GP Theatre needs place to call home

By Joanne Gouleche

A place to call home. That's what the Grosse Pointe Theatre hopes to say about the former Grosse Pointe Nursing Home on Fisher Road in the coming months.

The theater people appealed to Grosse Pointe City council members last week to use the home as a rehearsal hall and were greeted with an initial enthusiastic response from city fathers. The site of the home is zoned single-family and would require a special zone variance from the council at a special public hearing Aug. 17 at city offices, 17147 Maumee.

The theater needs a "home" to store costumes, set dressings and to rehearse its five major productions each year, according to GPT members.

Members now meet monthly at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and have been scattered around the Grosse Pointe area since the theater's inception more than 30 years ago, says Gwen Samuels, a theater spokesman.

"We don't have any offices. We just want a place to call home," Mrs. Samuels said

The theater group, along with other local artists, were booted out of the Grosse Pointe Academy in April because the academy's board of directors wanted to use the building for a 'broader community use."

Then, earlier this month, the theater lost out on its bid to purchase the Old Kerby School in Grosse Pointe Farms when it appeared before that ecommunity's city council.

At last week's council meeting in the City, GPT member Dale Pegg said the nursing home's board of trustees have accepted the theater's offer to purchase the building at 315

According to the home's executive director, Joseph Mash, the home has been vacant since 1979 and attempts to renovate the home have been unsuccessful because of exorbitant costs tape. The property has been a nursing home since 1960, Mash said.

GPT members say if 315 Fisher Road becomes their new home, productions and general membership meetings will continue at the War Memorial. The groups intends to make some minor repairs to the property, including gutter and window repairs, changes to the front porch and general cleanup and landscape improvements.

Woods okays beer, wine at Bonanza

By Gregory Jakub

The Grosse Pointe Woods Council has approved the transfer of a liquor license formerly held by the defunct Gabby's Restaurant to the owners of the Bonanza Restaurant on Mack.

The approval ended a three-month stand-off between the council and one of the Bonanza owners, Jay Bielfield, a West Bloomfield attorney, who challenged the council's initial denial of the license transfer on April

On that date, some councilmen said they disapproved Bielfeld's transfer request because they lacked financial information about the trio that owns Bonanza, Bielfield said that was insufficient grounds for denial since such information was never formally requested by the council.

Bielfield pressed his case during several confrontations with the council and was finally asked to supply additional financial information about and run-ins with bureaucratic red ownership and details about how beer and wine would be dispensed.

> The council said it wanted to be sure of the financial status of the applicant since the former owners of the license, Gabby's Restaurant on Mack near Moross went bankrupt shortly after receiving the license. Gabby's has since been demolished.

> Some councilmen said they were confused by Bielfield's request due to the details of planned liquor service at Bonanza which changed each time Bielfield appealed to the council.

Bielfield said he was trying to tailor his plan to answer the concerns that surfaced during council discussions of the license transfer.

Approval came Monday, July 20, after Councilmen Robert Novitke and Dan Grady said the transfer was in the best interest of the city and denying Bielfield's request might prompt a less desirable applicant in the fuwho was concerned about the com- al dining rooms to be used for priplicated maze of businesses and investments that the Bonanza owners are involved in, finally said he was satisfied with their financial status.

Councilman Frederick Lovelace,

The license transfer approved July 20 must be confirmed by the State Liquor Control Commission, Once approved, Bielfield said he plans to expand the Bonanza with two additionvate functions such as rotary meetings and sports banquets. Beer and wine would be available in those rooms and also in the main cafeteriastyle dining room by request from waitresses, Bielfield said.

League forum tonight

Grosse Pointe Park voters will go to the polls this Tuesday, Aug. 4, to select six candidates for city council who will run-off for three seats in the November general election. Tonight, the League of Women Voters will give the public a chance to meet, hear and question the candidates at a public forum at 8 p.m. in the Park Municipal Build-

Frances Schonenberg, Chairman of Voter Service for the LWV is Lenore A Marshall. Voter guides compiled by the LWV are available at the city hall and library.

The News also sat down with the eight council hopefuls this month to get their opinions on several general issues in the Park, including the following:

• City finances, which have been the topic of discussion at numerous council meetings since the city was forced to lay off a policeman and fire fighter earlier this year because of a budget deficit. In addition the council voted to levy an average of 23 percent tax increase on homeowners.

• Public safety. The police and fire lay offs were a controversial move on the council's part and since that time citizens have expressed concern about whether they are being adequately protected during a time of increasing subumban crime.

· Kercheval Improvement and other federal programs, which were the center of controversy during the Park's last general election, are being reevaluated under the Reagan administration.

• Group homes for mentallyhandicapped persons, which are being opened in several suburban communities, have become a concern to Park residents because of state plans to locate a home for the retarded on Bedford Road. More homes for persons with various handicaps are expected to be proposed by the state in the future.

 A proposed condominium development, planned for an estate on Bishop Road, is still under consideration by the Park's planning commission and council and is meeting some opposition and support from neighbors and city

Public Hearing Set For Condos

By Susan McDonald

The Grosse Pointe Park Council sent plans for a luxury condominium development along Jefferson Avenue back to its planning commission for review, and set a public hearing date on the proposal sometime this October.

The proposed development - the first for "cluster housing" on the lake shore in the Pointes - includes 36 units contained in 18, two-story brick veneer buildings. The price range per unit is $200,000 to $400,000, according to builder James Scott, of Webber

Scott, who has been a builder for 32 years in the Grosse Pointe area, helped develop the Glancy estate, and has built homes on Mischa Lane, Mooreland, Briarcliff, Fordcroft and in the University Liggett School area, according to his son Lawrence Scott, a partner in the building firm.

Scott also owns three Elbow Room restaurants and the Georgian Inn in

The condo development is proposed for the Morrison estate, between Bishop Road and Ellair Place in the Park. According to the younger Scott, the area is not feasible for development as single family residences with today's building prices.

"Condominiums are the coming thing. People just can't afford to support the large homes anymore," Scott said. "There is definitely a market for them here."

He said the Birmingham, Bloomfield, Rochester area has a "tremendous number" of these types of development, - several designed by Smith, Schurman and Associates, the same firm that is working on plans for the Morrison estate,

The younger Scott said the 2,800 square feet condominiums would be surrounded by an existing greenbelt that will not be disturbed if construction is allowed by the city. "You can't even see the estate now, and that wouldn't change," he said.

The development would contain its own street, going down the middle of the lot, with units facing onto that, rather than Bishop or Ellair, Traffic would also travel that street, past a private gatehouse at the corner of Jefferson

City administrators like the $9 million proposal because it would increase the tax revenues to the city from the land, from the current $14,-000 to more than $90,000, according to City Manager John Crawford.

Before the plan is approved, however, the Park must adopt some kind of zoning ordinance to allow such "cluster" development. Current zoning codes contain no such provision and will have to be updated. The estate is now zoned single-family, Crawford said he is considering proposing an ordinance that would allow multiple family zoning for any site larger than five acres. Such an ordinance would apply to only two Park lots-the six-acre Morrison estate and the Ford estate near Cadieux and Jefferson, according to Crawford.

But some city leaders, including retiring Mayor Matthew Patterson, traditionally resist any attempts to rezone land in the city, Patterson, who will step down when his term expires in November, said he "will not be the one to change zoning in the

"This is a single-family city, and I think it should stay that way," Faiterson said.

At Monday's meeting council members Ann MacDonald and Douglas Graham asked builder Scott to keep in mind a single family development as an alternative to the condo proposal when they appear before the planning commission in October.

Vaughan energy post nominee

Senate confirmation hearings are scheduled this week in Washington, D.C. for assistant secretary of energy nominee William A. Vaughan, General Motors Corporation's energy manager.

If the 46-year-old lawyer from Grosse Pointe Farms wins senate approval for the $52,750 federal post, he will, among other duties, be responsible for keeping the nation's strategic petroleum reserve filled.

Vaughan was named to his present

Vaughan

GM post in 1976 and was cited last year by Modern Industrial Energy magazine for keeping the automaker's energy costs low.

The energy nominee joined GM in 1970 as an attorney on the corporation's Legal Staff and a year later was appointed attorney-in-charge of the environmental law section.

For 10 years Vaughan was instructor and assistant professor of Civil Engineering at Virginia Military Institute and deputy commandant of cadets.

Vaughan has lived in Grosse Pointe since 1970. He and his wife, Lind, have two daughters and a son.

To the certainty of death and taxes. Americans are now adding a third curse—paperwork. As a people, we live in a society that requires the hording of reports, computer printouts, forms, applications and records. Much of it is confidential, classified and or potentially embarrassing.

According to two Grosse Pointe businessmen, disposing of out-of-date, but still revealing information by simply throwing it away or shredding it in an office is insufficient.

To avoid potential disasters, Robert T. Wieringa and Carl E. Meyering have formed Guaranteed Document Destruction, Inc., a company devoted to destroying, decimating, mulching and otherwise removing from this earth all potentially dangerous, confidential or secret information a client might wish to eliminate.

"There's all kinds of persons out there collecting information on other people," said Meyering, speaking in his office at 20490 Harper, "Every time someone writes a check, applies for a credit card, supplies credit references, has good luck or bad luck, it all goes in a file somewhere.

"That bothers me, and it should bother other people. Who's looking at all those records? What's to stop someone from pulling your file as a favor to someone else, (who might be a business rival), while looking for a third party's records?

"There are tons of confidential papers around and plenty of people itching to look at it at someone else's expense. Throwing this material out doesn't always work," continued

"Between the office and the dump, your papers are fair game for trash pickers, reporters, private investigators competitors and disgruntled or opportunistic employes.

To prove his point, Meyering cited an example where a group of boys retrieved medical records of a prominent citizen from a doctor's trash can while searching for medical paraphernalia. They in turn gave it to a high school boy who offered to sell the material back to the citizen.

Another story involved a group of children in an art class who were given large sheets of paper, (computer printout sheets), and asked to draw on them. On the other side a law firm's confidential records were GDD does more than simply walk in and throw papers into a confetti machine They'll research the situation, helping everyone from influential firms to individual homeowners safeguard important information.

"This is not done for fraud," Meyering said. "These are files, some out of date, all potentially revealing, that should not be maintained. Our representatives are all bonded, and accounts are given a formal receipt prior to destruction of all designated materials."

"Some firms have shredding equipment, so what's so unique about our service?" asked Meyering, "We are a professional third party that does nothing but document destruction. We do it in the office in front of the account, or in the home. The receipt, listing all the destroyed documents, protects the account should any agency question their actions.'

While document destruction as a business is a fairly new enterprise, Wieringa and Meyering aren't a pair of fly-by-night, make-a-quick-buck operators.

Meyering is founder of the Meyering Corporation, consultants to management in financial, organization planning and marketing. He began his career as a reporter on the Grosse Pointe News, moved to Stars and Stripes during the Korean War, then graduated to the Associated Press.

"While I loved the reporting life, I had to get out and make some money," he said with a smile. "Storing up memories is fine, but it doesn't help much on the first of the

Kottler began his program with a superb and beautiful reading of Beethoven's Son-ata No. 30, Op. 109, Kottler continued briliantly with a closing group of five Chopin pieces: Bararolle, Op. 60; a Mazurka; Nocturne in E Maj. or, No. 2, Op. 62; Impromptu in A flat Major, Op. 69, and Ballade in F minor, No. 4, Kottler returned to the stage for three delightful encores: A Tiny Viennese Waltz, by Gartner, transcribed by Ignace Friedman; Love's Sorrow, (Liebes Leid), written for violin by Fritz Kreisler and transcribed for piano by Rach-maninoff, and Nocture in F sharp Major, by Chopin.

Suczek then joined Mischa Kottler on stage with a birthday gift box, containing a treasured letter of recommendation hand-written for Kottler by Emil von Sauer, his teacher and one of the famous pupils of Franz Liszt. The letter wasn't the present, but the badly needed frame was. Suczek read the impressive letter to the audience. One paragraph read, "I feel almost sure that Mr. Kottler will make a remarkable career as a public performer as well as a fine pedagogue." The letter was signed Emil V. Sauer, Vienna, Jan. 15, ple working in the program.

It was in Washington that she met her husband, Perry, who was working for the Automotive Manufacturer's Association. George Romney was head of it and Mr. TeWalt worked as his assistant, doing public relations, a position he was well qualified to fill. He had worked for the Wall St. Jour-nal and set up that paper's Ottawa

Bureau. Mr. TeWalt is now retired, but like his busy wife, fills his days with many interests. He belongs to the Grosse Pointe Men's Club and golfs, but his main interest is reading. He is a member of a unique reading club in 3510. which members get togeteher each week to discuss an important book they have all read. In the meantime, he reads on his own. "If he isn't here at dinner time," laughs Louise, "I just reach for the phone and call the library and ask the librarian to remind him of the time. With each one in him of the time. With each one involved in their own pursuits, they look forward to being together at night and sharing their day. With all of her outside interests, Louise is very much a home person. She grows vegetables and cans them. She is an adept seamstress and also belongs to a sewing club. She does beautiful needlepoint and crewel and knits. Her home, attractively decorated, sets off the priceless antiques with long family histories.

SHE IS VERY youth-oriented. She shares her skills with young people by teaching cooking to upper elementary students in a Continuing Education Program in the schools. She also conducts a class in Beginning French, teaching her students practical and conversational French to take them through a trip to that country. It is a pretty good guess that her students benefit enormously from her first-hand knowledge of France.

Her association with the Grosse Pointe schools began when her two daughters were students. She was head of the P.T.A. Mother's Club and various committees during their time there. Her interest in young people goes beyond her teaching activities. She organized a high school volunteer program in 1960. It was a program that not only benefited the community as young people went out to perform needed services but it also gave the students an opportunity to work in a field which they might later choose as a career. There were about 750 young people in the program with 28 possibilities for place-

As chairman of the Youth Committee for Southeastern Michigan, she helps to draft leadership programs for young people. "It's amazing the number of things they can do," she commented. "They learn first aid, work in blood banks and other community services. Most importantly they learn that there is personal satisfaction in helping others." Louise often meets some of those people who came out of the various youth programs, who are now grown and giving of their time and effort to the community.

In addition to these activities, Louise works with the Children's Center of Wayne County, a mental health center associated with the Detroit Industrial School; is a trustee for a vear around non-profit camp retarded children which also provides respite care if parents need temporary care for a child; is a member of the United Task Force for Camping. a group that evaluates camps and works at the Rehabilitation Institute in the Medical Center, a new concept with top facilities that counsels families on how to cope with a disabled member.

How does one person get involved in so many activities?

Louise explains that one commitment leads to another. "So many projects are interrelated," she said. When you begin working with one, you find that input with another benefits the first one.'

Organist featured at Punch

This Sunday, Aug. 2, the Motor City Theatre Organ Society will present Melissa Ambrose at the console of the Wurlitzer 2/6 Theatre Organ at the Punch & Judy Theatre.

This is another of the regular free mini-concerts given the first Sunday of each month at the Punch & Judy Sunday's program will feature classical, popular, Latin and country-western selections.

Melissa, a high school sophomore, has studied the accordian for four years and organ for five years. After graduation, she plans to continue her studies at Wayne State University before embarking upon a professional career in music.

Following the program, refreshments will be served in the lobby.

The Motor City Theatre Organ Society is a non-profit corporation of more than 450 area residents. Its purpose is to preserve and restore the theater pipe organ in its original setting where possible, and to foster interest in its music.

The society purchased the Redford Theatre in order to preserve the Barton 3-manual, 10-rank theatre pipe organ permanently in its original setting and to provide a home for the society.

Membership in the society is open to interested individuals.

Famed artist plays as guest carillonneur

Ronald Barnes will be the guest carillonneur at The Grosse Pointe Memorial Church on Tuesday, Aug. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

at 7:30 p.m.

His program will include original carillon music by Matthias van den Gheyn and George Clement, transcriptions of music by Scarlatti and Rameau, and his own work entitled Triptych for Carillon.

Barnes' distinguished career includes serving as University Carillonneur at Stanford University (Calif.), and the appointment as the first carillonneur for the University of Kansas in 1951.

After 13 years he served

After 13 years he served as consultant for the new carillon for the Washington Cathedral, and in 1963 was appointed its first carillonneur

Barnes is considered one of the finest composers for the carillon today. He has received numerous commis sions, including one from Christ Church Cranbrook in conjunction with the Michigan Council for the Arts in 1978. He was selected by The Guild of Carillonneurs in North America this past June to be its first commissioned composer for the carillon. In turn, Barnes has inspired other composers to write for the carillon.

He has played most of the important carillons in North America, arranged and composed many pieces for carillon which have been published, and has many published articles. Barnes has also appeared in film and on radio and television, including CBS, NBC, CBC and BBC, and has made a recording of the Cathedral carillon.

Barnes is also self-employed as a graphic artist and music engraver. In this realm he has produced many drawings of organ cases, carillon towers, and other musical experiences, mostly in a nonserious vein. Memorial Church is planning to have a display of some of these drawings the evening of the recital.

'Brunch With Bach' returns

After a brief summer vacation, the Detroit Institute of Arts' popular Sunday morning "Brunch With Bach" has returned to the museum Chrystal Gallery.

Scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 2, will be works by Bach, Handel, and Telemann, performed by Mary Beverly, soprano and Nigel North, baroque flute — both from England.

Guests may select from three different ticket prices. For $7 a full brunch of main course, fruit, bread and beverage is offered. Continental brunch is $5.50 including nut bread and butter, fruit compote, cottage cheese and beverage. Coffee and concert is $3.

GDD prefers to use a confetti ma-chine, believing it's more efficient than a shredder.

"Our machine chews it all up," Meyering said. "Staples, paper clips and all. You can also put in a lot of material at one time. With most shredders, you can only destroy one or two papers at a time."

To finish the job, GDD collects all the confetti and hand delivers it to an EPA approved incinerator where the particles are burned.

According to Meyering, business is booming. "There's a real call for this service," he said. "We intend to open a full record storage retrieval, and destruction facility soon. As far as I know, there are none currently in

The facility would catalog and store information for corporations, make it available for retrieval and then destroy designated material under supervision, if the account wishes verification.

"We're a paper society," Meyering said. "Everyone has statements, tickets, coupons, credit records, computer tapes and printouts, insurance policies and the like. It comes with the territory today.

"The thing to remember is that collectors morally have a responsibility to protect this information and then destroy it when it's no longer useful. We can help them fulfill that

GROSSE POINTE NEWS Grosse Pointe Park candidates speak out on city issues

Carroll Evola

Carroll Evola, 42, of Audubon, is a native of Grosse Pointe Park and former vice-president of a annily-held corporation. This is her first campaign for local political office.

Q. City finances.

A. Our city has some of the same problems other cities have with inflation, state cuts in funding. I think we had a problem because of a lack of physical planning. At this point we have to bite the bullet. I think we've cut as much as we can.

Q. Public safety.

ite the bullet. I think we've cut as much as we can.
Q. Public safety.
A. One of the ways you judge a police departent is its response time and in the Park it's about aree minutes, I don't hear complaints or concerns bout our department.
Q. Kercheval Improvement and other federal programs,

A. I'm absolutely in favor of continuing these programs, Small businesses in this community have to be encouraged to stay. When commercial districts become blighted, the neighborhood tends to suffer too. Each program has to be evaluated on its own merits.

John H. Fildew

Patricia Moran Forster

Patricia Forster, 35, of Yorkshire, is a life-long Pointer and is owner of Organizational Consultnts. This is her first try for local political office, but she was active in Councilwoman Ann Mac-

Thursday, July 30, 1981

I'm not saying I'm in favor of it. I don't want to see our services or the beauty of our city lose any of its luster. I realize you have to pay for what Q. Public Safety.

A. We've got a line police department. I understand why the city (laid off an officer) but I don't agree with it. Gross Pointe Park is in a peculiar position, being next to Detroit. I'm not orgainst Detroit, but left face it, there's a lot of crime over there, and we have to be aware of this. The fire department, I understand, is one of the face it, there is no being over the constant of all the money that's being appent on spalaries, the condition of all the money that's can't do it more efficiently.

On the proper is the contract of t

A I'm very much in favor of the use of fed-eral funds, I sat on a committee of concerned citi-cens during the last election that thoroughly looked into this, and I'm all for it. There are no "strings" attached: to any of the programs were involved in. Q. Group homes for mentally-handicarped.

A. It's a state mandate Tarmington, Southfield, Dearborn have all sued the state and lost. As a human being, I can't fight (the program) if the state can provide a well-supervised home for these people in our community. If the supervision is not excellent, I'll be the first one to do something about it. Elected officials, should be vigilant, but supportive of the state's efforts.

Q. Communications between public and cit

A. People are very intimidated by the council and that shouldn't be. On the other hand, the council has been badgered over and over again on certain issues and I can see why the members react the way they do no certain occasions, I think a strict three or four minute limitation should be set up for people wishing to speak so everyone can have a chance.

Eugene McKinney

Eugene McKinney, 46, of Buckingham, is di-tor of communications for the Motor Vehicle rector of communications for the Motor Vehicl Manufacturing Association of the United States He's lived in the Park for three years and is forme uncilman and full-time mayor of Westland.

agement of the city. I'm not so concerned about ax increases as the drop in services. I see the city really slipping while taxes go up. We should tak a close look at priorities, efficiency, not just in the a close look at priorities, efficiency, not just in the city manager's office but in all of top administration. I propose looking closely at the qualification of the city manager, finance director and police chief. I don't have any specific answers. You have to rely on people's qualifications and backgrounds.

Q. Public safety.

A. I don't think the police department is up to par. I'm not happy about the increase in crime. know it's there-all you have to do is look around, its indicative of very sloppy work that the police lepartment doesn't have an annual report out yet for last year. I'd like to see more patrols on the street. I'm opposed to laying off officers. It's the wrong time for that.

A. I oppose use of federal funds for housing, More strict building codes and enforcement are more effective for improving housing. I'm not com-pletely opposed to funds for commercial develop-ment, however, especially if it contributes to the tax base. I think the development on Kercheval has been impressive, but I'm not so sure if it's Sparky Herbert's or federal funds.

A. Elected officials should oppose group homes, 'm not totally convinced that they are a good nawer for (relarded) people. I've seen studies on ither side of the issue. I don't think people moved o Bedford, and spent large amounts of money on heir homes to confront that kind of problem.

unit homes to confront that kind of problem.

Q. Improving communications between public dividence in the problem. In the problem is and bring him down to where everyone else is. I think there's an attitudinal problem. I'm not sure remy deas are wanted, accepted or encouraged. You need a whole lot of differen perspectives to date for citizen comments, City administrators, and department heads should be sitting up in front near the council so they can answer questions and provide information. I think the city attorney too often gets involved in political discussions,

Q. Proposed condominium develonments.

A. I think people ought to be given an alter-native to single family housing in the Park. 1/3 TO 2/3 OFF

Quit smoking at any age

Smoking eigarettes long has been known to accelerate the loss in lung function that occurs with age. Now, says the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan (ALASEM), there's evidence that quitting smoking-at any age-has a rapid and beneficial effect on two important measurements of pulmonary function.

Results of a five-year study of 850 healthy men revealed that those who quit smoking lost significantly less of their forced vital capacity than those who continued to smoke, even when age was considered. Forced vital capacity is the amount of air that can be forcibly exhaled after maximum inhalation. The amount of air that can be forced from the lungs in one second-a critical indicator of obstructive lung disease-also decreased less among former smokers than among smokers, Results of the study, which included 354 current smokers, 98 who quit during the five-year study and 393 who had never smoked are reported in the American Review of Respira. tory Disease, journal of the American Thoracic Society, The American Thoracic Society is the medical section of the lung association. The subjects are all participants in the Normative Aging Study which began in 1963 at the Veterans Administration Clinic in Boston.

Surprisingly, the number of years since quitting smoking did not appear to be important. This rapid improvement in lung function after stopping smoking is welcome news, says ALA-SEM. Even in middle or later years, giving up cigarettes can mean retaining more lung power.

As a pragmatist, I don't think the (federal) money is going to be available in the future. It's obvious that certain of these programs are going down

Q. Group homes for mentally-handicapped.

A. I've never felt threatened by people with mental handicaps. I have no objections to people living as well as possible. But, you have to talk to people who are most affected. My biggest concern would be to ask the immediate neighbors what they think (about a home going in).

Q. Communications between public and city

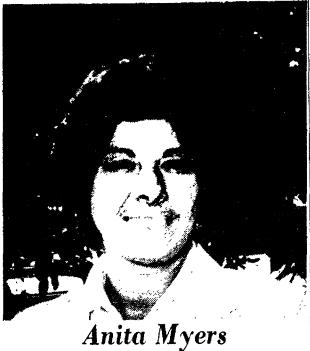

A. The reason people in the audience at council meetings are discourteous is that the mayor has set the pattern. I was humiliated by the mayor at one meeting I attended. With certain problems, the boat marina for example, small groups (should be formed) to discuss the issue in private so everyone can express their point of view. You begin by picking at the problems, one by one, easy ones first, and before you know it you've solved an issue. It's called "participative problem solving." We have a wealth of expertise in the Park, You can find people, not willing to run for office, but willing to lend a hand.

Q. Proposed condominium development.

A. If the tax revenue increase exceeds the expense (to the city) then it's a plus. That is as long as it meets all the city's building codes.

Grosse Pointe Park City Council

The British fondness for ice cream brought in $88 million in taxes last year, a treasury minister recently told the House of Commons. Britian imposes a tax on so-called "luxury foods."

Anita Myers, 40, of Three Mile Drive, is an associate member of the Grosse Pointe Real Estate Exchange at Tappan, Associates. She's lived in the Park for 11 years.

Q. City finances. A. What we're looking at now, despite the tax increase, is another year of deficit spending. Our deficit has built over the years since it began in 1976. You cannot increase taxes without cutting spending or you will eventually end up draining peoples' pockets dry. There are many ways to cut and trim. You have to go into every department, not like a railroad, but go to every department head and member for their ideas.

Q. Public safety. A. The lay off of a policeman and fireman was drastic. Before we got to that point, I'm sure we should have been able to straighten out the problem. I think the departments perform an excellent job in the city. They have always responded to my calls in a matter of minutes.

Q. Kercheval Improvement and other federal

A. I think funding is being drastically changed by the Reagan administration. In the future the state will be doling out the money. That, I think, will probably mean money will be more equitably spent and will reduce the bureaucracy. Each program has to be judged on its own merit. We must look closely to see if it benefits the community. With the Kercheval project, it appears (the area) is on the road to improvement.

Q. Group homes for mentally-handicapped.

A. We cannot fight the state mandate that these homes be placed in communities. Emotionally, I am sympathetic to these people. But for $2,100 a month (which the state is paying for the Park group home) I'm sorry to say it appears to be a business venture for someone. The homes are go-ing to be opened, but I want to make sure our money is efficiently spent.

Q. Communications between public and city

A. Full disclosure of council plans and agendas should be made available to the public well before council meetings. We all have to be able to bend and compromise, too.

Q. Proposed condominium development. A. I think the city should look closely at the charter, especially to determine if the units might be converted to rental units, which would create an absentee landlord situation. The design also should be carefully checked.

JULY 20, 1981

The Meeting was called to order at 8:00 p.m.

Present on Roll Call: Mayor James H. Dingeman, Councilmen Joseph L. Fromm, Nancy J. Waugaman, Harry T. Echlin and Lloyd A. Semple.

Those Absent Were: Councilmen Jack M. Cudlip and Gail Kaess.

Also Present: Mr. Lawrence G. Campbell, City Attorney, Mr. Andrew Bremer, Jr., City Manager, Mr. Richard G. Solak, City Clerk and Mr. Robert K. Ferber, Chief of Police.

Mayor James H. Dingeman presided at the Meeting.

Councilmen Cudlip and Kaess were excused from attending the Meeting.

The Minutes of the Regular Meeging which was held on July 6, 1981, were approved as submitted.

The Minutes of the Closed Session which was held on June 15, 1981, were approved as submitted.

The Council adopted a resolution referring Mr. Robert R. Sfire's request for Site Plan Review at 240 Grosse Pointe Boulevard, to the Mayor's Advisory Planning Committee for their recommendations to the Council.

The Council acting as a Zoning Board of Appeals, voted to approve the request of Mr. R. Brinkman of 21 Harbor Hill, thereby authorizing issuance of a permit to convert an existing attached garage into a playroom and construct a new attached garage at the foregoing address; and further, to adjourn the Hearing of Mr. Richard L. Best of 80 Meadow Lane, to Monday, August 10, 1981, at the petitioners request.

The Council authorized the Administration to hire an outside engineering firm to conduct a study of the Fox Creek Facilities Plan, dated June, 1981, in an amount not to exceed $5,000,00.

The following Reports were received by the Council and ordered placed on file:

Q. City finances.

A. We've had it quite good for several years with taxes. I don't feel the current administration is to blame for the 23 percent increase this year, but I don't think it was adequately explained to the people. I believe we can run the city far more efficiently. For example, the old bath house at the park that is not used anymore could be turned into a private club. That could generate money for the city. It's going to cost more to live in Grosse Pointe, though.

A. We have great police and fire departments. I question if we're using all the available tools to help them. There are state programs to train men that we're not using, even though I know police-men who would be willing to go on their own time. I would look into a residency requirement for all city employes. If a person who works in the city doesn't live there, he doesn't care about the costs

Q. Kercheval Improvement and other federal

A. There are federal funds available that most communities take advantage of, but because of my experience in real estate, I would advise the community not to get involved with HUD. I believe they should avoid any HUD program that involves individual housing, but I do think businesses need

Q. Group homes for mentally-handicapped.

A. There are areas where group homes fit in very well and are accepted by residents. I do not believe Grosse Pointe Park is a suitable location for these homes because it is basically a single family residential area. I also think it is ludicrous for a man who works for the state to be paid twice the going rate for rent on his homes.

Q. Improving communications, between public articles and vandalism to their boats. More such re-

A. I question the fact that all council minutes are taken by hand when the city has electronic equipment at its disposal it is not using. Why? Agendas should be available earlier so they can be printed in the paper before meetings.

Q. Proposed condominium development. A. There was a national survey done by realtors that demonstrated condominiums use less city services than single family home developments. The people living in condos generally don't have children, and don't spend much time there. I don't believe you can find a community where condominiums brought property values down. If this developer follows city zoning and building requirements, I think it will be an asset to the community.

Police arrest two at marina

Grosse Pointe Park police last week arrested two De-troit juveniles who they say broke into at least eight boats docked at Windmill Pointe Park, stealing flashlights, alcohol, tools and radios, according to Police Chief Henry Coonce. Coonce said the two 15-year-olds confessed to the breaking and enterings after they were caught by police on a boat. The pair had a rubber rast loaded with stolen goods to be transported across the Fox Creek to Detroit, police said. One of the youths tried to escape by jumping into the 20-foot deep creek with handcuffs on, according to Coonce. He was aprehended by Pil. Eugene Adamezyk.

Police made the arrests early Thursday, July 23. They said between eight and 10 boat owners had notified them at that time of stolen ports were expected.

Q. City finances.

A. You have to look in the budget carefully to avoid the kind of increase in taxes we had this year in the future. The council has wanted to be a "good guy" in the past by cutting capital improvements to keep tax rates low. But in the meantime, inflation keeps pushing costs of those capital items up. Long range planning is necessary. We have to plan our strategy for three to four years down the road. I think the city administration has a pretty good handle on that. Q. Public safety.

A. Police protection is of maximum importance to the Park given its proximity to Detroit and we have to be concerned with public safety. I think we have good police protection. There are certain things that no matter how hard you try and how much protection you have, you're not going to be able to prevent.

Q. Kercheval improvement and other fodoral projects. A. As long as a municipality maintains its autonomy, I don't have any problems with the use of these funds, being careful not to become dependent on the programs. I particularly like what they've done on Kercheval Avenue. Q. Group homes for mentally-handicapped.

A. Until the courts decide if objections based on local zoning are legitimate, communities are going to have to do the best they can to deal with the homes. I have problems determining who will be accountable for supervision of the home and I am very concerned about allegations about a conflict of interest in the situation on Bedford.

Q. Improving communications between public

A. Better ground rules should be established at council meetings from the start. But even then, it is tough to put teeth in them. I hope people will become increasingly aware that the problems we have won't be made any better by yelling and screaming at each other.

Q. Proposed condominum development. A. I have no problems with condominums. We have duplexes in many areas and the plans look good. They're not going to be cheap. We must make sure they meet local building requirements.

A unique aspect of Louise's volunteer work is that she is one of the few who work in both Detroit and Grosse Pointe. This dual service gives her an excellent perspective on how communities can work together to the benefit of both.

"A good example of what is possible when communities cooperate," Louise said, "is the now defunct Detroit Adventure Series when Wayne University, The Detroit Public Library, The Historical Society and The Detroit Institute of Arts pooled their resources and sponsored among other activities, The Detroit Symphony in Schools, a program that brought the students from outlying districts into Detroit.

At the present time, Louise is devoting an enormous amount of time to SOC (Seniors Onward For Change), an organization dedicated to bringing needed services to seniors in the Pointes and St. Clair Shores.

Operating on the premise that if you want something done, ask a busy person, the originators of the project came to Louise and asked her to help with the by-laws. Recognizing the merits and need for SOC, Louise became actively involved. She is now

The next task completed and one that brought various agencies into the picture, was made possible by a grant from The Detroit Area on Aging. With this grant a police department. survey for assessment of needs in the area was made and an Information Men compete at people could call and get information on what agency to contact for help. Bravo for Milliken

Gov. William G. Milliken last week took another step on behalf f Wayne County citizens by overriding the technical objections of the state attorney general's staff and approving the proposed charter for Wayne County's govern-ment. The governor brushed aside the proposed legal changes as "not fundamental" and said the two charter versions are "in substantial conformity with the provisions of the Constitution and the statutes of this state."

That is formal language for disposing of the objections as "fly-

That means that if, as anticipated, the charter commission this week approved a resolution to put the charter on the ballot, county voters will have the opportunity on Nov. 3 to put their stamp of approval on a document calling for the reorganization of their chronically broke county government. Voters will be given the choice of two documents, identical except that one would call for an elected chief executive officer and the other an appointive CEO to be named by the board of county commissioners.

THE GOVERNOR'S approval appropriately came in the same week in which the county board once again showed its inability to govern or even reach decisions on important matters by failing to act against Sheriff William Lucas in the controversy over his maintenance of the county road patrol. This long-continuing clash has showed the ineffectiveness and inefficiency of a board which tends to make most of its decisions on a political basis rather than on what is best for a majority of county

If the public approves the charter Nov. 3, the county board and other county officials, plus the elected manager (if the voters adopt that alternative), will be elected in November, 1982, and the charter will become operative on Jan. 1, 1983. As George Ward, the Detroit attorney who served as chairman of the Wayne County Charter Com-mission said, "Our citizens have been waiting much too long for the opportunity to bring county government into the 20th century." But at least county residents now appear to have the opportunity to see that long-awaited, much-needed development occur.

Some friends of Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit have expressed concern that an elected county manager might become a major competitor of the mayor in wielding political power in the metro-politan area. But blacks on the charter commission in general supported election of as many county officials as possible because that has been their traditional route to public office. It is hoped they will take the same attitude toward the elective county manager, because the alternative is an appointive CEO and the county board has shown its inability to divorce itself from partisan politics in appointing officials in the past, However, the reduction of the board's size from 27 to 15 and the elimination of most of its administrative duties should make it a more responsible body under the charter.

Even the road commission, which remains as an independent stronghold of political power, will have its wings clipped to some extent. Under the charter, the members will serve by appointment and at the pleasure of the chief executive officer. That fact alone ought to make them more responsive to the centralized rule of the CEO. But the charter also puts the commission under new finance provisions which means its budget will be subjected to more centralized control and auditing.

ONE OF THE SHARPEST controversies resulted in agreement on "the operation, maintenance and administration of public county hospital facilities." That agreement means county government would have the flexibility to revise current hospital practices. While some out-county people think Wayne County General Hospital provided convenient and first rate service and many Detroit residents who work there have lobbied to keep it open many observers believe its costs are excessive. So it might be possible for the county to sell the hospital to a private operator and then lease back space required for indigent patients. Or it might be possible for the county to lease space in other hospitals for indigents, presumably at a saving for county taxpayers.

The agreement reached on the hospital issue is illustrative of the effort by charter drafters to seek new and more flexible ways of providing service to county citizens at less cost or even improving services at no increase in costs. Thus the county will have the opportunity, if the charter is approved, of abandoning some of the old practices and procedures which were apparently set in concrete and which could not be revised despite their heavy cost.

Gov. Milliken is to be congratulated for his support for the charter and for making it possible for the citizens of the county to vote for the long-awaited reform on Nov. 3, barring some unforeseen, last-minute hitch.

Detroit drama

If Detroit finally avoids going broke someone ought to make a movie thriller out of the city's achievement. The title could be something like "Riding the Rapids of Insolvency With Mayor Young" or "Running Along the Brink of Bankruptcy With Coleman." For whatever we may think of Detroit's mayor, he has been phenomenally successful-and luckyin keeping alive the package of legislative and fiscal conditions required to keep the city of Detroit afloat.

The rescue package still has not completed its risky journey. But increasingly it begins to look as if it finally will get all of the approvals it needs along the way so that it will be able to go into effect. At least the city still has a chance to meet all the required conditions by the Aug. 15 deadline and that alone is an accomplishment that scarcely seemed possible a couple of weeks

It will be recalled that the rescue-Detroit program faced strong opposition from the very beginning. When it came before the state Legislature, suburban legislators and their commuter constituencies complained bitterly about the proposed increase in the commuter income tax from one-half of 1 percent to 1.5 percent that would be imposed on people who worked in Detroit but lived elsewhere, Eventually, however, an unlikely combination of Detroit, and outstate legislators, who seldom see eye-to-eye on anything, approved the proposed program.

THE CRITICS DID exact a price, however. The price consisted of a number of conditions the city would have to meet before the program could go into effect. One of the most important ones was that the city would have to impose a wage freeze on its employes to mollify suburban legislators and other critics who feared the increase in the commuter tax would be used merely to increase wages and salaries of Detroit's municipal employes. All along it had been assumed that city voters also would be asked to increase their own income taxes from 2 percent to 3 percent. Yet it was by no means certain they would do so at a time when public officials from President Reagan on down were proposing tax cuts. However, Detroit got a break on the eve of the election. The Detroit Police Officers Association agreed to the wage freeze condition imposed by the state. That gave city voters a powerful incentive to accept the package—which they did.

Yet the hardest test of the wage freeze remained. The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, the union representing the largest number of city employes, took a dim view of the freeze and, instead, threatened to go to court to win the wage boosts promised in its contract. In fact, it at first voted down the mayor's request for a wage freeze and his offer of a one-year ban on layoffs. Ultimately, after renewed negotiations, a tentative settlement was achieved by promising AFSC-ME members a two-year ban on layoffs, giving them extra days off and easing sick leave limitations. Once more victory had been snatched from the brink of defeat.

There are more rapids to be run. Other union members still have to vote to accept the tentative settlement. The city still has to sell up to $125 million in long-term bonds. Meeting those conditions will not be a cinch, in view of inflation, market conditions and Detroit's unhealthy economy. Yet since the rescue program has surmounted so many obstacles, the portents now are that the city finally will succeed in winning all the necessary

BUT IF SO, the most important questions of all still will be left unanswered. Will the program work? Will it really rescue Detroit or will it merely postpone the day of reckoning? Nobody really expects to learn in advance how movie thrillers like this one come out. But so far Director Young still has many of us in the suburbs sitting on the edge of our seats awaiting the climax of the Detroit

Letters to the editor

Dr. Barrer clears the air on Bedford

To the Editor:

After viewing the events and news articles of the bast five months concerning the Bedford Road group home, I am compelled to write and convey my side of the story and to clear some of the increasingly clouded

Much of the intensity and direction the of this issue has focused upon the fact that the state may not have alerted the Park as to its intention to rent a home here and the allegation that a "sweet deal" was made between the state and myself. Unfortunately, the hearing in Judge Robert Columbo's court did not do enough to clear the air.

In March of 1980 I decided to purchase a home in the Pointes with the full intention of making it my per manent home for some time. Immediately upon moving into the Bedford home I put over $10,000 of improvements into the home including such items as expensive designer wall coverings; a natural gas grill and restoring damaged oak flooring. In the late fall of that year I began to receive offers for excellent positions in other states. Realizing that a move was probable I put the home on the market with a local broker and contacted the state to give them a chance to lease the home.

As is typical with the government, the wheels moved slowly. Meanwhile, I had turned down offers on the home in excess of $150,000; the market value established by the state's independent appraisal. I decided to accept the state's offer and was directed by them to vacate in March in hopes that the residents would move in later that month. The lease was not "tailored" to me as some have stated. It is a stock state lease form utilized with all lessors. The State Administrative Board made up of the highest government officials approved the lease. The Department of Mental Health did review a possible conflict (at my request) and felt there was none. The Attorney General's office did the same and concluded there were no problems.

Because of my being a former State employe and because the opening of a group home in the Pointes was a political issue, state guidelines and regulations were closely followed. Yes, the rent is high. However, it still is below the rental value per the independent appraisal. Even one of my neighbors commented to me (prior to knowing the home would be occouped by disabled persons) that the rent should be about $2,400.

One of the main issues was that of the state not informing the public of its interests in a home in the Pointes. However, ads in the Detroit News for homes here went unanswered for months. Also, almost every week or two there are stories on the television about the need for such homes and the desire of the state to find them. No one should, therefore, be surprised that one would come to the Pointes.

There have been talks of the great deal I was to have received. What I have received is an incredible amount of harassment from people in the community. I have received threats against me and have had to resort to filing a suit against one neighbor due to her behavior. I do not deny that I am receiving an investment in my rental to the state. I am sure that neighbors on Bedford have savings bonds and treasury bills or government bonds, too. These are all investments made off of taxpayers' dollars. Where do they think the interest payments they receive from those investments are coming from? What all this leads to is to clear the air and to get to the bottom line of the real objection. The real issue here is that the residents of Bedford do not want the developmentally disabled to live in their community. They feel that "those" people only belong in the inner city of Detroit or locked away in institutions. I could make a lot more on other investments with my money. However, my experiences working with the disabled have shown to me, beyond any doubt, that these citizens will have a chance to grow and learn and become productive members in society; an opportunity that no institution can give to

I have seen persons who have resided in institutions for over twenty years be able to move to the community, get employment and become taxpaying members of our community. I have seen the families of these citizens take pride in their growth, and most of all, I have seen opposed neighbors in other areas become helping and supportive people ready to give a helping hand to the devel-opmentally disabled once they come to know them. I only hope that one day, when the air clears and the residents finally move into their new home on Bedford, that the opposed neighbors see the reality of what I have stated.

It did precisely what it was intended to do: it called attention to the fact that to enjoy a week at Tau Beta and girls between the ages of many Americans do not support England's policy toward Northern Ire-

Kelly's gesture was obviously symbolic; and it agitated just the right people (pun intended). It took courage on his part to stand up to the British Empire on which the sun used to never set.

England itself? I love it. I love its literature. But both its historical and its contemporary treatment of Ireland in particular has been distinguished by its dumbness. England, for sure, will be getting out of Ireland just as it got out of India, as France got out of Algeria, indeed as we got out of Viet-Nam. Self-determination for everyone is the policy that makes sense, as it did for us in

In fact, as we have seen in the last few weeks in Britain's youth rebellion, the chickens are coming home to roost even there, in that most well-mannered of countries, England itself. Margaret Thatcher, its stuffy prime minister, simply doesn't get the drift of what's going on either in Northern Ireland or in her own country. She would be a firstrate candidate for inclusion in a novel by Henry James, but to rule a nation like England in 1981? No, no, no, a thousand times no!

Hinz-SantaVicca vows exchanged

Bride's cousin is organist at spring ceremony; bridegroom's cousin is soloist; newlyweds vacation in south

Wedding vows were exchanged Saturday, May 23, at an early evening nuptial mass concelebrated by The Very Reverend Father Hector J. Saulino and The Reverend Michael Ratajczak, by Gloria Gina SantaVicca and Jason Andrew Hinz in Our Lady Star of the Sea Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Emedio San- shoulders and edged the wrist taVicca, of East Detroit, points of her long sleeves. and the late Mr. Santa-Off-center sprays of more Vicca. The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Hinz, of Ballantyne Road.

The bride's cousin, Dennis DePerro, came from New St. Clair Shores, the bridegroom's cousin.

Lace trimmed with seed pearls and aurora borealis stones fashioned a scooped, illusion neckline and formed V-shaped bodice overlay ending at the waist of the bride's gown of off-white, dełustered heirloom satin.

It's an all-day party, with fair-goers roaming the grounds of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial from 10 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon, viewing and selecting water colors, acrylic and oil paintings, photographs and numerous craft items: ceramics, jewelry, enamels, weavings, works in leather, wood and metal.

One hundred and seventy artists and craits-men will be represented at the 22nd Annual Grosse Pointe Fall Art Festival Saturday, September 12. Many old favorites will be among them, people like Sam Sottile and his family, with their metal sculpture. . Jack Saunders, with his beautiful, acrylic-encased butterflies . . . Simon and Joy Tarasiewicz, with their delightful, wooden toys . . . Richard Watson, with his hand-carved birds.

Kathy Rackal is coming from Grand Rapids to display her unique, hand-woven baskets. Cynthia Carson, a teacher at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, will be showing some of her stitchery pillows, bargello, ribbon work and weaving.

Returning to demonstrate as well as show their crafts are Dennis Helfer, the friendly glass blower, and Merle Davies and his wife, in appropriate period costumes, "doing their things:" tin smithing and towel hucking, respectively. A special attraction for the littlest festival-goers will be the wonderful balloons of Katrina Randall, The Clown

We'll have more festival information for you later in the season, but for the nonce/note that Corinne (Mrs. Stanley) Dolega is general chairman of the day, assisted by co-chairmen Lee (Mrs. John) McKinley and Elizabeth (Mrs. Thomas) Jefferis. Take Masonic Temple stroll in early August

Detroit's 1,036-room Masonic Temple, "an indoor metropolis that could accommodate 16,000 people at the same time," will be featured on the Detroit Historical Society's Aug. 9 Sunday Stroll. The tour starts at 2 p.m. Stuart Coles will guide participants through the building hailed as Detroit's Masterpiece of Modern Gothic, designed by architect George Mason and completed in 1926. It is the largest Masonic Temple of its kind in

A stop will be made to view the magnificent Commandery Asylum, patterned after the Tower of London room in which kings assembled their knights before embarking on the Crusades. The room is pure Gothic, with stone floors, ornate oak pews and a balcony.

The tour also will visit the 1,600-seat Scottish Rite Cathedral and a few of the many lodge rooms, each finished in a major architectural style, from Ionic and Doric to Egyptian, Corinthian, Tudor and Romanesque.

The temple contains statues, decorative facing, tiles, canopies and other ornamental features, products of thousands of hours of labor by master sculptor Corrado Parducci. His laborers worked two shifts daily, seven days a week, for two years to complete the impressive interior.

The building was formally opened to the public Feb. 22, 1926; the birthday of famous Mason George Washington. As Detroit Mayor John W. Smith, speaking at the dedication ceremony, observed: "Some lofty purpose must have inspired the creation of this beautiful building. It is sufficiently beautiful to be the temple of the most profound and liberating ideals.'

Tickets for the Masonic Temple tour, fifth in a series of May through October Sunday Strolls offered by the Detroit Historical Society as a means of re-acquainting residents with some of the city's more interesting neighborhoods, commercial districts and historic areas, are $2.50 per person for Society members, $3.50 for nonmembers. Exercise, diet aids to health

Exercise and eating properly are among the foremost factors that affect a person's health, Exercise accomplishes

three goals: cardiovascular stimulation, weight loss and maintenance, and release of stress. Eating right helps prevent weight gain as well as decreases a number of other risk factors which tend to shorten life expectancy.

The challenge is to balance diet and exercise by consum-

Woods-Shores teams win District 2 Babe Ruth titles

The Woods-Shores Babe Ruth League scored a double triumph in District 2 tournament play as both the 14-15 year olds and the 13-yearolds captured their respective championships July 11-14 at L'Anse Creuse North High School.

Both teams advanced to Babe Ruth state tournament competition.

The Woods' 14-15 team defeated the Farms-City, 9-1, to win the championship on July 14. It was the Woods' ninth district title in the last 10 years.

Lanky righthander Bob Wujek allowed only four Farms hits while striking out nine. He also paced his team's 14-hit attack with four straight singles.

The first four innings saw a tight pitching duel between Wujek and Farms righthander Mike Hall as the Woods managed a 2-1 lead. The Woods squad scored five runs in the fifth inning on five hits, a walk and a hit batsman to pull away for

Other Woods hitters were Frank Reid, with a double and a single. John Menzo and Tim Sheridan had two singles. Joe Weidenbach, Steve Walker, John Matouk and Chris Bingaman each singled.

John Kulka smashed a double for the Farms while Scott White, John Tavery and Mike Wild each hit singles.

In a first-round game, the Woods defeated L'Anse Creuse North, 13-4, on July 11 as hurler Menzo went the distance and scattered seven hits and struck out nine.

Menzo hit a home run and two singles, good for three RBI, while centerfielder Dave Waldeck drove in four runs with a home run and a

Other Woods hitters included Walker with a double and a single; Weidenbach and a single; wederload with two singles; Dan Kopitzke with two singles; Mike LaRue with a double; and Reid, Matcuk and Sheridan with singles.

On July 12, the Woods team gained the championship round by defeating L'Anse Creuse, 13-5. Wujek pitched the first four innings to gain the win while south-paw Mike Lee hurled hitless ball for three relief innings. The Woods scored a quick nine runs in the first inning to sew things up early.

Wujek smashed a triple and a single while Weidenbach and Waldeck each doubled and singled. Menzo had two singles and Binga-man hit a double and Matouk had a single.

On July 13, the Farms, behind the pitching of Kulka, defeated the Woods, 15-6, in the first game of the championship round. Each team now had one loss in the double elimination tourney.

The year of the Cardinal: a softball season of fun

By Peggy O'Connor

Tim, a strapping six-footer, likes to play his softball all out. He often runs through the third base coach's 'stop" sign-determined to stretch a triple into a home run. He almost always makes it.

Steve loves baseball. He's got a great throwing arm and his fielding isn't too bad, either.

Tim and Steve are members of the Cardinals, a team in the Saints Special Education Softball League. The Saints League and the Neighborhood Club, which sponsors the Cardinals, are giving athletes like Tim and Steve a chance to play they wouldn't normally get.

Cardinal team coach Geri Maci started the whole thing in the Pointe, "My son is handicapped (he suffers from Down's Syndrome) but I wanted him to play a sport. We signed him up with a handicapped softball team in Sterling Heights-but then I thought: why should we have to go way

Mrs. Maci called Neighborhood Club program director Greg Brynaert to find out why there wasn't such a program closer to her Harper Woods home. Brynaert told her he honestly didn't know why there wasn't, but that there should be. They got together to work out the details and the Cardinals were born.

All the other teams in the Saints League are sponsored by the Knights of Columbus. The Cardinals couldn't get a K of C sponsor, so the Neighborhood Club donated the caps and equipment and scheduled the

The team members picked out their colors and held a vote on the team name. For $15, each player gets a Cardinals jersey, And right now, there are 28 Cardinals wearing those jerseys, a far cry from what Brynaert thought Mrs. Maci would be able to assemble.

When she got started, Brynaert told her she would be hard pressed to find the necessary 12 players to compete. "Well, the response was just great—we've got kids from all over Grosse Pointe, Roseville,

"And the parents all seem to love it. They are glad someone took the initiative with the kids. It's a lot of fun, and it's so gratifying. I get a lump in my throat just vatching these kids," Mrs. Maoi says.

Mrs. Maci says it is easy for her to adjust to coaching handicapped kids because she deals with a handicapped child every day. The best thing to do is to treat them like normal kids. It's a little harder sometimes; you can't get through to some on the first verbal command."

"You have to push some of them . . but you have to do that with most kids." "We play a regular softball game," Mrs. Maci adds, "the rules are just a little differ-

The Saints League adapted the American Softball Association rules for its purposes. Among the exceptions are that teams will but their entire roster of players; unlimited substitution in all fielding positions is allowed; no strikeouts or walks; batting team allowed only five runs per inning: baseline distance is 55 feet, pitching distance is 36 feet and bunting is not allowed.

If the game is rained out, both teams receive a tie. Each game consists of six innings and no new inning may begin after 8:30 p.m., two hours after starting time. The team leading at this time is declared the winner.

One key rule change is that Saints League team coaches pitch to their own teams. Each batter is allowed at least five pitches and if the ball is not hit within five pitches, the batter must use the tee. If the batter fails to hit the ball while on the tee within five swings, he or she will be called Bonnie Weinand has three sons on the Cardinals—they are each in wheelchairs and use the plastic tees to bat. For Mrs. Weinand's sons, Dave, Paul and George, it is often a great struggle to hit the soft. ball: a struggle which is accompanied by shouts of encouragement from their mother, brother Steve, teammates, opponents and coaches.

"It's really great to watch," Mrs. Weinand says. "A couple of weeks ago, one of the boys laughed so hard, he nearly fell out of the chair." "It's really made them outgoing. They talk about the game all week long-we always have to hurry through supper to get here on time. We even made a practice tee at home and they practice all week long," Mrs. Weinand says.

Eight-year-old Steve Reicher also practices a lot. "He just loves to play-he can't stay away," says his mother, Mrs. Bernice Reicher, Steve played softball last year in Birmingham and he looks like a veteran baliplayer. Steve is one of the team's best fielders. He has spina bifiida and normally uses crutches to get around, but kneels at bat and in the field.

"You've got to sit here and cheer these kids on-they're more important than the big shots. These kids are terrific and you've really got to give 'em credit," Mrs. Reicher

If only for the sheer joy they express in just being able to be with their friends and have fun, the Cardinals are a lot of fun to watch and you do have to "give 'em credit." It really is a treat to see a game where a hug and a pat on the back replace the high-five slap of the pros.

As Neighborhood Club program director Brynaert says, "Here, there's really no handicap."

DAY to establish your

886-8982 Remember this sale starts THURSDAY at 10 a.m. Watch for sale next week on Neff in Grosse Pointe.

"Strange" "Yes, there's something very strange, going on out here!" A woman wedgwood tankard "a person would have to be out of his mind to sell genuine Wedgwood at a price like this!" She said, "Well, I said, "why do you suppose I ca'l myself Wacky Jack?' It was funny! The woman looked and looked at that tankard examined it with a magnifying glass, and, finally, consented to buy it only if I'd provide a written guarantee. It's easy to understand, I guess, the vast selection of unusual exciting antiques, gifls and collectibles at Colonial's low prices is hard to believe, but I assure you, friends, it's true, it's true! Just wait till you see the goodies Old Wacky has for you this week: A collection of miniature pitchers, 2 beautiful Haviland serving plates, some Chinese porcelain dishes, a set of Lafayette Limoge plates, several cut glass tumblers, a Gouda vase, 3 Bing and Grondhel figurines, lots of Sterling spoons and oak china cabinet, and oak drop leaf table, a Tiffany pastel plate with original s icker, a magnificent hand painted fish platter, 2 round Cloisonne boxes, and a rainbow Mother of Pearl satin glass vase is only the beginning. Come on out and shop in air conditioned comfort at The Colonial
