LAKE SHORE RESIDENT IN BOAT CRASH ON DETROIT RIVER; BELIEVE ONE DROWNED: FOUR OTHERS SAVED *

When a speedboat, owned by Joseph B. Lodge, of 60 Lake Shore road, a nephew of former Mayor Lodge, crashed into a cabin cruiser on the Detroit river, Monday, one man was believed to have drowned and four others rescued after floundering in the water about 15 minutes. Both boats sank almost immediately after the collision. L. B. Parmerlee, superintendent of the boat division of the Dwight Lumber Company, is the man thought to have drowned.

Lodge, who is vice president and general manager of the Dwight Lumber Couple Park Car in Company, was driving up stream about 25 miles an hour, he told assistant posecutor, Donald F. Welday, at police headquarters after the crash, and he didn't see the cruiser until it was about 50 feet away. Judge Labelle fined them $50 or 30 days in jail. Batie paid the fine but Armstrong elected the jail term. They told the court they were in the junk

The unanswerable logic of young children frequently confounds the best meant efforts of grownups. This story concerns a small boy who had been particularly naughty all day long and had almost worn out his mother's patience. At bedtime his mother took him severely to task, and when she thought him sufficiently chastened, she said: "Now, Harry, tell me! What must we do before our sins can be forgiven?" "Sin," said Harry.

When one thinks of a famous church

Unique Church Used by Benedictines as Shrine

one naturally thinks of one great in age, great in architecture or great in its historic associations. One finds none of these characteristics in the little church on the Kentucky side of the Ohio river, and so, perhaps, one can hardly refer to it in the same manner one refers to Westminster, Colgate, Notre Dame or Santa Sophia. It may not be a famous church, but it is at least unique, for it is the smallest church in the world, capable of accommodating but three or four worshipers, says the Cincinnati Enguirer. The small brick structure was built in 1890 by some brothers of the Benedictine order, who used it as a shrine during the years they were engaged there in the making of sacramental wine. During the years of its use it contained an altar, the usual church candles, a crucifix and pews for the accommodation of three persons. But it is no longer used as a church, though still owned by St. Joseph's parish of Covington. The in-

Campaign for Posts in the Legislature

Three residents of the Grosse Pointe communities are among the 113 candidates for the Republican nomination for Representative of the First District in the State legislature at the primaries, September 9. They are Joseph A. Baker, of 1430 Bishop road, Alexander J. Polk, 1220 Whittier road, and William F. Dorn, 403 St. Clair avenue.

Seventeen of the 113 candidates are to be nominated.

Baker, who has been in the building and insurance business in this district, early this week announced himself in favor of a number of some of the most important bills which will come up in the fall session of the legislature. Among these he cited the Old Age Pensions, County Home rule, Civil Service GROSSES POINTE PLAYGROUND for State and County offices, an increase in the Workmen's Compensation awards, Uniform Traffic laws, and more rigi. Child Labor laws.

He stated he is against Prison Labor competition.

In a preliminary announcement this week, Dorn, an attorney, cited reapportionment of congressional and state legislative districts as one of the leading issues in his campaign platform. No announcement as yet has been received from Mr. Polk.

Mather Continues to Sell Chevrolets at New Dealer on Mack

Charles E. Mather, 438 St. Clair avenue, Grosse Pointe Village, known to his many friends and customers as the local Chevrolet man, wishes to correct a rumor that he has discontinued selling the popular Chevrolet car. Mr. Mather has merely changed to another dealer, the Tucker-Jordan Chevrolet Company, Inc., located at the corner of Mack and Lakewood avenues. The Tucker-Jordan is a company of long standing and has maintained a reputation of customer satisfaction, Mr. Mather has been selling Chevrolet automobiles for the past five years and his friends will remember his last year success in making the One Hundred Car Club, a coveted honor among Chevrolet salesmen. We hope the foregoing rectifies the contrary rumors and wish Mr. Mather the best of success.

World's Famous Glaciers Lessening in Dimension

A glacier is, broadly speaking, an accumulation of ice, of sufficient size and weight to flow down from an elevation. It is a river flowing from a lake, only the lake is of snow and the river of ice. The thickness of the der favorable conditions, as much as 1,000 feet.

Frequently glaciers extend far below the snow line of the region, because their great masses of ice are so thick that they are not entirely melted during the warm summer months. The functions of a river and a glacier are identical—the drainage of a certain district or basin. Exactly how a glacier moves has not been satisfactorily explained, but that it does move has been proved by hundreds of observations and calculations. More than that, the stream at the center of a glacier moves much faster than at the sides

One of the most interesting characteristics of glaciers is the power to transport rocks and other heavy material over great distances. These are "moraines." The glaciers of the Rockies, like those of other countries, now are almost all "in retreat," either because the climate is growing warmer or because the snowfall is lessening.

Small Wonder Criminals

Feared Being "Jugged" Many a criminal has lamented his incarceration in "the jug"-to adopt common expression in thieves' parlance. In the Middle ages plenty of miscreants were placed in the jugor joug-literally; and up and down the country there still remain a few specimens of the iron neck-halters which derived their name from the Latin Jugum.

In Bridlington Priory church, a place where at every turn imagination is incited to bridge the centuries, a wellpreserved example of a joug may be seen in the west porch. It is shackled to the wall by long links, and is fitted with a hinge and padlock.

Pity the poor wretch doomed to be locked by the neck in the clumsy contrivance! True, there are no spikes or devices for torture incorporated in the joug. The punishment of being 'jugged" would be mental rather than physical. The prisoner would be the helpless victim of every passing body's ridicule, and doubtless more than a few well-ripened eggs and similar missiles have splashed against the weathered wall from which hangs the unpleasant instrument. - Yorkshire (England) Post.

Finding One's True Self

Life is an opportunity for making of a soul, and in most of us it is still in the making; a patch work, unfinished. There are so many selves, each struggling for mastery, that it is not easy to detect the elusive, ultimate self. Which "me" is my real "me"? There are a lot of them, the ragged hobo out at the elbow, the dandy in fine dress and gold cane, the toady, the pretender, the penitent, the poet, the sceptic, the donkey who always wants his own way; and, at times, a glimpse of another fellow, who seeks to rule the whole ungodly crew. Who is he? What authority has he? Who gave him the job? Will he get it done, making the motley array of slovens, boasters, scullions, prophets, and saints of divers orders, at last obey?-Joseph Fort Newton in the Churchman.

Choosing a Wife

A Swiss savant states that if a man wishes to learn the character of the girl he wants to marry he should watch her peeling, cleaning and cooking potatoes. If she peels the potato, cutting thick rinds, she is extravagant. If she leaves the eyes she is lazy. If she uses a great deal of fat while cooking the vegetable, she is greedy, and if she allows it to burn she is negligent. On the other hand, the savant declares, if the girl avoids these revealing pitfalls, the man should marry her whether she is rich or poor, ugly or pretty, for she will prove a good friend and wife and bring him prosperity and happiness.

Famous Liberty Statue The Statue of Liberty was 12 years in preparation in France and was mounted and exhibited in Paris in October of 1881. The American pedestal was commenced in 1883 and was not completed until 1886. The statue itself was of hammered copper sheets and weighed 450,000 pounds. It was mounted on an iron framework covered with wood and so arranged that it could be taken down and shipped in sections. It was taken down and was

Builders of Casa Grande

People of Pueblo Type? Casa Grande is a ruined structure of prehistoric origin in the valley of the Gila river near Florence, Ariz. It may have been seen by white men connected with the Coronado expedition 1540; it was certainly discovered by Padre Kino in 1694, and was revisited by him in 1697. In 1889 congress provided for the protection of the ruln as a monument of antiquity, and in 1892 the structure and the adjacent grounds were set apart as a public reservation in care of a custodian. It is of caion or pise construction, that is, adobe or mud, molded in place, in walls three to five feet thick at the ground, thinning upward. The surfaces were plastered with a slip of adobe clay. There are five rooms in the ground plan; portions of three stories remain, and there may have been a fourth in part of the structure. Recent exploration has shown that the main structure described above is only a small part of the ruin. The buildings are assembled in great walled rectangles called compounds, of which four exist at this ruin. The Casa Grande ruin is almost in a class by itself, but in pottery, etc., it shows very strong affiliations with the Pueblo ruins, of which it may perhaps be considered a frontier example. It may have been built by the ancestors of the modern Pima who inhabit the country today, but it seems more likely that its builders were other people of a more distinct Pueblo

Rose Always Figures in

Ceremonies and Feasts In ancient times as now the rose was the adornment chosen for great occasions, religious, secular or simple and social. When Cleopatra gave her great banquet for Mark Antony roses were spread on the floors three feet thick. The most pretentious banquet the Roman Nero gave was a feast of roses, though the flowers had to be sent from Egypt in winter. On the Campagna the Roman people celebrated a rose festival; in the Middle ages there was observed in Byzantium the "Dies Rosarium," and at Epirus was kept another rose festival called "Rozalia." In times all but forgotten the "Days of the Violets" were observed to honor spring, but the "Days of Roses," held in the month of June, bespoke the coming of sum-

Pedant Ridiculed

Sir James Mackintosh (1765-1832), eminent statesman and historian, had such a pedantic outlook on things that Sydney Smith (1771-1845), contemporary divine and wit, said that a Mackintosh dissertation on pepper would probably run after this fashion: "Pepper may philosophically be described as a dusty and highly pulverized seed of an oriental fruit, an article rather of condiment than diet, which, dispersed lightly over the surface of food, with no other rule than the caprice of the consumer, communicates pleasure rather than affords nutrition, and by adding a tropical flavor to the gross and succulent viands of the North, approximates the different regions of the earth, explains the objects of commerce, and justifies the industry of man."-Exchange.

Origin of Handelasp

"How do you do?" you say when you meet a friend, and instinctively you shake hands with him or her. But why do you do it? Shaking hands is such a common form of greeting that we rarely take the trouble to consider why it is so. In the warlike times of centuries ago, when it was the custom to be armed, men took the simple precaution of grasping each other's right hand when they met, so that if one of them should prove hostile he could not seize his sword or dagger. From the ancient habit of grasping the weapon hand grew up our modern custom by offering our right hands to be clasped by friends or acquant-

Real Cause of Breakdown

A Swedish psychologist says that all nervous breakdowns, all the neuroses, in fact, are caused by laziness. Men work hard at their businesses, undergo much strain and anxiety, and finally break down. "Overwork" is the verdict af the neighbors, and of the old-fashioned doctor. But this psychologist denies that. He says that if a man thoroughly enjoys his work, he never has a nervous breakdown. It's working when you want to be doing something else that makes the mischief. There is a conflict of desires there, and a sustained confirt inevitably results in a neurosis.

English Poet Laureates

Poet laureates of England have been a long-lived race. Doctor Bridges -he was a physician, too-was eightyfive when he passed on. The ages of his three immediate predecessors in the office-Alfred Austin, Tennyson and Wordsworth-averaged eighty. Among the distinguished laureates of an earlier period, Ben Jonson lived to be sixty-three and Dryden to be sixtynine. But the record among laureates is held by the actor-manager Colley Cibber, who died in 1757 at the age of eighty-seven. As a poet Colley Cibber was terrible and King Edward had no great opinion of the poetry of Alfred Austin, poet laureate at the time he ascended the throne. He was not alone in that "I always thought that Mr. Austin's appointment was not a good one." he wrote to Lord Salisbury, then prime minister, "but as long as he gets no pay it would, I think, be best to renew the appointment in his favor."

Long Lived but Prosy

A few months later King Edward sent to Salisbury some verses and pointedly called his attention to the "trash which the poet laureate writes" -the letter is quoted in Sir Sidney Lee's "Life of Edward."

Possibilities of Paper

Showers Pointed Out It was the skyscraper that evolved the idea of showers of bits of paper to welcome distinguished guests in triumphant procession in the street below. Who threw the first handful? He was a pioneer in that kind of pageantry; and the fluttering particles confer an air so festal that nothing else can equal it.

In earlier eras flowers may have been thus cast from windows and balconies, but never in the prodigious volume with which the paper cascades descend; nor from the impressive height. We have often thought that this new feature of enthusiastic salutation to heroes and joy-inspiring guests should be developed and elaborated.

If we may not bestow rose-leaves on the heads of the distinguished, tissue paper simulation of rose-leaves -perhaps somewhat larger for festive effect-in crimson, pink and yellow might be thickly sifted through the air; or still more gorgeous, mingled with stars of silver and gold paper. We don't half realize the possibilities of this showy and enlivening innovation-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"There's a good pair of boots," said the latter, as they stood looking in the window of a boot and shoe shop. "I'll get those for little Jamesy."

Pat looked at the articles indicated and a murmur of surprise left his lips as he saw the price and the notice, "Last Seven Days" displayed on a card above them.

"But, surely, Martha," he said, "you don't want to buy those things." "Why not, Pat?" asked his wife wonderingly.

"Begorrah," gasped her husband, "but you want them to last longer than a week."--London Answers.

New Brunswick Legend

New Brunswick, largest of Canada's maritime provinces, was first settled by the French and its history is filled with romance. New Brunswick was part of Evangeline's land and in the early days of strife sheltered Evangeline's friends in its forests. From the Indians of the province come interesting lengends of the country and of their hero, Gluskap. Once upon a time the beaver was a huge beast and threatened man's existence. Then came Gluskap in his canoe, which was an island, and hunted the wicked beaver and shattered the dams which he had built to flood the country. So they made him chief of all the tribes.

An Interruption A ludicrous incident occurred during a parley between high officers of the British and Turkish armies, says Compton Mackenzie in "Gallipoli Memories." The discussion—it concerned a truce of eight hours for the Turks to bury their dead-took place in a tent on the beach at Anzac. Suddenly the flap of the tent was lifted at the back and a New Zealander or Australian batman put his head through to call out in a voice of indignant contempt:

"Heh! Have any of you blighters pinched my kettle?"

Bravest Hearts Stirred

When Lions Give Voice No more appalling sound is known on our living earth, says American Forest, than the roaring chant of a troop of lions. It reaches camp as our "black boys" are feasting by the fire, singing or babbling like children under the blazing stars. Camp galety ceases as though a meteor had fallen, and terror takes the place of mirth.

There are lions abroad tonight, ruthless as death; frigid in purpose, daring and strong. Another high-pitched boom-raucous and shattering as from some epic brazen trumpet, dwindling to a series of hoarse, detonating grunts. Perhaps a dozen full-grown lions are on their way down to drink after a colossal kill and all night gorging of meat. Suddenly one will halt to breathe out an awesome roar that rolls and throbs for miles over the silent wilderness. As the lion draws in an other great breath to repeat, a second lion takes up the challenge. Then a third, a fourth and so on, until the very firmament seems to vibrate and tremble as with shattering contact with physical powers. There is nothing like it to strike awe and fear into the bravest heart; it is the authentic voice of a true king of beasts.

Nature Both Kind and Unkind to Great Poet

Alexander Pope, the author of "The Rape of the Lock" and "An Essay on Man," was the son of a London tradesman, and was born in 1688. Sickly at birth, he remained sickly; it was only by the greatest care that life was kept in his frail body.

When he reached manhood, he was withered and small, being but four feet tall; he was a remarkable scholar, surpassing, perhaps, anyone of his mentioned above; also his translations of the "Iliad" and "Odyssey" have been held in high esteem.

His poetry was roughly handled by the London critics. But, for all his insignificant appearance, he was a bitter fighter, and lashed out with tongue and pen in a way that caused all but Popular Biography.

Hope for Drug Victim

Recent observations and investigations of drug addicts indicate that spectators' eyes and ears. the morphine victim is not wholly hopeless, as is generally supposed. The addiction to morphine is not characterized by physical deterioration or impariment of physical fitness aside from the addiction per se. This may seem highly surprising. Yet detailed clinical examinations of many patients gave no evidence of change in the circulatory, hepatic, renal or endrocine functions. When it is considered that the persons under observation had been addicted for at least five years. some of them as long as twenty years, these negative observations are highly significant. Thus there are substantial grounds for the belief that, were it possible to relieve the addict of his addiction, complete rehabilitation might be expected.-Washington Star.

Paul Revere as Dentist

Boston's Evening Post of September 26, 1768, carried this advertisement: "Whereas, many persons are so unfortunate as to lose their fore teeth by accident or otherwise to their great detriment not only in looks but in speaking both in public and private, This is to inform all such that they may have them replaced with artificial ones that look as well as the natural and answers the end of speaking by Paul Revere goldsmith near the head of Doctor Clarkes wharf. All persons who have had false teeth fixed by Mr. Jos. Baker surgeon dentist and they have got loose as they will in time may have them fastened by above said Revere who learnt the method of fixing them from Mr. Baker."-Detroit News.

Colonial "Babies"

"Some baby" may sound modern but its use goes way back to pre-Revolution times according to Fortune Magazine. However, when a man said "babies" in those days, he was referring not to young Colonial dames but to the latest dress importations. They were always in miniature on dolls which were known as babies. Before 1776 these came mainly from London, but during the Revolution none but Tories would ape the British, and French "bables" began to be shown. Importations of actual gowns, says Fortune Magazine, discussing the garment industry, did not begin extensively until well into the Nineteenth century.

Unfair

For centuries men have had all the breaks. Now it is the women who get them. Apparently the struggle for equality gave the wheel of life such a turn that it actually reversed itself. Prof. John Hanna evidently had this in mind when he said:

"Equality before the law is a resounding slogan for the seal of a great commonwealth but it has no particular application to breach-ofpromise cases. A man's broken heart is worth nothing."

Make Best of Mistakes

Dolores Del Rio in "The Bad One" Now at Hollywood Theater

Dolores Del Rio and Edmund Love are the engaging star team featured in "The Bad One," all-talking romance of a wicked little dancing girl of the Marseilles waterfront cafes and her strange love affair with a drifting American sailor, which opens a four-day engagement at the Hollywood theater Sunday.

"The Bad One" is a fulsome bit of time. His greatest works were those | entertainment for those craving excitement, romance, comedy and that sort of dialog that became so popular with "The Cock Eyed World," in which Lowe also had an important part. It is a tale of blood and thunder, beginning and ending with forthright killings. Chief among the unscrupulous gentry are Jean Hersholt and Gibson Gowland, the latter remembered chiefly by his performance in Erich Von Stroheim's "Greed." Wage Constant Warfare on Dreaded Tsetse Fly

The insect most feared in Africa is the dreaded tsetse fly. This creature sucks the blood of cattle and infects them with the germ of sleeping sickness. It will at times attack humans. It is a sight-hunter instead of a smellhunter. This was proved when thousands of them were caught in nets and marked with small spots of paint so that they could be identified. As these paint-marked flies were caught days later in the nets of the fly-hunters, their distribution proved how widely the flies range for their food. Some of them were painted either over their eyes or over their antennae. which are believed to be the organs of smell. Thus groups of artificially blinded flies and of flies deprived of the sense of smell were turned loose and watched. The insects without smell went about their evil work just the same; found cattle to bite and sucked the blood of these animals like normal insects. The blinded flies, on the other hand, seemed unable to find cattle or to feed. This proved that they were guided only by sight.

Africans Heavy Tea Drinkers South Africa probably consumes more tea per head of population than any other country in the world. The Englishman's 4 o'clock tea is an insignificant habit compared with the constant demand for tea that obtains there. Most everybody has a cup of tea before rising, and this is followed very shortly by tea at breakfast. In every office and shop, and even in most factories, all the employees knock off for a few minutes at 10:30 for tea and again at 3:30, and in between these times there is a cup of tea with lunch. Returning home from work in the evening one is greeted by a pal in as many productions. cup of tea, and after dinner has be digested the kettle is again singing on the cooker for more tea. Besides this routine, fresh tea is brewed for every visitor to almost every house and also for customers in most offices.

Perfection in Acoustics

An even more delicate test than the dropping of a pin has been made on acoustic properties. When engineers were trying out the audibility of the sound reflector on the stage of the Hollywood bowl they dropped one No. 10 bird shot (weighing slightly more than one-thousandth of an ounce) 8 inches on a kettledrum. The sound was heard throughout the bowl. When dropped only one-quarter inch listeners in three-quarters of the bowl heard the shot fail. The reflector is the half shell of a huge cone, 45 feet at the front of the stage and 18 feet high at the rear. It is made of 36 tons of structural steel, padded inside and out with asbestos sheets. No electrical amplifiers are necessary.

Good Form to Smack Lips Smacking the lips when eating, mannerism distinctly bad form in many countries, is not so considered in Hawaii, writes Fred Lockley in his column in the Portland, (Ore.) Journal, in giving the viewpoint of a na tive of the islands.

"With us," Lockley was told, "If a man makes no noise in eating we think he does not want others to know he is eating, so he will not have to share his food with them. We consider it very impolite not to smack your lips and make a noise when you eat, for by doing so you show you enjoy what you are eating."

Afton Water

Burns' melodious verses, classified as one of his songs, known as "Afton Water," seem to refer to a living Mary, as will be seen by an examination of passages in the fourth and fifth verses. The last line of the fourth verse states that "The sweetscented birk (the birch) shades my Mary and me." Here Mary and the poet are pictured sitting together in the shade of the birch. The next verse speaks of "the cot where my Mary resides," and goes on to tell of her gathering flowers in the waters.

Cougar, Hunted Without Mercy, Almost Extinct

The western "cougar," termed variously according to local practice in different parts of North America as "panther," "mountain lion," "catamount," etc., is our largest member of the cat family. It is considered a predatory animal and as such has been hunted so peristently that it is almost extinct in the United States except in 1931 six and a new straight eight brings a few remote districts of our western Consederably smaller than the cougar, the true lynx is still quite a bit larger than the common bobcat or bay lynx. The real lynx is a very shy animal and rarely thrives where the land were announced a month ago, each has been ranched or farmed to any extent. The bobcat, more like the coyote, often lives right under the nose ble seat, commercial coupe, convertible of some harassed farmer, being especially adept at stealing chickens or other farmvard birds.

Of the three felines mentioned, the bobcat can be said as having the most tractable disposition, as neither the lynx nor the cougar submit readily to human training. The cougar somewhat resembles the female African lion in appearance, yet it is rarely used as a

the morning."-London Answers.

Not so many hundreds of years ago each nation had to depend largely on its own timber to satisfy the ordinary needs of its population. Today, modern transportation permits timber to be marketed at greater distances from Its source, says Forests and Mankind. China obtains large amounts of timber from North America, and South Africa gets much of hers from northern Europe. But in the long run it is best economy for a nation to grow timber on its own soil and to put to use those rough, less fertile sections where for one reason or another agriculture is either impossible or unprofitable.

Onion Is Fastidious

The lowly orion, popular as a food even back to the days when the pyramids were built, may be common, but it is, nevertheless, a highly particular vegetable, so far as growing conditions are concerned.

It requires especially good soil of high fertility and well drained. It will not grow if weeds be present, and it needs cold, moist soil while growing, and warm, dry conditions at maturity.

Historic Buildings in City of Philadelphia

Its wealth of historical landmarks and associations and its close proximity with other cities and places of interest on the east coast places Philadelphia on the main roadway of eastern tourist travel. To the visitor interested in the nation's history this city offers associations which are identified with it alone and which distinguish it among all other American towns. Chief among these is Independence hall, where the Liberty bell reposes and within whose walls the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States were drawn and signed. Many of the most interesting old andmarks are confined to a small area on the central part of town, among these being Carpenter's hall, meeting place of the first Continental congress; the Betsy Ross house, where the first American flag is said to have been made and old Christ church, place of worship of Revolutionary heroes and in whose graveyard lies the body of Benjamin Franklin. Congress hall is another point of interest.

Bright Jap Youth Tells All About the Banana

Japanese descriptions are almost always good for a few laughs. One of the latest is the theme of a little Japanese schoolboy in the Sacramento valley. The subject was "The Banana," and the little fellow wrote:

"The banana are great remarkable fruit. He are constructed in the same architectural style as the honorable sausage. Difference being skin of sausage are habitaually consumed while it are not adviceable to eat rapping of "Banana are held aloft while consuming; sausage are usually left in reclining position. Sausage depend for creation on human being or stuffing machine while banana are pristine product of honorable mother nature.

"In case of sausage both conclusions are attached to other sausages; honorable banana on other hand are joined on one end to the stem and opposite termination are entirely loose.

"Finally, banana are strictly member of vegetable kingdom while affiliation of sausage is often undecided." -Los Angeles Times.

Alaska in Summer

The Alaskan summer is one of gorgeous, vivid sun, warm winds and flower gardens. The warm Japan current, striking Vancouver island, is deflected northward and carries to the Alaskan coast the same delightful humidity of the lower Pacific coast. To the visitor Alaska becomes a land of great forests, rushing rivers, Indians, curious totem poles, black fox farms, salmon fisheries. The journey there through 1,000 miles of scenery such as found nowhere else is made in four days threading the almost land-locked channel known as the "Inside Passage" which winds through mountainhemmed fiord-like waterways as through a fairyland with wooded islands, tremendous glacier peaks, fascinating Alaskan towns and queer old settlements.

Ponderous Doctor Johnson That Dr. Samuel Johnson (1709-1784), famous English lexicographer, efined a window as "an orifice in an edifice," in his noted dictionary is a fact which lends point to the popular anecdote told by Boswell. Speaking of animal fables, Boswell said he thought it would be difficult to write such fanciful things. Johnson said it would be easy enough.

In a later comment on this incident, Boswell recalled the fable of the little fishes who saw birds flying over their heads. The biographer remarked:

"The skill consisted in making them talk like little fishes, but if Doctor Johnson were to make little fishes talk, they would talk like whales!"

Length of Sea Snakes

It is believed that sea snakes do not grow much longer than 12 or 13 feet. Speaking of sea snakes found near the coast of northwestern Australia, the National Geographic society says: "Sea snakes are frequently seen curled up asleep on the surface of the water. These reptiles are poisonous and grow to about 12 feet in length." Sea snakes are distinguished by the compressed, rudder-shaped tail, and they are unable to move on land. Their food consists chiefly of fish.

Lose Yourself in Your Job I have never been quite happy unless lost to myself in what I was thinking, feeling, or doing. Unselfconsciousness seems to be the keynote of happiness. I am certain that to be completely lost in what one is thinking, feeling, or doing is the only way to scotch the kind of malaise which self - consciousness brings. A Diplomat

That a certain young man, is wise beyond his years was proved when he paused before answering a widow who had asked him to guess her age. "You must have some idea," she

"I have several ideas," said the young man, with a smile. "The only trouble is that I hesitate whether to make you ten years younger on account of your looks, or ten years older on account of your brains."
