Park is ready to move on Mack Avenue redevelopment

Park officials are seeking federal funds as seed money for an ambitious plan to redevelop the first two blocks of Mack Avenue near the city's Detroit border.

The council voted Monday, Jan. 11, to seek Community Development Block Grant (CBDG) support to purchase land, including the Union Street har building owned by James Jensen, and a bakery building recently purchased by Bob Case, owner of Pointe Cab Co The city already owns one lot on the block.

The project will be reviewed by Wayne County CDBG administrators and a decision on funding is expected in May, according to City Manager

Frigid cold keeps the thieves away

By Joanne Gouleche

It seems old man winter has put burglars out of business in Grosse Pointe for a while, at least until the sun peeks through those dark clouds and the thermometer inches up past 32 degrees.

Some local police officials say the arctic cold spell generally means less home burglaries and business breakins on record books. You see, burglars get cold hands and feet, too.

"It's just too cold for anyone to go anyplace," said Grosse Pointe City Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy. "That means it's cold for burglars, too. Let's face it, they would Kennedy said while the sub-zero temperatures usually lead to a decline in burglaries and on the street assaults, the cold weather is sometimes responsible for increases in family squabbles because of winter confinement.

City police reported a rash of burglaries on Rivard Boulevard just before the cold spell hit two weeks ago. but Kennedy said now the break-in business has cooled down considerably to almost nil since that time.

Grosse Pointe Park Police Chief Henry Coonce agreed crime is taking a holiday. "No fool in his right mind is going to be out in this weather. We're down next to nothing right

Coonce added that because people are literally forced to stay inside in the cold weather, reports of obscene phone calls are on the increase. "We had quite a few reports last weekend It's a symptom of being cooped up. Sometimes people have nothing better to do than to make these kind of calls."

One Grosse Pointe police official, however, believes the cold weather doesn't put the brakes on crime, especially in hard-hit economic 1982.

'Generally, I would say it would. but right now we're faced with such a high unemployment rate that I would have to say it doesn't have an effect," said Grosse Pointe Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber.

Ferber said his department is busy with the usual car lock-outs, stalled vehicles and clearing away snow left by private contractors in city streets.

The police chief added that while Farms police have had their share of winter road accidents, nothing can compete with the summer months of June and July. "People take more risks when the streets are safe and Local public works departments are making sure Grosse Pointe streets are passable and ice-free. Grosse Pointe City public works director Doug Collinson said the cold weather made oil in city plow trucks' hydraulic systems so thick it made it hard for the vehicles to operate.

Public Works employe Tim VandenBoom added the arctic blast has clumped the city's salt supply. "We're holding up, but we're busy chopping up the salt."

Correction

A story about statewide assessment scores in the Jan. 14 issue should have said the Grosse Pointe schools unofficially ranked number two in the tri-county area.

South High School's pool is 20 yards long, not 20 meters as reported in the Jan. 14 issue,

THE GOAL OF commercial redevelopment of the area is to protect adjoining residential communities from the effects of blight, Crawford said. Three alternative plans for redevelopment of the Alter to Maryland area were drawn up by architects Schervish, Vogel, Merz and presented to the council by Charles Merz at the Jan. 11 meeting. All three plans call for blocking Wayburn Road at Mack, constructing a landscaped median on Mack and additional parking for businesses. One alternative proposes renovating current buildings, another includes construction of a two-story combined court-law office, and the third includes construction of two, two-story buildings, one a court and the second a commercial building. Price tags on the three range from $1.6 million to more than $3 million, and involve varying amounts of private and public investment

A resolution to seek federal funds for the project was approved Jan. 11 by a 5-1 vote, with Councilman Anthony Spada voting no. (Councilman Roger McNeill was absent.)

Spada, who has opposed city use of federal funds in the past, expressed skepticism about the project's chances for success because, he said, it is obvious Detroit is not going to do anything with its side of Mack Avenue, across from the Park's planned development. Councilman Patricia Forster said the plans seemed "so grandiose, I wonder if they will ever happen," but voted in favor of the resolution.

Architect Merz tried to persuade the council to move ahead on the project by saying the city's "attitude of laissez-faire is one reason the strip is the way it is now. At least that's what the businessmen down there

The city will seek funding for the project from its $90,000 annual CDBG allocation for the next three fiscal years. Additional funds also may be available under the CDBG special needs, innovative and discretionary fund categories. The CDBG program is administered by HUD The same program financed almost $300,000 of improvements to the Park's Kercheval commercial district during the last three years.

Basic elements of the plans presented by Merz to the council were recommended in a 1980 study commissioned by four Grosse Pointe communities called a Blight Prevention Strategy for Mack Avenue, by Gerald Luedtke and Associates, Inc. The study recommended improvements on the first two blocks of Mack as a catalyst that will "provide an important demarcation between the already blighted portion of Mack and the still viable commercial area within the

UNDER THE basic approaches outlined in Merz' feasibility study, the city would use federal funds to buy and clear land and try to lure a private investor to the area to construct a new building. Pointe Hardware, which currently occupies a nearby building, has indicated an interest in the project, according to manager land, according to Merz, might be a bank branch office or fast food restaurant.

Merz said the location , ould be an excellent site for a Grosse Pointe district court building, if the five Pointes agree to convert their municipal courts to a district system by May of this year, as required in legislation that has been approved in the Senate and waiting action in the

At that location, the court and its visitors "will have a minimum impact on the community," Merz said, He added that it would serve as a magnet for other businesses in the area and would help improve security of the

GOP may retain county seat in new district plan

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Pointes will find themselves part of a 156,000-person district in Wayne County, and may maintain a possibility of electing a Republican commissioner under a plan chosen Tuesday, Jan. 12 by the County Apportionment Committee.

The new District One will combine the Pointes with Harper Woods and a portion of northeast Detroit. It will contain 155,817 people.

The new district will be bounded by Eight Mile on the north and Lake St. Clair on the east. The southern line will follow Alter Road to Mack, east on Mack to Bedford Road, and Bedford Road to the Ford Freeway.

From the Ford, the boundary runs to Whittier, along Whittier to Gratiot, Gratiot to McNichols, and McNichols to Outer Drive.

The boundary will follow Outer Drive to just east of Holy Cross Hospital, where it will follow a service drive, Conner, to Eight Mile.

The district will include 68,350 residents from the Pointes and Harper Woods, along with 87,467 from northeast Detroit-a 56 to 44 percent

Detroit holds 51 percent of the county's population.

TWO INCUMBENT commissioners. Republican Erv Steiner from Grosse Pointe and Democrat Norbert Wisniewski from Harper Woods, live in the new district. Both said they will run for the seat, which Steiner sees as being retained by a Republican.

"If anyone can win in the Grosse Pointes, I hope it will be me." Steiner said, adding the new district has almost twice the population of a state representative district, which is about 85,000 people.

"I think it was better off the way before. It's going to be a lot tougher." Steiner said "Before we had representation from Grosse Pointe."

Steiner didn't leave out the possibility he may try for a state Senate seat, which may open up in November, instead of the county commission

Wisniewski conceded he may be running in a Republican district under the new apportionment plan. but said he would run on his record in the upcoming election.

"I'll be responsible for my errors," he said, "and I'll speak my piece and that's all It's a challenge-a challenge I'm willing to take on Wisniewski said the new size of the district would make a commissioner's job more difficult.

"When I had fewer people, I could reach them personally," he said. Now I have to reach more people. My job has become much more diffi-He said the tag "part-time" would become less applicable to the 15 commissioners taking seats in No-

Former Pointe representative to the Wayne County Charter Commission Barbara Gattorn said she hasn't decided whether to run for the commission vet

The reapportionment vote was forced when the State Court of Appeals failed to grant a 30-day extention of the deadline that the commission had requested the week before.

As late as the day before the vote, Wayne County Clerk and chairman of the commission James Killeen said he had been in contact with the state court administrator's office, which had told him the Appeals Court had yet to turn down any request for an extension.

The spectre of a fourth reapportionment plan Killeen hinted may be presented to the Commission failed to appear, and the plan drawn up by Hubert Holley, Democratic appointee to the commission, was adopted unanimously at a meeting that lasted less than 10 minutes, according to published reports.

The new 15-member Board of Commissioners is one of several reforms mandated when voters adopted a new county charter last November. Under state law, the districts are to be as equal as possible in population, contiguous, as compact as possible and all racial minorities must be fairly represented.

Commissioner tries to stop road union

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Wayne County Commissioner George Killeen plans to start action today, Jan. 21, to remove two members of the Road Commission governing board who voted to unionize.

Killeen said Monday he would begin action before the Board of Commissioners aimed at removing chairman Michael Berry and Grace Hampton from the Road Commission governing board. The two voted to set up a bargaining committee and approved a tentative contract guaranteeing for six years jobs, salaries and fringe benefits for 74 Road Commission supervisors and department heads.

Action before the board is the first step in removal, Killeen said. Road Commission members will be given time to answer the charges made against them before the Board of Commissioners.

The only other time the process was used, the Road Commission failed to reply, and the removal proceeding died, Killeen said. But, this time he said the intense scrutiny the unionization action has brought to the Road Commission will force a reply from it.

A TEMPORARY restraining order was issued Jan. 13 by Wayne County Circuit Judge Harold Hood blocking a ratification vote on the contract.

"It was very important the papers were served before the ratification vote," Killeen said, likening the restraining order to "putting out the fire before it got started.

Meanwhile, a lawsuit filed by State Sen. John Hertel, D-Harper Woods, the president and vice-president of the county Charter Commission and Killeen is scheduled to be heard next Thursday, Jan. 28. before Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Dunn.

Dunn will be asked to rule on the (Continued on Page 4A)

From the drawing room to the showroom is a way of life for automotive design genius Gordon Buehrig, 77, who's seen (below), with a clay model of his latest work, the $130,000 limited edition "Buehrig." Only 50 of the cars will be assembled. Admiring the "Buehrig" at the opening of the Auto Show at Cobo Hall last Saturday (above) were Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and first "Buehrig" owner and classic car collector Richard Kughn. Buehrig began designing automobiles in 1924, working on such four wheel classics as the Cord, Duesenberg, Auburn and Stutz.

A Star Is Born

New 'Buchrig' is destined to become a classic

By Tom Greenwood

Even while it's standing still, you get the feeling of motion. Long, low and lean, it represents a marriage between classical designs of the past and today's high technology.

"It" is the Buehrig, a limited edition, $130,000 automobile designed by and named for automotive genius Gordon M. Buehrig, of Grosse Pointe. Known by many as the father of automotive design, Buehrig's background encompasses the legends of the road the Auburn, Stutz, Duesenberg and

"Yes, I'm pretty happy with it," said Buehrig, with a small smile. "It's the best thing I've designed since I was 75." Buehrig is now 77.

Growing up in a small town in Illinois, Buehrig fell in love with automobiles because of his dislike of

"Everyone had horses back home, and I never liked them," he said. "Only a couple of families had autos, and I was fascinated by them. I'm lucky because my boyhood love grew into my adult vocation.'

Buehrig's design career began in 1924 when he joined the Gotfredson Body Company in Wayne. In 1927 he was drafting for Packard and then moved on to General Motors. When he was 24, he became Chief Body Designer for Stutz, then held the same position at Duesenberg one year Buehrig designed the Cord during the 1930s and by the end of World War II was on the design team at Studebaker. The 1950s found him as the body engineer at Lincoln-Mercury. He officially retired in 1965.

Gordon credits his wife Katheryn with giving him the inspiration for the "Buehrig."

"I was the inventor of the 'T' roof used on the Corvette and sold the patent to GM," said Buehrig. "And my wife and I decieded to buy one. "We loved the Corvette (the personalized license plates say 'My Top'), but we couldn't use it for long trips because you can't store any luggage.

Since this is the Motor City (everybody get a grip!), the Auto Show is always a big deal, A big deal at this year's big deal was, naturally enough, the "Buehrig," designed by Grosse Pointer Gordon Buehrig.

While the car drew large crowds, it also drew a large cross section of comments. Quoted more or less verbatim are the following conversational tidbits overheard at the Buchrig

"Candy apple red and cranberry.

"What is it?"

What fabulous colors!' "Sure hate those colors."

"It says this car was designed by the same guy that designed the Duesenberg, Stutz, Auburn and Cord."

"Designed the what?" "Since these two cars are $130,000 each, do you think they'd let have both for $240,000?"

Frigid cold

While Grosse Pointe public works departments are responsible for plowing sidewalks and some thoroughfares, it is the task of the Wayne County Road Commission to remove snow from Mack Avenue, and parts of Jefferson, Lakeshore and Moross

The frigid weather has kept Joseph's Service Center in Grosse Pointe Woods busy rescuing stalled cars. Owner Rose Joseph reported Monday her two tow trucks were still on the road. "Right now, there's at least a three or four hour wait,"

When Grosse Pointe schools closed down Monday, Jan. 11, it was the first time in anyone's memory that the system shut down because of cold weather. A spokesman said the schools reported no heating problems the next day, but North High School's Community Arts Performing Arts Center suffered some water damage when water pipes froze.

Drawing large crowds and bringing back memories of a bygone era, this classic Duesenberg is on display at the auto show running through this Sunday at Cobo Hall. Gordon Buehrig, whose limited edition "Buehrig" is also on display at the show, worked as Chief Body Designer at Duesenberg when this 1929 model rolled off the assembly line ing around with the idea."

The "idea" became reality after Buehrig showed a clay model of his Corvette-inspired "Buehrig" to antique auto collector Richard Kughn, who decided to finance the car and purchased the first "Buehrig" assembled.

Weighing in at 3,500 pounds, the "Buehrig" encompasses a 120 inch wheelbase, and sports a 350 cubic inch GM V-8 engine. The auto is designed along clean, simple, classic lines with emphasis on the flowing, low slung curved fenders that merge into the rocker panels.

Standard equipment includes hand rubbed body finish, hand pinstriping, stereo radio with Dolby sound, signature hubcaps, power brakes, steering, windows, antenna and side mirrors.

Other "goodies" include a fancy tool kit in a case tailored to fit over the fenders and protect them; a shop coat with the owner's initials on the front and the name "Buehrig" on the back; a portable emergency CB radio that works off the cigarette lighter and a locking compartment behind the luggage area where the roof panels can be stored to discourage thieves.

Only 50 of the autos will be assembled, all in the Michigan area.

"It's a good show car," said Buchrig. "It really jumps out at you."

Is it his favorite?

"Not really, I don't have any favorites, although most people assume the Cord was the love of my life," said Buehrig. "The Cord was a good idea at the wrong time. It came out in the middle of the depression and even then the lowest priced model sold for $2,100. Caddys went for $1,800 and Buicks were $900.

"The earlier designed Cords also had radiator and transmission prob lems. By the time we straightened it all out, we had a pretty nice car. The problem was they were high priced and small. The company went under in 1937, partially because of the depression."

Buehrig estimates a well restored Cord today would be worth at least $55-60,000.

Buehrig also hopes his latest creation will be worth a lot of money someday. "We haven't received too many orders so far," he said. "But the interest is there. You're not just purchasing an automobile. It's a piece of art that will appreciate in value over the years. After the initial 50 cars are sold, that'll be all for this car"

Two "Buehrig's" are currently on display at the Auto Show at Cobo Hall, scheduled to run until this Sunday, Jan. 24

Why Be Examined By An Ophthalmologist?

An ophthalmologist has had many years of training in the recognition and treatment of all kinds of vision problems, including those caused by diseases of the body as a whole. For example, it is not uncommon for an ophthalmologist to recognize untreated diabetes, high blood pressure, or the visual type migraine. And, if glaucoma is suspected, follow-up tests are required that only an ophthalmologist can perform.

So there's more to examining eyes than testing for glasses. But, if he finds that you need them, an ophthalmologist will give you a lens prescription to take to a reliable optical company of your choice.

Road Commission union vote

legality of the tentative contract which the plaintiffs claim violates conditions of the new charter and the statute establishing that charter by trying to circumvent authority allowed the new county executive in those provisions

Under the new charter, which goes into effect January, 1983, the county executive officer will have the power to "supervise, coordinate, direct and control all county facilities, operations and functions except as otherwise provided by law."

In addition, the executive officer will coordinate the project activities of the departments of Drain Commission, Road Commission and Public

Livonia mayor Edward McNamara, an unannounced candidate for the executive seat, called the unionization action by the Road Commission "anfair to the tax-payers, unethical and illegal.'

According to McNamara, the bargaining committee, the Association of County Road Commission Administrators, is not affiliated with any other union.

"NO OTHER management personnel in Wayne County have formed a unior or belong to a union," he said, 'and I am advised that their employment contracts forbid such a ruse."

Each job covered by the new contract would continue pay of more than $35,000. The highest salary exceeds $60,000, excluding fringe bene-

Commissioner Erv Steiner said "I think the people who looked into the legality (the union) knew it was

"I think the people who initiated the law suit are doing it for personal reasons," Steiner added.

Steiner said that other county employes have unions, including supervisors and lawyers, and the proposed Road Commission union is being singled out for vindictive reasons.

"They don't even give the Road Commission a chance to explain," Steiner said, adding the plaintiffs were "going off with half the facts without talking to the other unions."

The union, Steiner said, would do little to limit the powers of the county executive, since those powers had not been completely spelled out.

"The powers (of the executive) have not been stipulated," he said. "The charter is a bad charter. I told you before they missed the boat. They missed the boat again." Steiner reserved judgment on any removal action until he has heard all said, noting the members of the Road Commission governing board were experienced people who had served for years in their positions.

"Never to my knowledge has there been action by the full Board to remove any member of the Road Commission," Steiner said, adding allegations had been made through the media that the Road Commission ignored.

"I don't think I would answer allegations in the newspaper," he said.

Public Information Director Lou Sugo said last week the action was taken to prevent a new county executive from making wholesale changes in personnel or summary dismissals of current employes.

Sugo admitted there will be drastic changes under the new charter, but said the tentative contract would guarantee wages and benefits at their present levels.

He also called the charge the union will block reforms in the Road Commission "patently ridiculous on the face of it."

Concurrent with the suit is a request by Board of Commissioners Chairman Samuel Turner that the Road Commission halt further implementation of the agreement until after the County Board of Labor Relations reviews the proposed contract and reports to the Board.

Although the Road Commission operates semi-autonomously with its own separate budget, members of the governing board are appointed by the full Board of Commissioners

For Senior Citizens-

By Marian Trainor

Grosse Pointe and neighboring St. Clair Shores have been both home and a concern of lively, involved Irene Sutton all of her

She was born in Grosse Pointe Shores on the site of the present Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, While she was still a young child, her family moved to St. Clair Shores where she grew up. Her roots are very deep there. Brys Drive was named for her father. Herman Brys Park was named for her brother who was a St. Clair Shores municipal judge for 35

Irene now lives in a home her husband built in St. Clair Shores 42 years ago. She raised three sons and two daughters there. Every weekend she entertains some of her 19 grandchildren who love to visit and enjoy Grandma's excellent cooking. Her menu features such homemade delicacies as plum pudding and home-canned produce from her husband's garden plot. When they leave, the grandchildren take with them some of these home produced goodies to supplement college fare. Recently the Suttons celebrated their 50th anniversary there.

Mr. Sutton is also locally oriented. He owned and operated the Sutton Modernization Company in this area until his retirement. The company is now run by one of his sons.

An active person, Irene found time to initiate programs for senior citizens both in St. Clair Shores and Grosse Pointe Woods.

She first became interested in volunteer work as a member of the Potter's Club, an organization of executive women who gathered for socializing and volunteer projects. Among the many services the women sponsored was a welcome teach for new residents in St. Clair Shores and Ruth Alden's Dress Drive.

THE DRESS drive was a natural for Irene. An accomplished seamstress, she taught dressmaking and millinery adult education classes and was a regular on the Lady of Charm television shows which were popular a few years back. Irene's forte was millinery and many a viewer proudly wore the creations constructed under Irene's expert guidance on that show. It was Irene's television segment that won her an invitation into the Potter's club where she rose to be International Chairman before she became inactive due to the time needed for other projects. She still proudly displays the plaque presented to her for 25 years of service in that organization.

One of the projects in which she became involved and to which she devoted much energy and work was a recreation program for older residents of St. Clair Shores. Starting with a few members, she saw the program grow to almost 800 participants before she retired 18 years later. One of her great satisfactions is the knowledge that she built the program into one that was at that time deemed the best in the state.

Irene's organizing expertise was called into play again when she was voted president of the Grosse Pointe Woods Recreational program. In that capacity she launched such activities as bowling, exercise classes, card games and other activities that brought older people together to enjoy the company of their peers in a relaxed setting. No longer president, Irene now plans trips for the members who meet every first and third Thursday at North High School. The city of Grosse Pointe Woods pays for the bus that takes members on local outings such as a recent trip made to the Henry Ford Museum. Longer trips, such as the upcoming jaunt to Bermuda are paid by the members themselves.

With these accomplishments behind her, Irene should be ready to rest on her laurels.

"But that is not for me," she declares. "I like to be active and working with people."

With this attitude, it is not surprising that Irene has two projects in mind now which she hopes to implement. She knows that neither one of them will be easily accomplished, but that doesn't deter her. Enthusiastically and persistently, she is prepared to tackle them both.

One of them is convincing the St. Clair Shores Commission to institute a "Dial-A-Ride" service for senior citizens. Although Irene has tried to convince the commission of the need for this service on previous occasions without success, she is going back to plead her case again.

"HOPEFULLY," Irene says
"they will listen this time. This convenience is so much needed. Older people need to get out of the house and many of them are without any means of transportation. They need the new vistas that the recreation center can open for them. Some of them just need a means of getting to the store to do their shopping or to visit the doctor or dentist, This lack of transportation is a real concern."

Irene speaks from the heart when she talks of what this service could mean to older people who are isolated because they have no way of getting to the places they need to go. But she has another talent going for her. She is very adept at presenting a case. She became well versed in effective speaking as a member of the Toastmasters Club, an organization whose members meet twice a month to fine-tune their public speaking and also to learn parliamentary procedure to the letter. At the meetings each member of the group is required to give a threeminute speech on an assigned

"I learned so much from my experience as a member of Toastmasters that speaking to groups and convincing them of the worthiness of a project comes naturally to me," Irene commented.

The second project that is claiming Irene's interest and energy is one that is not firmly formulated but one to which she is firmly dedicated.

She wants to form an organization for senior citizens based somewhat on the same formula that has made Junior Achievement for young people so successful. She would like to see groups of older people gather together to decide on a product they would like to work on, devise a marketing scheme and operate under the same proceedures as any small business.

She doesn't see this merely as a money making or craft project, although it could make money if the participants were interested in making it so.

"So many older people do need extra money and this would be one way of realizing it," Irene said. "Those who don't need the money could donate it to charity.

"But I do think that many older people enjoy accomplishing something that is worth money in the marketplace," Irene went on. "I know of a group of older men in Florida who bag groceries in stores and donate their earnings to charity because they couldn't take total retirement."

Beyond the financial rewards, Irene sees these groups as a source of friendship based on common interests. For that reason she thinks the groups should be kept small so that the members can share social experiences as well, such as dinners or just sitting and visiting.

"I see them as becoming very good friends and perhaps establishing almost a surrogate family relationship where they would be able to depend on each other in times of need.

To achieve this unity, Irene thinks that it would have to be an activity of a group already organized. "For instance," said, the Neighborhood Club might make it one of this activities."

Another necessity is money to get the projects started. Irene feels that if each organization would donate just $20 seed money to buy materials to get the projects rolling, the group could put back some of the money into the business for next year's project. Irene believes that to keep it interesting and challenging, the projects should be new each year. She also believes that it doesn't have to be something created or built by hand. "It might be a play which would be fun to do," she said, "or a concert. Whatever the group feels it would like to do for fun and profit would be

Irene believes in the feasability of her plan. She sees it as spreading from one organization to another as each one sponsors its own group until, like Junior Achievement, it spreads from city to state and eventually becomes nationwide.

It is a big, ambitious plan, but if it can be accomplished, Irene is the lady who can do it. She has an excellent track record.

Park police

grab escapee
An escapee from the Michigan
Correctional System was arrested and returned to prison Friday, Jan. 8, as the result of "excellent police work" by two Park patrolmen, according to Sgt. William Furtaw.

The prisoner, Larry Benson, 19, of Detroit, was spotted along with three other men standing in the alley behind Union Street bar on Mack Avenue at about closing time Jan. 8, by officers Eugene Adamczyk and Norman Gangola who were on routine patrol.

When the two officers approached the group of men they quickly disbanded and police became suspicious, according to reports. They pursued Benson for questioning and identified him as an escapee from state prison, where he was serving a sentence for armed robbery.

'Romantic Comedy' opens at Fries

Bernard Stade's "Romantic Comedy" will be the next production of the Grosse Pointe Theater as part of its 34th season of plays presented at the Fries Auditorium of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road.

"Romantic Comedy" begins a twoweek run Wednesday, Jan. 27. Performances are scheduled for Thursday through Sunday, Jan. 28 through 31. and Wednesday through Saturday, Feb. 3 through 6. Curtain time is

The author of two of America's most popular hits, "Same Time, Next Year" and "Tribute," Bernard Slade has fashioned a light-hearted look at the collaboration of a famous playwright and his oddball, but attractive, protege. Successful in their business collaboration, their personal lives go through a series of comical ups and downs as they hurl witty brickbats at each other and the friends and enemies who surround them.

Love triumphs, naturally, because opposites attract. This fast paced Broadway success puts the hero and heroine through the entire gamut of hilarious shenanigans that have made Bernard Slade's name synonymous with delightful comic theater.

Mike Edick, of Brys Drive, plays the love-struck playwright, and Elizabeth McKenzie, of Lakepointe Avenue, essays the role of his protege who wins him. Among their friends are Bob Montgomery, of Washington Avenue, Liz Endicott, of Stratton Place, Michele Karl, of St. Clair Avenue, and Gigi Gaggini.

Directed by Carolyn Kaump and produced by Lucy Rea, the technical staff for the production includes Gwenn Samuel, of Moran Road, set decorator; Jim Rodgers, of Jefferson Avenue, technical director; Mae Gallagher, of Hampton Road, properties; Don Lockwood, of Notre Dame Road, sound; Jean Bowles, of Hampton Road, costumes; and Ruth Ellen Mayhall, of Villa Lane, makeup.

Completing the backstage crew who oversee the successful running of "Romantic Comedy" are Stage Manager Emma Jean Evans, Set Designer Tom Stein, and Lighting Designer Francis Dall'Acqua.

Tickets and reservations may be ordered by calling the Grosse Pointe Theater box office at 881-4004.

Students will begin the course selection procedure on Monday, Feb. 8.

The staff of Grosse Pointe North High School has planned a special evening orientation program for students who will be freshmen in September on Jan. 27 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The program will emphasize curriculum options available, with each department head presenting the courses open to ninth graders and the appropriate sequences that follow. After the auditorium portion, students and their parents are invited to tour the building to see the facilities.

The school's program of studies has been mailed home to eighth graders now attending Brownell and Parcells schools. Students currently attending other schools may request a booklet during the orientation evening.

Parents receive special mailing

Point spreads won't be the only thing computed on "Super Saturday."

Teams of top math students from 46 area high schools, including North High, South High and University Liggett will be calculating to capture "Computer Bowl V," which kicks off Jan. 23 in the University of Detroit's student center on its McNichols campus.

The annual math computer contest, designed by U of D mathematics professors, challenges a four member team from each high school to solve four complex math problems within three hours on the University's com-

Rounds of preliminary competition will be held at 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., Jan. 23, 30 and 31. The teams that score the highest in accuracy, speed and efficient use of the computer during the preliminary rounds will return to U of D for the championship playoff, Sunday, Feb. 14. Five runner-up teams also will be invited back for the finals.

Dr. Michael Skaff, a U of D professor and a co-ordinator of the contest, said the computer bowl is modeled after college-level competition.

"It's an intense competition, and one of the few outlets for high school teams to compete intellectually," he said. "Since all of the participating schools have very good math and computer programs, winning carries considerable prestige.

"The students selected to compete are truly the 'cream of the crop': high aptitude students who train hard to develop their abilities. In addition to taking math and computer science classes, many of them spend time preparing after school to increase their speed and refine their team work," Skaff said.

The winning school will receive a $500 scholarship to U of D, a team trophy and individual trophies for team members. Team trophies also will be presented to each school making the final rounds. Certificates will be awarded to each participating stu-

The defending champion from last year's contest is Detroit Country Day High School. Previous high school winners of the computer bowl include Lakeland (1980) and Trenton (1979 and 1978).

Schools from the City of Windsor, as well as Livingston, Macomb, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne counties will compete in the contest

Sports News

Students participating from South High School will be Aaron Friedman, Dave Ryan, Greg Sommerville and Vic Valkman. University Liggett students include John Martin, Bob Mac-Kethan, Mark McKinnon and Rob Ryan. North High School has not yet selected its team members for the Computer Bowl.

North's Judson is speaker

Grosse Pointe North High School music teacher Nathan Judson will speak at the 37th Annual Midwestern Conference on School Vocal and Instrumental Music at the University of Michigan Jan. 21 to 23.

Co-sponsorship of the conference is shared among the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association (MSBOA); Michigan Music Educator's Association (MMEA); Michigan School Vocal Association (MSVA); American String Teacher's Association (ASTA); and The University of Michigan School of Music.

This year's Midwestern Conference will open with a concert by the United States Air Force Band, Colonel Arnald D. Gabriel, conductor, Thursday, Jan. 21, at 8 p.m. in Hill Auditorium. It will include a number of special interest sessions, clinics, and performances by ensembles spanning the elementary, junior high, senior high and university levels.

Judson, Grosse Pointe North's Director of Instrumental Music, will present a session titled "Band for the Orchestral or Choral Conductor" on Saturday, Jan. 23, at 3 p.m.

Judson is in his 14th year of teaching at North, his 25th year in public schools, having taught previously in the high schools. He has served as an adjudicator in state band and orchestra festivals and solo and ensemble festivals. Judson also has held several state level offices in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Associa-

The conference lists a total of 20 cencerts, 10 panel presentations, and 44 nationally-known clinicians in its two-day program.

Overall, 8.5 percent of the dead in this country are cremated. That's not true of certain trend-setting areas such as California's Marin County just north of San Francisco, however. There, it's 50 percent.

Tax hike may be necessary;

By William R. Bryant, Jr. State Representative

The "State of the State" has been delivered by Governor Milliken for the 14th and last A somber message, it appropriately encouraged what I would call a realistic optimism in the midst of major problems facing the economy of the state.

The Governor correctly re-

minded the people the cutbacks in state expenditures have been severe to date, and more cuts may be unavoidable. We are spending nearly four percent less than two years ago, 24 percent less in real dollars.

The Governor said he is hopeful we can get through the year with no tax increase. While I totally agree as to the "hope," I am doubtful that is the reality.

I told the press after Milliken's speech that if the revenues are down so severely that we are $300 million or more out of balance, I don't see how we could responsibly cut the budget by that much or more. Even that much would be incredibly severe, and would cripple our education systems

I say this only to try to keep the minds of people open, to wait some weeks for better data, so we do not irresponsibly tell people it is definitely possible to be responsible and to totally dismiss any kind of even temporary tax increase.

The first kinds of taxes that would be looked at are the socalled nuisance taxes, primarily the cigarette tax.

But, I feel compelled to say I would be very uncomfortable excluding the possible necessity to look at a small, temporary, sixmonth, from April to September, increase in the income tax. I think it is safe to say that there will not be a permanent increase in the income tax, and I would strongly oppose any such permanent increase.

SIGN OF THE MERMAID: A GROSSE POINTE TRADITION NEW TO THE VILLAGE

by Bernadette Roberts

The original Sign of the Mermaid building was located at 1014 Jefferson in Detroit, now the site of Michigan Bell Telephone.

New location at 16844 Kercheval in-the-village before the complete Williamsburg style renovation.

. The Sign of the Mermaid has had a fascinating evolution from a London book store to one of the Pointe's finest shops.

In the late 1800's a young English woman opened a bookshop in London, England and named it The Sign of the Mermaid. This name was chosen because it was well known that poets and writers, as well as assorted intellectuals, frequented the London tavern known as the Mermaid and often gathered under its sign in front, to discuss liter-

At the turn of the 20th century The Sign of the Mermaid was brought to Detroit as an elegant bookstore and located at 1014 Jefferson Ave. This building later housed the Stockholm Restaurant, the Playboy Club and is now the site of Michigan Bell Telephone offices. 1937 brought the Sign of the Mermaid to the "Lower Hill" near the Punch and Judy Theatre. Lovely and unusual gifts began to appear on the shelves along with the books.

In 1939 The Sign of the Mermaid moved to 75 Kercheval Ave., where she served the Grosse Pointe Community for over 40 years. Imported china, cut crystal, and elegant silver were added to the already impressive gift

Now the Mermaid resides in the Village at 16844 Kercheval, continuing the same exceptional service to our fine neighborhood.

The now elegant 16844 Kercheval Avenue entrance rich in millwork detailings, alive with tradition and colonial warmth.

Today's shop was designed by Roger and Lucy Vesely, the shop's owners. The renovation of the building in Georgian Style was done by the V-K Corporation, a Grosse Pointe firm. All interior pieces, cabinets and cases were made or installed by members of the community.

Although the Sign of the Mermaid has a new home. her traditions remain the same. Among these traditions are personalized service and quality, tasteful merchandise. Special services include bridal registry, executive gifts. men's gifts, decorating service, hand engraving, baby gifts, and a new addition to the Mermaid, the Back Door , for all your paper and party needs, gift wrap and cards.

The Back Door of the Sign of the Mermaid has it all. Nancy Farrel the store's buyer, promises top value. She is dedicated to the idea that every item in the shop, no matter the price range, will represent the best possible value for the dollar. She shops as carefully as you do. She has searched the markets for the finest quality, most unique items available for every occasion, in every price class, and for every age group. At the Sign of the Mermaid they are very conscious of children's needs. They ofter a place where any child searching for that special gift for a friend can find it and give it with pride without spending his or her full month's allowance.

The Sign of the Mermaid has tried to be everything possible to the Grosse Pointes, to fill all its needs and maintain its integrity.

New district looks good

The Pointes appear to have been fairly well treated in the reapportionment for the new and smaller Wayne County Board of Commissioners approved last week by the county Apportionment

The Pointes, which currently make up the 1st District, will become a part of the larger 1st District which will also include Harper Woods and parts of northeast Detroit. While the population of the new district is estimated at about 155,817 it still has a possibility of electing a Republican. As a consequence, incumbent GOP Commissioner Erv Steiner is planning to run for reelection but so is Democrat Norbert Wisniewski who lives in the Harper Woods part of the new district and presently represents the 2nd District.

REGARDLESS OF what happens in the election next November, the Pointes obviously will carry less influence in a larger 1st District than they do now. Yet the new lines drawn last week still provide a district that is much fairer to the predominantly Republican Pointes than the first plan drafted for the new board of commissioners that will take office next January.

The first plan submitted by the Apportionment Commission staff would have made the Pointes a minor part of a district that encompassed a larger portion of northeast Detroit than in the plan finally adopted, and probably would have assured the election of a Democratic com-

In fact, the new plan, originally submitted by Hubert Holley, a black Democrat from Detroit on the Apportionment Commission, won approval because it not only would give blacks a chance to elect six of the 15 new commissioners but also would offer the Republicans a good chance at two seats as a minimum. The original staff plan would have assured blacks only four or five seats on the board, and would have offered the Republicans little chance of winning any districts. The Republicans currently hold only two other districts beside Grosse Pointe, the 19th, held by Mary E. Dumas, and the 22nd occupied by William

The Detroit Free Press said it was "an unlikely coalition of black Detroit Democrats and outcounty white Republicans" who prevailed when the Apportionment Commission adopted the new districting plan. It also claimed that the new plan would "end the longtime dominance of white, out-county Democrats" on the board. That prediction may well come true,

The apportionment commission is chaired by County Clerk James Killeen, a Democrat, and includes, under law, County Prosecutor William Cahalan and County Treasurer Raymond Wojotwicz, both Democrats, as well as Democratic appointee Holley and GOP appointee Michael Legg of Livonia. So with the Republicans outnumbered four to one, it is clear the Republican Pointes were lucky to have come out as well as they did.

WITH DETROIT having 56 percent of the population of the new 1st District, some people may think the Democrats are likely to win. It is true the Pointes and Harper Woods together muster only 68,350 against the 87,467 in the Detroit part of the district. But voters in the Pointes traditionally turn out in larger proportions than they do in the city and, furthermore, there are a few Republicans in northeast Detroit. At worst, the seat appears to be up for grabs.

Another point might be made. The Democrats are going to control the new board as they do most of the elected offices in the county. So it might be argued that an active Democrat might be able to do more for Pointe voters than a less active Republican and thus might become an acceptable candidate even in this GOP stronghold. That's almost heresy but there just might be a grain of truth in it.

He's quitting while he's ahead

In saying that Michigan in 1982 faces its "most offered some optimism in these words: difficult year ever," Gov. Milliken once again was merely telling the people of this state the simple truth about the economic prospects ahead. He did hold out some hope, however, when he said, "We have the opportunity not only for recovery but also for a sustained period of economic resur-

That economic resurgence, however, will depend more on national economic recovery than any other single factor, even if the UAW and the major auto manufacturers agree on a program of cutting costs and passing along the savings to automobile purchasers. Unless employment perks up and economic activity increases, not enough people will have sufficient funds to buy new cars even at the lower prices we're being promised.

While the governor said he hoped the state could avoid any general increase in taxes, some observers, including Rep. William Bryant, Jr., of Grosse Pointe, minority leader of the House, feel that some increase in nuisance taxes may be required. That feeling stems from the opinion that social services and education already have been cut about as much as they possibly can be and cannot be slashed further to balance the budget.

In his remarks at the opening of the 1982 legislative session, Bryant emphasized the responsibility of state government to provide essential human services, and expressed hope the two parties would find common ground to do so in a year of scarce resources. But he also

"THE CLIMATE for hope and optimism for Michigan's future is ours to provide. The stakes are too great for gambles or squabbles, the challenges too great for either political party to meet alone. The people of Michigan are ready to do what must be done to make 1982 the beginning of a new industrial revolution in Michigan. The people of Michigan, the arsenal of democracy, can and will outthink, outwork and outproduce, in peaceful competition, any who dare to chal-

The governor, as was appropriate in a recession year, did not propose costly new programs, but did suggest several minor ones, including a proposal for a three-year trial period for mandatory seat belt use by front seat occupants of automobiles in Michigan, European and Canadian experience with such laws indicate they help save lives even though some drivers regard them as an unwarranted government invasion of their rights, if not their privacy.

In his 14th and last State of the State message, the governor obviously had to address the harsh realities which are in evidence on every hand. Yet in spite of the recession which is reaching depression levels in this state, he's still quitting while he's ahead, as most true champions do. He's ahead because of the service and leadership he has provided to this state as well as the compassion he has expressed for the less fortunate through the social programs his administration has put into effect over the years.

Introducing an underdog

State Senator Edward C. Pierce, a general practitioner from Ann Arbor who has been diagnosing the state's economic ills since he became a state legislator in 1979, visited the Grosse Pointe News office the other day during his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

A big, intense but friendly man, Pierce acknowledges that he is an underdog in a race which many expect to be dominated by betterknown and better-financed political personalities. Yet he feels that his scientific background as applied to government enables him to analyze problems and programs better than many of his competitors, and that during the campaign the public will come to appreciate the qualities he offers Michigan voters.

He believes the governor can and should serve at least three major functions: to run the state government well, to serve as a conciliator between the competing forces in the state and to help ease tensions between Detroit and its

He thinks the governor should set the tone for the state's delivery of services to the people through his selection of department heads and other appointees. He says as governor he could plug weaknesses in the state's economy and reminded us he had co-authored the controversial reforms in workmen's compensation recently enacted into law.

PIERCE PRACTICED family medicine for 18 years and in 1968 started a community medical center to provide quality care at low cost for needy Ann Arbor residents. He believes this background of managing an office, meeting a payroll and providing people with high-quality services at low cost enables hom to understand the problems of the average citizen.

While he acknowledges that Michigan faces many problems, he reminded us that the state's economy depends to a large degree on the U.S. economy. But he thinks the governor could help overcome some of the factors that make Michigan noncompetitive on pricing in many areas. He sees the prospect for improvement in the use of the state's vast timber resources, through expanding the paper industry, for example. And he sees Michigan's ample water supply and trained manpower as additional resources to be utilized in diversifying the state's industry so that it is no longer so reliant on automobile manufacturing.

Pierce describes himself as a "humane pragmatist" who would be a coalition builder and a thoughtful, practical and humane administrator. He appears to be seeking support in the middle of the road in both parties because he describes himself in his literature as "an independent thinker" who believes "the time for clinging to a narrow political philosophy is at an end."

The Ann Arbor senator sees Rep. Jim Blanchard as his major foe in the race for the Democratic nomination and acknowledges that the Pleasant Ridge congressman is the choice of the state's Democratic leaders and the UAW. But he sees no difference between the party and the UAW, thus joining the critics who think the union dominates the party in Michigan.

He also criticizes Blanchard on eight key votes which he does not believe were good for Michigan and on which Blanchard parted company from a majority of the Michigan Democratic delegation in congress. They range from votes on tax cuts which Pierce would have opposed to votes to prohibit funds for the neutron bomb and to delete funds for the MX missile development which Pierce would have favored.

Pierce, indeed, is an underdog and he runs the risk of seeing his own arguments against Blanchard used by Republicans in both the primary and in the fall if Blanchard captures the nomination. Yet the doctor's views do help emphasize important issues during the early campaign for governor and he might even surprise his party leaders in the 1982 primary. And while the Republican Pointes seldom give Democrats strong support, the fact Pierce campaigned here points up his efforts to win backing outside of traditional Democratic strongholds.

News ranks as 'fishwrapping'

To the Editor:

A couple of years ago a Detroit magazine ran a critique of suburban newspapers. In it the Grosse Pointe News was rated "fish wrappings," its lowest rating, due primarily to its social orientation rather than a credible report of what is really happening.

Today that rating is still well deserved, despite a change in editorial controls. There have been no substantive changes in approach to hard news. Reporting on city government is superficial and one-sided, and accountability of city leaders and workers is conspicuous by its absence.

That, of course, may fit the criterion of an editorial demand "not to make waves." It has been said by staffers in guarded moments that "we provide what the community wants."

Therefore, I suggest you poll your readership on what it looks for in a community newspaper. If your response is "more of the same" or a non-response, the community will have what it demands, and deserves.

On the other hand, if there is concern over more responsible reporting, we who want credible accounts and accountability of our officials may get what we demand, and deserve.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

The opening night performance of "Evita," the Tony Award winning musical based on the life of Eva Peron, Saturday, Feb. 27, at Detroit's Masonic Temple will be a benefit, proceeds earmarked to send Wayne State Uni-versity's Symphonic Band on a concert tour of the People's Republic of China early this summer.

The invitation to present the tour came from the All-China Youth Federation. The WSU Band is the second university band to be so invited from the United States, and will perform between June 15 and 30 in Shanghai, Guilin, Guang Zhou and twice in Beijing (including once in the Great Hall).

But first the WSU Band has to get to China . . . and once there, has to have the wherewithal to get around China . . . and so there's more than a little "traveling music" fund raising going on all over town. The 50 band members, including a pair of Pointers, John Miller (trombone) and Patrick Haddad (clarinet/saxophone), are doing their individual bits. Financing is being sought from private sources and foundations.

And there'll be benefits, like the "Evita" opening night. That's a biggie; civic, corporate, community and university leaders attended a luncheon at WSU's McGregor Memorial Conference Center early this month to kick off ticket sales. Honorary chairmen of the event are The Honorable William G. Milliken, The Honorable Coleman A. Young, The Honorable Donald W. Riegle Jr. and The Honorable Carl M. Levin.

Serving on the benefit committee, co-chaired by Paul and Sue Nine, Dick and Jodie Kughn and Joe and Laurie Nederlander, are members of the WSU Board of Governors and Alumni Association, the Anthony Wayne Society, the Wayne State Fund, Friends of Music, Hilberry Understudies, Women of Wayne, branches of the university community and community representatives.

Among them are several Grosse Pointe residents, including three Fords, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. II and William Clay, plus The Honorable and Mrs. G. Mennen Williams who toured the People's Republic last fall with a group from the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Tickets for the "Evita" opening are $100 per person, which includes a post-performance reception with the cast, and $50 per person. Contributions are tax deducti-ble. Ticket information may be obtained by calling 577-

Detroit Concert Band releases pair of 'Gems'

With the unqualified success of its 10-volume "Sousa American Bicentennial Collection" firmly established, the Detroit Concert Band, headquartered on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods, under its director, Leonard B. Smith, is proceeding to record and re-lease world-wide additional albums in its new series: "Gems of the Concert Volumes Two and Three in the DCB "Gems" collection have just been is-sued and may be ordered by sending check or money order ($9.10 per al-bum, including sales tax and postage) to Detroit Concert Band, Inc., 20962 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236.

In contrast to the Sousa series, devoted exclusively to the music of a single composer, "Gems" offers a broad variety of composers. Each album contains a complete concert, including instrumental and vocal soloists. The album jackets, each featuring a different-hued gem, provide informative program notes.

Selections on Volume Two range from the Overture to "Die Fleder-maus" to George Gershwins's "S'Wonderful," from Edwin E. Bagley's "National Emblem March" to Georges Bizet's "Ouvre ton Coeur" featuring Imogene Bird, soprano sol-

Volume Three opens with "The Star Spangled Banner" and ranges from Edwin Franko Goldman's "Bugles and Drums" to the Irish folk tune "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms' with Elsie Inselman, mezzo-soprano, as soloist.

Albums in the "Gems of the Concert Band" series, produced under Dr. Smith's direction, were recorded in the Main Auditorium of Detroit's Masonic Temple by H & L Record

The Community LINC By Susie Rohde

The case of the missing LINC has been solved. After numerous phone calls and seemingly endless frustration over many months, our president, Lisa Morreale, finally solved it.

It all began about a year ago when Lisa received a phone call from Thomas Tomkiewicz of Detroit Diesel Allison, a division of General Motors Corporation. He informed her that Detroit Diesel Allison had surplus business machines which had either become obsolete or were in need of repair. These included electric typewriters, calculators, adding machines, projectors and the like. Detroit Diesel Allison wanted to donate all of them to LINC. Need less to say, Lisa was delighted.

MEANWHILE, across town, within the Detroit Public School System, Ed Taylor was faced with the dilemma of finding business machines in need of repair in order to continue to teach skills to students. By a stroke of luck and hard work, Lisa finally linked up with Ed and made an agreement; as a result, students in five schools in Wayne County, as part of their vocational instruction, utilize these machines to learn technical skills by repairing them. Many of the students later seek job positions with companies who are in the business of servicing or repairing machnes.

At the Crockett Vocational Center, located on Mack Avenue next to the Detroit Medical Center, Bob Walker informed LINC that the machines have been extremely helpful in developing technical skills for young people in the community. In order to reduce the cost of paying for parts, the students take parts from other broken machines on hand to fix the one they are currently work-

Solving the case of the missing LINC was just another LINC success in 1981. This LINC benefited the private, public and educational sectors of our community. Our thanks to Lisa for her linking

ANOTHER PROGRAM which recently benefited from LINC was the G.E.D., through which dropouts can obtain their high school diplomas. One G.E.D. program, located at Edmonson Elementary School on West Canfield, was the first recipient of an IBM typewriter repaired by the vocational students at Crockett. In a thank you note to LINC, the principal, Patsy Pantano, said the G.E.D. typing class was thrilled with the new typewriter.

Just recently one of the agencies we serve, Real Center Community Mental Health Service in Wyandotte, had a fire which destroyed its entire facility. Real Center provides an outpatient and aftercare service for about 300 mentally or emotionally impaired people who have been previously hospitalized. It is starting again from scratch and desperately needs business machines, such as a typewriter, calculator and die taphone, plus office furniture: chairs, desks, lamps, file cabinets and tables. LINC was able to fill the center's request for a SAXON copier - which, coincidentally, is the same exact type they had been using. If you can help with a donation, please call the LINC office, 331-6700. Your donation makes a big difference in helping others to help themselves. All donations are tax deductable.

In cooperation with one of our agencies, a program is underway whereby broken appliances such as toasters, hairdryers or vacuum cleaners are repaired. Once repaired, they will then be distributed to agencies who come to us for help.

Help your 'helping' child move into independence

To a child who has just learned to walk, each new day brings fresh opportunities for discovery. And now that the feet are travelling, the child shows a growing desire for indepen-

One of the ways a child learns independence is by imitating parents and siblings, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. The child toddles around the house, "helping." And she begins to explore her clothing — imitating others by pulling off her cap, tugging on shoe laces, pulling off shoes. Every mother who has tied a toddler's shoe laces in a double knot knows that even this is scant protection from the pry-ing, pulling and poking fingers of a persistent child.

Don't let your youngster's apparent determination to join the nearest nudist colony worry you. She is just as interested in exploring her clothes and herself as she is in exploring the rest of her world. Take advantage of her interest to start her on the road to independence.

As you get her ready for her bath. encourage her to help. Untie her shoe laces and loosen them as you say, "Now we'll take off Erin's shoe! We untie it, we pull the laces, and off it comes!" Let the child pull the laces out. Pulling these strings through the little holes is great fun — and good hand-eye training, too.

Soon she can unlace the shoe all by herself. What an accomplishment! Look out, though: as she kicks her feet in excitement that shoe might really fly! Before this happens, show her how to pull it off. Then say: "Now give the shoe to Mommy, please." Get a grip on it before she throws it to see if shoes will fly, or drops it on the floor to find out what kind of noise it makes. And don't forget to say 'Thank you!" when she lets go of it. Socks must come off, too. Push the top down over the child's heal and pull the toe loose. Twitch it and pull it alittle, saying, "YOU pull it off!" When she pulls it off with a flourish, be ready with "Give the sock to Mommy? Thank you!" As you and your toddler go about getting the rest of her clothes off, follow the same procedure. Get the garment part way off and let her finish pulling it off. And talk about what you and she are doing together.

Does all this sound like just play and pretty time-consuming for a busy mother? It is play, granted, but your child is learning important lessons about her clothes and herself, about on and off, about how to balance herself while she pulls off a shoe or sock. She also learns about the characteristics and textures of shoes, shoe laces, socks, shirts, etc.

And how about the lesson on neatness ("Give the shoe to Mommy") and the lesson on politeness (please and thank-you)? All this, plus taking some early steps toward independent

P.S.: A word to the wise: When you buy your toddler a pair of shoes, always buy at least one extra pair of shoe laces. Also: keep some white glue on hand. Eager little hands are hard on shoe lace tips, and there's no-thing more frustrating than trying to push a bushy-tailed shoe lace through a small eyelet when the shoe is on a wriggling foot.

The Growing Child newsletter fol-lows a child's development monthby-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, Ind. 47902. Include your child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Nothing cute about chubby

Friends and family frequently exclaim over a plump baby, calling it "cute" and "chubby." In reality the infants is obese, and may be headed for an obese adulthood and scores of health-related problems that a baby of normal weight will not face.

Why do kids get fat? Science and health writer J.F. Wilkinson says in the January issue of "Families" that genetics and environment are both contributors. Statistically, fat parents are more likely to have fat children.

Overweight in pregnancy also tends to produce heavy babies.

Most importantly, perhaps, children learn their eating habits from their parents; these are reinforced at least three times a day for years.

"Infant-feeding has become a competitive sport in the United States," Wilkinson writes. "The mother who gets her baby on solid food earliest is the neighborhood hero." The fact is babies don't need solids for the first four to six months. The practice of butting them on solids too early may jead to obesity.

To encourage sensible eating habits that will last a lifetime, parents are cautioned against using food as a re-ward or bribe, or insisting that every morsel on the plate be eaten. The years from one to six are crucial in preventing obesity in your children," Wilkinson points out. "They are the years in which the eating habits of a lifetime are formed, and the last years in which you have almost total control over what your child eats."

Older artists offer proof that creativity is ageless

By Margery Byers Smithsonian News Service

Gilbert Stuart painted a portrait of John Adams in 1826, when he was 71. Benjamin West was 81 in 1819 when he executed a self-portrait. Benjamin Franklin invented the bifocal lens when he was in his 70s, and Verdi composed "Otello" when he was 73. "You're only as old as you feel" and

'age is a state of mind' may be hackneyed expressions, but they also are true. Some people are old at 21, others young at 80 - or, as Oliver Wendell Holmes put it: "To be 70 years young is sometimes more hopeful than to be 40 years old."

Thi image of grandpa and grandma doing little but telling stories, rocking and knitting sweaters is less valid now than ever before. For generations many members of the "graying" population have rightly rebelled against these stereotypes. Many more—in large part, because there really are many more of them—are doing so today. Indeed, older Americans are the fastest growing regement of our population. One of segment of our population. One of every seven Americans is 60 years old or over, and that figure is expected to increase. Older Americans have become a powerful political force as well; organized into nationwide groups, they have tirelessly lobbied Congress to revise or abolish mandatory retirement ages, seeking to prove that age is no barrier to creativity and

The careers of older artists who continued to work well into their later years are a testament to the older Americans' cause.

Thomas Hart Benton died at 85 in 1975, a few hours after working on a mural in his studio. He had maintained for years that each mural would be his last. "I'm just too old to do all that climbing of ladders."

Maria Martinez, the San Ildefonso

pueblo potter, created her world-renowned black pottery until she was in her 90s.

Grandma Moses, who died at 101, began to paint at 76, when her arthritic fingers could no longer embroider. Henri Matisse, confined to his bed, cut out brightly colored paper patterns which were acclaimed when they went on exhibit 24 years after his death at 84 in 1954.

Artist John Grabach avoided admitting his age but, when he died in 1981, his World War I draft card revealed that he was 101. He never stopped producing paintings.

In a tribute to the dedicationand vision of older artists such as these, the paintings of older Americans have been highlighted in a 1982 wall calen-dar published to commemorate the White House Conference on Aging. The calendar contains 12 paintings from the collection of the Smithsonian's National Museum of Ameri-

Almost all the works, including o'Keeffe, Gilbert Stuart, Almas and Benjamin West, were created by artists after the age of 60.

"Just as a painting is far more than the pigment that adds the color or the wood that makes the stretchers, so, too, creative genius is more than technique or even vision," Dr. Robert N. Butler, director of the National Institute on Aging, wrote in an introduc-tion to the calendar. "By viewing the paintings of these artists, we see that beauty and genius are ageless and that creative imagination is not limited by time."

Time has certainly been no obstacle to Georgia O'Keeffe, now 94. As famous as she has been indomitable, O'Keeffe has long refused to let poor vision stop her from painting. Laurie Lisle, in "Portrait of An Artist, A Biography of Georgia O'Keeffe," writes of this instinct for artistic survival despite shadowy vision: "She even courageously and proudly remarked that her new way of seeing light, shadow, color and line was 'interesting' and that it gave her new painting

"O'Keeffe learned to take tubes of paint to her housekeeper, ask her to read out loud the names of the colors on the labels and then, with the information memorized, she would return to her studio.

New York City sculptor Seymour Lipton, still extraordinarily vigorous at 78, has said he feels like a man of 40. "He's lean and tough and in top shape," Harry Rand, curator of 20th century painting and sculpture at the National Museum of American Art, says. "He gets up at 6, and by 8 he's wrestling his sculpture together."

With his strong right hand, partially developed by years of tournament developed by years of tournament tennis, Lipton manipulates huge cut-ting shears. "I'm still exploring," Lip-ton explains. "To me, sculpture is a great adventure, unending and always fresh. There is no such thing as maturity—that is just a word. The creative person who loses the spon-taneity and naivete of his childhood becomes an academician.
"What you gain with experience is a sense of control, but my next piece is as exciting as the drawings I made in public school."

It usually takes many years for artists to attain recognition and, despite illness, a sense of humor can feed their creativity long after many of their contemporaries have retired to rocking chairs. Peggy Bacon, now 86 and living in Maine, is known for incisive and penetrating caricatures as well as illustrations for approximately 60 books. Over the decades she has lost little of the freshness and frankness of her youth, and her wit has delighted everyone. She was suffering from a joint disease when she turned 80, but her humor surfaced even then.

"My bones were grinding together —
you could hear them," she said at the "They made reports like a pistol" She was given a false hip of steel and plastic, spent two months in the hospital and promised to use a cane which she called "a peculiar and dreadful looking thing with treads on

When complimented on her remarkable recovery, Peggy retorted: "The surgeons perform these miracles and they get old battered relics back on their feet again. My face looks as if it'd been ploughed. I'm not really very vain, but I don't like to look di!apidated." Although partially blind, she continued to paint in her Maine home—with a magnifying glass mounted to her drawing board.

Alma Thomas, who lived in Washington, D.C., did not begin to paint seriously until she was in her 60s, following many years as a demanding junior high school teacher who expected her students to excel. Welleducated and a member of a middle class black family, she had a strong personality, a flair for the dramatic and was totally dedicated to her art and her students.

She found young people stimulating, enjoyed being surrounded by her proteges and provided scholarships to promising students. Energetic and enthusiastic, she continually worked to perfect the techniques of her craft.

Handicapped by arthritis, she sallied forth to Washington art openings with a gold-headed cane and continued to create her joyful paintings. A number of these are on exhibit at the National Museum of American Art in Washington, D.C., through Feb. 22. Thomas used her kitchen or living room as a studio, propping the huge canvases on her lap or balancing them on a sofa. She painted with a firm stroke... but first she had to soak her arthritic hands in hot water to enable her to hold a paint brush.

"There's nothing like aching knees when you get old," she once told Adolphus Ealey, director of the Barnett-Aden Gallery in Washington. "Do you have any idea what it's like to be caged in a 78-year-old body and to have the mind and energy of a 25-year-old? If I could only turn the clock back, I'd show them.

But she did "show them" with, in 1972, a one-woman exhibition at the Whitrey Museum of American Art in New York City and a retrospective at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington. In 1977, the year before she died, she visited the Matisse cut-out show at the National Gallery of Art several times. "If that old guy can still cut out paper." she said defiantly, "I can still paint pictures."

OPERATING COSTS WORKING WIVES HIT THE ROOF SHARE EXPENSES

The move from "housewife" to "working wife" has turned the dream of homeownership into reality for many married couples. More than 56 percent of married couples who recently bought a home had working wives reports Chicago Title Insurance Company.

The cost of operating a home has increased approximately 150 percent in the last 10 years, report housing experts.

Although the advancing costs of maintenance and repairs is the number one culprit; hikes in insurance, real estate tax and utilities are nearly as high.

Pointer of Interest

By Peggy O'Connor

Judy Huntington is a caring person. Her husband, John, and four children, Tread, Christie, Holly and Shana, have probably always known is but, since fall, others have come to discover that fact about Judy.

Judy is a special kind of caring person — a volunteer in Cottage Hospital's new hospice program. She is one of 15 people who joined the program this past fall: one of many throughout the United States as the new hospice concept in health care begins to grow in this country.

Hospice is a specialized health care program emphasizing the management of pain and other symptoms of terminal illness while providing care for the family as well as the patient. Hospices were first established in medieval Europe by religious orders to care for weary travelers and the sick.

The model for the modern day hospice movement in the United States is St. Christopher's Hospice in England, founded by Dr. Cicely Saunders in 1967.

Judy Huntington began her involvement in the hospice movement when she attended Cottage Hospital's series of four workshops for patients, families and those 18 and older interested in working with cancer patients and their families. The four sessions covered basic information on nursing techniques for home care, prescription management, nutrition, occupational therapy and information on how to cope with the stress and changes caused by caring for cancer patients at home. FOLLOWING THESE sessions, the volunteers met separately for three intensive training sessions, led by Sondra Seely, R.N., head nurse in Cottage Hospital's oncology unit and coordinator of the Caring for Cancer Patients Workshop.

Not all the volunteers ended up being assigned a patient some produce a hospice newsletter and brochures for Cottage — but Judy Huntington did. It seemed like a natural step for someone who describes herself as a "frustrated nurse."

"I've always been interested in hospitals. I worked in the emergency room at Receiving and I enjoyed that," Judy says. But it was partly because of her personal experiences with cancer patients and partly because she realized the importance and worth of such a program that she joined Cottage's Caring for the Cancer Patient program.
"My father died of cancer eight years ago. While he was dying, he would say: 'I'm dying.' I'd try to deny that and tell him: 'You'll be fine' He died right after that — we never really talked about it."

'My mom also had cancer. She recovered but no one can say they won't have to deal with cancer," Judy says. "It's not that death is all around me I'd just like to be able to cope with it."

In order to help Judy learn how to help others cope with dying and death, one complete session of her training was devoted to thinking about her own death. "Hospice feels that if you haven't made decisions about your own death, you can't help anyone else.'

IN THE COTTAGE hospice Million-plus program, the patient's doctor refers him/her to the hospice team. It is, however, the patient's personel decision whether or not to enter the program. The hospice team includes the doctor, nurse, primary care person in the family, social services and the home care coordinator. The patient and family go through the initial four sessions, then are matched with a "caring person," or hospice volunteer.

"They are selecting people who get patients very carefully. Sondra Seely interviews the volunteers. She screens you and tries to match you with a patient with a similar background to yours," Judy patient immediately, will be there to help families "Sondra asked if I would like to meet the patient, who was right there in the hospital. That was good . . . I would have worried about it if I'd have had to wait to meet her.

Naturally, the relationship between Judy and her patient was strained for the first few weeks, while they were getting weeks, while they were getting to know each other in what was a very personal time for both. "For the first couple of months I felt that she didn't need me. All of a sudden she was calling and her family was calling. That made me feel good," Judy says.
"It eases their minds once they realize there is someone they realize there is someone there to help.'

As that someone, Judy's role is well-defined. She is to arrange contacts with the patient and family, by phone or by visit; listen with care and support without judgment; aid communication between the patient and health care advisors and assist with errands or stay with the patient when the family needs to go out.

There is much more. "The hospice concept is to let the patient live with dignity and integrity, to help participate in the decision on the course of treatment in the disease and to help them decide where they want to die." Judy says.

THE CONCEPT of dying at home if the patient and family wishes is an important part of the hospice program, as is the idea that pain should not control the patient's life. "When someone is dying of cancer they feel isolated; people are afraid to visit. It eased my mind going through the prog-ram to find that there was help for these dying people and there will be something for pain." Judy says.

"If the patients knows the pain will be taken care of, they didn't need as much medication, we have found.

Judy says her patient is still well enough to get around, but adds that she has thought about the time when her patient will die and about how she will handle it. "It has been very rewarding . . . I've also become close with her mother and sister, too. I don't know yet how I'm going to handle the death of a patient.

"I admire my patient. I'd like to handle it that way, but don't know if I could.

Judy's training included bereavement counseling, so she

Bill Babcock: sizzling in Sarasota By Peggy O'Connor

These days, Bill Babcock is hitting the books at Michigan State University, but for a while this past summer and fall, the Chicago White Sox lefthander spent most of his time hitting the strike zone.

After signing with the White Sox last July, the 19-year-old Babcock reported to Chicago's rookie league team in Sarasota, where he turned in performances like those which made him the winningest pitcher in North High baseball history.

Babcock posted a 3-2 record and a

1.25 earned run average in 36 innings pitched. He gave up just five earned runs and 10 bases on balls while striking out 30 in those 36 innings. Unofficially, he was the rookie league's top pitcher, but did not pitch the 50 innings needed to secure that honor. Officially, his 1.25 ERA was tops in the rookie league

Following the rookie league season and a brief stop at home. Babcock headed back down to Sarasota for the Florida Instructional League season, Sept. 10 through Nov. 9. There he faced high "A" and "AA" level competition. (Baseball's minor leagues are graded on the basis that "A" is the lowest and "AAA" the highest level just below the major leagues.) The Florida Instructional League is comprised of teams from New York, Boston, Atlanta, Japan, Pittsburgh, Kansas City and Chicago. Of the 105 roster pitchers in that league, young Babcock was among the top 20. His 3.79 ERA was 16th in the league Babcock was third in innings pitched with 38, 10th in fewest walks with 14 and sixth in strikeouts

Those statistics seem to prove that Babcock was more than able to hold his own in professional competition and against big league batters-but according to Babcock's father, William Babcock, of Severn Road, you'd never know it to talk to Bill

"He won't tell you anything over the phone. When he calls he says, 'they're hitting me too much,' or

'I'm walking too much,' " the elder Babcock said.

The only way Babcock found out how well his son was pitching was by reading the lefthander's statistics when they were printed in a southern newspaper. The Babcocks also went down to Florida to see Bill pitch in late October.

"They were playing Atlanta and Bill said to me: 'You see that guy warming up over there? That's Preston Hanna . . . I've got his baseball card in my dresser at home!"

Babcock would certainly be excused if he got a case of the jitters at that point-who wouldn't? But that sort of situation will probably be happening more frequently as Babcock moves up the baseball ladder-something he's already started

He will report to spring training in Sarasota on March 12 (Babcock's MSU exams don't begin until the 15th and the White Sox have told him to report after exams) and has already been assigned to the Sox' high "A" club in Appleton, Wisc.

"He should do pretty well in Appleton since he pitched against double A and triple A players in the Florida (Continued on Page 2C)

Defeating the Grosse Pointe Northstars in a best of three series last week enabled the Grosse Pointe Blues to represent the Pointe Bantam B Division in the District Playoffs which will be held the first week of February at the St. Clair Shores Civic

In the first game, the Northstars came out as the victors, 4-3. The Northstar goals came from Steve Elie. David Rice, Pete Guzzardo and Tom Gebeck. Scoring for the Blues were Chris Murray, Richard Pisogna and David Lester. Assisting for the Blues were Kirk Haggarty with one, Pisogna with one and George Krappmann with three

The second game ended in a 1-1 tie. The Northstars' lone goal came from Guzzardo with assists from Rice and Casey Quick. The Blues' only goal came from Krappmann, the assists from Murray and Chris Clogg. Bill Tecos, the Blues' goalie, played a superb game while Ed Brady, the northstar goalie, played well.

The tie in the second game forced third game on Jan. 12 The Blues won this game, 5-2. Scoring for the Northstars were Guzzardo and Rice. Assists came from Quick and John Petrille. The Blues' goals came from Clogg with two, Brian Francis, Steve Gaskin and Krappmann, Clogg, Francis, Haggarty, Krappmann and Pisogna had assists.

After three games the teams were deadlocked, each team having a win, a loss and a tie. This forced a fourth game on Jan. 14. The first goal of the game came when Gaskin knocked in a pass from Haggarty to put the Blues ahead. Eight seconds later Rice took a pass from Quick and scored to tie the game. About halfway through the second period. Haggarty rifled in a shot from the side of the net to put the Blues ahead, 2-1.

The third period was scoreless thanks to a tough Blues defense. Members of the Blues' defensive squad are Mike Amore, John Rajt, Francis and Murray, Blues goalie Bill Tecos played another outstanding game for his team. Others who performed equally well for the Blues were forwards Mike French, Mark Antonenko and Cameron Frame.

The Blues will now represent Grosse Pointe in the District Playoffs of the Bantam B. Division. This win also gave the Blues first place in the Metro East Hockey League.

Norsemen top '81 total with seventh win

By Paul Regelbrugge North High

The 7-2 Norsemen defeated Roseville Brablec, 66-42, and Clintondale, 45-42 last week, to attain a second place position in the Bi-County League. The wins gave North two more wins than they earned all of last season.

The Norsemen pulled away from Brablec in the fourth quarter as Andy Pflaum scored 12 points and Dreis VanLanduyt 10 to pace North. The Norsemen have won six of their last seven games.

North trailed 20-14 on the half against the Clintondale Dragons but a 22 point third quarter sparked the Norsemen to the win.

"We weren't playing particularly well in the first half but after we settled down things came into place," said North Coach Ray Ritter. "It was a big win for us."

Chris Neal hooped 17 points, followed by Dan Sheridan with 12.

Varsity wrestling: The Norsemen placed fifth in the 10 team Lakeshore Tournament before defeating Clintondale for the first time in the school's history, 42-24.

Winning medals at Lakeshore were Dave Fleming in third place, and Greg Fleming, Matt Simon, Jim Seagram and Todd Leigh in second. The win over Clintondale upped North's dual meet record to 6-2, and set the stage for the L'Anse Creuse match tonight, Jan. 21. The winner will take first place in the Bi-County League.

Capturing medals for the first time of the year at Lake Shore were George Kasa Buster Lucido, Paul Bronikowski and Frank Sgroi in third place and Craig Pascoe in second.

Now 4-0, North pinned all of its Clintondale opponents. The tri-umphant wrestlers included Buster Lucido, Pat Armstrong, Gary Cornell, Cedric Patmon, Dan Norey, and Craig Pascoe.

Volleyball: While the varsity and junior varsity volleyball squads dropped their matches, 13-15, 11-15, 12-15, 4-15 respectively against Clintondale, the freshmen girls defeated Madison Heights Lamphere, 15-7, 15-6.

For the varsity, now 0-2, Peggy Cadieux served seven points in the first game before Nancy Olen served seven points in game two. June La-Grasso's five points for the JV was not enough in game one, a game in which the Norsemen once lead, 11-3.

Freshmen Dawn Cartwright was the high server with five points in the first game before Celeste Sartor and Dawn Cartwright's combined spiking won the second game.

Gymnastics: The girls kept their unbeaten record intact with wins over Berkley 107.2-89.3 and Warren Lincoln 108.45-99.25.

Second place on the vault against Berkley was Cindi Tsangalias with a 7.35 score, while Karen McCarthy (Continued on Page 2C)

ULS Knights reach 7-1 mark

Once again the ULS varsity basketball team took its act on the road. this time defeating MIAC (Michigan Independent Athletic Conference) rival Southfield Christian, 64-56, last week. The Knights, who have played in front of their home crowd only three times this season, now boast of a 7-1 record, with a 4-0 league mark. Earlier in the week the Knights had rolled to an easy 71-55 victory over Huron Valley Lutheran, Michael "Snatch" Paolucci had his patented no-arc, southpaw jumpshot in high gear, as he led all scorers with 31 points, 15 in the third quarter. Junior J.T. Parks followed up with 22, and senior Mike McCarthy ripped down 18 rebounds to finish off the Knights! attack.

The contest against Southfield Christian proved to be a much tighter game though, as the cold ULS offensive machine watched in stunned frustration as the Lancers jumped to an early 11-1 lead. The Knights found the groove before the close of the first period and tied the score at 15. The battle see-sawed from that point on, the Knights taking a three point advantage into the locker room at

In the second half the Knights took charge for good, Parks leading the way with 20 points. Paolucci added 13 and senior Dave VanElslander's eight proved to be the margin of victory.

Grosse Pointe's Bantam A travel hockey Marlboros, continue to play excellent hockey, winning two out of three games played last week. The Marlies have posted five wins in six games since Jan. 1.

The week started out on a sour note, however, as Grosse Pointe lost an Adray League contest to St. Clair Shores, 5-1. Marlie defenseman George Jerome scored on an unassisted, rinklong rush to provide the only Grosse Pointe scoring.

The atmosphere turned brighter on Jan. 16 when the Marlies turned Avon back, 4-3, in a league contest. Grosse Pointe started the scoring when Bob Rogers fed linemate Jeff LeFebvre a nice pass and Jeff jammed the puck into the corner of the net. After Avon tied the score, Marlie center Joe Sullivan notched the first of his two goals to put the Marlies back on top. Jerome received an assist on the play.

High scoring Marlie Walter Connolly tied the contest at 3-3 after Avon had moved ahead on two second period goals. Marlie forwards Kevin Tisdale and Greg Henchel provided excellent forechecking on Connolly's goal and were credited with Captain Stacey Rickert and Keith Barich both produced three goal hat tricks to spark the scoring effort. Single goals came from Brykalski, Luongo and John Hirschfield.

Facing the minor team, a group of first year Bantam A players, the Bruins were surprised, 6-3. Grosse Pointe achieved 2-0 and 3-2 leads before falling to a Compuware rally. Bruin coach Tom Costello praised the Compuware effort and strong skating skills. Robby Wood, Rickert and Tom Davis scored for the Bruins.

The loss was only the fourth in 34 games this season, running the Bruins' record to 27-4-3.

Later in the week, Brownell defeated Pierce, 42-29. The Bullets were never behind as Skuras led all scorers with 16 points and 12 rebounds. Ricky Leonard scored 10, Wells scored six, Drew McSkimming and Hoels each scored four points. Lee Carrasco scored two points for the victors. Pierce high scorer was Gordie Langs with 14 points. # Star cagers win one of four The 7th and 8th grade girls' basketball team at Our Lady Star of the Sea evenly with Good Counsel three quarters. However, St played another pressure game, this time against Our Lady Of Good Councel. As has been Stars' trademark this season they won by one bucket, 15-13.

Meagan O'Toole, MaryBeth Simon and Marissa Bautista paced Star with four points each. Michelle McCarron added the final three points and assured the Star win with her fourth quarter free throw shooting.

Coach Spindler is proud of her girls' play and believes "they can beat anyone in the league now as they have improved their play so much since the beginning of the season." The Star 78'er girls have three wins and one loss this season.

The Star 78'er boys didn't fare as well dropping their weekend contest with Good Counsel, 46-34. Star played evenly with Good Counsel the first three quarters. However, Stars' offense stalled in the fourth quarter allowing Good Counsel to surge ahead. Pat Brennan led Star's offense with 10 points, Kevin Shannon, Mike Wujek and Craig Como each hit for eight points.

In a high scoring 56'er boys' contest the Star cagers lost, 37-24. Brady O'Toole and Brian Peltz were hot, hitting for 15 and nine points, respectively. Star played shot for shot with Good Counsel the second half but couldn't make up the 10 point first half deficit.

Star's 56'er girls suffered their first defeat of the season in the contest with Good Counsel 28-6 score. The Star team didn't play anything like the team it has been all season. Kristin Parish had four points and Nancy Schulte had two for Star's total offense output affair with the automobile had be-

"As the country's first auto dealer, Metzger encountered many of the same problems that auto dealers face today," said C. M. (Bud) Shelton, chairman of the Detroit Auto Dealer Association's 1982 Auto Show Committee. "Like today, the technology in 1899 was constantly changing. Metzger needed a method to help potential buyers become aware of the latest in automotive design.' Joining forces with Seneca G. Lewis of the Fletcher Hardware Company of Detroit, Metzger organized the Tri-State Sportsman's and Automobile Association and Detroit's first auto show was held at the Light Guard Armory in 1899. Interspersed among a display of fishing reels, hunting rifles and camping gear, were two steam-driven Mobiles and two Wa-very Electrics. Interest in the automobile was soon to eclipse the unlikely alliance between sporting goods and automobiles in Detroit. In 1907, the newly-formed Detroit Auto Dealers Association (DADA) held their first auto show.

It was hoped that the show would also be held at the Light Guard Armory. However, Tri-State had exclusive right to use the space, and DADA ended up holding their first show in Beller's Beer Garden, on East Jefferson Avenue at the Belle Isle Bridge. It was the first of a long procession DADA-sponsored Detroit auto shows, establishing the event as a Detroit tradition.

At the 1907 show, 17 auto exhibitors displayed 33 makes of cars in the 11,376-square-foot hall, a much smaller area than the approximately 300,-000 square feet of the 1982 Auto Show at Cobo Hall.

At that early show, local fire marshalls took no chances with the untried invention: "On account of the restrictions enforced by the Fire Department, no acetylene lights will be permitted to be operated," the rules stated. An to prevent the noise level from reaching a painful pitch, all horns "must have the reeds removed therefrom . . ." Many of the autos exhibited were built locally, some of which would fade into obscurity: the De Lux, the

such as Maxwell, would eventually be acquired by larger, stronger com-panies. But perhaps most importantly, many of the infant companies exhibiting their ware at the 1907 show-Ford, Oldmobile, Buick and Cadillac, for example-would go on to become leaders in the industry. "Detroit was a natural place for the auto industry to take hold," said Shelton. "Even before the turn of the century. Detroit was a manufacproducts as stoves, gasoline engines and related industrial goods. These types of industries were readily convertible to auto production. Also, Detroit's geographic location on the Great Lakes made the efficituring center, well-known for such ent transportation of raw goods and finished products feasible, he added. "Finally, Detroit's manufacturing experience promoted a quality labor force which was available to build the products once they were developed," said Shelton. As the auto industry began to mature, potential auto buyers and curious onlookers turned out in ever-inadded, saying he could only remem-creasing numbers to see the latest in ber three other dog shootings in the the autmotive field at the Detroit

Come Cross our Country, from $40 for two.

Come up to the North Country! Come up to The Homestead.

It's white, quiet, clean, fresh—beautiful. In fact, the only word we could find to describe winter at The Homestead is "Winterfull"—but don't go looking for it in your Webster's.

Winter at The Homestead is active, too. You can ski cross country (rent equipment if you don't have your own), take a lesson from a certified instructor, dine in a woodsy restaurant, enjoy toetapping sing-along entertainment and great

Come up to The Homestead. It's winterfull.

Don't spend a bundle to enjoy bundling up.

The Homestead is very affordable, too. If there's just the two of you, bundle up together in one of our Deluxe Guest Rooms-with woodburning fireplace and wet bar (anyone for a hot toddie?), generous bath, and lookout balcony with a view of Michigan pines, clear skies and blue, blue Lake Michigan. All for just $40 a night!

For a family of bundlers, a winterfull weekend at The Homestead is a real value. Our two-bedroom condominiums sleep six very comfortably, with the same amenities as our Deluxe Guest Room, plus, of course, a ready-to-fondue-in kitchen, dining area and spacious living room. How much? Just $85 to $90 (only $15 per person!).

Stay in other northern Michigan hotels or motels and you'll probably have to rent two rooms—at twice the nightly tariff. Then again, not too many of them are resorts, either—with skiing, hiking, dining, skating and acres of pine and hardwood forests.

The Homestead is the right choice for a winterfull weekend. Go south, and you can get burned by air fares. Go west, and you may get buried by crowds in lift lines. Instead, come north to The Homestead, for just the price of a little gasoline.

Cross Homestead Country.

Our 36 km. of color-coded trails take you through some of the most spectacular scenery you'll ever see! Our trails are immaculately groomed, too, with one of the few double-track

Bet you'll bounce on this one!

Every member of your family can keep busy here. When you're not touring, go skating beneath tall pines on a glassy smooth rink. And when you're not skating, play platform tennis. It's fun to learn, easy to play—and the latest rage in racquet sports.

If you also enjoy downhill skiing, it's just minutes away. Ski there—but stay here for less.

Want to get away but not with the kids? Let us watch them while you two take off alone, together. We've planned fun for them-contests, games, snowy sports—all supervised by Homestead personnel. Don't worry—they'll probably have more fun without you!

After a day of skiing, skating or an invigorating game of platform tennis, stop at The Racquet Club. Here you'll discover a cedar-clad restaurant with a congenial atmosphere and the inviting warmth of a crackling fire. There's food and drink in a casual style: soup served piping hot, openfaced prime rib sandwiches, choice steaks, fresh seafood.

"Downstairs" at The Racquet Club, skiers exchange tales of happy trails and enjoy generous cocktails and lively entertainment with friends.

It feels good to be tired, and as the sun sets and casts its golden glow, relaxing is easy.

Winterfull.

Now you know what we mean. Winter at The Homestead is a wonderful bargain for the two of you, the six of you, the however-many-of-you. Whether it's you and the kids or you and your friends, only one word describes it: "Winterfull."

So don't waste time thinking about your weekend-reserve it now, while the best and most affordable accommodations are still available. Call (616) 334-3041.
