Divorce Fight Ends in Death

Funeral services were held Saturday, Feb. 10, from the W. R. Hamilton Funeral Home for Mrs. Virginia Hebb Daly, 22, who was shot fatally early Thursday by her husband, Albert, 22.

Besides her mother, Mrs. Pauline C. Hebb, of 17441 Maumee, a sister, Mrs. Gino Cioe, and a brother, George K. Hebb, II, attended the funeral.

Slayer Arraigned About the same time, her husband was being arraigned on a first degree murder charge before City Judge Joseph Uvick.

He pleaded not guilty, claimed it was an accident, and was bound over for trial in Circuit Court.

The shooting occurred at the Hebb home shortly after midnight Wednesday, Feb. 7. With City police outside a barricaded bedroom, Daly, a marine, attempted to have his wife divorced.

Hear Gun Blast As police were about to break open the door, they heard a gunshot blast. Inside the room they found Daly whimpering "don't shoot, don't shoot."

Mrs. Daly was on the bed, wounded fatally. Patrolmen Robert Van Tiem, George Moffat and Julius Dereadt rushed her to Bon Secours Hospital. But she was dead on arrival.

The shooting climaxed an unhappy marriage that began on Jan. 28, 1950. They met at a dance at the War Memorial Center, and were married two weeks later, police said.

James K. Watkins, former Farms president, was blamed by the youth for keeping his wife away from him.

Watkins, a friend of the Hebb family for years, was handling the divorce suit.

Reckless Driver Pays $30 Fine

Eugene J. Klaf, 18, of 14528 Maddelein, was fined $30 by Judge Don Goodrow in Grosse Pointe Woods court Saturday, Feb. 10, for reckless driving.

Police said that Klaf was driving at an excessive speed and in a reckless manner on Mack. His car collided with one driven by Richard Hammond, 16, of 20611 Nesbit, Gratiot Township.

The accident occurred at Mack and Hawthorne on January, 23. No one was injured.

European Stars To Give Ballet

"Ballet Interlude," sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Methodist Church, February 17, at Pierce Auditorium, will include a variety of dances performed by Oswald Lemanis and Mirdza Tillak, former artists of the Latvian National Grand Opera Ballet.

Duets by the European stars include "Navarre," music by Escobar; "Nocturne" by Franz Liszt; "Andaluzia" by Granados; and "Fate" by Rachmaninov. A comic number to be done by the pair is "Beggars' Dance" by de Falla. Dariusz' "Melancholy Waltz" will also be performed.

Tillak, former prima ballerina of the Latvian National Grand Opera Ballet, will solo in "The Wind" with the familiarly known music of Rimsky-Korsakov, and in "Salome" by Richard Strauss.

Two pupils of Lemanis at Detroit Institute of Musical Art will do solo dances. Joan McDermott will perform to a Tschakowsky "Variation" and Evelyn Engeman will do a Rachmaninov "Polka".

Accompanist for the occasion, Mrs. Irene Reszetylowicz, a former European concert pianist, will present two solos, Brahms' "Rhapsody Opus 79" and La Campanella by Paganini and Liszt.

Lemanis has performed in European capitals including the Opera Comique of Paris, the Royal Opera in Stockholm, and in Berlin and Venice. He was also invited to appear at the Colon Opera in Buenos Aires.

More than 700 persons are expected to attend the "Ballet Interlude" Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

The program is being given for the benefit of the Grosse Pointe Methodist Church by the Lemanis in a gesture of appreciation to the church group for sponsoring them since their arrival in this country nine months ago as displaced persons.

Lemanis is the former choreographer and balletmaster of the Latvian National Grand Opera Ballet in Riga, Latvia. At that time Lemanis had as a pupil and later an assistant, Harry Plucis, present balletmaster of the Sadler Wells Ballet Troupe.

During his recent appearance here, Mr. Plucis said of Lemanis, "He is the greatest man in his work today. He taught me all I know about ballet and now I am teaching the world's greatest stars."

Mrs. Thomas G. Colley, chairman of reservations, reports that more than 700 tickets have been sold. For further information call Mrs. Colley at TU, 2-5193.

By Marcia Bleeki
Grosse Pointe High Journalism Student

The Winter '51 issue of Proem, the creative writing magazine written by students in Brownell and Grosse Pointe High School English classes and illustrated by art students, has been distributed.

The cover is a linoleum block cut by Carol Ford, 11B. Linoleum blocks illustrate several stories and poems. In two instances the authors have illustrated their own stories.

Material for Proem is selected by English teachers and submitted to the student staff, a group which reads, discusses and votes to accept or reject material submitted.

Proem, which is in its 19th year, has an all-American rating from the National Scholastic Press Association.

Pointe's Newest Scout Troop Organized

—Picture by Fred Runnells

Boy Scout Troop 703 of District 3 has just been organized under the sponsorship of the Grosse Pointe Congregational Church. The first eight Tenderfoot scouts were accepted at ceremonies held in the church on Thursday night, Feb. 8. Pictured, left to right, are: Dayton Dailey, chairman of Scouting Organization Extension; William H. Swartz, Neighborhood Commissioner; Willard Taylor, 11, receiving his registration card; William Budds, Scoutmaster. Other Tenderfeet include Paul Scheid, Henry Lampman, Jr., Thomas Quinney, Kirt Weed, Fred Trupiano, Richard Milock and Raymond Perry. Robert Budds and William Adams were accepted by transfer from another troop.

The forming of the troop was a part of the celebration of Scouting's 141st birthday last week. The Rev. Charles Scheid, minister of the church, accepted the troop's charter. Leadership certificates were presented to the troop committee members. The fathers of the new members presented their sons with their Tenderfoot badges. A color movie on scouting was shown and refreshments were served.

The troop was organized by Jerome Friesma, a member of the church. Members of the troop committee include Vincent L. Peterson, chairman; Henry D. Lampman, Charles W. Scheid, Howard Quinney, S. Lyle Hudson, Mr. Friesma and Mr. Budds. Mr. Friesma is also the institutional representative of the troop on the District Council.

League of Women Voters Passes Provisional Status

Marking the end of its first year of existence, the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe Park moved from provisional to regular status on January 31. The growth of this group from 30 charter members to the present total of 170 has been characterized by a consistent policy of non-partisanship and contribution to community development.

Since the League members deal with local, state, and national issues and personalities, there has been public speculation on how the League policy and programs are made. Mrs. Lillian Pear, president of the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe Park, lists these steps in program development:

1. Proposals made by members.
 2. Consideration of these proposals by the Boards (local, state, and national).
 3. Formulation of a proposed program by the Board from recommendations of the members.
 4. Submission of the proposed program by the Board to the members.
 5. Discussion and final adoption at annual meetings.
- The core of the program is the Unit Study Group, which consists of from 10 to 20 members who concern themselves with specific subjects. At present, the various Grosse Pointe League Study Units are concerned with Children's Services, Civil Defense, Conservation of Natural Resources in connection with the Hoover Commission Plan, and Taxes and Reapportionment. The study topics are selected by the members themselves.
- The local League President attends the meetings of the State Board, thereby representing the local group on the state level. The local board appoints its delegates to the state and national conventions. These members represent the interests and recommendations of the local group.
- General meetings, which are held at the Memorial Center, are open to the public. The March meeting will feature a talk on the subject, "Local Civilian Defense." Details will be announced later.
- Publications of the League of Women Voters of the United States, which give the pros and cons of timely topics, will soon be available at all three public Grosse Pointe libraries for community use.

Police Cool Off Irate Motorists

Two motorists were brought to Farms police station to cool off a bit after they became involved in a fight when their cars collided on Mack at Moross.

The men were released after they exchanged apologies and agreed to take care of the damage to each other's car.

FILES FOR COUNCIL

Daniel W. Goodenough, who was chairman of the Farms Charter Commission, has filed as a candidate for councilman in that city. The election is scheduled for April 2.

The average four-year-old child knows an estimated 5,500 basic words, according to Robert H. Seashore, Ph.D., chairman of the department of psychology at Northwestern University.

Civil Air Patrol Offers Training

On January 11 an organization which had earned its laurels in World War II began to hold weekly meetings in Grosse Pointe High School.

Squadron 1 of Group 3, Civil Air Patrol, moved from Parcels School to be closer to the youth group most interested in its activities. Meetings are held every Thursday night at 7:30, in rooms 106 and 113 of the high school.

The Civil Air Patrol accepts boys for training in the cadets who have attained the age of 14½ and are under 18. The training consists of subjects related to civil defense and aeronautics. Classes in these fields are instructed by well qualified men.

The cadets have just recently completed an extensive course in meteorology, and, at present a course for them in air navigation is being conducted by Captain Santilli, a qualified Air Force Navigator and C.A.A. instructor.

For two weeks during the summer the Air Force sponsors a two-week encampment for all C.A.P. personnel. These encampments take place at U.S.A.F. bases, and last summer the boys from Michigan went to Wright-Patterson A.F.B. in Ohio.

Those interested in having their youths enrolled in this voluntary organization may obtain further information by calling the Commandant of the Cadets, 1st Lt. Pooley, at Lincoln 5-0432, and are invited to attend any meetings.

Various Projects Utilized To Stimulate Writing Urge

By Marcia Bleckl
Grosse Pointe High Journalism Student

Grosse Pointe High School students in Mr. Ralph Steffek's English V classes have ended a busy semester. During the semester one group of English V students became so interested in the Michigan mental health problem, that they wanted to do something to help. During the campaign to pass Proposal No. 2 to benefit the mentally ill, they rang 4000 doorbells in Grosse Pointe and distributed literature of the Wayne County Mental Hygiene Society explaining the importance of voting yes for the proposal.

By a visit to Wayne County General Hospital, they became acquainted with the problems of mentally ill in Michigan. They noted over-crowded conditions, lack of trained personnel, and a determined attempt to treat patients humanely.

Another group became interested in social problems of a shifting population. By visiting the Mayor's Interracial Committee headquarters, they learned some of the problems of minority groups. A friendship trip through Detroit showed them the crowded and varying facilities of the area bounded by Woodward, Forest, Russel, and the Detroit River. The same group visited Miller High School.

A third group of students compared other high schools to Grosse Pointe High. They visited Port Huron, Redford, and Miller High Schools in connection with this project. Still another group became interested in teenage problems and how to promote family understanding.

What do these projects have to do with English? The English V course is largely writing. "Students," Mr. Steffek explains, "often build up resistance against writing because they have nothing to write about. In the case of English V projects, experience introduces the challenge to write."

Students report on projects to the class, write summaries of what they have learned, and do considerable reading in research connected with these experiences. At the same time through these projects the students learn to appreciate the problems of others, to appreciate their community and their school, and to become mature persons who are ready to assume responsibility for citizenship in a democracy.

Anglers Urged To Join Class

Lessons in fly tying, casting and general fishing are being given weekly in the boys' gymnasium of Grosse Pointe High School to a group which has adopted the name of the Grosse Pointe Anglers' Club.

There are still openings in the class, which meets each Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Instructor of the group is Deward Brewer, Michigan professional casting champion. The Board of Education is sponsoring the class and there is no fee. All interested residents will be welcomed as members.

Lanes Enjoying Belated Vacation

Everitt B. Lane, Grosse Pointe Park municipal manager, is in Miami, Florida, on a belated vacation.

Found Guilty Of Socking Boss

Joseph L. Seguin, of 22031 Tuscany, East Detroit, was found guilty of assault and battery in Grosse Pointe Woods court Saturday, Feb. 10, by Judge Don Goodrow.

Seguin was referred to the Wayne County Probation Department.

Police said that Seguin attacked contractor Allan Benjamin, of 4675 Beaconsfield at 2000 Oxford on Jan. 5.

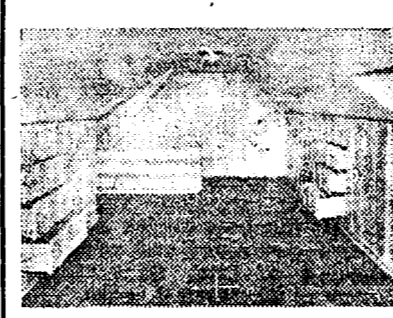

Seguin became angered when Benjamin fired him for arriving late on the job at the Oxford address where a house was under construction, police said.
