New Laboratory Opened at Bon Secours

Money donated by Pointers during a drive conducted last fall, has enabled Bon Secours Hospital in Cadieux road to completely equip a modern new laboratory, add five more beds in two new rooms on the first floor and install a completely new kitchenette on the second floor. One of the new rooms was furnished by the Bon Secours Hospital Guild and the other by the Grosse Pointe Lions Club.

Our Solemn Duty

As a fitting accompaniment of the campaign which is now being carried on to raise funds to build a memorial to the Pointe heroes of World War II, the News prints the beautiful invocation given by the Rev. James Daniel Clark, O.S.A., of St. Clare de Montefalco Church, at the Memorial Day exercises at the temporary shrine on the high school campus last Sunday noon.

All around the world taps are echoing softly in global Memorial Day tribute to our Heroes of War. The taps are mingled with reverent prayer in far-flung cemeteries—at Anzio Beach, on the white African shore, on a green hillside in Britain, in tiny Luxembourg, at tropic Iwo Jima, at Bataan and Leyte in the Philippines and at other memorial spots too numerous to mention.

Pericles, the great orator and statesman of Athens, when asked to speak of the first Athenians who fell in the Peloponnesian War, confessed that he doubted the wisdom of any speech at such a time and declared that when man's deeds have been great, they should be honored in deed only.

Today we are one in mind with the great orator of Greece when we consider the great deeds of valor which our American Heroes have achieved. The graves of our brave dead tell a story of devotion to justice and freedom, which surpasses the power of language.

We invoke the blessing of Almighty God on these gallant martyrs baptised in their own blood and on material possessions and spiritual values which their sacrifice preserved for us.

Ours is the solemn obligation to keep faith with them and be loyal in our personal lives to the ideals and freedom for which they gave their all.

Those who died in battle would have asked for nothing more. Their one hope was that you and I would enjoy what they had left behind.

It is our solemn duty to perfect and preserve our priceless, sacred heritage to the end.

Thus shall we be living Monuments to our gallant Heroes who died that we might live.

O Lord, help us to safeguard the peace of the world—Where there is hatred, let us plant love . . . Where there is darkness, let us bring light . . .

Divine Master, grant that we may not so much seek to be consoled, as to console; to be understood, as to understand; to be loved, as to love. For it is in giving that we receive. It is in pardoning, that we are pardoned. And it is in dying that we are born to eternal life.

Phelps Foundation Donates $3000 to Pointe's Memorial

Among the very first donations to the Grosse Pointe Memorial Library Fund, was one with a special significance, announced at a meeting of the Special Gifts committee last Friday night in the William Lyon Phelps Foundation. The William Lyon Phelps Foundation has contributed $3000. "Billy" Phelps, Lampson professor of literature at Yale, was one of the most beloved professors in the history of the university. He spent his life teaching others to love books as he did. Professor Phelps maintained a summer home at Bad Axe, Mich., and every year he visited the Pointe and delivered a sermon

Pointe Tired Of Bumps On E. Jefferson

Piffing Repairs Made by Road Commission Most Inadequate

Grosse Pointe citizens who have occasion to use Jefferson avenue daily in going to and from their work in Detroit are far from satisfied with the piffing repairs that the County Road Commission made this spring.

They are increasingly asking why it is that a community which probably pays a larger per capita county tax than any other in the whole Detroit metropolitan district, gets so little in return from the county. It is true the county has been widening Mack avenue but the question is asked why, if so much money can be spent on widening the back door entrance into Grosse Pointe, a much smaller sum should not be spent to improve its front entrance on Jefferson.

The old standby excuse for not improving Jefferson avenue has been that the County intends to greatly widen that thoroughfare in the near future and until this is done there is no justification for laying a new pavement.

The original plan was to make a 204 foot wide street of Jefferson. Later the widening operation was planned on a 120 foot scale. To do even this would entail a vast expenditure in condemnation and the destruction of tree life that has taken generations to grow.

Jefferson avenue as now exists is a decently wide street. It is about 80 feet wide from curb to curb, or the equivalent of a four lane highway. Most Grosse Pointers feel that this is wide enough to serve the highway needs of the Pointe within any appreciable range of time. The Macomb county line crosses a short distance beyond Verrier road. There is no prospect of any major industrial development beyond this point which would greatly increase population and consequent traffic at any place within the Pointe or to the northeast.

The people of the Pointe would greatly prefer that the limits of Jefferson avenue should remain as they are and that this road area be quickly improved with a smooth, durable surface.

The season repairs that are made on it do little more than temporarily fill up the worst holes, and travel on it at all times is somewhat like driving over a corduroy road.

Grosse Pointers are well fed-up with the perpetual condition of their main thoroughfare. Several months ago the Board of Commissioners of the Park village passed a resolution calling on the County Road Commissioners to provide the street with at least a complete new surface if an entire new roadbed from foundations up could not be laid at this time. No answer to this has been received from the Road Commission.

Whether the condition of Jefferson avenue remains as it is because of the cynical indifference of the County authorities to Grosse Pointe's wishes or because of failure of the local authorities of the five Pointe communities to get together in united action is not clear, it is probably a mixture of both.

While this part of Jefferson avenue which calls for attention lies in the Park and the City, its condition is a matter of concern to all of the citizens of the Pointe who use it daily.

The class of citizens who have made Grosse Pointe their permanent home should be able to muster enough influence with the county authorities to get action. It seems to be another instance of a project of community-wide concern suffering from too great concentration on matters of purely village interest.

ARGUMENT SETTLED

An argument that started in the Toddle House at 2:50 o'clock on Thursday morning, May 27, resulted in a fight and the calling of the police. When the police arrived the fight was over, the customer did not want to pay his bill. The police had no difficulty in persuading the reluctant customer that it would be good form to pay his bill and depart in peace.

Memorial Library Will Honor Heroes And Serve Pointers

Drive Gives Community Chance to Pay Honor to Dead and Living While Also providing Answer to Great Need

By FLORENCE SEEVERS
 Grosse Pointe Librarian

The plans for a Grosse Pointe War Memorial Library are the realization of hopes for a building which will serve not only as a beautiful memorial, but also as a library in the form of a true community center. Now is our chance to make an investment which is certain to pay dividends in the development of better citizens, and a richer and fuller life.

Other cities in the Detroit metropolitan area, such as Birmingham and Highland Park, have long had spacious and beautiful library buildings. It is regrettable that Grosse Pointe, which is otherwise such an ideal place in which to live, should be the only place of its size and wealth which has no central public library. A brief account of the services which will be provided in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Library is given here, so that the need for a central library building may be better understood:

Helping to develop the child into an adult, adequate and well-trained to meet the duties and responsibilities of citizenship, is one of the library's foremost aims. The Grosse Pointe Public Library works in close co-operation with the schools at all times. 3,745 children below the ninth grade borrowed 59,702 books last year. 8,847 children from public, private and parochial schools came in class groups with teachers, for instruction and help in learning how to use books supplementary to their school work.

The new library will provide a beautiful room where children may come singly or in groups, where story hours, book talks and music appreciation periods may be held. Pre-school children will have a place in this room especially designed for them, as will the older boys and girls.

Long handicapped by an inadequate collection of books, magazines and reference material, the service given the public by the library has been surprisingly efficient when one realizes the difficulties under which the American Library Association recommends two books per capita as the minimum essential for adequate library service. Judged by these standards Grosse Pointe should now have 80,000 books.

The current collection of 33,000 books is not only far below standard, but crowds the present housing capacity to its limits. The architect's plan for the new Grosse Pointe War Memorial Library includes four floors of fire-proof stacks, which together with the books shelved in the various rooms will provide space for at least 90,000 books.

Goodrow Named To Clerk's Post

Judge Don Goodrow has been named acting clerk of Grosse Pointe Township by the township board to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden death of Clerk Henry Levers last week. At the same meeting, which was held on Wednesday night, May 26, the board named Attorney John L. Potter to fill Judge Goodrow's place on the township bench.

Shores Policeman Stabbed In Argument in Restaurant

Patrolman George LaForest, of the Grosse Pointe Shores police, who was stabbed at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, May 30, in John's Restaurant at 24300 Jefferson avenue, St. Clair Shores, when he remonstrated with a couple of southern boys who had been drinking, has already been returned to his home from the Bon Secours hospital.

He was not stabbed in the stomach as first reported but under one of his ribs in a less serious location.

LaForest and his wife had stopped in the restaurant for a sandwich and the Weiss brothers, Albert, 23, and Fritz, 21, were in the place, drunk and making themselves generally objectionable to the patrons. They resented the officer's rebuke and Albert stabbed him with a three bladed pocket knife with a blade 2 1/2 inches long.

The St. Clair police immediately struck a road block about the Shores and Lieutenant Charles Perkins of the St. Clair Shores police, got both of them at the Kline boat harbor next door at 5 a.m. where they had been skulking for four hours, hiding under an overturned boat.

The two Weiss brothers were recent arrivals, having come here about May 1 from Williamson, W. Va. They had been working in automobile plants since coming here. They are now both in the Macomb county jail charged with felonious assault.

Pointe's War Memorial Drive Starts

Residents Asked to Contribute $525,000 to Build Library

After weeks of intensive preparation which followed months and even years of background work and study, Grosse Pointe's War Memorial Library organization swung into the actual fund-raising campaign Tuesday morning. A minimum sum of $525,000 is being asked of Pointe residents to erect a beautiful memorial library and community center at Kercheval avenue and Fisher road in tribute to the 113 Pointe men who gave their lives and the more than 3,600 others who served in World War II.

The concentrated campaign will last through June 15. It is the hope of all connected with the drive that much more than the minimum amount asked will be donated, so that the community may build a memorial that will fittingly acknowledge the sacrifice its heroes made and also be commensurate with the ability of the residents to provide.

A system has been set up to make contributions as convenient as possible. Donors are offered a three year plan to pay their pledges, which should make it easier to obtain a great number of substantial contributions.

Every section of the Pointe community has been highly organized and canvassers are expected to reach every home in the area. Anyone not directly contacted is asked to make a contribution at campaign headquarters, 16840 Kercheval avenue.

With the drive just getting underway following the long holiday weekend, no reports have been submitted as yet. The special gifts committee, with about 70 workers, has been making contacts among the Pointe's wealthier families. A second meeting of this group was held Wednesday night in the Grosse Pointe Club, the first having been held last Friday night.

A total of 700 working kits have been distributed to the volunteers who are doing the collecting. In addition the schools are taking an active part in the campaign with their own organizations. Various club groups are also conducting their own drives for the fund.

Find Mistakes In Honor Roll

Three Corrections Made After Publication of List of War Dead

Three mistakes in the Grosse Pointe Honor Roll Association's list of those who gave their lives in World War II were noted during the last week and are here-with corrected.

The name of Donald Boughton Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin H. Morgan of 1618 Oxford road, was included on the Honor Roll after it had been erroneously reported by a high school publication. Morgan is a veteran, but was not a casualty.

The name of Gordon Stanley Cochran, Jr., son of the former Detroit Tigers baseball manager and Mrs. Gertrude, of 440 University place, had not been included on the list. The Cochranes had bought property in the Pointe at the time of his death, but had not yet taken up residence here. His name has been added to the list of dead, which remains at 113.

The name of James Joseph Mehan, Jr., of 460 Moran road, was misspelled on the Honor Roll list, as Meham. This correction has also been officially made.

MOTORCYCLIST BITTEN

Jay Beckenhauer, 13, of 15725 Windmill Pointe drive was bitten on the calf of his right leg by a dog May 25, while riding his motorcycle on Essex. It was a puncture wound Mrs. Charles Jacobsen, of 809 Berkshire, reported that the dog belonged to their household. A ticket was issued returnable on June 15.

Demolishes Car Crashing Tree

Al Alfchieny, the well known Pointe cabmaster, whom the Pointe police say has enough traffic offenses chalked up against him to legally keep him away from the wheel of a car for the next five years, met another rebuff at the hands of Judge Thomas Murphy and Judge Clyde Webster last week.

On Friday morning, May 28, Chief Louwers was called on the phone by a Mrs. James W. Forbes of 13114 Steel avenue, Detroit. Mrs. Forbes had known of the experience of Mrs. Davis and as she had an appointment with a blanket salesman for that afternoon, which smelled of much the same odor as the Grosse Pointe near deal, she thought it best to notify Chief Louwers.

Two men were reported by neighbors in the vicinity of Charlevoix and Whittier in the afternoon of May 17, who were having a desperate time trying to start their car. Both were helplessly drunk. The police took both car and men to the police station where the car was held and the men sent home after a recuperative rest period.

HELEN MASON, 1220 Whittier, has been chosen to membership in Sigma, freshman honorary society at Lawrence college, honoring coeds who have attained an academic average of 2.4 or better on the basis of 3.00. Members of the society are chosen by Mortar Board, the national senior honor group.

Parents Ask Help of Police To Quell Cracker Shooters

The firecracker nuisance seems to have gotten out of even parental control. Two fathers were noted on the police dockets last week as having called for police help.

The other morning Farmer William Moir, of the Farms Market reported to the City police that some boys were shooting off firecrackers in the doorway of the store. When the police arrived the boys were gone but they noticed some young fellows on the High School grounds who looked as if they might have had a recent speaking acquaintance with the crackers.

Fire Cracker Shooters Get Last Warning

Prosecutions Promised for All Caught Violating State and Local Laws

A student was injured at the high school after Chief Walter Hoyt had announced that prosecutions may be expected in all cases involving firecrackers. The injured student, Remy Gamble, 13, of 425 Washington road, was hurt when a firecracker exploded in his hand.

Following a conference between Chief Hoyt and Charles Saltzer, assistant principal at the high school, it was announced that copies of the state statute on firecrackers would be posted on the school bulletin boards. Future firecracker shooters would be prosecuted, it was stated.

Contractors Report Building Site Theft

The theft of building materials from construction sites in the Farms has been reported to the police. The builder of a new home at 41 Radnor Circle, said someone had been stealing face brick, 40-50 of them at a time.

SPECIAL WATCH ASKED Patrick Walsh, of the contracting firm putting up the new terrace at the corner of Jefferson and Cadieux, reported to the police on May 29 that someone had stolen two red lanterns and broken several sewer crocks on the premises. He asked the police to keep a special watch on the place during construction.

Pointe Theater Group to Give Tarkington Play

When on the nights of June 25, 26 or 27th the people of Grosse Pointe go to the Pointe High School Auditorium to see the first play of their own new community theatre, they will be pleasantly shocked. The Grosse Pointe Theatre has chosen "Clarence" by Booth Tarkington for its first production.

In this choice the theatre has done something as unexpected as if someone were to throw a bucket full of mud in the middle of an atomic reactor. Because "Clarence" is so very funny and reassuringly normal, it has great commensurate value to the night theater of whom that is current in today's headlines.

It should be a most startling relief to people to be able to spend our whole evening in which their minds are never once turned to horror, horror or the night specter of being "Clarence" ran, accomplish. His face as a plot is a surprise package with nothing obviously being inside it. The play is one long scene, inside a trailer. There are no villainous plots, there are no heroic characters who take an oath to their relatives. There is no deep and dark struggle between the lines.

The cast of "Clarence" as it will be presented by the Grosse Pointe Theatre is the community's most familiar. Now heard as works is rehearsed, the cast includes in order of appearance as Miss Mary, Joan D. Peck as "Mrs. Wheeler", Mrs. Joan D. Peck as "Mrs. Wheeler", Miss Shirley Taylor as "Cora", Miss Marion Seaver as "Trislet", Miss Glen Warren as "Clarence", Miss Joan McClure as "Della", Miss Mary Stapleton as "Off-stage Voice" and feminine understudy, Dallas Chapin as "Dimwiddle" and Mr. Mitchell Justice as "Hubert Stem."

From Joe To You

Although Bill Anderson is Grosse Pointe High's fastest runner, he is not faster than Mother Nature. While he was running last Thursday he fell a sharp pain on his foot and when he looked down there was a bee on his instep, stinging him.

During the tennis regional held at Grosse Pointe Friday, all of the classes it school wanted to watch. One English class made out a petition which read "We the undersigned want to watch the tennis regional." The entire class signed it and put it on their teacher's desk. When the teacher came in he read the petition and signed his name to it.

Deportation Ordered In Holdup Case

Canadian Who Robbed Pointe Drug Gets Off With Light Sentence

Charles McGuire, of Erieh, Ont., who distinguished himself on the night of last February 24 by holding up the Grosse Pointe Drug store at the point of a pistol and robbing the cashier of a considerable sum of money, pled guilty in Circuit Court on May 27 to "robbery while armed," a vice distinction from "armed robbery."

McGuire claimed that he did not actually point his pistol at the cashier. She said he did but the evidence was not conclusive. There was no doubt about the pistol as that was taken from him.

The prosecution has accepted the former plea which will clear the way for his early deportation rather than paying for his keep for a term of years at the State's expense.

The robbery of the drug store was a large consideration in his journey to the States that night. He originally came over to rob a woman on Lake Shore whom he had read about in the newspapers as having recently received a large sum of money from a husband from whom she was just divorced. He thought it was a chance for a quick pickup of ready cash of which he stood in immediate need. The appearance of an able bodied man at the door of Lake Shore caused him to change his mind quickly.

He came over in this side for the purpose of robbery and the fellow can congratulate himself that the court and police over there took such a lenient view of his case. In his favor was the fact that there had been nothing against his record up to that time.

The police say that he had been left $35,000 by his father and his quick dissipation of this little fortune started him on the hunt for more money via the quick route.

Ignorer of Sign Rams Two Cars

The intersection of Ridge and Murr roads was the scene of an automobile accident at 8:20 p. m. on May 25.

Charles Reno of 158 Murr, driving his Dodge south on Murr, failed to heed the stop sign at Ridge and crashed into a Chevrolet being driven east on Ridge by Thomas Parrish of 296 Hillcrest road. The Reno car then proceeded across Ridge and ran into a Dodge owned by Frank Joseph Gosser and parked in front of 157 Murr.

Damage to the Parrish car was estimated at $30. Reno's suffered to the extent of $20 and Gosser's car be fixed for about $700. The Farms police say Reno received a reckless driving ticket.

One Hurt As Cars Collide On Mack

The driver was injured and damage estimated at $450 was done in an accident on Mack avenue at Morrow at 8 p. m. on May 27.

Harold G. Marr of 2065 Morrish was driving his Pontiac east on Mack when he struck a Buick driven by Walter E. King of 1177 McDemmon. Driver King had stopped waiting for traffic to clear as he drove thru north and Morrow.

The Buick was damaged to the extent of $200 and the Pontiac taken to Cottage Hospital where seven stitches were required to close two cuts on the head. He was given a minor traffic ticket.

The King car was damaged to the extent of $150.

SPIDER SPOTTED. The license number of a Ford which was reported in Fremont, Mich. on May 24 was found near the Farms police station as being stolen.

After prayers and a short address by the rector of Mariners' Church, the color guard, the Mariner Scouts, and the clergy formed a procession and proceeded to the foot of Bates street. The congregation followed.

Ten men in uniform, the Mariner Scouts and the rector then boarded a tug boat owned by Mr. Harry Becker of the Propeller Club, Port of Detroit.

At the international line the traditional ceremony of scattering flowers on the water in memory of those who died at sea took place. Three salutes were fired during the strewing of the flowers. The program ended with Taps, a closing prayer and Benediction.

Thug With Southern Accent Gets $85 From Park Woman

Mrs. Thelma Sigsworth, of 766 Berkshire, returning to her home at a late hour on the morning of May 29, had just put her car in the garage and was turning towards the house when a man grabbed her and backed her towards the garage door. At the same time he struck her across the mouth with a shining instrument of some sort and warned her to "keep quiet, this is a hold-up."

He took her purse from her and ran to a dark colored car that was parked south of the house. He drove towards Westchester.

The only description that Mrs. Sigsworth could give of him, was that he was apparently a full six feet tall, of slim build, wore a dark suit and spoke with a decided southern accent. She noted two fog lights burning on the car.

Her bag was of beige suede with brown leather trim. It contained $85. The police have small clues to work on. They have given the best description obtainable of man and car to the Detroit police.

Promiscuous throwing of fire crackers by boys on Fisher on May 26 resulted in the burning of a hole in the awning in front of the Paul Gach studio at 345 Fisher.

Fugitives Nabbed By Pointe Police

The Maumee police station received a broadcast at 4:50 a. m. on May 31, from WRDR saying that word had been received from the Detroit police that their men were chasing a red Pontiac car out Jefferson avenue. It was suspected of either having figured in a hit-run accident or making a hurried getaway from a burglary.

The local police were radioed and Officer Teetaert and Ostwedder picked up the fugitive at Jefferson and Cadieux.

The driver of the car was ducked as Orvin Loftus, aged 21, of 1116 Concord, Detroit, and his rider as Billy J. Martin, aged 23, of 445 Concord. They were taken to the Maumee station and turned over later to the Detroit Fifth Precinct for investigation.

Fall From Car Injures Infant

James Beeler, a colored youth in his late teens who lives in Detroit, went into the Maumee police station at 11 o'clock in the morning on May 29 and asked for directions to a hospital.

He said that while driving on Kensington north of Mack with his two-year old brother and their mother the boy had fallen out of the car and struck his head on the pavement. He was afraid he was seriously hurt.

Detective Flannagan escorted him and the injured child to the Bon Secours Hospital and reported the case to the Detroit Accident Prevention Bureau. The hospital reported the child was examined but was not admitted. He was sent home to be treated by the family physician.

RETURN TRIP PLANNED?

The milk chute was used to gain entrance to the home of James Whitehead of 67 Muskoka road on May 26, he informed the Farms police. All the house keys were stolen, but there was no damage done, nor anything else taken from the house, he said.

A Veteran's Room

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that the primary object of the campaign now under way is to raise the money with which to erect a memorial to the sons of Grosse Pointe who gave their lives in the Second World War and to those who served in the combat forces.

The library, needed and useful as it will be, is only the medium through which this community will express its love and gratitude to its sons who died and to those who served and survived. Within the building will be enshrined their names. Their children, their grandchildren and their great grandchildren for countless generations to come will point with solemn pride to the mute evidence of their high service.

It is to be hoped that before the final plans for the library are completed provision will be made in it for some suitable room which the veterans can call their own. This is not that the general public should be excluded from such a room but rather that it should be one which the veterans would feel had been planned peculiarly for them.

If a special war library with maps and literature associated with the war is to be provided, it would be appropriate that this department of the library should be housed there. It should be a beautiful room, with easy chairs, a large fireplace and every convenience and facility provided for the comfort and enjoyment of the men the library is built to honor.

Another purpose such a room would serve would be to provide wall space for the portraits of the men who gave their lives. It is almost inevitable that such portraits will eventually find a place in this building, if not at its first completion then at some not too distant date. It would also be the natural repository for all veterans' records.

When the departmental division of the library is finally decided upon a Veterans' Room should be an early must in such planning.

Two Years of Peace

The people of Metropolitan Detroit, and for that matter of the whole country, are breathing easier with the settlement of the Chrysler strike and the heading off of the still greater one threatened in General Motors.

Regardless of the route to settlement pursued, the residents of Detroit who are so dependent economically on the steady operation of two of its greatest industries are reasonably assured of two years of peace in its greatest single industrial field.

Chrysler has settled on a straight wage increase basis that runs until August 1, 1950, marred only by the possibility of a readjustment right after June 19, 1949.

General Motors' settlement, which was for 11c per hour increase on hourly wage pay, or 2c lower than Chrysler, gears the pay to living costs, which invites a review periodically during the two years' run. This unfolds a vista of interminable differences and wranglings over what real living costs may be. With the union's facility for questioning living cost statistics, even those issued from Government sources, the prospects for lively arguments are more apparent in the GM case than in Chrysler.

But sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof and everybody breathes a sigh of relief and thankfulness for two years of apparent peace in the auto industry, and everyone is thankful the workmen have been lifted to a nearer level with living costs which plague all alike.

MacArthur's Decision

General MacArthur has added to the already high esteem in which he is held by his fellow Americans by his declination of the invitation of the Senate Committee to come home and give his opinions on our Far Eastern foreign relations.

He frankly says that if he should return to the United States at this time it would be branded as carrying certain political implications which he wishes to avoid. He is unquestionably right and his decision will be approved by his real friends.

When he consented to the appearance of his name in the Wisconsin primaries he only did what countless other Americans would have done. We have no means of knowing but that he was overpersuaded by zealous friends to consent against his own better judgment. Neither do we know that his final decision would have been as it is if the primaries in his home state had been more encouraging.

The general belief in this country is that General MacArthur has done a remarkable job in winning the apparent cooperation of a recent enemy, but the measure of his success in that field is not a dependable gauge of the success that would have attended his efforts if he was suddenly translated into the hurly burly and infinitely complicated field of domestic administration and of the politics which even a President must play.

In Japan he had the great advantage of holding autocratic power, with nothing to consult but his own experienced judgement. In the White House he would have had to deal with a Congress which he must both lead and follow. It would have been a role conflicting at myriad points with the highly professional field in which he has worked, and with his own personal characteristics and training.

No Local Flood Menace

The slow flow-off surface water and the sluggish sewer drainage has been a perennial complaint with residents of this lower Michigan country for years. It has added greatly to the cost of sewage disposal and of drainage in general.

The news about the flood horrors of the raging Columbia in recent days should cause us to revise our judgment. No conceivable fall of water or broken dams in this region could actually threaten our lives. The broad bosom of the

Grosse Exaggerations

A. PRYOR

For the common man, the best memorial is some beneficent thing or function that shall bear his name.
(Charles T. Copeland)

A very circumspect and proper mother of a sixteen year old boy, learned something new about the "coke and potato chip" set last week when her son entertained at home for some fifty teen-agers. What she learned was that the "boys" wear ready-made bow ties with their dinner coats. The way she learned it was peering over the balustrade at the party in full swing . . . and finding her otherwise immaculate offspring tripping the light fantastic with his tie hanging limply down over his shirt.

It would seem that junior (sporting his first dinner coat), had forgotten to buy a snap on tie . . . so at the last minute, had to borrow his older brother's black tie which was so old fashioned, it had to be TIED. Junior, who can tie any Marine knot without batting an eye, batted zero when it came to tying the black tie . . . so big brother tied it for him before going out for the evening. Sometime during the party after the young got feeling gay on three or four coke pieces, they began snapping each other's ties . . . but when they snapped junior's, it just came undone and not one of the fifty guests knew how to tie it! What do kids learn in school anyway???

Two very red faces in the Pointe this week belong to Mr. and Mrs. Whozydo . . . on account of an evening bag. Just about a year ago, they invited a couple to their house for dinner (among several other guests) . . . and the lady-half of the couple found when she returned home, that her evening bag was missing. She telephoned her hosts, who assured her the bag was nowhere in sight. The woman immediately reported the loss to her insurance company and in due time, received a check for the value of the lost bag.

One evening last week, the lady-of-the-lost-bag was again invited to the Whozydos' home for dinner. During the coffee routine she sat on one of the divans with a male guest. Of a sudden, the little man (who was absent-mindedly poking around in the cushions as he talked), pulled a handsome evening bag out from under one of the cushions and asked his companion if it was hers. Yes, it WAS hers. The very same bag she had lost a year before, after having been at the Whozydos' for dinner!!! Well, there ain't no law that sez you HAVE to do your spring cleaning at least once a year!

Young Mary Tiedeman (whose lovely picture in a recent Sunday daily made us wish we were young again and could ballet dance), appeared on an early morning program with Warren Kelly last week. She was SO good, we wouldn't be surprised if some scout tried to snap her up for radio work. She displayed the poise of a veteran actress and her speaking voice is velvet . . . without the fog.

Another sign of Spring . . . those corny looking salt and pepper shakers pictured in all the magazine ads. The replicas of hot dogs are still with us (ouch) . . . but newer and more fantastic models have been added. Among those we've seen too often lately are: a chicken and its accompanying egg! Little Dutch children, miniature hurricane lamps, billiard balls and small Eiffel Towers. No one seems yet to have thought of those South American Indian shrunken heads . . . but they WILL . . . never fear!

The woman who told us the following said she didn't expect anyone to believe it but she assures us it is only too true. Her parlor maid (a long-time fixture in the family) has many of the attributes of that beloved character "Hazel" of Satevepost fame. In fact, many of her friends unconsciously call the maid "Hazel" . . . so we shall do the same here. To explain her further, Hazel has so integrated herself into the family's life that she makes comments frequently to the guests about one thing and another . . . especially concerning their diets. For example, if a stouthead guest passes up the potatoes when Hazel is serving dinner . . . she is apt to say, "Oh! go on, have some. You're not too fat!"

The family have been laughing these things off for years and hoping their friends were doing the same. However, our harrassed housewife thinks that the last incident of Hazel has brought things to a pretty pass. One evening last week, Madame was knocking herself out to have a particularly perfect dinner and evening to impress a business "contact" of her husband's . . . an out-of-town gent who had neither seen nor heard of "Hazel" until the night he came for dinner. Everything went smooth as oil . . . excellent dinner, excellent conversation, (no cracks from Hazel who had been forewarned), and excellent coffee which they settled down to in the living room.

At about 10:00 p.m., in came Hazel to remove the coffee tray. Everyone happened to look up (as people are apt to do when someone enters a room) . . . and there bustled Hazel about the room cleaning up ash trays and gathing up coffee cups. Her person was intact . . . from the neck down, but her head was covered with at least 25 metal curlers which peeped from under a hair net!! Obviously she had been preparing for bed when she remembered to collect the coffee tray . . . and saw no reason to "take her hair down." Her employers are only slightly grateful to the Gods that Hazel hadn't gotten as far as her nightgown before she came in sight.

THE KIND OF WOMEN WE DON'T LIKE:

When we have been torturing ourselves sitting in the sun for hours trying to sneak in a tan ahead of everyone else . . . the "cat" who looks at us that evening and says, "You ought to get out in the sun more . . . you look a little prak-ed."

Or . . . another version of the same type . . . the woman who sez, "You don't tan very well, do you? However, you can TELL you've been in the sun by taking one look at your nose! Ha, ha, ha."

We are also devoted to the woman who enters for the first time, an old room that we have JUST finished doing over from floor to ceiling . . . and sez, (pointing to a small end table), "Isn't this table NEW?" Quick Watson . . . pass the hemlock!

Great-Lakes system stands at hand to receive all the moisture that the rainiest skies can send us over any measurable period of time.

We may be inconvenienced and complain bitterly of wet cellars, and our sewers may temporarily overflow their confines, but this is a trifling matter compared to fleeing to higher ground to save our lives and seeing our homes torn from their foundations, tossed about like fish bobbars, and utterly destroyed.

Residents living in narrow mountain valleys are subject to the perpetual menace from flash floods or from breaking dams above them impounding the accumulated waters of a long rainy period. We are spared all that anxiety. The worst thing we need fear is a flooded basement.

The most terrible disaster of this character in the history of this country happened in the little city of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, in May, 1889. The Conemaugh river, swollen by several days of rain, broke down a dam several miles above the town and a tremendous wall of water rushed down on the little City of 30,000 population and smothered out 2,209 lives in a matter of minutes. There are many communities existing throughout the country similarly situated but the shock of the Johnstown experience and the advance in engineering knowledge since that time has doubtless minimized this peculiar danger.

Talley Rant

by Helen Talley

There is a new entertainer in town, at the VERSAILLES, called SUZY SOLIDOR. SUZY has her own boite in Paris, named the OPERA CLUB, but it isn't near the OPERA; just like the FIFTH AVENUE FLORIST in New York is on MADISON. Those things happen in life and we simply have to make the best of it. SUZY speaks no English but you never fail to understand what she is getting at. She reads a little speech, phonetically, in which she says that she isn't very young and she isn't very prettie. She is also built like a lady wrestler. I was with her one of interest, however, SUZY sings in a husky whisper. She closes her eyes and undulates bits of her personality. I had my eyes wide open and understood every word she said.

One of her gowns was stunning. Of cream satin—SUZY is very blond—it started just where the law allows and followed her ungridded figure through every up and down till it reached the floor. Across the generous bosom and diminishingly down the skirt to the knees, it was sewn with glass tear drops. They shimmered and twinkled like a Spring shower. I was with a party of French people. They all knew SUZY, so after her show she joined us. On a tiny chain around her neck she wore a huge diamond heart stabbed through with a ruby arrow. SUZY had never been in a plane till she flew to this country. She said she was very frightened. She said she pinched the man beside her, so hard and so continuously that he is probably in the hospital at this very minute.

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, gay and chatty, gave a handsome lunch party the other day for ADMIRAL KALBFUS and MRS. KALBFUS, and ADMIRAL KINKAID and MRS. KINKAID. The gentleman on my left—MR. ROSS—was born in Pennsylvania but has lived in Rome for many years. We were discussing his feelings upon again meeting old friends in this country. He said, "I think one of the loveliest phrases in any language is, DO YOU REMEMBER." He told me about lunching the day before with a bonne amie whom he hadn't seen in fifteen years. "Do you know," he said, "we sat talking on a sofa in the Palm Court at the Ritz the entire afternoon, until people began to come in dressed for dinner. When she left she laughed and said that no one would believe we had been talking for so long. So I said, just say we met at one and never left the couch till seven."

Reading about the death, the other day, of SCOTT FITZGERALD's wife, ZELDA, recalled to me very vividly the last time I saw her. It was at the FITZGERALD house in Great Neck, Long Island. SCOTT was at his peak as a writer about the flapper set. RING LARDNER was at the party. He was standing gloomily in the corner, when we went in, looking out of eyes that were twin black holes. SCOTT was on the floor leaning over a small tub half full of gin. Someone had sent him a case of grapefruit and he was backing the things open to squeeze into the gin. These were the balmy prohibition days.

Among the guests was a strange pleasant little man whom no one knew. I remember him wandering about the whole evening. ZELDA had met him very informally that afternoon on the golf course. He had offered her his flask, and she, in return, had offered him dinner. Those casual things never bothered SCOTT so everyone was happy. Someone had sent ZELDA, from Europe, one of the first "character dolls" to arrive in this country. It was made to represent a "gigolo"—top hat, tail coat and long cigar holder. It was fashioned of felt—about a foot high. At this moment in history, ZELDA had the gigolo in her arms. She was softly singing to the doll and waiting around and around the room.

This went on for some time. Occasionally SCOTT called to her to stop but she didn't and no one paid much attention. Some of the party sat on the floor with their drinks and some wandered about. RING still stood in the corner with his tumbler. The stranger sat happily lost in one of SCOTT's books. Suddenly SCOTT shouted to ZELDA to stop the waiting, and he meant STOP. ZELDA did stop—furiously. She screamed something, flung the doll at his head and dashed up the stairs. I went after her. She raced into a bathroom there, open the cabinet and swallowed half a bottle of white liquid. At my wails SCOTT came running. He grabbed the bottle and read the label. "Don't worry," he said as he started down the steps, "same old mouth-wash."

A mail bag missing since December 20 and containing mostly Christmas cards, finally came to light in Castleton-on-Hudson, N. Y., when a huge pile of snow next to the railroad station melted under the spring sun.

Achieving peacetime uses for atomic energy has been set as the goal for a war memorial at the University of Michigan.
Approval by the Board of Regents has been given to a committee proposal for a research center dedicated to converting atomic energy into the slave, instead of the master, of mankind.
Plans for a war memorial of this type have been entitled the Phoenix Project, symbolic of the conversion of ashes into life. In announcing the project, President Alexander G. Ruthven said plans would be completed during the summer for securing the necessary funds to finance the memorial.
"The Phoenix Project is regarded as the best way to provide a living, timeless, creative force for the peace which was won so dearly in World War II, and for which we must always work to save," President Ruthven said.

He said the war memorial would be an ever-growing project that would require at least $2,000,000 or more for a start. The plan involves an academy of scholars devoting their full creative efforts to converting atomic energy to peace-time uses. Special laboratories and work rooms, entered through a memorial rotunda, would be constructed to house the research work.
In addition to research there would be a skillfully organized information exchange which would be at the service of the

Eddie, the Editor, being a blissfully unbookish bloke in the book business, leans back and orders a double-chocolate-malted rather than the potent Planter's Punches that fictional editors are presumed to punish all summer. As far as Eddie goes, one cocktail swallow makes a summer.

"The book business," Eddie is saying, "is more of a gamble right now than any unless it's show business."

"Or fashion business," we put in. "That I wouldn't know about from nothing," says the erudite editor. "What I do know is that, what with the cost of paper, printing and promotion, a book has to be a downright best seller to net a cent for anybody."

"But how can you tell it will sell?" we prodded him. "We can't," he sighed. "Ergo, the big gamble."

"But what about this theory that best sellers run in cycles. Shall we say b-u-y-c-y-c-l-e-s?"

"Well, sometimes they run in cycles, but the public doesn't keep up the buy. Take the run of hot historical novels, which began with 'Forever Amber' and dwindled down to some 'Forever Ambiguous' imitations. Most publishers figure it has run its course."

The same thing goes for the huge output of War Memoirs, Correspondents' Reports and all the rest of the "think pieces." If a firm wanted to keep a good guy on its list, it had to let him get one war book out of his system before he'd settle down and write a best seller. But just as we thought all that was over, up comes Churchill's 'Gathering Storm,' which will hit the top, and Norman Mailer's 'The Naked and the Dead' which is on the upcurve among current novels. Then, too, they whipped 'Mister Roberts' into a smash play and it's selling all over again."

"Proving you never can tell what will sell?" we amended. "And the poor editor just sits back, lays his bets and tries to bring some orders out of chaos — also some re-orders," says he.

"Look," we persisted, "if you were a graduate with a new typewriter and a violent urge to splurge, out in Grosse Pointe, what would you write, Eddie?"

Eddie doesn't even pause to ponder. "Something about Grosse Pointe," comes the answer. "Something like 'How to make a Million in a Month.'"

"That," we admit, "would sell and how!"

"All the How-to Dos sell," he points out. "Simon and Schuster will hand you enough loot to live in really lowdown luxury for a good How-to Do book. You know. How - to - Read - a - Book. How - to - Housebreak - a - Husband. How - to - Stay - Awake - While - Working."

Or 'The Technique of Getting Things Done, we muse. "Now we've had that darn book around for months and the first thing we can't get done is to read it. Somehow we always feel about the How-to Dos the way we feel about fellows who write How-to Write-a-Play. If they really knew how, why aren't they rolling around on the royalties of a Broadway hit?"

"What about Arthur Hopkins' 'How's Your Second-Act?' He's rolling around, producing hits."

"We stand corrected. In fact, we're waiting for his 'Reference Point.' But Arthur Hopkins is a philosopher, not just a How-to Doer."

"Okay, no How-to Dos," says Eddie. "The debunking books are sure a sound bet. The public loves to read debunkers. Radio. Theatre. Hollywood. Publishing. Fashion. Just write a debunker, with a blaze, International Bum for a hero and a Rhinestone Heel for a heroine — and it will sell like hot dogs on a holiday. Something like 'The Saxon Charm' on producers; 'The Hucksters' on radio; 'Dirty Eddie' on Hollywood — or even the new 'Everybody Slept Here' on Washington.

"But Eddie, what hasn't been debunked?"

"Lots of things. The motor industry. Society with a capital S. 'Stanley Walker did society in 'Mrs. Astor's Horrors.'"

"That's practically out of print," puts in Eddie. "Anyway, Walker wrote more about politics and personalities than blue bloods and blue bookies. You know, every since young Winthrop Rockefeller married that bewitching blonde daughter of Latvian parents, I've been thinking it's time to publish a really fabulous debunker on society in this country."

"When our Aunt Sophronia, who lived across from Paul Revere's statue in Boston, sent us a membership in 'The Daughters of The American Revolution,' we tell him, 'we really shocked her by asking: 'WHICH American Revolution?'"

"That's my point," beams Eddie. "The social revolution just passed your Aunt Sophronia by as she hibernated happily in Boston."

"She's in higher society in heaven — and still happy," we sigh.

"Well," counters Eddie, "That isn't the only polite revolution going on — there's a literary one, and if this Author's Guide Contract — where writers only 'lease' their stuff instead of selling it outright — if that goes through, publishers will only be brokers."

"Poor Eddie," we smile. "As our little Lana, marrying her fourth millionaire might have remarked: 'This may be Better for Us—and Worse for You!'"

"Amen!" breathes Eddie the Editor.

From Another Pointe of View

by
JANE SCHERMERHORN

By the time we reach your home this week . . . a-l-l the Grosse Pointers will be in a perfect dither about the Junior League Follies current through Friday at Music Hall . . .

We are sure, even at this early writing, that there will be much beauty in the show . . .

Because we saw some of the dramatic personae . . . at the Terrace Room the other day . . . when League Public Service coffers were being swelled through the modeling services of some of the members . . .

'SHADES OF SUMMER'

The show was called "Shades of Summer" . . . and the models (who were lovelier than those we usually oh and ah about in the slick paper fashion magazines) included:

Mrs. Charles B. Warren Jr. . . Mrs. Charles A. DuCharme II . . Mrs. Woodruff Crouse . . Mrs. Wessell Booth . . Mrs. James A. McMillan . .

Mary Martin Semmes (hear the Semmes, en toto, will travel to Europe this Summer) . . Mrs. Frederick S. Ford Jr. . . Mrs. Robert Lee Graham . . Heidi Flannery (and mama, Mrs. George E. Baldwin, lunching with Miss Mildred Fitzpatrick, just beamed pride at her darling's every appearance!) . .

Mrs. R. Jamison Williams . . Mrs. Lloyd Marentette . . Helen Livingstone (who certainly has that Scherer look!) . . Mrs. Ford Ballantyne Jr. . .

Mrs. Edward A. Skae . . Mrs. George Nugent Munro III . . and Mrs. Lewis Robinson, as charming as the year she was a debutante . . .

WATCHING THE FASHION SHOW

Mrs. Ralph Harman Booth . . . recently returned from Washington, D. C. . . watched the fashion show . . . in an elegant natural straw chapeau blooming with field flowers . . . her suit was an elegantly tailored one of gold and tan tones, buttoned in gold discs.

With Mrs. Booth were Mrs. Charles A. Dean Jr., wearing a famous navy straw hat with Kelly green taffeta ribbon twisted into marvelous bows at the very front . . . Mrs. Willard Worcester . . . and Mrs. Burt Eddy Taylor . . .

Mrs. Clarence E. Otter (stunning in navy and white) and daughter, Phoebe, lunched with friends . . . and naturally were intent upon the costumes modeled by the beautiful Mrs. Robert L. Graham . . .

PRESS TABLE HOSTESSES

Mrs. James J. Phelan, Mrs. James McEvoy Jr. and Mrs. Guy C. Smith presided at the press table . . .

Mrs. James J. Phelan Jr. . . whose chapeau was an ingenious combination of straw and feathers, all in snowy white . . . Mrs. James McEvoy Jr. . . and Mrs. Guy C. Smith . . . coupled their lunch . . . with the handing out of reams of information for the press . . . and being offily nice about identifying this and that one for us . . .

A group of husbands joining their wives at the fashion review-luncheon included James McMillan . . . Lewis Robinson Jr. . . George Hefferan . . . Arthur H. Buhl Jr. . . Charles A. DuCharme II . . . Bruce Chalmers . . . and Joe Standart . . .

We also glimpsed Mrs. Harry Mack, just as beautiful as ever . . . and we'll never forgive ourselves that we didn't find out the name of the gal who wore the maddest hat at the luncheon . . . a trench helmet done in horizontal black and white stripes . . . and bow-ed in scarlet . . .

FIRST NIGHTERS AT FOLLIES

First nighters at the Junior League Follies included:

Mrs. Roy D. Chapin . . . who was with her daughter, Sammy (femme fatale!) . . . and the Roy D. Chapins Jr. . . Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Petzold who dined earlier at the D.A.C. were with the Herman Wecklers . . . the Lywid Ecclestons . . . and the Joseph Hickes . . .

Mrs. Benjamin Warren and Mrs. Richard P. Joy were together . . . and seemed to adore the 1948 Follies . . . and near them were the Lansings Pittmans, the Benson Fords and the Edgar L. Finks in a party . . .

The planting of shrubbery is started against the fence which has been erected around the parking lot at the new Woods Theater on Mack avenue. Summer School Starts June 21

The summer school term at Grosse Pointe High School will begin June 21 and continue on through August 13.

The summer school curriculum will include the following courses: Typing I-IV, English 7B through 12A, French II and IV, Latin I-IV, Spanish II-IV, Social Studies 7B through 12A, Civics I and II, Economics, Math 3B through 12A, and instrumental music.

Special courses will be provided for elementary students in reading and spelling in grades 3B through 6A.

Students may enroll in room 114 at the high school Friday, June 19, from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock; Saturday, June 19, from 9 o'clock to 12:30 o'clock; and Monday, June 21, from 8 o'clock to 4 o'clock.

The fee per course for residents of Grosse Pointe will be $14, while non-residents will pay $17. Classes are held from 8 o'clock in the morning to 12:40 o'clock. This provides for three one and one half hour periods.

Students are not urged to sign up for all three periods unless advised to by their counselors. The reason for this is that three classes make too much work since the assignments are three times the normal assignment given during a regular school term.

MASON SCHOOL
"Eating Our Way to Health" may well be the title of the activity carried on Friday by the third grade of Mason School. The children in Mrs. Kingsley's room climaxed Health Week by putting into practice what they had learned about food values and all had luncheon together at school. The menu was planned by the children with an eye to vitamins. Then they divided into committees and assumed various responsibilities for the preparation of the meal.

Wanting to really make this their own luncheon, the children decided to pay for it themselves by having a cookie sale. Earlier in the week the children baked cookies and sold them at a penny each to the rest of the children. The finance committee, Shirley Toltgen and Gerry Kammer, then figured out the profits and gave a report to the planning committee.

Tom Mason, Danny Ernst, Mary Lou Madigan, and Billy Schaldersbrand, learned about the high cost of living when they went to the store to price the various necessities. But even taking into consideration high prices, Teddy Fordan, Sandy Prince, and Don Shealy did a good job of preparing a very tasty and healthful luncheon. Looking like miniature waitresses, Sally Goodsmith, Nancy Clark, and Sandy Behrens served the meal. Then that job that is such a chore at home but fun at school—washing dishes—was taken care of by Ronny Amez, Dick Hill, Danny Gysel, and Walter Russell.

TROMBLY SCHOOL
"Setting Back the Clock," an original play, was presented by the 4B-4A class in an Assembly program on Friday, May 14. John Foxwell was the announcer.

In the first scene, the Martin family imaginatively decide to turn back the clock 200 years. Bruce Rockwell, as Mr. Martin, and Gayla McPhail, as Mrs. Martin, with their children, Judy Balcerski, as Sue, and Jerry Tober, as Jim, get together to plan this trip into yesteryear.

Fruit juice, cereal and toast magically become a salt and cornmeal mush breakfast. The kitchen fades out and becomes a Dame School with boys and girls saying their ABC's, reciting the Lord's Prayer, learning the numbers from their Horn books and New England Primers and Samplers, and making soap and candles. Connie Pavey is the Dame School m'am and Ella Mae Harrison, Nancy Hays, Frankie Crane, Bill Carnegie, Milti Gillett, and Sandra Potter, as pupils, enliven this school scene.

Grandfather, Chuck Norris, visits the Martin family and catches the imaginary spirit of the occasion. He sets the clock back just 70 years to his early school days in a country one-room school. Before the school bell rings, Steve Horn and Oscar Marx, are gathering firewood and fetching water. They rouse the bear which had been foraging in the neighborhood and have an exciting experience in killing it.

School master, Charles Eldridge, has ten other pupils in his charge: Kirk Lamkins, Mike Duffy, Beverly Jensen, Frank Phillips, Paula Rhodes, David Strother, Brian Brigham, Tom Knapp, Cindy Rauer, and Harold Joerin. The girls sit on one side of the schoolroom and the boys on the other in the middle. The schoolmaster hears the recitations and the older pupils have a spellword. Later they practice the Virginia reel in anticipation of a barn raising gathering the following Saturday.

The clock is turned ahead to Trombly School 1948 with the entire audience and cast singing "School Days."

Pupils of the 6A class presented a series of short illustrated talks in the Trombly School library which they had prepared during their study of Natural Resources. Pupils of the Fraclis 5A-5B classes and the Paezelli 5A-2B class were guests. Carolyn Swanson, program chairman, gave the audience a brief word picture on how the class studied unit problems, how the reports were prepared, and introduced the pupil reporters.

Two Cars Tangle On McKinley Rd.

Two cars crashed at McKinley and Williams in the Farms at 4:20 p. m. on May 29, with damage totalling $500.

Tom Nelson, 15, 901 Lincoln road, driving his mother's Ford west on Williams, collided with a Dodge being driven north on McKinley by John Joseph Keenan of 677 Neff road.

Mr. and Mrs. Keenan were examined in Cottage Hospital and released. The Keenan car got the worst of the tangle, its damage being estimated at $300. Both drivers were given reckless driving tickets.

Learn to Drive The Hard Way

Yvonne Barbour, of 938 Virginia Park, Detroit, while driving a '48 Hudson car east on Jefferson avenue on May 27 lost control of the car when attempting to make a left turn into Lincoln. The car jumped the curb and ran into a tree. She was taken to Bon Secours Hospital where X-ray examinations showed a fractured shoulder and a broken wrist.

She was served with a ticket for having no operator's license and Gregory M. Pilton, an instructor riding in the car with her, got one for permitting an unlicensed person to drive his car.

Speeder Nabbed In Stolen Taxi

Officer Mauck of the City police picked up a checker taxi at Charlevoix and Neff at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning, May 29, which was making altogether too good time.

Mauck thought the driver needed a further quiz and radined for another scout car to come and get him. At the police station a telephone had already been received from Detroit of a taxi cab stolen less than an hour before from Third and Fort street.

The man gave his name as John Baling, aged 23, of 2512 Dinedin, Detroit. He was fingerprinted and turned over to officers from the Detroit Fifth precinct, who came out to get him.

Final Tribute Paid Lavers

Final tribute was paid Henry Lavers, Grosse Pointe Township Clerk for the last five years, at funeral services held Saturday afternoon. Burial was in White Chapel cemetery. Many municipal and township officials of the Pointe attended.

Mr. Lavers died in his sleep early last Wednesday morning, following a heart attack. He was 61 years old. Born in England, where his mother still lives, Mr. Lavers was a justice of the peace before he was appointed clerk of the township. He lived in Grosse Pointe Woods for many years.

Survivors include his wife, LaVern; a son, Gordon; two daughters, Mrs. Virginia Stier and Mrs. Bernice Moore, and 12 grandchildren.

Hit-Run Driver To Receive Call

A brand new '48 Hudson, owned by Richard A. Gauze, of 14324 Mansfield, Detroit, while parked in front of 15218 Jefferson on the afternoon of May 28, was struck by a '46 Mercury sedan.

A witness to the accident was quick enough to get the number which he turned over to Sergeant Walsh, who happened along a moment after the crash.

Checking the number showed it belonged to a well known resident of Maumee, Mr. Gauze was given the name of the owner to make his own demands for settlement.

Letterbox

May 29, 1948

To the Editor:

I wish to express my admiration for your effort to build the Grosse Pointe Memorial Library to honor our heroes lost in the war.

We are aware of the fact that these heroes were convinced that freedom is a very precious possession to us Americans; and most particularly freedom, as it is one of the first chapters of our Constitution which is so dear to us. The library is an expression of that freedom.

But to my great disappointment, I also find out that some of your honorable citizens of Grosse Pointe who are conducting real estate businesses are bragging that they keep Grosse Pointe clear of certain racial and religious groups. Without any doubt, the neighbors of our heroes are not selected.

I believe, and I think that my opinion is shared by many other good Christian citizens, that it is a terrible example of bigotry. I would ask your personal opinion, how can our heroes rest with their memorials when such bigotry is going on in their town.

Very truly yours,
A. S. FLEISCHMAN

John Marshall, colored, and his wife Lucille, of Detroit, were charged on May 26 with having taken 30 rubbish bags belonging to the City. The bags were taken from the vicinity of Charlevoix and Rivard.

Superintendent of Highway service Julius Stork got a description of the truck they were driving and followed them up to the Woods, where he picked them up. They were driving a truck which they rented from E. Weltzman, of the General Scrap Iron and Metal company, the police said, for one dollar a day.

Kids Start Bulldozer At Scene of Excavation

The proprietress of Helene's Millinery Shop at 19 Little Kercheval called up the police on the evening of May 19 and told them that some boys who had been fooling about the big bulldozer nearby, had started the motor.

The young mechanics were gone when the police arrived. They stopped the motor and disengaged some wires that would make it impossible to start the leviathan again in the event of a return visit.

Spring Best Time of Year To Visit Beautiful Natchez

In the Spring, Natchez, Mississippi, and a half-dozen other ancient towns in that grand old state turn back the clock a full century...

By The Old AAA Traveler

In my days I've been privileged to see some mighty beautiful places... the Great Smokies... the Rockies... the ancient Charleston and its old mansions...

But—hang on here as we go 'way out on a limb!—it is my considered opinion that the most beautiful single town in all these United States is the little town of Natchez, Mississippi...

When a really and truly three-day weekend rolls around every-one dashes off into the country for at least a little while. Among the many others forsaking old Grosse Pointe were Sallie Hoyt and Stu Ward...

New York Cavalcade

By LOUIS SOBOL
A LITTLE O' THIS, A LITTLE O' THAT!
When Sam Spiegel, the Hollywood producer who changed his name to S. P. Eagle, wed the beautiful Lynne Baggett recently, his friend Director Billy Wilder, exclaimed: "I'm just S. P. Eechless with surprise!"

Paul Douglas, star of "Born Yesterday," has had three wives—is ready for a fourth. In June, he travels out to Hollywood to pick up his assignment as lead in a 20th Century-Fox picture.

A group of youngsters, ranging in age from seven to 14, have put on a production, entitled appropriately enough, "This is Our Play." They wrote it, directed it, are acting in it.

It all came about, as I get the story, as the result of some rebellion against studying and performing nobby-pamby fairy tales. They told this to the woman who was directing them. She said, "Okay, you go ahead and write something you'd like to play in." They did. Their joint effort is packed with social significance—it deals with divorce, gang warfare, juvenile delinquency, racial discrimination, ERP, politics and atomic development. All in two acts.

Brieflets: Doris Duke is telling intimates she plans to spend six months a year in the Paris house which she bought from Princess Elizabeth Chavchavadze. They say there were many tearful scenes between Kathleen Winsor and her horn-tootin' hubby before she made up her mind definitely to take Shaw leave...

Now you take me—I'm a columnist, too—although there have always been two schools of thought about that. Have I devoted the proper amount of space to the Lana Turner-Bob Topping-Arlene Judge involvements? Have I given my avid readers any sort of break in this all absorbing marital business? Not so you'd notice it.

Homes Re-made Around Kitchens

Robert Reibling, head of the home equipment department of the Currier Lumber Co., Detroit's second largest installer of modernized kitchens, says: "The elegance of the modern kitchen is the result of American architect-engineer planning. Today our homes are literally re-made around the finest kitchens in the world."

He added: "Show me a home with this new, beautiful, efficient kitchen equipment, and I'll show you a contented wife and a happy family."

The Currier Co., with vast showrooms at 17507 Van Dyke, specializes in Youngstown Kitchens and other famous-make equipment, and handles complete installations, even to the necessary plumbing, vent and window changes, laying of linoleum, tile, and all carpentry details.

Currier is also stocked with a variety of leathers, knotty pine panelling, lighting fixtures, etc. for breakfast nooks. The firm has completed a number of fine installations in the Pointe this Spring.

Make Color Your Friend

Make color your friend when you decorate this Spring, for the time has come to decide what color to paint the kitchen and whether or not to re-paper Mary's room. Don't be timid about color and don't be afraid to try unusual color combinations. Try making drawings and sketches employing some original color ideas until you find the one that's just right for you and the rooms you live in. Art students at Marygrove, in their study of color, have found these to be the basic ones, so consider carefully the effects that each one produces.

Red is temperamental. It can be cheerful, or glamorous and exciting, but too much will ruin the effect. It is too strong a color to use alone in a room, but as an accent color it is wonderful for rugs and draperies.

Yellow, the sun's own color, is vivid and merry. It is the solution for a room that gets no sunlight, and it is always right for the kitchen.

Green is called the backbone of all color since it is a good foundation for so many color combinations. It is rich and yet cool, walls painted in nature's color are particularly attractive.

Blue is the color to be careful of. Chosen carefully, it is fresh and warm, but ordinarily blue tends to be a restful color. Too much of it might prove depressing and then a room would truly be a "Blue" room.

Violet is the color of dignity. Pure violet is seldom used, but tones of it are successfully used in rugs and upholstery.

White means cleanliness, but beware of an all-white kitchen or bathroom, for these are almost too sanitary looking. Rather, accent white with other colors.

Grey can be a very dull color, but tinted with other color tones it will harmonize well. It will serve as a good background color.

Can Learn Job After Marriage

It's not too late to learn to be a better homemaker after you're married and have a family. This was indicated in a recent survey of 382 Michigan homemakers made at Michigan State college.

Results of this survey which scored home management practices were recently published by Dr. Irma Gross, head of the home management and child development department at the College. Rise in scores went hand in hand with educational levels but training in adult education classes made a most significant difference.

Homemakers who were enrolled in home economics extension classes organized by the college and the local home demonstration agents achieved higher scores. Those with more extension training had higher scores than those with less. The combination of extension work and either high school or college training resulted in a score much above average.

Results of this survey thus would indicate that you can improve your home management and create better living for your family by taking training now that you are a homemaker.

On the measuring "yardstick" used in the survey were items such as use of time and energy, use of money, incentive for management, conservation of goods, household production, and looking to the future. All of these items are important because they contribute to your family's living.

All the way through the study many exceptions were found in all groups. It is mostly a question of the individual. If you would like to score yourself on the home management yardstick, write to the Bulletin Office, Michigan State College, for Circular Bulletin 211, "Measuring Home Management."

MR. FREDERICK L. COLBY JR. OF MERRIWEATHER ROAD

By Kitty Carney

Mrs. Frederick Colby, Jr., and her nine-year-old daughter, Wendy Dean Colby, need never want for beautiful silver jewelry.

Strange as it may sound, the loss of a gold cuff link six years ago was the starting point for the hobby which Mr. Colby has mastered so well.

Although the result of this first experiment was not entirely satisfactory, it led him to continue his work with metal. Since silver was the logical medium for fine work, Mr. Colby fashioned a number of simple items with the crude tools he had at hand.

Along came the war, and Mr. Colby served in the Temporary Coast Guard Reserve in Detroit with the same flotilla as Mr. Lee Radke, an expert silversmith and owner of a silver plating business.

Countless are the numbers of cuff links, cigaret boxes, spoons, jewelry and dishes which Mr. Colby has fashioned and used as gifts.

During the years Mr. Colby's basement workshop has grown with his hobby. Sanders, drill presses, grinders and polishers, burnishing tools and files have been added one by one until the workroom has achieved a professional atmosphere.

Recently at Mr. Radke's suggestion, Mr. Colby designed and executed a more complicated form in sterling silver—a chalice. He began the task dubiously since the design had first to be worked out on paper, and the various parts then hammered out from flat sheets of silver without the use of customary metal or wood forms.

This, according to Mr. Colby, is the most difficult way to work; it's the method English silversmiths of old used when none of the silver was "spun" as it almost invariably is today.

His first chalice is a beautiful piece of art with a cross adorning the cup, and already the Colby mind is making plans to design more. This type of object requires more careful soldering and detail work than others of lesser magnitude.

Or, of the most interesting facts about this Pointer's hobby is that it has led to a new invention which is on its way to being patented.

Marooned in a chair one day without an ash tray at hand, Mr. Colby hit upon the idea of a handy pocket ash tray, which, he says, "will be a great boon to smokers. They can carry it around with them wherever they may be, whether at a party, political rally or in someone's private home. It beats dropping ashes on the rug!"

In collaboration with a friend, Mr. Colby worked out various designs until he found the most practical. Already friends in the Pointe and elsewhere are looking toward the day when this catchy little item (it snaps inside the pocket and is hidden from view), will be on the market both in sterling silver and less expensive metal.

"JUST WHISTLE"

By Hamilton Howlett

Kitty Kelly was desperate. For two years she had been practically engaged to George Bronson. He had shared her triumphs and her disappointments, her joys and her sorrows, her cocktail and dinner hours and practically all her evenings and he had not asked her to be his wife. Her friends were quite outspoken and heartless about the situation; her parents tactful but obviously distressed, and she herself, frankly

George was steady and craggy, with thick hair, fine eyes and an overwhelming masculinity. She was small and round and singularly appealing for all her great show of independence. In short, they made a rather wonderful pair.

They had met on one of those gloriously crisp and golden Sundays in October. A perfect day to launch a romance. Bill Bostwick, an old and comfortable family friend, had brought George to call on her and they had all had a gay little dinner together and gone afterwards to see a new Humphrey Bogart movie, a movie in which Bogy presented Baby with a bracelet with a tiny whistle dangling from it and instructed her gravely to whistle if she ever wanted him.

They were all three enchanted by this debonair bit of byplay and as they parted at Kitty's door Bill said, "Well, obviously you two are congenial soul-mates—you've hardly spoken to me all evening—I'm bowing out now. But remember, Kitty, 'if you ever need me—just whistle!' They all laughed and decided the occasion was indeed a happy and fortunate one.

All this passed through Kitty's harassed head as she tried to think of one last way to get George to ask her that beautiful, vital, all-consuming question. And then, the idea came to her. It was a terrible trick, of course, and certainly not worthy of their great love, but all else had failed, and maybe this bit of guile would be one of those tender little jokes that are gently referred to and chuckled over should stalk out of her life forever and never come back?

A day crept by, and another, and then another, until they had strung themselves into a week of abject misery and self-loathing for Kitty. This was surely the end. She pictured herself in a nun's habit, with sweet sad eyes and that noble quality of wisdom without joy. Or perhaps a thin, expensively-suited career woman with opinions on world affairs. The vision of herself as a bride that had always buoyed her up dissolved before her eyes, and whenever she recalled it, her eyes dissolved. It couldn't be bleaker, and her mother became deeply concerned and began giving her liver, which Kitty detested.

On the eighth day a letter came for her, addressed on a typewriter: "Dear Gloria," it said, "For some time I've been considering matrimony, but have always thought the girl of my dreams far too lovely for an awkward old like me—How about it, Kitty?"

George."

UNSAFE CARS TICKETED

More than 1,500 motorists a month are receiving traffic violation tickets for driving cars in unsafe condition, records of the Detroit Accident Prevention Bureau reveal. Most of these tickets—six out of seven—are issued for bad brakes and defective lights, the Traffic Safety Association points out.

STEP right aboard our magic cloud and we'll whisk away on a Grand Michigan vacation... the type of trip one can only make with a magic means of transportation.

Luckily, JACOBSON'S caters to the youngest misses in the Pointe as well as their mothers and older sisters. The toddler who accompanies us can be sun-clad in a pastel broadcloth pinafore trimmed with cool white eyelet and pearl buttons...

For both the tot and her senior sisters JACOBSON'S has ruffled black cotton skirts edged with white rick rack, some with red-striped peekaboo petticoats... trim-looking shorts of brown gabardine with a white stripe matching down each side...

A playsuit of the popular barnyard red and blue denim consisting of midriff and shirt is priced at $8.95. JACOBSON'S has shorts, slacks and pedal pushers to match, all with adjustable zipper waistlines...

A beach m-u-s-i is one of JACOBSON'S tailored white terry cloth beach robes, jacket length, in sizes 10-16. The $8.95 includes navy or red monogram on the pocket. And for summer sports wear Jacobson's has come up with nice, bright T-shirts in either stripes or plain colors (12-20).

And we mustn't forget to select that most essential item for our vacation—a bathing suit. JACOBSON'S suits are so slick that we mermaids will have a hard time choosing between... a two-piece chintz print for $5.95... a lastex in the pastel shade of our desire... a lastex with satin finish... and dozens of others fashioned for comfort and bathing beauty.

Now that JACOBSON'S has completely outfitted us for summer, we're equipped and ready to start out on a real tour of Michigan's many vacation spots. Forests, farms, beaches—here we come!

SO you put off getting that summer furniture until the last minute, did you? Well, the folks at HAYDON HOUSE had an inkling that this would happen, and they planned ahead many months ago. There need be no "Disappointed Pointer", because Haydon House has terrace furnishings available for immediate delivery—this very weekend, if you wish.

Included in the large shipments arriving at HAYDON HOUSE are Ficks Reed rattan furniture, stately wrought iron tables and chairs, umbrella tables, chaise longue and lawn chairs. Once again Ficks Reed has available the genuine East Indian rattan furniture which creates that tropical atmosphere right in your own yard.

Working with stunning new fabrics, colorwise designers have come up with a wide assortment from which you may choose furniture to match any outdoor setting. Pay a call to HAYDON HOUSE on Kercheval near St. Clair, or phone in your furniture order. It will be delivered immediately.

JUNE has arrived, and June always means—graduation, of course. For the girl graduate on your shopping list, WALTON-PIERCE'S GROSSE POINTE BRANCH has any number of timely suggestions.

Watch her eyes light up when she receives a Maurice Rentner "color gallery", gift-boxed in gold and white. Only $5, it contains three gold-encased tubes of lipstick. One "gallery" is marked for the miss with light complexion, another for she of the deep tan.

The novel "Kanelle" is a gold cylinder suspended by a slender wrist chain to carry lipstick, comb and such essentials. The top has a tiny powder compartment, and this versatile accessory can be carried on the campus, dancing, any place at all, because it "goes with you everywhere." Priced at $12.50.

Heavenly scents by Hattie Carnegie, Maurice Rentner or Revillon will delight the senior as much as her diploma. You can find a gold-topped bottle of cologne by Rentner for only $5 at WALTON-PIERCE. Revillon's Carnet de Bal is also near the top of the perfume hit parade. The gift-giver who presents this treasure will head the graduate's popularity list.

The slim gold link bracelet with tiny gem in the center of each link is the nth degree in dainty jewelry, and it costs only $10. If you prefer, WALTON-PIERCE ear rings in plain gold, or with pearl or moonstone designs, begin at $5. Some have pinstriped match.

Sleep slips, Cotton or dressy blouses, and smart handbags also make fine graduation remembrances. Pick a gift certain to please from the outstanding selection at WALTON-PIERCE, either the Grosse Pointe Branch or downtown in the Women's City Club.

Point Graduates Include Pointer
