The 1961 Ford introduces a whole new concept of what a car can do for you ... and for itself!

It lubricates itself. New nylon bearings and a newly developed lubricant keep the '61 Ford freshly greased for 30,000 miles. Goodbye grease racks! What's more, it cleans its own oil. The 1961 Ford's Full-Flow oil filter lets you go 4,000 miles between oil changes.

He did it again last Saturday, September 24, in the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's 22nd annual Bluenose regatta on Lake St. Clair. Hank was not the first to finish the 38.8 nautical mile course to Thames river lighted buoy and back but he was close enough to win the overall corrected time honors plus topping his own B Class to and WJR trophies. Tommy Hanson's Pilot sloop "Dauntless II' topped Class C to win the St. Clair Light trophy and Howard Hyatt's "Ev-Tide" topped Class D (Performance handicap) to win the Otto Lundell Memorial trophy.

In the smaller classes that traversed the shorter 20 nautical mile course Joe Shens'tone's "Nite Wind" topped the Folkboat class to win the Manferd Burleigh trophy and Ross Kogel's "Nan Tim" topped the Folkboat class to capture the Timken Boyl. Bobby Roadstrum's Privateer "Cotton Top" won the Axel Wickman trophy to complete the impressive array of hardware handed out following the race by race chairman Bob Wood who, incidentally, has done a tremendous job this season in bringing Grosse Pointe Yacht Club back into the sail yacht racing picture locally.

But for a slow start for the Cruising classes, which experienced a light and shifting breeze that made a 180 degree shift, the race was sailed under ideal summer-like conditions and a smooth sea. At first most skippers of the 99 boats that participated, thought the judges had made a mistake in sending the fleet around stakes to port. But as it worked out the Thames River lighted buoy was right on the beezer giving the fleet a long and short tack on the first 17 mile leg of the oblique triangle course.

At the start the wind was nothing more than a zephyr out of the northwest but after it swung into the southeast it piped up to 12-15 miles an hour giving the fleet a fast ride.

The Bluenose decided nothing in the way of season championships in the Cruising classes as the champions were already assured of their titles before the regatta. Tommy Hanson's "Dauntless" wrapped up the "C" title nearly a month ago. This marked the third successive title for the goodlooking

The Biggest Investment

A number of devices can be used to measure the strength of a community, its schools, its local officials, its libraries, civic groups, the participation of its citizens in various activities and many other factors.

But the one perpetuating standard by which the communities of our land are most frequently judged is the strength of its churches. In a community blessed in so many ways, the Grosse Pointes can take added pride in the quality of their churches and those who guide our spiritual lives.

There have been few times in the history of mankind where the principles of Christian living are so necessary in our society as they are today. As a nation and as a world we are moving in every direction. Man is crossing new frontiers, daily probing further into the unknown and the unexpected. His thirst for this new knowledge and these new achievements should be equaled and surpassed by spiritual growth.

It is indicative of the strength of our community to note this week that at least six Grosse Pointe churches either have building expansion projects under way or are about to embark on such programs. St. Michael's Episcopal Church, St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran, Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian and St. Joan of Arc are expanding their facilities through major building programs. Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will break ground for a new addition within the next few months. St. Paul's on the Lakeshore has announced expansion

In every case, these programs have come about through the efforts of church members, the work and sacrifice of many. This is more than an investment in our own immediate future. This is an investment in the future of all mankind.

tions about children's books young readers. anyone can write a book for children. On the contrary, to produce a book which children will take to their hearts, and which will live demands a great deal from a writer. There is a certain magic in the writing of Lewis Carroll, Mark Twain and Robert Louis Stevenson that defies definition.

Another assumption that pre-Vails among some adults is that any book which provides children with information is commendable, while books of imagination which also furnish the mind are regarded with something less than enthusiasm. The idea that a children's book of whatever type ought to have a purpose was prevalent among writers of the earliest books for young people, but was gradually eclipsed by the movement towards books child's undiluted enjoy-

It was over one hundred and fifty years ago that Charles Lamb in a letter to Coleridge deplored the fact that . . "Science has succeeded to poetry no less in the little walks of children than with men. Is there no possibility of averting this sore evil? Think creatures who make ingenious of what you would have been now, if instead of being fed with folktales and old wives' fables in childhood, you had been crammed only with geography and hatural history."

Geography and natural history have a definite place on the library's juvenile shelves, and we are glad to say there has never been a time when we have had on our bookshelves as many good informational books for children as we have today. These books are fascinating reading, and we couldn't do without them, but, with Lamb, we don't want them to smother completely all the excellent fiction folklore and fantasy.

These too have their place, and today's authors have not by-passed the imaginative entirely. Some well known writers have dipped their pens in magic ink and produced delightful tales of fantasy which

Brownell P-TA Greets Parents

This Thursday and Friday evenings, September 29 and 30, the Brownell P-TA has scheduled the first meetings of the 1960-61 season.

On both evenings the program will consist of a "Meet the ritte, will talk on "Flowers of meeting will be held to introduce the newly-elected Board of Directors.

Parents with names beginning with A through K are asked to attend the Thursday evening meeting, and the Friday meeting should be attended by parents with names beginning L-Z. However, parents who are unable to attend on the evening designated for them, are invited to make their visit on the alternate evening.

Aunouncement of these meetings was made this week by the incoming president of the Brownell P-TA, Mr. Arthur L. Watts, Jr. Members of the 1960-61 Board of Directers who will serve with Mr. Watts are: Mr. Jack Palmer, Father vice-president; Mrs. William Bedwell, Mother vice-president; Miss Marilyn Krueger, Teacher vicepresident; Mrs. Donald McConachie, Secretary; Mr. Gerald Stoetzer, Treasurer: Mr. Vance Powell, Past president; and Mr. Charles E. Saltzer, Principal.

The Board cordially invites all parents of children Brownell Junior High School to be present.

There are many misconcep- | are being worn to shreds by

The library owns close to fifty copies of E. B. White's "Charlotte's Web," yet there have been times when not one was to be found on the shelf. This is a book for every age. Parents will enjoy it as well as children. James Thurber's "Many Moons" and "The Great Quillow" are also in demand. We are told Mr. Thurber gets fifteen fan letters daily, many from children who tell him they like his fairy tales. Edgar Eager is a young American writer who puts just the right amount of magic and lively dialogue in his books to endear him to children from eight to twelve. Among his best books are "Half Magic" and "Magic or Not." Mr. Eager insists that his books would never have existed without the influence of the English writer, Edith Nesbit Bland, Mrs. Nesbit's books date back to an earlier era, but have been revised to the delight of today's children. Among English writers currently writing excellent fantasy for children are Mary Norton, Lucy Boston and C. S. Lewis. Mrs. Norton has written three books about the tiny use of all kinds of things mislaid by humans, "The Borrowers," 'The Borrows Afield" and "The Borrowers Afloat." These may not be for every child, but many children who like imaginative stories have enjoyed them. Like "The Wind in the Willows" they are at their best perhaps, when read aloud. Lucy Boston is skillful in blending fantasy and realism in her book "Children of Green Knowe" and the two books which follow. C. S. Lewis, well known to adult readers, has done several books for children about the mythological land of Narnia, beginning with "The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe.'

Yes . . . books have wings! You may travel the path to the moon aboard scientific fact or follow magic moonbeams on the oldest airline we know, "Imagination." Both routes are rewarding.

What to do till the doctor comes

By FRED KOPP, R. Ph.

Emergencies strike with sudden swiftness. A slip, a fall, a collision is seldom announced. So be prepared. At least one member of every family should have a working knowledge of first aid. There are books on the sub-ject and the American Red Cross gives classes where such information and trainrecommend that you, or someone in your household, acquire the know-how. Another worthy recommendation is to maintain a supply of first-aid medications on hand at all times-antiseptic gauze bandages, adhesive tape, alcohol, soothing creams etc. The cost is small and we'll be glad to assist you in your selection.

"This is the Thirty-sixth Fall Collection of beautifully made to order clothes." With these words Mrs. William Rust Pierce opened the preview show for the press.

"Clara Ray, in designing them," she continued, "has given our collection youth, beauty and charm without forfeiting drama or high fashion."

The coats, ensembles, suits, dresses and gowns that followed bore out her words, eloquently. Many of the fashions were designed around the Rose Valois hats that Mrs. Pierce brought back from Paris.

A dramatic silver fox hat inspired a handsome gray coat, widely belted and the unusual fabric was tweed, brushed with fur. For evening, there was a voluminous coat in black velvet.

Mrs. Pierce was asked about the treatment of the waistline and length of the hem. Her collection emphasized that she believed in showing a pretty figure with the waist identified. The hem should be a becoming length.

As for color, purple was used in two wool ensembles. We saw the drama of cyclamen pink for cocktails and galas, while jonquil yellow made a delightful ball gown. Black was not neglected, in fact it was used to introduce a new fabric, satinorganza, made in Zurich. One of the cocktail dresses was of black carnation printed satinorganza and shaped with great

The entire collection showed great attention to detail, even to the Eighteenth Century English silver buttons used on woolens and the delicate French Limoges buttons on silks. It made us feel proud that Grosse Pointe has such a fine custom shop, as Walton-Pierce.

For the past several years, one of the projects of the Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council has been "Outdoor Christmas Lighting." Garden Club members who make up Council, felt that the Christmas lighting in the Pointes was becoming too garish and elaborate and in many instances entirely losing sight of the true meaning of the Yuletide season,

With this in mind each Christmas they have carried on an Educational campaign, stressing simplicity, restraint, harmony in color and design,

As to date there is practically no material available in colored slides on the subject, the Council has been compiling its own library of such slides from pictures taken at Christmas in the Grosse Pointes. This lecture is now available to any group or organization who desires to use it in its program. There is no charge for the slides and accompanying running commentary, but the group must provide its own projector and screen. The complete showing lasts about 40 minutes. The material is varied, showing large and small homes, doorway treatment and unusual lighting effects of trees and shrubbery. The accompanying talk points out the good features in each slide with suggestions for varia-

Plant Roses This Autumn

Fall is an excellent time to plant roses unless your area experiences below zero temperatures during winter, advises rose expert E. S. Boerner, plant research director for the Jack-son & Perkins Company.

With the earlier establishment of its root system the fall planted bush should produce flowers from 10 days to 2 weeks sooner than spring planted

There are several other advantages, Mr. Boarner points

First of all the soil is easier to work in the fall. Also, there are fewer gardening jobs to be done and more good weekends to select for planting in com-

Furthermore, rose firms are more likely to have a plentiful supply of all varieties including the favorites that sell out early in the spring.

However, it is important to provide fall planted roses with adequate winter protection. Plants should have soil hilled up around the stems 6 to 8 inches. After the first freeze the rest of the plant should be covered with straw, hay or similar material.

Vacation News

Richard teachers spent the summer holiday in study, travel and relaxation far and wide. Acquainting themselves further with a program in conservation, which is one of the high spots of the Richard program, were Miss Koby, Mrs. Pankow and Mr. Dulworth.

They spent a week at Conervation School on Higgins Lake, operated by the Michigan Department of Conservation. Studying reading techniques were Miss Goodwyn and Miss Edwards, who went to the University of Detroit. Also going o summer school were Miss Elliott, Mrs. Balcirak and Mrs. VanderMeulen.

Two of the group traveled in Europe, Miss Wheeler and Mrs. Hyne. Going to the Pacific coast were Miss Nault and Mrs. Seegers. Mrs., Petree was in Oklahoma. Mr. Krause spent his vacation in Florida. Traveling closer to home up in the Mackinac area were Mrs. Gies and Mrs. Smith.

A number spent their holiday at summer cottages, namely, Mrs. Wanderer at Manitoulin; Miss Tomb at Lake Chemung; Miss Bockes at Mullett Lake, Mrs. Koepke on the AuSable and Mr. Power on Houghton Lake.

Of special interest, a number of our family groups are interested in pursuing real outdoor living by camping and these include the Pressers and the children will travel by bus to the Franklin Cider Mill. Other officers of the Nursery are Mrs. Bruce Lardner, Mrs. Walter Payne, Mrs. William Montgomery, Mrs. Kenneth McCoy, Mrs. F. E. Greifenstein Mrs. Frank Spencer, Mrs. Bruce 285 Kerby road Sunday. October 2: That true power belongs to God, not to matter, is a central theme of the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Unreality" which will be read at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural selections will include the following: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the sea"

(Psalms 46:1, 2). with Key to the Scriptures" by read (192: 11-13, 17-19): "Erring power is a material belief, a blind miscalled force, the offspring of will and not of wisdom, of the mortal mind and not of the immortal . . .

"Moral and spiritual might belong to Spirit, who holds the 'wind in His fists;' and this teaching accords with Science and harmony."

This past week 19-year-old Reuben M. Waterman, Jr., entered the freshman class at Yale University, carrying on a family tradition which began over 200 years ago. He is the seventh straight generation of Watermans to attend Yale.

The first Waterman, David, Yale class of 1762, was involved in the early sailing ship enterprises, which made so many New England fortunes. He founded an iron foundry and a farm in Salisbury, Corn., was twice elected to the state assembly.

His son, Thomas Glasby Waterman entered Yale at 14, was graduated in 1806 with James Fenimore Cooper and practiced law in Binghampton, N. Y. He also served i. the assembly.

It was Joshua Whitney Waterman, class of 1844, who moved the family from New York to Detroit. He was a lawyer and lived in a fine stone home flanked by two stone lions on Washington boulevard where the Sheraton-Cadillac stands today.

Cameron Davenport Waterman continued the Yale tradition in the class of 1874. He was captain of the Boat Club, a member of the Glee Club, and in his senior year was on the varsity football squad in the first Yale-Princeton game ever played.

He married Elizabeth Beach of Detroit, and the couple lived in a magnificent Victorian house on Lafayette where the Ft. Shelby stands today. Mrs. Waterman was a famous hostess of the day. Her menus were all recorded in a book now owned by her daughter-in-law. Mrs. Cameron B. Waterman, of Lincoln road. Joshua Waterman had owned land near Kerby road in 1886 but his son never lived here. The family also owned a large farm in Grosse Ile. They often sailed to the Pointe in their yacht, "Uarda," named for a fiction heroine.

Cameron B. Waterman, Yale class of 1901, son of Cameron and Elizabeth, was also in the law class of 1904. He was captain of the crew and a football player for Yale. While a student he patented the first outboard motor in the country. He later founded the Waterman Marine Motor Company.

In 1904 he married Lois Fleming Miller, of Pittsburgh, and the couple began their married life on Burns avenue in the Indian Village when that section was still a mass of vacant lots. In 1911 the Watermans decided to Highland Park schools. For of specialization. He states that move further out, built on the corner of Lincoln and several years he lived on a Maumee. The only house on Lincoln at that time was the farm near Rochester, studied Howie Muir estate on the East Jefferson corner. The Watermans friends, the Edward Browns, built next door, the home now owned by the E. Llywd Ecclestones.

Their son, Reuben M. Waterman, is the father of the new freshman at Yale, and of course was a Yale man himself, class of 1933.

A Baltimore fan once asked umpire Eddie Rommel why he threw manager Paul Richards out of a ball game.

"Richards wasn't feeling well," said Rommel. "Oh, come on now. Was that reason enough to throw him out of the ball park?"

"It certainly was. He said he was sick of my decisions.

A chapel speaker was preaching on the lack of Good Samaritan spirit in the world today. To illustrate, he cited an episode that had happened in New York:

"During the lunch hour I walked with a friend toward a nearby restaurant when we see lying on the street a helpless fellow human who had collapsed."

After a solemn pause he added, "Not only had nobody bothered to stop and help this poor fellow, but on our way back after lunch we saw him still lying on the same spot."

PAUL K. BUTTERFIELD, OF LAKELAND AVENUE

Coaching Little League football can be as exciting as playing with Red Grange, Paul Butterfield believes. He knows because he's done both. Off the playing field he is a modern history professor at Wayne State University. On week-ends and late afternoons he is a firm, experienced coach, who uses psychology, determination and skill on the field.

All his life Paul Butterfield has been active in sports. He has played professional basketball, water polo, and boxed in the big time, as well as playing half-back for Zupke's famous University of Illinois

He was born in Chicago but at a rural school. He remembers when Woodward was a dirt street in Highland Park, and swimming in a creek where the Highland Park Hospital now stands.
