Acting Administrator Philip F. Allard, when petitions from frantic housewives compelled immediate action.

Tuesday night the Council passed their approval on the new contract holders, Russell Painter and Ewald Ruthenberg, after Signorella failed to fulfill his agreement.

In spite of frosty temperatures, construction of the bathhouse at the Grosse Pointe Woods Park is nearing the halfway mark. It was reported that the building would be completed in time for the Memorial Day opening. Meanwhile icicles dangle from the bare framework.

Rabaut Pushes Citizenship Bill in House

Rep. Louis C. Rabaut has reopened his drive for legislation to restore American citizenship to those persons who lost it by voting in political elections in Italy in violation of the Nationality Act of 1940.

A bill to accomplish this was passed by the House in the 81st Congress, but died in the Senate without the approval of the upper body.

An investiggting Committee of the House, which went to Italy in 1949, found that due to disruption of communication facilities during the war these people were not informed of the technical change in the nationality law, according to Rabaut.

He said it was frustrating to have to begin again the long legislative climb, especially when the issue is so clear and the

"FOUR SCORE AND SEVEN YEARS AGO

They signed the Declaration of Independence in July, 1776. Lincoln spoke at Gettysburg on November 19th, 1863. Thus, on the 12th day of February, 1951, we stand, almost to the month, at the same distance from Abraham Lincoln and his group of listeners in Adams County, Pennsylvania, as they themselves stood in point of time from the Founding Fathers in Philadelphia. Eighty-seven years. Four score and seven . . .

In those eighty-seven years America has changed from a faltering nation in the agony of civil war to a great power, the spokesman of the free world. Yet this fact has brought no peace of mind to Americans. For we have come to understand that in one respect America has not changed.

As in Lincoln's time events are still testing whether "this nation . . . so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure." And as in Lincoln's time the struggle is as much one of ideas as of weapons. Where in 1863 Virginia meadows and Tennessee woodlands echoed to the thundering proposition that all men are created equal, the fight today for freedom and liberty is world-wide.

Suddenly, we begin to realize that history will always test us. It becomes clear that we are never to have any real surcease from struggle . . . that the very essence of the American idea is that the American Revolution is still going on . . . a continuing revolt against tyranny and totalitarianism, however disguised and wherever found. Only through continuing effort, willingly and gladly given, can the ideal of a free people in a free world be kept alive.

As we understand this, we understand yet one other thing. It is that this nation shall endure only if in God's judgment it deserves to endure. And this places an awesome responsibility on every American. Yet it cannot be too great for us, for Lincoln, who in his time, met the same task was at heart a simple man. Out of his simplicity he found the answer.

We, too, can find it in the closing words of the Second Inaugural . . . and once we have taken the words and their meaning to our hearts, all doubt and anxiety vanish. Our duty is clear and in its understanding we find inner peace. "With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in . . . to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace, among ourselves, and with all nations."

HEARTS AND

There's good news in the heart field, the Michigan Department of Health said today in urging Michigan people to check up on their hearts on St. Valentine's Day. Medical examinations at regular inter-

wals make possible the detection of heart changes early when they can be treated to prevent further damage, the Department

People with heart defects can live to a ripe old age if they follow their physician's recommendations. The great majority of heart attacks aren't fatal, and the person who has one heart attack may live for many years without a second attack and then die of another cause entirely. Death rates from heart diseases in the older ages are declining.

There is a decline, also, in the inci-dence of rheumatic fever, due in part to the use of antibiotics in treatment of "strep" infections. Wider general knowledge of the symptoms of rheumatic fever and earlier diagnosis and care are cutting

VALENTINES down on heart damage and deaths due to Newly developed surgical procedures are improving the outlook for youngsters with certain types of congenital heart disease. Increasing use of penicillin and other antibiotics are reducing deaths due to heart disease of syphilitic origin.

While diseases of the heart and arteries are listed as the cause of more deaths each year, this is due in part to a marked decrease in mortality from infectious diseases at all ages and a resulting increase in the number of people in the older age

St. Valentine's Day is National Heart Day and February, National Heart Month. Take yourself to your doctor for an examination. If he tells you that you have a heart condition, take his advice, and take it easy! There are more cardiacs living complete, full lives today than there have been at any time in the world's history, the Michigan Department of Health said.
