Grosse Exaggerations By A. PRYOR

The fublect to change without notweather we've been having, has the birds in a dither as well as the natives. Last week, most of the birds that alway fly South, got as fer as the City limits and flew back again.

We were one of the privileged thousand who got a peek at the pre-view of the new Esquire Theatre. Its interior is severly modern and boasts comfortable seats, but alas and alack, no balcony where seats might be reserved for the carriage trade! The night we were there, the cooling system was more system than cooling, but We understand that the unexpected heat wave caused a snag in the plans and that in the future, it will be working a hundred per cent. If the show we saw is any indication of the Esquire's picture policy, no one could ask for more. Everything on the screen was the show. The audience is then reas new and up to date as the theatre minded to be sure that they haven't itself. We especially enjoyed being left any of their belongings. A pleasinvited to raise our bass voice to the heights of "The Star Spangled Banner," which opened the proceedings. A Grosse Pointe couple gave an informal luncheon at their house last week and the invitations read (in part), tennis, swimming, lunch-1:30. The young son of one of the guests saw the invitation and said to his mother, "Gosh that's cheap. Tennis, swimming and lunch, all for a dollar thirty."

And speaking of that fair communfty, we read in one of the dailys that a select group of the weaker sex had instigated a weekly 'get together' for the purpose of reading poetry aloud to one another. Probably a sudden attack of love in bloom'-field.

Dept. of sympathy,

A columnist in one of the New York papers writes, "If the European war is prolonged, there will be no British "tone" to the 1939-1940 Palm Beach season." We can't help thaking our head from side to side and murmuring, tsk, tsk, tsk, tsk. When we think of the Florida socialities bravely bearing up under the strain of a baimy winter, without the presence of British titles to Maureen Gregory Back grace their dinner tables, it makes our sporting blood turn to syrup, we're THAT sympathetic!

Since Winchell has forsaken Broadway and key holes for America, we've noted the fact that he prefaces many of his radio 'flashes' with, "From high officials in the government-" etc. A Kercheval, near Dickerson, after an friend of ours who covers N. Maybe one and one makes two or maybe our imagination permanent waving and hair styling, and has been fired and it will just be a question of time, before WE are.

We continue to receive all sorts of unique letters in the way of advertising, but none has so charmed us as the one we just got from a fur studio. In it, the writer reminds us that we remember her, that she is the well known little blonde girl who has written us several letters previously and that at present she has a beautiful selection of chubbies, chunkies and boleros, which can be had in stouts, from 46 to 60. She offers to help us select for carrying your baggage, but you must pay them specific, graduated charges for each piece. If your five year guarantee, five years free

Esquire Theatre Opening A Very Colorful Event

All of Grosse Pointe and a lot of | Pointe Championship Detroit witnessed a little touch of Hollywood when the Esquire Theatre pened last week. The tinge are again that are so typical of all Hollywood openings, were very much in evidence, lighting the street for blocks, and even stopping traffic. Crowds of people who were unable to see the opening show because the theatre was filled to capacity, stood outside and gaped to their pected to participate. Entries have heart's content. The whole scene was so reminiscent of Grauman's Chinese Theatre pre-views, that it wouln't have been surprising to see a horde of movie stars, stepping out of their plush-lined

The interior of the theatre lives up to all the expectations of modern people for a modern theatre. Simple decor. comfortable seats, cool atmosphere and erfect acoustics. The girl ushers, attractively costumed, might have been rulled from a recent beauty show, they're THAT pretty.

The program was unbelievably good for the price of admission that is charged and the owners intend to continue this policy. A very new and clever idea is the short, amusing "goodnight" that comes at the end of ant-voiced gentleman mentions various articles of apparel, as the screen picis helpful as well as unique.

The keepers of the reptile house of the London zoo might well be intoning a new version of the nursery rhyme about the "ten little Injuns." for this is exactly what happened there: Seventy-four Cerberus water snakes arrived at the zoo. The Hamadryads ate 12 of them-now

The Hamadryad anakes are three in number. Their habitat is Ma-laya. From the first day of their arrival they proved rather expensive to feed. Until the water anakes came they had lived comfortably on a black and gold tree make spiece a week, but as these reptiles are rare and cest about $20 to $25 each, the Hamadryads' meals proved a strain on event he zoo's resources.

"You see," says a zoo keeper, "we have only three black and gold snakes left now, and they must be kept for show. So we imported kept for show. So we imported these Corberus water snakes from southeastern Asia as a substitute They only cost about 10 shillings it is an economy in a way, as three Cerberus snakes go to one black and gold one."

He pointed to the cage in which the new arrivals were crawling hap-pily about oblivious of the fate be-fore them.

"Three of them will be lucky." he said, "as we will keep them for display. The rest will be fed to the Hamadryads at the rate of about six a week, although we will vary the diet occasionally."

Absolutely no pain is involved for the water snakes, however, as the great Hamadryads render each vic-tim unconscious before consuming

"It is one of those problems we are always being confronted with," the keeper said. "The Hamadryads would starve to death if we didn't give them live food the Corberus water snakes, in their natural surroundings, would almost certainly meet a far more unpleasant end. It is happier for all concerned this way."

New Process Produces Coal From Sugar Cane

NEW YORK.—In an emergency, American farmers may grow the country's soft coal in their fields.

The sugar coal is too expensive to be practical, but was made to settle course have a definite need for this an old controvers; about the origin training, which is essential before try-

In the Carnegle laboratories, whose expects include some of the leeding scientists of the coal fields, the artificial onal is made in two ways. Sugar finated in water at hate temperature produces a sandy form of coal.

When week alkali is added to the water, Berli said, "excellent coking coals" are the result. Adding pressure to the hot sugar water insure to the hot sugar water increases the amount of carbon in the man-made coal. These farm-product coals, Berl

England Keeping Fit

England has a keep-fit movement that is growing daily and may be-come a challenge to the health and youth parades in other countries of Europe. In the county of London alone are more than 100 health cen-ters, where 500 evening health classes are held weekly. In these classes 23,000 young men exercise after business hours. As many more youths are having athletic and physical training in other places each evening. In some exclusive clubs electrical "horses" and "camels" are ridden. The American game of basketball has caught on and promises to become a bodybuilding rage.

Midden Taxes for Workers

Out of an annual colory of $1,000 a wage earner pays $123, or 12.2 per cent to the government in hid-den taxes, recent authoritative surveys show. In some cases the amount was four t to be as much as 18 per cent, o $180.

storage, a trade in allowance on our old mule, and ten percent discount if we arrive bearing our credentials. Also, we can pay for our (personally) selected coat in twelve months. Our baser self urges us to away, and let the fur fly where it will; but our better self won't let us take advantage of one little blonde girl.

Another 'AD' which sends our mind wendering off to absurd fantasys, is one headed, "Madam, Your Hat Can Be YOU....." What strange situations our hat might get into if it were we or even us! The best example we can think of is the possibility of turning down a boring luncheon by saying, "So sorry I can't accept, but I'll send my hat."

And so we leave you with a thought for this week: There are many public offices where small men rattle about because men who can fill the place, cannot afford it.

Useful Math Course Taught to Freshmen

By GORDON MILLS (High School Journalism Student)

A knowledge of mathematics is so requently used by everyone that most people are not aware of the innumerable times they apply it. Measuring, for example, is used every time a housewife mixes ingredients, or makes over a dress. Measuring is important to both men and women in judging distances when driving a car.

A ninth-grade course is offered in Grosse Pointe High School to aid in solving these problems which repeatedy confront one in everyday life.

The important object of the course is to stress the "why" and "how" of solutions, as well as to give practice in fundamental arithmetic. Learning why buying insurance is a good policy, how to recognize good investments, and the pros and cons of installment buying are examples of practical ma-The fact that fairly good soft coal | terial brought out in the six units of the course.

Unit one reviews the fundamental processes of arithmetic, including addition, anhtraction, multiplication, and division of whole numbers, fractions, and decimals. Most pupils electing this training, which is essential before trying to improve ability to solve any problems.

The second unit is concerned with practical measurement of distances, surfaces, and lumber-recognized to be one of the important mathematics activities in life today.

Unit three is devoted to analyzing problem solutions. Students are taught how to approach solutions to story problems. This is accomplished through several means which include analyzing elements, estimating the result, stating an equation clearly, drawing a sketch, and checking the final answer mathematically.

The fourth unit concerns percentage, and explains its applications, and meanings, in practical and theoretical problems. The family budget, taxes, insurance, banking, and discounts, all of which are a momentous part of everybody's life, are included in this section, and are taken standpoint.

Unit five covers information about the interpretation and construction of graphs. Students enjoy making scrap books containing illustrations of the wide use of mathematics in life when the pupil recognizes situations of interest. Many girls list and illustrate problems contacted by the housewife during the course of everyday work.

The last unit allows the student to take a special field in which he is interested. Those intending to take up algebra are given practice with algebraic equations, substitution, and a vocabulary of algebraic terms. P., who expect to enter the office practice course, study particular problems in this field.

All horses have good memories, Mr. Sarl says. "Perhaps you have wondered why some horses prefer certain courses. #### London Museum Obtains Old Romanesque Window Recent acquisitions of the Victoria and Albert museum in London in-clude several notable pieces of sculpture and stained glass. Most important single item is the French Romanesque triple window of stone, which was purchased with the help of a generous contribution from the National Art-Collections fund and erected in the east hall of the museum near the main entrance, says the Times, of London. This window s discovered not long ago during 클 the demolition of an old house close to the Cathedral of Trie Chateau, near Gisors, about 30 kilometers from Beauvais. It consists of three rounded arches, supported on columns with capitals of a late Romanesque character.

Inside each arch is a tympanum with two small pointed arches containing carvings of strange beasts (such as birds with human heads). sirens, and a centaur drawing his bow against a basilisk. The great delicacy of its decoration, especially on the capitals, suggests that the work dates from the end of the Romanesque period, probably from the last part of the Twelfth century.

Among other pieces of sculpture are a Sixteenth century Florentine terra-cotta figure of a reclining woman, thought to be an allegorical representation of history, and ascribed to Giovanni Bologna and the terra-cotta sketch model by J. M. Rysbrack (1693-1770), for the reclining figure of Sir Isaac Newton on his monument in Westminster abbey. The monument itself, erected in 1731, was designed by William Kent, but the figures on it were the work of Rysbrack.

Scenically, it is among the handsomest of the West Indies, with its great mass of mountains, about whose summits drifts a gentle mantle of mist that belies St. Lucia's often violent history. Believed to have been discovered by Columbus in 1502, and named for the martyred St. Lucy, burned at the stake, St. Lucia was for centuries drenched in blood. The first two English settlements of 1605 and 1638 were wiped out by Carib natives. Suede Plays an Important Role In Wardrobe of the College Girl fall and winter activities, formal and informal and for all occasions in between. Campus doings, the football series, evening festivities. motoring, travel, town-we ir outfits, the well-equipped wardrobe must be built around all these fashion de-mands. And here's big news! Everyone of these issues is being met with fashions in suede.

Every college girl, in fact every woman who aspires to the best that fashion has to offer, should reckon. in fact must reckon, with suede as one of the factors of high importance in the assembling of a wardrobe. What leather workers, designers and style creators have succeeded in doing with suede deserves to be classed with the seven wonders of the world.

Suede has that something about it that lures you on to indulgence, especially this season when the hats, bags, neckwear, belts and countless other accessories are made of it, coats and suits tailored of it, day-time one-piece frocks, the evening gowns and wraps fashioned of it, surpass all previous showings. According to Paris cables and reports of returning huyers this is going to be the biggest suede season ever.

The fact that you can get anything you want these days fashioned of suede from sports togs to evening attire adds to its lure. Then, too, with the tang of autumn in the air comes the urge for clothes that tune to the colorful landscape and as every woman knows when it comes to rich beautiful colors there's nothing in fashion media that can surpass suede. Note the wide scope of coat and dress types expressed in terms of suede as here pictured. A coat such as shown to the left will grace any grandstand occasion, at the same time that it flings a dely to biting winds on a frosty autumn day. This model is of duck green suede. Jean Parker, featured screen artist, wears it. Self lacing gives the hand touch to this handsome practical coat, the lacing ap-

Famous Southern Song

Had Origin in New York Daniel Decatur Emmett, famous organizer of the first minstrel show in 1843, wrote "Dixie" for Dan Bry-ant's minstrels in 1859. He was a native of Mount Vernon, Ohio, and his father, a Virginian of Irish descent, was an abolitionist in his sympathies. The young man be-came a musician attached to a traveling circus and his work included eling circus and his work included the composing or adapting of many Negro melodies. One Saturday night after the minstrel show in New York. Bayant asked him to write a "walk-sround" for Monday. Next day it was cold and rainy and as he looked out of his window he remembered the oft-expressed wish of Newroca with the airgus when of Negroes with the circus when fall days came, "I wish I was in Dixie." He wrote the song in half an hour. It was popular in the North before it was even sung in the South. The melody was adapted by him from an old tune his mother used to sing to him.

After it was picked up by the South, Emmett declared that his song was responsible for the prolongation of the war, its stirring refrain stimulating discouraged men to further effort. One writer says: "The new republic needed a song, something that would call men from their plows and stir their hearts into a frenzy of emotion. The band played 'The Bonny Blue Flag' and the crowd cheered mildly. And then 'Dixie.' The crowd caught its breath and then went mad. Women pressed around the musicians and showered them with flowers.

The song was the soul of the people. After Appointment ended the war, northern attention was called to the song when President Lincoln said that the famous tune now belonged to the nation, having been captured in the war. It lost its sectionalism, becoming almost a national anthem.

Extensive Study Reveals

New Atmospheric 'Pulse' There are pulse beats in the atmosphere with time periods ranging from six hours to fifty-six years. This is revealed by a detailed mathematical analysis of the barometric pressure readings which have been made for more than 60 years on the island of Mauritius, a British colony in the Indian ocean near Madagascar. The pulse beats arc completely intermingled, and it was necessary to submit the curve show ing the mixed pulsating record to harmonic analysis which separated the pulses of particular frequencies

The readings were handled in two groups, one giving the continuou. daily record, and the other giving the average pressure by years. The latter showed a 56 year cycle that seemed to be associated with fall cycle of the same period. Pressure cycles of 17 years and of nine years were found. Study over a longer period may reveal that the latter are multiples or submulti-ples of each other. An annual cycle was found with a minimum in mid-February, the time of highest temperature.

The continuous daily records showed that the strongest component was not the 24 hour cycle, but the 12 hour, the latter having twice the amplitude of the former. The third largest daily factor was the eight-hour cycle, with about half the amplitude of the 24 hour cycle. The smallest factor was the six hour cycle. These various cycles appear to be independent of each other insofar as each exhibits independent

U. of D. Team Strong Contenders

By E. A. Batchelor

With the largest squad of recent years and one that shows anusual promise, Coach Charles E. "Gus" Dorais, of the University of Detroit, will open his training program Monday. Many of the men already are in town and it will be possible to get right down to business on the first day of the practice season. There will be two practice sessions daily except Sunday until college opens, when it will be necessary to confine the football program to the late afternoon,

Because the opening game comes on September 22 this year, a week earlier than usual. Coach Dorais and his assistants will have their hands full whipping the squad into shape. The intro-Teachers College, a team that, while not generally in the Titans' class, this season is said to be untsually strong. Dorais has had a wholesome respect for all early-season opponents since 1931 when hescheduled a game during; the American Legion Convention in mid-September. The foe was considered a push-over before the game but sprang a surprise by whipping the with Jim Murphy and Jack Charbe-Titans' handily, thus wrecking the

In view of the imminence of the first game, Detroit is fortunate in that it has a liberal supply of lettermen. There are 17 of them on the squad and, if necessary, "Gus" could use one in every position. It is unlikely that this player, who was out of school a year will happen, however, for the income before entering the Detroit freshman will happen, however, for the incoming sophomore class is supplying an unusually large amount of fine material. In fact, there are only a few egulars of 1938 who can consider their

The principal task that confronts the coaches at the moment is the development of one end and a left-halfback. Only one flanker of proved worth remains on the squad. There are a dozen or more candidates, but all save Bill Schauer lack experience. Ed Palumbo, the passing and kicking star of the last three scasons has left the left-halfback job wide open. The best looking prospeet as of the present time seems to be Al Ghesquiere, who alternated with Palambo in the position last fall. He is not, however, an ideal type of triple-

TASTY SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPERS (See Recipes Below)

Sunday Night Suppers

Even though you expect everyone to have had a noon meal with staying power on Sundays, people do like to eat when Sunday evening rolls 'round! To be sure, they like food that's somewhat lighter, and food that's out of the ordinary. So it's a grand time to leave the beaten and serve something a little different.

If you serve left-overs, be sure to serve them in a new way or with an unusual accompaniment like the jellied chili sauce I've suggested in menu plan a meal espe cially for Sundanight, plan one which can be served "help-yourself" style yourself" style and arrange foods, dishes and silver on the table so that guests may serve themselves. Appetites will be quickened by the eye-appenling ar-rangement of the 'able, and the air of informality makes Sunday night supper a sociable affair. These menus are suited, too, to serving larger numbers — lodge groups, church organizations or clubs. Recipes for the main dish and salad in every menu are easily increased. Unless you have special recipes and equipment, cakes and pastries are likely to be better if the

Mount Vernon: "Ne estate in the United States is more pleasantly situated than this. It lies in a high,

I can truly say that I had rather be at Mount Vernon with a friend or two about me than to be attended at the seat of government by the officers of state and the representatives of every power in Europe."
