Village Interested in Motorbus Matter

The proposed action of the City of De troit toward removing the motor busses operated by the Detroit Motorbus Co., from Jefferson Avenue in Detroit, has awakened the interest of officials of the Village, who claim that a great deal of inconvenience as well as probable additional expense, will be suffered by residents of the Village and district if this action is car (ed out.

Under the present arrangement Grosse Pointe patrons of the Kerche val and Jefferson lines; both operated by the Detroit Motor Bus Co., are able to make direct connections with the downtown lines of this concern, with transfer privileges to these lines radiating to all parts of the city. By WILLIAM F. DORN [Editor of the Grosse Pointe Review]

In the boulder monument placed in Grosse Pointe Park's "Waterfront Park" and to be dedicated in the near future, a "History of Grosse Pointe" was placed in a permanent copper box in the base of the monument. Written by Fintan L. Henk, of 1235 Grayton road, a long time resident of the Pointe and for many years associated with Alfred J. Garska, president of the Grosse Pointe Park council, in the real estate business here, this "History of Grosse Pointe" is an authentic narrative relating developments and growth of Grosse Pointe from its inception. The information and Chicago, the president of the Amerihistorical data contained in this history was obtained by Mr. Henk from the official records of Wayne County, the State of Michigan and Grosse stamps and were part of the exhibition Pointe Township. The assembling of this data at the third annual stamp show of the into a connected and interesting story was an ard-

"FORGOTTEN"

Origin of the "Goodfellow" movement is creditably traced to the above newspaper illustration drawn many years ago by Tom May, veteran newspaper cartoonist. "Forgotten," he titled it, and his brain-child depicting the forlorn, deserted and destitute child at Christmas time, missing her just deserts of Christmas cheer, has moved the world to lend assistance. The Grosse Pointe Lions club sought to "Remember" the little ones in the community Christmas Day in their energetic efforts to raise a "Goodfellow Fund" today by selling this issue of the Review, inspired by the above illustration

TWO CRADLES

There is a cradle, snug and sound, A mother singing fullabies. A little child with wearied eyes. And angels keeping watch around: And as the mother thru the day. Sings to her darling, while he sleeps, Her eyes are turned from him away Up to the rugged hillside nigh. And still she sings, as still she weeps, This gentle Christmas Iullaby: Sleep little one, while angels keep. A holy watch, my darling sleep.

There is a cradle on the hill,

No gentle lullaby is heard, There is no mother's soothing word, To break the silence, deep and chill. A little narrow, mossy mound. A hillock 'neath the drifting snow, That robes the quiet burying ground: A little grave, while on the air. An echo from the vale below, Comes floating to the sleeper there: "Sleep little one, while angels keep, A holy watch, my darling sleep.

HISTORY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK

"Grosse Pointe—a post Village of Wayne County," this is the only description of Grosse Pointe found in George W. Hawe's Gazetteer and Business Directory for 1860, a few years before he start of the Civil War. The township at this time comprised all territory from what is known as Bewick Avenue, Detroit, to he Macomb County Line and extended a considerable distance northwest of the old Fort Gratiot Road, now known as Gratiot Avenue. All of this territory was formerly part of Hamtramck Township, but on April 1, 1848, it was set off as a separate Township and was named Grosse Pointe, from the point of land projecting into the water in the lower part of Lake St. Clair. On the older maps of Grosse Pointe the "Grand Marais" or Big Marsh s shown as forming the larger portion of the present Grosse Pointe Township. This marsh was waste land covered by water and flags. / Early history records show that Grosse Pointe was a favorite landing place for the Indians on their trips over from Canada and that on these occasions the red men would confiscate anything and everything they might want. Each year whole droves of cattle and horses would be driven off by them. Their tribes were then so powerful that the pioneers would not even offer resistance. In Pontiac's War and the War of 1812, two of the nost important battles were fought within these boundaries. The Indians buried their dead on the field of battle and at several pointes in Grosse Pointe Park their bones together with heads and other trinkets have been dug up.

All of the first inhabitants were French, and among those who came over in 1701 with Antoine deLamotte Cadillac, the founder of the City of Detroit, and many of whose descendants are still in Grosse Pointe, were the Beaufaits, St. Bernians, Vermices, Morains, Cadiways, Tronbles, Choies, St. Aubuins, Proncusals, Rivards, and Gouines. There is no record of other arrivals of particular importance until 82 years afterward when Michigan was ceded to the United States, then the Kerbeys, Grants, Martins first Americans who located here.

and Cunnios came here from the East. These were probably the It is related that in 1796 the great grandfather of Rufus M. Kerbey bought 120 acres of land from one, Donaldson, paying therefor 120 pounds. He also paid 50 pounds for a negro named Pompey, who was one of a number of slaves owned in the township in those times. It is related also that some traffic was done in white prisoners, who were brought in by the Indians, but these were generally set free. In one of the early histories it is mentioned that one of the Grants above named was a retired naval officer. He built a large log house which he dignified by the title of castle. It is said that he was of a "tyrannical, contumacious disposition" and the greater part of his work was done by seamen formerly under him whom he actually forced into his service. He seemed to have gained a complete ascendency over them. They never thought of disobeying his commands although he never paid them for their labor. His farm eventually passed into the possession of George Moran.

In a history of Grosse Pointe Township contained in "Illustrated Historical Atlas of Wayne County—1876," it is related that "there are a goodly number of aged Frenchmen living here, one of them, Pierre St. George, still living at the great age of 102 years; their long lives being doubtless attributable to the abstemious and careful habits of their fathers and themselves." It is also stated that the climate of Grosse Pointe is very "salubrious and conductive to longevity. The land is rich, rolling and in a very high state of cultivation. In early days there was, comparatively speaking, no market for grain and other produce but the great and growing. demand of the City of Detroit in later years has brought the greater portion of the township under cultivation. It also proved an incentive to market gardening and fruit culture."

In 1876 the population of the entire Grosse Pointe district was 3,000 of which 500 were children. Among the earliest township officers we find the following:

Supervisor ..... George Moran Clerk ..... Robert Baiton Dagobert Juriff ..John Gouine Jr. James Baiton School Inspector ...... John Gouine Sr. School Inspector ...... George Githrie Justice of Peace ..... Francis VanAntwerp Justice of Peace ..... Frank Juriff Justice of Peace Daniel Corby Justice of Peace George Martin

In the Michigan State Gazetteer published by R. L. Polk and Company in 1883, we read the following description of Grosse

GROSSE POINTE

"With a population of about 200, is a somewhat fashionable suburb of Detroit, and is located on the shore of Lake St. Clair. eight miles northeast of the city. Garden produce, fruit, fish, grain are the principal exports. Considerable improvements have been made here within the last few years by the erection of handsome residences, owned principally by merchants of Detroit. The locality making it a yerk desirable point for health and comfort in the summer season. It has now a large dock, extending 800 feet into the lake, four churches—two Catholic, English Protestant and German Lutheran-and several schools. Fishing, which is the foremost industry, has lately grown to considerable proportions, and large numbers of muskallonge, whitefish, herring, etc., are marketed. Mail by special supply. Many interesting and amusing incidents are recalled by some of the older residents of Grosse Pointe Park who are still living. They tell of the "haunted house" which was located on the old Chauvin farm at what is now Hillger Avenue (City of Detroit), but what was then a part of Grosse Pointe. On this farm stood an old ramshackle dwelling occupied by one, Charles Chauvin, who lead a solitary existence. He was reputed to be quite wealthy and to have his money hidden in his house. One dark night he was murdered and from that time on the house was never again occupied citizens of that day shuddered when they passed and many wor the "haunted
