Neighborhood Club Activities

performed will have an opportunity to play on the program.

Classes in kite making are now being held at the Neighborhood Club on Thursday afternoons at four o'clock.
These classes are open to boys under fourteen, and all who are interested are invited.

A basket ball tournament for intermediate boys is in progress at the Neighborhood Club. Much interest is being shown, the attendance growing with each game. Next Saturday at 4 p. m. is the "big game," between the Southeastern Midgets and the Vikings.
Other games scheduled are: Thursday at 7:30 p. m., Monarchs vs. Neighborhood Midgets; Saturday at 3 p. m., Arrows vs. Rangers.

In the first round of games the Southeastern Midgets won from the Neighborhood Midgets; Rangers won from the Monarchs; Vikings won from the Arrows.

The first week in April a kite flying contest will be held at the Neighborhood club. All boys under fifteen are invited to enter. Kites must be home made, and prizes will be awarded for construction, altitude, and originality of design.

Watch for the date!
These are busy days for young knitters at the Neighborhood Club. The girl's class in Handcraft is learning to knit, and is showing great interest and competition, as well as an increase in membership.

The women's class at the Neighborhood Club has taken up a new course in home furnishing. The attendance is growing and the members thoroughly enjoy these practical and profitable lessons.

Cheer Up Verses Random Rhymes

By ROBERT HENRY TODD

(Copyright, 1939, Robert Henry Todd)

WEATHER VAGARIES

If I should heavy wooleens wear,
Expecting weather cold and raw,
Kind Nature would hand out, I swear,
A thaw.

And when I change to lighter garb
This fickle clime of ours to please,
I feel it coming—like a barb—
A thaw.

When'er my summer suit I don
Some comfort from the heat to gain,
You may be sure there will come on The rain.

Then if to waterproof I change,
(Mine seems to weigh half a ton),
In blue unclouded sky will range
The sun.

HALF-A-DOLLAR A WORD

50 cents a word, you bet,
That is what I ought to get
For my verse that runs like this.
Wouldn't I be filled with bliss?
Feet? Get out! It's foot you mean.
You must think I'm awful green,
Never bother 'bout such truck,
This is what I call good luck, 50 cents! Gee, this is great!
Me for work early and late,
Haven't time to see my folk;
If I did I might go broke,
Eat? Well, bring the grub along;
Must get busy on the song,
Swat me if you see me sleep;
This pipe dream's too good to keep.
50 cents a word! Well, say,
In my dreams it looks that way.
Feet again? What's wrong with mine?
My boot's only number nine,
50 cents a word! Gee whizz!
Will I get it? Well, not much!
That's for Teddy, Kip, and such.

LOVE IN A GARDEN

Love in a garden,
Just for two;
That, beloved,
Means me and you.
Love in a cottage;
We twain once more,
I love a cottage,
But — close the door.
Love in a mansion
Would be nice,
But, dear, you'd need me
To scare the mice.

Love in a church—
What splendid fun!
The preacher's there—
We'll soon be one.

AMBITION RE-SET

When we was kids we used to tell
Each other what we'd be;
But, gosh we never struck it right,
Er so it seems to me.

Young Johnny Brown was goin' to be
An engineer on trains;
But when I see him 't'other day,
He was a-diggin' drains.
Bill Perkins said he'd like to sail
Across the briny sea;
But when I last saw Billy, he Was still a-sellin' tea.

An' Freddy Jones was goin' to write
Books everybody'd read;
But Freddy's list across the way
A-keepin' four an' feed.

An' Teddy Smith declared that he Was goin' to lead a band,
But when I met him yestiddy
He was a-haulin' sand.

An' Artie Young was sure he'd be
A pirate, bold an' brave;
But now, he is a preacher-man,
Endeavorin' souls to save.

An' Sammy Small thought he would be
A fireman on the reels;
But Sammy's kept busy now,
At cobblin' worn-out heels.

An' Bertie Simms was sure he'd be A funny circus clown;
Now Bertie spends near all his time
At puttin' concrete down.

An' Jimmy Green was goin' to be A rovin' actor-man.
But here he is, a'settin' here,
A farmer, holy lan'!

An' me, will it was my intent
Wild animals to tame;
But keepin' grocery seems to be
My best towards winnin' fame.

It's funny how these things turn out,
No doubt it's far the best,
I know that I'm quite satisfied,
I reckon so's the rest.

BED TIME

Get your little nightie on,
Time to go to bed
Birdies to their nests have gone
The moon shines overhead.
Say your prayer for mama, dear,
And to your wee cot creep,
Loving angels hover near,
So sleep, my darling, sleep.

THE BOOKMAN

The little old man with the snow-white hair,
And the bright boyish face, quite free
from care;

Dressed up in a faded, but well-brushed coat;
Near boots, and a hat old as Noah's boat;

With large rimmed spectacles perched on his nose,
And wearing the tiniest of black bows,
Is standing now in his usual place,
Where the books are piled with order and grace,

In long shining rows, and tier upon tier.
From the front of the book store to the rear,
He carefully takes a book from a row,
And lovingly thumbs the pages slow;
Meantime with critical, sharp, eager eyes,

He scans each page as though 'twere
a prize,
Along the long lines he silently moves, Replacing and taking books from their grooves;

Happy, contented with life as it is;
Master of Time, no heart-burning is his.
Give him good sight, health, and plenty to read,
And that will suffice for the Bookman's greed.

THE MISER

He sits by the light of his candle,
And lovingly fingers his gold;
Alone in his filth and squalor,
His soul into slavery sold.

The think of the money is music
That sets him a-tingle with glee;
But there in the midst of his gladness,
He quakes apprehensively.

Automobiles Cited as Cause of Delinquency

State Prohibition law took effect, there are more cases of stealing, sex delinquency and delinquency in general than before, it was announced.

Others factors listed as contributing to juvenile delinquency, with the number of educators who ranked them among the five most deleterious influences upon youth, were: Movies, 82;
public dance halls, 74; "confession" magazines, 54; liquor, 48; women's dress, 22; modern books, 16; drugs, 9, and extracurricular activity, 3.

Unsatisfactory home conditions, although not listed among the factors suggested on the questionnaire sent the educators, was written in as one of the five leading factors by 15 schoolmen.

Other contributory causes written in were lack of parental control, unsupervised and unwise use of leisure, cigarets, non-attendance at church, and lack of law enforcement.

Sixteen superintendents, 27 principals and assistant principals, 27 counselors and house principals, and 28 attendance officers were polled in the survey, which was undertaken at the request of the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement.

Factors Listed

That prohibition is only one of many factors which have been significant in determining the attitude of youth toward law observance and enforcement is a conclusion drawn from answers to the survey.

The great extension in use of the automobile, in attendance at movies, in circulation of the tabloid newspaper and the trashy magazine, in frequency of divorce — these and other factors have contributed likewise, they concluded.

The educators were also polled on their opinions concerning respect for law on the part of students of today as compared with those in Michigan schools in 1917. The following conclusions were drawn from their replies:

"High school students have less respect now than before 1917 for external authority. This is evident as regards respect for law in general, and for their parents, but does not seem to be true as regards respect for teachers and for the rules of the school.

"High school students have much more ability in self-direction and self-control now than before 1917. They have more civic, social and more individual responsibility, have more initiative, show more good sportsmanship at games, conduct themselves better at social gatherings, are more interested in school, and are more loyal to their own school."

be converted into hospitals and schools, and our jails into churches; that a rebirth of our people would result and that crime and evil doings among us would be reduced to practically a negligible quantity.

Hoover Is Quoted

"When, however, President Hoover came, nine days later, to his inauguration day, he felt compelled to say in his inaugural address:

"Recently, about one year later, in the year 10 of prohibition, the report of that commission, of which Mr.
Wickersham is chairman, was sent to congress with the approval of its recommendations by the president. The optimistic hopes of the people that we would be shown a way out of the mire of prohibition and the train of evils and difficulties following in its wake, were dashed to the ground.

"Let me illustrate. No man can successfully taint the integrity of Mr.
James M. Beck, one of our very outstanding constitutional lawyers, formerly for several years assistant attorney general and solicitor general, and now a member of congress from Pennsylvania.

"Mr. Beck defends trial by jury. It does seem strange that any man should have to defend trial by jury in the year 1930. Mr. Beck said, in connection with the bill of rights and trial by jury:

Refers to Beck
"I did not mean that all drays are fanatics. Many estimable men and women sincerely believe in prohibition, and it is a question about which men of equal wisdom and candor can differ. I was referring to that class of prohibitionists who should tear up the rest of the constitution to preserve the eightteenth amendment. One evidence of this is the disposition to do away with trial by jury and to penalize any appeal to this ancient right of the English speaking race.

"In a criminal case, where the liberty of the citizen is at stake, a jury trial has always been the bulwark of an unhappy individual who finds that the state, with all its resources, is attempting to end his liberty by imprisonment. There, I believe in the constitutional right of trial by jury, for apart from the fact that a jury has often a very shrewd judgment as to the credibility of witnesses, it is often the last bulwark of defense for an individual as against an intolerant prosecutor who has behind him all the resources of the state.

"It is true that the proposed section of the Wickersham report pretends to give a right to a jury trial, but it does so under conditions that will deter the prisoner from invoking the right."

"Please picture in your minds the so-called 'relief' which the Wickersham plan is intended to bring to the people and the courts. With "rather more than one-half of the total arrests" now being for prohibition offenses and which now clog our courts, it is planned to do away with trial by jury so that any number of victims of the prohibition laws can be speedily passed through the court procedure without jury trial. The number of arrests last year is given in the report as 'upwards of 80,000.'

"Item number 5 in the list of Mr.

Wickersham's recommendations to better conditions is:
"Expansion of federal prisons and reorganization of parole and other practices."

"This is called relief and betterment of conditions.

"Is it any wonder that a wave of protest from end to end of the country has arisen? More arrests, trial by jury abandoned, more prisoners and expansion of federal prison facilities.
"A house divided against itself cannot stand."

Job Printing

To us Printing is more than just putting words into type.
It is the creation of a work of art, be it a simple little announcement or an elaborate booklet. Hence we take all the pride of an artist in his craft, in each job; and that is the secret of the superlative quality of the Grosse Pointe

$395,000 Bond Issue for Junior High Sites Up

(Continued from Page One) school board to make this momentous decision of the proposition in view of Berns' absence. It is interesting to note that at the two preceding meetings, no action, discussion or report of the Junior High School program was taken or made and thus no indication that the proposition would be brought up. In the decision to place the bond issue at the appraisal figures, is seen the deduction that the School Board is anticipating resorting to condemnation proceedings to acquire the Junior High school sites. This then apparently establishes the fact that Fred Sutter, president of the School Board, and Trustee John Watkins, who at various times had composed committees to negotiate with owners of the proposed sites for the purpose of purchasing same for the school Board had been unable to come to terms with the property owners. The resolution placing the bond issue before the electors at the annual school district meeting was made by Charles Parcels, secretary of the Board. Fred Sutter declined to discuss the School Board's decision to place the bond issue at the annual meeting when an interview was sought by the REVIEW. Asked why the Junior High school site issue had been practically brought out of a "clear sky" and a definite course of action taken under such circumstances, namely, with Trustee Berns not being present, and after the proposition has been a dead issue for several meetings, Sutter replied that he did not think there was anything "strange" in the procedure. He then refused to say anything further, charging that the REVIEW is "subsidized" and not given to "printing the facts." He later retracted the assertion that it was "subsidized," qualifying this statement by saying that certain parties are "paying for space" in the paper to have the Junior High School issue treated in a critical and prejudicial manner. All the REVIEW has to say to Mr. Sutter and others who may possibly have the same opinion that this paper is in no way a propaganda sheet, but is an independent, non-political gazetteer trying in its humble way to inform the people of this district in a fair and impartial manner the items of news that may be of interest to the several Grosse Pointe communities.

Goldfish Care
Goldfish should be fed greens, quite as much as birds. Any reputable store that carries fish food has a varied supply and a sprig or two can be purchased for next to nothing.

Incumbent Officials of 4 Villages Reelected

(Continued from Page One) Pointe Farms and Lochmoor elections were also held, with the majority of incumbents returning to office, and in several cases there being no contest. Grosse Pointe officers were reelected for one year terms as follows: Richard P. Connor, President; Norbert P. Neff, clerk; Charles A. Poupart, treasurer; and Neil Blondell, assessor. The following members of the board of trustees were reelected for two years: Chester F. Carpenter, D. M. Ferry Jr., William Fisher.

Alonzo R. Backman defeated Clarence P. Semon in the race for village assessor at Grosse Pointe Farms, receiving only five more votes than the defeated candidate. Kenneth L. Moore, president, John R. Kerby, clerk, and Harry A. Furton, treasurer, were reelected without opposition, while Herman Dondero, James Rasmussen and William J. Mason were elected to the board of trustees, for two years. Francis J. Hoch was chosen to serve for one year on the board.

Three bond issues, providing for the improvement of Lake Shore road, Kercheval avenue, and the village water works, were all easily carried. Although the voters of Lochmoor defeated a proposed $40,000 bond issue for a municipal building, three amendments to the village charter were carried in the election there Monday. James W. Carter was elected president without opposition, receiving 174 votes, while three commissioners were elected out of six candidates.

The bond issue was carried by a plurality, 130 votes being cast in favor, to 105 votes against, but a 60 per cent majority was necessary to place the issue into effect. The first amendment, which carried by a vote of 139 yes to 85 no, provided for the borrowing of money to cover deficiencies caused by delinquent assessments. The money will be paid back at the time of the payment of the delinquency.

Spreading the time for payment for public improvements, such as paving, sewers, etc., over a period of 10 to 15 years, rather than five years, was the provision contained in the second amendment, which carried by a vote of 161 to 69.

The last charter amendment, also pertaining to special assessments, provided the treasurer with right to renew warrants to collect delinquencies on the tax rolls, and also lowered the time in which non-paid taxes may be placed upon the general tax roll, as special assessments, from two years to one year. The amendment carried by a majority of 144 to 80.

The candidates for commissioner, the three receiving the highest number of votes being elected, were as follows: Edward Vanderbush, 168 votes; Arthur J. Post, 143 votes; George A. Roth, 93 votes; Clyde Goodman, 83 votes; Sydney J. Bockstanz, 78 votes, and Walter B. Conrad, 40.

Marion Davies at Adams Theater

King Vidor, who has been called the Midas of the screen, inasmuch as whatever he touches during the filming of a production turns to box-office gold, directed Marion Davies in her new comedy, "Not So Dumb," which opens Friday at the Adams theater. The new talking picture is based upon the Broadway stage hit, "Dulcy," written by George S. Kaufman and March Connelly, in which Lynn Fontaine created the title characterization and which Constance Talmadge later portrayed on the silent screen. In adapting the play for the talkies, Wanda Tuchock, scenarist, and Edwin Justus Mayer, who prepared the dialogue, made very few alterations, preserving the flavor of the original plot.

Miss Davies is seen to advantage in demonstrating her rare comedy talents. As the beautiful-but-dumb fiancée of a young artificial jewelry merchant, she continually manages to mess up his business affairs by prying and meddling. Her scene as hostess at bridge is perhaps the most uproarious Miss Davies ever enacted.

Press Agents Unknown to Medieval Writers

"A striking feature of medieval literature is its general anonymity," writes W. H. Schoffeld in "English Literature from the Norman Conquest to Chaucer." Of the many who wrote the names of but few are recorded, and only the most meager details. Nor is this a simple accident. Formerly, the importance attached to an author's personality was far less than now. In case either of a narrative or a didactic work, it was the substance above all that attracted attention. Originality of matter was deplored as a fault.

"Independence of treatment meant to our forefathers contempt of authority, a heinous offense in their eyes. It was as unsafe for a storyteller to depart from the well-marked lines of inherited tradition as for him to disregard orthodox beliefs. And even the greatest dared not present new views without at least claiming august support. A prudent author sought a powerful patron in order to insure success, or fathered his inventions on some ancient worthy who could not deny them. But the last thing he would have deemed wise would have been to copyright them as his own."

Summer When Old Sol Refused to Function

From various records, including the famous diary of Charles Pierce, ice and snow appear to have been mighty occurrences during the month of June, 1816. July, whose average temperature is said to have been less than 70 degrees, also experienced ice and frost. The mean temperature for the month of August dropped still lower than that of July, as much as an inch of ice forming on ponds during the colder nights, according to old chronicles. Six inches of snow had fallen on the eighth day of June, and in some parts of New England, it is said, the ground remained white with snow throughout the entire summer. Crops were generally frozen out and ruined, although one story relates that the more resourceful farmers managed to save a little corn by keeping fires burning in their fields at night.—Kansas City Star.

A Love-Tree Lived On

Plymouth (Mass.) has a big linden tree which has an interesting history, recalls an article in the Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise, quoting the late William R. Davis, who spent his boyhood in Plymouth: "The tree was planted by a youthful couple as a memorial to their engagement, but not long afterwards, in 1809, the engagement was broken and the memorial was no longer prized by the girl, in whose garden it had been planted. She pulled it up one day and threw it into the street. My father picked it up and planted it where it now stands. He lived in the house known as the Plymouth Rock house, where he died in 1822. Under his careful nursing the tree survived and has grown into a beautiful tree."

Royalty and Whiskers

Kings in the early and romantic days of France, to ratify a momentous document, stuck in the seal three hairs from the royal beard. There is in existence a charter dated 1121, in which declaration is made that it is so sealed. In Spain the beard prevailed until the time of Philip V, who being himself beardless set the style for smooth faces; and the people attested their grief in the saying, "Since we have lost our beards we have lost our souls." The pictures of King Henry VIII of England show us a royal visage; but without his marvelous whiskers he would be but a fat man.

Sea Lion Slaughter

The sea lion could hold his own against his natural enemies, but his real troubles began when man discovered that he was insulated with several inches of oil-bearing blubber and that his hide made good leather. Nearly 200 years ago the slaughter began on the West coast, says Nature Magazine. Countless thousands of sea lions died for the enrichment of the oil hunters, until by the beginning of this century only a remnant of the vast herds which once roared and fought on their off-shore rookeries is left to carry on the species.

Queer Coast Birds

On the Lincolnshire (England) flocks of small birds with ash-gray plumage, white breasts and long bills are to be seen. They are the Arctic migrants known as knots, so called, it is believed, on account of the queer twisted posture they adopt when resting on the sands or mud flats. According to tradition, knots were the favorite birds of King Canute, and some people consider that it is from him that their name is derived. When roasted, a gourmet states, they are a delicacy fit for any table.

Tough on Fat Men

In New York the seating accommodations are limited to 20 inches on the "L" and 18 inches in the subway. This calls to mind the late Phillips Brooks, who was said to be the poltest man in Boston because when he gave up his seat in the street car two women could sit down, and Mr. Taft, who was disappointed once when he found that the two seats he had reserved for comfort at a baseball game were on different sides of the aisle.—Boston Globe.

Faith Lutheran Church EAST JEFFERSON AT PHILIP

"The Great Baptism of God" is the subject of the sermon which the pastor, Rev. R. D. Linhart will preach Sunday morning at Faith Lutheran Church. This sermon is the sixth of a series on the "Way of Salvation" or "The Nine Great Steps to Heaven." Supplementing these sermons are the Monday night lectures on "What Lutherans Believe" which prepare for membership in the church. The public is invited to these sermons and lectures.

A large crowd is expected to worship on Wednesday night at the third mid-week Lenten service. The main auditorium was filled to capacity at the last two Lenten services. Special music based on the same texts as the sermons will be given by the Junior and Senior vested choirs. The assistant pastor, Rev. Theo. Fricke, is preaching the Lenten sermons on "The Seven Last Words From The Cross."

The largest attendance in the history of Faith Lutheran Sunday School went on record last Sunday when the auditorium was crowded with 600 members present of the 700 enrolled. The children of the Sunday School are enthusiastically participating in an "Airplane Flight Contest," which is a campaign for new members and perfect attendance. The school has added one hundred new members during the last two Sundays. Every child in the community is welcome to visit or become a member of this Sunday School.

(Continued from Page One) bon Meat Market, it was pointed out. The stamps are, in reality, a savings given customers by progressive merchants, like the Blue Ribbon Meat Market, who appreciate a purchaser's cash trade and as a reward for continued patronage. The stamps can be collected from other merchants in various lines of business in the vicinity of the Blue Ribbon Meat Market such as dry goods, shoe and hardware stores, thus enabling one to fill a stamp book in a considerable short time. All stamps can be placed in the same book which are worth $2 in trade at any store in any line of business giving the stamps. Also a filled book of Brown Trading Stamps may be exchanged for a valuable premium or $2 cash at the offices of the National Retailers Stamp Company, 219 East Grand River avenue. The Blue Ribbon Meat Market is holding a special sale and demonstration of Beechnut Products. A Beechnut representative will be in attendance all day Saturday. See Blue Ribbon Meat Market advertisement on page Four.
