Closely Akin Illusions and hallucinations are both false sense-perceptions, and the distinction between them is difficult to define.

Summing It Up Not what I have, but what I do, is my kingdom.

Uncle Eben "A man can't have too good an opinion of hissef," said Uncle Eben, "provided he's willin' to hustle aroun' an' honesty try to deserve it."

Does Seem Odd "It's curious," said Uncle Eben, "to hear tell 'bout how many geniuses has been allowed to starve an' how many lazy folks manages to get a livin' by pretendin' to be geniuses."

Artist's Duty I am for a little flattery in portraits—that is, so far as I think, the painter or sculptor should try at something more agreeable than anything he sees sitting to him.—E. FitzGerald.

How John Jacob Astor

Put Over Shrewd Trick In August, 1808, with not even an oyster boat stirring outside of Sandy Hook as the result of President Jefferson's embargo on United States shipping, New York was amazed to see in the Commercial Advertiser the laconic notice: "Yesterday the ship Beaver, Captain Galloway, sailed for China."

Beautiful Normandy

The beauty of Japan in the cherry blossom season cannot surely surpass the Normandy landscape in the spring-time white with apple blossoms. The Grand Val d'Etretat and the surrounding country seem as though covered with snow at this time of the year; and no better view of it can be gotten than from the golf links on the cliffs, close to the famous Porto d'Avall. Etretat is so easily reached nowadays it is becoming almost an "all-the-year-round" resort.

Inky Bath of Mud

The Czechs have at Pstany a famous mud bath which is worth seeing, even if you do not take it. It is a pitch black mineral mud deposited in the water courses of the springs in great quantities. A thick layer is spread on a sheet, on which the patient lies, while the mud is hot. Attendants plaster it over the body till the patient looks like an armored knight—the black prince, if you like. Then, after being swathed in it for about ten minutes, the perspiration being wiped from the face at intervals, the patient is immersed in the mud bath, the mud at the bottom and the hot water being impregnated with sulphur.

Chemistry of the Car

If it were possible to dissect an automobile and reduce it to its original shape, it would be found that more than 100 different substances enter into its composition. Without chemicals and modern chemical research the modern automobile, although primarily mechanical in its construction, would be only a vague dream. To a marked degree the automobile must depend, especially for its refinements, on chemicals. Such materials as charcoal, celluloid, fuel oil, dextrin, castor oil, shellac, boric acid, starch, sulphur and carbon dioxide are essential factors in making the modern automobile the efficient, beautiful product that it is.

Zircon Not Unlike Diamond

The gem stone nearest in appearance to the diamond is colorless zircon. The index of refraction of this mineral approaches that of the diamond, but it lacks the dispersive properties of the diamond and does not show the bright red and blue flashes of the latter stone. The zircon has a hardness less than that of the diamond. These stones are found in Ceylon, but are usually obtained by decolorizing colored stones by careful heating. They are sometimes called Madura diamonds. They are classed as semi-precious stones and are valued at about $10 per carat.

DRY AIR DAMAGES SKIN AND HAIR

Increased Need for Pomades During Winter Due to Super-Dry Indoor Air.

Mildly would find many of her beauty and health problems more easy of solution were she to give consideration to the necessity for a suitable proportion of moisture in the home air during the long winter heating season, points out the Holland Institute of Thermology of Holland, Michigan.

The dry indoor air extracts an abnormal amount of moisture from the skin, with the result that it becomes too dry, harsh, and easily chapped. The abnormally dry indoor air also extracts the natural moisture from the scalp, with the result that the hair loses its natural luster and becomes dry and brittle.

These effects, so detrimental to personal beauty and charm, can in large degree be obviated, says the Institute, by automatically injecting into the home atmosphere sufficient water vapor.

The Water Pan in Old Style Heating Plants Holds a Gallon of Water, More or Less, and Usually Is Dry. Six to Eight Gallons of Water Should Be Evaporated Daily in the Average Size Home During the Winter Season.

por to raise the relative humidity to a desirable percentage. In homes heated with the old style systems, the air contains less than half the amount of moisture required for health, comfort at moderate temperatures of 70 or 72 degrees, and conserving naturally beautiful skin and hair.

With modern warm-air heating systems of the vapor-air type, however, sufficient water-vapor is constantly injected into the home-air to maintain a comparatively uniform relative humidity of 40 to 50 per cent, according to heat temperature. One effect is a soft, balmy atmosphere comparable to that of a fine spring day, which will conserve the beauty of fine complexion and lustrous hair.

Of further importance is the fact that adequately humidified indoor-air is regarded by leading health authorities and physiologists as a vital factor in preventing colds and other respiratory diseases which usually become epidemic with the advance of the winter heating season. Where indoor air contains a suitable proportion of moisture, dry-air conditions conducive to irritation of the health-conserving mucous membranes in the respiratory tract are eliminated.

Air Motion Is Vital to Ideal Home Heating

Few persons realize to what extent the fan has contributed to American industrial efficiency and to every-day indoor comfort, declares the Holland Institute of Thermology of Holland, Michigan.

From time immemorial the fan in one form or another has been utilized to give comfort to human beings. The electrically operated fan units used today make it possible to maintain healthful and comfortable air conditions in our mountaintop buildings which otherwise would be unlivable because of lack of proper ventilation.

Fans give us control of indoor weather and make possible the maintenance of indoor conditions that may be termed almost ideal regardless of conditions out of doors. Today our homes can be made as comfortable and fresh throughout as the modern up-to-date theatre. This is possible of accomplishment, strange as it may seem, by the latest type of warm air heating systems of the vapor air type. In addition to furnishing needed warmth during the heating season, these systems uniformly yet draftlessly distribute the warmed air by means of an electrically operated air propeller unit in the dome of the jacket that surrounds the heater.

Through draftless, the air motion created by these units is sufficient to obviate the forming of pockets of stagnant, stifling air that are responsible for much discomfort in homes heated by means of old-style heating systems. $50.00 in Gold in one prize given away Monday night at the Aloma theater, Charlevoix at Wayburn.

Put Jackson First Irvin Cobb quotes Lord Roberts as saying of the Civil war period: "America produced some magnificent soldiers in those four years and the greatest of them, to my way of thinking, was Stonewall Jackson."

Tree Worth Cultivating The canary pine, a hardy tree from the Canary islands, is said to be ideal for the warmer parts of the temperate zone, and has already been successfully introduced into the arid regions of South Africa, into Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Chile, Argentina and Brazil.

Filmland Twin Stars on Hollywood Bill

Those twin favorites of filmland, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell return to the screen again in "The Man Who Came Back," showing on the Hollywood Theater screen, Sunday to Thursday and due to the unusual nature of the production preparations are being made to care for record-breaking crowds.

"The Man Who Came Back" is a picture different from anything the famous Gaynor-Farrell duo has ever attempted. It has the tensest sort of melodrama weaving through its comedy scenes and concludes with a dramatic punch that will not soon be forgotten. It is more of the type of role that won the Gaynor-Farrell combination glory in "Seventh Heaven" and "Street Angel." It depicts the great love of a woman who sinks to the "dregs with a smile on her lips to be near her man. And from blank despair and zero in hope they climb together in the sunlight of love.

As usual on Tuesday and Wednesday nights the Hollywood will give away free $300.00 on each of these nights, and each Friday and Saturday night a Free New Ford Sedan.

"Birth of a Nation" at State Theater

The State theater this week brings back the greatest motion picture spectacle of all time, D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," with the modern magic of sound.

This most stupendous of all time screen attractions brings with it such stars as Lillian Gish, H. B. Walthall, Wallace Reid, Walter Long and a gigantic cast of 18,000 players.

Griffith's production, at the time it was made 15 years ago, startled the entertainment world by having special fun presentations at the then unheard of prices of $1.50 and $2.00. An entire orchestra traveled with the film, for the special sound effects, and musical score.

"The Birth of a Nation" is also notable for being the first film to have a theme song, "The Perfect Song," which is still known throughout the nation as the introductory piece for the nightly broadcasts of Aimos 'n' Andy on radio.

Farrell-Gaynor Team in Riviera Feature

What makes for popularity? What is there about certain persons we see on the screen that endears them to us. In the case of Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, it is their personification of youthful romance that makes them the most popular pair of screen sweethearts.

They possess the power to make us realize our own idealized romances reflected in themselves. Never before in the half dozen pictures in which they have so successfully projected their personalities into the public's consciousness as in the production, "The Man Who Came Back," the Riviera theater attraction starting Feb. 14th.

It is a vehicle particularly suited to the talents of both Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, a romantic drama that carries them through the gamut of human experience, from the nightmare of degradation to the rosy dreams of happiness.

Grant Withers in Person at the Fisher Theater

Grant Withers, brilliant young Hollywood screen star, is now appearing in person on the Fisher stage in an original sketch in "Bob Nolan's Nitties!" Withers has starred in many picture productions. He was Loretta Young's sweetheart in "The Second Floor Mystery," and Sue Carol's sweetie in "Dancing Sweeties" while he played opposite Dolores Costello in "Hearts in Exile." He is appearing on the Fisher stage this week while having a short Hollywood vacation. His wife, Miss Loretta Young, is busily engaged in a new picture.

On the screen with Winnie Lightner and jolly Joe Brown are co-starring in a screening comedy hit, "Sit Tight." When these two cut-ups cut loose it is just top bad.

Winnie appears as hard-boiled Dr. O'Neil, owner of a health institute where the patients are pounded, stretched, steamed, psycho-analyzed, and otherwise maltreated, in an effort to become the Venuses and Adonises that nature evidently didn't intend them to be. Dr. O'Neil is also interested in the fight game, and hopes to discover and develop champion material in the course of her work. Joe E. Brown is her doubtful assistant, who calls himself Jojo the Tiger, and brags without end of the pug he has knocked out and the medals he has won. Jojo has an eye for feminine charms, and causes screaming roughhouse among the lady patients. Winnie is compelled to resort to her most hard-swatting tactics to keep him in proper submission.

In the same building is the office of millionaire Hobart Bosworth, who has a pretty daughter, Claudie, Dell who secures a better job for her lover, Paul Gregory, and quarrels with him when he refuses to take what he has not earned. As he leaves, Winnie corrals him, recognizes in his husky build the white hope for which she has been looking and employs him on the spot.

Joan Crawford Stars in Michigan Picture

"Dance Fools, Dance," which is now at the Michigan theater is the most glamorous of Miss Crawford's recent roles. Harry Beaumont, who brought Miss Crawford to stardom in "Our Dancing Daughters," and recently added to this triumph with "Our Blushing Brides," again directed.

Lester Vail, a newcomer to the screen who recently made his debut in "Beat Ideal," is Miss Crawford's leading man in her picture, and the supporting cast includes such film favorites as Cliff Edwards, William Bakewell, William Holden, Clark Gable, Earl Foxe, Purnell B. Pratt, Hale Hamilton, Natalie Moorhead, Joan Marsh and Russell Hopton.

The story, despite lavish touches, is an intensely dramatic one, the plot motivated by murder on a wholesale scale. It is a daring theme from the society angle and a still more daring one from the viewpoint of exposing crime and racketeering. There is a wealth of newspaper atmosphere, realistically supplied.

"Bear Flag" Symbol of Republic of California

In the early days California was isolated from the other Spanish possessions in America by mountains, deserts and poor communications, and after Mexico won independence this region became even less answerable to central authority. It enjoyed practical autonomy while the rest of Mexico was engaged in internal strife. Americans and other non-Mexicans settled in California and assumed importance in its affairs. After 1840 it became apparent that California would not remain much longer under even the nominal authority of Mexico, but the new landholders were divided in opinion as to what the future status of the country should be. Some favored annexation to the United States; others advocated a British protectorate. During this period of hesitation, war broke out between the United States and Mexico over Texas, the former Mexican state which had become an independent republic and then annexed itself to the United States. Col. John C. Fremont took advantage of the situation, seized Sonoma, and on July 4, 1846, proclaimed California a republic. The banner of the new republic bore a bear, and this was the Bear flag that Fremont hoisted.

Among those besides Fremont whose efforts speedily effected the conquest of this region were Stockton and Kearney, and on August 15, 1846, the republic of California was annexed to the United States.

Little Damage Done by Missile, as It Happened

Mark Twain, at a publishers' dinner in New York, talked of his reporting days in Virginia City.

"We were trying a horse thief one day," he said, "and all of a sudden the big, burly scoundrel pulled off his boot and threw it at the judge. It was a heavy boot, too. It was studied with bombalms. . . I am still rather proud of the way I wrote up that little incident, doing it neatly, and at the same time getting back on a rival reporter whom I disliked. I got it all in one paragraph—something like this:

"Suddenly the blackguardly thief, pulling off his boot, hurled it with all his might straight at the judge's head. This desperate act might have been attended with most disastrous consequences, but, fortunately, the missile only struck a reporter, so that no harm was done."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Heart All-Important

That the Egyptians had any inkling of the circulation of the blood or of the real duties of the heart seems improbable, but they did conceive this organ to be the seat of life and consciousness and the blood to be intimately related thereto. Thence came into men's minds all the complicated lore of purity of blood, of "bad blood" between rivals, of "heartfelt" sincerity, and so on, which have dominated the thoughts and the literature of races of whom Egyptians never dreamed. The brain, curiously enough, Egyptian dissectors seemed never to have considered of the slightest importance, and heroes of literature when vowing devotion still press their hands on chests instead of heads.

Origin of "Chauffeur"

The word chauffeur originated from the activities of brigands who, during the war between the Vendians and the Republicans of France in 1793, pillaged and fired the countryside. They were so called specifically because they burned the feet of their victims to make them reveal the hiding places of their valuables. Their chief leader was one named Schinderhannes or "Jean l'Ecorcheur." The word chauffeur, from which chauffeur is derived, was drawn from the Latin calefacere, which means "to make hot"—Literary Digest.

Why It's Popular

"The great popular success of psycho-analysis," the late Bishop John Gardner Murray said one day in Baltimore, "is due to this fact. Psycho-analysis, as it is interpreted to us, tells us that the things we want to do are the things we ought to do. A very attractive creed.

"Psycho-analysis reminds me of the schoolboy who had to define liberty of conscience. His definition was: "Liberty of conscience means doing wrong and not worrying about it afterwards."

Rather Die Than Get Dirty

One of the best war stories has to do with an English training camp. A live shell fell into the mud in the middle of a class of young gunners. "Lie down, gentlemen!" roared the instructor. But no one moved. In due course the shell was rendered harmless, luckily without anyone being injured. Then the instructor inquired why they had not obeyed his order. "You might have been blown to pieces." "Well, sir," faltered one of the gunners, "it was so muddy."

No Standing Still

To reach the port commonly known as "Success" we must sometimes sail with the wind, and sometimes we must sail against it. Conditions determine this matter. But the outstanding thing is that we must sail, not drift nor lie at anchor.—Grit.

Ancient Wooden Locks Burden for Strong Man

The most common lock now in use on exterior doors of buildings is the cylinder lock developed by Linus Yale, Jr., and this leads us back into history. Primitive prototypes of Yale's invention were in use in Mesopotamia and Egypt as early as 2000 B. C. These were huge wooden affairs requiring cumbersome keys, as we may gather from the Biblical passage (Isaiah 22:22) "And the key to the house of David will I lay upon his shoulder." This key, or mufthah as it was and still is called in the East, is a stick of wood from 15 to 30 inches long, 2 to 4 inches broad and 1 to 2 inches thick. Into the face of one end are set a number of wooden or iron pegs about an inch long. These pegs correspond with as many holes in the wooden bar or bolt which locks the door and can only be lifted when these pegs enter the holes and lift a corresponding series of pins which drop home by force of gravity and keep the bar locked until pressed up by the key with its pegs. Such huge keys opened the way into the mighty palaces of Ninevah and Persopolis and admitted to "hundred-gated Thebes." Today in miniature and more refined fashion, the small key that enters the cylinder lock pushes up the little brass pins inside and permits the opening of the door.—Detroit Free Press.

Gas Pressure Used to Stimulate Flow of Oil

In the operation of oil wells a period usually develops when the well is not good enough, and yet is too good. When it has reached a point where the natural flow is too weak through lack of pressure below the ground to produce oil at an efficient rate, a period of real worry is encountered.

Ordinarily, while the flow is too light, it still is too strong to permit the employment of pumps of the plunger type. It is at this time that a new method is being attempted, the gas-lift method, of bringing the oil up. Some success has been attained in forcing gas under pressure down into the ground either through a concentric or parallel pipe. The pressure of the gas, simulating the natural gas pressure, throws the oil up with something like the original vigor. The method in question, however, is still far from perfected, as almost every well presents a problem of its own and no standard can be set for the operation of a gas-lift device.

Modern Kitchen "Slave"

The aproned figure at the sink gazed sadly at the accumulation of plates and dishes, pots and pans. Was this all that marriage meant?

A heavy sigh, a rolling up of sleeves, and the kitchen was soon filled with the clatter of washing and scouring. The toiler paused from time to time to listen to the steady thrash of a typewriter in the next room.

Suddenly the noise ceased, and a large, spectacled woman, lofty of brow, appeared in the doorway.

"Hercules, darling," she said, addressing the little man, "I never can remember—do you spell 'cave man' with or without a hyphen?"—London Tit-Bits.

Told of Lincoln's Safety

The phrase, "plumes delivered, nuts safely" was a secret code which was sent to Harrisburg, Pa., when Abraham Lincoln had arrived in Washington soon after his election to the Presidency. His original route of travel, which had been through Baltimore, had to be abandoned because of the bitter feeling against the Union in Maryland. Mr. Lincoln went from Harrisburg to New York secretly and took a through train from there to Washington. Several books of Lincolniana state that the code had no special significance other than that those words had been chosen to mean Lincoln's safe arrival.

Coureurs Des Bois

The coureurs des bois, later called voyageurs, were, literally, forest rovers. During the French regime immense forests covered Canada, which teemed with fur-bearing animals. Hunting, therefore, and the consequent fur trade with the Indians appealed to some adventurous spirits more than farming, and as a result, a large number took to the former life and became an important factor in the pioneer development of new Canada. They figure picturesquely in early Canadian history and in subsequent fiction.

Lobster's Speed

One unacquainted with the lobster would not give it credit for much speed but it is a graceful swimmer and possesses the power of shooting with great rapidity through the water. That is accomplished by the broad plates at the end of its tail. These, put in motion by the powerful muscles connecting them with its body, strike the water with immense force, enabling the lobster to project itself many feet. Observation has shown that one stroke is sufficient to propel it from eight to ten yards in a second—the speed of a fast sprinter.

Weight of Asbestos

It would be difficult to say how light asbestos is in its native form. It is quite a heavy stone, but it may be fluffed up until it is very light. The amphibole variety is very weak and is used principally for pipe covering, etc. The chrysotile variety strong and if long enough may be used for spinning.—Exchange.

Chinese Flowers

China's contributions to the floral world number many of the Occident's best-known flowers, among them the rose, chrysanthemum, forsythia, primrose and azalea.

To Soften Brittle Paper

The bureau of standards says the paper which has become dry and brittle from exposure to weather can best be softened with water vapor. If the paper has been exposed for a number of years, great care will be necessary and the moistening can doubtless be best accomplished by exposing the paper to a moisture-saturated atmosphere for a considerable period of time.

First Arithmetic Book

Cocker's Arithmetic, the first complete manual for "numerists," was published on the 3d of September, 1677, by Sir Roger L'Estrange. The author, who died before it was published, became proverbial in England as a master of mathematical subjects. His book was a "best seller" for nearly a century.

Denmark's Formation

Geologically speaking, Denmark owes its existence to the mountains of Norway. Every stone in Denmark once was a tourist from Norway, arriving with the glaciers on a submarine reef of chalk and lime, until in a manner similar to the building of the Newfoundland sand banks by the icebergs from Greenland, Denmark emerged.

Why It Hurts You

Generally the person who is bitter and remains bitter is really preserving bitterness that originated with some one else. Thus he is dominated, not living his own life.—Woman's Home Companion.

India Leads the World in Racial Distinctions

There was, and is, immeasurably greater diversity of race in India than in Europe, even if we emphasize the Lapps and Finns, the Turks and Magyars, the Maltese and Basques.

The fundamental distinction of the "four colors" exists today as in the days of the great adjustment formalized in Manu's code. The Mahabharata describes the Brahmans as white, the Rajputs as red-limbed, the Vaishyas as yellow, the Shudras as black.

And to this day the men of pure race in Rajputana are red, like the red granite statues of old Egypt; the Brahmans of pure race are white beneath their light coat of sunburn; the Santals and Savarnas are yellow; the Davidians of the south are black. There are also a great many intermediate shades, but these four primary elements remain.—Charles Johnston in the Atlantic Monthly.

St. Bernard Dogs
The original St. Bernard dog is believed to have been bred from an imported German boar-hound, crossed with a rough-coated sheep dog of a type common in Switzerland. The St. Bernard took after either parent in being rough or smooth coated. Some authorities say that the dogs at present used at the monastery are not St. Bernards, but Newfoundlanders. Others that the dogs now in use have had added to the St. Bernard a strain of Newfoundland or Pyrenean.

Health Talks, Dr. R. S. Dixon will speak in the lobby of the Hannan Memorial Y. M. C. A., E. Jefferson at Garland, on Tuesday evening, February 17th, at 7:30 p. m. Dr. Dixon is on the staff of the Department of Health of the city of Detroit. His subject, "Healthy Living," will include rules of health, hygiene and care of the body. Dr. Dixon is an authority of wide reputation on sex education. The meeting at Hannan will be open, as usual, to both men and women at no cost. Musical background will be furnished by the Eastern High school quartette.

A Dramatic club has been formed at the Hannan Y. M. C. A., E. Jefferson at Garland, to give young people an opportunity to enter into this form of cultural expression. Several meetings have already been held. The club attended a performance at the Detroit Civic theater and were received by Miss Jesse Bonstelle who promised them every possible co-operation. Mr. Matis, of the theater, talked on "The Art of Makeup" and took the club on a trip of inspection around the theater.

Plays, both one-act and three-act, are now being read and a selection will be made at the next meeting on Tuesday evening, February 17th, at 8:45 p. m.

The Hannan Memorial Y. M. C. A. orchestra has been organized and holds regular rehearsals each Monday evening at 8 p. m. under the direction of Mr. C. W. Marr. Mr. Marr has long been considered one of the outstanding young directors of Detroit. His idea is to create an organization of young musicians where they can gain orchestral experience. Many persons acquire a degree of proficiency under competent leadership, only to lose what they have learned by lack of opportunity to join a group of young players. Their inexperience does not permit them to enter the older musical clubs of the city.

The orchestra plans to appear at "v" functions in the future, and after gaining sufficient skill, to be available for outside engagements.
