metropolis. To rip this piece of history from the tapestry of Detroit's historical backgrounds leaves a gaping hole in the chronicles of the life and times of the city. That tapestry cannot be restored, but a small token could help to mend it.

In appreciation of the city that made Vernors the successful product it is, perhaps the new owners could establish a Vernors Foundation to aid needy pharmacy students.

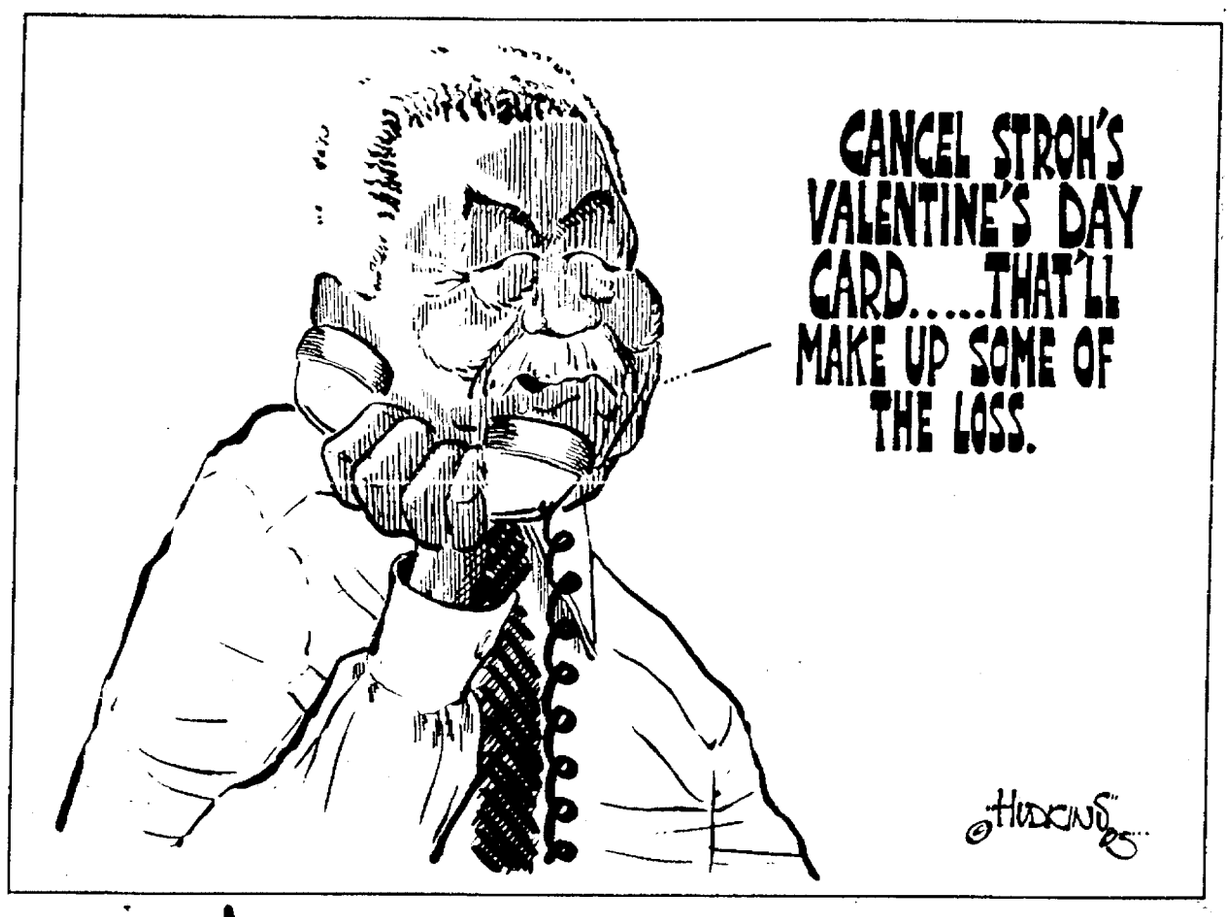
It would show the human side of industry. Detroit has already paid its tribute by naming one of its main thoroughfares after James Vernor.

The gnomes, the casks, the flickering lights looking for all the world like a golden drink in a glass are gone.

Spokesmen for the new parent company have announced that they will develop a new package design for the golden bubbly drink. It undoubtedly will be attractive, slick and provocative. But will it capture the hearts and fancy of consumers as did its predecessors, the gnome and his retinue?

Vernors has now moved into the realm of the light, the sugar-free, the diet, and the regular.

But somewhere in the secret recesses of our city where dwell the elves and other small creatures, the Vernor gnome lives on. And may those who displaced him be visited by gremlins.



I say

Bathing beauties

Long ago and far away, I wrote an article on the differences — the irreconcilable differences — between those who bathe and those who shower. And it is no frivolous subject, this.

People are pretty definite in their preferences and rarely will you meet a person who is ambidextrous, for lack of a better word, in this matter. And it goes without saying that married folks often have opposing preferences. I mean, nothing in life is easy. One thing that's easy though, is to explain, slowly and patiently, the only correct method of cleansing.

It definitely does not consist of standing in a stall. Stalls are for horses and other animals. People who prefer stalls have a favorite saying: How can you sit in that dirty water?

First of all, you must understand that there is more to bathing than merely getting clean. It's a total experience. Throughout the ages, water has been recognized for its therapeutic value. Soaking in a tub unkinks tight muscles, unfrazzles frazzled nerves and quiets a noisy brain. In short, it's mentally, physically and spiritually relaxing.

It's cheaper than a psychiatrist and much more convenient. You don't have to leave home and how many psychiatrists do you know make house calls?

Also a bath should always be taken at the end of the day for several reasons: It washes away the physical and mental pains accumulated during the day; it enables a person to derive the maximum benefits of a relaxed sleep; and it keeps the sheets clean.

I've listened to the other side rave over the pleasures of a shower first thing in the morning. It wakes you up, they say, and gets your blood moving. It makes you feel so refreshed.

Now I submit to you that there is nothing civilized about waking up in the morning and that it should be done as slowly and quietly over as long a period as possible. Thousands of water needles striking one's body first thing in the morning is cruel and unusual punishment. No wonder so many people have heart problems. I have a theory that people who bounce around in the morning wear out faster.

And that's my considered opinion. I know some of you will disagree and you are welcome to respond. I just might print your comments, but I don't know . . . We do have a responsibility in this business, after all, to print only what we can verify to be true.

School enrollment...

Pointe students to the effect that many parents with children at the University of Michigan and Michigan State mistakenly reported they were attending Grosse Pointe public schools?

A: That's all news to me. I couldn't comment on that.

Q: With the shrinking of our high school enrollment, are we going to continue with the present set-up ad infinitum?

A: Here again, we thought they were going to shrink this year but they didn't. They went up. We were fooled. And that was one of the things that caused us to add more teachers this year. So we have to see what happens to the high school enrollment, what happens in relation to Harper Woods.

Certainly, if we have a declining enrollment, we have to begin to think about that. Right now, even if we wanted to consolidate, we have too many students, unless we put the ninth graders back at the middle school. That's not out of the realm of consideration.

Q: I have the feeling that you don't really see a decline in our school enrollment?

A: I don't think anybody can make any precise judgments. We thought we would see more of a decline in our high school enrollment than we say this year. We were very surprised. I think that within two years we will be able to judge whether we'll have a significant decline in our high schools.

I'm not sure how long we can go in this community without facing the (student) transportation quesiton. And that's going to be a very tough question because it's costly — buses, drivers, insurance are very costly items. But if we're going to consolidate, we're going to have to face that.

Q: But in relation to $40,000 salaries, isn't it possible that it won't be that costly?

A: Right. I'm not sure that's what people will say. Sometimes in order to save money in one place, you have to spend money some other place to implement that saving. That may be one of the spinoffs of consolidation — we may have to have transportation.

Q: Is there anything in the union contract that prevents a reduction in work force, if it's found necessary.

A: In our contract we have a right to reduce the staff in time of financial emergency. We can't reduce during a contract year. In the middle of a year we just can't indiscriminately fire somebody. But as long as we abide by the contract, we just cannot issue new contracts to staff members. We have to do it on the basis of seniority and qualifications.

Q: Do you have some other thoughts on the union and negotiations?

A: We're talking about cost savings. Because so much of our costs (over three-quarters of total income) are wrapped up in salaries and fringe benefits, the most important thing the board does in representing the taxpayers is to negotiate contracts. It's very important for taxpayers to understand that the board is representing taxpayer interests.

It means that the community has to support the board if they're interested in saving money because that's what negotiations are all about. If you have a board that's not going to be strong, that's going to cave in to demands of employees, then it's going to cost the taxpayers money.

There have been negotiations in this state where the boards negotiated contracts which they didn't have money to pay for. That's a very, very bad situation. Our board has always been strong enough to arrive at fair agreements. We've been fair to our employees and have been very representative of our taxpayers.

Q: Were you anticipating a strike a few months ago because of the contract problem in that adjacent school district?

A: Yes, I was very concerned. I was concerned about how we were going to respond because we have a no-strike clause in our contract. And the first thing we would have done would be to go to court. If our teachers would have gone out in sympathy with the teachers of the other school district, it would have been a violation of our contract, of course. They fully understood this. We would have sought an injunction and I think we would have had an open-and-shut case because of our contract.

More than 1,000 men drove horse-drawn bath carts daily through the streets of Paris 150 years ago. On each cart was a tubful of warmed water. Customers tossed off their clothing and scrubbed themselves down, one by one. About 2,000 public bathhouses were operating thereabouts at the same time.

About orchids

Orchid grower William C. Nill will speak at the Men's Garden Club Thursday, Feb. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Exhibition Room of the Central Library. The program will focus on requirements for beginners.

Nill has been growing orchids for 20 years and estimates that he has more than 250 plants growing in his greenhouse. He was the only Michigan award winner at the World Orchid Conference held in Miami last year. He has won numerous trophies in various shows.

He is a member of the Michigan Orchid Society and a past president and current secretary of the Men's Garden Club.

There will be a question and answer period and visitors are welcome.

Foundation continues to offer enrichment

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Since its formation 14 years ago, the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrichment has brought at least 75 programs into local schools as part of its commitment to "supplement and enrich the educational program," according to its bylaws.

When the organization's trustees meet next week, they will discuss the possibility of going public for fundraising to expand its ability to offer programs, according to current president Dr. George Eddington.

The foundation was formed in 1971 in memory of a resident who left a bequest to fund the foundation's work, Eddington said. The organization still survives on the interest of that bequest, along with other contributions, bequests and grants from the Ida Faigle Foundation over the years, Eddington said.

The foundation usually has between $2,000 and $3,000 to spend yearly on a variety of speakers and programs. It currently has about $28,000 in its treasury.

"The idea is to provide programs in the public schools that weren't available through other means," Eddington said.

Among some of the programs funded this year were guest conductor Dr. Harry Begian, who worked with South's Symphonic Band and Orchestra for their performances at the Annual Midwestern Conference on School Vocal and Instrumental Music and at a concert at Parcells Middle School last month.

Michigan State University professor Dr. Don Lammers will present a program on British diplomatic history to students at the high schools this month. Dr. Glenn Altschuler, associate dean of the College of Arts and Science at Cornell University, will also present programs in coming months.

In the past three years, the foundation has assisted or plans to assist in the funding of 21 different programs at grade, middle and high schools as well as for teacher education and community education.

Programs at the high schools included two-day astronomy and history of science programs, musical presentations from Oakland University, a genetic engineering speaker, American studies programs, art history programs and musical theater productions.

Middle schools and elementary schools have seen presentations of science programs, Heritage music and paleobotany. Kerby received a contribution for its Heritage Hall and two ecology camping trips were funded as well.

The foundation encourages department heads to search for speakers and programs that supplement curriculum, Eddington said. Interested people then present the foundation's governing board with an application detailing the type of program, how many students will be participating and its value to the curriculum.

"We don't want programs that are not at all related to the curriculum," Eddington said. "We are trying to enrich the curriculum through these presentations."

Once the applications are returned, governing board members review them. Officers are Eddington as president; John Hammel, vice president; Peggy Davis, recording secretary; Ruth Zinn, corresponding secretary; and Joy Williams, treasurer.

The governing board looks for innovative programs that are of value to the curriculum and can be presented at more than one school.

Programs are looked at for their cross-curricular value also, Eddington said. Several years ago, the foundation brought in an art historian who discussed Italian art.

"Not only did we bring in art students for the presentations, but we also brought in foreign language students and history students as well," he added.

To stretch its limited funding, the foundation uses a number of techniques. For instance, it tries to find speakers who are going to be in the area for other engagements to cut travel costs from the grant.

Applicants are also asked if they have sought funds from other sources, such as PTOs and parents clubs. Last year's Russian studies seminar at South was jointly funded by foundation and school groups, Eddington said.

The foundation also tries to get more than just a presentation to students. After Dr. John Heisner made his presentation to students about marine biology, for which the Cornell professor is nationally known, a seminar was scheduled with teachers, adding some "on-the-job" training as well, Eddington said.

Despite its innovative use of funds, the foundation is limited in the programs it brings to schools.

In some cases, large bequests are made to be used for a single school and those wishes are honored, Eddington said. Although the foundation doesn't like to, sometimes it is necessary to pay for materials to be used during the programs. The foundation is also reluctant to fund programs from previous years, but has in certain cases, such as appearances by Mr. Wizard and Living Animals, which will come to the elementary schools. Children will have a chance to touch and learn about a variety of mammals and reptiles in that program.

By looking for contributions to the non-profit foundation, more programs can be brought to more schools, Eddington said. The bylaws are left flexible enough to give the trustees room to operate in bringing and funding programs to the schools, he added.

Another important part of the foundation's work is gathering feedback from teachers about presentations. Teachers give generally favorable reviews of the programs on the evaluation forms they complete after programs.

Follow-up helps the foundation make sure the programs relate to the curriculum, Eddington said. Among its 21 trustees and the district's directors of secondary and elementary curriculum, school board president and other school officials, ensuring programs relate to what's being taught, he added.

Eddington said he became involved with the foundation about seven years ago when he was doing public information duties. He has served as president for the past two years.

Contributions to the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrichment may be sent to 20090 Morningside, Grosse Pointe Woods 48236.

Marontate to head local variety club

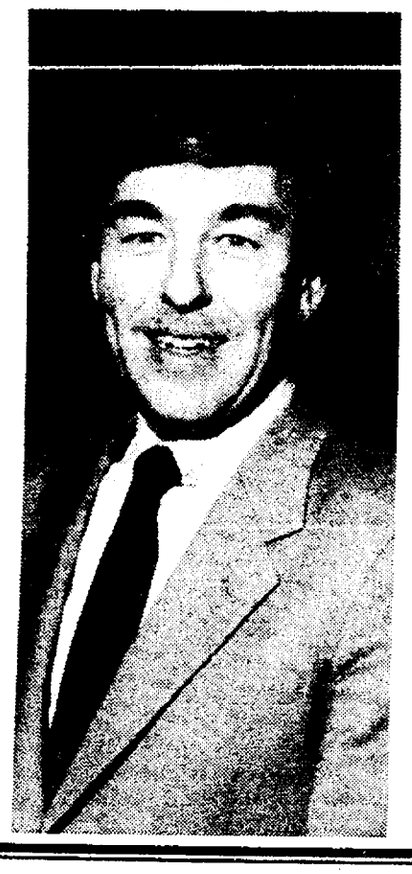
Shores resident Michael Marontate was elected president and chief barker of the Variety Club of Detroit for 1985. Marontate is owner of Marontate & Co. and Praught-Marontate Company, advertising and public relations agencies in the Renaissance Center.

Variety Clubs International, with 62 chapters in 10 countries, is the world's largest children's charity. It is devoted solely to raising money to contribute to the welfare of handicapped and underprivileged children.

It originated in Pittsburgh in 1927 following the abandonment of an infant by a distraught mother in a motion picture theater, and the child's adoption by 11 men in show business who became her unofficial godfathers. The Detroit Club was established in 1932.

The 400 members of the Detroit chapter of Variety Club support the Variety Club Electronic Limb Research Center at the Detroit Institute for Children and is a major contributor to Children's Hospital and children's charities throughout the Greater Detroit and Michigan area.

For further information, call Barbara Moretsky, executive director, or Marontate at 259-7400.



Historic landscape talk

Lecturer and historic landscape designer Scott G. Kunst will speak to members and guests of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society Monday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m. The lecture will be held in the studio of the Upper School at University Liggett, 1045 Cook Road.

The slide/lecture, "Antique Gardens: Period Landscaping for Restored Homes, 1830-1930," outlines the changing styles of gardening over the past century and offers suggestions for people who want to develop an old-fashioned garden. The show features period illustrations and gardens from throughout the Midwest.

Some of the topics will be: pioneer and Greek Revival gardens (to 1860); Victorian carpet-bedding (1870-1910); the English cottage garden (1900-1930); and Victorian garden ornaments.

Kunst describes the lecture as an outgrowth of his landscape-design business, Old House Gardens. Both seek to assist do-it-yourself restorationists and gardeners in developing home grounds that are both authentic and comfortable.

Admission is $2 for members and $4 for non-members. Refreshments will be served following the lecture.

For information, call the society at 884-7010 Tuesday and Wednesdays or Lisa Gandelot at 882-5001.

Amadeus auditions

Auditions for Grosse Pointe Theatre's production of "Amadeus" are scheduled for Friday, March 1, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. and Saturday, March 2, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. The theater is located at 315 Fisher Road.

Performance dates for the play, which will be directed by Barbara Bentley, are April 17-21 and 23-27.

For scripts or more information, call John Guadagnoli, producer, at 886-8901 Monday through Friday between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

CPR offered free at Cottage Hospital

The next free Heartsaver CPR class at Cottage Hospital will be held Thursday, Feb. 21, at 7 p.m. in the boardrooms on the lower level of the hospital.

The three-hour class includes basic anatomy, the most common heart attack signals and what to do if an attack occurs. A lecture, demonstration and individual student practice on mannequins are used. Other techniques are rescue breathing, one-person CPR and the obstructed airway maneuver.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation is a skill that could save someone's life. To register, call 884-8600, ext. 2390.

Hospitals learn marketing strategy

By Harriet Nolan

Come to the Bahamas, the tanned-skinned native beckons in melodic tones. Come to Florida, if you've got it bad, we've got it good, promises a voice hidden behind white sandy beaches, glorious sun and waters surpassed in blueness only by the azure skies above. And now hospitals are learning how to strut their stuff.

But what person in his right mind wants the unique experience of a barium enema or a colonoscopy? How many people get turned on by the sight of an examination table complete with stirrups?

Now hospitals are faced with the fact that in order to survive, they've got to compete and they've got to try to talk well people into coming to them when they get sick.

"One of our main objectives is to maintain Bon Secours' market share of patients," says Gregory Jakub, director of its marketing and public relations department. "The hospital even changed the department's name to reflect that goal."

Bon Secours wants its piece of a pie that encompasses residents from the Pointes, the east side of Detroit and the eastern suburbs.

To help, it has hired the consulting services of Anthony Franco Inc., Public Relations Counselors, for special projects and when the hospital's two-person office gets swamped with work.

Franco, a noted agency, is located in the Renaissance Center. Some of its clients include Kmart, Domino's Pizza and the Silverdome.

It was this agency that helped the hospital agressively market the recent opening of the Health and Fitness Center in St. Clair Shores, says Jakub.

The six-week advertising campaign, presented in major newspapers and community papers, captured 40 memberships, a 33 percent increase, says Jakub. A similar campaign is scheduled to begin soon in the Pointes.

Further promotion of the center's director as an expert enabled Dwight Gaal to appear on television and radio programs answering questions about health and fitness, Jakub adds.

Other tools the hospital uses to market itself includes a community newsletter mailed to about 40,000 people and a speakers bureau that offers the services of health professionals for groups, clubs and church organizations on request.

Newspapers are contacted and offered story ideas. Last year a Korean child was flown to Michigan by members of Heal the Children. She had been badly burned as a baby and her family was unable to pay for proper treatment. As she grew, her deformity became more severe.

"Our job is to be as responsive and cooperative with the media as we can in an effort to meet community needs for information about health care and to make sure our story gets told," says Jakub. "For example with the story involving the little girl, we not only showed that Bon Secours can provide services in this area, but served to promote our image as a caring institution.

"Our high quality of health care, delivered with compassion and caring for each individual, is the Sisters of Bon Secours' mission and philosophy in a nutshell — the thread that runs through everything that carries our name," he adds.

Bon Secours new for-profit pharmacy located next to the Family Practice Building in St. Clair Shores doesn't need a marketing push, according to Jakub, since it serves patients visiting doctors and also the nursing home nearby. "The marketing function there is related to its location."

At St. John Hospital, the marketing issue is just being studied on a large scale, says Michael Kairis, public relations director.

He says a recently commissioned survey indicated St. John is on par in the eyes of pollsters with Henry Ford Hospital. "But while we were perceived positively, people would like to know more about us. We haven't decided how to answer these needs yet."

They too have hired an advertising agency, J. Walter Thompson Co. Located in the Renaissance Center, it services companies that include Michigan National Bank, Booth Newspaper, Ford Division and The Anderson Co.

Kairis says Thompson was chosen "because they have the experience and technique to deal in a buyer's market, which includes health care."

Its first attempt at mass advertising in radio dealt with the general image of the hospital versus specific services.

Kairis called the spots vignettes and described one where a young couple discuss the fear and unknown of having their first child. It ends when the husband tell his wife not to worry — after all they're going to St. John.

"While we recognize we have a lot of high technology and equipment we take pride in the caring of the staff," he adds.

Cottage Hospital is also just starting to look at the whole strategy of marketing, says Kathleen Maslanka, public relations director.

They do, however, advertise nursing homes, located in Harper Woods and Roseville, in Fairway Magazine, a Lochmoor Club publication, the Grosse Pointe Dinner Theater Program at the War Memorial and the Detroit Yacht Club's Main Sheet mailed to members, she says.

They have made a path in the surrounding community by offering seminars on programs that include headaches, anorexia nervosa, stress and facelifts.

Pre-ski clinics and tips and workshops on running, along with the annual fun-run are all aimed at letting people know Cottage stands, ready, willing and able to help them in times of need.

Health seminar

Dr. Lawrence Power, professor of medicine at Wayne State University, director of The Metabolic Center in Southfield and TV personality, and Barb Otul, Kalosomatics exercise program director, will present a health seminar Friday, Feb. 15, at 7 p.m. at the Assumption Cultural Center, 21800 Marter Road, St. Clair Shores. Admission is $5. Refreshments will be served. Call 779-6111 for more information and reservations.

Free health seminars

The professional staff at the Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center in St. Clair Shores will offer free seminars on four consecutive Tuesdays, 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m., in February and March.

The topics and dates are:

Feb. 19 — "Sporting Injuries, Diseases of Excellence — Recognition, Treatment, and Prevention," by Dwight Gaal, M.A., exercise physiology and director, Bon Secours Hospital Helth and Fitness Center.

Feb. 26 — "Women and Exercise: The Facts and Myth-conceptions," by Shelby Seaton, M.A., exercise physiology.

March 5 — "Exercise and Weight Control: How to Win the Battle of the Bulge," by Dwight Gaal, M.A.

March 12 — "Dealing with Stress," by Dwight Gaal, M.A.

All seminars will be offered in the classroom at the Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center, 22300 Bon Brae, west of Jefferson between 10 and 11 Mile roads.

For more information about the free seminars or other programs, call 779-7040.

DEI begins alumni search

The Detroit Engineering Institute is conducting an alumni search in conjunction with the school's 75th anniversary celebration.

Since its founding in 1910 by German immigrant Dr. Eugene Kovach, the technical institute has graduated more than 18,000 engineering technologists, design drafters, electronics technicians and air conditioning, refrigeration and heating service technicians.

Detroit Engineering Institute President Peter Bercik feels that it is essential for the institute to reconstruct its graduate files from its earliest history.

"Graduates who have distinguished themselves through their industrial contributions or accomplishments should notify the institute so that we may justly document and display these accomplishments in our archives."

He asks alumni to call the institute at 222-7450.

A diamond jubilee celebration, open house and picnic will be held at the Detroit Engineering Institute tech center complex later in the year, featuring alumni and leaders from industry, government and education.

Obituaries

Rev. Myron B. Bloy Jr.

Nationally known churchman Myron B. Bloy Jr., noted for his work as an Episcopalian priest, civil rights activist and educator, died in his sleep Jan. 28 in Washington D.C.

He was in the Capitol to lead a conference at the College of Preachers at the National Cathedral.

Dr. Bloy, born in Detroit and a 1944 graduate of Grosse Pointe High School, was 58.

He was chaplain and associate professor of religion at Sweet Briar College and was active in the religious life of Amherst and Lynchburg colleges, as well as colleges in central Virginia. He was known for his commitment toward developing a sense of community on the Sweet Briar campus and to fostering closer ties among the white and black churches of the region.

He was founder and director of the Annual Consultation for Associates for Religion and Intellectual Life in America" at the organization's quarterly journal. Dr. Bloy was also scheduled to give an address on "Religion and Intellectual LIfe in America" at the Annual Conference on the Higher Education Foundation at Oxford University next month.

Before assuming his duties at Sweet Briar in 1979, he was president of the National Institute for Campus Ministries Inc., in Newton Centre, Mass., an institution to provide research and development support for ministries of Jews and Christians in higher education.

From 1958 to 1966, he served as the first Episcopalian chaplain at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he developed the M.I.T. seminar in technology and culture, which involves faculty and students in on-going studies of issues in the relation of technology to social and cultural change.

Dr. Bloy was the author of "The Crisis of Cultural Change," plus numerous articles on religion and higher education and on technology and culture in "Christian Century," "Motive," "Christianity and Crisis," "Commonwealth," "The Chronicle of Higher Education" and elsewhere, with reprints in other journals and in "The Essence of Good Writing."

He was a member of the Visiting Committee on Religious Life and Chaplaincy, Tufts University; the board of the Church Society for College Work; the board of the Council on Religion and Law; and the Ecumenical Commission of the Episcopal Diocese of Southwestern Virginia.

He was also a former member of the visiting Committee for the Divinity School, Harvard Board of Overseers; Danforth Advisory Council for Campus Ministry Fellowships; trustee council of the University of Massachusetts and Board of Examining Chaplains, Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts.

Dr. Bloy recieved his bachelor's degree from Kenyon College in 1950, master's degree from the University of Connecticut in 1958, and completed course work for a doctorate in English literature at Ohio State University. He earned a bachelor of sacred theology degree in 1956 from Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass.

Dr. Bloy served in the Navy from 1944-1946 and before assuming his duties at M.I.T., was assistant at St. Paul's Cathedral in Detroit for two years.

Services for Dr. Bloy were held Saturday, Feb. 2, at Grace Church, Newton, Mass. A memorial service will be held at Sweet Briar College at a later date.

Dr. Bloy is survived by his wife, Caroline Kuhn Bloy; two sons, Michael and Peter; a daughter, Sarah Bloy; and one brother, Frederick Bloy, of the Pointe. He was the son of the late Helen Gibson and Myron B. Bloy.

Memorials may be made to the Church of Society for College Work, 238 Main St., Cambridge, Mass. 02142.

Alice Snider Hall

A memorial service for Mrs. Hall, 64, will be held at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 16 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

She died Feb. 5 in St. John Hospital.

Born in Michigan, she was an executive secretary at a Comerica Bank.

Mrs. Hall is survived by her husband, William B.; two stepdaughters, Barbara Terepin and Nancy Dutton; and one brother.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Cancer Loan Closet Foundation, 1009 Buckingham, Grosse Pointe Park 48230.

Arrangements were handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home.

Nancy Lee St. Peter

Services for Miss St. Peter, formerly of the Farms, lately of St. Clair Shores, were held Thursday, Feb. 12 at the Verheyden Funeral Home.

She died Feb. 10 in Bon Secours Hospital.

Miss St. Peter was a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School and Webber College. She was a Detroit News executive secretary for 25 years and a member of Professional Secretaries International.

She was the daughter of the late Leonard and Christine St. Peter, and is survived by two brothers; two sisters; two nieces; three nephews, an uncle; and five great-nieces and nephews.

Interment was at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Catherine D. Vismara

Services for Mrs. Vismara, 83, of Three Mile Drive, were held Monday, Feb. 11, at the Verheyden Funeral Home and St. Clare of Montefalco Church.

She died Feb. 7 in St. John Hospital.

Born in Detroit, she was predeceased by her husband, Edward. She is survived by three daughters, Mary Lou Kulakowski, Barbara Reid and Frances Solomon; a son, John; 12 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Community Center or the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

George H. Stover

A memorial service for Mr. Stover, 75, of Vincennes Road, was held Wednesday, Feb. 6, at the Verheyden Funeral Home and Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

He died Feb. 3 in St. John Hospital.

Born in South Bend, Ind., he was an executive with the Chrysler Corp. for 42 years. A graduate of Eastern Michigan University, Mr. Stover was a former director of the Dodge Main plant in Hamtramck.

He was also active in Junior Achievement and helped minority students enter college. He was a member of the Senior Men's Club and the Lochmoor Club.

Mr. Stover is survived by his wife, Bonnie; two sons, Gregg and David; a daughter, Kay Ethridge; one sister; and five grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Salvation Army, 601 Bagley, Detroit, 48226.

Dorothy B. Rizner

Services for Mrs. Rizner, 64, of Barclay Road, were held Friday, Feb. 8 at the Verheyden Funeral Home.

She died Feb. 6 in her home.

Mrs. Rizner was a retired school teacher.

She is survived by her husband, Andrew, and two sisters.

Interment was at Evergreen Cemetery.

Alice M. Oyler

A memorial Mass for Mrs. Oyler, 88, of McKinley Road, will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 16, at St. Paul's Catholic Church.

She died Feb. 7 in Bon Secours Hospital.

Born in Cincinnati, she was a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and took graduate courses at Columbia University. A Grosse Pointe resident for more than 50 years, she was a member of Lochmoor Country Club and the Assistance League of Bon Secours Hospital.

Mrs. Oyler is survived by a stepson, Thomas T.; a daughter, Jane Bodeau; one brother; five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Bon Secours Assistance League.

Arrangements were handled by the Verheyden Funeral Home.

Anita Mae Brunette

Services for Mrs. Brunette, 91, of the Park, were held Monday, Feb. 11 at the A.J. Desmond and Sons Funeral Home, Troy.

She died Feb. 8 in the Luther Haven Convalescent Home.

Mrs. Brunette is survived by a daughter, Rose Lee Tyler; a son, Jack F.; four grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to Leader Dogs for the Blind.

Interment was at Roseland Park Cemetery.

Park home robbed

Neighbors alerted police to a break-in at a home in the 800 block of Barrington in the Park, according to police.

Witnesses spotted a man carrying a bag in the rear yard of the home about 11:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 7, according to reports. Officers responding to the call followed the thief's tracks in the snow and searched the area, but didn't find the culprit, reports said.

The thief entered the home from the screened rear porch and ransacked the living quarters before escaping. The amount of the loss is unknown, police said.

Headaches

Grosse Pointe Woods Chiropractic Clinic
881-7677

Q. Can you help my wife with her migraine headaches?

A. Headaches can vary in intensity and location. There can be many causes of headaches including eye strain, digestive trouble, elimination problems, kidney and heart trouble, meningitis and low blood sugar.

One of the more common causes of headaches is misalignment and improper function of the spinal vertebrae (bones), resulting in nerve cord pressure. Unfortunately many people have overlooked the benefits of chiropractic treatment. The Doctor of Chiropractic will correct the nerve pressure that exists and relieve the chronic headaches thus eliminating the underlying cause of the problem.

Brought to you as a community service by Dr. David Jantz. If you have any further questions call or write the clinic. Grosse Pte. Wds. Chiropractic Clinic. 20217 Mack GPW, phone 881-7677.

Host families sought by AFS chapter

Each year more than 3,000 foreign exchange students come to the United States to study in high schools across the country and share the lives of American families under the auspices of AFS International/Intercultural Programs, the oldest and largest foreign exchange organization for high school students.

AFS students live as members of the family, sharing their triumphs and problems as they learn about their new country, their new culture and develop their English skills. They attend regular classes and have an impact upon other students as well as their host families.

"Our AFS student is as much our son as any of our other children," one host mother said. "He will always have a very special place in our lives. The year that he was here was just the beginning of a very special relationship."

The Grosse Pointe South Chapter of AFS is looking for more families in Grosse Pointe to host students for the coming year, according to Ann Nicholson, chapter chairman. The requirements are simple: openness to new ideas, an interest in people and a place for the student to sleep.

AFS has all kinds of families as hosts. Although most AFS families have teenage children, families with young children or no children are welcomed and encouraged to apply.

Host families are not asked to make special expenditures for the AFS students, but they do pay food costs and incidental expenses as they would for any child of their own. Under the provision of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, host families are eligible to take a $50 per month deduction. AFS extends medical coverage to its students as well as sending them monthly allowances.

All AFS applicants have been carefully screened by the national office of their home country as well as at AFS international headquarters in New York, according to Mrs. Nicholson. Families interested in this opportunity to build international understanding should write to Mrs. Nicholson at 222 Cloverly, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236, or call at 884-4637.

Pierce sponsors Club Night

If you'd like to watch a car race, play with a computer, hear a jazz band, or find out how to be a cheerleader, then Pierce Middle School is the place to be on Thursday, Feb. 21, at 7:30 p.m. The Pierce PTO and faculty will sponsor their first Club Night. On that evening, parents and students will have a chance to enjoy a variety of demonstrations designed to showcase the school's clubs and extracurricular activities.

Representatives of all the school's clubs and athletic teams will be on hand in the gym to explain their activities, answer questions, and encourage students to join. In addition, selected groups will make longer presentations throughout the evening.

Members of Pierce's three Olympics of the Mind teams will demonstrate the problems they are working on for the regional competition in March. The Adolescent Concerns program will be explained, and parents will be able to familiarize themselves with the material used in the course.

The Junior Great Books program — new at Pierce this year — will be discussed and demonstrated by students currently taking part in this enrollment program. Members of Pierce's most popular club — the Computer Club — will give interested parents and students a chance to get their hands on a computer.

And a middle school grand prix will be run by eighth grade industrial arts students who will race the miniature cars they designed and built in class.

Union rents space in Barnes School

The Grosse Pointe Educational Association, the union representing the district's teachers, will lease office space at Barnes School from the district until the end of the school year.

The board agreed to lease 500 square feet of unused office space to the association Monday night. The two offices aren't being used now and are across the hall from the kindergarten, according to school officials.

Rent is $275 a month to cover utilities. The association will be responsible for keeping the rooms clean, according to interim superintendent Dr. Joseph Spagnoli.

The school district originally asked $300 a month for the two offices, while the association offered $250, so the two sides compromised on $275, he added.

The rooms aren't being used now, Spagnoli said.

The lease will run through June 30, after which it will be reviewed. Either side may decide to discontinue the leasing, according to school officials.

The education association currently has offices on Mack in the Park, according to associate officials.

A Spanish chorus line

Ole! Hundreds of Spanish students from all grades at Our Lady Star of the Sea got into the act last week when Christina and Antonio, known as Los Flamencos from the Young Audiences of Michigan, appeared at the school for an entertaining lesson in Spanish culture and music. Christina won over her young audience with spirited Spanish flamenco dancing, coupled with detailed explanations of the ancient art form and its origins. Highlight of the day was when dozens of students were selected to appear with Christina in a hand-clapping, foot-stomping finale.

South Mothers Club accepting scholarship applications

The Grosse Pointe South Mothers Club is accepting applications from graduating seniors for scholarships. The applications are available in the Career Resource Center. Deadline is March 4.

Requirements are financial need, a minimum C grade point average, participation in extracurricular activities and acceptance by a Michigan state-supported college. A private school, such as a secretarial school or the Center for Creative Studies, whose costs do not exceed that of a public institution, is also acceptable.

The Scholarship Committee will review the applications and advise applicants by letter before graduation in June. This year a special scholarship will be given in memory of Dr. James Hoeh, a past principal of South High.

Two groups donate $21,000 to schools

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education accepted more than $21,000 worth of gifts from the Monteith PTO and the board of directors of the Friends of the Library at its Feb. 11 meeting.

The friends' gift of $18,200 was offered to the public library, with $10,000 earmarked for the purchase of adult books, $5,000 for juvenile books, $1,700 for a computer terminal and $1,500 for a port opening for the terminal, according to the school system.

Monteith PTO's $3,295 gift is meant for a variety of purposes, including $1,600 for the student assembly, $600 for student field trips, $500 for student awards, $100 for the Art-ala-Carte program, $50 for science room materials, $225 for safety patrol rainwear and $220 for the fifth grade picnic and promotion ceremony.

The board must approve the acceptance of all gifts of more than $500.

Chamber music concert

The Chamber Music Players of Grosse Pointe will present a concert Sunday, Feb. 17, at 2:30 p.m. in the Fries Ballroom at the War Memorial. Performers include Doreen Taylor, left, and Josephine Howes who will play Bizet's "Children's Games," a suite written for two pianists at one keyboard. Admission is $3. Refreshments follow the program. The next concert is March 17.

Starting over

The Beginning Experience is a weekend program designed to help widowed, separated and divorced persons to make a new beginning in life.

Future Beginning Experience weekends will be held Feb. 22-24 at the Common Place in Detroit and April 19-21 at St. Mary's in Monroe.

For more information and a brochure, call the Family Life Office at 237-5892.

Wayburn homes hit

There were three break-ins and one attempt on the 1000, 1200 and 1400 blocks of Wayburn in the Park.

The first was reported to police at about 10 a.m. Monday, Feb. 4, according to reports. Thieves entered the vacant building and removed leaded glass windows and doors, police said.

Also Monday, a resident frightened a culprit away from a home in the 1200 block. The thief attempted to cut through the screen door and inside door. Police searched the area but were unable to find the culprit.

Friday evening, a resident in the 1400 block of Wayburn called police to say that sometime overnight, a thief broke a basement window, entered the home and took a number of household appliances.

Sunday, in the 1000 block of Wayburn, thieves broke out the glass in the side door of a home, entered and took items of jewelry, police said.

Grandparents Day at St. Paul's

In conjunction with Catholic Schools Week, St. Paul planned several activities involving students and parents. Grandparents Day was held Feb. 6 and more than 250 grandparents participated in activities with their grandchildren in the first through fourth grades. Parents were invited Feb. 5 to have "Coffee with the Principal." Then a spelling bee was held during the week. Maureen Yap, 8th grade, won first place; Billy Leins, 6th grade, placed second; and Ann McDonald, 8th grade, took third. The week ended with the Science Fair for grades 5 through 8.

The Marygrove College Classical Guitar Ensemble, directed by Michael Bryce, will present a concert Friday, Feb. 15 at 8 p.m. in the theater in the Liberal Arts Building on campus, 8425 West McNichols at Wyoming in northwest Detroit. Admission is $3.

The program will include the music of Haydn, Bach, Vivaldi, von Call, Susato, Brouwer, Llobet, Gastoldi, Gimenez, Scheidt, Mozart-Marx and Bryce on one, two, four and six guitars.

For more information, call 862-8000, ext. 290, or 354-6276.

Camera club

The Grosse Pointe Camera Club will meet Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 7:45 p.m., at the Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte, in the Farms.

A mini-program by Kay Couchman, "Detroit in Retrospect," will be presented along with the color print and nature slide competition.

Visitors are welcome.

Ten Little Indians

The East Detroit Civic Theatre will present Agatha Christie's mystery, "Ten Little Indians," this weekend at East Detroit High School, Gratiot and Couzens, one block south of 9 Mile Road. Performances are at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 14, and Friday, Feb. 15, and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 16.

Senior adult dance

Senior adults can enjoy dancing and listening to the toe-tapping sounds of the Standard Five swing combo band, Thursday, Feb. 21, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Tickets, which are $2.50 per person, are available in advance or at the door.

Cinema League

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will present "Cruising the Baltic and North Sea," a 35mm slide presentation by Frank and Betty Seydler, at 8 p.m. Monday, Feb. 18, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Stops are made at Gdynia, Poland's principal Baltic port, and Gdansk, where 10th century buildings have been restored.

Featured in the Russian portion of the program are Leningrad's palaces of the Romanoffs. Helsinki, Finland and the island of Gotland in the Baltic are filmed.

The ship cruises the fjords of Norway and includes excursions into glacier plateaus.

The public is welcome. A $1 admission charge will be made for non-league members.

Tax workshop

A tax survival workshop will be offered by Marygrove College, Division of Continuing Education, Saturday, March 2, from 9 a.m. to noon. The class will include a discussion of financial planning and investment strategies used to defer, exempt, divert and shelter income from taxation.

Cost is $20. For more information or to register, call 862-8000, ext. 240.

Vaudeville

The Grosse Pointe Barbershoppers will revive vaudeville, replete with jugglers, magicians, comedians and clowns, tomorrow and Saturday, Feb. 15 and 16, at North High at 8 p.m. This year's show is the 17th annual event and is the principle fundraiser for the group.

The evening will include Touch of Clash, a comedy quartet from Pioneer, Mich., Musicality, a Sweet Adelines quartet that placed second in the state finals, and Lakeshore Chorus, the 1984 district champion directed by Russ Seely.

Tickets are $7 and are available from Joe Bichler, ticket chairman, at 884-6838, or at the door.

Districts organize to oppose rule changes

By Mike Andrzejczyk

A group of program directors has let the state board of education know it opposes changes in administrative rules for special education departments.

The group, including Grosse Pointe's Dr. Claire Hunt, voiced its opposition at a public hearing held by the board Tuesday in Wayne on the 62 changes.

Twelve new rules have been proposed dealing with resource rooms for handicapped children, revisions in procedures in hearings, investigations of parents' complaints, changes in personnel qualification and revised caseloads, according to the state education department.

Certain rules, like changes in hearing procedures and the addition of educational consultants, are unnecessary and expensive, according to the program directors.

Dr. Hunt presented some of the proposed rule changes to the Grosse Pointe Board of Education Monday night and asked it to oppose some outright or support revisions of proposed rules.

The six included the addition of educational consultants and setting their caseloads, caseload changes for learning resource teachers, changes in the hearing process and expansion of the powers of the hearing officers.

The most confusing and expensive change is the addition of the educational consultant, which will add another layer to the continuum of services delivered by the special education department. The change could cost Grosse Pointe $50,000 to $60,000, Dr. Hunt said.

An educational consultant would be a resource person required to have a master's degree in special education and three years of special education teaching experience.

The consultant would take over testing duties of the current teacher/consultants and would meet with parents, teachers and students to give ideas about curriculum, according to Edward Birch, state director of special education.

That function is already performed by the teacher/consultants in the classrooms giving care to students, Dr. Hunt said. Adding the educational consultants means another category and would be costly and unnecessary under the present system.

"Whenever you have a person who doesn't see kids, you have to question the need for that position," she added.

The educational consultant is another level in the contiuum of care, Birch said. Depending on assessed needs, a child may find himself "mainstreamed," or spending the day in average classrooms. The child may also be referred to an educational consultant, who will offer aid through some programs. Resource programs are also available as well as self-contained classrooms, Birch said.

The current system in Grosse Pointe includes mainstreaming, learning resource centers and self-contained classrooms.

Locally, learning resource centers fulfill the proposed elementary resource program, Dr. Hunt said. Elementary and middle school centers offer indirect aid, she added.

The state decided to upgrade teacher/consultant positions by instituting the educational consultant, Birch said. The highly qualified person would offer support services to parents and students.

An educational consultant, although requiring more education, need not be trained in more than one discipline, Dr. Hunt said.

Special education teachers complete programs at universities approved by the state board of education, for which they receive endorsements in certain categories or special education.

Dr. Hunt also asked the local school board to support a revised rule for the institution of due process hearings.

Currently a child, after initially being considered a candidate for a special program, is tested by the district's chief psychologist, who must file a report on the findings. Teachers prepare their own reports of how special programs could aid the child. A teacher/consultant observes and reports on the child.

An Individual Educational Planning Committee meeting is then held. The chief psychologist, classroom teacher who made referral, school principal, teacher/consultant or social worker, parents and perhaps the student meet to decide if the child needs special attention and set long- and short-term educational goals for the student.

The committee decides which program is best for the child. Most of the problems arise when parents are told their child may have to be sent to programs in other cities because there are none available locally, Dr. Hunt said.

There are certain "low-incidence" disorders, like autism, for which regional programs are set up, Dr. Hunt said. The Wayne County Intermediate School District provides a number of programs. Grosse Pointe also has one for the trainable mentally-impaired.

A proposed rule change for the hearing process would allow anyone to initiate a hearing, which could cost as much as $2,000 in legal and administrative fees, Dr. Hunt said.

Changing the rule to ask for written specifics for the reasons for the hearing would cut the number of spurious or unnecessary requests, she said. Also, although the agency could dismiss requests, an appeal process still exists for the aggrieved.

The hearing officer at the due process hearing would, under a proposed change, be able to assign the student to facilities or agencies within the area.

That should be eliminated, because it's a dangerous expansion of the powers of the hearing officer, Dr. Hunt said. Currently, a hearing officer may define the program for a child, but the school superintendent is responsible for placement.

Another proposed rule change would limit a student's participation in an elementary resource program to half a day.

Locally, that may exclude some students who could benefit from the resource program but are enrolled in classes more than half the day, Dr. Hunt says.

Students who use the resource center often need special attention in a given subject and spend the rest of their school time in mainstream classrooms, Dr. Hunt said.

The rule changes may not be ready for implementation by next school year, Birch said. The state board has yet to complete the learning process. It will then submit the rules and the changes to the legislature for approval.

Feminism is topic at church Sunday

Jaqueline Steingold, past president of the Detroit chapter of NOW, will speak at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church Sunday, Feb. 17 at 11 a.m.

Her topic will be Feminism, a Challenge to Men and Women. Ms. Steingold has been active in NOW for 12 years, and on its board for eight years. She is a probation officer with the Wayne County Juvenile Court. She is also the vice president of the Child Care Coordinating Council of Detroit and Wayne County and a member of the board of Detroit Women's Forum.

The service is sponsored by the Lay Services Committee. Women from the congregation participating in the forum are Alice Snyder, chairing the meeting, with readings by Marjorie Casswell, Jean Harris and Carol Sheffield.

Music will be chosen by Doris Eubank, who is selecting music written by women. A special song has been written — both words and music — by Betty Sue Campbell and Alice Snyder. "Now I Have Begun to Sing My Song" will be played and sung by Bess Bonnier.

The Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church is located at 17150 Maumee.

Groups can get free tax help

Groups of taxpayers may receive free income tax assistance at convenient times and locations in their community, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Known as Community Outreach Tax Assistance, this group assistance program is designed to either help taxpayers prepare their own returns or help them learn about tax law provisions and recent changes of particular interest to them.

For locations in the area, call the IRS at 1-800-424-1040.

Small business tax workshop set

Tax Benefits of Small Business, a one-day workshop for current or prospective small business owners and managers, will be held Saturday, Feb. 16 from 8:15 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Wayne State University's McGregor Memorial Conference Center located on campus.

Participants will learn the basic tax concepts necessary to minimize taxes on business income, review tax shelter aspects of small businesses, understand the role of the IRS and common myths and misinformation. The workshop will be under the direction of Albert Spalding, C.P.A., attorney and small business consultant.

Co-sponsored by Wayne State University's College of Lifelong Learning, the U.S. Small Business Administration and the Small Business Development Center, the workshop fee of $40 includes materials, refreshments and lunch.

For further information or registration, call Nancy J. Grose or Karen Leigh at 577-4710.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Twenty-five years ago, the Detroit Chapter of the Archives of American Art held its first Lundi Gras, a black tie gala that would become a tradition, setting the standard for gourmet elegance in the metropolitan Detroit area. It's that time of year again . . . and Lundi Gras XXV will be presented Monday, Feb. 18, at Restaurant Duglass.

People who were part of that first Lundi Gras celebration in 1960, and their families, continue to support the Archives of American Art. It was, after all, born in Detroit, although it's now part of and housed at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. The late Mrs. Edsel B. Ford was vice-president of the Archives' National Trustees.

Lundi Gras still attracts community and civic leaders, who gather each year to dine gloriously for the good of the cause: collecting and preserving the History of American Art. Mrs. Thomas Schoenith is current president of the Archives' Detroit Committee. Mrs. Richard Manoogian is co-chairing Lundi Gras XXV, with assistance from Lee Morrell, Mrs. Abbott Schlain and Robert Mounsey.

They're working with Douglas Grech, the Duglass of Restaurant Duglass, to combine exquisite dining, decorating and dress for the Silver Anniversary of Lundi Gras. If you're interested in learning more about the Detroit Archives' support group and/or Lundi Gras XXV, the Archives' local office number is 226-7544.

A HEARTfelt Tribute to Marathon Volunteers

A HEARTfelt tribute — and the first opportunity to view the Millender Center's model apartment suites — will bring many Pointers to the heart of downtown Detroit this Saturday night. The 6 to 10 p.m. party is a "thank-you" to volunteer workers for their efforts during the 10th Annual Detroit Symphony/WQRS Radio Marathon, which aired Feb. 6 through 10.

The Marathon raises funds for the DSO's Youth Education and Outreach Programs. Proceeds from Saturday's benefit (tickets are priced at $25 each) will cap the Marathon coffers.

There'll be wine, hors d'oeuvres and music to entertain guests as they queue up for access to the suites on the 17th floor of Millender Center apartments. There'll be more wine, hors d'oeuvres and music, along with an array of delectable Valentine desserts, upstairs, in the suites decorated by Carole Harris, Gloria Tellis and Tim Fekete. All have incorporated Michigan art work in their decor.

Celebration co-chairmen are Peggy McCourt, who may be reached at 567-9000 for ticket information, and Pat Auer. They have, needless to say, put their hearts into planning this party.

Hearts are Alpha Phi's strong suit

MRS. ALLAN NEEF (left) opened her Lakeshore Road home on Tuesday, Jan. 29, for the Grosse Pointe Alumnae of Alpha Phi national fraternity's bridge benefit. Mrs. Neef's co-chairman for the evening was MRS. GEOFFREY WELSHER (right), and among those who gathered for play was MRS. JAMES ALLEN, president of the local alumnae. Hearts were, of course, everyone's strong suit, for Alpha Phi's national philanthropy is the Heart Fund. Funds raised by the Pointe Alumnae last month will go in part to Saint John Hospital.

NEGC offers older woman support group

The Northeast Guidance Center has created a series of programs, "The Older Woman: Double Jeopardy," to help women address the challenges of aging. The series is designed to help women understand and anticipate the dual issues of being female and being older, as well as to assist them to explore options available for gaining skills leading to further growth and development.

The six-week program, using a support group format, covers such topics as Stereotypes of Women, Goals and Supports, Moods and Stress, and Identity.

The series incorporates a number of techniques, including behavioral graphing, assertiveness training, goal planning and implementation, and stress management. The next session of "Double Jeopardy" begins Wednesday, Feb. 20. Facilitator is Mary Ann Collinson, M.A.

The group will meet weekly through Mar. 27 from 2 to 4 p.m. at Salem Memorial Church on Moross Road. Registration may be made by contacting Ms. Collinson at the NEGC, 824-8000, Extension 285.

Women who have completed the program cite the support group format as extremely helpful in encouraging explanation of issues and expansion of self-awareness. The group offers feedback and suggestions towards goals and strategies for attaining goals.

As one participant said: "This course helped me get excited about solving problems!"

Vows spoken in November

At home in Mishawaka, Ind., are Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Michael Brady, who vacationed in Hawaii, visiting Honolulu and Maui, following their wedding Saturday, November 17, in Old Saint Mary's Church, Greektown. The 3:30 o'clock ceremony at which The Reverend James D. Sullivan, CSSP, presided was followed by a reception at Gino's Surf in Mount Clemens.

The bride, the former Susan Rene Murawski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murawski, of Livonia, wore a traditional gown, white in color, its high-necked bodice of illusion and Alencon lace rising from an off-the-shoulder neckline, its full skirt featuring a ruffled, Chantilly lace cathedral train.

Hand-worked satin bows, faux pearls and crystal beading accented the dress. A headpiece of Alencon lace with handsewn pearls and crystal beading held the former Miss Murawski's triple-tiered, fingertip veil, accented with Chantilly lace and pearls.

She carried a round bouquet of cymbidium orchids, white Sweetheart roses, carnations, freesia and baby's-breath, with white satin streamers, and was attended by her cousin, Peggy Ann Isom, as honor maid, and by bridesmaids Karen Galbraith, Chickie Girvan, Lisa Johnson, Lynne Metevier and Kathy Rogers.

Their off-the-shoulder dresses of bright cranberry silk-taffeta featured three-quarter length sleeves and full, floor length skirts. Cranberry silk streamers accented their round bouquets of pink and white miniature carnations, cranberry tea roses and baby's-breath. They wore matching combs with fresh flowers in their hair.

Flower girl Nancy Pieknik, cousin of the bride, in a hoop-skirted gown of cranberry taffeta accented with white lace and ribbons, carried a basket of the fresh flowers that formed the senior attendants' bouquets.

Mr. Brady, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brady, of Hawthorne Road, asked Steve Perrone, of Peoria, Ill., to act as best man. Ushers were Adam Brady, brother of the bridegroom, former Woods residents James Lafer, of Mount Clemens, and Shawn Lakin, of Midland, and the bride's brothers, Kenneth Murawski, of Livonia, and Mark Murawski, of St. Louis, Mo.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom both selected floor length dresses, the former's of dusty rose organza, the latter's of heliotrope georgette. Each wore a shoulder corsage of stephanotis and phalaenopsis orchids.

The bride, given in marriage by her father at the double ring ceremony, is completing work for her Bachelors degree in Business at Indiana University, South Bend, where the bridegroom, whose father was photographer for the wedding, works for Burroughs Corporation.

Special guests included the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Walter Zupke, and his great-grandmother, Mrs. Charles Ranges, both of Detroit, the bridegroom's brother, Cameron Brady, of Toledo, Ohio., and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Helen Saj, of Detroit.

More were Mrs. Arthur G. Sherman Jr., Mrs. Chris J. Klein, Ms. Marion Haarer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brooks, Ms. Pamela Jacobus and Peter Dahling, all of The Shores; Mr. and Mrs. William P. Heller Jr. and Ms. Judith Cahill, of The Park; Mr. and Mrs. William P. Heller, Ms. Janet Gramzow and Matthew Baker, of St. Clair Shores; Douglas Heller, of Ann Arbor, and Ms. Linda Heller-Nadel and Rebecca Nadel, recently of Duluth, Minn.

Miss Chapman to be married

Mrs. Capers Keyser Eaton, of Grosse Pointe, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Susan Keyser Chapman, to Steven Malevich II, son of the late Colonel and Mrs. Steven Malevich, of Fauquier, Va. An early March wedding is planned, in The Pointe.

The bride-elect, a 12th generation direct descendant of Elder William Brewster, of the Mayflower, is an alumna of Mount Vernon College, Washington, D.C., and a member of the Sigma Gamma Association.

Her father, Chauncey Brewster Chapman Jr., was Assistant Solicitor for Territories in the Department of the Interior prior to his death in 1980. Miss Chapman is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ralph Stover Keyser, of Washington, D.C., and the late Major General Keyser, who was Assistant Commandant of the United States Marine Corps during World War II.

Mr. Malevich, a graduate of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute College of Business, is an executive with the Defense Systems Division of Honeywell, Inc., in Minneapolis, Minn. His father was a vice-president, Frank R. Harris, Civil Engineer Consultants of New York City, prior to his death in 1968.

Officers' Ball held at DYC

The Annual Officers' Dinner Ball held at the Detroit Yacht Club Saturday evening, Feb. 2, was a black tie affair, with 500 members and guests in attendance. Among them were Commodores from surrounding yacht clubs, including the Grosse Pointe, Great Lakes, Bayview and Windsor Yacht Clubs, and the Detroit Boat Club.

The evening honored the DYC's 1985 flag officers, headed by Commodore Edwin F. Jaquet, Vice Commodore L.W. Forrester and Rear Commodore John McAllister. After passing through a receiving line in the clubhouse opened in 1923 under the aegis of Gar A. Wood, guests enjoyed dinner.

The flag officers were announced by a United States Coast Guard piper. After dinner, there was a grand march through the ballroom, led by a United States Marine Corps Color Guard.

Music was provided by the Johnny Wallace Orchestra. Pink azaleas, ficus trees and pink and cream orchids splashed two floors of the DYC with vivid color.

Phase I focus on Australia

Each year, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church invites an outstanding church leader from another country to serve for a month as Ecumenical Minister — and each year, Phase I, the single, young adults, ages 25 to 40, who gather regularly for Sunday evening program meetings at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, invites the Ecumenical Minister to speak at one of these meetings.

This year's Ecumenical Minister, Les Brockway, comes from Australia. He will address the Phase I group this Sunday, Feb. 17, at 7:45 p.m. at the church.

Barbara Belfore

Miss Belfore to say vows

Barbara Kerr Belfore, daughter of Maral Caputo, of Bishop Road, and David Belfore, of Mount Clemens, and John Benjamin Hartman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hartman, of Balfour Road, are planning an early October wedding.

Both the bride-elect and her fiance are Grosse Pointe South High School graduates and hold Bachelor of Science degrees in Industrial Engineering from the University of Michigan. She is an industrial engineer at the Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors. He is a customer service advisor at General Motors' Cadillac Motor Car Division.

Bach Brunch is continuing

Brunch with Bach performances at 10 and 11:30 a.m. on Sunday mornings in the Detroit Institute of Arts' indoor continental garden cafe, Kresge Court, continue through February, with music of Bach and Dohnanyi scheduled to be played by Marcy Chanteux, violoncello, and Bernard Katz, piano, this Sunday, Feb. 17.

The month closes with the Verdehr Trio (violin, clarinet and piano) performing works by Bach, Beethoven and Vanhal on Sunday, Feb. 24.

Reservations are required for these informal chamber concerts. They may be made as early as a month before a selected concert date, and as late as the Friday afternoon before a Sunday concert, through the museum ticket office, 832-2730 during regular business hours.

Guests may select from a $7.75 full brunch menu or a lighter, continental brunch at $6.75. No-frills stairway seating is available at $2.50 per person, on a limited basis. It is suggested that children younger than 5 are too young to attend Brunch with Bach.

Puppet workshop date for children

An "Art of Puppetry" workshop for children ages 6 to 10 will run from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Feb. 16, at the Lakeshore Family YMCA, located on Jefferson Avenue near Nine Mile Road.

Participants will fashion a scrap-bag puppet, then perform an instant puppet show with the other children. Fee is $4. Pre-registration is required. Further information may be obtained by calling 778-5811.

Ribbon Farms meets Monday

Ribbon Farms Chapter of the Questers will meet at noon on Presidents Day, Monday, Feb. 18, at the home of Mrs. Joseph M. Scanlan who, in keeping with the day's patriotic theme, will present a program on Early American Art Pottery.

Tea at Burtha Fisher Home

The Saint Joseph Auxiliary of the Little Sisters of the Poor will hold its annual Membership Day Tea on Thursday, Feb. 21, in the lounge of the Burtha Fisher Home for the Aged, located on Southfield Road at Outer Drive, starting at 1 p.m.

All auxiliary members, prospective members and guests are welcome. Funds raised by the auxiliary directly benefit the Sisters and residents of the Home. Further information may be obtained by contacting Marian (Mrs. A.J.) McCarthy, chairperson for the day, at 478-9548.

Woman's Club plans honors for presidents

President's Day for the Grosse Pointe Woman's Club is next Wednesday, Feb. 20. Members and guests will gather for tea at 12:30 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom.

This is an annual affair: the day on which the Woman's Club traditionally honors its current president (she's Mrs. Milan J. Alexander this year) and presidents of other clubs affiliated with the Federation of Woman's Clubs of Metropolitan Detroit, plus presidents of Grosse Pointe organizations.

Honored, too, will be the Woman's Club's own past-presidents. There'll be a special speaker, Detroit News columnist Leola Floren who, after she is introduced by Mrs. George Gerow, vice-president and program chairman, will share "Secrets of a Happy Life."

Leola, a native of Albuquerque, N.M., is married and the mother of one child. She attended Bethany Nazarene College in Bethany, Okla., graduating in 1975 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English and Political Science. She attended the University of Missouri's School of Journalism from 1976 to 1978.

She has worked as a reporter and a photographer and done page layout for Review News Company in Yukon, Okla. She has done miscellaneous freelance writing. She was hired as a feature writer by the Detroit News in 1978, and became a columnist in 1981.

Mrs. Henri Gelders, Woman's Club social chairman, promises a presidential theme for the tea table. Serving on the committee of Mrs. John E. Engstrom, tea hostess, are the Mesdames W.L. Bedard, W.H. Chauvin Jr., Floyd Hinsby, Archie Jones, J. Rae LeRoy and Philip J. Skillman.

Woman's Club past-presidents who will pour are Mrs. Jon S. Cook, Mrs. John W. Murphy, Mrs. L.A. Rice and Mrs. Vene L. Whims. Members planning to invite guests are requested to make reservations by contacting Mrs. Lloyd Beemer, hospitality chairman.

Gowanie Golf Women look toward spring

Mary Biermann, 1985 president of the Gowanie Golf Club Women, entertained her new board members at a luncheon at her home earlier in the month. Discussion centered on projects and activities for the upcoming golfing season.

The opening event will be a tee-off breakfast, during which new members will be introduced, on Thursday, Apr. 11. The group's annual fashion luncheon is set for two weeks later in the spring, on Thursday, Apr. 25. Ann O'Brien is in charge of the fashion presentation, which will feature clothes from Steinmann's Ltd., Mount Clemens.

Virginia Bauer, golf chairman, outlined her events for the new year. Marion Meeker will be assisting Virginia. Handicap chairman will be Katy Yaklin. Assisting Lee Miller, Rules Committee chairman, will be Marietta Samaras.

Officers serving with Mrs. Biermann are Joan Stewart, vice-president, Rome Phillip, secretary, and Ardith Brown, treasurer. Other board members include Phyllis Pellegrom, Mary Soulliere and Beverley Sellars.

Muriel Kaufman and Bette Wilds are honorary advisors. Betty Hollifield and Sue Lucas will chair the Nine-Hole Golf Group. Sally Francis will be in charge of the Junior Golf Program.

Pointe Book Club to meet

The Pointe Book Club meets this month on Monday, Feb. 18, at the home of Mrs. Eugene Kelly who will be assisted by co-hostesses Mrs. George Johnson and Mrs. Howard Simon. Following luncheon, Leslie Wutzke, of the Grosse Pointe Library Services, will review several current books, including "The Enchantress" by Han Suyin, "The Weaker Vessel" by Antonia Fraser, "The Happy Person" by Harold Greenwald and "Ride A Pale Horse" by Helen McInnes.

Grosse Pointers were very much in evidence in the audience at the opening night (Jan. 24) performance of Alexander Godunov & Stars at the Music Hall Center, a benefit honoring the late Billie (Mrs. Nita Zeff) Barak, devoted supporter of community and cultural projects and a leading member of Music Hall's board of trustees. Above, the Star of the Stars, ALEXANDER GODUNOV, autographs a program for MADO (Mrs. Kim K.) LIE. Below, Godunov greets MR. and MRS. ROGER FRIDHOLM. Henrietta Fridholm is a current Music Hall board member. Proceeds from the evening, which included a meet-the-artists reception, will be added to Music Hall's first endowment fund. The Nita Zeff Barak Memorial Trust Fund is designed to support future innovative programming at the non-profit performing arts center.

To show rose slides Feb. 20

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society gathers for its first meeting of 1985 next Wednesday, Feb. 20, at 7:45 p.m. in the cafeteria of Brownell Middle School on Chalfonte Avenue. The program will be a presentation of the 1984 American Rose Society Slide Contest winners, narrated by Rick Moore, Pointe Rose Society vice-president.

The slides include samples of roses in exhibition state, miniatures and old garden varieties, as well as views of many public and private gardens in bloom. For those new to rose growing, it's a chance to see some of the world's great varieties and get an idea of what is available.

For those into photography, it's a chance to compare their work with that of the winning amateur photographers.

Slides taken at the 1984 Grosse Pointe Rose Society Photo Clinic will also be shown, to round out the evening. The public is invited to attend, and to stay on for refreshments and fellowship following the slide presentation.

Hostesses will be Marge Vincent and Ellie Guinness. The Pointe Rose Society is co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Colony Town Club to lunch

Colony Town Club members and their guests gather at the Detroit Athletic Club today, Thursday, Feb. 14, for Colony Town Club's traditional Valentine luncheon. The program begins with cocktails and concludes with bridge. Luncheon tables will be covered with white linen cloths, set with red napkins and centered with red floral arrangements to carry out the Valentine motif.

Serving on the committee for the day, co-chaired by Mrs. George H. Tuttle and Mrs. Ralph F. Anderson, are the Mesdames Bruce Berckmans, L. Gaylord Hulbert, Kenneth J. Steketee and W. Eugene Sturgis.

Plan Pointer Girls' bridge

The Pointer Girls gather next Thursday, Feb. 21, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial for their monthly bridge games. Members are requested to contact Mrs. Ralph Glahn, 886-6267, or Mrs. J.H. Baker, 885-5535, by Saturday, Feb. 16, to indicate whether they are or are not coming.

Outstanding Young Careerist sought

The Detroit-Northeast Business and Professional Women's Club gathers next Wednesday, Feb. 20, for a dinner meeting at the Schmid Haus on 12 Mile Road in Warren. Speaker Cathleen Sinning, Michigan Federation Young Careerist, will explain the advantages of becoming a member of the oldest "working women's" organization.

The Detroit-Northeast Club is recruiting persons between the ages of 21 and 30 to become its "Young Careerist" candidate. The candidate need not be a member of the club.

All working persons are welcome at Wednesday's meeting, which begins at 6 p.m. Margaret Ellsworth may be contacted at 264-2985 for reservations.

AAUW meets next Thursday

Grosse Pointe resident Pamela Collier, M.D., will be featured guest speaker at the next general meeting of the Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women, on Thursday, Feb. 21, at 9 a.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Dr. Collier, who earned her M.D. at Meharry Medical College (Vanderbilt University), will discuss the prevention and treatment of osteoporosis. Women are especially vulnerable to this disease, one of the most common affecting bones; in fact, statistics show that one out of every four women will develop it after menopause.

Dr. Collier's talk is scheduled to increase understanding of this medical problem. A member of the Pointe AAUW, she is executive medical director of First Care Clinics and president of the Women Physicians' Advisory Council of Michigan.

The business session at the general meeting will be conducted by Peggy Ptasznik, current AAUW-GP president.

Yachtswomen meet tonight

Program for Yachtswomen's meeting tonight, Thursday, Feb. 14, at the Great Lakes Yacht Club will include a Service Award presentation and a Name Bingo, with white elephant gifts. Hostesses are Bea Burke, Meg Feistel, Jeanne Bowen and Cindy Burke.

Saturday night, when fine art from the FiftySix Collection goes on the block at the kick-off event of the WTVS/Channel 56 Auction season. We told you about this last week, briefly, and we told you how to get tickets (call Channel 56, 873-7200, Extension 200), but we didn't tell you that last year's Art Auction at Somerset raised approximately $45,000 for Detroit's public television station.

A solid block of funds is a great way to start off a fund raiser, but it's only a beginning. The Auction Adventure, Chapter 17, a televised general merchandise auction running April 12 through 20 on Channel 56, hopes to raise more than $800,000 to help keep such programs as Sesame Street and Masterpiece Theatre, now showing that wonderful production of Paul Scott's "Raj Quartet," on the air in our area.

To do this, The Auction Adventure needs merchandise — more than 9,000 donated items, each worth $50 or more. The drive for merchandise is on now. Merchants who donate goods and services will receive tax breaks and on-air exposure when their donations are auctioned on the air by celebrities from the media, sports, civic affairs and business.

"This year's Channel 56 Auction theme is a play on the adventure serials of the movies, where the hero searches for treasure," says Millie Sedman, auction manager. "Well, right now we're seeking the 'treasures' to be auctioned."

Official host for The Auction Adventure, Chapter 17, is WOMC's Tom Ryan. In keeping with the theme, he'll appear as "Illinois Smith." The auction annually raises 11 percent of the station's operating budget. It's estimated that more than one million people tune-in to it during its nine-day run.

They're Taking Their Show on the Road

Sarah Hill and Audrey Platt have assembled a collection of spring and summer fashions by young designers — custom blouses and dresses of Swiss batiste with French lace and embroidery, painted and hand-dyed silks, one-of-a-kind antique lace dresses, linens and crepes, knits and woven pieces, belts and jewelry of hammered gold, silver and brass — and will be showing them by appointment in The Pointe next week, Feb. 18 through 23.

In the spring, they'll take their show on the road, to Memphis, Tenn., and one other city. In the fall, they'll go on the road again. They're excited and delighted about their new project, shouting about it (in a ladylike fashion, of course), in fact. If you'd like to see what the shouting is all about, call Sarah, 885-5435, or Audrey, 881-7810, this week. You can reach them at 881-1333 while their show is in progress here.

The Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe will present Eric Chartier, a French actor who trained in Paris, in a one-man show of dramatic readings from French literature Monday evening, Feb. 18, at 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. A reception will follow his program, which will be delivered in French. It's free to Pointe Alliance members, $3 for non-members.

Chartier, now touring the United States under auspices of the Federation of Alliance Francaises USA, is scheduled to make his poetic and literary presentations in New York, Salt Lake City, El Paso, San Francisco, Cleveland, Chicago and Atlanta, as well as in The Pointe.

Since his student days at the Ecole Nationale Superieure des Arts et Techniques du Theatre in Paris, he has had a busy career on the stage, including a role in Cyrano de Bergerac at La Comedie Francaise, as well as cinema, radio and music hall appearances. He has appeared many times in Paris, and has toured West Germany, Belgium and The Netherlands under sponsorship of the French Ministry of External Affairs.

Among his movie appearances was an important role in a Godard film starring Jane Fonda and Yves Montand. Chartier also has participated extensively in broadcasts over Radio-France, France-Musique and Radio France International. Prior to his presentation at the War Memorial this Monday, he will be entertained by the Pointe Alliance directors, including current president Mado Lie and program chairman David Thoms, at a small dinner party.

'A Stitch in Time' for Alpha Xi Delta

"A Stitch in Time" will be the byword at this month's meeting of the Grosse Pointe and Macomb County Alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta. Members are invited to bring knitting, embroidery, needlepoint et al to the St. Clair Shores home of Mrs. John Klock this Monday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m.

As they stitch, they'll discuss their group's part in the Phi Province Convention Founder's Day Luncheon, to be held Saturday, Mar. 23, at the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. The Pointe/Macomb Alumnae will be in charge of "Alphie's Attic," a collection of craft items for sale at the convention.

Mrs. Richard Swinbank, the evening's co-hostess, will review the alumnae's January meeting at the downtown American Lung Association offices. Members helped stuff envelopes with health information material. The ALA is one of Alpha Xi Delta Alumnae's philanthropic projects.

Further information on Monday's meeting may be obtained by calling 778-0067.

Meeting scheduled for Sigma Kappas

A Daren Bag party is the program for the Grosse Pointe Alumnae of Sigma Kappa's meeting next Wednesday, Feb. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Heidi Hartwig (Mrs. J.H. Jr.) Denler. Co-hostess will be Geraldine Matthews.

All area Sigma Kappas are invited and encouraged to bring relatives and friends. Reservations should be made before Saturday, Feb. 16, by contacting the co-hostess at 884-3511. Proceeds from the purse sales will benefit the local alumnae chapter's gerontology efforts.

The evening will include a very short business session, during which members will be chosen to serve on the Nominating Committee for the chapter's upcoming elections.

Any Sigma Kappa in the Pointe area is invited to join the Pointe Chapter and may obtain information on local and national activities by calling Maryn Cation (Mrs. John) Horn, 884-3018, Delores Parham (Mrs. Don) Littlefield, 881-1042, or Ruth Saur, 331-5812, any time during the year.

Assumption hosts childhood lecturer

"Cycles of Development — Ages and Stages of the 1- to 5-Year-Old Child" will be Kathy Wilson's subject at an open-to-the-public presentation Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 7 p.m. at Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center. There will be a $1 charge at the door.

Ms. Wilson is on the National Lecture Board of the Gesell Institute, which helps parents and professionals understand and respond to the development of young children. The Assumption School is located in the former Eastpointe Elementary School on Marter Road, two blocks north of Assumption Cultural Center, also located on Marter Road.

Dinner is benefit for Guest House

A benefit dinner for Guest House, hosted by Bishop Walter J. Schoenherr, will be held tomorrow, Friday, Feb. 15, at Fairlane Manor in Dearborn. F. James McDonald, president of General Motors Corporation, and his wife Betty chair the sponsoring committee for this annual affair.

Guest House operates residential treatment centers in Lake Orion and in Rochester, Minn., for Catholic clergy suffering from the disease of alcoholism. Since Guest House opened in 1956, over 3,000 men have successfully completed therapy and resumed their religious ministry. Dinner information may be obtained by contacting Guest House, 391-4445.

GP Newcomers to beat 'blahs'

The Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club will beat the midwinter "blahs" by Strohing a Party tomorrow, Friday, Feb. 15, at the Stroh Brewery's Strohaus. The fun begins at 6:30 p.m. and includes a brewery tour and presentation, followed by a German buffet dinner. Then it's on to Stan's, in Detroit's Warehouse District, for an afterglow.

Steve and Linda Fehling, party chairmen, and their committee consisting of Joe and Joanne D'Amelio, Greg and Phyllis DeMars, Mike and Diane Sava and Dave and Ann Stockman, prescribe this Evening Out as a perfect antidote to Cabin Fever.

Any couples new to Grosse Pointe who would like more information on the local Newcomers are invited to contact the membership chairmen at 823-4379 or 886-2966.

Book Review Group to meet

The Book Review Group of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will meet next Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 1 p.m. after a noon luncheon at the church. Dorothea Bush, chairman, will introduce Margaret Brockway, wife of The Reverend Dr. Leslie Brockway, Memorial Church's 1985 Ecumenical Minister from Darwin, Australia.

Mrs. Brockway will review a book of her choice, and share a personal insight and reflection on a Christian family's life in Australia.

Visitors are welcome at both the review and the luncheon preceding it in Fellowship Hall, but reservations are requested for the luncheon. They may be made by calling 882-5330. Child care is available.

DIA presents Bach Series

Detroit-born violinist Richard Luby will open a series of three concerts of Johann Sebastian Bach's solo music at the Detroit Institute of Arts on Thursday, Feb. 28, performing a solo sonata and solo partita on a restored 1623 violin.

Complimentary German wine service will precede the 8 p.m. concert in the museum's Crystal Gallery. Tickets at $8 per person are available in advance through the DIA ticket office, 832-2730 during regular business hours.

Bach's works for solo violin, with their difficult florid passages, double stopping and counterpoint, are considered the peak of artistic perfection in violin literature. Luby began performing on baroque violin in 1973, during Doctoral studies at the Yale School of Music.

His instrument has been restored to historical condition by replacing the bridge, sound post, tail piece and bass bar, and by re-setting the neck to conform to 18th century specifications.

Completing the Bach Series will be Nigel North, baroque lute, Mar. 7, and Anner Bylsma, baroque violoncello, Mar. 19.

Muffy Eppler

Miss Eppler will be wed

Mr. and Mrs. C. Karl Eppler, of Fisher Road, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Sandra Faye (Muffy), to Kevin Gerald Karson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Karson, of Detroit.

Miss Eppler, a Grosse Pointe South High School graduate, is attending Macomb County Community College. She plans to transfer to Michigan State University in the fall to continue her studies in Accounting.

Her fiance, a graduate of University Liggett School, has attended Michigan and Wayne State Universities. He has a position secured as a police officer with the City of Wayne pending completion of his training at the Police Academy.

GP Methodist groups gather

Meeting day this month for the United Methodist Women's Fellowship Groups is next Tuesday, Feb. 19. The Morning Group will meet at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. W.E. Davey, the Evelyn Griffith Group at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Melville Kennedy. Mrs. Herbert Ralph will entertain the Doris White Group at 8 p.m.

The Wesleyan Group gathers at Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church at 6:30 p.m. for a dinner meeting, with Mrs. William Lenz, Mrs. Ethel Osborne and Mrs. Fred Beckmann serving as hostesses.

Dr. Robert Boley, the church pastor, will conduct a Study on the Book of Ephesians at 9:30 a.m. each Wednesday morning during Lent, beginning next Wednesday, Feb. 20. Further information may be obtained by calling the church office, 886-2363.

Meeting date for Questers

Mrs. William Koontz' home will be the setting for the next meeting of Windmill Pointe Questers Chapter No. 385, on Monday, Feb. 18, at 9:30 a.m. After the coffee hour, Mrs. Koontz will present a program on Staffordshire Figurines, explaining the background of Staffordshire and the history of the people who made the figurines.

Faber-Retford rites are read

A reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club followed the autumn wedding of Pamela Jo Retford, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. Retford, of Lakeshore Road, and Dr. Alan Robert Faber Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan R. Faber, of Plymouth.

Presiding at the 2:30 o'clock rites Saturday, September 15, in the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel was Father Edwin Schroeder, of Harsens Island.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk taffeta. A stand-up ruffle wrapped her shoulders and bows finished her short sleeves. Her cathedral length train fell from a matching, large bow centered at the back of her waistline.

Her white kid leather gloves were over-the-elbow length. Her headpiece, yet another flat silk taffeta bow, held a cathedral length veil. She carried an arm bouquet of calla Lilies, their stems wrapped in white satin ribbon.

Anita Sue Retford-Barger, honor matron for her sister, carried a bouquet of Sonia roses, Lady Diana roses and stephanotis, Bridesmaids, whose bouquets were fashioned exclusively of Sonia roses, were Karen Faber and Robin Faber Horton, the bridegroom's sisters, and two Hillsdale College friends of the bride, Sarah Horning, of East Grand Rapids, and Betsy Westenbroek, of Holland, Mich.

Their floor length dresses of ivory taffeta were styled with jewel necklines, extending into a deep V at the back, and short, tulip sleeves finished with bows in matching material.

Flower girl Erin Horton, the bridegroom's niece, carried a basket filled with English ivy and Sonia roses. Ring bearer was Michael Barger Jr., the bride's nephew.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length dress of iced peach satin-backed silk, long-sleeved and styled with a jewel neckline extending into a back V. Stephanotis formed her wrist corsage. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Anita Spina, selected a floor length dress of peach silk and a gardenia corsage.

The bridegroom's mother also chose a floor length, long-sleeved gown and a stephanotis wrist corsage. Her dress, of pearl silver chiffon, featured a pearled, drop-waisted bodice.

The newlyweds vacationed on Paradise Island in The Bahamas. They will make their home in Grosse Pointe.

Out-of-town guests included the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Girard Pisauro, of Pompano Beach, Fla., and Mrs. Helen Faber, of Morrisville, Pa.

More were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ellison, of Hillsdale, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Williams, of Jacksonville, Fla., Dr. and Mrs. David Duda, of Wilmette, Ill., Dr. and Mrs. Kevin Shea, of Cleveland, Ohio, Drs. Reginald and Julie Whitcomb, of Harbor Springs, and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Marx, of Yardley, Pa.

Love's story at Bonstelle

"Romeo and Juliet," the world's most famous love story, opens at Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theatre Friday, Mar. 1, and will run there through Mar. 10. Curtain times are 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 2 p.m. Sundays. A special matinee has been scheduled for Thursday, Mar. 7, at 11 a.m.

Ticket information may be obtained by contacting the WSU Theatres box office, 577-2960. Group sales information is available by calling 577-3010.

Benefit for Women's Architectural League

The Women's Architectural League's annual scholarship benefit will be held this year on Thursday, Feb. 28, at Meadowbrook Hall, where brunch will be served at 10:30 a.m. The program is a fashion show featuring Matilda Dodge Wilson's antique clothing.

Tickets, at $12.50 per person, must be reserved before Monday, Feb. 18, by calling Sally Fraser, 646-4816 or 435-4024. All monies raised will go toward architectural scholarships for Michigan students.

A celebration of birthdays

A combination celebration of Washington's Birthday and Lincoln's Birthday, with a nod toward Valentine's Day, is being planned by the Lutheran Ladies' Auxiliary for the Deaf. It's set for next Tuesday, Feb. 19, in the gym of the school, located on East Nevada in Detroit.

Luncheon, served at 11:30 a.m., will be followed by cards. Donation is $3.50, including a hot meal, dessert and beverage. Prizes will be featured. Reservations are being taken by Vi Lieberenz, 884-9126, and Coletta Cejka, 891-8002. Proceeds will go toward School for the Deaf scholarships.

Five Pointes Club to meet

Mrs. John Erickson and Mrs. Franklin Quale will be hostesses at Five Pointes Garden Club's meeting Monday, Feb. 18, at 12:30 p.m. at the Moorland Drive home of Mrs. James R. Lindsay. Mrs. Lindsay and Mrs. Edwin Neill, also a club member, will give the program on "Herbs of the Bible."

Bonnie Bonanno

Plan to wed in the spring

Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Bonanno, of Canterbury Road, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Bonnie Marie, to Michael A. Paniccia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paniccia, of Dearborn. A mid-May wedding is planned.

The bride-elect, a Grosse Pointe North High School graduate, is currently employed as a dental receptionist at a local orthodontist office. Her fiance was graduated from St. Alphonsas, Dearborn. He is a plant supervisor at Tenco Foods.

"Well now," thought Tamara Kessler, having prepared her entry in Metropolitan Home Magazine's 1985 Metropolitan Home of the Year Awards Contest. "What category do I enter this in?" It was a puzzlement.

Technically, she supposed, her entry was a Private Residence. It is, after all, Al Wagner's home, and the fact that it floats does not cancel the fact that it is his permanent domicile. There's no law that says a Private Residence must be immovable. Consider the tepee, the yurt . . . reflect on the families who spend their lives on boats in the harbor at Aberdeen on Hong Kong Island.

Of course, "Brownies III" is not precisely in the Aberdeen boat home class. Aberdeen decor does not run to marble baths and Ultra Suede walls. The galley of Brownies III is equipped with a Trash Masher, two refrigerator-freezers, three ovens (microwave, convection and regular). An Aberdeen galley is a wok.

Tami Kessler finally left her puzzlement up to the editors of Metropolitan Home Magazine, submitting her entry in the General Category. Metropolitan Home got around the problem neatly. The magazine's 1985 Award for "Best Boat" (how do you like THAT category?) went to Tamara Kessler, of Grosse Pointe.

"I can't help but wonder," she says, "how many boats I was competing against!"

SHE'S CITED with other Home of the Year Award winners in this month's issue of Metropolitan Home, pictured on Page 118 in and with the main salon of Brownies III.

We, too, would have liked to photograph her in situ, but Brownies III, docked at Jefferson Beach Marina in the summer, is wintering in Florida. It was built there, in Fort Lauderdale, by Broward Marine, completed last March.

"It took a good two-and-a-half years from the empty hull to the sea trials," Tami says.

Brownies III, 110-feet, with a top speed of about 25 knots, is about as far removed from an Aberdeen boat home as you can get. It's three stories tall, from Pilot House to bottom deck. The Master Stateroom is very large, with a kingsize bed and 12-foot walk-in closets, a marble bath equipped with a Jacuzzi and whirlpool and a Habitat capsulized environment.

Two other guest bedrooms have queensize beds and their own marble baths. On the main deck, in addition to the salon and galley, there's a den that can be converted into another stateroom, and an extraordinary powder room: all-black, with black marble floors and glossy black Formica walls. "Very high-tech," says Tami.

Actually, her whole design is very high-tech, from the main salon's lipstick red chairs, black leather consoles and sliced white maple paneling to the dove grey Ultra Suede lining the corridors and stairs and extending into the master bedroom.

THE OTHER TWO stateroom walls are also done in fabric, one in grey and magenta, the other in black and multi-colored fabric. Both guest baths are white marble, with stainless Formica faucets. The fixtures throughout the boat are Italian contemporary.

The master bathroom is done in grey marble. The master bedroom carpet is a rich royal purple. The galley is all-white. There are separate quarters for the captain, who also has a salon area in the Pilot House, and a crew of three.

Tami designed the louver windows that wrap around the boat. As well as being aesthetically interesting, they double as grab rails. She designed all the cabinetry, which had to conform to the curve of the hull. She hid the air conditioning/heating systems and stereo speakers in the ceiling, the plumbing in the hull curves at the base of each deck.

"When I got this boat, it was like a bathtub, an open, empty shell," she recalls. She had a limited space with which to work, walls that were not "straight," weight considerations that do not apply on dry land. If you put a marble bath on one side of a boat, and don't put something to balance it on the other side, you're going to have quite a list!

She had also, always, to consider the thoughts and feelings of the person to whom the boat belonged: how he wanted to use it. This was to be Al Wagner's home, and he wanted it to be as comfortable, as completely-equipped as possible. He wanted to showcase his fine art pieces. He didn't want to go ashore if he wanted a sauna or a steam-bath.

SO HE TURNED to his daughter-in-law (in private life, Tamara Kessler is Mrs. Gerald Wagner), who had already done a 50-foot and a 70-foot yacht, and told her to do the best she could. Her best is Metropolitan Home Magazine's Best Boat of the Year.

It's been featured on PM Magazine. It was the lead boat in the Intercoastal Parade in Florida this Christmas. It's going to be on "Miami Vice;" shooting began last week. It will be spotlighted, along with its designer, in a spring issue of Interview Magazine, distributed in the United States and the United Kingdom.

Tami led a Grosse Pointe War Memorial Council of Sponsors benefit tour of Brownies III (yes, it is named for Brownie's on the Lake, and yes, Al Wagner is Brownie's owner) last summer. It was a sell-out.

She remains in the interior design business, doing contract and residential work. Her current projects are a private residence and a doctor's office in the Fisher Building. But she's operating Tamara Kessler & Associates at the moment on a free-lance basis, until Aaron Wagner is more than a little more than a year old.

And, having met Aaron, we hereby nominate Tamara Kessler for a second "best" award: Mother of the Best Baby of the Year. For Aaron is a marvel who rises at the civilized hour of 9:30 a.m., after which all it takes to make him happy is scrambled eggs and Sesame Street.

Elegant Eating

So much has been written about Special Miracle Foods that contain nutrients researchers find are powerful health-boosters and life-givers! Dr. Raymond J. Shamburger, of the Cleveland Clinic, has stated that Vitamins A, C and E and the mineral selenium can help prevent cancer if you eat well . . . that you can cut the risk of cancer by 50 percent. Numerous sources add zinc to Shamburger's list, because of its clout in keeping body tissues healthy.

VITAMIN A - BETA CAROTENE

The body uses beta carotene to make Vitamin A. Numerous studies around the world have found that people who consume higher than average amounts of carotene and Vitamin A have a lower incidence of cancer. Vitamin A bolsters the immune system, and since the body converts carotene to Vitamin A as required, it eliminates any chance of toxicity. Following are recipes utilizing foods that are good sources of Vitamin A.

CURRIED CHICKEN LIVERS

1 lb. fresh or frozen chicken livers
1 cup chicken broth
2 tsp. cornstarch
1 tsp. curry powder
2-3 drops Tabasco sauce
3 Tbsp. dry sherry
1¼ Tbsp. unsalted margarine
1 cup chopped, peeled onions
1 tsp. peeled, minced garlic
1 cup chopped, seeded green peppers
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup dark seedless raisins, puffed
2 Tbsp. finely minced parsley, for garnish

Rinse chicken livers in cold water. Trim away all membrane and fat, and quarter. Blot dry with paper towels.

In small bowl, combine chicken broth, cornstarch, curry powder, Tabasco and wine. In 10 to 12-inch skillet, melt margarine over moderate heat. When hot, add livers and cook 3 to 5 minutes, stirring several times, until browned but slightly pink in the center; remove with slotted spoon. Add onion and garlic to pan and cook about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally, until onions are soft. Add green peppers, celery and raisins and cook about 1 minute longer. Stir cornstarch mixture; add to pan and bring to boil, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute; add livers and heat. Serve over hot rice and garnish with minced parsley. Makes 4 servings.

SKILLET GREENS

1 large green pepper, cut in ½-inch strips
1 medium onion, sliced and separated in rings
1 Tbsp. margarine
1 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1 pound spinach, shredded coarse
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ground pepper

In large skillet, over medium heat, stirring occasionally, cook green pepper and onion in oil and butter about 4 to 5 minutes, or until crisp-tender. Add spinach, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer about 5 minutes, or until tender. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

ORANGE CANTALOUPE COOLER

2 cups cubed cantaloupe (½ medium melon)
2 cups cold skim milk
¼ tsp. ground ginger
1 pt. Low-Cal Orange Sherbert
Thin strips of candied ginger with mint sprig garnish (optional)

Place melon cubes in freezer-proof bowl and freeze until firm. In blender or processor bowl, combine frozen melon cubes, milk and ginger; blend until slushy. Add sherbert a spoonful at a time, blending until thoroughly mixed; scraping blender sides as necessary. Pour into chilled glasses and garnish with ginger and mint, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Freeze raises citrus prices

Even before the damage caused by the most recent freeze, Florida's orange crop was estimated at five percent below that of five years ago. The January freeze is being billed as the worst crop freeze of the century; although crop and tree damage have not been assessed, it's believed this freeze finished off many of the trees that survived last year's freeze.

Orange juice concentrate is being processed round the clock as growers try to salvage oranges which were frozen hard as baseballs. Orange juice futures have been and will continue to be volatile until crop damage has been officially assessed.

The likely impact on consumer prices for frozen orange juice concentrate won't be clear for some time. Some price increases have definitely been noted on a wholesale level, but gains in wholesale prices may not be fully reflected in retail prices.

A price war between major juice processors sharply muted the impact on consumers last season. Extensive imports of concentrate also lessen our dependence on the Florida product.

Citrus captured most of the attention in the latest freeze, but fresh vegetables were also hit hard in Florida. This is the second blow of the season for fresh vegetables, as Texas production areas were damaged in early January.

Look for higher prices at the produce counter for all citrus fruits, tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, green beans and soft-shell squash. Be alert for tender vegetables exhibiting some degree of cold-weather damage.

Cabbage, spinach and other greens, carrots, onions, broccoli and cauliflower survived the low temperatures mostly undamaged, and will likely be good buys this month. Add Michigan apples and potatoes to your market order of thrifty foods.

It is now expected that beef output in 1985 will be down about four percent. Pork supplies for the first half are about as expected, but production intentions for the second half are down. Look for higher prices on all red meats by mid-year.

Memorial Nursery sets Open House

Memorial Nursery, Inc., a non-denominational, co-op nursery school, will hold Open House for prospective students and their parents next Thursday, Feb. 21, at 9 a.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Interested parents may meet teachers and explore the indoor and outdoor facilities. Children may hear a story, build a fort, dress up, make a picture, share a snack . . . or just "be a kid" with friends.

The school offers a wide scope of activities and play, including field trips and speakers, in its developmental pre-school program. Three-year-olds attend school two mornings a week, from 9 to 11:15 a.m. Four-year-olds attend three mornings a week.

Memorial Nursery, founded in 1957, employs two certified teachers daily. Parental involvement is encouraged. Applications are now being accepted for the 1985-86 school year. Further information on the Open House and/or the school may be obtained by calling 885-7694 or 824-4296.

CPS volunteer aides needed

Trained volunteers from the Health Education Council of Grosse Pointe, Inc., teach Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation annually to 10th grade students at Grosse Pointe North and South High Schools.

North completed its Race for Life course last fall. South students will receive the training the weeks of Mar. 12 and 19.

Anyone who would like to be involved in teaching this lifesaving course to community students is welcome at the New CPA Aide Course running from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Mar. 5. It is all that is required to teach the CPR Program at North and South.

A Recertification Course for Full CPR Instructors will run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 26. Both courses will be taught by Jerry Hummel at the Red Cross Building located at 11 Mile Road and Gratiot.

To enroll in either, contact the Health Education Council's head of volunteer training, Donna Bramlage, at 882-1776.

The Council's Scoliosis Screening for all fifth grade girls in public elementary schools is scheduled for next Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 20 and 21. The screening will be conducted by the two Grosse Pointe School System Registered Nurses: Lorna Vroom and Judy Navarre.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

And how was your weekend?

I knew I was in for an interesting weekend when the starting lineup of the South High varsity volleyball team began their Friday afternoon game against Port Huron by assembling in a circle, diving to the floor and sliding on their stomachs to their positions.

I got the message: South was ready to play and I had better be ready to watch. And that went for the rest of my weekend schedule, too — South vs. North in the pool on Saturday afternoon, then on the ice that evening. And a spirited Star of the Sea volleyball team awaited my attention on Sunday afternoon.

Some 40 hours after South "hit the floor," I had a full notebook, a sore throat from asking questions (and giving answers) and a nearly empty gas tank. If you'd been with me, you would have seen . . .

. . . a nailbiter of a volleyball game at South High. The girls took the first game easily behind the setting of Debbie Friedman, but lost the second game, 15-12, after taking a 12-3 lead. They came back strong in the third game, but watching that lead disappear is the kind of thing that makes volleyball fun to watch, unless you happen to be coach Janet Hooper.

. . . David Bailey said it best. "This is special," he told me at Saturday's North-South swim meet. South was out to show why it's the No. 7-ranked team in Class A and North was trying to break a four-year string of losses to its crosstown rival. It didn't happen this year, and the meet wasn't even as close as last season's three-one hundredths of a second victory for the Devils.

Somebody could tell me, though, who swims in the leopard-skin swim trunks? I asked, watched and listened at the meet and I still don't know who he is.

(Bailey, by the way, is a confident guy. He outlined the reasons why he felt South would beat North. One was that the Devils had the "best freestyler in the state." Bailey, strangely enough, is a freestyler).

. . . And then there's the most recent edition of North vs. South. South upset the balance of things with a come-from-behind, 4-3 hockey win over North and now the Devils have a 3-1 lead in the series. Like the previous three contests, Saturday night's affair was another one for the books (if the book happens to be Ripley's Believe It . . . Or Not).

North skated out tossing "Freeze the Devils" towels into the stands . . . and with a new look, as well. The Norsemen sported gold pants with their names (and/or nicknames) printed across the, er, back. "Hench," "Ugie," and the rest played an excellent first period, which featured fine goaltending by Matt Dennis and Bill Tecos. You know the goaltending is good when Dennis stops South's Keith Kovalcik on a breakaway and when Tecos gets a "Tecos, Tecos" serenade from the fans after four or five nice saves. .

. . . Hockey dads never cease to amaze me. They can watch a first period that got downright chippy at times and still say "Oh, the boys are just checking well tonight." Uh-huh. Sure.

. . . Weird stuff II: The girl in the GPCR parking lot who wanted to get to the game. Boy did she want to get there. Her dad's car was a bit too wide for the narrow aisle but that didn't bother her. She just plowed on through, nudging back the three or four cars in her way. Careless driving? Nah. She was "just driving well tonight."

. . . The best part of a North-South hockey game is that they can't be matched for pure excitement. The fans get cranked up before the game, they keep it up all game long and the players are just as much a part of that. The Confederate flags, signs, chants and the rest of the hoopla aside, here's the real story: 5-4, 5-2, 3-2, 4-3. Those are the scores in the four North-South varsity games. It can't get any closer than that.

. . . Keep an eye on that kid: Joey Sucher, North's popular mascot, is getting better at keeping up with the Norsemen during the warm-up skate. Remember that number: 16.

And over at Star of the Sea, the Tunas are inching toward a state top-10 ranking with their 15-0 volleyball record this season. Coach Valerie Johnson is proud of her girls, and rightly so. The entire starting lineup is up for post-season honors and is currently in the Catholic League playoffs.

What impressed me most about the Tunas? The way their coach looks when she talks about them. And when she talks about them, she says things like this: "It'll be tough to see the seniors graduate because of what they mean to the team. But I'll miss them most as people, not just volleyball players."

And that's nice.

The volleyball 'stars' are out at Star

By Peggy O'Connor

After spending half her life coaching, Margaret Spindler knows a winner when she sees one. And the athletic director and assistant varsity volleyball coach is watching one this year: Star's varsity spikers are 15-0 and moving on in Catholic League playoff action.

Star's latest victory was a first-round playoff win over St. Mary's on Monday night. Star had to come back from a 6-0 deficit in the third game to win the match, 15-11, 15-12, 15-9. "We won by the skin of our teeth. The seniors looked like they were on their last legs . . . but our juniors sure came through," Spindler said Monday. The Tunas will face either Pontiac Catholic or St. Anne in second round action Thursday at 8 p.m. at St. Alphonsus.

The seniors, who should be forgiven for their Monday slump after a train breakdown delayed their return from a senior class trip until late Sunday night, are part of a starting lineup which has had a bead on the Catholic League title since early in the season. All six starters are up for either All-League or All-Catholic honors, which would be a first for Star.

"I think that our success is due in large part to the kind of personalities we have on this team. This is a cohesive group," said head coach Valerie Johnson. "Everybody wants to be on the court and playing, but those who aren't are cheering the others on."

JOHNSON SAID that she and former head coach Spindler felt all along that Star had the potential to be a championship team — but lacked the confidence. Until they played Pontiac Catholic.

"It was early this season. We'd lost the first game of the match, but came back and really fought hard and we ended up beating Pontiac Catholic. After everybody got home, I called them and told them 'you learned something. You've got to know you can win before you do win. And you learned that today.' "

Star is not a big team, junior Meghan O'Toole is the tallest at 5-10, but the lineup of Anita Pugliesi, Cindy Winiarski, Mary Ellen Sattler, Cindy Allor and Marissa Bautista has developed a style all its own — combining the great talents of the individuals.

Johnson feels that 5-5 setter Anita Pugliesi is the team leader. "She's the best setter I've ever seen. She's little, but she's tough and she doesn't have many limitations," Johnson said.

And Pugliesi is Star's resident "dink" expert. "She finds a hole and across the net will be a girl who knows this little girl is going to drop a dink on her . . . and there isn't a thing she can do about it," Johnson laughs. And Pugliesi is no stranger to the tough job of a setter. "She knows that its hard, and you don't get much glory . . . and she just revels in it. That's why its so great to watch her. She doesn't believe she's not 10 feet tall when she's out there . . . and I'm not going to tell her she isn't."

JOHNSON GOES down her lineup and finds a key ingredient to Star's success in each player. "Sattler is our power hitter. She just gets on top of the ball and powers it. Cindy Allor, our setter-spiker, is solid all the way around. Cindy Winiarski is our 'Steady Eddie.' And Janine Jaboro, who sat out a South celebrates after Anthony Eugenio's goal with 12 seconds to go gave the Blue Devils at 4-3 win over North High last Saturday.

South shocks North

North and South left their sub-.500 records behind last Saturday and played the close, exciting brand of hockey that has become a trademark of North-South varsity hockey contests. And when it was over, South had scored twice in the last 40 seconds of the game to take a 4-3 win over the Norsemen.

The North-South game itself is usually enough to pack the Grosse Pointe Community Rink with 900 frenzied fans; but North and South supporters also manage to add their own personal touches to bring the level of excitement even higher. This time, the Norsemen skated out with their names printed across the seats of their bright gold warm up pants and tossed "Freeze the Devils" towels to their fans.

South players each carried Confederate flags and senior forward George Krappmann skated out with a North "dummy" which he hung in effigy from the top of the South goal. The dummy was the creation of Krappman and South senior David Loffredo.

Devils host Appreciation Night

The Grosse Pointe South Blue Devils and the South High For 'Em Club will host Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Appreciation Night at 7 p.m., Friday, Feb. 15, when the Blue Devils play Southfield at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink.

All kids 12 and under must be accompanied by an adult. Free admission will be given all GPHA players wearing team jerseys.

Following the game, participants are invited to a reception in the GPCR Community Room. South High head coach Tim Zimmerman and North High head coach Mike Manzella, as well as players and parents from both teams, will be on hand to meet fans and answer questions on high school hockey.

For 'Em Club spokesmen note that the GPHA Appreciation Night is in recognition of the contribution made by the GPHA toward the establishment and ongoing success of the Grosse Pointe High School hockey program.

'Amazing week' for ULS

The University Liggett School varsity basketball team upset Plymouth Christian, 65-63, Feb. 8 — a thrilling victory which completed an amazing week for the Knights. Coach Tony Gallaher's squad extended its winning streak to four games and raised its record to 7-8.

ULS dominated the first and third quarters in beating Bethesda, 63-51 in a make up of a snowed-out game. Harold Colby led the Knights with 24 points and 16 rebounds.

ULS continued to play well on Feb. 6, when they topped Dearborn Riverside, 57-48. Colby again paced ULS with 28 points, while Keith Calcagno added 11. Brian David played an excellent game with 10 rebounds and 10 points.

On Friday, Feb. 6, ULS entered Plymouth Christian's gym, which was packed with fans for their homecoming game. Three injuries had left the Knights with only eight men, already fatigued after six games in two weeks. The Eagles, confident after beating ULS by 16 on Jan. 8, jumped out to a 19-14 advantage, lead by two at the half and by four after three.

The Eagles had pressed ineffectively all night, and in the fourth quarter ULS finally took advantage of their sloppiness. Brian David lofted a pass to a breaking John Travis, who had an easy lay-up. This play occurred four times, as the Knights continually beat the press. This intelligent basketball, along with excellent free throw shooting (21/29 in the game, 11/14 in the fourth quarter), allowed ULS to take the lead 55-54 with about four minutes to play. Then, to the roar of the crowd, Plymouth gained a three-point lead. ULS fought back to lead by three. However, as 11 seconds showed on the clock, the score was dead even, 63-63, and Plymouth Christian was at the free throw line.

The shot bounced off to the right, and Brian David ripped down the rebound. Spotting a streaking Joe Jurewicz, David rifled a pass to him at mid-court, he completed the lay-up. Plymouth had possession with four seconds left, but their desperation shot was off the mark.

Leading all scorers was the Knights' only healthy senior, Colby with 27. Brian David and John Travis each added 14 points. In addition, David had 12 rebounds and 7 key assists in the win.

Gallaher's Knights travel to Ohio to compete in the Maumee Tournament on Friday night and Saturday afternoon, Feb. 15 and 16. (By John Travis).

JV improves

ULS JV team won two of three games last week to raise its record to 7-8. After running past Bethesda 58-40 and clipping Riverside 52-49, the Knights were throttled by Plymouth Christian 59-40.

Kevin Darby, led all scorers with 27 points against Riverside. Darby placed the attack with 14 points, while Karabetsos chipped in 13.

North cagers even mark

By Bill Hoover
North High

Last week's victories enabled North's varsity basketball team to even its record at 7-7. The Norsemen picked up wins over the L'Anse Cruese Lancers, 66-55, and the South Lake Cavaliers, 62-52.

Against the winless Lancers on Feb. 5, North played evenly and led by six at halftime.

North opened the second half with a 10-2 run before L'Anse Cruese and finished the quarter strong, taking a comfortable 54-36 lead. The fourth quarter, highlighted by a Chuck Loeher basket at the buzzer, saw the Lancers make a run only to fall short, 66-55.

North was led by Kevin Weidinger's 22 points, 11 rebounds, and four assists. Art Szymanski finished with 20 points and six steals; Rob Skuras added 13 points.

On Feb. 8, North defeated South Lake for the second time this season, 62-52.

In front of a loud and large crowd, North moved the ball well and jumped off to a 11-0 lead. North chose to slow the tempo in the second quarter. This allowed the Cavaliers to pick away at the Norsemen lead in a halfcourt game. At the half, North held only an eight-point lead, 30-22.

Early in the third quarter, North went inside to Weidinger, Skuras and Szymanski to counter the Cavaliers' attacks. The Norsemen, who held leads of 10 or more throughout the quarter, turned the ball over four straight times. At quarter's end, North was up only six points, 40-34.

Just 1:30 into the fourth quarter, North went into a man-to-man defense and picked up the aggressiveness on the boards. The Norsemen started to pull away, but a stubborn South Lake team kept the game within reach. North, switching to a delay game, whittled away at the clock. A late surge by the Cavaliers was too little too late as North upped its Bi-County record to 6-2.

North was led by Szymanski's 25 points. Weidinger added 19 points and 11 rebounds while Skuras finished with 12 points.

North's next game is Feb. 14, at Roseville Brablec at 7:30 p.m.

JV wins

North's JV cagers won twice last week, beating L'Anse Creuse, 54-27, and coming back to top South Lake, 57-54. Dave "Little World" Justice led with 16 points against L'Anse Creuse.

When the teams got down to playing hockey, the first period was another example of a typical North-South struggle and ended in a 0-0 tie after each team had good scoring chances. It also was a period which began and ended with some chippiness on the part of both teams.

North opened the scoring in the second period when Greg Henchel connected on a power play goal on an excellent set up pass from Casey Quick. Quick was playing with a broken wrist suffered in the first North-South contest on Jan. 9. John Russell gave North a 2-0 lead, Joe Cueter assisting, at 6:44, but South narrowed that lead on Phil Pitters' goal with 13 seconds left in the period.

George Jerome tied the game midway through the third period on an assist from Stu Whitney and after each team came close to scoring, Quick finally gave North what looked like the winning goal on a pass from Frank Vento.

Eugenio, who had been penalized for six minutes for roughness and high sticking in the first period, sent South players onto the ice and South fans into high gear with his goal. The victory gave South an 8-10 mark and a 3-1 lead in the series between the two teams.

North's record is 7-10. The Norsemen will play Livonia Bentley at home this Saturday, Feb. 16.

Volleyball

while, is doing a great job for someone who's been away from the game," Johnson said.

"The best part is how the girls take turns with leadership. Someone is ready to take charge when she is needed. And the girls have a good sense about each other. That's called communication and that's the name of this game," Johnson said.

Former coach Spindler has her own idea of what made Star come together so well this year. "It's attitude. They went into this year so pumped, so ready. And they finally believed they could win. Most of the girls played basketball this fall and all they could talk about was how much they looked forward to volleyball season. They were hungry for it," she said.

All-League, All-State and playoff aspirations aside, Johnson said she's loved every moment of coaching Star to its undefeated mark this season. The team has fun together and she said she's enjoyed watching them come to this point.

"One thing I've wanted is for the team to try to take it in stride. The girls have done that, they don't make a big deal out of any one game. What's past is past for them. But now we're at the point where they know there's no free passes, no letups. I don't want them to run the risk of losing the championship they deserve," Johnson said.

Johnson and Spindler were concerned that a lack of top competition late in the season might hurt Star, and Monday night's close one might have been a sample of that. "We haven't peaked yet and Pontiac Catholic, if we play them, is right at its peak," Spindler said.

In the end, though, both know that it will be up to the Tunas, whose six All-Everything starters as well as Michelle Calcaterra, Katie Gebeck, Kelly Keifer, Jeanne Purrenhage, Tracey Walker, Karla Rendz, Sarah Wikenczy and Beth Allor — to keep Star on target for a title. And according to Johnson, that's the way it should be.

"I hope, as a coach I've given them 'this much,' " she said, holding up her thumb and forefinger. "But they've done it. They're the ones who deserve a pat on the back."

SEALS-RANGERS

The Seals beat the hard-skating Rangers, 1-0, behind Chuckie Schervish's fourth shutout. Doug Semack scored his first-ever goal; Bobby King assisting. Geoff Kimmel, Peter Blake and Greg Ryan turned in fine performances. Brian Belanger, Paul Megler and Brian Everham played well for the Rangers.

PENGUINS-FLYERS

The Penguins took a 4-1 win, thanks to the play of the B-line. Shane Penczak scored a hat trick and Billy Faber added a goal; Mark Campbell drew an assist. Brent Kuhar played another strong game to go with his recent goal. Tom Waldron, Kenny McIntyre and goaltender Jon Romine played well. Todd Dunlop scored for the Flyers, while linemates Bradley Klein and Joe Pierce played well.

GPD-RED WINGS

GPD beat the Wings, 6-3, to run its record to 7-1-1. The Wings' B. Crandall opened the scoring before GPD's M.J. Morris tied the score; Jamie Bufalino drew an assist. Bufalino then put GPD ahead when he scored from Val Covacha, who made it 3-1 with a goal of his own in the second period. The Wings came back on a goal from C. Gibson from G. Massu, but Chris Coates scored for GPD. He added another goal in the third period from Blair Ridder before Covacha put the game away with his breakaway goal. The Wings added a late goal on the power play.

Squirt Division

The Flyers opened the District Tournament at Fraser, losing 4-1, to Royal Oak. Royal Oak took a 2-0 lead into the second period before Peter Antonenko scored for the Flyers from Kristian Hoglund and Geoff Miller. Royal Oak scored goals in the second and third period for the win. Flyers Mike Ugval, Hoglund and Robby Wieczorkowski hit the posts with their shots. Gary Olson and Danny Bombich played well on defense. Matt Spicer and Jason Chevalier also played well. Tom Best's goaltending kept the Flyers in the contest.

The Flyers were eliminated from further district play, 4-3, in double overtime to Sterling Heights. After falling behind, 2-0, in the first period, Hoglund put the Flyers on the board when he converted Jason Chevalier's pass. Matt Spicer's two goals — from Robby Wieczorkowski and Peter Antonenko — gave the Flyers a 3-2 lead before Sterling Heights tied it up with 3:55 left. The Flyers had a chance to win in regulation when Hoglund was awarded a penalty shot with four seconds to go, but was stopped by the Sterling Heights goalie. Flyers goalie Miller played an outstanding game, as did the entire Flyers team.

RED WINGS-BLACK HAWKS

J.P. Sweda got the shutout as the Wings skated to a 4-0 win. Jay Berger had a hat trick, assisted by Kip Gotfredson, Gary Corona, Alex Olmstead and Teddy Hanawalt. Olmstead added an unassisted goal. John Wise, Peter Spivak and Tommy Lee worked to keep the Hawks scoreless.

GIBBINS GIRLS-RED WINGS

The Red Wings hosted the Gibbins Girls — an all-girl Pee Wee team from Dearborn — and the teams played to a 0-0 tie. The girls were led by Grosse Pointers Robin Olson, Tanya Brewer and Nancy Alcott.

Pee Wee Division

BLACK HAWKS-FRASER

The Black Hawks opened the Little Caesar's Playoffs with a 4-3 win over Fraser. The high-powered combination of Renato Roxas and Scott Soule, which has paced the team all year, got the Hawks off to another great start. Soule converted passes from Roxas and Josh Ferry for one goal, then added another from Roxas and Greg Semack. Ferry finished off passes from Gabe Benvenuto and Jeff Antonenko for a 3-0 lead. In the third period, goalie Jim Bunn fought off the Fraser attack which threatened to tie. Benvenuto iced the game with his third period goal from Peter Masouras and David Chute. The defense of Bill Wilson, Dan Grundman and forwards Zack Van Auken, Semack and Roxas shut down any further scoring chances.

BLACK HAWKS-CRANBROOK

The Hawks beat Cranbrook, 5-4, in this tune up for the district playoffs. Semack notched his first goal of the season on a rebound from Soule's shot. Benvenuto drew an assist; it was the sixth game in a row he'd drawn at least one point. Soule added two goals from Antonenko and after Cranbrook scored, Roxas connected on a breakaway goal of his own. Soule added two goals to complete his second hat trick of the year; Masouras extended his 10-game scoring streak with an assist, and Billy Wilson and Dan Grundman also assisted. Bunn turned away several dangerous shots and as the Hawks' fine defense of Chute, Antonenko, Ferry and Van Auken grew tired, Cranbrook added three late goals to make it close.

BLACK HAWKS-AVON

The Black Hawks continued their drive to the district championship with a 5-3 win over Avon in the first tournament game at Fraser. Soule started the attack 30 seconds into the game with a wicked slap shot off Roxas' pass. After Avon tied the score in the second period, Roxas converted a bad Avon pass into a goal and the lead. Avon tied it again late in the period, but the Hawks came back on Benvenuto's goal from Masouras with 17 seconds left. Soule made the score 4-2 when he scored with one second to go in the period. Antonenko and Grundman played well on defense in the third period; Avon scored once on a rebound after a great save by goaltender Bunn. But Roxas put the game away with his second goal of the contest from Soule.

LEAFS-NORTH STARS

The Leafs shut out the Stars, 3-0, to even their playoff record at 1-1. Goals by Juan Ganum, Scott Nesom and George Petersmarck and the shut out goaltending of Brian Dennis sealed the victory. John McGlone, Kevin Kirchner and Vince Palazzola played superbly, as did the Stars' Jackie McSorley.

BLACK HAWKS-NORTH STARS

The Hawks topped the North Stars, 6-2. Renato Roxas gave the Hawks a lead just 12 seconds into the game, taking a Scott Soule pass and beating Stars' goalie Richie Harder. Gabe Benvenuto added a goal from Peter Masouras, followed by David Chute's goal from Roxas. Al Fisher converted Brad Hea's pass to close the score to 3-1. Roxas and Masouras (two) added third period goals from Soule, Benvenuto and Semack to ice the win. Fisher combined with Jack McSorley to notch his second goal of the year.

BLACK HAWKS-NORTH STARS

The Black Hawks came from behind to beat the Stars, 5-2, to earn a spot in the district championships. The Stars jumped out to a 1-0 lead when Fisher took Harder's pass and scored. Soule tied the game when he converted passes from Roxas and Masouras. Roxas scored an unassisted goal in the second period, but the Stars tied it on Derek Smith's goal from Peter Cueter. Roxas then put the Hawks into the lead with one minute left in the period; Masouras and Josh Ferry assisting. Benvenuto and Masouras scored in the third period from Soule, Roxas and Danny Grundham to ice the game. Goaltenders Brad Hea (Stars) and Jeff Antonenko (Hawks) played very well.

NORTH STARS-AVON

The Stars took a 4-3 win over the Avon Bulldogs in the opener of the Little Caesar's playoff series. Harder opened the scoring in the first period from Andy Martin. After two Bulldog goals, Fisher added two goals for the Stars on passes from Harder and McSorley. After Avon tied it up, Smith converted Fisher's pass to give the Stars a lead and the win. Goaltender Hea made many excellent saves.

LEAFS-FRASER

The Leafs topped Fraser, 2-1. Juan Ganum opened the scoring from Vince Palazzola. After Fraser tied it, Palazzola scored the game-winner in the second period. Danny Ritter and Jeff Osborne drew assists. George Petersmarck was fantastic in goal; Scott Nesom, Gideon Redding, Ben Braun and John McGlone played very well.

LEAFS-AVON

The Leafs and Avon batted to a 0-0 tie. Ganum and McGlone controlled the blue line for the Leafs as forwards Osborne, Nesom and Palazzola applied the pressure. Kevin Kirchner, Scot Partridge and Petersmarck skated well while Brian Dennis earned the shutout in the nets.

Luxury and Privacy
in harmony with nature.

In the development of Bingham Woods Condominiums, we went to great lengths to develop an architecture that would compliment the natural beauty of the area. The result? A truly unique environment with cedar siding, rustic brick exteriors and open, spacious living areas in harmony with the surrounding woods, ravines and Franklin River.

But for many, the real beauty of Bingham Woods is in the lifestyle it affords — where the quality and comfort of your life can truly reflect the beauty of the environment. We're as committed to that as you are.

Priced from $175,900.

Take I-94 west to northbound Lodge, exit Telegraph north. Take Telegraph to Thirteen Mile Road. Go east on Thirteen Mile for 500 yards. Bingham Woods is on the south side.

NOW AVAILABLE FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

Here are two of the finest Jaguars ever built: the magnificent Series III sedan and the awesome V-12 powered S-type GT.
Both share the inimitable Jaguar qualities of graceful design, quick response and agile handling. Both are equipped with precise power rack and pinion steering, racebred four-wheel independent suspension and decisive four wheel power disc brakes.
Inside, Jaguars provide a level of luxury and quiet seldom, if ever, equalled in a high performance motorcar. Test drive them today.
