ROTARIANS MEETHERE WEDNESDAY

Grosse Pointe Rotary Club Charter to Be Presented Here Wed.

Grosse Pointe Rotary Club will celebrate its admittance into Rotary International next Wednesday, July 28 at a Charter Presentation Dinner and Meeting to be held in the auditorium of the Neighborhood Club, Grosse Pointe, at 6:30 p. m. The official charter will be presented by E. Roy Shaw, District Governor of Rotary International District No. 153. The newly organized Grosse Pointe Rotary Club has been assigned No. 4317 and takes its place in a group of over four thousand Rotary Clubs in over 80 countries of

The new club owes its existence to the Rotary Club of Hamtramck, which club acted as its sponsor and made all necessary arrangements prior to organization. Past President Herber F. Smith of the Hamtramck Rotary Club spent considerable time in the Grosse Pointe area, checking business and professional classifications before calling a meeting of local business and professional men early in May of this year. It is due largely to Mr. Smith's indefatigable efforts that the new club was successfully organized. Overcoming all obstacles and discouragements, Mr. Smith continued working until the new club was finally launched and chartered.

An interesting program is being arranged by Harry Robins, District Governor's aide, and officials of the Hamtramck Rotary Chib. It is expected that several hundred Rotarians will attend from Rotary Clubs in Michigan and the Dominion of Canada. Heads of local municipalities and various branches of government will be guests at the

ENGLAND SENDS GREETINGS

Among the letters of congratulation received from various Rotary Clubs is the following from the Rotáry Club of Rugby, Warwickshire, England:

"On the occasion of the presentation of your Charter, I take this opportunity of sending warm greetings from the Rotary Club of Ruby, Warwickshire, England.

"I sincerely hope you will have a great send off for your Charter Night and that your club will prosper and enjoy the good fellowship we have here.

"During my year of office I should like to see the membership of Rotary International doubled and our ideal of "Service not Self" firmly established, as I feel sure that striving for this ideal can result in great improvements in our daily lives. Most international difficulties and quarrels are caused by selfish interests or misunderstandings, and it is only by getting to understand each other that the various nations can hope ever to work together in the common interests of humanity.

"The very best of luck to you, Mr. President and may your year of office be a very happy one: "Yours in Rotary,

"L. T. DAVIES, "President."

Local Residents Opposed to New

By MARY JANE STOETZEL

Over 1,000 residents of Grosse Pointe have shown by petition their opposition toward the proposed plan of establishing a State Liquor Store in the Pointe. The establishment of such a Allen is taking work at Wayne Unibuilding will do away with the present conveniences enjoyed by every Pointe resident of being able to purchase liquors at various local stores scattered about the Pointe.

Should this plan be passed many in Grosse Pointe will suffer. Present druggists and liquor store distributors have gone to a great expense of doingover their stores in order to be able to sell liquor. Money, which is being spent by Pointers for liquor and is now being used in Grosse Pointe business, will be taken over by the state, thereby going out of the Pointe. There is no end to the various types of unnecessary inconveniences that liquor buyers will be forced to undergo. A few of the inconveniences are: only one liquor store will be provided by the state to take the place of all that are now situated in Grosse Pointe; this store will not always be opened, for regular business

City Establishes Waterloo and St. Paul as Stop Streets

At a special meeting of the City Council held on Wednesday, July 7, 1937, in which many City residents subs mitted their views in the matter, the Council of the City adopted an amendment to the City Traffic Ordinance, designating both Waterloo and St. Paul Avenues as Through Traffic Streets upon which it will be necessary for all cross-traffic to come to a complete stop pefore crossing.

First Spoons in America

The first form of spoon which we associate with America is the Puritan spoon, writes Alice R. Rollins in the Los Angeles Times. John Hull of Boston (1624-1683) made such spoons. Other early silversmiths were John Coney (1655-1722) John Edwards (1670-1791) and the patriot Paul Revere (1735-1818). Spoons with flat handles, the ends trifid or notched, were made until about 1730. The 1730-1750 spoons are distinguished by the rat-tail, socalled from a well-defined ridge extending down the back of the bowl resembling the tail of a rat. About 1750 the tail was cut off and what we know as the drop or double drop was substituted. Soon after this the bowl became more pointed and the handles turned back instead of toward the front. In the first part of 1700 a new form of spoon appeared. The handle still bent forward but it was thicker and more rounded at the top and down the middle of the front was a Niagara 3624 decided ridge. Seventeen hundred and thirty marks the beginning of the bright-cut decoration. Coffin handles belong to the first ten years of 1800. Then we have the fiddleback handles with which we are all more or less familiar.

Previous to the Revolution many of our silversmiths marked their work by impressing their initials or initial and surname. For some time after the war, in order to satisfy their patrons who might prefer English silver, they simulated certain of the English marks such as the anchor, the lion and the crown. That is why we find some of our early silver so marked.

Color of Eyes, Sunsets,

Due to Scattering Light Blue eyes are not really blue, nor red sunsets really red.

The apparent color is due to the scattering of light when the photons hit against extremely minute particles. It takes place only when the diameter of the obscuring particles is small in comparison to the wave length of the light. For this reason light in the blue end of the spectrum is scattered more than light in the red end, asserts a writer in the Washington Star.

This principle was worked out more than a half century ago by the English physicist, Lord Rayleigh.

Thus the sun appears red when viewed through a thick smoke fog, but white through a fog in the country consisting of water droplets. Water drops are too large to produce true scattering. Their action is in the nature of diffraction and reflection, which is almost equally effective for all wave lengths. Hence water drops appear white, whether viewed by reflected or direct solar radiation.

Other examples of structural colors, which are produced by scattering phenomena are the red color of the sunset, the colors of bird feathers, the blue color of the sky, or of skimmed milk. This blue is now known as Tyndall blue. There is no blue pigment in blue eyes and it was pointed out by the English physicist Tyndall years ago that the blue of the eye is really the blue of turgid media and is analogous to skimmed milk.

Among the worst enemies of snakes are snakes, says Collier's Weekly. Many species are not only occasional but constant "snake-eaters," among which are the hamadryad and the krait of India and China and the coral snake of tropical South America.

U. of D. Dance Is Colorful Affair 70,000 Detroiters

By MARY JANE STOETZEL

Rain failed to damped the spirits of approximately 250 dancers Friday, July lo, when the University of Detroit held their Student Council Dance at the Edgewater Park ballroom. Gayly colored silks, and cool-looking prints worn by the girls beside the white linen and flannel suits of the boys, made the paliroom a cheery spot in spite of the gloomy atmosphere outside.

Beneath a yellow and black checkerboard ceiling and swinging red and green lanterns the revelers mingled and danced to the strains of Gloster Currents eleven-piece orchestra. As a special attraction fireworks were shot off before the wide piazza on the north end of the ballroom. Pinwheels, sky rockets, the Falls and the American Flag are only a few items of that large illuminated display. While the orchestra played the school song of the University of Detroit two bright red letters, "U. of D." flared forth in the

Another feature presented was the singing and guitar playing of Skippy and Jimmy, runnersup in the semifinals of the contest sponsored by the Grande Bailroom. Two songs, "Blue Hawaii" and "Moonlight and Shadows," the piece which brought them into the contest, were sung by Skippy and Jimmy. Skippy was the guitar player while Jimmy helped do the

Gundry Explains New Children's Aid Legislation

Auditor General, George T. Gundry announced today that two acts passed by the recent Legislature have materially changed the setup with reference to medical treatment of afflicted and crippled children.

Under the new acts, Mr. Gundry explained, the auditor general is now the sole collector for monies due the state, and in addition has the jurisdiction tered borrowers is 8,177 or 31 per cent along with the Michigan Crippled Children's Commission for establishing all fees and rates as well as the procedure that shall be followed in the rendering of related services.

Two outstanding features of the new laws provide for the definite establishment of a maximum amount that may be paid to both hospitals and physicians and secondly, provides for the prosecution as a felony of any hospital or physician who attempts to collect for treatment from the parents and also from the state.

Mr. Gundry pointed out that the cost to the state for these services has increased tremendously during the past nine months. As an example, he said that the entire cost of treatment for July, August and September for 1936 amounted to $52,000 while the costs of April, May and June, 1937, will run somewhat over $200,000 or an increase of 400 per cent in nine months.

Need 1937 Plates

Approximately 70,000 owners of motor vehicles in the Detroit district have failed to get 1937 license plates to replace sticker permits which expire at midnight July 31.

Throughout the state there are 300,000 more owners who are in the same fix and must either get plates or quit operating their vehicles after July

Secretary of State, Leon D. Case warns that there can be no extension of time and that all cars found in operation and bearing only 1936 plates and sticker permits will be impounded by police beginning August 1. Owners will be charged with operating a vehicle without proper license plates and will be subject to a fine. Police will hold such cars until owners have procured 1937 plates. With 370,000 motorists without 1937 plates Secretary Case points out that the 135 branches of his office throughout the state, 35 of them in the Detroit district, will find their facilities taxed to the limit during the last few days of the sale period.

State to Refund License Monies to Municipalities

Refunds by the state of 15 cents on each operator's and chauffeur's license issued, the money to be used to cover costs of examination and education of applicants, is an important step in the promotion of street and highway safety, in the opinion of Secretary of State Leon D. Case. The 1937 legislature passed the bill making possible such re-Citizens' Military Training Camp at funds, which heretofore went into local general funds.

Secretary Case, at the request of August 2nd, which will be known as Commissioner Oscar G. Olander of the Michigan State Police has drawn up a table showing the sums returned locally during the last three years, so that state police may estimate results to be looked for from forthcoming local refund revenues under the new plan.

For the calendar years 1934, 1935 and 1936, the total refunds to local governments was $307,373. The so-called "uniform operators and chauffeurs license act" went into effect in 1931 and since then revenues have been high every third year when licenses had to be renewed. As a consquence local refunds will show a rise the latter half of 1937 and the early part of 1938.

next day. We are sorry to say that our scoutmaster, Mr. Holmes, couldn't come, but we were ably guided by Mr. Baker, the man who started our troop.

Sunday when we came home from church we stopped at an old, deserted sand and gravel pit that went to ruins in 1930 during the depression. We explored the place and found old motors, of various kinds, old pulleys to pull the cars of sand up to where they unload the sand, and also found huge sand pits about 150 feet deep. We also went in an old mining shaft which was made of stone, in which the pulleys were.

Well, so long until next week. I'll be seeing you.

Ash Is Only Green Wood That Will Burn in Grate

Logs do not always save the coal bill. Some have to have coals to make them burn, and a coal-and-log fire is not economical. All kinds of logs will burn brightly if they can be stored in a shed indefinitely, according to the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian. Ash is really the only wood that will burn when it is green. Birch and hawthorn make green. Birch and hawthorn make a poor second, with holly and beech taking third place.

Birch, pine, larch, and oak make excellent fires when dry, and beech does too, but beech produces an inflammable soot that may set the chimney on fire if it is used continuously. Elm and sycamore are not so good, but they are better than poplar, lime, fir, and chestnut, which are noor.

Cedar and cypress burn with a delightful fragrance. Yew makes a good blaze and approaches most to coal in density, but it must not be left unattended, as it sparks dangerously. Old orchard trees make good firewood and have a pleasant smell, but they must be well dried smell, but they must be well dried. Birch combines good combustion with a pleasant scent, as do in a lesser degree pine and larch logs when dry and resinous. Laburnum and laurel trimmings from the garden make good fires.

Large grates are the best log burners. It is a mistake to use the poker with the idea of urging on a slow-burning fire, for a new surface has to be heated through before there is a flame. Instead of a poker, coax the smouldering fire to a blaze with a pair of bellows.

History of Roast Pig Is Traced to Burning House

Charles Lamb's humorous essay called "A Dissertation Upon Roast Pig" refers to a Chinese manuscript read to him by his friend M. It gives an account of the fire in the swineherd Ho-ti's cottage, the result of his son Bo-bo's carelessness. That Lamb never intended this story to be taken for the truth, observes a writer in the Detroit News, is shown in the following paragraph of his essay:

his essay:

"Without placing too implicit faith in the account above given, it must be agreed that if a worthy pretext for so dangerous an experiment as setting houses on fire (especially in these days) could be assigned in favor of any culinary object, that pretext and excuse might be found in Roast Pig."

Mason's "Origins of Inventions"

Mason's "Origins of Inventions," says: "Just how it first occurred to the primitive folk that cooked meat would last longer and digest more quickly than raw meat is unknown. The ever-ready guesser will say that a lucky accident was the teacher, but lucky accidents give no lessons to those who are not already alert.
The only truth that can be arrived at is in the study of the cookery of modern savages. The most abject peoples in the world cook their food, the only exceptions at all worthy of mention being the Es-

A Table-Setting Ceremony
For full state banquets at Buckingham palace, the famous crown dining service of solid gold—each plate is said to be worth $2,000—is brought from the strong-room in Windsor castle, says Michael Mac-Donagh in "The English King." The laying of the royal table is a ceremony in itself. First come the "upholsterers," whose duty it is to see that the table is well and truly placed in the room, and is in a fit condition to bear its precious and heavy appointments. Next come the "table deckers" who lay the snowy napery, the knives and forks and spoons and the drinking glasses. The napkins are never twisted into fanciful shapes, being always plainly folded. The Yeomen of the Gold and Silver Pantries then arrange the gold and silver appointments. And, finally, other "deckers" adorn the table with flowers and trailing greenery. Fingerbowls are never seen at the royal table.

Oldest Meteorological Observatory The "Temple of the Winds" may be called the oldest meteorological observatory in the world. It is a small octagonal building of marble and was erected about 100 B. C. The eight sides of the temple were built so as to face in the direction of the winds, with descript c figures representing the character of a particular wind. The north wind was represented as a warmly clad man clothed in furs, blowing fiercely on a trumpet; the east wind was expressed by a young man with flow-ing hair; the west wind by the figure of a lightly clad and beautiful youth with lap full of flowers. On the roof and in the center was placed a wind-vane, displaying the figure of a Triton whose scepter always pointed to the "wind octant."

Blacks From Egypt

That the blacks of Australia came from Egypt has been confirmed by a mass of evidence, according to a member of the Anthropological Society of New South Wales. The aboriginal carvings at Devil's Rock, Wollombi, New South Wales, are especially significant. The totems, symbols and ideographs show that the ancestors of original Australians migrated, probably from Egypt, in the late Paleolithic and the Neo-lithic ages. One striking ideograph, the Muron, has been preserved by the blacks for 100,000 years.

Grosse Pointe Post 303 NEWS

By L. V. HARRISON

Your committee in charge of the installation of officers' proceedings, have decided that each and every good wife of a member whom she is going to demand that he, the member, shall attend and bring her, shall make up her own sandwiches and delicacies for their own refreshment. In this manner there will be no mistake in judgment upon the committee's part such as having too much food for a small attendance, or too little food for a large attendance. It is desired that each good wife will make a few extra of the delectables and turn them over to the committee for the visitors expected.

If you have Legionnaire friends, members of other Posts, whom you care to invite to the installation, it is permissable to do so, but take into ion. When molested, a little one consideration when packing your lunch, will whimper and cry like a hurt their requirements.

Liquid refreshments will be sold, money donations will be used solely for music. Let's make this a real social affair.

Koala Bear About Half-

an Inch Long When Born The koala bear, Australia's most popular native, is a lovable live toy, writes Mason Warner in the Chicago Tribune. He never grows very big. The young are born in an immature state, little more than half an inch in length, and are carried and developed in the mother's pouch for about six months, at the end of which time the baby measures about six inches in length, weighs about six ounces, and sports a fine fur coat. For three or four months longer the mother carries the cub on her back, where it holds on with its arms around her neck, or clings to her bosom with her protecting arms around it. But the pouch is still used until the young one has grown too big to get into it. Maternal care and protection continue till the cub is a year old. A mother will hold her infant on her lap and fondle and stroke it in almost human fash-

The koala reaches maturity at about four years and may live to reach the age of 20. Full grown ones weigh about 30 pounds and measure 24 to 30 inches from tip of nose to where the tail would begin if they had a tail. They range in color from dark gray to brown,

The Australian native bear loves the tall eucalyptus trees and he is adapted to its environment. He can climb the smooth, barkless trees with ease and grace. His powerful limbs and strong, sharp claws enable him to keep his position aloft unperturbed in the fiercest gales.

The koala is the personification of indolent leisure. He does not move about while the sun is high. He sits most of the day. He apparently be-comes active only to eat, and prefers to go from the limb of one tree to the limb of another rather than descend to the ground.

Made the First Banto At the beginning of the Nineteenth century, a native on the island of Banjoemas, Java, wanted a musical instrument of his own, but having no money to buy it, decided to make one for himself. And so, according to "Fact Digest," he took a cheese box, wrapped a goat skin around one end, attached a handle, added violin strings tuned to the first, third, fifth and eighth notes of an octave, and christened it "banio." after the first two syllables of the island's name. The idea caught on among the natives, and the instrument eventually arrived in America, where it had a great success. It has achieved international popularity, but when it was first introduced in conventional England it was treated with scorn.

Zeuxis (pronounced Zewk-sis), a Greek painter who lived in the latter part of the Fifth century B. C., is said to have painted a bunch of grapes which looked so natural that birds pecked at them. This is supposed to have occurred during a competition between Zeuxis and a Zeuxis, commenting upon the incident, remarked that if the boy had been as well painted as the grapes the birds would have been afraid to approach.

Vanity in the Dog

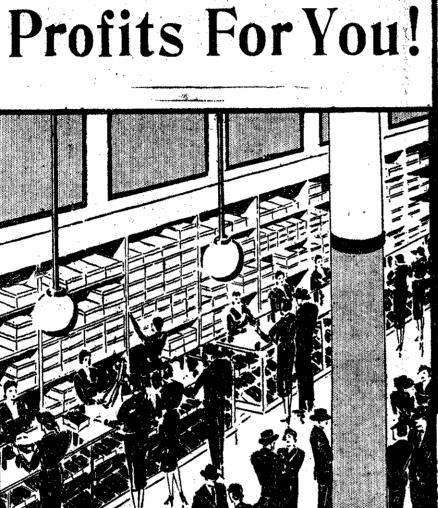

Vanity is seen in the dog that carefully cleans his paws and his legs whenever he returns to house or kennel on a muddy day. A keen sense of humor is found in countless dogs which tease their masters by hiding small objects and a love of games is inherent in nearly all dogs, but a rather advanced type of intelligence is present in those which continually invent new games and try to teach them to their masters,

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

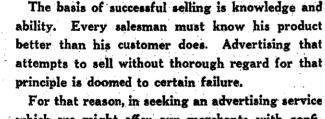

The artists who draw for Tribune Service are the same expert men who prepare illustrations for use by some of Chicago's largest advertisers. They know the type of work that unfailingly attracts the prospect's eye. Their work is practical-and, consequently, resultful. It helps make advertising profitable.

There's a good deal more to copy than a mere collection of words. Copywriters must be students of every phase of marketing. They must know their productthey must know their prospect. Naturally the resources of The Tribune command men who star at their work. Those same men work for you when you use Tribune Service advertising.

Advertising

For that reason, in seeking an advertising service which we might offer our merchants with confidence, we made every effort to go deeper than surface indications and make an exhaustive study of how and by whom our advertising material was

In choosing Chicago Tribune Service we were guided by several factors. First, was the more logical, stronger copy, the more attractive and timely illustrations. But more important, is the organization back of the material. This Service is created and designed by the same men who must make merchandise more in a large and difficult market. They must know advertising-they must test their product by actual use and results.

Naturally, those men are in position to know newspaper advertising needs, and the problems of big and little merchants. Naturally those men must have trained ability and the knowledge of merchandise and salesmanship. How well they do their job can be seen in the finer results their suggestions produce. Not advertising alone, but real merchandising, real thought, real selling effort makes the use of Tribune Service intensely profitable to mer-

Those who are completing their high school work this summer are: Charles Allard, Don Brydges, Cecelia Justice. Alfred Krapp, William McBride, Alfred Moran, William Petty, Sam Shepherd, William Stevenson, John Swegles, and Eilen Zimmerman.

Seven elementary school pupils, 187 high school pupils and 15 post graduates are enrolled in the summer session. Of these 175 are regular students in the Grosse Pointe schools, the remaining 34 coming from other schools in the vicinity or being college students home on vacation.

Among the colleges represented in the summer enrollment are Wellesley, Principia College in St. Louis, St. Joseph's College, in Adrian, and the University of Detroit. Several of the college students are studying typewriting, while others are making up some deficiency in prerequisites for their college work.

C. B S. Sponsors Shakespeare Cycle Essay Contest

Students attending summer sessions of a large number of American colranged by the Columbia Broadcasting System in connection with its Shakespeare Cycle over the WABC-CBS network during July and August.

The contest, which was planned with the co-operation of leading school authorities, offers a first prize of $250 for the best critical essay dealing with Columbia's presentations of "Hamlet;" "Much Ado About Nothing"; "Julius Caeser"; "The Taming of the Shrew"; "King Lear"; "As You Like It"; "Henry IV," and "Twelfth Night," the eight plays of the cycle. Fifteen second prizes consisting of copies of a new de luxe edition of Shakespeare's works illustrated by Rockwell Kent and autographed by Brewster Morgan, director of the series, also will be awarded.

The contest will be divided into two phases: First, selection of the best paper obtained through preliminary competitions at the various schools cooperating; second, the judging of each school's best entry by a national board of award consisting of noted educators and Shakespearian authorities whose office methods available in Detroit, the names will be announced shortly.

Local winners must submit their essays to this committee in care of the drama division of the Columbia Broadcasting System before September 10.

It is believed by network officials and participating educators that valuable suggestions for future broadcasts of a similar nature to the Shakespeare Cycle will be obtained as the result of this contest.

Famous Dunking Team at Convention Hall

Dunkers who made dunking a science long before Emily Post said you couldn't get away with it became permanent residents of the Michigan Insect Zoo in Convention Hall, Detroit, last week.

They are Hans and Fritz, a pair of wo-month-old raccoon pups who scorn any such delicacy as cake, hamburg or dog biscuit unless they can first wash it thoroughly in milk or water.

Thus dunking their food is a practice hat raccoons don't have to be taught. From the day they're first able to seize morsels in their handlike forepaws, young 'coons instinctively plunge food into the stream or pond before

This particular pair of coons was ent to the zoo by W. C. Cornetet of Big Beaver. Their first act after they arrived was to explore their roomy cage. Apparently decided that they liked the air at the top, they proceeded to hang upside down, huddled close together, to stare solemnly through black-spectacled eyes at the spectators staring at them.

Hans and Fritz earn a place in the Insect Zoo because of the importance of their clan in controlling insect pests. Raccoons feed eagerely on wireworms, cutworms, white grubs, grasshoppers and other such insects.

Among other acquisitions of the zoo in the last few days have been Texas tarantulas, Big Prionus beetles, yellowbear caterpillars, Texas blister beetles whose blood is used for healing plasters, squash bugs and several kinds of butterflies. A big blue racer captured near Walled Lake is another.

The Insect Zoo is open from 11 a. m. to 10 p. m. every day.

Three State Offices to Be Moved to Detroit

Firm-willed, obstinate folks have a very well-formed bump high up on the crown of the head. In some cases, says a phrenologist in London Answers Magazine, a highly developed bump of firmness means that its owner will gain success through sheer determination and persistence; in others it may mean that there is unreasonable persistence and obstinacy. But unless you have quite a pronounced bump here you have no will of your own. Just behind this is the bump of self-esteem. Moderation, as you can guess, is very necessary with a bump of this nature. You need just an average-sized bump here.

The lion is not naturally aggressive. On the contrary he fears human beings instinctively. A lion's first thought is to escape when he comes in contact with man, according to a game hunter in London Answers Magazine. Sometimes, too, a lion may become a man-eater through old age, toothlessness, and lack of game to kill. One of the earliest activities of the Rotary Club of Chicago, and doubtless of most other Rotary Clubs, was a share in community service. Some began to think that Rotary was growing into a benevolent movement and appeals for assistance became uncomfortably pressing. At last there came a time when the leaders saw the danger that Rotary might become merely another philanthropic organization and at the St. Louis convention in 1923 there was adopted for the guidance of Rotary clubs, a statement of the Policy of Rotary toward Community Service. Without fixing limitations upon Rotary club activities in community service, this statement asserted that the primary objective of the Rotary club is to train its members in service.

Later international service was added. There was possible a lack of harmony between these four branches of service, and a lack of co-ordination which might result in over-emphasis upon one or more to the neglect of another. To meet this need, the Aims and Objects Plan was created and tried out for a year among the clubs of Great Britain. It provided for an aims and objects committee which should keep the club program carefully balanced between the four forms of activity. The Osted convention in 1927 adopted this plan, which has since become effective in almost all Rotary clubs. tub activities and objectives had adually been centered under the tegories of club service, vocational

Rotary

Thus Rotary has developed in its first quarter century, finding spokesmen and leaders as the need arose, receiving guidance along its original course as viewpoints varied, gaining strength and recognition in country after country until it can truly be said that Rotary encircles the world. It was the founder's purpose to bring together some of his friends and their friends in a club designed primarily to encourage fellowship among the leading business and professional men of a community. Rotary in all its growth and expansion has held steadily true to these fundamentals. Leaders set an example of business and professional standards. Leaders set an example of business and professional standards. Leaders set an example of business and professional standards. Leaders set an example thought of their fellow citizens toward a better international understanding. These are the obligations of a Rotarian

Rotary begins with the individual and his responsibility in his own vocation which is the subject of greatest concern to every man. Outsde his vocation, a Rotarian has his duties as a good neighbor and citizen. Beyond this, the Rotarian develops the international viewpoint. Nations are now such close neighbors, their daily life is so closely woven together through dependence upon each other's products, goods and services, that the international mindws one of the most important characteristics of a leader in business and the professions. War is not prevented by some spectacular effort at the eleventh hour but by a gradual education of the people and their statesmen.

visitor is greeted with a friendly handclasp. There are more than 175,000 Rotarians in these clubs, each of them extending his influence in his own smal circle, each inspired by the thought of "service above self."

Certain Lights Troublesome
Certain lights produce nausea, headache and domestic troubles, says an optometrist, and red color in particular may be detrimental to married life in homes decorated too prominently in its shades. Light shades of green are more desirable.

Among the strange creatures in Australia is the mudskipper. It swims, walks on land—why it even climbs trees. The fish, found in rivers of Northern Queensland, are generally about 10 inches long. A real freak of nature, they have lungs in addition to gills. Their thick front fins are about the shape and size of frogs' legs. On these they walk: A mudskipper usually goes ashore pursued by a crab, its mortal enemy. To escape, it ascends the roots of a mangrove tree, many of which grow near the shore. Thus it gets another name, "mangrove fish."

We Must Lose to Gain little confidence in the value of Rotary efforts.

Two honest but divergent tendencies mark answers to those questions.
