HEADLINES of the WEEK As Compiled by the Grosse Pointe News

Thursday, December 20
FORD AND GENERAL MOTORS were found innocent of price-fixing conspiracy charges in the biggest federal anti-trust suit ever brought against the two automakers. The companies were charged with entering an illegal agreement to end discounts and thereby raise prices for customers in the fleet sales market. Prior to the 1971 model year, when discounts ended, fleet customers had been averaging price concessions in the neighborhood of $250. Both companies testified that they discontinued the discount system when they found it was costing them more money. The suit lasted for three and a half months.

Friday, December 21
WILDCAT STRIKERS returned to their jobs at Farmer Jack, Kroger and Wrigley supermarket warehouses and ended the threat of empty shelves in Detroit area homes over the holiday season. The striking teamsters, union warehousemen and truckers had gone back to work earlier at Chatham and Great Scott and spokesmen for those stores said they were returning to normal. Negotiators for the warehouse workers and truckers are in the process of bargaining for a new contract. The strike was started when local union members rejected a proposed new contract and ignored federal court orders to return to work.

Saturday, December 22
ISRAEL AND THE ARABS faced each other for the first time across a peace conference table and began the peace talks by issuing insults to each other. U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the man responsible for getting participants to sit down together, was forced to warn both sides and remind them why they were there. The conference was delayed for forty minutes due to walk-out threats from both Israeli and Arab representatives. After initial speech-making, the talks are expected to commence with a discussion on troop disengagement.

Sunday, December 23
CONGRESS has adjourned for the winter holiday without taking any action on the President's emergency energy legislation. There is little chance that any action on the bill will be taken before Congress resumes its next session on January 21. Capitol Hill Democrats blamed the White House for the senate's deadlock over the bill that centered on the issue of windfall profits for oil companies. The President's proposed bill would give him the power to ration gasoline, suspend certain environmental standards and order other mandatory conservation measures. President Nixon expressed regret that no action was taken on the bill, but said that current voluntary measures should be effective for now.

Monday, December 24
THE ARABS have doubled the price of Persian Gulf oil, as was disclosed after a two-day meeting of ministers of the Gulf countries which provide about 43 percent of the non-communist world's petroleum. The new posted price will reach about $11.75 a barrel, starting January 1. Two months ago the ministers had raised the price for a barrel of crude oil by 70 percent to $5.11. One western oil expert predicted severe economic crisis for Europe, but said the United States will "tough it out." Other officials here expected the raise in price to amount to only $9 a barrel.

U-LS Students Visit Children's Hospital

Students at University Liggett School performed recently for a group of patients in the therapy ward at Children's Hospital. In the spirit of the Christmas season, Mrs. Leslie Friedman's seventh grade homeroom, organized, wrote and presented a program consisting of original skits, jokes and Christmas Carols. The students involved in the performance were Bunni Benedict, Martha Cox, Rick Ferrara, Katie Higbie, Lisa Lundell, Jamie McLeod, Donny Orlando, Tracy Sales, initiator and director of the project, Nancy Schultz, Lita Wickser and Peter Worcester. The program was climaxed with the delivery of handmade puppets by "Santa and his elves."

FLEC Asks Help From Pointe to Make Up Deficit

Contributions Fall Off; Will Have to Curtail Programs of Varied Services Unless Money Can Be Obtained

By Roger A. Waha

For the first time since its inception in 1966, The Family Life Education Council (FLEC), is running at a deficit. So the organization is asking each of the Pointes and Harper Woods to share in meeting the cost of its operation.

Dr. John H. Williams, FLEC president, said the council currently has an estimated $11,000 deficit for 1973. And according to Mary Evelyn Self, a member of FLEC's board of directors and chairman of the education committee, the council's operating budget is $52,000, and FLEC is asking for 50 percent of that budget on a matching basis.

Waiting for Pointe
The organization recently appeared before the Harper Woods City Council and Dr. Williams reported the solons expressed a desire to help but wanted to see what the Pointes would do.

So, the doctor, Mrs. Self and other representatives appeared before The Woods Council at its regular meeting Monday, December 17, and plan to go before The Park, City, Farms, and Shores Councils after the first of the year.

At The Woods meeting, the council was sympathetic to FLEC's plight but was advised by City Attorney George Catlin, based upon his advice on a similar matter in 1966, that the council has no authority to appropriate tax monies to FLEC.

In 1966, Mr. Catlin was asked whether or not there was legal authority for The Woods to contribute city funds to assist in financing the operation of the North-eastern Wayne County Child Guidance Clinic.

Cites Act 54
At that time, Mr. Catlin referred to Act No. 54 which, he felt, would not authorize the use of city funds for this purpose. He stated, "Act No. 54, in my opinion, does not apply to cities with a population of less than 500,000." The Woods is such a city.

Mr. Catlin said, at that time, there was no authority for a community of The Woods' size to contribute money to the Child Guidance Clinic. And at the December 17 meeting, he said the same thing applies in FLEC's case.

However, in consideration of FLEC's value and the services it provides to the community, the solons unanimously referred this matter to the Committee of the Whole for further study to see if there was some way the organization could be helped.

Suggests Meeting
Mayor Benjamin W. Pinkos felt The Woods could take the initiative in this matter and (Continued on Page 2)

Woods Cites Reasons for New System

Would Eliminate Present Lack of Back-Up and Give More Men Valuable Experience

By Roger A. Waha

As managing municipality of The Youth Service Division (YSD), The Woods has proposed the rotation of division personnel every four years to other police functions. This will give other members of the Public Safety Department experience in the division.

"This was discussed and approved at a recent meeting of the YSD's Board of Managers, which includes the city managers of all the Pointes and a representative from the Board of Education, Dr. Joseph Spagnoli," said City Administrator Chester E. Petersen, who drew up the original plan for the division when it became fully operational in August 1970.

All Liaison

Under the new system, which becomes effective February 1, 1974, when a current YSD officer will be rotated, all four division members will be liaison officers with two based in the North High School district and two in the South High district, said Mr. Petersen. This means the foursome will perform either or both liaison or investigative work, or split the workload.

The YSD now has two liaison officers at each school, (Agent Michael Ferrone at North and Agent John Kendall at South), and two investigative officers, (Detective Thomas Podewick at North and Detective Donald Schmalz at South).

"Since Grosse Pointe Woods is managing municipality of the division, we assign or employ all personnel in the YSD," said Mr. Petersen, who then explored the reasons for the change and the plan's purpose.

Protect Itself

"First, they are public safety officers, who are being paid premium pay for being public safety officers, and are not being trained in the total concept of being public safety officers," he said. (At this time, all officers receive $900 premium pay for fire fighting duties in addition to their police salary).

"Second, we do not feel we are giving these public safety officers full rounded training in public safety (Continued on Page 2)

Begin Repair Of Breakwall

A meeting was held in mid-December by the Wayne County Road Commission to discuss repair of the break-wall along Lake St. Clair. Shores Village Superintendent Thomas K. Jeffers gave a report to Shores trustees at their last meeting on Tuesday, December 18.

The Wayne County Road Commission received an Office of Emergency Preparedness grant to repair erosion damage. The O'Laughlin Construction Company has a completion date of April 15, 1974, for the one-half mile south of the Shores/Farms boundary. It is in that area that there has been the worst erosion. For the remainder of the work, a September 15, 1974, date has been set.

The contract calls for re-aligning the existing concrete slabs and pouring grout in and about the slabs. The voids behind the slabs will then be filled with compacted clay and a six-foot wide concrete slope paving will be placed behind the slabs over the clay fill.

Since the Commission has only a limited amount of money to do the job and since it will take care of the worst spots first, Mr. Jeffers is not certain how much work will be done in The Shores. (Continued on Page 6)

YSD Reports Drug Cases On Decline

Second Consecutive Month of Reduction in Violations Registered in November

Fifty complaints were processed by the Youth Service Division (YSD), during November. This was 13 less complaints than the YSD handled in October, and three under the November 1972 total. The overall total of complaints processed to date is 632. This is 25 over the total for the same period last year. Violation of Controlled Substances was the category of highest incidence last month as 14 such cases were reported. However, the incidence rate was down by six from October 1973. "This is the second consecutive month of reduction of this category of offenses from our peak month of September," (when 27 incidents were processed), noted the YSD.

10 Marijuana Cases
The 14 complaints include 10 cases of marijuana, involving five male adults and 19 male juveniles; two synthetic cases involving two male adults, and two "all other" cases, involving seven male juveniles. (The "all other" category involves the sale or use of the combination of the aforementioned drugs). No overdoses involving transportation to a hospital occurred in November. Vandalism, (malicious destruction of property), was the next highest category of (Continued on Page 4)

Mother Nature By-Passes Pointe in Heavy Snowfall; Detroit Hit Much Harder

Total Here in Two Day Storm Measured Only Four Inches While Big City Was Being Clobbered with 11.2 Inches

By James J. Njaim

Residents of The Pointe area should be grateful that Mother Nature fooled them, rather than the other way around. Detroit had a near record 11.2 inches of snow that paralyzed the city, whereas, the Farms' official U. S. weather gauge at the Water Filtration Plant recorded only four inches. This was when the snow began to fall on Wednesday, December 19, and ended on Thursday, December 20.

Old Mama Nature can dump inches upon inches of snow, or rain, in one area, and perhaps a mile or so further away, a particular area would hardly see a trace of precipitation.

The nearly two-day snowfall that came down on Detroit, was more than the total amount that fell on the Farms from December 1 through December 20, according to information released by Wendell Baker, superintendent of the Water Plant, located at 29 Moross road.

Nine-Inch Total
Baker disclosed that the total snowfall recorded, up to December 20, was only nine inches!

He said that there was

APPOINTED

The Shores trustees have reappointed William Klingbeil, a Republican, and George Crane, a Democrat, to the Village Board of Councillors. Both will serve four-year terms. Still serving two years of their four-year terms are William Dahling, a Republican, and Cyril Lingeman, a Democrat.

Woods Enters Into Battle Against Edison Price Hike

By Roger A. Waha
The Woods Council unanimously authorized City Attorney George Catlin to actively participate in fighting a proposed Detroit Edison Company request for authority to incorporate a fuel cost adjustment clause in three service rate categories. This action was taken at the regular meeting Monday, December 17.

Mr. Catlin said Edison concluded its portion of the case December 17-19 in the offices of the Michigan Public Service Commission in Lansing. "Discovery proceedings," (where the intervenors will focus upon Edison's information with respect to fuel supply and the fuel price situation), are scheduled to transpire in late January and, in February, "we, (the intervenors), are putting in our portion of the proceedings," he said.

City Thanks George Monro

A resolution of appreciation for former Councilman George N. Monro was unanimously accepted by the Grosse Pointe City Council at its last regular meeting on Monday, December 17.

Woods Seeks To Conserve Energy Use

Council Studies Nine Recommendations from City Administrator Petersen

The Woods Council is currently considering a series of recommendations from City Administrator Chester E. Petersen regarding the conservation of various energy supplies.

While the solons voiced no objection to six conservation policies which have already been implemented, they wanted to study nine other recommendations Mr. Petersen presented in a memo. So these items were unanimously referred to the Committee of the Whole for further scrutiny at the regular meeting Monday, December 17.

Based on Mr. Petersen's request, all department heads supplied recommendations to his office earlier this month on ways to conserve energy supplies and/or sources.

Already Underway

Policies already underway include (1). All electric lights in the various municipally-owned buildings are to be turned off when not in use; (2). All outdoor floodlights on municipal buildings have been turned off.

(3). Thermostats in all offices have been turned back to 68 degrees; (4). The heat in some municipal storage buildings has been completely turned off, while other storage buildings have had their thermostats reduced to 50 degrees.

(5). All city vehicles are to have their engines shut off when not in use, (no idling for long periods of time); and (6). Attempt to decrease the required use of all city-owned vehicles through the increased usage of the city's complete radio communication systems.

Under Consideration

Now, the nine suggestions which the council is studying include:

(1). Require "bagging" of all leaves for future collection with the rubbish, (each leaf vacuum machine utilizes two engines and consumes approximately 70 gallons of gasoline a day).

(2). Experiment with a requirement that all rubbish shall be placed on just one side of the street, except those streets divided by a center medial strip. This will permit an approximate 35 percent reduction in fuel consumption for rubbish trucks. (Continued on Page 4)

Mutual Aid Effectiveness Seen at Two Park Fires

A fire of unknown origin caused considerable damage to a house-attached garage and its contents on the property of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Metz, 1046 Balfour, on Friday, December 21.

Park Assistant Fire Chief David Taylor said that all equipment and personnel, with the aid of City fire trucks and firefighters, battled the flaming garage for more than half an hour. With the assistance of the City, the flames, which had a good start before the alarm was sounded at 7:57 p.m., was brought under control within 15 minutes, the chief said.

The fast action of both departments prevented the flames from spreading into the house, Taylor said, where smoke damage was minute. He said that Mrs. Metz, who was at home, and who called in the alarm, had heard a crackling noise, but assumed that it was the family's pet cat walking on wrapping paper. Checking further, Mrs. Metz noticed smoke coming from underneath the door leading from the garage into the house.

The assistant chief said that by the time his department's equipment and personnel arrived, the garage was completely engulfed in flames. Because of the fear that the flames might spread to the house, The City Fire Department was called for help, and it responded with two fire engines and all personnel.

Chief Taylor did not disclose what the garage had contained, but did say that (Continued on Page 6)

Thief Removes Tape Player

A resident at 477 Fisher road complained to City police on Saturday, December 22, that a tape player was stolen from his car parked in front of his home. The complainant told police that a realistic stereo cassette player was taken from his car sometime Friday night, after he parked the car at 11:30 p.m. He discovered the theft when he returned at 7:30 a.m., to drive to work. The theft was not called in to police until after he got home from work that night.

Woods to Rotate YSD Personnel Next Year

"We rotate all public safety assignments from patrol to the fire division, from patrol to the detective bureau or investigative division and from patrol to traffic safety and school safety.

"Our current policy is to rotate all special assignments," he said.

"Grosse Pointe Woods has to be in a position to protect itself in case a vacancy occurs by any YSD member to accept a new position with new responsibilities. We must protect ourselves to have someone trained," continued Mr. Petersen.

New Approaches
"All personnel have done an excellent job in the initial building of the division and this is an indication of their talent and the acceptance of the division by the community itself."

But, he noted, "Personnel grow older and can lose rapport with the clientele they are dealing with." On this point, however, he stressed it is not happening now but it is a possibility.

Mr. Petersen felt there are "highly qualified personnel" in the Public Safety Department, who under a rotation system, will complete their overall public safety training, e.g., training in the YSD will help an aspirant towards becoming a chief of police.

And he stated, "With new, fresh ideas and approaches from those who will come into the division, the YSD will render greater or even more improved services."

But what about those who feel the current YSD personnel should stay put because of experience gained, rapport built up and various contacts?

"We will rotate personnel one at a time so we won't have inexperienced personnel in the division all at one time," stated Mr. Petersen. He felt this gradual rotation was similar to the election of a new council with some overlapping terms, (combining new faces with some "veterans").

Director Speaks
The NEWS also explored this system with Woods Public Safety Director Henry Marchand, who said, "I believe with the rotation plan we will eventually come out with a more rounded and educated police officer. It will make better police officers of those who go into the YSD as it will give them experience in detective work and working with young people."

As for those who will leave

FLEC Seeks Help

suggested that City Administrator Chester E. Petersen explore the possibility of arranging a meeting of all city managers, mayors and interested councilmen to discuss what could be done to aid FLEC, if anything.

Mr. Petersen told the NEWS he hopes to first meet with Dr. Williams and then see if a meeting could be arranged with city managers and mayors from the Pointes and Harper Woods to further discuss FLEC's request on a unified basis. Mr. Petersen added he plans to get together with Dr. Williams after the first of the year.

In a letter to the council, Dr. Williams stated, "FLEC has been in operation through the generous contributions from individuals and groups, but contributions are diminishing and costs are rising. This year we are running at a deficit, and the programs will have to be curtailed if additional support is not forthcoming."

Services Offered
Dr. Williams cited these programs in his communication: (1), Counseling for families with troubled youth; (2), Counseling for drug problems; (3), Opportunities for volunteer service; (4), Crisis intervention; (5), V.D. testing and treatment, and (6), Information and referral for a variety of social service needs.

In her presentation to the council, Mrs. Self said, "FLEC is continually involved in some form of education. Speakers are available on request. Literature is provided. There are films available. . . FLEC has always taken a family approach. . . Helping the whole person and the whole family."

"FLEC's philosophy has been to treat the emergency and then go after the cause. Early treatment is less costly to the community and can help avoid more serious problems." In this respect, she noted while heroin usage is down, "it cannot be concluded that all other drugs are down. Kids are still running away. And still using the number one drug, alcohol."

Request Removed
On the aspect of funds, Mrs. Self said, "Our request for Federal Funds under Act 54 was turned down because the Executive Drug Committee would approve nothing for Grosse Pointe. The Executive Drug Committee has been controlling the flow of funds in this area. They even pulled out our request before it could be forwarded to the Federal Government."

"The new Act 56 establishes an office of Substance Abuse Services. Under this program there is to be representation from Out-County Wayne. Pat Horne, (of FLEC), has participated in innumerable sessions with this group and has worked towards seeing that we have representation on the Wayne County Committee."

Mrs. Self noted, "FLEC has depended on foundation money and contributions which are diminishing because everyone is going after the same dollar. As you can see we have not received one dime of government support. With so much available everyone assumes we are getting our fair share and so contributions drop off."

In conclusion, she said, "We are aware of the ever changing social service needs of the area. We are a neutral organization cooperating with other agencies and organizations to provide a service suitable to the needs of this community. Our services are available day and night, when many other agencies cannot be reached."

OKAY APPOINTMENTS
The Woods Council at the regular meeting Monday, December 3, unanimously reappointed Nicholas P. Kondak and Rose J. Zoufal to the Board of Canvassers for a four-year term expiring December 31, 1977. The solons also unanimously reappointed F. Bryan Melvin to a three-year term on the Board of Review.

PARCELLS MOTHERS
Recently a Room Mothers Committee meeting was held at Parcels. They have set up 10 parent volunteer sections: clinic, swim classes, home-making shopping, office assistance, Camp Cavell, canoe trips, ecology trips, resource people, short field trip drivers, and assistant (math and reading labs). Teacher coordinator of the activity is Alice P. Gardner and the parent involved is Mrs. Barbara Otto, PTO Mother vice-president.

Woods Backs Mothers March

The Woods Council unanimously voiced no objection to the solicitation of funds on the parts of March of Dimes workers from Thursday, January 24, through Wednesday, January 30, between the hours of 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

This action was taken at the regular meeting Monday, December 17.

Woods chairman for the Mothers March is Mrs. Joe Craig, of Hollywood avenue. In a letter to the solons, Mrs. Eleanor M. Price, community director, said, "Grosse Pointe Woods did such a fine job for us last year, and we are deeply grateful for the fine cooperation of your community in our annual campaign."

War Memorial Makes Bid To Collegians and 20's Set

John Lake, director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, has announced a series of activities geared to area collegians and the post grad set living in The Pointe area.

"It seems that we are attracting either the young or the older members of the community," Mr. Lake commented. "For the kids still in school, we have the Grosse Pointe Children's Theater, ballet classes and the Youth Council. As far as older people, we have the very popular Backgammon nights and Grosse Pointe Theater, besides many organizations having their meetings at the Center. But we just don't seem to have anything which attracts the group from 18 to 30."

The director is hoping to change this pattern with the scheduling of an entertainment night Sunday, January 6. On hand will be a band, Barnaby (kidnapped from Diamond Lil's), and Roger Bailey screening old time Chaplin and Marx Brothers flicks. The guests will have the entire run of the Alger House, all 20 rooms, so that the uncomfortable "this is a big cattle show mixer" feeling will hopefully disappear.

In charge of the event is Dennis Dragiewicz, the new youth director. Dennis, 22, is a student at Wayne State in addition to his duties at the War Memorial. His responsibility is the Youth Council as well as student activities such as ski trips and dances. His latest assignment is to get the 18 to 30 age group involved with the Center again.

Before transferring to Wayne, Dennis was a student at Northern Michigan. An avid ice hockey fan, he is the veteran of many hockey teams even though he is not on any teams at the moment.

"We are hoping that this first night will be a success," Dennis said, "because the War Memorial is a great place to get together. And it's a common complaint around here that there is no place to meet other kids your age."

"I got the idea to call the party 'This Old House' because that is what all kids think the War Memorial is, after they get out of high school. Most haven't been back since they went to the Other Side dances."

The evening begins about 6 p.m. Besides the music and films, Mr. Bailey will be holding a trivia contest in one of the rooms of the Alger House. Light food, including a fondue, will be served near the large fireplace.

The event is open to all young residents of Grosse Pointe. Ticket price is $5 a couple or $3 single, by reservation only at the War Memorial.

If the January 6 party proves a success, future events in "This Old House" will be announced.

Retiring

After spending 37 years of his life at Pierce School, JAMES E. ANDERSON will be retiring at mid-year. Currently chairman of the Science Department, Mr. Anderson has served as grade guidance chairman for six years and as student government advisor for 14 years. All this, of course, in addition to being a science teacher.

Commenting on the retirement, William Mogk, principal of Pierce School, said that Mr. Anderson had had an excellent career with the school.

"He is the person who has been the Rock of Gibraltar since our school opened. He is probably the most conscientious and competent teacher we have had; he has the quality of always being able to keep things in proper perspective. All of us wish him an enjoyable retirement."

Mr. Anderson has distinguished himself in his "home" city, East Detroit. He served as councilman and mayor of East Detroit from 1953-1967, and was elected Citizen of the Year in 1971. He is a past member of all the city's commissions and is presently a member of the planning commission.

It's hard to imagine where Mr. Anderson got the time, but he has also served as President of the Grosse Pointe Teachers Association and the Pierce Teachers Club. He has taught at Pierce since its opening. Only one other teacher remains from the opening, home economics teacher Claudia Greenhoe, one of the "originals," as Mr. Anderson calls it.

The science teacher appears to be a man of many interests. He is a Life Master of the American Contract Bridge League. He will also mention that he was a truck gardener in the summer until 1947.

On December 25, 1973, the Andersons celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary. They have three children—all born on August 9, in separate years. Mr. Anderson will term that "family planning expertise."

A native of Detroit, Mr. Anderson received his A.B. degree from Eastern Michigan University in 1931. At the age of 20, he began teaching at Utica High School. He later earned a M.S. degree in chemistry at Michigan State University in 1936.

The science teacher believes that the most rewarding experience in his 41 years of teaching was "the association with so many fine teachers, students and parents."

In reviewing his years of teaching, he notes several disturbing trends: First, the erosion of behavior patterns necessary for effective working together; and, secondly, the lack of restraints on the disruptive few.

As far as retirement plans, Mr. Anderson is looking forward to having more time for travel, gardening, bridge and reading.

Farms Visitor Reports Theft

Ernest J. Ziegler of 3228 Jerree, Lansing, was visiting at 23 Elm court on Monday, December 17, and while his car was parked in front of that address during the night, someone broke into it and stole $650 worth of equipment and clothing.

According to information given to Farms authorities by Ziegler, the car was parked at the curb in front of the house. All the doors of the vehicle, except the right front door, were locked. The lock on the open door was broken, he said.

Also a dark green double-breasted sport coat, with his name on the inside pocket, $70; and a light colored suede sport coat, with his initials, $150.

Investigation of the theft has been referred to officers of the Detective Bureau.

Woods Studies Recommendations to Save Energy Settle Purchase of Lot; Defer Action on Goodyear

 (3). Reduce fuel requirements for the salting and snow removal on public streets by adhering to the following policy:
 (a). Salt all streets in cases of extreme emergencies such as "icing" of streets.
 (b). Salt only those streets classified as a part of the city's major street system whenever less than two inches of snow has fallen.
 (c). Salt only the intersections of those streets classified as a part of the city's local street system whenever less than two inches of snow has fallen.

 (4). Establish a minimum number of scout cars for patrol on each shift, (this could result in some two-man scout cars on the day and afternoon shifts).

 (5). Utilize the street sweeper for the purpose of sweeping streets on an every-other-week basis rather than on a weekly basis as is currently being practiced.
 (6). Schedule regular and periodic "tune ups" of all vehicular operating equipment.
 (7). Perform a necessary engine overhaul on any vehicle consuming excessive amounts of oil.
 (8). In the future, purchase and utilize compact size vehicles for administrative officials, department heads, detectives, Youth Service Division personnel, as well as compact size pickup trucks where feasible.
 (9). Provide in the new 1974-75 budget sufficient funds for the installation of storm windows on all window units contained in the municipal building.

"Additional recommendations to conserve all energy supplies will most certainly be brought to our attention and implemented wherever feasible," said Mr. Petersen. However, the prime concern to the city administrator is the gasoline supply. "The city's monthly allocation of gasoline has been reduced to 7,450 gallons per month, and we actually utilized 9,404 gallons during the month of November—almost 2,000 gallons deficient," he said. (This was a main reason for the city running out of gas for emergency vehicles over the weekend of December 1-2).

 "Also, according to reports, our gasoline supply will be, in all probability, reduced another five percent which will leave the city with a monthly allocation of 6,900 gallons.
 "Currently, the gasoline requirements for the Department of Public Safety require an average consumption of 3,200 gallons per month while rubbish collection requires an average of 2,000 gallons a month. These two functions alone will consume about 76 percent of our total future allocation of gasoline," said Mr. Petersen.

By Roger A. Waha
 Those "two separate but apparently related items" cited in the December 6 edition of the NEWS are no longer "apparently related."
 At the Woods regular council meeting Monday, December 3, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company's request for a variance in the off-street parking requirements at 19391 Mack avenue, and a letter regarding the purchase of the vacant lot at the corner of Newcastle road and Mack, became entangled. (The letter was from F. C. Cook, regional manager, Chrysler Realty Corporation).
 At that time, a connection appeared regarding the lot's sale and the approval of Goodyear's request for occupancy of the building. The council felt they were two separate items, while Chrysler felt there was some relationship between the lot's purchase and the immediate occupancy of the premises.

 However, this "connection" was "shorted out" at the regular meeting Monday, December 17, when Chrysler, represented by Mr. Cook, withdrew a prepared real estate contract which stipulated the property's sale was contingent upon the city's approval of Goodyear's occupancy of the building.
 As a result, in true "flash-back" form, this matter reverted back to the council's unanimously passed motion of November 19 — that the city buy the lot, (which will be utilized as a municipal parking lot), at Chrysler's stipulated price of $35,000.

Meanwhile, on the Goodyear front, the council unanimously deferred action on the company's request until Monday, January 7 meeting, at which time three points should be cleared up.
 One is Goodyear's official acceptance of a consent petition signed by 61 residents, most of whom live in Newcastle. This document lists 12 conditions prepared by the residents on the company's occupancy.
 R. J. Murphy, of Goodyear's real estate department, told the council he was aware of the conditions and had new drawings made.
 He felt the company would agree to all of the conditions, which include maintenance of the grounds in and around the building, rubbish and trash maintenance, efforts towards keeping noise levels down, the removal of two driveway approach aprons on Newcastle, the servicing of vehicles inside the building, et. al.
 A second point, which is related to this, is a review of the new plans on the part of the Public Safety Department including egress and ingress.

Bryant Backs New State Bill

A bill requiring full financial disclosure by candidates for state elective offices has been co-sponsored by State Representative William Bryant (R-Grosse Pointe Farms).
 The bill, if passed, will require the filing of financial interest and personal financial statements with the director of elections at the time the person declares candidacy or at the time of filing a petition to appear on the ballot.
 Personal financial statements, however, would be kept confidential by the elections director, Bryant pointed out.
 "This bill provides for full disclosure of a candidate's source of income and his interest in business and corporate ventures. The financial interest statement will be kept by the elections director as a matter of public record and copies would be made available upon request and payment of a reasonable fee," Bryant said.
 The bill also provides stiff penalties for failure to file the statements or for knowingly filing a statement containing false or fraudulent information.
 "This, in my opinion is a very necessary bill," Bryant said.
 "We all know by the recent happenings in government that full disclosure on the part of candidates is very important, both to the candidate and the voting public," he concluded.

 incidence as 10 such cases were reported. These involved mainly the breakage of windows.
 "Mason Elementary School has been the site of abnormal, repeated incidents of window breaking," says the YSD, which is making a concentrated effort to resolve this problem.
 The third leading complaint was runaways, (six such cases, all females). One was self returned to her home and five were arrested, with one being transported to the Wayne County Youth Home at her mother's request. Six larceny/theft cases also were reported.
 Six applications for petition were filed with the Wayne County Juvenile Court—three for larceny and three for marijuana abuse. These involved two females and four males.
 The total case breakdown for November shows: violation of the Controlled Substances Act, 14; vandalism, 10; runaways and larceny/theft, six each; burglaries and other criminal contacts, three apiece.
 More are other assaults and disorderly conduct, two each; and robbery, arson, stolen property laws and other non-criminal contacts, one apiece.

First Federal announces a bargain.

Deposit $1,000 for one year
 Earn 6 1/2%

If you'll deposit $1000 or more in a Certificate Savings Account for just one year, you'll earn 6 1/2% annual interest, paid and compounded quarterly. And that's a bargain. That means you no longer have to tie up your funds for a long period of time to earn high interest on your savings. In fact, 6 1/2% annual interest yields an effective annual rate of 6.66%. So ask yourself this: At times like these, when it seems like every day you're getting a little less for your money... shouldn't you take advantage of a savings program that offers you so much? Whoever thought money would be a bargain!

Penalty—Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawals from certificate savings accounts.

We can do more for you if you'll think First.

Woods Studies Park Control

By Roger A. Waha
The Woods hopes to have a proposed ordinance giving the St. Clair Shores Police Department necessary authority to fully enforce the rules and regulations pertaining to the use of the city's Lake Front Park, (which is located in St. Clair Shores). City Administrator Chester E. Petersen told the council at the regular meeting Monday, December 17, that the city has received "a so-called model ordinance" from St. Clair Shores "that they would like us to adopt."

While the city administrator said the park receives police protection, "St. Clair Shores needs an ordinance which would permit them to come in on private property for crowd control, (as an example), so they can enforce the various regulations in our park."

This matter was brought up when Councilman Ronald R. Kefgen requested further information on this topic, which was discussed in Parks and Recreation Director Donald J. Hallmann's monthly report for November.

In his report, Mr. Hallmann, said, "We do not want to go into the next summer with the same situation facing us as we were confronted with last summer when one of our employees in the performance of his duties was physically threatened and then quit when informed by the St. Clair Shores Police that they possessed little, if any, authority to enforce these rules. "If the Lake Front Park is to remain a safe, healthful and desirable place for the use of our residents and their guests we must have adequate protection, and the 'legal no man's land' that apparently presently exists in relation to the Lake Front Park must be eliminated."

Shores Solves Trash Trouble

It looks like an agreement has been reached between The Shores and the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority.

The 'Shores' recent complaint was that it was being double-charged for material transported to the landfill. The Authority ruled that all non-burnable materials taken to the landfill had to be transported in open trucks, while burnable materials taken to the incinerator had to be taken in regular garbage trucks. The Shores was left in the middle, since the village has only garbage trucks and no open trucks.

As a result, the Authority was double charging every non-burnable load taken to the landfill in a garbage truck. However, due to numerous complaints by Village Superintendent Thomas K. Jefferis and Shores trustees, the Authority has adjusted its billing tactics in regard to The Shores.

"Our most recent bill reflects just costs," Mr. Jefferis said at the Tuesday night, December 18, meeting of the Shores Council. "I have received a letter from Ed Hoover, manager of the Authority, and I think the problem is solved."

Place rugs with the lines of the room. That means rectangular rugs look best if placed so that their length runs parallel to the way the boards in the floor are placed. If using scatter-type rugs, remember that a few well-anchored rugs are generally as effective as a great many. Scatter rugs are used primarily when the floor underneath is beautifully finished wood. Then a scatter rug can draw attention not only to itself but to the floor beneath.

Draw attention to your floors with beautiful carpeting from ED MALISZEWSKI CARPETING! 21435 Mack, 776-5510. We feature such carpet lines as Masland, Barwick, and Lees. "It was brought under control in five minutes and put out in another five. We called the City Fire Department for assistance and they responded with one engine and three firefighters.

Bloink's passenger, Patricia Steele, 18, of 102 West Morgan street, Sandusky, Mich., suffered facial cuts and bruises. The Park Ambulance crew administered first aid at the scene before taking the young lady to Bon Secours Hospital for further treatment of the injuries. Twenty-three minutes later, at 4:48 a.m., the Park Fire Department received a phone alarm to the house of Leo Marx, 1028 Yorkshire, where a fire was reported surrounding the fireplace in the family room. Chief Taylor said that before bursting into flames, the floor and wall joists had been smoldering for approximately three or four days. "We made a good 'stop' on this fire," the chief said. "It was brought under control in five minutes and put out in another five. We called the City Fire Department for assistance and they responded with one engine and three firefighters.

Pharmacy Footnotes

by Fred Seltzer R.Ph. THE PARK PHARMACY

Your skin is actually made in two layers. The outer skin is called by scientists the epidermis. The epidermis is a tough outer covering which doesn't have blood vessels or nerves. The inner layer of skin is called the corium. It is filled with blood vessels, nerves, hair follicles and glands. Because of its exposure, the skin is more liable to disease than practically any other part of your body. The necessity for care of the skin can hardly be under-stressed!

Let our competent pharmacists care for all your prescription needs. AT THE PARK PHARMACY, 15324 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, 822-2580, our friendly pharmacists stand ready to serve you. SDM License Request Nixed

For the second time in two years The Woods Council has nixed a request from Borman's Incorporated for a new SDM License at the Farmer Jack Super Market, 20382 Mack avenue.

This action took place at the regular meeting Monday, December 17, when the solons voted 5-2 to deny the request. (Councilwoman Joan M. Mullan and Councilman Ronald R. Keftgen dissented from the majority).

The council had earlier denied a request from Borman's at the regular meeting July 3, 1972.

In his motion, Councilman Conrad A. Naegel reaffirmed his July 1972 motion of denial because there are other SDM licenses in close proximity to that location.

A Borman's representative told the council that 86 out of 87 Farmer Jack stores which the company presently operates in the State have SDM licenses.

He felt denying this specific store a license would present a hardship to the store, and its customers, "due to the energy crisis," i.e., a customer has to go to two different places to pick up beer and wine, rather than pick it up at the one location only.

Public Safety Director Henry Marchand, who reported the department had no objection to approval of Borman's application, said the city has 10 establishments which have SDM licenses.

These include Wrigley Market, 19231 Mack; Merit Woods Drug, 19325 Mack; Grosse Pointe Pharmacy, 19795 Mack; Oxford Beer Store, 20107 Mack; Woods Beer Store, 20807 Mack, Food Basket Market, 20915 Mack; Grosse Pointe Woods Delicatessen, 21016 Mack, and Roslyn Market, 21020 Mack.

SDM licenses in conjunction with Class "C" establishments include the Nightingale Lounge, 20791 Mack, and the Lochmoor Lounge, 20934 Mack.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
Here's a football fact that's hard to believe, but it's true... Remember that famous pro championship game in 1940 when the Chicago Bears beat the Washington Redskins 73-0? Well, although the Redskins lost by 73 points, they actually made MORE FIRST DOWNS than the Bears did that day! It seems impossible - but here are the official totals: The Bears had 17 first downs in that game, and the Redskins 18!

What was the longest field goal ever kicked in a football game? The record was set by Jim Maxwell of Princeton in a game in 1882 when he kicked a 65-yard field goal... You'd think in all the years since then somebody would have broken that record, but no one ever has. Not even Tom Dempsey of the Saints.

How well do you know your football rules? Here's a little puzzle for you... Suppose a forward pass is tried and a player from each of the offensive and defensive team collide and both catch the ball together... They fall to the ground, each holding the ball and each having equal possession... What's the ruling?... The official rules say in a situation like this, the ball belongs to the offensive team at the spot of the catch, and is considered a completed pass.

You can't take electricity for granted anymore. So use only what you really need. After 9 p.m. and on weekends is the best time. By reducing daytime use you can help save oil and gas which are in critically short supply.

Wait until after 9 p.m. to start your dishwasher or clothes dryer. Turn out lights when you leave a room. You can think of many more yourself.

If you have questions, call our Energy Conservation Advisor at 237-9161 or your local Edison office.

One View From The Capitol
 By William R. Bryant, Jr.

The recent announcement of planned release on parole of a man sentenced on June 16, 1969 to 7½ to 15 years for a burglary in Grosse Pointe Shores points up some parole issues.

The state has had, for many years, a statute allowing "regular" or "special" time credits for good behavior as a prisoner. The parole board has nothing to say about "good time." That is granted by the institution where the prisoner is incarcerated.

But the parole board does have exclusive say about whether or not to grant parole, operating within the statutory framework. The statutory framework says, and has said for many years, that the earliest date a prisoner is eligible for parole is after expiration of his minimum sentence less whatever "good time" he may have accumulated.

This morning I talked with the parole board about this case. The parole board has already determined to re-evaluate the decision to parole the person involved.

A new interview was held with the prisoner Monday, December 17, and the entire board will discuss the case Friday, December 21, or perhaps not until later, in Executive Session. The parole board then either will affirm or change their earlier decision to release this person on parole.

It is proper that the parole board is reviewing this case, but I believe there should be a mechanism by which they could be directed to review a case.

There is a bill on the House floor at this time pertaining to release of prisoners. I have readied an amendment which is pertinent here. The amendment would require a parole board to review a decision it had made if request for review is received from the sentencing court or the Attorney General.

On a somewhat related subject, related at least to criminal justice, the State Senate has voted not to oust Senator Charles Youngblood. Senator Youngblood represents Grosse Pointe Woods and Shores. He has appealed his recent bribery conviction and may get a new trial or a dismissal of the charges. While the trial court conviction entitled the Senate to eject Youngblood there is some justification in awaiting the outcome of the appeal.

Senator Youngblood may yet resign or the Senate may change its decision and re-elect him. Youngblood has one year to go in his term. If his constituents feel strongly that they want him out of office, they can either write him asking him to resign or they can petition to have him recalled from the office.

Club Rewards Sports Champs

The Neighborhood Clubs' girls' basketball league for the fifth through eighth grades finished up recently at Brownell. Trophies were presented to the first place team, coached by Mrs. William Stetson. The champs include Lori Aubrey, Colleen Kelly, Michele La Bodie, Lisa McFarlane, Alexis Miller, Kay Stetson, Nicole Walter and Mary Weidenbach.

The Tennis Shoe Steamers steamed through the round robin tournament to finish as champs of the women's volleyball league. Awards were distributed and the celebration began soon after. Those celebrating were Patti Bower, Doreen De Smyler, Cindy Doan, Bonnie Leahy, Anne Sheck, Chris Vancea, Anne Yates and Paula Yates.

Five teams have been playing at North High every Wednesday night and will continue until April.

Good Neighbor Search Begins

Commander Roger Christ of the Richard S. Hayes, AMVETS, Post Post 57 has announced that the veterans group is seeking nominations from people in the Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods communities for the Post's "Good Neighbor" awards. Christ said that four awards will be given this year.

An award will be given to a person in each community who, by his concern and interest for and in his neighbors, has demonstrated those qualities which make life better for everyone. A similar award will be given to a businessperson in each community who, for motives not for profit, has used his business to better the lives of those around him.

Vacation Dates Stay the Same

The latest word from the School System is that classes will resume Thursday, January 3, as scheduled. If there is any change, the NEWS will print the information.

The central offices at 389 St. Clair have been receiving numerous phone calls on school reopening dates. Many rumors have circulated in the Pointe after the School Board discussed postponement to conserve fuel.

"It is our intention to single out those individuals and businesspersons who would go unsung otherwise," Christ said. "While we recognize the great good that certain fraternal and charitable organizations accomplish, we feel that the fact that persons reveal themselves as members of these groups is, in a way, community recognition for their efforts."

Christ also announced that Donald J. Parsons of Grosse Pointe Woods, and James Ten Eyck of Detroit will head the Honors and Awards Committee of the Post. Winners of the "Good Neighbors" awards will receive their awards at the AMVETS Post's Honors and Awards Night on Saturday, February 23, 1974.

Awards Chairman Parsons said that AMVETS Post 57 is in a unique physical position insofar as the Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods Communities are concerned since the property upon which the Post Home is located is in both communities. In outlining the procedures for submitting the names of those individuals and businesspersons for consideration, Parsons noted that the timing is particularly appropriate since people are very conscious at this time of year of those who have been truly good friends and neighbors to themselves or others.

"The procedure for nominating someone is very simple," Parsons stated. "All that is required is a letter from a person in either community listing the name of the person or businessperson in their community whom the feel has demonstrated "Good Neighbor" qualities and a short explanation as to why this person should receive the award. Letters should be addressed to "GOOD NEIGHBOR CHAIRMAN, Richard S. Hayes, AMVETS, post 57, 19730 Harper Avenue, Harper Woods, Michigan 48225. All letters must be received by 8 p.m. Tuesday, February 12, 1974 in order to be considered."

GUEST COLUMNIST: WILLIAM T. PETERS, Director

Almost two centuries ago our Republic was founded. A new and novel form of government based on the assumption that free men have the capacity to govern themselves and that left to their own devices, they will extend to all citizens equality of opportunity.

Most European nations thought America's form of government would not last. Now six generations later, we are still striving to achieve "a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity." That America has not fully achieved its goal is not a sign of failure, but an indication of a nation striving to fulfill a dream no other nation before has ever dared to dream.

One hundred years ago the Statue of Liberty enlightening the world was unveiled in New York harbor. Emma Lazarus' poem, THE NEW COLOSSUS, is engraved on a tablet inside the pedestal. The author wrote these words which are familiar to people all over the world: "Give me your tired, your poor, Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, The wretched refuse of your teeming shore, Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me, I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

Can you imagine our other nation of the world offering such a welcome?

Our country's survival has constantly been threatened, even as it is threatened today. During George Washington's second administration, threats both domestic and foreign forced Washington to call out a force of 15,000 militiamen to end the "Whiskey Rebellion," and to move against British forces attempting to build a fort on the Maumee River (above present-day Toledo).

In 1812 bitter battles were fought along the United States-Canadian border, and spread to the eastern seaboard. This unpopular war gave us a new ballad that was belatedly recognized as our national anthem by Congress in 1931, THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

Long years of growth and struggle became almost fruitless when Civil War broke out in 1862.

A Civil War can never be won—it can only end. Ours did in 1865 when General Robert E. Lee surrendered. The Union had survived its severest test, but at what a price. A half-million Americans lay dead. President Lincoln was assassinated in April, 1865, and lesser men were left to carry out the reconstruction of a shattered nation.

Four million black slaves were delivered from bondage, and America had the opportunity to give a deeper meaning to its commitment to liberty and equality. The last three decades of the 19th century were years of expansion of unifying a divided nation. Some historians described the 1890's as The Age of Innocence.

If it was such an age, the innocence was gone when the Battleship Maine sank in 1898 and the Spanish-American War became our first experience with fighting on foreign soil.

Now a world power, the United States, would never again be able to live apart from the quarrels of Europe or Asia.

A determined man, re-elected president behind the banner "He Kept Us Out of War," appeared before Congress on April 2, 1917, and asked Congress to declare

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor —

Last week's Grosse Pointe News contained a news story and a letter to the editor, both of which contained references to allegations that educational standards in the public schools had dropped drastically and that there exists stagnation; and a failure to innovate in our system. The news story also contained Board President Warner's contention that school standards have not slipped in recent years.

It is more than a little ironic that these criticisms appear in print just as I learn of the recent death in Boston of Dr. H. Leroy Selmeier. From 1945 to 1967 Dr. Selmeier was curriculum director and, later, Assistant Superintendent for Instruction for the Grosse Pointe Public Schools. His role as an educational leader will be remembered by many of our older faculty and patrons as one that was marked by his extraordinary memory, his ability to see the consequences of a proposed course of action, a gift of introducing innovations within what he perceived as the range of community acceptance, and

Gilgit To Hunza Is Easy: Now Try Leaving Gilgit

By Janet Mueller

Let me put it this way: As a tour, it was a disaster. The floods I can blame on nobody; they were an Act of God. Weatherwise, last summer wasn't exactly THE summer to vacation in Pakistan.

I didn't expect many amenities. Accommodations in some of the places I was scheduled to visit would be, I knew, pretty basic, and staying dirty for a while never hurt anybody.

I'd been warned about the average Karakorum Tribesman's attitude toward barefaced, free-striding Western women: An unusual combination of scorn and whoopee.

I didn't expect much, in the way of comfort. I didn't get much.

Let me put it this way: Everything that could go wrong, did. Reservations were lost. Canceled out of hand. Had never been made in the first place.

Jeeps broke down. Planes couldn't fly. Everybody got sick, (fortunately, not all at the same time). Everybody got mad. Everybody got sick all over again. Everybody got mad.

There was a coup in Afghanistan, and suddenly all our Afghan visas were no good. The Khyber Pass was closed. Opened. Closed again. Partially, rumoredly, opened. "If you show up, maybe they'll let you through."

After a bit, in the heat, in the dust, in the general fog of "what are they going to do with us? What's going to happen next?" — Hit me again, Lord — I came to the conclusion things were so bad they were good.

Hunza is a small state in the heart of the Karakorum, in extreme northern Pakistan, on the ancient trade route to Sinkiang. It is said to have been the inspiration for James Hilton's Shangri-La.

Which tells you a lot about James Hilton. Hunza has a neighboring state, Nagar, directly across the Hunza River. Each state clings to a narrow, fertile strip along the river, and the mountains rise abruptly behind terraced fields in both states, on both sides of the river.

Hunza lies on the sunny side of the river. Its people are beautiful, fair and good, friendly and fond of laughter.

Nagar lies on the gloomy side of the river. Every afternoon, the mountains block out Nagar's sun.

Nagar people are sour-faced and mean, belligerent and graceless. Real nasties. According to the people of Hunza.

Hunza's 40,000 people are Ismaeli Moslems, followers of the Aga Khan. Among the pictures in the Mir's (ruler's) reception room is an autographed glossy of Rita Hayworth.

The Mir of Hunza's wife is the sister of the Mir of Nagar. She is a very nervous lady.

To get to Hunza, you have first got to get to Gilgit. This is about as easy as it sounds. Gilgit is the headquarters for Gilgit Agency, an incredibly beautiful, incredibly bleak tip of territory right at the top of West Pakistan, where the borders of Russia, China, Pakistan and Afghanistan come together.

Hunza and Nagar are in Gilgit Agency. So are Yasin, Ishkuman and others of that ilk.

It is possible to get to Gilgit overland, but nobody ever said this was easy, and besides not being easy, it is a very long, very tiring trip that must be made by jeep. Eighteen to twenty-four hours straight, by jeep, is no picnic.

the prison), and watch the Branch Postmaster handcancel each one.

I'd go to the bazaar at least once a day and buy dumb things, and practice jumping out of the way when the Tribesmen spat at me. Nothing personal. They just find the sight of a naked, (unveiled), infidel woman of-fensive.

The days began early. I got up at 5 every morning to breakfast with my 17 fellow "Kingdoms of the Western Himalayas" tour members at 5:30 so we'd all be all ready to jump on the plane when it arrived later in the morning, at 7 maybe, or at 10 — the general idea was: "Watch the sky" — and every afternoon, between 3 and 4, when we were still there, I'd go to my room, take off all my clothes, lie down on my bed, (the third in that particular room — "first class accommodation in twin-bedded rooms with private bath" the brochure had promised), turn on the overhead fan and think of the things I would invent if I lived in Gilgit.

Sleeveless shirts for women. Women's Lib. Swimming. Ice. Booze. Air conditioning. Sandwiches.

Then I'd go into the bathroom and take a "shower," the bucket-and-pail soap up splash off variety, get dressed and wander down to the "bar" for a peachy-keen lemon squash with some nifty Montgomery toffee hors d'oeuvres.

Vowing never again would I EVER go ANYWHERE even rumored to be VAGUE- LY Mohammedan without a FULL FIFTH of Scotch whiskey in my luggage and a spare fifth in my canteen. (I had planned ahead: I'd brought a pint of rum, almost full, thinking it would mix well with tea or squash and last five or six days, bringing me nicely back to Pindi. And so, if in five or six days I'd gotten back to Pindi per schedule — schedule! — it would have).

I found, a trick in itself, and joined the Gilgit Public Library.

This was, at this time, roughly equivalent to finding El Dorado — the night before I'd read myself to sleep by reading Montgomery toffee labels — and I spent a long, lovely, rainy afternoon in the English Books Section.

The Gilgit Public Library English Books Section contains the world's largest private collection of autobiographies of obscure British military men, (legacy of the Raj, no doubt), among them "Across Tibet" by Captain Hamilton Bower, 17th Bengal Cavalry (London: Rivington, Percival and Company, 1894). Captain Bower was one of those British nuts who finds enduring hardships jolly fun, and is resourceful/inventive in a cracked sort of way. He dreamed up an idea for Walking Dinners in Disposable Cartons, using sheep, (mutton), as expedition pack animals, loading them with sacks of grain on each side.

When the grain was gone, the sheep's usefulness as a pack animal terminated, the sheep turned into the main course for the next meal.

Captain Bower's native guides knew a bit more about sheep than Captain Bower. They told him his idea wouldn't work, and it didn't.

Captain Bower thought they, (the native guides? the sheep? the gods of the mountains?), could have tried harder.

Well: It beat reading Montgomery toffee labels.

One night in Gilgit, we had a dance. I won't go into that. That's a book.

After dinner, the "Kingdoms of the Western Himalayas" tourists, who were seeing one Kingdom in such depth they couldn't believe it and were beginning to believe they'd never, in their lives, see anything else, would amuse themselves by getting out maps and figuring out ways to jeep out overland.

Skardu was out because the bridge was out, but Baboosar via Chilas, down into Kaghan, was a possibility. . . . PROVIDED there had been no road-destroying avalanches, ("It has been raining for a long time up in those mountains, you know"), and PROVIDED everybody who left signed a paper releasing Waljis Travel from any responsibility in case of an avalanche along the road while one, (or more), of the fleeing jeeps was under it.

Azam Khan, head of Waljis' Peshawar office, seconded to "Kingdoms of the Western Himalayas" as Ace of All Aces Crackerjack Tour Conductor, known among the Kingdomites as "Azam the Horrible," for a variety of very good reasons, (their number mounted daily), put on his "Boy, are you dumb!" look and allowed as how Allah Himself could not Sports-oriented Grosse Pointe Hunt Club members will greet the New Year in typically vigorous fashion.

Not for them a black tie dinner-dance or formal ball: Hunt Clubbers, thanks to New Year's Eve co-chairmen Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Boyce, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Eisenbrey and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Johnson, will welcome 1974 in tennis togs and sneakers.

A round-robin tournament, under the direction of new tennis co-chairman James A. Brooks, starts at 7 o'clock on the Club's four indoor courts. It will run from 1973 well into 1974.

A 10 o'clock supper, served in the Horn and Racquet Viewing Lounge, promises to attract ardent tennis watchers as well as players.

Among those who made earliest reservations for the healthful gala—all reservations are gone (Continued on Page 13)

Ceccato Earns Paris Laurels

Detroit's Aldo Ceccato earned critical acclaim in France recently as conductor for the Paris Opera's new production of "La Boheme."

The young principal conductor of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra was called "perfect," "subtle" and "disciplined" by Parisian music critics.

This latest version of the Puccini masterpiece premiered at the Paris Opera November 23, under stage direction of the legendary Gian-Carlo Menotti. It starred Jeanette Pilon, Giovanna Bruno and Carlo Cossute.

Maurice Tassart, writing for both "Le Parisien" and "Miroir de Paris," lauded Ceccato by reporting, "Musically, the production is perfect, under the direction of a young Italian conductor who ought to go far." In "Spectacles" Jean Cotte wrote that the emotional and dramatic demands of the opera "seem to me to have been obeyed with an exemplary discipline under the imperatives of conductor Aldo Ceccato."

Clarendon of "Le Figaro" wrote, "The aesthetics of the conductor, Aldo Ceccato, were essentially subtle, and accentuated the delicacy of the work, a masterpiece of true emotion which banishes extremes and only yet remains, like a filigree, a tortured, intimate drama." Ceccato continues in Paris through December 29. After "La Boheme" he will be the guest conductor for two weeks with the Cleveland Orchestra prior to his return to the Detroit Symphony on January 20.

HARRIET H. WERLEY, of Hollywood avenue, director of Wayne State University's College of Nursing Center for Health Research, has announced her resignation as of the end of December to become associate dean for Research at the University of Illinois College of Nursing, and will assume her duties at the University of Illinois Medical Center in Chicago in April. Dr. Werley came to WSU in 1969 as the Center for Health Research's first director.

Entertaining December 3 at a luncheon for members of Volunteers of America benefiting patients of Michigan Memorial Institute on East Jefferson avenue, was ANN SCHWEIZER, of Berkshire road. Approximately 30 members attended, each bringing Christmas gifts for the men and the women at the Institute. Mrs. Schweizer turned the gifts over to WANDA BRUHN, Institute administrator.

MICHAEL J. TRACY, of Lakepointe avenue, a junior Mechanical Engineering major at Michigan Technological University, is spending part of his winter vacation as an "information spreader." A member of Michigan Tech's advanced Army ROTC program, he is discussing the opportunities available through ROTC and Michigan Tech with high school students and others during the holidays.

Getting Out of Gilgit Proves Difficult

"It is difficult. It is dangerous. There is no place to stay. You will have to camp out on Baboosar, and it is very cold, and you do not have any camping equipment. Or toilet paper.

"If there is rain down HERE, there is snow up THERE."

Basically, Azam's message was this: Anyone who attempts going out over Baboosar will be lucky not to die along the way, (from ex-posure, from falling off a cliff), and even if by some miracle some people do get through, they will never be the same. Personally, Azam Khan thought they would die.

As Rays of Sunshine to Brighten a Dark Day go, Azam was a real winner.

So the 18 "Kingdoms of the Western Himalayas" tourists planned, and discarded plans, and waited, per Azam Khan's plan — no way was he going to trade the relative comfort of Gilgit for the assured discomfort of 20 hours in a jeep broken by a night in the snow, under the stars, at 13,690 feet . . .

Until, one morning, the plane came.

To get from Gilgit to Hunza you take the new road, on the opposite side of the river from the old road, which was, until last year, the only road.

Now the new road is the only road, a good part of the old road having fallen, with a sigh of relief, into the river.

It is generally conceded that the old road was horrendous. People who took it were lucky if they could sit down after a week. The new road is quite good: like the old road it follows the Hunza River north, through wild and beautiful country. At one point Rakaposhi (25,550 feet), looms directly, startlingly, sheerly UP on your right. Everybody, at this point, yells, "Stop! Stop!" and jumps out of the jeep and starts taking pictures like crazy.

The Gilgit-to-Hunza trip takes four to five hot, dusty, bouncing, jouncing hours. Which is, of course, nothing to what it took Alexander the Great, who had a thing about invading weird places. After conquering Swat in 326 B.C. he pushed on through the Hindu Kush to Gilgit, then on up to Hunza and Nagar. Then he came back. (You know the bit about Alexander weeping because there are no more worlds left to conquer? I see him weeping, all right . . . as he contemplates the worlds he HAS conquered. Then he starts building statues to his horse.)

Finally, rounding a bend, you head down, to the river, cross a bridge where the river, rushing, narrows, and are in Hunza.

A lot of its IS Camelot. Page of an illuminated medieval manuscript come to life. Hunza ladies look like maids in waiting to Eleanor of Aquitaine. They wear stiff, round, gold and scarlet and orange and blue and every-color-under-the-sun embroidered caps, and long, loose, gold and scarlet and blue and orange and every-color-under-the-sun gowns, and gauzy veils, falling from the tops of their caps to the hems of their gowns.

They are mostly dark-haired and dark-eyed, (but here and there there'll be a redhead, and blue eyes are not uncommon), with strong, handsome faces.

The men look more Mongolian/Tibetan, although this is, of course, a generalization: you meet Kemal Attaturk and Alexander of Macedonia in Hunza every day, as well as Genghis Khan.

Physically, Hunza is an illustration from a child's book of Chinese fairy tales.

Terraces climb the mountains until they can't climb any higher. The mountains continue until snow. Apricot trees are everywhere, heavy in late August with ripe, gold fruit, and brown-gold desert dusts row upon row of poplars.

There are waterfalls, cascades and castles. In summer, in the early evenings, the ladies of Baltit, Hunza's capital, sit out on the flat roofs of their houses to gossip and catch the cool evening air and keep an eye on the children swarming in the streets below. A wind blows the veils back from the Hunza ladies' faces, but those veils, transparent, were never designed to conceal, anyway. The ladies of Baltit, secure in their beauty, lean over their parapets, wave and smile and call out to anyone/everyone climbing their streets.

Baltit is crested by a castle. There is another, older castle in Altit, another, older town a few miles from Baltit. Altit's castle sits on the edge of a cliff, commanding the river. The Mir comes to it once a year, for a week, for the ceremony of "Broadcasting the Corn," (sowing the wheat), and has refurbished an apartment for himself especially for that week.

In the other rooms, all year long, bats live.

Half the time, living in Hunza was living in the Arabian Nights, and half the time it was living in squalor, and all the time it was living out-of-time.

Nobody ever gave me a straight answer to anything.

"What's the name of that river?"

"The Hunza."

"No it isn't. You told me yesterday that that other river, the big one, is the Hunza."

"Oh . . . Then this is another river."

"Do people really live to be 150 years old here?"

"Yes . . ."

"No . . ."

"Maybe . . ."

"In another village, I've heard there are some very old people . . ."

"Could we go to this other village?"

"Oh . . . I don't think so . . . It's a very hard village to get to, and I'm not sure where we ate, the beds doubled as tables-and-chairs, and since the beds were designed to be beds, and not tables-and chairs, you couldn't really blame someone whose rice dribbled on your pillow as he slid, eating, toward the center of your bed. Which was, after all, HIS table and chair.

It was hard to like him, but you couldn't really blame him.

The Mir of Hunza lives in a new and beautiful palace. One presumes his Johns flush. He seems a bit embarrassed by the lack of "proper" accommodation. "Come back when the new hotel is finished," he urges visitors, and is honestly surprised when some visitors' recoil:

"Oh, I HATE to see a new hotel going up! It won't be the same . . ."

"You'll get all sorts of people up here . . ."

"Hunza will be spoiled . . ."

The Mir, who obviously believes in clean sheets and plumbing, thinks we're nuts.

In a sense, so do I.

In another sense . . . There have to be some places in the world where a genie might still just possibly pop up out of a lamp.

Gilgit's a different story. I'll trade a genie for an airplane out of Gilgit any day.

Plan Inaugural Concert Night By Symphony

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will perform a program of musical Americana to open the first half of its January 2 Inaugural Concert at Masonic Auditorium.

This will be the first public event in the administration of Mayor-elect Coleman Young following his public swearing-in ceremony.

The concert, which begins at 8:30 o'clock, will feature Detroit singer and actress Diana Ross in the second half of the program.

Three of the works to be performed, "Fanfare for the Common Man," "A Lincoln Portrait" and "Medea's Dance of Vengeance," are by American composers.

The fourth, the Ravel Piano Concerto, displays a strong American influence.

Piano soloist will be noted Detroit. Ruth Meckler Laredo, and the program will be conducted by the Symphony's conductor-in-residence Paul Freeman.

Aaron Copland, considered by most as the dean of American-born composers, wrote both "Fanfare for the Common Man" and "A Lincoln Portrait."

Although it eventually became a part of his Third Symphony, completed in the late 1940's, "Fanfare" itself was written several years earlier, during World War II.

"A Lincoln Portrait" had a definite purpose and a specific story to tell. It was written shortly after America entered World War II and was suggested by Andre Kostelanetz as a medium for conveying "the magnificent spirit of our country."

Copland's first impulse was to write a musical portrait of the poet Walt Whitman; however he became convinced that a political figure of world stature would be a wiser choice.

Then: "the choice of Lincoln seemed inevitable."

Kostelanetz, to whom the score is dedicated, conducted its premiere in 1942. Coretta Scott King, Marian Anderson and Senator Edward W. Brooke are among the narrators who have appeared with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in presenting "A Lincoln Portrait."

Pianist Ruth Meckler Laredo who like her husband, violinist Jaime Laredo, has previously appeared with the Detroit Symphony, will join the Orchestra in presenting Maurice Ravel's Concerto in G.

Although it is said that Ravel spent two years of constant writing to produce this concerto there is none of the laborious feeling one might expect from so much application. On the contrary, it is termed airy and at times even "jazzy."

It is felt by most musicologists that the influence of Ravel's association with his one-time student and contemporary, America's George Gershwin, is heard in this work.

"Medea's Dance of Vengeance" is a suite drawn by composer Samuel Barber from his own ballet based on the drama "Medea."

Commissioned by the Alice M. Ditson Fund of Columbia University, the complete score was written for Martha Graham. She first called her ballet "Serpent Heart" but later changed it to "Cave of the Heart," under which title it is still performed.

Both the ballet score and the suite were completed in 1946. The ballet was presented immediately, but it was not until 10 years later that the extrapolated suite was publicly premiered by Dimitri Mitropoulos and the New York Philharmonic.

General admission tickets for this non-profit Inaugural Concert at $10 each may be purchased at Grinnell's, J. L. Hudson's, the Masonic Auditorium Box office and Room 910 of the Buhl Building, 961-8050.

Also available are $25 patron tickets, $50 sponsor tickets and a limited amount of $5 tickets for senior citizens and students.

Santa's Heard Everything

One year—just one year—in a fit of holiday spirit, I decided to accompany my mother, my two sisters and their five, (between them), children to the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's Children's Christmas Party.

It was a Once in a Lifetime Experience.

It's now, at the very mention of a Children's Christmas Party, I turn white, turn numb, and dive under the bed . . . but Grandmother still does her thing, every year, (the grandchildren won't let her forget it), and every year the kids have a ball while their mothers turn white, turn numb, and wish they, too, could dive under the bed.

And every year I have a lovely time with the New York Times Sunday crossword puzzle while the Children's Christmas Party is going on full swing, and when everyone comes back to Grandmother's for Sunday supper after the party—the kids bursting in, excited, delighted, the adults staggering—there I am, fresh as a daisy, ready to hear what happened this year.

It's not fair: I admit it.

I don't care if it's fair or not.

This year, the routine was the same . . . except that the adults staggered in with smiles on their faces, thanks to a quip by quick-thinking Santa Claus, (Jim Fischer), who thought he'd heard everything in the way of Christmas wishes until Mark Ashleman climbed on his lap.

Mark is five, slight, blond, China blue-eyed, delicate-featured. He looks like a Choir Boy.

We all know Mark is going to grow up to be a demolitions-expert.

"Ho! Ho! Ho!" said Santa Claus, as this littlest angel climbed up on his lap. "And what do you want for Christmas?"

Mark opened wide his China blue eyes, smiled his frank, cherubic smile and told it like it is: "I would like," he said, "three thousand guns, three thousand trucks and three thousand swords."

Santa stopped Ho-Ho-ing.

Santa stared at Mark.

Mark stared back at Santa.

Pregnant pause . . .

"Look, kid," said Santa Claus, aware now with whom/what he was dealing. "Who do you think you are? Fidel Castro?"

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, incidentally, has scheduled its New Year's Directors' Open House for Sunday, January 6, from 4 until 6 o'clock.

Recently elected president of the United Health Organization, a Torch Drive Agency, was JOHN H. FRENCH, JR., of Merriweather road. MRS. R. ALEXANDER WRIGLEY, of Bishop road, was elected secretary and JOHN E. HEARST, of Trombley road, is UHO's new treasurer. UHO conducts annual free Healthorama health testing events in cooperation with Women for the United Foundation. First Healthorama of 1974 is scheduled for March 28 through 31 in the League for the Handicapped-Goodwill Industries' East Grand boulevard and Brush street building.

Young Alliance Francaise Students Sing Carols

By Kathy Duff

There was a very special Christmas concert Monday afternoon, December 17. Instead of hearing "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" and "Silent Night," the audience heard "Rudolphe au Petit Nez Rouge" and "Sainte Nuit."

The students, all children of Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe members, study French every Monday afternoon. For the students, French is a real experience, since Mrs. Griffin has more than a touch of the French in her. Her mother is Mrs. Charles Bacharach, of East Jefferson, a native of France and past president of the Alliance. Mrs. Griffin learned her French as a child from her mother and has spent many summers in France at her mother's family chateau.

"It is the second year we have held French classes for children of Alliance members. We started the program when language study was dropped from the elementary schools," Mrs. Griffin said.

Last Monday, a group of parents and grandparents saw the results of Mrs. Griffin's first term when the young students sang four carols in French. After the 20 students filed into the room, each one announced his name by saying, for example, "Je m'appelle Christopher" or "Je m'appelle Monica" until all 20 students had introduced themselves in French. The four carols followed.

Speaking with Mrs. Griffin at the close of the short concert, I mentioned her students' excellent French accents. (I was able to notice the accent since I am a veteran of many tortuous high school French classes.)

"It's so important to teach a language to children," Mrs. Griffin said. "You can manipulate children's mouths, they are much more flexible. Children are always willing to try since they are not as self-conscious as they will be when they are older."

The students in Mrs. Griffin's classes range in age from four-and-a-half to 13 years old. The students are drawn from all over Grosse Pointe since the only requirement for enrollment is that their parents are members of the Alliance. There is no charge for the course since Mrs. Griffin donates her time and teaching talents.

"In the beginning, attending a French class is something their parents want them to do. However, unless a child really wants to learn the language, he will soon drop out. One thing I stress in my class is discipline. There is no reason for them to come every Monday afternoon unless they want to learn French."

"I told them they were to stand up and greet me when I walk into the classroom. At first, there were grumbles and groans, but now they do it automatically. If there isn't discipline in a classroom, then the students will leave knowing little French."

Even though Mrs. Griffin will try to convince you how strict she is as a teacher, it's impossible to imagine her as a stern school marm. Since she's only 25, she allows her students to call her Anne. At the concert, she was dressed in a bright red plaid jumper, matching the one worn by her daughter, Brady. (Both outfits were made by Mrs. Bacharach.) After the concert, when presents were given to all the students, most just HAD to show Anne what they received—even the boy she sat on one day in the classroom when all other methods of discipline had failed.

Speaking with two parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Walker, of Audubon road, they said, "Our daughter, Heather, wouldn't miss Mrs. Griffin's French class for anything. She just loves it. She insisted that we bring her younger sister, Holly (who is only two), to the concert. She just insisted."

The concert was held in the same building all classes are held, at Kim Nuyens's stock brokerage firm at the corner of Cadieux and Mack. Mr. Nuyens is the current president of the Alliance.

The younger students meet at 4 p.m. while the older stu-

St. John Offers Smoking Clinic

As part of its community health information program, the Saint John Hospital Guild will sponsor a five-day smoking withdrawal clinic. The clinic will be held at the hospital starting Monday, January 7, through Friday, January 11, at 7:30 p.m.

"This program is being offered to the public as a free service of the Guild in response to numerous requests received by the hospital for assistance in smoking withdrawal," William McIntyre, M.D., Guild president, commented.

"Each month," Dr. McIntyre continued, "Saint John Hospital sees an increasing number of patients with diseases linked to smoking. We feel that tragic toll of heart disease, cancer and emphysema could be significantly reduced if smokers were able to break their habit. Unfortunately, this habit is often difficult to break without help. Through our smoking withdrawal clinic, we are offering help."

Heading the smoking clinic for the seventh time will be John H. Burrows, M.D., an oncologist from the hospital's medical staff. Also participating in the clinic program will be a leader in the anti-smoking crusade, Dr. Arthur W. Weaver, chief of head and neck surgery at Veterans Hospital.

Other speakers from the hospital's medical staff who will appear on the program include James J. Humes, M.D., vice president for medical affairs, and Jacques Beaudoin, M.D., thoracic surgeon.

The program will feature proven methods of smoking withdrawal and will stress the positive aspects of not smoking. Techniques used will include group dynamics and other methods which have proven effective in withdrawal from alcohol, tobacco and drugs.

According to the Michigan Cancer Foundation, which is cooperating with the Guild in presenting the program, these five-day smoking withdrawal clinics are the most effective means yet devised to aid smokers in breaking their habit.

The Guild encourages all smokers to make a New Year's resolution to stop smoking and, for assistance, plan to attend the smoking withdrawal clinic. For free tickets and further information, call the Saint John Hospital Guild at 881-8200, extension 474.

Gives Wrap Up on 1973 Session of Legislature

By William R. Bryant, Jr.

The State legislature adjourned its 1973 session after the Senate failed to act on two major bills, one the emergency powers to the Governor, and the other, a bill to formalize the combination of three departments into one super department.

The energy bill, in some form, is needed but I voted against it when it passed the House initially, and again by voting against the Conference Report. The first time my reasons were that the bill was full of holes, sloppy language and ambiguities.

It was a product of haste, not because the Committee which drafted it didn't have time because they did, but because the Committee spent most of its time traveling the State saying there was no real fuel shortage, that the whole thing was just an illusion.

Then in the Senate, a startling discovery was made. An innocent looking section at the end of the bill would be used by the public service commission to become practically a partner to all utility companies, watching over every move and every internal decision made. My objection to the Conference Report was that the sponsor of the bill refused to place a statement in the record that the report would not allow such intrusion by the commission.

The other major bill would combine the Social Services, Mental Health and Public Health departments into one in an effort to coordinate these often overlapping service agencies.

I supported this bill, requested by the Governor, over some objection by many mental health agencies. These agencies felt mental health was better off having one distinct agency with responsibility only for mental health.

As a strong supporter of mental health services, I believe the fears are not valid and the necessity to "treat the whole person" with coordinated services outweighs all other disadvantages including the creation of such a huge bureaucracy.

There is much work to be done when the legislature convenes in January. I wish all of you a Happy New Year and thank you for your support and suggestions during this year. It is an honor to serve you.

Students Visit Nursing Home

A group of 11 Brownell students in Mrs. Julie Goetz's special education class trooped over to the Grosse Pointe Nursing Home on Tuesday afternoon, December 18.

At the nursing home, which is located at the corner of Fisher and Maumee avenue, the students distributed decorative bottles they had made at Brownell. The children were met with greetings of "God Bless You" and "Merry Christmas" from the patients.

Back at Brownell, Mrs. Goetz explained that her students made over 100 gifts for charities this year. Besides the Grosse Pointe Nursing Home, they gave presents to the Titus Greenwood Opportunity House, (a preschool for 28 children), the Wayne County Children's Center, the Detroit Orthopedic School and several other organizations.

All of the gifts the students made themselves. One girl, with long blond hair, explained that they had brought empty bottles from home, had covered them with newspaper strips and paper towels and then glued on brightly colored tissue papers. The bottles could then be used as decorative vases.

Another present they made were coloring kits for children in clinics. The canisters were covered with striped paper; coloring sheets and crayons were inside. Fringe surrounded the top of the canisters and made the gifts even more festive for young children.

The students in Mrs. Goetz's class range in age from 11 to 15 years. Each student is on his own track for basic skills, reading, math, grammar, etc. In the classroom, there are numerous learning aids such as individual film tapes, a record player and activity boxes. And, if it is a recess period, there are always the two hamsters to play with.

"We put out a call for all unused household cast-offs at the beginning of the year," Mrs. Goetz said. "We now have enough stuff to last us the entire year. We have used the materials in many ways, for example, look at this tree."

The special education teacher was pointing to a Christmas tree made out of styrofoam and covered with tinny shells. All in all, it's been a very busy holiday season for Mrs. Goetz's class.

To Honor Guard, Ready Reserve

The U. S. House of Representatives has recently passed a bill introduced by Congressman Lucien N. Nedzi, (D-Mich.), that would provide a U. S. flag for deceased members of the National Guard and the Ready Reserve.

The bill, H.R. 5621, was approved by a voice vote and referred to the Senate Armed Services Committee for final consideration before a vote on the Senate floor.

"There is no legitimate reason for denying this right to Guardsmen and the Ready Reserve," Congressman Nedzi said. "It is a simple way of expressing our gratitude for the added security these men provide the country."

H.R. 5621 would amend section 1482 of title 10, United States Code, and would cover those Guardsmen and Ready Reservists "who die under honorable circumstances as determined by the Secretary."

Big Brothers Reorganized
 Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Wayne County and the three other Big Brothers agencies in the Tri-County area have been reorganized under a central administration, Big Brothers-Big Sisters, which will go into operation the first of the year.
 The Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Wayne County offices will remain at 51 W. Warren, Detroit, and fatherless children from the Grosse Pointes and other Wayne County communities will continue to be served by this agency.
 But administrative operations and community relations for all four agencies will be directed from a central office, the site of which has yet to be chosen.
 The Big Sister program, now in operation in Wayne and Oakland counties, will be expanded into Macomb County.
 The reorganization required a year of planning by the Big Brothers agencies, Pontiac Area United Fund and United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit, (UCS), to implement this new structure recommended by an independent consulting team.
 The report of the consultants' five-month USC-commissioned study of the four agencies concluded that a greater number of fatherless children could benefit from a better-quality Big Brothers and Big Sisters service if administrative and recruitment-oriented operations were outdented on an area-wide basis, instead of separately by each Big Brothers agency.
 This would occur, the report said, because this structure "can usually deploy a larger percentage of its resources into direct service."

 The agencies included in the reorganized structure are Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Wayne County, Big Brothers of Oakland County, Big Brothers of Macomb County and Big Brothers of Catholic Social Services in Detroit.

Shores Officers Nip Grease Fire

A grease fire, caused by overheated cooking oil, caused smoke and soot damage to several rooms in a Ballantyne road home Sunday afternoon, December 23. Shores public safety officers quickly responded to nip the blaze. There were no injuries.

Mrs. Emvert Nerdrum contacted the department. Officers Harry Hamilton and Michael Kenyon responded to discover the fire in an air filter above the kitchen stove. The filter was located in a re-circulating type hooded fan. Officers reported the kitchen and adjacent portions of the home were filled with smoke upon their arrival.

They spotted particles of a glowing substance in the filter and immediately dismantled the mechanism and took it outside. Because of the burned wiring in the fan itself, the entire unit was taken down and removed from the premises.

Assisting at the scene in extinguishing the fire, setting up an exhaust fan and using air freshener were Officers John Trevillian and Archie Grieve, along with Frank McWhirter and Harry McColm.

Police believed the fan belt was a total loss and smoke and soot damage, they felt, was confined to the kitchen, the dining and living room areas and the lower level family room.

Schools Stress Language Arts

For many parents of elementary school age youngsters, the curriculum term of language arts is a comparatively new one to understand. It may stir memories of their own elementary grade training in what was then called "English" involving endless hours of drill, complicated exercises in sentence diagramming, and patient plowing through dull grammar books with their accompanying worksheets.

Fortunately, such is not the case today in Grosse Pointe elementary school classrooms. Teachers, supplied with highly motivating new materials plus preparation in language encounter classes the past year are developing the art of communication in exciting and meaningful ways for their students.

Basic to today's language arts curriculum is that learners should actually use language for more than was done in schools in the past. Therefore, students now are directly involved in a wide variety of student centered activities to develop their speaking, writing, listening, and reading skills. These student centered activities create interaction among students and wide utilization of materials such as booklets, cassette tapes and activity cards.

The oral language activities, (discussion, role playing, oral reporting), students are involved with, develop an awareness concerning the principles of effective communication. Elements of that awareness include the appropriate relationship between a given audience and the vocabulary and usage levels employed in the communication.

Elementary school students today are writing more frequently and on a broader range of topics. If a student PROMOTED Michigan Bell recently announced the promotion of Moran road resident, Virginia Becker, to manager of general administrative services. In her new position, she will have responsibility for all corporate administrative services. Ms. Becker began her career with Michigan Bell in 1952 after graduating with a Bachelor's degree in English from the University of Michigan.

POINT OF VIEW A great many people get the blues today just because they fail to look at their problems in the right light.

is to achieve the goal of perceiving how he is using the language, and how he might use it, gaining awareness by practical observations about what he and others are doing when they speak or write is very important. The products of children's writing become the basis for an individualized program in skill instruction. Students do proceed through sequential steps in their writing from the personal viewpoint to the impersonal, from low to high abstraction.

Past experience in teaching children to express themselves in writing has shown that if they are hampered by long lists of rules and a barrage of dos and don'ts their expression of thoughts and feelings are limited. Under these conditions students will tend to confine themselves to a safe vocabulary of terms, and they will generally write rather tight and uninspiring compositions.

Today's approach in the initial stage of children writing is to permit students to freely express themselves, unlocking their vast supply of creative thoughts. Then by personal and peer proofreading, and carefully directed comments by the teacher, a student reshapes, edits, and rewrites the first draft for improved communication. Revision becomes an integral component of the thinking-writing process.

A well integrated language arts program is a careful balance between the free creative expression of ideas and the development of skills needed for clear and effective communications.

Elected to Board

Parke, Davis and Company recently announced the addition to the board of directors of Edwin F. Lau, of Berkshire road. Mr. Lau, presently vice-president of operations, graduated with a Master's degree in Engineering from the University of Michigan before he joined Parke-Davis in 1947.

The Company also named C. J. Cowles, a resident of South Oxford road, as vice-president in charge of U. S. market development. Mr. Cowles joined Parke-Davis as a sales representative in 1951, after graduating from Stanford University with a Master's degree in Business Administration.

Some of the blame for so many little white lies should be charged to the people who ask for a candid opinion.
