Orphaned Land Decision Near

The special committee of the City Council named to consider the zoning classification of the land along Mack that has been cut into miscellaneous dimensions by the widening of Mack avenue by the County Road Commission, consisting of Councilmen Carpenter, Waterfall and Morgan, along with City Attorney Meder and Assessor Neil Blondell, had a meeting on January 25.

They first of all decided to consult further with the residents in that neighborhood to get their opinions on the matter but, barring serious objections, will make the following recommendation to the Council:

From Loraine, east for a block and a half to the rear lot line on Notre Dame, convert into residential "A" zone area and also vacate the alley thereby adding considerably to the area of the three lots available for residential purposes.

Beginning at the rear lot line on Notre Dame and continuing across the city to the east it will be business area. The committee will recommend that the neighboring property owners be consulted as to the depths of the zone "A" and zone "B" divisions.

The reason that it has been decidated that this part of the land west of Notre Dame be reserved for residential purposes is that directly across Mack on this frontage the City of Detroit has a pumping station which will always be surrounded by a planted area and make a suitable frontage for the Grosse Pointe residential area. Beyond this point the whole Detroit side is wholly commercial and will always be so.

Burglars Visit Nacastro Home

Vito Nacastro of 837 St. Clair called up the City police station at 12:15 in the morning on January 27 and reported that he and Mrs. Nacastro had just returned home and found their house had been ransacked by thieves. The police were unable to find where the house had been broken into, and believed entrance had been made through a milk chute. Mrs. Nacastro promised to furnish Sergeant Trombly a list of the missing articles as quickly as she could make a thorough examination of the premises.

City Police Busy in 1946

Chief Tom Trombly Discloses Interesting Items in Annual Report

The annual report of Police Chief Tom Trombly of the City of Grosse Pointe for the year 1946, was submitted to the City Council at its last meeting on January 20. Among the interesting information on police activities which it contains are the following notations:

The total sick days for all of the members of the Department for the year were 47.

Woman Injured As Cars Crash

Edward E. Pritchard of 1221 Lakepointe, had just stopped his car on Kercheval near Balfour at 7:35 p. m. Tuesday when his car was struck in the rear by another car driven by Mrs. Anna Saunders of 1150 Balfour. Both cars were considerably damaged.
Mrs. Edith L. Lacy, aged 68, of 7810 Radford, the mother of Mrs. Saunders, sitting in the back seat of her daughter's car, received a severe bruise on her nose. She was treated at Dr. Usher's office and taken home.
You wished lots of folks a "Happy New Year." Are you giving it to them?

Police Question Suspicious Gang

Residents at 520 University place reported by phone to the City police the evening of February 2 that a suspicious car was parked in front of their house.
The police gathered in five boys from 17 to 20 years old. There were three in the car when the police arrived and the other two were wandering about a vacant lot across the street. Their explanation was that two of the boys had gotten out to answer a call of nature, but the two were so suspiciously near the Dower house at 521 the police were not entirely satisfied with the story.
The boys, all of whom were from Detroit, were taken to the station and their names and addresses taken. They were released but warned to keep out of Grosse Pointe at that hour of the night hereafter.

Library Friends Plan Discussion

The Discussion Group, sponsored by the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library, is looking forward with keen interest to the evening of February 12 when the Rev. Charles Scheid will present "The Case of Socialized Medicine," for discussion to the group.
Dr. Alfred Whittaker will plead the case against the subject while Mr. Edwin Owrid will speak for it. Mrs. Viola Hammond will discuss any alternate plans. Mrs. Mack Monroe will present the legislation that has been proposed up to the present time.
At a former meeting the group discussed the racial problems of today as they were presented in the book, "Color Blind" by Mr. Marion Kellogg.
The Book Review group, also sponsored by the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library, plans its next meeting for the evening of February 19 when Mrs. Samuel Shepard will discuss a book and Miss Florence Severs will review several current books of interest.
A new training program will start in the near future for leaders of the "Great Books Program." The Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library hope to send individuals to these classes so that in the future they will be able to enlarge the present group to two or more.
The membership of the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library is increasing daily.

Farms Police Car Hit In Minor Accident

One of the Farms police cars was slightly damaged in an accident on January 30. When Officer George Champagne was stopped at Warren and Mack waiting for traffic to clear, his car was bumped from the rear by one driven by Thomas N. North of St. Clair Shores.
Damage to the police car was estimated at $25 and to the North car at $40. North accepted the blame and agreed to pay.

Grosse Pointers captured many offices at the recent re-organizational meeting of the Yale Alumni Club, which took place in the University Club. Ernest H. H. Graf is president and George B. Hefferan is vice-president.
Serving on committees for the group will be Wendell W. Anderson, Hal H. Smith Jr., J. Burgess Book III, Charles Wright III, Howard Freeman Smith, Jr., James McEvoy Jr., James McMillan and Joseph G. Standart Jr.
Others include Dr. Fred T. Murphy, Alvan Macauley Jr., Gerald E. Miller, Reuben Waterman, Dr. Frank J. Sladen, Yates G. Smith, Frederick C. Ford, Kenneth L. Moore, Edwin K. Hoover, C. Thorne Murphy, Augustus C. Ledyard, Charles A. Parcells and Wendell C. Goddard.
Guest of honor at the dinner was Dean Norman S. Buck, headmaster at Bradford.

Woods Foresees Threat of Flood

The City of Detroit has a dumping ground in Macomb county four or five blocks beyond the north line of the Woods village and it has recently asked permission of St. Clair Shores to place three large steel barrels in Milk river over which a driveway can be constructed which would give access to its dumping ground.
At the Woods village council meeting on February 4 a protest was addressed to the St. Clair Shores authorities, the Macomb County Drain Commissioner and the City of Detroit. It is claimed by the Woods village that the three barrels will not be adequate to care for the water coming into Milk river in times of heavy rain and will result in flooding that part of the village.
The opinion was expressed by the commissioners that if more barrel capacity was provided this danger would be obviated.

Fair's Citation Made Permanent

Lt. Cdr. John Warren Fair, USNR, of 1182 Buckingham road, Grosse Pointe Park, husband of Mrs. Gloria W. Fair, has received a permanent citation for the Silver Star Medal from Secretary of the Navy James Forrester, for the President.
Lt. Cdr. Fair, currently serving with the Pacific Fleet, earned the award while pilot of a fighter plane in Fighting Squadron 80, attached to the USS Hancock, during operations against the Japanese forces in the Tokyo area.
During the war, citations were temporary, or incomplete, for security reasons.
Text of the citation is as follows:
"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity as pilot of a fighter plane in Fighting Squadron 80, attached to the USS Hancock, during operations against enemy apanese forces in the Tokyo Area on Feb. 16, 1945. Leading a division of planes in a fighter sweep against an enemy airfield, Lt. Cdr. (then Lt.) Fair pressed home repeated strafing runs against aircraft and installations in the face of intense antiaircraft fire, destroying one hostile plane on the ground. Attacking a numerically superior force of hostile planes during the action he engaged and shot down three and damaged another. His devotion to duty was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Murray W. Sales' Gift

The gift of the Murray W. Sales residence at E. Jefferson avenue and Lincoln road to the Grosse Pointe School District for a public library is a fine donation to the people of this community. It will answer a need that has long confronted the people here for an appropriate central library. Its prompt acceptance by the Board of Education will be heartily approved by the citizens.

The library coming in this manner however does not conform to its recent association in the public mind with a memorial to the men and women of the Pointe area who served in World War II.

It is understood to be the wish of the donor that it be a memorial to his deceased wife and obviously cannot be a memorial to both Mrs. Sales and to the fighting men, living and dead, who served their country in its greatest war.

The project of a suitable memorial to these men and women should not be neglected in the enthusiasm now felt for Mr. Sales' splendid gift. The situation now arisen merely accentuates some of the objections that were lodged against the library idea as a memorial when it was advanced long before Mr. Sales' gift was dreamed of.

It is to be sincerely hoped that the quest for a suitable memorial to the war heroes of the Pointe will go forward.

Striking Teachers

The proposal advanced by some of the 8,000 public school teachers in Detroit that a vote be taken to decide whether or not they shall strike is a strong local reminder that the so-called labor movement has gone far afield from its original conception.

Regardless of the merit or faults of the demands which these teachers have in mind, the naked fact stands out that a group of employes who receive their pay, not out of private industry but from the taxes forcibly paid by all of the citizens, intend to defy the governmental authority established by the free choice of all of the people.

The great fault in unionism is that it aims to divide the people into innumerable pressure groups, each straining for its individual ends with small regard for the general welfare.

However amenable to reason and justice the employing authority may be, whether acting as an agency of all of the people, or of private enterprise struggling with its own problems, the inherent fact remains that unionism, under its present free rein, still holds the power to cripple or even destroy an enterprise or a public system whose functioning may be vitally necessary to the common welfare.

In the case of the Detroit school teachers, while their present demands may be just and completely reasonable, it is known that they have freely criticized the methods and practices existing in the system of instruction existing there and as established by the School Authority. It is a vastly more aggravated example of the usurpation of authority than is the taking over of the functions of management in private enterprise by union leaders and subordinates, because it strikes directly at constituted public authority set up by all of the people and whose maintenance is of the very essence of democracy.

If the duly constituted agents of government can be defied at will by pressure groups, whether it be an association of college professors or a dog catchers' union, then government of the people and by the people falls.

Let us make clear again that this is no discussion of the grievances or demands of school teachers. They may be right in the current circumstance in Detroit; but it is inconceivable that any requests made by them cannot be patiently and sympathetically heard and adjusted but, by the established authorities and not at the dictation of union leaders.

One can imagine how long law and order would exist in a community, and life and property be protected, if the policemen and firemen of the municipality deserted their posts, and their service to the community is hardly a jot less important than the function of the school teacher entrusted with the mental training and, quite largely, with the moral upbringing of the next generation of citizens.

It is hoped by every serious minded person that this epidemic of strikes will not infect the ranks of the teaching profession.

The next in order would be for the clergymen to abandon their charges and, after that, curtains for our Christian civilization.

China Must Wait

After a year of active mediation and 35 years of intermittent efforts to compose warring factions in China, dating back to the establishment of the so-called Chinese Republic under Yuan Shi Kai in 1911, the United States has given up the idea as effort wasted, at least for the time being. General George C. Marshall, who knows better than any other American the insuperable difficulties surrounding the task after a year's heartbreaking effort to get somewhere in his altruistic mission, happens to be the present Secretary of State under whom this move was decided.

We are getting out, lock, stock and barrel. The problem of unification of that great mass of humans in a single workable political entity is to be treated, we are told, as a strictly internal problem to which the people of China themselves must find the answer, if indeed any is to be found within the lifetime of people now living.

This newspaper suggested this identical move more than two years ago. We mentioned then that until China gave evidence of being able to conduct herself according to the practices and procedure of civilized states, it was all political fool de rol to accept her as one of the five great powers of the world whose duty it must be to speak for and with all of the other nations of the world under the setup of the United Nations Organization. "Thirty days hath September, April, June and November" ... and just for a change, this is the way it was done in Muddy Ringland in 1562 ...

"Thirty days hath November, April, June and September, February hath XXVIII alone, And all the rest have XXXI."

In Pennsylvania, the Friends said:
"Fourth, eleventh, ninth and sixth, Thirty days to each affix; Every other thirty-one Except the second month alone."
If you don't like any of the above ... here's the old Latin classic:
"In March, July, October, May, The Ides are on the fifteenth day, The Nones the seventh; all other months besides Have two days less for Nones and Ides."

HOW TO INFLUENCE FRIENDS AND ENEMIES: WOMEN'S DEPT.

Nothing will endear you more to another woman than peering at her new frock and saying, "Oh I ALMOST bought that dress myself." Naturally the inference is that YOU didn't think it quite attractive enough. Your friend will love you for this.

Another female foible is to say ... "WHAT, THIS old rag?" ... when a woman friend tells you she likes the dress you're wearing. This implies, obviously, that YOU haven't any taste at all or you wouldn't admire "that old rag" ... as she calls it.

Remarks about health are always a good opening for getting on the right side of people. A woman, feeling in the pink of health, is always pleased with the person who meets her and says ... "Don't you feel well today Mary? You look kinda peeeked."

Then there is the woman, who when told she looks fine today, says ... "Funny you should say that. I've never felt worse." All these happy remarks tend to make you the kind of woman who is sought after ... but not by us!

The woman who makes "general" statements to anyone at large, is also a huge social success. She is the type who, even the KNOWING you stayed away from the lecture because you just don't like John Mason Brown ... will say in loud tones to all present ... "Well of course anyone who doesn't think John Mason Brown is out of this world ought to have her head examined." In the silence that follows ... she glances at you and says, "Of course I don't mean YOU, dear." You don't huh??

Another endearing soul is the creature who invites you to dinner ten days ahead of time, then when you arrive on the big night, apologizes for the poor dinner you will get by saying ... "I was rushing around down town all day and didn't get home in time to do much about it."

This is the same type who invites you to dinner and when you arrive tells you she thought it would be MUCH more fun to go to that cute little Hungarian place on Chestnut Street. After you get there, you realize that she meant Chestnut Street in Philadelphia.

While we're on this endless subject, we'd like to say a word for the little woman who 'explains' each guest to his or her dinner partner. She is usually overheard by the wrong person, but that doesn't stop her. She will say to a female guest, "Dear" (why do women always call each other dear?) ... "I hope you don't mind where I put you. You cope with things so well, you are the only person I could put between those two dullards." This is more often than not overheard by one or both wives of the 'dullards'.

Recently, we attended a large dinner party ... seated. In order to avoid confusion and delay, the hosts had made a small chart numbering the tables and designating each guest's place. As we were looking at it, a woman guest rushed up to it, poured over it until she found her name. Then she rushed away ... back to her little group and twittered gayly ... "I have two GOOD ones." She was referring to the gents placed on either side of her ... her lucky, lucky dinner partners!

THAT'S WHAT WE LIKE ABOUT WOMEN. NO INHIBITIONS AT ALL!

If Kate Smith (bless her) could hear what follows her (three mornings a week over our local station here) she'd probably get as big a laugh as we do. "At the end of her program, Ted Collins, her manager says ... "Listen in tomorrow when Kate Smith SPEAKS." Right on the heels of this announcement, one of those spot announcements advertising dog food comes on. It opens with a dog barking and a man saying "speak ... speak" ... and it's not a very good bark either.

OF CHILDREN AND DOGS:

We suspect Stephen Ernest of Lakeview, Grosse Pointe Farms, of having a humorous insight of human nature. During the showing of "Oklahoma" at the Cass, Ernest played "mean" host to six mother's at the musical. The only proviso being that the father's stay home and be baby sitters while the little lady went out stepping ... it's a good thing this wasn't reported to the baby sitters local No. 13X6972 ... But his latest Machiavellian touch appears in this issue of the Grosse Pointe News classified ad section. He is offering a puppy, ancestry unknown, to some puppy-love home. If this young beastie has inherited the same disposition during his stay with this whimsical Pointer then we know that the adopted household will be good for many laughs.

ADD MORE DOGS: We see by the papers, (and there was one famous American who claimed that was all he knew) that a wife was given a divorce because her mate insisted on having his boxer sleep in bed with them ... but the injustice of this decision was that the judge awarded the lady the custody of the boxer.

Last week at the Grosse Pointe Bank a future Henry Morgenthau was giving the teller instructions in banking and finance. This youngster had made a small savings deposit and before he was led away from the window by the insistent tugs of his mother he had instructed the bank that it was perfectly permissible for them to loan his money to other people, but to be sure and have it back when he wanted to buy that red wagon.

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club has made arrangement with the Arthur Murray Studio to give rhumba lessons ... we hope that it won't be necessary to paint footprints all over the floor like the studio shows in its ads for embryo "Madame Lazongas" and "Latin From Manhattan."

Dear Sir:
I would like you to know that I and a great many of my friends and acquaintances are very much in accord with the sentiments expressed in your editorial, "Juvenile Car Drivers," which appeared in the Grosse Pointe News on Thursday, January 23, 1947.

Why not send a copy of this editorial to our State Representative, State Senator, Governor, and any other state governmental officers who might be instrumental in correcting this very unsatisfactory situation. And if through your efforts you can succeed in effecting a change in this practice, you will deserve the gratitude of every thinking citizen.

Crossed Wires

Apparently the cards were all set Wednesday afternoon last week to boost the ceiling on rents, when an order came through at the last minute cancelling the directive which the Office of Temporary Control, the overlying authority for OPA, had already given for the hike.

President Truman's record on the hold the line policy has been quite clear. His explanation that he wanted Congress to take the responsibility has a strong political smell. A lift in rent ceiling would be welcome to a great army of landlords but offensive to a still greater group of tenants.

In this critical pre-election year Mr. Truman would much prefer to let the Republicans carry the ball.

He does, however, make one concession. In cases of distressed property owners, he is willing that special investigation be made and relief granted following the adjudication of individual cases.

What a delicious morsel of future employment by an army of civil servants, yet hanging onto their jobs by their eyebrows.

Reporter's Log Book

Did you notice the brown snow-sleet that covered the ground last week during the return of winter to the Pointe? According to the meteorologist it seems that the upper layers of the stratosphere were dust laden when the moisture-bearing Gulf frontal moved into this area it absorbed this dust in solution and as it fell to the earth, froze when it went through the colder Polar front that lay near the earth. The result gave the brown hued winter scene.

SIGN OF SPRING: In spite of the cold winds and deep snow blanket that covered the ground last week spring can't be very far off. The magazines have started their seed campaign with tempting lures of "Free Catalogues." We wonder if the publishers of these tomes realize that many Pointer's spent much of the week on the business end of a shovel extricating their buried cars.

THE POSTMAN RINGS TWICE: Senders of comic postcards have had their diposomur curtailed. The shortage of color and dye has limited the manufacture of these picturesque messages. Must be hard on the mail man without a bit to "laff" at on his daily route. And speaking of mail the suggestion has come up numerous times that it would be a public convenience to place a few mail boxes with a chute extension to permit mailing letters from your car without getting in and out, like they do in many sections of the country that are not as progressive as Grosse Pointe.

A Toll on Your Heart

By FRED M. KOPP, R.F.P.

Life takes an invisible toll on the most important organ of your body. This is the heart.

Symptoms of any such disorder must be checked by a physician. What you think is "heart trouble" may not be that at all.

It is worth a visit to your doctor to discover what these distress signals really mean. His diagnosis is both complete and sure. His treatment depends on what is really wrong.

Do not attempt to diagnose your own case. Take the time to get expert opinion. Make up your mind to accept the doctor's verdict and advice.

Saving Health and Life is his business. And if medication be required it is always available from a competent pharmacist. This is the 19th in a series of Editorial Advertisements appearing in this paper each week.

*Take back your emeralds, you louse
What I want is a little dream house.*
m. m.

It has always struck us as an intriguing piece of irony that the nation's most saccharine little heart thumper—"HOME SWEET HOME" was written by a bachelor. In his lilted longing for the Dream House, he seems to have been hypnotized by somewhat the same optical delusion that moved the hearts of the G. I.'s dreaming of the house that Jack was going to build and Jill would furnish.

Crudely enough, the answer to both the bachelor's and the service man's delusion is that distance lends enchantment—at a very high rate of interest. Once the house begins to be built, the jack runs out; and sometimes even the Jill runs out.

Some months ago, we made bold to suggest to The Editor that we make with the tripe-writer under the heading of THIS IS ON THE HOUSE. With editorial realism he pointed out that a) there was no house b) there was nothing to put in the house and c) there was nothing to have on the house. So we promptly gave up the idea of cracking a bottle of champagne on our pink cloud.

It might never have occurred to us again, were it not for the mental montage of recurring incidents last year. It had even survived, indeed, the perusal of Mr. Blanding's Dream-House-into-Nightmare.

But it came back to us in force when all these interlocking items made it once more obvious to us that the only thing us gals really want is what we can't get. Granted that there is only one more bitter disillusionment that not getting what one wants—and that is getting it, we still want to gamble.

The items proving our premise began when we were taking what seemed like a world tour on the main floor of America's largest department store—and whom we found ourself looking in the stocking department where only a few months ago there WAS no stocking department. Now placards were announcing Nylons, Pure Silks, British Listes—what will you have? But the unique angle is that there was not a customer in sight. There was a line—but the line has been reversed and now it was the salesgirls who were standing in line behind the counters with no one to disturb their dialogue.

The inescapable fact, of course, is that now that anybody can buy nylons, nobody wants them. We gals really enjoyed getting all those golden cards through the mail, shooting surreptitiously up to the fourteenth floor, presenting the card signed like a life annuity—thereupon receiving one pair of nylons (and perhaps a dividend) and emerging triumphant as a bootlegger's bride. One day, in fact, a gentleman started us so when he asked us in a shop if we wanted a pair of nylons that we thought he was trying to put us in a pent and repeat house. Our sense of sinful fatality sunk when we discovered he was a store official—but for that one fabulous moment we DID feel like Gipsy Rose Lee.

It was the same day as our nylon nirvana that we encountered Item Two. Item Two was when we met a Bride-to-be-or-not-to-be (depending on whether they could get a house) who was trousseaux shopping in case she got married. She was, in fact, being spalled into buying a mink coat. It was a $10,000 mink and she could have it for $3,000. She had the money but she wasn't having the mink. She was switching ecstatically to a new Paris Wraparound Coat, made on the lines of a life-guard's bathrobe. The price on the mink was just too low for high living.

Item Three we encountered in THE NEW YORK TIMES, when we found we could buy a cabochon emerald (at Marcus & Co.'s clearance via Gimbel's)—a cabochon emerald ring for $68 plus tax, which was practically a public donation.

Now, if nylons, minks, emeralds, British weaves and the silks of the Orient may be picked up for a song, it should certainly be a hit song with the gals. Why not? It's the woman who'll pay—if it's high enough because when it's hardest to get it's easiest to take—so help me! Would we kid you, kids?

And that's the irrational reason we are all once again shopping around for that still non-existent dream house, with something to put in the house, and something to have on the house. Now is the time to sell us the dream—and forget about the delivery date. By the time we get it, we'll want something else.

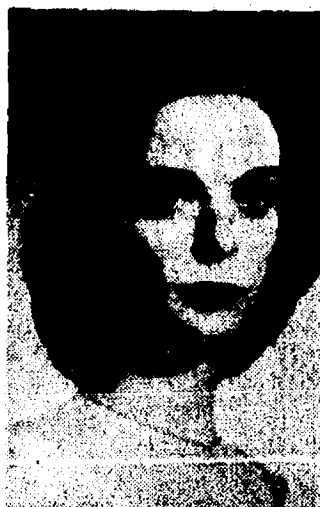

CRAPULOUS CORNER
We wake up screaming when we think of the chasm between generations as indicated by the gay goodbye of a bobby soxer to her great-grandmother shakily setting forth for Florida. "Have fun, Grandma!" waved the brat. And grandma didn't even tell her to shut her Sinatrap.

Top designers are ruling that spring costumes will come down to 13 inches from the ground—which can only interest a groundhog.

HIT-RUN DRIVER

A hit-run accident was reported to the Farms police on January 28 by C. R. Sutton of 412 Moran road. He said while his car was parked on Beaupre between McKinley and McMillan roads, someone had smashed a fender, causing damage of about $30.

Society News Gathered from All of the Pointes

From Another Pointe of View

by Jane Schermerhorn

On last Saturday's Wintery evening... the wedding of Doris Wolfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Wolfe of Harrisburg, Pa., and Frederick Dewey, son of Mrs. Franklin H. Dewey of Cranford lane...

Drew many Pointers to the Pennsylvania town and Grace Methodist Church where the ceremony was solemnized at a candlelight service at 7 o'clock...

White flowers were used throughout the church which was lit entirely by cathedral tapers...

The bride wore a gown of heavy antique ivory satin designed with fitted bodice and soft, round neckline... the bodice was buttoned down the back with detailed fastenings of pearl pulled through tiny satin loops...

Long, fitted sleeves ended in points over the wrists and a garland of self satin jaquonets outlined the gown's short peplum at the waistline...

The full skirt fell in a long, circular train and the bride's silk tulle veil extended from a crown of Duchesse lace...

Doris carried white orchids, stephanotis and gardenias arranged on an ermine muff...

ANTIQUE GOLD AND SILVER GRAY

Mrs. Robinson Stevens of Brookline, Mass. was her cousin's matron of honor while Mary Anne Dodge of Grosse Pointe was maid of honor...

The girls were gowned alike in antique gold crepe fashioned on pencil silhouette with bodices finished in shirred necklines and short sleeves...

The golden skirts boasted silver gray godets falling gracefully from the hip...

And completing the ensembles were colots of gold crepe and mauve orchids were cast on gold crepe muffs...

Mrs. Stevens and Mary Anne chose single strands of pearls as their only jewels...

SIX BRIDESMAIDS

The gowns of the bridesmaids were designed on the same lines as those worn by the honor attendants...

Theirs, however, reversed the tones the gown being of filagree silver crepe with antique gold godets and colots and muffs were of mauve with silver orchids...

Bridesmaids included:

The bridegroom's sister, Mary Anne Dewey... Mrs. John Crosby of New York City... Mrs. Robert M. Mumma, Susan Kreider and Jean Kearney, all of Harrisburg... and Beatrice Levison of New York City...

AND THE USHERS—

Francis Neville Moran (whose engagement to Mary Anne Dodge was told last week) was Mr. Dewey's best man...

And the guests were seated by: Edward L. Rohrback and John H. Wood of Grosse Pointe Robinson Stevens of Brookline, Mass., Peyton S. Hopkins of Washington, D. C. and Robert M. Mumma, William Tiffany and Robert Herre of Harrisburg...

MOTHERS' COSTUMES

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wolfe chose a night sky crepe gown; chic with front drapery and long, tight sleeves. The sweetheart neckline was outlined by deep purple orchids and she wore a blue and purple ostrich chapeau...

Bag and gloves were of night sky satin, with an orchid caught to the bag...

Mrs. Dewey was smart in dusty pink wool crepe trimmed in sequins and gold beads... her matching pink ostrich-trimmed toque and white orchids completed her costume...

TO MAKE HOME IN POINTE

Wedding guests attended a reception and dinner at the Penn-Harris Hotel...

Following the church ceremony... After a Florida wedding trip the Deweys will live in the Pointe...

And among the Pointe guests... who returned on Monday from the wedding were:

Saks-5th Shows Sophie Millinery

Custom order design, detail and workmanship at ready-to-wear prices make the new Sophie millinery collection at Saks Fifth Avenue big news in the spring millinery picture.

The inaugural collection was previewed by the press in the special Sophie millinery work and show rooms. Feeling that there was a need for ready-to-wear millinery that would have the exclusivity of custom-order hats without the necessarily higher prices, Saks new project will reproduce Sophie millinery designs in limited quantities for its own stores in New York, Chicago, Beverly Hills, California, Detroit and Miami. Later the collection will be available in other fine specialty shops across the country, many of which already have the Sophie Original apparel.

(Saks own ready-to-wear also made in Saks workrooms.) Sophie hats are designed to complement closely the Sophie Original spring clothes and will become known, like the clothes, for the special attention to detail and fine workmanship.

Too little ambition can be as selfish as too much.

St. Paul Clock-Wise By The Timely Scholar

BETTY SHERIDAN'S novel idea of a "get acquainted" party before the dance was proclaimed a huge success by everyone.

JOANNE ATHANSON played hostess to six of her very best friends with a dinner at the Lochmoor Club.

Cocktails, as well as hors d'oeuvres and shrimp were served to the group that gathered at JEANNE KULKA'S Kenwood court home.

The CURRAN home on Iroquois avenue was the scene of another "before the dance" snack party.

Pictures, to be tucked away in memory books, were snapped of the invitees including Sally's date, Ray Rochelle, Joan Weidman and George Saad.

A spirit of youthfulness and gaiety prevailed at the St. Paul SENIOR PROM on January 31.

The beautiful Lochmoor lounge was also crammed full of funsters throughout the entire evening.

Soft, flowing formal and the fragrance of the corsages added an extra note of intimacy to the affair.

After the prom, RALPH SCHNEIDER opened wide the doors of his home in Grosse Pointe Shores in the form of an open house.

Still another group of kids met at the Lake Shore road home of Doris Schultz.

another who laid out the "welcome mat" to her many friends. Bill Ernie squired Marty.

A centerpiece of red and white roses and corresponding colored streamers adorned the table at JOAN KRAUSMANN'S gathering.

Gathering 'round to compliment the hostess on her ingenious centerpiece were Lea Schoeniff and Joanne Krehnick.

The basketball game between St. Paul's and St. Bernard on Sunday night was urged on by the lusty cheers from the tremendous crowd.

The St. Paul and Annunciation game on January 24 was witnessed by a huge crowd.

Five freshmen girls took advantage of the semester holiday by trekking downtown for the afternoon.

The walls of the party room were decorated with red and white balloons and streamers.

JUDY HENNEKE'S home in Merriweather road was the scene of much activity on January 25.

The YOUTH CLUB DANCE which followed the basketball game was attended by many of the game fans.

NORNI SCHAEFER'S home was the scene of much merriment and laughter on January 25.

The guests who joined in on the fun were Shirley Allard, Chuck Chielens, Mary Lou Gouin.

A and P Expands Advertising List

An experimental plan of placing company advertising in at least one newspaper in every city or town in which it has a store.

The advertising, entitled "Marketing with Marjorie," is newsy and chatty in form and will appear every other week in more than 900 papers throughout the country.

Some of the copy of this new type advertising will describe the quality of the products and other ads will give hints on how to use these foods to make more tempting and tastier dishes.

Up to now, retail food advertising has been devoted, for the most part, to listing the prices of various foods.

"When you sit in on a conference, stand out for what's right."
