L. Lawton, New York City. Mrs. Lawton is chairman of the National Council for Protection of Roadside Beauty.

Mrs. Lawton will be the guest of Mrs. D. M. Ferry during the Show period. The Committee think that this lecture will be of great interest to garden enthusiasts as well as the motoring public.

Instructions in Voting Procedure

During the recent period of re-registration of all electors the comment was made many times by persons who had not as yet voted, or by those who were shortly to vote for the first time that they were hesitant about casting their first ballot because it seemed to be an awesome or difficult task. Many expressed a desire for instructions prior to the actual election, and with this in mind, and believing that this assistance may be of benefit to Villagers who are voting for the first time or who may be confused by a lack of experience or knowledge in the matter, the Village extends an invitation to all residents who may wish to call at the office at 17150 Maumee avenue on Monday, September 12, during office hours: 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. and an effort will be made to answer all questions and to instruct, as far as possible, all beginners in the proper procedure in balloting. Naturally no response will be made to any questions on Candidates, Parties or their Platform.

Let's remember our friend, Howard A. Starret for Congress, Democratic.

Herman R. Lau

Herman R. Lau, Wayne County Treasurer and a candidate in the Republican primaries of Sept. 13 to succeed himself embraces all of the qualities demanded by a wise selection for the administration of the affairs of that office.

Patrick J. O'Grady

In the placing of Patrick J. O'Grady's name on the Republican ballot for Sheriff, the people of Wayne County will have the opportunity of voting for the greatest law-enforcing officer that the Middle West has ever had.

Patrick J. O'Grady's rugged honesty and colorful record of twenty-six years of meritorious service in the Detroit Police Department, rising from the rank of patrolman to that of Superintendent, is eloquent evidence of his fitness for the office of Sheriff of Wayne County.

He won a national reputation as an ace detective in his numerous and daring captures of notorious hold-up men and bank robbers.

His police pension, honestly earned, he will turn over to the Relief Fund for Unemployed during his term as Sheriff if elected. He also intends divorcing politics from the Sheriff's office, and advocates an efficient and economical administration.

O'Grady seeks the support of all law-abiding citizens of Wayne County, and will assure active cooperation and fair-minded respect for all other law-enforcing departments in the County. He has an untarnished record to be proud of, and asks his supporters to conduct a clean-cut campaign and refrain from any political "mud-slinging" whatsoever.

If elected to the office of Sheriff, O'Grady promises to see that all laws are enforced, and also pledges that no (Continued on Page Two)

Let's remember our friend, Howard A. Starret for Congress, Democratic.

Forbes Robertson

The candidacy of Forbes Robertson for the Republican nomination of State Representative, First District comprising entire Detroit, Township of Grosse Pointe and Gratiot at the coming Primary election, Sept. 13. Should have the support of all fair minded citizens. A native of Detroit, he has been honored by the citizens of Detroit and Wayne County, by retaining him nine years in office as County Treasurer and County Auditor.

His services are a matter of record, and have well prepared him, through experience, to take up the fight for the thorough revision of the Michigan Tax Laws, to lighten the burden of the Home owners by using other sources to share in obtaining funds for government expenses and which should be reduced.

Louis C. Rabaut

Louis C. Rabaut, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 14th District has made such headway as to bring expressed admiration from the daily press. A political novice but well known for his many activities over a period of years. He has drawn to his supposed voters from all walks of life. His nomination and election would place a courageous, able and true personal agent for the people of the 14th District in Washington. Think That Over.

David Gordon

"David Gordon, candidate for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer, is making his campaign on 1932 lines, stressing the need of better and less costly administration of this vitally important office in the county's business affairs.

"While any candidate for public support can make promises, force is given to Mr. Gordon's campaign by the fact that he has had seven years' experience as chief deputy to the County Treasurer and is more intimately acquainted with the duties and business details of the office than any other man in Wayne County.

"Gordon was the first outstanding public official to attack the evil of nepotism in the employment of office assistants, starting his attack four years ago. Recently much publicity has been given to the widespread employment in county offices and in Detroit city offices of family members and "in-laws" (Continued on Page 2)

Vote Early Next Tuesday

Approximately 2000 residents of the Village have registered in the re-registration period just closed and officials are urging that all Village residents arrange to vote as early in the day as possible in order to avoid a tedious wait in line as the time for closing the polls (8:00 P. M.) approaches. All indications are that this will be the largest election ever had in the Township and electors are reminded that it is possible to cast their ballots beginning at seven o'clock in the morning. Further, this is the first instance in which an election will be conducted in the district under the new, Permanent Registration Act and it is possible that a certain amount of confusion can result. All electors will be rendering a great service to the personnel of the Election Board as well as enhancing their own convenience if they will vote early and avoid the rush at the last few hours with attendant confusion. As a means of assisting electors, the Village Clerk will endeavor to instruct and assist all electors who will call at the Village office, 171550 Maumee Avenue, on Monday, September 12 the day before election.

Robert H. Clancy

Rep. Robert H. Clancy told a radio audience Monday night that he considered the attacks of the Rev. R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, "an honor and my badge of American manhood."

"A few years ago the nine directors of the Anti-Saloon League, at a Chicago meeting, considered undertaking the impeachment of President Calvin Coolidge and rejected the proposal only by a five to four vote," he said. "But at least the American people are in revolt against the League. For many years I have debated prohibition with Mr. Holsapple and in each primary and in each election he has always thrown the full strength of the League against me.

"We have clashed whenever prohibition agents or customs border patrolmen shot and wounded or killed innocent Americans, and I have won that fight to a degree because no innocent Americans have been shot on the Detroit front for about 11 months." (Continued on Page Four)

Henry Behrendt

"Arthur Dingeman has resorted to such low tactics in his campaign for sheriff that he has placed himself beneath the notice of the people whose votes he asks for," Sheriff Henry Behrendt declared this week in addresses before groups of voters throughout the county.

"When this campaign started I pledged myself not to indulge in personalities," the sheriff told his audiences. "I felt that both of my Republican opponents were gentlemen and I would do likewise. I can still call one a gentleman, but not the other.

"Dingeman, who styles himself a public servant, has shown himself unfit for further public favor. He has resorted to lies and deceptions. Unable to justify criticize my record as sheriff he has resorted to statements no candidate for any office should voice. I consider him and his accusations as contemptible. He has lied bravely about himself and his career as councilman and ignominiously about me. Perhaps he feels his own actual record is such that he can best divert attention away from it by painting false pictures of others. By this very action he has proved himself wholly unqualified to be sheriff or to hold any other responsible public office.

"Mr. O'Grady has conducted himself in a gentlemanly fashion, but he has in no way proven his capacities for the (Continued on Page Four)

Swordfish Capable of Piercing Steel Plate
In length the two types of swordfish are about 15 feet, and they are found in all the seas of the world. In shape this large fish is beautifully stream-lined, while on that species known also as the sailfin, there is a long fin running down the whole length of the back. The creature uses this as a sail when traveling on the surface.
It is not easy to realize the tremendous power the swordfish is able to generate when it attacks. For some unknown reason it will charge such large prey as whales, but if, by repeated thrusts with its sword, it managed to kill one, it would be impossible for it to make a meal, for the swordfish has no teeth, and swallows its prey whole.
The sword is about a yard in length, and looks like a long pointed nose, but it is as hard as ivory and has great penetrating powers. In 1795 a British warship was being repaired, and it was found that a swordfish had attacked it, leaving the broken-off sword embedded in the hull. This had pierced one inch of sheathing and had gone through nine inches of solid wood. In the South Kensington museum, London, there is a block of wood which has been penetrated to a depth of 27 inches, while there are records of this sword going through more than a foot of timber.

Fly Seen as Scavenger in Scheme of Nature
We know now, as the ancients of Old Testament days did not know, how dangerous flies are to health by reason of their fondness for foul or decaying matter. In fact, their function in nature would appear to be the destruction of corrupting material by their maggots. The danger of their presence, especially of their biting or stinging, comes from the contamination they bring from their connection with the poisons of decaying material. How terribly diseases may be spread by the swarming myriads of flies of various species in hot countries, we in our temperate climates can only imagine.
"Flies of Death," is the striking figure "the Preacher, the Son of David, King of Jerusalem," Solomon the Wise uses (Ecclesiastes 10:1, margin) when he would signify the awful damage insignificant things may do. "Flies of Death, cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savour; so doth a little folly him that is in reputation for wisdom and honor."

"Passing the Buck"
"It is our observation that every time we get into trouble it is due to not having been lazy enough," says Christopher Morley in the Golden Book Magazine. "The man who is really thoroughly, and philosophically slothful is the only thoroughly happy man. It is the happy man who benefits the world. The conclusion is inescapable. . . . Mind your business is a good counsel; but mind your idleness also. It's a tragic thing to make a business of your mind. Save your mind to amuse yourself with. The lazy man does not stand in the way of progress. When he sees progress roaring down upon him he steps nimbly out of the way. The lazy man doesn't (in the vulgar phrase) pass the buck. He lets the buck pass him."

Desert Men
"Day after day, the silent men of the desert go forward across its monotonous horizons; their mouths are flanked with these two deep lines of patience and of sorrow which you may note today in all the ghettos of Europe; their smile, when they smile, is restrained by a sort of ironic strength in the muscles of the face. Their eyes are more bright than should be eyes of happy men; they are, as it were, injured to sterility; there is nothing in them of that repose which we westerners acquire from a continual contemplation of deep pastures and of innumerable leaves; they are at war, not only among themselves, but against the good earth; in a silent and powerful way they are also afraid.—Hilaire Belloc.

Woman Suffrage
Since England launched in 1847 the earliest known handbill for women's suffrage, the crusade for equal rights has circled the globe. The Woman's Rights convention at Worcester, Mass., in October, 1850, followed seven years later by the formation of England's Female Political association, strengthened a movement that continued to make history. Formation of the English organization resulted, after many vicissitudes, in conferring the franchise on women property owners in the Isle of Man about 1880. But not until 1918 was full suffrage granted to the women of England.

Spider Lore
Wolf spiders are the hunting spiders that chase their prey and may be seen running through the grass or lurking under stones, especially in damp places. A variety, lycosa nidifix, is also classed among the turret builders and is sometimes called the turret spider. Its home is a tunnel in the ground topped by a small turret of whatever material may be at hand held together with silken threads. Turret spiders making their homes along railroad tracks have been known to build these turrets of cinders, while small stones and twigs are also used for this purpose.

Man's Ingenuity Tested by Turbulent River Po
The Po valley is unique among European river basins, because of its great extent of almost level land for great distances inland. Viewed on a relief map, this great tongue of lowland is seen to cut upland Italy almost in two.
Not long ago, geographically, the sea extended into northern Italy along the foot of the Alps almost to the present French border. The Po basin in this old gulf, filled with alluvial material washed down from the mountains. The relatively large flow of the Po, especially at certain seasons, is owing to the fact that the basin is hemmed in on three sides by mountains (the Alps to north and west, the Apennines to the south) and that the run-off from these heights is at times very rapid.
The river flows along virtually the entire stretch of the Italian Alps, and receives water from most of their southern southern glaciers and lakes.
Because the plain of the Po is so nearly level, particularly in its seaward half, the river has brought disastrous floods to the residents along its course, throughout historic times. Even during the early days of Rome, it was necessary to build dikes and embankments to restrain the rising waters.

"Individualism" in Ants and Mankind Compared
Social evolution among ants stretches back at least one hundred million years, while human society could hardly be said to have existed two million years ago. Thus human society is a much more recent evolution, and we would expect the individual human to exhibit a greater degree of individualistic behavior compared to social behavior than in the case of the individual ant. Human society has had to build mechanisms for controlling prevalent anti-social tendencies. We all undergo rigid training through the activities of parents, teachers, and others which tend to stimulate the social responses and suppress or redirect the anti-social responses. Even after we reach adulthood, we have need of policemen, lawyers, governments, and ministers to force or persuade us to conform to the social pattern. Ants do not need such mechanisms, for they are born perfectly socialized. They do not need to be taught or persuaded or forced to react socially, for their anti-social tendencies were eliminated long ago through natural selection.—Boston Herald.

Old Age Contagious Disease?
Quite apart from problems of structure and physiology, it is certain that a psychological factor plays an important part in the hastening of vital dissolution. "Want of joy in life engenders carelessness, neglect of personal hygiene and loss of the power to react to the environment. As the years advance and the younger generation comes up, the suggestion that 'his day is done,' that he has had his inning and that it is time for him to step aside, is made to the senior not only by his family and his juniors, but by himself; and he may then, after the modern fashion, get into the habit of repeating mentally, 'I am getting older and older every day.'" There is a good deal to be said for Lord Rhonda's notion that old age is just a contagious disease.—London Spectator.

Ski-Huts in Norway
In the most hidden recesses of Nordmarken, in Norway, at this time of the year, busy commercial men and others who have only the week-ends for play, trudge on skis through the hills to some ski-hut where the full knapsacks on their backs will contribute to the convivial two days with friends. These ski-huts are usually perched on a bank with a southern aspect and consist of rough timbered living room with open fireplace and two bedrooms. To rise in the dawn, which comes at no inconvenient hour in Norway in winter, breakfast and then race for the runs and return at night with the light of the log fire flickering on the windows of the hut, makes a charming ski-day.

Clever Fox
A gentleman who has often watched the habits of the fox tells of a ruse one adopted to catch rabbits. It crept from the edge of a copse toward several rabbits which were taking their evening meal. When at a suitable distance the fox indulged in playful gambols, which gradually brought it nearer the rabbits. The rabbits betrayed only curiosity, watching as though fascinated, and sitting up to get a better view. At length the fox made a sudden dash and seized a hapless rabbit, after which the others took cover.

He has cleaned it of commercialized gambling and syndicated slot machines; of hotspots and hideouts for murderers, gangsters, blackmailers and kidnapers.

He has given Wayne county its FIRST uniformed police-highway patrol—radio-equipped cars and its jail the most humane administration ever known.

He has been able, efficient, modern, economical. If one good term deserves another then Sheriff Henry Behrendt is certainly entitled to a second term.

Are Increasingly Aware of the Value of Newspaper ADVERTISING
They have learned through experience that to look in the Grosse Pointe Review first is to save time and money afterwards. They have learned that advertisements in the Review give them the information they want, and the places where they can make their desired purchases. The Review is really a sort of clearing house of shops, those advertising in it steadily come under the notice of the many women readers, and they come into their stores, while those who don't advertise lose the chance of even being considered as a prospective market. You have a business, why not make it pay? Appeal to one woman and you appeal to many, for women never keep a secret. of officeholders. That the County Treasurer's office will not be a "family affair" under his administration is the definite promise made by Gordon.

Mr. Sauer insists that the cost of operating the Wayne County Treasurer's office can be substantially reduced and points out in particular that the extra employees hired to supposedly help during tax payment time are on the payroll the year round and whereas the salaries for the regular employees from Dec. 1, 1930 to Nov. 30, 1931 is $267,382.52 annually, the extra help used has a payroll of $218,540.05 annually or nearly equal to that of the full time employees.

He also will insist that employees devote all of their working hours to working. This will eliminate hiring extra help and overtime pay. Mr. Sauer points out that as other people in different walks of life must often work overtime during rush periods there is absolutely no reason why the county treasurer employees can not also work a little harder and a little longer twice a year.

The success of his campaign will place in office a man known to make good his promises.

The revolution in American thought with regard to prohibition as shown by both the Republican and Democratic parties going wet at the Chicago conventions had several causes, Rep. Clancy said.

"First, the improved conditions which came in countries which repealed the prohibition laws, such as Canada, Finland, Sweden and Norway.

"Second, the defeat in Michigan at the primaries of the two great Anti-Saloon leaders in Congress, Congressmen Louis Cramton and Grant Hudson. I am happy to say I took an active part in defeating these two dry Congressmen.

"Third, the kidnaping and murder of Col. Lindbergh's baby was a terrific blow at prohibition because it caused thinking in every home. The fact that Col. Lindbergh, the United States Government and the New Jersey Government, had to bow the knee to liquor racketeers and gunmen, inspired a revolt on the part of red-blooded Americans against the intolerable evils and crime fostered by prohibition laws.

"Fourth, taxation problems caused by the nation-wide depression and the demand for economy dealt another terrific blow at prohibition. The people's eyes were opened to the terrific waste of tens of millions of dollars in prohibition enforcement appropriations and the unforgivable loss of hundreds of millions of dollars a year in beer and liquor taxes.

"The people had to tax themselves more drastically than ever through Congress and local governmental units. For instance, Congress had to assess this year an additional billion dollars a year in odious sales and nuisance taxes, such as those on automobiles, radios, soft drinks and the like, and fail to tax beer and liquor. This led business men particularly to think and then they began to scream in rage against the Anti-Saloon League and prohibition Business men instead of financing the dregs began to reverse themselves and finance the wets.

"Fifth, the growing conviction of the American people that the Anti-Saloon League had become largely a racket. The scandals growing out of the way in which Bishop Cannon handled vast sums and his Federal indictment in Washington on charges of violating the election laws led the mass of people to wonder what had become particularly of the $70,000,000 fund which the dregs raised to put across prohibition in the United States. The Rockefeller revealed the shock they experienced when the Anti-Saloon League superintendent of New York was sent to prison for mishandling funds entrusted to him and for allowing, presumably, some of the money to stick to his fingers."

(Continued from Page 1) sheriff's office. His single statement that he has had a lifetime of police experience does not qualify him for this office. He was dismissed as superintendent of the Detroit police department for inefficiency and lack of executive ability, one of the important assets of a sheriff. While his promise to give his lifetime pension, $3750 a year to the unemployed, if he is elected sheriff, is one he can neither legally make nor keep and consists of nothing more than financially bidding for a job.

"I am running on my record as sheriff. I am proud of that record. I have been able, efficient, modern and honest in the office. I kept my original promise to 'make Wayne County clean.' I intend to keep my present promise that I shall 'keep Wayne County clean.' If there is any truth in the old saying that 'one good term deserves another,' I feel I deserve that second term, and I have enough faith in the sense of fairness of Wayne County voters that they will give me that second term. I have kept the faith with them. I have repaid their confidence in me. On that basis I am certain they will again extend that trust."

"Carpetbagger" Used to Reflect on Character

In the middle of the last century, valises in the United States were commonly made with very durable sides of carpet instead of leather, and were called carpetbags. In the development of the West, one commonly carried his possessions in such commodious bags. Western bankers, lacking strong-boxes, customarily carried their wealth and deposits with them in these bags—and found it very easy to decamp. A roving person of doubtful character thus became known as a carpetbagger. The term was also opprobriously applied to northerners who, after the Civil war, swarmed through the South.

The first automobiles in France during the early Nineteenth century were steam-driven. It was a natural step to transfer the title of the fireman (chauffeur) of the locomotive to him who operated a steam-driven horseless carriage.

At the time that Elbridge Gerry (1744-1814) was governor of Massachusetts, he laid out the districts of that commonwealth. One of these districts was so abnormally arranged that it was thought to resemble a salamander in shape. Hence, any voting district unfairly laid out for the purpose of supporting some particular issue or candidate is said to be gerrymandered.

The political term mugwump is from the Algonkian Indian dialect mugwump, chief.—Literary Digest.

Offenders Hailed Into Court "by Fellow Crows"

It is a popular belief among certain individuals that when a crow has committed some misdemeanor it is given a hearing and if found guilty is punished by a group of its fellows. Such a procedure is called a "crow trial." The chief offenders taken into court are thought to be sentinel crows that have deserted their posts.

An incident such as one recently described in Bird Lore substantiates this belief. According to this account a congregation of 200 crows were observed to form a circle from 16 to 20 feet in diameter about a single crow. From time to time one of the crows of the circle would attack the center bird, administering several vigorous pecks with its beak, and then return to its place in the circle. The victim apparently made no effort to escape. It is suggested that although such behavior might indicate something in the nature of a trial this would imply that the crows possess fairly extensive reasoning powers. Another possible explanation given for the movements of the birds was that they were the result of group hatred focused upon an unfortunate individual.

Sound and Altitude

The weather bureau says, since no definite experiments are known to have been made to determine the height in question, no positive answer may be given as to what height a man in a balloon can hear sounds made on the earth. Experience of army balloonists shows that shouting voices may be heard in the balloon at a height of 5,000 feet where the wind is not unusually strong. Birds singing in the trees have been heard at 10,000 feet, and the whistles of railroad trains have been heard between 15,000 to 20,000 feet. High-pitched sounds are heard best. In cloudy, calm days, when the balloon is in the clouds or just above them, the sounds, at least in some cases, seem to be heard to somewhat greater altitudes.

Quakes in Panama Zone

The Panama canal is located in a region of the world where earthquakes are of frequent occurrence. They average about 45 a year, but are normally slight, with insufficient seismic strength to injure the canal. Two seismographs have been installed by the Panama canal in the administration building at Balboa heights. Should an earthquake of the intensity of one which almost completely destroyed the Central American city of Antigua many years ago, demolished its famous cathedral and caused the removal of the capital of Guatemala from that city, be experienced it is probable the canal would be temporarily put out of use. Demolition by earthquake of the locks might drain the lake of Gatun.

Backward People

The Samos are a tall, robust-looking people inhabiting the borders of Upper Volta and the French Sudan. Their language, apparently related to Siam, is little known. Marriage is restricted within the village, but must be outside the extended family group. In case of a divorce the children remain with the father. Family property passes to the brother of the deceased and personal goods, or individual property, is inherited by the eldest son. They are animists and perform seasonal sacrifices and worship sacred animals protecting the villages.

Parchment Made Long Ago

It was the rivalry between two ancient kinds which led to the invention of parchment. Ptolemy Philadelphus forbade the export of papyrus reed from Egypt to King Eumenes of Pergamus, because he jealously felt that Eumenes might build up a library greater than his own. It therefore became necessary for Eumenes to search for a substitute, and he ordered the skins of sheep to be dressed in such a way that they could be written upon.

Nation's "Great Men" in 1840 Made Poor Showing

"The great (I mean in station) men in congress assembled look much like other specimens of the genus homo," wrote John G. Lowe, of Dayton, Ohio, after a visit to Washington in 1840. "Indeed, some of their countenances were not very strongly marked with indices of talent or statesmanly capability. The senate, albeit all the degeneracy (as is said and always has been of the present) of the times, yet presents the appearance of a grand and dignified assembly. American nobility—not the nobility of blood, but the nobility of character—are found there."

"I heard some of the senators speak. Was not gratified with Mr. Crittenden, who seems filled to the brim with the feelings of a ready orator. Mr. Calhoun struck me as a master spirit, be it of evil or of good. The great Webster, too, spoke like one strong and unyielding in his convictions of right. There, too, sat the illustrious Henry Clay. He did not speak whilst I was in the senate chamber, but I had heard him a few days before at the convention. To look at him is enough for one who is interested in observing the noble traits of the 'human face divine.' Near Mr. Clay sat the accomplished and classic Preston, a man whose appearance ill bespeaks the vivacious elegance and brilliancy of his oratory."—Detroit News.

Ancient Writers Depict Terror Spread by Fly

One old writer tells us that: "Cattle are struck with such terror at the approach of these insects (flies) that they forsake the pastures and run, furious, in every direction, until exhausted by fatigue they sink down and expire. Even the elephant and rhinoceros, though they cover their thick hides with a coating of mud, are unable to protect themselves from these troublesome persecutors. Their attacks are not confined to the brute creation; and when they sting a human being, violent tumors are produced, and every part of the body becomes as if infected with leprosy."

When to this graphic description of the terrors excited by the advent of such flies, are added the further well-known facts that in the East, some make their way into the nose, ears and eyes to breed, others bore into and deposit their eggs in the flesh, where maggots are produced, frequent causes of very painful and often dangerous ulcers, we can readily understand the awfulness of the plague whereby Almighty God would drive Pharaoh and the Egyptians to do his will, before he should be compelled to inflict greater troubles upon them.—Exchange.

Dovecote a Medieval Relic

In Roman times many of the large villas or country houses in Britain possessed dovecotes of which no traces have come down to us. The Roman columbarium, however, survived in Gaul, and it was the Normans who reintroduced it into England. In medieval and later times, before the advent of the turnip and the sweet potato, the dovecote solved the problem of food during the leaner months of the year. Pigeons could be accommodated in very small space, the average dovecote being capable of holding several hundreds, whose keep was inexpensive. With the introduction of root crops the day of the dovecote began to wane. For many years past, therefore, the dovecotes of Great Britain have been falling into neglect, and along with windmills and watermills they are becoming rare.

Nature Lesson

Mrs. Martin is an ardent Sunday school teacher. "Just think," she coos, "of putting beautiful thoughts into the heads of those little seven-year-olds, thoughts that will influence their whole lives." And so, on Nature Study Sunday, she read Joyce Kilmer's "Trees" to the class, explaining each line, and dwelling on the fact that "only God can make a tree."

At the close of the lesson period she smiled on the entire class and asked, "Now, dears, what have you learned today?"

An audible titter went around the table. The children looked at each other and all grinned. Then one small boy replied: "We've learned that poems are made by fools."—Kansas City Times.

Liked "First Number"

The story is told of an entertainment once given a one-time shah. The grand concert was fairly long and at its end the shah was asked if he would like any of the numbers repeated. Yes, he would, the very first. So they played the first selection again for him, the sonata. But that wasn't what royalty had wanted. "His highness says it came before that." So they went through again—the tuning-up of the violins, cellos and bass fiddles.—Kansas City Star.

Highly Recommends Himself

Jobs are scarce in China, the same as everywhere else, as this application for a stenographic position attests: "Sir—I am Wong. I can drive a type writer with great noise and my English is great. My last job has left itself from me for the good reason that the large man has died. It was no fault of mine, so, honorable sir, what about it? If I can be of big use to you I will arrive at some date that you should guess."—Boston Transcript.

Briefly Told There is much you can do—if you will.

Robert E. Plunkett

State Senator in the First District, Robert E. Plunkett, a practicing attorney in Detroit for sixteen years, has pledged himself to a strong platform, identical in most respects to the Democratic national and state platforms. "First and foremost he favors the repeal of the 18th Amendment and the national and state prohibition laws. "These laws," says Mr. Plunkett, "have been a constant burden on the taxpayer in a vain attempt to enforce them, and to accomplish the high purpose originally expected of them. It is only too evident that their actual results have not only been disappointing in reducing the consumption of alcoholic beverages, but have driven the liquor business into the home, and the tremendous profits from its illicit revenue have financed and organized crime and the under-world as they have never been organized before."

"The main problem confronting the next legislature, will be that of state economy tax reduction and securing new sources of revenues to relieve the present excessive burden on real estate and the home owner.

Mr. Plunkett also favors a state liquor control act so that the sale of liquor may be taxed by the state and the taxes of the home owner be thereby reduced. In fact, he will work for and favor all legislation that will reduce taxes on the home."

The northern lights isn't a reflection, but a discharge of electricity in a rarefied atmosphere, at a very high altitude. The causes are not yet satisfactorily explained.
