Green Stamps help keep MICHIGAN PRICES DOWN!

Like the ads of local merchants that you see in this newspaper, S&H Green Stamps boost business. At the same time they help keep prices down.

Here is why: When a store sells more, it can sell for less, since bigger volume brings lower costs.

Stores that use S&H Green Stamps must sell competitively. Michigan housewives are expert shoppers. They read the ads. They check and compare prices. And they can't be fooled!

Trading stamps are being saved today by two out of three American families—about 35 million in all. And their use is still growing in this and other States.

For the best values, shop at the stores in your community that give S&H Green Stamps.

Pollution

(Continued from Page 1) of 13 cubic feet of water per second (a cubic foot of water equals 7 1/2 gallons). The consultant engineer proposed better and larger pumping equipment to increase the flow to 84 cubic feet per second with the sewage and water going into the Detroit sanitary sewer system under Jefferson.

Offences Charged

In its findings, the Water Resource Commission charged that the Park has been discharging portions of sewage and surface water runoff collected by the city's sewers and drains, without treatment for removal of bacteria and offensive matter normally present in sewage.

This discharge, the Commission said, contaminates the waters of the creek, thereby creating conditions injurious to public health; and in addition, solids are deposited in the creek which create conditions offensive to sight and smell to the extent that this affects the use of the water's for recreational purposes.

The Commission notified the Park that it had until May 1, 1962, to abate the condition, by constructing, operating and maintaining treatment or control facilities, so as to correct the situation.

Schedule Laid Down

The Park was ordered to adhere to the following schedule:

1. On or before December 1, 1960, submit complete construction plans and specifications for the facilities to the State Health Commissioner and obtain his approval, as required by law.

2. On or before May 1, 1961, complete construction contracts for the facilities in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the Commissioner.

3. On or before May 1, 1962, complete construction and place the facilities in operation and thereafter operate it in such a manner as to prevent the unlawful pollution of the creek.

Hearing Date Set

The notice stated that if the Park failed to meet the requirements of the orders, it would be in default.

The Water Resource Commission said that a hearing on the facts and proposed order will be held on Thursday, March 31, at 2 p.m., in Room 133, Stevens T. Mason Building in Lansing, on the adoption of a final order of Determination for abatement of the pollution of Fox Creek.

Robbed Farms Homes

In the Farms, the home of Dr. H. A. Jarre, 58 Merriweather, on July 26; in the Woods, the home of Jack Ventimiglia, 1806 Prestwick, on September 7; in the City, a gas station at 17450 Mack avenue, owned by Gerald Watson of 1241 Bishop road.

In Harper Woods, the home of Robert Klefer, 20649 Beaufait, on October 5; the home of Joseph Ditomags, 18888 Eastwood, and a gas station at 20270 Harper, owned by Joseph Salome, address not given, both on October 10.

The other 1959 burglaries confessed to by Goley, while he was in jail, were the following homes: Dr. Warren Hardy, 1021 Buckingham, on August 10; Robert Birdsey, 1037 Bedford, on August 13; Frank Porter, 517 Barrington, on August 15; and Philip Rahm, 1046 Audubon, on August 25, the latter being the basis for which the Federal warrant was issued.

Admits Seven More

On February 9, Goley admitted to seven more, these committed last year, also: the home of William Nixon, 560 Lakeland, on July 27; William J. Fenley, Jr., 499 University, on September 4; John Trost, 884 Cadieux, on September 17; John Hoag, 226 Kenwood court, and John Nyles, 332 Chalfonte, both on July 25; Mrs. G. V. N. Lothrop, 16 Provenal, on September 5; and Mrs. Mary Scoville, 263 McMillan, on November 5.

Goley, who has spent more than 30 years of his life in jail, and who was paroled from Jackson Prison last June, is also wanted for burglary by police departments in Kentucky, Missouri and Ohio, where he is said to have operated after his prison release.

Intoxicated Youths Nabbed

Erwin turned to Yacks as the latter reached for him, and made a move to strike the officer. Yacks raised his arm to ward off the expected blow, and his open hand hit Erwin on the neck, below the jaw, whereupon, Erwin screamed his jaw was "broken" and threatened to sue the officer for striking him.

Lt. Zeeb ordered Erwin locked up. For one hour, the officers said, Erwin rattled and banged the bars of his cell, but became quiet when he was threatened with a water soaking.

Erwin refused to tell police where he had obtained his liquor.

The Pistons and Lakers have been involved in one of the NBA's most bitter rivalries this season. In 12 games going into Wednesday's night season finale, each had won six and lost six. Three contests went into overtime with the Lakers winning two of them. Three other games were decided by three points or less.

Including television, Saturday's game will draw one of the largest corps of newspaper, radio and TV personnel ever to cover an event in the city.

Cadillac

First Place in Wonderful Miles per Gallon!

It is difficult to imagine a more enjoyable way to use a gallon of gasoline than to put it through its paces in a Cadillac.

For this great motor car translates it into the most wonderful miles imaginable.

Just how would we describe the distance that rolls beneath the wheels of a new Cadillac?

The first word that comes to mind is—"effortless". The car's ride is incredibly smooth and level and easy. And driving itself requires but the gentlest touch on wheel and pedal.

Next, we would nominate "quiet". It is virtually impossible to detect the operation of its engine—and the only sound of motion is the lilting song of the wind.

Certainly, we should include the word "gracious". For the car surrounds the driver with matchless beauty and elegance.

And we would add "efficient". For a Cadillac is surprisingly economical in operation.

Nor is this the entire vocabulary of Cadillac performance. There is "dependable"—and "restful"—and "inspiring".

We suggest you come in soon and let a new 1960 Cadillac work its magic on a gallon of gasoline with you at the wheel.

U-M Announces Entrance Tests

The University of Michigan has announced that it will require College Board examinations of applicants wishing to enroll in the Colleges of Literature, Science and Arts, between June 1961 and February 1963.

This experimental program was announced recently in Ann Arbor at the Midwest Regional Meeting of the College Entrance Examination Board. Attending this meeting from the Grosse Pointe Public Schools were Jerry J. Gerich, principal of the high school and Robert J. Hanson, guidance coordinator. This program has been designed to study the value of pre-admission examinations for applicants to these colleges of the University of Michigan. The Colleges of Pharmacy and Nursing are also included in this group.

"By these examinations, the university hopes not only to establish a certain achievement level expected for prospective students, but to eliminate unneeded material from the college introductory courses," said Mr. Gerich.

The battery of tests will include the Scholastic Aptitude Test; an achievement test in English rhetoric; an original English composition; and an achievement test of the student's choice, in one of the following subjects: biology, chemistry, advanced mathematics, physics, social studies, French, German, Latin, Greek, Italian or Spanish or the Advanced Placement Program examination in any of these subjects.

Though this is only an experimental program at this time, it will be required of all applicants to the University of Michigan from 1961 to 1963. Admission to the University will not be determined only on the College Board tests, however, according to Mr. Hanson. "As in the past, many types of data will be taken into consideration," he stated.

After completion of the two year experimental program, a joint review of the gathered data will be held by representatives of both the University and the high schools. At that time, it will be determined whether or not the examinations have been an aid in achieving the objectives set out for the study. If the program has proved itself, it will be under consideration as a permanent requirement for admission to the University.

Little Leaguers Must Register

MRS. VIRGINIA WILKIE, registrar for Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores Little League Baseball, is registering BOBBY, her son, for the 1960 season. All boys eight through 12 are eligible to register Friday, March 11, between

Dr. Bell to Talk On Alcoholism

"Alcohol in Modern Society" is the subject to be discussed by Dr. R. Gordon Bell, of Toronto, when he speaks at Christ Episcopal Church, Thursday, March 10. The talk will be given at 8 p.m. in the Undercroft and will be followed by a question and answer period. The entire community is welcome.

After serving in the Medical Corps of the Canadian Army where he found many cases of alcoholism and other addictions and little knowledge of how to deal with these cases, Dr. Bell upon his return to civilian status decided to dedicate his life to research and treatment in that field.

Dr. Bell serves on several government committees and commissions in the field of health, and is a visiting lecturer at the University of Toronto Medical School. He also lectures widely throughout the United States and Canada. He is a well-known and extensive contributor to medical journals. His Health Clinic in Toronto for the treatment of Alcoholism and Addictions has rehabilitated people from throughout the world.

Dr. Bell believes that alcoholism is such a complex problem that the only successful therapy must approach it from several angles: medical, psychological, physiological, and spiritual.

Dr. Bell spoke at Christ Church in December, 1958, and was so well received at that time, he has been invited to return.

Education may be an end in itself, but the popularity of education depends upon economic benefits to be received.

The trouble with most people is that as soon as they get a few dollars ahead they plan a twenty-dollar expenditure.

Lenten Drama At St. James

"Christ in the Concrete City," a one-hour chance dramatization of the trial, crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ in terms of contemporary city life written by Philip Turner, will be presented at St. James Lutheran Church, McMillan and Kercheval, at 8 p.m., Wednesday, March 16.

Cross and Crown Productions presents "Christ in the Concrete City" as a retelling of the central event of Christian history in a manner that brings God's judgment and forgiveness uncomfortably close to men and women who live in the concrete cities of today. It is an intense and powerful drama, and is completely faithful to the New Testament account.

munities were counted, and volunteered their services as officers and committee chairmen.

Irvin G. Wolf, 1012 North Brys drive, Grosse Pointe Woods, was elected chairman of the chapter committee to study the type of State services that should be provided the people of Michigan. Mr. Wolf is principle of Denby High School.

Elected chairman of the chapter committee to study new means of financing needed State services was Ted Jankovsky, 4301 Kensington, Detroit 24, special class instructor at Burroughs Junior High School, 8950 St. Cyril, Detroit.

Chairmanship of the chapter committee on State legislation affecting approved State services went to Robert L. Halbrook, 4321 Buckingham, Detroit 24, an attorney.

The Chapter membership elected a publicity chairman to handle all chapter press notices. He is Gerald L. Morin, 10406 McKinney, Detroit 24, an automotive body engineer formerly employed by American Motors.

Mr. Morin joined Citizens For Michigan last September, shortly after its founding at a statewide meeting in Lansing. George Romney, president of American Motors, is state chairman and chief spokesman of the non-partisan civic organization numbering over 2500 members throughout Michigan.

There are over 400 paid-up members in the Wayne County area alone, he said. Dr. Warren B. Cooksey, a member of the Detroit Board of Education, is the Wayne County Chairman.

Dr. Ralph Conant, who has a Ph. D. in political science and government, was the main speaker at the Chapter meeting. The subject of his brief address was the important role of the individual in local chapter organization work. Although Citizens For Michigan already has over 100 new state chapters formed in the past five months since its inception, he emphasized the need for more volunteers to increase membership and raise needed funds to continue operation.

Six Meet Woods Filing Deadline

Six persons, including Mayor Kenneth Koppin, have met the March 1 petition filing deadline for Woods municipal offices, according to information released by City Clerk Leona D. Liddle. The city election will be held on April 4.

Mayor Koppin, who lives at 1271 South Renaud, is unopposed for his third two-year term.

There will be at least one new face around the council table following the election, since Councilman James Hunt of 1856 Littlestone, has chosen not to seek reelection.

Two other councilmen, Kenneth R. McLeod of 20729 Wicks; and Benjamin W. Pinkos of 1924 Broadstone, announced their candidacy for another two-year term.

Three newcomers will try to unseat the two incumbents, or attempt to get the most votes to fill the vacancy that will be left by Hunt.

These councilman aspirants are: Martin W. Chamberlain of 1386 Roslyn; Walter R. Dushane of 1692 Littlestone; and George D. Foster of 1971 Boardstone.

Three councilmen are to be elected.

School Building Fund Progresses

The Our Lady Queen of Peace High School Building Fund Campaign reached the mark of $158,000 in cash and pledges going into last week's third Memorial report meeting. This represents gifts from 262 parishioners in just three weeks of solicitation.

In commenting on the progress to date, Rev. Emil A. Capano, pastor of Our Lady Queen of Peace said, "This figure represents the results of only three weeks work by 104 members of the Memorial Gifts Committee. It shows that the parishioners are accepting the keynote of the drive—'Sacrifice not Convenience'. I am confident that the parishioners who will be visited in the weeks to come will respond with the same measure of true sacrifice."

Following the report meeting, over 150 additional volunteer workers assembled in the School Hall to learn their role in the coming general phase of the campaign scheduled to open Sunday, February 28. The workers will meet prior to the Solemn Opening to pick up their assignments and final instructions. At 3:30 p.m. they will attend the opening services in church and Monsignor Carroll F. Deady, former Superintendent of Catholic Schools for the Archdiocese of Detroit, will be guest speaker. After receiving the individual blessing from Father Capano, the workers will then begin visiting every parishioner who has not already made a gift to the program.

The campaign is scheduled to continue in its active phase until March 17, at which time a continuation committee will be organized to handle the follow-up phase during the two year pledge payment period.

Parcels P.T.A. to See Student Exhibits

Parents who attend the next P-TA meeting at Parcels Junior High School will be given a comprehensive explanation of the junior high school educational program. The date of the meeting is Wednesday, March 16.

The program will start in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock with a very brief business meeting conducted by P-TA President Charles Begeman.

An educational film titled "The Junior High School Story" will depict the needs of students at this age level and the characteristics of a curriculum designed especially for them. Vincent Peterson, Principal, will provide the academic program provided at Parcels, interpreting for parents the varied learning experiences of their children. The range of subjects studied, and the content and emphasis of each department will be explained briefly.

Will Make Tour

For the remainder of the evening parents will be invited to make a special Observation Tour of the building. All classroom teachers and counselors will be in their rooms to confer with parents who have specific questions about the academic program. Special exhibits have been prepared to show the types of learning activities, textbooks and supplementary materials which will be on display, as well as special projects undertaken by various departments to enrich the regular instructional program. A point of special interest will be the science department's display of student projects which will be submitted as entries to the Metropolitan Detroit Science Fair.

As the main feature of the evening three departments will hold Open House in their classrooms, presenting almost 100 students doing actual class work for parents to observe. There will be student interpreters to explain the various activities, and many samples of student work. In the Industrial Arts Department the students at work will include a group of seventh grade boys demonstrating their assigned work in plastics and electricity.

Will Work on Lathes

Ninth grade boys will be making darned eggs. In the drafting room eight boys will be working on typical assignments, while in the print shop eighth and ninth grade boys will set type and ninth graders will run the presses. In the metal shop eighth and ninth grade boys will use the various pieces of equipment and explain the sequence of skills required for class projects.

The Junior Homemaking Department will be the scene of much activity. Seventh grade sewing students will explain their introduction to sewing skills, including how to use the machine, reading a pattern, assembling and finishing a garment.

Seventh grade girls will be busy cooking nourishing breakfasts, while ninth grade advanced cooking students will demonstrate and explain principles of meat cooking. The Boys Cooking students will display their skills, too. Eighth grade girls will prepare lunches, emphasizing well-balanced and thrifty menus and attractive table settings.

Students from the eighth grade sewing classes will explain time and cost factors as they work on sewing assignments. Ninth grade girls will demonstrate all steps of more advanced sewing projects, to illustrate the progress made in homemaking skills during the junior high school years.

Artists to Demonstrate
In the adjoining rooms of the Art Department more than 30 budding artists will be demonstrating every phase of art

Europe Preview Starts March 14

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association in cooperation with the Detroit Institute of Arts Extension Service is offering a series of illustrated lectures entitled "Preview for Europe" beginning Monday evening, March 14, at the Center and continuing at 8 o'clock each Monday evening thereafter through April 4.

The course is designed to equip those planning on going to Europe either immediately or in the future with a knowledge of what to look for in the famous museums of the major cities and to guide them to the principle architectural gems and landmarks in and around the great metropolises. The class is limited to 25 members and there is a fee of $6.00 for the four lectures to cover expenses. Paid enrollments are requested in advance at the Center.

Ann Haggarty of the museums staff will be giving the lectures with rare slides of the best of Europe's Art Treasures. After thoroughly covering all the "musts" in the environs of London and Paris Miss Haggarty will move through the famous chateaus of the Loire to Rome, where are located so many of the great art treasures of the church—Michelangelo's Pieta in St. Peter's, the Stanzas of Raphael in the Sistine Chapel and of course the great remains of pagan Rome, The Pantheon, Coliseum, and columns of Trojan.

In Florence, Miss Haggarty will guide her audience through the Uffizzi Gallery with its famous Raphael's and Botticelli's and will tour the great palaces of the Franes, Medeci and Riccardi.

Venice with its marvelous mosaics, and paintings by Bellini, and Tintoretto will be the last city visited and will share honors with Florence on the final night.

GPHS Musicians Win Top Honors

The Grosse Pointe High School Concert Band and Orchestra again received the highest possible rating that an instrumental group can acquire at the District Band and Orchestra Festival sponsored by District 12 of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association and held at Redford on Saturday, March 5.

Out of a possible five division ratings, both groups received a unanimous First Division or "Superior" rating from all eight judges, which includes competition in concert and sight reading events.

Sixty-four bands and orchestras and some 1500 students participated in Saturday's festival.

The orchestra panel consisted of—Louis Potter, Michigan State University; Orion Dalley, University of Michigan; Merette Rider, Hope College; and William Ftich, Eastern Michigan University.

The orchestra performed its required selection, "Toccata" by Girolamo Frescabaldi, followed by the "Concerto Grosso in G minor" for two violins, cello and string orchestra by Antonio Vivaldi, and the Overture "Theodora" by G. F. Handel.

Richard H. Snook is director of instrumental music for Grosse Pointe High School.

Thomas Wolfe Classic at Cass

The turbulent and overwhelming story the late and revered novelist Thomas Wolfe told in his great novel "Look Homeward, Angel," uncannily dramatized by Kitty Frings, arrived here starring Miriam Hopkins, at the Cass Monday evening, February 29, for a limited engagement of two weeks. No drama has met with more praise and more success in the American theatre. Its prizes and awards commence with the Pulitzer and include the New York Drama Critics Circle.

The opening night of the play in New York presented some special aspects. The citizenry of Asheville, N.C., where Thomas Wolfe grew up and proceeded to write about, originally received the publication of "Look Homeward, Angel," as a novel, with irate displeasure. Librarians in Asheville refused to have a copy on their shelves. Asheville clubwomen stopped speaking to Thomas Wolfe's sister Mabel. An anonymous correspondent warned young Wolfe not to return home or they would drag his "overgrown karkus" through the streets.

But years passed and when the play was about to have a Broadway premiere, Miss Mabel Wolfe and Thomas' brother Fred saw to it that anyone and everyone from Asheville who had an interest in attending was able to buy seats. So the opening night audience was "full of Asheville." And no one could be truly sure of just what Asheville was going to think about the play. Whatever Thomas Wolfe thought of Asheville, his roots were there solid and vigorous. The surviving Wolfes knew that having a play adapted from one of his novels open in a Broadway theatre would have been the most important night in Thomas' life.

Emily Post—Social Blunderer

Although the words "Emily Post" are synonymous in most of our minds with "the right thing to do in any social situation," we'd like, this month, to introduce you to another side of this almost legendary lady's personality. Here, with great warmth and humor, she turns the tables and tells about some of the wrong things that have been done in some social situations—by herself, and others.

Stone's Row

Edward Stone, our most distinguished architect, tells how row housing can contribute to order and beauty, and can help to save us from the threatening prospect of exhausting even more of our valuable countryside in a nightmare of endless, ugly billboards and honky-tonks bounded by millions of little box-houses on tiny plots.

New Skit By Ustinov

Peter Ustinov is a big, brilliant, full-of-life, youthful (39) author, playwright, producer, director, star (of stage, screen, radio, and television), recording artist, and devoted husband and father. We are happy to bring you his version of how three very different wives would react to an identical situation on their anniversary.

Back-yard Bonanza

Up to 1948 there were only 2,500 home pools built in the U.S. In 1959, 45,000 were built, many of which cost less than a new car, principally because of the use of new materials and construction methods. Here are some of the effects of this boomlet on our way of life.

Homer Hill

One of the country's foremost water colorists salutes all the boys, everywhere, who are this very minute dusting off their old kites or trying to get an advance on next week's allowance to buy one to catch the March wind.

GETTING AROUND

...to Our Pleasant Places and People

When enterprising eight-year-old Cub Scout Tommy Fagg, of Birmingham, Michigan, needed some West Virginia soil to complete a Wolf Badge collection, he naturally took the matter straight to the top. He wrote to West Virginia governor Cecil Underwood asking for a spoonful of soil from the capitol lawn. Tommy got the soil, of course. What we'd like to know is whether he and the governor made some kind of a deal, since the last paragraph of his letter went like this:

"Please, sir, if you are in a bad mood or if you don't have time today, please lay this letter where you may see it tomorrow so that my request may be granted. I will campaign for you when you run for President."

Also under "Children With Initiative," place the name of 11-year-old Christine Kimble of Chestertown, Maryland, who caught 8,140 lightning bugs, which she sold to the scientific research division of the Biology Department of Washington University—for almost $25.00.

Ladies, if your puppy's been a little "down in the dumps" lately, or if she looks at you with that "I don't have a thing to wear" expression in her big, limpid, brown eyes, get in touch immediately with Mrs. Geraldine Ann Winston of Englewood, New Jersey, eminent designer-for-dogs, who has, in her time, run up blazers, trench coats, strapless gowns, and (get this), mother-daughter outfits as part of her canine couture.

Most people would look at a pile of scrap plastic pipe and say, "There's a pile of scrap plastic pipe." Not John H. Ward, though, of La Jolla, California, who saw such a pile and immediately thought up a lounge chair that floats on pools, small lakes, and other still waters. "Anyone who has spent some time either sitting or reclining on a boat at anchor in quiet water," he says, "is well aware of the soothing, relaxing effect of the gentle, rocking motion."

(Ed. Note: Why not a floating table, too, so we can all get together for a gentle, soothing bridge game?)

The seventh-graders at the Fort Couch School of Upper St. Clair, Pennsylvania, are keeping busy this year doing odd jobs and planning other activities to raise $180.00—the price of becoming a Foster Parent. Their child is their own age, lives in France, and will probably end up giving his many lucky parents more than he gets in terms of cultural exchange and a fine sense of responsibility.

One Nassau County, New York, Savings and Loan Association gives a 20 percent dividend. Through the "Little Shavers Savers' Club" the kids drop a nickel in their accounts, and get a penny lollipop back.

Thanks, Adeline Pepper of Summit, New Jersey, for the following bit of suburbiana:

Soon after they moved into a handsome house in the wooded foothills of New Jersey's Watchung Mountains, the head of the house thought he saw snakes on the terrace one night (after three cocktails). A couple of days later, cold sober, and in broad daylight, the lady of the house did see snakes—bright, deadly copperheads (she was sunbathing at the time). Well, it kept happening, until the family, in desperation, called in a snake expert, who dug around and came up with this verdict: "It's no use. You've built your terrace on the site of a copperhead den. They'll always come back, even if you dynamite 'em. The only thing you can do is sell out to people who like snakes."

BY EMILY POST

A BONER, according to the dictionary, is a social blunder. Since all of us are apt to make mistakes and even the best mannered and best intentioned are liable to accidents, a boner may be made by everyone sooner or later.

As a philosophical six-year-old put it, "Everyone spills their milk sometime."

He made this remark at a luncheon in his own honor at a moment when he himself happened to be the center of anguished attention. He had been asked out by admiring friends of his family's, and was seated at his hostess' right, pink cheeked and serious, in his best Sunday blazer, when the roast chicken was brought in.

"Slices," he cried. "Slices and cress. My favorite!" and spread his hands wide, knocking over his tall, untouched glass of milk. Commotion, of course, followed and only young Frank showed a poise any man of the world might envy. One saves embarrassment all around if one has the humor and modesty to take one's own boner lightly.

I found myself in a similar predicament at, of all places, the International Dinner of the Gourmet Society. It was a brilliant affair, with superb food and wine on a menu that featured 211 sorts of international specialties including my downfall—Sweden's garnet-red, syrupy, lingonberry conserve. As I was raising my hand in a gesture of agreement with the man on my left, I had the misfortune to intercept a waiter who was trying to pass me a large bowl of the conserve. It upset with, to my ears, a loud, dull thud, all over the Gourmet Society's glittering white damask. My partner's sentence was cut off in mid-air, I heard the waiter whisper "Geel!" and in the next instant the president of the Society was on his feet.

"Ladies and Gentlemen," he began, with twinkling eyes, tapping his glass for their attention, "I have an extraordinary announcement to make to you. Our guest, Emily Post, noted authority on etiquette—Mrs. Post has spilled the lingonberry conserve on the tablecloth!"

Then, bowing in my direction, he led the applause, and my boner was made to contribute to the success of the evening. The morning papers carried the story, but if they had consulted me I should have advised them that it really wasn't news—"everyone spills their milk sometime."

Boner at the White House

Boners, of course, are always in the nature of emergencies, and it calls for quick thinking, the ability to put oneself in another's place, and sometimes for ingenuity amounting to genius if one is to handle them successfully.

There is a historic story of a White House reception for the diplomatic corps where a young naval aide, confronted with an extremely awkward boner, acquitted himself handsomely on all three counts. As the line moved slowly toward the President, the charming wife of the minister from one of the Latin American republics realized with

Social Blunders . . . My Own And Others

Everyone makes one sometime

—including this famous authority on etiquette

horror that a piece of her underwear was slipping. Before she could think what to do, much less do it, her feet were entangled in a web of lace-trimmed pink silk. Instantly the young aide was at her side. With grave dignity, he bent, picked up the offending panties, laid them across his arm, and disappeared. Only the couple directly behind saw what had happened. Gradually the flaming color died from the guest's cheeks, and her heartbeat slowed to normal. Later in the evening, as she left, a footman offered her, on a silver tray, a discreetly-wrapped small package.

I am not likely to forget entertaining at luncheon for the first time a distinguished editor who was as shy as he was brilliant. When he started to cut the lamb chop on his plate the knife struck the bone in a way to send the chop skidding onto the floor. I desperately wanted to laugh, but one glance at his alarmed expression warned that even a smile would have been unpardonable. I continued to talk while pressing the bell. When the maid appeared I merely pointed to the chop. She brought a dustpan and brush, swept it up and carried it away. In another moment she brought and offered my guest another chop. I devoutly hoped he would know this was a spare, and not the acrobatic chop dusted off. I have found it is a good rule always to have extras on hand when one entertains, for just such contingencies.

Probably everyone has had the nightmare of going expectantly to a party to which one was not invited. The nightmare became a reality for a young lawyer and his wife the first time they were invited to dinner by the firm's senior partner. They arrived punctually at seven forty-five, but on Tuesday instead of Thursday. Their host was entertaining that evening for a celebrated English judge. The table was set for fourteen. While cocktails were being served, two more places were added. Impressed and somewhat bewildered by finding themselves in such distinguished and elderly company, the young couple did not know until they went home and looked at their invitation that they had turned up at the wrong party.

The reverse of this blunder is made when someone accepts an invitation and then forgets to come. Once in a lifetime it happens to almost everyone. At a large cocktail party the boner is not as great as at a luncheon or a dinner where a gap in the table cannot be ignored. If it happens to you, make your apologies at the earliest possible moment, perhaps send flowers or a book, depending on the circumstances, and if it is any consolation, remember that no one could possibly feel as bad about it as you do yourself. If you are the injured party, the apology, of course, should be acknowledged promptly and warmly.

Always keep engagements

To fail to keep an engagement for the reason that something has turned up you would rather do is not a boner but downright rudeness. When my son was a freshman at college, he and twenty of his classmates were invited to a dinner dance for the sister of one of the young men. A popular orchestra had been engaged and dinner and decorations were carefully chosen, but to my son's horror, he was the only male guest to arrive. He and the debutante's brother danced with each of the five girls who had come, but the evening, of course, was ruined.

"Never make an engagement," a wise and busy man once said, "but if you do—keep it."

Week-ends provide innumerable pitfalls in games and sports which it is better not to join in unless one can hold up one's end. To try to play tennis or golf or go skating with no previous experience, and with experts at these sports, is to make a boner no one can overlook. The woman who insists on going deep-sea fishing, although she knows she is no sailor, is as great a social blunderer as the woman who makes a fourth at bridge with three keen players, and keeps up a flow of chatter all through the game.

But sometimes, in this unpredictable world a boner can actually turn out better than a flawless performance. The wife of an enormously successful financier now loves to remember the boner she made the first time she went out with her future husband. She met him when, as a girl of sixteen, she was visiting her aunt in Cincinnati. To everybody's astonishment, a friend of the family's, a rising young lawyer as he then was, asked her to lunch with him at the Netherland Hotel and go to a concert.

"I want to go," she said to her aunt, "but I'm not sure I'll know what to do. I've never been out to lunch alone in a big hotel."

"That's all right," said the aunt. "If anything comes up that seems strange just watch what he does, and do the same."

So her impressive beau called for her and when they got to the hotel he, of course, checked his hat and coat. Watching carefully, his young guest immediately removed her own hat and coat and handed them to him. Turning a stern eye on the hat-check girl, he said, imperturbably,

"Will you please check these things with mine?"

The girl realized her mistake the moment she got to the dining room and saw all the other women with their hats on, but her escort gave her no time to brood, and was more entertaining and attentive than he had ever been before. Two years later they were engaged.

"But I know now," she says, "that I fell in love with him the day he saved my face at lunch, and did it so wonderfully."

Two hair-raisers

Two of the most hair-raising boners I have ever heard of were saved from becoming disasters by the quick wits of two of the people concerned—that near-genius ingenuity I mentioned before.

The first was made by two women who had crossed on the boat with an older man whom they knew. Their friend had made rather a fool of himself in a shipboard romance, and they had seen nothing more of him after the dance on the last night out. They went directly to Paris, and the next morning they were enjoying a leisurely breakfast on the balcony outside their hotel room, discussing the crossing and, of course, sparing no words about the man's recent absurd and indiscreet behavior.

Social Blunders

The telephone rang in their room and when one of them went to answer it, it was he.

"I must tell you," he said, "I have been having breakfast on my own balcony, which is directly underneath yours, and I can hear every word you are saying."

The woman who had answered the telephone felt as though the floor were dropping from under her but she managed to say,

"Will you meet me at once in the hotel lobby?"

"Very well, if you wish," he said stiffly, and hung up.

When she got downstairs she went directly up to him and said, "I think you are a very great person to have called us up and told us you could hear us, instead of just overhearing us and hating us, as I should think you must now, and never letting us know what we had done."

They then sat down to talk and, in the end, his honesty, and hers, and old friendship won out.

Probably the most famous boner of our time was made by Joseph Grew, our ex-ambassador to Japan. He was speaking at a Red Cross Sunday luncheon in Washington, at the opening of the annual drive, and his topic was selflessness. By way of example he pointed to General Marshall who had just returned from a gruelling trip to China and was due to go off almost immediately to Europe. Nevertheless, he had taken time to come to the luncheon although, said Mr. Grew, he had been looking forward to a "week-end in the country with Mrs. Eisenhower."

In spite of themselves, the dignitaries burst into a roar of laughter, and Mr. Grew realized the slip he had made. To make matters worse, Mrs. Eisenhower was at the table.

As soon as he could be heard he turned to her—what else could he do?—and said,

"Please forgive me, Mrs. Eisenhower, and please apologize to the General for me."

Beaming, Mrs. Eisenhower inquired,

"Which General, Mr. Grew?"

It's the same for ambassadors, evidently, as it is for all the rest of us—if you don't make a boner once in a while, you haven't lived.

Plain talk about power mowers

How to pick a power mower

There is a big difference in power mowers that goes past the price tag, beyond the pretty paint. Certainly price is important. That's why some mowers are made to sell for less. But where value is concerned, even high price is no guarantee. How do you know you're getting your money's worth? Don't settle for sales talks. Find out for yourself fast, with the six-step test for power mower buyers.

Take any power mower. Look it over. Lift it. Start it. Listen to it. Then look at LAWN-BOY. Measured by any yardstick, this is the mower built for value! The nationally known, nationally serviced brand. The one that sets a standard others would like to live up to. This time, get more mower for your money! Go LAWN-BOY! Wide selection for every kind of lawn, starting at $59.95.

SIX-STEP TEST OF A MODERN POWER MOWER

Standard to judge any power mower by—before you buy!

- 1. TILT the mower, as you would to clean it or to mow along a hillside. Oil should not leak out or spill. A drip-free LAWN-BOY mower keeps oil in the engine for full-time lubrication.
- 2. FLEX the blade. It should be pre-stressed, under tension. A long, whippy blade cuts unevenly, can cause crankshaft damage. LAWN-BOY uses a short, hard shaft, with bronze main bearings.
- 3. TAP blade housing. It should be solid as a rock... yet lightweight. Thin steel stamped housings will vibrate, can spring out of shape. LAWN-BOY light, strong, durable aluminum housings never do.
- 4. LIFT the mower. It should be light, easy to push or turn. Not too big, not too heavy. LAWN-BOY is aluminum-light, nimble and comfortable to use. Even the handle is designed to fit you better.
- 5. START the engine. Several times. Starting should be easy, fast, sure. LAWN-BOY is famous for fast starting. Hottest ignition spark on any mower delivers years of easy one-pull starting.

- 6. LISTEN to it. Does it roar? Or spit fumes a step ahead of you? It shouldn't. LAWN-BOY has the biggest mufflers of any power mower. And exhaust is under the mower, away from you.

AT LAST! Complete automatic lawn care in one modern mower! New LAWN-BOY Grass Catcher rakes and sweeps as it mows!

Ask for a free demonstration on your own lawn today. Look in the "Yellow Pages" under Lawn Mowers for your nearest LAWN-BOY Dealer, or write LAWN-BOY direct.

Must They Drive To School?

Some say a student can't keep a car AND his academic standing... others are contrary-minded

BY GEORGE WEINSTEIN

BEFORE THIS YEAR is out, there will be a crisis in nearly a million American homes. Family finances? Illness? Divorce? No. Simply this: a million boys will reach the driving age, and in nearly every one of their homes a family struggle will reach a climax. In most cases the boy will win, and at dawn's early light on the day he is sixteen he will sprint to the nearest auto-license bureau.

The turmoil, instead of subsiding, will then generally pick up speed.

"Who gets the car tonight?"

"Why do I always have to drive Mother to the supermarket? Why?"

"No, I did not put that dent in the fender."

The next round will follow fast—when Junior decides he's fed up with all this and must have a car of his own. Paying for it will be no problem. He'll just get a job after school. Now wide-open warfare breaks out. Mom gets tearful, Dad gets his hackles up, and Junior gets ready to join the Marines.

At this point, the school gets into the act. In many communities 30% to 50% of the high-school students drive to school. Parked solid for block after block, they create problems in the neighborhood. At lunch time, they may cut up or go joy riding with their girl friends. Sometimes they don't bother to come back.

Thus the schools are being forced to take on another job—policing driver-students. Some provide parking areas with students or teachers in attendance. Others forbid noon-hour driving or driving to school altogether, except for absolute necessity. Parents, who should be thankful, very often resent this rule.

They learn, to their sorrow, what many schools have already found out: that car-owning generally sends students downhill—or out. For example, a four-year study by Willis Nelson, principal of Madison High School, Rexburg, Idaho, showed that not a single one of his "A" students and only 15% of his "B" students drove a car. But 41% of the "C," 79% of the "D," and 83% of the failures and drop-outs did.

A survey by the Niles Township High School, Skokie, Illinois, disclosed, among other things, what car ownership can do to good students. Once they had acquired cars, a large number of those in the upper quarter rode themselves right out of it. Many of the new car owners were out riding seven evenings a week.

In Grand Island, Nebraska, principal Noel Lawrence found that sixty per cent of all boys quitting his high school did so because of an automobile. Where parents owned the car, there was little effect on grades. But when the student was the owner, he generally did poor work.

A Texas principal says, "We find it difficult to get enough qualified boys out for major athletics because so many are working after school to pay for the upkeep of their cars. Even if their parents give them the money, they'd rather ride around."

William Condit, vice-principal of Belmont High School, Los Angeles, comments, "It's almost beyond comprehension why parents allow it."

But school officials are not unanimous on this question. In Artesia, New Mexico, it was found that just as many good students drove cars as poor ones—27% of the "A," 20% of the "B," 21% of the "D," and 23% of the failures.

Row Houses Can Be Beautiful

Properly designed, says this famous architect, they can give small owners more for their land and their money

BY EDWARD DURELL STONE

IN THINKING about the development of our country for future generations, it may be well to examine the greatest common denominator affecting our countryside as a whole—that is the American home.

It may be hard for us to realize that we are following a tradition that dates back to Washington and Jefferson. As our country was settled largely by the English, and land in the early days was in overabundance, we elected to follow the pattern of the English country gentlemen with our houses settled comfortably in large acreage, which was cultivated for a living. Mt. Vernon and Monticello are examples of the large plantation houses of the early days, and this idea of life was borrowed directly from the English gentleman's way of living. The tradition has continued in this country for 300 years.

On the continent of Europe, the ideas on living were entirely different. Probably for protective reasons the French, Italians, and Spanish built compact villages with houses wall-to-wall, with cloistered garden patios and courtyards which afforded them privacy and, more important, left the surrounding countryside free for development into Suburbia Today is in no position to take sides on the question of row housing versus separate dwellings, but we consider it a privilege to be able to present Edward Stone's views. Now engaged in plans for the National Presbyterian Church and in creating a great plaza to house New Orleans' International Trade Mart and port facilities, Mr. Stone has recently been appointed architect of the $75,000,000 National Cultural Center.

parks and groves, or beautiful garden-like farm land. Everyone marvels at the French countryside where the compact villages are laced together by roadways lined with great avenues of trees, and the adjacent fields are frugally cultivated by people who have a fundamental love of the land. And this is managed in a country the size of Texas, with a population of 45,000,000 people. How many of us today have green fields left to look out on or a sense of open country beyond our own property lines?

It is self-evident that if we had followed the pattern of continental Europe in developing our country instead of the English idea, many of the problems which now beset us would not exist.

But instead, as time has passed and land has increased in value, we have persisted in the idea of the single-family dwelling although it has lost all of its former advantages. Placed on a 70-by-100-foot plot, there is no longer any privacy. It is economically unsound as it requires extensive and lengthy utility runs for power, water, sewage, and telephone. Further, an extensive roadway system must follow, a continuing menace to children and adults alike. The homeowner is beset with janitorial duties and becomes a maintenance man, whether he enjoys it or not.

And worse still, our countryside is rapidly being exhausted. In last month's issue of this magazine you saw Dr. Jerome Pickard's projections on the super city indicating that, by another generation, 85% of us are going to be settled in and around our great cities. More of our land will be used up in the settlement. According to calculations, it will be an area equal to that of the state of Illinois. Is this, too, to be cut up into noisy roads and 70-by-100-foot lots?

Now, what is needed is a complete reversal in

3 Cheese-Garlic Dressings no one can buy

... make one tonight with this GOOD SEASONS MIX

Good Seasons Cheese-Garlic Dressing. A fresh and creamy dressing, full of fine blue cheese and with an undertone of garlic! Takes seconds to mix. Easy directions on the Good Seasons envelope. You add your favorite oil, vinegar and a little water to the Mix. The water, or a substitute liquid, makes the blend smoother. (A continental chef's secret!) You can use many substitutes, vary the dressing to your own taste. See recipes below for delicious suggestions.

Cheese-Garlic and Olive Dressing. To make this, substitute sour cream or mayonnaise for the water when making your Good Seasons Dressing. Just before final shaking, add 1 tablespoon of chopped ripe or stuffed olives. Wonderful on a green salad. Add French fried onions (canned or prepared frozen), toss with this dressing—a triumph!

Cheese-Garlic Dressing with Wine and Chives. Men cheer for this one. Use wine—white, vermouth or sherry—instead of water. Final touch: add 1 or 2 teaspoons of minced chives or onions. Try it with a new salad of greens, sliced raw mushrooms (marinated briefly in dressing) and slivers of sweet red peppers. Delicious, also, with salads of tomatoes, avocados, sea food, or chilled, cooked vegetables.

Get the new Good Seasons cruet, with measurements marked, where you buy the 7 Mixes: Italian, Classic, Cheese-Garlic, Exotic Herbs, Bleu Cheese, Garlic, Onion.

showing land use in a conventional development and in row housing

CONVENTIONAL DEVELOPMENT
—535 HOUSES

ROW HOUSING—540 HOUSES

WITH THE CONVENTIONAL DEVELOPMENT the land is cut up into 70x100-foot lots—one to each of the five hundred and thirty-five houses—and the balance is used for the network of communicating roads. With row houses, on the contrary, a much more limited amount of land is allotted to each house in order to preserve a central sweep of country for free play, recreation, and natural beauty. There are six row houses to each unit, and a single boundary road is able to serve them all.

our thinking for future suburban development. In considering a suburban area to be developed, an access road around its perimeter is all the roadway that is required. The houses themselves should be built wall-to-wall around courtyards accessible from the roadway. From the outside, they would look much like one another. However, as you entered one of them, it would bloom into a welcoming shelter with generous rooms and careful detailing — such rewards would be possible even with a very modest investment because, as already noted, row-housing offers savings in basic construction. The walled garden or courtyard behind the house would be peaceful, satisfying and, above all, private. The courtyards, with their surrounding houses, should penetrate, like fingers, a larger park area in the center of the development, and this can contain playgrounds, schools, and shopping facilities, so that every dwelling quadrangle has access to these facilities without ever encountering any roadway with vehicular traffic. The accompanying plans show the type of community that would result.

Row-housing has a bad name with us because it designates those dismal stretches of "company houses" built to shelter the workers in a factory town. The purpose behind them was to provide minimum accommodation for a maximum labor force and make every inch of land pay—and they look it.

If your aim, on the contrary, is to make the most of every inch of land, you can have row-housing of a very different sort. If communities such as I have described were widely spaced and the roadways kept free of other construction, the whole pattern and appearance of our urban regions would be enhanced, and were we to think of what we built as a heritage for future generations, we would be able to preserve the beauty of our countryside, even in the thickly settled areas to come, where most of the next generation is going to be living.

Less than a year ago, I was in New York with the late great Frank Lloyd Wright. As he looked at the skyline, he said,

"We can do away with all this—four of my mile-high buildings would do the job, the rest could be pasture."

Somewhat hard to come by, but we can all use a shot of his vision, audacity, and honest arrogance.

Our highways are a nightmare of billboards, honky-tonks, and filling stations. We can influence legislation. Why not campaign for trees along our roadways which would form a veil between them and commercial establishments placed back a prescribed distance? And why not use row housing to bring order into the developments to come, to help preserve the country we have left around our great cities and to make our new way of living more rewarding?

Something

Suet molds for the early robins...

MY SON, who eats like a growing tiger, was in the kitchen one afternoon slathering half a jar of peanut butter on a piece of bread. I've steeled myself to the sights of these little snacks and didn't turn a hair until I saw him sprinkle a liberal handful of sunflower seeds on top!

"Anne and I are writing a cookbook," he explained, "and I'm testing the recipes."

"Well, your sister Anne is certainly going to give you indigestion," I countered.

"Don't be silly, I'm not going to eat this. It's strictly for the birds!" And he opened the kitchen window and shoved it onto the bird feeding tray attached to the window sill.

"I think we'll call that 'Open-Faced Delight,'" said his sister as she strolled in. "Now let's make 'Pine-Cone Dessert.'" I watched over her shoulder as she carefully printed on a three-by-five card:

PINE-CONE DESSERT

TAKE: One healthy pine cone with wide spaces between sections.

FILL: Each space with peanut butter.

ATTACH: A small wire near the tip.

HANG: Outdoors!

(Cook's note: Chickadees love this.)

It all began as a Scout project, it seems. Anne, an Intermediate Girl Scout, was working for her bird badge, and Mark was doing some bird "Electives" as a Cub Scout. The Scouts have led this family down some pretty quaint paths, but this one got us a hundred new dependents, and not a one of them deductible!

The children's recipes proved extremely popular. Take this sure-to-please confection:

BIRDIE CAKE

Cut the top off a milk carton and wash it out with cool water. Then MELT: 1 cup shortening and 1/2 cup of peanut butter.

STIR IN: 1 1/2 cups of wild birdseed.

Cool and pour into milk carton. Put it in a cold place. When it's solid, peel away the carton, and place the seed cake in a feeder.

Visitors were often startled to find the refrigerator full of cartons of birdseed. I thought I had discovered a way to cut down production when I pointed out our feeders were already oversupplied, but the children quickly figured out that a piece of wire added to the recipe would create a new feeder. Before filling the milk carton, they pushed a sturdy wire through the bottom, knotted it with a twist so it wouldn't pull out, and held it centered while they poured the seed mixture in. When it was cold and firm, they peeled off only the sides of the carton, leaving the bottom and the wire to support the seed cake. They promptly hung these from the trees, and we soon had even more bird dependents.

My yelps of pain every time I discovered the peanut-butter jar was empty again led my little Scouts to work out some recipes that called for suet.

"Suet's cheap," they assured me.

Suet, it turned out, was nonexistent; at least as far as those gleaming meat cases in the supermarket show, it's nonexistent. So I went back to the little recess where the butcher hides, and rang his bell.

"Suet, the lady wants? Sure, got lots of it."

He came out with a great bundle of it, beaming.

"You feed the birds, too? You know you make a little cage out of wire mesh, the stuff they call hardware cloth, and fill it with pieces of suet, and you'll get nuthatches and woodpeckers, and the early robins love it, too.

"No charge, no charge. Compliments of the market!"

The children were delighted that the cost of birdkeeping was going down. They worked out an "Economy Birdie Cake" using melted suet instead of shortening and peanut butter, and they were allowed to prepare it themselves as they used the double boiler to melt the suet. It's a lot slower that way, but safer, and it doesn't smoke.

On my stove now stands a scrubbed tin can and into it go the makings of:

ODDS-AND-ENDS PUDDING

TAKE: All the little leftovers birds like, such as bread crusts, nuts, cereals, and the ends of peanut-butter sandwiches.

PUT: In a can.

POUR: Leftover grease over them. Make sure there's enough fat to hold it together. (Add melted suet if there isn't.)

CHILL: Then open the bottom of the can and push the "pudding" out.

As a matter of fact, though, economy is no longer an issue. I am so enchanted by our feathered friends that I would gladly subsidize a peanut-butter factory, if that was the only way to keep them coming to our yard. Good appetite to them all!

A PLAYLET IN THREE ACTS

BY PETER USTINOV

*What would happen to an Englishman . . .
a Frenchman . . . and an American . . . if he asked a business friend home for dinner on his anniversary*

ACT I:

Hampstead, outside London

HE: Hallo, dear.

SHE: Hallo (takes his umbrella and closes door).

HE: I say, I ran into Johnson at the Club today. He's very keen on the Union Consolidated idea, and if he's keen, you know, that's half the battle.

SHE: Yes.

HE: Now, of course, I don't expect you to understand the actual details of the contract, but still, it might rather interest you to know that things are going quite well, quite well indeed.

SHE: It does.

HE: Would you object if Johnson came here to dinner?

SHE: Not a bit. When?

HE: Tonight, I mean.

SHE: Tonight? I wish you'd given me a bit more warning.

HE: Surely you can manage. He'd understand if it's not too grand. I could open a bottle of the South African wine, that'd make up for a lot. After all, it's the gesture that counts, not the food.

SHE: What's the date today?

HE: Blowed if I know. Sixteenth, isn't it?

SHE: It's the fifteenth. The fifteenth of June.

HE: And very cold it is, too, for this time of year.

SHE: Do you remember what happened nine years ago today?

HE: Bannister ran the mile.

SHE: No.

HE: Danny Kaye at the Palladium?

SHE: No.

HE: Oh, I know, we climbed Everest.

SHE: No.

HE: I give up.

SHE: We were married.

HE: Gracious, how time does fly. I suppose I ought to congratulate you, or something?

SHE: That depends on how you feel.

HE: Tell you what, let's make the rounds tomorrow. Would you like that?

SHE: (rises and goes)

HE: Where are you going?

SHE: To the kitchen. Where else?

MME.: My love, what is this foolishness (opens box, and begins to laugh delightedly). Oh Henri, I have thought and thought about which form it would take this year, but never, never, even in my most wild imaginings could I have expected this. The stone, it takes my breath away! Is it really, . . . it is . . .!

M.: Precisely nine carats, my own. (Watches, smiling, as she puts pin on before the mirror.) Mauaime, I regret infinitely that on this, our anniversary, I have had to invite M. Labrige from the Banque de France for dinner. Will there be enough to eat?

MME.: (smiling) Of course.

M.: I am desolate, but there is a very important business reason for this. I hope you understand.

MME.: (smiling) Absolutely.

M.: You don't seem the least upset.

MME.: Why should I be?

M.: Well, I thought, our anniversary . . .

MME.: Labrige . . . isn't he the dark man we met at Cannes . . . Who was such a divine swimmer?

M.: He swims a little, I think.

MME.: He was an absolute dare-devil on water skis.

M.: He is entirely too active for a man of his age . . . ought to watch his heart.

MME.: Isn't that true of all of us?

M.: What do you mean by that?

MME.: Happy Anniversary, darling.

M.: Thank you. Of course, it would have been very rude not to invite Mme. Labrige as well.

MME.: Now you go too far. There is food for three in the house, but I can't possibly cater for four at such short notice.

M.: (appealing) Mauaime.

MME.: Charles called.

M.: Which Charles?

MME.: Charles de Montfort.

M.: That rat.

MME.: Women find rats very attractive at certain times.

M.: At what times?

MME.: Anniversaries. He asked me to go out with him tonight. I could leave the dinner in the oven. All you need do is to take it out. Do not forget to use the asbestos gloves.

M.: (rises and goes to the telephone)

MME.: (rises and goes to the closet) You must put another glass in to chill for Mme. Labrige. No, never mind, I will do that before I go. And the escargot, do not forget the escargot.

M.: (dials)

MME.: (pulling dress after dress out of the closet for examination) Oh, why did I send Denise away tonight of all nights?

M.: (fumbles, hangs up, and begins to dial again)

MME.: What are you doing?

M.: I am going to cancel Labrige (smiles bravely). Let us forget the dinner . . . 'Allo, M. Serge Labrige, if you please. . . After all, this is our anniversary. I'll take you out. MME.: (as M. is already trying to talk to Labrige) Do you mind if Charles joins us?

THE CARE AND FEEDING OF JET PASSENGERS

Before we start flying our new jets in June, we'd like to assure all our friends (including you we have yet to meet) of this: the manner in which we have served you in the past will not change one little bit.

We'll still be serving up generous portions of the Swiss culinary art that won gold medals for our chefs at the International Cookery Exhibitions. And we're still going to offer our first-class transatlantic passengers our special gourmet's delight: a 3-foot menu that spills over with 29 mouth-watering delicacies (we present it days before flight time so you can make your selections leisurely, at home). Our hostesses right now are back in school preparing themselves to provide these and the numerable other unhurried little personal services that will make your Swissair jet flight the most pleasant, memorable travel you have ever known.

And as all this is going on, gigantic new Swissair jet hangars are nearing completion in Zurich. Their counterparts already have been completed in New York. Here, we will have the facilities to service our aircraft the only way we know how—with the care of a watchmaker. As, in fact, many of our maintenance people actually are.

These are but a few of the unseen efforts that so conscientiously go into the care and feeding of Swissair jet passengers. To sum it all up, we call it SWISSCARE. You'll know what we mean the moment you board your first Swissair jet flight. From New York, beginning in June, we'll be flying big new Swissair Douglas DC-8 Jetliners right to the heart of Europe. From there (with increasing frequency during the summer) we will have swift new Swissair Caravelle jets to speed you on to key cities in Europe and the Mid East. Just call your travel agent or local Swissair office for reservations.

Turbocone T.M. by Jacobsen

Before you spend another dime on your old mower, or waste time looking for "bargains", ask your Jacobsen dealer to put a Jacobsen rotary with Turbocone Miracle Mowing on your lawn for a demonstration.

Turbocone by Jacobsen is an exclusive-design cutting unit with amazing air-lift action that raises low lying grass and weed stems to be cut sharply—not shredded—by the four keen blades that provide twice the cutting action of ordinary rotary mowers.

Result—a smoothly cut lawn, even on rough terrain. And it cuts clean because the intense blower action of Turbocone, coupled with Jacobsen's unique grass chamber design, propels and distributes clippings freely, reducing "clumping" or matting to a minimum.

Safe because the blades retract when hitting a concealed solid object, protecting the mower against damage, and reducing the hazard of flying debris.

You'll find a model designed just for you—with either a Jacobsen Heavy-Duty or a popular 4-cycle engine. Get your Jacobsen dealer's address by looking under Lawn Mowers in the yellow pages of the phone book, or write us.

The one grass-catching rotary that is supremely safe—

Fun, With Strings Attached

AS OUR COVER INDICATES—see excerpt, left—kites are flying high. Over forty million of them are sold each year in this country. This in itself is a startling statistic. Even more surprising, perhaps, is the fact that kite flying is no longer the exclusive province of dirty-faced little boys with a spare dime. It is becoming an international adult sport, and numbers among its devotees the Maharajah of Bharatpur and Fredric March, who has his kite with him now in Singapore.

The World-Champion kite flyer is Connecticut's Will Yolen. With a group of other mature citizens, he is actively trying to have kite flying entered in Olympic competition. Mr. Yolen started flying kites when he was 35, and has sent them up everywhere in the world (he prefers airports and beaches for good wind conditions). He is captain of a fine team of aficionados including Sloan (Man In The Grey Flannel Suit) Wilson and Peter (Tunnel of Love) De Vries—both, incidentally, are also members of the proposed official Olympic Team.

Will Yolen believes that kite flying is a pastime which can add much to family fun in America. And it's not only "just fun," he says. A highly technical sport, sometimes requiring more than a dozen team members, it helps develop skill and coordination, builds strength, and is great exercise. Even more important, according to the Champion, it can be a community activity in which people get a chance to know and help each other.

BIG SPLASH IN THE BACK YARD

*Almost any homeowner can be a pool owner today
...and here are some points to look at before you leap*

BY DAVID X. MANNERS

TAKE A RIDE down any suburban street and you won't be aware that anything has changed. But fly over the same area in a plane and you'll see what is happening. Carefully hidden behind fences and shrubbery, they can't often be spotted from the ground, but from above, they wink like emeralds and sapphires. They are back-yard swimming pools, many of them brand-new.

Now, for the first time, it's possible for almost anyone who is regularly employed to own one, for pools that cost $10,000 to $20,000 a few years ago are now going for less than the price of a new car. You can buy a 16x32-foot pool, with plenty of diving depth and including essentials, such as filter and skimmer, for approximately $4,000. If you pitch in your own labor, you can have one for less than $2,000.

Whereas in all the years up to 1948 a mere 2,500 home pools were built in the United States, in 1959 alone more than 45,000 were installed.

New methods of pool construction have made the difference. Old-style pools were usually poured concrete. The introduction of gunite pools, made by spraying concrete out of a hose, started prices downward. Then prefabricated pools made of Fiberglas, aluminum, and steel added the savings of assembly-line methods. But the biggest price-buster has been the plastic liner.

Fabricated to the shape and size of the desired pool, these giant, one-piece, heavy-gauge plastic "bags" make any supporting structure watertight, make it possible to build pools of unorthodox materials which of themselves might not hold water. One of these is wood, another is low-cost concrete block. And with a liner, the pool bottom can be sand instead of concrete.

Liners also eliminate the necessity for expensive periodic pool painting. Their material (usually vinyl) is color-impregnated. Moreover, no scrubbing is necessary to keep them clean. Dirt and algae brush easily from the silky-smooth finish of a plastic pool liner.

But liners do have their limitations. Their life expectancy is likely to be no more than ten years, and replacement cost is a whopping $300 to $500. They can be punctured. A dog, falling into a pool and struggling to get out, has been known to claw a liner to shreds.

With prices what they are, almost any homeowner is a prospective pool customer. A pool builder in New England, checking on the purchasers of his last 50 pools, found that only nine were high-paid executives or professional men. All the rest were salaried workers earning between $6,000 and $8,000 a year.

Banks in the warmer sections of the country are generally liberal in helping out on financing pool construction.

Frequently offered are terms of nothing down, up to five years to pay.

Despite all the recent publicity, there are still many misconceptions about pools. One is that their water has to be changed at least once a year. This isn't true. Actually, filtering and chemical treatment can keep it pure indefinitely. In winter, it is preferable to leave the water in the pool, for water or ice will provide a counterbalance against the weight of the earth pressing on the pool wall. Many pools don't even require that logs be thrown in to absorb the stresses of freezing. And so, in the off-season, they can be used as skating rinks. Lengths of 2x4-inch lumber along the edges are usually all that is required to protect plastic liners from damage by skates.

A typical pool may hold from 15,000 to 40,000 gallons of water, but no special plumbing is needed to provide it. A garden hose can deliver it in a few days. Where water is expensive, it may cost 50 cents per thousand gallons, or $7.50 for filling a 15,000 gallon pool.

There are undeniable risks in a back-yard pool. However, a fence, a self-latching gate, and strict safety rules largely eliminate its hazards. Pool covers, made of strong lightweight screening, offer protection for children and pets. Legal responsibility, incidentally, doesn't end with putting up a fence. If a child climbs over it and gets into trouble, the pool owner is still responsible, for the court considers pools an "attractive nuisance," and it is not unknown for groups of youngsters to scale a fence when the homeowner is away. Liability insurance is a must.

A pool, in a sense, represents a way of life. Like fire, water has a primeval attraction. Merely to sit beside it invites contemplation, relaxation, is something of an antidote to the intense scramble of modern living. But certainly a pool is not all relaxation. An average pool demands from two to four hours of care a week—adding chemicals, sweeping and scrubbing, vacuuming. In many areas, professional agencies handle the job for 30 to 40 dollars a month.

Once you decide to buy a pool there are pitfalls to avoid. With sales booming, and little capital required to get into the pool-building business, the unscrupulous promoter has moved in. Typically, he may build concrete pools with not enough cement, too thin walls, not enough reinforcement. The result: pool walls crack and leak. The surest safeguard in acquiring any pool is to know your builder, check his background. Is he a solid, established resident of the community? Inspect pools he has built. If they have survived a full year in the ground with no serious complaint, it's likely he knows his business. If they have been in for two years, you can be certain.

Be sure the quoted price on a pool includes all essential equipment, and that it is not a stripped-down model used to bait you into buying. Without a filter ($300 up) you'd ington, Kentucky, says, "Very few of our students who drive cars are on the ineligibility list. It is my personal feeling that attitudes rather than cars are the main factors in poor grades."

Must They Drive To School?

And how do the students feel about all this? As would be expected, most see nothing wrong with owning a car.

A student at Lower Merion High School, Ardmore, have to empty and refill a pool every two weeks. You'll need an automatic surface skimmer ($25 to $90) and an underwater vacuum cleaner ($75 to $125) to clean the pool walls and floor. And you may want a pool heating system ($400 up).

All of these items are likely to cost you less if they are included in the "pool package," when you buy the pool. There are also desirable "extras"—a diving board ($75), underwater lights ($45), and chrome ladders ($80). Paving around the pool ($200 up), a fence ($200 up), and a pool cover ($110 up) are near-essentials. Then there are maintenance costs: figured for a 16x32-foot vinyl-lined pool, average $10 a month for electricity to run the filter, and $12 for chemicals.

MANY project developers, especially in Florida, California, and the Southwest, are offering private pools with new houses. One development of 37 homes in California's San Fernando Valley has provided a pool for each of them. A builder in Phoenix, Ariz., recently offered a 3-bedroom house and a 15x30 pool, all for less than $10,000.

As to how much you should spend on a pool—one Midwest pool manufacturer advises: Don't spend over 15 percent of the value of your house on a pool if you expect to get your money back when you sell your property. And don't get a pool that's larger than you actually need. A 15x30 or 16x32-footer accommodating ten swimmers have been found highly satisfactory for average families.

Before you go too far with pool plans, it is essential to check with your local zoning commission and/or building inspector. In the Chicago area a private pool is all but outlawed by code provisions which rank it in the same class as public pools: A professional lifeguard must be in attendance at all times, and it must close no later than 10 p.m. Archaic Washington D.C. codes add an unnecessary $100 to pool costs by requiring a water-supply line to the pool, even though it's not needed, and by banning plastic pipes for this line. Yet one plastic-pipe manufacturer thinks enough of his product to guarantee it for 20 years. Scarsdale, N. Y., has no code, but conducts a hearing on any application for a pool. If anyone objects, there's no pool. Many municipalities require a fence.

Without doubt a pool adds sales appeal to a house and, in some instances, it may even turn a profit for the owner. For example, consider the man who spent $7,800 for a pool and all that went with it, used it for three years, then sold the house for $9,000 more than expected, all because of the pool. Then there was the Florida realtor who couldn't sell a $25,000 house and, in desperation, decided to spend $3,000 to add a pool. Three days after it was filled with water, he sold the house for just under $40,000.

The day may soon be at hand when, as some pool salesmen now contend, a pool will no longer be a luxury but a home improvement, an investment in family living. He waters down sales resistance by having the potential buyer and his family swim in a model pool. That makes it easy to take the final plunge.

Pennsylvania, says, "If you are mature and responsible enough to own your own car, you should also be mature enough to realize that schoolwork is your first obligation."

A senior in Coral Gables, Florida, declares, "I have a car and I use it when I have to. I don't spend a lot of time rodding it up; as a matter of fact, no time at all."

A student in Downers Grove, Illinois, says, "In my contacts with persons who own cars, I find they are able to use them wisely."

A survey in New Jersey brought out some interesting slants. Here's one from a junior in a large high school: "There are many good reasons for owning a car: first, to get to school conveniently; then, after school, if you have a job, to get to work quickly. On week-ends, if you get bored just hanging around, you can go somewhere or do something. Then, too, taking care of a car—washing, waxing, fixing, and fancying it up—will keep you busy and out of mischief."

No homework, son?

A GIRL CAR OWNER, a not-so-rare specimen any more, observed, "My father gave me this car rather than turn it in for a ridiculously low price. I drive to school because I can get home easily in time to help my mother with the housework or shopping. I never use it on dates because it's embarrassing to boys."

One practical young man sees it this way:

"Saving up money for gas will teach you economy and thrift; giving the right of way to others, courtesy and manners; keeping a car in running condition, responsibility. All of these will come in handy in later life."

An engagingly frank senior from a Virginia school said, "I know my grades wouldn't go down if I had a car. The only way they can go is up, for right now I have straight 'F's', and I don't even own a car."

Though very much in the minority, a surprising number of youngsters take a dim view of the idea. Said a junior, "Irresponsible teen-agers account for most of the bad driving. They give all teen-agers a bad name. We should wait until we're out of high school before running our own cars."

Another junior declared, "It's too much of a responsibility for a high-school boy. Around here, it costs almost $300 for insurance if you drive your own car. That's for only $20,000 liability. Supposing you have an accident where someone sues you for $100,000, and wins. You're hung up for life."

A senior had this souring experience:

"Last year I used the money I was saving for college to make the down payment on a used car. To keep it, I had to work every afternoon and evening until 9 o'clock, and all day Saturday. When I got home, I was usually too tired to study. Then one or two nights I'd go out. I flunked two subjects—the first time I had ever flunked anything. After six months, I'd had enough. I got rid of the car, gave up my job, and buckled down to studying. I'm going to college in the fall, but that bad semester is going to make it tough for me to get into the college I want."

And so the great debate goes on—should Johnny drive his own car to school?

After all the studies and opinions are in, the conclusion seems to be that it all depends on Johnny.

MOMMY!... MOMMY!... MOMMY!

To mothers, that cry means that there's another cut, scratch, scrape, or burn. It also means she should get iodine—but she often doesn't, because iodine burns and stings, upsets youngsters. Here's good news. Science has discovered a new kind of iodine that stops infection best yet doesn't burn or sting. It's polyvinylpyrrolidone-iodine*, found only in ISODINE® ANTISEPTIC. Where other types of antiseptics may kill only 1, 2, or 3 types of germs, ISODINE kills all types—even virus and fungus. And up to 40 times faster. Get painless ISODINE ANTISEPTIC. GPYC Keglers Frolic at Party

Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's Friday Night Bowling League had its regular kegging session last Friday, March 4, but it definitely was in a different dress and a different atmosphere than usual.

Planned well ahead of time as a "Gay Nineties Party", the members bowled in the garb of that decade — the men in suits of loud plaid design, brocade or white starched waistcoats, and derbies or straw sailor hats; the women in floor-length dresses with high, snugly-fitting collars around their throats, their hair piled high in curls and puffs.

Naturally all that finery, and particularly the men's handlebar mustaches, couldn't be wasted on bowling alone. Members chipped in with party ideas and plans were carried out by the Friday league chairman, Carl A. Berndt, and Mrs. Berndt, the latter stunning in a long white dress with which she carried a dressy little sun parasol of the era. Mr. Berndt was quite magnificent with a big, bulky watch chain and fob draped over his starched waistcoat — he wore a plaided suit and straw sailor.

No high bowling scores were reported, but there was fun galore. The party started with cocktails at Renaud road home of Dr. and Mrs. Karl Weber. From there the crowd went to GPYC's Fo'Castle where Manager Fred Gebstadt had had tables covered with red and white checked cloths for the old-fashioned dinner. Mrs. Leonard West played for impromptu group singing — an the crowd really did bowl, finally.

Besides the Berndts and Webers, the Friday kegging league present included the Norman Vanderzees, the Gaylord Hulberts, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barrows, the Roland Postels, Dr. and Mrs. George Granger, the Arnold Hofmanns, the Harlow Stahls, the Forrest R. Olds, the Leonard Wests, Mrs. Irene Sorensen, Frank Adam, the Dan Holefcas, the Theodore Friedts, the H. Richard Fruehaufs, Jr., the Leo Schultes, Mrs. Morley Keyes, and Mr. and Mrs. James N. Moischall.

Smith College Club to Meet

The Smith College Club of Detroit will meet on Tuesday evening, March 15, at 8 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Brace Krag, 185 Merriweather road.

Speaker of the evening will be Detroit Smith Club president, Mrs. Perry TeWalt, who has returned from the 45th Alumnae Council at Northampton, Mass.

90 Years of Memories

About a month before the surrender of Lee's forces at Appomattox Court House, Va., MARTHA McLEAN was born in Pittsburgh near the province of Ontario. Four years later she moved to Grosse Pointe and for the past 91 years has made her home here. Martha McLean Auckland, who has watched the Pointe grow from a sleepy hamlet to a thriving suburb will celebrate her 95th birthday on March 19. To mark this occasion she has written a memoir of her life in the Pointe, which we reprint here.

"I lived in Ontario with my parents until I was four years old and then came to Grosse Pointe, Michigan. One sister was born in Ontario. My other two sisters and four brothers were born in Grosse Pointe Farms on the Smith farm."

"We lived with the William Webb family on their farm and my father, John McLean, worked this farm for himself. We lived in a large old fashioned farm house that had two brick ovens in the dining room that was used to bake the bread. Our home was heated with a huge wood stove and we stayed here for about one year."

"About 1873 we moved to Dr. Isaac Sidman Smith's farm, and lived in 'Willow Cottage.' My father worked this farm on shares."

"While living there an ice jam on Lake St. Clair occurred. We could hear the roaring and moaning of the ice as it started to break and huge cakes of ice piled up on top of each other and made great ice piles. The force of the ice cakes brought huge rocks up on the main road, which is now Lake Shore Drive. Some of the ice cakes pushed in under the willow trees and raised them up out of the ground."

"When I was about 18 years of age, we moved to the old Kerby farm which Senator McMillan had purchased. My father managed the farm for the Senator.

"We farmed on a small scale and also had sheep, horses, cows, pigs and chickens. The sheep were Spouthdowns—a purebred sheep. The horses were trained for saddle horses and Senator McMillan engaged a trainer to handle the horses. The trainer was a Negro and his name was 'Shy.'"

"Senator McMillan went to Scotland for a trip and when he returned, he was so interested

In golf that he built a 9 hole golf course on the Kerby farm. A number of men were employed building this course and also a mile track that was used for pleasure only.

"A baseball diamond was also built inside the mile track. On Saturday afternoons there always was a baseball game held by the young men of the community. The players came in a Talleyho Coach to the diamond and there was quite an audience. The Coach was an open affair painted red with seats for the players and was quite the thing. There also was a band playing at the games. The golf course was the first in Grosse Pointe. When bicycles first became popular some of the ladies used to come up to the track to try out the bikes. After the Senator bought the Kerby farm, it was called Hamilton Park."

"One of the first churches in Grosse Pointe was on Lake Shore Road and Kerby Lane. Rufus Kerby gave a corner lot from his own property for this building. Ministers of different denominations could preach here."

"I was married on January 19, 1893 to Alfred Auckland. I met Alfred when he came to Grosse Pointe to work on George Hendrie's home. He was a carpenter and had learned his trade in England."

"We had a home wedding and Reverend John Kelly married

AROUND-THE-CLOCK—The atmosphere is quiet as the U. S. Senate holds an around-the-clock, historic civil rights debate in Washington. The basic issue is the right of Negroes to vote in the South. At top (from left) Senator Clifford Case (R), New Jersey, Norris Cotton (R), New Hampshire, Norman Brunsdale (R), North Dakota, Russell Long (D), Louisiana, Oren Long (R), Hawaii, and Alexander Wiley (R), Wisconsin, relax on cots set up in the old Supreme Court chamber. Jackson (D), Washington, sits on a cot in the Capitol's appropriations committee room while shaving.

FIREMEN SEEK BODIES OF DEAD BUDDIES—St. Louis firemen push through debris of a three-story, downtown building seeking the bodies of three of their comrades trapped by tons of rubble when the top floors of the building collapsed. Ten other persons were injured in the general alarm blaze.

TOWN AND COUNTRY—Blown by an ill March wind, the worst snowstorm of the winter plagued city folk and country folk alike. In Philadelphia, a bulldozer task force lines up downtown for another assault on drifts which paralyzed traffic. At Maple Hill, Kan., stockman R. E. Adams waits with his feed wagon as a road crew plows around Adams' feeding bunks for his 2,500 head of cattle.

Mexico Can Be a Gourmet's Delight

Natives and tourists sample the succulent foods at a typical fiesta in Mexico City. Seniors in native costume serve the guests tacos, tamales, tortas and other Mexican dishes.

THE SOUTH IS TENSE—As the South faced one of the most tense racial situations since the Little Rock, Ark., school integration crisis of 1957, thousands of Negro students demonstrated in front of a city court in Nashville. Inside 76 Negroes and four whites were being tried on charges of disturbing the peace in a drive for lunch counter desegregation.

SHE'S THE BEST—World champion figure skater Carol Heiss and her coach give a look to blade of one of her skates at the Olympics in Squaw Valley, Calif., before the final competition, the free-style figures. Coach is Pierre Brunet.

HE'S WILLING—Announcing before TV cameras in Detroit that he would not seek a seventh term as governor of Michigan, Gov. G. Mennen Williams indicated he is a willing candidate for a spot on the Democratic national ticket or "any place I could be of service." He is 49.

HISTORIC DEBATE—While the South is facing one of its most tense racial situations since Little Rock, Ark., 1957, the U. S. Senate holds an around-the-clock, historic civil rights debate in the Capitol in Washington on the rights of Negroes to vote in the South. Senate page boy Bill Owens of Alexandria is carrying a stack of civil rights debate records into the Senate chamber, and an unidentified spectator looks at the Capitol dome light signifying the Senate is in session.

UNCOVERED BY AGADIR DEMOLITION CREW—Two of the uncounted thousands of victims of the earthquake, tidal wave and fire which leveled Agadir, Morocco, were uncovered by one of the demolition squads bulldozing and dynamiting the rubble. The once-proud port city is being leveled to avert epidemics. Authorities now estimate death toll at 10,000.

HAD ONLY 1 TICKET—Mrs. Edith Grimsley, 28, of Los Angeles, holds part of her airline ticket from St. Louis to Los Angeles and her day-old son, Jack, in St. Luke's hospital, Denver. On a non-stop flight, Mrs. Grimsley realized she was going to have her baby before reaching Los Angeles, and the pilot radioed ahead to Denver to have an ambulance stand by. The baby was born an hour after the landing.

IT'S OK WITH ELVIS—Only hours away from his discharge from the U. S. Army and a return to his blue suede shoes, Sgt. Elvis Presley gave an OK sign at Fort Dix, N. J. He insists he never will abandon rock 'n' roll "as long as people keep appreciating it." To start him on the golden road of his return to show business, the Army gave him $145.52 in mustering-out pay.

NORTH POLE, AHOY!—After a 14-day, 21-hour, 2,744-mile voyage under the Arctic ice pack, the USS Fargo surfaced at the North Pole to become the third U. S. submarine to visit the pole. This Department of Defense photo shows the Fargo fully surfaced in the polynya (hole in the ice.)

ASTRONOMICAL ODDS—Odds against giving birth to two consecutive Leap Year babies are too high to figure, but Mrs. Lawrence Parsons beat those odds in Springfield, O. Mrs. Lawrence, who now has seven children, is holding her son born Feb. 29. She gave birth to another boy, Lawrence, Feb. 29, 1956.

GOVERNOR'S CHESSMAN CASE MAIL SWAMPS OFFICE—Charlotte Thomas, secretary to California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, leafs through some of the thousands of letters and telegrams received at the governor's office in Sacramento since he granted a 60-day reprieve to Caryl Chessman, the convict-author's eighth. Some of the mail praised the governor, and some condemned his action.

EXPERIMENT IS A SUCCESS—When the mother of Mike and Spike was unable to feed them, farmer Roger Saver of New Carlisle, O., decided on an experiment which worked. The 5-day-old heifer calf is puzzled and unhappy.

BREAKS DOWN—Breaking into tears as she awaited a verdict, co-defendant Carole Tregoff was comforted by defense attorney Donald Ewinggold in court in Los Angeles. She and Dr. Bernard Finch were accused of murdering his wife, Mrs. Barbara Jean Finch.

HEIR MALE, SPECIAL DELIVERY—Flying non-stop from St. Louis to her home in Los Angeles, Mrs. Edith Grimsley, 25, realized she would have her baby before getting to the coast city. The pilot radioed ahead to Denver for an ambulance, and the boy (tagged with a special delivery stamp) was born an hour after his mother reached St. Luke's Hospital.

Grosse Pointe's Fine Homes Constitute The Greatest Single Asset Of A Great Community

This is a special section dedicated to Grosse Pointe's greatest single asset, its fine homes. No suburban community in the entire nation can boast more beautiful residences.

The passing years have seen many changes. From the ginger-bread summer cottages of long ago, located on the shoreline of the original strip farms of the French and Belgians, the transition progressed to the first permanent, year-round homes of wealthy Detroit families who decided to move away from the congestion of rapidly-growing Downtown Detroit.

Then came the fabulous mansions of enormous size, dominating the lakefront. But the lure of the Pointe was felt by many, of varied classes. The open spaces were developed in subdivisions with restrictions designed to protect the character of the area. There are many sections where only very expensive houses could be built. Others were created for more modest residences, but always subject to regulations which carefully guarded the standards of the immediate neighborhood.

The building program has been going on for generations, and continues to go on today. One of the new trends is the "back to dining rooms" movement.

A few years ago people thought that a dining room was an unnecessary adjunct to a home, but they have come to realize that there is something convivial about sitting down at a proper dining table instead of eating off trays or snack tables.

The R. Alexander Wrigley dining room, right, in their Bishop road home, is done in stark white and black. The traditional architectural features of the room have been emphasized with the classical wallpaper. The table and serving console are antique French pieces refinished in antique-white. There is a black and white rubber tile floor set in alternate squares. The oval-back chairs are upholstered in black. This background is a perfect foil for any color scheme Mrs. Wrigley may decide to use in her table settings.

The dining room pictured below shows what can be done with a small area in an apartment. It is Mr. Robert Burckhalter's in Notre Dame avenue. The red carpet from the living room is repeated in the dining area. The walls are done in a metallic gold and avocado green scenic paper from Louis Bowen which enlarges and gives an illusion of depth to the room. The furnishings are all antique.

The rooms were planned and designed by Jack Navin and Bob Burckhalter of Deigh-Navin, Inc.

Fine Examples of Why Trend Is Reversed

Three Decades Bring Many Changes

Thirty years ago buildable lots in the Pointe were plentiful, the population, according to a Federal census, was 21,462, and business establishments were scattered throughout the area. Today, there are thousands of homes, the population is almost tripled, and there are hundreds of stores of every kind to cater to the needs of local residents.

In 1930, the United States was in the throes of a hard depression. As everything slowly returned to normal, people began to look about for prospective sites for future homes, and discovered the Pointe to be ideal.

Choice lots were purchased and homes erected, and an influx of residents gradually took over the Pointe and suburban living. Before long, the Pointe came to be known as one of the most beautiful residential sections in the state and country. Commercial buildings were constructed and business thrived.

Many Find Better Life

Within the last three decades, the Pointe's population increased through migrations and births, and more and more people found a better life in the Pointe. Today, 58,501 persons call the Pointe their home, an increase of 35,039, or 62.1 percent over that of the 1930 Federal census. (This figure is according to the Grosse Pointe School District census of May 1959, and does not include that portion of Harper Woods in the School District).

One of the finest public school systems in the United States is located in the Pointe, as well as fine private and parochial schools. Thousands of students have been graduated from these schools, many of whom have brought credit to their respective institutions.

Access to 1930 records is difficult, according to official Pointe sources, so that an accurate count of the number of homes in the Pointe at the time cannot be obtained, but by deducting the number of residential permits issued since, from the number of homes as of December 31, 1959, officials feel that a reasonable figure is 5,630, more or less.

Figures Vary Slightly

These figures vary slightly according to State equalized valuation, required by present State law for the purpose of school tax levies. By adding 10 percent, or $11,378,307, to the 1930 local assessed valuation, the State equalized valuation would have been $125,161,584, as compared to the 1959-60 State equalized valuation of $211,695,649, an increase of $86,534,265, or 69.14 percent.

Property valuation, local and State equalized, for the five Pointes for 1959-60, as disclosed by Pointe officials, are as follows: Park—local, $46,463,100, state, $52,150,780; City—local, $25,568,920, state, $28,035,160; Farms—local, $51,986,960, state, $57,001,342; Woods—local, $52,144,080, state, $56,397,876; and Shores—local, $15,809,520, state, $17,334,750 (including $2,091,626 applied to Lake Township).

The Shores, which is also Grosse Pointe Township, is assessed school taxes as a township on the State equalized property valuation.

Estate Is Township

Lake Township, (Ford estate) which is an integral part of the Shores as a village, must assume the identity of a township according to Michigan State Law because it is situated outside of Wayne County and in Macomb County. It is not part of the Grosse Pointe School District, which ends at the Wayne-Macomb county line.

The five Pointes steadily grew population-wise, as shown by the May 1959 School District census (1960 is a Federal census year), as compared to the 1930 census figure. This is the comparative breakdown:

In 1930, the population of the Park was 11,174; last May's census upped this to 15,860, a gain of 4,686, or 41.9 percent. City in 1930 was 5,173, and last May, 8,843, a gain of 1,670, or 32.3 percent; Farms in 1930 was 3,533, last May, 12,728, a gain of 9,195, or 260.3 percent; Woods in 1930 was 961, last May, 18,873, a gain of 17,912, or 1,863.9 percent; Shores in 1930 was 621, last May, 2,197, an increase of 1,576, or 253.8 percent.

Prospects for Future

What are the prospects of future increases in the Pointe population? According to a 1956 population projection report from the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission, some municipalities will undoubtedly attain maximum desirable population size before 1970, and others by 1980.

The report gives these projections, in round figures, regarding the Pointe:—

By 1970, the population of the Park should be 17,500; City—7,500; Farms—16,200; Woods—22,000; and Shores—4,000, a total of 67,200 persons;

The maximum increase should be reached by 1980, at which time the Park should have 18,000 residents; City—8,000; Farms—17,200; Woods—23,000; and Shores—5,000, a total of 71,200 persons.

The Commission pointed out that these projections should be regarded as "working figures" subject to reconsideration with the passage of time with the actual change in the population picture, and it does not believe that the population figure will be followed 100 percent.

However, the Commission feels that barring another world conflict, or another depression such as that of the 1930's, these population projections appear reasonable, desirable and attainable.

Home Exteriors Very Important

Improvements to the exterior of the home are not only as important as those in the interior, they also add to the beauty of the house and enhance the appearance of the neighborhood.

Residential and commercial building improvements are the work of the Squier Company, 19678 Harper avenue, Harper Woods. It manufactures and installs the most modern aluminum windows, storm windows and doors, jalousies, and designs and builds screened-in porches.

The firm is still owned by Thomas R. Squier, Sr., of 401 Belanger, who founded it 30 years ago. It has been located at its present site for 11 years. Quality and service have made the company known throughout the Detroit area and beyond.

Keep Old Customers

Company records show the names of hundreds of satisfied clients, many of whom have contracted for Mr. Squier's services when he first began in business and still have open accounts with him.

For a good many years, Mr. Squier operated his business alone. Then he took his son, Robert, of 1659 Stanhope, into the firm, and it became a family enterprise.

The younger Squier, a three-year World War II Navy flight instructor veteran, joined his father in the business immediately after he was honorably discharged from the service on December 23, 1945, with the rank of lieutenant. He still holds the rank and job in the Navy Reserve Air Corps.

Business Expands

The father-son team improved and expanded their business. They guarantee their work and products, regardless of how small or big the job.

The company specializes in aluminum screen and storm sash and enclosure work, and since its founding, has serviced hundreds of residential and commercial buildings. It has contracted for all kinds of work, from small openings to screening such buildings as the Detroit Tower Apartments in Detroit.

Not only do the Squiers manufacture quality products, but they are constantly seeking improvement of their items, to make better living for prospective customers.

The Latest Development

Their latest development is a Continental Awning window, a vast improvement over the double-hung conventional type house frame window. The new discovery is very versatile and flexible, and gives 100 per cent ventilation. It has ordinary glass. It can be installed with a minimum of alteration and labor.

The Squiers have an attractive display of their wares in the lobby of their building, where prospective clients can see and choose what is best suited for their homes, or commercial buildings.

The father-son team will help anyone interested in beautifying their premises. They will answer questions and aid in picking that which is most suitable, if clients are uncertain as to what is desired.

SELFISHNESS

Some people who have liberal views are willing to allow the liberty of others to end right there.

Unique Fireplace

This unique fireplace was designed by Albert D. Thomas, Inc., 18232 Mack avenue, for the Irvin Malcolm home at 1310 S. Oxford road. It is a combination fireplace-grill, made for the Malcolms, to fit their personal taste and specifications. The cabinet below, (the doors are wood), is for storage of grilling utensils. The circular hood is of copper.

'You Name It; We'll Build It', Says Albert D. Thomas

Well known in the Pointe for his home and office building and remodeling, Al Thomas, of Al Thomas Inc., 18232 Mack avenue, also is an expert in remodeling offices and office buildings.

In fact, his latest Detroit job, recently completed, was the R. O. Poik building at 431 Howard street. A glass front on the first three floors, a white and sand marble (imported from Italy), lobby—matched wall panels and stairway—along with aluminum entrance and curtain walls, just begin to tell the story of his work there.

Always up on the latest styles and developments in building, Mr. Thomas puts his talents and ideas to work on anything he tackles, and he is willing to take on a great variety of building jobs. "You name it, we'll build it," he says.

And he means it, as his reputation over the last ten years in the Pointe, points out. His efforts include factories (one on Mound road), clinics (one on Van Dyke road), doctors offices (Fisher at St. Paul), additions (among them a restaurant and a barber shop) and to the other extreme, he has built a very fine dog house on Whittier road. He also has a tree house, in the Pointe, to his credit.

He is, presently, best known out here for his home remodeling and additions. Many Pointe residents can boast of a library, sun parlor or family room added to their home by Al Thomas.

Still, jobs downtown are a very great satisfaction to him. One of his favorites is the work done for the Investment Letter Ink Co., when it moved its offices from the old Hammond building, (since torn down), to the Buhl building at 535 Griswold.

The job entailed the careful removal of fine Georgian detailed millwork from the Hammond building offices, and its re-installation in the Buhl building offices.

Another remodeling was done, also in the Buhl building, for Leo Burnett and Co. when the Chicago firm established offices here. These offices were done with the latest of innovations in the building and remodeling field.

Al Thomas, Inc., can and will build any type of structure, is easily accessible to Pointers interested in further investigating Mr. Thomas' work. And the offices in Mack avenue are equipped with such building items as acoustical tiles, ceramic tiles, floor coverings, wood paneling, etc., all these for inspection.

Mr. Thomas asks that you come in and inquire. He is interested in helping you.

Live Rabies Virus Protects Dogs Longer

The Southeastern Michigan Veterinary Medical Association would like to call attention to recent action taken by the Michigan State Legislature amending the dog law so that dogs vaccinated with modified live rabies virus of chick embryo origin will be recognized as being adequately protected against rabies for a two-hour period.

The older killed, or phenolized, vaccine will continue to be recognized for a one-year period.

This means that dog owners who have dogs vaccinated with modified live virus of chick embryo may obtain two annual dog licenses from this one vaccination.

Pecans Make Fine Furniture

Wood has natural beauty marks that make the face of a fine piece of furniture more interesting. Take pecan, for instance. Pecan tastes good to sapsuckers. They peck at it the way a woman with a sweet tooth goes after a pound of chocolates.

Tiny holes made by their beaks fill gradually with a darker growth and the grain forms around it. This year pecan, marked with the unusual graining that follows a sapsucker's nibbling, appears in one of the new French Provincial groups.

Casual Furniture Still Needs Care

How casual should one be about his casual furniture? The answer seems to be that it will take lots of use. Abuse is another matter. Some metals and fabrics are described as all-weather, but cushions need protection. Even a vinyl covered cushion will allow moisture to seep inside stitched edges. Cushions will stay fresh and bouncy longer if you give them cover from the rain.

Be enthusiastic, but don't set a pace of arguments to prove it.

Fame is fleeting for the man who has a little success and tries to camp on it the rest of his life. Narrow-minded people inherit a few prejudices and use them as guideposts in their journey through life.

Pointe Kitchen Center Expands Facilities

Joseph H. Schnur, President, Announces Firm Also Equipped to Modernize Bathrooms

Modern kitchens and bathrooms go together for better living, so due to public insistence the Pointe Kitchen Center, Inc., 19525 Mack Avenue, expanded its facilities and became one of the few firms in the area ready to take on both jobs for the home owners.

Joseph H. Schnur, president and owner of the Kitchen Center, said, "We have been modernizing bathrooms ever since our entry in the kitchen field, but only at the request of our clients. We found that when our services are needed to update a kitchen, nine times out of ten the home also has an antiquated bathroom.

"It requires the same careful planning and designing as that of a kitchen, except that space is more limited. We have been extremely successful in solving storage conveniences, and attractively finishing what might be termed an 'impossible area' in many homes where people felt it was hopeless. We have the manpower to step into this necessary field, since labor for bathrooms as well as kitchens require the same general trades."

Has Ideas Displayed

The firm has expanded by adding bathroom display ideas in an adjoining store, and now feature the largest visual displays, with the most modern fixtures and equipment on the east side.

"It is with a feeling of pride that we invited the public to stop in during our large expansion celebration to inspect our new show rooms," Mr. Schnur said. "We have on display such items as stall showers, tub enclosures, new style lavatory bowls, tiles, as well as various designs of vanities, so that prospective customers can see the products before installing them in their homes."

The company opened its present location in 1955, and has been growing steadily since. Its staff of draftsmen, cabinet makers, carpenters, plumbers, electricians, plasterers and painters are kitchen and bathroom specialists, who combined, have a total of 175 years experience behind them.

Many Fine Craftsmen
"We have the finest group of craftsmen in the business," Mr. Schnur said. "Our success is not attributed to any single individual, but to the entire staff. We all work together and stand behind everything we do, and from the designing end, we have kept abreast with the latest styles and fixtures designs.

"From recommendations by the more than 800 home owners in the Pointe and Detroit area who have used our services, we have enjoyed a steady growth with a solid foundation."

The company is so well organized, that even the largest kitchen is completed in half the time it takes others in the same field. Jobs in progress are very closely supervised, so that lack of material and delays cannot occur.

Don't Interrupt Living

"We realize that remodeling a kitchen is interrupting the heart of a home," Mr. Schnur said, "so we set up a temporary kitchen elsewhere in the house which will allow normal preparation facilities. This allows us to expedite the task much faster, thereby permitting the customers to return to the renovated kitchen sooner."

No job is too small. The company will do any part, or all work pertaining to modernization, and when the job is completed, it does not mean the company has terminated the contract. All work is guaranteed and the firm gives service after the sale.

The Kitchen Center respects the needs and desires of the customers, and offers the professional experience of its designers to intelligently help solve his problems. No obligation is involved when a request for an estimate, and plans, is invited.

If the customer approves the plans, work proceeds accordingly, and the designer stays with the job until it is completed to the customer's satisfaction.

Given Blue-Prints
Customers receive complete blue-prints of proposed modernizations, as well as detailed specification sheets outlining the various materials and equipment to be installed. This assures the clients there are no hidden extras to up the cost and assures them of a firm price.

The company will work anywhere in or outside the Detroit area, either in an old home, or a new one under construction.

As far away as Hollywood, California, the work of the Pointe Kitchen Center came to the attention of a famous movie star, who became interested enough to have the firm design the kitchen for his new home.

The company's entire staff joined in designing kitchens that have appeared in leading magazines throughout the country.

DON'T BEND THE LINEN

Creases should never be ironed into linen since the fibers are brittle and may eventually break. Home economists at Michigan State University suggest you roll the linen tablecloth for storage. If it must be folded, change the position of fold frequently.

Dream Home Specialties Of Hohlfeldt and Bessert

Building homes to attract the better class of residents to a community is the business of Harvey Hohlfeldt and Clarence E. Bessert, contractors, who together have 50 years experience in the construction field.

Hohlfeldt, who lives at 10771 Stratman, Detroit; and Bessert, who lives at 420 Chalfonte, have developed subdivisions in Detroit and surrounding suburbs.

Both are members of the National Builders Association, the Michigan Builders Association, and the Builders Association of Metropolitan Detroit.

Their know-how built the beautiful display model house at 941 Lake Shore road, which recently was selected by the "Builder Showcase" program on WWJ-TV, and televised as the "Model Home that has Everything." This house is within the $50,000 price range, and is still open for public inspection from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily.

Mssrs. Hohlfeldt and Bessert are currently constructing other homes in the Shores, one at 931 Lake Shore drive, and the other at 940 Ballantyne, both in the same price range as the model.

Their spring program calls for the construction of 38 homes, in the $30,000 to $40,000 classification, in the Saddle Lane Subdivision next to the Hunt Club in Cook road; and in the fall, they plan to build 40 homes in the Woods Estates, to cost between $25,000 and $30,000 each.

The contractors spare no expense to install the latest and best features in the houses they build. Their homes are completed to the last detail before they are sold, as illustrated by the model home at 941 Lake Shore. This home has everything, from an intercom system, to a built-in freezer-refrigerator in a "Dream Kitchen."

The cabinets in this kitchen were made by the Marsh Furniture company of High Pointe, S. C., one of the best furniture factories in the United States.

Among other features in the house, are: two natural fireplaces, oak-paneled family room, beamed ceiling, fiberglass insulation, two and a half baths, wall-to-wall carpeting, aluminum siding, full basement, finished recreation room, double-glazed windows (eliminating the need for storm windows and screens), sliding glass door-wall, large garbage disposal and a gas incinerator.

One feature that is outstanding, is the most modern electrical fixture devised, a control lighting dial, to regulate the amount of lighting desired. In all, there are 33 features in this house, each designed to make for better family living.

If prospective owners wish to have their homes built according to their own specifications and plans, Mssrs. Hohlfeldt and Bessert will be happy to do this, and will also give their expert advice, if it is needed.

Mr. Bessert, who has lived in the Pointe for a number of years, is a member of the Farms Advisory Planning Commission, and a member of Grosse Pointe Selective Service Draft Board No. 89.

Pecar Electronics Offers Music Lovers Top Equipment

Lovers of good music and good sound who have not yet had the pleasure of listening to stereophonic sound in its fullest glory, should waste no time in heading for Pecar Electronics, 11201 Morang road at Somerset.

Here is the closest thing to the actual concert hall. From here have come some of the Pointe's most complete and elaborate stereo systems, down to systems that, though not phenomenal in cost, are fine enough to please any good ear for music and a sound reproduction. Allen Pecar, his associates and his employees offer only the finest in equipment and are not content with giving you anything less than that.

Offers Many Choices

Pecar Electronics deals not in so called "packages," or ready made hi-fidelity or stereophonic systems, but in systems made specifically for your home and your personal preference. "Buying a stereo set does not mean picking out a cabinet, already equipped with the insides, that matches your piano color."

When a customer first arrives at Pecar's and indicates his interest in a stereo or hi-fi system, he is taken to a demonstration room. There he is told of the various sizes of speakers, the most important single item in the system, and that the weight of the magnet in the speaker denotes its quality. The customer then hears a demonstration of various speakers, and the difference in them.

Set Second Demonstration

After hearing the speaker in monaural (or one speaker as opposed to the two speakers needed to achieve stereophonic sound) the customer is taken from the demonstration room to the main part of the store. There, in a larger area, the same speakers are demonstrated, this time in stereo.

Once the size of the speakers is decided upon, the record player and the amplifier can be selected. Here, there is also a range of cost, just as in the speakers. The customer is never asked how much he wants to spend. Rather, he is shown all the possibilities, given various pamphlets to help him, and from there he can decide for himself, according to his budget. Salesmen, all of whom are given intense training in this field, are always available to visit the home of any customer and help guide the selection of a system accordingly.

"Our goal is to recreate, as much as is possible, the sound and reality of the concert hall," says Mr. Pecar. "The quality of the equipment and the service is of utmost importance."

Have Economy Systems

An economy system of reasonable quality and sound can be installed in a home for around $200. On the other hand, by buying the finest of equipment, including an FM tuner, tape and tape recorder facilities, it is possible to spend over $2,000. A very fine sound, in a record stereo system, can be had for about $500, and that includes speakers, amplifier and record player.

This month, Mr. Pecar has designated as "Taparama Month." So many people think that tape recordings are just something to be used on special occasions, such as recording children's voices. This is not true," says Mr. Pecar. "A tape stereo system is the finest sound reproduction system available. In addition to all of the same components of sound reproduction used in a regular record playing system, the tape has one distinct advantage. That is, it does not wear out. Any record, over a period of time and use, will lose some of its fine quality."

Costs Are Quoted

A tape player can be had for $150 over the cost of the original $500 stereo system. Another $150 will add a tape recorder to the system. Or, for those interested only in a tape system, a very fine portable system of player-recorder and two speakers can be had for $1,600.

And Pecar's, in addition to having a voluminous stock of records of all kinds (at a 20 percent discount) also has the largest stock of tapes in the Detroit area—in fact one of the largest in the country. The cost of these tapes is anywhere from 50 to 100 percent higher than a record disk, but again, the tape never wears out.

Pecar Electronics have been in business for 15 years now and they have complete records of every sound system they have installed. This way, if someone wishes to add to his present system, they know what has already gone into it and what is necessary to add to produce the desired effect.

Do Many Custom Jobs

Over 50 percent of the company's business comes from custom installations in new homes or in homes being remodeled. For those who don't wish to use the speakers or record player as furniture, the system can be installed in bookshelves, cabinets, even closets, or just built into the wall.

Again, it must be stressed, Hi fidelity or stereophonic systems can be had within a great price range, according to the wants, needs, and pocketbook of the customer. And Pecar's installation and service, just as is their equipment, is the finest.

In order to enhance Michigan's capability to care for mass casualties in a major disaster, the Michigan Office of Civil Defense has placed three portable emergency hospitals in the state, for training lay people in mass casualty care. These are complete 200-bed hospitals, with operating room and X-ray equipment. At the present time, 1,586 persons have taken the course under the direction of volunteer doctors and nurses.

The great need in the world today is for more individuals who will accept responsibility—not try to duck it.

Furniture Helps Family Living

Your home is the truest reflection of your standard of living. It is the place where you spend the greatest number of hours each day, where your deepest relationships are formed.

A childhood home, for better or for worse, is permanently graven in every memory. The way a home looks makes the difference between whether family members want to be in it or out of it.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee declares that new furniture groups for 1960 can help families at all income levels create more pleasant atmospheres within their homes.

The first step is to analyze your home. Take a look at it: as if you were your next door neighbor and ask yourself these four questions as you visit each room: Is the furniture good-looking? Is it comfortable? Do we have enough storage? Does each member of the family have the furniture he should have?

This close examination will help you find out what your home really needs. You will know what furniture pieces are good and what should be replaced now or eventually. You will also find out what is lacking and must be bought new for the first time.

Leadership

A Responsibility and a Reward

Today Grosse Pointe is unique in its abundance of natural beauty and cultural attainments as well as its easy access to all important centers in Detroit. In short, it ranks high among the world's fine residential communities.

Here the fruits of good leadership in civic and business activities provide ample proof of what can be accomplished when there is cooperation with realty developers and selling organizations of the caliber comprising the membership of the Grosse Pointe Brokers Association which is now in its 28th year.

In this span of years . . . from the days when Grosse Pointe was a township of farms with a sprinkling of homes, our Association has lent its influence and pursued a constructive policy in shaping and maintaining standards which give Grosse Pointe great importance.

The Pointe is home to about 15,000 families (some 60,000 persons); it supports several renowned shopping centers and possesses one of the best school system to be found anywhere in the world. The chief credit for Grosse Pointe's fine character of course comes from its citizens who have made their homes so gracious . . . their grounds so beautiful. We are happy to have had a part in this. Our members take pleasure in pledging continuation of our policy, the success of which we consider our chief reward.

Live Better Electrically...!

Their Products Hide Ugliness

The Edlaur Products Company, 11217 Kercheval avenue, Detroit, had a humble beginning as a dealer in radiator enclosures and covers.

In 1954, while on their honeymoon in Chicago, Edmund and Lauraine Logan saw an exhibit of the beautiful Russell Radiator enclosures during a convention and visualized the sales impact of these items in the Detroit area.

They applied for and received a small dealership, and formed a company, (the first syllables of their given names form the firm's trade name). Each year, business grew, and today, Edlaur Products is the sole distributor in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana.

The Russell Radiator Enclosures Manufacturing Corporation has progressed with the times. Its custom design cabinet to meet the requirements of its clients, and makes available to them a wide assortment of any room. They can be made in standard pastel colors or matching wall colors, hand-painted wood-grained finishes, and even with marbled covers.

Edlaur Products Company includes among its distribution outlets, two of Detroit's largest department stores, J. L. Hudson Company and Crowley, Milner and Company. Many of the better interior decorators, furniture and appliance stores, and hardware and paint stores, are just a few of the other business places that serve as outlets.

The sales have been made to hospitals, schools, convents and churches, convalescent homes, an institutional, commercial and residential buildings, to name a few.

Many architects and general contractors are specifying Edlaur's modern, louvered Oxford model enclosures, which can be made wall-to-wall in any lengths, thereby covering old radiators, all pipes, telephone boxes and any of the many things that detract from the beauty of a newly decorated room.

Today, the company's records show, more than one million exposed radiators in the Detroit Metropolitan area are covered by Russell Radiator Enclosures and Covers, made available through the Edlaur Products Company.

The miracle man of today sprinkles the salt of economy on the tail of his earnings just to keep them from flying away.

Woods Development Progress

This picture of Peachtree lane shows some of the houses already completed by builder Ed Schultz, and others still under construction.

Edward Schultz Building Many Fine Pointe Homes

One of the Pointe's best known and best liked home builders is Edward Schultz of Schultz Homes, Inc., who have continued construction work right through the winter months to meet his 12 month goal of 80 new homes.

He began building in the Pointe in 1938 when there was, as he puts it, "a lot of room to build." Since then, he has to his credit, many projects and numerous satisfied customers. Two of his completed projects are Ida lane (49 homes), done in 1951, and Hidden lane (56 homes), done in 1954.

Now, the current project, begun on May 15, 1959, consists of 80 homes covering six square blocks on four streets, Peach Tree lane, Pear Tree lane, Edshire lane and Wedgewood drive. The project is located in Grosse Pointe Woods just north of Cook road at Morningside drive. Sixteen houses have been started, so far, with six of them completed and occupied, the first one as of August 1, 1959.

Four architectural styles are available; Ranch, Cape Cod, Tri-level and Colonial. The present model home, (there will be others in the future) is a Ranch style home. It is located at the corner of Morningside and Peach Tree. There, Mr. Schultz has his offices, aided by his secretary, Mrs. Daily.

This model has three bedrooms and two and a half baths. Many of the models have four bedrooms. "Being close to both schools and churches, these homes should be attractive to large families," said Mr. Schultz.

Lucille Barnes Studio, 27329 Schoolcraft road, is the interior decorator working with Mr. Schultz on the homes in this project. Color schemes are left to the preference of the individual buyer.

The kitchens in these homes are Medallion kitchens, all electric with GE equipment and installed by Detroit Edison Company. They contain the new luminous ceiling which gives off light without casting shadows. The stove, refrigerator (11½ cubic feet), freezer (4 cubic feet) and wall oven are all built in. The cabinets, of birds eye maple, are done by Coppes Cabinet Co., of Nappanee, Indiana.

The dining area of the model home, combined with a family room area and the three-sided fireplace make what is called an "all purpose room." The family room in the Colonial houses have stone floors, a fireplace and beam ceilings. The living room of the model is spacious and has the benefit of one side of the fireplace.

Most of the homes have central air conditioning, an attic fan and thermo pane windows.

Lot size for these homes, which take about 90 days to build in good weather, is 75 by 125 feet, set back 30 feet from the street. The homes start at $35,000.

Mr. Schultz has long been known as a very reliable builder. "We stand behind our product unconditionally and are always striving to do better," he says of his homes. His elder son, Tom, who is 21 years old, has been working in the business with his father for nearly a year now.

In 1954, Mr. Schultz went to Europe to investigate building over there. It doesn't compare with this country, according to him, and that is true in London, Rome, Paris and other cities.

Still, so impressed with Europe was Mr. Schultz (who came here from East Germany 33 years ago), he returned in 1956 and took his family along.

When work at the Peach Tree lane project eases up a bit, Mr. Schultz, along with wife Ida, and sons, Tom and Lloyd, 19, like to go skiing for relaxation.

A man with a pleasing personality, with a lot of experience in building and a desire to build, always, better homes for his customers, is Edward Schultz.

GUARD THE SHRUBBERY

Protect your shrubbery from bumps and bruises in winter by not letting children and pets romp through it. Specialists at Michigan State University say branches become brittle in freezing temperatures and will break easily.

Luck may play a small part in a man's reaching the top of the ladder, but it takes more than luck to remain there.

Fine Bone China In Reach of All

The fine bone china that first rests on the shelves of The Dants, 98 Kercheval avenue on the Hill, and later on your dining room table or in the china cupboard, has a much longer history behind it than just its trip from The Dants to you.

This history began 200 years ago, in Staffordshire, England.

There, Josiah Spode I, who came from a family of potters, decided to continue in the family tradition. His work with pottery produced striking new and different processes which put Spode productions in great demand. And in 1770 he acquired the property where the factory still stands.

Spode sent his son, Josiah II, to London to learn the selling end of the business from William Copeland, a London banker and tea merchant. Through Copeland, later a partner, the two Spodes came into contact with Oriental designs, which they adopted—combining them with English motifs. The result—many of the early Spode patterns that are still popular today. The designs in the elaborately decorated papers, in which William Copeland's tea was wrapped, still live today in fine Bone China by Spode.

The actual creation of Bone China, the ultimate in fine dinnerware, came about in 1794. Other potters had been experimenting along those lines, but it was Josiah Spode I that perfected the formula that is still the standard today. The first piece of English Bone China was of pure and sparkling white and rivaled in beauty any china brought to the west from the Orient.

Since then, other potters and other companies have used the formula of Josiah Spode. Among the companies are, Minton, Royal Crown Derby, Coalport, and of course Spode, now owned and operated by the descendants of William Copeland.

Today, every home can use fine dinnerware. Every table can be set attractively with dishes of a quality that was available only to kings and princes a century and a half ago.

And many of the most beautiful Spode patterns and designs are available at The Dants.

- (1) Taxus Cuspidata Capitata—Japanese Yew
- (2) Taxus Cuspidata—Spreading Japanese Yew
- (3) Cornus Racemosa—Gray Dogwood
- (4) Juniperus Horizontalis Plumosa—Andorra Juniper
- (5) Taxus Cuspidata Densa—Japanese Yew

The choice of shrubs in this foundation planting is based on several facts: one, they grow heartily in this area; two, they are fairly free of insects and diseases; three, they do well in partial shade; and four, they may be kept in bounds by occasional trimming.

At each end of the house is a Capitata yew (Taxus cuspidata capitata). The tallest of the evergreens are always planted in that position in order to act as a margin for the rest of the plants. The spreading yews (Taxus cuspidata) are placed at each side of the steps and under the right window. This provides a pleasant view for people looking out of the window and also does not hide the steps and door.

There is a spacious area between the two picture windows. That is the perfect spot to plant the Gray dogwood (Cornus racemosa). This shrub will cover most of the wall and bring the entire planted area closer together, giving it unity. The Gray dogwood is an excellent plant, valued for its small, creamy white flat clusters of flowers which appear in mid-June. It later bears a white berry on red stalks. During the winter months, the branches are a gray hue that blends with the Andorra junipers (Juniperus horizontalis plumosa).

The Andorra junipers act as a ground cover, beneath both the Gray dogwood and the evergreens. The dense yews (Taxus cuspidata densa), a bit taller than the Andorra juniper, are placed under the windows so that they, also are not hidden but instead blend in with the other yew evergreens.

New Collections Possess Distinctive Custom Look

You won't have to be rich in 1960 to find new furniture with a "one-of-a-kind" appearance.

Many of the new collections include distinctive pieces with a custom look, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee declares.

The colored accent piece makes its debut in Early American. Low three-drawer chests come in red and green, as well as the usual wood colors. The apothecary chest appears in antique white.

A French Court group in peacan introduces a desk with a delicate brass gallery around the top. It also boasts an urn table and canopied settee. New in French Provincial is a 109-inch headboard with two ceiling-high built-in cabinets on either side.

The china cabinet perching on slender legs on top of a buffet base is new in both French Provincial and Early American.

Exotic dining chairs create a connoisseur's item aura in contemporary groups. A harvest table is surrounded by Biedermeier style chairs with molded half-oval backs. Biedermeier was a homey early 19th century German style named after a cartoon character, Papa Biedermeier, who represented comfort and "gemutlichkeit."

The "snow-shoe" chair, perhaps a tribute to Alaska, accompanies a 25-inch high round cane. Backs are finely-woven cane.

Greater detailing gives many new sofas and upholstered chairs the "one of a kind" look. Deep tufting may be part of the design on the inside of the arms or it may appear in a band on the top and front of the arm. Bolsters and half-bolsters are often seen.

Overshirts on the base display scalloped or square cutouts. As for the corners of the kick-peat, you see them held with buttons, bands of material or braids. Stencilled designs often appear on seats or on sofa bases.

The "sofa in the gray flannel suit" belongs to a new Danish-style upholstered group. It is covered with material that has a Madison Avenue look.

Realty Brokers Meet Monthly for Exchange of Ideas

dent and head of Bruce Tappan Associates; John P. Weber, the association's vice-president who is with the H. M. Sheldon Co.; Wendell J. Birdsall of Johnstone and Johnstone. Standing: Karl Davies, individual broker; Frederick G. Scully of the Arthur J. Scully Co.; Kenneth W. Carter of the Kenneth W. Carter Co.; Rowland R. Bieber of the Homer Warren Co.; John B. Doyle, individual broker; Ray M. Lewis of Silloway and Co.; Hugh Chalmers, individual broker; Roy E. Bailey of Houseman-Spitzley Corp.

1960 Furniture More Useful

Homemakers will get more utility for their furniture dollars this year than ever before. Designers, often working hand-in-glove with engineers, have created new ease and order for American households, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee declares.

Drawers are doing tricks that drawers never did. In a bachelors chest deep pull-out shirt trays are glass fronted. A man won't have to plow through all his shirts to find the one he wants. He can just look through the drawer front. Buffets often have drawers that are easy to pull out and put to work in another room. A compartmented silver drawer can be carried directly into the kitchen when silver needs polishing.

Removable plastic trays in an elm and zebra wood sideboard are molded to hold glasses, silver and linens. Adjoining shallow wooden trays are scaled for one banquet cloth, three luncheon cloths or two dozen napkins.

Heavy dressers and cabinets in a Colonial group are mounted on casters to make vacuuming easier.

A 66-inch long coffee table takes on seating and storage responsibilities. Two rectangular benches with loose cushions slide beneath one end. The other is lined with brads or rods to hold magazines.

The University of Michigan has a Disaster Training Facility built for the express purpose of training government officials and others responsible for the safety of the people in civil defense courses. The facility cost about $500,000, half of which was available under the matching funds program for civil defense, reports the Michigan Office of Civil Defense. Included in the facility is a 200-bed portable hospital for the training of lay people in mass casualty care under the direction of doctors and nurses.

Other people's mistakes won't help much if you insist on making the same kind.

One of the mysteries of life seems to be why one's enemies have so many friends.

A little pull may help some, but good workmanship wins out in the long run.

A fellow may be a good loser, but he seldom admits that the best man won.

CHINA

VICTORIAN CONTEMPORARY TRADITIONAL

SPODE was among the earliest of the English potters to appreciate the beauty of Chinese design. The Blanche de Chine shape which is used for Geisha was modelled from the Chinese and today an original Chinese piece of this shape is in the Oriental collection of the British Museum. The prunus blossom, symbol of spring and joy, is the motif, and the handles of covered pieces are delicately modelled blossoms. Like all patterns of Chinese origin, Geisha is equally correct in 18th Century or Modern settings.

Place Setting—27.00

EARLY in his career Spode achieved fame for his skilful blending of English and Chinese decorative motifs. Nowhere is this ability more happily demonstrated than in Rockingham. Here the Chinese symbols of happiness—the beetle and the butterfly—are combined with English 18th Century fruit and floral motifs. The finest type of china enamel painting brings out the subtle shadings and brilliant highlights of the design. The result is a dignified pattern that is suitable for use in its contemporary background of 18th Century Sheraton, Chippendale and Duncan Phyfe, yet is not out of place with Victorian or Modern interiors.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS ABOUT BUILT-IN ELECTRIC HEAT

ELECTRIC HEAT

Electric heat is an advanced and superior aspect of home comfort. Here are some of the questions we've been asked about it.

WHAT DOES IT LOOK LIKE? The four most widely used types are illustrated below. Because electric heat is built in, there is little interference with living space.

IS IT SAFE? It's as safe and trouble-free as electric light. Electric heat devices work very much like your toaster does. However, most of them operate at relatively low temperatures—without glowing wires.

IS IT EFFICIENT? The heat produced by electric systems is usable heat; practically none of it is wasted within the heating equipment itself. Electric heat is just about as close to 100 percent efficiency as it's humanly possible to get.

IS IT EXPENSIVE TO INSTALL? In general, the original cost of an electric heating system is less than that of any other type of quality equipment. Actual installed cost will vary according to type of heating unit used, home size, method of home construction and additional insulation requirements.

CAN I PUT IT IN JUST ONE ROOM? Yes, and economically, too, as indicated above. Typical examples: when you're adding a new room, finishing an upstairs, closing in a porch or breezeway. Electric heat is especially valuable when the new living space is a long way from the central heating system, or when the central system is already working to capacity. Another good time to use electric heat is when you have a hard-to-heat area.

CAN I PUT IT IN THE WHOLE HOUSE? Yes, you can switch the whole house over to electric heat. In this case, additional insulation will be required, plus storm sash and storm doors all around.

For greatest heating economy and summer comfort, regardless of type of heating system, good insulation pays off. Industry-established standards for this area for insulation thickness is not less than 6" overhead; 3 1/2" in exterior walls; 2" along side and partially under concrete floor slabs. Floors above basements also need insulation.

WHAT DOES IT COST TO USE ELECTRIC HEAT? Various factors, including family living habits, affect operating cost, so a hard-and-fast answer is impossible. A rough rule of thumb is 25¢-26¢ per square foot of heated space, annually. But there's little need to guess. An electric heating contractor can calculate actual first cost and operating cost quickly and accurately.

Electric heat will cost more. But the cost will probably not be as high as one would imagine. Like any quality product, you pay more for electric heat that you get more benefits!

DETROIT EDISON

Jacobson's Shop Having Exhibits

"Enter our world of make believe" is the theme of the Jacobson's Home Decorative Show at the Home Decorative Shop, 17141 Kercheval avenue in "The Village," now through March 19. And amid this make-believe world of lovely, artificial flowers, jewelry, and other items, Michigan's final winter fling, is an exhibition of 80 works of art by 17 local artists. These 80 paintings, all done in the oil medium by the "Pointe Painters," are on display at Jacobson's Home Decorative Shop. Seventeen ladies make up this group of dedicated but in most cases so far unused artists.

Have Varied Exhibit Led by their chairman, Mrs. Lucie Wetzel, these charming palette wielders are exhibiting under the title "Arts and Flowers," a pleasing variety of artistic endeavor. There are land and sea scenes, some of a tranquil nature, some stormy, some realistic, some tending to the abstract. The same is true of the numerous still lifes.

All the colors and hues of the spectrum have been employed by these artists, as well as the use of extremes of black and white for contrast. Still, the overall tendency is not to be "too far out," as a layman might describe the works of the modern and contemporary art devotees.

All Are Welcome Beginning today, March 10, Jacobson's Home Decorative Shop is extending a cordial welcome to both the art lovers and the curious, potential art lovers, all to drop in during regular store hours, and see the fine work done by the Pointe Painters. The show will be hung in the flower section of the store, providing a garden affect. A fountain and water fall add to the freshness already found in the canvases of the exhibit.

Many of the works are for sale at very reasonable prices and anyone wishing to buy or to inquire should speak with one of the members of the Pointe Painters, directly. There will be one or more of them on hand at all times during the exhibition.

Tea Being Served Tea will be served every afternoon from 2 until 4, and you may wander to your heart's content amid the flowers and easels. The exhibition should be a boost to the appreciation of painting.

The members of Pointe Painters—which was organized in 1952 and meets at the Post Box on Alter road—are: Mrs. Wetzel, Mrs. Dorothy Smith, Mrs. Betty Birbaumer, Mrs. Grace Cardoff, Mrs. Florence Cook, Mrs. Tola Dirksen, Mrs. Harriet Gallette, Mrs. Esther Elgley and Mrs. Betty Berry. Also, Mrs. Ruth Kemp, Mrs. Jeann Long, Mrs. Madeleine Livermore, Mrs. Betsy O'Connell, Mrs. Jean Strange, Mrs. Barbara Walbridge, Mrs. Emily Wolf and Mrs. Arlene Solomon.

His Import Show And Jacobson's is also announcing — to continue their current "spring fashions for the home" in other phases of decorating as well as in art — the Import Show, to be held from March 17 to March 31. This show, made up of the many fine and lovely imports from Italy, Scandinavia, Belgium, Spain, the Orient and other countries, will be centered in the extensive gift and linen departments of Jacobson's Home Decorative Shop.

Pointe Brokers Association Has Done Outstanding Job

The Grosse Pointe Brokers Association, which consists of 25 member firms specializing in the sale of Grosse Pointe properties, is responsible in great part for the splendid residential community the Pointe has become. Its interest begins with the subdivision of land and follows through to the sale of finished homes and their resales.

Backed New Organization In 1950 the Grosse Pointe Brokers Association was instrumental in organizing these property owner members into the Grosse Pointe Property Owners Association. Then the Grosse Pointe Real Estate Association picked up its old name and has continued to date as Grosse Pointe Brokers Association, presently having a total of approximately 150 sales personnel.

Ready to Cater to Home Owners' Needs

Woods Mantel and Tile Company, located at 21223 Harper, just eight blocks from the end of the Ford Expressway, the company features a complete line of fireplace screens and tools and custom made screens. An exclusive collection of wall decor is also shown. The building houses both its tile retail and contracting division.

Following factors: (1) The gradual adoption of written "Standards of Fair Practice" which along with the National Association of Real Estate Board Code of Ethics, govern Association members. These Standards, for instance, include clear cut compulsory arbitration procedures, definitions of respect for each other's exclusive listing contracts, and standardized methods of handling competing offers in cooperative sales. (2) The Association's informal but very complete multiple listing system, which enables prospective purchaser to shop comprehensively for his home. If he wishes, with one or two selected firms instead of many. This also gives the owner maximum coverage of all available prospects, which would be impossible for a single firm to accomplish. (3) A monthly exchange of statistics of closed Grosse Pointe business, which keeps the members informed on current values and the market trend. (4) A luncheon meeting once a month, which has made an intangible but important contribution to kill the factors involved, namely personal friendships among the delegates.

New Glass Makes Pictures Better

A glass that's almost "invisible" is a new decorator aid. Now you can heighten the charm of framed pictures and decorations without any reflection or glare.

This non-reflective glass, developed by the Dearborn Glass Co., has an unusual decorative value in framing water colors, pastels, photos, sketches and treasured fabrics. "Tru-Site" as the glass is called, is entirely unnoticeable until you actually touch it. Even in the brightest, sunniest rooms, Tru-Site is glare-free from any angle — and every soft delicate line or brush stroke, or bold color, slash of charcoal or ink stroke — shows up authentically. Fragile Oriental scrolls now so popular — paintings, art forms; portraits and landscapes; tapestries and samplers; fine needlework and important documents — can be apart. The informed third party supplies needed adhesive.

Perhaps a few words regarding the services of a real estate broker, as seen by Grosse Pointe Brokers Association members, may be in order. Among such services are: (1) The broker's knowledge of values enable him to advise the owner where to price his property so that its true value can be realized. (2) The services of a well-informed third party are quite indispensable in the bargaining process which is usually involved in a real estate sale. Buyer and seller, having opposed motives, tend to draw

Damman's Has Everything From Doorknobs to Kitchens

A pleasant surprise is in store for those who still believe a hardware store is an establishment that merely sells tools, upon a visit to A. L. Damman Co., Inc., at 9941 Hayes avenue, (also in Birmingham, East Detroit and Mount Clemens).

Any home improvement you need or wish to make, from a new doorknob to a completely rebuilt custom kitchen or bathroom, can be found here and this company is well equipped and ready to help.

One of the most extensive operations at Damman's is the installation of a St. Charles kitchen. Each individual installation begins on the drawing board at Damman's, after a visit to your home by an experienced salesman, plus your trip to the store to select from samples and actual displays—your new kitchen. From the drawing board to the completed kitchen, you receive the best of service available.

One of New Homes Being Built in Shores

Located at 60 Duval road, Grosse Pointe Shores, this Traditional Colonial with four spacious bedrooms and two and a half baths exemplifies the design adhered to by the developer, Frederick K. Reinstein, who lives in the sub-division at 971 Lakeshore road. Several sites are available for one or two story custom residences. Planning and building is by Harry Smith Construction Co., of Grosse Pointe.

Photographs Fine for Decorating

The homemaker who does her own interior decorating can pick up a smart new idea from professional decorators by hanging large portrait photographs on the wall, perhaps as the focal point of her living room.

Decorators today consider portrait photographs as the family's most personal form of art, to be matted and framed in hundreds of exciting ways, geared to the homemaker's own furnishings and taste.

The first step in perking up your home with your family's portrait photographs is a trip to a local portrait photography studio. Next is selecting frames which complement, not dominate, the subjects. Frames can be pecky cypress, fruitwood, shadow-box styles or a variety of other possibilities geared to the personality of your decorative scheme.

man's checks your installation three times, at set intervals, to be assured that it is functioning properly. And the installation is guaranteed, within reason, indefinitely. A recent customer summed up Damman's service this way: "Courtesy, craftsmanship, and a keen job—a pleasure to behold in this day and age."

Remodeling kitchens and bathrooms is the specialty of this department, but it also does many installations in new homes. The customer has a choice of wood or metal in contemporary, traditional or the new, off the floor design in cabinets—with an unlimited selection of colors and appliances. Good cabinets with steel interiors are attractive and popular, as well as functional.

Have Wide Selections. Their selections — of paints (7,000 available colors through custom blending), wall paper (the new 1960 patterns), floor coverings (linoleum and tile), ceiling coverings, and formica (for kitchen counters and bathroom vanities, etc.)—are among the most complete in Michigan. And what is not immediately available can be ordered easily.

Damman's has the largest selection of builders hardware (doorknobs, hinges, locks, cabinet fixtures) also in contemporary, traditional and modern designs. All sorts of gadgets for the modern kitchen can be purchased there, as can hand tools, power tools and other building necessities for the handy man of the house.

They also do commercial installations of fire doors, windows, hardware of all descriptions, for churches, schools and other institutions. Plumbing service, new installations and repairs, are another phase of Damman's work. Dishwashers, disposals, incinerators are always in stock.

Is Family Operation. Damman's is a family operation. In business since 1919, A. L. Damman's sons are now managers or department heads throughout the four stores. The location on Hayes avenue covers an entire block, providing better service to and for their customers. A large and competent organization that—through a far cry from the small hardware store of old, still "provides that old fashioned personal touch and service to their customers, is A. L. Damman Co., Inc.

Statesmen keep their eyes on the next generation—politicians keep their eyes on the next election.

Scott-Shuptrine Furniture Tops

For custom home furnishings of the finest in quality and craftsmanship, it is hard to beat Scott-Shuptrine Co. Inc., of 6615 East Jefferson avenue and whose fine Pointe store is at Mack avenue, between Kerby and Moross.

And Scott-Shuptrine is the only furniture company on the East Side, and one of only three in the entire Detroit area, that is a member of the Grand Rapids Furniture Makers Guild, which includes the noted furniture manufacturers and retail dealers of the country. Much of Scott-Shuptrine's work is done by hand, by craftsmen well trained for their job, many in Europe. There are, in spite of the present great use of machines in furniture manufacture, many operations that the firm still maintains must be done by hand.

Are Own Upholsterers. Scott-Shuptrine Co. has owned and operated its own upholstery plant for 33 years. For five years now, the popular store in the Pointe has been in operation.

The displays in the store are of the more unique pieces, rather than the usual furnishings often seen in retail furniture stores. And the personnel that make up the sales staff are all well trained in home furnishing counseling and have had, in most cases, years of experience on the job, the average being about 15 years. And all are well acquainted with the Grand Rapids operation and trained in the Scott-Shuptrine specialization of custom upholstery.

Staff Always Available. When you are ready to furnish or refurnish, as the case may be, one of the sales staff is available to come into your home and talk with you. This, the firm feels, gives him the opportunity to see the area with which he will be dealing. This way, he is better equipped to be of service to you and to better satisfy your desires and needs.

The living area of the house, the living room, den or library, are the most popular rooms for refurnishing, according to Charles Scott. And much of the trend now is towards traditional styling rather than the modern.

Mahogany, Mr. Scott points out, is still an advantageous wood for the producer to work with. It is easily finished, and does not go through extreme color changes as do cherry and walnut. And the mellow middle tones of mahogany are more popular now than the extreme light or dark tones.

More Color Being Used. And more and more color is being used in upholstery. Thanks to the new synthetic fibers of nylon, dacron and orlon, plus the advanced work of the chemical industry in dyes, a rainbow of colors is now available. Wool, however, is still the premium fiber.

Quality is the byword in Scott-Shuptrine custom furniture, and behind their own good name is the mark of the Grand Rapids Guild. Your home can and will benefit from association with this well established firm.

Diphtheria cases dropped to an all-time low of three in Michigan in 1959, according to the state health department. Before toxoid against diphtheria came into general use, diphtheria caused thousands of Michigan people to become ill every year, with an all-time high of 12,075 cases in 1921.

Go Straight Or in Curves When You Plan Rooms

When you plan to furnish a living or family room, decide in advance whether straight or curved lines will dominate. In the straight-lined plan, furniture will be placed flush or at right angles to the wall. This arrangement will help save space in small rooms, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee declares. Curved lines in a room create a casual effect. The curves can appear both in the structure of the furniture and the way it is arranged. If your sofa has a curved front, you can place the companion chairs so that they continue the circle.

Builder Gets Edison Award

ED SCHULTZ accepts the Live Better Electrically Medallion Certificate in recognition of the outstanding electrical facilities of his model home at 619 Peach Tree Lane, just north of Deeplands. Making the presentation is E. J. HURLEY, Detroit Edison Director of Residential Sales, who resides at 801 Pemberton. The award is made only to builders who meet electrical standards established nationally for Certified Wiring, Light for Living and installed electrical appliances. A good example is this all-electric kitchen with its handsome, modern-as-tomorrow luminous ceiling.

Kings Influenced 1960 Furniture

Two French kings—a grandfather and grandson — would open their eyes wide if they could see new furniture collections this year. The Home Furnishings Industry Committee declares that both Louis XV and XVI influenced many groups for 1960. Louis XV was a gay monarch with an eye for the ladies. Graceful, slender curved furniture in fruitwood became popular during his reign. Today furniture in this style is called French Provincial or, more correctly, French Court. Louis XVI was a sober king and a weak one. He tried vainly to make headway against a 600 billion dollar state debt and court extravagances until finally he lost his head in the guillotine. The dignified home furniture style in vogue during his sad years on the throne brings some glory to Louis XVI's name. Lines are straight and rectangular with few curves except perhaps in the arch on a door front. Posts and legs may be carved with vertical fluting. A new Louis XVI collection in walnut is named Trianon after the "little chateau" preferred by Louis' queen, Marie Antoinette. Alt 36 pieces are hand-rubbed with wax. They include a room divider, a modern innovation Louis could have used to break up some of those wide open halls he had to inhabit. One gay new group, with the Louis XV spirit predominating, includes a canopied cabinet and urn table. A slim china cabinet has a gold leaf backing behind its grill. The china's base sports a Florentine air, not unsuitable since France and Italy have been influencing each other ever since Hannibal's elephants lumbered across the Alps.

Kitchen Designer Must Be Expert

Mutschler Design Service, Nappanee, Indiana, has recently announced the appointment of Robert E. Mozena as an associate member. Mr. Mozena, who offices and showrooms are at 20489 Mack avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods, received this recognition because of the excellence of his work in planning kitchens in the Grosse Pointe area.

Mutschler Design Service, according to Edward McElheny, director of services, offers important advantages to the homeowner in several ways.

"First of all, a qualified specialist in kitchen planning, design, decorating and supervision of installation will keep your dream kitchen from turning into a nightmare," McElheny stated. "That's why only experienced, qualified kitchen designers like Mr. Mozena can become one of our associates."

Another advantage in dealing with an experienced kitchen designer, according to Mr. McElheny, is his knowledge of what's new, best and of most importance in finishing the kitchen.

McElheny said, "The kitchen is becoming one of the top fashion areas of the home. The 'fine furniture look' of new hardwood storage components—both contemporary and traditional—is largely responsible for the heightened interest in the kitchen. At the same time, a tremendous number of special units are available, as well as adjustable and removable interior fittings to make kitchen duties easier than ever before. For such specialized 'kitchen furniture' to be used effectively and in such a way as to bring pleasure to the homeowner, the services of a professional completely familiar with the many units and how to make the best use of the kitchen area is not only the wisest but the most economical way to plan today's kitchens."

Mutschler Design Service offers professional kitchen designing as being announced nationally in Living for Young Homemakers magazine, which lists Mr. Mozena as an associate.

According to surveys made by MDS, it was found that kitchens of today are so involved, even architects and decorators seek the guidance of the professional kitchen designer. "It is just good common sense to let an expert help you do the planning and coordinate the many trades-people involved. You will not be happier with your new kitchen in appearance and function, but you can save money in the process," is the consensus of opinion received nationwide.

The MDS associate, it is said, first consults with the homeowner to determine her likes, dislikes and budget limitations, and furnishes complete plans and cost estimates for the homeowner's approval.

The new spring cottages may tempt you to buy four yards, then hurry home to cut out a new dress. Home economists at Michigan State University suggest you take time to check the label on the bolt for shrinkage. If the fabric may shrink more than one per cent, shrink it before you cut it.

Pointe Business Notes

Albert D. Thomas

Not only in Grosse Pointe, where his chief interests lie, but across Detroit too, are evidences of his energy and excellent taste as a builder. In addition to building residences, factories, office buildings and clinics, Mr. Thomas has an outstanding reputation for remodeling or adding to homes and business buildings.

Wins Awards With Mahogany

Periodically furniture designers return to the classic forms of Greece and Rome. From the pure geometric designs they draw the inspiration that helps them start on a new line of creativity.

The United States is in the midst of such a period. Many designers, known until now only for their contemporary collections, are introducing classic elements.

Among them is Jack Cartright, 28, who had carved a reputation for his handsome functional Architectural Modern groups. His new genuine mahogany collection, "Arcadia," shows a strong feeling for the classic.

"Arcadia" won the Mahogany Association's awards this year for outstanding dining room and occasional designs.

Wall storage units, each only 30 inches wide and near ceiling height, are an outstanding part of Mr. Cartright's collection. Bottom sections have a cabinet or drawers while upper halves are open shelves, covered with handsome grilles of intersecting curves.

Low rectangular and circular for the living room are topped with a composition that looks like slate. It has a much higher resistance to chipping and cracking than the natural stone. Arcadia's finish is a warm medium brown.

Nearly two-thirds of the infant deaths and half the stillbirths in Michigan are associated with prematurity, according to the Michigan Department of Health. Many premature births are preventable, and the health department recommends that every expectant mother see her doctor at the first sign of pregnancy.

William J. Champlon, Jr., of William J. Champlon Realty Co., 100 Kercheval avenue, has been elected secretary of the Eastern Detroit Realty Association.

He was installed at the organization's 39th annual banquet, held Thursday, January 21, at the St. Clair Shores Recreation Center.

Mr. Champlon and his family live at 181 Moross road.

Dr. John Controullis, assistant director of product development since 1949, has been named manager of the market development division of Parke, Davis & Company.

A member of the American Chemical Society, Controullis resides at 284 Moran road, Grosse Pointe Farms.

James M. Northrup has been appointed vice president in charge of sales by United Platers, Inc., it is announced by Glenn H. Friedt, Jr., president.

Northrup lives with his wife and three children at 1341 Oxford road.

Walter E. Powers, president of the Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Grosse Pointe Woods, has been appointed to the 1960 Veterans' Affairs Committee of the United States Savings and Loan League.

The appointment was announced today by W. O. DuVall, Atlanta, Georgia, president of the league, which is the nationwide trade organization of the savings and loan business and represents more than 4,700 savings associations and co-operative banks.

The Veterans' Affairs Committee encourages participation among the nation's savings and loan institutions in the GI loan program, and urges eligible savings and loan personnel to join and participate in the programs of the veterans organizations and support the program of local civic organizations.

Ashley B. Adams, Jr., sales representative for the Mishawaka Rubber Company, Inc., Mishawaka, Indiana, was re-elected as president of the Michigan Shoe Travelers' Club at the annual meeting held January 23 at the Hotel Statler. In 1957 and 1958, he served as Secretary of the group, an affiliate of the National Shoe Travelers' Association and comprised of 200 wholesale shoe salesmen who travel throughout Michigan.

Adams, who resides at 403 Barclay road, Grosse Pointe, with his wife, Anne, and four daughters — Joyce, Barbara, Deborah and Pamela — is a member of the Elks, Odd Fellows, Masonic, Scottish Rite and Shrine Lodges.

New Kresge Store to Grace 'The Village'

The Grosse Pointe "Village" shopping district will be the site of a new S. S. Kresge Company variety-department store. A move to a larger and more modern building from the present location at 16931 Kercheval, has been under consideration for some time, company spokesmen said. The new building site, at the Northeast corner of Kercheval and St. Clair Avenues, is the first to be erected outside a shopping center in the last two years of Kresge's rapid expansion program.

James S. Holden, Dean of Detroit Real Estate, recently signed the lease to make Kresge's future construction the last remaining vacant business property in the area. The entire shopping development and suburban housing in the community have been projects of Holden's since 1936. Kresge's completed the dream of complete suburban shopping service that the 84-year-old realtor and philanthropist has envisioned for so many years.

Construction is scheduled to begin March 1 and the variety-department store will be completed in the early fall.

Unique features of the new store will be a white brick contemporary facade complimented by "visual panels" rather than display windows, and a deluxe interior treatment to harmonize with the architecture and decor of the other luxury department stores in the area. An innovation in the food serving department will be a combination reach-over, stool-fountain arrangement with easy and quick customer service for 36.

Covering a total area of 25,850 square feet, Kresge's will have more than 2,400 lineal feet for convenient front-serve counters, with all merchandise displayed for greater visibility and easy access.

Convenient "check-out" stations located near the exits, easy access to the Village parking area directly behind the store, and a line of merchandise normally associated with a department store will make the new Kresge's better suited to fill the variety needs of East Suburban shoppers.

department, he remained there for twenty years.

In its initial year, Mr. Stoll moved to Manufacturers National Bank, where he assumed the managerial post in the new bank's accounting department. The following year he was elected auditor; in 1941, second vice-president; in 1952, vice-president.

He is a former president of the Detroit Conference of Bank Auditors and Comptrollers, and is currently, associated with the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club. Mr. Stoll saw military service in 1918 with the U.S. Infantry.

James Jacobs of 758 Shoreham road recently was designated salesman of the month by the Lincoln-Mercury division of Ford Motor Co.

Mr. Jacobs has been a Pointe resident for nine years. The announcement of his selection was made by E. F. Coll, district sales manager.

Aluminum Furniture Light and Gay

Light and gay. That's the story of new aluminum furniture for your family room and terrace, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee observes. It's gay in color with a range of the most mouth-watering shades you can find anywhere outside an ice cream parlor. The lightness is often in line and, of course, in weight. A 35-pound sun umbrella is the newest aluminum accomplishment. One-third the weight of ordinary garden umbrellas, it is made of folding rigid sections. The pole tilts at fingertip touch.

Square aluminum tubing, hollow inside, creates new style and mobility for casual furniture. For outdoor use it is often covered with baked-on enamel that is reported to resist chipping, cracking, peeling and spilled liquor.

The shopper who is mechanically oriented will understand the value of a new nylon bushing in a redwood and tubular aluminum group. The bushing is the lining that allows screws to be tightened inside a metal casing. Nylon will make it possible to remove or tighten screws should repairs eventually become necessary. A wooden base is built under one round aluminum table.

Good Fences Add Beauty To Homes

A fence around your yard can be both functional and beautiful and the man to build it for you is George A. Fountaine.

Fountaine Fence Company, 20760 Harper at Eight Mile road, has been serving Grosse Pointe for 23 years now, both private homes and municipal governments. A man who knows his wood from study and from experience, Mr. Fountaine offers many different kinds of fences for your home.

The most popular is the stockade fence, made of Michigan white cedar, which stands from four to six feet high. "I've put in a lot of these in the Pointe over the years," says Mr. Fountaine.

Other Popular Types

Two others popular wood fences are the basket weave and the shadow board. The shadow fence is constructed of white pine and the basket fence of Michigan white cedar or redwood. It is possible to use redwood for the shadow fence, also. A basket weave stands five to six feet high and the shadow fence, five feet.

Another popular fence is the non-wood chain link, which is four feet in height. And other wood fences such as the Swanerie from the Virginia colonial, regular colonial and picket are also available.

The busiest season for fence building is April through August, and at that time, Mr. Fountaine has a staff of five working for him. With power equipment, the time it takes to put up a fence is cut to a minimum.

Unusual Charm Graces Work Pointe Builder, John S. Hillock

a few years ago," says Mr. Fountaine, "but they still want to know what is good and what will last." When he first went into this business, Mr. Fountaine did some inquiring and some studying of types of wood. He found that cedar lasts longer in the ground than any other fence wood. The reason: the cedar tree is full of tannic acid and the ground is full of sulphuric acid and the two combat each other. Another good fence wood is the locust tree from down South.

A fence can add a lot to your house and for "quality, durability and beauty," Fountaine Fence Company can be depended upon for good service.

Swing and Sway Hot Days Away

Swinging lazily in a hammock is one of the most soothing forms of relaxation in the world. Many Americans associate hammocks, hung between two trees, with their childhoods.

Now you wouldn't think there was much man could do to improve on a hammock, but the Home Furnishings Industry Committee says you're wrong. This year's hammocks offer several improvements.

First there is the sunshade. It lets you read in the shadow while you tan your toes. Then there is the swing-free bar, shaped like a coat hanger. A hammock attached directly to the hammock stand sways slightly. The adapter bar has no swing.

There is a new double model where two persons can swing in separate hammocks hung on the same frame. Very romantic. Little children will like it, too. Finally there are plastic enclosed pillows and mildew-resistant fabrics.

No matter how much time we might have for preparation, the Michigan Office of Civil Defense says that home shelters against radioactive fallout are the best defense we could have. The agency has plans and specifications for all types of home shelters, including dual-purpose, tornado and fallout.

The very circumstance, which your suffering sense deems wrathful and afflictive, love can make an angel entertained unaware.

National Renown for Pointe Earned By Love of Beauty

By Nelson Frolund

Just a few days I was reminiscing with a friend whom I had not seen for many years. We were discussing the many advance changes that have taken place in Grosse Pointe since we played in the "Pine Woods" in the Farms some 40 years ago. We agreed that a keen love of beauty by its residents has earned national-wide renown for Grosse Pointe.

The passing of the inter-urban cars, the horse drawn lawnmowers, the farms and attendant livestock from along the Boulevard, has had its good effect in the development of this beautiful residential community.

Most of the property along Lake St. Clair was originally purchased from the farmers by Detroiters for use as summer estates. The natural beauty of the area and the convenience of the lake for sailing, swimming and fishing were the chief attractions. Later as transportation from Detroit improved, more spacious year around homes were built.

The estates along Lakeshore, especially in the Farms and Shores, were large tracts of land which, in some instances, extended through to Mack Avenue. Here, in a naturally beautiful setting, stately homes and fine gardens, many of them designed by leading architects of the country, began to make their appearance. The gardens with their large expanse of lawn were especially beautiful both in their design and choice of plant material.

These gardens soon rivaled any in the Midwest and were frequently visited by students of landscape architecture, floriculture and horticulture to view and study the great concentration of specimens that were here. A number of the estates with large greenhouses and conservatories soon produced choice collections of orchids, tropical and semi-tropical plants. These owners were interested in local flower shows and exhibited with keen interest in both the Grosse Pointe flower show, held at the Neighborhood Club, and the Detroit show held in the old Convention Hall.

Some of the extra-large estates are gone today, portions of the property having been subdivided into smaller yet pretentious parcels. Fortunately for those of us who live here now, the transition that took place over a period of years was a slow, well calculated one and as new homes sprang up among those mellowed by the years, the landscaped gardens became ever more beautiful. It was this slow change and the splendid work of many planning commissions that has led to the orderly development of the Pointe as we know it today. In addition it has also been the desire of each property owner to maintain and where possible improve the natural beauty that has made Grosse Pointe a community of delightful homes and out-of-this-world gardens.

Editor's note: Nelson Frolund who has previously contributed articles to the News, has been an outstanding landscape authority here for the past quarter of a century and is head of the big garden store on Mack which bears his name.

What Rattan Is

Rattan furniture often has an exotic and mysterious look. That is because the raw materials—and sometimes the actual furniture—come from the exotic and mysterious Orient. Rattan is a creeping vine that is used for everything from baskets to bridges in the Near East. In furniture thicker sections are built into frames. Fine vines are woven and peel may be used for decorations.

Rolling Furniture

Rolling stock will simplify your backyard barbecue and sunning manoeuvres this summer. Picnic tables, lounges and loveseats are appearing with wheels on one side. You pick up the other side—wheelbarrow fashion—and follow the sun or the shade.
