DEATH CAR

Death ended a wild ride through Grosse Pointe Park streets early last Sunday morning when the driver of this car, in which three people were riding, fell asleep at the wheel and permitted the automobile to careen over the curb and smash into a fence at 1402 Nottingham. A 16-year-old boy was killed.

Complete Public Library Report Compiled For 1939-40 Fiscal Year

[Editor's Note: Public interest and comment on the annual reports of the public library has been considerable. The Review has also obtained a report on another important community service administered by the Board of Education and supported from the school district's budget—the five public libraries. Presented below is the annual report of Miss Florence H. Severs, chief librarian.]

The most notable event in the history of the Grosse Pointe Public Library was the opening, on October 2, 1939, of the main library in the wing of the John D. Pierce Junior High School. The library in the Park Municipal Building was closed two days for moving.

On Sunday, October 1, the Board of Education and the staff of the Public Library invited the people of the community to a tea in the new library so that all would have an opportunity to see it before it was opened for work. From all sides has come approval of the enlarged and attractive facilities offered and many out-of-town librarians have visited it. The chairs have been copied for one library, the color combination for another and the corner ballroom classes Wed. Thurs and Fri. even. at Elaine Arndt Dance Studio, L.E. 7638.

New "Willkie For President" Club Opened In Pointe

With a fanfare of buttons and posters and leaflets and work kits, the Grosse Pointe Willkie-For-President Club opened its headquarters at 1610 Kercheval on September 18. All it needs now is volunteers to help distribute the literature, arouse sufficient interest in the coming election to get people actually to vote, and, of course, influence as many ballots as possible in the direction of Mr. Willkie.

Man On Street Programs, Especially During the Presidential Campaign Era. Recently, a woman who was questioned about her political views, said, "I'm definitely for Willkie, but I don't intend to vote."

The great European dermatologist, Professor Lassar, was known to have had significant success in the treatment of falling hair and prevention of baldness. One of his patients had to travel abroad but arranged with the professor to send him weekly, several of his hairs for analysis. Over a lengthy period of time, he continued sending hair specimens and received in return, detailed instructions as to massage, unguents and general care. The professor made use of these hair samples to illustrate his diagnosis to the class at the University. One morning, he walked briskly to his lecture post and opening the day's letter from his patient, he read: "My dear Professor, I do not doubt that your treatment has been of great benefit to me and I appreciate all you have done. I regret therefore that enclosed you will find the last sample of my hair that I shall be able to send—because I have no more."

(The above was pilfered from Coronet.)

And so we come to the end of another week of what our friends laughingly call "work."

diversified topics as the following have been answered: Bee keeping, mortician, motion picture positions, and the diplomatic service.

Another new service is the collection of college catalogs. To date there are 33 colleges represented and this will be increased as rapidly as possible.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT

Classes from all of the seven public grade schools and from St. Paul and St. Ambrose visited one of the public library agencies during the year. Instruction in the use of the library was given to 156 groups with an attendance of 4,044.

The children's librarian visited 95 classrooms during the year. Books of interest were discussed with the children and announcements regarding vacation reading, book week and story hour were made.

BOOK WEEK

The new books displayed at the libraries during book week brought the usual response. Children visiting the library that week signed a guest book giving their school, grade and favorite book.

STORY HOURS

Close to 1,000 children attended the story hour held at the main library each Tuesday after school. This story hour was started in February and continued until the Tuesday before the close of school.

A Christmas story hour at the main library proved to be almost too popular with an attendance of 209. At the City branch last summer 10 story hours with an attendance of 253 were held out of doors. This was continued the summer of 1940. During the year 52 story hours in all were held with an attendance of 1,566.

WHAT LIBRARY PROVIDES

For 72 cents per capita the Board of Education provides to the taxpayers of Grosse Pointe the following library services:

The main library is open 11 hours daily, the City branch eight and one-half hours daily, the Woods branch is open 17 hours per week, the Farms station, eight hours per week and the Shores station seven hours per week.

There is a book collection of 23,127 volumes from which to borrow. Reference questions are answered either by telephone or at the library.

Books not in the shelves may be reserved. Books not in the Grosse Pointe collection are borrowed from the Wayne County library.

Book lists are made for those wishing information on any subject.

All children are taught how to use the catalog and to locate books on the shelves, how to use the readers' guide to periodical literature and simple reference tools.

An expert on children's literature is always available for consultation.

Death

(Editor's Note: The following was taken from the body of a Canadian soldier killed during the first World War.)

Who, who are these that come with dauntless tread to swell the armies of the valiant dead? More recompense I make. The Upper Halls of Fame must shelter these. Come, tell me, Death is my name.

I watched them go to battle, I waited for them to fall, these men who seemed so ready and eager to answer the call. I stalked in my dread amongst them. I gazed into every face. But they laughed me to scorn, and quietly, steadily kept in place. I watched as the fire-streaked tortury gathered them in its grip, then I watched for the sign of weakening. I watched for the quivering lip. But they burst the bonds that bound them when the word was passed to go, and careless and all unheeding they fell full-fronted towards the foe.

Then again I went among them, and covered them with my breath, but little they recked my presence. Although my name is Death. Their vision is ever forward, and with every eye aflame, they plunged in the smoke of battle, shouting aloud a NAME.

Oh, rich was the harvest I gathered, for not alone they died. As they swept the foe before them in that mad on-rushing tide. I gazed on the wreck of their bodies. I saw how they fought and fell. And I wondered whence they came, and who would of their passing tell. How they talked in their latest moments of a home beyond the sea. They sang of O'ber and Honor, and spoke of a Mother who gave them birth. Of a Flag that floated above them as their young blood soaked the earth.

Of a cause that will surely triumph, of a Heritage undefiled—Then met the end unflinching, with the simple faith of a child.

Who was it saw their going? Who sent them forth? Come, tell. I wait to hear the answer: Who are these valiant men?

You ask, Oh, Death, whence these men came? Whose souls their terrors couldst not tame? The answer rings o'er land and sea; Clear serene, triumphantly: "These men, O Death, belong to me. Their bodies gladly you may claim. They bled to save an Empire's name. In Canada, they'll live for aye, Locked in my heart by night and by day. I sent them forth the price to pay. I sent them forth, they bore my name. They paid the price; I share their fame."

Health Department Notes

Health conditions in Grosse Pointe Township have been exceptionally good during the past summer. No cases of contagion were reported during August.

With the coming of colder weather and the beginning of the schools, Health Commissioner Dr. Warren urges all parents to have their children immunized against diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox.

The only way to prevent a case of tuberculosis from developing to an advanced stage is in its early recognition, which is done by a simple skin test. The age between 14 and 20 is when it is most liable to develop, and also after a serious illness at any age when the bodily resistance is low.

Consult your doctor in regard to these diseases.

Shaeffer Thanks Voters For Support

(Editor's Note: The ideas of all political candidates are not necessarily the opinions of The Grosse Pointe Review, and should not be identified as such.)

In an interview earlier this week, George B. Shaeffer, Republican choice for Congressman in the 14th District, issued the following statement:

"Needless to say, I am gratified at the results of the 14th Congressional primary campaign. I feel, however, that the entire credit belongs to my loyal friends and neighbors who sacrificed so much time and energy in producing the results reflected in the outcome. Words are inadequate to express my appreciation. I am deeply conscious of my obligation to them, and to the Republican voters of the 14th Congressional District. The responsibility is one which I shall hope to be worthy of.

"We campaigned for that 'Home Front,' which is in the home with the family, as against President Roosevelt's idea that our front, yours and mine, is 'On the Marne.'"

"We believe too, that the moral fibre, the character and patriotism of our people is such that they will voluntarily do everything that must be done in defense of that home front, their homes and their self-respect; and that we have not reached the stage where nothing can be done unless by threat, by forced legislation or outright direct subsidization, which is later paid back 10 times over, indirectly, and out-of-the necessities of life. The big job of the next Congress will be to keep this country out of war. I shall continue to do my utmost toward accomplishing that, whether I am elected or not."

Woods President Discusses Financing Of Government

[Editor's Note: The sixth in a series of articles on village problems, written by Grosse Pointe Woods President A. A. Chesquiere.]

Micawber, a character in one of Charles Dickens' novels, "David Copperfield," once gave some worthwhile advice to his young friend to the effect, that if one earned a dollar and spent 90 cents thereof that all ones monetary problems would be nil, but if one spent one dollar ten then misery and trouble surely would follow. We all agree that, that is good advice but just like Micawber we find it very difficult to follow. He always lived beyond his income and in high hopes that something would turn up to help him to get out of debt.

Living beyond our income has been a great American failing, especially during the pre-depression days. Individuals, cities, countries, and states went into debt for everything they wanted, needed or thought they needed. Those were the days when everything for civic improvements was financed on long term bonds, usually for 30 years, with the idea in mind that posterity would help pay for them. The Village of Lochmoor, now named Grosse Pointe Woods, to some extent followed the same procedure, excepting that part of it was justified because at that time the village had just been incorporated and needed a sewer system and water mains for its development. These systems were financed by long term bond issues. This was a necessary step to take and should not be criticized, but an error in judgment was made when a great number of lateral sewers and water mains and pavements for newly sub-divided properties were financed by special assessment bonds. But even that mistake is excusable because during that period financial experts in a great many other fields of endeavor made the error in judgment regarding promotional financing.

These bonds were supposed to be paid off by special assessment taxes against the lots receiving the improvement and at the beginning they were taken care of in this manner, but when the depression set in the owners of these vacant lots quit paying taxes on them and the bond became a liability of the village at large. At one time the village was in debt to the tune of approximately $1,200,000, although a certain percentage of this was paid off when the depression hit, the greatest part of these bonds were still outstanding and to make matters worse people began to quit paying their general taxes and in 1933 and 1934 less than 35 per cent of the taxes were collected with the result that the administration of that time quit paying on these bonds, on either the principal or the interest, using all the cash collected to maintain just the essential village services.

About that time (1934) which is also the time this writer became a member of the village commission, we adopted a policy of accepting bonds at their face value, together with some cash as payment for delinquent taxes and special assessments. This policy continued until December, 1937, when we entered into a refunding program for all of our bonds. Under this plan we offered the bondholders certificates of indebtedness for all the defaulted interest at a much lower rate of interest on the bonds themselves. This new rate of interest started at 2 per cent in 1937 and graduates up 1/2 of 1 per cent every three years until it reaches the original rate of interest called for on the bonds by 1949 or 1950.

This plan saved the village about $30,000 a year in interest for the first three years and will by the time the program is complete have saved us in interest about $200,000. If at any time the conditions are right it is planned to refinance these outstanding bonds at a lower rate of interest than called for originally.

This whole program has proven out well as is evidenced by the facts that (1) Over 98 per cent of the bonds have been voluntarily entered into this plan.

(2) Before this plan was entered into our bonds were obtainable for 30 cents on the dollar, but now are quoted at from 96 cents to par.

(3) Since 1934 we have reduced our bonded indebtedness by over $100,000 and have paid off over $125,000 in defaulted interest. Our bonded indebtedness at the present time is about $590,000 in bonds and about $16,000 in certificates for defaulted interest. This is quite an improvement over the nearly a million and a quarter dollars worth of debts we had at one time. The picture is rosy and we should, barring immediate depressions and tax delinquencies, soon be in a very good financial condition.

We didn't, like Micawber, wait for something to turn up, we planned, struggled, worried and connived to keep things going until eventually the village was discovered as good a place in which to build and to live. During all this time our credit, of course, has been restricted and we have not been able to borrow, which was a blessing in disguise, because we have had to establish a "pay as we go" policy which in the opinion of this writer is the best policy for any municipality.

Crippled Children Have Camp On Lake Huron

Ask the first hundred persons you meet on the street where Jeddó, Mich., is and you'll probably get 100 negative answers. But to the crippled or underprivileged child the answer is simple, for to him it is an earthly paradise. For Jeddó, while not even on the map, will be found on the American shore of Lake Huron, just north of Lexington. It is there that Grace Bentley Camp is located.

This camp is operated by the Michigan League for Crippled Children and is the haven of many a crippled boy or girl who is selected to spend one or two weeks at this delightful spot.

"Every year," said Dr. L. E. Cooper, Gratiot avenue dentist and chairman of the community service committee of the Northeast Exchange Club, "we raise money by putting on an annual excursion to Bois Blanc, as well as by other means, and the net proceeds of these events are set aside for no other purpose than to spread sunshine and happiness to the crippled or underprivileged children of the northeastern section of Detroit."

Truly, Northeast Exchange Club, from the president down, have always given of their efforts and time every year so that today any social agency or any number of children whom the Northeast Exchange Club has sponsored know the answer to "Where is Jeddó."

State Dental Society Plans Educational Program At Meeting

The Michigan State Dental Society met last Sunday, September 22, in Lansing to formulate an educational program relative to the New Dental Practice Act, which was passed by the 1939 Legislature and which is not to be approved by the people at the general election in November.

Membership in the American Dental Association today numbers more than 45,000. Through its various committees the association performs four major services: (1) It provides the public with the highest type of dental care by supervising the education of dental students, promoting further education among practicing dentists and arranging for co-operative research. (2) It protects the public from detrimental practices by maintaining and enforcing a code of ethics and by supporting laws which assure the practice of dentistry in the best interests of the people. (3) It promotes the public health by conducting nation-wide education in preventive dentistry, particularly among children. (4) It sets standards and analyzes and reports on therapeutic preparations and other materials used in dentistry.

The extent of these benefits to the people throughout America may be gauged by the fact that 37 states and the District of Columbia now have laws...
