NAMU, THE KILLER WHALE of Seattle, Wash., died late Saturday night in his waterfront aquarium pen when he became trapped beneath the surface by broken cabies dangling from a hole he had ripped in the netting. Apparently the 25-foot, 41/2-ton whale became lonely during the summer mating season, according to owner Ted Griffin, and in trying to escape, he drowned. Captured off the coast of British Columbia last summer, he was bought by Griffin for $8,000 and towed 400 miles to Seattle.

Fatal Accident Has New Job On City Record

"By a twist of fate," said City Polics Chief Andrew Teetaert," the point of impact of the July 1 Mack-Cadieux fatal accident fell within the City boundary line.' "The crash happened in the West-bound lane, and the GP City boundary line includes the first west-bound lane near the median at this point," he added. The staggered boundary line caused some confusion. Authorities first believed the Deiroit authorities should assume jusisdiction in the fatal mishap. Tuesday, however, after the boundary lines had been thoroughly studied, evidence disclosed that the accident was

If this is your idea of air conditioning, you're getting warm:

Stirring hot, humid air around and around is no way to beat the heat. You can enjoy the whole-house comfort of gas air conditioning right now and take five years to pay. We'll add payments to your regular monthly gas bills. Use the ducts of your existing forced-air heating system and relax in cool, clean, pollen-free, dehumidified air throughout your home. You can operate your gas air conditioning system for about half what an electric system would cost. Pay a lower summer rate on all the gas you use, too (a special deal for gas air conditioning customers). Better call the gas company right now. You're getting warm. HEAT AND COOL WITH ONE FUEL ... A private beth is one of the most important luxuries of modern life. This is particularly true if you are handicapped by illness or age

To convalescent and geriatric patients, the privacy of their bathroom brings a sense of dignity and security that nothing else can quite convey.

. We believe it is important that at Georgian East every guest room has its own bath. Further, they are not just ordinary bathrooms, but facilities specially designed to meet precisely the needs of nursing home patients.

In our planning, safety and convenience were the first considerations. Each bathroom has:

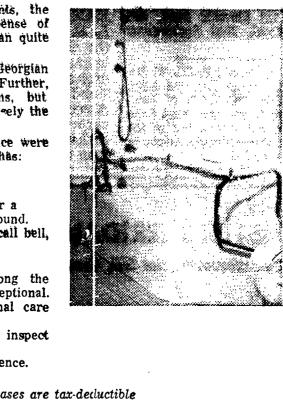

- * Patients lifts at tub and stool.
- * Non-skid tub bobtoms.
- \star A wide door and room enough for a wheelchair to enter and furn around.
- ★ Mobile shower nozzle, nursing call bell, dressing vanity.
- * Gleaming ceramic tile.

the fall visit of the Metropolitan Opera National Company which will give performances in the Fisher Theater Oct. 10-15 — a new task for the masters this year.

Working as a team is not a new experience for Mrs. Walker and Mrs. McElvenny — they have spent the past four years together as co-chairmen of the out-state committee. Mr. Mack indicated that part of the reason the two women were chosen was because they had worked so effectively as a team in the past. Mrs. Walker also served as co-chairman of the opera association 10 years ago when it was sponsoring the New York City Center Opera performances, before the Metropolitan came to Detroit.

More Women At Work

In another music area of the arts, the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Committee has been spending time lately planning a mid-summer garden party. The garden setting for the August 18 fete will be the Middlesex boulevard home of Dr. and Mrs. Lyndle R. Martin. Dancing under the stars, strolling musicians, and a sumptuous feast served from nine until eleven o'clock, are the particulars planned for the "Black Tie Affair," (not to be confused with any James Bond activities scheduled for the meme soir).

Women at work for this soiree include Mrs. John W. Nelson, chairman, Mrs. Winfield S. Jewell, Jr., catering, Mrs. Raymond H. Berry, decorations, Mrs. Bernard Whitley, donations, Mrs. Arnold Lungershausen, hostesses, Mrs. M. D. Dimitrievich, mailing, Mrs. Daniel Knoth, publicity, Mrs. Windsor S. Davies, telephoning, and Hixie Boykin Hatten and Mrs. Robert Armstrong, reservations. Those reservations can be made by contacting Miss Hatten at 1001 Maryland road, VA 2-9464, or Mrs. Armstrong at 266 Williams avenue, TU 5-2432.

Grosse Pointe and the "News" have really hit the big time in Scottsville. Scottsville, N. Y., that is, just outside of Albany.

It all started on April 24, a rainy Sunday morning, when Scottsville postmaster Archibald Veghte found a small green balloon in the backyard of his home. The partly deflated halloon read, in white letters, "Carnival of Books, Grosse Pointe Public Library.'

The postmaster's curiosity as to how a six inch toy balloon could have travelled all the way from our library's steps to his prompted a letter which found its way to Robert M. Orr, director of public libraries. He explained, in a letter to Mr. Veghte, that the Carnival of Books was celebrated on Saturday, April 23, the last day of national Library Week, and that children who visited the library were given toy balloons. The presumption was that the balloon escaped the hand of one of the youngsters, took off eastward in the throes of a local rainstorm and landed in another nearly 500 miles away, just a day later.

The story of the journey of the little green fellow was printed in an issue of the "News" and a clipping of it was sent to Postmaster Veghte. We recently received word that the balloon, a library brochure sent to Mr. Veghte by Mr. Orr, the letter, and a copy of the Grosse Pointe News compose an exhibition in the Scottsville Library that was put together by a member of the library board.

While the young at heart in Scottsville are finding children's playthings, our own young stock have hit it big in discovering the fancies of some 1927 Grosse Pointe adults. Scott La Rose and friend Jeff Tate, who are both 12 years old (and going on 13), while playing tennis on the Neighborhood Club tennis courts last tennis on the Neighborhood Club tennis courts last Wednesday, found the cornerstone of the torn down club | ing and opening envelopes for amidst the rubble.

Scott, who had his brother call the "News" to find out able, or by special arrangement what to do with the things they discovered (we told them to try the City police station or the Library) told us that he found an envelope full of coins dated 1926, 1925, and 1924 ("the 1927 ones must not have been minted yet"), a Bible, an envelope with a brief history of the Neighborhood Club, a flag with 48 stars, a sheet with the cornerstone dedication services, and newspaper clippings which included stories of the dedication and a picture she has a good group to work practice once a week before of the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. But the most exciting part of sorting out the contents of the cornerstone for Scott and Jeff was to find a newspaper, the Detroit Free Press to be exact, with a banner headline reading "Lindberg in Paris, Acclaimed ably the concert by duo-guitar-World Hero." As Scott put it, "That must mean he had just flown around the world that day or something." Scott's slight inaccuracy is entirely excusable for an historian of his years.
