

South High's Joyce moves to Parcels

The public school administrative reorganization that began earlier this month was completed last week with the announcement that South High School Assistant Principal Sheila Joyce would be transferred to Parcels Middle School in the same position.

Dr. Kathy Herschelmann, assistant principal at North High, will assume a dual administrative assignment at North and South. Dr. Herschelmann formerly worked at South High as a teacher.

Mrs. Joyce, a former middle school administrator in the Bloomfield Hills school system, has worked at South for four years.

Earlier this month the schools announced that former Parcels Middle School assistant principal Claire Basco would take over principal's duties at Richard Elementary School, replacing Jay Flowers who was transferred to Defer Elementary School as principal. The Defer position was vacated in September by Dr. Sally Bell who moved to Wyoming.

The reorganization leaves the school system with a net reduction of one administrator.

Park businessman pleads guilty

An Oakland County Circuit Court Judge sentenced a Grosse Pointe Park businessman last week to two years probation for selling unregistered gas and oil securities last year.

Robert L. Bowen, 40, who pleaded guilty to three counts of selling phony securities in a Texas oil and gas well, was ordered to pay $2,500 in restitution to two investors after two additional counts of receiving money under false pretenses were dropped.

Bowen is president of Enbow Resources in Southfield.

Cinema League views the Pacific Northwest

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will present "The Pacific Northwest and Alaska," a color slide presentation by Julien R. Wolfe, Monday, Nov. 3, at 8 p.m. in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium, 32 Lakeshore Road.

Area residents are invited to attend the program without charge. The social hour following the presentation is limited to Cinema League members.

The program highlights beautiful scenery as viewed from various modes of transport, including airplane, railroad, ship, bus and plane, without the use of a car.

There is a delightful scenic train ride on "The Canadian" through the Rockies, and then north from Jasper to Prince Rupert. The British Columbia Ferry Service is used to visit Vancouver Island and Victoria, and the little-known Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway is used on Vancouver Island.

In Alaska there are interesting photographs of Skagway, and the White Pass and Yukon narrow gauge mountain route to Whitehorse. A 14-hour bus trip is made from here to Fairbanks, where another train is boarded to take the traveler to Anchorage, Alaska.

Of special interest are photographs of Valdez, southern terminal of the Alaska Pipeline, and the Columbia Icefields.

The program continues with views of the Mendenhall Glacier, Juneau and Sitka, and concludes in Seattle, Washington.

Murder still a mystery

suspect currently being held in the October 6, 1980 strangulation murder of 81-year-old Kerby Road resident Elizabeth Keir.

"Yes, we are looking for any possible connection between the two murders," said Chief Ferber. "Based upon the savagery of the crimes, times, area and opportunity. However, he is but one of several known, yet unclear or charged suspects."

One thing that has stymied police is the apparent lack of a concrete motive in the Clyne stabbing. Her body was fully clothed when found, with her purse lying intact nearby. A gold ring was still on her hand. She apparently was not sexually molested.

Recently, similar crimes involving the murders of three coeds in Ann Arbor have lead Farms detectives to that city seeking clues, but that too apparently has not panned out.

In April, July and September of this year, three women were stabbed to death in Ann Arbor. According to police reports, there were wounds in similar areas of the body, there was no sexual molestation, no robbery of the victims and no readily apparent motive.

However, the detectives could find nothing connecting the Ann Arbor and Farms crimes.

"We feel we've left no stone unturned in the investigation of this murder," said Chief Ferber. "We've done everything humanly possible to clear this case. Between today and January 1 of this year, we've put in over 600 hours alone on this crime, with an additional 200 man hours from the state police. The first few days after the murder, the men in the Detective Bureau were each spending from 16 to 18 hours a day on the crime. This person will be apprehended."

Methods used by the police included using metal detectors over square block areas trying to locate the murder weapon. Costume jewelry, money, license plates and gum wrappers were found, but no weapon was unearthed.

All sewers in the area were searched with heavy magnets, but with no results. Cars seen in the area were tracked through the Secretary of State's office. In one case, Farms police checked for all green, 1968 Pontiacs registered in Wayne County.

There were 360 in Detroit alone, but Farms detectives managed to locate 358 of them.

A State Police hypnotist was employed to help potential witnesses sharpen their memories. Chief Ferber also underwent hypnosis "to help me recall the scene of the crime more vividly," he said. "It helped many of the witnesses, and it also helped me."

A tracking dog used by police to search for Jimmy Hoffa was brought in and did a remarkable job, according to Chief Ferber. "The dog started at her doctor's office on the Hill, first showing us the chair she sat in, and then took us north on the lake side of Kercheval until reaching Merriweather," said the Chief. "The dog then crossed Kercheval

There the trail ended. But interestingly enough, according to the chief, this was also the area where the man sought by police was also seen.

While declining to identify the name or number of psychics used on the case, Chief Ferber said the "information they provided has not given us any solid leads."

Behavioral scientists submitted a number of psychological profiles of the killer to the police department. While they declined to reveal what they were "in the best interests of the investigation," police authorities did admit they had one common characteristic.

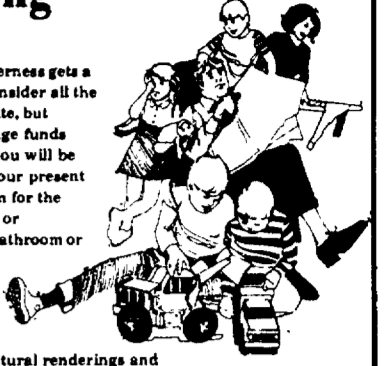

"The majority of the profiles say the killer will strike again," said Chief Ferber. "But they also say the killer will subsequently be apprehended."

"Based upon the profiles established and a common thread of 'will strike again and be apprehended,' I do feel the murder will eventually be cleared. If for no other reason, that under existing Michigan law, if apprehended for a second or subsequent murders, it's in the murderer's best interest to confess and thereby be sentenced concurrently for the crimes rather than receive consecutive sentencing."

"While the killing appears to be random, and the incident emphasizes the constant need for self protection," said the Chief. "There is nothing to indicate that a mad killer is on the loose."

Becky Messer presides at North

It was a big day for the entire North High School family — Homecoming, 1980 — on Saturday, Oct. 25. From the continental breakfast beginning at 8:30 a.m. to the end of the dance at midnight, the day was packed with reunions of members of last June's class and special activities for current North students.

About 150 June graduates met early in the day for coffee, sweetrolls and juice in the school commons.

The annual Homecoming parade began at Monteith school and proceeded down Morningside. In the judging of the floats there was a first this year—a tie between the juniors with "Rapunzel" and the seniors with "King Midas," on the theme of fairy tales. The start of the game was delayed until 2 p.m. to allow for members of the junior class to take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test.

North's varsity football team played against the Brabec Cougars in a one sided game. At half time, with the score of 35-0 in favor of North, and fathers escorted their daughters to the infield for the crowning ceremony. The court members were freshmen Bridget Whelan and Milva Secco; sophomores Chrissy Mourad and Gale Gallagher; juniors Susie Starnes, Mary LoVasco and Kathie Phillips; and seniors Lisa Campau, Becky Messer, and Fran Lucido. Becky Messer was crowned Homecoming Queen.

Two hundred couples danced to the music of "Frosted" from 9 p.m. to midnight. The Student Association had decorated the cafeteria with evergreens and small lights, to emphasize the fairy tale theme of the event. Each couple was photographed by parent Dick Cooper, as a remembrance of a busy day.

During the year the committee will meet to decide the general theme for the program, the senior speaker, the set-up of the commencement ceremonies and the selection of the church leader to give the invocation and the benediction.

Fossil beds reveal largest flying bird

Its wingspan was 25 feet. Standing, it would have looked a six-foot man in the eye. And the big bird flew.

The skeleton of this gigantic bird has been recently unearthed in Argentina. Two paleontologists, Drs. Kenneth E. Campbell and Eduardo P. Tonni, have identified the fossil as a new type of teratorn, Argentavis magnificens, that lived in South America about five to eight million years ago.

It is, they say, the world's largest known flying bird and it's so big that it takes some doing to visualize, admits Campbell, who is curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County.

Imagine a bird that could stretch its wings 25 feet. One that measured 11 feet from the tip of the tail to the tip of its elongated beak. One that weighed 160 to 170 pounds. The bird, said Campbell, is Argentavis magnificens. Its Latin name roughly means "the magnificent bird of Argentina."

known flying birds, North America's Teratornis incredibilis and a marine bird called Osteodontornis orri, had wingspans of nearly 16 feet. All of these giant animals are extinct.

The fragmented skeleton of the giant teratorn was collected by Tonni and Dr. Rosendo Pascual of Argentina's La Plata Museum.

Campbell, while in South America last year on a research project sponsored by the National Geographic Society, was invited by Tonni to help study the fossil bones.

Analyzing such a skeleton is like trying to assemble a puzzle with some of the pieces missing. Campbell and Tonni mainly had leg and wing bones and parts of the skull. All of the bones were fractured, and no bone was complete. But there were enough clues to identify the bird as a new genus and species, and to reveal some things about how it lived.

Because teratorn bones closely resemble condor bones, scientists have long thought that teratorns were close relatives of condors and that they, too, were scavengers, eating the remains of animals that died or were killed by predators.

But Campbell says the teratorns were predators, based on his studies of Teratornis merriami, a species found in abundance in California's La Brea tar pits. This bird had a 12-foot wingspan and lived up until 10,000 years ago.

"The long, narrow hooked beak and the type of jaw mechanism found in this species are similar to those that would be expected of a bird that grabbed small animals with its beak and swallowed them whole," he said.

"Its feet were not the type found in hawks, eagles, or owls, so it could not have captured prey the way those kinds of birds do. Its jaw bones were too weak to kill large prey by biting, and its jaws were also too weak to tear large prey into pieces small enough to swallow. Therefore it must have fed on small animals."

According to Campbell, teratorns were related to storks and New World vultures, evolving from common ancestors perhaps 60 to 70 million years ago. Previously, he added, only a few ornithologists have thought storks and New World vultures were close relatives.

The skeleton from Argentina has been tentatively dated as from the late Miocene era.

"If you take a humerus from your 25-pound Thanksgiving turkey and look at it, it's probably between five and six inches long," he explained. "The big bird's humerus was approximately 22 inches long. So that one bone, the first bone of the wing, may be as long as your entire arm. One of the forearm bones attached to the humerus was nearly three feet long. It's definitely a most spectacular creature."

There have been bigger birds and bigger flying animals, but no bigger birds that flew. The elephant bird, Aepyornis maximus, an ostrich-like bird from Madagascar, stood 10 feet tall and weighed about 1,000 pounds. The biggest known creature to take to the air were flying reptiles called pterosaurs. One pterosaur found in Texas had wings spanning 30 to 35 feet.

The biggest previously known flying birds, North America's Teratornis incredibilis and a marine bird called Osteodontornis orri, had wingspans of nearly 16 feet. All of these giant animals are extinct.

The fragmented skeleton of the giant teratorn was collected by Tonni and Dr. Rosendo Pascual of Argentina's La Plata Museum.

Campbell, while in South America last year on a research project sponsored by the National Geographic Society, was invited by Tonni to help study the fossil bones.

All of the bones were fractured, and no bone was complete. But there were enough clues to identify the bird as a new genus and species, and to reveal some things about how it lived.

The skeleton, for example, showed the two paleornithologists that the big bird flew. "People are going to say that any bird that large simply couldn't fly," Campbell said. "But we are sure that it did, because it has the right size wing bones, and it has the markings on the wing bones of the secondaries, a type of flight feathers. It's unlikely that a bird would have feathers and wing bones suitable for flight if it didn't fly."

Because of its size, the big bird probably did more soaring than wing-flapping flight. Campbell said it flew like today's California condors, whose wingspans approach 10 feet.

Because teratorn bones closely resemble condor bones, scientists have long thought that teratorns were close relatives of condors and that they, too, were scavengers, eating the remains of animals that died or were killed by predators.

$300
LOW MINIMUM BALANCE

Your First Federal interest-earning checking account will require a low minimum balance of just $300. And as long as you maintain this balance, there is no monthly service charge. First Federal's low minimum balance requirement frees up more of your money for other needs.

OVERDRAFT PROTECTION

This optional feature of your interest-earning checking account helps protect you from the inconvenience of accidentally overdrawing the account. It provides you with peace of mind. Be sure to apply separately for this service. When accepted, you'll have a pre-approved line of credit available.

You can sign up for your account right now with a minimum deposit of $300. For making this early deposit, you'll be entitled to 50 free personalized checks which will be sent to you after December 30, 1980. In addition, we'll put that deposit in a regular savings account until December 31, 1980, earning 5 1/2% per year, daily interest. On that date we'll automatically convert your account to an interest-earning checking account. And you'll be able to start writing checks and earning 5 1/4% annual interest, the highest annual rate allowed by law on interest-earning checking accounts.

First Federal's more than 60 offices mean you can have your interest-earning checking account close to where you live, work, or shop—which ever is most convenient for you.

The presidential race: a glimmer of hope

It has been a dispiriting campaign for the presidency in many respects. Many voters still feel, even as the day of reckoning approaches, that the appropriate slogan for the entire campaign was expressed by the man who last summer wore a campaign button that said, "My candidate is worse than your candidate." Yet in this newspaper's opinion there is some reason for hope.

In making a choice next Tuesday, voters must weigh President Carter's record and the prospects of another Carter administration against the promises made by GOP nominee Ronald Reagan. They also may wish to assess the merits of Rep. John B. Anderson and the lesser candidates but for all practical purposes the race now has come down to a Carter-Reagan contest.

MR. CARTER, IT will be remembered, was not the choice of Michigan voters four years ago. In 1976, a majority of the people of this state cast their ballots for Gerald R. Ford, the only Michigan resident ever to serve as president. This year, despite a whirlwind last-minute campaign by the President and other leading Democrats and the distribution of hundreds of millions of dollars in federal aid and promises to Detroit and other Democratic strongholds in Michigan—the issue is still in doubt. So Mr. Carter may not be Michigan's choice this year, either.

One reason is that in Michigan Ronald Reagan is winning strong support, not only because of his own campaigning and the support of Gov. Milliken but also because of his choice of George Bush as his running mate. It was George Bush, remember, who won an impressive victory in Michigan's GOP presidential primary last spring and who has returned time and again this fall to urge his friends in this state to support the Republican ticket.

Four years ago, a major campaign issue was whether unemployment or inflation should be given top priority as a national problem. Mr. Carter opted for trying to reduce unemployment and gave the problem of inflation a secondary role in his campaign rhetoric. Mr. Ford insisted that inflation hurt everyone, workers as well as the unemployed, but he lost the election by a narrow margin.

Now, in 1980, Mr. Carter has conceded that Mr. Ford was right four years ago. The President finally has come around to believing that inflation deserves the No. 1 priority among domestic problems.

Four years ago Mr. Carter was all in favor of cutting the defense budget. He ranged up and down the land telling voters how much waste there was in the Pentagon and that he could cut the defense budget by $5 billion. Once again he proved to be a slow learner, although in this case Congress was the teacher. It simply refused to make the cuts Mr. Carter talked about.

So now this year Mr. Carter is singing a new refrain. He points with pride to increased defense spending that was forced on him by Congress. And now he says he favors a further defense buildup, after having rejected and delayed military programs and taken other actions during his presidency that have reduced this country's preparedness and cost the United States more ground in the arms race with the USSR.

FOUR YEARS AGO, Mr. Carter pledged improved relations with the Soviet Union. After his election, he chided the American people for their "inordinate fear of communism." Now that he was president everything would be all right not only at home but abroad, too, he said. And, he announced, he would contest with the USSR not on the battlefield or in an arms race but in the field of human rights. And so it came to pass that the USSR invaded Afghanistan and the Kremlin continued to ignore the human rights not only of its own people but of those in the satellite nations as well. So another of Mr. Carter's 1976 pledges has gone down the drain.

From this brief examination, it is easy to understand why Mr. Carter is trying to make Ronald Reagan's the expertise of a professional educator as well as concern about WC3 programs and whether student needs are being met.

No doubt a case can be made for each of the three proposals to increase Wayne County property tax rates to help finance Wayne County General Hospital, county mental health care and operating costs of the county sheriff and prosecuting attorney. And perhaps it could be argued that the county's tax limit ought to be raised from 15 mills to 18 mills to meet increased costs. But we feel that in view of county government's poor performance in the past, such increases should not be voted until the people have had the opportunity to approve a new charter to reorganize county government. So we urge a "NO" VOTE ON PROPOSALS J, K, L, AND M.

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education has expressed itself against all four, pointing out that if they passed they would increase the county level by 4.5 mills and that, in the board's opinion, such an increase would put the school district over its constitutional limit and make it impossible to seek additional local millage in the future to fund Grosse Pointe programs and services.

As for three state tax reform proposals on the ballot, we have said before and say again that voting on tax referenda is a poor way to write tax reforms because passage results in piecemeal legislation that tackles only part of the state's tax problems. So we urge a "NO" VOTE ON ALL THREE PROPOSALS A, C AND D. (Proposal D, the Tisch amendment, is discussed separately in another editorial.)

Two good men in the 14th

The 14th Congressional District is fortunate in having two excellent and well-qualified candidates seeking the seat being vacated by the retiring Rep. Lucien Nedzi. Both are fairly young, attractive, articulate and concerned about the problems facing the people of the district and the nation. Both are also long-time residents of the district and knowledgeable about the area.

One factor that differentiates the two men is their experience in politics and government. Democrat Dennis Hertel, who graduated from the Wayne State Law School in 1974 and was elected to the House the same year, has served in the Legislature for three terms. His GOP opponent, Vic Caputo, who attended University of Detroit, has spent more than 20 years as an investigative reporter, TV anchorman and most recently as host of the TV-2 "Good Morning, Detroit" program. That experience has given him an understanding of the political system that would serve him well in Washington.

Because of their different backgrounds and experience, their campaigns have tended to stress different approaches. Hertel cites his accomplishments in the state Legislature to support his claim that he knows how to work with his colleagues and with different political factions to get action on issues he supports. Caputo argues that professional politicians such as Hertel often do not understand how the people are thinking, what they really want and what their needs really are. As a consequence, he feels legislation often misfires and fails to accomplish its aims. He thinks that as a good reporter and a good listener he knows more about the needs and wishes of the people in the 14th District than a professional politician does.

Hertel points to his record to prove he has been more than a cipher in Lansing. He joined in successful campaigns to persuade the Legislature to ban double-bottom gasoline tankers from Michigan's highways, to pass the State Port Development Act under which a new Detroit-Wayne County Port Authority has just been established, to ban fireworks throughout the state and to require mandatory jail sentences for gun crimes.

With his background in private enterprise, Caputo talks about what he would do in Washington to promote business and stimulate more jobs. He would seek a post on the House Committee on Small Business because he sees the need for aid for small businesses which are failing at an unusually high rate during the recession. He favors creation of enterprise zones in areas of high unemployment and tax cuts in those areas to stimulate creation of jobs. He also favors the 10 percent personal income tax cut supported by GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan.

In general, Caputo believes private enterprise will solve more problems than government can but he also thinks the government in some cases should provide needed help. The government should offer incentives to industry to train the unemployed for specific jobs, he believes. He also favors greater governmental commitment to mental and emotional health research because of the number of Americans needing treatment, although he says such a commitment is unlikely in the near future because of the state of the economy.

In common with Caputo, Hertel is concerned about inflation, unemployment, waste in government and the state of the U.S. defenses. But he promises he would not be a rubber stamp for Mr. Carter if the President is reelected and already has staked out independent positions favoring an increase in defense capabilities and postponement of the Salt II treaty as it now is written.

Hertel insists he is his own man despite his acceptance of $10,000 in political contributions from the United Auto Workers and his endorsement by the union. He says more than half of his campaign contributions are from individuals who have given him $200 or less, with the average being about $50. He contends his votes against the Detroit subway and the state subsidy for the Pointiac stadium reflect his independence from the UAW as well as from Mayor Young of Detroit and other Democratic Party leaders.

All indications are it is such a close race that it is likely to come right down to the wire before it is decided. In the end, the issue is which candidate the voters believe will do the better job of representing the district and the nation in the U.S. Congress. Those who believe Hertel's service in the Legislature prepares him better for the job will vote for him. Those who believe Caputo's experience in private enterprise is more than a match for Hertel's legislative record will cast their votes for the GOP nominee. Either way, the district will be a winner.

The wrong message

The major argument in favor of the Tisch tax-cut amendment seems to be that property taxes are too high and that passage of Proposal D would "send a message" to "bureaucrats" at all levels of government in Michigan to cut back on spending public funds.

True enough, passage of Proposal D would cut back on spending. But it would use a meat-axe instead of a pruning knife. It would cut indiscriminately, forcing reductions in spending for sound and needed programs as well as for extravagant projects that never should have been funded in the first place.

The concern of people ranging from the Grosse Pointe City manager to the Wayne State University professor is not without reason. Most publicly-funded programs in Michigan would be affected adversely. Most public services, however needed, would have to be cut back sharply. The poor, the mentally ill, the aged and others unable to care for themselves would be among the victims. Some state colleges and universities might have to close and others would have to boost tuition charges.

These and other reductions in state services and state funding would occur because Proposal D requires rolling back property taxes to 50 percent of their 1978 value and calls on the state to reimburse local governments for the lost revenues. Comparisons have been made with California's Proposition 13. Yet the state of California had a $5 billion surplus with which to help meet the needs of local government. The Michigan state government is broke.

Among the beneficiaries of the passage of the amendment would be the federal government. Uncle Sam would collect an estimated $600 million more from Michigan income taxpayers.

Send a message by voting for Tisch Proposal D? The approval of this issue would send a message, true enough, but it would be a message to the hundreds of thousands of people who benefit from public services and not just the bureaucrats who are the supposed targets of the proposal.

Proponents of Tisch have complained bitterly that state officials are carrying on propaganda campaigns against Proposal D. But state and local officials would be remiss if they did not warn the Michigan public of the detrimental effects of Tisch on public services in the state. The charge is part of the Tisch propaganda campaign to convince the public that only government "bureaucrats" would be affected by passage of Proposal D.

Officials are only telling the truth about the widespread damaging effects of this proposal and they have a responsibility to continue to do so regardless of the attacks being made on them.

Know Your Schools

By Superintendent William Coats

In the Nov. 4 election, voters in Michigan will be asked to consider three plans which will affect their future property tax bills. Depending upon which plan is approved, if any, sales taxes and income taxes may be affected, but most certain of all, the services which are provided citizens by the state of Michigan will be influenced by the outcome of the election.

These three ballot proposals could alter the Michigan Constitution and approval by the voters of the wrong proposal might cripple educational services by local school districts.

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education has adopted a resolution which opposes Proposals A (Smith-Bullard), C (Coalition), and D (Tisch II) and encourages all voters to vote "No" on these proposals because of the following reasons:

1. Passage of Proposals A and D in particular would result in major revenue losses over the next five years which, in turn, will lead to drastic reductions in staff, facilities and programs in our schools.

The estimated five-year loss with Proposal A is in excess of $64 million and with D is in excess of $54 million. Financial projects can't be determined accurately with C because of the many provisions left to "legislative determination."

2. Passage of any of the three proposals would make the school system dependent upon the state for portions of its revenue, which will lead to a serious erosion of local control of education.

3. Based upon its failure to fully fund past commitments, there are serious doubts about whether the state will be able to adequately fund schools if A, C, or D are passed.

Proposals A, C, and D have many conflicting provisions, and if more than one were to pass there could be years of legal entanglements and fiscal chaos before the conflicts could be resolved.

The ballot is structured so that it is necessary to vote separately on each proposal. The Board is asking voters to vote "No" on each proposal. Voters need to vote against a proposal to defeat it; not just for another proposal.

The future of public education in this state and in our own community will be determined by what action is taken at the polls on Tuesday, Nov. 4. Residents of this school district are asked to give careful consideration to the position taken by the Board of Education and vote "No" on Proposals A, C, and D.

Christ Church sets Evensong

The nave of Christ Church Grosse Pointe, 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard, will be the setting for a special service of Evensong sung by the Choir of Men and Boys at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 2.

The former clergy of the parish and former organist/choirmasters have been invited to attend and take part, including the Rev. Erville Maynard, the Rev. Franklin Bennett and Robert Hawkley. Invitations have also been extended to former leaders of the parish. The Rt. Rev. H. Coleman McGehee will be the preacher at the service. Clergy of the Eastside Convocation of the Episcopal Church and the clergy of neighboring congregations have been invited to join in the procession.

The service will feature the world premiere of a commissioned work, "Te Deum Laudamus," by Richard Dirksen, organist-choirmaster-precentor at Washington Cathedral in Washington, D.C. The "Te Deum" text, one of the few surviving remnants of a rich literature of ancient hymns written in imitation of Biblical texts, will be performed by six-part choir, organ, brass quartet and timpani.

Part of the commission was in celebration of the 50th anniversary of Christ Church, and in memory of Ellwood "Bunker" Hill, organist/choirmaster at Christ Church from 1960-1965.

Other musical parts of the Evensong-service will include a setting of the evening canticles, "Magnificat and Nunc dimittis" by Herbert Murrill, a setting of Psalm 84 by John Stainer and an evening anthem, "O Lorde, the maker of all thing," by John Joubert.

Richard Wayne Dirksen has been at the Washington Cathedral since 1942, and is a graduate of the Peabody School of Music in Baltimore, Md. From 1964 to 1976, he was director of Advance Program and developed the cathedral's famed summer festival of music, drama and dance.

Early in 1980, Dirksen was granted an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree by George Washington University for his contribution to the cultural and musical life of the nation's capital.

The Christ Church Choir of Men and Boys, under the direction of Frederic DeHaven, consists of 20 choristers and 12 adult voices. The boys are educated in the finest English choral tradition at three weekly choir rehearsals and Sunday as well.

Letters to The Editor of The NEWS

Is Mack-Vernier any safer now?

To the Editor:
There has been a lot of controversy over the Mack-Vernier intersection after the accidents that occurred in 1978 and 1979. During the summer the intersection was under construction—making it more dangerous and inconvenient for the crossing pedestrians, bicyclers, and motor vehicles. Now that all of the roadwork is complete it seems to still have the same dangers.

I would like to know what was the purpose of spending the taxpayers money to reconstruct the intersection when the same situations still exist? I can see moving back the sidewalk 60 to 70 feet to protect the pedestrians, and adding extra turning lanes, but are these changes enough? Is it that much more safe?

Sincerely,

Two victims of the Keir tragedy

To the Editor:
This is in reply to R. Adams letter printed in last week's issue on the media's treatment of the murder of Elizabeth Keir.

I know you are angry. Everyone in Grosse Pointe is angry and very justifiably so. How can we allow these demented teenagers to do such terrible things? How dare we protect them? How is it that the victim's name is printed and the alleged murderer's repressed? It's frustrating isn't it? I guess the curious are just going to have to wait awhile longer, but a name won't alter anything.

I know his name, his parents, his relatives, friends and some of his neighbors. My heart goes out to all of those dear people as well as those close to Mrs. Keir. In some way, they all are suffering.

The most terrible thing in this tragedy is that there were two victims. The lovely elderly lady who was such an obvious asset to our community and the boy who, by the way, nobody saw fit to help. This his parents heard time after time. God knows they tried.

It was your last paragraph that really stung. "It is inconceivable that we allow better treatment to the accused than to the victim." Had the accused been treated, there would be no victim. A flaw in our society? You tell me.

I have such an enormous feeling of inadequacy R. Adams. Let's stop writing letters to the editor, get off dead center and do something positive about better mental health facilities to make sure our young can be helped when it's needed — not after it's too late. I also wouldn't waste too much time fretting about Grosse Pointe. Look around you. It's really a great place to live.

Don't be misled on tax cuts

To the Editor:
Seldom has there been more frantic lobbying than against the Tisch Amendment by politicians. They hate to lose power but it would help inflation and stop government from getting larger.

Naturally, it must be intelligently administered. I hope we can trust them.

Angry taxpayer has his say

To the Editor:
This past weekend I visited the campus of Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant. I was shocked at the type of literature and the statements being circulated to the students about the various tax proposals on the Nov. 4 ballot by the legislature, Michigan Education Association, United Auto Workers and others.

These groups and individuals are telling the students at Central and other state funded schools that if Tisch (Proposal D) is passed the schools will be closed, the elderly will lose their Medicaid, the needy will no longer get their welfare checks and the State Police will reduce their payroll by 60 percent.

For these groups and individuals to target students, who have not entered the world of work and taxation with these bigoted statements about Proposal D is disgraceful. Also to target the elderly and the rest of us with the threat of reduced State Police protection is just another shining example of the low quality people we have in the State Legislature and other public offices who wish to perpetuate more and more taxes upon us all.

I ask the following questions of our legislature and state employee groups.

- What about the excess tax dollars the schools have hoarded for the past 50 or 60 years and invested in managed investment funds?

- What ever happened to the lottery money that was supposed to be for the schools?

- Why is there never an accounting of the state's general fund?

- Why do we never see an accounting of our representatives expense accounts?

- Why does our legislature need immunity to criminal prosecution?

We the tax payers are not for less education for our own children, or for denying our senior citizens what they worked all their lives for. We just want to put a stop to the legal thievery that is running wild in our public offices.

If the revenue for 1981 to the State were to be doubled or tripled, they would come up broke next year. There is no amount of money that will satisfy their excessive appetite, Mr. Taxpayer, so vote "yes" on Proposal D and "no" in A, B, C.

Don't forget the hostages Nov. 4

To the Editor:
The people of Grosse Pointe and most other communities are forgetting about the American hostages in Iran. Are we giving up the hope of their safe return? These Americans must not be forgotten, especially in an election year.

As a reminder to our political leaders, we should hang the yellow ribbon symbol on the trees in front of our homes. This symbol represents our concern for the American hostages and hopes for their safe return.

A tired runner says 'thanks'

To the Editor:
On Sunday, Oct. 19, I was among 4,200 runners in the Detroit Free Press International Marathon.

I would like to express my appreciation to the citizens of Grosse Pointe who endured the chilled wind to watch. The words of encouragement, cheers of victory and gifts of relief helped everyone.

To those of us who would never have a chance to finish first, you made every mile feel like the "home stretch" and each of us a "winner."

This was my first marathon and I experienced a healthy dose of pain and pleasure. The pain is much too hard to verbalize, however I plan to be back next year to have the pleasure of running through the Grosse Pointes.

Cheers,

Farms meter hike is ridiculous

To the Editor:

I work on the Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms and park behind Perry Drugs. I paid one quarter for every five work hours for parking in the municipal lot. When working eight hours it would cost me 50 cents.

Now, for one quarter I get to park for one hour and 15 minutes. If I work eight hours I must put in seven quarters. This is over three times the amount I used to pay.

Who carries seven quarters with them? Do you agree this is ridiculous? How many others have feelings about this and agree with me that this meter raise is unfair?

Visit Italy and enjoy dinner

Italian cuisine will be featured at a 6:30 p.m. dinner in the War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom preceding a color travelogue "Florence and Italy's Hill Towns", narrated by Robin Williams in Fries Theater at 8 p.m. Nov. 12.

The complete evening — full course dinner including tax and service plus show — is $11.85. The show only is $3.25. Places are reserved both for dinner and show. "Florence and Italy's Hill Towns" is a film about one of the most interesting places and periods in the history of western civilization.

Caprese Michelangelo, birthplace of Michelangelo, high in Apennine mountains and Casa Buonarroti, contain original sculptures by young Michelangelo. The Bargello, The National Museum, is where Donatello's "David" and Verrocchio's "David" are seen. Staggia and Monteriggione are picturesque hill towns where villagers dance in the piazza.

Florentines enjoy garlic toast as a mid-morning snack along the Arno River. Palazzo Vecchio, City Hall of Florence, Poppi the hill town in Casentino, Piazza Della Signoria, Santa Maria Del Fiore, the Cathedral of Florence, Michelangelo's last Pietà done when he was 80-years-old for his own tomb and Giotto's Campanile, (the bell tower) are all visited as is Piazza Santa Croce where Michelangelo grew up and is buried.

Mario's gold market shows the making of gold rings and ornaments and the leather school in the church of Santa Croce is where poor boys are taught a trade. At Calcio Storico Fiorentino the ancient Greek ball game is played on Piazza Santa Croce in renaissance costume.

Americans will experience shopping on Via Tornabuoni and see Pucci's silk works where girls spend five years learning the trade from their mothers. They will view Ponte Vecchio, oldest shopping center in the world over a river. Spianochia, villa and headquarters for the Etruscan foundation of America and ancestral home of the Cinellis who have housed and entertained War Memorial groups will be shown. Sorzano, a hill town condemned for human habitation because of ancient tombs and tunnels under houses, Vulci, site of an Etruscan bridge, Cerveteri, city of tombs (the Bronze "Chimera" of Etruscan mythology) and Etruscan jewelry will be covered.

Porte Ercole, summer escape for Italians from continental heat, Assisi, hill town home of St. Francis, San Gimignano, town of towers and the Pitti Palace and Boboli Gardens, site of the first opera performed are filmed.

At the Uffizi Galleries Botticelli's "Birth of Venus," Michelangelo's "Sacred Family" and Leonardo's "Annunciation" are famous works to be seen.

Robin Williams comes from a family known for its world-wide adventures. His grandfather lost his life on the Amazon River, his father wrote the best seller, "The World Is My Oyster."

Although born in London, England, Williams was reared in California, attending public and private schools. During his college years he became interested in acting and while studying at Orange Coast College played the leading role in Ibsen's "Peer Gynt". As a principle member of the Laguna Playhouse he was awarded many leading roles.

Williams began his travels while a student at Valley Verde School in Sedona, Ariz. with a one-month trek into Old Mexico. After attending the University of Arizona he began organizing tours to Europe — an opportunity afforded him by his father who operated a travel agency.

Robin began his career with the chartering of a yacht in Poole, England and for two summers escorted students across the English Channel to tour the French Canal System and to sail to many ports of the Mediterranean. Thereafter, he became a director of international tours for two separate, large, world travel agencies and traveled extensively throughout Europe, the Middle East, Asia and the South Seas.

Departing the travel-tour field he objectively studied cinematography at the Brooks Institute of Photography in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Williams has been accorded the craft's coveted recognition by the National Geographic Society, the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh and producers of TV series in Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit.

FM Leads AM

For the first time ever, FM radio captured more listeners in 1979 than its AM cousin. Though the 3,059 FM stations still trail badly in ad revenues ($875 million to $2 billion for the 4,519 AM stations), 50.5 percent of all radio listeners preferred FM last year.

Vic Caputo: The Experience to be a Great Congressman

Perhaps no other candidate in this country — not already in Congress — will come to the job in Washington with a greater personal understanding and perspective on the issues than Vic Caputo.

As a news reporter for 23 years, Vic Caputo has thoroughly studied all the serious problems we face in the United States: inflation, unemployment, crime, national defense and energy. Vic shares with the voters his ideas and proposals for solving these problems in straightforward terms.

Vic based his career in news broadcasting on challenging the fairness and effectiveness of government, on asking tough questions of public officials, and, most importantly, on listening to people.

As your Congressman, Vic Caputo will continue to make listening to people his top priority, and speak up clearly for all of us when government fails to do its job.

Isn't that the kind of Congressman we really need in these difficult times?

Prime Time

For Senior Citizens

By Marian Trainor

Two different worlds come together with understanding and love in Teaching-Learning, a project that brings young and old together in neighborhood schools.

A brainchild of Carol Tice, an art teacher in the Ann Arbor schools, the program grew out of what she saw as a need to better meet the interests of her students.

"They had so many diverse interests," she said, "I knew that their individual needs could not be accommodated within the limits of the traditional art period. I realized that I would have to provide diverse and different outlets for them to produce the good things I knew they were capable of achieving."

"The problem remained, who would monitor their group activities. I invited high school students in to help with myself as a supervisor. It didn't work," Mrs. Tice explained.

"The older students were willing and they tried, but the maturity necessary to deal with children not too far removed in age from themselves was lacking."

But Carol knew she was on the right track. Her students were interested and involved in their chosen group but they needed guidance.

WHERE TO FIND IT? Parents were busy with family affairs and more often than not, both parents were working. Why not grandparents, she asked herself.

Carol found that three generation families are rare. The days when grandma or grandpa, or both, were part of a parental household were gone. Houses were too small to accommodate them or grandparents, more active than their predecessors, preferred to live on their own.

She decided to contact a nursing home and the response was gratifying. The residents were more than willing to share their skills with children. Some of them who were far removed from their own grandchildren, welcomed the opportunity of contact with the young. The bus ride to the school gave them a chance to share an outing together and after the first trip they found much to talk and laugh over as they shared experiences with "their" children.

At first the children were a little unsure of how to react to their new teachers, but as they became interested in what they were doing, they relaxed and enjoyed learning how to weave, build bird houses, paint pictures or just listen to grandma tell stories.

As both groups, old and young, became involved, it became more than just a learning situation. A relationship developed and the children, some of whom had no grandparents, came to think of teacher as a family member and called him or her grandma or grandpa. Children who had often been absent previously never missed "Teaching-Learning" day. And teachers basked in the joy of being needed and the devotion of the children.

ONE EXAMPLE OF a grandmother and her student is particularly moving.

The grandmother was adept at weaving, a skill she had learned from her mother and grandmother. One of the students who showed an interest in learning weaving was a boy about 11 years old. Although he was interested, he had a chip on his shoulder. His attitude of "you show me if this is worth my while" was handled with humor and patience by his teacher who realized that this boy, more than any of the others, needed her attention.

Without pressure, but with a finesse born of experience, she won him over. The day he began inquiring where wool came from and what was meant by "carding," she knew that she had captured his interest. When Christmas came, this special student shyly presented her with a gift. When she unwrapped it, she found a stuffed toy sheep. It became a prize possession and a symbol that there is love waiting at any time and in many places for those who seek it.

When she became ill and could no longer come to the school her special student visited her in the hospital and when she died, he and his parents were among the few mourners.

The fellow residents who had gone to the school with her were there, together with Carol Tice, the boy's parents, and grandma's own son and daughter-in-law.

As they were leaving the gravesite, grandma's family presented the boy with the lamb he had given her at Christmas. She had wanted him to have it as a keepsake of the love and understanding they had shared.

THE WHOLE STORY of the project, including the one of grandma and her special boy is beautifully presented in a film "What We Have" produced by the University of Michigan. It tells more eloquently than words how much the "Teaching-Learning" experience means to those, both old and young who participate in it. It is put together without sentimentality but with true empathy and understanding of how much has been lost in modern lifestyles which has removed grandparents from that

Seniors discuss their problems

A community forum to promote discussion about issues to be forwarded to the White House Conference on Aging will be jointly sponsored by RSVP, Retired Senior Volunteer Program, and Calvary Senior Center on Thursday, Nov. 6. The forum will take place at the center, 4950 Gateshead, at 11 a.m.

The White House Conference on Aging will convene in Washington, D.C. in December, 1981. In preparation for the event, groups concerned with older citizens are holding grass roots forums to define the issues of concern to seniors.

Following the forums, a series of mini-conferences will be held at state and regional levels. These will deal with specific issues and interest groups.

Attending the White House conference will be 1,800 delegates who will develop a national policy on aging that will be sent to the President and Congress.

The Elders Council of Calvary Senior Center will prepare an agenda for group discussions. Extra meals will be available at the popular nutrition site.

THE TAX PROPOSALS ON THE BALLOT

There are three proposals on the November ballot pertaining to property taxation. Each also has aspects which will affect school finance. They are all complex and, although you will get a public service mailing concerning them, it is not appropriate for that mailing to indicate my position and there is not space in that mailing to treat any proposal in depth.

This ad is my attempt to let you know my own view on each proposal, and, hopefully, to give you a bit more information concerning each.

IMPORTANT NOTE

BECAUSE IT TAKES ONLY ONE MORE "YES" VOTES THAN "NO" VOTES TO PASS A BALLOT PROPOSAL — BE SURE TO VOTE ON ALL THREE TAX PROPOSALS AND VOTE "NO" ON ANY YOU DO NOT WANT TO PASS.

PROPOSAL A

This proposal, commonly called the Smith-Bullard Proposal, was placed on the ballot by a petition drive spearheaded by the Michigan Education Association. It is essentially a school finance "reform" measure.

I oppose Proposal A because it will mean, I believe, an end to excellence in any school district. It would do this by (1) restricting local revenue to 7 mills or a 1% income tax, (2) guaranteeing, over the next five years, only the amount a district will have, state and local, this school year so if inflation averaged 6% the buying power would be reduced well over 30% by the fifth year, and (3) the state, which seldom funds excellence in any program, would probably soon assume a local 7 mill or 1% income tax as a base so there would be no local ability to pursue excellence by raising and spending more tax dollars.

Assurance in the proposal of "local control" is like Carter saying, "trust me." The control will follow the power of taxation to the state.

PROPOSAL C

The so-called Coalition Proposal was placed on the ballot by the Legislature after the Governor put a committee of interested groups together to come up with a proposal. That committee made a recommendation, then there was negotiation among legislative leaders. This proposal is the result.

It is the best proposal of the three, and the best that Republicans in the Legislature were able to get considering our minority status. It is not better because the Democrats refused to make it provide greater net tax relief.

The basic mechanism is a $7,100 exemption off assessed value ($14,200 of true cash value) essentially offset by a sales tax increase of 1½%.

Because the exemption is from assessed value that exemption is worth more to a homeowner paying higher millage (tax equals assessed value times millage).

Because sales tax would increase, the proposal is worth more to those who buy less sales taxable items.

Our area is one of high millage, but also moderate to high income. Thus, the exemption is worth more; but, on the other hand, the sales tax increase costs more.

The proposal would result in indexing the $7,100 exemption to increase with inflation, and at my insistence, also indexes the personal income tax exemption.

I do not advocate passage, but suggest it is a close enough question that each of you may want to see how it would affect your own pocketbook.

Below is a chart showing the tax saving from the $7,100 S.E.V. homestead exemption for each of the Pointes based on the applicable millages in each community.

PARK	CITY	FARMS	WOODS	SHORES
$416.00	$421.04	$402.15	$375.39	$407.22

The sales tax increase, by state figures has the following impact for a 1½% increase.

Income	$5,000	$10,000	$15,000	$25,000	$35,000	$50,000
Sales Tax Increase	$45	$75	$100	$162	$208	$265

From these you can figure pretty closely how Proposal C would affect you.

PROPOSAL D

This is the petition proposal of the Shiawassee County Drain Commissioner, Mr. Tisch. The impact on local units would be devastating. I cite the impact on schools and communities, because so much focus has been misdirected toward its impact on state government.

There are three key provisions which would destroy our school and community services.

First, assessments are rolled back three years. For Grosse Pointe Woods that means a 33% reduction in tax base. There is no provision that the state make up this loss. It is only the remaining 67% on which the state must match the local levy which is cut to no more than half what it could be under present law.

Second, assessments couldn't go up by more than 2% per year even if property value, inflation and service costs went up far more than that.

Third, there is no provision at all for state match for 1981 summer taxes, so any losses by reduced summer 1981 taxes fall solely on the local units.

I understand the frustrations of people at the growth of government. Most of that growth has been at the federal level, however, and this proposal can't get at that growth. The state is in a fiscal crisis so whatever fat there was has largely been forced out.

Our local governments and school budgets really have not "grown" appreciably in real dollar terms so should not be a target.

The only way to avoid the radical slashes Tisch would cause is to get new taxes passed by 60% of the voters. That probably means only some new taxes supposedly on "business" could ever pass, further making Michigan noncompetitive for jobs.

I oppose the Tisch proposal as a badly conceived, badly drafted, unworkable mess.

OTHER PROPOSALS

Proposal B (Change drinking age from 21 to 19). I support B.

Proposal E (Prison construction to be financed by 5 year one-tenth percent income tax increase.) I oppose E.

Proposal G (Legislature may reduce its civil immunity so members are not immune from collection or traffic tickets.) I support G.

Proposal H (Allows filling of vacancy in office of Lt. Governor, but takes away Lt. Governor presiding in State Senate). I oppose H.

Prime time for seniors

Carol Tice has had so many inquiries from schools and groups who would like to institute a project in their own neighborhoods that she is now going out into communities by invitation to show the film and to share her experiences. She is most enthusiastic about the program, but only because she has seen so many benefits derived by both the old who have participated, but because she is buoyed by her association with the grandparents who have given so generously of their experience to create a special link with the young. The testimonials that have poured in have been heartening.

One child wrote: "Seeing your grandmother is like seeing the sun get up which is very beautiful thing to me."

A grandperson offered: "I can't keep the tears from coming. I finally found a way of feeling worthwhile." A parent followed "It's a perfect name for them—grand person—because they are!" A teacher: "Grandpersons respect children for themselves."

Alan Lomax, an anthropologist from Columbia University: "You are sewing up the wounds of the family system and dealing with the really deep wants of children which is to grow up under the affectionate but genuinely watchful eye of the old people."

Besides the film and an inspiring talk, Carol provides a simple chart of "Teaching-Learning" and how it happens. She stresses that it must "just happen." That is, it must be absolutely voluntary on the part of all who participate; the teacher, students and grandparents, in order to work. It cannot be forced.

The feasibility and possibilities of "Teaching-Learning" has received the endorsement of the Michigan Division of the American Association of University Women. The group has made the project a top priority.

Locally the Grosse Pointe chapter of A.A.U.W. presented Carol Tice and a showing of "What We Have" at its October meeting. Administrators from the Grosse Pointe Schools were invited. It was well received.

Phyllis Rabbideau, president of the Grosse Pointe A.A.U.W., is now working with an ad hoc committee to launch Teaching-Learning groups in Grosse Pointe.

Mrs. RABBIDEAU, who has a busy schedule running a household comprised of her attorney husband and two sons and two daughters, willingly gives her time to such worthwhile A.A.U.W. fund raisers as the annual book sale. She is proud to be a part of an organization numbering 190,000 nationally and 400 locally, that raised $10,000 last year to establish loans for needy graduate students and for older women to update skills or train for new ones. She stressed the point that many of their most dynamic members are senior women.

Mrs. Rabbideau is confident that her board will give the go-ahead on the "Teaching-Learning" project. "Everyone is very enthusiastic," she commented. "We know that we can get aides who will volunteer to go out to Ann Arbor to learn techniques of implementing the program. We are in touch with an organization that will provide transportation for seniors who volunteer. We know that the project is almost cost-free. Carol has so many materials donated that a room in the school had to be set aside to store and categorize them."

Ferry School in Grosse Pointe Woods has already made a start. Audrey Burchette, principal of the school, has a special interest in the project. She feels that it is most important to bring the older and younger generation together so that the skills and memories which only senior citizens can transmit are not lost.

IN HER SCHOOL, children have also knocked on doors to invite them personally.

"The objective is two-fold," Mrs. Burchette said. "One is to bring old and young people together; the other is to get the story of the schools.

Homecoming success at ULS

After a lapse of several years, University Liggett School reinstated a Homecoming weekend on Oct. 23, 24 and 25. Activities began on Thursday evening with a "cook-out" style dinner for all ULS varsity athletes, sponsored by the cheerleaders.

The next activity, a bonfire, was led by torch bearers from the fieldhouse to the baseball field which served as the bonfire area. A huge cheer went up from the crowd as the fire was lit. The rally next moved to the ULS football field where cheerleaders performed for 150 students and faculty.

Friday was Spirit T-Shirt day at ULS. Many red and blue shirts were seen in the bleachers at Friday's football and soccer games as well as in the classrooms during the day.

During halftime, a parade of student-built Homecoming floats made their way around the track to the exuberant cheers of a highly partisan crowd. UL Sophomores took first prize for their float.

On Saturday, the ULS girls tennis and field hockey squads were victorious. The Liggett netters won the coveted State Tennis Title while UL stickers won their invitational tournament.

Shutterbugs meet Nov. 4

Pictorial slide competition will be discussed at the next meeting of the Grosse Pointe Camera Club on Nov. 4, 7:45 p.m., at Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte. Visitors are welcome.

Youtheater formed at ULS

New at the University Liggett Middle School this fall is Youtheatre, a drama performance troupe open to the school's sixth, seventh and eighth graders.

The troupe's first production will be "In One Basket," a dozen folk tales dramatized by Shirley Pugh. A performance for families and friends will be held Nov. 21 at 8 p.m. in the Kresge Auditorium, 850 Briarcliff Drive. A special showing for middle schoolers also has been set. ULS Youtheatre Director Judy Ulrich is striving to establish the feeling of "ensemble" within the group.

By introducing improvisations and communication games, Mrs. Ulrich is encouraging the students to develop their sensitivity for being part of an acting team.

Each member of Youtheatre is expected to both perform in the play and work in at least one technical area. In addition to producing a second play later in the year, the troupe hopes to learn more about theater through guest artists, special workshops and a trip to a local professional theater.

GROSSE POINTE WOODS PROPOSAL A - Well meaning but poorly conceived.

Grosse Pointe Woods has a priceless urban forest with a canopy of green and beauty unsurpassed in the area, unreplaceable in its present state. We in Grosse Pointe Woods have a responsibility to save our trees and pass them on to future generations to enjoy. The name Grosse Pointe Woods will stand as testimony against us when there are no woods in Grosse Pointe Woods. The group "Friends of the Woods" is to be greatly praised for their efforts in trying to preserve our trees.

The real responsibility for the loss of our trees is the city council's, which has abandoned spraying of city trees and regulations requiring the spraying of private trees and has all but scrapped any tree program other than emergency work. They have utterly failed to preserve our urban forest and again have failed in their responsibility to govern on a controversial issue by passing the buck to a ballot proposal.

The proposed tax revenue of $125,000 is inadequate to establish and maintain an adequate tree care program for city trees, let alone including private trees; but in this day of selling programs, I guess it is something for everybody or something for nothing government. The proposed $150.00 deductible on private tree removal and spraying and other maintenance of private trees would use all the $125,000 and leave nothing or little for city trees.

I feel no cost is too great to preserve our trees but I strongly differ with The Friends of the Woods in including private trees in Proposal A. Private tree maintenance is the responsibility of the homeowner the same as lawn cutting, roof repair, furnace maintenance or painting. Friends of the Woods should be helped and encouraged to save our trees. I would encourage your financial support of them. There is no doubt that group buying through the city can save homeowners considerable on such things as tree spraying, tree planting, and other tree needs.

Tree preservation in Grosse Pointe Woods is sorely needed but Proposal A is not the way to do it. Perhaps the city council is not at fault, but resident apathy. At the public information meeting for Proposal A on October 22nd, there was a grand total of twelve in attendance which included several members of Friends of the Woods.

We should reject Proposal A but must insist that our council does its job in preserving our trees. I have been a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods for ten years and a commercial arborist for thirty-four years.

Sincerely,

Students win writing honors

By Susan Sweetman
South High

The National Council of Teachers of English (NCTE) has chosen two South students as finalists for the 1980 Achievement Award in Writing.

Sharon Ruwart, a senior at South, and Farley Kern, who has since moved to Virginia, are two of the 850 finalists who represent high schools in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and American schools abroad.

Over 5,000 students were nominated by their English teachers for the award last February. The number of winners is keyed to state population.

Each nominee submitted a sample of their best writing, and an impromptu essay to be judged by the council.

Sharon, a member of the Tower staff at South, wrote about competition between she and her sister, Sharon also submitted a feature column that she wrote last year.

Two other South students, Charlie Wilmoth and Eric Steinhauer were chosen as semifinalists.

The Council recommends the award finalists for college scholarships in 1980. Names of the students are sent to admissions officers and English department chairs at two-and four-year colleges and universities in the U.S.

The National Council of Teachers of English is a professional organization of individual and institutional members at all levels of instruction. Its goal is to increase the effectiveness of the English language and literature in the nation's schools and colleges.

Doorways to the past: Historic homes of Grosse Pointe

By Margie Reins Smith

One hundred and sixty-one years ago, Pierre Borgeat Provencal, a 24-year-old native Detroit, bought some land to build a home in an obscure place called "Grosse Pointe on Lake St. Clair."

James Monroe was president of the United States, and would be reelected the following year. Noah Webster had just written a dictionary and a spelling book for school children. The steamboat was a new-fangled invention. And the Erie Canal was in the first stages of construction. Indians roamed over much of lower Michigan, along with deer, elk, beaver, wildcat, mink, and wolves.

Grosse Pointe was a day's carriage ride from Detroit, and the site of Pierre's new home was dense forest.

During the following two years, 1820-1823, Pierre Provencal's land was cleared and his home was completed. It was a typical French farmhouse with wide wrap-around porches and small dormer windows above. It nestled into the surrounding trees, providing a whitewashed contrast to the surrounding greenery. It stood at the foot of present-day Provencal Road, facing the lake. During a stiff southeasterly breeze, the waves of Lake St. Clair washed over the edge of a road that would later be called Lake Shore Drive.

PIERRE BUILT A sturdy farmhouse. It still remains, after 160 years. The house was moved, for an unknown reason, around 1900. Today it stands at 376 Kercheval, near the corner of Lakeview. Although the house has been relocated, and renovated, and painted, and changed many times over the last 160 years, it still contains the narrow starway to the second floor and the original stairway spindles. Facing the street, three high French windows that stretch from floor to ceiling, are also original. Some of the glass panes are rippled with the imperfections of very old glass.

The farmhouse is now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Robinson. Mrs. Robinson, (then Mrs. Albert Trowbridge), bought the house in 1955. "They didn't want to sell," she says. "The agent said it was in terrible shape. But I bought it anyway—for very little money."

The house was not insulated in 1955, and winters were frigid—about 40 degrees inside the house. Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge and their five children moved out while the house was renovated, insulated, and updated.

"THERE ARE pegs in the walls. The original wood floors are underneath the present flooring," says Mrs. Robinson. "Behind the fireplace is a niche once used for church services during Provencal's time. Mr. Trowbridge found a hole in the basement floor that contained a cement-like box—like a casket. But there were no bones. We thought it might have been a still," she says.

The Robinsons have done some research into the history of their unique home.

Pierre Provencal waited until he was 36 years old (11 years after building his home) to choose a wife. In 1831 he married 18-year-old Euphemia St. Aubin. The young couple was childless for many years. Pierre became wealthy and was evidently a generous humanitarian. Pierre and Euphemia took in orphaned children after the Detroit cholera epidemics in 1832, 1834, and again in 1849. They built another home behind theirs (it is no longer standing) to house these orphans. In all, they raised 24 orphans.

The Provencals cared for the children with their own money, supplied teachers to them, and sent each child into the world with enough money and possessions to start a good life of his own. All 24 of these children grew up to become respected and useful citizens.

THE EAST PARLOR of the Provencal home was also used as a church for awhile, since no church was nearby. A confessional box and an altar were built in the parlor and a priest came from Detroit each Sunday. Sometimes the worshippers spilled out onto the spacious porches.

Finally, after 14 years of marriage, Pierre and Euphemia Provencal had a child of their own. On Christmas day, 1845, a daughter, Catherine, was born. She eventually grew up and married Judge James Douglas Weir. The Provencal farmhouse was later known as the Weir cottage, and Judge and Mrs. Weir spent their summers in it.

"One of the unique stories about this house is the fact that nobody ever died here," says Mrs. Robinson. Pierre's greatest wish, as he grew older, was to die in his beloved farmhouse. But he died at the home of his mother-in-law, on the corner of St. Aubin and Jefferson. He was traveling to Detroit on business when he was stricken with apoplexy and died in February, 1869.

Euphemia died three years later at her daughter's home. Both are buried in Detroit's Mt. Elliott cemetery. Judge Weir died in 1886, and Catherine died in 1903—but not at the old Provencal farmhouse.

IN 1886, A SMALL book was published called "Grosse Pointe On Lake Sainte Claire." The book described the lavish Victorian mansions that then existed along the lake shore road in Grosse Pointe. One by one, the author paints glowing details of luxurious living in these spacious homes. They were first used as summer residences, and later as year-round homes by Detroit's wealthiest families.

Pierre's boxy little farmhouse was given scant recognition in the book. Merely: "The Provencal house . . . is a good example of the old-time French home." It was hardly a match for the sumptuous gingerbread and lace along the lakeshore road.

It is interesting to note, however, that not one of the Victorian-style villas of 1886 is left today. Pierre Provencal's sturdy French farmhouse remains.

From Another Pointe Of View

by Janet Mueller

Christ Church-Detroit (downtown) will observe All Saint's Day Sunday, Nov. 2, with a performance of the cantata "Life Triumphant," written by the American composer Normand Lockwood in 1976.

It will be sung at sermon time at the regular 10:30 a.m. Eucharist Service. Conducting the work will be the church's organist-choirmaster, Professor Malcolm Jones . . . and thereby hangs the tale, for "Life Triumphant" was commissioned by the University of Michigan Musical Society to memorialize the life work of the late Dr. Thor Johnson, brother of Malcolm's wife, Marian.

Dr. Lockwood chose hymn tunes from the Moravian Church which had special significance in Dr. Johnson's life, for he was the son of a Moravian minister and became an internationally known symphonic conductor and founder of the Moravian Music Foundation and Festivals.

Prior to World War II, Dr. Johnson had been on the faculty of the School of Music at Ann Arbor. He conducted the May Festival Choral Union and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra for 35 years. At the time of his death, he was artistic director

FRANCIS E. BROSSY, MRS. MICHAEL BUCCIERO, (center) and MRS. GERALD STOETZER plan the preview performance of the Players' production of the comedy-fantasy "Harvey" which the Grosse Pointe Women's Association will sponsor on Thursday evening, Nov. 6, at the Players' Playhouse on East Jefferson Avenue in Detroit. Brossy plays the leading role of Elwood P. Dowd.

Mrs. Bucciero is chairman of the gala, which will feature a Before-glo preceding the 8:30 p.m. curtain. Her committee includes Mrs. Stoetzer, who is in charge of reservations, and Mrs. Philip Dickinson, in charge of refreshments.

Harvey, written by Colorado dramatist Mary Chase, opened on Broadway in November, 1944, with veteran actor Frank Fay in the leading role of Elwood P. Dowd. The play ran for 1,775 performances until its closing in 1949. It was later made into a film starring Jimmy Stewart.

The story line of this whimsical play revolves around the question "Does Harvey, a six foot, one and a half inch white rabbit, really exist?" The story has been called a "superb example of modern theatrical escapism." Pointer Francis E. Brossy will enact the Dowd role in the Players' production, which is under the direction of Jeffrey Kurtz. Other cast members include Rick Edgett, Glenn Scoles, William Sinischo, Otto Canis, James Blackburn, Herb Borre, Robert Janover, Ray Jendrzewski, Rudy von Schmittou and Orin Blenkle.

Ticket information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Stoetzer at 881-7348.

A Halloween Mad Night at Mansion for Music School

When wisps of clouds thin out in night air doused with winter chill this Halloween night, revelers in masques and costumes will be cavorting in an elegant historic mansion which has agreed to open its doors at 9 p.m. to admit a limited number of lords and ladies, ghosts and goblins, what you will, for a prepaid donation of $25.

It's "Mad Night at the Mansion," a benefit for the Detroit Community Music School, with the crunch of leaves and bite of autumn beyond the windows enhancing the warmth of music and spirits within.

Festivities, chaired by Jackie Gordon with assistance from Dr. and Mrs. Charles Kessler, will include psychics, magic, music and dancing. A midnight breakfast is planned, to fortify guests for their return to the outside world.

The wonderful night has been arranged by a committee including Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Ford Jr., Miss Bethine Whitney, Peter J. Kauffman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert DeDeckere, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Greene, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Luby, Charles Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Olsen, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Silber and Charles Soberman.

Further information (where to go, how to get to go) may be obtained by contacting Richard Findlater at 831-3870.

The Detroit Community Music School was founded in 1926 by the late Mrs. Edsel B. Ford and her friends to serve as an educational resource for the community by providing quality music and dance instruction to all, regardless of age, race or nationality.

DCM is non-profit. It continues to make its programs available according to each student's means. It offers a wide variety of private and class instruction, at every level, in voice, instruments and dance.

Facilities include 22 teaching and practice studios, a 175-seat recital hall, two dance studios, a music library and offices.

At their recent annual meeting, DCM's trustee took the unusual step of re-appointing their complete slate of officers for an additional year. Doris DeDeckere will continue as president of the board. Margaret J. Piper and Frederick C. Ford Jr. will continue as first and second vice-presidents, respectively.

Newly-elected board members announced by Mrs. DeDeckere include Mrs. Craig Hall, Mrs. John B. Warren Jr., Thomas LoCicero, Michael W. Mincher, George

Operation LINC executive members meet

Operation LINC 1980-81 executive committee members gathered recently with two guest speakers at the organization's Fall Volunteer Luncheon. Pictured from left to right (standing) are LISA MORREALE, secretary, SHERRILL WOLFORD, president, and BECKIE CIPRIANO, first vice-president; (seated) DELLE PATTERSON, of the East Side Mothers group, SYLVIA RUSSELL, assistant treasurer, GEORGE MADISON, director of the Child Development Center, and DIANE MILLER, treasurer. LINC second vice-president, Joan Coyle, is not pictured.

With talks by the leaders of two organizations they have served highlighting the gathering, members of Operation LINC (Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community) met in the Windmill Pointe home of Mrs. Morreale on Oct. 17 for their annual Volunteer luncheon.

Members enjoyed salad and listened to Mrs. Patterson and Mr. Madison talk about their organizations and the needs they have fulfilled through Operation LINC.

During the luncheon, plans were made for an Operation LINC field trip on Wednesday, Nov. 6 to the Lula Belle Stewart Center in Detroit, an agency serving young, single mothers.

Also, through Nov. 28, LINC is selling seven-tone bloom, red or white poinsettias at $9 each.

Chairman of the sale are Sylvia (Mrs. Harley) Russell, of the Woods, and Joan (Mrs. Thomas) Coyle, of the Farms.

The plants may be ordered by sending a check to Mrs. Coyle, 320 McKinley Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236. The plants come from Mel-drum and Smith growers and may be picked up on Thursday, Dec. 11, from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Road.

A 10 percent discount is available on orders of 10 or more.

Operation LINC also will continue its Foster Care Christmas Program this year. According to chairman Sue (Mrs. Richard) Stein, of Detroit, Grosse Pointe schools willing to participate will provide donations of new toys or clothing which LINC will give to foster children — through the aid of the Wayne County Department of Social Services.

"Our goal is to help provide Christmas gifts to children in licensed foster homes," says Mrs. Stein. "Approximately 1,300 children between the ages of five and 13 receive these gifts."

During the week of Dec. 15, LINC volunteers will collect the gifts which students have brought to their schools. All are to be wrapped and identified by age and sex.

From Another Pointe
Of View

at Interlochen and conductor of the Nashville Symphony Orchestra.
Dr. Lockwood and his wife, Vona, spent a day at Malcolm and Marian Johns' Rivard Boulevard home in August, 1975, researching the background and hymn tunes used in the composition. Johnson's Scandinavian ancestry is depicted in the beginning by two flutes, echoes of the violin duets his Norwegian great-grandfather and grandfather played at weddings and dances.
The first hymn tune, "Friedburg," represents Johnson's childhood home and the rural church in North Carolina where his musical talents first became evident. The text was written by Johnson's father in 1920. The music was written by Marian Johns in 1966, to replace the original music.
Lockwood also includes two poignant poems by Walt Whitman, scoring them for two flutes and brass choir, and the hymn tunes "Hosanna" and "Gaudemus Parititur," familiar to many Protestant congregations.

The final chorus, using "Sing Hallelujah, Praise the Lord" was Johnson's way of ending every Moravian Music Festival. It was the closing hymn at the 11 simultaneous memorial services held for Thor Johnson on January 26, 1975, across the country.
"Life Triumphant!" is a happy work, a cheerful expression of Christian praise and hope and faith. It is especially fitting for an All Saint's Sunday. The service at Christ Church also will include the reading, by Dr. Samuel S. Johnston, rector, of the Necrology for the past year.

Swedish flavor for mart
Immanuel Lutheran Church on Chandler Park Drive has, for years, been the East Side's "Swedish" church. Today's parishioners, children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren of the original immigrants who worshipped at Immanuel, remain committed to it and to their own Scandinavian heritage, and at no time of year is this more evident than Christmas, when the "old country" customs return as cherished parts of each family's personal holiday traditions.
Many Immanuel parishioners are Pointers now, among them Betty (Mrs. Robert) Peebles, chairman, and Kay (Mrs. Gordon) Buehrig and Ruth Baer (Mrs. King) Clifford, co-chairmen of Immanuel's Holiday Mart, set this year for Friday, Nov. 7, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church.

It's an annual event, with a definite Swedish flavor. It features many imports from Sweden, napkins, candlesticks, Christmas straw decorations, et al. Ruth Clifford is in charge of this department.
The baked goods, including delicious, homemade Swedish coffee cakes, are outstanding. Anna Landstrom is responsible for this department; she's also, with Margaret (Mrs. Jerome) Driscoll, in charge of the luncheon for which reservations (821-2380) are required.
Other Pointers involved in Mart preparations include Jane (Mrs. Walter) Woods and her daughter, Mary (Mrs. Theodore) Nichols, general decorations chairmen, and Carol (Mrs. H. T.) Ward, in charge of table decorations.

Another Sousa album
In 1976, the Detroit Concert Band, Inc., headquartered right here in The Pointe, on Mack Avenue, began a quarter million dollar project: production of the Sousa American Bicentennial Collection, LP recordings of all of John Philip Sousa's 116 published marches.
The eighth volume in the series, The Collegiate Marches, has just been released, and it includes "The Northern Pines," a salute to the National Music Camp at Interlochen, written in 1931.
The final two volumes in the series are scheduled for release early in 1981 and, like the previous eight, they'll be among Detroit's most successful exports. Advance orders are already on hand from Germany and Japan; nice to know that something is headed from Detroit in that direction for a change.

Seek teachers for workshops
The Education Division of the Detroit Historical Museum is expanding its workshop program, looking for persons with special talents in historical crafts who enjoy sharing their abilities with others.
The museum seeks qualified instructors in all types of traditional crafts, from woodworking to furniture restoration to needlework. Interested persons are invited to contact Walter Weaver, 833-1263, Tuesday through Saturday, between 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Pointers plan a toy party
Mrs. Frank H. Mullen, of Grand Marais Boulevard, and Mrs. Anne W. Rosch, of Neff Road, are co-chairmen of the third annual Big People's Toy Party set for Thursday, Nov. 13, from 5:30 to 8 p.m. at FAO Schwarz in the Renaissance Center.
Local radio personality Jimmy Launce will be on hand to meet guests. Party-goers will enjoy complimentary wine and cheese.
The party is sponsored by the Children's Museum Friends, who will receive 20 percent of all sales to aid in supporting the Children's Museum, 67 E. Kirby Avenue. Thousands of metropolitan area school children benefit from the museum's programs, exhibits and lending facilities.

Newlyweds vacation in Quebec; will make their home in Dearborn

Our Lady Star of the Sea Church was the setting Friday, August 8, for the evening wedding of Diane Mary Steele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Steele, of Saddle Lane, and Patrick Joseph Arsenault, of Dearborn, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Arsenault, of Devonshire Road.

Father Hector J. Saulino officiated at the 6 o'clock rites which were followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Honor maid Debra Simon wore a cream and lavender print, silk crepe gown. The full length, scoop-neck dress was tied with a grape-colored sash.

Attendants, dressed identically, were Linda Steele and Patricia Steele-Kefgen, sisters of the bride, Mary Ann Arsenault, sister of the groom.

Kimberly DeTine, of Athens, Ga., and Catherine Ricci, of Mount Clemens.

Each attendant carried a bouquet of pink, rose, lavender and purple loose wild flowers.

Wayne DeFour served as best man for his friend. In the usher corps were Marty McMillan, Joseph McMillan, Robert Arsenault and Mark Arsenault, brothers of the bridegroom, John Stieber and Mark Diener, of Lombard, Ill.

The mother of the bride wore a full length, blouson style gown of pale yellow silk crepe de chine. The dress was tied at the waist with a yellow satin ribbon.

The bridegroom's mother wore a plum-colored chiffon jacket over her cream colored silk crepe gown. Each mother pinned a cymbidium orchid to her purse.

The newlyweds vacationed in Quebec and will make their home in Dearborn.

Plumes of fashions to blossom

"Plumes of Fashions" is the theme for the Grosse Pointe Woman's Club's annual scholarship luncheon and fashion show, scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 19, in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom, and plans for the party were finalized recently when committee members met for luncheon at the Lakeshore Road home of MRS. JOHN ELIAS (seated, right). MRS. WIL-

Hope and help sharing assists cancer patients in need

Thelma Bernstein knew the tears and loneliness women with breast cancer can experience after a mastectomy. She had breast cancer herself.

So, nine years ago last month, Thelma, a social worker, began a program through the Michigan Cancer Foundation that brought mastectomy patients together to talk about their experience and work through their common fears and concerns.

And though Mrs. Bernstein died two years later, her program has flourished and grown to help hundreds of cancer patients in the Detroit area.

The MCF's Hope and Help discussion groups began another eight-week session late last month at six locations throughout the metropolitan Detroit area. The goal of the group therapy meetings, led by a Masters-level social worker and a Registered Nurse, is to get people to talk about their feelings and learn new ways of coping with cancer.

"When we started, there were no groups of this kind available to help these women," says Eugenia Tokarz, R.N., of Fairhaven, a rehabilitation nurse with the cancer foundation. "So with Thelma, we contacted all the mastectomy patients we had worked with and began our first discussion group."

The 12 women who were able to participate met for 10 weeks with Mrs. Bernstein and Mrs. Tokarz at a cancer foundation office on Grand River at Evergreen in Detroit. The response was enthusiastic. "Attendance was excellent," Mrs. Tokarz says. "The women really needed to talk and to hear what others had to say."

There is often an unspoken pressure put upon patients to hide their feelings, Mrs. Tokarz explains. "Once a woman has had her surgery and the immediate danger is past, she is often expected to be brave and happy to be alive. The attention from family and friends stops."

"Yet she is often left alone with her fears about what has happened to her body." In that first group, the women discussed the reactions of their husbands and families, the kinds of prostheses available and where to buy them and physical problems they experienced after surgery. They were able to see that they were not alone.

At the end of the group, members expressed such feelings as "knowing others had felt the same but recovered and are living normal lives, I feel that I will be able to overcome my problems;"

"I found I was willing to share my experience whereas usually I would be somewhat hesitant to talk freely about my mastectomy;" and "it helped clear away doubts and fears and worries about myself. Just being together with someone who has the same surgery is an outlet in itself."

Since 1971, the Hope and Help groups have been expanded to take in other cancer patients. Today, groups are available for men and women who have had an ostomy (an operation that brings the body's waste material to an opening made on the abdomen) or a laryngectomy (removal of the voice box), and for women who have cancer of the uterus or ovaries.

There is a general group for all diagnoses of cancer, as well as one for family and friends of cancer patients.

The eight-week sessions are held at six locations, in Detroit, Dearborn, Royal Oak and Grosse Pointe Woods. Further information may be obtained by calling the Michigan Cancer Foundation's Department of Patient and Family Care, 833-0710, Extension 310.

of Salzburg since 1975 is one of the master musicians of the world. Born in Milan in 1918, he started studying piano at age six, and at eight was presented with a cello and began lessons with Professor Giovanni Berti.

At 11 he played for Casals, and at 16 years old he left Milan for Paris where, in addition to Maestro Casals, he was able to associate with such teachers as Corbot, Thibaud, Dukas, Boulanger, Stravinsky, Enesco, Rouseel and Martinu. Janigro embarked immediately upon his concert career as a virtuoso soloist; he eventually made his DSO debut as a cellist in 1974.

Janigro's great success as a conductor led to other engagements with great orchestras such as the Chicago Symphony, Boston Symphony, Orchestre de la Suisse Romande, Berlin Philharmonic, Israel Philharmonic, Japan Philharmonic, San Francisco Symphony and the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra. He makes his DSO conducting debut at this concert.

Clement Barone played with the Trenton Symphony, the Philadelphia Orchestra, and the Houston Symphony under Leopold Stokowski before joining the DSO as frustist and solo piccolo under Paul Paray in 1958. A member of the WSU music faculty since 1963, Barone has soloed with the DSO on several previous occasions and has appeared on recital series in Detroit many times.

Misha Rachlevsky joined the DSO in 1976. Since leaving the Soviet Union in 1973, he has performed as a soloist in Israel, South Africa, Mexico and Canada. He is currently active as a teacher and recitalist and is music director of Solisti Barocchi and founder of Renaissance Concerts, Inc.

Franklyn D'Antonio was born in Los Angeles; his major violin teachers were Paul Shure and Jascha Heifetz at the University of Southern California with orchestra and in recital; he joined the DSO in 1977.

Linda Snedden-Smith joined the DSO in 1967 and has appeared as soloist with the Orchestra twice previously. A graduate of the Eastman School, she has soloed in Rochester, Aspen and Cleveland and is an avid chamber-music performer in local groups.

I-Fu Wang began his violin studies at the age of four with his father in Taiwan. After graduating from the Interlochen Arts Academy, he completed his formal training under Ivan Galami-an at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. He played at the Marlboro Music Festival and was a member of the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra before joining the DSO in 1979. He is also on the music faculty at Michigan State University.

Pointe talent with Pointe Symphony

Grosse Pointers VIRGINIA SHOVER (right) and JANET YOUNG, duo-pianists, active performing members of Tuesday Musicales of Detroit, the Chamber Music Players of Grosse Pointe and co-founders and co-producers, with Alice Ellison and Laurie Lindemulder, of Music For A While, a chamber series of concerts, will perform as guest soloists Sunday, Nov. 9, at 3:30 p.m. when the Grosse Pointe Symphony opens its regular series at Parcels School Auditorium, Mack Avenue at Vernier Road. Director Felix Renick will be in his familiar place on the podium.

Virginia and Janet are highly regarded in the community through teaching and performing solo, ensemble, as duo-pianists and accompanists. Mrs. Shover graduated from the Oberlin Conservatory of Music (B.M.) and from the University of Illinois (M.M.); both degrees were in piano. Her major study was with Josephine Lytle at Oberlin, with Soulima Stravinsky at Illinois.

She coached at Washington University with William Schatzkammer, at Michigan's Oakland University with Flavio Varani, and is a member of the Michigan Music Teachers Association and the National Guild of Piano Teachers.

Mrs. Young received her B.A. degree in music from Hastings College and did advanced study with Pearl Turner Hoy in San Francisco. In the Detroit area, she has coached with Eugene Bossart and the late Gizi Szanto. She has performed as a duo-pianist with the Detroit Women's Symphony, and is currently pianist with the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

As duo-pianists, guest artists for the Grosse Pointe Symphony's first concert of the 1980-81 season, Mrs. Shover and Mrs. Young will play Francis Poulenc's "Concerto for Two Pianos," premiered and played in 1932 by the composer and Jacques Fervier. It is a collection of melodies reminiscent of French folk tunes, children's ballads, where wrong notes—perhaps even movie music, barroom ballads and sentimental chansons—jostle each other in racy profusion.

The orchestra also will play the Symphony #4 in E minor, Op. 98 by Johannes Brahms, touched with the autumnal melancholy that is often found in a composer's last works: it was Brahms' final symphony. Here, rather than listening for themes and variations, the listener should concern himself with the force of the music and the sweep of ideas, which are irresistible.

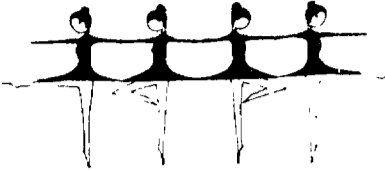

The closing number, "Estancia" (ballet dances), is by Alberto Ginastera, said to be one of South America's most gifted young composers. He brings to the rhythm and melody of his native Argentina the harmony and timbre of the modern European schools—a clear and fluid style.

A reception immediately follows the concert, and the audience is welcome to attend. Tickets at $5 for adults, $2 for students, are available at the box office the day of the concert or in advance by telephoning 886-9102 or 884-7837.

Women have their pages in the history of flight
By Rita C. Bobowski
Smithsonian News Service
Think about pioneers of flight and certain names immediately leap to mind: the Wright brothers, Jimmy Doolittle, Charles Lindbergh, Harriet Quimby.
Harriet who?
Harriet Quimby—the first woman in the United States to hold a pilot's license and the first woman to pilot her own aircraft across the English Channel. A spunky, determined, dark-eyed beauty, Harriet Quimby captured the admiration of men and women alike in the early 1900s. She was America's darling as she looped and whirled through the air, wearing a plum-colored satin flying suit.
Yet the daring exploits of Harriet Quimby and other early female aviators have been a little-known chapter in the annals of flight.
That is one oversight that Claudia Oakes, assistant curator of aeronautics at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum, hopes to rectify. While doing research for a book, "U.S. Women in Aviation through World War I," Oakes spent eight months tracing down women aviation pioneers who made headlines and heads turn during the early days of flight.
Oakes' interest in early aviation goes back a long way, even before her employment at the Smithsonian in 1969. "My father, who was born in 1905, told me of seeing a demonstration in rural Tennessee of what was probably a Curtiss Pusher when he was 6 or 7 years old," she says. That image, coupled with her fascination with things Edwardian, eventually led her to research and record the role of early women aviators.
"When aviation was in its infancy," Oakes says, "it was considered radical for a woman to involve herself in any aspect, be it pilot, passenger or even promoter." But in spite of all the obstacles—family, friends, training, funds, equipment—women wanted to fly... and fly they did.
The first American woman to pilot her own aircraft, a balloon, was Mary H. Myers, at Little Falls, N.Y., in 1880. Mrs. Myers, later billed professionally as "Carlotta, the Lady Aeronaut," became known throughout the Northeast for her ballooning skills and was often hired to perform at festivals.
In 1886 she established a new world altitude record of four miles in a balloon filled with natural gas instead of hydrogen; a record even more astonishing because she did it without using oxygen equipment.
In the early 1900s, women graduated from balloons to airplanes. They were willing passengers in the new-fangled flying machines, though the flights were such rarities that they were treated as hard news. The June 20, 1911, edition of the Detroit Free Press carried a front-page account of women who, without a trace of fear in their walk, climbed into planes and flew as passengers at the 1911 Detroit Air Meet. The headline proclaimed: "Three Detroit Women Venture in Biplane."
As aviation grew so too did women's involvement, and records were set each step of the way. Georgia "Tiny" Broadwick became the first woman to parachute from an airplane, over Griffith Park in Los Angeles. Lillian Todd, of New York City, was the first woman to design her own aircraft. Julia Clark was the first U.S. woman killed in an airplane crash, in 1912.

Craft Fair at Lutheran East
A Holiday Arts and Crafts Fair, sponsored by the Lutheran East Women's Guild and co-sponsored by the Lutheran Brotherhood of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, will be held this Saturday, Nov. 1, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at Lutheran High School East, 20100 Kelly Road.
Donation for the event is 50 cents, children under 12 are admitted free.
The fair will feature 100 craft tables, homemade doughnuts made while you wait, a bake sale and much more. The luncheon will feature homemade soup and sandwiches.
A Christmas turkey dinner will be served from 4 to 6 p.m. Price for the dinner is $4 for adults, $2 for children aged five to 12.

Jardiniers begin season
Mrs. R. T. Gerath's discussion on the making of herb wreaths opened the season last month for La Societe des Jardiniers. Mrs. Jay Jodway, hostess for the day, served luncheon on the patio. She was assisted by Mrs. Douglas Phillips and Mrs. Lee Rea.
Members met at the home of Mrs. Bruce MacLean on Thursday, Oct. 16. Mrs. Judy Schulte demonstrated the art of making silk flowers. Mrs. Jack Bautista was co-hostess for the day.

Take a living look at past
For the fourth season, the Detroit Historical Museum's Education Division is offering "Yesterday—On Tour," a living look at the past.
Costumed characters from Detroit days gone by visit school groups, grades three through eight, on an individual class basis. The actors bring with them artifacts from the period they represent.
Two programs are offered, both in similar adaptations available to adult groups. In "Les Franta's a Detroit," Denis Charboneau and Jeanne Godfroi describe the life of the adventurous French settlers ("habitants") and woodsmen ("coureurs du bois") who came to Detroit in the 18th century.
A request for "Hardtack and Coffee" brings Civil War Private Caldwell of the 16th Michigan Volunteer Infantry Regiment, and "schoolmarm" Jane Allen.
Advanced reservations, by check, are necessary. Further information may be obtained by calling the museum's education division, 833-9721.

Peggy Charno is bride-elect
The engagement of Peggy S. Charno, of Lawndale, Calif., and Capt. Don Latterman, of Torrance, Calif., has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Charno, former residents of Canterbury Road who now reside in Lake Havasu City, Ariz.
The bride-elect is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School.
Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Latterman, of New Jersey. He is a United States Air Force captain.
The couple plan a June, 1981 wedding.

Pointer of Interest

By Janet Mueller

"I'm afraid I'm an anachronism," says Jane Hinkley. "I've chosen a very traditional life style." The key word here is choice: Jane was a working woman for 11 years until Bill, who turned 8 last Monday, was born.

Clark Hinkley is an officer of Hudson's now. Jane, who was with Bonwit's when they opened their Detroit store, and has worked as a department manager at Jacobson's in-the-Village, is a homemaker. She loves it. Always provided, of course, that she has one outside-the-home project in the works, just one.

"I tend to take one commitment at a time." And go all out for it. Currently, that project is the 33rd Annual Antiques Market and Sale sponsored by the Junior Group of League of Goodwill's 1980 Antiques Market and Sale a "must" on your November calendar, but this is a mart that offers more.

A wishing well There's the Wishing Well, featuring a varied collection of antiques and new items as prizes. There's the Goodwill Booth, stocked with antiques, collectibles and items of quality gathered by League-Goodwill during the year.

Jane is the Antique Market's chairman of exhibitors. "Actually, I'm co-general chairman, under Mary Jane (Mrs. Joseph A.) Watkins. She's chairman of committees. It's really her show."

Short and to the Pointe

MR. and MRS. WAYNE G. WEGNER, of Edmundton Drive, announce the birth of their second child, a daughter, NATALIE ANNA, on Sept. 16.

RICHARD A. BAKER, of Woods Lane, Paternal grandparents MR. and MRS. ALVIN E. WEGNER, of Briarcliff Drive, Older sister WHITNEY is 3.

Degree candidates for summer commencement ceremonies at the University of Michigan included NEIL A. GUDSEN, of Edmundton Drive, LAURA HAMLIN, of Cook Road, DEBORAH K. MASTEN, of Lancaster Road, WESLEY N. MITCHELL, of Lakeview Avenue, ROGER P. MOURAD, of Shelden Road, PATRICIA E. PERRY, of Manchester Boulevard, MARY M. RAVESCHOT, of Norwood Drive, DAWN M. HENDRICKS, of Fisher Road, and SUSAN L. WESTBROOK, of Maumee Avenue.

MARY L. ARO, of Roslyn Road, received a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Wayne State University on June 17. She has been accepted as a candidate for the two-year Master of Fine Arts degree program.

LAWRENCE BURTON GRAVES JR., formerly of Hawthorne Road, who now resides in Bay City, was graduated in early June from the Detroit College of Law with a juris doctor degree.

a favorite with Jane. "I like to cook, but I've had to stop it: both Clark and I have gained weight." That's just cooking at home she's been limiting herself on; helping a woman who does catering in the area of cooking for League-Goodwill doesn't count.

Her own children — Bill has a sister now, K.C., in kindergarten at Maire School; Bill's at Maire, too — love "great, big cookies" like the Monster Cookies the Country Store bakery will be stocking. Bill and K.C. like to help make Monster Cookies almost as much as they like to eat them.

Actually, cooking in bulk is most fun when it's done by a bevy of chefs. "We tend to do our baking and boulique days together," Jane says. One recent setting for an Antiques Market cooking workshop was Priss van Horne's Lincoln Road home.

Rite of passage "And you're not really a Junior Group member until you've canned once with Bev Boos. She's incredible! She makes 300 jars of bread and butter pickles and they're sold out in one day. When you do a thing well, word gets around."

Jane joined the League-Goodwill Juniors six years ago. "I'd never made a pot of jam in my life." The next year, "someone talked Dolores Fralich and myself into doing the Pantry Shelf (the canned goods section of the Country Store. That was wild! It was a fast way to get to know everybody."

Billy was nine months old when Jane Hinkley, at a cocktail party, struck up a conversation with a woman who turned out to be president of the Goodwill Juniors. "Would you be interested in joining?" the woman asked. "You look like our type."

"It came to me at a good time," Jane says. "I had worked, and now I was at home; I didn't know quite what to do with myself. I had changed my life style, and I wasn't sure I liked the new one." The Junior Group gave her an outlet and a purpose in the community. It still does.

The moment was ripe, too, when she was asked if she'd take the general co-chairmanship of this year's Antiques Market. "I really didn't have a commitment for the year, and I really wanted to do something for League-Goodwill."

Now or never "And, looking ahead, I thought: it's this year or never."

Looking ahead, there's a move in the Hinkley's post-Christmas future. The family's new house is still on University Place, just two doors down from their present one, but a move is still a move.

Looking ahead, Jane starts a term as deacon at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in February. Looking ahead, as children become more involved in school, so do their mothers. "We're great walkers and bike riders," says Jane, "and now that the children are older we've been doing some traveling as a family. We've loved that."

There was a trip to Hilton Head last spring, and a summer sojourn at The Homestead on the Leelanau Peninsula.

This then, if ever, was Jane's year to make a major commitment to the Antiques Market. "It's been more detail work than I've ever done before," she says, "but it honestly has been a lot of fun. We have some wonderful dealers."

"And don't forget: I followed Peggy (Mrs. Owen)

Lawyers' Wives set coffee time

Their first "coffee and conversation" was such a success that the Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Wives have scheduled another afternoon coffee on Wednesday, Nov. 5, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Roger (Kathy) Mourad.

Prospective members are invited to attend. Further information on the event may be obtained by calling Shirley Callahan, president, at 885-5037.

Marianne Crane is now accepting reservations for the Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Wives dinner theater evening, planned for the Georgian Inn on Friday, Nov. 21. The evening includes dinner and a musical review of "Oscar."

The group's annual Christmas Tea will be held on Friday, Dec. 5 at the home of Mrs. G. Mennen Williams.

Keeler as chairman of exhibitors. She left a blueprint: a month by month report of what she's done. And there is Doris Sanford, who's been doing set-up for several years. Doris is one of the reasons the show turns out so well year after year.

All give all "And there is... Face it: the League-Goodwill Juniors who give their all to the Antiques Market are too numerous to list. Suffice it to say that they do give their all and give it well."

Honorary chairmen of the 33rd Annual Antiques Market and Sale sponsored by the Junior Group of League-Goodwill are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Angelo, Kathy O'Brien and Samuel E. Harper.

A new feature this year, one that Jane is particularly excited about are the Monday Specials. On the last day of the Antiques Market, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., representatives from Stalker & Boos, Inc., will be on hand to appraise antiques, and representatives from the House of Renfrew will receive chipped glassware for repair.

Always, Jane remains excited about the reason for the sale, the purpose of the Junior Group itself: to assist the handicapped clients of League-Goodwill. Since its founding in 1933, the women's volunteer group has contributed over $1 million to Goodwill Industries and its successor organization, League-Goodwill. The money has gone for building repairs and improvements, for medication, insurance, school tuitions and equipment for the agency's physically, mentally, emotionally or socially handicapped clients.

Two residences The Junior Group supports the Saint Ambrose Residence facility for mentally retarded women who were formerly institutionalized, and the Taylor-Bodkin Residence facility for men. Money is one form of that support. Volunteer commitments, like the every-other-Friday night program headed by Helen Huber this year, designed to equip the Saint Ambrose residents with basic cooking skills and teach them crafts, are another.

The Junior Group's major annual fund raising project is the Antiques Market and Sale. Members spend 12 months working toward it. With the exception of the dealers' booths, they staff it. They sew and bake and can and knit to stock the shelves of the Country Store. They re-finish furniture for the Goodwill Booth.

They're volunteers, women who have chosen to do this work for more than pay. The key words here are more than. Committed to work for more, they give nothing less than their best.

Memorial gift for Chamber Players

The Grosse Pointe Public Library recently received an unusual collection of chamber music, given by Mrs. Hilda Pringham Hamburger as a memorial to her late husband Henry Pringham.

Upon the death of Mr. Pringham, his brother, owner of Musica R.A.R.A. in London, England, made the music available.

Gerda Bielitz, assistant director of libraries of Grosse Pointe, is a Grosse Pointe Chamber Player and she has expressed appreciation for the bequest that is currently housed at the Central Library. The collection is catalogued by composed and by instrument and is available for circulation.

The music encompasses compositions from the early Renaissance, modern times and includes unusual groupings of instruments, from krumhorn to recorder.

William T. Peters, director of libraries, was a driving force in bringing the music into the library and making it available to the public according to Mrs. Ellwyn Gilbert, president of the Grosse Pointe Chamber Music Players. Ernest Stratelak, professional assistant at the library, was the major cataloguer of the collection, she added.

Mrs. Hamburger and the late Mr. Pringham were founding members of the Grosse Pointe Chamber Music Players and Mrs. Hamburger is still active in the organization. She is serving this year as social chairman, providing refreshments served after the Players regular concerts.

The next concert will be held at the War Memorial on Sunday, Nov. 2 at 2:30 p.m. Concerts are sponsored by the War Memorial and admission is $2.

Doris Pagel, the Player's program chairman, will present Miss Bielitz, on violin.

Open museum holiday shop

The time-honored customs of Christmas are augmented by an array of gift ideas from the Orient at the Detroit Institute of Arts Christmas Shop, now open on the ground floor of the Ford (South) Wing during regular museum hours, Tuesday through Sunday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

"The new enthusiasm for Oriental art and ornamentation is a major part of this year's selections," reports Robert Scott, museum shop manager.

Among the items suitable for gift giving are boxes in dozens of shapes and sizes, from the People's Republic of China, decorated with exotic, intricate and colorful designs featuring animals, birds and flowers.

Also available are Chinese handcrafted wheat stalk items, including an assortment of tree decorations, plus Taiwanese hand puppets, 14 to 16 inches high, with head-dresses and elaborate hair styles of horsehair, silk yarn or hemp. Silks and metallic cloth are used in their interchangeable costumes.

Chinese opera hand puppets are featured, too, with sequined costumes and colorful faces. They are 40 to 50 years old, and were actually used in performances.

From Africa comes Botswana and Zulu basketry: bowls, plates, trays, wine jugs, fishtraps and platters in a host of colors, sizes, shapes and patterns. America's contributions include jewelry from Linda van der Linde, of the McGuffey Art Center in Charlottesville, Va. Each of her stick pins, earrings and necklaces is hand-made of special clays, kiln-fired and hand-painted.

Greeting cards and cookbooks from some of America's leading museums remain popular annual items and, reflecting the influence of the recently opened Native American Gallery at the Detroit Institute of Arts, a large selection of books on American Indian art is available.

Deer hunter traffic will be heavy

Northbound traffic the day before the firearm deer season opens on Saturday, Nov. 15 should be the heaviest in five years, but hunters should encounter few travel problems, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"This is the first season since 1975 that opening day will fall on a Saturday," explains Auto Club Touring Manager Joseph Ratke.

"And despite rising gasoline costs and a trend towards increased pressure in southern Michigan, most of the state's 700,000-plus 'orange army' will be heading for the northern two-thirds of the state on Friday, Nov. 14," Ratke says.

State Department of Natural Resources officials predict that approximately 80,000 buck deer will be taken over the 15-day season. That total is about 10 percent below last year's due to population drops caused by the harsh winters of 1977 and 1978. In all, nearly 118,000 buck and antlerless deer should be bagged by Nov. 30.

"The only traffic problem hunters may face is along I-75 near the Zilwaukee Bridge north of Saginaw," Ratke notes.

Periodic slowdowns could result both north and south of the span, where three lanes of traffic merge into two. To help cut the possibility of further jams, Saginaw River shippers have been asked to voluntarily restrict movements causing bridge openings during peak traffic hours Nov. 14 and 16.

Auto Club predicts that northbound deer hunter traffic should be heaviest between 2 p.m. and midnight Friday, Nov. 14, and 5 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 15. Southbound hunters on Sunday, Nov. 16 will find heavy traffic between 2 and 11 p.m.

While hunter-vehicle crossings have been dropping in recent years, Mackinac Bridge officials expect volume to nearly equal last year's total of 18,000 before the season ends on Nov. 30.

Auto Club reminds hunters that they must wear either a hat, vest or coat of blaze orange to hunt public lands.

Auto Club also provides traffic bulletins via radio for traveling hunters between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. Nov. 14 and from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Nov. 15 in addition to its weekly road condition reports from 2 to 11 p.m. on Nov. 16.

Cancer predictability tests developed at MCF

"The fact that the recurrence of a breast cancer is associated with specific characteristics of the cancer cells has enabled Detroit researchers to develop potentially powerful tests for predicting the degree of malignancy in human breast tumors," explained Dr. Marvin A. Rich, executive vice-president and scientific director of the Michigan Cancer Foundation, during proceedings of a regional conference for the Ohio Valley-Lake Erie Association of Cancer Centers in Detroit Wednesday, Oct. 15.

Detroit researchers have documented a distinct association between early recurrence of breast cancer and the reactivity of a patient's tumor cells in the test tube with a plant protein called Con A.

They also are able to predict the time to recurrence of a breast cancer using a tumor grading system based on tumor and patient characteristics determined through the Breast Cancer Prognostic

ULS Book Fair set

The 8th annual University Liggett Book Fair will be held Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 12 and 13 at the University Liggett Lower School Library, 1045 Cook Road. Hours are from 8:15 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day.

Once again the Book Shelf of Grosse Pointe Farms will provide a variety of hard cover books for adults and children. Paperback books will be provided by Ludington, a local distributor.

For those who do their Christmas shopping early, there will be complimentary gift wrapping provided, as well as a host of volunteers to help with your selection.

Study yoga in November

A new class term in yoga begins at Grosse Pointe War Memorial Wednesday evening, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m. It will be taught in an eight-week series for $25 by Betty Locke, a certified Golden Lotus instructor.

Loose exercise clothing should be worn and a small rug or blanket brought to act as an exercise mat.

Yoga involves a series of exercises and stances designed to relax the mind and body and tone the basic organs.

He further explained that the spread of cancer cells depends on their invasion into normal tissue or entry into circulatory channels and upon the cells' ability to survive in the bloodstream.

During the stages which follow, noted Dr. Rich, the metastizing (recurring) tumor cells interact with blood cells, other tumor cells and with the lining of blood vessels. When the cancer cells lodge in various organs and begin to grow, their survival depends on the induction of blood vessels.

"It is very likely, therefore, that successful metastatic colonization by a tumor depends on specific and pre-determinable characteristics of a patient and her tumor. This is what the Michigan Cancer Foundation's Prognostic Study is setting out to prove," concluded Dr. Rich, acknowledging the United Foundation-United Way and the National Cancer Institute for their financial support of the study.

He commended, too, the Korman Family for its support in developing the Suzanne Korman Morton Laboratories in which a major part of the studies are being carried out.
