Mrs. Bush pushes GOP ticket in GP

By Gregory Jakub

Barbara Bush returned to Grosse Pointe last week to campaign for the Reagan-Bush ticket. She was here in May just before Grosse Pointe voters favvored her husband George Bush over Ronald Reagan by more than a two to one margin in Michigan's presidential primary.

When Bush later withdrew from the presidential race, Barbara Bush said it never occurred to her that she'd return to Grosse Pointe as the wife of a vice-presidential candidate.

"But it's not been hard to shift gears," Mrs. Bush said during a break from door-to-door campaigning on Manchester Blvd, in the Woods, "The major issue has always been 'can we stand four more years of Jimmy Carter' and the answer is no," she

She also said that it's been considerably easier to campaign for the Republican ticket since there was no great public battle between her husband and his former rival Reagan.

Since the campaign started, Mrs. Bush said she's visited everything from big fund raisers to Hispanic families to homes for delinquent chil-

"Everybody is talking about jobs," Mrs. Bush said. "People feel betrayed and they want the right to

She proposed the Republican solution for economic growth by giving tax breaks to businesses as incentives to increase production and compete with products from foreign countries.

She also said a high priority for Republicans is cutting taxes and limiting the growth of federal spending. "Carter in the last few months of the campaign has been saying 'we're going to cut taxes.' Why didn't he do that in the last four years?" Mrs.

As far as what her husband's role might be in a Reagan administration, Mrs. Bush said all that's expected are the jobs provided the vice-president by the Constitution-presiding over the Senate and sitting in on National Security Council meetings. Bush will have to prove himself capable and loyal if he is to receive any other duties such as foreign affairs advisor, Mrs. Bush said.

How does she feel about ERA-the issue that has divided so many Republicans? Mrs. Bush supports it even though Reagan opposes it because the party platform allows Republicans to support either stance on the ERA, she said.

Barbara Bush, wife of Republican vice-presidential candidate George Bush, returned to Grosse Pointe last week and talked with residents on Manchester Boulevard in the Woods.

Pointes will lose $4 million if Tisch is approved, study says

By Joanne Gouleche

Grosse Pointe communities could stand to lose over $4 million in property tax revenue next year if voters approve the controversial Tisch Tax Cut Proposal.

That's the gloomy prediction of the Michigan Department of Management and Budget, which recently released estimated revenue losses for 33 cities in Wayne County.

Locally, the DMB says, four Grosse Pointe communities would be faced with a $4.2 million revenue loss in 1981 if Tisch, Proposal D on the November ballot, gets the nod of figure would jump to $5.4 million in 1982.

THE HARDEST hit, according to DMB estimates, would be Grosse Pointe Farms, where approval of the Tisch amendment would take a whopping $1,373,000 out of a tightly-authored municipal budget of $4.7

Other figures for the Pointes are just as dismal:

• Grosse Pointe City-$756,000 in 1981: $983,000 in 1982.

• Grosse Pointe Park-$1,010,000 in 1981; $1,309,000 in 1982.

• Grosse Pointe Woods—$980,000 in 1981; $1,272,000 in 1982.

Farms City Manager Andrew Bremer said he's "fully aware of the constraints of the Tisch proposal," but could not comment on the DMB figures for his community until he viewed the department's report.

Local city administrators, however, expressed fear of Tisch's effects last spring when preparing bare bones

The tax proposal, brainchild of Shiawassee County Drain Commissioner Robert E. Tisch, will have some company on the Nov. 4 ballot. Two additional tax proposals, the Smith-Bullard School Financing Tax Shift (Proposal A) and the Executive-Legislative Tax Shift Plan (Proposal C), however, will not have as drastic effect on state revenues as Tisch's amendment, which proposes to rollback property taxes to their 1978 levels, critics say.

THE SMITH-BULLARD plan would primarily shift the financing of public and secondary education to the state's shoulders. State-backed Proposal C would lower residential assessments by $7,100 with revenues to be made up by an increased sales tax, from 4 percent to 5.5 percent beginning next year.

Catching the eye of voters, however, is Tisch's plan to slash the 1978 rollback taxes in half. Tisch says such a plan would force the state to reimburse local governmental units for loss of property tax revenue, and at the same time would cut into "wasteful spending" for state programs and

"This reimbursement provision will force the state to eliminate its excessive spending for services and programs and put the money where the voting citizens consider it to be needed most," Tisch says.

Critics of Tisch contend that local governments, including the Pointes, will see big financial bites into property-tax related revenues for police protection, sewage treatment and road maintenance, because inflation has increased property values significantly since 1978,

Chester Petersen said if Tisch is successful Nov. 4, his community will be in "better shape" than some because present tax levies make up about 58 percent of the Woods budget.

Grosse Pointe Woods City Manager

In the Park, City Manager John Crawford said he feels most people will not want the "meat axe" approach to tax problems in Michigan.

"Obviously, if there's no support to replace monies taken away by Tisch, then there will be a substantial reduction in services."

Lansing offers District Court options for 1983

By Gregory Jakub

Lawmakers in Lansing are again trying to establish a Ğrosse Pointe District Court in 1982 to fill a jurisdictional gap created by the reorganization of Wayne County Courts.

SEN. JOHN KELLY of Detroit Tuesday introduced legislation proposing the five Grosse Pointes establish a District Court with the options of having one judge elected at large, two judges elected at large or two judges elected by two divisions within the district.

If Kelly's bill is adopted, the cities have until May 4, 1982 to decide on what form the district court will take. The judge will be elected in August, 1982 with the court to start Jan. 1, 1983.

A Grosse Pointe District Court would combine the functions of the present five municipal courts as required by a 1974 state law mandating all municipal courts be converted to a district system.

Kelly's bill is a spinoff of a legislative package expected to be approved this week that will convert Detroit's Common Pleas Court, which currently hears Grosse Pointe civil cases between $1,000 and $10,000, to a Detroit District Court. The change will take place in January, 1981 and leave those Grosse Pointe civil cases without a court to be heard in or transfer them to Circuit Court where there is already a three to four year backlog of cases.

To prevent this "jurisdictional gap," Kelly's bill proposes a Grosse Pointe District Court which will combine the present five municipal courts' case load of civil cases below $1,000 plus those up to $10,000. The court would be located in Grosse Pointe and the cases heard by one or two judges to be elected by Pointers.

THE ADVANTAGES of changing to a Grosse Pointe District Court is that Pointers with civil cases between $1,000 and $10,000 will no longer have to travel downtown to Common Pleas Court. Also, a judge elected by Grosse Pointers and sitting in their own community will allow for a more fair and efficient administration of justice, according to some legal experts.

Kelly's bill is similar to a district court bill he successfully introduced in late 1979 proposing a Grosse Pointe District Court for January, 1981. Political delays and uncertainty by Grosse Pointe city officials as to whether they wanted a one or two court system caused that legislation to expire on May 27 before efforts to organize the new court even got off the ground.

The exact number of civil cases that a new Grosse Pointe District Court will handle determines how many judges and districts are needed. Kelly says that studies done by state legal experts on the projected caseload for Grosse Pointe indicates that the area will need at least two judges and possibly two courts to operate efficiently.

Kelly said he expects the city officials to again have trouble deciding how many judges they need and where the district court should be located so his bill provides several options and enough time to work those questions out by May 4, 1982. The state constitution prevents the election of judges in odd numbered

CPR is coming to Shores

By Tom Greenwood

Thanks to an important "dummy," heart attack victims in the Shores stand a greater chance for survival in the future, according to Shores Police Chief Joseph Vitale.

The "dummy" is Resusi-Anne, a life-like mannequin used to teach life-saving Cardio-pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) techniques. "We acquired 'Annie' about two weeks ago, thanks to the fund raising efforts of Officer Harry Hamilton," said Chief

"We currently have four CPR trained officers, and intend to send them to school to enable them to become instructors themselves." Once this is accomplished, we intend to train all Shores employes in the use of CPR. Eventually, we hope to offer these courses to the entire commu-

"Once six or more persons request a class, we will send 'Annie' and an instructor out to teach the residents how to save lives. The importance of CPR can't be over-emphasized," he

"Once learned, it can be used anywhere, any me. The idea is to restore the breathing and heartbeat quickly as possible. The first four minutes are the most important. After that, the brain cells begin to die."

According to Officer Hamilton, "Annie" is the "top of the line" model used in CPR classes. The adult sized mannequin is electronically equipped to inform the student if his life-saving efforts are effective.

"A red light shows if improper chest manipulation is being utilized, while a yellow light tells when things are being done properly," Hamilton said. "The student will also see a green light if proper ventilation is being given to 'Annie'," he added.

Another feature is an electro-cardiogram tape readout provided by "Annie" while CPR is being admin-

"The tape tells us if the rate of breath, compression and timing are correct," said Hamilton. "We can tell exactly whether the student is working properly on the victim."

"Annie" can also be provided with a carotid pulse and dilated pupils to make the situation seem all the more

Top of the line models in anything are expensive, and "Annie" is no exception, according to Officer Dan Healy, director of the Shores EMS

Divers portray shipwrecks

Lake tragedies on canvas

By Tom Greenwood

Ever since the French trading ship "Griffin" sailed through a "crack in the lake" over 200 years ago, tales of howling November gales and Great Lakes shipwrecks have mesmerized local historians.

Combining art with history, two men have joined to accurately portray on canvas high quality presentations of Great Lake shipwrecks. Bob McGreevy, 36, of Fleetwood

Road, and Larry Coplin, 37, of Flint are members of the Shipwreck History Inspection and Preservation Society, (SHIPS), a group dedicated to the preservation of the marine heritage of our Great Lakes.

"Basically, Bob does the art work based on visual inspection, photography and movies of wrecks taken by myself and other divers in our group, said Larry, who works as an insurance salesman.

"Our current project is the 'Pewabic,' which sank after colliding with her sister ship the 'Meteor' in 1865. When finished, we'll show an accurate rendition of how the ship appears now in the water, and how she looked before the collision.

"She sank, killing between 60-125 persons," he continued. "Many were Confederate soldiers, just released from a POW camp in Marquette. There are still human bones on board, and pieces of Confederate uniforms. "We're not interested in removing artifacts from the wrecks," stressed Bob, "Our main concern is providing accurate portrayals of the sinkings, plus how they now appear on the bottom. The water that far down is very cold, in the 35 to 40 degree range, and everything is usually very well preserved."

Bob, who works as a design artist for Chrysler, met Larry through a mutual friend, and have since worked as a team to present history and legend as fact.

"Many times Bob will accompany us on dives, working to sketch the way the wrecks lie on the bottom," said Larry. "The problem with deep diving (the 'Pewabic' lies in 170 feet of water), is that you forget what you've seen rather quickly. With Bob around, we can get it all in black and white moments after we've been on the wreck.

One of the most fascinating and beautiful of their undertakings are sketches and prints of the ore carrier Daniel J. Morrell, which sank in November, 1966, with a loss of 29

"The Morrell is one of three ore carriers which have sunk in November storms in modern times," said Larry. "The other two are the Carl D. Bradley, which sank in 1958, and the Edmund Fitzgerald, which broke

"She lies bottom side down, in 217 feet of water," said Bob. "The eerie thing is that after she broke in two, the bow section sank immediately.

while the stern section sailed on for another seven miles, before sliding beneath the waves.'

Bob's color print shows the Morrell breaking up during a storm, while another three-section pen and ink sketch shows the Morrell as she is today, resting on the bottom, life boats dangling from the sides of the 600-foot ship, looking like she's resting till her next voyage.

"Larry was the first person to find the bow section of the Morrell," said Bob. "All other reports put the bow much closer to the stern. Because of his efforts, we now know the stern section sailed on, powered by her engines, for a full seven miles, before it too sank to the bottom.'

The artistry of Bob McGreevy will be shown at the Sign of the Mermaid, 75 Kercheval, beginning Saturday, Oct. 25. The showing will include a number of limited edition prints of the Morrell shipwreck, plus drawings, sketches and renditions of other Great Lake tragedies.

Included in the display, will be a large painting of the wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald, plus a stunningly beautiful wooden model of the Pewabic, built by McGreevy from a piece of wood from the ship itself.

Film shows and slide presentations of Great Lake shipwrecks can be booked through the Sign of the Mermaid. Contributions for pen and ink sketches of the Morrell will go to SHIPS, a non-profit tax deductible organization.

Sisters mark 150th year

The Dominican Sisters of Saint Mary of the Springs in Columbus, Ohio, will celebrate the Sesquicentennial Anniversary of their foundation Oct. 5 with an Eucharistic Liturgy at 12 noon at Saint Clare of Montefalco Church, Mack and Whittier in Grosse Pointe Park.

Similar celebrations marking the 150th anniversary of the foundation of the Congregation will be held in all the geographic areas where the sisters minister.

The Dominican Order was founded by Saint Dominic Guzman in the 13th century to combat the heresies of the time. Saint Dominic sought to blend the older monastic traditions with a spirit of study and preaching necessary to the Church.

In 1822, a small group of women answered the call of the pioneer Church in Kentucky and onened the fire convent and school of American Dominican sisters. Eight years later, four sisters were sent from Kentucky to Somerset, Ohio, and opened a new mission. It is from this group of pioneers that Saint Mary of the Springs claims its origin.

Today, the sisters minister to the Church's needs by their work in schools, hospitals, Diocesan Offices and Parish Ministry. In the Detroit Archdiocese, the sisters staff Saint Clare of Montefal co School and work in the CYO Urban Recreation Pro-

Woods hikes water rates

Council Monday, Sept. 15 meters will soon have to pay 13 deck voted to increase water rates $25 instead of $3 to have the yards.

The rate hike was recommended by City Comptroller-Assessor Fredrick Hornfisher who said it was necessary because the Detroit Water and Sewage Department is increasing its rates by 57 percent or $1.11 per thousand cubic feet effective Dec. 1. The Woods buys all its water from Detroit.

The increase breaks down to an increase of 61 cents per month for the minimum water bill of $19.62 which will jump to $21.45. Hornfisher's recommendation includes an additional 11 cents per thousand cubic feet to cover water loss through main breaks and fire fight

Hornfisher said it takes about two hours of an employe's time to test the meter. Since a defective meter has never been found, a change in the charge would cut expenses, Hornfisher said.

If a tested meter is found to be defective, the charge will be refunded, according to the ordinance.

Vic Caputo On National Defense

The United States faces a period of grave risk

We must recognize that our strategic nuclear forces will soon be vulnerable and our conventional forces inferior to those of the Soviet Union. The Soviets have demonstrated their willingness to exploit that weakness by their recent incursions in Africa, Southeast Asia and, of course, Afghanistan.

The need to maintain and expand our future defense capabilities has been seriously disregarded in the past few years. The Carter Administration has cancelled or delayed several critical weapons systems, and new attention must be given to moving those programs forward.

Our country should proceed immediately to reopen production of an advanced manned bomber to replace our aging B-52's and to recover a return on our five billion dollar investment in the cancelled B-1 Bomber. Now, we must also contend with the Carter Administration's inexcusable leak of classified information about the "Stealth" bomber program.

American land-based nuclear forces are now located in fixed, concrete silos. We must develop new mobile systems to protect our missles against, and thereby deter, a Soviet first strike. The current MX missile program, involving a "race track" deployment method, may be the best answer, but must be reviewed to resolve questions as to whether it is the most effective and efficient alternative.

A strengthened and modernized navy is essential to regain our lost capabilities in the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian Oceans. That effort must include a new nuclear-powered aircraft carrier and improved sealift capacity.

We face an imminent and serious disadvantage in our conventional forces in comparison to the Soviet Union. That disparity must be corrected, especially to help restore a balance in Europe between NATO and Warsaw Pact forces.

Finally, it should be understood that a strong national defense depends upon, and makes possible, an effective and consistent foreign policy.

No one can support extravagant or unnecessary defense spending. But history has demonstrated that the most reliable deterrent to war is military strength, not weakness.

Helen and Bert Francis, who have shared 45 years together, live in a delightful home furnished with beautiful pieces of handmade furniture purchased on their trips to Denmark and other countries. The decoris accented with paintings and art objects carefully acquired during a lifetime of discerning collecting. Each item, including the furniture, has a history and a story which both Helen and Bert can relate with authority

Books are an important feature of the living room. One wall is lined with overflowing bookshelves from tloor to ceiling. Two enormous hanging baskets of ferms suspend from a sometime next spring. AS FAR AS THE eye can see, the lush green of plants and the glowing call Debi Wegner Ihrie at colors of flowers set off the wide expanse of velvet green lawn. Interesting trees shade the home front and back. Each plant, each tree is identified by scientific name and origin. This is a garden that is part of the life story of Helen and Bert. Like the home, it is very personally theirs.

In such a setting, this couple could live in quiet ease, enjoying a life of leisure and fulfillment. But this is not what they choose to do.

Secure in their own comfort and lifestyle, they are concerned with the problems of those who also love their homes as much as they love theirs but have problems staying in them.

It was this concern that took them to Denmark last summer where they lived for six weeks observing the excellent care given the aged there. It is this concern that led them to spend many hours working with Seniors Onward for Change (SOC) a group organized to assess and answer the needs of Grosse Pointe seniors.

Bert was the first director and president of that group. He is also on the board of directors of AARP, a member of the nutrition site committee of the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church; the City Commission of Grosse Pointe Woods and the Board of Education on Aging.

"When seniors have a problem in Grosse Pointe," Bert proudly an-nounced, "they call Bert Francis!" Helen and Bert's devotion to up-grading the lives of senior citizens in

At home, Bert continues his studies as a member of the 'Readers,' a group of men from the Grosse Pointe Men's Club, who read a book each week and then meet in each other's homes to discuss the 'book of the week.' It is not light reading. "Our purpose," Bert explained, "is to discover something of the world in which we live. The world today is an entirely different world from the one in which we grew up. Biology, physics, chemistry, all the sciences have changed. There is so much to learn. It is like getting another education." "Out of Chaos" by Lewis Hale is one from the stack of books which comprise those collected from their discussions.

A man of many interests Bert may briefly enthuse over his remembered

"It is time for seniors to decide what kind of society they wish to inhabit," he declared. "They should insist on full citizenship; good housing, good nutrition and complete health coverage; opportunities for recreation and education. In short, they should enjoy "the last of life for which the first was made.'

To achieve these ends," he continued, "there is a need to train senior citizens for leadership. Who best knows the needs of their group, than those affected?'

Bert hopes to attend the upcoming Whitehouse Conference on Aging.
He would well represent seniors everywhere.

FLEC — a community need

The prospect that the Family Life Education Council will have to close its doors soon because of a lack of financial support is bad news for the Grosse Pointe community.

If the last-minute resuscitative efforts fail, it would mean that the Pointes would be left without a volunteer social service agency to which troubled parents and young people could turn for medical, legal and personal counseling about their prob-lems. Until last year, the Youth Services Division, funded by the school board and the governments of the five Pointes, provided some counseling services, especially to juveniles involved in crimes. Now if FLEC bows out, such services will simply not be available at the community level.

In a recession, it is not surprising that FLEC finds itself underfunded. People faced with high taxes and inflation find it difficult to respond sympathetically to requests for contributions to any privately-funded organization, even one with the impressive record made by FLEC since it started serving the community in

YET THE NEED remains. Indeed, it can'be argued that in a recession the need for the kind of services provided by FLEC increases. There is likely to be more family stress and strain, more tensions in society in general, than in more normal economic periods. And so there is a greater need for agencies such as those operated by FLEC. Not surprisingly, during the recession FLEC's load has increased dramatically as it has tried to meet the increased demana.

Just what have FLEC and its agencies been doing in this community? FLEC has operated chiefly through four agencies: the Center Point Crisis Center, the Medical Clinic, Dialogue and the Legal Clinic. In addition, it has arranged seminars and workshops, in cooperation with community groups, local hospitals and local doctors, on such matters as alcohol abuse, drug abuse and health ed-

Center Point is a short-term youth counseling center which offers counseling services by para-professionals trained in active listening and problem solving. The Medical Clinic, staffed by volunteer doctors and nurses and other volunteers, provides counseling and health education and medical referrals. IN THESE TIMES, FLEC ought to be expanding its services, rather than laying off people, according to Dr. John Burrows, FLEC president. He points out that after the YSD folded, FLEC's contacts increased tremendously. Let's fix Mack

It is true that last spring, residents of the Grosse Pointe area were hotly complaining of poor road planning on Mack Avenue, Adults and children walking on Mack Avenue were in constant danger every time they crossed the street. The city promised to do something about this dangerous road and began construction over two months ago. The residents have been patiently waiting for the new road to appear. But where is it? Where is the safer road we were promised? Going west from the road is the only improvement I have seen. Students are still in peril when they cross the street. Safety is the "key" issue here and we, the people of this city, would very much appreciate having it when crossing the street.

place on Friday.

First, for pedestrians, the gravel is loose and easy to slip on. Next, bikers find the gravel makes it extremely hard to turn corners and make sudden stops. Also, pebbles send to shoot up in the bikers' faces interfering with their vision which could cause an accident. Finally, car tires swerve and skid on the roads and drivers hold a high risk of hitting someone. This concerns me greatly because I know of two instances where the gravel has caused accidents. The graveled roads are a hazard which should be dealt with before any more serious accidents occur.

Laura Van Wynsberg, Of Lennox Road, Grosse Pointe Woods

Editor's note: Woods Department of Public Works Director Leonard Ocelnik explained that the gravel is part of a street resurfacing process that is cheaper than asphalt. The gravel must lay loose on the street for about two weeks while traffic bonds it to a layer of tar sprayed underneath. After two weeks, whatever loose gravel is left will be swept up, Ocelnik said.

publicans Committee (CRC) and with the aim of working for GOP candidates and fostering a commitment to GOP activities and ideals in the district. Significantly, the new group includes the two district officials who had resigned in June. Behind the squabble is the old issue of power and control over the party. The group in control, informally headed by Richard Durant, the former GOP District 14 chairman, relies heavily on veteran party workers and tends to look askance at newcomers. The insurgents feel more activist Republicans will have to be recruited if the GOP is to have any hope of electing anyone in the future. Vic Caputo, the GOP congressional nominee, is, of course, a political newcomer, and has not come up through the GOP ranks and, in effect, becomes an innocent victim of the squabble.

But as a result the chances of the election of a GOP congressman do not appear to be very bright. True, the 14th District is a likely candidate for elimination in the reapportionment that is expected to cost Michigan a congressional seat once the 1980 census returns are all in. But the GOP squabbling and the party's failure to put out the welcome mat appears likely to keep the District 14 seat Democratic for its last two years.

The view from Harsen's Island

Did you know that on a clear day you can see fall exhibition of Michigan Renaissance Center from Harsen's Island? Questers artists tomorrow, Friday. of Grosse Pointe Chapter #147 have known that | Sept. 26, at a 5 to 7:30 p.m. for several weeks now.

For the early autumn day on which they visited the island, meeting for luncheon at the Shingle Style summer home of Mrs. Frederick Schumann, was delightful. The company as well as the setting made it so, of course.

Mrs. Richard Mertz and Mrs. Frank Welbon were Mrs. Schumann's co-hostesses. The day's program included a tour of the island: a "Little Venice" only 50 miles from Detroit, then another mile by ferry across the north channel of the Studio Visions St. Clair River.

Harsen's Island architecture has always been with a 5 to 8 p.m. reception eclectic. Styles, from as early as 1850, range from and will continue through Greek Revival to Italianate to Victorian Gothic, from Gothic and Imperial Roman, circa 1900, to Queen Anne and Mrs. Schumann's Shingle Style.

The Shingle Style stemmed from a variety of sources, including Swiss, Queen Anne and Romanesque. Wood was the principal building material. Features include wooden shingles (hence the name), porch piers, tower lines in bay windows and a polygonal tower that can, if imagination is stretched, remotely suggest a lighthouse.

The rainbow-hued cottages lining the Old Club's south channel boardwalk are marvelous examples of Shingle Style. The Questers admired them on their stroll along the boardwalk. Their tour ended with a visit to the Queen Anne Style, circa 1890, home of Mrs. John Keys.

Thanks to the generosity of the Detroit Branch of the English-Speaking Union of the United States, which includes many Grosse Pointers in its membership. I have many rich memories of my travel through southern England in the summer of 1979. As an English teacher at Grosse Pointe South High School, the E-SU awarded me a Page Fellowship to visit schools in England to observe and compare their educational atmosphere with our own.

Academy teams begin seasons

The Grosse Pointe Academy's fall sports schedule is now under way and, if the first week's results are any indication of what is to come. another successful season in sports can be expected.

The GPA Soccer team started off its season with a 2-0 victory over a team from St. Jude, in what best could be described as a mud bowl. One goal each by Greg Stroh and Troy Brown, plus hustle and determination despite the conditions, contributed to the victory.

The defending CYO Champion Academy Tennis squad also got off on the winning side with a 6-1 victory over St. Clare.

The GPA Volleyball season began on Monday, Sept. 22.

A large Doultorn plate, with an Oriental motif. A morage Nippon covered jar. A gigantic set of Tiffany glass dinnerware, that includes goblets of 4 sizes, plates, and finger bowls. Advertising costs are not based on the number of eyes that see your message, the number of fingers turning these pages, or the number of hats a reader wearsat least they shouldn't be. Some media projections leave you guessing, though. We figure it is the nose that counts-one per customer. In fact, we feel accurate circulation figures are so important to you that we have the Audit Bureau of Circulations do our nose counting for us. ABC sets the standards. Their specially-trained auditors do the counting. And they publish a report on the facts as they found them to be.
