WINTERHALTER & GLASER

Accountants and Auditors LINCOLN BUILDING, DETROIT

July 21, 1930

To The President and Members of the Board of Education, Rural Agricultural School Dist. No. 1

Pursuant to our engagement, we have made an examination of the books, records and other data of your School District and here-with present our findings in the following manner:

- Exhibit "A"—Consolidated Balance Sheet. Exhibit "B"—Balance Sheet, General Funds. Exhibit "C"—Balance Sheet, Capital Funds.

The above mentioned Exhibits and Schedules in our opinion reflect the true financial condition of your School District as at June 30, 1930 and the financial transactions for the period July 1, 1929 to June 30, 1930.

During the progress of this examination we verified the Income from the various sources scrutinized the returned bank checks and warrants supporting same and checked the postings from the Journals to the General Ledger and found them as stated in this report.

Your attention is directed to Certificate of Deposit No. 774 issued to the Rural Agricultural School District No. 1 and deposited for safekeeping with the Grosse Pointe Savings Bank, as evidenced by a receipt on file in your office. This certificate in amount of $3500.00 is held pending the outcome of certain litigation regarding the payment of taxes on property owned by your School District but not used for school purposes.

The schedule of appropriations and expenditures we believe is worthy of careful study and will form a splendid basis when the budget for the coming school year is under discussion.

It is impossible to allocate the sums received on account of delinquent taxes to the proper year from your records and files. It is suggested that this should be done so that your Board may know the exact amount of delinquent taxes due the District and for what years.

In conclusion we wish to extend our thanks to the members of your office force with whom we came in contact for their helpful co-operation and courtesies extended during the progress of this examination.

Respectfully submitted, WINTERHALTER & GLASER.

"One Romantic Night" at Aloma Sun, Mon.

Not since the memorable days of ten years or more ago, when an all-star cast was that and nothing less, has a more distinguished group of players appeared with a star than the one which supports Lillian Gish in United Artists' all-dialogue picture, "One Romantic Night," playing at the Aloma Theater, Sunday and Monday, August 3 and 4. Rod La Rocque, Conrad Nagel, Marie Dressler and O. P. Heggie are some of the noted players assisting Miss Gish in bringing to the dialogue screen the romantic flavor, the sophisticated comedy and the tense moments of drama which characterized the original play by Ferenc Molnar.

This notable cast was brought together by John W. Considine, Jr., executive head of production at the United Artists studios, Hollywood, who considered the characters in "One Romantic Night" of such individual dramatic importance that only stars could successfully portray them.

It is unusual in this day of the heavily exploited star for a great motion picture player to surround herself with rivals whose talents are almost as universally recognized as her own. Miss Gish, however, is not afraid that her own dramatic efforts will be dimmed by a competent cast of supporting players.

The innocent, flower-like roles in which she first established her name with D. W. Griffith are past. Henceforth the star of "The Birth of a Nation," "Broken Blossoms" and "Way Down East" will impersonate the more humanized girl of today.

"One Romantic Night" was directed by Paul L. Stein.

Constance Bennett on State Screen

Spies involved intrigue, mystifying actions of international secret service far from the line of battle, danger lurking with every move, crossing and double crossing where disclosure means certain death and a great love that battles against great odds "Three Faces East," the powerful mystery drama of the World War, which opened Wednesday at the State theater.

The beauty and charm of Miss Bennett who is seen as a spy disguised as a war nurse who operates under cover in both the English and German secret service are surpassed only by the excellence of her acting.

Eric von Ströheim is tremendous as the sinister butler, Valdar, also engaged in spy work for two nations.

Community Chests Denver was the first city in the United States to have a community chest for charity. That city instituted a community chest in 1888. Cleveland next adopted the plan in 1913. Since the World War many cities have adopted this plan for raising funds for charities.

Scottish Market Cross Center of Civic Activity

It was practically certain that in Scotland the market cross practice began with William the Lion—A. D. 1143-1214. The symbol set up was always in one form or another the symbol of the Cross, signifying, first, that this spot was the official center of the civic life of the community, and secondly (implying at least), that the ideals symbolized in the market cross were to be over all the ordinary affairs of life, even the practice of buying and selling in the market place.

That was the origin of market crosses in Scotland. They were called crosses because they were crosses, every one of them, and the old names remained, as names did, long after the crosses had disappeared from the structures.

For one regretted to say that although an actual cross was still to be found on certain of our market crosses in Scotland, there was not a single cross, so far as he had been able to find out where the cross had come down from the Reformation, in 1560. Wherever one found an actual cross on a market cross in Scotland either the whole structure was later than the Reformation or the cross had been put on as the result of a restoration.—Montreal Family Herald.

Idea of Metric System Originated in France

The theory of the metric system is that a meter is one ten-millionth part of the distance from the pole to the equator, which is a quadrant, or one quarter of the earth's circumference. The idea of a scientific standard of measures had been suggested as early as the Seventeenth century, particularly by the French astronomer, Jean Picard, who lived from 1620 to 1682. The suggestion took practical shape in 1790, when the national assembly of France appointed a committee to consider the question. The committee reported in favor of the standard being the one ten-millionth part of a quadrant of the earth's circumference. A commission was then appointed to measure the quadrant. In 1793 a report on the length of the meter was made. In the same year the assembly passed a law bringing in the new system of measures, the use of which became compulsory throughout France in 1801. Subsequent measurements of the quadrant proved that the meter had been made too small, so that it is now defined as the length of a certain bar of iridium-platinum which is preserved in the bureau des archives in Paris.

Our Debt to the Indian

People fail to realize how great an influence the red men have had on our present thought, religion, and language. Every town, county, and state is filled with Indian names. Our school books are full of Indian proverbs and our very characters are modeled and often molded by our contact with the red men of the wilderness. There is scarcely a doubt that the dignity, reserve, and stately mien for which George Washington was famous were derived from his experience and training in the councils of the Indians. Every cigarette smoker of today is but making a white man's vice of a religious ceremony of the red men. Snowshoes, birch-bark canoes from which our canvas ones are modeled, the game of lacrosse, and the sign language, are examples of the inventions of our Indians.—Dan Beard in Boys' Life.

Cowboys' Gorgeous Attire

The Hungarian cowboy presents an appearance entirely unlike the typical cowboy of the American continent. He wears laces and embroidery and a skirt rich with decorations. In his hat he has a bright feather. His coat or jacket is filled with gay embroidery and has large flowing sleeves of lace. The skirt reaches to his ankles and is likewise richly worked in fanciful design. Below it, however, he wears trousers and shoes of sturdy manufacture. This garb is a traditional one which has been worn for centuries and the men are very proud of their appearance. This is their holiday dress and is modified to a considerable extent for everyday purposes.

"Muzuzah's" Significance

A muzuzah is a Jewish word meaning literally "door-post" and the Jewish Encyclopedia gives a complete account of its origin and significance. It is the name given to a rectangular piece of parchment inscribed with certain prescribed passages from the Book of Deuteronomy. This is then rolled up and inserted in a metal or wooden case or tube and affixed to the upper part of the right-hand doorpost. The pious Jew touches and kisses the muzuzah as he passes through the doorway. According to one of our readers, the word is sometimes used as a slang word for "kiss," its meaning arising out of the Jewish custom.—Detroit News.

Misled on Animals

A man of thirty had seen his first circus. A neighbor boy of fourteen had never enjoyed that experience and it was quite proper, therefore, for the man to give him a vivid description.

He started off something after this fashion: "You first get your tickets, then you go down an aisle made of ropes and give your ticket to a man there. Next is a tent with the animals, cantaloupes and everything, and then you go into the big tent where the clowns are."

All the Difference The difference between stumbling-block and stepping-stones is in the way you use them.
