State will trap elusive gypsy moth here in spring

They came to Michigan attached to the trailer of a Michigan sailor returning from service in New England during the early 1970s, state Agricultural Department officials say Since then, gypsy moths have defoliated acres of Michigan's forests.

Infestations in southeast Michigan have been discovered in Livonia, Grosse Isle and Bloomfield Township through trapping programs by the department. Trappings in the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods area last year turned up nine male moths, but walk-through search of the area found no eggs, officials said.

Although concern about an infestation may be premature, agriculture officials say they are returning this year to trap the area at a rate about 18 times more dense than earlier trappings in hopes of locating the center of any possible infestation.

The moth itself does not eat, but simply reproduces. It is the larvae buds on trees begin to open that do the damage. The caterpillars feed on leaves of trees and shrubs of as many as 500 different varieties. In the late stages of their development a caterpillar can eat several leaves a day, officials said.

Eggs are laid in late July on trees or anywhere else the moths can deposit their 70 to 1,000 eggs. The masses look like rust-colored felt strips about one to two inches long.

Hatching enmasse in late April. the caterpillars are buff-colored at birth, but quickly turn black. They remain around the egg mass if temperatures are below 40 degrees or if it is raining.

When the time is right, the larvae will spin threads of silk and lay down a trail of it wherever they travel. When they reach the outer branches of trees and shrubs, the threads become their aerial ticket to new areas.

Gypsy moth larvae have been detected at high altitudes, agricultural officials say. Windstorms can distribute hatching populations over large areas, but people, cars and other movers do the bulk of distribution, officials said.

After distribution, the larvae begin their feasting when they come to good feeding plants. The species favored by the insect include 500 different trees and shrubs. About the only trees the moths don't seem to like are the yellow or tulip poplar, officials said.

The damage is done to trees as the moths feed through their five stages of development. Early stages eat holes in the leaves, while later-stage moths feed at leaf edges, migrating to the underside of leaves and branches when not feeding.

After the fourth stage, the caterpillars begin feeding at night, then move down the trees in the morning to find shade. In late May, the migrating larvae can be caught by tying a piece of cloth about six to eight inches wide loosely to the tree and folding the cloth back over the string so the caterpillars can crawl in either from the side or from beneath.

Another effective trap for the fourth stage caterpillars is a sticky substance painted around the base of each tree. Officials say larvae caught should be dropped in cans of either bleach or kerosene.

After fattening themselves, the larvae pupate, or form hard, mahogany colored cases around themselves which are attached either to the tree or on anything they can get to. The female pupae are usually larger than those of males. But the males make up for it by emerging first, after about two weeks.

The female moth doesn't fly but draws its mates by sending off a scent that brings males from around the area. The same attraction is used by the Agricultural Department in its tent-traps. The female then deposits her new egg mass usually in or near the same place she pupated, and the eggs will lie dormant until the following April.

Egg masses found in the area should be reported to the Department of Agriculture's Detroit office. The phone number 368-2230. The location of egg masses helps officials locate centers of infestations and plan their next move against the moths.

Although the trees are not killed outright by the defoliation, the loss of the leaves does force the tree to use more energy to sustain life during the growing season, cutting down what is left to keep the tree going through the winter. In 1971, New Jersey officials reported that three straight years of defoliation because of the moths killed over a million

The most effective weapon against the moths is the pesticide Sevin. which New Jersey officials document as being safe for use in residential areas were sprayed last May, state officials say, and it looks like they may have eradicated the moths. In addition, a small part of Livonia was sprayed about the same time.

The Pointes' proximity to the water may make the job a little more complicated for the state, but mass trappings and other pesticides could be used without harming either the lake or the residents.

Talk of pesticides, sprayings and such are premature, state officials note since they won't be collecting their traps until mid-August to determine whether there is a problem in the area. The task now, they stress, is to keep the traps in place, away from prying fingers and vandals.

The orange-tent-shaped traps should be appearing throughout the area in mid-June, so they are in place before the moths pupate. Collection data from the trappings will determine the state's next move against the moth.

Pay freeze ordered

Woods council cites economy, budget shortfalls

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Citing the state's economic condition in general and expected revenue shortfalls for Grosse Pointe Woods in particular, councilmembers in that city have decided to freeze compensation for its two top officials at fiscal 1981-82 levels.

At a March 22 meeting of the committee-of-the-whole, councilmembers reviewed the performance of City Comptroller: Assessor Frederick Hornfisher and recommended the council hold the line on his salary in the upcoming fiscal year, beginning July I.

An earlier meeting of the committee-of-the-whole recommended the City Manager's Chester Petersen's be kept at its $49,000 level.

The council meets yearly to review the performance of its two appointed officials, and sets compensation. Petersen said his salary has not changed since July, 1980.

Included with the salaries is a fringe benefit package which is currently being negotiated. The new package will include some provisions that were bargained into contracts for general employe unions, city officials said.

The fringe benefit package for appointed officials is still with City Attorney George Catlin, who was asked by the council to make changes in the disability retirement clause and other areas. That package will come back before the council in open session when they will take action to repeal the 1977 agreement and adopt the new agreement simultane-

HOLDING THE line on salaries is not a move to force out any employes, councilmembers stressed, but was a direct response to the city's need to hold down costs in areas it had direct

The council made its recommendation after "looking at the total economic climate of the area," Councilman Frederick Lovelace said, adding the city "was looking into ways to hold the line in terms of expenses."

That, Lovelace said, would be of direct benefit to residents. As the city held down expenses, it could also hold property tax levels down,

Councilman Robert Novitke said the reason for not giving the two a raise was "revenue shortfalls we are experiencing this year and anticipated cutbacks during the coming year."

The council is expected to act on the recommendations of the committee at its April 5 meeting.

Petersen's total salary of $49,000 puts him at the top of the Pointe city administrator list. The city manager in Grosse Pointe City has a fiscal 1981 salary listed at $45,000, he said. The Park City Manager reported a $42,000 salary for the same period. The Shores Village Manager said his salary for fiscal 1981 was $40,000. The Farms city manager receives $48,000, he said.

Hornfisher's $34,500 salary for 1980-81 fell farther down the list. Grosse Pointe Park's clerk-assessor receives $39,000 yearly, while Grosse Pointe City's finance director receives $35,000. The Farms clerk-assessor makes $38,000 a year.

All councils review the salaries of their appointed officials on a yearly basis, officials said.

At 3:15. Tony met his brother Billy after school and walked with him to a park where they drank a jug of wine. Then both bous approached the nearby home of a widow and broke a window.

Once inside, the boys smashed windows and mirrors, overturned furniture and dumped dresser drawers on the floor. After causing thousands of dollars worth of damages, the brothers ran home with money, jewelry, a hand gun and a gallon of liquor. They hid it in the family Farms police suspected the boys when a neighbor reported seeing Billy break into another home by heaving a brick through a back door window. When confronted, the boys denied any wrongdoing and were backed up by their parents. The threat of a search warrant broke the youngsters down, and police were lead to the garage.

The brothers were turned over to Juvenile Court authorities. Tony was 16. Billy was 14.

"Lest anyone think these two were from a disadvantaged home, I'd like to point out that both parents were professionals holding down good jobs," said Farms Det. Earl Field.

Correction

Republican Leader William Bryant's letter to the editor in last week's issue should have referred to a 0.7 percent increase in the state income tax proposed by Gov. Milliken, not a 7 percent increase. The mistake was the News', not Rep. Briant's.

"Drugs, alcohol, kicks, boredom, a desperate cry for help. Who knows?" said Sgt. Van Tiem. "If we knew the cause and could develop an antidote, we'd all be rich and famous. All I know is we keep seeing the same names popping up in our reports. Not just here, but in all the Pointes and Detroit too. You see a pattern developing among them and a lot of their Living on the outskirts of Grosse Pointe, Joel started shoplifting while in his early teens. He soon graduated to breaking into neighbors homes, both in Grosse Pointe and Detroit. As he got older, the crimes became more serious. Police knew of his activities, but couldn't catch him in the act.

In October of last year, Joel and three juveniles were picked up by Tennessee authorities in a parked car outside a 7.11 store. Police confiscated narcotics, weapons, out of state liquor and property later proved to have been stolen from homes in the Farms.

Relatives in Tennessee put up a "property bond" to give Joel his freedom. He immediately returned to Michigan.

Two weeks ago he and a juvenile companion were picked up while "prowling" on a street in the Farms. woman reported seeing Joel "peeping" through her back door window.

Farms police were forced to re-lease Joel when the homeowner refused to press charges. His companion was turned over to police in a neighboring community for assaulting a cop. He was later freed on bond. Four days after his release by Farms police, Joel and a companion were arrested by Macomb County police for four home burglaries. Both were carrying stolen property, and Joel was found with a portable police scanner in his pocket.

Farms police suspect Joel in 14 burglaries committed over a two week period in their city. When arrested, Joel bragged to Farms police that it was the residents of Grosse Pointe, Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills who "kept him in business." Farms police also know Joel was an acquaintance of a teenaged Farms youth who confessed to murdering an 80-year-old widow while high in drugs. Joel has just turned 20 years old.

While statistics aren't available for all Grosse Pointe cities, reports from the Farms show that during 1981, 40 percent of all arrests involved juveniles under 17 years of age, a 12 percent increase over 1980. Twenty-two percent of all Farms juvenile felony arrests involved Farms residents. During 1980, that number stood at 24 percent.

Palm Sunday joggers stopped in their tracks

By Susan McDonald

It was supposed to be a "fun" run, But, to two ministers of Mack Avenue churches, the notion of several hundred sweaty runners, counters, fans and officials descending on their churches at the precise moment parishioners were set to arrive in their Palm Sunday finest didn't sound like too much fun at all.

So, last week, after the ministers threatened legal action, organizers of the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association's 3.1 mile Fun Run agreed to delay the start of the Sunday, April 4, race until 11 a.m., after church has started.

THE MINISTERS, Dr. Robert Linthicum of Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church and Rev. Joseph P. Fabry, of Christ the King, were incensed over the businessmen's plans to wrap up their race, which was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m., in front of their churches at about 11.

The way they figured it, at the same moment the couple of hundred racers would be passing by the churches, about 250 cars full of worshipers would be trying to get into the church parking lot.

"Scheduling of such a race on the third most sacred day for us Christians and in a way that disrupts our gathering for worship evidences the greatest disrespect of us and disregard for our religious convictions," Dr. Linthicum wrote in a letter to parishioners.

Rev. Fabry said he was "dismayed that men who we consider business leaders would ignore Sunday morning worship hours. But even a minimal Christian," he said, "would recognize Palm Sunday as an important day for us.

The ministers decided to seek a temporary restraining order in Wayne County Circuit Court charging that the race, in effect, denied worshipers their rights accorded under the Constitution to assemble and worship

The decision to seek an injunction came after they made phone calls to race organizers asking them to change the starting time, according to Dr.

On Friday, race organizer Dr. Edward Kane called the church and agreed to postpone the race by one hour in return for the churches agreeing to withdraw their legal action, Dr. Linthicum said.

"Everybody's happy with the result," he said. "Steps are being taken on both sides to see this doesn't happen again.'

Dr. Kane said he would invite the ministers to sit on the committee which plans the race next year and work with the churches to avoid problems in the future. He said the 125 racers who have already entered the run will be notified of the time change by telephone. For the rest of the participants, the organizers are counting on word-of-mouth communi-

Lakeshore gets dose of moms' remedy

By Tom Greenwood

"Mothers Against Potholes," a group of Farms women tired of dragging Lakeshore craters for their cars. banded together this week to strike back at the macho stand-off adopted by the powers that be concerning the re-paving of Lakeshore.

Dressed in parkas and hockey helmets, the "cold pack packing mamas" swept down on Lakeshore

Wednesday morning and began filling in their favorite potholes.

Sue Kinnaird and Kitty Gushee, organizers of the event, said they were protesting the "macho attitudes" of the Farms City Council and the Wayne County Road Commission in delaying repairs to the road.

After securing permission from Farms Chief of Police Robert Ferber (who thought their idea was great and urged them to do a good job). the road-weary women bought cold packing material from a hardware store and began patching Lakeshore while protected behind orange road cones.

"We just kept patching until we ran out of material," said Ms. Kinnaird. "The stuff's very inexpensive. Just $4 for 50 pounds. We all pitched in to buy the material. If we can patch Lakeshore, why can't they?'

closed to parking during the event. Major intersections of Mack and Warren and Seven Mile and Mack will be closed for short periods.

The entry fee is $5 and all participants will receive a T-shirt. The run was organized to encourage community awareness and involvement in Mack Avenue and its business community, according to Kane.

The race route was approved by councils in Grosse Pointe Park, City, Farms and Woods last month. Two police chiefs, Bruce Kennedy in the City and Robert Ferber in the Farms, objected to the route because of traffic, parking and safety problems.

Juvenile crime is a homegrown problem for police rested during 1981, with 25 of these cases being turned over to juvenile court, Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy estimates the vast majority of those arrested were City residents.

Sometimes, juvenile crime magnifies into unforeseen tragedies. On March 18, 1978, the Helin mansion on Windmill Pointe Drive in the Park burned to the ground in an estimated $3.5 million loss.

City Fire Fighter Richard Tucker, 45, a 19-year veteran of the force, was killed when a wall collapsed on him. An investigation proved the fire was deliberately set. A few days after the fire, a Pointe youth voluntarily

"Basically, we're dealing with psychological and emotional problems," said Farms Chief of Police Robert K. Ferber, "This goes beyond malicious destruction of property. We're seeing the same kids involved again and again in more violent and anti-social kinds of action. It's the same persons repeating, repeating and repeating."

Police recognize the patterns and try to interrupt the cycle of repeat offenses before the juvenile becomes set in an unbreakable mold. Youthful offenders are warned, counseled by police, set up with appointments with social workers, juvenile authorities, school counselors, or social agencies such as the Northeast Guidance Center or Center Point.

"Many times, our officers will take a personal interest in the youth and try and break the pattern that way," said Chief Ferber. "One of our officers was involved with a boy for two don't know what the results will be on that one.

"Basically, we can only go so far," said Chief Ferber, "We can arrest and also refer. What hurts is the inability of the juvenile justice system to cope with the problem. It's frus trating to us and to the parents to

"It's a common pattern seen over and over," echoed Kennedy, "We try to work with parents, courts and social agencies. I personally feel the problem lies in the home. The parents have the most influence over their children. They have the most power, if only they'd use it.

"It's parental authority. That's the key Some parents just don't seem interested. It's like they're willing to let the school and teachers raise their children. Not all parents are like that. Most try and cooperate with us. It's just a small minority that don't seem to care. Of course, it's just a small minority of kids that commit serious crime here in the Pointes. One sign that has caused increasing concern among Social Security officials is the proliferation of misleading advertisements that offer peope services for a charge that are available free at any Social Security office, according to James T. Moslener, manager of the district office at 17402 Mack Avenue.

With the increased complexity of modern life, some firms have sought to profit from the desire of people to obtain services and benefits in the easiest possible way, Moslener said.

He offered one primary suggestion to anyone thinking about responding to an ad about Social Security services or information. Try Social Security first. Then the other source could be contacted. Social Security Administration offices have the latest and most accurate information.

More importantly, Social Security has information that may be based on individual Social Security records and therefore applies to each specific situation. In other cases, individuals will get enough information to recognize the "catch" in the ad, and will probably elect not to respond,

The ads have taken on increasing variety, according to the manager. Some offer to find out for a fee how much Social Security has credited to Social Security records. Another offers to get name changes on Social Security records, again for a fee. Such services are available free of charge at any Social Security office, Moslener stressed.

In recent cases, the U.S. Postal Service drew the line at the use of the mails for misleading ads that they considered fraudulent. A consent order was signed by two publishing companies in 1981, promising to stop misleading ads promoting books on Social Security.

Enrollment at the schools has forced the board to form a 12-member com-mittee to study the future organization, financing of the district and neighborhood impact of school reorganization, the two said.

The school board is actively looking for input from the community," Mrs. Hanpeter said. "The committee was formed to be representative of the community.

New Deal with new twist

Saying the state's economic decline parallels the 1930's Great Depression, state Sen. John Kelly, D. Detroit, announced he would introduce a package of bills that would reinstate the Work Project Administration this week in the state Senate.

The package will allow for a $1 billion dollar bond issue for a Public Work Administration, with Urban Reclamation Corps, Rural Conservation Corps, and "other public works of benefit for the state population as a whole," Kelly said.

The bond issue will be guaranteed by a mortgage escrow pool of state-owned surplus lands, and will exclude state parks, recreational areas, preserves, wildlife refuges, natural river or scenic areas, endangered species preserves, archeological landmarks, public shoreline and other such types of property.

What will be used, Kelly said, is land the state has assumed ownership of because of defaults on property taxes. The state has about 23 million acres of such land, he said.

The WPA would do such jobs as construction of streets, plazas, razing abandoned houses and cleaning and gading of vacant lots. It would also include projects for "the overali im-provement of public infrastructure to make way for private sector developments."

The bill would not include regular state money and no deficit spending, Kelly said, making it different from the original WPA projects. The bond payments would be guaranteed by the land, he said.

"This isn't a big money bill," Kelly said. "This is to give people a stake in the system."

Another portion of the package, Kelly said, would use the Kammer Land Trust Fund for the acquisition of development rights on lands This would be done to link existing parks and facilities into green belts around cities, he said.

The Kammer Land Trust is money put aside from the sale of gas and oil rights to be used for the purchase of additional recreational land. That acquisition, Kelly said, has gone on without plan, leaving the state with patchworks of public properties.

By purchasing development rights to land rather than the outright acquisition, Kelly said the money can be stretched farther. Also, if a private developer wants to put a project up on such land, the state can sell back the development rights. This, Kelly said, would allow for planned growth while preserving existing parks and recreation areas.

In addition, another part of the package would allow the taxation of core city property at sale value rather than use value. This would discourage the razing of property for parking lots, and would make property owners turn it over for development, Kelly said.

Although some groups may view the projects as competition for their jobs, Kelly said he doesn't view it that way.

"I don't view it as a competition for union jobs, but a way of getting young people into programs," he said.

Prime Time

-For Senior Citizens

By Marian Trainor

Preventive health care is a relatively new concept for older citizens. A few years back, people went to the doctor when they were sick and usually they didn't go even then unless they were very sick. Always on hand were a few tried and true remedies and sometimes they worked either because they were effective or the afflicted believed in their curative powers so firmly that health was re-

There are those who still believe that many minor ailments can be treated at home; that there is too much dependence placed on the need for professional help for very slight ailments. However, even those stalwart believers in the 'cure-it vourself' school of medicine now have come to place credence in the need to have an annual checkup to forestall serious ill-

There are those who hold off because of the expense. If that is a problem, the cost can be bynassed by attending Health-o-Rama. During the past week free health tests have been given at various locations. For those who would still like to take advantage of the opportunity to have their blood pressure and vision tested along with a test for anemia, glaucoma and others, there is still time. On April 5, 6 and 7, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. these tests will be given at Eastland Center. For those who are really interested in their health, a blood chemistry package which consists of 17 tests is being offered for $7. To learn what other special tests are available, call 353-8900 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

This offer seems too good a bargain to miss and taking advantage of it could save considerable expense and discomfort later on if undetected symptoms are allowed to progress.

FOR INSTANCE, glaucoma is easy to detect when caught in the early stages. An estimated 8 million Americans have glaucoma. The sad fact is most don't know they have the disease because glaucoma is an impairment that occurs very gradually. Yet it can result in blindness.

How necessary is it to take such a chance when a simple test could prevent it from happening. Even if the disease is present there are means of controlling the disease including medication and laser beam ther-

Glaucoma takes more than one form. The less common, but most devastating, is narrow or closed angle which hits suddenly. In this instance, there is a structural peculiarity at the front of the eye that can lead to blockage of the tiny drainage channels when the pupil of the eye dilates. For instance, entering a dark movie theater or a rise in body adrenalin because of stress could cause pressure within the eye to double or triple. Without prompt medication blindness might be produced within 24 hours.

Simple glaucoma is more common. It is far less devastating but more insidious. There is no pain or discomfort until too late. Vision remains normal even though pressure gradually rises because of impaired fluid drainage. Over a period of months or years the optic nerve vision gradually diminishes. Peripheral vision gradually diminishes. The victim may find that he is able to see things straight ahead. At this stage, the optic nerve has been damaged.

Although glaucoma can strike at any age, the risk increases with age. If it runs in families the risk is great. Diabetics are also high risks as are those with severe near-sightedness or farsightedness.

The surest way to spot glaucoma early, when damage can be avoided, is by a test such as one given at the Health-O-Rama or by your optometrists.

FORTUNATELY there are many drugs available for glaucoma. There are eye drops that constrict the pupil and open the tiny drainage channels in the eye relieving the pressure. For those who suffer from red, itchy eyes from the drops, there is oral medication.

A new breakthrough in treatment is timodol. Applied to the eye in drop form it is quick-acting and long-lasting. A single drop brings down pressure within half an hour and keeps it down for as long as 24 hours.

When drug control doesn't work, surgery is used. A tiny permanent opening is made through the white of the eye to filter fluid out where it is obsorbed by small blood vessels.

Recently there has been considerable success using the laser in place of the surgical scapel. It is focused with remarkable precision to create tiny dramage holes. It takes only half-an-hour and some patients have driven themselves home afterward. However the best cure is still prevention.

Blood pressure is another health check that can be had at the Health-O-Rama. If you are one of the fortunate ones whose blood pressure is normal then you have no worries for another year. If it is high then you are forewarned to have it monitored at regular intervals.

Oftentimes blood pressure can be controlled by more rest or by weight control. Failing this, there are some new drugs that are effective, safe and have only slight side effects.

It is wise when checking over possible health problems to include a test for diabetes because, like other diseases, the earlier the treatment, the more successful the control.

In a normal person, sugar (glucose) is ingested, metabolized (cleared from the blood) stored and recycled when the body needs it. This recycled blood sugar is the body's principal source of energy. The diagnosis of diabetes has been done largerly on the basis of tests which gauge the rapidity with which the body metabolizes glucose. In the glucose tolerance tests, 100 grams of glucose are given the patient, mimicking the eating of a meal. The presence of glucose in the blood is then determined at half-hour, hour-and-a-half, two hours and 'wo-and-a-half hour intervals. If one reacts to the glucose tolerance tests which an abnormally high blood level, one is diagnosed as diabetic.

When it comes to the heart. if it checks out ok then keeping it that way is a matter of holding the weight down, exercising moderately but regularly and learning to relax. It is important not to get worked up over things that happen to you in your daily life. It's the tense, stress-ridden people who get the coronaries.

A WORD OF caution about exercise-it should be moderate. There are certain kinds of exercise that can precipitate arthritic-like conditions. Running without an adequate warmup, running on paved streets with the wrong type of shoes can be injurious. But a modest amount of physical activity is good. It will keep your back, joints and muscles in good working order and lessen the likelihood of undue stiffness.

Exercise makes you feel good particularly if it's followed by a warm bath. The bath soothes sore muscles and relaxes you generally.

When a hot warm bath becomes a hot tub, a sauna or whirlpool it becomes an exercise supplement.

A hot tub makes you feel good. The heat of the water makes blood vessels open up and muscles stretch out. A whirlpool adds massage to heat. After exercise, it increases blood flow to the muscles and loosens the knots that form after exercise, paricularly if you are just beginning an exercise program. It is sort of a reward for the punishment endured during those first breaking in weeks. It can keep you coming back for more when you feel like dropping out.

In fact, if exercise is distateful, an entire workout can be accomplished in a swimming pool. In the water, muscles work work out while joints are spared strain which is why swimming is the exercise most often recommended for arthritics. Exercises such as running, or cycling work certain muscles and not others. Swimming can tone and strengthen all the muscles of the body.

A physical checkup followed by an earnest effort to treat any illness which such a report may disclose or a firm resolution to maintain good health by eating a good diet, following an appropriate exercise program and not letting yourself become unduly concerned over problems which we all face, can go a long way to adding years to your life and life to your years.

Pursuit nets stolen car, three arrests

It started as a traffic arrest for Grose Pointe Woods police early Banday morning, March 28, and ended up with a foot chose and a recovered Uden auto five hours later.

Woods police spotted a 1976 Chryder two door pull out of an alley near Mack and Littlestone and stop in the middle of the street about 3:30 am Police circled back and spotted the car heading west on Littlestone without lights. When the car stopped in a fire route zone in front of a house, police moved in on the vehicle. reports indicate.

Officers noted three people in the car, one in Iront and two in the back seat. When police asked the driver. Kenneth Brafman, 18, of Detroit, for the license and registration Brafman told police he didn't have his brease with him reports indicate Bratman also told police he was driving his girlfriend's car, and had no registration, reports, said.

Officas noticed Brafman was leaning to the left in the front seat, and when they asked him to leave the car, they saw he was clutching a baseball hat, reports indicate. Police had the three exit the ear, and placed Brafman under arrest for driving without a license

The two other youths, two Detroit nuveniles, asked police if they could be taken to the station with Brafman so they could make phone calls. Both consented to pat-downs before they got into the scout car Police discovered a variety of sockets for ratchet tools, and a pipe for marijuana, police said.

Found in the trunk of the imabunded car were a variety of tools, including a slam hammer, and two fog colored T tops that police said didn't belong with the car.

When the three were asked why the passenger seat was empty, all three said a fourth man had left the car and walked up to the house. Police checked the area and found

At the station, Brafman made a call to the owner of the car, a Detroit female juvenile, who Brafman said had purchased the car recently. The two juveniles were released later in the day to their parents.

Brafman was charged with a traffic offense, driving without a license, never acquired, and was released on

One parent told police the four young people owned the tools in the car, and that the T-tops may have been stolen, reports said.

About 7:30 that morning, the girl came into the station accompanied by a man police said matched the description of the fourth subject involved When asked for some identification the man gave police a name and birthdate and they began a computer check Reports indicate that when the man saw the check being done, he left the building.

The girl told police the two had come in a car they had parked on Mack south of the station. Police alerted area cars and when the girl left the station, she was watched

Reports indicate the girl first headed south on Huntington, then cut back to Mack where she and the man were seen approaching a 1976 black Cadillac Seville. The girl spotted police and the man took off running Police checked the car, and noticed the ignition had been pulled out, and notified the station the car may be stolen, reports indicate.

The girl was arrested a short time

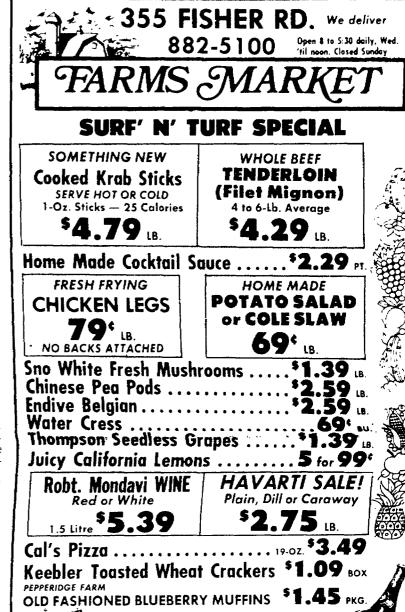

Police began searching the area for the man and spotted him near Moross and Harper. Police gave chase, and ordered the man to stop, but he cut through a back yard, and was spotted later trotting across the parking lot of the Bank of the Commonwealth at Moross and Harper.

When ordered to stop, the man ran across Moross to the Dawn Donuts across the street from the bank. through the parking lot, and down the service drive sidewalk at Harper and I-94, reports said.

By that time, police reports said there were several units in the area including some from Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Farms. When the Woods officer in pursuit lost sight of the man, he was alerted to the fugitive's position by calls from other officers. Woods officers spotted the man, and ordered him to halt. When he didn't a warning shot was fired in the air, reports said. Police said the man fell flat, and was arrested.

The man was released later in the day pending further investigation, police said. The Cadillac was released to its Southfield owner the same day

Housing rehab loans help Park families

Grosse Pointe Park's HUD-funded housing rehabilitation program has helped more than 60 households fix up their homes with almost $440,000 in low-interest and deferred payment loans since the program began in 1978, according to a report submit-ted to the city's citizen advisory board last month.

The primary beneficiaries have been low-income households and those headed by single females, who were the most frequent program participants. Handicapped citizens and the elderly have also benefitted. According to City Treasurer Pam "deferred" loans totalling $232,920 for an average loan of about $5,300 during the program's life. Deferred loans carry no interest and do not have to be repaid until the house is sold or the title transferred to a new owner. The treasurer said the city hopes to establish a fund with those repayments to continue the program into the future.

Kondziolka, the Park has granted 44

In addition to the deferred loans, 19 low interest loans totalling over $200,000 were issued to Park residents as part of the federal 312 Rehabilitation program that has since been discontinued. Those loans carried a three percent interest charge. The program was eliminated by President Reagan.

Park City Manager John Crawford said he thinks the program has had an extremely positive impact on the neighborhoods involved.

"In terms of preserving property values the program has been super. The homes are being upgraded and there has been a significant reduction in the deteriorating influences such as crumbling porches, bad siding and the like.

"For many elderly residents and others, funds for improved energy efficiency have allowed them to continue in their nomes rather than being forced out because of high energy costs," the city manager said.

About two-thirds of the deferred loan customers were in the low income category, under $12,150 a year. Another third were in the medium income range, betwen $12,150 and $19,450 a year.

No minorities (black, hispanic, Asian or American Indian) participated in the program, according to the report.

The city plans to submit an application to continue the program in April The program is administered by the Wayne County Community Development Block Grant office Mrs Kondziolka said there is currently a two to three year waiting list of ap-

Parents surveyed on special ed.

One of the goals selected by the Grosse Pointe Board of Education for the 1981-82 school year is a comprehensive study of the Department of Special Education Services. Services within the department include speech, remedial reading, teacher-consultant, psychological testing, social work service, occupational therapy, homebound teaching, learning resource center and classrooms for the emotionally impaired, educally mentally impaired, trainable mentally impaired and learning disabled. Part of the study involves a survey of the parents of students who receive one or more services in the department. Completion of the survey form indicating positive and/or negative comments is considered to be essential by school administrators. This will provide important information to determine the effectiveness of the department in meeting students' educational needs. All parents who receive the survey forms are urged to complete them promptly.

Cinema League visits Japan

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will present "Sakura" (Cherry Blossoms), a 16mm movie by Robert Matthews, when it meets in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium, on Monday, April 5, at 8 p.m.

Matthews' second film on Japan visits Kyoto, ancient capital of Japan, and center of Buddhism, just as the cherry trees were in bloom. The spectacular Heian Shrine with its massive Torii Gate is photographed, and there are views of its sacred 10th century garden.

The movie visits the wooded hills Nara, the first permanent capital of Japan, where the gigantic bronze Diabutsu Buddha in the Todaiji Temple is shown. Also shown are scenes of the polite Nara deer, who bow to you before accepting a rice cake.

The public is invited at no charge. The social hour following is limited to Cinema League members and their

Students join St. John staff

Dr. Robert E. Birk, director of Health Education and Graduate Medical Education at St. John Hospital, recently announced that 31 American medical students and residents, including three from the Pointe, will join the staff of Saint John Hospital in July. They will replace 34 who are graduating in training programs accredited by the Accreditation Council on Graduate Medical Education in Family Practice, General and Vascular Surgery, Internal Medicine and Cardiology, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Pathology, Pediatrics and Neonatology.

Sixteen of the new residents are from Wayne State University, two from Michigan State University, and one each from the University of Michigan, University of Iowa, Meharry Medical College, Michigan State Uni-versity School of Osteopathic Medicine, Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine, and the University Central del Caribe in Puerto Rico.

Completing the group are six American students who attended schools in Mexico or the Caribbean, two students from the Philippines and one each from Iraq and Syria.

In addition to the residents, four Wayne State University, University of Michigan or Michigan State University first year students spend the summer in the American Medical Student Association for Medical Education and Community Orientation (AMSA-MECO) preliminary training program at St. John Hospital. Thirtyfour second year Wayne State University students spend three months each spring in Physical Diagnosis and Pathology, six third year clinical clerks are trained in Family Practice, Obstetrics and Gynecology and Pediatrics each month.

An average of 20 Wayne State University students take senior elective programs in all specialties each month. Students from the University of Michigan, Michigan State University, South Dakota and many other U.S. medical schools spend one or more months in senior elective programs at St. John.

Program focuses on drugs, alcohol

Ferry Elementary School fifth and sixth graders recently completed a pilot program on substance abuse.

Maxine Willis, a prevention specialist from the National Council on Alcoholism, worked with upper elementary students, along with students and their parents during an evening session. The program called Beginning Alcohol Basic Education Services (BABES), is a primary prevention program designed to help young people make responsible decisions about alcohol and other substances by providing them with factual, non-judgmental information.

The BABES program has received national recognition and is currently being implemented in Bloomfield Hills elementary schools.

The substance abuse presentation at Ferry was preceded by a six-month search for the program designed to suit the needs of the students and their parents. The research was conducted by Ferry PTO Vice-President, Jim O'Shea and President Bob Roney.

School Supt. Dr. Kenneth Brummel attended a final meeting in support of the elementary substance abuse program.

Now our plan has a zero population deviation against the Democrats' plans which do have a deviation. And now the Court changes the rules, in the process wasting a year of time and effort and about $500,000.

We knew the process was legally questionable but the Court had accepted it twice before.

The Legislature has virtually no chance of being able to draft a plan. The Democrats got the Court to adopt their gerrymandered plan ten years ago. And they won't voluntarily give up that huge advantage. I will try, in good faith, to get a Legislative adoption but doubt it is possible.

If we can do nothing, then Bernard Apol, a knowledgeable. honest retired individual, will draw a plan for the Court. If he does have to draw the plan, I only hope it will have very low deviation or it would be subject to challenge in federal court.

The Supreme Court and Mr. Apol should be careful not to go through an exercise in futility and any plan not very close to zero deviation, well below a I percent deviation would probably be overturned by the Federal District Court in Flint which the Democrats would run

Bus service is in jeopardy

The SEMTA bus system that serves the Grosse Pointes as well as other parts of the Detroit metropolitan area offers an excellent example of what is happening to local public services as a result of the financial squeezes being imposed by Washington and Lansing.

To put it simply, the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Board is going to have to do two things to keep operating at even the reduced levels: boost the bus fares and increase the taxes imposed in the area served. SEMTA already has cut its budget, the number of its employes and its services to save $4 million for the rest of the fiscal year ending June 30. But additional revenues still are required to stave off further cuts.

In a recent letter to Mayor Douglas Graham of Crosse Pointe Park, SEMTA's general manager. Gary Krause, warned that "unless a new source of transit funding is found, services could be reduced by as much as two-thirds, as early as the fall of 1982." He said that SEMTA's 380 buses could be cut back to about 100 and the tri-county small bus fleet reduced from 201 to about 50 unless funding remedies are found.

A MAJOR cause of the problem is the reduction in federal aid which has been financing about 30 percent of the funding for SEMTA and the Detroit Department of Transportation, SEMTA and DOT received more than $41 million in federal aid in fiscal year 1981 which ended last Sept. 30 and that figure will be cut to $18.8 million in fiscal year 1983 and to $9.4 million in fiscal year 1984. The federal subsidy would be wiped out in succeeding years under the Reagan administration's plan. In another step to meet the funding crisis, the SEMTA board last week started action to hike the base SEMTA fare by 15 cents which would mean a 90-cent rate for big-bus service. Small-bus service would go up 30 or 35 cents, depending on the type of service, and reduced fares for students, the elderly and the handicapped also would be boosted from 5 to 20 cents.

Assuming the proposals clear a series of hearings, the board plans to impose the new rates July 1. No hearings have been set for the Pointes but one will be held in Harper Woods and another in Roseville. The Harper Woods hearing is scheduled April 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the council chambers April 23 at 1 p.m. at the council chambers in the city hall.

The proposal to raise taxes is more controversial. The SEMTA board is talking about a special SEMTA tax which might be imposed on property, sales or income, subject to voter approval. However, it is believed a sales tax would require a constitutional amendment and another income tax on residents already paying city, state and federal income taxes would appear to be extremely difficult to impose. A new property tax in these times appears to be even less likely to get approval even if the Legislature could be persuaded to put such a proposal on the ballot at the primary election.

The board is still reviewing the form of the tax to be proposed but it already has decided to count the vote on any proposal separately in each of four major subdivisions in the three-county area: Oakland County, Macomb County, Detroit and Wayne County outside of Detreit. If any subdivision rejected the vote, it would be dropped from the area transit system and the tax would be levied and service would continue only in the areas which pass it.

FUNDS FROM a SEMTA tax on license plates and title transfers in the metropolitan area would help matters but that legislation is still tied up in litigation. A new state transportation funding package is being discussed in Lansing but controversies over the state's current funding needs do not offer much hope for any early solution that would be beneficial to SEMTA.

Some people may assume that SEMTA could collect more from bus riders. But Krause said, in his letter to Mayor Graham "If we attempt to recoup a larger percentage of the budget from fares, we will only succeed in losing more money as the system becomes unusable because of prohibitive costs, based on the experience of other transit operators across the country." In fact, a hase rate of 90 cents may already be near the point of diminishing returns.

In these circumstances, the future of bus transportation in southeastern Michigan, and especially outside of the city of Detroit, truly appears to be in jeopardy. Ending this service would be an especially heavy burden on the many people for whom public transit is the only feasible link to their jobs, medical attention and other necessary services. But it also would be damaging to business institutions and public establishments which rely so heavily on SEMTA service. Overall, it would be a serious blow to the Pointes.

In a move to encourage state employes to agree to pay concessions, Gov. William Milliken, top administration officials and legislative leaders have agreed to take a payless week. In doing so, they have followed example of Rep. William Bryant, Jr. of Grosse Pointe, the House Republican leader, who earlier had turned back a twoweek check for $927, plus another check for $75 from a legislative insurance plan that was can-

The political leaders' good example does publicize and emphasize that almost everyone in Michigan is going to have to make sacrifices before the state emerges from its current depression. With layoffs, plant closings, payless pay days and actual cuts in wages, to say nothing of the continuing high rate of unemployment, we're reminded more and more of the conditions of the great depression. Then, too, workers on occasion were asked to make sacrifices in pay and benefits in order to save jobs and spread the work.

Meanwhile, in Lansing, the governor and legislative leaders wrestle with the unpleasant task of trying to balance a state budget in the face of declining revenues and, in some cases, at least, rising demand for services for those who have lost their jobs or suffered other reverses during the economic downturn.

AS THEY debate the unpleasant alternatives before them, the political leaders are still giving top priority to reviewing possible additional cuts in state spending before they decide whether they also will have to seek new revenues to balance the budget. Democratic leaders are going through a list of cuts proposed by Republicans and after their joint analysis both will be in better position to know whether cuts alone will balance the budget or whether new taxes also will be needed.

If it turns out that new taxes will be required, as Gov. Milliken appears to believe, consideration probably will be given to increases in such nuisance or excise taxes as those on cigarets, beer and liquor. Since the federal government now has given up its plan for excise tax boosts, there is more support for such a proposal at the state

Rep. Bryant points out that even if the budget could be balanced this year and next without additional revenue, an increase in the nuisance taxes might be a possibility in order to build up a cash restoration fund and improve the state's cash flow problems.

The other possible alternative is still the increase in the income tax. Gov. Milliken proposed a seven-tenths of 1 percent rate increase but the Republicans, according to Rep. Bryant, have rejected that plan. Instead, they have advanced the possibility of an income tax hike for a limited period but only if it turns out that the budget cannot be balanced by cuts in state spending

In his budget, the governor had proposed raising the state income tax from 4.6 percent to 5.3 percent which, while it would be a fate hike of only seven-tenths of 1 percent, would to an increase of more than 15 percent. He had also proposed earmarking nearly half of the hike for the needs of transportation but that part of his plan already has been eliminated because of the strong opposition to it.

In an election year, the Republicans are especially opposed to a permanent income tax hike and have suggested as a possibility that any hike be written to expire on or before election day. In that way, the Legislature could avoid the criticism that the "temporary" hike might remain as a permanent increase, which is what happened to a 1975 "temporary" increase that became permanent two years later.

IT'S ALREADY clear that whatever plan emerges from Lansing-whether it calls for simply more cuts or more cuts plus new taxes-the prospects are that Michigan's state services will continue to be trimmed back for at least the next year. With a reduction in state aid, municipal and school budgets also will have to be cut. That is bad news for the schools, people on welfare and any others benefitting from state services. But it is a reflection of the hard times the state is undergoing as a result of the sharp decline in the auto industry.

With auto sales still in the doldrums, it is too early to see much light at the end of that economic tunnel through which the state and its people have been crawling for too many months. However, with the advent of spring, dreary as its first sample was, perhaps now we'll see a revival of both hope and business.

Education—A community concern

By Dr. Kenneth Brummel Supt. of Schools

"Education is a Community Affair" is a phrase I hope everyone in Grosse Pointe will be using and thinking this spring. That phrase is the theme for a project of the public school system planned to increase the community's awareness of its public schools and libraries.

The objective of the project is to show the segment of the community which does not have children in the public schools the many fine programs and activities going on in the public schools and libraries, and to explain the services available to the community from the schools and libraries.

There is a lot of evidence that education really is a community affair in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. The six communities have outstanding records of support for education, shown by the many fine schools in the community and the high degree of community participation in school activities and programs.

A few indicators of the extent to which the community's residents value education are contained in the "Statistical Annual Report, 1980-81" of the school system. Information in that report shows that there were over 5,100 enrollments in last year's adult education program conducted by our Department of Continuing Education, while 3,800 more particlpants were involved in co-sponsored activities conducted by that department and other organizations in the community.

Participation in last year's programs and activities sponsored by our Department of Community Services exceeded 12,000, and, in addition, many other persons in the community were able to utilize public school facilities by making arrangements through that department.

Last year, nearly 478,000 public library materials were circulated to over 25,000 registered borrowers, which is 44 percent of the school district's population. The number of library materials circulated per resident was 8.35, and the average circulation of each book in the public library was 3.71.

These few statistics indicate to me that this is a community which values education. Consequently, we are expanding the programs and activities for parents sponsored by our schools during the month of May to include all residents, so that everyone can see how "Education is a Community Affair."

Details about specific activities will be announced in the news media, over the cable television network, and in school publications. Watch for this information, and please visit your schools and libraries in May. You'll

To the Editor:

On March 4 we received a notice of our property re-assessment with a proposed increase of $4,924. Before recovering from this shock (an unbelievable increase in the supposed value of homes for which there are no buyers), I read in The Pointer that the Board of Education is seeking a resolution to appear on the June 4 ballot regarding the possible construction of an enclosed community swimming pool. It is to be located in the scuth end of the district near South High School at an approximate cost of $3.5 million. Furthermore, the board wants to conduct a study of this pool which would cost an additional $125,000 in architect's fees. I resent this insensitive expenditure of taxpayer's money during these difficult financial times.

Does the Board of Education really believe with Michigan awash in a depression and unemployment, with rising income and property taxes, with declining school enrollments that the voter is stupid enough to vote a tax increase against himself for another pool? When people are struggling with inflation and fighting for their jobs, then this consideration is hardly what I consider a priority item. The Board of Education members should come back to the planet Earth if they wish to retain their positions. Have they forgotten that the people in the south end of the district helped pay for the pool at North as well as North itself? Have they forgotten that the pool at North was to be home pool for both schools? Have they forgotten that the estimated cost of building North ended up almost double the anticipated estimate?

To the Editor:

Proposed pool makes no sense

It is about time sports-minded people grow up and get in touch with reality. We in Grosse Pointe already have more parks with outdoor pools, more schools with indoor pools and more support for schools in general than most school districts in all of the United States. We certainly donot need to spend in excess of $3.5 million for yet another pool. About four years ago the administration made the decision that North would be the home pool, for both schools and that South would practice at Brownell. If South's pool is not adequate for competitive swimming, why did the board spend $4,148 installing a diving board there where it can't be used because the ceiling is too low and the pool too shallow? The majority of taxpayers are not even aware of this blunder. Common sense and a little foresight would have prevented this waste of money.

The decision made by the administration four years ago was and still is a good one. Install a diving board at Brownell. Post South High and Eastern Michigan League Records alongside North High and Bi-County's Records at the home pool. Common sense and some hindsight tells the tapayers it will not cost $125,000 let alone $3.5 million.

How about it Grosse Pointe voters? Another pool and higher taxes? Or common sense?

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Sweet Afton is a pale pink rose that grows in the public garden in front of the Grosse Pointe Central Library. It is a favorite of Margaret and Henry Young, of McKinley Avenue, who know intimately all the roses that bloom in profusion for library patrons and passers-by all summer long, for they have been nurturing and tending these roses for the past eight years.

Sixteen rose bushes, including such varieties as Kordes Perfecta, Tiffany, First Prize and Garden Party, grow in the library garden. The bed is officially maintained by the Grosse Pointe Rose Society, but it is Margaret and Henry, society members, who winter protect, prune, fertilize, spray and generally give the library's roses TLC.

The Youngs have lived in The Pointe for 41 years, and have been growing roses for 20 of those years. As a rose fancier, Margaret has a special place in her heart for some old favorites: Queen Elizabeth, a tall, prize winning, dawn-pink grandiflora introduced in 1954 ... Montezuma, a deep coral grandiflora first on the market in 1955 ... Chrysler Imperial, a crimson-red hybrid tea named for Detroit's luxury car in 1952. These are Margaret's choices for the best of roses - but she does admit to liking one newer rose, Double Delight, a redand-white bicolored hybrid tea.

Because of Margaret and Henry's dedication to the care of the public library garden, they recently received a Certificate of Appreciation for Civic Improvement from the American Rose Society, a national organization devoted to educating people about roses and promoting rose culture. Two additional American Rose Society Certificates, for Meritorious Service, were presented by Mary Currie, current president of the Grosse Pointe Rose Society. They went to Kenneth Wheeler and Forrest Geary, for their many years of dedicated service to the local rose society.

A Special Spring Library Series

"Book Collecting for Pleasure and Profit," a series of lectures by and for book lovers, takes place at the Grosse Pointe Central Library on Sundays, April 4, 18 and 25. Each program begins at 2:30 p.m., and because the series is sponsored by the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library, all programs are free of charge.

Joann and Ned Chalat, whose collection ranges from works illustrated by Arthur Rackham to books on shells, speak on "Beginning and Building a Collection" this Sunday. James Babcock, former director of the Detroit Public Library's Burton Historical Collection and owner of James Babcock, Bookseller, will discuss collecting first editions, manuscripts and autographs the Sunday after Easter. He will also provide tips on dealing with dealers and utilizing catalogs.

James Beall, a collector of limited editions, including press books, presents the final program on the final Sunday of the month. He will also discuss books as an investment. Each lecture will be followed by a coffee hour, to meet the lecturers and see representative holdings from their collections on display in the library's Friends' Room.

'Sunday Strolls' to Start Again

Now that winter is (we hope!) over, the Detroit Historical Society is ready with a fourth season of Sunday Strolls through historically/architecturally interesting areas of the metropolitan community. The stroll through Old Grosse Pointe is scheduled for June 13, but this year, before anyone starts strolling anywhere, the Historical Society will launch the season with a pair of slide talks on architecture.

The introductory programs this Sunday, April 4, and the Sunday after Easter, April 18, will be conducted by prominent preservationist and architect Gordon Bugbee at 2 p.m. at the Detroit Historical Museum. They are designed to familiarize strollers with periods, styles and architectural terminology. The first lecture will be on domestic architecture, the second on public buildings and churches. Attendance is limited, and reservations are required.

The 1982 Sunday Strolls program opens officially April 25, with a tour of historic Indian Village and West Village. This guided walk through Detroit's original French farmland area is offered in cooperation with the Indian Village and West Village neighborhood associations, and includes a visit to Whittier Towers and the elegant Van Dyke Place Restaurant.

The other 1982 Sunday Stroll areas, in addition to Old Grosse Pointe, are Elmwood Cemetery (May 9), Downtown East (May 23), Mount Elliott Cemetery (June 27), Historic Fort Wayne (July 11), Hamtramck(July 25), Palmer Woods (Aug. 8), Woodmere Cemetery (Aug. 22), Downtown West (Aug. 29), New Center Area (Sept. 12), Corktown (Sept. 26), Boston-Edison (Oct. 3), Woodlawn Cemetery (Oct. 17) and Masonic Temple (Oct. 31) Cemetery (Oct. 17) and Masonic Temple (Oct. 31).

Tickets for each lecture and each tour at $3.50 per person ($2.50 for Detroit Historical Society members) are available through the Historical Society office, 833-7935. All tours begin at 2 p.m., rain or shine, and last approximately two-and-one-half hours.

Free Orchestra Hall programs

The Friends for Orchestra Hall and the Junior League of Detroit are pre-senting two special programs this month in the free Daytime Performance Series at Orchestra Hall. Third through 12th grade school children, senior citizens and handicapped persons are welcome to attend one or both of them.

The Detroit Symphony Percussion Ensemble performs this Monday, April 5, at 10:30 a.m. and again at 1 p.m. Salvatore Rabbio, principal tympanist of the Detroit Symphony Or-chestra, Norman Ficket, assistant principal percussionist with the DSO and Sam Jundo, formerly principal percussionist with the New Orleans Symphony, now DSO member, prom-ise a complete "in performance" demonstration of more than 50 percussion instruments, including skins, woods and metals.

The 13-member corporeal Mime Theater, Thomas Leabhart, director, will present "The Carpenter" and "The Washerwoman" by Etienne Decroux Tuesday, April 27, at 10:20 a.m. and 1 p m. Corporeal mime, unlike the story telling of pantomine, is more concerned with the expression of the entire body, the study of movement and shape, than with literal content.

Each performance lasts approximately one hour. Those attending should plan to arrive 30 minutes prior to the concert, to facilitate seating.

The Daytime Performance Series was begun as a project of the Junior League of Detroit, which has designated $52,000 to enable senior citizens, handicapped persons and school-aged children to experience fine cultural events at no charge in beautifully restored Orchestra Hall. Approximately 15,000 people have attended 15 such performances. The series is now into

Five coverlets are on display

Five handloomed, blue and white coverlets, all created during the 19th century by itinerant professional weavers, are on display through May in the ground floor gallery of the De-troit Institute of Arts.

One was woven by Abram W. Van Doren, who worked in Avon Township, for Amelia W. Brewster, great-grandmother of Mary Brewster Hoerauf, a Mount Clemens resident who lent it to the exhibition. Another has Masonic symbols woven into the design. Three are in the DIA's per-manent collection; another is an anonymous loan.

The blue fiber traditionally is indigo-dyed wool, often handspun. The white fiber is commercially-spun cotton from Eastern mills. The exhibit is free and open to the public during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

American silver shown at DIA

"Silver in American Life, Selections from the Mabel Brady Garvah and Other Collections at Yale University," a display of 200 objects, from coins and Navajo conch belts to teapots and tankards, reflecting the silversmith's art during the last three centuries, opened at the Detroit Institute of Arts Wednesday, March 24, and will run through Sunday, May 16.

Among the rare and/or unique mas-terpieces in the collection is the earliest known piece of American made Sanderson, circa 1650.

Also featured are three pieces, an engraved tankard, an oval, fluted teapot and one of his famous silver pitchers, by American patriot Paul Revere, plus Jeremiah Dummer's monumental, columnar candiesticks (circa 1680) and an elaborate Monteith bowl (1700-1710) by John Coney, its crenelated rim designed to hold the feet of wine glasses while their bowls chill in ice water.

The display includes a two-handled, covered cup (circa 1690) by Gerrit Onckelbag, a chocolate pot (circa 1710) by Edward Winslow, a graceful, globular teapot (1735-1745) by Jacob Hurd and Simeon Soumain's sugar bowl (1738-1745) based on the shape of Oriental procelain bowls.

Among a number of late 19th and 20th century objects recently acquired by Yale are an 1870 Egyptian Revival pierced spoon, a Renaissance Revival tea and coffee service, two examples of Martele silver made by the Gorham Company, three examples of early 20th century Arts and Crafts style silver and pieces by contemporary sil-versmiths Hans Christensen, Mary Lee Hu, Robert Ebendorf and Stanley Lechtzin.

The exhibition includes examples of silver ores, crystals and ingots as well as silversmith's tools and scales, a painting of a craftsman's shop and a daguerreotype showing the crucial role of silver in photography.
Featured, too, are silver trophies, a

Babies: getting ready to walk

Human babies follow a certain development pat-tern Head control, for instance, leads to sitting balance, and sitting alone prepares the child for creeping Learning to creep then prepares the child for walking.

Left to his own efforts, a child will progress to walking when his body is ready to walk says Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. A number of factors contribute to this walking readiness First of all, a baby's muscles must be strong enough to keep him upright and balanced over his legs and feet. He must have developed certain balancing and protective responses which will protect him from serious in jury during the many falls he will experience as he learns to walk. Through creeping, a baby learns to use his arms and legs rhythmically and alternately while holding his head up to see where he is going The many small bones of baby's feet are not hard like adult bones but are cartilage, which is firm but flexible — like hard rubber. The muscles which support the bones and which eventually hold the arches in place must be strong enough to hold the bones in good alignment when the baby stands on his feet. Left to himself, a baby will creep and pull to a standing position. During this period he just stands with his feet fairly wide apart and turned out for better balance. Later, he will begin to sidestep while holding onto a sup-

Sixten Ehrling, former Detroit able on a limited basis at the door for $4, starting at 7:30 p.m. on concert evenings. Ehrling, born in the Swedish seanort Malmo, began his music lessons at the piano when he was four years old. He studied at the Royal Academy of Music in Stockholm, began his conducting career at the Dresden State Opera and and continued through a 20year association with the Royal Opera in Stockholm. His American conducting debut came with the DSO in November of 1961; he was immediately re-engaged to lead six weeks of the DSO's 1962-63 subscription season. He then served as music director of the DSO for 10 seasons, appearing annually with the orchestra at the summer Meadow Brook Music Festival which the Detroit Symphony helped inaugurate in 1964.

Maestro Ehrling served as music adviser and principal guest conductor of the Denver Symphony during the 1978-79 season; he continues his association with that orchestra as principal guest conductor. In recent years he has headed the Juilliard School's conducting program. He most recently appeared with the DSO last summer at Meadow Brook.

Bar-Illan's first major appearance on the international stage took place in his native Israel with the Israel Philharmonic, under the baton of Dimitri Mitropoulous, who immediately urged Leonard Bernstein to engage Bar-Illan for appearances with the New York Philharmonic.

He has since appeared with the major orchestras of the United States as well as the great European orchestras. He gave the world premier of Robert Starer's Piano Concerto No. 3 with the Baltimore Symphony. He gave the first piano recital at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

He made his DSO debut in 1962 and has appeared with the orchestra on two additional occasions, most recently at Meadow Brook in 1974.

Bar-Illan's recording for RCA of Beethoven's "Eroica Variations" and works by Liszt was chosen "one of the year's best" by the Saturday Review. Recently released recordings include the Schubert Wanderer Fantasy," the Weber Sonata in A flat, the Schumann Sonata in G minor and Liszt's second Ballade and Mephisto port. A baby needs lots of practice in all of the activities — creeping, balancing, standing — which strengthen his muscles, improve his balance and lot of the strengthen. lance, and lead to strong standing and walking positions.

In a walker, a baby gets no stable standing practice. Any random leg movements push the walker from place to of leg movement are not established, and coordinated arm and leg movements fail to develop as they should.

A child who can move in a walker before he has proper balance - and judgment — endangers himself. Once in motion, he may not be able to stop. back up, or control the direction of the walker. Pediatricians report that injuries from a tumble, downstairs in a walker are common.

Simply stated, then, a baby will walk when he is ready. A fat, placid baby usually walks later than an active, wiry baby. Some children walk at 9 or 10 months

Boats displayed at Cranbrook

Model boats from around the world are displayed in the changing exhibition "Selections from Collections' at Cranbrook Institute of Science now through June.

Located in the Hall of Man and Culture, models for viewing in "Paddles and Sails" represent types of boats that actually were used for transportation in such farlung locales as Alaska, Peru, China and Hawaii. Emerging from such simple modes of water transportation as a log, a bundle of logs lashed together to form a raft, or an inflated animal hide are the diverse boat types developed by different people according to and available material.

Shown are Alaskan kavak and oomiak models, birchbark canoes from the Ojibway and Chippewa (Indian) tribes, an outrigger canoe from the Pacific Islands, a junk from China and a Peruvian balsa boat. The ethnographic exhibition prefaces boatrelated activities planned for spring and summer at Cranbrook Institute of Science

CIF will train new volunteers

Cancer Information Service, housed at the Michigan Cancer Foundation, is recruiting volunteers to become Information Specialists for a toll free telephone information and referral system. The next training schedule. STEPHEN T. SCHUCKER, son of MR. and MRS. ROY A. SCHUCKER, of Shelden Road, has been elected each, begins Tuesday, April 20, and each, begins Tuesday. April 20, and continues through Thursday, April 29.

> Volunteers who complete the course will be asked to commit to four hours a week as Information Specialists.

Potential trainees do not need prior knowledge of cancer, although it is helpful. Through the training, they will acquire a number of useful skills. They learn active listening, empathy responses, cancer facts and research trends as well as referral techniques for community resources and services." says Jane Hoey, manager of the program.

CIS is part of a national network of cancer information centers funded by the National Cancer Institute. Its phone lines, accessible to all Michigan residents, will be open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays; over them, volunteers will provide useful, accurate and compassionate assistance to the lay public and health professionals who have questions about cancer.

Anyone interested in becoming part of this volunteer effort is invited to call the MCF, 833-0710, and ask for Volunteer Services.

Mental Health Center Opens Office in the Grosse Pointes

Doing Better with Less: A Lesson for the 80's

By Jonathan L. York, Ph.D. Executive Director

It is indeed ironic that the times when least public funds are available to support mental health services are also those times when funds are most sorely needed. While, as individuals and advocates, we will continue to argue loudly for humane government priorities, the bottom line is that, for the time being, our main task at Northeast Guidance Center is to learn how to do better with less. This problem is more severe in Michigan, for the severe fiscal difficulties of our state have had an impact upon mental health services far beyond any of the changes coming out of Washington. Indeed, until the Michigan economy improves, it is unreasonable to expect anything but more and more cuts in public support.

Just what do government funds do in mental health? Primarily, they allow centers such as Northeast to give help to people who normally wouldn't be able to afford such help. A majority of people do not have insurance which covers mental health services; government health programs, such as Medicaid and Medicare, provide extremely limited benefits. Thus, for the large majority of Americans, most of them employed and productive. there is still no guarantee of mental health treat-

Unfortunately, the government puts a finite, and ever decreasing, amount of money into purchasing these services. For this reason, mental health centers such as Northeast do not offer free and unlimited services; instead, we use a "sliding fee scale" which distributes, in effect, the government subsidy to persons according to their ability to absorb some of the burden of cost themselves. Thus, a mental health center can meet the needs of a broad range of people, while providing the same high quality of service to all, regardless of their income - which is what we as Americans desire of all our health care

At a time like this, when the government is unable to maintain any of its previous commitments to people, and when the public is loath to consider absorbing any more burden upon themselves through tax increases, it is imperative that mental health centers act in an independent and innovative manner in order to survive and fulfill their mission. The crisis of the last two years has taught us at Northeast Guidance Center many valuable lessons. The first, and probably the most valuable, is to lesson our dependence of government funds through developing greater alternate sources of funding. These have ranged from some of the more obvious, such as grant writing and soliciting more private donations, to more individualized approaches, such as developing a division which provides professional management and staff training services to business and industry and opening a new service location in a different part of our community (see other articles in this issue). In addition, we have under study several other diversified service and training programs which will help broaden and stabilize the base of support for Northeast Guidance Center.

Besides innovation, we have streamlined our operations to assure that we are operating in an efficient and effective manner. While we will never be perfect, Northeast Guidance Center has made great strides in the last few years toward becoming a smaller, more efficient, and uniformly high-quality operation; yet, we maintain the same caring and concern in the quality of our health care. Once we have overcome the shock of budget cuts, we have responded by creatively looking at our organization and its mission, and trying harder to provide a high-quality service in a cost-effective and professional manner.

We survive at Northeast Guidance Center only because of your trust and confidence. Because your taxes pay for some of our services, you must be confident that we're doing the best job with that money; because you and your loved ones use our services, you must trust that you're getting the best help possible. Gaining your trust and confidence is our goal in serving you at Northeast Guidance Center.

Have you noticed . . . there's a new and different office on the block . . . the block on Mack Avenue between Lincoln and Fisher Road! Northeast Guidance Center (which isn't really new) has just opened a facility more accessible for Grosse Pointers and Harper Woodsers, at 18134 Mack. NEGC is our local community mental health agency offering services to children and adults residing in northeast Detroit, the Grosse Pointes, and Harper Woods.

Hours of operation initially will be 1 to 5 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, and from 1 to 9 p.m. on Monday. Appointments should be made in advance. Telephone number is 884-7775. Taped instructions will be available on the telephone after hours.

Fees are based on income on a sliding scale from $60 to $5.

Mary Meyer, Director of the Grosse Pointe location, advises that staff will include professional psychologists, social workers, and consulting psychiatrists.

"We are consumer oriented, with a wide range of services for the community," she states. "Of course, we will still provide direct services for the mentally and emotionally ill. And in addition, we are set up to provide life management workshops, and educational assistance with testing and evaluation for children and adults. We will tailor programs to the needs of the community.

Fran Pastoria, Community Consultant, emphasizes, "We want people to understand that perhaps their day-to-day problems may be resolved in one or two sessions, rather than waiting until there is a serious breakdown. Just as one goes to the dentist to deal with an ache, rather than waiting until all teeth have to be pulled!"

The purpose of this office is to provide mental health services for those who haven't used Northeast Guidance Center in the past. According to Ms. Meyer, this newest location will be able to expand on services by using the expertise from other stand that their day to day problems may be resolved in one or two sessions, rather than waiting until there is a serious breakdown. Just as one goes to the dentist to deal with an ache, rather than waiting until all teeth have to be pulled!"

According to Ms. Meyer, this newest location will be able to expand on services by using the expertise from other areas of the Center, in dealing with problems of agin, education, parenting, marital counseling, either in groups or individually.

A very important service is the Professional Evaluation and Testing Service. This may be accomplished without full scale counseling with evaluation and recommendations resulting. Adult testing is available also for those wanting a career change, entering the job market, or vocational and personality testing.

Again, the telephone for Grosse Pointe location is 884-7775.

THE GIFTED:

An Untapped Resource Changing Roles

By David Beery

Children are this country's greatest resource. While much has been said recently about developing our other natural resources, the gifted child has been overlooked. It has been reported that tests were used in China as early as 2200 B.C. to identify talented individuals. However, the United States government only began to identify the need to provide special instruction for the gifted in 1971.

We usually associate the term "gifted" with the much publicized geniuses who enter college at 16, and go on to become nuclear physicists. However, just as all people are different, each gifted child has his or her own likes and dislikes. It appears that the stereotyped view of the gifted child no longer applies today.

What then is a gifted child? Certainly. one factor is above average intellectual ability. However, this potential alone is not enough. Most experts agree that the gifted child must also exhibit superior achievement and creativity.

Northeast Guidance Center's Professional Evaluation and Testing Service offers comprehensive psychological assessment for children and adults. Because we are located on the east side, we are familiar with the academic resources in your area. If you have questions about the gifted or our testing program, please call Dave Beery at 824-8000, extension 246.

WOMEN:

By Mary Meyer and Fran Pastoria

As a woman, do you feel as though you are on a collision course with your life, or do you feel that you are in full control and moving in the fast lane? The first clue is the amount of anxiety you experience in each day, month, or year. Do you say to yourself, "as long as nothing changes in my life, I'll be all right." Then, out of nowhere, life delivers a shattering blow! How do you deal with it? Do you take charge or does someone else?

Change is life's most difficult challenge. We take many precautions to insure the status-quo. We dress alike, we think alike, and we move around in couples. We allow our society, surroundings, and family to dictate not only who we are and what we are, but eventually, what we will become. All the while we may be secretly admiring more independent-thinking persons. This has been our collision course. We must change this pattern by having more control over our lives.

So now what happens to the traditional woman facing these changes? By being thrust into them, she becomes aware that there are various life choices. This may not be comfortable to begin with, but gradually she can see that life does not have to be a dictator. This will involve taking risks, but if the responsibility is there for her own actions, she is free to try anything — to move freely in her everchanging roles.

Parents Want to Know

By Jonathon L. York

People don't come to a mental health center only to get help for someone who has problems. In fact, more and more parents are turning to Northeast Guidance Center for their children not because they think the child has problems, but because they want professional psychological testing to help them make academic decisions which will affect their child's future.

For some parents, this is because they suspect their child is gifted. The school may have already told them that the child is gifted; thus, they want to find out in which areas the child excells and what steps they should take, as parents, to help their child develop his or her full potential. In other instances, the parent and the school are having difficulty reconciling the child's achievement with his or her capabilities, and an evaluation can help them set realistic goals. (For more information on gifted children, see "The Gifted," Page 1.

Psychological testing and evaluation is not always solely for the troubled and/or gifted child. Some parents now choose to have their child tested to help them decide on school placement. Psychological and academic testing can provide important information to the parents and school authorities to help them make these decisions.

The Professional Evaluation and Testing Service (PETS) provides such services to eastsiders, drawing upon the existing expertise at Northeast Guidance Center, along with that of special consultants. The PETS staff quickly and professionally provides the parents, school, or referring physician with the information they want to know, clearly explained and fully analyzed.

Of course, PETS services do not stop at testing for the gifted child and for academic placement. In fact, many persons desirous of returning to the work force or making career changes can gain additional information through a battery of vocational tests and a professional consultation.

Another area of increasing concern is the learning disabilities. For the child who is having difficulty progressing in school, the early identification of a learning disability can be a turning point which leads to successful academic development. The psychologists at PETS work directly with the parents to help them evaluate and understand their child's performance and will make referrals and recommendations for necessary treatment.

Hassle-Free Parenting?

By Mary Meyer, A.C.S.W.

Doesn't that sound like a dream come true? Could there ever be such heaven in your home?

Raising children is frought with problems as well as pleasures. All too often these problems become magnified to the point of family disruption. Our fast-paced, ever-changing society rarely allows for careful thought and planning, especially when it comes to relating to our children's "less than perfect" behavior. Let's face it, we've all wished at times that they'd leave home (or else we could).

How many times, after we've thought about a negative encounter with the kids, have we come to realize that we lost control of the situation? An example: Johnny won't eat dinner and you try every trick in your book to "force feed" him. Johnny really has you jumping; he's in

The thread that ties all this together is communication. How you communicate is just as important as what you communicate. Clear expectations for your child's behavior with natural and logical consequences for misbehavior are a must for any effective parent/child relationship.

It is hard work being a parent, and there was never any training for this job before you got into it. OJT (On the Job Training) is where it's

Mental Health in the Work Place

By Jonathan L. York

White collar productivity is declining in American, say many recent studies. While not as readily measured as bluecollar or industrial output, productivity in the service sector of our economy is extremely important to the overall health of the country. Research has also indicated that the major causes of productivity de-cline in both private and public institutions are factors which are directly related to one's mental health, such as absenteeism, alcoholism, burn-out on the job, family difficulties, etc. Additionally, the failure of many supervisors to manage their subordinates and departments effectively is directly related to their inability to communicate clearly or handle their relationships with others. Northeast Guidance Center has tackled this problem which plagues American business through its Professional Development Center division. By intervening directly with training and consultation in the work place, we enable the organization to move toward better management and higher productivity.

For example, one governmental organization was experiencing serious conflicts in objectives between supervisors and the persons who were directly providing the services. By providing several short, intensive workshops for both levels of staff, we were able to help them better analyze their communication problems and come up with more sound techniques for solving their department's problems. Another business noted that its customer service employees were showing signs of increased on and off job stress as the economy worsened, and is working with the Professional Development Center to prepare a Stress Management Program of workshops for its employees. Another focus of this division's efforts has been the problem of burn-out among nurses and other health care professionals, reflected in the astronomical rates of nursing turnover and short-staffing in the Detroit area.

Because each business' problems are different and can only be defined by an individualized analysis, seminars and workshops are tailored differently for different audiences. In general, though, the universal concepts of communication, motivation, effective supervision, personal and organizational stress management, and team co-operation are emphasized. The results for the business or agency which is willing to seriously examine its problems and potentials can be profitable and productive.

Talking to Your Child About Sexual Assualt

By Fran Pastoria

My eight year old daughter was watching television with her 24 year old Uncle Ray. He was babysitting with her while we were at the movies. Ann is an active child who really likes her uncle because he wrestles with her. That night Ann and Ray had a great time wrestling together during the commercials, but then things got out of hand. Ray asked Ann to take her clothes off while they wrestled. He told her that she could watch TV until 11:00 if she did. Ann thought of all those late programs she doesn't usually get to watch — then she thought about what he asked her to do, and got a "strange feeling," as she put it, and said "no" and went to bed. The next morning she said to me: "Mom, Uncle Ray asked me to do those funny things you told me about." I asked what things, and she said, "Oh, you know take my clothes off, but I didn't do it.-Are you going to tell him not to do that again?" "Yes, I will," I told her, "I'm really glad you told me." She gave me a hug and said, "Well, you know, Mom, he told me not to tell."

There's a Tiger in the Park

By Pamela Wartian Collier

If there is a typical Grosse Pointer, the 24-year-old bachelor who recently bought an attractive English Tudor home in the Park is not it. He is Kirk Gibson, centerfielder for the Detroit Tigers.

Gibson and his dog, Nick, will be moving into their new house soon. Nick, a golden retriever, is not Gibson's only animal. He also owns a horse whose name is Rusty. Rusty will not be moving to the area, Gibson said. "I don't want him to be confined, so I am leaving him in Lapeer."

He has no special hobbies but Gibson loves the outdoors. He hunts in the off-season and enjoys boating on his 27-foot Sea Ray. "I like getting away from it all," he said.

When asked why he bought a house in Grosse Pointe, Gibson replied, "I just like the area."

Gibson, born in Waterford, began playing baseball in elementary school. He continued on into college at Michigan State University where he played both football and baseball. "I decided to play baseball instead of football as a career because of its longevity. I can play longer injury-free. It is also more finan-cially rewarding," Gibson said.

The young ballplayer spent less than two years in the minor leagues. He was brought up to the Tigers last year and played remarkably well after the baseball strike. Gibson finished with a season batting average of .328, including nine home runs and 40 runs batted in Gibson said he does not care if he bats only aza this year, just as long as he can still drive in the runs.

Gibson has missed a few exhibition games this spring due to an inflammed left wrist which he said is still painful. It has not appeared to effect his batting though, as he drove in two runs with a double to tie a recent Tiger game. The Tigers then went on to win it.

Last week George Kell, a Tiger announcer, pointed out that since Gibson now has the reputation of being a good hitter, he will be drawing a lot of walks. Gibson said that this was all right with him. "I want to get on base any way I can and I just need to be patient."

The Tigers' record in pre-sea-son play has not been good, but Gibson doesn't seem to be worried. "We have peaked too early in the past," Gibson said. "We are sloppy now, but it will come together when it counts. I just want to be productive. The Tigers have a real chance to be a contender this year, it is just a matter of execution.

All Pointes drops final swim meet

By Earl Duignan

In perhaps the most highly competitive and spirited dual meet of the year, the All Pointes Swim Club dropped its final dual meet of the season to the Dearborn Heights Swim Club, 299-255.

It was All Pointes' fourth consecutive dual meet setback and lowered the squad's final record to 3.4. All Pointes' Michigan Metro Winter League record ended up on the positive side, as the young east siders captured three of five league encounters.

In the final contest, the two teams wasted no time establishing an upbeat tempo that would prevail throughout the meet. The squads staged a shoulder-to-shoulder duel in the very first event, as the All Pointes 8 and under 100 mixed freestyle relay team of Lisa Williams, David Arbury, Andrew Bucciero and Becca Suzor recorded a 1:04.34 time, only to be touched out by .17 of one second.

In 8 and under individual competition, Suzor lowered the All Pointes girls' 25 fly club record by more than one second to 16.53, but still finished second in that event by .01 of a second. The young east siders did, however, record four wins in this age group. Lisa Williams emerged victorious in the 25 back (20.8) and breast (21.46), while the tandem of Bucciero (16.04) and Suzor (15.06) swept both ends of the freestyle events.

Once again, as it has all year, the 10 and under contingent made a major point contribution by capturing six of nine events. The mixed 200 freestyle relay team of Eddie Suzor, Mike Bucciero, Kathy Wines and Heidi Cartwright took All Pointes' first win in 2:09.75.

Although shut out in the two backstroke events, the visitors rebounded by sweeping both the boys' and girls' fly events, while splitting the breast stroke contests.

In the fly, Dan Shanle recorded a 39.69 in capturing the boys' event, while Wines (36.82) and Cartwright (38.16) finished one-two for the girls. Nora Brooks, who recently took seventh place in the girls' AAU state championships, clocked a 39.55 for the lone All Pointes' 10 and under breast stroke victory.

The final 10 and under victories came in the freestyle as Suzor touched first for the boys (32.11), while Brooks (32.23), Cartwright (32.51) and Kris Peslar (33.73) recorded a rare, one-two-three sweep.

The 12 and under age g two individual winners. Brigid Brooks won the 50 breast in 38.29, while Lynn Benson (1:22.39), Ann Haarz (1:25.23) and Jennifer Orr (1:26.94) posted the second of three one-two-three sweeps in the 100 IM.

In the 14 and under age group, both victories were credited to Sue Benoit as she touched first in the 50 fly with a time of 31.10, then followed with a victory in the 100 yard IM over teammate Kathy Campbell with a time of 1:09.05.

The 18 and under age group contributed six victories in 10 events. The first win came in the 200 mixed freestyle relay when the team of John Cobar, Andrea Francis, Karen Campbell and Steve Henkel came within a fraction of a second of breaking the club record with a 1:45.24 finish. Kathy Campbell followed with a victory in the girls' 50 fly (33.62).

In the girls' 50 back, Francis (34.6) and teammate Sharon Attar (37.93) recorded a one-two finish. The 18 and under boys finally captured a win as Bob Baldwin (32-14) edged teammate Paul Sweany (33.06) in the 50 breast.

The girls closed out the scoring for the 18 and under troupe with a victory in the 100 freestyle as Francis (1:01.57), Sarah Gerhardstein (1:01.-62) and Alice Guarino (1:12.29) recorded the third win place-show finish of the evening.

All Pointes Notes: All Pointes will conclude its 1981-82 competition as the squad travels to the Michigan Metro Winter League Championships at Southfield High School on April 3. The meet, which begins at 9 a.m., matches the two best swimmers from each club in each stroke category.

Smelt dipping is a spring tradition

A smelt-dipping trip is a tradition for thousands of Michiganians who head for lakes and rivers to scoop up bucketfuls during April and May spawning runs, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Entire families and carloads of friends head for their favorite fishing spots and often stand up their chests in 40 degree water all night long to dip for smelt," stated James Drury. Auto Club Travel Operations manager.

Smelt sell for up to $3 a pound at state food stores. Whether broiled in flour or deep-fried in batter, they are considered one of the Great Lakes' best tasting fish. Fifty-three Great Lakes smelt hot spots - including Canada's Point Pelce National Park and the Wheatley area southeast of Detroit -- are listed in Auto Club's 1982 Smelt Guide.

Since smelt runs are triggered partly by snowmelt, this winter's record and near-record snowfalls in many parts of the state should produce an excellent season. Auto Club observers predict. Best runs of smelt averaging eight inches long and weighing about two ounces each usually occur between 11 pm. and 3 a.m. in 42- to 45-degree water temperatures. Occasional runs also occur during daylight hours.

"Lake Huron beaches and tributaries traditionally have been sites of the state's best runs," Drury says. This year, anglers predict best Lake Huron runs between April 13 and

"While many Lake Michigan rivers are spotty, best runs should be from April 15-25," he adds.

In the Upper Peninsula, best Lake

Superior runs occur from the second to third week of May. Along Lakes Huron and Michigan in the U.P., nights from mid-April to early May Peak Canadian activity at Point Pelee usually take place around April 20, but runs could vary by much as a week due to the weather.

Anglers are reminded that hand nets may be used for smelt up to onehalf mile upstream from any river mouth from March 1 through May 31 south of Highway M-72 and from April 10 through May 31 north of M-72. Large dip nets up to 9 feet square are allowed on some streams by permit only. The State Department of Natural Resources 1982 Michigan Fishing Guide should be consulted for further information.

An exciting year for South

Freshman basketball: Often inconsistent and always exciting, South's freshman basketball squad played with a style all its own, racking up a 10-7 season record.

Six weeks into the season, however, it seemed as if a .500 mark would be an accomplishment, as, after an opening win over Notre Dame, the frosh lost four of their next five games. Then several players began to blossom under the watchful eye of frosh coach. Tom Malloy, and the team went 8-3 the rest of the way.

Mike Williams stepped in at forward and led the team to an instant three-game winning streak. Chris Ross, blessed with natural talent, but hampered by lack of size, came off the bench, and, according to Malloy, "proved his worth." John Chase came on to provide inside strength and occasional excellence. It was Chase who scored the deciding free throw in the frosh's thrilling 53-52 four overtime win against Bishop Gallag-

Along the way to their 10-7 record, the frosh provided their fans with some very exciting basketball. An occasional high scoring blowout, such as the 70-37 rout of Bishop Gallagher and the 61-37 drubbing of Anchor Bay, a spine-tingling four-overtime thriller (also against Gallagher), and a startling upset of then 14-0 Warren Tower in a game which was supposed to be a bad mismatch, were among the excitement the freshmen produced during their 1982 season.

Yet the frosh lacked a clearcut superstar and were often horribly inconsistent. Malloy said, "Inexperience was possibly the reason for much of the inconsistency." But, with a successful year under their belts, the Class of '85 will be heard from in future JV and varsity years. (By Kevin Roberts).

South gymnastics: Closing out their season, five members of South's gymnastics team turned in good performances at the March 13 Regional meet held at Troy Athens High School.

Scoring high were Andrea Bay with a 12th on the vault and 13th on the floor with scores of 81 and 7.95, and Karen Howe and Martha Young with 72 and 695 on the beam, good for 17th and 19th places. Others were Phyllis Ayoub with 21st on the vault, and Cookie Stronski with a 22nd on the bars.

The team finished the season with a mark of 7-3, greatly improved over the 3-5 record accumulated by last year's team. (By Dawn Loeniskar).

Banner year for Club

The Neighborhood Club's Youth Basketball Leagues have ended a great season—one in which 429 boys and girls played on 50 teams. Over 234 games were played and each team averaged 11 hours of practice.

Seven teams and 56 players were the result of the Club's third grade instructional league. Emphasis is on skill development and enjoyment in this league — no score is kept.

Fourth graders played in the Collegiate League, which offers the child's first experience at playing in a regular basketball league with no tournament play. The Collegiate League featured five teams and 40 players.

Fifth and sixth grade girls played in the Middle League, where 45 players played on five teams. The Pro League featured 120 fifth and sixth grade boys playing on 12 teams. Each of these two leagues had a championship tournament.

Seventh and eighth grade girls participated in the Club's Midi League, which featured 37 players on four teams. The boys' seventh and eighth grade league is called the Giant League, consisting of four teams and 31 players. Championship tournaments were held in both leagues.

Championship tournaments also decided the outcomes in two other leagues — the Senior League and the Young Adult League. Forty-one ninth and tenth graders played on five teams in the Senior League; 59 11th and 12th graders formed six Young Adult League teams.

Each team participates in at least eight games and 11 hours of practice time. The 50 teams in this season's league put in over 650 hours of practice. The Neighborhood Club also held a pre-season basketball clinic for fourth through sixth graders to help with skill development.

Games and practices were held in Grosse Pointe public school gyms and Neighborhood Club program director Greg Brynaert extended his gratitude to the school system for the use of the facilities.

North swimmers finish at 8-5

North coach Les Roddis' swimmers finished the season with an impressive 8.5 record. North won the Bi-County Championship to highlight the year.

In state competition the team finished 15th overall on the strength of Bob Luberto's seventh place finish in diving and Joe Schmidt's fifth in the 500 freestyle and 11th in the 200

Outstanding performances were turned in this year by three-time All Bi-County champion Joe Schmidt and two-time victors Jim Strong, Mark Stoyka and Tom Cobau. Divers Bob Luberto and Rich Causley also had outstanding seasons. Stoyka is a senior, while the other swimmers are juniors. (By Paul Regelbrugge).

'Sunshine Boys' visit Stouffer's

"The Sunshine Boys," Nell Simon's popular comedy, is the fourth show of the season at Stouffer's Eastland Dinner Theatre, which opened last month and will run Friday and Saturday evenings through Saturday, April

The play tells the story of Al Lewis and Willie Clark, two aging vaudevillians, who are reunited after an 11 year retirement to perform one final time on a network television special. The only drawback to the reunion is that they can't stand each Portraying Willie Clark is veteran Grosse Pointe actor John Diebel. Diebel has taken leading roles in "Knock, Knock" productions of (Cohn), "Fiddler On The (Tevye), and "The Passion Of Dracula" (Van Helsing). Diebel is also a composer, and is currently complet-ing work on two musicals, "Emilie" "Storyville."

Harry Stutt takes on the role of Al Lewis, Stutt is a longtime member of Grosse Pointe Theatre and has appeared in "Never Too Late" and The Pleasure Of His Company." He is also a theatrical technician.

Dennis Moore, who received his M.A. in theatre from U of M, portrays the role of Ben Silverman, Willie's nephew. Moore has worked at the Crucible Theatre in Sheffield, England where he created the title role in the world premiere production of "Underwood's Finest Hour" by Monty Python's Terry Jones and Michael Palin.

Also in the cast are Kathy Morris, who takes on the role of the Vaudeville Nurse in addition to being the production's Stage Manager, and longtime Grosse Pointe Theatre member Gigi Gaggini as the Registered Nurse The production is under direction of Mary Lou Johnson who has been involved with Stouffer's Eastland Dinner Theatre in many capacities since its inception in 1980. Price for the evening is $17.50, which includes dinner, show, tax and gratuity. Group rates and performances are available. Cocktails are at 7 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m. and the show following at 8:45 p.m. Stouffer's Eastland Restaurant is located between Kelly and Beaconsfield roads at 18000 Vernier Highway Call 371-8410 for reservations-

Tigers are said to be fiercer fighters than lions. There's a reason, The lion stands on three paws and strikes out with one. The tiger stands on two paws and strikes with two.
