Prominent Pte. Physician Passed Away

Dr. Frederick W. Munro, well-known Grosse Pointe children's specialist died at Harper Hospital early Monday, following an illness of six weeks. Dr. Munro was 41 years old.

He was a native of Toronto, Canada and was a graduate of the University of Toronto. During the world war, he served in the Canadian army overseas. In 1926 he moved to Grosse Pointe where he built up a large medical practice. He resided at 570 Cadieux Road and operated a medical clinic at 16840 Kercheval avenue.

Dr. Munro was a prominent member of the Grosse Pointe Rotary Club and was chairman of its Community Service Committee. Last October he was general chairman in charge of the Community Halloween celebration, which with his untiring efforts proved a huge success. He was active in crippled children's work for the club.

He was also a member of the Wayne County Medical Society, the Detroit Pediatric Society and Phi Rho Sigma Medical Fraternity. Surviving with are his wife, the former Martha Isabel Legge of Toronto, two children, Douglas Barry and Isabel; his mother Mrs. Alexander Munro and sister Isabel Munro, both of Toronto.

Funeral services were held Tuesday noon in the Richard R. Hamilton Chapel, Detroit and the remains were shipped to Toronto where burial services will be held today.

Many friends of Doctor Munro wishing to perpetuate his memory in some tangible way have subscribed to a fund and are sending their checks to Mrs. W. S. Teetzel, 342 McMillan road, Grosse Pointe. This will probably take the form of laboratory equipment, the support of a bed in some children's hospital or a similar project.

Woods' Commission Endorses Bond Issue For Mason Addition

At the last regular meeting of the Grosse Pointe Woods village commission a resolution was passed endorsing the proposed $150,000.00 bond issue to secure funds to construct an addition to the overcrowded Mason school.

Members of the commission were of the opinion that certain facts should be made clear to the voters of this community namely that:

1. There is a great need for this addition to Mason school as evidenced by the crowded conditions, large classes and the necessity of transporting the fifth and sixth grade children elsewhere.
2. The proposed bond issue to be voted on Sept. 30, appears at the present time to be the only way this addition can be financed.
3. The school district consists of all of Grosse Pointe township, (Grosse Pointe Park, Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Shores and Grosse Pointe Woods.) City of Grosse Pointe and part of Gratiot township and that all of this district will vote on this bond issue and will help pay for it if passed.
4. This $150,000.00 must be repaid within five years and that it will add $1.75 per year or 15 cents per month to the taxes on a home assessed at $5,000.00 on the township rolls.
5. Only taxpayers who are registered in the school district are eligible to vote for this bond issue and that being registered for the village, state, county or township elections is not enough.
6. Resident citizens may register at any Grosse Pointe school and the board office during school hours and on Saturdays Sept. 20 and 27, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Members of Amadeus Circle Daughters of Isabella bowl every Wednesday night from 7 to 9 at Denby Recreation, Whittier near Kelly road.

Rumors Say Delphine Offered For U. S. Government Service

Mrs. Anna Dodge Dillman's yacht Delphine, the largest yacht on the Great Lakes may soon be in the service of the United States government. According to a report in general circulation, the yacht has been offered to the government for naval use during the present national emergency.

The Delphine had been tied up at her private dock in Grosse Pointe for five years. She was reconditioned in the Spring of 1940 and has been used as a residence by Mrs. Dillman during the present Summer months. She now sports a huge victory "V" on her smoke stack.

Craft Built in 1921
This palatial 257-foot craft was built in 1921, just before the death of Horace E. Dodge, who was Mrs. Dillman's first husband. The cost is said to have been more than $2,000,000. The yacht is 35 feet wide, draws 14 feet, nine inches of water and is powered by two four-cylinder steam engines. She burns oil.

Large Quarters
The Delphine has five decks, crew's quarters for about 40 men and staterooms for 10 officers. On the lower deck, aft, are the guest rooms, comprising eight staterooms averaging 14x14 feet in size. Each stateroom has a private or communicating bath room.

There is a pipe organ in the music room, and large guest lounge rooms and promenade decks. The boat is now captained by William H. Knight. Besides the captain there are two mates, three engineers, three wheelmen, three watchmen, 18 sailors, three oilers, three firemen, wireless operators, a doctor, and 10 personal servants.

Burned in 1926, Reconditioned
In 1926, the Delphine burned and sank at her anchorage in the Hudson river, off New York. She was later raised and rebuilt.

In the building of the Delphine, many rare woods from all corners of the earth were used and no expense was spared to make her one of the finest private yachts in the entire world. Although out of service for many years, she may still play an important part in national affairs.

Need For Mason School Addition Declared Crucial

Rotarians Hear Interesting Travel Stories

American tourists miss the most interesting things to be seen on their trips because of their great rush to get from place to place, according to James P. Welsh, the old A. A. A. traveler of the Automobile Club of Michigan. Welsh, who is a veteran newspaperman, radio commentator, magazine writer and authority on tourist travel related many of his interesting experiences to the Grosse Pointe Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon in the Whittier Hotel last Monday noon.

The most interesting vignettes of life, he stated, lie far off the beaten paths of tourist travel. It is on the side trips that one learns most of the ways of the natives of the localities you may plan to visit.

He said that in his opinion the most fascinating spot in America is Death Valley, California. Those who have never been there, he stated, imagine it to be a place of scorching heat, bleak sands and bleaching bones. This is not the case, however. From early fall to late spring, Death Valley is a beauty spot, with delightful climate.

The speaker said he is well acquainted with Death Valley Scotty, an eccentric individual, who maintains an elaborate mansion there. This residence has 56 bedrooms, a living room 75 feet long, with a ceiling 25 feet high. This fantastic desert character always carries a six shooter gun. He never travels the same road twice and often arises in the middle of the night to start a long trip, crying, "They're after me again."

Welsh said that he was brought up in the West and as a boy played with the Indian Chief Geronimo, who was a U. S. Army captain. He told of the city of Tombstone, Arizona with its former population of 18,000, which has dwindled to a mere 600 persons. This town boasts the world's most unique cemetery. Many of the headstones labeled "Horse Thief," "Murderer" have been stolen by tourists, but many still remain. One tombstone carries the epitaph: "Here lies E. Fenwick He held five aces."

He described many other interesting spots, off the main travelled highways. One of these is Greenbrier Creek, home of the Walker sisters. This spot is reached by a side trip off the main smoky Mountain Highways. Here live the Walker sisters, five elderly spinsters Hettie, Louise, Martha, Polly and Margaret, who dwell in a pioneer cabin. They live entirely off their land, raising sufficient cattle and hogs for food. These women make their own shoes from leather obtained from cattle they have raised. The only time a man is permitted on their property is when it is necessary to slaughter cattle or hogs.

Michigan, he said, is the tourists' paradise. Each year about 365 millions of dollars are spent in Michigan by visitors. He urged his listeners to never lose an opportunity of boosting Michigan as one of the most beautiful scenic states in the U. S. A.

$150,000 Bond Issue Before Voters Sept. 30th.

Data released today by L. M. Bartlett, director of child accounting and adjustment for the Grosse Pointe public schools, indicate that the schools of the district are becoming more and more crowded because of the continued rapid growth of the community. These data show that the situation has become particularly acute in the Mason and Vernier school districts where the enrollment increased from 252 for June 1938 to 581 for June 1941.

Enrollment figures for this year show that the number of elementary school children residing in the Mason and Vernier school districts has increased to 674. Of this number, 380 are enrolled in the Mason school, 149 in the Vernier school, and 145 in the Defer school. While the Mason school was originally designed for only 240 pupils, the increased enrollment, which is now 380 has been made possible through alterations to the building. All available space in the building is now in use and no further expansion in the existing building is possible.

The Vernier school which was reopened as a public school in Sept. 1938 with three teachers and an enrollment of only 45 pupils now has an enrollment of 149 and all six of the classrooms are in full use. Consequently, no further relief for the Mason school is possible through use of the Vernier school. The school officials indicated that the transportation of the 145 fifth and sixth graders from the Mason and Vernier districts to the Defer school is only a make-shift and temporary arrangement, but that this step was necessary in order to care for the constantly increasing enrollment in the Mason district.

The growth in total population and in the number of new homes for the Mason and Vernier school districts for the past four years is nothing short of phenomenal. In 1938, according to figures obtained from the census department of the public schools, the total population for Grosse Pointe Woods was 1,392. By May of this year the total population for this village had grown to 4,303 persons. This is an increase of 2,912 or better than 200 per cent. The population for the entire area comprising the Mason and Vernier school districts increased from 2,427 in May 1938 to 5,875 in May 1941. This is an increase of 3,448 or 142 per cent.

Information relative to the number of new homes similarly shows an amazing growth in this area. In May 1938 there was a total of 636 other data based on the May 1941 school census show that many more children under school age reside in Grosse Pointe Woods and the portion of Gratiot which is in the Grosse Pointe school district than in the rest of the school district. The number of children per residence from birth to five years of age in Grosse Pointe Woods was .39 and in the portion of Gratiot township which is in the Grosse Pointe school district, it was .36. The average for the entire school district was .25 of a child under the age of five years per home. In other words there was more than one child for every three homes in Grosse Pointe Woods, and more than one child for every two homes in the Grosse Pointe school district portion of Gratiot township which will be eligible to enroll in public schools during the next five year period. In the district as a whole, there was only one child under five years of age for every four homes.

All of the above figures indicate clearly that the growth in elementary school enrollment has been very rapid during the past three years in the Mason and Vernier school districts and even were home building to stop entirely at the present time, considerable growth in elementary school enrollment may be expected in this area for the next five year period.

In order to meet this serious problem of adequately housing the elementary school children of the Mason area, a special election will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 30 to make possible the construction of additional classrooms to the Mason school. This election will consist of two issues: 1. The voting of a $150,000 bond issue, and 2. Increasing the millage by one-half mill for a period of five years. Both of these issues must be voted upon under the terms of the state constitution. On the first issue only property owners who are registered for school elections may vote. On the second issue parents and legal guardians of children between the ages of five and 19 who are registered for school elections as well as qualified property owners may vote. Under the terms of the state constitution, the second issue must be carried by a two-thirds majority, while the first issue requires only a simple majority in order to pass.

Music Appreciation Classes for Adults

under the auspices of the adult education department of the Grosse Pointe public schools, is designed to know and understand the development of music from the plain chant of the Middle Ages to the music of the present day.

This course will be given by Arthur Gnau and will be based upon the principle that a genuine appreciation of music can only be gained by studying it historically. This does not mean, however, that music will be merely talked about. The lectures which will lay much emphasis upon the related history of the arts, politics and philosophy, will be constantly supplemented by illustrations of music of the various periods given on the piano, the phonograph, and by the Grosse Pointe Choral Society of which Mr. Gnau is the conductor. These musical examples will be studied with the view of enabling the class to identify the style of each period.

The lectures of the first term, which begin Tuesday, Sept. 23, at 8 p.m., will cover the period from the fall of Rome through the Middle Ages up to 1750. Those of the second term will begin with Gluck and end with Wagner and Brahms. The last term will deal with Debussy and the moderns including a side glance at jazz and swing.

All of the lectures will be given in the music room of the Pierce junior high school, Kercheval at Nottingham.

CHAPTER V

Synopsis

Peggy Horton meets Harry Wilson by chance. She has been strictly brought up by her grandmother at Rosewood and has never met any boys. Her older sister, Maxine Trueheart, is a successful screen star. And Peggy, ashamed of her sheltered life, has pretended to her school roommate Nancy that she is engaged. Now Nancy is coming to visit her. Harry insists that Peggy borrow the ring his fiancée has just returned to him and wear it as an engagement ring. She accidentally bends it and when getting it mended she meets a stranger who has spoken to her that morning from a car with a California license. Nancy and her sister Maxine arrive.

"Do you mind if I run downstairs and telephone, Peggy?" Nancy interrupted her. "I forgot to phone home that I arrived all right. You needn't come with me," she added slipping into a negligee. "I noticed tonight where the phone was."

"Go right on down then," Peggy urged. "I'll run in and say good night to Maxine while you phone."

She hurried across the hall to her sister's room when Nancy started down the stairs.

"Oh, here you are," Maxine cried as Peggy entered. "I was hoping you'd get in for a good night chat. There are a million things I want to tell you and ask you."

"That's the way I feel," Peggy declared, curling herself up on the foot of her sister's bed, and watching Maxine unpack her things and put them out into the room.

"First of all," Maxine continued, "I want to know about this young man you are going to marry. Of course I realize that it is hard to make Gran, darling that she is, understand things as we see them. Nevertheless, I would never want either of us to marry anyone of whom she disapproved. I honestly feel that Gran can judge people's characters better than anyone I've ever known. So I do hope he isn't someone she doesn't like. Have you told her anything about him? You see, darling," she added sitting on the bed near Peggy, and taking both of the younger girl's hands in her own, "I'm frightfully anxious about it all, because what I really came home for was to see about you. I have the most wonderful opportunity right now. They want me to make a new picture — in England! I'm dying to do it, but I just couldn't say yes until I came here and saw how things were with you. I made up my mind that if you were unhappy I'd give up my work for a while and stay here and look after you. Then to find that you are engaged — well, it just seems that everything is working out all right for me to go to England. Or is it, little Peggy? You see, I must know."

Peggy gulped. "Oh, yes, of course, Maxine. I am perfectly happy. I don't really need you here, although you know how heavenly it is having you. You needn't worry about Gran and the man I'm going to marry. Everything there is splendid, only we — well we just wanted to keep it to ourselves right at first. So don't mind if I don't tell even you his name right now."

Maxine eyed her sister searchingly, then leaning forward kissed her gently. "All right, Baby, whatever you say. You know I trust your judgment and I know you wouldn't do anything ever that would cause either Gran or me any unhappiness."

Peggy felt that if she stayed there another minute she would be crying her heart out in her sister's arms.

"I must run back to Nancy now," she said jumping to her feet. "Good night. It's grand to have you here even for a short time. I know the English picture will be swell."

She got out of the room somehow. Under the door of her grandmother's room she could see the faint flicker of a light. She wanted awfully to knock on the door and slip in there and tell Mrs. Horton what she had done. This was the first time she had ever deceived her grandmother and her sister and it gave her a feeling of panic. It had seemed rather fun this morning, there in the road, planning with Harry to put something over on Nancy. But actually carrying out the plan she found was no fun at all. She had counted all afternoon on telling Maxine and letting her decide what to do. And now her engagement was just the thing Maxine was delighted in. Peggy threw back her head and marched into her own room. All right, she would see it through!

"Are you there, Nancy?" she called.

"Yes, I'm in bed," Nancy replied. "Come on in." She sounded all right now. Evidently her telephone talk home had helped her.

"Do I see?" Stanley cried. Catching her in his arms he whirled her madly about the small enclosure.

"Just a minute," Peggy called. She must put Harry's ring away in some safe place. She couldn't carry it around in her bag for a week. She would be sure to pull it out with a handkerchief or a powder puff. She looked about for a place to hide it, but her room seemed very open. The drawers of her bureau would be opened by Mary Lou when she put away the laundry. The cubby holes of her desk had letters and note paper stuffed into them. It wasn't that she doubted the honesty of any of the servants. She knew that they would never take anything, no matter what she left lying about, but she did not want anyone to see this ring. She remembered a pair of satin evening slippers she had had at school. There seemed to be no chance of wearing those now. She would stuff the ring into the toe of one of them and it would be safely out of sight.

Getting her bag from a drawer she reached in for the ring. Impatient at her inability to find it, she emptied the contents of the bag onto the bed. But no glittering diamond and sapphire ring rolled out with the coin purse, compact and handkerchief. Hastily she picked up the handkerchief and felt it, then shook it, at first gently, then roughly, but nothing fell from it as she waved it by two corners. Frowning, she opened the coin purse and emptied that. It contained only a little silver and a few pennies. Nothing that could conceal a ring. Frightened now, she picked up the bag again, this time turning it inside out. Perhaps there was a hole in the lining. But there was not. The ring was just not there. On hands and knees she crawled under the bed staring stupidly about the dusky space. She backed out from there and moved the bureau. But it was useless. She looked in her gloves. She emptied the two top drawers. The ring was gone.

In real alarm Peggy hurried into Nancy's room. She found her guest propped up among her pillows reading a motion picture magazine she had brought with her.

"I thought you were never coming," Nancy said looking up from her magazine.

"Do you remember what I did with my ring this afternoon when I took it off at the station?" Peggy demanded.

"Put it in your bag, why?"

"Are you sure? Sure I put it in? I didn't drop it, did I?"

"No, of course you didn't. I remember seeing you drop it in and then close the bag. Why? Can't you find it?"

"No," Peggy cried in dismay. "It isn't in there, and I've looked everywhere."

"You probably haven't half looked," said Nancy. Throwing back the sheet, she jumped out of bed and stopping only long enough to slip her bare feet into high-heeled mules she hurried into the next room. But after a few minutes' search she had to admit the ring seemed to be nowhere in sight.

"I'll call Maxine," Peggy said, slipping across the hall to her sister's room.

Maxine, too, was sure that she had seen her sister drop the ring into her bag. Carefully she went through the things on the bed.

"Now, there's no use in getting excited," she said looking about her. "Get out the dress you had on today."

Just then the telephone in the lower hall rang. All three of the girls stopped and stared at each other in astonishment. They had not realized how quiet everything about the house had been, until they heard that shrill sound. Telephones did not ring often late at night at Rosewood. It rang again.

"I'll go," Peggy ran out of the room and swiftly down the stairs. The other two followed her into the upstairs hall.

"Hello," she called. "Yes. Who? Miss Trueheart? Yes — just a minute. I'll call her."

Maxine was already coming down the steps. Peggy handed her the receiver and started up the stairs.

"Hello," Maxine answered. "Well, for heaven's sake. Where did you come from? What a detective you are to have found me here!"

"Listen!" Nancy cried grabbing Peggy's arm. "Did you hear that? It's a detective." Peggy had gone back to her room, her mind still occupied with the loss of Harry's ring. She was only half conscious of what either Maxine or Nancy had said. But Nancy persisted.

"Did you hear? It's a detective she's talking to. Do you suppose she'll tell him about the ring being gone? And maybe get him out here?"

Peggy stared at her a moment in silence. "I wonder if she could," she cried. She rushed back to the hall, and hurriedly tiptoed down the stairs again. "Maxine!" she was calling in a loud whisper. "Don't hang up. Ask him if he can't come out here and help us find the ring!"

"What?" Maxine asked looking up at her sister in astonishment. "What are you talking about? No, not you," she added into the phone. "My sister. Wait just a minute. What is it, Peggy?"

"You called him a detective," Peggy explained. "And I wondered if you couldn't get him to come out here and help us find the ring. I don't know who he is, but there aren't any detectives in Marshville and I certainly need someone. Ask him anyway, won't you?"

Maxine stood staring at her a second, then nodded her head. "Run on back upstairs and keep looking and I'll ask him."

Peggy's teeth were chattering now from excitement, even though the night was warm. She rushed back up the steps. Nancy was still leaning over the railing, listening.

"I think maybe he'll come," Peggy told her. "C-come on — I'm cold."

"Well, I think it's a perfectly dumb idea to get a detective out here to look for your ring," Nancy said in disgust. "He'll ask a lot of questions. Then what will you say? Your grandmother will have to know all about everything."

"Oh, dear," Peggy was almost in tears. "I didn't think about that. But you suggested it," she said, turning to look at Nancy in surprise.

"I did not," Nancy cried. "I was just trying to warn you in case Maxine suggested it. I'll go tell her not to let him come." But as she started towards the door they heard Maxine on the stairs, and a moment later she came in the room.

"Well, he's coming in the morning," she announced.

"How are you going to explain Peggy's ring to Mrs. Horton?" demanded Nancy.

Maxine stared stupidly at both girls, then collecting herself she crossed the room to Peggy.

"You'll have to tell Gran all about it, honey," she said, putting her arm around her sister's shoulders.

"Oh, but I can't, Maxine!" Peggy's hands were twisting in her lap, and she was on the verge of tears. What should she do? "I know," she sat up suddenly. "We'll tell Gran it's Nancy's ring!"

"Mine?" Nancy exclaimed. "Why mine?"

"I had told Gran before you came that you were engaged and she doesn't know you have broken the engagement. So she will think you have lost your engagement ring here, and won't question it. Oh, Nancy, please!"

"WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW"

Grosse Pointe Will Not Fail

We are confident that the voters of Grosse Pointe will give their unqualified approval to the $150,000 bond issue that will be voted upon September 30, to permit a very necessary addition to the Steven T. Mason school in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Grosse Pointe Woods has had a phenomenal growth during the past several years and the population of youngsters of school age has increased to such an extent that the Mason school cannot handle the children who are entitled to attend that school.

In order to take care of the overflow of pupils, it is now necessary to furnish transportation for Grosse Pointe Woods youngsters to Defer school at the lower end of Grosse Pointe Park. The transportation of school children to a consolidated school in the country often requires long hauls, but in a high class community such as Grosse Pointe, this method of handling an overflow problem is very unsatisfactory. These children are entitled to school facilities closer to their homes.

If you are a property owner, or have children in Grosse Pointe schools, you should make certain that you are registered and on September 30th you should go to the polls and vote YES on the Mason School Bond Issue.

Grosse Pointers have never failed in their duty to their schools. They will not do so now.

Speaking of Presidents

The notion that next to being a Supreme court justice, the berth of college president is the nearest thing to a "job for life" seems to be a fallacious conception. Actually, judging by the changes in college presidencies which have been made this year, the average freshman has more chance of sticking it out for four years than has the head of the college.

The Association of American Colleges lists changes on 75 campuses this Fall. Although the reasons for the changes are not given, they are undoubtedly the same reasons that lead to changes in executives of any business — such as rows with the board, failure to advance the standing of the institution, and offers of a better job.

Dr. Robert D. Leigh, president of Bennington college, Vermont, made news when he announced he had long believed in a short term for college executives, and resigned. The College of Emporia in Kansas, decided to get along without a president and put control of the college in the hands of three men. A New York magazine publisher has been made president of Temple university and the university secretary at Rutgers, who had "always wanted to be a college president," became one at Rhode Island State.

The turnover of chief executives of our educational institutions follows pretty much the pattern of any other occupation, and as in other fields, there are also a number who manage to hold their jobs practically for a lifetime.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of America's largest educational institution, Columbia university, has the record tenure of office, having been president of Columbia for 40 years.

Dr. James Madison Woods holds the record among presidents of women's colleges, having been president of Stephens college in Missouri for 30 years during which the student body has been built from 50 to 1,700 students.

There are others who have served long terms as executive head of a college or university, such as Hopkins of Dartmouth, Wilbur of Stanford, McCracken of Vassar and Compton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology—but they are the exception to the rule.

Mollycoddling Voters

If a mother treated her children the way the majority of congressmen and government leaders treat the people they represent, those children would turn out to be spoiled brats.

We voters elect a man to office because we want him to be the guardian of our interests. But that doesn't mean we want him to mollycoddle us and give us a stick of candy every time we open our mouths.

Just as a child has more respect for a parent who says "no" when it is for the child's best interest to say "no," we have more respect for Washington representatives who aren't afraid of offending us if they make a decision which they know will be to our best interest in the long run.

In these complicated times, we're all willing to co-operate even if we are asked to do some things which might be a little easier not to do. When we know the government must raise huge sums of money, we're willing to pay our share of necessary taxes. When we know we will have to get along without certain things we'd like to have, in order to aid defense, we're all willing to sacrifice those things.

But to listen to a lot of congressmen, you'd think we were a selfish lot of children who would kick and scream if any of our toys were touched. Consequently, they'd prefer to tax us with hidden taxes, cut down on our supplies when we're not looking and never let us come face to face with reality, so far as government needs are concerned.

When the next election rolls around, the men who get our votes are not apt to be the ones who tried to get us concessions at the expense of the rest of the country, but those who have put the preservation of American democracy above everything else.

Pork barrel politics and soft-soaping of voters only annoy the thinking American of 1941 — the American who realizes our nation's future is at stake. In the next election most of us will vote for men whom we believe have the strength, the intelligence and the integrity to warrant putting into their hands the fate of our country.

NYA to Again Aid In Hot Lunch Program

For the benefit of underprivileged school children, the National Youth Administration will lend its assistance again this year in serving hot lunches, Orin W. Kaye, Michigan NYA administrator, announced today.

During the past academic year, youth employed on the out-of-school NYA work program served a total of 294,008 lunches in 44 Michigan schools. In 38 other schools in the state, the NYA assisted the WPA and local service agencies in serving 837,163 hot lunches. This total of over a million nourishing noon meals is only a part of the amount actually served. In addition, youth employed on the school work program which operates in 813 high schools in the state also participate in the hot lunch program.

All school students are privileged to benefit from the hot lunch program. Those who can afford to pay a dime or so their lunches are encouraged to do so to keep the project from going in the "red." However, students from indigent families who are in need of the added nourishment that hot noon meals afford, can benefit from this program with absolutely no cost.

Girls engaged in preparing and serving the lunches take all the hygienic precautions necessary to preparing and serving food. They are obliged to secure food handlers' certificates from a physician and to wear a uniform while on duty.

Hot lunch programs are operated by the cooperative efforts of the NYA, WPA, Surplus Commodities corporation, and local service group.

Today and Tomorrow

Pipes — Network

If we could lift the roof off of America — pick up a few feet of earth and see what is going on underneath, we would discover a network of transportation which would amaze us.

I never thought much about pipe lines, except when a water faucet failed to work or when I saw men digging a ditch on the side of a road, but since all the talk started about building a pipe line to transport oil to the Eastern states, I got interested in how much is now done with pipe lines.

The figures are amazing. From what I could find out about it, pipes handle 50 per cent more of transportation in the United States than do the 4,500,000 trucks which stream day and night over our highways. It is hard to imagine more transportation activity going on under the ground than on all the highways above it, but that's what the figures show.

In the larger cities, the pipe lines carry gas and water to practically every home and then there are long pipe lines carrying oil from one state to another. To most of us the talk about building a pipe line from the oil fields of the West to the eastern states sounded like a tremendous undertaking, but to those who have built the pipe lines which now entwine underground America, this assignment is probably just all in the day's work.

Transportation—

Pipe lines have been used for transporting liquids for thousands of years. Back 4,000 years before Christ the Babylonians used crude clay pipes for transporting water and in Jerusalem the Temple was supplied with water through earthen pipes enclosed in stone blocks. As early as the First century A.D. lead piping was used to conduct water for household use in Rome. In 1683 Louis XIV had cast iron pipe laid in Paris.

Transportation by pipes is by no means new, but never has a nation been so dependent on pipes as America is today. Millions of people concentrated in city areas couldn't exist for a week if anything happened to interfere with the service of the pipe lines.

With uninterrupted service, the pipe lines constitute probably our most efficient means of transporting oil, water and gas. It is estimated that they handle 12 per cent of our national transportation problem, while eight per cent is handled by trucks, 18 per cent by ships and barges and 62 per cent by the railroads.

As our transportation needs increase for the moving of defense equipment, exhaustive studies are being made of our nation's facilities. Reports indicate that we need a few hundred transportation problems if all of our $80,000,000,000 worth of transportation facilities are used efficiently.

Railroads — Movement

During the World war we had a lot of railroad transportation problems and from them learned one important lesson; mass transportation depends on the movement rather than the number of freight cars.

If freight cars are used for storage, as they often were during the last war, it wouldn't matter how many cars were available — we'd still be short.

At the present time there are over a million and a half freight cars in serviceable condition. But unless the transportation problem is handled efficiently, many of those cars will be standing on sidings when they could be moving goods.

This same need also applies to all other means of transportation. If a truck or a ship spends half of its time waiting to be unloaded or loaded, it actually requires two trucks or ships to do the work which one might be doing.

Waste — Oil

One of the most amazing examples of potential waste in transportation has been brought out in the recent discussions of the oil shortage in the East.

After apparently making a study of the situation, Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum co-ordinator under Secretary of Interior Ickes, made public a statement to the effect that he couldn't find any sizeable number of railroad tank cars available for shipping oil. Following his statement, John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, said that 20,000 tank cars were not in use — lay waiting to transport oil to the Eastern seaboard.

Further check-up showed Mr. Pelley's figures were correct and these cars now are being put into use. The 20,000 cars are capable of moving from six to eight million barrels of oil per month from Texas to the Atlantic seaboard. Yet, if Mr. Pelley had not brought this situation to the public's attention, 16 eastern states would have faced a serious shortage in oil this winter.

Most of the 20,000 extra cars discovered by Mr. Pelley were standing at sidings in the private yards of refineries. Many of the cars had not been moved for a month or more because of lack of demand for tank cars. While all the discussion of shortage in the East was going on, if those cars had been moving they could have transported millions of barrels of oil.

Summer's Gone —

The days are shorter now, children are back in school, vacations are over, and in general Grosse Pointe's Summer is gone.

Public school children started school a week ago, private schools will open this week, and already the steady trek of students to the colleges has begun.

Sailors at the yacht clubs are frantically getting as much as they can out of the few remaining days of the season.

NYA Assigns 9,693 Youths to Program

Orin W. Kaye, state administrator of the NYA, today announced that, as of September 3, there were 9,693 assigned to the NYA out-of-school work program in Michigan.

Of this total, 7,040 were assigned to the regular program of NYA and 2,653 to the defense.

Of the over-all total, 2,694 were in area four, which is Wayne county. The purpose of the out-of-school program of NYA is to provide work experience for youth to enable them to take jobs in private industry. At the present time, particular emphasis is being placed on the type of work experience that will fit youth to take employment in the rapidly expanding defense industries of the country.

This Week in Washington

Government circles here are still buzzing with talk about the charges of Martin Dies, chairman of the house committee on un-American activities, in which he accused Leon Henderson, head of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, of communistic sympathies and affiliations.

Mr. Henderson's office has been given broad powers to fix prices and regulate the distribution of goods — powers which would not be given to the government except for the emergency and the problems of the defense program. Many here recognize that the powers given to Mr. Henderson's office, although necessary for the present, are basically opposed to our democratic way of living. Therefore any hint that the head of this office may have communistic leanings, whether true or not, is frightening to those who already fear the control that this office has over business.

In his charges Mr. Dies said: "Leon Henderson has surrounded himself with highly paid assistants who are, by their own public records, strangers to the American way. The committee of which I have the honor to be chairman has learned that communists specialize in the penetration of government agencies wherever there is a lack of vigilance against their Trojan horse tactics. 'I submit that the facts which I have presented herewith in the form of undisputed documents are enough to bring about the immediate severance from the government's payroll of Leon Henderson, Robert A. Brady, Tom Tippet, Dewey H. Palmer, Mildred Edie Brady and E. J. Lever. 'If and when these persons are removed from their respective positions, I shall be glad to co-operate with the administration in bringing to light similar facts concerning other employees of OPACS, to the end that this country may be defended against its enemies within as well as without.'"

Henderson has flatly denied he is a communist or would employ any communist. Many congressmen here believe that Mr. Dies' charges will finally bring about a showdown on the rumors of communists in our government which have been heard periodically for several years. Many of the charges in the past have come from Mr. Dies' office, but never before has he directly accused a man in a position as important as Mr. Henderson's, whom this column has referred to as one of the toughest jobs in Washington.

It is believed that the results of investigation of these charges will result in one of two things: (1) a clean-up of communistic sympathizers in the government, or (2) a termination of Mr. Dies activities. In other words, if the charges should be found to have some foundation, Mr. Dies will have such strong backing of public opinion that every charge he makes will be acted upon, but if the charges are found to be without foundation, he will be considered merely an alarmist and no one will listen to him.

The danger of anti-American activities in our government at a time when the government is spending billions to preserve democratic government at any cost is a danger which cannot be passed over lightly. The President has made it clear that we will go to war if necessary to preserve democracy and congress is in no mood to permit any threats to our form of government from within.

Begin Tax Saving Now By the end of the month the new tax bill will become law and the people of this country will begin paying the largest taxes they have ever paid. It is expected that the bill will be rushed through since pressure is being brought on congress by the people to let them know right now what their tax payments are going to be next year. With income tax payments due in six months, it is obvious that some people are going to have difficulty in making their payment unless they start saving for it now. And most people, congressmen say, are postponing putting money aside for taxes until they know just how much the taxes will be. The treasury department, in working out its plans for the coming year, is also anxious to know as soon as possible just how much revenue it can expect to get from taxes.

The President's request for additional billions of dollars to be added to the previous seven billion voted for lend-lease aid gives the treasury new financing problems and it is expected that in addition to extra taxes more pressure will be put on the public to buy defense bonds and stamps.

The sale of defense bonds now totals about one billion dollars, which the treasury department considers satisfactory in view of the fact that sales have not been pushed to the extent the Liberty bonds were in the last war. It is believed that several billion more in sales could be made if a well-directed campaign is started to arouse the public to buy them. Sales already have been considerably stimulated by making stamps available in all retail stores and many of the stores have devoted part of their advertising to pushing the sale of stamps.

Pay 1939 Taxes Now
 According to law, properties delinquent for 1939 taxes must be offered at the May, 1942, Tax Sale. The listing of these properties for publication and sale begins soon. To defray the cost of preparation and publishing of this listing, the law imposes a charge of one dollar per description beginning October 1. A higher rate of interest is figured for sale purposes.
 Also pay delinquent installments on ten-year plans now. Otherwise, the property will be listed and offered for sale for the entire unpaid balance on the ten-year plan.

Public Letter Box

Sept. 12, 1941

Mr. Archie Damman, Commissioner, Village of Grosse Pointe Park, Municipal Building, Grosse Pointe Park, Mich.
 Dear Sir:

In another newspaper distributed in Grosse Pointe Sept. 11, 1941 you were quoted as stating during the course of a discussion about sewer problems in your village that "The Village of Lochmoor (Grosse Pointe Woods) no longer is able to get FHA aid in building because of poorly constructed sewers."

I do not know where you obtained such information but whoever told you that was misleading and not giving you the true facts. The FHA has not withdrawn its aid to building in Grosse Pointe Woods; commitments are still being made daily on properties all over our village. Our sewers are not poorly constructed but are adequate to handle all of our sewage.

Your source of information probably confuses a ruling issued by FHA August 1, 1941 regarding disposal fields for septic tanks with rejection of commitments. Because untreated sewage from several subdivisions in the village is being emptied directly into Milk river causing some pollution of that stream the FHA has ruled that where this occurs the builders must install a disposal field for the discharge from the septic tank. But that in no way has any bearing on the issuance of a commitment for mortgage insurance.

This whole situation is being taken care of on a co-operative plan with the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores, Gratiot Township, ourselves and the Wayne county road commission who intend in the very near future to install an interceptor sewer in Milk river to carry off the so-called dry weather flow or sanitary sewage from these three municipalities to Detroit for treatment.

The whole thing is not a matter of "poorly constructed sewers" but a matter of treatment of raw sewage such as the City of Detroit, Grosse Pointe Park, City of Grosse Pointe and Grosse Pointe Farms have had to solve during the past few years and which we will have solved very shortly.

I am using this method to correct the mistaken impression that you or others may have of our sewer system in the Village of Grosse Pointe Woods.

I am sure that you will forgive me for taking issue with you about your statement because having been a public official for a number of years you know that a little bit of misinformation can do a great deal of harm to the reputation of a community and the officials conducting its affairs.

Yours truly,
 ALOIS A. GHESQUIERE,
 President.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Matter" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, Sept. 21.

The golden text (I John 2:15) is: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (John 1:1-3): "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made."

FAITH EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

East Jefferson and Philip. The Rev. R. D. Linhart, pastor. The Rev. G. Heidmann, assistant. Approximately nine hundred members partook of the Lord's supper at the first communion services of the Fall season held at Faith church last Sunday. Appropriate to the occasion was the beautiful rendition of James' "Out of the Depths Do I Cry to Thee" by the senior choir. Most of the vacancies caused by the Summer recess have now been filled bringing the choir to its usual strength of 80 voices.

Enrollment in the Sunday school classes has been taking place during the past two Sundays. A hearty invitation is extended to all who are without Sunday school affiliations to enroll in the classes.

Over 80 children of the church and Sunday school were on hand at the first catechetical instruction classes last Saturday morning. These classes meet every Saturday morning from 9 to 10:30.

Divine service next Sunday at 10:45; Sunday school at 9:15.

Kerby School Notes

The fifth and sixth grade classes of the Kerby school and their teachers, Mr. Shaffer and Mrs. Homier, visited Greenfield Village, Thursday, Sept. 11.

Since in their social studies class the children are studying transportation, they were especially interested in the various types of vehicles boats and planes, which are exhibited at the Edison Institute. Both groups enjoyed the trip very much, and will find it very valuable in their study.
