Not! being a Grosse Pointer myself I didn't know what to expect but imagined that the Club would be a large grey stone settlement house or a dusty, sunny play ground filled with yelling children.

To my surprise, however, I found a large, various colored brick building in the large room set aside for them surrounded by stretches of green lawn and shady trees. Beautiful as it was on the outside no less beautiful was it on the inside. The rooms of the Club are large, cool ones furnished with comfortable furniture, ready to be turned at six tennis courts, five soft ball diaa moment's notice into any type of room desired.

The gym could furnish enough material for a couple of stories but in a few words all I can say is this that the Club gym can be turned into anything. Already it has been the scene of many club dances, boxing matches, flower and vegetable shows, stage performances, tournaments and recitals. License Plates Now On Sale

Thousands of auto owners in Detroit and Wayne County have failed to get their license plates for the last half of the year. Sticker licenses expire at midnight July 31 at which time police will swing into action.

Every car found operating without and the driver will be served with notice to appear in court.

The final half-year plates went on sale July 1 and the secretary of state's main office at Cass and Alexandrine Avenues as well as the branch offices reported brick demand for plates. This officials believe, reflects increased employment and continuing improvement in industry.

While stickers will still be good until July 31 Hoyt E. Morris, manager of the Detroit office, urges early buying.

"There were approximately 100,000 'sticker' cars operating in the Detroit district on July 1," said Mr. Morris. "There are still many thousands of car owners who have failed to get plates. This means that in the last few days of the month our offices will be plenty busy and tardy buyers will likely have to take their turn in line."

Travel to Egypt Began About the Year 900 B. C.

Commercially inspired tributes to

Egypt indited by travel writers seem fulsome and weak when compared with the comments of Herodotus, who traveled through that land some 2,800 years ago, according to an authority. His plain statements were more forceful than any subtle use of adjectives.

"Of Egypt I shall make my report at length," his discourse begins, "because it has wonders more in number than any other land, and works too it has to show as much as any land, which are beyond expression great." Eminently a man of the world, the most widely traveled of his age. Herodotus nevertheless could not contain his astonishment at many of the sights in Egypt.

He called the Nile "unlike any other river." He evinced great respect for the mental attainments of the Egyptians-"the most learned in the history by far of all those of whom I have had experience.' But it was on the subject of Egypt's renowned climate that the Greek philosopher-historian showed him-self at his best. "The Egyptians," he wrote. "are the most healthy of all men next after the Libyans, in my opinion on account of the seasons, because the seasons do not change." That single sentence contains the gist of many dissertations on the healthfulness of Egypt's unfailing sunshine.

Bond Street of London Named After Speculator

During the Seventeenth, and Eighteenth and the first half of the Nineteenth centuries the Bond street of New York and the Bond street of London had a similar aspect-both were lined with the residences of the well-to-do. Here those of bankers and merchants, there the homes of the landed nobility. Later in both streets merchandising prevailed.

The origin of the New York name is obvious; that of the London street came from Sir Thomas Bond a Seventeenth century courtier attached to Queen Henrietta Maria, who was always persona grata at the Court of Whitehall in the reign of Charles II, to whom she is said to have advanced large sums of money.

According to Arthur Dasent, writing in the Daily Telegraph of London, toward the end of Charles reign Sir Thomas began to speculate in London real estate, particularly in the West End, in the Parish of St. Martin-in-the Field. His first transaction as recorded in the local Rate Book was when he acquired in 1683 Claredon House in Piccadily from General Monk's son, the second Duke of Albermarle, pulled it down and laid out both Albermarle and Bond streets through the property before he rebuilt.

Palestine is rich in Crusader memorials. Even the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is said to represent Crusader's work, for the south facade and many parts of the sacred building, particularly the bell tower, were built by them during their occupation of the city. Both at Ramleh and Lydda, two important towns on the road between Jerusalem and Jaffa, may be seen churches built by the Crusaders. Near Arsuf there are the remains of an old castle which was occu-Richard Coeur-de-Lion King of England. Many of the castles and fortresses remain as safe and sound as they were when armies of Western Europe, led by pious knights, invaded Syria and Palestine from 1093 to 1291, and waged their holy wars. These "Soldiers of the Cross" left their mark in Palestine in the names of Belfort, Belvoir, Mirabel, Blanchegarde or Singil (St. Giles.)

Frost Smoke

Frost smoke is a fog which rises in wreaths from open water which is relatively warm compared to the overlying cold air. This fog usually consists of ice crystals (snow). Frost smoke forms more readily in very cold weather when the wind is calm or very light, and when the difference between the temperatures of the water and the air is large. The fog slowly drifts away from the open water over adjacent ice and gradually deposits a slight covering of snow on the ice.

Discovery of Hot Springs

Pioneer trappers who first penetrated Arkansas found a series of mineral springs at what is now Het Springs. They bathed in the waters and praised their medicinal value. Soon their fame reached the ears of President Jefferson, who sent Lewis and Clark to investigate. Another famous series of hot springs is at Rotorua, New Zealand. The springs cover an area of 660 square miles and vary in temperature from 60 degrees to the boiling point.

Caviar Roe of Sturgeon

Caviar is the roe of the sturgeon. The fish has a long snout with which it roots in the mud for worms. It is notable for its bony armor. It ascends rivers to lay its eggs and seems to prefer the Volga, in Russia. The eggs are gathered up and shipped to all parts of the world. During the reign of England's Edward II the sturgeon was declared a royal fish and has so re

Laughter and tears, comedy and trag edy, troop daily through the 44 district and branch and 88 part-time offices of the National Re-employment Service located strategically throughout Michi gan under the general supervision of Major Howard Starret, State Re-employment Director.

Persons of all types, from day laborers to professionally trained men and women, from 16 years to 70 years of age and sometimes older, come to this Government agency with one object in view. They all want jobs.

"Fortunately, through the splendid co-operation on the part of busines's men and industrialists everywhere in Michigan, slightly over 95 per cent of all jobs found today are in private employment, either with business, industry or private contractors." Major Starret declared as he told about some incidents and experiences.

America Leads in Pure Milk

The American system of milk distribution and our closely safeguarded milk supply from farm to consumer are far superior to anything Europe can offer, according to Dr. Fred F. Lininger, professor of agricultural economics at Pennsylvania State College.

Dr. Lininger, who studied the milk industry in Europe, told in the Milk Industry News of inspecting a market in the shadow of the Kremlin in Moscow, where he viewed 35 farm women dipping raw milk into pitchers, cups and cans of eager purchasers in an exhibiti of milk handling that would have horrified anyone in the American milk industry.

About the highest per capita consumption of milk in Europe discovered by Dr. Lininger was in Finland, where a day per person. In the cities of Finland, house-to-house milk delivery is unknown. While milk prices are low, exceed 75 cents a day.

Window Boxes Can Be Grown From Seed.

Next to flower gardens in front yards, nothing would do more to add beauty to our too somber American cities than widespread adoption of the fashion for window

To make and plant a window box takes very little skill. A good win-dow box should be at least six inches deep and eight inches wide, and as long as required to fit the window, except that when more than three feet long they are difficult to handle. Constant exposure to moisture and air makes it necessary to build them of the most durable materials. Cypress is the most satisfactory wood. Florists prefer a grade called pecky cypress, which has the appearance of being worm eaten and is even better than a higher grade to withstand the wet. Several holes half an inch in diameter should be bored in the bottom of the box to drain off ex-cess water. For soil a mixture of three parts garden loam, one part leaf mould, and one part well de-sayed manure is recommended. A list of plants suitable for window boxes on a sunny side of the house, east, south or west, includes these which grow upright: Ageratum, begonia semperflorens, dwarf cannas, cuphea, geraniums, heliotrope, lobelia, mignonette, nastur-tiums, nierembergia, petunias, grevillea, and sweet alyssum.

Trailing plants include the balcony type petunias, tall nasturtiums including Golden Gleam, ice plant, lantana, trailing lobelias, and dwarf morning glories.

These Experts Want To Make Profits For You!

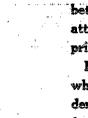

. The artists who draw for Tribune Service are the same expert men who prepare illustrations for use by some of Chicago's largest advertisers. They know the type of work that unfailingly attracts the prospect's eye. Their work is practical-and, consequently, resultful. It helps make advertising profitable.

There's a good deal more to copy than a mere collection of words. Copywriters must be students of every phase of marketing. They must know their productthey must know their prospect. Naturally the resources of The Tribune command men who star at their work. Those same men work for you when you use Tribune Service advertising.

Advertising T

The basis of successful selling is knowledge and ability. Every salesman must know his product better than his customer does. Advertising that attempts to sell without thorough regard for that principle is doomed to certain failure.

For that reason, in seeking an advertising service which we might offer our merchants with confidence, we made every effort to go deeper than surface indications and make an exhaustive study of how and by whom our advertising material was

In choosing Chicago Tribune Service we were guided by several factors. First, was the more logical, stronger copy, the more attractive and timely illustrations. But more important, is the organization back of the material. This Service is created and designed by the same men who must make merchandise more in a large and difficult market. They must know advertising-they must test their product by actual use and results.

Naturally, those men are in position to know newspaper advertising needs, and the problems of big and little merchants. Naturally those men must have trained ability and the knowledge of merchandise and salesmanship. How well they do their job can be seen in the finer results their suggestions produce. Not advertising alone, but real merchandising, real thought, real selling effort makes the use of Tribune Service intensely profitable to merchants everywhere.

You owe it to yourself to make a study of this better modern method for building business. The latest copy of Tribune Service is in our office. See it, study it, use it with our help and in the columns of this influential newspaper for the finest results you've ever experienced from advertising.

Greatly Expanded Production Required for Full Recovery

By HAROLD & MOULTON

President, The Brookings Institution

WASHINGTON - Recovery in the United States has gone far, but it has been marked by two striking characteristics-slowness of the gains in the durable goods industries and the persistence of a great volume of unemployment. At the Brookings Institution, we have made a comprehensive analysis of the American situation which included a detailed study of the production requirements for full recovery. The production task ahead-if standards of living are to be restored even to their former level-is found to be as follows:

1. To make good the actual deterioration of plant and equipment sustained during the depression

2. To increase productive capital in line with the growth of population.

3. To expand the output of consumption goods in accordance with this growth of population.

The study was made under a grant from the Falk Foundation of Pittsburgh. In it, we sought to estimate how great an increase in output would be

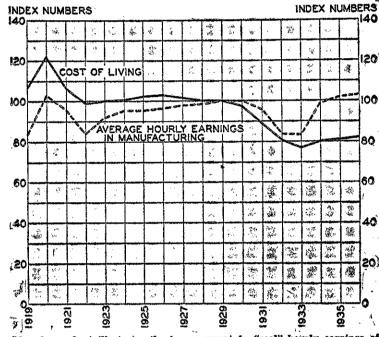

The recovery movement between 1934 and 1936 was thus soundly based. Production was steadily mounting, purchasing power was being spread broadly among the masses, speculation was not excessive, business men had not stocked up with heavy supplies of goods, and the general balance between production and consumption was satisfactory.

At the end of 1936, therefore, the stage seemed set for a period of great expansion. Production requirements were adequate to absorb all the unemployed. The recovery movement was steadily broadening; the economic system as a whole was in reasonably good balance, and at the same time the possibility of the government balancing its budget appeared somewhat brighter.

Further Expansion Threatened

In recent months, particularly since February, the situation has changed in one vitally important respect. Rapid in creases in raw material prices and in wages have laid the basis for an oldtime vicious spiral of inflation. While the particular labor groups who receive required to restore by 1941 a per capita | higher wages may stand to gain for & manufacturing workers that took place from 1919 to 1927. Earnings moved upward, while the cost of living went down, making it possible for workers to buy more for their money. This is particularly noticeable in the recovery neriod since 1982. It should he kept in mind, however, that the av of hours worked has been substantially reduced in recent years. On the other hand, the buying power of the consumer's dollar has increased somewhat more than is indicated because of improvement in the quality of goods and services used in the cost-of-living index.

level of production and consumption | time, and while the industries in quesequal to that of 1929. The results of the survey of the situation in the fields of housing and other forms of durable goods, steam railroads, public utilities, industrial enterprises, etc., are striking. It would be necessary to produce such durable goods at the rate of approximately 33 billion dollars annually from 1937 through 1941, as compared with actual production of only 21 billions in 1936, and of 25 billions annually in the boom period between 1925 and

In other words, to make up for what it did not produce in depression years, and to provide for the needs of an expanding population, the nation would have to produce annually 60 per cent more durable goods than in 1936. Three times as much housing construction would be necessary. In the field of non-durable, consumption goods which are such things as food, clothes, and amusements, such a large expansion would not be needed. Labor Shortage Might Result

The production program required in the field of durable goods would necessitate-at present working hoursthe employment of from 8 to 9 million additional laborers. Making allowance for additional workers needed to produce consumption goods, it appears certain that unless working hours were lengthened, there would be shortages of both skilled and unskilled labor.

Since standards of living cannot be restored to former levels unless productive output is restored, any further shortening of the working week will restrain the expansion of output and thus restrict the raising of standards of living. It should be borne in mind that working hours have been reduced since 1929 by approximately 20 per cent, as compared with only 13 per cent in the preceding 30 years. The present recovery movement has been marked by steadily increasing wage rates as compared with prices, and this has increased purchasing power among the masses. The employment of more workers as production has expanded has increased the flow of money to the working population; and at the same time those already employed have been able to buy more with their wages. During the same period, profits have been greatly increased from low depression levels as a result of the expansion of output and an increase of efficiency. This efficlency increase has been about in proportion to wage rates.

tion may temporarily pass on higher costs to consumers, further broad expansion of business activity appears to be threatened.

The advance in the prices of such basic products as iron and steel and other metals, building materials, etc., may hamper expansion of production in certain very important lines. Only recently have the railroads gotten into a financial shape that would permit them to spend much money on new equipment and the building of better roadbed and track. Now, with the price of steel rising, and with wage increases also in prospect, it is doubtful whether the railroads will be able to carry out the extensive programs of rehabilitstion which they have planned. Similarly, the building of new houses, apartments, etc., may be held back by the rising prices of building materials. If this turns out to be the case, it will check the reemployment of idle workers, and the attainment of the higher standards of living which are so greatly desired.

Large sections of the population would soon suffer as a result of a rapid rise in prices. Among them are farmers who do not work for wages, individuals on fixed salaries; and those living on incomes from investments. These constitute more than half the total population. Perhaps the most serious phase of the problem is the possibility of a new disparity between industrial and agricultural prices which may result if wages force industrial prices upward.

Stimulation Only Temporary

The adverse effects upon production may be considerably delayed, because a rise in prices usually stimulates business for the time being. With prices going up, business men and others hasten to place orders and buy extra quantities in order to be ahead of the price advance. This speeds up business activity and for a time increases the demand for labor. Such expansion of demand in turn serves to increase the demand for products and to raise prices the more rapidly. In due course, however, price relationships are so disturbed that certain groups of people lose purchasing power. This, in turn, sets in motion forces which tend to reduce prosperity.

Fortunately, the dangers inherent in this situation appear to have been recognized, and efforts are being made by both business and the government to restrain price advances.

of Platinum Metal Group Discovered in 1803, osmium is a rare, blue-white to gray metallic element, difficult to fuse, not affected by ordinary acids and insoluble in aqua regia. It is the heaviest of the elements. A member of the group of "platinum metals", it forms an alloy with iridium, labeled osmiridium, which is used in making fountain pen points.

Like osmium, iridium is a rare metallic element, conspicuously heavy, states a writer in the Kansas City Star. Silvery-white, iridium was discovered in 1804. It is important commercially for its alloys, which are used for making standard weights and parts of scientific apparatus which must withstand the action of the atmosphere and other factors; in electrical apparatus for contact points and other parts required to resist high temperatures and active substances, such as chlorine.

Among later elements found to be present in the sun, thulium is extremely rare, occurring in Nature with other metals of the rare earth's group. It forms a number of compounds, the characteristic color of which is light green. Discovered in 1879 thulium has no commercial

Red Honey Produced

Even reddish-brown honey can be produced, Paul Griswold Hayes writes in an article in Nature. Logwood blossoms on the island of Dominica in the West Indies produce a singular tasting variety, but the color comes from the sap of the tree, that contains a coloring principle much used in dyeing. Most famous of the dark honey of Europe is that from the Scottish heather, with a cheaper type being derived from the English heather. In Southern Europe the favorite honey is probably the Romarin, derived from the rosemary, and the Mt. Hymettus variety from the wild thyme of Greece. Although most ordinary honey crystallizes in six months after bottling, the white tueplo will remain liquid after 10 years. On the other hand, the blue-curl nectar granulates almost at once in the wax cells.

Monkey Business "The Confusion in this City, occasioned by Counterfeit Copper English Halfpence amongst us, is almost inconceivable; for notwithstanding the large Quantities of good Pence we have long had, there is now hardly any Sum offered, but there are Counterfeit Ones intermixed; and to such a Degree of Suspicion, is the Common People raised, that many good Pence, which have passed current perhaps for above 20 Years past are now refused."—From the New York Post Boy of December 3, 1753.

The Great Dipper

The great dipper only appears to revolve, owing to the revolution of the earth. It makes an apparent revolution every 24 hours, the same as the sun. It is visible throughout the entire night because it is within what is called the circle of perpetual apparition, or that part of the heavens which is always in sight to the observer. This circle enlarges as one travels from the equator, where it is nothing, to the pole where it takes in the whole Northern Hemisphere.

Walnut in Victorian Era During the Victorian era walnu was used almost exclusively in the construction of practical furnishings —dining room and bed room pieces especially - though handsomely carved whatnots and other living room items, settees, small tables occasional chairs and massive hall chests were also fashioned of the "Loan Sharks" Got 100% From Egyptians 109 B. C.

That ancient Egypt was afflicted with the equivalent of "loan sharks" is revealed by a papyrus in the Egyptian archeological exhibits at Field Museum of Natural History, on which is written a promissory note. The specimen, which dates from 109 B. C., is the oldest promissory note of its type known, and is known as one of the most important of such papyri because of its elaborate legal formulae, which are strikingly similar to those found in many modern legal documents. Quite startling is the usurious rate of interest, 100 per cent, specified in the note, while other harsh terms specified in it make their own commentary on the social conditions of lowing interpretation is made: "I, the peasant-slave Ensnakkomnoy, belonging to the Zemi cemetery, have borrowed from the woman Nokhutes 221/2 artabas of wheat. I promise to repay this loan with 100 per cent interest, making the total due 45 artabas of wheat. Further, I promise to repay this loan with good, undulterated, chaffless seed-wheat, measured by the same standard as was used in making me this loan: and I further promise to deliver the said wheat to the house of the woman Nokhutes in the Zemi cemetery without transportation charges, by the last day of the ninth month of the year 9 with no extensions of time to be granted. Further, whatever I do not repay in wheat by the aforesaid date I will repay within the following month at the rate of 60 pieces of silver per artaba. Further, as long as this note is in Nokhutes' possession I cannot claim, unless I can show a receipt, to have made full or partial payment. Further, everything that I now possess or shall acquire is herewith pledged to Nokhutes until I shall have discharged my debt in full. Further, if Nokhutes brings suit against me for failing to meet my obligation, I admit additional liability for my damages. Further, the agent of Nokhutes is hereby authorized to deal with me and I promise to follow his instructions unreservedly and promptly at all times."

Prevails in Many Lands Because of a superstition that anything seen or done on the left foreboded ill, was to be shunned as unlucky, the left hand has been in disrepute for centuries.

A deep-rooted prejudice, use of this hand is confined by South African natives, for example, to all degrading acts. The Maori tribe of New Zealand considers it profane, uses it as little as possible. Romans had a word for it in the evil-sounding

Use for Spiders' Webs Spiders' webs have a commercial firms of scientific instrument makers. The strongest and finest thread comes from the webs spun by the species known as the "Eperira Drademata," found usually on gorse bushes. The thickness varies from 0.00015 of an inch to 0.000075, and often the thicker threads are split in half, says London Tit-Bits Magazine. The insect that spins these threads can easily be distinguished from any other of the eighty odd varieties in Britain as it has a beautiful cross on its back and spins webs of the "wheel" type.

Spain was once the Mexico and Peru of Mediterranean exploitation, yielding gold, silver, tin, and copper for the greater glory of Greece and the grandeur of ancient Rome. Vacation Activities Opened Monday at Grosse Pte. Memorial

The vacation groups for children between the ages of three and twelve opened at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church last Monday with their sessions every morning (9:30 to 12:00) excepting Saturday and will continue until Friday, July 23rd.

There is a delightful variety of acivity for each group-nursery, kindergarten, primary and junior - with stories, games, songs and handwork under the direction of trained leaders.

The various groups did not meet on Monday, July 5th, but they convened on Tuesday, the 6th and many more children came at that time.

In previous years there has been a daily offering but now there is a registration fee (which is optional) of fifty cents a week. This helps to meet the expense of materials which are used in the various groups.

One more thing-there is a picnic at the Park (foot of University Place) every Friday morning!

Townsend Club Lawn Social Friday Evening

The first of the summer season's meetings of Townsend Club No. 7 will be enhanced by a good old-fashioned lawn social in the yard of Mrs. Kenneth Blaas, at 1334 Philip avenue. The short business session at 8 p. m., as usual, is open to the public, as is also the iawn social, which will provide plenty of ice cream and home made cake and a variety of entertainment for a very nominal sum, with a special low cost for children.

Tickets are obtainable from any officers elected last Friday night, for the next six months' term. They are suance of the original licenses. as follows: President, Mrs. A. V. Baker, 1054 Marlborough; vice president, Mr. Wm. H. Weaver, 2198 Ashland; recording secretary, Mrs. Ken-

Christian Science Churches

"Sacrament" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, July 11.

Among the Bible citations is this pas sage (Matt. 5:8): "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God." Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 337): "In proportion to his purity is man perfect; and perfection is the order of celestial being which demonstrates Life in Christ, Life's spiritual ideal"

"Christians Are Pilgrims" will be the theme of the sermon on the coming Sunday, July 11, this being the fifth of the sermons on "What Christians Are." The service will begin at 10 a. m. The Sunday School will meet at 9 o'clock.

The Junior Society will have an outing on Belle Isle Friday, July 9, beginning at 3:30 p. m., and the Ladies' Aid is arranging for a picnic at Grosse Pointe Park on Thursday, July 15, at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Lionel Barrymore to Play King Lear on National Chain

Lionel Barrymore, Helen Menken and Frank Morgan have been added to the imposing list of stars who will appear in Columbia's Shakespeare Cycle, while "Hamlet," with Burgess Meredith in the title role, has been chosen as the inaugural program to be heard over the WABC-CBS network Monday, July 12, from 9 to 10 p. m., E.D.S.T. Barrymore, one of America's outstanding dramatic actors, has been signed for the title role of "King Lear" and will be heard during the third presentation of the series on July 26. Miss Menken, as "Olivia," will join the previously announced cast of Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Tallulah Bankhead, Orson Welles and Estelle Winwood in 'Twelfth Night" while Morgan is to be heard as "Jacques," the solemn comedian in "As You Like It." Dates for the two latter productions as well as for "Henry IV," which features Walter Huston, Brian Aherne and Walter Connolly have been set.

Two other plays have been definitely scheduled to make up the first half of the eight-production schedule. They the United States. Among these are an are "Much Ado About Nothing" on July 19 with Leslie Howard as "Benedick" and "The Taming of the Shrew" in which Edward G. Robinson will play "Petruchio" on August 2.

"Hamlet," which was chosen to-start the series because it is the most famous of all Shakespeare's tragedies, will feature, in addition to Meredith, Walter Abel as "Horatio;" Montague Love as the King; Grace George as the Queen and William A. Brady as the Ghost.

Lionel Barrymore, who can trace his theatrical ancestry back to the time of Shakespeare, recently scored another of his long line of triumphs in the motion picture, "Captain Courageous." Born in London in 1878 he made his stage debut during 1893 in "The Rivals" which starred his grandmother, the late Mrs. John Drew. Barrymore is no stranger to Shakespearian roles, having made history in 1921 on Broadway in the title role of "Macbeth." The famous actor is well known to Columbia listeners for his annual appearances on Christmas night as "Scrooge" in Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol." He was heard in this classic role in 1933, 1934 and 1935, but was unable to appear last year due to the death of his wife. At that time his brother, John Barrymore, took his place before the microphone.

Miss Menken, who made a sensa tional success in the Pulitzer Prizewinning play, "The Old Maid," on Broadway last year, first appeared on the stage at the opening of the Astor Theater in New York during 1906 as one of the Fairies in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." During 1931 she won great praise in New York as "Portia" in "The Merchant of Venice;" "Calpurnia" in "Julius Caesar," and "Ophelia" in "Hamlet."

Morgan, who is noted for his portrayals of semi-serious roles in motion pictures, scored recently in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." His greatest Broadway success probably was "Topaze'

Insect Zoo Never before in history have Michigan insects received the attention given them in the last week.

Thousands Visit

For visitors in thousands, from many parts of the United States, have called on them in the newly-opened Michigan Insect Zoo in Convention Hall, Detroit. to inspect them in their glass cages. Attracting special attention have been the clownish black tumblebugs, the Black Widow spiders and the big redand-brown Cecropia moths. But many other varieties of Michigan insect lifewalking sticks, dragon flies, rose beetles, Polyphemus moths, horned grasshoppers, even mosquito wrigglers-have held big knots of spectators. Organized as a non-profit educational enterprise by George F. Pierrot of the World Adventure Lecture Series, the Insect Zoo-largest of its kind in the world, and only one in this country-is dedicated to informing citizens of the state of the value of insects and insectdestroyers to everyday life, and of methods of controlling harmful insects. To this end several hundred varieties of tiny wild life have been put on display, always as nearly in their native environment as possible. Supplementing the Michigan exhibits is a large collection of insects and insect-eating reptiles and mammals from other parts of other animals.
