Economy Group Re-Elected In City Of Grosse Pointe

Thirteen hundred and forty-eight residents of the City of Grosse Pointe braved the rain and cold to cast their ballots Tuesday. All of the incumbents were re-elected and the two propositions were also voted upon favorably.

Europe, the mail censors manage to keep their sense of humor. We heard that a woman living here, received a letter from her husband, who happens to be 'stuck' in one of the war zones. When the letter arrived, recognizing her husband's hand writing, she opened it in feverish haste. Inside, she found a sheet of paper on which was printed, "Madam, your husband talks too much l"

The league leading Jr. Lions made t three in a row when they defeated an under-rated Ram eleven by the slight margin of one point 7-6. The Rams scored first on a fifty-yard pass rom Rivard to Paul. Rivard's plunge for extra points failed making the score stand 6-0 in favor of the Rams. A 47-yard drive by the Lions came to a climax when Milligan smashed off tackle for three yards and a touchdown. McQueen's pass to Milligan for point was good and its meant victory No. 3 for the Lions.

Red Wings and Lions are scheduled to meet today in what should prove to be a very exciting game. Should the Red Wings emerge with a victory they would go into a tie for first place. The Lions will be out to stop this so from all indications some interesting football will take place.

The Cardinals, still setting the pace in the Midget league, subdubed a highly improved Bear aggregation 13-0 for their third straight win. McIlroy, star back of the Cards, scored the first touchdown on a ten-yard end run. V Elizabeth's try for point was good. Marty Baro, scored the final marker for the league leaders when he ran 40 yards behind beautiful interference.

Pierce Junior High School welcomed nore than four hundred parents and friends in its first Seventh Grade open house, Friday, November 3. Students and faculty members greeted the record Chrysanthemum Show turnout with a program of tours, exhibits, demonstrations, and entertain-

Identified by name cards and escorted by seventh grade pupils, visitors were conducted through the building where home room and class teachers explained the projects in which students engage. Special exhibits had been arranged in many of the classrooms to illustrate typical student activities. In the new illuminated display cases in the halls, pictures, books, posters supplemented classroom exhibits.

All visitors gathered in the auditorium after the building tour to witness a radio review of the seventh-graders' school day. Evelyn Bell and Walter Gibbs introduced the program in which all of the two hundred seventy-five 7B pupils available participated. Corridor close-ups, enacted by Elizabeth Murphy, Joan Terry, George Flanders, and Mrs. Wilbur M. Brucker Marvin Schott, preceded a "Carnival Schottische" by the 7B girls' gym groups. Miss Garnette Foster, girls' athletic director, supervised 35 blue clad youngsters in a colorful spectacle.

The mobile microphone swung into science demonstration. Embryo scientists. Alan Howell, Joseph Faucher, Milton Henkel, Marte Baro, Fred Day, John Butterfield, and Jack Marshall proved to everyone's satisfaction that air does exert pressure. Mr. James Anderson, seventh grade chairman, had planned the dramatization.

George Bruyneal and Bob Vernier in nimated conversation conducted the audience by radio's magic carpet to the choral room. Here Miss Helen Keane and Mr. Samuel Trickey presented 125 members of the 7B chorus in "When I tended to emphasize the importance of was a Lad" from Gilbert and Sullivan's peace. Grosse Exaggerations

The reporters on the Dailys must have had a 'civic tongue in their cheek' when they made such a huliabaloo about the 'carryings on' of the Grosse Pointe children, on Hallowe'en. Surely even those with silver spoons in their ths ought to be excused for having 'one trek' mind, when it comes to celebrations that call for painted faces and witchery. However, we hope that the children realize how they disgraced the community and that next year they will stay home and read a good book ! or practise their deviltry, below the City Limits!

And so we come to the end of a quiet week; so quiet that one can almost hear the passing of dividends.

New Pierce School Is Built for Tomorrow's World and Economy

Special features of the new John D. Pierce Junior High School of Grosse Pointe, attracted the enthusiastic approval of hundreds of visitors at the school's first "open house" Monday evening. The P. W. A. contributed $395,100 of the building's cost.

buildings appearance is the economy observed throughout its construction, according to Charles A. Parcells, President of the Board of Education. "If you have the money and time it is not difficult to build a good school," he said. "We didn't have much time, and we have been as sparing as possible with money, always keeping in mind economy for many years and not merely in initial coast. We think, however, and the public Monday night seemed to agree, that utility and beauty have been combined with read economy in the Pierce school. We have tried to build the school for tomorrow's needs as well as today's."

The new Pierce Junior High School auditorium which seats 930 people; was inspected by hundreds. The ceil- new. ing and walls above the walnut panelling are of acoustic material which prevents reverberation. The six large indirect lights, which also serve as overhead air ducts, have twenty-five 100watt lights in each. These are replaced via hand-holes concealed in the ceiling, eliminating the necessity for using

In front of the stage is an orchestra pit which will seat 22 musicians.

The stage itself is 40 feet wide and measures 30 feet in depth. It is entirely unobstructed. Disappearing footlights are installed in the front of the stage. A spiral metal stairway leads rooms which are built on the side wall attend school. of the stage, well above the floor level, in what would otherwise be waste space. With these dressing rooms and their adjacent toilets, it is possible to lend classrooms in the rest of the building. The stage is thoroughly sound-insulated from the fan room beneath. Above its west side is store for scenery "flats", of which many are provided.

> Opened to the public only a bit over week, the new main branch of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education's Public Library occupies one wing of the Pierce building.

"Beautiful as it has been hoped the library would be, it is even more attractive in reality," commented Dr. E. R. Van Kleeck, superintendent of schools.

The new library is in the Georgian Colonial style. The panelling is walnut with red gum and birch. All lighting is indirect and chandeliers are supplemented by floor lamps.

In the library there is room for 15,000 books. Over 10,000 books are now on making it the largest in Grosse Pointe, the library shelves. Nearly 300 are

It is one thing to read famousShakespearian plays. It is another to hear them read by great actors.

Grosse Pointe High School students n the future will hear important scenes from Shakespeare as well as a good deal of modern poetry spoken by professional actors, such as Orson Wells or by the poets themselves.

This will be possible as a result of the purchase of a new combination radio-record player. The new machine was bought with the money earned by the English department in sponsoring two plays, "Dr. Faustus" and "The Merry Wives of Windsor," given by the Detroit Federal Theatre Group.

Mercury Text Records by Orson Wells have also been purchased for the use of English classes. To date three plays have been recorded: "The Merchant of Venice", "Twelfth Night," and the famous historical play, "Julius

In addition to other records on hand, the English department will acquire records of American and English bassands, contemporary poets, and selections such as Chaucer's "Sasterbury

Just how many of Grosse Pointe School's 184 graduates of 1939 are now in college nobody knows definitely. Although transcripts have been sent out to many colleges, the sending of a transcript does not always mean a student will attend the college to which the transcript goes. Only a later check with colleges can varify the facts.

If 1939 graduates follow the examples of graduates of former years, they will scatter to widely different colleges throughout the country. In the last eight years Grosse Pointers have entered 78 different colleges and universities. The number of different colleges attended reached its peak in 1939 when 31 institutions were chosen by the

But no matter what college they entered, the 431 freshmen who have gone to college from Grosse Pointe in the last eight years have done well scholastically. In the country at large they have maintained an average honor point average of 1.39, while Grosse Pointers out at the University of Michigan, in the last eight years, attained an average honor point average of 1.36.

Official figures show that 46 per cent of the total marks of Grosse Pointe freshmen in these last eight years have been A's and B's. The C marks accounted for 40 per cent of all the marks while D's and E's made up the other 14 per cent.

The most successful class ever to enter the University of Michigan from Grosse Pointe was last year's group. Current freshmen at Ann Arbor will have to earn 54 per cent A's and B's set last year; a record considerably above the marks of University of Michigan freshmen as a whole.

Behind French Foreign Policy

break of hostilities in Europe and not much more is being said about her now that the fight is on. Let this not mis-

The French have always preferred facts to words. They have moreover made it a rule to avoid publicity. And, Premier Edouard Daladier is no exception to this rule.

Official France has long considered hat an apparently unassuming France would be more likely to enlist help from without than if she showed her real strength. In accordance with this school of thought, France's way of doing things has been carefully studied to contrast with that of the Reich, her arch-enemy.

Thus, while Nazi Germany thundered, threatened and dared the world, France quietly asserted her "desire for peace and co-operation with all countries." As a result, the lesser powers flocked around France and asked her to do something about it. Which she readily did by lining them all up against the possible aggressor.

For many years, this trick has helped the French to largely supplant their deficiency in man-power and maintain a real hegemony over the continent.

Hitler had somewhat upset their action with the British.

The starting point of this clever diplomacy can be traced back to 1919. At the Versailles Peace Conference that ended World War I. Germany was ordered to disarm completely. This was to take place at once under minute control of an Allied committee headed by the late Marshal Foch. In to the schools will be far greater than compensation, the Allies promised to follow suit by gradually disarming,

England kept her word, but not

France had suffered atrociously durng the war and the French were all anxious to "never let it happen again." Clemenceau is often quoted to have said that since the Allies had not entered Berlin as conquerors, the German would never acknowledge their

From that moment on, France aimed to hold Germany down for as long a time as it would take Poland and Crezchoslovakia, Rumania and Jugoslavia, her satellites to consolidate themselves and be strong enough to face the German giant without fear.

To put this plan through without arousing world suspicion, France once more adopted her favorite attitude. She poised as if constantly menaced by Germany. So, instead of disarming, she rearmed.

Premier Daladier, commonly known as "le Taciturne," does not boast when he says France is ready, for she really is-and German High Command well knows this to be true. Twenty years of constant and intensive rearming has given her a great advantage over her "hereditary" foe. The great reserves of fighting planes, tanks and other war apparel which have been methodically stocked and kept up to date, in various underground hideouts throughout the country have never figured in official French statistics, nor has their existence been revealed to newsdiggers. But they exist nonetheless and give France a superiority her deliberate meekness will not exist.

When in 1927, Marshal Foch announced that German disarmament was virtually realized (which meant those of the Allies which had not yet disarmed could now do so), Raymond Poincaire, at that time Premier, contrarily declared that danger of aggression had never been greater. And France went right ahead with her preparations, training and arming her proteges as she went along.

This Germany bitterly resented for t is unlikely she had any plans for reas a rapacious power gave little weight to her protests.

In 1933, when Hitler came to power, the French once more pointed Germany out to the world as violent and war-bent, although both British and French money had powerfully conributed to Adolf Hitler's success.

Again the world took notice. The British alone were somewhat suspicious but that didn't bother Paris as an concluded at Britain's expense.

To excuse her betrayal of Czechoslovakia, France once more meekly pointed out to her "helplessness," while the dictators challenged the world and paraded their might,-thus alienating whatever sympathies left for them.

Today, France is radiant for she has egained not only the kind of world sympathy she wants and needs, but also effective British support. In fact, the French through elever diplomatic moves, have maneuvered the British to open the "preventive" war Paris has been looking forward to ever since the last world war.

Meanwhile, the British are having a hard time trying to believe that Chamberlain and not Daladier is the man who is running Europe.

Pointe Students to Aid Community Fund

Co-operating with the Detroit Community Fund Plan for public, private, and parochial schools in the metropolitan area, the Grosse Pointe public plans for a time, but they have since school system will next week receive re-established the balance in their small contributions to the Community favor through discreet and concerted Fund in all elementary grades and in the high school, announced E. R. Van Kleeck, superintendent, yesterday, following a conference with the school administrative staff.

Local school officials agreed with spokesmen of the Detroit Board of Education that the educational value to the children of extending the campaign the value of their gifts to the fund.

"The school campaign will enable pupils to participate in one of the democratic institutions, and by participating the children will learn the philosophy behind the fund movement," pointed out L. M. Bartlett of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, who is in charge of the plans here.

"Let a youngster form the habit of contributing to his Community Fund throughout the twelve years of his public school life, and he is more than likely to continue his contributions as an adult," Mr. Bartlett emphasized.

This is the first year the Detroit Community Fund Campaign has been carried into the schools in organized fashion. The school participation was planned following a study of the experience of Cleveland, where school children have been giving their small gifts to the Community Fund for twenty years. The fact that Cleveland, a city only two-thirds the size of Detroit, now regularly raises a community fund of a million dollars larger than Detroit, now regularly raises a community fund of a million dollars larger than Detroit's is attributed to the training period in the schools.

Grosse Pointe's school campaign will open Wednesday, November 15, and continue for one week. The pupils themselves will organize the campaign in their own schools. Student representatives from each grade or homeroom will take charge of campaign literature and information and present it in brief speeches to their groups. An individual canister will be placed in each room along with posters and bulletin displays presenting Community Fund purposes.

No check will be made of the amount of individual contributions, declared Superintendent Van Kleeck, and nobody will know whether a child has or has not contributed.

"The size of the individual gift will not be emphasized, but rather the spirit in which it is given said the Superintendent.

So that ostentation may be avoided, a maximum limit for individual gifts was agreed upon by the school principals Tuesday. Elementary school children will be urged to contribute any venge just then, but her reputation amount from one penny to one quarter. In the junior high school the maximum limit is to be 50 cents, while in Maybe the French were right, after the high school contributions from one cent to one dollar will be solicited.

The Community Fund School Campaign will replace in Grosse Pointe the solicitation of food for Thanksgiving baskets which has been carried on oceasionally in various schools in the past. Said Mr. Bartlett, "We feel that the Community Fund provides a much more adequate plan of social work than the seasonal contributions of food, As Anglo-German alliance could only be the American way of meeting community responsibilities, the Community Fund has been almost universally Reich had again become an important adopted in our country and has merited the complete approval of social leaders

Check lists for accident hazards will be distributed to public and parochial school children in Detroit, Hamtramck. Dearborn, Highland Park, Grosse Pointe, and rural centers in Wayne County. Students will be asked to check the lists with conditions in the home and return the report with the parent's signature to the teacher.

The Home Safety campaign is part of a National American Red Cross program in which more than 4700 chanters throughout the country are participating. The safety drive in this area is being conducted by the Detroit Chapter, Red Cross, a Community Fund agency.

Mrs. James N. Downey is chairman of the Detroit and Wayne County Chapter, Red Cross Home Safety Campaign, for the fifth consecutive year.

"The risk of accident in the home is seven times greater than on the highway and nine times greater than in an airplane, train or bus," Mrs. Downey said. "Accidents are as cruel as war inasmuch as they cause death, separate lems never before encountered in a families, leave children destitute and motion picture went into the filming change healthy human beings into
