Hupmobile Counsels With Owners on Winter Driving

Many of the difficulties ordinarily experienced by motorists in winter driving can be eliminated by proper precautions in servicing the car, believes the Hupp Service Bureau in its current bulletin.

"People tune up their systems, put on gloves and wear heavier clothing," says the Bureau. "Yet the automobile, with the same equipment and lack of attention as in summer, is often expected to go through winter's severe months without special care."

"Take the engine for example. Winter driving takes a severe toll from the motor car engine not properly reconditioned or fitted to stand this abuse. Undoubtedly the first step in conditioning the engine for the winter months is to clean the carbon and grind the valves. The tappets should be properly adjusted to allow for excessive expansion and contraction during winter operation."

"The oil filtering cartridges should be inspected and changed if needed because cold and stiffened oil is sluggish in circulation. The engine pan should be removed and the oil screens cleaned."

"While the pan is off, the main and connecting rod bearings should be checked for proper clearance. Naturally, all gaskets should be replaced when the engine is reassembled."

"The specified grade of zero cold test oil should be used in the crankcase while the transmission and differential should be drained, flushed and filled with the correct grade of zero test lubricants."

"Another important feature to be considered in preparing for winter driving is the wheel bearings. The four wheels should be removed and thoroughly cleaned with a brush dipped in gasoline. Loose, cracked rollers, races or retainers should be replaced. The wheel bearings should then be replaced adjusted and packed with the proper grade of clean grease."

"While the wheels are off, both the brake linings and shoes should be inspected. The tires should be removed and the rims thoroughly gone over"

Current Business Review in Michigan

Substantial improvement in Michigan industrial activity is expected before the year-end, according to Dr. Ralph E. Badger, executive vice president and Carl F. Behrens' economist of the Union Guardian Trust Company, unit of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc. The next few weeks should also witness a quickening of retail demand throughout the country because of the impetus given by Christmas purchases.

Since many of the indices representing business in Michigan and in the United States have recently declined to new low levels. The results of the next few weeks in industry and trade will be watched with more than casual interest. Likewise, the convening of Congress on December 7 will have added significance this year.

Industrial production as reported by the Federal Reserve Board stood at 74 per cent of the average which prevailed in the period 1923-1925, the lowest level reached since February, 1922. This compares with 76 per cent in September and with 87 per cent a year ago.

Wholesale commodity prices as reported by the Bureau of Labor statistics were 68.4 per cent of the 1926 level, having declined on October 15 a little more than 1 per cent from the September 15 level. On October 15, 1926, this index stood at 82.6. The decline since that date amounts to 17 per cent.

The retail prices of food in the United States, paralleling the decline in wholesale prices, have dropped 17 1/2 per cent from the October 15, 1930 level. The decrease in Detroit retail food prices in the same period amounted to 19 per cent.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the Bureau of Labor Statistics index of wholesale prices of automobiles stood at 99.7 per cent (1926=100) in October, 1931, which compares with 100.2 per cent for October, 1930.

Because of reduced incomes and lower prices of many other types of consumer goods, such as food, rent, clothing and the like, it is possible that the 1932 automobile models will be priced somewhat lower than those introduced a year ago.

Building activity has declined further in recent weeks. The Federal Reserve Board Index of Building Contracts awarded (1923-25=100) which is adjusted for seasonal variation, now stands at 55 per cent which compares with 59 per cent for September and with 78 per cent in October, 1930. The October level is the lowest point this index has reached since June, 19 1921.

In February, 1921, the index stood at 43 per cent and in June, 1928, at 138 per cent of the 1923-1925 average level.

In the financial markets, the strength apparent in the earlier weeks of November has disappeared. Stock prices are approaching, and in some cases are lower than, their October 5 levels, and bonds, particularly rail issues, have also shown weakness. Prevailing rates on short term funds have shown little change during the past month, but are above the levels of a year ago. The yield on United States Treasury bonds on November 21 was computed as 3.67 per cent which compares with 3.81 a month ago and 3.32 a year ago.

Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding as of November 21, 1931 amounted to $1,995 million, an increase of $976 million from November 22, 1930. This compares closely with the $984 million increase of money in circulation during the year ended November 21, 1931.

That industrial activity in Michigan, particularly in the southeastern part of the state, will show definite improvement during the next month is quite widely believed. Only four of twelve reports received from bankers and

Virtue is not to be considered in the light of mere innocence or abstaining from harm; but as the exertion of our faculties in doing good.—Butler.

Truth About Ostrich

The ostrich's proverbial foolishness in hiding its head in the sand and thinking it is thereby concealed is one of the myths that have been discarded by modern science. The ostrich is a very alert and wary bird and, except for its habit of running in a circle, can rarely be caught.

The swimming department of the school would like to see more co-operation on the part of the students in giving their attention to this fine sport.

"The purpose of intramural sports," says Miss Doris Tefft, physical education instructor, "is to enable the girls to become better acquainted with each other and with the various games and sports. Formerly the benefits of the gym equipment was received by only a small group of girls, but now that there are not less than two teams from each grade, the gym is used by from six to ten groups daily."

"During the first six weeks of school there were 270 girls enrolled in intramural activities and that number has increased remarkably with the changing of the season and the beginning of new sports. The sports from September of this year will be classed as major or minor sports," explains Miss Tefft. "Basketball, baseball, field ball, hockey, lawn tennis, Douchin and shark, swimming tests and soccer will be classed as major sports and the minor sports will be volleyball, Badminton, deck tennis, ping pong and swimming."

When asked if she considered the intramural activities a success, Miss Tefft responded assuredly, "There is no doubt about it. The girls are co-operating splendidly and are deriving much benefit by participating in the various sports."

Did you know that 360,000 forty-eight page newspapers are printed each hour at the Detroit News building? That is what fourteen members of the newly organized Press Club learned last Friday when they took a trip through the News building. The trip was taken at 1 o'clock, under the direction of a guide.

The tour led through the advertising departments, which in 1925 broke all advertising records in want ads; through the morgue which contains a copy of the Detroit News everyday for fifty-three years; through the library which has a reference on every important person and thing in Detroit for years back; they saw the large linotype machines worth $12,000 each; and lastly the tour led to the printing rooms where the printing is done at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

The "News" trip is the first of several which the Press Club plans to take. They also plan to have journalists address the group at social meetings. The club is for anyone recommended either by journalism or English teachers.

Master Richard Brownell, two year old son of Dr. S. M. Brownell, superintendent of Grosse Pointe schools, visited the third hour economics class, under the direction of Miss Jetta Thompson, accompanied by his mother November 16.

Little Richard quickly won the hearts of the girls by his cherubic smiles.

Mrs. Brownell answered the questions of the five girls who are taking the nursing course about how she brought up little Richard to his present age.

Mrs. Safford, the school nurse, also talked to the girls on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

At The Theaters

By MOLLY ELGOOD

DETROIT CIVIC THEATRE "The Better Ole"

R K O DOWNTOWN "Frankenstein"—to be followed by Seth Parker in "Way Back Home."

WILSON THEATRE Clifton Webb, Fred Allen and Libby Holman, that distinguished trio, will be seen at the Wilson Theatre the week commencing Sunday, December 13th, when Max Gordon presents the revue of revues, "Three's a Crowd."

"Three's a Crowd" has everything. In addition to the three stars of the first "The Little Show," the new revue has been devised by the most talented group of authors and stage technicians to collaborate on a single presentation.

Most of the songs in "Three's a Crowd" were written by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, who wrote the majority of the numbers in "The Little Show." Hassard Short, who directed the famous Music Box Revues, has staged "Three's a Crowd."

Albertina Rasch, whose ballets and ensembles have been acclaimed season after season, has devised and executed the dances. Albert Johnson, the imaginative creator of the decorations of "Criminal Code," supplied the striking stage settings, while the costumes were designed by Kiviette. The whole revue has been compiled and supervised by Howard Dietz.

The list of authors is impressive. The sketches are the work of such experts in laughter as Corey Ford, Newman Levy, Groundhog Marx and Fred Allen. "Three's a Crowd" has a record of one solid season's run in the Selwyn Theatre, New York.

In addition to Mr. Webb, Mr. Allen and Miss Holman, the cast of "Three's a Crowd" includes Tamara Gey, last seen in "Whoopee!"; the California Collegians, Helen Aik, Wally Coyle, Portland Hoffa, Joan Clement, Harriett Hamill, Percy Launders, Lou Wood, and Alan Jones.

"Frankenstein," is a triumph. It is an example of the camera art at its best and sound used to the utmost advantage.

James Whale has taken the Mary Shelley horror, of a scientist who created life, and directed it with the same sympathy and force that characterized "Journey's End" and "Waterloo Bridge."

We are shown Frankenstein, the scientist; and the dwarf, his assistant; collecting from grave yards and medical laboratories, the parts from which he makes his man. It isn't a pleasant idea, and when the creature is given life, it isn't a pleasant creature; but one cannot help feeling a certain pity toward it. It is so harmless and wondering at first, and but for the hideous dwarf might have remained so. His fate, resulting from tormenting it and driving it to fury, seemed almost deserved. One feels that the dwarf is infinitely more of a horror than the monster.

There are scenes of tremendous power—the creation; when three days later Frankenstein and the professor are discussing the possibilities of the experiment; a clumsy footstep is heard, the door swings open and it comes in, tall and terrifying. Presently Frankenstein lets in a little light, it reaches upward, straining to the heavens—its childlike simplicity, its disappointment when the light goes, descends like a grey sorrowful mist. And then, beaten and chivied, it turns on its maker, on the professor as he bends over it to destroy it, on everyone it meets as it wanders crafty and vengeful over the countryside, killing; throwing the people into tumult.

It is a wonderful piece of work, splendidly played by Colin Clive, Frankenstein; Mae Clarke, Elizabeth; John Boles, Victor; and Boris Karloff, the monster, and what a monster, better not to examine it too closely, it makes one just a little sick. And a word of warning—Don't, if you love your children, let them see it.

SOUNDS AND SHADOWS

Sketches—Kent Taylor. Born on a ranch in Iowa, six feet tall, dark hair, brown eyes, likes riding and playing the sax, had an ambition at seven to act, in due course impersonated an Englishman in high school play—the part was a big success (as comedy) when his crepe-hair moustache fell off.

Moved to Los Angeles, and secured atmosphere parts between non-studio occupation. Was tested for a singing role—got it—went to Florida on location, stood round for four weeks and then wasn't required.

Giving up hope, the boy tried to forget pictures; but did a bit, as a favor, in tests Paramount were making, which resulted in a contract and a role in "The False Madonna."

Philip Barry's stage success "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," being used as Ruth Chatterton's next vehicle, will be directed by Richard Wallace, Paul Lukas, Robert Ames, supporting.

Lewis Beach's play "Second Chances" will have Frances Starr in the mother role instead of Margorie Gateson, who has been given an important part in "No One Man," with Carole Lombard.

Warner Bros., have assigned William Dieterle, German director, to direct "Lois Wilson, of Seed" fame, has signed to play a lead in "Old Man Muck," Chic Sale's starring film.

Bill Boyd getting under way for "Bad Timber," his next production. Casting for "This is New York," Robert Sherwood's stage play, resulted in Stuart Erwin being chosen for leading comedy role. The title is being changed to "Two Kinds of Women" and it will be directed by William C. DeMille; the rest of the cast will consist of Miriam Hopkins, Phillips Holmes, Wynne Gibson and Irving Pichel.

A former Russian naval officer, George Blagoi, will play in Marlene Dietrich's next picture "Shanghai Express."

Genevieve Tobin has been borrowed from Universal for "One Hour With You," Paramount's starring picture for Maurice Chevalier, to reverse the usual order. George Cukor directing.

Brooke Johns, Double Quick Time Hit the Michigan. Brooke Johns has scored so much of a hit with thousands of Michigan theatre patrons that former Ziegfeld star is being held over indefinitely with his gang of whirlwind entertainers. A mile-a-minute stage show served with musical trimmings by twenty-four Melody Makers on the stage brings on Morgan and Stone, the banjomanics; the Five Elgins, dazzling speed stars; Raymond Baird, the boy Sousa; Arthur Nealy, the singing policeman; the Fred Evans Speedsters, breaking all dance records and as a special added attraction Art Frank, old man whoopee himself.

"Working Girls," a romantic drama of the lives of young women who support themselves by working in offices, stores and factories in large cities, is the feature picture at the Michigan. Many personalities and a score of Hollywood's most beautiful actresses appear in the cast.

"Blonde Crazy" At the Fisher!

James Cagney and Joan Blondell are co-starred in "Blonde Crazy," the amusing comedy romance which will be the screen attraction at the Fisher theatre for the week starting Saturday, December 5th.

Cagney, who proved so popular in "Smart Money" and "Public Enemy," has lovely Joan Blondell, the wisecracking star of "Night Nurse," as his screen partner.

Lionel Barrymore In "Yellow Ticket" At Riviera!

Directed by the man who gave the screen such memorable pictures as "What Price Glory," "The Cock Eyed World," "Sadie Thompson" and enacted by such stars as Lionel Barrymore who was voted as the most popular star of 1931, and Elissa Landi, in Raoul Walsh's dramatic masterpiece, "The Yellow Ticket" starting Friday for a week's engagement at the Riviera, located on Grand River and Joy Road.

"Flying High" Due at Paramount Soon

The motion picture version of George White's famous stage play "Flying High" is scheduled to open at the Paramount theatre in the near future. It will follow the current engagement of "The Champ," Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper's hit which is now having its final showing at the house.

"Flying High" the hilarious comedy romance which proved to be one of the biggest legitimate stage hits of the past two years, was filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. A celebrated cast of stage and screen players are in the leading roles.

"Corsair" Now At United Artists!

"Corsair" which is now playing at the United Artists Theatre is a thrilling adventure romance starring Chester Morris and Thelma Todd. It is taken from the sensational Liberty Magazine story by Walton Green. The producer is Roland West who has to his credit such thrillers as "Alibi" and "The Bat Whispers."

Fine Homes Erected by Heroes of Declaration

Charles Carroll built on a portion of the Carrollton estate, which he inherited as a young man, the mansion-house Tuscarora. It had 21 rooms, was three stories and had walls two feet thick. He also built, in later years, a home for his son. At the time of the Declaration Carroll was living in the ancestral home of the estate, Doughoregan manor, with its two wings and cupola in the middle, extending 300 feet in all across the front yard. The later house is still occupied by descendants of the Carrolls.

Samuel Chase laid the foundations in 1788 of Chase house in Annapolis, now a home of destitute, aged and infirm women. He had acquired the land on which it was built for £100 sterling. This district of Annapolis was set off for "gentlemen's homes" just as other sections of the city were circumscribed for state, church and tradesmen's homes. Chase indulged in the then "great extravagance" of having a back stairway in his house. He also built the Palladian window to light the front stairway landing—a model for many costly homes.

William Paca, another Maryland delegate, built in 1768 the house known in Annapolis as Paca house and now used as a hotel. It has foundation walls five feet thick. This house became the governor's mansion when Paca assumed that duty in 1788.

Greenland Likened to Immense Bowl of Ice

Important yet not unexpected was the report of the German scientist, Doctor Sorge, and his associates that Greenland is like a great bowl filled with ice 8,550 feet deep at the places where its depth was measured. Measurement was made possible by a method somewhat resembling the method of sounding the ocean's depth by timing an echo. On the ice cap, however, little earthquakes were created by explosions, and the reflection of the seismic waves was measured. So far as they go the results obtained bear out the theory of the eminent geologist in Greenland. According to his theory the continents are afloat on a semi-liquid layer and are slowly drifting—the map showing how America and Africa have drifted apart. The German expedition was undertaken specially to test the theory that Greenland, long weighted down by ice, is gradually rising as the ice melts.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Soldiers and Sharpers

Perhaps the queerest of all the stories of old-time words is that of the expression "forlorn hope." Nowadays, it is perfectly respectable, and means a last, desperate chance. It passed into ordinary speech from military books, in which a couple of centuries ago it was used to describe an attack made by a small party of men who deliberately sacrificed themselves in order that the main body might be victorious. The army borrowed the word from the cardsharper's jargon of Elizabethan days. The forlorn hope was an accomplice who took part in a game of cards and deliberately lost in order to whet the appetites of dupes and so to make his confederates certain of winning. Every three-card trick man today employs one or more "forlorn hopes."—London Tit-Bits.

Cloud Formations

The terms used to describe the various cloud formations are: Cirrus—detached cloud of delicate appearance, generally white; cirro-stratus—thin sheet of whitish cloud; cirro-cumulus—mackerel sky; alto-cumulus—larger rounded masses, white or grayish; alto-stratus—dense sheet of gray or bluish cloud; strato-cumulus—large lumpy masses or rolls of dull gray cloud; nimbus—dense layer of dark cloud with ragged edges from which steady rain or snow usually falls; cumulus—"woolpack" or "cauliflower cloud"; cumulo-nimbus—thunder cloud or shower cloud, great masses of dark clouds rising in form of mountains or towers.

Reads Handshake

London, England, has a resident, G. Brook, who claims to be able to read character infallibly from a handshake. "There are, roughly, seven different handshakes," he said—"the tepid, the too eager, the too firm, the hesitant, the unnatural, the too prolonged, and the fingertip handshake." Mr. Brook has found jobs for 10,000 men in all branches of business in the last few years, all by shaking hands with them. And he himself is as romantic as his subject. He was once a newsboy; then he became a packer in a margarine factory, a shop assistant, and a sales manager with a salary of $10,000 a year.

Biblical Manna

The Hebrew university at Jerusalem has made a careful study of manna, the mysterious food product with which the Israelites were sustained while wandering in the desert. Scientists at the university concluded that manna contained sugar, glucose, fructose and saccharose and came from the sap of a species of tamarisk tree. The manna is formed when a tiny insect pierces the bark and causes the sap to exude and crystallize in white grains.

Scientific Account of "Missing Link" in China

Scientific measurements of sinanthropus, the pre-human creatures whose skulls were discovered near Peking, show them to have been "the most primitive type of human being yet discovered," according to Prof. G. Elliot Smith, distinguished British anthropologist.

These measurements were reported by Dr. Davidson Black of the Peking medical college, one of whose Chinese students made the discovery. Months of work were necessary before the two skulls could be cleared of rock accretions and put in condition for exact measurement. One was the skull of an adolescent boy and the other of a woman.

The boy's skull, Professor Smith says, is more primitive than that of the celebrated pithecanthropus, the Java ape man, who thus far has been the earliest known representative of the human species. The measurements show, the British authority holds, that the brain of sinanthropus was still little specialized, while that of pithecanthropus already had become quite set, marking him as near the end of an evolutionary line.

Thus it is probable, the Chinese pre-human was much closer to the direct line of descent of modern man.—Detroit News.

Colonists Simply Had to Have Warming Pans

Whatever luxuries the Colonists thought they could dispense with when they reached the New world, it was certainly not the old warming pans.

They were common in England, with their varied ornamentation, during the Seventeenth century. Some of them were adorned with scrolls of foliage, or in the case of the finer examples the brass cover was cut through in perforated openwork. Dashing cavaliers, gracious ladies and flowers were of iron fitted into wood, but the best pieces were mounted with brass. The usual diameter of the pan was 14 inches.

The Colonists no doubt brought their warming pans with them as they came over and sent for a new style with their various orders to England, as they did with most everything else. But, of course, it should be taken into consideration that the warming pans were very serviceable and not so easy to wear out.

Where Druids Camped

Six miles from Etaples, on the way from Boulogne to Amiens, France, lies old and quiet little Montreuil. Old, yes, the Druids had a camp there where "The Green Place" is now found. Gray stones at the bottom of the rampart towers were put there by the Romans, for only a mile away Caesar sailed to conquer Britain. Where the Hotel de France now stands once stood the castle of the Century Knight Holgand. There the sea vanished and left it inland. Chancer and Sterne tell us about it as they saw it. For a time Napoleon chose it as the base of his operations to invade England and during the war it was general headquarters for the British forces, and it is again old, quiet Montreuil of the tourists.

Business "Good Will"

Apparently the phrase used in a Supreme court decision, that good will is the disposition of a pleased customer to return to the place where he has been well treated, is one derived from the accepted definition of Lord Eldon's or the term "good will"—"the probability that the old customers will resort to the old place." Mr. Justice Day of the Supreme court in the case Des Moines Gas company vs. Des Moines, June 14, 1915, cited Lord Eldon's definition as follows: "Good will of the business is that amount of value which inheres in the fixed and favorable consideration of customers occurring from an established and well known and well conducted business."

Where Joan Heard Voices

In a visit to Domremy some of the scenes about you must have fallen on the eyes of Joan of Arc in her childhood. You may meet her in your tours at other places, at Chinon, at Rheims or at Rouen, but at her childhood village, where she heard the "voices" calling her to deliver France, for that you must go to Domremy. Her cottage museum and the basilica where she had her visions do not help much, they may even spoil the experience, but the roads she traveled, the woods she saw, the landscape about the village, these have not changed much.

A Sound Mind

It has been demonstrated often that the mere sound of a dog's bark will halt the digestive processes of the cat that hears it. With us, too, fear and other emotions have a profound influence on our body functions. Little do we realize how much we lower our efficiency on the one hand, or add to our happiness on the other, by the way we permit worry, rage, prejudice to control us, or by the way we control them.—Dr. Jesse F. Williams, professor of physical education, Columbia university.

Not the Rest of Him

Billy, not quite three, on a visit to the station, proudly said the engines didn't scare him. But as a limited thundered past he hid behind his father and blubbered out, "I'm not afraid, daddy. Only my face is!"

Light Phenomenon Halation is defined as a halo of light sometimes seen around the image of a bright object in a photographic positive print. It occurs in photographs of bright incandescent lamps, strongly back-lighted objects, interior scenes including sunlit windows, or the outline of a building against a blue sky. It is caused by the reflection from the back of the film or plate of a certain amount of light which has passed through the sensitive coating.
