Woods begins preparing for Ameritech cable franchise talks

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

Stating the competition is a good thing for consumers, the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council approved spending $5,000 to acquire the services of the law firm of Varnum, Riddering, Schmidt & Howlett to enter into negotiations with Ameritech over a cable television franchise within Woods city limits.

Woods mayor Robert Novitke said that city officials have been trying to get some cable television competition for the past couple of years.

"As an inducement to get Ameritech to come to the Pointes, we at the Woods have been trying to join forces with the other Pointes and Harper Woods to negotiate as a single unit," said Novitke. "But Woods officials were recently contacted by Ameritech representatives who indicated that the company wants to deal with each city on a one-on-one basis."

Woods representatives will meet with Ameritech officials on Sept. 29. While the city council created an ad hoc special committee to deal with cable television issues, it was felt hiring a law firm was the best way to go while negotiating.

"We want to make sure that issues such as right-of-way and how the city can maintain control of it are addressed," Novitke said. "We feel that it is important that complex legal issues are taken care of up front."

But just because the Woods is entering into negotiations with Ameritech over the granting of a cable television franchise, Novitke warned, residents should not plan on comparing cable television service and rates just yet.

"Negotiations will take some time," said Novitke. "Even if talks go quickly, I wouldn't expect work to begin on a new cable system until the beginning of 1998. I have no idea how long that would take, but our feeling is the sooner the better when it comes to competition."

But the main thing, said Novitke, is to bring competition to the arena of cable television service. The city's ad hoc committee was formed in response to citizen complaints about

School boss: Let process of change unfold before drawing conclusions

By Shirley A. McShane

When it comes to the music evaluation process in the Grosse Pointe schools — if nothing else — everyone agrees the end result should be in the best interest of the student.

"This was not a situation where there was unanimity of thought," said Suzanne Klein, superintendent for the Grosse Pointe schools. "Everyone involved, no matter what opinion they held about the process and the resulting changes, has the best interests of their children and the program at heart. The difference lies in how they perceived the program before the evaluation."

Despite two scheduled meetings between the administration and concerned parents this month, questions remain regarding the variety of changes in place for the secondary instrumental music program.

The process included the formation of a music evaluation committee, the hiring of outside evaluators and a report submitted to the superintendent in late summer that called the program good and then offered suggestions for changes in some areas.

Main concerns at the outset were groupings of students, staffing, whether particular areas of instruction were adequately being addressed and how the program was administered compared with other programs in the district.

Following meetings with parents, and vocal support for and criticism of the evaluation at the September school board meetings, Klein talked about the evaluation, its impetus and where the district is headed.

While it is impossible without the aid of a formal survey to determine what percentage of the school population supports or opposes the changes made in the secondary music program, outspoken community members seem to align in two groups: those who think the program was fine the way it was and those who called for some level of change.

"Different people want different things from the music program," Klein said. "Some want it to be an opportunity to enjoy music and to participate in something non-academic. Others want to have a higher

City Management turns up heat on incinerator deal

By John Lundberg
Staff Writer

Unless member communities of the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority agree to extend the current waste disposal contract they have with City Management Inc., member communities will continue to pay waste hauling fees that are considerably higher than present market rates.

Mike Kenyon, Grosse Pointe Shores city manager, said that City Management has offered to reduce its current rate of $35 a ton for waste disposal if member communities extend the current contract with City until around the year 2014. The current contract expires in 2005 and City insists that member communities honor that agreement. The present market rate for waste disposal is about $20-$24 a ton and, with waste removal generally the third highest expense for any city, member communities will continue to suffer under high disposal rates.

"It's a real mess," Kenyon said. "There is a way out of this (and that is) to deal with City Management."

Last month, the authority board voted to stop burning rubbish and convert the incinerator into a waste transfer station. At that time, officials were optimistic about working out a fair market deal with City to haul its solid waste to one of the company's landfills. Representatives have been meeting with City for some time to hammer out an agreement, without much luck. The latest rounds of negotiations ended with the ultimatum by City Management to extend the contract or pay the $35 a ton.

Thomas Fallucca, an attorney for City Management, released a statement saying, "Because discussions are continuing and we remain in the negotiation phase, it would be inappropriate to comment at this time."

The key issue here is whether City is bound by a consent agreement involving two separate lawsuits settled last year in Clinton Township. (The incinerator is located in the township and rubbish from Clinton represents over half of all garbage burned by the incinerator.)

The consent agreement allowed member communities of the authority to bid out its contract if the authority could not match going market rates. If a member community elected to be released in 1999, the authority "may at its sole discretion elect to discontinue any other disposal services it furnishes with respect to rubbish arising within that community."

What the settlement didn't address is the current contract with City Management. The judge in the case dismissed all "third-party claims" (meaning the contract with City), with prejudice, meaning the status of the contract between City and the authority remained unsettled. City Management claims it is not bound by the settlement and is insistent member communities honor the agreement with City.

Member communities for years have been paying excessive fees to get rid of its trash. As of last year, communities were paying up to $70 a ton to burn and dispose of rubbish, where some outside communities were spending about $25 a ton. The authority board had tried various approaches to reduce its costs, but none of the attempts were fruitful.

The most recent approach was converting the ash into an industrial product called ashcrete, that some other states have used to pave roads, among other things. A test batch was made by the authority and used to resurface a road inside the incinerator grounds early this year. But the project was killed when the state's Department of Environmental Quality ordered the authority to rip up the road because it had not obtained the proper permits needed to use ashcrete.

After that, the authority board decided to scrap the project.

A hard trip but they made it

A committee of Farms trustees and officials recently made an inspection trip to the village rubbish and garbage dumping grounds. Starting out in an official car, the radiator became unplugged in Mount Clemens. Fortunately, trustee Henry Hubbard's business is located in that city, so he was able to get a company station-wagon to complete the trip to Ryan Road. That's where this picture was made of the group viewing the consumers of the deluxe Farms garbage. When they returned to Mount Clemens in the station wagon, they had to have a Farms scout car drive out to bring them back to the Pointe. Left to right are, trustee Hubbard, village engineer Murray Smith, village clerk Harry Furton and trustee Richard Maxon. Trustee George Schlaepfer took the picture. ■ Due to a paltry turnout at the polls, Farms voters for the second time reject a $400,000 bond issue that would have paid for improvements to the village's sewage and drainage system. The proposed bond issue would have provided funds to install and construct additional structures and improvements at the Kerby Road pumping station and to storm water overflows and storm relief sewers. There are more than 2,200 households in the Farms. Of those, about 800 reported basement flooding due to unusually high levels of rain this summer. The proposal received 439 votes in favor and 339 opposed. However, it required a two-thirds majority — or 518 votes — to pass.

■ The City of Grosse Pointe had been developing an extensive sewer and storm water disposal plan, principally in the area south of Maumee to the lakefront, and that project has been indefinitely postponed. Sewer committee chairman Chester Carpenter said a meeting had been held with the State Streams Control Commission and representatives from the state Health Department at which the local committee was told the possibility was remote of state authorities prohibiting the flow of storm waters into Lake St. Clair. This was said despite periods of flooding when it might be possible that a limited quantity of sewage might find its way into the lake. Committee members sensed that the state people hesitated to lay down a dictum immediately applicable to one of the state's smallest communities when there were scores of other larger communities which were still being permitted to dump every form of drainage into the lake.

■ A dry-shingle roof on a residence on Bishop in Grosse Pointe Park caught fire from a chimney spark on Sept. 17. Before firefighters could extinguish it, the blaze burned away half of the roof and had eaten into the third floor. Park fire chief Rector said these old wooden roofs, of which there are many in the Pointe area, are a community fire hazard. The same family had a garage roof fire a few weeks earlier and had replaced it with a new, fire-resistant material. The owner said he had planned on doing the same thing for his house roof before it burst into flames.

increases in the cost of cable services.

"Having some sort of competition should benefit consumers," Novitke said. "We've observed that in other cities where there is competition between cable providers, consumers have reaped the benefits in terms of cost and variety of services. We want to ensure that Woods residents will receive the best level of service, while keeping prices down. Competition seems to do that."

level of challenge. The trick is for us to see if we can provide a variety of experiences."

She said the changes brought about this year and those under development will now make that possible, if not immediately than in the near future. She, along with some school board trustees, urge everyone to have patience and let the changes take their course.

Some of the changes in place include teaming of teachers and modifying schedules, assigning band students across grades 9-12 based on proficiency, addressing string specialist needs and hiring a K-12 music supervisor.

The evaluation, which was a look at how the secondary music program was implemented, with the ultimate purpose of improving instruction, also is part of a new review process the school district is using. Each time a new area of the curriculum is updated, a year-end review will follow the first year of implementation.

"This is a way to enhance improvements we make," Klein said. "It is more of a looping process rather than a review, stop and start again process."

But critics pointed out that the review took place during the first year of implementation and didn't focus on the entire K-12 curriculum, but only the secondary instrumental music portion.

Klein pointed out that what seems to get lost in all the debate is the distinction between curriculum and instruction. The curriculum is the "what" is being taught. The instruction is the "how" it's being taught, she said. The "what" is determined by the administration. The "how" can be carried out in any number of ways.

Another area called under question was the claim that the school administration determined the end result of the evaluation before the process began and that the evaluation was targeted at personnel rather than instruction.

This charge was made by Barbara Jacquet, North high band boosters president, in a sealed, notarized letter dated May 5, that said, in part: "(M)any community members feel the evaluation committee has already decided which changes they are going to make in the implementation of the music program in the high schools and are simply using the evaluation committee to pacify parents."

Klein said she doesn't know on what information those who make their claims are basing them.

In terms of hiring a K-12 music supervisor, the superintendent said she would have liked to have someone in place before the beginning of the school year, as critics have argued should have been done before other changes were made.

Unfortunately, that's not how it played out, Klein said. No one within the district stepped forward and expressed interest in the role. Consequently, the administration has to conduct an outside search. Although they have talked to a number of prospective candidates, no one has been named.

In terms of at least two teachers publicly taking issue with the changes in the program, Klein said there are those teachers who are supportive.

"This is the start of a multi-year process," she concluded. "It will be easier to make sense of this as we move down the road farther than three weeks into the school year."

Attempts made by the Grosse Pointe News to contact representatives of the parents who have concerns about the way the district handled the evaluation were unsuccessful.

Land use of Mack and Moross whittled down to two options

By John Lundberg
Staff Writer

If the Grosse Pointe Farms city council heeds the advice of an urban planner retained by the city, the property at Mack and Moross will be developed as a full-service community recreation center. The other option is a combination community center and senior housing complex for congregate care.

The report, delivered and accepted by the council Sept. 22, summarized the findings of Kate Beebe & Associates, who surveyed the site for possible uses by the city after the property was bought by the Farms in 1994. The report summarized two options the city should consider:

• Housing for 40-60 seniors in a congregate living center, which also includes a small scale community center and playing fields.

• A 60-80 thousand square foot full-service community center, which would include a gymnasium, a swimming pool, an ice rink, a fitness center and playing fields. The center would also contain meeting rooms to be used by community groups.

"We found that there is a considerable demand for indoor recreation space (in the Pointes)," Beebe said. "A school census shows that the (schools population is stable)."

Because of the lack of suitably-sized land, the report concluded that the best use of the land is for the full-service center. Beebe said that it was not "a knock against senior housing," but pointed to other areas in the city where senior housing could be provided:

• Assumption Center is planning to have 65 units open to everybody.

• Assisted care is provided near Cottage Hospital on Kercheval.

• There also is available land near the Ford estate in the Shores, land next to the War Memorial in the Farms, and land next to Harper Woods Secondary School on Beaconsfield.

"(In the study) we did not ID any other sites for a full-service community center," Beebe said.

Although not present at the meeting, mayor pro tem Ed Gaffney implored the council in a written statement read aloud by council member Elizabeth Gandelot to take due caution when considering all options. He called for more discussions by the council and outside consultants before deciding what would be the best use for the site.

A couple of audience members posed concerns over traffic problems and excessive costs the city would endure when the Farms goes ahead with the development. A portion of the property has stood vacant since the Sears building and A.L. Price were razed in the last couple of years.

"These comments are not falling on deaf ears," said Mayor John Danaher. "We certainly are not going ahead (with development) with all the other cost constraints we have under consideration."

The resolution which allowed the Farms to purchase the property in 1994 stated that the land would be devoted to "public use." Under that criteria, the property can house both options presented in the report. Beebe said last week that senior housing falls under that definition if it either eliminates blight in the area or derives economic benefits for the city.

The council later that evening rezoned the area to a community service district, which would accommodate the options the city is considering for developing the site.

Mack and Moross property rezoned to accommodate public development

By John Lundberg
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Farms city council cleared another hurdle Sept. 22 in developing the land at Mack and Moross when it unanimously approved the rezoning of the area, changing it from a commercial district to a community service district.

The area extends from Moross to Kerby and Mack to Chalfonte.

Councilman Peter Waldmeir Jr., who made the motion to rezone the area, said it was the best use for this property to rezone it. The vote came after a public hearing that invited residents to comment on the property that has stood vacant for over two years.

The Farms bought the property in 1994 to develop as a public use site. The cost of the property was $3.7 million, which was absorbed by homeowners in the city. Once the bid was approved, the Farms razed the Sears building and A.L. Price, which use to occupy part of the area.

During the public hearing, there were questions regarding the status of existing retail properties that are located in the rezoned parcel of land. Currently, there is a Kroger store, a tire company and JoAnn Fabrics. City clerk Shane Reeside said all property owners in the area have been notified of the plans through certified mail.

City manager Rich Solak said even though the retail outlets would not conform to the existing rezoned ordinance, they could continue operating on their current sites indefinitely.

Earlier in the meeting, the council accepted a report regarding what the best use for the property would be. (See related story.) The report culminates over a year's work of task force efforts by city officials and residents appointed to make recommendations regarding the property.

The purchase of the land costs a Farms resident who owns a $200,000 home ($100,000 state equalized valuation) about $100 a year in additional city taxes over 10 years.

Great Lakes levels up in August

During August, precipitation was below average on the Lake Superior basin. Precipitation on the Lakes Michigan-Huron, Erie and Ontario basins was above average. For the year to date, precipitation is about 7 percent above average for the entire Great Lakes basin.

The net supply of water to the Lake Superior basin was below average. The net supply of water to the Lakes Michigan-Huron, Erie and Ontario basins was above average in August.

In comparison to their long-term (1918-1996) averages, the August monthly mean water level of Lakes Superior, Michigan-Huron, St. Clair, Erie and Ontario were 4, 22, 24, 23, and 6 inches above average, respectively. Shoreline residents are cautioned to be alert whenever adverse weather conditions exist, as these could cause rapid short-term rises in water levels.

Lake St. Clair at the end of August was at elevation 576.54 feet above the mean water level at Rimouski, Quebec, or about 51 inches above Chart Datum. The August monthly mean level of 576.64 feet was about 24 inches above the long-term average for August. The lake was about 6 inches below the all-time high August monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986.

The forecast shows that the September monthly mean level of Lake St. Clair will be about 4 inches below what it was at mid-August. The lake is expected to continue its seasonal decline into January. The water level in mid-February 1998 is expected to be about 28 inches above the long-term average for that month, or about 19 inches above what it was at the same time in 1997.

■ Shores has "tennis fever." Funds are being raised by residents to build a fourth tennis court at George Osius Park. The goal is to have fewer players turned away during the height of the season. Village officials say they alone cannot foot the bill of $7,000 and could only dedicate $3,000 to the project. Tennis lovers in the community so far have collected $1,200 in pledges to help make court sports accessible to all in the Shores.

■ The $1 million expansion and renovation of Jacobson's in the Village is one step closer to reality. The City of Grosse Pointe Council on Sept. 25 unanimously approved an agreement which in part includes the construction of a $750,000 parking structure that will house about 300 cars.

■ In order to update an old system and prevent basement flooding, the Grosse Pointe Park City Council on Sept. 25 approved a recommendation that the city water and engineering consultants conduct a detailed study of the sewers in certain parts of the city. The Park's sewer system — one of the best in the metropolitan area — is getting older and needs attention. During the month of August, three rather severe storms flooded a number of basements.

■ The Park and City will have to wait for the 1973 construction season before the Wayne County Road Commission begins repairing Jefferson, from city limits to Fisher. The project costs are estimated to be in excess of $399,000.

■ A proposal to build a $4 million office complex on Jefferson between Westchester and Nottingham has been withdrawn by Omni Inc., owned by Farms resident Fred Ruffner. Residents living near the development signed a petition opposing the request. Mayor Palmer Heenan was upset by the defeat, which in his words, "stops the momentum we had going for upgrading at least three commercial parcels on Jefferson Avenue."

■ Residents living adjacent to St. John Hospital are upset about ambulance helicopters landing in the back parking lot. The Grosse Pointe Woods city attorney is investigating the possibility of legal action against the hospital. Residents are not opposed to helicopters used for emergency transports. Rather, it appears that the helicopter pilots are not using the helipad constructed behind the new concentrated care building due to wind turbulence they feel puts them in danger. Instead, they are opting to land in the middle of the parking lot, a spot that neighbors say is too close of proximity to wires, utility poles and houses.

■ The city councils of Grosse Pointe Park and the City upgrade and privatize their ambulance service by drawing up terms for a one-year contract with L.C. Taylor. The private service will provide both cities with an advanced ambulance unit and paramedics. Advanced ambulances carry high-tech equipment and are staffed with paramedics who can administer drugs. Currently, the Park operates an in-house basic emergency medical service; the City buys its service from the Park. Basic emergency medical technicians provide first aid, CPR and dress wounds while transporting patients to the hospital. The Park will pay $45,00 a year; the City will pay $10,000 a year.

■ The library governance committee, after 18 months of research and producing an 8-inch-thick volume of material, delivers its recommendation that the public library needs a full-time separate board to attend to its needs. Currently the Grosse Pointe school board convenes a few times a year as the library board of trustees. Proponents of change say the school board has enough on its plate, leaving little time for library issues. Opponents say the library has been the school board's responsibility since 1929 and patrons are satisfied with this arrangement.

Puppets, grandmothering go hand in hand for Farms resident

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

POINTER OF INTEREST

For Grosse Pointe Farms resident Carol Reed retiring from the business of puppet-making has allowed her the chance to spend more time with her grandchildren — playing with puppets, of course.

Reed was born on the east side of Detroit and moved to Grosse Pointe in 1995 after living in Dearborn and Australia for the past 30 years. She and her husband Rick, a designer for Ford Motor Co., moved to the Pointes to be closer to their family.

"I went to Denby, Wayne University and Olivet College, which is where I met my husband," said Reed. "I ended up leaving school to help put him through art school. I went from an office clerk to office manager in eight years while living in Los Angeles."

Reed and her husband went west so that he could study at the Art Center College of Design, the most prestigious auto design school in the 1950s.

After leaving L.A., her husband got a job with Ford, so the family moved to Dearborn 1964.

"By the time Rick was finished with school, we had two kids," said Reed. "I decided I had enough of working and wanted to spend time with my kids. We bought an old house in Dearborn that was built by Henry Ford in 1919. We restored it, and it was eventually placed on a house tour in Dearborn.

"I didn't start out to be the 'puppet' lady," Reed said. "I remember as a kid we used to get small hand puppets of Snap, Crackle and Pop with our Rice Krispies. I loved Howdy Doody and Kukla, Fran and Ollie. Here I was with two children and not wanting to work, but I did have a need to do something creative."

One day, Reed said she made a little finger puppet of a rabbit out of felt. She saw the potential of puppets playing with her kids.

In 1973, the family moved to Australia for about a year. While there Reed made felt finger puppets of characters from the Winnie the Poo stories for a Methodist children's home.

The Reeds went back to Australia for a period in the 1980s, and she marveled at how the country had changed.

When they were there the first time, they didn't meet any other Americans. That was not the case the second time around.

When the family returned to Michigan after their first stay in Australia, Reed said she met Linda McCarty, a Dearborn librarian who was trying to make puppets for a show, but lacked the skills.

A deal was made where Reed would make the puppets and McCarty would put on the shows.

Her husband then saw a large rabbit hand puppet and said that she could make that. Reed then started going to craft shows to sell her wares and the puppet business took off from there.

"I even at one point had my own business," Reed said. "I estimate that I have made 10,000 hand puppets. In the early 1980s, I had my own business but eventually decided I would be happier keeping it small and personal.

"I didn't want to get big and decided to concentrate on making puppets for libraries in the tri-county area, for their reading programs."

But after making those 10,000 puppets, said Reed, she noticed that her hands weren't as nimble as they used to be and her eyes weren't as sharp.

Plus more people than ever were making puppets, so she started to retire from the puppet-making business.

"But I didn't want my work to be lost, so I decided to put my patterns in a book," Reed said. "But I realized that a lot of people don't know how to sew, so I came up with the idea of a new kind of sock puppet that could be made at home, but did not require sewing."

Right now Reed has volunteered to help the Grosse Pointe library puppet show programs.

She said that Gloria Sheridan, a librarian with the Grosse Pointe Public Library, has a story time show on the Pointes' public access channel, and that she also puts on shows at the library using puppets Reed made up to 25 years ago.

"This program uses a simple table top stage that is easy to carry and can be set up anywhere," said Reed. "I've done a lot of library workshops and programs because it helps students learn. Puppetry encompasses all the arts, from music to dialogue to literature. Television can't compare to it."

Reed has pretty much retired, but still puts on shows with her two granddaughters and their friends.

Because she is retired she now only does the fun things in life.

"I don't have to produce 25 puppets on deadline anymore and that's a relief," Reed said.

The culmination of all of Reed's skill is her puppet Grace Gardener. It is a large, hand-puppet with its own personality.

"Grace is the first character puppet I've made," Reed said. "By that I mean that she is the first puppet I've made with her own personality. Usually I would make a generic cow puppet or a rabbit puppet."

Grace is a tribute to her friend Grace Harrison, who has been involved with the Children's Garden at the War Memorial.

Reed does some performances using Grace to talk to children about gardening as a part of the "Seeds to Grow On" program put on by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center at the War Memorial on Saturday mornings.

"My best ideas come to me at 4 a.m. in the morning when I can't sleep," said Reed. "When I was turning 50, it hit me that life is like a puzzle. When you are young, you are getting pieces of knowledge. When you get a little older, you start putting these pieces together. In the third phase of your life, you start passing on that knowledge. I don't want to die with any extra pieces, so I am passing them on now."

Reed no longer makes puppets for sale, but she expects that within the next year or two to put on a seminar on puppet making.

"My husband grew up here," said Reed. "When we moved here after 30 years in Dearborn, we knew we would like the small town atmosphere.

"But we were also pleased to learn that Grosse Pointers are smart and curious people who take the time to satisfy that curiosity. It's just a wonderful community to live in."

Is Michigan home to 79 rebel groups?

Is Michigan one of the two major promoters of right-wing hate and anti-government groups in the country?

A yes answer to that question came last week from Klanwatch, an arm of the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala., a watchdog group that monitors U.S. hate activities.

Its report contends that Michigan is home to 59 patriot groups, 13 "hate groups," and seven common-law courts. California is the other state identified by Klanwatch as having the highest concentration of right-wing groups in the nation.

According to a story in The Detroit News last week, Klanwatch established a militia task force in 1994 after it became convinced that racist groups "were gaining a foothold in the militia and patriot movements."

However, the Klanwatch report linking Terry Nichols of Lapeer, the Oklahoma City bombing suspect, to Posse Comitatus, a Michigan patriot group, has been denied by Nichols, his lawyer, Michael Tigar, and James Wickstrom, leader of Posse Comitatus.

Nichols is scheduled to go on trial Sept. 29 on grounds he helped his Army buddy, Timothy McVeigh, in the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing. McVeigh recently was convicted and sentenced to death for his participation in the bombing.

Mark Potok, author of the report, "The Second Man: Terry Nichols and the Oklahoma City Bombing," has said that Nichols "was clearly schooled" in the anti-government extremism taken by Posse Comitatus.

But he added that Klanwatch had found no evidence that Nichols had associated with the Posse Comitatus or its followers.

Whatever the situation in Michigan with respect to the Posse Comitatus or any anti-government extremist groups ought to emerge at Terry Nichols' trial, scheduled to start Sept. 29.

Recyclers claim victory, to disband

The recommendation that U.S. Sen. Pat Leahy of Vermont proposed to end the Vietnam War — "Let's declare victory, and then pull out" — is now serving the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling.

Since the recycling group's board felt that it had attained its purpose — making recycling a fact of every day life in the Pointes — it, too, decided to claim victory and will recommend action to disband when the rank and file meets at 7:30 p.m. today at the Unitarian Church.

We think the community owes a debt of gratitude to Fran Schonenberg and the many people in the organization who have made recycling such a success that it can now go it alone in the Pointes.

Let's give Fran a hand!

Dole backs Clinton on trade

Bob Dole, the 1996 GOP presidential nominee who has been keeping a low profile since joining a Washington law firm, last week joined the bipartisan group backing President Clinton in his call for prompt congressional action on the "fast track" trade issue.

In a column in the New York Times co-authored by Dole and former Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, of Texas, an ex-secretary of the treasury, the pair calls for the same bipartisan support the fast track has received in the past.

They reminded readers that as Senate colleagues in Washington, they had "joined in voting to give fast-track authority to every president from Gerald Ford to George Bush.

"The new fast-track authority will allow President Clinton to negotiate agreements to break down trade barriers in areas where the United States is most competitive, like agriculture, telecommunications, financial services, and medical equipment," they went on.

"It will allow us to retain our leadership in exports by focusing on developing economies, where the bulk of international growth will occur in future years."

In their article, the writers pointed out that since 1992 some 20 free trade pacts have been negotiated in Latin America and Asia that exclude the United States. The writers' contention is that if the United States doesn't act quickly to shore up relationships with Latin America, some other countries will.

This was an important endorsement because the president's request for the "fast track" may not be approved because of criticism from liberal Democrats, labor unions, and some Republicans.

Overall, however, the public ought to feel more comfortable now that Dole has offered specific proof that he is still keeping his eye on this country's highest priorities.

Those priorities surely include international trade It has made this country the world's largest exporter, and has been credited with more than a quarter of our recent economic growth and the creation of more than 10 million new jobs.

House limits ethics complaints

Reading about the new U.S. House rule that bars outsiders from lodging ethics complaints against House members makes one wonder what the majority is really worrying about.

In fact, the new rules were proposed by a bipartisan committee appointed after the fractious and bitter investigation of the charges against Speaker Newt Gingrich earlier this year.

In general, the new rules are aimed at speeding investigations and avoiding partisanship. And most of the package passed with little House tinkering, except for the amendments that were added by the GOP majority.

However, most Democrats voted against adoption of the rules package on the grounds that the amendments weakened the reform even though a dissident Democrat, Rep. John P. Murtha of Pennsylvania, sponsored the rule to prohibit outsiders from making ethics complaints.

Rep. Benjamin L. Cardin, a Maryland Democrat who was co-chairman of the task force submitting the proposed changes, said that passage of the amendment meant that it would be the first time since 1968 that an outside group would have no way to file a complaint other than by having a House member sponsor it.

Supporters claimed, however, that the rule was intended to save the time and energy of House members, as well as reputations that could be ruined by false charges for political purposes or by ideological foes seeking a headline.

Yet we wonder whether the GOP House once again had been outmaneuvered by the Democrats who raise the suspicion that the Republicans are doing something they don't want the public to know about.

Christian Coalition GOP front?

Is the Rev. Pat Robertson a smiling evangelist who insists his Christian Coalition is a nonpartisan group, or is he a political boss of right-wing Republicans who hope to elect a conservative GOP president in 2000?

That question has arisen after a speech that Robertson had delivered to his followers behind closed doors was taped without his knowledge by a representative of Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

The answer to the question is important because the Americans United group hopes to use the tape to persuade the IRS to deny the Christian Coalition its tax-exemption.

So what did Robertson say, according to the tape?

Among other things, he said the Christian Coalition deserves full credit for the GOP takeover of Congress in 1994, and then urged his followers to insist on congressional support for its agenda.

He added that he wanted the coalition to have far greater influence in picking the GOP nominee in 2000 than it had in either 1992 or 1996.

He also ridiculed Vice President Al Gore and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, the House minority leader, already leading candidates for the Democratic nomination in 2000.

The tape of Robertson's speech, covered by the Detroit Free Press, reads like a party document, but a spokesman contended that Robertson was "speaking as a private individual," and added that the coalition does not endorse candidates.

Robertson is, however, both the founder of the Christian Coalition and chairman of its board. Whether his organization still can be considered nonpartisan and entitled to tax-exemption is questionable, but that issue will have to be determined by the IRS.

Act of omission?

To the Editor:

It is with great concern for this community that I must address in the Sept. 18 opinion column.

The Grosse Pointe News is the only weekly paper our community has and, therefore, it has a responsibility to accurately inform. By omitting the information that was seriously discussed at the Sept. 3 board of education meeting and only publishing what happened on Sept. 8, you have selectively omitted information so that your opinion could stand. You have even ignored your own articles from last fall.

The involuntary transfer of Mr. Miller had not been proposed before Dr. Klein took over her duties. It was Dr. Klein's decision, which had to be reversed once the administration found out it had made an error due to incomplete information.

Early last January, over 60 parents, including the officers of the parent boosters from both North and South, requested that the administration do an evaluation to answer why the ninth grade had been separated from the band and why a class of five drummers was allowed when other courses with 16 or more were denied as not cost-effective. After more than $6,000 of evaluation, these questions have still not been answered.

If the silent majority is now speaking, why did 80 percent of those surveyed approve of the existing program?

Why were faculty members given assignment changes days before school started, changes that not only changed their schools but even the grade levels they were teaching? The faculty has had to "wing it."

To think that an entire department underwent such deep changes without having input to its implementation is an insult to our fine staff. I hope this will not set a precedent of ignoring the very people who have brought us to excellence, our teachers.

For the first time, we have had an evaluation committee without representation of the status quo. For the first time, we have had a major change in philosophy in a department without the full staff being involved in its implementation.

For the first time, we have not had a parent meeting to explain the changes and no discussion with the school board.

More letters on page 8A

No change in curriculum? Ask the parents at Brownell what they have lost. Why do South's ninth-grade students only have sectionals, but North's ninth-grade is allowed a full-band experience?

The list is long.

Too often, concerned parents and citizens have been labeled as "uncivil" by this paper even though the majority have been leaders in this community. The outrage of this paper should not be at our neighbors who are questioning. The outrage should come from this community toward those who distort by omission. Even the school board falls into that category — the only meeting that we didn't televise this year was the budget meeting.

Give music a chance

To the Editor:

I believe it is time to examine what the real problems are in the secondary instrumental music education programs in the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Everyone would agree that a musical education which "strives for excellence" is a noble and worthwhile challenge which we as a community are certainly able to provide. With all the disagreements, accusations and rumor mongering occurring between parents, students and the community at large it is time now to put the past behind us and put our energy and support behind all the music instructors who are not only qualified and experts in their field, but have often put in hours of extra dedication and development of the students they teach.

The presidents of both the North and South High Band and Orchestra Support Group and other concerned parents met with the superintendent of schools on Sept. 10 and had a very productive meeting. We understand that the music curriculum is a "living document" that is still in the process of being developed and we agreed that there is always room for improvement in everything we strive to do well.

We also expressed our concern that the music education in the secondary schools has become too performance oriented, which attempts to exclude those who are less proficient and puts too much emphasis on competition. Dr. Klein assured us that a balance is needed and that the current administration supports this.

The current curriculum of

I Say

John Lundberg

(I am nervous behind this podium which stands before the gathered congregation. Thoughts of escape through any means rush through my head. But, hey, if I am going to get better, this is my first step.)

"Hi, my name is John."

"Hi, John!" (answers the crowd enthusiastically)

(Encouraged) "I am here to share with you my ugly secret. I am here to confess that I suffer from ... uh ... uh."

"Say it, John!"

"I suffer from fashion-plate deficit disorder."

(Wild applause) "This your first step, John. Denial is always the first obstacle to overcome. Tell us more."

"The past remains kind of hazy, but I believe it began about a year after I started working in the retail industry. I was young and I needed the work. Only now do I realize that I was flirting with disaster."

"Fashion-plate deficit disorder is a latent condition, John. It only emerges when exposed to the ideal environment. Please continue."

"Well, during that first year, I was quite content getting by with a couple of sports jackets, two pairs of slacks and a pair of dependable shoes. My ties consisted of mainly hand-me-downs. I dressed frumpy, but I was happy."

(A few murmurs of approval, nods of agreement) "We've all been there, John. What happened next?"

"I was dangled the before apple of the evil temptress of designer labels. It began with the first suit I tried on. The cut of the shoulder, the fit of the trousers ... it was intoxicating."

"And then what?"

"Suddenly my shoes were no longer adequate. If only I knew then what a vortex I was entering ... I ... I ... oh, the shame."

"We're with you, man. We feel the pain. We've been to the abyss and back."

"I couldn't stop myself. In a matter of months my wardrobe had been completely transformed. My ties consisted of only the finest silks. My socks bore designer names. I started consulting with magazines like GQ and Esquire to stay tuned with the newest styles. I looked good, but I was empty inside."

"You go, boy!"

"I didn't know then that I was out of control. Even while bills added up, I found some convenient rationalization to justify my purchases. My credit cards became my enabler, my paycheck was my co-dependent."

"Yes, John, yes! Your syndrome became fully advanced. When did you realize you had a problem?"

"My wife Stacy started to drop subtle hints. You know the kind. Ones that suggest insolvency or bankruptcy. I ignored them all."

"Until?"

"A few family members and friends held an intervention. But I balked. My family now was Johnston & Murphy, Salvatore Ferragamo and Robert Talbott. I had a brief fling with Countess Mara, but that was doomed from the start. But they were insistent. I was held at an undisclosed hotel room for days while an exorcist from a discount store worked with me. At first I rejected him as a charlatan in a hacked off wardrobe. But he was very persistent."

"The first steps toward recovery are very severe, John. Support groups like us can only help guide you through it. But now we must adjourn."

But, why? I was doing so well."

"Hudson's two-day sale begins tonight and we must secure ourselves within our homes. We cannot come out for another 48 hours."

"I see your point and I will obey."

"Thine will be done."

Depression, ADHD or fatigue?

By Dr. Victor Bloom
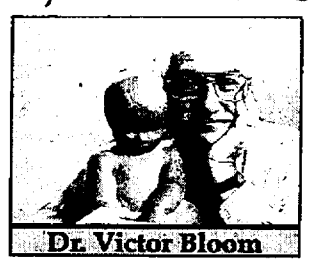
Special Writer

Just when we think we know it all, there comes new information.

Or misinformation; or disinformation.

I'm talking about new findings that are muddying the waters of what depression is and how it is to be treated.



Dr. Victor Bloom

Depression is basically unaccountable sadness, unhappiness, discouragement, pessimism, hopelessness, anguish and despair. It is often accompanied by sleep and appetite disturbances, a slowness of movement and thought, obsessive and worrisome thoughts, irritability, inability to concentrate, uncontrollable sobbing and suicidal thoughts. Estimates are that more than 30 percent of the population are prone to it at one time or another in their lives, and that there is a strong familial tendency. It is also accompanied by poor interpersonal relationships and substance abuse.

It is estimated that depression not only causes much suffering, but inefficiency and loss of work as well, which costs society billions annually.

Adults with depression are not good parents or spouses. It is really a terrible disease and treatment, up to now, has been largely unsuccessful. Now there are a host of medications which are greatly ameliorative, and these chemicals restore balance to the underlying neurochemical imbalance which is at the root of the difficulty.

Now comes clinical research studies that purport that much of what is called depression is really adult attention deficit (hyperactivity) disorder (ADHD), previously called ADD. This had previously been reported only in children, but now some researchers and clinicians are saying that when these children grow up, they still have ADD and these are some of the symptoms of depression.

But the treatment for ADD is Ritalin, and that is an old stimulant-anti-depressant which is similar to amphetamine (speed), which used to be used for depression, but which was discontinued because of the tendency to habituation and addiction. But it remained the treatment-of-choice for ADD, which, by the way, used to be called MBD (minimal brain damage).

It is clear that ADD has been over diagnosed and Ritalin over prescribed, as federal funds (Social Security) were made available for those with the diagnosis. Many pediatricians and child psychiatrists fell into lockstep diagnosing this condition, with the best of intentions. There is no doubt that Ritalin helped those few who really had the disorder.

A condition which further muddies the waters is CFS (chronic fatigue syndrome), which some epidemioiogists (infectious disease specialists) say is due to a virus. So some people are glad to learn that all they have is a bad case of the flu, and that they aren't really depressed at all, and there is no psychiatric stigma or psychological explanation.

All they need is some time and antibiotics, and they will feel better. But the thing is that many bouts of mental depression, due to neurochemical imbalance, also get better spontaneously, in a few months, so it is never clear whether tincture of time was the therapeutic agent, or whatever medication was taken at the time. The epidemiologists claim that they have antibody tests which demonstrate infection by a particular virus. But it is difficult to associate the virus with the clinical state.

Years ago some doctors thought that a prolapsed mitral valve, causing a heart murmur, was at the root of anxiety in many people, and they were treated with digitalis instead of tranquilizers. But that theory faded away and was eventually disproven, as so many others have been, and will continue to be.

Fatigue and malaise and multiple somatic complaints continue to accompany depression, but is the depression primary or secondary? Certainly bodily discomforts and incapacity are a legitimate and regular source of depressed feelings. Who would not be depressed from chronic headache or backache or muscular aches and pains, or real incapacity due to heart disease or stroke?

Unfortunately, it is sometimes hard for a clinician to distinguish between real physical illness and mental hypochondria (imaginary illness). Such complicated cases are sometimes the bane of the diagnostician's existence, and the doctor must order extensive tests and studies. Sometimes, unfortunately, such complicated patients are dismissed as "crocks" and not given the time of day or the real compassion and empathy that they need. Real empathy is based on understanding, and sometimes understanding is elusive, despite the best training and experience of the physician.

So sometimes second and third opinions are in order, and sometimes various treatment modalities have to be considered and tried. We have to accept the fact that every person is unique and complex and that diagnostic categories are nothing but generalizations. People cannot be pigeonholed.

In the wake of all this confusion as to what constitutes depression comes an herbal remedy from Germany. Its trade name is "Kira" and it is an extract of a flower called St. John's Wort. The pharmacological name for the active ingredient is Hypericum and since it is an herb, it is not tested by the FDA.

Still, it has been used in Germany for years and claims to have very beneficial effects for symptoms of depression. It has similar actions to Prozac and the SSRIs (selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors) and minimal side effects.

It can be bought over the counter and costs about half the price of Prozac. Presently, Arbor Drugs is out of it, the demand is so great. Time will tell whether Kira will be a substantial help for nervous disorders such as depression, but in the meantime what we are learning is that each person has his own mental and emotional profile, all of which is mediated, basically, by neurochemicals, and some of the imbalances are at least somewhat correctible by pharmacologic agents, which now include herbal remedies.

Checking out a new rule

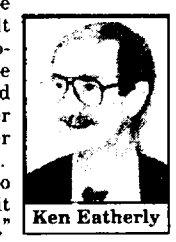
The white-haired lady at the Kroger in the Village was all smiles: She had put a bottle of wine on the moving belt with her groceries and the clerk had asked her what her birthday was.



Ken Eatherly

"I had to think about it for a minute," the beaming customer told FYI.

"We need to know birthdays now because it's the only way the receipt (for alcoholic beverages) will print out," explained the check-out person.

FYI went back through the line just to check this one out firsthand. Sure enough, they do it for gents who are obviously old enough, too.

They won, fair & square

At the Coffee Grinder on The Hill they don't make a big fuss about selling the sweet breads baked by the Farms' Jamee Marie Chancey, but it was different at the Michigan State Fair. There, her ribbons were flying all over the place.

This year Jamee won seven baking awards: first place for her pumpkin bread, banana bread and snowball cookies; second place for her angel food cake; third place for her poppy seed bread and spice cake; and an honorable mention for her butter milk chocolate cake.

In six years of fair competition she's ground out nine first-place awards, four second-place awards, five third-place awards and three honorable mentions.

Seven-year-old Alex Hunt, son of the Shores' Dr. Brian and Mary Hunt, hasn't been doing too badly at the fair either: This year the talented young man won the blue ribbon for "Elementary Art Project, K-3rd Grade."

It was a repeat performance: Alex won the exact same top prize at the fair last year. His art teacher is Mrs. Paula Miriani, of Montieth School.

Kodiak moment

When Joe and Nancy Trowern's friends on Windmill Pointe and Pemberton had a massive chestnut tree topple and leave a 7-foot stump earlier this year, they knew what to do: hire a wood carver and have him turn it into a massive standing bear.

"It's right in their back yard and it's not your average tree-stump bear," says Joe. "It's really big, a real Kodiak."

Carving the stump was a tough job, Joe reports. "The carvers estimated by the rings that it's about 65 years old and they said they kept dulling their chain saw blades on old bullets embedded in the wood, and nails used to put up targets about 45 years ago."

Who are the owners of the Park's latest animal sculpture?

Why, Robert and Karen Bair, of course.

"We call her 'Kare Bair,'" says Joe.

Just a big rabbit hutch?

The War Memorial's Family Fun Day was in full swing Sunday with clowns, hot dogs, a calliope, balloons, Alinosi's ice cream, toys, the giant slide, games, free cupcakes and a big blue whale kids could scramble through when one little girl had had enough, program director Bunny Denler told FYI.

Pointing to the sprawling edifice of the Memorial's Alger mansion, the moppet asked her mother if she could go into "Bunny's house."

"I'm here so much, it does seem as if I live here," said Bunny, laughing.

Initially great

What exclusive feature do the five Pointes share with New York City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Washington, D.C., and Kansas City?

Just look at some of the mail you get from friends who don't want to bother spelling out the full address. They're NY, LA, SF, DC and KC and we're GP, GPP, GPF, GPW and GPS.

Not many other communities can make this claim: Here in the Land of Pink & Green we're so well-known we're often referred to by just our initials.

Just another convenience of living where the living's as easy ... as ABC.

1996 does not detail how music instruction is implemented and the curriculum committee will be reconvened with invitations to all members of the community to be involved.

We have found that there is more to agree on than to disagree on. I challenge any parent who has pulled their students out of instrumental music to re-enroll them today! It is time to put-up or shut-up and support all the music instructors, cease the petty and baseless personality cults and support excellence in the instrumental programs in the high schools.

How do we do that? Encourage your child to practice at home, speak your concerns directly to the instructor and ask how you can contribute or assist in the classroom or at performances to let the teacher just teach and not worry about what criticism will be thrown at them next. If we want high standards then it will take work and support. It does not require cheap insults, gossiping and false accusations to achieve an excellent music education.

The entire music education staff in our district is very experienced and credentialed in their area of expertise or else they never would have been hired in a school district of our caliber in the first place. Each one of them "strive for excellence" and it is time to support and encourage them to focus on the classroom instead of what happens at the school board meetings and the editorials of the local newspaper. Music should be a unifying factor in our community and not the source of division.

A great loss to our Pointe community

To the Editor:

Our community has suffered a tremendous loss with the death of Arthur Kuehnel. As the "Mayor of Mack Avenue," Arthur selflessly contributed his special talents to many charitable endeavors, including his own Grosse Pointe Clown Corps, benefiting the children and residents of our community.

I knew Arthur mainly through his keen interest in government. Arthur would often come downtown and spend an afternoon with me on the county commission. I was looking forward to his visiting me in Lansing this fall, as he had with former Rep. Bill Bryant regularly over the past 25 years.

I always found his knowledge and perspectives on government enlightening and insightful.

I am grateful for the legacy of service Arthur Kuehnel has left for us and for the opportunity to have known him. I, like so many in our community, will miss him.

Andrew C. Richner
Grosse Pointe Park

Night football is what killed Arthur

To the Editor:

The great fears of many opponents of night football were fully realized on Sept. 12.

Your article on the tragic accident which took the life of the "Mayor of Mack Avenue" suggests that we should be thankful that the police were able to respond quickly because of the game which was being played.

The truth is that the accident occurred because the victim was going to the game and had to park some distance from it.

Yes, a veritable army of "security" (one for every 50 in attendance) kept the crowd under control at the game itself, but where was the protection for the neighborhood?

Raoul J. Palffy
Grosse Pointe Farms

Editor's note: Arthur Kuehnel did not drive to the game, and in fact did not have a driver's license. According to police, he was walking to the game from his home.

North/South football success

Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!

To the students, parents, supporters and friends of Grosse Pointe South and Grosse Pointe North high schools we thank you and congratulate you for the fantastic evening we all had last Friday at the first night football game between our two fine schools!

Over 4,100 spectators watched one of the best football games we will ever see and from the opening handshake to the final second we were treated to the finest example of athletic excellence and good sportsmanship.

South and North varsity student-athletes and coaches, you are the best! The cheerleaders and pep band helped provide a wonderful atmosphere and certainly entertained a very spirited crowd. Just as important, everyone who attended showed great enthusiasm tempered with good judgment and exemplified all the things that are admirable about Grosse Pointe!

Our First Annual Good Sports Tail-Gate Picnic was also a huge success with over 250 supporters enjoying a National Coney Island and having the chance to meet and greet friends from both schools before the game. Thanks for your support and the assistance of the Grosse Pointe News and its staff in helping us get the word out!

Once again, congratulations to all 4,100 students and supporters for showing the community that all Grosse Pointers are on the same team!

Go Blue Devils! Go Norsemen!

Gifts for tree plantings

To the Editor:

More good news for the Grosse Pointe community. Earlier, we wrote you about the wonderful community response to the request of the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation for support for funding the restoration of the storm damage at the Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park. The storm caused the loss of 65 trees at the park.

As we reported to all the families and the households in the Farms, we needed to raise $250,000 for funding the replacement and installation of the trees.

We have now heard from nearly 750 of our friends and neighbors. I am happy to report that we have reached 80 percent of our goal.

We are grateful for the wonderful support which has been generated from individuals, block parties, lemonade and cookie sales, as well as from corporations and foundations, some outside our community.

Gifts have ranged from $5 and $10 to as high as $10,000. Here is a summary of gifts we have received thus far:

$10,000 or more — 4 gifts.
$5,000 or more — 11 gifts.
$1,000 or more — 31 gifts.
$500 or more — 26 gifts.
$100 or more — 281 gifts.
Total to date — 740 gifts for a total of just over $200,000.

We ask all to consider giving to the Pier Park Restoration through the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation by sending a gift to the Grosse Pointe Farms City Hall at 90 Kerby Road.

We thank everyone in the community for their quick response and willing generosity.

George A. Haggarty,
President, Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation

When reviewing your financial affairs, hire a lawyer

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

In these contentious times, it is a good bet to enlist the services of a family lawyer when we are reviewing our financial affairs.

A lawyer can help us avoid making mistakes. As we grow older the margin for error begins to disappear, so it is important not to make mistakes. As young working people, we could recoup our losses if mistakes were made. Now we may not have a chance to do so.

To make it more personal, if you are still working but close to retirement, it is wise to make plans for the adjustments of retirement in advance. When it comes to the legal aspects of important decisions you need a lawyer.

A family lawyer can give you a legal check-up much as your family doctor can let you know if there are any health problems developing which need attention.

A death in the family, a birth, a marriage, a divorce or a change in your financial condition are examples of times when legal advice can prevent problems from arising.

One suggestion is to find a satisfied client. Another is to call the local bar association. Someone there will give you the name of a reliable attorney and you can set up a first interview for a modest fee. If you are not impressed, you are under no obligation to continue with his services.

What services can a lawyer perform for you? His primary purpose is to advise you about the legal aspects of your affairs and, if indicated, to use legal procedures for handling them.

Because of his general knowledge of people and business he may advise you about various aspects of your affairs which are not entirely matters of law. Or he may call on experts from another field. When it comes to legal fees there is no exact answer to that question but there are guidelines.

Because in most cases a lawyer charges on the basis of the amount of time he spends with you, you can save yourself time and money by discussing your affairs clearly and concisely. Sometimes attorneys set a flat fee for certain types of work such as drawing a will, probating a descendant's estate or handling a real estate transaction.

In your first consultation with a lawyer, you should ask on what basis he will set his fee. If it is on a hourly basis ask what the rate per-hour is. The attorney may be able to give you a rough estimate of the total, even though he does charge on an hourly basis.

For certain kinds of legal work, a lawyer's fee is subject to approval by a court or by a state or federal agency. For example; the lawyer's fee is controlled in cases involving guardianships, estates of deceased persons, and in proceedings concerning certain types of retirement benefits, such as Social Security.

Many older people add to their retirement income by earning extra money. They babysit, make jewelry, build furniture or other activities for which they are particularly adept.

However, there are legal implications that must be considered when you make extra money. There may be zoning ordinances which prohibit your right to carry on certain activities. There may be regulations covering the kind of work you want to do and your earnings might affect your right to basic retirement funds.

Don't sign anything involving an important decision or a substantial sum of money until you have legal advice. If you decide to move to a cooperative or a condominium, your lawyer can determine the extent of your rights in the property and your liabilities.

And then there is the matter of mailing a will. Have a lawyer prepare it. Do not buy a legal form and fill it in yourself.

When used in a will, a word can have a meaning that is quite different from their meaning in common usage.

There are also formal requirements for the way in which a will is prepared.

At the Grosse Pointe Library there's hope yet for the electronically challenged

IDG Books, a plain-spoken, downright offensive little division of the IDG Corp., struck pure gold in 1991 with the publication of "DOS for Dummies."

Since then, IDG has published over 500 "Dummies" books on just about everything from fitness to college planning. (Oh, the irony.)

Of course, most of the "Dummies" books were about computers and computer programs.

The people who are buying these books are not "dummies," nor are they "complete idiots" (Alpha Books' little spinoff of the concept) but they believe they are, and that's enough to sell books. If a new study on fear was conducted, the fear of computers might beat out public speaking.

But even the electronically challenged need not fear. Arriving straight from the Peace Corps, our new computer specialist, Erin Murray, is on hand to help us sort things out. Catching her between trouble-shooting duties, I asked her what she liked.

First off, she mentioned the consolidated catalogs, which let patrons see who has what in both the school and public libraries.

She also speaks highly of the CD-ROM stations. They supply information on discs that each hold more material on a given subject than the library would have space for in book form.

The library now has on CD-ROM:

• ProQuest — This not-only indexes and provides abstracts for approximately 600 periodicals and full facsimile copy of all the articles in over 300, it is much easier to use than "The Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature" (which is still on hand for the keyboard-shy and indexes less than 300 periodicals).

• The national phone directories cover every listed phone number and address in the nation.

• The business databases include "The American Business Directory," a national yellow pages, and "Standard & Poor's" which contains basic-to-full reports on more than 9,000 public and 84,000 private companies, as well as information on more than 70,000 executives. If the station is in use,

THE OMNIVOROUS READER

Grosse Pointe Public Library

we have quarterly print reports from "S & P."

• Contemporary authors — It would take 147 volumes to stock this in print form. This database gives biographical, bibliographical and critical background on current authors.

• The 1990 census contains extensive information for Michigan and Wisconsin with more 100 categories of choice.

• The Detroit Free Press, which is updated quarterly, provides full-text access to news, columns, editorials and selected letters to the editor, going from 1992 to within three months of the current issues.

There are other databases, but you get the idea. With very little help a total computer neophyte can learn any of these programs in less than five minutes. (Speaking of programs, don't miss the fall speakers' program.)

On Thursday, Sept. 25, T.R. Peters Sr. will talk about his books, including "The Education of Tom Webber," and "Two Weeks in the Forties."

On Oct. 16, William Beierwaltes M.D., author of "Love of Life," will speak.

On Oct. 30, Anthony Ambrogio, formerly a faculty member at Wayne State University and currently in literary research, will prepare us for Halloween with a lecture on Dracula.

COOLANT ADVICE

To avert cooling-system problems, most car manufacturers recommend checking the coolant level by taking a look at the plastic recovery bottle. This is preferable to taking off the radiator cap to check because severe burns can result from removing the radiator cap while it is hot. Furthermore, a properly operating cooling system will have a full radiator when the level in the coolant recovery bottle is correct. This assumes, however, there are no leaks and the radiator cap is in good working order. Otherwise, there will not be sufficient suction to draw coolant out of the recovery bottle and into the radiator. Check the coolant level every so often, therefore, by removing the radiator cap AFTER THE ENGINE HAS COOLED.

Checking out all your operating systems regularly is key if you want to minimize breakdowns on the road. Checking your coolant levels is no exception. At RINKE TOYOTA, we work to ensure your car's top performance and driveability by giving you the help you need. Our technicians are very highly trained and routinely update their skills. You can reach us at 758-2000, or stop in and see us at 25420 Van Dyke.

HINT: The recommended mixing for flushing the radiator and refilling the coolant system is 50/50. Read the label on the container.

Cruisin' Detroit — try it, you'll like it!

Autos

By Richard Wright

One of the surprises of the North Woodward Dream Cruise was the number of people who own "cruisers," vehicles from the '30s, '40s, '50s and '60s — enough to cause a traffic jam from Big Beaver in Troy down into Ferndale.

Most of the spectators who came out for the event were driving more or less conventional cars. But it is more fun to drive a "cruiser" interesting car from an earlier era, but not the real "classics" that belong in museums; these are drivers. So where do people find them and how can you get one with a minimal investment?

Much depends on what you want. Cruisers are usually either customized "street rods" built on cars of '30s or '40s vintage, or they are original cars from the '30s through the muscle car era which ended in the early '70s with the first oil crisis.

In the custom category are cars with origins that are barely recognizable, with chopped tops and flame paint jobs. But most are mildly customized. Often, they look like stock vehicles of '30s or '40s vintage, but have a modern drivetrain and other amenities, such as power windows and door locks and air conditioning that were not common in those earlier eras.

If you are thinking about acquiring a cruiser, a good place to start is Auburn, Ind., about 45 minutes beyond the Michigan-Indiana border on I-69. The big action takes place over Labor Day weekend, when Kruse International stages annually the biggest classic car auction in the world. But the area around Auburn, where the classic Auburn, Cord and Duesenberg cars were built until 1936, has become old car country.

But you don't have to leave Michigan or even the Detroit area. The population of cruisers in this area is enough to jam Woodward and there is a brisk trade in such cars. The advantage of Auburn is that you can see 3,000 of them in one place.

Experts say it is cheaper to buy a finished custom car than it is to buy a junker and fix it up yourself. But if you are looking for a project, fixing up and/or modernizing an old car can be a very satisfying challenge.

For example, this past Labor Day weekend in the Auburn Car Corral, an area where owners can display and sell their vehicles rather than run them through the auction, Billy Cole, of Springdale, Ark., showed his latest piece of handiwork, a mauve and dark purple '32 Chrysler coupe into which he had put a rebuilt 400-cubic-inch '78 Chrysler V-8 from '78 Chrysler along with the proper automatic transmission for that engine.

As is often the case with customizers, he installed a nine-inch Ford rear axle, a popular heavy-duty unit that can handle the torque from a big V-8. The car also had power brakes, power steering, power windows and door locks, everything to make this '30s machine into an easy-to-drive modern cruiser.

"I did all the work myself," Cole said. "Any parts I couldn't find, I fabricated in my machine shop."

Cole had a price tag of $37,000 on the unique car. "It's only got 2,000 miles on it," Cole said. "It's mostly a new car." He said he has put just about $37,000 into the car. "That's not counting my time and labor, of course," he chuckled.

But Cole is retired and has the time, skill and interest required. An easier and much less expensive way to get a suitable vehicle for cruising was parked right next to Cole's Chrysler, a yellow '68 Rambler Rebel SST convertible in like-new condition (cosmetically, at least), with a 343-cubic-inch high-output V-8, automatic transmission and a full array of power equipment. Its owner was asking $8,700.

That's about the price of a good used car, but this is a convertible from an earlier era. If you paid that for a 3- or 4-year-old car, it would decline in value quickly over the next several years. An advantage of buying cars from the "cruisin'" era is that they are not likely to depreciate unless you wreck them.

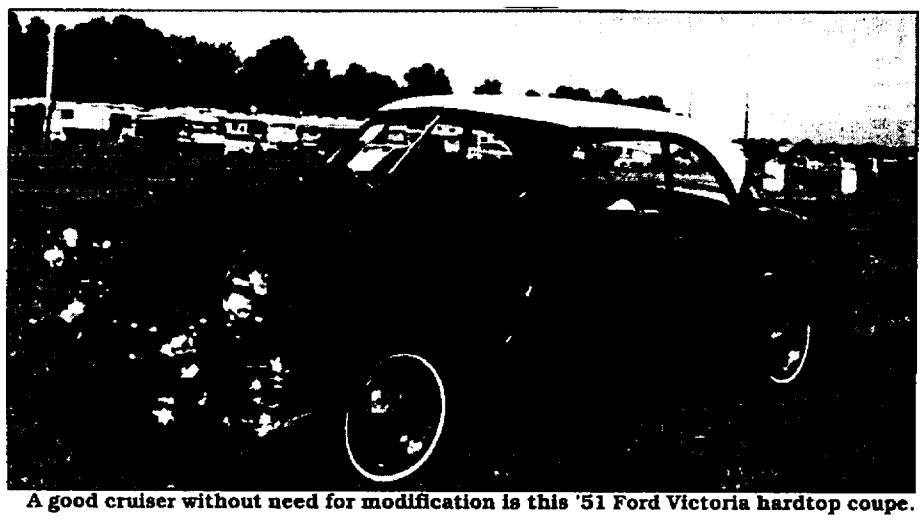
And American Motors products may not have been paid a lot of respect in the last few years before the company was acquired by Chrysler Corp., but back in the muscle car era, AMC was a tough competitor.

And Ramblers can arouse just as much nostalgia as a '57 Chevrolet and nostalgia is a big part of cruising.

How does the cost of a ready-made cruiser compare with creating your own? Across I-69 from the Kruse auction grounds is the Auburn Classic Exchange, a used-car lot which deals in antiques, classics, special interests and street rods. Among the cars for sale at Auburn were a '48 Nash coupe with a small block Chevrolet V-8 and automatic transmission for $12,500; a '57 Chevrolet Bel Air two-door with rebuilt V-8 and rainbow metallic paint and flames for $11,500.

See AUTOS, page 14A

Billy Cole transformed his '32 Chrysler with a modern Chrysler 400-cubic-inch V-8 and all sorts of other power goodies. His asking price: $37,000.



A good cruiser without need for modification is this '51 Ford Victoria hardtop coupe.

"It's usually cheaper to buy a finished car than to restore or customize your own," said Sandy Rice, one of the owners of the business. "A lot of people buy good old cars for their cruising and avoid the costs of modernization and customization."

In that category was a '51 Studebaker Commander Starlite coupe with V-8 power and looks odd enough that no customization is necessary. It had a price tag of $5,900.

A '37 Terraplane with 41,000 miles on it and electric shift was priced at $6,500, as was a '46 Hudson Straight Eight two-door sedan.

For the adventurous buyer who wants to bring back a junker there was a '49 Packard Aero sedan which was very rough but not too rusted. "If there is rust all the way through, it's not worth trying to bring it back," she said. "But this one could be saved." It was priced at $1,200.

Paul Quinn, whose Chicago-based company is in the business of modernizing old cars, gave an idea of the costs involved.

The most popular engine with which to update an older car is the small-block Chevrolet 350 V-8, which he said costs about $1,600 if it fits all right and doesn't require extensive modification of the car.

"There are a number of firms which make parts for that engine," he said.

He added that a high-output version of that engine would cost about twice that and a big-block Chevy V-8 would run around $4,200.

A GM 350 automatic transmission is a good mate for the Chevy V-8, he said, and heavy-duty front suspension and bolt-on front power disk brake kits are available at reasonable prices. "A tilt steering column will add about $150 to $200," he said.

As for other updating, Quinn said "we'll go as '90s as you want – air conditioning, stereo CD players, power windows and door locks, it all depends on how much you want to spend.

He said paint with a lot of pearl flake is currently fashionable. A show-car candy-color pearl-flake paint job costs about $4,000, he said. "We do graphics and flames, too," he said, "but it all runs the cost up. Your finish will probably cost you more than your powertrain. But that's what people see."

Quinn said the most popular models for customizing at his shop are '34 Ford roadsters, followed by '32 Ford roadsters.

Most get Chevy 350 V-8s. He said '41 Willys is also a popular street rod because it takes a big block V-8 without extensive modification.

The growing popularity of cruising has also sparked interest in automotive memorabilia and the swap meet section at Auburn is expanding rapidly.

One interesting display of gasoline pumps and automotive signs was housed in a diner-like structure with those immortal words "Eat and Get Gas."

For $12,500 you can be cruising in this '48 Nash coupe powered by a small-block Chevy V-8.

Not a classic by any means, this '53 Plymouth Cranbrook small car was a sales flop in its day, but now it would make a fine cruiser for $4,800. It had only 37,000 miles on it.

Structure in the mode of '50s-era diner houses automotive memorabilia for sale. Over the door are the immortal words "Eat and Get Gas."

Pointe alumni answer often-asked questions

By Shirley A. McShane
Staff Writer

Like anything else in life, the expectation of the college experience rarely matches the reality.

Dorm life, the social scene, balancing school work with fun, being on your own for the first time can be exciting and intimidating.

Wouldn't it be nice if there was someone or something to give you the real story before you enroll for your first semester?

If you're a young woman contemplating college, there are particular issues of interest that probably won't be mentioned at orientation (such as inequality in sports and a lack of women's studies programs).

Bearing all that in mind, Cristina Page, a recent college graduate herself, decided to put together a book by, for and about young women entering college.

"The Smart Girl's Guide to College" is a Day-Glo orange, softcover book featuring 27 essays written by women from around the country — two are Grosse Pointe natives — and is now available in all major bookstores.

Shannon Coleman

The easy-to-read format includes a history of women in the collegiate environment, candid essays written by young women who tell it like it is, plus a resource section on standardized tests, how to research a college in which you are interested and knowing your rights as a student.

"Never before have girls had as many college choices as they do today," said Page, a New York city resident who has worked at Glamour and Ms. magazines and Crisp, an online magazine for young people.

The book also comes out on the 25th anniversary of Title IX, a law passed in 1972 that requires that any college or university which receives federal funding must provide equality between male and female students, especially in athletics.

Page asked college women to answer the questions most commonly posed by college-bound girls. They had the same questions themselves a few years earlier and now they have the answers.

Emily Meier

By calling universities and colleges across the country, Page was able to connect with the best writers in the English and journalism programs.

She contacted 400 students, received essays from 250 women and whittled them down to 27 for her book.

Grosse Pointe South graduate Emily Meier, who's in her last year at Denison University in Ohio, wrote about living in an all-girls dormitory. The 22-year-old English major's essay, "Girl Music" addresses her initial objection to being placed in a women-only environment.

"I had never lived with girls before," she said. "I've lived with boys all my life (she has two brothers) and always had guys as friends. It's the way of the world."

While friends encouraged her with notions of a never-ending slumber party atmosphere, she envisioned nasty fights, tears and inevitably, someone being driven home.

After she grew accustomed to her environment she realized her expectations were based on stereotypes. In fact, by the end of the year, she appreciated that "the stench of old running shoes or stale beer had been replaced with the potpourri of perfume and dryer sheet scents. The blips and bleeps of Sega games were replaced with the calming whir of hair dryers."

Meier hopes to have a career in magazine writing.

Shannon Coleman, a 1993 graduate of Grosse Pointe North, majored in religion at Kalamazoo College, with a concentration in women's studies and a minor in English. She's now at Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, Mass., working on a master's degree in divinity. She's still undecided as to whether she'll go into the lay or ordained ministry.

Her essay, "Taking Credit," discusses the importance of women's studies programs at colleges. She takes issue with the apparent lack of material on women's roles in history, science and the arts both in high school and college curriculums.

Her feelings are based on a high school experience with a history teacher who told her "studying the history of women is comparable to studying the history of dogs. It's simply nonexistent."

Coleman, who was editor-in-chief of the Northpointe student paper at North High, attempts to dispel myths about women's studies programs. They are not knitting and gossiping forums, she says in her essay.

"The women's studies courses I've taken in college have been among the most challenging and engaging classes, intellectually or otherwise, that I've ever had," she said. "I've learned to take women's lives, my own included, more seriously."

PUBLIC SAFETY REPORTS

Shoplifters strike

Grosse Pointe City police are investigating the theft of merchandise from Jacobson's Department Store on Kercheval Sept. 17.

According to reports, store personnel witnessed two suspicious females walking through the store. One suspect was then observed leaving the building with merchandise. She was followed and was seen entering a vehicle on Kercheval.

On Sept. 18, a report of two women parked in the receiving area of the store was reported to be possibly connected with the theft. The car was gone when police arrived. There are no suspects in custody.

Wallet stolen

Grosse Pointe Shores police hope through their presence a string of thefts will end at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The latest incident involved the theft of a wallet from a purse in the assistant manager's office Sept. 16. Police believe it to be the work of an employee because a candy dish is in the office which attracts many to the office. This is the third such occurrence in the past two months, according to the club's manager.

The wallet contained $180 in cash. At the time of the theft, there were about 50 employees on duty. The victim reported the theft occurred between 5-9 p.m. The purse was on the floor behind the assistant manager's desk at the time of the theft. Another wallet in the purse was not removed.

Drug arrest

Grosse Pointe Farms police arrested one youth suspected of possession of marijuana Sept. 21 on Radnor.

According to reports, police observed a suspicious vehicle parked on the street with four occupants. When questioning the youths, police detected the odor of marijuana. The youths were ordered from the car where a glass water pipe and baggy of the suspected drug were found near where the suspect was sitting in the vehicle.

Upon questioning, the youth admitted to the possession of the pipe and drug and was arrested. The three others were released at the scene.

The youth was processed and released when he paid a $200 bond.

Flasher found

Grosse Pointe Woods police officers were called to South Brys at about 4 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 21, in response of to a report of a flasher.

According to police, two teenage girls were walking on Brys when a man in his 20s got out of his 1986 Ford Taurus. He then lowered his pants and exposed himself to the girls, before getting in his car and fleeing.

One of the girls was able to get the suspect's license plate number and gave it to Woods police investigating the incident.

Officers were able to trace the license plate to a home in St. Clair Shores. When they questioned the suspect they learned he was on probation for two similar incidents.

The incident has been referred to the Woods detective bureau and city attorney's office to determine whether charges will be filed.

Alcohol, driving equals crash

A 17-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms youth was arrested by Grosse Pointe Woods police for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors and possession of a fraudulent operator's license. The arrest came after officers were called to Vernier, near Mack, at about 10 p.m. Friday, Sept. 19 to investigate a car crash.

When officers arrived at the scene, they discovered a 1993 Ford Explorer had crashed into a light pole. The driver apparently had alcohol on his breath and a "beer bong" and several empty beer cans were found in the vehicle.

The driver was attempting to turn onto westbound Vernier from northbound Mack when he lost control of the vehicle and smashed into a light pole.

The suspect was taken to Cottage Hospital for treatment, and is currently free on $1,000 personal bond.

Car chase leads to two arrests

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers observed a pick-up truck run a stop sign at the intersection of St. Paul and Maryland at about 1 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 16. Officers pursued the fleeing, vehicle, which proceeded to run a red light at Jefferson. Officers finally caught up with the truck at Ashland, west of Korte. The driver fled on foot, but was caught hiding in a nearby garage.

Upon investigation, the truck was reported stolen from Ferndale. The driver was also wanted by Detroit police on some misdemeanor warrants. He was turned over to Detroit police.

A second suspect turned himself into police later Tuesday morning, and confessed to helping steal the truck, explaining that he was an ex-employee of the vehicle's owner, and had used a spare key to take the truck. He was remanded to the custody of Ferndale police.

Drink, driving a bad mixture

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers arrested a 20-year-old Detroit man after responding to a hit-and-run call at about 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 17.

According to police, the driver had hit another vehicle near the intersection of St. Paul and Lakepointe and had attempted to drive away from the scene, but had stopped.

When police arrived they discovered that the driver had been drinking and was in possession of a substance appearing to be marijuana.

The suspect is free on $100 personal bond, and his case is before the Park city attorney for review to determine what charges will be filed.

Bad luck for Park driver

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers received a report of an accident at the corner of Vernor and Somerset at about 6:15 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 21.

While en route to the site, they observed a vehicle matching the description of the car the struck the other car in that had accident and had fled the scene to a driveway in the 1300 block of Somerset.

Officers investigated, and determined that it was the vehicle that had fled the accident they were sent to investigate.

The car's owner, a 31-year-old Park resident, refused all sobriety tests and was arrested for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. He is free on $100 bond.

Stock market marching back — volatility continues

By Joseph Mengden

For the week ended last Friday, the DJI increased 174 points, closing at 7,917.27, up 2.3 percent.

Friday, itself, was the September "triple witching" day, when 1) options on stocks, 2) futures contracts and 3) options on futures contracts all expire within hours! To make it more complicated, the 1) stock options trade on the four exchanges where options are traded, while 2) the futures contracts on the stock indexes and 3) the options on the futures contracts trade on a commodities exchange (Chicago Mercantile Exchange).

Being "short" a contract requires "covering" that "short" (by purchase of a like contract) before expiration time! Hence the mad scramble at the last minute and the sometimes wild price fluctuations. As last Friday afternoon wound down, the trading fever picked up. NYSE trading volume totaled 631 million shares!

When all the hooting and tooting ended, the DJI was off only 5.45 points for the day, after posting a 150-plus point range between its intra-day high and low.

As we have mentioned almost weekly since LTS returned from the land of the wounded, investors still like stocks, but their buying tastes have rotated from the Blue Chips of the DJI and the S&P 500 to the small caps of the Russell 2000 and NASDAQ Composite indexes.

Nevertheless, the DJI is still up 22.8 percent for the year, although the Dow Jones 20 stock Transportation Index is up 42.3 percent, as this sector has also come into favor recently. Formerly limited to railroad stocks, the DJTI now also includes the major airlines, some truckers and even Federal Express (FDX).

As the small stocks gain favor, they, too, will become fully priced, and the portfolio managers and institutional investors will rotate back to the Blue Chips, because they need the liquidity.

Have you noticed the bond market lately? What everyone looks at when they ask "What are bonds doing?", is the "Bellwether" 30-year Treasury Bond, which currently is the 6-3/8 percent bond due Aug. 15, 2027. Since the Treasury auctions a new series every quarter, the next sale will be in November for the issue due Nov. 15, 2027.

Remember, in bonds, prices and yields move inversely. Only two weeks ago, the long bond yielded 6.64 percent, but closed last Friday to yield 6.37 percent, down in yield 27 basis points (a basis point is 1/100th of 1 percent), but up in price almost 3-1/2 points ($35 per $1,000 bond). That's a major move for the bond market which measures price changes in 1/32nds and 1/64ths.

Look over your shoulder, Sept. 30 is only five days down the calendar. That's when the Federal Open Market Committee of the Fed has its monthly meeting to decide monetary policy and set interest rates. LTS sides with the "smart money," which is betting no change!

Estate planning II

Have you been invited to a seminar lately? Here, there, anywhere?

Let's talk...STOCKS

"Come join us to meet Francois LeCroix, an expert in estate and tax planning." The name is fictitious (I hope), but LTS receives at least one invite in the mail each month! Maybe they think that there are so many nights without a single good movie on payless cable, that at least a few investors will want to step out on the town!

LTS is 100 percent in favor of reminding investors to "count their chickens." You won't need much estate planning until your estate exceeds $500,000. Mind you, LTS does not disparage smaller estates. And LTS favors "living trusts," if only to avoid the Wayne County Probate zoo as much as possible. (The Registrar of Deeds office is even worse!) When we said "count your chickens," we really meant "count your assets!" First, create a personal financial statement, an inventory of what you own, and also of what you owe (see LTS, June 13, 1996). Don't forget to include your share of jointly owned property. Also don't overlook your credit card debt and personal guarantees of others' debts.

Since an estate is valued at the current market, you may need some help getting the current market value of some items other than securities. Like the residence you purchased in 1974 for $60,000. Better call your favorite real estate agent and ask for a "comparable" on your home. You'd be surprised what inflation has done to real estate values. LTS has a friend who recently remarked that he couldn't afford to buy his own house at today's values!

Another shocker is auto value. Remember that great deal you got on the '95 van? No money down, and a six-year payout. Well, ask your banker for a favor. Ask him/her to call the auto loan department and look up your '95 van in the "Blue Book" of used car values. Then, get out your auto loan coupon book and find the unpaid balance. Don't be surprised if you still owe a lot more than your car is worth.

LTS' friend recently flipped his Jeep on the interstate, but wasn't hurt, thank God! The insurance check, which already had the collision deductible deducted, for the "fair market value" before the accident, wasn't near enough to pay off the outstanding loan balance!

Don't be surprised if it takes you six weeks or more to complete your initial personal financial statement. And it's sometimes boring, but think of it as a "project." Once done, the annual update each January will be a breeze. Next week, LTS will continue down the road to Estate Planning III.

Teach your teens the basics of money management today

If "Hey, Dad, can you lend me a twenty?" is your teenager's idea of money management, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants (MACPA) suggests you put together a quick lesson on money management skills. The teenage years are an ideal time to teach your children how to earn, spend, save and invest money.

Give your teen money management responsibilities

Managing an allowance is one of the best ways to learn basic money management skills. For most parents, the big question is not whether to pay an allowance, but how much. To arrive at an appropriate amount, you should first determine what expenses you want your teen's allowance to cover. Drawing up a budget of typical teen expenses provides your child with a lesson on how a budget works and helps you determine the right amount for your child. Most younger teens will do best with a weekly allowance, but as your teen grows older, you may want to switch to paying allowances biweekly or monthly, so that your child learns to manage money over a longer period of time.

Teach smart spending

Within reason, you should allow your teenager freedom to decide how to spend his or her allowance. Strict spending controls limit your teen's opportunity to practice making wise spending decisions. For example, try to resist the urge to give a lecture when your son liquidates his entire allowance at the local music store. Over time, he will learn — particularly if you don't bail him out every time he runs out of money.

Encourage savings

Early on, teens should learn the importance of earmarking a portion of their allowance for savings. Remember how satisfying it was to look in your bankbook and see how much your savings had grown? While today's teens often have to settle for a monthly or quarterly statement, most of them still derive some sense of accomplishment from seeing their bank balance climb.

For most teens, it works best to divide savings strategy into short-term and long-term goals. Does your daughter have her eyes on in-line skates? Does your son want a new mountain bike? These types of short-term goals teach your teen the rewards that come from putting off instant gratification. Just be sure your teen recognizes that long-term goals — such as college tuition — are equally important. One way to encourage your teen's long-term savings is to agree to match a certain amount, or to provide a bonus each time he or she reaches a certain milestone.

Teach independence

When you're at the bank, consider having your older teen open a checking account. A

Woods residents petition city council about traffic on Brys

By Jim Stickford
Staff Writer

It is a problem that won't go away — the volume of traffic on Brys in Grosse Pointe Park.

For the past year, Grosse Pointe Woods residents have been waiting for the results of a traffic study on Brys. At the Monday, Sept. 15 meeting, that report was finally released.

Woods traffic safety Cpl. Joseph Cardosi told the council and members of the audience that he had conducted a traffic study on Brys between Helen and Mack. He said he included a traffic volume count of Old Eight Mile between Canton and Helen and two traffic control orders from July 10, 1996.

Cardosi said in 1997 a total of three traffic counts were performed, the last on July 24. He also compared those studies with ones done in the 1990s and said that they showed "no significant increase in the volume of traffic, averaging about 4,000 vehicles daily. The last traffic study on July 24 showed a decrease in the number of vehicles, down to 3,551."

It was further noted by Cardosi that in 1996 a resident complained of the volume and speed of commercial vehicles on Brys. Since then two "25 mile per hour" speed signs were placed on Brys between Mack and Helen and additional traffic enforcement vehicles with radar detectors have been stationed along the street.

Cardosi concluded his report by saying that the volume of vehicular traffic along Brys is similar to other streets in the Woods. He specifically mentioned Allard, Oxford and Lochmoor, which, like Brys, have a volume of traffic traveling east to west to the major through streets or feeder streets.

He recommended that no additional traffic control counter measures be taken for Brys. The current ones are working adequately, but the city should keep up the additional use of traffic enforcement units along Brys during the day and afternoon shifts.

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Beau Burton attended the meeting and did not agree with Cardosi's conclusions. Burton said that he consulted with Bonnie Burton, a graduate of the Michigan State school of urban planning. She is also a traffic engineer for the city of Irvineyy, Calif., and Beau Barton's sister.

This relationship should not negate the quality of her advice, said Burton.

Burton said that according to his sister's expert opinion, Brys is a dangerous street.

He said that it was designed to be a residential street, but has become a collector street for I-94. It is only 24 feet wide and is unusual in shape, with two 90-degree turns.

The constant flow of traffic that crosses the center of the street when navigating those 90-degree turns is great. When you add that to a narrow street, a dangerous traffic hazard is created, said Burton.

He admitted that it's a "fun" street to drive, but fun does not equal safety. He also said that the public safety department, given its nature as an enforcer of laws, has examined the problem of the street by performing traffic counts.

Woods police chief Jack Patterson said that Brys has had traffic problems for decades and that the city has been trying to find a solution since 1960.

A more effective strategy, said Burton, was to look at the problem from a design point of view. What is a safe volume of traffic for that street, given its unique design properties and specifications. That is the question the Woods should be asking.

Burton also suggested that although the streets leading to and from Brys cross over into Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores, the city council could act unilaterally to pass traffic ordinances on Brys designed to reduce traffic.

In the past the council has hesitated to do that because when the city has acted on its own, the other cities have responded with traffic ordinances of their own, leading to even more traffic problems.

Burton said that the extra enforcement has been noticeable and thanked the council for the attention. But when squad cars aren't there, motorists drive in a less than safe manner, he said.

Mayor Robert Novitke said that in the past experts had looked at a variety of options for Brys, including making the street a dead-end. But that would just move the traffic problem to another street, not solve it.

He asked that Burton give public safety director Jack Patterson the name of his traffic expert. That way they could compare notes and see if any solutions could be developed.

Patterson said that Brys has had traffic problems for decades and that the city has been trying to find a solution since 1960. He said that he would not recommend enforcing laws against crossing the center line while navigating the 90-degree turns on Brys.

He said that it is a tight curb, and by allowing cars to take it wide, makes driving the street a little easier, and that there haven't been any accidents at the curves in the last two years. Burton said he reported one only a couple of weeks ago.

Burton said that many people, when driving those curves, end up on people's lawns and that by having an ordinance forbidding crossing the center line, officers would have a tool that they could use to stop people from driving too aggressively.

Novitke asked that Burton and his friends meet with members of public safety so that they could prepare a report for the council at the Oct. 20 meeting.

DNR discontinues fuelwood permits from forests

The Department of Natural Resources has announced that permits to gather fuelwood from state forest land will be discontinued again from Oct. 1 through March 31, 1998.

Permits issued through Sept. 30 will be valid for 90 days after the issuance date and will entitle permit holders to gather up to five standard cords of wood. There is a $20 permit fee, with issuance dependent upon the availability of wood suitable for fuelwood purposes. All fuelwood collected must be for personal use, be from downed or designated trees only, and can't be resold or traded.

Individuals seeking a fuelwood permit before Oct. 1 should contact their local DNR area forest manager regarding availability. Permits are issued for designated locations in which permit holders must exercise care not to trespass on private property and must protect surrounding live trees from injury.

Permit issuance will resume again on April 1, 1998, and continue through Sept. 30, 1998.

Money

checking account provides an additional measure of independence and serves as an important learning tool. No teenager should head off to college without knowing how to write checks, record transactions and reconcile a monthly statement.

Take stock

Once you are comfortable with your teenager's savings habits, you can introduce them to the world of investing. As minors, teens cannot purchase stocks themselves, but you can set up a custodial account and allow them to manage it. A classic "hands-on" approach to get your kids interested in investing is to have them buy shares of stock a company they know. Explain the link between the company's profitability and the value of their stocks and teach them how to follow the stock in the financial pages. Just be sure your teen understands that investing in the stock market works best as a long-term plan.

While teens might find it easier to relate to individual stocks, mutual funds provide another investment avenue. Several fund families now offer special funds that include stocks that appeal to children.

Earn and learn

A summer job can help your teen not only learn how to manage money, but also how to earn it. Consider discussing entrepreneurial opportunities — like providing lawn services, or giving music lessons — that may be available. You can also speak to them about the tax responsibilities that go hand in hand with earning money.

Designer 'Rooms with a Pointe of View' Oct. 1-4

A multi-faceted event invites the public to take it all in — art, showrooms, a marketplace boutique, appraisals, home and finance workshops, cuisine!

By Amy Andreou Miller
Special Writer

Have you ever walked through a designer showhouse and thought the decorating was intriguing and exciting, but not something you could glean ideas from because you don't have a living room the size of a football field?

Then, "Rooms with a Pointe of View" is for you. In fact, this four-day event is perfect for everyone.

From Oct. 1-4, 22 of the most talented interior designers from southeastern Michigan will decorate 14 small rooms that the public can tour. The rooms (or "vignettes" as they're being called) promise to intrigue and excite, but also may inspire Grosse Pointers to incorporate some of the ideas into their homes.

Very popular on the East Coast, it is the first time such an event will be held in Michigan, explained the event's co-chairpersons Jane Dow, Jeanne Reichert and Marilyn Doyal, all Grosse Pointe Farms residents.

(See accompanying schedule of the "Rooms with a Pointe of View" event.)

The interesting point to note is that the 14 dazzling showrooms are not housed in a private home. Rather, the rooms have been constructed, decorated and will be on display inside the large Fellowship Hall of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, which is located at 16 Lakeshore, next to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Producers of the event are members of Presbyterian Women — the women's charitable group at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The builders who constructed the three-sided rooms so the designers could decorate them are the same members of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church who head up the church's participation in Habitat for Humanity. Habitat is an international nonprofit group that helps to build affordable homes for the poor. They are not free homes given to the poor. Rather, they are interest-free homes. The homeowners pay a monthly mortgage for 20 years, and help volunteers for 250-plus hours in constructing the home, or in constructing another Habitat home.

Habitat for Humanity is the main charity to benefit from money raised by the "Rooms with a Pointe of View" event.

A "Habitat" room also will be a part of the event. However, this 15th room will be very different from the 14 showrooms. The Habitat room will be decorated like a typical living room of a Habitat for Humanity home. The furnishings will be donated by Memorial Church members which they will give to the next Habitat house they help to build. About 200 of the church's members, as well as parishioners from other Grosse Pointe churches, have been actively involved in Habitat for Humanity.

The decorated "Habitat" room and a continually playing 12-minute educational videotape will serve as an interactive way for the community to learn about Habitat for Humanity, a group started 20 years ago in Georgia that gained notoriety when former United States president Jimmy Carter joined it.

Just about all of the three-story historic church on Lakeshore will be taken over for the extraordinary "Rooms with a Pointe of View" event.

For example, a marketplace will be set up in which the public can shop. In it, more than 40 artists and craftsmen from around the country will be selling their various unique gift items and wares.

"The marketplace products range from jewelry, hand-painted scarves, unique clothing items, stuffed animals, candle characters, dried flowers and one-of-a-kind painted items and carved wood items, and much, much more," said Grosse Pointe Park resident Cynthia Hempstead, who is helping to coordinate the event's marketplace.

"There will be many seasonal items, not only for Christmas, but Halloween and Thanksgiving too," Hempstead said enthusiastically.

A dining room will be set up in which the public can purchase a snack or an entire home-cooked meal. Breakfast, lunch cuisine is available each day. Scrumptious dinners are available for purchase Thursday, Oct. 2 and Friday, Oct. 3.

Also, event attendees may shop in the arts and crafts gallery that is being set up in the church. Tom Mayshark, owner of the Ambleside Gallery on Fisher Road, in conjunction with the Grosse Pointe Artists Association, is heading up this portion of the "Rooms with a Pointe of View" event. The gallery will boast works from a variety of mediums including watercolor paintings, sculptures, oil paintings and more from the dozens of talented area artists. Work of international artists will be featured too, as will the work of the Grosse Pointe Craft Guild.

In another part of the church, handmade items will be for sale that were produced by members of the Presbyterian Women.

Rounding out the multi-faceted event will be an entire slate of seminars the public can attend. The topics include home decorating tips, gardening tips, financial advice, and even the opportunity to have a certified appraiser give you oral estimates as to the worth of antiques, silver and other items in your home.

"I am more excited for this event than a showhouse," said Dennis O'Grady, an interior designer for 18 years with William Denler & Company design studio, which is located at 77 Kercheval and now led by designer Jack Tarpley, Denler's longtime business partner.

O'Grady said sometimes in showhouses, people tend to step into a large room, and feel surrounded and overwhelmed. Also, he said some people feel the pressure to proceed quickly through one room to the next on the crowded house tours.

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church member Jim Garlough and the church's Rev. Gordon Mikoski (on roof) help build a Habitat for Humanity house in Macomb County.

The "Rooms with a Pointe of View" event Oct. 1 - 4 that will feature designer show rooms and a marketplace boutique will benefit Habitat for Humanity. An opporutnity to learn more about Habitat for Humanity will be possilbe through an exhibit at "Rooms with a Pointe of View". Also, items with the Habitat for Humanity logo will be for sale.

In contrast, he said, "A small vignette fosters a concentrated dose of style. It's like window shopping. It's like an appetizer. Because the vignette has only three sides, the audience is viewing the designer's ideas from the open front, instead of being surrounded on all four sides. From that vantage point, people will be able to absorb more from these vignettes, and really study the exciting details."

He also said a vignette-format is more appealing to a wider audience — a sentiment the event's hosts echo.

Tarpley and O'Grady's vignette boasts an exquisite 19th Century English walnut secretary with a red leather insert on the desktop, original brass pulls, dentil molding and a beveled glass mirror. The piece was just acquired from the East Coast within the last two weeks. A beautiful, 19th century, American empire sofa covered in a tapestry fabric will also set the mood for their vignette that entices a person to want to curl up to read a good book or write a love letter.

Vignettes by other designers have other personalities. For example, some will be a little whimsical, such as "Game Day — Opposing Views" designed by Kathleen McGovern and Paula Lancaster of the Kathleen McGovern Studio of Interior Design. It plays upon the age-old rivalry between the University of Michigan and Michigan State University.

Troy-based designer Mary Jo Mohr's vignette "Party Girls" may evoke the envy of women, while men may yearn to copy the enticing room created by Grosse Pointe-based designers Sandra Baer and James Evan Williams. Baer and Williams' vignette - entitled "Gentleman's Review: a quieter, gentler lifestyle, brandy and cigars" will boast a mixture of deep masculine jewel tones and strong antique furniture pieces.

Children (and adults) will fall in love with the vignette created by Grosse Pointe-based designer Gail Maitland Urso. Entitled "Come for Tea!", she asks, "What could be a more delightful celebration of friendship than to set the table with your best Peter Rabbit chinaware and invite special guests to a tea party?"

So, spend a day and evening at "Rooms with a Pointe of View."

Heck, ticket prices are so inexpensive that it would be well worth it to visit and revisit "Rooms with a Pointe of View" several times during the show's duration.

Go and absorb all the details of each room, and form your own point of view. Careful, you may be quite inspired!

Gilda's Club block party, family walk set for Sept. 28

Thousands of Metro Detroiters will gather at Cobo Center, Sunday, Sept. 28 to celebrate Gilda's Day in Michigan at the Fourth Annual Gilda's Club Family Walk and Block Party sponsored by Rock Financial.

After the reading of a proclamation from Gov. Engler declaring Sept. 28 as Gilda's Day and remarks from Detroit's Mayor Dennis Archer, a 1997 red Ford Mustang will lead walkers on the 5K Walk around downtown Detroit.

The rain or shine event, to raise funds for the free, non-profit cancer support community, will begin at 10 a.m.

WDIV-TV 4 Morning News Anchors Vickie Hamilton and Tom Sorrells will cohost the Walk and Block Party.

Following a route along Jefferson Avenue through Greektown and Harmonie Park, past the Fox Theatre and Second City and along Washington Blvd. to return to Cobo Center, the walkers will be accompanied by the Spain Middle School Marching Band of Detroit, and members of the Detroit Mounted Police. There is also an optional one mile Fun Walk inside Cobo Center beginning at 10:10 a.m.

Back at Cobo Center, the Block Party, following the walk, will feature a performance by walk honorary co-chair Detroit Police Chief Isaiah McKinnon and "The Blue Pigs" as well as the AAA Child I.D. program, the Detroit Pistons AutoMotion Dancers, the Detroit Fire Department Smokehouse, Fire Truck and K-9 Dog, Inspector Fountain, a magician and door prizes. Refreshments have been donated by area merchants.

During the Block Party, special awards from Tiffany & Co. will be presented by Ms. Lonnie Kanode, managing director of Tiffany's, to the largest teams in three categories: corporation, community organization and family.

Pledges and pledge forms must be turned in at the walk by 10 a.m. Sept. 28 in order to be eligible for the pledge prizes which include two tickets from Southwest airlines and a weekend trip by train to Toronto, including hotel, donated by Wolfe Travel in West Bloomfield.

To register for the walk, call the Motor City Striders at (248) 544-9099.

The registration fee of $20 includes the official 1997 T-shirt. There is also day-of-event registration on the 28th from 8:30 - 9:45 a.m. There is free entry and no T-shirt for children under 10 years of age.

Gilda's Club will provide free social and emotional support for people with all types of cancer as a supplement to medical care so that no one will ever have to face cancer alone.

It is named in memory of comedian and former Detroiter Gilda Radner, best known for her work on NBC's "Saturday Night Live."

Funds raised at the walk will go to the operation of Gilda's Club which will open at 3517 Rochester Road in Royal Oak later this year.

The Pastor's Corner

Stand in the gap

By Rev. David H. Wick
Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

On Saturday, Oct. 4, a great multitude of men from all over the United States will converge on the mall in Washington, D.C., in a historic and unique gathering. I plan to be among them, together with many of the men of my congregation.

We will not be coming together to ask for anything from the federal government or to promote any political agenda. We assemble at the call of the Scripture: "Declare a holy fast; call a sacred assembly. Summon the elders and all who live in the land to the house of the Lord your God, and cry out to the Lord," (Joel 1:14).

The day will include worship, repentance, and affirmation of our hope through the power of the Holy Spirit. Dale Schlafer, a vice president with the PromiseKeepers, organizers of this historic event, has said "we're praying that as a result (of this gathering) revival will come to those Christians who come in contact with each of us and that there will be a great awakening among those who don't know Christ. We will all be different. We will all be changed."

The key to revival is that Christians repent. I know that repentance needs to be part of my prayer life, but I'll admit that I'm most comfortable with a cursory self-examination and a generic formula "excuse me."

Then I can get on with praying about other peoples' problems.

I heard recently of a prayer meeting that included John and Charles Wesley and George Whitfield, among others. These great and holy men of God agonized together in prayer about their own sins until three in the morning. Then the building in which they met literally shook, and they emerged from prayer to find the townspeople crying out and begging to know how they might be saved. That's revival.

I confess I haven't peeled the onion of my soul as deeply as the Wesleys and Whitfield did theirs. No prayer meeting I have ever been in, and I've been in many wonderful prayer meetings, has ever ended with the building shaken by God. I haven't yet "resisted to the point of shedding blood in (my striving against sin," (Hebrews 12:4).

But I am ready. I am ready to take the biggest sinner I know, one David H. Wick, before God's throne of grace and plead for mercy. There will be lots of other sinners in Washington, D.C. on Oct. 4 doing the same thing. That is what "Stand in the Gap" is all about nothing more and nothing less.

Memorial Church pastor elected seminary president

The Rev. Dr. V. Bruce Rigdon — pastor of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church — has been elected president of the Ecumenical Theological Seminary. The public is invited to the installation of the new president, which will be conducted as a part of a ceremony Sept. 28 at 4 p.m. at the seminary, 2930 Woodward in Detroit, just north of the Fox Theatre.

ETS is the only seminary serving mainline denominations in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Rigdon, senior pastor at Grosse Pointe Memorial, has served as professor of church history for 23 years at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. He is considered an expert on the Eastern Orthodox tradition and has devoted much of his life to ecumenical endeavors. Over the past several decades he has visited Europe, the Orient, the former Soviet Union and Africa on behalf of the National Council of Churches.

Rigdon said he intends to commit himself to making ETS a safe haven for anyone, a place where those offering diverse viewpoints can feel accepted, understood and heard. With that in mind, he selected a theme for the convocation —"Though we are many, we are one."

"I discovered that I learn best in very diverse situations," Rigdon said. "Where others allow me to stand in their shoes and, I hope, I allow them to stand in mine."

The seminary was founded in 1980 as the Ecumenical Theological Center as an association of schools, religious denominations and other institutions to develop educational resources for ministry in the Detroit area. In 1986, the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies was merged into the Ecumenical Theological Center.

The seminary established its cooperative master of divinity program in 1988. The program prepares individuals for ordained ministry, pastoral or teaching ministry or agency leadership.

In 1994, the center's name was changed to the current Ecumenical Theological Seminary to better reflect the nature of its service to the community.

More than 160 students currently are enrolled in ETS three programs: doctor of ministry, urban ministry diploma or its other theological programs that are educational but do not necessarily lead to a diploma or degree.

St. Ambrose plans Oyster Fest

St. Ambrose Parish and local area businesses invite the public to celebrate its eighth annual Oyster Fest on Monday, Sept. 29, from 5 - 10 p.m.

The celebration will take place at 15215 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park. It will feature fresh oysters, seafood chowder, pasta, and much more. Live entertainment will entertain the crowd.

Tickets are $20 per person; all proceeds go to St. Ambrose Academy in Detroit.

Catholic Lawyers support Dominican High School

The Catholic Lawyers Society will hold its third annual "Dominican Dinner" on Friday, Oct. 10, beginning at 6:30 p.m. to raise funds for Dominican High School.

Dominican High School was about to close its doors last spring when the Dominican order concluded that it could no longer afford to keep the school open. After discussions with students and parents, the sisters announced that they would keep the school open.

Its future, however, is uncertain and supporters are looking to increase enrollment and get more community support.

Paul F. Doherty, chairman of this year's "Dominican Dance" committee, said that the Catholic Lawyers Society hopes to raise enough money to fund scholarships and projects at the school.

The evening will include cocktails, dinner, dancing and entertainment. Tickets are $100. Call (313) 882-8503.

Coronary artery disease

By Dr. Samer Kazziha
Special Writer

Most people generally don't give it a second thought. When they order that fast food hamburger or thick steak, they're usually thinking about how enjoyable their meal is going to be instead of what that meal is doing to their coronary arteries. But one way or another, as the years go by, these same people may one day be forced to accept a diagnosis of coronary artery disease.

Coronary artery disease (CAD) is the buildup of plaque in the coronary arteries which supply blood to the heart muscle. The buildup of plaque causes a narrowing or blockage of the arteries which can eventually lead to chest pain (angina) or heart attack (myocardial infarction).

Some of the risk factors of coronary artery disease include smoking, hypertension, high blood pressure, diabetes, high blood sugar and high cholesterol. All of these risk factors can be reduced through modifications in diet and lifestyle. Other risk factors such as a family history of heart disease and/or CAD cannot be changed, but if diagnosed early can be managed properly.

Dr. Samer Kazziha

So, how does your doctor determine whether or not you have the disease and how advanced it is? Today, new methods of diagnosing coronary artery disease are giving doctors an "inside look" into the nation's number one killer.

One of the most widely used methods of evaluating CAD is through the use of coronary angiography which provide an X-ray of the arteries. During this diagnostic test, a contrast dye is injected into the vessels to help identify where the blockages are.

A second diagnostic tool that is available at only a few hospitals in the country is the Flo Wire Doppler ultrasound system. Known as the "radar gun for the heart," this advanced system provides critical information about blood flow blockages in the coronary arteries. This can help physicians determine the most appropriate treatment and may also provide more cost-effective care by reducing the chance of undergoing unnecessary procedures. The Flo Wire Doppler operates much like a radar gun that measures the speed of a car driving down a highway. The Doppler technique uses sound waves to measure blood flow velocity through an artery.

Bon Secours awards nursing scholarships

Three Bon Secours employees — Judith Ann Flanz of Grosse Pointe Farms, Danielle Beauvais of New Baltimore and Steve Apigo of Shelby Township — were chosen as recipients of nursing scholarships from the Francys D. Marco Nursing Scholarship Endowment. The awards were presented recently at a special luncheon in their honor at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The trio received cash awards they will use to pay tuition fees and expenses to continue their nursing educations.

The Francys D. Marco Nursing Scholarship Endowment was named in memory of Mrs. Marco who, as a patient at Bon Secours Hospital, received excellent, compassionate care. The endowment was established by Paul Marco, her husband, and Barbara Voorheis, their daughter, to honor and encourage members of the nursing profession who share the Marcos' commitment to Bon Secours.

"I was thrilled to be one of the scholarship recipients," Flanz said. Currently enrolled in a master's of nursing science program in adult health at Madonna University in Livonia, she plans to obtain her degree by spring of 1999.

Beauvais was excited when notified she had won the scholarship. She said it was apparent from her interview with Mrs. Voorheis that Bon Secours values are very important to the Marco family.

Beauvais has been accepted into the nursing program at Macomb Community College and began school in August. She plans to attend classes full time and graduate as a registered nurse in May of 1999. Beauvais will pursue a master's degree, but has not decided on a specialty.

Apigo said he was "very honored and grateful to receive the scholarship award." He is entering his third year in the nursing program at Oakland University and plans to earn a bachelor's degree in April of 1998. Apigo will then pursue a master's degree as a nurse practitioner or nurse anesthetist.

To qualify for the scholarship, applicants were required to be employees of Bon Secours who work a minimum of 16 hours per scheduled week, be United States citizens admitted to accredited colleges of nursing, maintain a grade point average of 3.0 or higher, and reflect the values of the Sisters of Bon Secours.

The evening will begin with a silent auction, hors d'oeuvres and cash bar. Following the musical performance, there will be an "After Glow" with an opportunity to meet the performers. ## Coronary

An angioplasty guide wire with a Doppler energy-emitting device (a Transducer) at its tip is fed through an incision in the patient's groin up into an artery to the top of the heart. Sound beams bounce off the red blood cells in the artery. Doctors can then determine how quickly the blood is flowing by how long it takes the beam to return to the transducer.

Used together, coronary angiography and the Flo Wire Doppler provide a much more comprehensive picture of what is going on inside the coronary arteries. While angiography provides a snapshot image of the size and location of blockages, the Flo Wire Doppler provides information about the severity of the blockage. The advantage of having access to this new technology is that it helps doctors determine which arteries with blockages are still functioning well enough to be left alone.

Another tool for diagnosing CAD is intravascular ultrasound. This procedure allows a doctor to look at the blood vessels from the inside so that the blockage can be evaluated based on size and composition (i.e., Is it calcific or cholesterol? Is it soft or hard?).

Based on your overall health, age, family history and the results of diagnostic tests like these, your doctor will then determine a course of treatment that best meets your needs.

To determine which health care facility is best equipped to treat heart disease, you should look for a hospital that: offers a comprehensive array of diagnostic tools for evaluating heart disease; participates in clinical trials, giving you access to leading-edge medical treatments; and has specialists on staff who have performed a fair amount of these diagnostic procedures. (Those who perform larger volumes generally have less complications and better results.)

And while we have come a long way in treating coronary artery disease, it is important to remember that there really is no cure for the disease. Therefore, it is important to eat a balanced diet, exercise and see your doctor each year for a physical.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

I've reached the conclusion that this columnist will never write a best seller. To do so this day and age one must have at his fingertips a pen that is committed to filthy script, lusty smut, racy chases, steamy scenes, chaos and carnage and murder with mayhem.

Have any of you ever read a bridge column full of sex and seduction? Murder, yes, but only when one "murders" the play of a bridge hand. On occasion there's a caustic quip or a little hilarious verbal warfare, but neither partner is ever sheltered from hostile fire being returned.

I remember one of Groucho's greatest. Years ago he was playing at a posh Wilshire party and he'd drawn a partner well below the game's social acceptability. I think the unpleasantry went something like this: "I never forget a ghastly played hand, but on this occasion I'm going to make an exception."

Today's tale about one of this suburb's old-timers might once have made the column of the month club, but in today's delicate measure of literary culture it will be discarded, forgotten and shredded when this fine edition is no longer useful.

Carlton M. Higbie Jr. is just past eight decades young and that says much for one who has burned the candle at both ends more often than his medical director decreed. Yet he still is one of our finest performers and without a doubt the best heeled high-card holder playing in the Pointes.

Most of us are lucky to hold something close to 10 hcp, but Bud," as his lifelong partners have benevolently addressed him, holds at least 15 hcp five out of seven deals. With this kind of weight, he has naturally become wealthy at the table. He was the first I know in my lifetime of play to hold four aces, three kings and a queen in one hand, and that's an incredible 27. Now Gil Hudson tells me that this past May, Bud picked up 30. Obviously he is the most effective lobbyist of the bridge gods of this century. Witness this from his bridge heaven:

Gil could have bid three no trump and Bud would have corrected to a slam in hearts, but six won't make it with a spade ruff and club loser. Watch what Gil's pass produced. Bud won the first six tricks, two hearts, clubs, and diamonds. Then a third heart led which Gil over-ruffed as declarer had nothing but trumps left. At trick eight Gil's diamond queen, which Bud ruffed with his trump ace, and our flustered candidate for calamity had to under-ruff. At trick nine west played a trump and Gil ducked, but the continuation he won and got out a club won by west for his second and last trick as he was end played. With the defender's eleven-trick win went 2000 points. A hush fell over the combat zone as quiet as a winter night snow. Unfortunately for our grand and glorious game neither of the defeated (who will remain nameless) has been heard from since.

Iyer's latest travel book takes reader to magical places

"Tropical Classical: Essays from Several Directions"
By Pico Iyer.
Knopf. 314 pages. $25

Pico Iyer is a noted essayist whose work has appeared in Time, Harper's, The New York Times along with an impressive clutch of other publications. He specializes in travel pieces on romantic and far-flung spots around the world, skillfully illuminating curious customs and strange scenes. Tropical Classical, his newest book, does exactly that, leading readers to be quickly swept into foreign countries under Iyer's magical spell.

An Indian from Bombay, he now resides in California and Japan when he is not traveling.

In the Places section, he exposes us to the mysterious splendor that is Africa: "Compounding this remoteness in space - for Ethiopia is not really Africa, and yet not quite Arabia, either is a remoteness in time, hardened by the watchfulness with which it has guarded its traditions. In medieval times, in Europe, Abyssinia was known primarily as the domain of Prester John, a Christian priest-king ruling a world of unicorns and pygmies; and for centuries, hidden away in the mountains, with the oldest written culture on the continent and its own distinctive community of Muslims, Christians and Jews, it had kept up its own unlikely ways."

Another piece deals with the horrific impact of movie-making in undeveloped countries, in this case, Nepal: "As the developed countries recolonize their former properties on film — the French making three movies in a single year in Vietnam, the British sending television crews to every corner of the Empire - and as the dollar-for-dreams transactions multiply, so, too, do the questions. How does a poor country turn down the exposure and hard cash that a movie company promises? Yet how can it possibly acquiesce in a process that often ends up dismantling the place in life so as to reproduce it in art? Making a movie in Nepal can easily change the country so much that the "real Nepal" finally exists only in the movie makers' cans.

Iyer visits Tibet, now dominated by its powerful neighbor, China: "In one library alone, the fourteenth Dalai Lama recalls, was the whole history of Tibet: seven thousand enormous volumes, some of them weighing more than a pair of book-filled suitcases. Another two thousand illuminated volumes were written in inks made of powdered gold, silver, iron, copper, conch shell, turquoise, and coral, each line in a different ink. And everywhere there were frescoes and murals, depicting the lives of the Dalai Lamas, the construction of the Jokang Temple, even the erection of the Potala itself."

Moving on to people and personalities, Iyer discusses certain remarkable individuals who have influenced him, such as Norman Lewis. This British writer who has traveled worldwide has written a number of books about his experiences. He "always traveled alone, grew up humbly, never went to university, and financed all his travels with his own implausible businesses. And where they customarily made their exotic destinations a setting for knock about comedy or sportive digression, speeding through them in a mood of blithe urbanity, Lewis made foreign cultures his one and only subject. Settling down abroad, disappearing into the background, and unobtrusively living like a local - traveling Burma in a longhi skirt, eating food with his hands in India, going on dog-buying expeditions in Vietnam — he acts as if he were one of the natives' most eloquent spokesman. He seeks not to rule the world but to give himself over to it. And in place of breezy, chatty entertainments, he produced books of lush and highly detailed beauty — textured, contextual, meticulous — in which amusement and affection play upon their subjects like sunlight off a stream."

Iyer also devotes an essay on the American nature writer, Peter Matthiessen, who he greatly admires: "While others pursue careers, Matthiessen has forged a path, and often it seems a high, chill path through what he calls some night country on the dark side of the earth that all of us have to go to all alone." Furthermore, Iyer adds, ". . . from the beginning, in fact, Matthiessen has hewed to the same harsh, uncompromising path — nearly all his books are set in a primitive, almost mythic landscape where men are alone with nature and a lost spark of divinity. You will not find much that is contemporary in the books; and there is scarcely a mention of domestic relationships, or cities, or Europe. Nearly all of them simply trace the dialogue of light and dark. 'One reason I like boats so much,' he explains, 'is that you have to pare everything down to the bare necessities, and there you are, the captain of a little boat, without a shelter, without a past, without future hopes."

Biblio File

By Elizabeth P. Walker

In the Books section, the author discusses a number of his favorite writers. While talking about cross-cultural hybrids among writers who are of mix-blood, Iyer claims: "Beneath all this, however, is another voice that is beginning to remake the contours of the global village, and it is one that I would call Tropical Classical. Three of its masters, in different media, are Derek Walcott, in poetry, Michael Ondaatje ("The English Patient"), in fiction, and Richard Rodriguez, in the essay form. The revolution such individuals are enacting has gone largely unremarked, in part because they are so individual, and so various in their forms, that they exist without a group, without a school even, sometimes without a nationality. Yet what distinguishes one of them is what distinguishes all: the ability to season high classical forms with a lyrical beauty drawn from the streets and beaches of their homes."

As an adept master of the perceptive book review, Iyer often cuts to the chase swiftly, zeroing in on a book's credibility as well as its author's strengths and weaknesses. His review of Paul Theroux' "The Happy Isle of Oceania" is a good example; "Charm is one of the easiest way to sell a travel book, and making oneself seem agreeable, or one's destination Arcadian, is a surefire way to attract a readership. One of the peculiar charms of Paul Theroux, by contrast, is that he makes no attempt to ingratiate. He simply presents things the way he sees them and himself entirely in the raw — often prickly and superior and unfair — and he tosses off his chapters without frills or fuss. His narratives race past with the quick immediacy and apparent candor of a diary unexpurgated, and one seldom feels that he is looking in the mirror to see what impression he is making. He is, in fact, unembarrassable. Which other writer would go out of his way to endow a fictional protagonist with all the details of his own life (in a book teasingly entitled "My Secret History") and then portray his alter ego as mendacious and exploitative and self-centered? And how many other travelers, after meeting the governor-general of New Zealand, would simple pronounce that she is "silly and shallow and unimaginative, as well as bossy and vain and cunning' — and then, the coup de grace 'but principled in a smug and meddling way'?"

Iyer boldly jumps into political matters; witness his blazing "The Rise of Minority Terrorism": "Affirmative action, in fact so noble in intention - is mostly a denial: A denial of the fact that we are all born different; a denial of a person's right to get the position he deserves; a denial of everyone's ability to transcend, or live apart from the conditions of his birth. Most of all, it is a denial of the very virtues of opportunity and self determination that are the morning stars of this democracy. People around the world still long to migrate to America because it is a place where people can say what they think, become what they dream, and succeed — or fail — on the basis of their merits. Now, though, with more and more people telling us not to say what we think, and to support everyone except the majority of Americans, the country is in danger of becoming something else: the land of the free, with an asterisk."

Very obviously, Pico Iyer is a wide-eyed and intelligent and perceptive man of the world. His sure grasp of language reveals a colorful vocabulary along with an amazing power to create descriptive images, all of which make his essays glow and throb with intensity. At times, his words are ornate; nonetheless he has established himself, in no uncertain terms, to be a truly powerful wordsmith, worthy of being saluted and acknowledged as the fine writer he is.

Detroit Zoo hits record one million-plus visitors

On the heels of record-breaking attendance in July, the Detroit Zoological Institute announced that a record 243,000 guests visited the Detroit Zoo in August, pushing attendance at the 125-acre park past the one-million mark.

Zoo officials expect overall annual attendance at the Detroit Zoo to hit an all-time high of more than 1.3 million visitors. This does not include attendance at the Institute's two additional facilities, the Belle Isle Zoo and Belle Isle Aquarium, which attract a combined 200,000 visitors each year.

"This amazing attendance is a true testament to the community's love for the Zoo and its programs," said Ron Kagan, director of the Detroit Zoological Institute. "We are extremely pleased that record numbers of people are enjoying all the Zoo has to offer."

Kagan attributes much of the year's increase in attendance to Dinosauria II, sponsored by General Motors, Art Van, Coca-Cola, Comerica, Farmer Jack, Little Caesars and Olympia Entertainment; the WDIV advertising campaign; and a continuing excitement for the Wildlife Interpretive Gallery.

The increased attendance has placed the Detroit Zoo as the top tourist attraction in Michigan and among the top 10 zoos in the country.

The Detroit Zoo is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Nov. 1. Beginning Nov. 1, the Zoo will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. It is located at the intersection of 10 Mile and Woodward Avenue, just off I-696 in Royal Oak.

Regular admission is $7.50 for adults; $5.50 for senior citizens 62 and older and students; $4.50 for children ages 2 to 12; and free for children under 2.

Casting director of 'In & Out' deserves an Oscar

"In & Out"
★★★★ (out of four)

There's a saying out there that — if you're not married, thin, neat and in your late 30s — you're probably gay.

Well, Howard Brackett, high school coach and English teacher extraordinare, is about to change that. He's getting married.

But as he, his parents, his community and the nation watches, Brackett's former student and new Hollywood heartthrob Cameron Drake (Matt Dillon) accepts a best actor Oscar for playing a gay soldier in combat. The student thanks his former teacher (Brackett) and unknowingly outs him.

Brackett (Kevin Kline) sits in amazement, speechless, with his fiancee Emily (Joan Cusack).

He's not gay.

Or is he?

Let's check the list: thin, neat, not married. O.K. Wait. He likes Barbra Streisand, too.

And he helped Emily pick out her wedding gown, so he also has a fashion sense. But no matter how much Howard protests — "I didn't even see 'The Birdcage'" — people are beginning to wonder because it all adds up.

"In & Out" is not only one of the funniest movies in recent memory, it is flat-out hilarious. It's an outstanding comedy with outrageous bits as well as subtle comic reactions (see Bob Newhart). It has laughs from start to finish.

One incredibly funny routine has Brackett worried about all this talk so he pulls out his book with audio tape companion, "Be a Man: Exploring Your Masculinity." The deep-voiced narrator comes on: "Think of John Wayne . . . Men don't dance. Men have bad backs."

But the real test comes when they start playing Gloria Gaynor's "I Will Survive" in the background. Remember . . . men don't dance. The result is an uproarious, infectious scene of liberation. Howard cuts loose from all that holds him back.

After the announcement, reporters converge on the small town of Greanleaf, Ind., causing trouble for Howard's principal Halliwell (Newhart).

Even more important is the new way people treat Brackett. His students think of him in a different way: "He was my hero — up until yesterday," one student says. He can't be gay, he's such a great guy.

Soon the community and Halliwell see this new information as a threat. The kids might catch some sort of gay virus, they think.

All of this has a "Dead Poet's Society" feel to it — referring to the wronged teacher and the rallying students. But it's done with so much wit and humor, you don't mind the similarity. There's even an updated version of "Society's" triumphant cry "Oh Captain, My Captain" that's ultimately a cry of unity.

"In & Out" is not only hilarious but it has something important to say.

But the wedding is still set. His mom (Debbie Reynolds) pleads with him to go through with the ceremony. "Mothers need a big wedding," she says. "It's like heroin."

Reynolds is fresh off last year's "Mother," her wonderful return from a 25-year hiatus, and continues her winning form as the always-supportive mom.

The unsung heroic of "In & Out" is the casting. It is perfect. Kline's richly varied performance is stellar and is an obvious standout in the lead. But the supporting roles are ideal as well. In addition to Reynolds and Newhart, who muster more laughs with furrowed brows than today's comedians elicit in their entire acts, there's great character actor and former Quaker Oats pitch man Wilford Brimley. Brimley plays Brackett's farming father, unschooled in how to cope with the fact his son may be gay, and Joan Cusack ("Working Girl" and "Grosse Pointe Blank") as Howard's loving fiancee gets in several comic licks of her own.

Most surprising of all is Tom Selleck, cast as an out-of-the-closet smarmy entertainment reporter who helps Howard decipher his feelings.

It's Selleck's best screen performance to date. And, along with his comic turns in a few episodes of last season's "Friends," it serves as further proof he has some definite comic chops.

If the Academy gave away statuettes for casting, the casting director of "In & Out" could start working on the acceptance speech now.

The film's inspiration was Tom Hanks' acceptance speech for his Oscar win as a gay lawyer in "Philadelphia," but the film is by no means a true story.

"In & Out" is not only extremely funny, it also has something important to say. It doesn't beat you over the head with it but it lets you laugh along with all the chaos, anxiety and ultimate revelation realization can bring.

It's a must-see. And be sure to stick around for the credits. They're a riot, too.

Knights' football victory is well worth the wait

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

University Liggett School's biggest football victory in a long time didn't come easily.

It took nearly 24 hours before the Knights knew they had a 22-8 Metro Conference victory over Lutheran North firmly entrenched in the win column.

"That was one of the worst days in my life," said ULS coach Gary Hills. "I hope I don't ever have to go through something like that again. There was no question who won the game — but we had to wait 24 hours before we could say it was really ours."

The game was stopped with 4:45 left in the fourth quarter because of lightning. The officials waited half an hour before suspending the contest.

That created another problem. The officiating crew had Saturday games at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m., so they agreed to come back to ULS between those contests to complete the final 4:45.

"I don't think the kids or the coaches slept on Friday night and you know how superstitious football players and coaches are," Hills said. "I don't think anybody showered or changed clothes. We were a pretty gamey bunch by 4:30 Saturday afternoon."

But also a determined bunch.

The Knights had the ball on their own 31 and were ahead 16-8 when the lightning struck. ULS had ended a Lutheran North scoring threat minutes earlier when linebacker Jim Wood hit the Mustangs' quarterback to force a fumble which was recovered on the 10 by Renard Morey-Greer.

ULS was stalled at the 31 and had to punt. On the first play, North fumbled and A.J. Stachecki recovered for the Knights.

But it wasn't over yet. ULS had to punt again and the Mustangs got the ball back with 18 seconds to go. One pass fell incomplete.

The next was intercepted by Brian Bruenton — his second of the game — and he returned it a school-record 102 yards for a touchdown.

Kevin Espy is escorted downfield by one of his linemen during University Liggett School's 22-8 victory over Lutheran North last Friday. Espy ran for 154 yards and scored a touchdown for the Knights.

Hills even had some uneasy moments on Bruenton's return.

"At about the 50, one of the Lutheran North players took down Shaun Dillon and the official was standing there waiting for Shaun to retaliate," Hills said. "If he gets a penalty on the play it brings the ball back and (North) gets another shot at the end zone. But Shaun kept his composure. And for that he shares a game ball with Kyle Denham."

Before the real lightning began, ULS provided some of its own.

Stachecki passed 15 yards to Denham on the first play of the game. On the next one, Denham made a key block that allowed fullback Jason Cooper to run 44 yards for a touchdown.

"That sent a message right off the bat," Hills said.

The Knights sent a few more messages in the first half. Bruenton made a diving interception in the end zone to end North's first drive.

ULS then marched from its own 20 to the Mustangs' five. John Riddle kicked a 22-yard field goal to give the Knights a 9-0 lead with 36 seconds left in the first quarter.

"That's the first field goal we've made since I've been here," Hills said.

An interception by Stachecki and his 52-yard return to the North 38 set up ULS' second touchdown.

Kevin Espy went the final nine yards and Riddle kicked the extra point. Another key play in the drive was a 27-yard pass from Stachecki to Riddle.

Lutheran North scored its only touchdown on a 28-yard pass play and the Mustangs also passed for the two-point conversion to cut ULS' lead to 16-8 with four minutes left in the third quarter.

The Knights had a drive stalled at the North one early in the fourth quarter. Cooper had a 47-yard run during the march, while Espy had runs of 12 and 15 yards.

"Our kids thought Kevin took it over on fourth down," Hills said.

Besides the ground attack by Cooper, who had 140 yards in 12 carries, and Espy there were several other fine performances by the Knights, who are 3-0 in the Metro Conference and overall.

Guards Morey-Greer and Anthony Legree sparked another fine performance by the offensive line.

"They haven't missed a trap block between them in three games," Hills said.

Morey-Greer was also a standout on defense with 10 tackles and two recoveries. Riddle played well at free safety and Dillon had a solid game in the defensive line.

It's a tense moment for University Liggett School defensive coordinator Keith Iler as the Knights try to protect a slim lead against Lutheran North.

Other strong defensive efforts came from Jeff Mehr, who also punted well, Wood, Justin Macksoud and Legree.

"I'm convinced we know how to win now," Hills said. "Now we have to learn how to put people away."

ULS plays at Cranbrook Saturday at 1 p.m.

"They looked pretty good against Clarenceville," Hills said. "They're big and they have some foot speed. They'll try to go around end and do some power up the middle. We just have to tend to business. We still control our own destiny and that's the way we want it to stay."

Grosse Pointe South's Josh Lorence battles for some extra yards in last week's game against Fraser.

South plays well in loss to Fraser

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's football team played well enough to beat a lot of teams last weekend, but unfortunately for the Blue Devils, this year's Fraser squad is better than most.

South led 21-13 at halftime, but dropped a 28-21 decision to the Ramblers in the Macomb Area Conference White Division contest.

"I thought we played a pretty good football game," said coach Mike McLeod. "We just had horrible field position the whole game. And they were usually working with a short field.

"I thought our defensive line as a whole had its best performance. They hit three long third-down passes and you know Ray (Fraser coach Ray Barr) doesn't like to throw the ball but we stopped their running game."

The Blue Devils' Greg Peppler intercepted a pass that was deflected by Matt Moran and returned it 21 yards for a touchdown on Fraser's first possession of the game.

"We practiced that play every day," McLeod said.

Mike Kaselitz threw two touchdown passes — 65 yards to Josh Lorence and 46 yards to Pat Howe — to give South the halftime advantage. Andrew Hendrie kicked all three extra points.

Fraser scored twice early in the third quarter. John Hammer tied the game with a four-yard run and Jim Sorgi passed 27 yards to Jessie Blair for the winning touchdown.

The Ramblers had a couple more threats but South's defense stiffened and stopped them twice inside the 10-yard line in the second half.

South had a threat of its own in the final minute, but an interception killed the Blue Devils' drive at the Fraser 40.

Hammer, who had 136 yards in 20 carries, returned a kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown. Mike Kunik got the Ramblers' other touchdown on a one-yard dive in the opening quarter.

"James Feagin played the game of his life," McLeod said of the Blue Devils' defensive lineman. "A lot of Division 1 schools are looking at him and he played like a Division 1 player. Peppler had a nice game, our inside linebackers played well and our offensive line was superb with its pass blocking. One time Kaselitz had six seconds to throw."

McLeod was also pleased with the performance of running backs Lorence and Dan Griesbaum.

"They ran hard — north and south," the coach said.

McLeod also singled out the punt coverage team and Steve Allor and Mark ZurSchmiede, in particular, for big hits.

The loss left South 0-2 in the division and 1-2 overall. It was the division opener for Fraser, which is 2-1 in all games.

South ready for tough two weeks

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The next two weeks will tell a lot about Grosse Pointe South's girls basketball team.

"This week we have Utica and Sterling Heights, then we play Stevenson and our crossover is against Eisenhower," said coach Peggy Van Eckoute.

"These two weeks will be a true test of how good we are. All four of those teams are excellent."

Last week, the Blue Devils chalked up a pair of victories.

They rolled past L'Anse Creuse North 62-22, then came on strong in the second half to beat Ford II 43-26.

"It was a great team effort against L'Anse Creuse," Van Eckoute said.

"Ten of our 13 players scored and we played very good defense."

Caitlin Shapiro led South with 14 points and Dinah Zebot added 11. Sophomore Colleen Trybus tossed in seven points.

Melissa Brown collected five assists and seven steals, while Kristin Lorenger had five points and four steals.

South had only a 14-11 halftime lead against Ford but broke the game open in the second half, outscoring the Falcons 29-15.

"They matched up pretty well with us speed-wise," Van Eckoute said. "In the second half we were a lot more patient on offense and took better shots."

Meghan McGahey had 13 of her team-high 15 points in the second half. She also pulled down 12 rebounds.

Sarah Kraft added eight points, five steals and six rebounds.

Depth carries ULS to two wins

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Depth is one of the reasons University Liggett School's girls basketball team is off to a good start in the Metro Conference.

"When we sub we don't lose anything," coach John Bandos said after the Knights improved to 3-1 in the league with victories over Harper Woods (30-15) and Hamtramck (48-40).

"Each game it seems like somebody different picks up the responsibility of carrying the team, even if they're only in for four or five minutes. We have 10 players and I feel very comfortable with each of them."

In the Hamtramck game, ULS fought off a furious second-half comeback by the Cosmos.

The Knights led 24-8 at halftime, but Hamtramck cut the margin to five points in the second half.

"Then we rolled up our sleeves and got a little tougher," Bandos said. "We scored 18 points in the fourth quarter."

ULS made 15 of 29 free throws and eight of those came down the stretch.

Karah Knope led the Knights with 18 points, but freshman Sharma Brown also had an outstanding game with 13 points and seven steals.

"The first and second half were like two different games," Bandos said.

Earlier, ULS rolled past Harper Woods as Victoria Hills had eight points and eight rebounds and Holly Morrison came off the bench to score six points.

"Our defense really picked up in this game," Bandos said.

The two victories evened the Knights' overall record at 3-3.

North nips leader

Grosse Pointe North's soccer team picked up an important Macomb Area Conference Blue Divison victory this week when the Norsemen nipped division-leading L'Anse Creuse North 1-0.

Phil Leaman scored the winning goal after an excellent crossing pass from Brad Drummy.

North's outstanding defensive effort was led by senior co-captains Andy Gwinnell and Peter Marshand and by goalie Joe Petkwitz.

Earlier, North played a 1-1 tie against Anchor Bay. Steve Drader scored the Norsemen's goal early in the second half. Peter Marks assisted.

Richmond Inger, Marks, Gwinnell, John Gennari and Brad Collinson played excellent defense throughout the game.

North came back from a 4-1 halftime deficit to tie Lakeview 4-4.

Gennari put a header into the net with about a minute and a half remaining to tie the game.

Dave Dwaihy, Drader and Cori Cecchini also scored for the Norsemen.

Aubrey's fancy footwork carries Norsemen again

By Chuck Klonke

It took more than an hour for Grosse Pointe North's football game at L'Anse Creuse North to get started last Friday, but it was worth waiting for.

Especially the Nick Aubrey show.

The senior running back carried the ball 19 times for 251 yards and three touchdowns to lead the Norsemen to their third straight victory — a 32-10 win over the Crusaders in a Macomb Area Conference Blue Division game.

"It's interesting to walk through the line after the game when the kids are shaking hands to hear what the other team says to Nick," said North coach Frank Sumbera. "They're all impressed with his moves."

Sumbera is impressed, too.

"Nick caught one pass and on that one he was in the flat with big Courtney Davis bearing down on him," the coach said. "Instead of turning upfield, Nick did a clockwise move in the other direction and stopped Davis in his tracks. It was a great move, but Nick knew he was going to get drilled if he didn't make it. He must have sensed Davis coming after him."

Aubrey, who has more than 600 yards in three games, is following in the footsteps of Eric Peters and Leonard Harris, who preceded Aubrey as the North fullback.

"Some of the coaches have asked me where I've been able to come up with these tailbacks every year," Sumbera said. "We've had some good ones lately."

When the game, which had been delayed because of lightning, finally started it didn't take long for the Norsemen to get on the scoreboard.

LCN fumbled on its own 15 and North recovered. The Norsemen got a costly holding penalty and had to settle for a 30-yard field goal by Gene Baratta.

LCN took a 6-3 lead when it got a 35-yard touchdown pass from Brad Patrick to Darin Hancock on a fourth-and-two situation.

That was about it for the Crusaders, who had to play without running back Will Lewis, who was suspended from the team.

"After they scored, we had five straight series when we held them for three plays and out or had an interception," Sumbera said. "And we scored on three straight possessions. That's when we stabilized the game.

"I think the long wait and the fact that we had prepared all week to face Lewis had an adverse effect on our kids. They were a little disappointed he didn't play. We weren't as crisp defensively in the first quarter and a half as we anticipated we would be."

North regained the lead on a 41-yard touchdown run by Aubrey only four plays after LCN's score and Baratta kicked the extra point.

The Norsemen missed a 26-yard field goal attempt on their next possession but they didn't have to wait long for another chance to get on the scoreboard. Jeff Hermann recovered a fumble near midfield and five plays later Brian Kasiborski passed 25 yards to Michael Fine for a touchdown and Baratta added the conversion to make it 17-6.

North added to its lead shortly before halftime on a 13-yard run by Aubrey. The four-play drive covered 78 yards and featured a pair of 24-yard runs by Aubrey and a nine-yard run by Kasiborski.

The Norsemen started the second half like they ended the first — with another touchdown. LCN kicked off to North and the Norsemen went 69 yards in seven plays with Aubrey scoring on a 36-yard run.

LCN scored a fourth-quarter touchdown on a five-yard pass play from Patrick to Hancock.

Fullback Paul Valencia picked up 36 yards rushing, while Blake Muccioli added 23.

Chad Cooper led a solid defensive effort with 10 tackles, including three solo stops. Jerry Cardani and Tony Strickland each made seven tackles and Strickland had a sack.

Hermann had an outstanding performance with two solo tackles among six stops. He also had a fumble recovery and an interception. Muccioli had six tackles, while Rick Pesta and Mike Schornak had five apiece.

"Schornak has been real solid inside since missing the opener with an injury," Sumbera said. "We held them under 100 yards in both rushing (89) and passing (79)."

North visits Port Huron Friday night. The Big Reds are winless in three games, but Sumbera said they're much better than the record indicates.

"They lost 20-12 to Warren-Mott and 35-22 to Anchor Bay and they're both top 10 teams," Sumbera said. "Their other loss was to Marysville, which is ranked near the top in Class B. They can put points on the board. Their problem has been stopping people."

Port Huron is one of the few teams that still uses the single-wing offense and North has to be concerned with stopping running back Tony Washington, who has been over 100 yards rushing in each of the Big Reds' games.

There's plenty of action around the basketball during Grosse Pointe North's Macomb Area Conference victory against Chippewa Valley last week.

North gets on track

Grosse Pointe North snapped a three-game losing streak last week with an excellent all-around performance against Chippewa Valley.

"Everyone contributed to the win," coach Gary Bennett said after the 42-17 victory over the Big Reds in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division girls basketball game.

Lindsay Simmon had 17 points and seven rebounds, while Lindsay Hawkins added nine points and seven rebounds. Kristen Halicki played an excellent all-around game for North, which is 1-1 in the division.

Earlier, Sterling Heights came from behind in the second half and beat the Norsemen 47-33 in their division opener.

North pulled out to a 28-15 lead in the second quarter and held a 29-22 halftime advantage, but the Stallions outscored the Norsemen 25-4 in the second half.

Simmon had 15 points for North, while Michelle Champine had eight points and six steals and Hawkins had four assists and two steals.

In North's non-league opener with Detroit Dominican, the Ravens outscored the Norsemen 16-6 in the second quarter and went on to a 52-42 victory.

Simmon topped North with 21 points and 12 rebounds, while Jenny Pagel had five points and eight rebounds.

South plays well in loss to Fraser

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's football team played well enough to beat a lot of teams last weekend, but unfortunately for the Blue Devils, this year's Fraser squad is better than most.

South led 21-13 at halftime, but dropped a 28-21 decision to the Ramblers in the Macomb Area Conference White Division contest.

"I thought we played a pretty good football game," said coach Mike McLeod. "We just had horrible field position the whole game. And they were usually working with a short field.

"I thought our defensive line as a whole had its best performance. They hit three long third-down passes and you know Ray (Fraser coach Ray Barr) doesn't like to throw the ball but we stopped their running game."

The Blue Devils' Greg Peppler intercepted a pass that was deflected by Matt Moran and returned it 21 yards for a touchdown on Fraser's first possession of the game.

"We practiced that play every day," McLeod said.

Mike Kaselitz threw two touchdown passes — 65 yards to Josh Lorence and 46 yards to Pat Howe — to give South the halftime advantage. Andrew Hendrie kicked all three extra points.

Fraser scored twice early in the third quarter. John Hammer tied the game with a four-yard run and Jim Sorgi passed 27 yards to Jessie Blair for the winning touchdown.

The Ramblers had a couple more threats but South's defense stiffened and stopped them twice inside the 10-yard line in the second half.

South had a threat of its own in the final minute, but an interception killed the Blue Devils' drive at the Fraser 40.

Hammer, who had 136 yards in 20 carries, returned a kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown. Mike Kunik got the Ramblers' other touchdown on a one-yard dive in the opening quarter.

"James Feagin played the game of his life," McLeod said of the Blue Devils' defensive lineman. "A lot of Division I schools are looking at him and he played like a Division I player. Peppler had a nice game, our inside linebackers played well and our offensive line was superb with its pass blocking. One time Kaselitz had six seconds to throw."

McLeod was also pleased with the performance of running backs Lorence and Dan Griesbaum.

"They ran hard — north and south," the coach said.

McLeod also singled out the punt coverage team and Steve Allor and Mark ZurSchmiede, in particular, for big hits.

The loss left South 0-2 in the division and 1-2 overall. It was the division opener for Fraser, which is 2-1 in all games.

Especially the Nick Aubrey show.

The senior running back carried the ball 19 times for 251 yards and three touchdowns to lead the Norsemen to their third straight victory — a 32-10 win over the Crusaders in a Macomb Area Conference Blue Division game.

"It's interesting to walk through the line after the game when the kids are shaking hands to hear what the other team says to Nick," said North coach Frank Sumbera. "They're all impressed with his moves."

Sumbera is impressed, too.

"Nick caught one pass and on that one he was in the flat with big Courtney Davis bearing down on him," the coach said. "Instead of turning upfield, Nick did a clockwise move in the other direction and stopped Davis in his tracks. It was a great move, but Nick knew he was going to get drilled if he didn't make it. He must have sensed Davis coming after him."

Aubrey, who has more than 600 yards in three games, is following in the footsteps of Eric Peters and Leonard Harris, who preceded Aubrey as the North fullback.

"Some of the coaches have asked me where I've been able to come up with these tailbacks every year," Sumbera said. "We've had some good ones lately."

When the game, which had been delayed because of lightning, finally started it didn't take long for the Norsemen to get on the scoreboard.

LCN took a 6-3 lead when it got a 35-yard touchdown pass from Brad Patrick to Darin Hancock on a fourth-and-two situation.

That was about it for the Crusaders, who had to play without running back Will Lewis, who was suspended from the team.

"After they scored, we had five straight series when we held them for three plays and out or had an interception," Sumbera said. "And we scored on three straight possessions. That's when we stabilized the game.

"I think the long wait and the fact that we had prepared all week to face Lewis had an adverse effect on our kids. They were a little disappointed he didn't play. We weren't as crisp defensively in the first quarter and a half as we anticipated we would be."

North regained the lead on a 41-yard touchdown run by Aubrey only four plays after LCN's score and Baratta kicked the extra point.

The Norsemen missed a 26-yard field goal attempt on their next possession but they didn't have to wait long for another chance to get on the scoreboard. Jeff Hermann recovered a fumble near midfield and five plays later Brian Kasiborski passed 25 yards to Michael Fine for a touchdown and Baratta added the conversion to make it 17-6.

North added to its lead shortly before halftime on a 13-yard run by Aubrey. The four-play drive covered 78 yards and featured a pair of 24-yard runs by Aubrey and a nine-yard run by Kasiborski.

The Norsemen started the second half like they ended the first — with another touchdown. LCN kicked off to North and the Norsemen went 69 yards in seven plays with Aubrey scoring on a 36-yard run.

LCN scored a fourth-quarter touchdown on a five-yard pass play from Patrick to Hancock.

Fullback Paul Valencia picked up 36 yards rushing, while Blake Muccioli added 23.

Chad Cooper led a solid defensive effort with 10 tackles, including three solo stops. Jerry Cardani and Tony Strickland each made seven tackles and Strickland had a sack.

Hermann had an outstanding performance with two solo tackles among six stops. He also had a fumble recovery and an interception. Muccioli had six tackles, while Rick Pesta and Mike Schornak had five apiece.

"Schornak has been real solid inside since missing the opener with an injury," Sumbera said. "We held them under 100 yards in both rushing (89) and passing (79)."

North visits Port Huron Friday night. The Big Reds are winless in three games, but Sumbera said they're much better than the record indicates.

"They lost 20-12 to Warren-Mott and 35-22 to Anchor Bay and they're both top 10 teams," Sumbera said. "Their other loss was to Marysville, which is ranked near the top in Class B. They can put points on the board. Their problem has been stopping people."

Port Huron is one of the few teams that still uses the single-wing offense and North has to be concerned with stopping running back Tony Washington, who has been over 100 yards rushing in each of the Big Reds' games.

South ready for tough two weeks

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

The next two weeks will tell a lot about Grosse Pointe South's girls basketball team.

"This week we have Utica and Sterling Heights, then we play Stevenson and our crossover is against Eisenhower," said coach Peggy Van Eckoute.

"These two weeks will be a true test of how good we are. All four of those teams are excellent."

Last week, the Blue Devils chalked up a pair of victories.

They rolled past L'Anse Creuse North 62-22, then came on strong in the second half to beat Ford II 43-26.

"It was a great team effort against L'Anse Creuse," Van Eckoute said.

"Ten of our 13 players scored and we played very good defense."

Caitlin Shapiro led South with 14 points and Dinah Zebot added 11. Sophomore Colleen Trybus tossed in seven points.

Melissa Brown collected five assists and seven steals, while Kristin Lorenger had five points and four steals.

South had only a 14-11 halftime lead against Ford but broke the game open in the second half, outscoring the Falcons 29-15.

"They matched up pretty well with us speed-wise," Van Eckoute said. "In the second half we were a lot more patient on offense and took better shots."

Meghan McGahey had 13 of her team-high 15 points in the second half. She also pulled down 12 rebounds.

Sarah Kraft added eight points, five steals and six rebounds.

Depth carries ULS to two wins

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Depth is one of the reasons University Liggett School's girls basketball team is off to a good start in the Metro Conference.

"When we sub we don't lose anything," coach John Bandos said after the Knights improved to 3-1 in the league with victories over Harper Woods (30-15) and Hamtramck (48-40).

"Each game it seems like somebody different picks up the responsibility of carrying the team, even if they're only in for four or five minutes. We have 10 players and I feel very comfortable with each of them."

In the Hamtramck game, ULS fought off a furious second-half comeback by the Cosmos.

The Knights led 24-8 at halftime, but Hamtramck cut the margin to five points in the second half.

"Then we rolled up our sleeves and got a little tougher," Bandos said. "We scored 18 points in the fourth quarter."

ULS made 15 of 29 free throws and eight of those came down the stretch.

Karah Knope led the Knights with 18 points, but freshman Sharma Brown also had an outstanding game with 13 points and seven steals.

"The first and second half were like two different games," Bandos said.

Earlier, ULS rolled past Harper Woods as Victoria Hills had eight points and eight rebounds and Holly Morrison came off the bench to score six quick points.

"Our defense really picked up in this game," Bandos said.

The two victories evened the Knights' overall record at 3-3.

North nips leader

Phil Leaman scored the winning goal after an excellent crossing pass from Brad Drummy.

North's outstanding defensive effort was led by senior co-captains Andy Gwinnell and Peter Marshand and by goalie Joe Petkwitz.

Earlier, North played a 1-1 tie against Anchor Bay. Steve Drader scored the Norsemen's goal early in the second half. Peter Marks assisted.

Richmond Inger, Marks, Gwinnell, John Gennari and Brad Collinson played excellent defense throughout the game.

North came back from a 4-1 halftime deficit to tie Lakeview 4-4.

Gennari put a header into the net with about a minute and a half remaining to tie the game.

Dave Dwaihy, Drader and Cori Cecchini also scored for the Norsemen.

Mustangs '88 finish second in Romeo soccer tournament

The Pointe Girls Soccer Association Mustangs '88 posted a pair of shutout victories and took second place in the under-10 division at the Romeo Peach Festival tournament.

The Mustangs opened tournament play with a 2-1 loss to Rochester. Grosse Pointe dominated the contest and what coach Jim Potthoff called "a friendly goalpost" prevented the Mustangs from scoring the equalizer.

Goalies Hillary Inger and Meghan Potthoff and the defense pair of Alexandra Ford and Kristen Jost limited Rochester's chances.

The Mustangs blanked the North Macomb Thundercats 3-0 as Elizabeth Baxter scored two goals.

Grosse Pointe controlled the game and goalies Meghan Potthoff and Inger saw little action. Midfielders Jennifer Bohannon and March and defenders Ford and Jost kept the Thundercats in their own end most of the game.

The Mustangs completed tournament play with a 3-0 victory over the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Dragons.

Galea had a goal and an assist, while Inger and March also tallied for the Mustangs. Baxter and Potthoff had assists.

The strong offensive play of Fortune, Louisell and Bohannon contributed the the victory. Fortune and Baxter combined for the shutout, while Ford and Jost were outstanding on defense.

UNDER-12

The Mustangs '86 finished second in the under-12 division at the Romeo Peach Festival tournament, losing 2-1 to the ULS Stingers in a championship game sudden-death shootout.

The game was tied 1-1 after regulation and two five-minute sudden-death overtimes. When a 5-on-5 shootout failed to determine a winner, a sudden-death shootout was held and the Stingers scored the first goal.

Danica Day scored the Mustangs' goal. Ann Campbell was outstanding on defense and Emily Rouls played very well in goal.

Grosse Pointe also got strong efforts from Callie Shumaker, Julie Howe and Jennifer Marsh throughout the tournament.

En route to the championship game, the Mustangs shut out all three opponents — 5-0 over the Bloomfield Flame, 1-0 over the Saline Strikers and 10-0 over the Clawson Strikers.

In Michigan Youth Soccer League Division I play, the Mustangs beat the Bloomfield Force 5-2. Natalie Waelchli and Brittany Paquette scored on direct kicks, while Andrea Przybysz scored her first goal as a Mustangs. Jessica Marsh and Kristen Padilla also scored.

Grosse Pointe got excellent defensive play from Day and goalies Rouls and Megan Switalski. Lindsay Potthoff and Emily Griffin played well offensively.

Ellie Ford and Paquette scored to lift the Mustangs to a 2-1 victory over the North Metro Rangers.

The defensive work of Erin MacLeod, Lindsay Furgal and Waelchli helped secure the win. First-year Mustang Emery Brink had a good all-around game.

UNDER-13

The Mustangs '85 earned a pair of impressive victories in the Little Caesars Premier Soccer League.

The Mustangs blanked the Canton Comets 2-0. Laura Fisher opened the scoring with a goal off a corner kick by Mandi Marsh. Suzanne McGoey added the insurance goal with an assist from Kristin Brophy.

The following day, the Mustangs recorded a come-from-behind 2-1 win over the Livonia Meteors.

Alex Marshall got the game winner on a long shot, while Marsh tallied the first goal with an assist to Stephanie Rose. Beth Sanders directed the Mustangs' attack, while Amanda Marinello and Molly Zeller anchored the defense.

UNDER-14

The Mustangs '84 posted a pair of 2-1 victories over Lansing in a home-and-home series.

In the game in Grosse Pointe, Leah Cherf and Jaime Keller scored the Mustangs' goals, while Laura Vorgitch had an assist.

Lansing's home game featured goals by the Mustangs' Nayla Kazzi and Erica Muncy with assists from Cailin Campbell and Vorgitch. Farmer was again the winning goalie.

Kazzi notched a pair of goals in the Mustangs' 4-1 victory over Birmingham United, while Vorgitch had a goal and an assist and Muncy collected two assists.

Cherf also scored with an assist to Stephanie Ritok.

Farmer and Amy Socia split the goaltending. Meggie Schmidt played a strong defensive game and so did Erin Burke and Campbell, who stepped in for two missing defenders.

Margaret Batten and Michelle Broderick played solid offensive games.

The Mustangs played well, but suffered their first defeat of the season when they were beaten 1-0 by Carpathia.

Grosse Pointe got good offensive performances from midfielder Jenny Swalec, Kazzi and Sandra Grimmer. The defense was led by Socia, Keller and Herman. Farmer played well in goal.

The Mustangs had a win, a loss and a tie in the State Cup Quest.

Grosse Pointe dropped a 3-0 decision to the Brighton Express in the opening game. The highlight for the Mustangs was Cherf's passing.

In game two, the Mustangs played a 1-1 tie with the BCSF Blazers. Socia scored the goal, while Farmer had a good game in the nets. An excellent header by Muncy was disallowed on a controversial offside call. If the goal had been allowed the Mustangs would have kept their State Cup hopes alive.

Swalec scored all three goals in the Mustangs' 3-0 victory over the Brighton Eclipse. Ritok had an assist. Farmer recorded the shutout. The Mustangs got excellent defensive play from Safran, Socia, Keller and Herman.

Position switch gives Knights more punch

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

David Backhurst got just what he was looking for last week when he moved Jonathon Kish from sweeper to forward on University Liggett School's soccer team.

"Kish is an outstanding sweeper, but I was so fed up with our lack of offense that I decided to move him up front," Backhurst said after Kish scored twice in the Knights' 4-1 Metro Conference victory over Cranbrook.

"Kish is a track man and he's extremely quick. Our track coach says he's the faster starter he's seen here. That makes him very effective in soccer."

It took fewer than 10 minutes for Backhurst's move to pay off. Right wing Scott Vallee, who was just called up from the junior varsity, sent a pass to Kish, who beat the Cranes' goalie with 37:25 left in the first half.

That's the way it stood until late in the first half when Cranbrook chipped a shot over goalie Dan Ferrin to tie the score at 1-1.

By that time, Backhurst had moved Kish back to sweeper and brought Brad Cenko, who had replaced Kish in the defensive position, back to his familiar midfield post.

But when Cranbrook tied the game it was time for more offense.

"I had just moved Kish up and Cenko back when Brad gave Jonathon a header and he redirected it into the net," Backhurst said.

It remained a one-goal game until Cranbrook seemed to tire late in the contest. Steve Gotfredson picked up a loose ball and beat the Cranes' goalie with about 10 minutes left.

Then Matt Nowak set up Drew Noecker for his first goal of the season.

"It was a lot closer than the 4-1 final score indicates, but I'll take it," Backhurst said.

Earlier, ULS edged Hamtramck 1-0 in a Metro Conference game.

The only goal came midway through the second half when Cenko converted a penalty kick after the Cosmos were called for a handball inside the 18-yard line. It was Cenko's third goal and two of them have come on penalty kicks.

The game featured some excellent saves by Ferrin and an outstanding defensive play by Gotfredson, who made a sliding tackle on a Hamtramck player after he went around Ferrin.

"Most players would have given up when they saw the guy going in, but Gotfredson didn't let up," Backhurst said. "It's like backchecking in hockey, but it saved a goal."

ULS outshot Hamtramck 21-11.

"They have some outstanding individuals, but they lack the teamwork we have," Backhurst said.

The two victories boosted the Knights' record to 6-1-1 overall and 2-0 in the Metro Conference. ULS has shutouts in six of its eight games.

Dragons '87 are second

The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association Dragons '87 took second place in the under-11 division of the Romeo Peach Festival tournament, winning three of their four games.

The Dragons won their first three games — against the Saline Impact, Royal Oak Ambush and Royal Oak Tornadoes — by a combined score of 11-0.

Grosse Pointe then lost 3-1 to the North Macomb Thundercats in the championship game. The Thundercats won the under-11 division last year when the Dragons were playing under-10.

Brooke Ziehr led the Dragons with four goals and Erin Deane and Jordan McIlroy added three goals apiece. Julie West also scored.

Kelly Ritter had two assists, while Erica Coates, Caroline Hartmann, Kelly Roney, Megan Warren, Andrea Savage, West and McIlroy collected one assist apiece.

Warren had an outstanding tournament at stopper and also shared the excellent goaltending with McIlroy, Chrissie Keersmaekers, Casey Scavone and Allison Jones.

Excellent all-around games were turned in by Andrea Caralis, Lauren Jesnig, Laura Nicholl and Emily Van Loon.

The Dragons '87 then tied their regular-season opener with the Oxford-Lake Orion Lobos 2-2. Warren and McIlroy each scored on perfect midfield strikes that sailed over the goalie's hands.

SEQUENCE

Runners from Grosse Pointe South, Stevenson and Chippewa Valley await the starting gun before their Macomb Area Conference Red Division girls cross country meet.

South girls run past state champ

A dual meet victory over defending state champion Sterling Heights Stevenson and a strong second-place finish in the Shamrock Invitational added up to the best week of the season for Grosse Pointe South's girls cross country team.

The Blue Devils beat the Titans 24-33 and shut out Chippewa Valley 15-50 to improve their Macomb Area Conference Red Division record to 4-0.

South's Jonnie Vasse led the way against Stevenson, but the Titans took second and third place. Then South's depth took over.

The Blue Devils took six of the top nine positions as Beth Auty was fourth, Heidi Crowley fifth, Kristin Ritter sixth, Katy Kraft eighth and Kristin Nickel ninth.

"With Stevenson returning several of their top state champion runners, we knew this would be an excellent early test for our team," said South coach Steve Zaranek. "Our girls came through with an outstanding race."

South went from the defending state champion to the team that's favored to win it all this year — Livonia Stevenson — at the Shamrock Invitational.

The meet was dominated by South and Stevenson. The Spartans were first with 26 points and the Blue Devils had 36. Farmington Mercy was third with 132 points, followed by Utica Ford 135 and Grosse Pointe North 148.

"Usually 50 or 60 points will easily win a 15-team invitational," Zaranek said. "Livonia Stevenson scoring 26 and South 36 with the next best school 100 points away demonstrated how much Stevenson and South dominated. We responded well to two huge tests."

Vasse, who is undefeated this season, led from start to finish as she covered the 5,000-meter course in 19:22.

Auty, who was third overall in the 101-runner field, broke 20 minutes for the first time this year with a 19:50. Crowley was sixth (20:34), followed by Ritter in 11th place and Kraft in 15th.

Several South runners had personal best performances. They were Erin VanAssche, Natalie Brewer, Suzi Piech, Meredith Zielke, Katie O'Neill, Dana Galinato, Rachel Henderson and Emily Neveux.

Also Emily Buckler, Katy Baker, Annie Reinholz, Katie Girolamo, Carin Mackinnon, Mary Donoghue, Monica Loveley, Betsy Ray and Ailsa Lian.

South does well against ranked foes

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's tennis team took on two of the three schools ahead of it in the state rankings and did quite well in the showdown.

The Blue Devils played a 4-4 tie with No. 3 ranked Ann Arbor Huron, then finished second to No. 2 Ann Arbor Pioneer in last Saturday's invitational at Pioneer.

"We had two subs in the lineup against Huron so we did a great job," said South coach Mark Sobieralski. "We had to move our third and fourth singles players up and we put a JV player at No. 4. But they all did a great job."

Huron won all four singles matches, but South's Leslie Harrell gave the River Rats' coach some uneasy moments.

"I could tell he was worried," Sobieralski said. "When Leslie played their No. 1 earlier in the year she lost 6-0, 6-0, but this time she won the first set 6-4, then lost 6-4, 6-3.

"Leslie has had an outstanding year, but it's not reflected in her record because she's always playing the best girl on the other team. She just has to keep believing in herself. I keep telling her, 'no fear.'"

South swept the four doubles matches. The Blue Devils' No. 2 doubles team of Jennifer Mansfield and Kirsten Brand lost the first set 6-4 and were down 4-1 in the second but came back to win 6-4, 6-2.

"They just got pumped," Sobieralski said.

South's Lauren Pankhurst and Anne Morris won a tough 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 decision at No. 1 doubles.

"Lauren was really sick but she gutted it out," Sobieralski said. "They're 17-4 for the season and three of the losses have been to Port Huron Northern."

Caroline Cavanaugh and Brody Dawson won 6-0, 6-3 at No. 3 doubles and Eileen Pulis and Katie Reagan took a 6-3, 6-2 decision at No. 4. Reagan was filling in for the injured Lindsay Yates.

"Katie's been our super sub," Sobieralski said. "Her sister Kristen had the same role last year. Katie has filled in wherever we've needed her and has done a good job."

In the Pioneer Invitational, the host team won with 13 points and South had nine.

The Blue Devils won at No. 1 doubles with Pankhurst and Morris and at No. 4 doubles with Yates and Pulis.

South was runner-up in first, third and fourth singles and in second and third doubles.

North girls show vast improvement

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's fifth-place finish in last weekend's Shamrock Invitational cross country meet looks even better when it's compared to last year.

"All four teams that finished ahead of us are among the best girls teams in the state — Livonia Stevenson, Grosse Pointe South, Farmington Mercy and Utica Ford," said North coach Scott Cooper.

"Last year we were 10th in the meet. This year all five girls who scored for us beat the time of our second runner last year. There has been a lot of improvement. Everybody who ran were 30 seconds to a minute better than last year. We needed something positive like that."

Erin Lenahan was North's first runner and she finished 16th overall. That's a big improvement from her 28th-place effort of a year ago.

She was followed by teammates Betsy Huebner, Tracy Secord, Andrea Veryser, Julie Mielke and Beth Ginger. All six earned medals.

"Betsy and Tracy both ran their best races by more than a minute," Cooper said.

North also had some strong performances in the junior varsity portion of the race. Betsy Stafford was the Norsemen's first runner and would have been seventh on the varsity team.

Jennifer Darkangelo and Ginger Hubbell also had personal bests by five minutes or more.

Earlier, North split a pair of Macomb Area Conference White Division meets. Romeo took the first three places and beat the Norsemen 20-36, while North shut out Utica 15-50.

Lenahan led the way for North, followed by Huebner, Veryser, Mielke and Ginger.

"Betsy had been struggling, but she really picked it up last week," Cooper said. "We expected a lot from her and she was our second runner in both meets she ran in."

Another impressive performance came from freshman Aleene Hang. She won the JV race and had North's ninth-best time overall.

Cooper sent his eighth through 21st runners to the Fraser Invitational and the B team took fourth place while North's C unit was ninth.

"Taking fourth and ninth in a field of 14 varsity teams shows our depth this year," Cooper said.

Scoring for North's B team were Vickie DeCarlo, Laura Butler, Renee Bryzik, Kelly Coolman and Aimee Miller. The C team was led by Lindsey Morgan, Sharon Thomas, Sarah Schultz, Julie Thompson and Ellen Safran.

Gina South also posted her best time for the Norsemen.

"She's really a hard worker," Cooper said. "She never takes any shortcuts in practice."

High mileage helps Blue Devils' Roth

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

High mileage is a red flag for folks looking at a used car, but it's just fine for a cross country runner.

And that's one of the reasons Parker Roth has been one of the most consistent runners for Grosse Pointe South's boys cross country team this fall.

"The last three years during the off-season Parker has run about 2,500 miles," said coach Tom Wise. "That's why he's been super consistent for us. He's been our second runner in just about every race. He's a great worker and so consistent. He's getting better and better."

Roth was the second Blue Devil to hit the finish line last week when South swept a Macomb Area Conference Red Division double dual meet, beating Stevenson 21-38 and Chippewa Valley 19-40.

The victory gave the Blue Devils a 4-0 record in division meets.

Andrew Petersen was South's leading runner, followed by Roth, Justin Bosley, Brian Steele and Jeff Pilley.

South also finished third at the Shamrock Invitational. Host Catholic Central was first and Washington Eisenhower took second place.

Steele, Pilley, Fred Pope and Patrick Ryan rounded out the first seven runners for South.

South also had good performances from Ben Visger, Garrett Heffner and freshman Nick Galac.

"We're still not all together yet," Wise said. "We've had some injuries and illness."

South golfers lead MAC Red Division

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's golf team is off to a flying start and coach Jon Rice is hoping the success continues for a few more weeks.

"We've been playing well," Rice said. "We have the Evans-Gill Invitational next Monday and then before we know it, the league meet and regional will be coming up. The season seems to fly by, but we've played a lot of matches."

The Blue Devils are 9-0 overall in dual meets and they have a 6-0 mark in the Macomb Area Conference Red Division.

One of the highlights so far was a 158-167 victory over Chippewa Valley in a battle of unbeaten MAC Red squads.

Joe Gehrke led the way for South with a 38 on the Partridge Creek course.

South also had a seventh place finish at the Marshall Invitational.

"There were 20 good teams there," Rice said.

Steve Stanton and Tony Tocco led the way for the Blue Devils.

Stanton has been averaging 38 for the season to lead South. Brendan Joyce is a stroke behind at 39, while Tocco and Gehrke are both averaging 40.

ULS netters surprise Grosse Pointe North

University Liggett School's tennis team posted a surprising 7-1 victory over Grosse Pointe North last week.

"North had finished ahead of us in our tournament two weeks ago and I know that coach (Cathy) Hackenberger felt they should beat us head-to-head," said ULS coach Chuck Wright.

"I was amazed at how well we played — by far our best performance of the year."

ULS swept the four singles matches. Julie Megler came from behind in the second set to win 6-0, 7-6 at No. 1 singles. Kendall Wrigley coasted to a 6-1, 6-2 victory at second singles in a match that figured to be much closer.

"Kendall has been doing a terrific job at two singles," Wright said. "She has been extremely well-focused."

Marite Schulte-Trux was a 6-2, 6-3 winner at No. 3 singles, while Christina Oney continued her fine play since moving to No. 4 singles with a 6-4, 7-5 victory.

"We're starting to get our confidence back again," Wright said.

Stephanie Roehl and Allison Ricci came from behind in the second set to win 6-2, 7-5 at No. 1 doubles. Sheena and Sejal Parikh lost their first set at No. 3, but bounced back to win 3-6, 6-2, 6-1. Alaina Powell and Molly Marco won 6-2, 6-4 at No. 4 doubles.

Earlier in the week, ULS dropped a 6-2 decision to Birmingham Seaholm. The Knights' winners were Wrigley and Oney.

ULS wrapped up the week with a fourth-place finish at the eight-team East Grand Rapids Invitational. The Knights had 13 points, but were only one point out of a tie for second place.

Every member of the ULS squad collected at least one point.

A highlight of the tournament was a pair victories from the No. 2 doubles team of Melissa Berger and Amy Silverston. Their second win was a three-setter against a strong Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central team.

ULS has a showdown at Detroit Country Day, today, Sept. 25. The match features the first and second ranked teams in Division IV.

North trio wins two matches in ULS tourney

Singles players Katherine Levine and Emily Kingsley each won two matches and the No. 2 doubles team of Erica Voltrauer and Erin DiMaggio also won twice to help Grosse Pointe North's tennis team to a third-place finish at the University Liggett School tournament.

Levine beat Grosse Pointe South 6-0, 6-1 and defeated her opponent from ULS 6-0, 6-7, 6-0 in No. 1 singles, while Kingsley posted a hard-fought 6-0, 4-6, 6-1 win over South's Jennifer Mansfield and beat Karissa Feucht of ULS 6-1, 6-1 at No. 4 singles.

Voltrauer and DiMaggio beat South 6-4, 6-1 and took a three-setter from ULS 1-6, 7-6, 6-2.

Susana Granda won a 6-1, 6-1 against South in No. 2 singles, while Katie Verb had a three-set win over ULS at No. 3 singles.

North's first doubles team of Beth Bonbrisco and Katie Eugenio lost two three-set matches as did the No. 3 team of Katie Powers and Alesia Watson and the fourth doubles team of Kelly Dornbrook and Rebecca Shulman.

NOVENA to St. Jude
May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Oh Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.
Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day, your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks, St. Jude for prayers answered. Special thanks to our Mother Of Perpetual Help. R.C.

Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succor me in my necessity (request here). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary conceived without sin, Pray for us who have recourse. Holy Mary, place this prayer in your hands. Say this 3 times, 3 days, publish it. It will be granted to you. I.C.

Bees have long intrigued us with their usefulness

By Ellen Probert Williamson

A flower almost universally popular to add spice and color to gardens is the nasturtium. It is easy to grow and blooms bountifully, a fact which endears it to all gardeners.

Xenophon tells us that nasturtiums were eaten by the Persians about 400 B.C. Native to Persia, the plants spread to the gardens of Syria, Greece and Turkey. But nasturtiums are also native to this country, and early settlers here found nasturtiums growing wild in the woods. Called Indian cress, they were mentioned in a book published in Spain in the 16th century.

The Indians in Peru lost many treasures to the Spaniards and the English during the gold-seeking days of the 16th century. Peruvian legend tells of a man carrying a bag of gold down a mountainside. He was attacked by some treasure-seekers, and begged the mountain gods to take back the gold and pour the gold nuggets out of his bag onto the earth.

Immediately there sprang up the golden flowers of nasturtium. The legend also says that the high air of the Andes mountains is so pure, soft and clean that the penetrating fragrance of the flowers made one's nostrils quiver, hence the name. Nasturtium means "nose twister" and is derived from Latin words.

By the mid-16th century, these flowers flourished throughout Europe. John Gerarde in his famous "Herball" tells us that they graced the gardens of the French king, Louis XIV. They were lauded by John Evelyn in his late 17th century treatise "A Discourse on Sallets." To this day they are considered a sophisticated salad ingredient in Europe.

In the 18th century the great botanist Linnaeus decided that this plant was not a cress and gave it its generic name tropaeolum. Nasturtiums are very high in vitamin C and contain a herbal-type penicillin. The flowers, seed pods, leaves and stems are all edible.

The late president Dwight Eisenhower had a favorite recipe for vegetable soup in which a principal ingredient was nasturtium.

We see the pretty little purple and white blossoms of the clover starring our lawns, and if we are lucky, sometimes find a four-leaved clover that is guaranteed to bring us luck and fortune.

The common clover gained celebrity status during the time when St. Patrick traveled around Ireland and used the trefoil leaves of the clover to demonstrate the unity of the Trinity to his listeners. Ireland was a land where the people easily believed in many mystical beings — leprechauns, elves, fairies, goblins, trolls and demons. St. Patrick found it a fertile place to sow seeds of faith.

The peasants used to carry clover leaves in their shoes when crossing dark fields at night. They believed that the four-leaved clover, a super-symbol of the Trinity, held super powers of benevolence.

Belief in the power of clover as a protector of love and heroism quickly spread. Today the clover is regarded as a defense against ill fortune and evil spirits. To dream of clover foretells fortune, prosperity and good health.

Like many other flowers, the clover was adopted by the Greeks and Romans to mark festive occasions, as garlands to decorate banquet halls and to flavor wine.

Vermont chose the clover for its state flower. Children everywhere know about sucking nectar from the clover blossoms.

Poet Emily Dickinson wrote an often-quoted verse: "The pedigree of honey does not concern the bee. A clover anytime, to him, is aristocracy."

Bees are important to gardens. The hum of bees is part of the music of gardens, along with birdsongs and the sound of wind in the trees. Bees are attracted to flower scents.

In the "Koran" we find the quotation: "The Lord spoke by inspiration unto the bee, saying, provide thee houses in the mountain and in the trees, and of those materials where with men build hives for thee. Then eat of every kind of fruit, and fly in the beaten paths of thy Lord."

In the "Book of Mormon" we find the quotation, "butter and honey shall Messiah eat, that he may know to refuse evil and choose good. They did carry with them swarms of bees and seeds of

House sparrows persist as the ultimate immigrant

Rosann Kovalcik
Wild Birds Unlimited

With the exception of Antarctica, everywhere that you go in the world you will be able to see house sparrows. Estimates of their numbers are into the billions. One of nature's most successful immigrants, they have learned to adapt where other bird species have failed. They can be found in deserts, tropical forests, mountains and especially, near urban development. This worldwide range was not always the norm.

In the early 1800s, house sparrows were confined to an area consisting of Europe, western Asia to India and parts of northern Africa. It was then that European immigrants decided to take sparrows with them to new settlements. Perhaps this was for purposes of bringing something familiar to a strange setting.

It is also thought that colonists in America believed that the house sparrows could control the agricultural pests that they were confronted with in their new lands. In the 1850s, eight pairs of house sparrows were released in Brooklyn Park in New York City.

These pairs did not flourish, which led to the importation of 50 breeding pairs the next year. Subsequent releases continued up and down the eastern coast and as far inland as Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Texas, leading the birds to become established nationwide in 50 years.

The house sparrow is a member of the weaver finch family of birds called passeridae, also known as old world sparrows. Passer domesticus is commonly referred to as the English sparrow, since the English were largely responsible for their import. Whatever you call them, they are certainly in abundance in our yards, whether we encourage them by feeding or not.

Males are brown streaked with black above and gray on their cheeks, the crown of their head, their underparts and rump. They have a black bib which extends up around the eye. In the breeding season, males' bills will turn black from the customary yellow that they have at other times of the year. Females are more uniformly brown, lacking the gray on the rump and crown or the black bib of the males. Juveniles all resemble females in their first summer.

Sparrows are very communal birds, gathering at two times of the day in flocks. Around mid-day, they gather in a social flock, usually in the same shrubbery or tree. There they will preen and chirp for about an hour. In late evening, the birds will again gather in these groups and then travel to a communal tree or ivy covered wall for night roosting — unless they are a breeding pair that will return to their chosen nest site.

Sparrows are adaptable when it comes to nesting as evidenced by their appearance in eaves and drainpipes, on signs, air conditioners, awnings and in any bird housing that has an entrance large enough for them to get into. Unfortunately, if these sparrows cannot enter a house, they may sometimes perch on its roof or on the entrance perch and keep the nesting bird from entering.

Another nasty habit that the

For the Birds

house sparrow has is to peck the head of the nesting bird, causing its death. Apparently, if the sparrow cannot use the nest box, it feels the need to prevent others from doing so. In purple martin housing, a device has been invented called a sparrow trap. Set inside the only open compartment of the multiple-compartment dwelling, the sparrow enters and the door closes, allowing the purple martin landlord to remove the sparrow from the area. This leaves the housing accessible for its intended users.

When a house sparrow does find a spot that is to its liking for breeding, it will advertise the location by repeatedly calling out "chirupchireep-chirup." When a female comes into close proximity, this is the male's cue to call even faster and louder while quivering his wings. He will also hop with his head held high and tail fanned in an upright position, bowing in between hops. In order to further advertise his wise choice in nest sites, he will hop in and out of the site as an invitation for the female to follow.

Nests are used year round, which is why you may see sparrows gathering bits of material at any time. The mated pair will use their nest for protection from the weather in the colder months.Sometimes there is a side entrance in a ball-shaped nest. Both members of the mated pair will construct the nest. The female lays five to seven eggs that are light in color with brown spots. It has been shown that the female is the only one of the mated pair that develops a brood patch, and therefore, is entirely responsible for incubation for a two-week period. Once the eggs are hatched, both parents take turns feeding the young, calling out "chirps" to each other each time that they pass at the nest site. After an additional two weeks, the young leave the nest and enter the fledgling state. They may follow the parents around and beg for food as they learn how to feed themselves. If the female starts a second brood, the male is entirely responsible for feeding the fledglings.

It is not unusual for house sparrows to have three to four broods of youngsters in any year. The fledglings will band together in flocks to hang out and feed, later being joined by the adults once nesting is completed for the year. Since house sparrows will eat just about anything, it is difficult to discourage them if their numbers become competitive to other species. Offering a larger seed with a thicker shell such as striped sunflower may cut down on the numbers of sparrows that will stay at your feeding station. They have a tendency to look for food that is more easily eaten.

Avoiding small seeds, especially agricultural grains such as wheat, oats and red millet will help to cut the number of sparrows at your feeding station. If you wish to encourage them into your yard or keep them in one location, white millet placed on the ground is a good alternative. There are two other feeding options that are not as easily mastered by house sparrows. One is thistle for finches. Placing the thistle in a feeder that has plastic perches that are cut shorter to accommodate goldfinches does not allow the wider bodied sparrow to access the feeder. Thistle socks can also be an inexpensive alternative as most house sparrows do not prefer to feed on a feeder that moves.

Suet feeding is another way to attract birds other than sparrows to your yard. The suet should be placed in a hanging log that has holes drilled in it but that does not have perches. Alternatively, it can be placed in a feeder so that it can be accessed only from the bottom. This bottom access is easily mastered by suet feeding birds such as woodpeckers and chickadees.

In either case, you will find that some of the adaptable sparrows will manage even your most valiant attempts to keep them out of your "other birds" food.

Perhaps the best solution lies in coming to terms with the fact that this immigrant should be praised for its resiliency. The house sparrow is truly the ultimate immigrant!

Bees have intrigued everyone and honey has been used in medicine since time immemorial. Bees are to be found in literature all through the medieval period, as well as in the earlier writings of antiquity.

The classical writer, Columella, in the first century A.D. writes, "I come now to the management of bee hives about which no instruction can be given with greater care." He describes many kinds of bees, and is conversant with the structure and use of the hive and the social order of bees within the hive.

During the Elizabethan period bees were given a lot of attention and honey was lavishly used in cooking and in medicine. They accepted the classical and Biblical belief that bees were generated from a dead lion, as caterpillars became butterflies and facts used to demonstrate the truth of the Resurrection. Life was accepted as a rising process — minerals into plants, plants into seeds and seeds into insects — a theory believed in as late as the 17th century.

Many early gardens had shelters built into the enclosing walls to accommodate hives, for the pleasure of hearing the sleepy drone of the bees in a hot summer, as well as for the good of the flowers, fruit and the resultant honey.

Beeswax was used for candles, furniture polishing (as it still is), mold making, metal casting, sealing preserves, waterproofing cloth and as a lubricant. Sailors, tailors and leather workers used waxed thread in sewing.

Eggs were preserved by being coated with melted wax. Unwashed beeswax was probably the earliest form of chewing gum.

Mead, one of the most antique of alcoholic beverages, is made from fermented honey, and honey and vinegar is probably the earliest known cough remedy.

In ancient Rome, the standard test to see if honey had been stored too long and had gone bad was to put a lamp-wick in a jar of honey and light it. If the honey was good it would burn.

Names often become part of our language, and the words can develop meanings that are far removed from their origins.

The fourth Earl of Sandwich liked taking quick snacks at the gambling table. His name came to mean a special kind of food.

Moxie Nerve Food was first served in 1876 in Salem, Mass. By the 1880s, it was added to a carbonated soda and offered in drug stores.

When Moxie stock was offered for sale to the public, the soda was still a new product, and it was a high-risk investment for the time. Only daring investors bought the stock. It was said that such people had "a lot of stock," later meaning "a lot of nerve."

People collect the many Moxie advertising items, including paper fans, postcards, signs, bottles, trays and clocks.

One of the most expensive pieces of Moxie memorabilia is the Moxie advertising clock made in the early days of the company. It carries the slogans, "Compound for the nervous system," "Also a delicious and healthful beverage" and "Only in bottles — never drawn from soda fountains." The clock is worth more than $7,500.

Moxie is still being made and is sold in New England.

Seal your deck to keep it looking great for next year

This is the time of year when you want to invite friends over, fire up the grill and spend the day lounging on the deck. But if you want to keep it looking good and safe to walk on, it's important to treat your deck annually with a sealer/preservative.

Year-around alternating rain and baking sun can wreak havoc on decks, drying out the wood and making it susceptible to water retention and rot. In damp climates, it can develop a mossy patina, which can be removed by scrubbing the deck surface with a mild bleach solution.

A weathered deck can be restored to its original wood color with a deck brightening solution, which is available at home improvement stores. Before applying a preservative, take time to replace nails and smooth splintered boards, cautions Bob Leidberg of The Home Depot.

"Foot traffic and the weathering process can cause nails to pop up on a deck," Leidberg says. "If this is the case, take them out and replace them with corrosion-resistant deck screws and you shouldn't have the same problem again."

Drive the new screws to secure loose decking to joists. If you are reusing the old nail or screw holes, your new fasteners should be slightly longer than the originals. Use an orbital sander to smooth out any rough areas before applying finish to decking boards, railing or stairs.

After you sand the rough areas, vacuum the deck to get rid of any loose sawdust. Apply a staining sealer to all wood, preferably using a pressure sprayer, followed by a paintbrush to smooth out drips and runs. Porous wood may require another coat of staining sealer for even coverage.

Leidberg recommends stain over paint or varnish because it does not form a hard skin that can crack and peel. If your deck already is painted or has a coat of varnish, and you are switching to stain, you must first remove all loose and peeling paint with a scraper and, if necessary, a paint remover.

After all the paint has been removed, scrub the deck with a stiff brush to remove all traces of remover. Once the deck has dried, apply a heavy coat of stain and sealer. Avoid staining in direct sunlight or if rain is forecast for the next day.

Tool Box

Tools:

Screwgun, sprayer, scrub brush, finishing sander, paintbrush.

Materials:

Deck brightener, deck sealer, deck screws.

How To Renew Your Deck

- Mix deck-brightening solution as directed by manufacturer. Apply solution with pressure sprayer and let set for 10 minutes.
- Scrub deck thoroughly with a stiff scrub brush. Wear rubber gloves and eye protection.
- Rinse deck with clear water. If necessary, apply a second coat of brightener to extremely dirty or stained areas. Rinse and let dry Apply a fresh coat of sealer or stain.

fall INTO spring

Plant bulbs in autumn for blooming colors later on

After a long, cold winter, spring bulbs are a welcome blast of color, and well worth the effort of a fall planting.

Bulbs, such as tulips, daffodils and hyacinth, require a period of extreme cold to stimulate their growth, and must be put in the ground in the fall.

To preserve the enduring beauty of your garden, plant at least several bulbs each year. Some bulbs stop blooming after a few years, and others get damaged by rot or wild animals.

When planting bulbs, there is really only one rule to follow: duplicate the way plants grow naturally. Loose, informal groupings are much more attractive then awkward, artificial plantings in straight lines or other geometric patterns.

"When planting, broadcast your bulbs all over the garden," said Paul West, of The Home Depot. "There is no such thing as planting too many bulbs. Just be sure you know which areas are already planted, so you don't accidentally damage old bulbs while putting in new ones."

The secret to a lush, full-looking garden is to plant bulbs in layers. This will ensure that you have more flowers over a longer period. With a bit of selective planting, you can even enjoy beautiful blooms from March through June. Set the larger bulbs, such as tulips and daffodils, on the deepest layer of earth. Cover them with soil and then plant the smaller bulbs, such as crocus, on top. The early blooming bulbs will bring color to your garden at the same time the foliage of the lower bulbs begins to appear.

In addition to planting bulbs, now is the time to dig up and store sensitive bulbs that cannot withstand the winter. Use a spading fork to gently lift the bulbs from the ground. Inspect them for signs of disease, and discard those that are affected.

- Galanthus, also known as "snowdrops" because they appear in early spring, often push their way up through the late snow.
- Tulips are available in almost all colors, and are available in short, medium and tall sizes, as well as early and late-blooming varieties.
- Leucojum produce bell-like blooms of pure white with a green spot on each petal and don't require much maintenance.
- Crocus are consistent bloomers and will return year after year, oftentimes multiplying in the ground and expanding their area.
- Anemone produce white, blue or pink blooms which appear in early spring and are great for rock gardens or wooded locations.
- Eranthis looks like a buttercup with its bright yellow flowers. Plant it in early fall, as soon as bulbs are available.
- Muscari are tiny, cute and available in blue and white. They look like bunches of grapes, and are great for planting below other bulbs.
- Allium come in varying heights and shades of purple and look great waving their heads above smaller yellow and white bulbs.
- Narcissus, frequently called daffodils, are available in a wide variety of heights, bloom times and colors.
- Scilla siberica produce neonblue flowers, are great for both sunny and partially shaded areas and look great when planted in clumps of 12 or more.

Try a family weekend that takes you back to the mid-1600s

By Virginia Carr
Special Writer

"In the beginning there was only darkness.

"Kitche Manitou (the creator) began to fulfill a vision of crimson sunsets and star-laden skies, a vision of various forms of beings living together and sharing the bounty of the creation.

"Kitche Manitou made each rock, water, fire and wind. From these four elements the sun, Earth, moon and stars were formed. To complete the vision, Kitche Manitou created plant beings and then the animal beings. The last act of Kitche Manitou's vision was the creation of man. And so the world of Anishnabeg began."

Charles Fry, better known by his Native American name White Raven, uses the telling of stories to illustrate the commonality among races.

"We are all brothers," Fry explained.

The setting is Algonac State Park —a perfect summer day in a serene wooded site. The early morning sun casts its shimmering rays across the campsite as it comes alive. One by one, the canvas-covered lodges began to pop up between the tall lush green trees. You can almost feel the excitement of the dwellers and their anticipation of meeting old friends and making new ones. The third annual St. Clair Flats Historical Encampment is taking shape.

Each year Ron Pinson hopes to make the event better and better by bringing in new people to participate and by encouraging visitors to enjoy the park. The encampment focuses on the civilization of southeastern Michigan during the mid-1600s. Many of these volunteers bring their families, set up their lodges and spend the weekend talking and re-enacting life at that time.

All are well-versed on the subject and bring their historical knowledge and heritage to share with others. Many are Native American retirees who share their stories; others are proficient in a specific trade or craft; some are college students with master's degrees in history; others are writers.

Here Ross Grover, a blacksmith at Greenfield Village in Dearborn, assists Barbara Fortin, who is stringing beads onto a story belt. She has quite a collection of these belts. Fortin explains that there is a belt from around 1768 that tells the story of the sale of Hog Island — or as we know it today, Belle Isle.

"These belts are not made to wear," Fortin said, "but merely to tell a story. Many times they were used for trade. Things were not sold, just traded. Everything belongs to Mother Earth."

Everything had a practical use and nothing was wasted. The Earth was their supermarket and it provided them with whatever they needed. For example, a turtle not only served as meat to nourish their bodies, but its shell served as a placard for an "address." It was painted to represent the owner of the dwelling and placed at the entrance of the lodge for immediate identification, according to Two Moon.

"There are two sides to each of us," Two Moon said. "Like the full moon, which represents our positive nature, and no moon, which represents the mysterious side. He is dressed in bright colors like male birds, to draw attention away from and protect the female who is clothed in more neutral colors.

Women were highly regarded because they were the bearer of the children. They exclusively bonded with their children on a daily basis, with no interference from anyone. However, after the age of 4, children were free to move about and learn everything they could from the elders of the village.

"Children are everyone's responsibility," said White Raven. "They are our future, depending on how we treat them now."

One at a time the elders worked with them, each taking a turn at passing knowledge and experience on to them.

For the first year of life the mother carried her baby on the cradle board. The board fit snugly around her shoulders with a chest strap. The baby was only removed from the sack once every 24 hours. It was padded with a soft mixture of fern, cattails and moss which also served as a diaper — all of which were first carefully smoked over a fire to remove any impurities or insects. Mothers went nowhere and did nothing, without their babies.

"Building a lodge was the responsibility of the woman, with the assistance of anyone she asked to help her," White Raven explained. He pointed out how maple saplings were connected to create the shape of the lodge.

Once the saplings were lashed together, the conical dome was covered with cattail reeds. They were woven together to form 8- by 10-foot mats. Canvas was also used. It became a big trade item. Torn sails and discarded cargo covers were plentiful.

Black Fox, one of the elders of the group and a retired builder, also called grandfather, described how the lodges were heated. Bonfires were built in the center of the dome. This 24-inch deep fire pit was also used for cooking. They burned white oak bark and decayed wood to keep down the smoke.

Another, much cleaner heating system was also used. It was built by using a log as a heat duct that ran under the floor from the outside into the pit. Before the sapling frame was set, the log was placed under the area where the floor would be. It was covered with clay, then burned out. A cobblestone floor was then put in place over the "duct" and the procedure was repeated. The stones were covered with clay and fired to harden it. A smokeless environment could be achieved. A fire was built outside the lodge at the base of the duct and a piece of slate in the pit on the other end was used to control the passage of the heat. Not only could they control the heat flow but the stones also radiated the heat and warmed the floor.

Al Collins, the pipe maker, described how pipes were made as visitors gathered around to listen. Collins does extensive research before he recreates a pipe from a picture or an actual historical artifact. The stems of the pipes are made from the sumac tree because it is hard on the outside with a soft pith which makes it easy to drill through. Lilac tree branches can also be used for small pipes.

The peace pipe, Collins explained, was made of catlinite — a red stone named after its founder, George Catlin, a painter. He discovered a stone in Minnesota that had never before been cataloged. People flocked from all over the country for a piece of the stone. No matter who or what they represented, this area was a no-fighting zone. Thus came the sacred name and ingredient for the "peace pipe."

Mark your calendar for next year to take a step back in time. The second weekend after Labor Day, this voluntary historical re-enactment will take place again. It's like living in the mid-1600s — from candle making, to tanning hides, to dancing and tasting an egg cooked in an onion over an open fire.

For more information, Pinson can be reached at (810) 794-9717, or contact the Algonac State Park at (810) 765-5605. White Raven is also available for story telling. Call (517) 732-9679.

Local index compares home prices in southeast Michigan

A 2,200 square foot home in Warren costs $155,080 compared to $343,750 for a similar sized home in Birmingham, according to the results of the "Home Price Comparison Index" prepared by Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate. The annual survey compares the average sale price of a "subject home" in more than 40 municipalities throughout Michigan. A national index prepared by Coldwell Banker Corp., compares home prices throughout the United States and Canada.

"One of the most important things to consider when making the decision to move is how much it will cost to buy a home in another city compared to the home in which you currently live," says Paul Schweitzer, president of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate. "Our 'Home Price Comparison Index' was designed to assist home buyers in evaluating housing costs in different communities in our area."

The "Home Price Comparison Index" was developed by surveying home sales during Jan. 1 - June 30, in cities across southeastern Michigan. The survey gives an index number for each market so homeowners can calculate the cost to replace their home in another location; or in other words, figure the cost of buying your home in another city.

The "subject home," used in the index, is a single family dwelling of approximately 2,200 square feet with four bedrooms, 2.5 baths, a family room (or equivalent) and a two car garage. The home and neighborhood are typical for a corporate middle-management transferee. The median price of homes, in this survey, in the metropolitan Detroit area is $197,491.

To figure the cost of buying your home in a different city, take the market value of your home, multiply it by the index number for your destination city and divide it by the number of the city in which your current home is located.

"This index is important because it gives relocating homeowners an idea of how far their dollars stretch in different cities in Michigan," says Schweitzer. "Making a move, especially to a more expensive area, can have a direct effect on your cost of living and this tool helps home buyers evaluate their options."

For more information, call Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate at (810) 268-1000.

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer has 15 offices and over 500 sales associates throughout the Greater Detroit area.

Household Help

Q. My rural mailbox post was recently knocked out of the ground. It was a 4x4-inch post and not anchored in concrete. I would still like to use the wooden post for my mailbox, but with a concrete base. Can you suggest how to install this?

A. Before reusing that post, check its integrity. If it appears soft and mealy, I'd replace it with a new post.

Begin by going to your local lumber supplier and purchasing the length of 4x4-inch needed. Remove your mailbox and install it on top of your new post. If you have a posthole digger, use it for the hole. If not, a spade shovel will do. An 18-inch deep hole, 10-inches in diameter will suffice for this job. This is necessary for the form needed to secure the post.

You will also have to purchase a cylindrical-shaped concrete form made up of rigid cardboard with a waxed interior. If your lumber dealer does not carry this item, a home decorating center should have it. The length of these forms varies, but your concern is the diameter, which should be 6 inches. You can cut the length down to the size you need with a handsaw. The waxed interior holds the moisture and will give you a strong bond.

Next, insert the cylinder in the hole and lay enough small stones around it to prevent the form from moving around. After you mix the required amount of concrete, you're ready to install the post.

Place the 4x4-inch post securely into the cylinder and secure two diagonal wooden braces adjacent to each other. This is necessary to prevent the post from shifting.

Pour your concrete into the form and use a level for accuracy. The concrete can extend a few inches above ground. You can either trim the top portion of your form or leave it after the concrete fully cures (approximately two days).

Home Tips

SOUND OFF — My pet peeve is the trend toward downsizing of products while keeping the prices the same, thus allowing greedy manufacturers to raise prices without attracting attention.

For example, it is becoming common practice for yogurt to be downsized to 6 ounces instead of 8. Six ounces is not enough for a meal and the 8-ounce size in no longer there. What do they expect consumers to do, eat two 6-ounce cups? It should be the law that the packaging company should have to reflect any downsizing. Matilda F., Shaker Heights, Ohio.

INSURANCE FORMS — I used to fill out insurance form after insurance form with the same information until I got smart and made a master copy with the information that remains the same and copied it several times.

Now the copies save time and a cramped hand. I am no longer searching for insurance numbers, Social Security numbers, etc. Jeanine D., Rochester, N.Y.

FLOUR SPRINKLER — I fill an empty clean plastic spice bottle (with the larger holes in top) with flour.

After I oil-spray my cake pans, I shake and dust the bottoms. No stick and no flour mess. Candice K., San Diego.

NO HIGHCHAIR SLIPS — I borrowed a friend's highchair to use that had no safety straps and my grandson kept slipping lower.

I grabbed my rubber jar opener and placed it under his bottom. No more slips but many smiles. Pam V., Vero Beach, Fla.

NO DUMPED BAGS — I solved the plastic grocery bag dilemma by putting a heavy-duty plastic clothes basket in the trunk of my car. Linda C., Lake Canyon, Texas

WEIGHING IN — I have a digital scale in my bathroom that sits underneath the towel rack. I put a piece of plastic wrap over it to keep it from getting wet. When it gets dirty, I just replace it with a clean piece. It keeps the scale looking new. Helen H., Gaffney, S.C.

A PENNY SAVED — I have two grandchildren and when each was born, I started a savings account in each one's name.

When I go shopping and use coupons, the money I save goes into their accounts for their education. So far, they each have an extra $150. Lena P., LaMarque, Texas

HARD TO REACH — When cleaning between the refrigerator and the cabinet (or any narrow area), wrap paper towels around a yardstick, anchoring them with tape or a rubber band, then saturate the towel with ammonia or soapy water. Insert the covered stick into the narrow area and clean away! Gina R., Astoria, N.Y.

Bulbs

After the first frost, you can dig up dahlia tubers, gladiolus corms, begonia tubers and canna rhizomes.

Let dahlia tubers dry out until the soil falls out from between them, then store them in dry vermiculite or paper bags in a cool place. Check the tubers from time to time, and if they begin to wrinkle, sprinkle a little water on them.

For your gladiolus, simply clean them and store right-side up on open trays. Begonia tubers can be stored in dry peatmoss or vermiculite after cleaning, and cannas should be cleaned and stored upside down in bags when dry. A storage temperature of about 50 degrees Fahrenheit is best for all bulbs.

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"NO LOOKERS"

Have you had your home on the market for a considerable period of time with no lookers? As frustrating as this experience can be, there are always reasons for this unfortunate dilemma and also solutions. Here are the most likely culprits:

LOCAL ECONOMY
If potential buyers are concerned about their financial future, they will probably postpone any aggressive house-hunting activities until they see more positive developments. You can also have a situation in which many people are able to buy with a solid employment future, but put off a home purchase while local business conditions are in a slump.

LOCATION
The location of your property will always affect the amount of traffic to your door. Some areas are more desirable than others and experience more buyer interest. Your house may be in one of these hot areas, but temporarily surrounded by many other properties also currently for sale.

CONDITION
The condition of your dwelling can have a significant effect on the number of showings you may have. The word gets around quickly as to the cleanliness, physical condition and decor of your home. Although many homeowners don't like to spend additional dollars making improvements when planning to sell, some money could be wisely spent in this regard.

PRICE
Invariably, this is usually the greatest obstacle to a sale. A property is worth differing amounts depending upon buyer demand at a given point in time. In order to get more lookers and an eventual offer, you must attune your asking price to the realities of the present market.
