Miss Agnes Anderson, Of University Place, Stars at Playhouse

One of the most amazing young actresses whom the Detroit Playhouse has ever had the good fortune to possess, appears in the world premiere of George Seaton's sophisticated comedy "Together We Two" now playing at Detroit's newest and most unique little theatre. In two short months this versatile product of the Grosse Pointe High School has carved a pre-eminent niche for herself in the hearts of Playhouse audiences. Her grace, her beauty, her lovable charm, her glowing friendliness and her inherent dramatic ability stamp her as a Broadway stage prospect of the first water.

She is none other than Agnes Anderson, born in Philadelphia, and now living with her parents at 853 University Place.

Miss Anderson has visited a number of foreign lands in her nineteen thrilling years, and is somewhat of an authority on subjects dealing with the Scandinavian countries. Her dramatic experience includes several ventures in the little theatre field, amateur presentations and radio broadcasting at the WWJ studios.

Miss Anderson's first playhouse assignment was as a bridesmaid in the William Cotton production, "The Bride the Sun Shines On" which opened the new theatre at Woodward and Forest avenues. Her lines were few, but her part was an extremely small one, but Albert Riebling, managing director, reading between the lines as it were, noted the stage presence and mastery of the role which were so apparent across the footlights. Riebling determined to entrust Miss Anderson with the leading part in "Every Woman Can" the following presentation.

His trust was not misplaced, for Miss Anderson romped away with the honors in this English version of the French play "Si Je Voulaix" authorized by Paul Gerald and George Spitzer.

Adding to her laurels as Ann Field in Philip Barry's Theatre Guild success "Hotel Universe," Miss Anderson immediately began intensive rehearsals at the conclusion of this play, on "Together We Two" under the able coaching of Howard Southgate, guest production director from New York City.

In "Together We Two" she assumes the difficult portrayal of Nyan Winters, wife of a young architect. The play bares the life of these two very human beings, playing at the game of sophistication to win or lose the beautiful understanding they have of each other. They became involved with a fast set of people and in their mad attempt to keep the pace in sophistries and clever artifice they lose sincerity and each other as well. An artist, who holds a peculiar fascination for the architect's wife is the cause of the separation. And then, the great mistake that has thrust them rudely apart becomes apparent—a trifle too late, perhaps.

The cast in support of Miss Anderson includes Tom Dougall who authored the Michigan Mimes presentation of 1928, Walter J. Holland, formerly of the Detroit Laboratory Theatre, Philip Andre and Gina More.

The author, George Seaton, is a native Detroit, who, for a number of years was connected with the Civic Theatre. Following his service with Miss Bonstelle, he played in "The Lottery" at Channing's 46th street theatre in New York and in the road showing of the Theatre Guild's "Elizabeth, the Tureen."

Besides his work on the stage, Seaton has written "Mike Crazy" a three-act satire on radio broadcasting, suitable for presentation in motion picture houses, besides two earlier plays, "The King is Dead" and "Smash Hit" in collaboration with R. Dawson Wallace. "Mike Crazy" was presented in the larger Michigan cities with the exception of Detroit, early last summer, while "Smash Hit" is scheduled for production on Broadway in February.

Seaton is now associated with Howard Inches, well-known producer in the East. He will be an interested spectator of "Together We Two" every evening at 8:30 p. m.

"Together We Two" will terminate its engagement, Sunday, Dec. 11.

Last Sunday afternoon found the gayest young set bound for their rendezvous, "The Coop," in Fisher Road, for a peek at what it looked like in the broad light of day. What with a formal opening at 1:30 o'clock in the morning, first impressions are apt to be a trifle sketchy.

Grosse Pointe Post

By EARLE O. CRAMER

At this time the all-important job of the Legion Post is building up the membership — every effort should be made to bring home to all members the importance of prompt renewal. Your Post needs your unsolicited support, both moral and financial, at this particular time more than at any other, the beginning of a new year.

An urgent appeal is being made to you who have not renewed your membership. Please do not hamper the activities of the Membership committee by the unnecessary task of soliciting you who are already members of the American Legion. Help them by renewing promptly that they may concentrate on the job of securing new members.

Remember this—you could not build a house if you periodically tore down the bricks already in place and each time have to begin all over again. Why not see that you, as an individual brick in the construction of a beautiful house which is your Post, stay in place that the structure may grow to better and greater heights.

Call a meeting with yourself right now and pass a resolution to renew at the next regular meeting or before, and also to see how soon you can bring in an additional member. This also goes for you who have already renewed your membership. Pass that resolution about securing one new member. Now is the time when plans for post activities for the coming year are being formed and all should have a voice therein.

Your Post needs you. Don't wait. The next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday, December 7th. Important business to come up — Next week some facts you should know about the activities of the National Economy League.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

When Valerie von Sturm demands that Paul Onslow, head of the Sylvanian delegation at the Geneva Peace Conference, choose between her and his career, he signs his resignation. He is later strangled. Professor Bauer, a scientist, gives him six more hours to live. Paul realizes he has made a mistake. He tears up his resignation and notifies Valerie that he cannot marry her. She should wed her former fiance, Karl Kranz. Paul then sets out to save his country at a special Peace Conference meeting late at night, and to trace his assailant.

Chapter VI

AS Onslow approached the Peace Palace the traffic thickened. The scene was as animated as if in the middle of the busy day. Automobile sirens sounded as the delegates arrived for the late council. Paul was in high spirits as he swung along. He smiled as he stepped over a trampled banner bearing the legend "Death To Onslow" over a skull and crossbones.

"Almost a speaking likeness," he remarked. "Flower, pretty flower, sir?" piped a childish voice. He recognized the little girl whose flowers he had given Valerie.

"Aren't you the little girl," he asked. "Yes, I knew you'd come back," she answered.

"You can never tell about that, here," he laughed and handed her a bill of large denomination.

"So much?" Her eyes rounded. "For me?" He nodded. She hugged his knees, being too small to reach his waist.

"My mama prayed for this money. She needed it. She said an angel would bring it to us. You are an angel?"

"Well—not exactly." "At the palace gates the hostile crowd gave back before Onslow, sensing something strange about him. Only two reporters pressed forward for a story.

Paul's eyes held a mischievous twinkle. "Here's a scoop for you," he whispered dramatically. "At quarter past six this evening, I was murdered—and what's more—in a few minutes—I'm going to see the gentleman who took my life."

He left them glancing knowingly at one another and tapping their foreheads. In the great conference hall the national representatives had assembled. The meeting had been called to order, and the vote was about to be taken which would decide Europe's course for the next decade.

"Even though one of our colleagues is absent," said the chairman, "this conference must end without further delay. Monsieur Ferault will cast the vote for Sylvania." There were sardonic smiles on some faces as he spoke. "We will proceed to take the ballot."

Each envoy arose in alphabetical order and cast his vote. Nearer and nearer to Sylvania came the roll call. "Rumania! Serbia! Spain."

"Then—Sylvania!" "Just a moment gentlemen!" They wheeled at that sharp familiar tone. Onslow stood there. "Aren't you a little hurried. I admit I'm a trifle late—but I almost didn't come at all. However—I'm here in time. That's all that counts."

In his hand stretching over the ballot box was the black ballot which doomed the mask of universal peace behind which Sylvania's enemies hoped to operate against her.

Little by little the vast chamber emptied. Soon only two men remained. One man was Paul. The other almost sobbing, leaned his head on his crossed arms.

"Don't talk to me of mercy. You who were murdering not one but thousands." Paul's voice was like steel. "Morally, you're guilty of wholesale slaughter, for if I hadn't been here to night the blood of a whole country would have been on your hands." He paused. "Then. You beg for life—why? The defeat of that treaty was your ruin. Your country is closed to you—it's people are your enemies. Life can mean nothing to you now."

"I don't want to go. I feel as if I should stay with you. That you need me."

"Just a foolish child," he smiled. "Listen," she said. The strains of the waltz came to them from the ballroom.

"Auf Wiedersehen," he recognized the strains. "That is for us, Valerie—never good-bye. Just 'Auf Wiedersehen.'" "Auf Wiedersehen," came her soft reply.

He felt her lips touch his. Then she was gone. He watched her enter the house.

Indian Women First to Make Marvelous Laces

Feminine tourists to South American cities find keen delight in the beautiful laces which are used in profusion by women of Spanish blood throughout the entire world.

Strange as it may seem, however, many of the laces found in South America are not of Spanish origin but were made by the Indian women long before the coming of the conquistadores.

A particular lace which might well be mistaken for a cobweb, so fine is its texture and design, has been made by the Indian women of Paraguay for so long that its origin is lost in the obscurity of legends.

It takes much time and infinite patience to make this lace, known as nanduti, and only those who have known the art from mother to daughter really know how to do it.

The nanduti lace is to be found only in Paraguay. No other country makes it, and many buyers are sent from other countries in South America to purchase it.

In Paraguay, frequently whole villages are employed in the manufacture of these laces. If you pass the half-opened door of one of the homes in these villages, you will see all the women of the family, from the young girls to the old grandmothers, bending over the frames making these laces.

Insane Once Believed to Be Devil-Possessed

Since we know so little of the inner workings of the human mind, insane asylums are really only places where the mentally ill are kept. And yet when one compares these institutions and the care given to the insane with methods used formerly, the least one can say is that the insane are now handled reasonably.

Philippe Pinel, born in 1745, was not only an apostle of reasonableness as well as of human goodness, but possessed the medical training needed to cast aside the ignorant superstitions regarding the insane. In those days in France, and in fact all over Europe, the insane were flogged, were believed to be possessed by the devil, were loaded with chains and imprisoned with the sick and criminal.

As head of the Bicêtre hospital in 1793 and as director of the Salpêtrière in 1795, Pinel cast aside the chains of the insane inmates, substituted warm baths for the cold water immersion and instituted many reforms that seem only natural to us. Claude Lillingsston also has offered to readers of Hygeia Magazine the biography of Philippe Pinel, another of the "Pioneers of Medicine."

Short-Story of Paper

About the time of Alexander the Great, paper began to be manufactured from an Egyptian plant called papyrus, whence comes the name paper. It became so valuable that the export of paper from Egypt was prohibited. The Greeks and Romans did not have the secret and so they commenced to make use of skins prepared for the purpose. The product of sheepskin was called "parchment" and that of calves was called "vellum." Finally these pieces were made up into a continuous roll and called "volumen," which is the origin of the word "volume." Julius Caesar was responsible for making writing material in the form of pages, which was more convenient than the great roll. In inscribing the papyrus the ancients made use of a piece of bamboo cut much in the shape of the pen as we know it.

Seeing, They See Not

As there are persons who seem to walk through life with their eyes open, seeing nothing, so there are others who read through books, and perhaps even crant themselves with facts, without carrying away any living pictures of significant story which might arouse the fancy in an hour of leisure, or gird them with endurance in a moment of difficulty. Ask yourself, therefore, always when you have read a chapter of any notable book, not what you saw printed on a gray page, but what you see pictured in the glowing gallery of your imagination. . . . Count yourself not to know a fact when you know that it took place, but then only when you see it as it did take place.—Professor Blackie.

Nature Knows!

The stomach prevents itself from being dissolved by its own gastric juices because old Dame Nature wisely arranged that it should consist of a substance that is immune from such dissolution. In this nature is wiser than the amateur scientist who boasted long and loud that he had invented a liquid that would dissolve anything it touched.

Tired of his boasting, a listener silenced him by asking him quickly: "What do you propose to keep it in?"

Notary Public

The term "notary public" is ancient. Among the Romans a notary was literally one who took notes—a shorthand writer; hence, an official whose duty it was to record transactions, certify the authenticity of documents, etc. In English and American law the term now applies to a person of somewhat similar functions, who takes acknowledgment of, or otherwise certifies or attests, various writings, usually under his official seal, to make them authentic.

Constitution of the Work of Many Master Minds

In none of the relatively meager records of the Constitutional convention is the authorship of any part of the Constitution definitely established.

Earth's Ages-Old Past Linked With Sequoias

The mind can scarcely grasp the stretches through which the history of the Sequoias takes us—far beyond all recorded time, back to the Mesozoic and Miocene periods millions of years ago when weird monsters like the dinosaur and the diortherium roamed over the face of the earth

Harold Lloyd, the star of "Movie Crazy" which comes to the Punch and Judy theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, with Constance Cummings, was born in Burchard, Nebraska.

Tall Trees

Living redwoods run up to 210 feet in diameter, but this occurs rarely and this species of tree is subject to great root swellings that make such measurements misleading.

History of Modern Candy

In the old days candy was made only by druggists and was used almost entirely to disguise medicines. Candy for candy's sake is little more than a century old.

The Fred Sanders Confectionery Co., located at 2465 Woodward avenue and with branch stores throughout the city has been a manufacturer of fine candies since 1875.

1,000 Veterans Meet In 2-day Conclave to Discuss Activities

(Continued from Page One) Judge Walter Wannamaker, of Akron, Ohio, Department Commander of that State and Colonel Robert G. Woodside, of Pittsburgh, President of the Veterans of Foreign Wars National Home at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, will discuss the leading issues confronting veterans today.

Carl J. Schooninger, of Detroit, Commander of the Department of Michigan stated, "That plans will be worked out to give the public the truth about veterans' legislation and compensation to offset incorrect information being circulated by certain organizations that misrepresent and distort the facts or only telling part truths."

The American people are patriotic and grateful to the men who have served their country in all wars. When all the facts are known to them they will resent the efforts to insult the nation's defenders.

The veterans are only asking that a small degree of justice be shown the soldiers of the World War, as well as of other wars, so that as much as possible the burden may be shared by those who profited by the war.

Contrary to the propaganda being put out by the only group that profited from the way, not one cent of taxes comes from the people for veterans' relief. It is all derived from federal taxes which are paid by the more well-to-do group who can afford it, and if all veterans' compensation were discontinued it would not benefit the average person a single dime.

The attack on the veterans is headed by a group of men who themselves are profiting many thousands of dollars a year in pensions and other government subsidies, these men are all wealthy and with large incomes.

Mrs. James S. Fisher Tells of Relief Work By Madonna Guild

An idea of the great quantities of food which have been served through the generosity of these companies and individuals can only be gained by figures from the Guild records.

"We have served 130 pounds of bread a day or 81,120 pounds for the two years. Each week five bushels of bananas have been served, making 520 bushels for the two years.

"Through the liberality of the bakeries and confectionery manufacturers and dealers, the little ones have had some of the sweets that appeal so strongly to children from all levels of life. We have been given an average of 65 pounds of cakes, doughnuts, etc., a week or 6,700 pounds during the past two years.

"When we started this work in 1929 we thought it would be for a few months at the outside. But the need has continued and we are now entering on our third year.

What Kind of a Car Do You Need?

Many of us have been confronted with the problem of what class of automobile we should purchase. After we have reached the stage of wanting one, and most of us have, we must give the various expenditure problems a great deal of consideration.

Very often is the case we invest our last dollar in a most attractive model that is very expensive to operate, and we find it hard to build the old bank account up again.

If some unexpected expense demands immediate attention we find ourselves in a most embarrassing position. At this time I would like to suggest that a consultation with a reliable auto dealer would be a great help.

Alfred Steiner & Co., also offer you a very easy financing plan through the Universal Credit Financing Co. It carries the lowest charge in the city as it deals in Fords exclusively.

One of the beauty parts about this car is the fact that you can go anywhere inside civilization and find Ford dealers.

Religious Symposium At Cass Features National Speakers

Dr. Hough first sprang into national prominence in 1919 and 1920 when he was President of the Northwestern university. In 1923 he attracted national attention when he was tried by his church for heresy, after he wrote an article entitled "Evolution, Charles Darwin, and the Church Today."

Author of numerous books and magazine articles, Dr. Hough is probably one of the best known protestant ministers in the country. He has had numerous honorary degrees conferred upon him, receiving an L. L. D. from the University of Detroit.

Judge McGorty has been a judge of the Superior Court in Chicago since 1918, and has been a prominent Catholic layman during his entire life. Serving successively in the various courts in Chicago, he has been on the bench for 21 years.

Rabbi Franklin has been pastor at Temple Beth El, Detroit, for the past 33 years. He is outstanding among American Rabbis, being a past president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Mr. Darrow is one of the most widely known of any of the Symposium speakers, having been prominent as a criminal lawyer and agnostic for 30 years. He has been defense attorney for the McNamara Brothers, Loeb and Leopolds Lieut. Massie and Mrs. Fortescue.

Historic New England Has Rival in Virginia

While we continue to regard New England as the most interesting section of the country in which to motor, because of its historical associations with the Revolutionary war and its results, we think Virginia comes second because of its relation to the Civil war.

New England with its long ocean scenery, its Cape Cod, Plymouth, Salem, Boston and New Hampshire and Vermont mountains, is highly scenic. Virginia, as the scene of great battles, takes precedence over all states in which the Civil war was fought. It has impressive mountains also. From Harper's Ferry down to Winchester on the Sheridan ride, its Bull Run battles, its crystal caverns, its White Sulphur and Hot Springs, the National bridge, Lynchburg, the Confederate capital, Richmond, Cedar Creek, the Wilderness battlefield, Petersburg, Spotsylvania and its bloody angles, Fredericksburg, Danville and Appomattox, where Lee's surrender broke the back of the Confederacy, are features of the state.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Films Expected to Aid Future Historic Study

History classes of the future may be enthralled by news pictures showing great men of the past "in their habits as they lived" and the glamorous events of many years ago. The possibility of such graphic visual instruction to supplement dull wrestling with dates and the hackneyed informative phrases of the ordinary textbook has been set forth by an educational authority. He said: "The superior learning of children taught with well-constructed pictures as an adjunct to oral and written instruction has been indisputably proved by independent investigation. "The vaults of the theatrical producers are filled with treasures for the schoolroom, in which many great epics of history have been reincarnated. Of all the source material to be drawn on none appeals more to the imagination than those actual recordings of human activity which the news reel companies have been gathering from the four corners of the world over a period of 30 years." A number of large firms are devoting special attention to educational films.—New York Sun.

Sweden's Wood Industry

Sweden was among the first countries to advocate reforestation and few if any countries of the world have succeeded as Sweden in rationalizing the care of the forests and the various industries related therefrom. The result is that the country now stands in the very front ranks as a producer of soft wood, wood pulp and all the by-products of the saw-mill industry. As a result of the care and intelligence exercised the wood has been shown by test to be of a very superior quality. The timber is felled at a time when the sap does not circulate; the floating in very cold water reduces the risk of disease in the logs; the material handled by modern machinery and last but not least the superior quality of the labor employed, which has a fine sense of judgment in matters of wood quality.

Giant Earthworms

An earthworm native to southeastern Australia attains extreme lengths of 10 or 12 feet and diameters of 4 of an inch, although the average specimen is only 3 or 4 feet long. It belongs to the same animal as our common earthworms. The progress of these gigantic worms through the soil is attended by gurgling and sucking sounds clearly audible to persons walking on the surface. Their eggs resemble large olives. Related species which attain a length of several feet are found in parts of South America, Java and other parts of the world.

Girls' Blood Made Flag

Japanese school girls, fragile as butterflies and small as pixies, must not faint at the sight of blood. To test their courage seven Tokio high school girls gathered recently around a white cloth in the center of which they had drawn a circle. After a solemn soprano chant the maidens pricked their fingers deeply, held them over the circle until it grew red and the cloth became the flag of Japan.—Time Magazine.

Freak Fish Born

It is said on good authority that probably no other living species produce more abnormalities than fish. Two-headed fish are not uncommonly hatched at the various hatcheries of the state conservation department and instances have been born with five perfect heads to a single body and tall. Most of these fish do not live past the stage when artificial feeding becomes necessary, although some do live to the adult age.

Long Flights of Birds

It is a moot question what birds hold the distance flight records, but several mentioned by Laurence B. Fletcher, of the Northeastern Bird Banding association, are at least worthy of honorable mention. A banded tern traveled 9,000 miles from Labrador to Madagascar, in the Indian ocean, Fletcher related, while a hummingbird made a round trip from a Franklin (N. H.) garden to the pampas of central South America.

Grosse Pointe High School News

That high school graduates are judged by personality characteristics rather than their scholastic records was one of the main points stressed by Mr. J. R. Barnes, principal in his talk to the 12B class Tuesday morning. He particularly emphasized leadership as a most favorable personal characteristic; Mr. Barnes said however, "We in this country, in general exalt leadership unduly. We don't need leaders any more than we need followers." Concluding that man hates to see someone rise a little higher than himself, Mr. Barnes said the idea that everyone is as good as the one next to him could be traced back to early America. "We are the products of a pioneer civilization," he remarked. Mr. Barnes concluded with several lines from the poem "Revelation."

As eighteen tiny tots from the Protestant Orphanage looked with wondering eyes around the spacious halls of school, their shining, newly washed faces were all aglow at the prospect of a Thanksgiving party which was given for them Friday before vacation. The party was arranged by the sixth hour homemaking I class in room 119. A story was told by Thelma Burkemo 11B, and Cat and the Mouse, Musical Chairs, and many other children's games were played in which the class members also participated. The afternoon was topped off by a walnut hunt in the apartment in room 123. After jello, cookies, milk, and candied apples were served.

It was a tired but happy group of children who were taken home by Marguerite Colling, chairman, on the Lake Shore Coach Line bus which provided transportation. John Herrman, Grosse Pointe High School student, won the eighth grade declamation contest held in the school auditorium last Tuesday. Albert O'Neal has been chosen to act as student chairman for the 8A open house on December 2. A skit directed by Mr. S. A. Shoemaker guidance director will be given with Dean Squier Lorraine Haskin and Robert Barrett in the cast.

Along with selections by the junior orchestra songs by the junior chorus, including student solos, the winner of the 8A declamation contest will give his declamation. The high point man on the varsity football team is Charles Finke. His total was fifty. Edward Wernet came second with a total of 21, and Harry Cookson was third with 13.

The Philaethians and Hi-Y clubs delivered fifty-three baskets to needy families of Grosse Pointe Township Wednesday of last week. The baskets held enough food to last each family for a week. The Sweitzer Creamery donated milk as they did last year.

Ira Wilson & Sons Opens a New Branch at E. Warren & Coplin

To Bring a Better Service to the People of Grosse Pointe. Mr. Josey, the manager explained some very interesting statistics to the writer relative to the food value of milk in the United States an average of between a half pint and a third of a quart of milk is consumed every day in the year by every man, woman or child. Thirty million quarts per day as a whole; probably another thirty million quarts go into the making of dairy products, such as butter and cheese. It is obvious that the milk industry is of vast importance to the country and to our own community, because of exceptionally valuable nutritive properties of milk and our absolute dependence upon it as an indispensable food for infants, young children and invalids; and also because of the pronounced therapeutic value of milk when properly used. The food value of milk can hardly be over-estimated. This may be better visualized by remembering that a quart of milk equals in food value, three quarters of a pound of beef steak, three pints of oysters, eight eggs, two pounds of chicken or three-fifths of a pound of pork chops.

The Ira Wilson & Sons Co., invite you to inspect their plant, you will find it to be a model of cleanliness and sanitation.

Titan Topics

New Orleans football fans will see one of the most brilliant forward passing attacks in the country next Saturday when the University of Detroit plays Loyola of the South. The Titans have won seven of their nine games this season by the overhead route and they came within a ace of winning from Holy Cross by the same method. Douglass Nott, sophomore left half-back, has established a record that compares favorably with that of any man in the country in completing passes. In the Villanova game, he made seven in a row, and gave his team a two-touchdown lead in the first five attempts, missed his sixth and seventh tries and then threw one good for 47 yards and a touchdown. Young, right halfback, receiving the ball while standing in the end zone.

Nott could not make his passes click against Michigan State and as a result, the Titans were shut out for the only time this season. He threw 26 passes in that game and completed seven, but could not make any of them good for a touchdown. "But Detroit came literally within inches of scoring when Tooker standing all alone inside the enemy's five-yard line, failed to connect with a long one that looked like it could not well be missed.

Counting the 26 passes thrown in the State game and 11 more hurled in the first half of the Oregon State battle, Nott had only one intercepted in 37 consecutive tries, a record that probably stands alone for this season. Furthermore, only three of these 37 passes were batted down by the enemy, showing how well conceived was Detroit's aerial offense.

Rollo Peters Appears at Bonstelle Theatre

Coupled with selection of "Peter Ibbetson" for the production starting Friday evening, Dec. 2, at the Bonstelle Civic Theatre, director Robert Henderson announces the arrival of Rollo Peters, one of America's favorite romantic stars, who will appear in the title role of "Peter" as the first of three bills. Jessie Royce Landis will be starred with him as the Duchess of Towers. In the next two productions "The Devil Passes," by Benn Levy, and George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," his leading woman will be Kay Strozz. "Peter Ibbetson," employing a cast of fifty, will be the gala, the most ambitious production of the Civic season. Miss Landis was chosen for the Duchess of Towers role in the New York revival two seasons ago, by Constance Collier, who dramatized George Du Maurier's novel and originated the character in the first New York run, fifteen years ago with John and Lionel Barrymore.

Established Coal Dealer Explains How To Reduce Our Overhead

Today we are trying to reduce every expense possible in order to make both ends meet, in other words, we are trying to get all we can from each dollar spent. Now, this is a noble idea, but we must be careful that we do not fall into the very common fault of "false economy." We cannot buy everything we need at the cheapest price merely because it is cheap, because by so doing we not only have to use inferior merchandise, but it is really costing us more in the long run. One of the best examples to prove this statement, is the buying of our fuel.

The writer visited the J. & T. Hurley Coal Co., located at 12011 Kercheval and 5045 Gd. River and Mr. Sweeney was kind enough to explain the different kinds of coal and their uses. Coal is one thing that must be purchased for its heat value and not so much per ton. In other words, many people buy three tons of cheap coal at $5.00 per ton, while the wise coal buyer gets the safe heat from two tons at $6.00 per ton. Of course, the average home owner cannot judge the coal that is best suited to his need. J. & T. Hurley Coal Co., has spent many years in the coal business and will be more than pleased to give you valuable advice on your fuel problems. Do not hesitate in calling Lenox 1660 or Euclid 7800.

This company handles all grades of coal and have a most courteous and speedy delivery department. Full weight is guaranteed on every order. "GET ACQUAINTED" and find out when they were established. You can win a cash prize.
