Residents Active in "Revue" Staged Tonight

Goodfellow Drive On Next Thursday Here: Lions Club in Charge

Residents Lead Cast of "Money Box Revue" To Aid W. O. N. P. R.

A scintillating melange of amateur and professional talent has been so effectively interwoven into the Money Box Revue which has its first and only performance tonight Thursday, Dec. 10th, at Orchestra Hall that seats promise to be at a premium.

Casts representing The Players and the "Theatre Arts," the widely known amateur organizations of the city will stage a series of brilliantly written skits. Professional singers, dancers and other stars will complete an ensemble which promises to keep one of the most brilliant audiences in the history of Detroit on the "qui vive" from their arrival until the closing act.

A performance which was originally planned only as a means for raising funds for the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform has risen above the money raising objective and now promises to go down in local amusement history as one of the outstanding events of the season.

The cast is not only reminiscent of the social columns. Banking circles have their stars in the show, the judiciary is represented, the great advertising organizations of the city furnish talent, nation wide brokerage houses have been robbed of their local partners to brighten up this stellar cast.

Mr. Phelps Newberry, Mrs. Henry Joy, Judge John B. Brennan, Mrs. Bernhard Stroh, Mrs. E. Kay Ford, Mr. E. A. Batchelor, Mrs. W. K. Williams, Mrs. Winnifred Scripps Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Anderson, Mr. Hayward S. Thompson, Mrs. J. Alden Blanchard, Mr. Charles J. L'Hommedieu, Mr. Aldrich Baxter, Mrs. Andrew Hotchkiss, Mrs. Nancy Bigelow, Mr. Alexander Ruelle, III, the Misses Crowley, Mr. F. W. Overesch, Mrs. Dean Robinson, Mr. W. G. Larchette, Mrs. Cortland Larned and many others will appear in various acts.

Brooke Johns, for three times a Ziegfeld Follies star and the headliner of the present Michigan theatre show will be forced to the limit of his dynamic personality to equal or outshine the local talent. Mr. A. L. Weeks the noted Players member whose reputation as a writer has been tremendously augmented by his sparkling weekly exposition in connection with the local News Reel will be seen as "Al Weeks." Among other professions who will endeavor to outdo the local amateur talent will be the Misses Lorraine Lancy Vera Richardson Dorothy Hess, Doris Gutow, Marjorie Nevin and Myrtle Platt. Miss Mary Tudor, songster of great repute will blend her beautiful voice with that of Mrs. Hotchkiss and the result is something worth going a long way to hear.

Writers and directors of various skits include Mr. Harry Wagstaff Gribble, Mrs. Bernard Stroh, Mr. E. A. Batchelor, Mr. E. Kay Ford, Mr. Ronald Jones, Mr. A. L. Weeks, Mr. Hayward S. Thompson and Marian Standish. Seymour Simons will direct the orchestra which will play for the first time in publication. (Continued on Page Three)

"Mikado" Presented by High School Glee Club Last Week

The Grosse Pointe High school Glee Club contributed to the semester's activities last Friday and Saturday with the production of the famous Mikado. This two-act operetta was composed by Arthur Sullivan and the text was written by Sir W. S. Gilbert. The play director was Mr. A. Gruenberg and the music director was Mr. John Finch. The performance was based around the difficulties of the son of the Mikado in his love affair. The songs were well done and the audiences seemed pleased as a whole, with them. The characters Ko-Ko, Edward Ketterer, The Mikado, Thomas Groehn, Katisha, Eileen Beever and Pooh-Bah, Roy Kaiser portrayed their roles especially well.

Edmund Vernier Tells Township Taxpayers of Reasons for Tax Jump

In explaining the current year's township tax rate of $16.94 per $1,000 assessed valuation as compared with $14.30, the tax rate last year, Edmund C. Vernier, township supervisor in a recent communication to taxpayers in the township said:

"This increase of $2.64 in the township tax rate, I may best explain, by calling your attention to the increase in the school tax of $1.71, to the increase of the township tax of 60 cents, to the Health fund of 9 cents, and to the increase in the state and county tax of 24 cents. All together these increases total the $2.64 figure.

"The increases in the various taxes have been inevitable in view of the tremendous decrease in the amount of real and personal property available for taxation while on the other hand it has been necessary to maintain expenditures at former levels and in some instances have been heavier.

"The decrease in personal property subject to taxes, made up by taxing real property, represents the $4,000,000.000 assessed valuation on personal which was made non-taxable for township purposes.

"Particularly the increase of 60 cents in the township tax is the result of appropriations of $16,000 for the Grosse Pointe township police radio station and of tremendous increase for Poor fund purposes.

Table with columns: State, County, Township, 1930, 1931, Increase or Decrease over 1930 rate. Rows for School, Gd. Roads, Health.

The township supervisor and the township board only has control of Health Tax.

"This, in brief, explains the necessity of the increase in the tax rate."

Just Where Pennies In Tax Dollar Here Go Told by N. F. Denk

Just where every penny of the Grosse Pointe taxpayer's dollar goes is shown in a statement prepared this week by Norbert F. Denk, clerk to Edmund A. Vernier, township supervisor. Mr. Denk's analysis of the taxpayer's dollar in Grosse Pointe points out very clearly that a comparatively insignificant amount of the tax dollar goes to defray township expenses and that on the other hand it does for the most part go to the state and county funds and to defray the cost of the public school system.

Out of every tax dollar collected from Grosse Pointers, Mr. Denk states in his analysis, approximately 20 cents goes to the state, 20 cents goes to Wayne county and approximately 46 cents goes to the public school system, while approximately but seven cents goes to the township. The balance of the dollar is appropriated to the Good Roads fund which collects about three cents and the Health fund which collects approximately one cent.

Village Police Guard Harold Palmer's Home: Children Threatened

Grosse Pointe Village policemen have been assigned to guard the home of Harold Palmer, 281 University Place, to guard the five Palmer children and other members of the family following threats against the children according to William T. Weigand chief of the Village police.

Two patrolmen were sent to the home late last week after two shots were fired into the chauffeur-driven Palmer sedan at Jefferson avenue and University Place. The younger children had just left the car. The shots according to the chauffeur, Benjamin Bennett were fired from a small automobile, containing at least two men that raced past on Jefferson avenue.

Palmer is the son of the late Thomas W. Palmer, United States senator and minister to Spain. Palmer is in the real estate business, with offices in the First National Bank Building. Mrs. Palmer was Winnifred Corbett daughter of Cornelius Corbett, at one time district superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Co. The Palmer children are Thomas, Mary, Winnifred, Richard and Harold, Jr.

Members of the Palmer family have refused to discuss the case. Several letters received at the Palmer home have been turned over to Weigand.

The aid and advice of Detroit police has been sought, Weigand said, and the letters have been given to the United States postal authorities for investigation. (Continued on Page Four)

Community Sales Day Advocated by Lions

In connection with the employment and normal buying pledges signed by thousands of Lions and other citizens throughout the country, a plan to conduct a community sales day in each community has been initiated by Lions Clubs, and reports from hundreds of communities indicate that the movement has been successfully carried out on a large scale. Under this plan all of the merchants in the community put on a store-wide sale at reduced prices, cutting prices on old stock below cost, since it can be bought for less today. Merchants do not buy more merchandise for this event, but aim to get rid of that which they have.

One community reports a 1,200 per cent increase above seasonal gains. Another community reports the sale of ten dollars worth of merchandise per (Continued on Page Four)

The third annual "Goodfellow Fund" drive in Grosse Pointe will take place next Thursday when members of the Grosse Pointe Lions Club, aided by the members of the police and fire departments of the several Grosse Pointe villages, will turn "newsboys" and sell the Goodfellow edition of the GROSSE POINTE REVIEW.

The proceeds realized from the sale of this newspaper next Thursday will be deposited in the Lions Club "Goodfellow Fund" and will be partially distributed at Christmas time to provide the season's cheer to the poor and needy in the community. Primarily however, the fund will be distributed during the entire of next year on emergency cases of relief.

Alfred Garska, president of the Grosse Pointe Park council, is chairman of the special Lions Club committee named to conduct the "Goodfellow Fund" drive. He is being assisted by the clerks of the several Grosse Pointe villages and will name team captains immediately prior to the sale. The team captains, it is proposed, will select the members of their respective teams and will indicate a choice of territory where they will carry on their selling activities, next Thursday.

In a similar effort last year, and under the chairmanship, likewise, of Mr. Garska, the Lions Club, policemen and firemen realized approximately $3,000 from their newsboy efforts. This year, because of the greater demands on the "Goodfellow Fund" increased effort is to be put forth to raise an even larger amount in order to prevent any suffering in the community.

The "Goodfellows" as the Lions Club members, policemen and firemen, are called in this movement, will be on the streets throughout Grosse Pointe early will remain in action until their supply in the morning of next Thursday and of papers is disposed of, or until about noon.

"The cries of 'Buy a Goodfellow Edition,' 'Xtra,' 'Paper, M'ster,' are soon to be ringing in Grosse Pointe, said Mr. Garska this week "and the response of residents to these entreaties means in reality the providing of the necessities of life to those in dire need of them and who would otherwise be obliged to be in want. It is not go unanswered in Grosse Pointe. Please, everyone, 'Be a Goodfellow' next Thursday.

In Detroit and other suburban communities a similar "Goodfellow Fund" drive will likewise be conducted next Thursday.

years in out of the way places has acquired some pleasant little savageries, one of which is to brand his belongings with a Chinese crest meaning "I possess."

Of course everything is very suave and reaks of danger to everyone but the foolish lady concerned; who puts in some worried hours before her husband and herself are free from the foils she has woven around them.

Good work on the part of Irving Pichel, who plays the dastardly villain. M. E.

Both have captured men; while abroad, Emmie Sykes has brought hers along; a dapper little Frenchman who looks astonishingly out of place in his mid-West surroundings; and Lucile, an Englishman, who follows a few weeks later expecting to find that she has asked Charles Lingard, for a divorce, that she may marry him.

Emmie Sykes has difficulties with her straightforward young daughter, who scoffs at the idea of her mother marrying "That" (the Frenchman), who owns quite without shame that Emmie's honey, makes of them an excellent match.

The good husband, as husbands go, white appearing to be unsuspecting, has perfect grasp of what it's all about and meets the agonizing situation nobly. They, Lingard and Derbyshire, discuss Lucile's voice, each thinking of Lucile herself and the immediate issue; and with the warmth of "Scotch" soaking into the Englishman's veins he becomes for an Englishman) verbose; and all the time the gentle parrying between the two men goes on.

Charles Ruggles and Roland Young are to have leading roles in "One Hour With You," the Chevalier opus. Others in important roles are Jeanette MacDonald, Genevieve Tobin, Adrienne Ames.

"Cloudy With Showers," Thomas Mitchell's comedy hit of the current Broadway season, has been bought for film use.

"The Man I Killed," and Ernst Lubitsch production for Paramount, will feature Lionel Barrymore, Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes.

Clive Brook plays the erring husband; Vivienne Osborne, as his loyal wife; Juliette Compton as the other woman and Charles Ruggles as the hen-pecked family advisor.

"Husband's Holiday" is the story of a man who loves two women—his wife, the devoted mother of his two children, and another woman, an attractive, sophisticated woman whose pleasant easy going mode of life intrigues him. It is the drama of a husband and wife who, through circumstances everyone understands, are forced to face a crisis in their married life.

Members of this year's squad will return next season are Paul Boesen, Joe Smith, George Ghesquire, William Chase, Edward Neeme, Raymond Harms, Edward Chase, Edward Wernet, Charles Flink, Tom Swegles, Julian Kinzie, Ed Barnes, and Tom Rein.

Of the 88 points amassed by the Pointe eleven as against 27 by opponents, 26 were garnered by Ray Shephard. This total gains him the distinction of being high point man. Charles Finke runs a close second with 20. The season's results follow:

Oct. 2, Grosse Pointe, 6; Eastern 0. Oct. 10, Grosse Pte., 7; Birmingham, 0. Oct. 17, Gr. Pte., 13; Southwestern, 0. Oct. 24, Grosse Pte., 0; Mt. Clemens, 27. Oct. 31, Grosse Pointe, 24; Ferndale, 0. Nov. 7, Grosse Pointe, 6; Monroe, 0.

ice by participating in relief work and by providing employment for many people by the speeding up of government construction projects. He notes the lending of army supplies to relief agencies thru corps area commanders as one method of assisting in the relief work.

"The normal 1931 appropriations for the military and nonmilitary activities of the War Department," the report continues, "amounted to $445,691,011. In the last analysis this vast sum, except for insignificant purchases in foreign countries and for personal savings out of pay and salaries, was expended for goods and services furnished by the civil population of the United States.

The report shows that Congress, as a relief measure, appropriated additional sums for immediate expenditure on army projects amounting to $38,000,000 during the year. The special funds were obligated as quickly as possible, the report noting that the $25,500,000 made available as an emergency appropriation for rivers and harbors and flood control was distributed at once thru 151 harbor and river and flood control projects and that additional personnel directly employed under this appropriation reached a maximum of 10,766 at one time, while the indirect benefits extended to a number many times greater than that.

"In accordance with the intent of Congress," the Secretary states, "no project has been undertaken that did not contribute directly to the amelioration of unemployment, and the full influence of the department has been exerted to divide all work to the greatest extent practicable among the maximum number of workers."

Referring to hearings conducted by the War Policies Commission, the personnel of which includes six cabinet officers, four senators and four members of the House of Representatives, the Secretary says that "Anyone reading the record of testimony presented can not fail to be impressed by the utter lack of jingoism or of militaristic tendency of the American people. There can be no doubt that in the popular mind war is viewed in its true perspective—as a grim and costly tragedy that carries in its wake injustice, wastage, cruelty and human sacrifice."

The Secretary stated that witnesses appearing before the commission "considered the possibility of war only as a last resort method of defense."

Lengthen Life of Car By Right Lubrication Writes Hupp Co.

The importance of proper lubrication as an aid to long life, efficient operation and economy is emphasized by a current statement from Hupmobile headquarters here.

"About 90 per cent of engine and other moving part troubles may be directly traced to improper or insufficient lubrication," says Hupmobile.

"Eliminate the deficient or improper lubricant and educate owners to the necessity of the right kind of lubrication at correctly proportioned intervals and the potential use of any motor car will increase by leaps and bounds. In addition, more satisfaction and real enjoyment will come to the owner who will thus realize far more from his investment.

High School News Briefs

Varsity letters have been awarded to twenty-three boys, members of the greatest football team in the history of Grosse Pointe high school. In concluding a grueling schedule with a record of seven wins and one loss against some of the foremost teams in the state, the millionaire eleven of 1931 has created a standard by which future gridgers may gauge their performances.

Ten players waged their last battle for Grosse Pointe in the River Rouge imbroglio. They are William Farr, Ray Shephard, Captain Charles Hanneman, Clarence Zeigler, Don Shephard, George Steverlynick, Jerome Spansky, Karl Kamischke, Junior Kreul and Lester Spitzley.

"This engine provides full pressure lubrication to all main bearings; to the connecting rod bearings; through connecting rods rifled drilled their entire length to all piston pins; and to all valve lifters. This practice of rifle drilling the connecting rods provides an unobstructed passageway upward to the piston pin for the forced stream of oil. It is a practice common only on all high powered, expensive cars.

"A fine mesh screen surrounds the suction line of the oil pump to remove all but the finest particles of foreign matter. And those remaining are caught by the oil filter so that only pure, clean oil reaches the bearing surfaces.

"There are two functions of any lubricant. Primarily, its job is to eliminate friction by providing a smooth film of oil to eliminate metal-to-metal contact with its resulting wear. Its secondary purpose, particularly important where high speed operation generates heat, is to dissipate this heat.

"Hupmobile designs its oiling and lubricating systems with a greater capacity than is ordinarily believed necessary—so that a constant supply of lubricant is always available at the bearing surfaces. Likewise, those same precautions materially assist in quickly reducing high internal temperatures, first by providing a constant oil film and secondly by rapidly dissipating generated heat.

"With length of car life, freedom from repairs and satisfactory operation directly dependent on proper lubrication, motor car owners cannot ignore this all important phase of car care. Only the correctly specified grade of lubricant by the manufacturer should be used for the various parts of the car. Those units, such as transmission and differential, should be kept at the proper level and the grades of oil seasonably changed. Inferior brands of lubricants should not be used. Always consult an authorized dealer of the car you drive for proper lubrications. All chassis points, springs, generator bearings and other lubricated joints or bearings should be regularly oiled and greased as per instruction books or card issued by the manufacturer.

"With such a high percentage of motor or car part failures due to improper lubrication, we feel that every owner should determine what oils and greases are to be used and how often changed—to protect his investment if for no other reason."

Several brilliant songs composed by Arthur H. Vadenberg, Jr. These have been written for this Revue.

Back of all this activity and furnishing the energy and enthusiasm has brought about such astonishing results is Frederick Sweet Stearns, noted not only for his social and club activities or his position at the head of one of the great industrial establishments of Michigan but also for his connections with amateur dramatics. When he was drafted for this difficult job by Mrs. Wesson Seyburn, chairman of the Money Box Revue committee of the Woman's Organization for Prohibition Reform, he practically gave up business for the period of the rehearsals. Day and night he has been working at his task, ably assisted by an organization hastily put together for this one performance. The closing scene of next Thursday night's performance will be the culmination of weeks of intensive activities and all who have seen the rehearsals are unanimous in their expression that he will feel amply rewarded by the reception the Revue is bound to get.

The Money Box Revue chorus is young, very young but it is a beautiful one and is composed of a group of debutantes who have given up many activities they have anticipated for years in order to do their preparation for the Revue. Mrs. Nancy Bigelow has been directing the activities of the chorus and has achieved amazing results.

The directors and committees in charge of the Revue include scores of residents of Grosse Pointe and are as follows:

Lions Clubs in U. S. To Aid Unemployed: Also Urge Public To Buy

purchases within the limit of their means. This movement has been so successful locally that the Lions International has sent similar pledges to all its 2,600 local clubs in the United States.

Replies numbered in the hundreds have been received from Lions Clubs in all sections of the country and the pledge has been signed by thousands of members. Since a part of the pledge is to solicit similar action among others, the movement does not end with the Lions Clubs alone. The pledge reads as follows:

"Upon my honor, as a member of the (insert name of local service club), I hereby pledge that while we are emerging from the depression, I will, to the best of my ability, observe each and every one of the following rules:

- "1. I will furnish employment, when possible, on two days of each week to one or more persons for work outside of the ordinary routine for which I regularly pay employees.
- "2. I will seek the procurement of a similar pledge from at least one other person who is not affiliated with any of the service clubs of the city.
- "3. "When feasible and economical, my circumstances considered I will purchase during each week at least two articles useful to myself and family but not essentially indispensable.
- "4. I will endeavor to comply in spirit and in letter with any and every action that my club might determine to take in the interest of reduction of unemployment."

"In addition to the pledges, many Lions Clubs have been circulating small cards to be left in stores when purchases are made under the plan. These read as follows:

"To The Manager:
"This purchase, not an indispensable one, is made in support of the allied service clubs campaign to relieve the present unemployment and depression situation."
"A space is left for the signature of the purchaser and the name of his club."

Old Firearm Lavishly Set Off With Pictures

The lavishness with which many ancient firearms were adorned is shown by a recent acquisition of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, says an article in the New York Times magazine. This is a gun with a stock carved by a German artist, Johann Michael Maucher, who flourished at the end of the seventeenth century. In Maucher's time patrons of the arts were also frequently lovers of the chase, and artists were therefore likely to take special care in making their patrons' guns. Two men worked on this particular gun, Maucher on the stock and I. C. Scheff, of Graz, about whom little is known, on the barrel.

The stock is of walnut, inset with a series of ivory plaques. On it Maucher carved a number of spirited hunting scenes and one showing the birth of Venus—apparently a favorite subject with him, for it appears on four other guns in foreign collections. Next to the lock a stag and a wild ass are shown, each with a grotesque bird's head in front of it. On the butt are pictured a boar hunt, a lion and his mate, a wolf attacking a hare, a hunter seated on a dead boar and blowing his horn, stags, hounds pursuing hares and foxes, etc. Those parts which are not thus adorned are decorated with rich foliage.

Point Made by Homely Lawyer Was "Clincher"

They still tell stories about old Dave Nicholson, the colorful New England lawyer. He had the reputation of being one of the homeliest as well as most able lawyers in Vermont and in this particular case, a youthful opponent, lacking legal arguments, tried to sway the jury to his side by making remarks about Dave's personal appearance. Then Dave got up for the last word.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he said impressively, "I admit that I am not handsome. I have at no time been able to take any pride in my looks. I have been called homely before now, but thank the Lord I am not simple." The jury responded at once in his client's favor.—Los Angeles Times.

Indian Rice Cultivation

When the early fur traders extended their activities northward through the then little-known Louisiana territory and entered the Sioux, the Chipewia and the Cree nations, they found the Indians using wild rice in much the same manner as the coastal and southern Indians used maize, writes Lawrence W. Pedrose in the Scientific American. The rice fields were merely shallow lakes and seemed almost limitless in extent. Harvesting was simple: A light canoe was poled through the fields, a squaw seated in the stern with a birch bark basket in front of her. In her hands she held two short clubs. As the canoe made a lane through the rice, she hooked sheaves of rice stalks with one club and bent the heads over the basket while with the other she struck the grain from the heads with a quick, sharp blow. The method, while painstakingly slow, was productive, and a deft worker could harvest several hundred pounds in a day.

Great Pan Is Dead!

Any member of the old school who strolled through Ellenberger woods on a recent Saturday afternoon will not wonder that the sunshine of that magic grove inspired a literary aunt to recite to her six-year-old niece the Greek myth of Apollo and Daphne.

Only a member of the old school will appreciate the aunt's chagrin when, in the height of her enthusiasm, grasping a beech, portraying in turn the attitude of the sun god and the growth of leaves, roots, branches and roots from Daphne's fair body, she was inspired by the most disgusted of looks from the tiny philosopher and the impatient remark:

"Now, Aunt Bess, make up a good one!"—Indianapolis News.

Orchestra Music

An orchestra is a band of performers on various instruments, including especially those of the viol class, adapted for rendering the larger kinds of concerted music, as symphonies, overtures, etc., and the accompaniments of operas, oratorios, masses, and the like, or for playing the slighter concerted music for theatrical performances, dances, etc. It is commonly distinguished from the military or street band of players on wind instruments, and from a group of solo players for rendering chamber music.

"Movie of a Movie"

It is not possible, so far as we can find out, actually to make a real movie of another movie. Light would be necessary and consequently the movie being photographed would not be visible and could not register on the film. The experts say that, of course, through double exposure the effect of a movie of a movie could and has been given or that the same thing might be done through pen or wash drawings. In other words, an advanced form of animated cartoons.—Washington Star.

Girls and Their Jobs

One of the major difficulties of the adolescent girl is "adjustment to her work-life"—or, more plainly, getting along with the boss.—Woman's Home Companion.

D. A. R. Chapter Plans Various Activities To Promote Citizenship

Guests of Fort Pontchartrain Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for luncheon and the afternoon at their next meeting, Friday, December 18, at Hotel Statler, will be the children who are members and prospective members of Cadillac Society, Children of the American Revolution.

An especially fine program has been arranged for the pleasure of both guests and hostesses. Mrs. Etta S. Wilson, authority on ornithology, will present her lecture on "Our Friends, the Birds," illustrated by large slides in full color. This will be followed by a musical in charge of Mrs. Frederic L. Wyckoff.

On the hostess committee for the day are Mrs. A. J. Barnum, Mrs. L. W. Hoffman, Mrs. W. J. S. Jury, Mrs. John Marshall, and Mrs. Franklin B. Peck.

Many and varied are the activities scheduled by the Chapter. Members are planning to bring to the meeting their usual holiday remembrances for the American Legion Hospital at Battle Creek. The Americanism Committee is collecting from the home contributions of books for the Merchant Marine Library branch at the Soo, and of books, games, magazines, etc. for the Boys' Club of Detroit. Even the children are doing their bit by making scrap-books and stuffing cuddle-toys for the League for Crippled Children.

A group from the Chapter has been meeting every other Tuesday afternoon at the International Institute to assist Mexican women with sewing and materials. Much-appreciated Thanksgiving baskets were sent to these families and Christmas gifts are now being contrived for their children. Another group has been meeting regularly with the Highland Park Women's Citizenship Club, which is directed by Miss Flora Robinson, executive secretary of the American Citizenship Bureau in Highland Park. This group is planning a reception and tea for new American citizens on New Year's Day at the Highland Park Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. L. W. Hoffman has just organized a Children of the Republic Club among the children of the Houghton School district. Contributions were voted recently for the Detroit Historical Society and the Washington Memorial Window to be dedicated next February in Central Christian Church.

Maunel Komroff's "Coronet" A Book Review

By VIRGINIA BURGESS

These are nights when a good book, complemented of course by a roaring fire and an arm-chair, has its greatest attraction. My own choice for winter-night reading is a book with historical connections, biography is best. But next best is a novel with real content and depth. If you are of the same opinion, allow me to introduce you to one of the latter,—Manuel Komroff's "Coronet."

To arrive at a clear understanding of the full meaning and intent of this book requires probing, for it is "strangely subtle, deep in meaning, perplexed with implications"..... dark with portent. It is a criticism aimed at blooded aristocracy and its symbols and exponents. The author seems to be indulging in amused yet dark laughter at the expense of pretense and those who are pretentious.

He traces with a quietly derisive pen the peregrinations of a pair of symbolic baubles,—a golden coronet and a silver whip. Set in motion by greed, pride, hypocrisy and cruelty, they pass from hand to hand among the descendants of the French count de Senlis and the noble Russian house of the Burins. They retain their full meaning and value as symbols of noble blood regardless of the gradual rise of the new aristocracies of intellectual ability, military power and material wealth, for the aristocracy of blood manages always to maintain a certain quality of superiority over these.

Komroff's handling of Napoleon's retreat from Moscow would alone justify the book. It expresses the full horror of that march of death..... the almost unnatural cold; the all-enveloping blizzard that made walking itself a fight; the hundreds who lost this fight and fell, their black hands piercing the snow.

If this book lives it will not be entirely because it is a subtly pointed critique of blue-bloodedness by means of tracing the decline of two noble houses. It will be because it appears so opportunely,—at a time when blood is disregarded, when ability and sad to say, wealth, enjoy the greatest influence and prestige. It will be because it points out so definitely the hollowness of a title at a time when the world is already sufficiently convinced to understand and readily see the truth of such a contention.

Manuel Komroff lays claim to three previous novels—The Voice of Fire, Juggler's Kiss and The Grace of Lambs. He has also written a number of historical works and contributed to the New York Times literary supplement. Coronet may be found on the shelves of all the Grosse Pointe libraries.

This is a part of a program in worship education planned for the junior children.
