Hearts Far Away

The Holidays have passed and we have made a rather successful gesture at carrying off the traditional spirit of the season. There were many hundreds in our own community and in every other community in the land who were concealing a heavy heart under the tinest and synthetic

With more than a million of our men already in foreign service this situation will recur with inceasing frequency as the days go by, wherever groups of the middle aged appear in the American social scene.

The survey of the survey of the survey moment, but there is not steading jungle in the Southwest Pacific, or in the alternating mire or burning sands of North Africa, or on the Iceland winter patrol, the piffling complaints about gas or fuel oil or tires or any of the more serious inconveniences quickly on the way, are suddenly muted. If spoken about at all, it is in a shamefaced way that carries its were all rapidly learning that the most effective way we can help our men and boys already on the line and the millions more who are on the eve of departure, is to cheerfully deny ourselves of everything we are asked to give up; to cooperate patriotically with the Government, whatever its confusion and initial mistakes may be.

We are agetting a practical lesson in old fashiomed patriotism that will be good for all of us. We are soing to the mild and relatively easy experience we are taking on now.

How little it is that we are asked to do! All things considered, the staya-thomes have been oling a pretty good job. It was the strangeness of the chore rather than is magnitude that caused the early complaints, it

It is a safe bet that as the struggle hardens, the will-ingness to sacrifice will grow. That has been our way in the past and will be again this time.

Wholesome Balance

The new Congress which opens this week is divided, according to latest figures, 220 Democrats & 206 Republicans. The Democrats would nominally have a working majority, Actually they haven't any such thing.

A party roll call in which a shift of only serve toes from the dominant party can change it into a miror ty is a finglie thing to count on when one speaks in party lineup laneuage.

from the dominant party can enange a mos a mosary to ragile thing to count on when one speaks in party lineup language.

This is a good thing for the country, particularly during the conduct of a desperate foreign war. The narrow margin assures that the majority group will make careful appraisal of public opinion before it answers the roll call appraisal of public opinion before it answers the roll call spraisal of public opinion before it answers the roll call in any measure for which it must assume responsibility.

By the same token it warns the minority group, so alturingly near being the majority, that it is no time to include in party maneuvers which will not dovetall exactly line the successful presscution of the war.

It to the successful presscution of the war.

While the Preddent has been a fairly consistent party wan ever aline be came into the White House there are certain indubitable signs that he was quick to recognize the necessity of coalition government when he forwar the inevitability of war. This is the only explanation of his naming two Republican warhorses, Stimson and Knox, to head the War and Navy departments succeeding Woodring and Swanson,

It is true that the mushroom growth of Boards, Bu-caus and Commissions that has characterized the progress and Swis and Navy departments succeeding Woodlate Irrue that the musicoom growth of Boards, Bureaus and Commissions that has characterized the progress of the Rosevelt administration since its beginning has pretty well emasculated the old departmental structure of government, yet the bid for biparty support was clearly obvious in Mr. Rosevelt's act.

Now the "winning of the war" is the one plank of popular agreement and as Mr. Roosevels was the first of our national leaders to foresee and predict the war and is now in the process of putting "in quarantine the despution that is on the march in Europe" it is unlikely he will find it difficult to persunde the members of the new Congress, whatever their party label, to an acceptance, both political and spiritual, of his complete leadership.

France's Duty

France's Duty

The people of America and Britain will always have the deepest respect for General Charles de Gaulle. He was the one fighting Frenchman who dared to be one when the outlook was blackest.

It is easy also to understand why he has little reish for the recognition of other Frenchmen who lacked the for the recognition of other Frenchmen who lacked the particular and the property of the will subordinate he would apparently not be crowded, he will subordinate he would apparently not be crowded, he will subordinate his personal grievances and do nothing to prevent France from putting her maximum effort into the struggle. This is France's fight now, with more terrible results threatened for her if the Allies lose than any that impends over Britain or America.

Why int's color contrast a good idea for FAC-TORY MACHINES, where output depends on nimble fingers and the speed and accuracy of machine operator? Actual tests made in industrial plants show that the theory really works: produ-tion is increased, error are cut to a minimum, and improved vision greatly reduces accident hazards.

improved vision greatly reduces accident hazardt. How is all this accomplished? First, by tenuoving the solid drab color that cloaks most factory machines - the monotonous dull grease greater or black that blende into a solid most and "cameragea" the working areas from the worker's except. (Painting the "danger area" is lighter color provides sharp contrast between the machine and the male being fabricated.) Second, brightening drab walls being fabricated.) Second, brightening drab walls and floors and cailings with a fight-colored paint to banish gloomy interiors. Third, furnishing GOOD LIGHT to assure speedy, accurate vision and guide hands safely in their tasks.

For the most effective use of light and color con-fract in your plant, let our Detroit Edison Lighting Advisors help you. There is no charge for their nervices. Call RA 2100, Lighting Division. The Detroit Edison Company.

We had the colossal nerve to ask, "What do you do besides being chairman of the Grosse Points unit of the AWVS?" Because the is a very nice and very human person, she didn't take our head off as she should have done—she merely said, "Spending five days a week at the office doesn't leave very much time for me to do anything else." (Was our face red!)

She is on the Board of Tau Beta, but just now her job, which is a strenuous one, keeps her at the AWVS headquarters most of the time—and she likes it.

Her only dislikes are insincerity and intolerance in people. Also, she believes that every women should be doing her bit for the war effort, whether it be working, buying stamps and bonds or giving books and tin and all the things our country needs.

She enjoys taking care of her home and is keenly interested in homes and gardens. Reading is a favorite pastime (when she has time) and her taste in literature is catholic. She likes "color"—has ome beautiful Lowesstoff china and likes eighteenth century English

When the travels, she prefers the West Coast and likes to take pack trips through the mountains. She also enjoys shooting, fishing and any sport that is part of out-door life. Arranging flowers is a hobby of here—but just now, all her time, thought and energy is concentrated on the AWVS. To Sponsor Social Evening.
