

Leithauser and Pfeffer In Park Dispute

Grosse Exaggerations?

If fortune tellers are your weakness, you'll be awed by this true story, which we just found on our desk under a pile of last year's bills. Some years ago, a seeress in New England told a client not to take a trip crossing any body of water. She said that the cards and crystal plainly indicated a ship disaster.

The man who was warned, not only consulted but believed, and was so impressed that he wouldn't even read a sea story. About six months later, on a very windy day, he was about to enter a restaurant called the "Ship Tavern" when suddenly the great brass sailing schooner that hung over the entrance door, gave way, fell on his head and killed him instantly.

We can't help admiring the fine sensibilities of some of our better butlers; for example, Mrs. Roosevelt's English butler, who took his vacation during the Royal visit at Hyde Park, because he couldn't bear the ignominy of serving hot dogs to their Majesties. On a lesser scale, but equally important to the butler, was a recent crisis in the lives of a California family, who invited a visiting Grosse Pointe couple to dinner. The Negro butler, who had once worked in G. P. and knew the visitors by reputation, was horrified to find his mistress ordering ham for the occasion. "Miz C, you all aint gonna give dem folks HAM, is you?" He was so obviously distressed, that the lowly ham was quickly replaced with fried chicken, which Rastus served with a proud and happy grin.

An acquaintance of ours dined at one of our swankier houses recently and tells the following. After dinner, the butler, (Japanese, this time), poured the coffee. The guest of honor was seated next to the hostess, so when the butler poured the g-of-h's coffee, the hostess remarked, "This is Sanka." Whereupon the polite guest raised her lorgnette, peered at the inscrutable face of the Jap and said, "Good evening, Sanka."

Some facts about our Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

A visitor to the Telephone Company remarked that it was unfortunate that the automatic switch boards put so many people out of work, but he was told that such is not the case. Many female telephone operators were put out of jobs, but the company now employs as many men, in order to keep the automatic system in repair.

Another discovery was that it isn't as easy as you think, to put in a long distance call from someone else's house—when they aren't looking! If the person charged with the call, refuses to pay the bill on the grounds that he didn't place the call and doesn't know who did, the telephone "dicks" trace it from the other end. Usually the receiver of the questioned call, will break down and give the name of the caller, who is then notified to pay up or else. We were interested to learn that the

Miss Arndt's Dance Review Acclaimed Most Satisfactory

By MAYA GRUHIT

Before a crowded audience composed of fond parents and admirers of the Dance, Miss Elaine Marie Arndt presented her dance classes last Wednesday in another annual and colorful recital.

Beginning with the dramatic signature of Miss Arndt, the program moved smoothly on through various tap, soft shoe, acrobatic and ballet numbers, concluding with a short musical comedy feature entitled, "The House That Love Built." The youngest dancers contributed early in the evening to the program in three skits: a traffic jam, a school scene, and a race track scene. The more experienced dancers contributed with specialty numbers such as military taps and baby ballet.

However, the young children showed no more signs of nervousness in the precision of their steps than did the older people. Nevertheless, everyone's steps became more steady as the program progressed and as the dancers became more accustomed to the audience. And if one small jockey in red coat and white breeches couldn't find his horse, it merely added to the enjoyment of the skit.

Notice to Residents of Grosse Pointe City

The committee in charge of the Fourth of July celebration for the City of Grosse Pointe regrets the postponement of the festivities for this year. The scarcity of time makes it impossible for them to complete all the arrangements. All monies donated to defray the expenses of the program will be returned to the donors.

One of the most beautiful of the presentations however, was the Evening Ballet. Involving most of the dancers, the choruses or "stars," "stardust," and "starlets," showed exceeding grace of movement and appropriately created the mood for the solo dancers. The costumes of yellow and silver net for the stars for the wind and the Man in the Moon and the Gibson Girl were also designed with the idea of creating an effect. Against a backdrop of bright blue the costumes and dancing did cause an effect which was very beautiful.

It was in this ballet that Miss Arndt danced for one of the two times that she performed that evening. And although her performance was brief, her poise and expressiveness appropriately showed the quality of her dancing.

Other numbers which deserve mention were the Hawaiian tap number by Shirley Brooks, a tango and rumba by Rosa Spall and Bill Konkle, and the garden party scene from the "The House That Love Built," including the wee daisy who was determined to be a non-conformist. Mr. Dale Rhodes also deserves mention for the rendition of the vocal numbers of that skit. And Billy Schruggs, boy soprano and guest artist, added to the program, singing with great sangfroid.

Miss Arndt deserves great credit for imparting her enthusiasm of dance to so many people, to both young and old, and with so much success. What anyone lacked in precision of footwork they made up for in the energy of accomplishment and in quality of expression. It is indeed remarkable how so many young people could be so aptly trained without a sense of confusion or incompleteness. Orchids are again due to Miss Arndt for the clever and descriptive costumes which she designed.

President's Dream House Nears Completion

Above is a drawing of the front of President Roosevelt's telephone-less "dream house" at Hyde Park, N. Y., which will soon be ready for occupancy. Designed after the President's own sketch, the $15,000 home is in the traditional Dutch style of architecture, presenting an air of simple but solid comfort. It is situated on a wooded knoll overlooking the Hudson river.

Park's Budget Followed Nearly Letter Perfect

Construction of the Storm Water Relief Sewer in Grosse Pointe Park will result in an increase of $1.42 per $1,000 valuation on the 1939 tax bill. The new rate has been set at $16.36. Last year the rate was $14.90. An item of $47,407.50 has been set up in the current Village budget to cover retirement of serial sewer bonds and interest as they come due.

Assessed valuation has been increased from $30,754,098.00 to $30,955,853.00. Purchase of the new Junior High School site on Somerset road resulted in a $90,000.00 reduction in assessed valuation, this amount being taken from the tax roll. Construction of new homes was largely responsible for the increase in valuation.

The current budget, including the item for the Storm Relief Sewer totals $506,186.92. The budget last year totaled $458,682.70. There has been no appreciable increase in the 1939 budget over that of last year.

Last year the Village retired $110,417.50 of general and special assessment debt.

The Village, during the past year, exceeded its budget allowance by $1,131.08. This was caused by excessive snow fall, which could not be anticipated.

Park Commission Lets Contract for Storm Water Sewer

By MAYA GRUHIT

Assigning contracts for the proposed new W. P. A. project, a storm weather pumping station, and for certain trucks and pumps needed by the Park, the Grosse Pointe Park Village Commission met last Monday night in the Municipal building.

The contract for the pumping station was assigned to W. H. Mueller, 12211 Woodward avenue, whose bid was the lowest and the most practicable. The total price under Mr. Mueller's bid is $147,293.00. General Motors was assigned the contracts for the new garbage trucks, and the Cyroburke Company for the Jaeger pump.

Two other major problems were also dealt with. These involved the question of parking space around the new theatre on Nottingham and Jefferson avenue, and the question of changing the ordinance pertaining to use of the village park by residents only.

Concerning the first problem, Mr. William P. Shoemaker, commissioner in charge of police affairs, said that the police would meet the situation when conditions would make an immediate change necessary, as the theatre will not open for several months yet.

Although Commissioner D. J. Leithauser protested that the park would be too crowded if taxpayers but non-residents were given park passes, the council passed an order for President Alfred Garska to appoint a committee to investigate changes of the ordinance. They also passed a resolution (Continued on Page Three)

Income Drops More Than 60 per cent Over Last Year

Grosse Pointe Park's lake front park continues to be the center of maelstrom of contention which became more turbulent last Monday evening when the Village Commission held its regular meeting.

Letters were read from three or four non-resident taxpayers who had made requests for park permits and had been refused by Commissioner Leithauser's department. Joseph Clark of 324 Piper boulevard, Detroit, an owner of property in Grosse Pointe Park, was represented by his attorney. One taxpayer said he would refuse to pay tax for park upkeep if denied a permit.

President Garska appointed Commissioners Renaud, DeHayes and Leithauser to investigate the matter of issuing permits to all taxpayers, regardless of place of residence. If the committee reports favorably, the existing ordinance may be modified to permit all non-resident taxpayers access to the park.

Towards the close of the meeting there was a spirited exchange of words between Commissioners Leithauser and Pfeffer. Several weeks ago it appears that Leithauser, who has charge of the park for the current season, made the assertion that under his management there had been a decided increase in monies collected at the park. This statement brought forth a demand by Commissioner Pfeffer that the comptroller prepare a comparative statement for 1938 and the current year.

The report prepared by the Comptroller showed that from the time of opening the park up until June 26th the income was as follows:

1938	$527.55
1939	200.20

Leithauser immediately objected that the figures were not correct for the 1938 period and a demand was made that the record books be brought before the meeting. When the books were presented, Leithauser refused to look at same, but stated that he would take the Comptroller's report home with him so he could study it.

Commissioner Pfeffer entered strenuous objection and stated that inasmuch as Leithauser had already lost several reports, including a lengthy audit report, that he had taken home with him, he did not care to trust Leithauser to take this particular report home. There was a heated exchange of words between Pfeffer and Leithauser.

After the meeting several commissioners looked over the books and verified the comptroller's report. To date, under Dr. Leithauser's management income from the park appears to have dropped from over $500 to $200.

Elaborate Plans Being Made for Alger Post V. F. W. Picnic July 9

Great things are in store for all Pointers and friends of the Vets who attend the annual picnic of Alger Post, V. F. W. at Kolping Park on July 9. This park, situated on the Sugar Bush road near the Cotton road, consists of shaded arbors where the cool breeze from the lake can really be enjoyed.

A new covered refreshment stand has been constructed providing running water and permanent fixtures. There is a dance hall and kitchen and should you not care to pack a lunch, you can purchase a meal at the park.

There will be at least 30 prizes offered for various events for children as well as adults and a ball game between the House of August team and the Alger Post.

An orchestra has been procured for dancing and a famous German band will be an added attraction.

Picnic grounds will be open from 10 a. m. on, so come early and remain late. Ample parking facilities are available and plenty of exciting attractions to afford all attending an enjoyable time.

Farewell Reception Planned for Fr. Stack of St. Paul's Parish

Father F. T. Stack, who has been assistant pastor of St. Paul's Parish since April, 1927, has been transferred by Archbishop Mooney to St. Mary Magdalen Parish of Hazel Park where he is to be Administrator.

The parishioners are planning a farewell reception to be given in his honor on Sunday, July 2, at 8 p. m. In order to provide ample facilities for all who wish to attend the reception will be held on the school lawn.

The affair is not restricted to members of the parish since Father Stack had many friends in every walk of life. Parish Stack came to St. Paul's Parish immediately following completion of the new school which was built under the direction of Rev. A. H. B. Nacy and from the first he has had the responsibility for its operation. Under his direction the school has built up a very splendid record; his untiring efforts and personal supervision has made him countless friends of both adults and children; he has been a member of the bowling league and has always taken an active interest in the societies of the parish.

Father Melvin and Mr. Dennis B. Hayes will speak at the reception and present him with a purse made possible through contributions of the parishioners.

 By P. G. MUNRO

The bidding of the following hand, played recently, is typical of common every-day errors in bidding:

North		East
S-Q J 6	H-K 8	S-A 9 5 3 2	H-9 5 3 2
D-K 7 3 2	C-8 6 5 2	D-Q J	C-J 3

West
 S-10 8
 H-J 10 7
 D-10 9 6 4
 C-A 10 9 4

South
 S-K 7 4
 H-A Q 6 4
 D-A 8 5
 C-K Q 7

The bidding: South dealer, East and West vulnerable.

South West North East
 1 notrump Pass 2 notrump Pass
 3 notrump? Pass Pass Pass
 Holding 4 honor-tricks in at least three suits with 4-3-3-3 distribution, South's opening bid of one-notrump is correct. His partner's response of two-notrump is also correct. But South's rebid of three-notrump shows a lack of knowledge in bidding fundamentals. South, with only 4 bare honor-tricks in his hand, should have passed his partner's single raise of two notrump.

At another table, the hand was bid like this:

South	West	North	East
1 notrump	Pass	2 notrump	Pass
3 hearts?	Pass	3 notrump	Pass

South's rebid of three-hearts, at this table, also shows a lack of knowledge in bidding fundamentals. His partner (North), assuming that the opening one-notrump bid was correct, had every reason for believing that the heart suit was only four cards in length, and was justified in taking out the three-heart rebid with three no-trump. South should not have taken out his partner's two-notrump response with three in a major suit unless his hand contained 4-plus honor-tricks or more. He should have passed with only 4 bare honor-tricks.

In these two instances, both South players expressed disappointment over the defeat of the contract. Usually, there is disappointment when game is bid and the contract defeated; or when a hand is bid short of game but makes game when the hand is played. The real thrill in Contract is experienced only by players who know when to continue bidding and when to pass.

If the Jack of diamonds is substituted for one of South's small diamonds, the hand would contain 4-plus honor-tricks. South's rebid of three-hearts or three-notrump would then be correct, and a three-notrump contract could be made.

The quickest and easiest way to learn to bid accurately is with an Autobidder.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS
 An interested reader has submitted the following question:

"East opened the bidding with one-heart; should South overcall with two-hearts or one-spade, holding this hand?"

S-A J 9 4
 H-K J 10 9 6 4
 D-4
 C-A K

South's correct bid is a double of the opening one-heart bid. This double, of course, is not a Penalty Double; it is a Takeout Double and forces partner to take out the double even with a very weak hand. If partner takes out the double with spades, the hand can be played in that suit. If the take-out is in clubs or diamonds, South can then bid two-hearts and play the hand in hearts.

South's hand is too strong for a defensive overcall in spades. South's partner would infer from a spade bid that South's hand contained about four winning tricks including 1½ honor-tricks and a good biddable spade suit.

An immediate overcall in an opponent's suit shows a powerful hand containing 5 or more honor-tricks including the Ace or a void in the opponents' suit, and is forcing to game. For South to overcall the opening one-heart bid with two-hearts, his hand should be something like this:

S-A K Q 7 3
 H-A
 D-K Q 10 7
 C-K J 10.

Public Letter
 B-O-X

June 23, 1939

The Grosse Pointe Review, Grosse Pointe, Mich.
 Attention: Mr. L. B. Oldham. Gentlemen:

Referring to your June 22nd issue of the Grosse Pointe Review, received by the writer at his home at 1238 Harvard. This company installed the fence and turnstiles at the Park and vigorously objects to it being termed a "kennel fence."

We think that the residents of our community were not of the opinion that they were buying Kennel Enclosures, when they bought the same style of fencing to protect their property and children.

The writer is quite well acquainted with a number of gentlemen elected as commissioners of the Park, and his opinion regarding politics in our village has nothing to do with this letter.

It is difficult to remain silent when the business you consider an honorable business is unfairly attacked in a political war.

Incidentally, we note that you have no objections to accepting advertisements when this same type of fence is recommended for residences.

We hope you will be fair to our business and retract your "kennel" reference in your next issue with as much prominence as you gave it in the June 22nd issue.

Yours very truly,
 WIRE & IRON PRODUCTS INC.
 Harry E. Gieseking.
 18 years in Grosse Pointe Park.

To the Editor,
 Grosse Pointe Review.

I read with interest your article about the "kennel fence" in this issue of the Grosse Pointe Review. This is a misnomer. The fence makes the lake front park look like a Nazi detention camp. Are we next to have the Gestapo investigate every visitor to the park?

The refusal of Grosse Pointe Park officials to permit school children with their teachers to have little picnics in the park is about the silliest thing I ever heard of. It is a good thing that the City of Detroit does not operate its park system as do the Grosse Pointes. I often times enjoy the beauty of Belle Isle, Palmer Park and the zoo.

The whole thing appears undemocratic and if common sense is not exercised by all of the Grosse Pointe municipalities, some irate American citizen will utilize the Constitution to open up these parks to all American citizens.

Hitlerism should be kept in Germany. Yours for more summer fun,
 A Grosse Pointe Park RESIDENT and TAXPAYER.

L. B. Oldham, Publisher
 The Grosse Pointe Review,
 Grosse Pointe, Michigan
 Dear Sir:

I am amazed and disgusted with your bitter attack on Dr. R. J. Leithauer, the newly elected commissioner for the Village of Grosse Pointe Park.

Judging from the manner in which the recreation park has been handled in the past, exactly the restrictions and reforms put in effect by Dr. Leithauer were very much needed. You state yourself, in your double column front page editorial, that the lake front park was paid for and being sustained by the taxes collected from all property owners. How can there be any criticism of a rule that restricts its use to residents only. So far as I know the same rule is in effect in all of the municipal parks along St. Clair.

The similarity of fences surrounding the lake park and the dog pound, which you consider so significant, is of course pure nonsense. Certainly an inclosure is necessary of the grounds are to be kept as a private municipal park and no possible point is made by large size pictures showing the same kind of a fence used for some other purpose.

As a property owner and taxpayer, residing at 1115 Whittier, I should like to criticize severely a column appearing over the name of William G. Stammen on page five in the issue of Thursday, June 22. Certainly if a village officer has any criticism of another officer of the village he should direct it to him personally or to the commission itself, which authorized Dr. Leithauer to handle the park operation. No doubt you freely donated the space to Mr. Stammen as you do even your front page for articles that are as purely advertising matter as anything could possibly be, although they appear as news items. Examples—the "Elaine Arndt Recital," "New, Colorful Spoons" and "Berkey and Gay Offer" articles on the first page and advertisements on pages 2, 4 and 6. If you have any idea that your present efforts as a newspaper publisher conform with the usual standards followed by first class publications you are very sadly mistaken.

Very truly yours,
 R. NOBLE WETHERBEE.

THE BELLS OF FREEDOM

Hark! Hark! The Bells! The bells of freedom ringing
 On the soft breeze now whisper in my ear;
 Come at the call ye who are heavy-hearted;
 Listen to the Voice of comfort and of cheer.
 Lord, we obey Thy summons now appealing;
 Gladly we lay our burdens at Thy feet.
 The bells of freedom set our hearts aringing
 With joy and peace that make our lives complete.

Oh, Holy God, there's mercy for the sinner,
 Who at Thy feet, repenting, comes to kneel.
 Let it be known Thy grace Lord, is sufficient.
 Thou wilt the soul, the mind, and body heal.
 What more could man expect of His dear Savior,
 Who gave His all in death upon the tree?
 What is the price of Peace within the Heavens?
 Lord, now we come to give ourselves to Thee.

Thou, Holy God, art Savior and Redeemer;
 Thou art our King, the coming Prince of Peace.
 Long hath the world awaited Thy returning;
 Long have we looked O Lord, for our release,
 Now we behold Thee, Jesus, in Thy glory;
 Now we, O Lord, to holy heights aspire.
 We would be near Thee in Thy highest Heaven.
 Come, Holy God, and ever lift us higher.

Hark! Hark! The bells! The bells of freedom calling
 Tell me, O Jesus, Thou art ever near.
 Thou dost redeem us from our sin degrading;
 Thou dost restore us with Thy hope and cheer.
 Now, Holy God, this blessing we would ask Thee,—
 We would receive Thy Love eternally.
 May we on high, among Thy holy angels,
 Join in the praise which ever comes to Thee.
 —Amen.

two busiest periods over long distance are at eleven A. Today, other popular radio programs have the same effect, but to a lesser degree. Charlie McCarthy, Information Please and Orson Welles are three of the telephone-activity-slower-downers.

We can't say that at least one G. P. maid doesn't enter into the spirit of things. At the jungle party given by the C. Henry Buhls last week, one of the women guests was looking for her spouse. When she asked the maid if she had seen him, the reply was, "If you mean the missionary, Madam, he's sitting in the library with a tiger."

Silhouette: The proud bearer of a proud family name, she was born in Detroit and at present lives on the Lake Shore. Mother of four children, including twins, she spends much of her time with them, as well as being interested in several charities, (Franklin Settlement is her pet), and keeping her social calendar well filled. She makes frequent trips to New York because she adores the theatre and shopping. She will spend endless hours looking for the correct accessories for a gown or suit and her perfect ensembles are the result. She is tall and slender, has blue-black hair and dark eyes. Her favorite colors are gray and black which she favors for daytime wear. She can't stand brown and has never owned anything in that color. She likes to play bridge, ride, hunt and play tennis. Her pet abominations are loud radios and sun-tanning. She likes that has hung on since early school days. Her name, Mrs. Harold R. Boyer.

And so we're off in a burst of fireworks, wishing you all a happy and noiseless holiday.

Correction

Inadvertently an error was made in last week's issue of the Grosse Pointe Review in an article captioned "Grosse Pointe High School Graduates Its Largest Class."

It was stated in the article that "the Frederick M. Alger Memorial Scholarship, presented by the American Legion Post No. 999, . . ." which should have read as follows:

"Presented by Gen. R. A. and Col. F. M. Alger Post No. 995 Veterans of Foreign Wars."

We sincerely regret this error and wish to take this means of correcting it.

President Elva Nielsen, who attended the dedication of the new veterans' hospital at Dearborn June 20th, spoke proudly of the fine showing our Rehabilitation Chairman Betty Hoyt and her aides, Ruth Cross and Mary Del Barba are making. She pointed out that while we are the baby unit of the Department, we have the largest number of volunteers working at veterans' hospital.

We welcomed three new members at our last meeting in the persons of Marguerite Schmidt, Ruenta DeBaeke, and Margaret Poole.

We still have on our sick list Ethel Clark and Kate Porter, although Mrs.

Hannan 'Y' Members Welcome Chinese Engineers at Dinner

James Hansen, vice president of Kendrick Manufacturing company and chairman of the World Service Committee of Hannan Y. M. C. A. announced a special dinner for 28 Chinese engineering students this Thursday evening at 6:30, at Hannan Y. M. C. A.

The dinner, under the auspices of the World Service committee, is the official welcome on the part of "Y" members to the Chinese group. The students have all been recently graduated from outstanding American universities in engineering from M. I. T. to the University of California. They are all living at the Hannan Y. M. C. A. and studying automotive engineering and maintenance at the Chrysler Institute of Engineering of the Chrysler Corporation.

The group held their first meeting last week and elected the following officers:

Chairman—Yu Mei Chang of the University of Michigan. Secretary—W. H. Tsein of M. I. T. Treasurer—S. K. Chen of the University of Michigan.

The dinner this Thursday evening is part of a special program of activities being arranged by the Y. M. C. A. for the Chinese group. Special tours to many points of interest in the city are to be conducted at a later date.

Eugene E. Barnett, executive secretary of the International Board of Y. M. C. A.'s which aids the work of the Y. M. C. A. in 35 countries in the world, will be the guest speaker at the dinner. Mr. Barnett has spent 25 years in China with the "Y" and is intimately acquainted with the present leaders of China.

The Chinese students expect to complete their training in Detroit within the next three or four months. They will then sail for China where they will be employed by the Chinese government in engineering projects.

Farms Police Golf Team Defeats Fire Department

The Grosse Pointe Farms police department's golf team defeated the Farms fire department team in a hard fought match at one of the local golf links.

While the score would indicate the match was a little one-sided, each four-some battled right down to the last green. Some of the boys were able to turn in nice cards, several being in the seventies, with most of them staying in the eighties. All this on one of the toughest courses in Michigan. We are indeed proud of the skill shown by the members of both teams. Congratulations to the winners and to the losers three cheers for the strong front shown. After the match all concerned met and replayed the game over a cool glass and a nice lunch. The scores—Ed. Beaufre 1/2 Har. Beaufre. 2/2 Ray Snay 0 Andrew Allard. 3 Best ball 1 Best ball 2

Parent-Teachers Council to Sponsor Five Plays by Junior Programs, Inc.

The Parent Teachers Council of the Grosse Pointe School District has contracted for a series of plays to be given by Junior Programs, Inc. next year.

Sponsors are Parent Teacher associations of the various schools.

The plays will be given at the new John D. Pierce Junior High School auditorium. Tickets for the entire series of five plays will be $1.00, available to all children and parents of Grosse Pointe.

The plays to be given are: Bumble Bee Prince, in October. Pinocchio, in November.

Reward of the Sun Gods, in January. Hastings Marionettes, in March. Aviation Show, in April or May.

Two performances Saturdays, 10:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m.

Concerning these plays Webb Waldron says the following in his column in The Reader's Digest:

This winter half a million children in a hundred towns are crowding into school auditoriums to see real operas and real plays, flesh-and-blood singers and actors, at an admission of 10 to 25 cents. This is the miracle wrought by a non-profit organization known as Junior Programs, Inc.

It all began with a group of New Jersey mothers who wanted their children to develop a taste for good music, drama and art. But they just couldn't find what they wanted, in the movies or on the air. True, a mother might gather up her offspring and take them occasionally to a good concert, play or lecture in New York, but that was expensive in time and money.

"If we can't take our children to culture, why not bring culture to our children?" suggested one of the group.

With this casual remark, Mrs. Dorothy McFadden, slim, brown-eyed mother of two, unconsciously launched her career as America's Number One impresario of entertainment for youth.

Appointed chairman of a committee to bring culture to Maplewood, N. J., Mrs. McFadden on pure nerve signed up an opera, a symphony orchestra, a famous singer, a play, and a marionette show. Free use of the high school auditorium was secured. To reach every child, admission was put at 10 cents a performance.

Children snapped up 2000 tickets for the season of eight entertainments. Librettos and scores were provided in advance, to be read and sung in classrooms.

The season was a great success. Young audiences sat breathless on the edge of their seats, roared with laughter, and overwhelmed the performers with applause. What was more important, contact with living drama and music, and the lesson that pleasure is increased when supplemented by preparation and knowledge, stimulated creative work in the school amazingly.

For three years, Mrs. McFadden worked in co-operation with the National Music League as adviser to other interested communities. Then at her own expense she studied the Children's Theater in Russia, Scandinavia and Germany. Returning, she organized Junior Programs, Inc., and began her campaign of helping the children of the United States to get cultural opportunities that European children were getting as a matter of course.

Junior Programs started primarily as a booking agency, but Mrs. McFadden soon discovered that a sufficient variety of suitable entertainment for children did not exist. So this New Jersey housewife, who had never had a day's business experience, took another bold leap. She resolved that Junior Programs would have to go into producing.

Finding no suitable plays, she engaged John Louw Nelson to write a Hopi Indian drama, The Reward of the Sun God, and immediately produced it. She took over Hansel and Gretel from the National Music League, and produced it with improvements. Then she engaged Edwin Strawbridge, the dancer, to do a ballet, Pinocchio. She translated the libretto of Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera Bumble Bee Prince and gave it its first production in America.

Strawbridge is now preparing an entrancing dance-play version of A Midsummer Night's Dream.

One of the most popular of the Junior Programs is an airplane show created by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia in which the lecturer holds his kid audience enthralled with models and movies demonstrating the mysteries of air currents, the development of the airplane, the antics of autogiros and helicopters.

Junior Program tours have been booked from Canada to Florida, and as far west as Oklahoma. To save expenses and meet their schedules, the companies travel from town to town by car, with their scenery in a truck. Last year they drove 30,000 miles, and filled 242 engagements. Junior Programmers have astonished me by the humor with which they recount their journeys through rain, mud, ice, and duststorms in making their dates. Somehow the fact of playing to eager audiences of children gives these tours an aspect of adventure that makes hardship seem trivial. Performers get a thrill and a satisfaction that they never found in adult audiences.

You must witness one of their shows to understand that thrill. Not long ago I sat in the auditorium of the Junior High School in Binghampton, N. Y., crowded with 1500 youngsters from the elementary grades come to hear Hansel and Gretel. The auditorium buzzed like a hive of a billion bees. Then, suddenly, it was stilled. The great blue curtain trembled, drew slowly apart revealing the cottage of Peter, the broom-maker. Hansel and Gretel, busy at their work, burst into song. A great round "Oh!" of surprise and pleasure ran from lip to lip.

Few of those children had ever seen a play with living actors; still fewer had ever seen an opera. But they knew the story of Hansel and Gretel. They had sung the songs. Here, amazingly, were the actual babes in the woods, the witch, the enchanted forest, all real before their eyes. So real that when the witch's back was turned, a little crippled boy in the front row leaped up and cried excitedly: "Run, Gretel, run!"

In Macon, Georgia, 6000 school children crowded the civic auditorium to see Pinocchio. Many trudged in barefoot from the country districts. In another city, after every seat for Bumble Bee Prince was filled, several hundred children were lined up in the street clamoring to see "the opera." When they learned that there was no more room they all began to cry. The entire block was filled with sobbing children; the police had to be called out to act as comforters.

Marion Selce, famous opera star, sang with the opera company. "Children used to come closer and closer to the stage until their faces were peering over the footlights, so excited they hardly knew they had moved," she says. "After the performance, they used to swarm backstage to ask questions. After an exhausting tour, we swear we will never try it again, but we always do. We can't resist such thoroughly satisfactory audiences."

Junior Programs is a truly non-profit enterprise; the charge to any community for a series of shows covers only the salaries of the artists and their traveling expenses. The maintenance of the New York office, the salaries of production and office people, running to some $15,000 a year—this Mrs. McFadden meets by soliciting contributions from public-spirited friends. She herself has given all her time—often 18 hours a day—for five years with absolutely no salary.

Her assistants have caught some of her spirit. Her production manager, Saul Lancourt, has turned down offers of twice his present salary from Broadway producers. "The bug has bitten me," he says. "This is more than just a job. It's an adventure."

Mrs. McFadden is constantly pushing Junior Programs into new fields. She is working on radio programs to counteract the cheap drivel being fed to children. Columbia has signed her up for one series.

Dorothy McFadden's idea is bound to spread more and more widely. It meets a real craving in the American community. Junior Programs, I venture to say, will be playing to a million children a few years hence.
