Lions Club In Pointe Celebrate Anniversary By Charter Day Rites

The Grosse Pointe Lions Club celebrated their Third Anniversary and Charter Day on Thursday noon, Jan. 21, 1932, at the Detroit Social Turnverein.

Committee: Dr. J. P. Jaxtiner, chairman; S. M. Brownell, Wm. Bantlin, Roy S. Smylie.

Entertainment: The Ford Motor Co. "Quinter" (through the courtesy of Alfred Steiner Co., Ford Dealers) made a hit with the boys, especially "At" Garska, John Kerby, Chas. DuPont, when they sang their famous lullabys. Chief Smylie and his Grosse Pointe Lions Club Orchestra (Finzel's) entertained the club again. "The Chief," acted as lead of the orchestra and also as Master of ceremonies.

V. C. Werville, the club's own entertainer, lead the club singing and sang several solo numbers.

Jul W. Berns, the granddaddy of the club, attended and spoke on the club history.

Most all of the charter members, including several who are no longer members of the club attended and signed the charter, the charter was fittingly placed on a table surrounded by yellow and purple carnations the club colors.

Jul L. Berns, immediate past president of the club, was the principle speaker.

Mrs. Roy Smylie arranged the decorations in the club room and also the table decorations.

The club through its Goodfellow Fund Newspaper Sale has done a great deal of relief work in Grosse Pointe Township. This fund is closely guarded by the directors of the club. Its principal distributing agency is the Neighborhood Club, which investigates all relief requests and sees that proper food, clothing and fuel is provided. A report from Mr. Elsworth of the Neighborhood Club states that no family in Grosse Pointe Township that they knew of, was without the proper care at Christmas time.

The Club has made its principle activity "The Goodfellow Fund" an outstanding success, all the money collected is used entirely for relief work, nothing is expended from this fund for expenses of any kind.

This Goodfellow fund organized three years ago in a blinding snow storm to take care of immediate relief, such as providing food, fuel, clothing, medical and hospital care has done much to relieve the suffering in this community, during 1931 the Goodfellow fund distributed 316 pairs of shoes and 39 pairs of rubbers and galoshes.

The Grosse Pointe Lions Club is growing steadily, its membership has increased about 20% during the past year. The Club holds a luncheon meeting every Thursday noon at 12:15 p. m. at the Detroit Social Turnverein.

Wernet Decides G. P. Victory Over Pontiac In Thrilling Climax

Wernet in the last 15 seconds to play, scored the basket which gave Grosse Pointe victory over the Pontiac five, last Friday night. The Pontiac boys led the score 18-17, when, amid terrific shouting from the filled stands of spectators, Wernet received a perfect pass from Thibodeau, and being clear for a moment shot. The ball was directed from nearly directly beneath the basket. The game ended a few seconds after this startling play, score Grosse Pointe 19 to Pontiac's 18.

Throughout the entire game, both teams were exceedingly rough, but playing very good basketball. Grosse Pointe showed up her opponent in accurate foul shots all through the game. Pontiac took the small score from the beginning of the game and the Pointers held a good lead at the half, 7 to 11. At the end of the third quarter was a race continually from one end of the floor to the other, each basket made by one team, the other duplicated immediately. This was just what happened in the last few minutes of play. Pontiac took the lead by a good shot and Grosse Pointe fans fearfully wondered if the home team would duplicate it! She did!

What to Eat And How to Prepare it

By ELIZABETH MONAGHAN

The story of The Kronprinz Wilhelm I

Previous to the war the Kronprinz Wilhelm was a palatial Transatlantic passenger steamship belonging to the North German Lloyd. In 1914 it was converted into a German raider and sent out on the high seas to sink merchant vessels bound with supplies to the Allies. Leaving Hoboken Aug. 3, 1914, its officers and crew thoroughly understood that they could not again touch port until the war was over. They were out at sea for nine months before the tragedy which we are about to record occurred to their men. During this time they captured, bombed and sunk 14 vessels. Each of these vessels was robbed of its food and fuel supply before being sunk. From each of them the Germans took practically the same things. Plenty of white flour, white biscuits, sweet crackers, butter (or oleo), potatoes, canned vegetables, fresh meat, condensed milk, tea and coffee, and refined sugar.

Two of the vessels sunk were bound for Liverpool with whole cargoes of fresh meats. These the Germans cannamed into their own perfect refrigerator system. (Some they salted and corned. They had meat enough to feast upon and to last them indefinitely.) Two other vessels were laden with cargoes of whole wheat. From these the Germans took only the available white flour, butter, potatoes, and canned vegetables, ham, bacon, etc. They sent the precious wheat to the bottom. The Germans had known what was going on in their own bodies, if they had known the priceless value to themselves of the phosphorous, potassium and calcium salts contained in that whole wheat, they would have gathered and stored and guarded it as so much unalloyed gold.

But the Germans did not know they were sick. They did not know that the absence of these minerals was slowly robbing their tissues of life and bringing about a condition of acidosis, which would eventually cause 100 of them to drop without warning paralyzed, to the deck. They were eating typical American meals—plenty of fresh meat, boiled or washed potatoes, canned vegetables, white bread and butter (or oleo), tea and coffee with sugar and condensed milk. These in various appetizing forms they ate three times a day plus a substantial mid-afternoon lunch. Out in the fresh air of the open seas fed up with these typical American meals they should have been feeling very fit indeed.

They paid little or no attention to lesser ills or symptoms of lowering vitality and it was not until the conditions became extreme and the men completely incapacitated that the ship's surgeon (Dr. Perrenon) became seriously alarmed. Some of the men collapsed after they had been out six to eight months but in April, the ninth month, they began going down like ten pins at the rate of two to five a day; some of them keeping up until the last minute and then dropping helpless to the deck, 110 of them were down. Dr. Perrenon found himself totally unable to relieve the suffering of the men. One thing he knew:—That he must make a dash for some neutral port at once or they would be out on the high seas manned with 500 dead bodies. Accordingly they headed for America and on April 11, 1915, arrived at Newport News in the James River after having been out on the high seas just nine months and eight days.

Local Library Shows Rapid Growth

The second annual report, recently compiled and distributed by the Grosse Pointe Public Library, is a very interesting little document and a perusal of it reveals the very rapid growth and importance of this service in the community. The foreword reviews the development of library service from January 1922, when a small outpost was opened in Grosse Pointe Shores through the interest of Mr. George Osious, the then President of the Shores, down to 1926 when the Neighborhood Club, with George Ellworthy as Director, adding a circulating library to the activities of the club, opened a branch at the old quarters on Oak street. Through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Ferry and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Whitcomb cooperating with the Neighborhood Club, the new branch in Grosse Pointe Village was opened in November, 1927 at the present location at the corner of St. Clair avenue and Waterloo. This commenced the real development of the system when a librarian with professional standards was assigned to the section. Beginning July 1929, local funds were appropriated through a contract

WEEKLY CHAT

By A. A. PILKINGTON

Progression and not depression should be the slogan. People everywhere since the stock crash of 1929 have been clamoring and crying about "depression," people have talked about it so much that it has almost become a reality in some of their lives. It is the most drastic and damaging propaganda that has ever been created. Life is both made miserable and destroyed through it. Despondency and discouragement is its foundation and the falsity of it is empty, yet everybody takes it for granted that there is no salvation from it.—What are we going to do about it? Has the human race arrived at the end of the road?—The spirit within cries onward ever onward—of course we are going to have reconstruction periods and changes with alterations which just means the natural law of life, "progression." The outgrowth of these conditions will only prove to the betterment of everyone concerned—that which is administered best, is best for all. So in the realm of present conditions let us make the best of what we have and indeed be grateful and thankful for what little we may have and pass on a smile to our fellowman with real earnestness and cheerfulness. Don't wait until tomorrow, start right in today.

A young man down and out approached the entrance of a widely known business men's club and accosted a well dressed man asking for a quarter to get something to eat with. The man stopped for a moment, eyed the stranger from head to foot, then reached in his pocket for his card case. Carefully taking out a calling card he gave it to the young man and said: (Continued on Page Three)

Army Honors Detroit Youth for Valor With Official 1931 Award

An officer who sacrificed his life to save one of his men and a private who risked his life to save an officer from a burning airplane have been named by a board of Air Corps officers of the regular army for the Cheney Award, which is made annually to the officer or enlisted man of the regular army, Air Corps or the Air Corps Reserve performing the outstanding act of the year in valor or extreme fortitude or self-sacrifice in connection with flying. Announcement of the awards was made by Major General Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth Corps Area.

The officer named was Lieutenant Robert D. Moor, Air Corps who was killed while on duty at Detroit with the Michigan National Guard as an instructor. The private is John B. Smith now a member of the Flight "B," 16th Observation Squadron at Fort Benning, Georgia.

The award was established in 1927 in memory of First Lieutenant William H. Cheney, Air Service, who was killed in an air collision at Foggia, Italy, on January 20, 1918, announcement of the award being made each year on that anniversary. The donors of the award fund are Mrs. Mary L. Schofield, of Peterboro, New Hampshire, and Mrs. Thomas W. (Ruth Cheney) Streeter, of Morristown, New Jersey, mother and sister, respectively, of the late lieutenant Cheney.

This year the acts of heroism of Lieutenant Moor and Private Smith were of such calibre that it was decided to award it to both of them.

Dog Licenses

Licenses for dogs for the year beginning February 1, 1932, are now being issued by the Village at the Village Clerks office at 17150 Maumee avenue, according to the advertisement appearing elsewhere in this issue. Residents of the Village who own dogs are urged to secure licenses for them during February as after the one month period a census is taken and all animals found unlicensed are impounded and if the owner does not, within a reasonable time, secure such license, the dog is sold or destroyed. During 1931, 435 dogs were licensed in the Village and 49 were impounded of which number 24 were destroyed.

In this connection, it is worthy of note that many complaints have been received from residents as to the matter of owners who thoughtlessly allow dogs to enter stores, especially establishments such as groceries and markets. The Board of Health also has been complained to and without doubt legislation to discourage this will be adopted in the near future.

Baptist Pastor Speaks On Youth's Problems

"Do not look at the physical intimacies of love, look through them, straight through them as holy symbols of holy things." This sentence is the key thought of the address by the Rev. Wayland Zwyayer at the Jefferson Avenue Baptist Church last Sunday night when he spoke on "Taking Liberties With Love" the second of a group of talks on "Love's Place in Life." He said in part:

"I wish I could stand before every boy and girl at the dawning of adolescence and say to each: It is up to you! Up to you as it was never put up to boys and girls before, for the world is giving you greater liberty of conduct than it ever before gave to young people. Our young people are on their own as they never were before. I shall not discuss tonight whether or not it is a right thing that the restraints of the past have been withdrawn. The fact is that they are withdrawn—partly because older people are no longer sure that the restraints of the past were right, partly because older people have lost their grip or do not care, partly because modern circumstances make restraint difficult.

"I should also like to say this to the boys and girls. You will find more things which will try to pull you down than ever before. But also you will find more things which are willing to help you get up, more understanding than ever before.

"Love expresses itself in quite a number of very beautiful ways, and some of the most beautiful expressions of love are to be found in love's physical intimacies. The physical impulses that belong to love are not love—their satisfaction will not bring love. Love expresses itself so beautifully in the consummation of sexual attraction that youth is inclined to view the satisfaction of physical impulses or instincts as in themselves love. That is putting the cart before the horse. You can no more take the beautiful symbolism of love out of its setting, and retain its beauty than you can fill a bucket with dewdrops and keep in them the life, the sparkle they had when in their rightful place among the grasses and the leaves. A bucket full of water is not a bucket full of dew drops. The greater the symbolism, the more horrible its perversion. The sacred symbolism of love used by Judas to betray Jesus made his deed everlasting awful. The perversion of the symbolism of love can be viewed as nothing less than the prostitution of sacred and holy things. For all that belongs to love is divine, in its origin, and holy in its quality. And what I have been saying is not alone for youth—it is a message to be remembered by more mature age—it is a message for the married as well as for the unmarried.

"Taking love's things and playing with them will break down within you very quickly the capacity to love. And if you miss love, you will miss the greatest thing God ever gave to man." During February the Rev. Mr. Zwyayer will continue with discussions on "The Courtship," "How To Marry," "Husband and Wife" and "The Completed Home." Members of the Jefferson Baptist Congregation are invited to present questions on these subjects which Mr. Zwyayer answers the following Sunday night.

Urge Trapping of Moles

The best way to get rid of moles in lawns and gardens is to trap them, says the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. If there are only a few, good results may be obtained by dropping moth balls in the runways at the edge of the lawn or garden.

Subsist on Moss

The food of Rocky Mountain goats seems to consist chiefly of the short almost lichen-like moss that grows on the rocks and in the crevices between them.

Grace Church

Kercheval at Lakepointe, Armin Haussler, pastor.

The subject of the sermon next Sunday morning will be in the form of a proposition. Here it is—"Making New Things is not Making Things New." No puristic quibbling is involved; there is a real difference and one that has a very vital bearing on the difficulties of every age. We are going through much confusion and we need a grip on the basic spiritual realities of life. We meet for congregational worship at Grace every Sunday morning at 10:45. Strangers are always welcome.

The church school convenes at 9:20. Our superintendent, Mr. Stanley H. Hall, prepares programs of interest to young and old. We are anxious to enroll children who receive no course in religious education elsewhere.

WEEKLY CHAT

"You don't need a quarter, you need something else—find it, then come back and see me." He walked away leaving this young man dumfounded and bewildered wondering what next to do. As he slowly walked down to the next corner he saw a little urchin crying and struggling with a package of groceries much too heavy for his little hands. The stranger took in the situation at a glance and helped the little fellow to his home which happened to prove a humble boarding house. He had fulfilled his mission and was about to start back when a kindly voice called to him and said, "won't you please come in?" And beckoned him in." He told his story and the first kind words for a man he had found refuge in a discouraged heart—Soon he felt quite at home. With new ideals in his heart that night he slept well and the very next morning he started out to look for a job all fresh and fit. It so happened that on passing the open door of a box factory near the shipping room entrance he gazed in. No one seemed to be around, in the center of the floor was a box with hammer and nails idly there. The box apparently was in the process of being nailed together. The young man walked in looked around, then took off his coat and hat and started in nailing up the box. Shortly afterwards an elderly man approached and asked who had started him, the young man thought for a little while then reached into his pocket, produced the calling card given to him the day before. The elderly man read it then with a smile of approval, nodded to the young man to carry on. Weeks passed on and the job became a big thing in this young man's life. In the evenings he would go back to the box factory and assist the shipping clerk who really had more than he could do. Finally the shipping clerk quit his job. The foreman knowing what this strange young man had done promoted him to shipping clerk. It wasn't long until he was made assistant superintendent. One day the general manager wanted to know why this young man had been selected for assistant superintendent. The superintendent looked surprised and said, "Why you know this young man, you are the one that hired him." The general manager insisted that he did not know him nor ever had heard of him, whereupon they sent for the new assistant superintendent to come to the main office. So he unfolded his story in sequence and much to the amazement of the general manager handed back the calling card that gave him his first real start in life.

Definite Price Put on Native Wife in Africa

When an Inhabant native of Portuguese East Africa wants to get married he usually goes to Johannesburg to work in the gold mines for the price of a wife, Miss Ruth Thomas, a St. Louis missionary recently returned from there, says. The price of a native wife is $75, which must be paid to her father.

"The prospective bridegroom marches into the home of the father," Miss Thomas reports, "and says in a bold tone, 'Do the cattle eat here?' (Inhabantian for 'Are there any marriageable girls here?')

"If the father replies affirmatively the boy produces the 'bride price' and asks for his daughter's hand. The father answers that the young man must obtain the consent of his daughter.

"If the daughter is obstinate it may require a good deal of arguing on the part of the parent to change her view. Seldom, however, does a prospective father-in-law allow $75 to slip away from him.

"When an agreement has been reached the two kneel before the father for his blessing. He fills his mouth with water and sprays the bride's face and then does the same thing to the bridegroom. That is the wedding."—Exchange.

Famous Jewel Given to Britain by American

A gracious gesture of Anglo-American friendship preserved the famous "Canning Jewel" until recently the property of the earl of Harewood, for Great Britain, says the Montreal Family Herald. This wonderful gold pendant, which is one of the finest examples of the art of the Renaissance jewelers, was sold for $50,000. It was presented to the Victoria and Albert museum, in London, by an American friend who wished to remain anonymous. The Canning Jewel is a link with the Indian mutiny. It was found in the king of Oudh's treasury when Delhi was captured by the British, and acquired by Earl Canning, who was governor general of India during this troublous period. Originally, it is believed, the jewel was sent to one of the Mogul emperors, as a gift from the grand duke of Tuscany. The central part of the ornament is in the form of a triton, or merman, the upper portion of whose body is composed of a huge baroque pearl, while his face is of turquoise blue enamel. He holds a ruby in his mouth.

Scientific Fancy
One eminent astronomer thinks the whole universe was evolved from a single atom. We wouldn't have imagined less than two.—Duluth Herald.

Billions of Dwellers in the Ocean's Depths

Only 115 kinds of fish were known to the great naturalist and philosopher, Aristotle, whilst Pliny, who lived a good deal later, knew 176, and thought that there could not well be more. Today more than 20,000 kinds of fishes are known, and new species are discovered at the rate of about a hundred every year. We are finding out, too, new facts of the most surprising kind about fish that have been known to man since the earliest ages.

Few realize the teeming population of the seas. Did you know that the Atlantic alone yields every year 400,000,000 cod and 3,000,000,000 herring? This means that the number of herring caught each year is considerably greater than that of the human population of the world. Yet there is no sign that their numbers are decreasing, despite the war waged upon them.

Nor is man the greatest of the herring's foes. He is probably among the least dangerous of their enemies. The herring is a food fish. Its business is to feed upon the minute animals and vegetables that float near the surface of the sea, and, by means of these, to convert its own body into food for larger fish. Salmon, hake, dogfish, and tunny, to mention a few, all live upon herrings, and a single one of such fish may require as many as forty or fifty herrings to provide a day's meals.—London Tit-Bits.

Islands Come and Go When Earth Is Shaken

Two uncharted islands appear off the coast of Brazil, the product of a sub-oceanic volcano and the property of whoever claims them first. They are hailed as possible landing places for transatlantic airplanes. Two nations see in them valuable refueling bases, and dispatch fast navy ships in a race for priority. And when one of the ships comes, it sails over the place where the islands were reported, for they have disappeared.

The same story is repeated several times a year. The earth, usually thought of as solidly itself, rises and dives again like a porpoise; no one can predict where it will bob up next, though some favorite playgrounds are familiar. Japan is rocked by an earthquake and the island of Sankai disappears. The British hydrographic department issues a statement that "the existence of Dougherty Island has been disproved" and orders all references to the vagrant to be expunged from official publications.

Flowers and Tragedies

In these days the flowers have been found to blame for many tragedies. These guilty blossoms are generally water lilies and edelweiss. The water lilies are those so tempting blossoms floating upon the water, always a little farther from the boat or from the shore than they appear to be. The edelweiss, too, always grows a little beyond the reach of the hand, upon the edge of an abrupt precipice or upon the remotest side of a fathomless crevasse. What is the tragic result? Excursionists wish to pluck the water lilies, fall into the flood and are drowned. Mountain climbers strive to gather edelweiss and fall to their death in some abyss. The flowers are alone responsible for these tragedies, for have they not lured their victims to their fate—or at least suggested that certain risks are part of the pleasure of vacationing?—Le Matin, Paris.

Real Gratitude

The obligations of gratitude, like all approved obligations, are a low form of morality. Real gratitude does not consist in loving a person who does us a service and in doing him a service in return. Gratitude consists in profiting by the service that has been done so that we can act as well as possible toward the man who did us the favor and toward all men, toward the whole of humankind and not only toward the individual to whom we are grateful. He has no right to anything more. Perhaps the service he has rendered turns out well for him, perhaps it brings him harm, but this is a secondary matter.—Frederic Paulhan in Nouvelle Revue, Francaise, Paris.

Novel Counting Method

In classical Athens 1,500 years ago, music was a very important subject in the curriculum of a boy's school. Intensive study of vocal music, and playing of the lyre, began at a boy's thirteenth year. The playing of the flute was left to professionals, as it distorted the face. Sometimes, however, music was not justified of her children, for it is related that one music master of the time could only obtain two pupils. But in his studio were the statues of the appropriate deities of the art, the nine Muses and Apollo to wit. And when this music teacher was asked how many pupils he had he would reply: "With the help of the gods, twelve!"

Not a True Spider

"Daddy-long-legs" is an arachnid of the order Phalangida, more correctly called harvestman. The members of this group of invertebrates superficially resemble the true spiders, but have a small, rounded body composed of an indistinctly jointed cephalothorax to which the broad, short abdomen consisting of six segments is joined. Most of the forms have very long, slender legs and are popularly called daddy-long-legs. They feed on small insects, do not spin webs and are perfectly harmless.

Most of us are really two persons instead of one.—American Magazine.

Kukui Nut Has Added to Wealth of Hawaii

A profitable industry has developed in Hawaii, in the extraction of oil of the kukui-nut tree.

In days gone by, a business of respectable size was built up around this commodity, the output reaching about 10,000 gallons a month in 1850. The oil was then used for lighting homes, the nuts being burned after being strung together on a stick. It also was employed as a wood preservative. Modern chemists have seen its value in the manufacture of soft soap, oil varnishes, paints and linoleums.

The kukui trees grow wild on every island of the territory, huge groves of them flourishing in many mountain valleys. It is estimated that there are not less than 15,000 acres of the trees. From this source not less than 75,000 tons of nuts might be gathered annually. Even should the yield be reduced to 50,000 tons, due to the inaccessibility of some of the trees, the commercial yield still would be in the neighborhood of 2,500,000 gallons of oil for twelve months.

Actual Kiss of Death on Criminal Records

A case is on record in which a woman's kiss actually poisoned a young man. The man in question was in prison, and was allowed to receive a female relative. Smartly dressed and veiled the woman spoke to the prisoner through the cell bars. On the point of leaving she suddenly raised her veil and with her face close to the bars, passionately kissed the young man. Then, sobbing bitterly, she walked out of the prison to a waiting car. The warden returned to the cell to find the prisoner dead on the floor. Between his lips was a discolored cigarette paper. The woman had secreted the poisoned cigarette paper, impregnated with cyanide of potassium, between her lips, and during the kiss had managed to transfer it to the lips of the prisoner. The woman was never traced.

When Tea Was a Luxury

When tea was first introduced into England it was highly regarded and very expensive, as the opportunities for securing it were rare. Since tea was such an expensive luxury, drinking the beverage was almost a rite. No unseemly haste marked tea drinking. When tea was to be served, it was appropriate to give a party, and surrounded by friends to sip the beverage with appreciative taste. Tea drinking thus has become a pastime, as strongly entrenched as theater going is today.

As more and more was learned of the cultivation of tea leaves, the quantity of tea became larger and its use for drinking purposes increased. It has become today the most popular beverage. In the English theater tea is served on matinee days, both before and behind the curtain. It is served on the railroad trains in England.

The Jordan River

It is a fact that the Jordan is the only river of Palestine. For more than two-thirds of its course the river is below the level of the sea. It runs into an inland sea (the Dead sea), which has no port and is destitute of aquatic life; it has never been navigable, and no considerable town has ever been built on its banks. Sugar cane was grown in the valley of the Jordan in the days of the crusaders, and is still grown. Generally the Jordan is a dirty stream, and the inhabitants of the valley are mainly migratory.

Birch Biting a Lost Art

Birch biting is now an abandoned art, but 50 or 60 years ago it was one of the ways in which the Indian women of the Chippewa tribe used to express their love of the ornate. They would fold thin pieces of birch bark several times and then bite small pieces out of the folded material. When opened the bark would show geometric patterns of rough lines of leaves, flowers or other objects. Specimens of this art have been preserved and are now on display at the National museum at Washington.

Must Pay for Everything

We enjoy nothing today for which someone in the near or distant past has not paid the price. That truth is the great corrective of pride and selfishness. Men are blind when they swagger and live narrowly and meanly for themselves. They profess to be able to live their own lives without help from others. They grow eloquent about their independence. But all the time they are ignoring a debt which is too great ever to be repaid.—Rev. Sidney M. Berry, D. D.

Hawaiian Islands Ancient

The Hawaiian Islands voluntarily joined up with the United States in 1898. But that's a very short time compared with the real age of the islands. One ancient Hawaiian tradition has it that they are "so old that 1,000 generations are but youth." Dr. Arthur Star Baskie, mineralogist of the University of California, estimates them to be at least 1,000,000 years old.

Poetical Duty
It is not enough for a poet to make it known in dulcet and thrilling terms that he is taken by his gal; he must also offer his reasons for saying that she exists, and define love in the mystical vocabulary of Plotinus.—H. L. Mencken.
