City leaders let district court legislation die

The deadline for Grosse Pointe to join the state-wide district court system came and passed this week with only one council, the Park, endorsing the conversion. As a result, legislation combining the five cities in a one-judge district has expired and the Pointes will remain, along with East Detroit, the only Michigan cities to operate municipal

The conversion to district courts is part of a state effort to create judicial uniformity so that it can eventually take over local court operations and financing. Because of their proximity to Detroit, some area leaders fear the Pointes stand a chance of being combined with Detroit's district if the legislature should decide to complete the state conversion by abolishing municipal courts.

State Sen John Kelly (D-Detroit) introduced legislation creating a Grosse Pointe district court that was approved by both chambers and signed by Gov. Milliken earlier this year, conditional on support from the five city councils. Local support for the legislation waned, however, after a $7,000 Coopers & Lybrand accounting study showed the new court would cost the cities about $200,000 a year more than they now pay for court operations

Park Councilman Anthony Spada has been consistent in his support of the new court. He said at the May 10 council meeting that the Coopers & Lybrand study is "open to challenge" and recommended the council approve a resolu-tion supporting the new court "even though it is an exercise

"I WANT THE legislature and everyone else to know that the Park has been resolute during this entire fray about working with the state to form our own court," Spada said. "I don't know what repercussions there will be in the legislature down the line. But we know the court is inevitable."

Elected leaders in the other four Grosse Pointes said an emphatic "no" to the district court at meetings last week. All cited the added financial burden predicted by Coopers & Lybrand in its study as the primary reason for their deci-

In its resolution, approved at a special meeting May 5, the Grosse Pointe City council sought to present a positive approach to the eventual, inevitable formation of a district court in the area, according to City Attorney Richard Hinks, who drafted the document.

"We want the legislature to know we're not just brushing them off, but think there may be a more appropriate time in the future to do this when the state will be able to pick up some of the costs," Hinks said. A district court "is a very nice activity," he said, "but we just don't have the money to pay for it."

THE COUNCILMEN also praised Sen. John Kelly (D-

Detroit), who wrote the district court legislation, for the time and effort he put into discussions of the court conversion "The council recognizes the hard work, diligent effort and concern for the public welfare that Sen. Kelly has demonstrated," the resolution said. It was approved unanimously by the council.

Grosse Pointe Shores trustees approved a resolution of opposition at a meeting on May 6. The Woods voted 6-1 to oppose the court at its regular May 4 meeting. Woods council member Jean Rice cast the disenting vote and was the only elected official in the four cities to do so.

The Farms resolution, also approved unanimously at a May 6 special meeting, cited the Coopers & Lybrand conclusion that the court would have a negative economic impact on the Pointes and noted the city and the state are "in no position to assume the added financial burden of a district court system.

Farms holds the line on taxes

Grosse Pointe Farms administrators have proposed holding taxes to last year's level in a 1982-83 budget that will be presented at public hearing next Monday, May 17, at 8 p.m.

Projected costs for next year are up 6.4 percent over last year. But City Manager Andrew Bremer proposes using up most of the city's $500,000 general fund surplus to make up the difference. The council has been asked to reduce the tax rate from last year's 13.93 mills to 12.71 mills to compensate for increases in property values. The net result will be no increase in taxes.
(A mill equals $1 for every $1,000 of assessed valuation.)

"Our administration has struggled to hold the line on costs," Mayor Pro Tem Lloyd Semple said in an inter-view. "I just think in this economic climate it's our duty to keep the tax

The budget projects spending about $5.3 million next year in the general fund. That includes $1.3 million on public works, $1.2 million on police protection, $712,000 on the fire department, $400,000 on administration and $270,000 on recreation.

Departments with the largest percentage increase in spending over last year are fire, at 10 percent, public works at 9.4 percent, police, 8.9 percent and administration, 7.9 percent.

Most of the revenue to support the general fund, $3.4 million, will be collected from Farms homeowners and businessmen in property taxes. The city also expects to receive about $498,000 from the state in shared revenues and $40,000 from the federal revenue sharing fund.

Fire raged through the wood-shingled roof of a Three Mile Drive mansion last Thursday. May 6, keeping firemen busy for more than six hours as it reignited again and again in the attic of the 1928 structure. The homeowner, Grace Detwiler, 95, was carried by police from her second floor bedroom as firefighters from the Park, City and Farms doused the stubborn blaze. Police also rescued her Siamese cat. No one was injured. Park fire Chief Phillip Costa said he thinks the blaze may have started in a wall by an electrical short. It spread quickly because the 54-year-old roof was extremely dry, he said. Most of the roof was destroyed but damage estimates were not available. The house is valued at over $650,000. The fire was under control within two hours, but officers remained on the scene for almost seven hours, sifting through considerable debris and rubble for burning embers.

State ok clears way for parking deck, Hill project

By Tom Greenwood

The Michigan Department of Public Health announced Monday, May 10, the approval of a series of certificate of need (CON) applications sub-mitted jointly by Bon Secours and Cottage Hospitals that include the construction of a $3.9 million, four-tier parking deck on Muir Road. Other projects approved include the shared purchase and use of a Computed Axial Tomography scanner (CAT), the consolidation of obstetrical and newborn services at Bon Secours and the addition of 20 psychiatric beds at Cottage.

The announcement was made jointly at a news conference by Bailus Walker, Jr., director of the Michigan Department of Public Health, David W. Benfer, executive director of Bon Secours, and Ralph L. Wilgarde, administrator of Cottage Hospital.

State approval of the projects brought to a close a series of delays that have plagued the hospital's plans for the Hill parking dec conception. The delays included court injunctions preventing the issuance of CON's briefly during the last year by three hospitals fighting consolidation in the state's debedding plans; repeated cancellation of various boards of review because of bad weather this past winter and revised proposed resolutions for adoption by the governing bodies of hospitals in overbedded areas of the state.

Among those highly interested in the approval given the parking deck are the builders of a proposed three-story office-retail building on Kercheval Av-enue which cannot be erected without the Cottage parking deck to handle the to a hospital spokesman. additional parking.

Peter Bologna, partner in the 81 Investment Company, proposed builders of the retail-office building was happy with the state's decision.

"That's great news," he said, in a telephone interview, "We're delighted with the news. Cottage is now able to put the wheels in motion and we can

In turn, members of the Hill Merchants Association would like to see chants Association would like to see the deck built to allow groundbreaking of the new retail building. Merchants are hoping the new building will help stimulate business on the Hill. The Farms Council last year granted a 10-year tax abatement to the proposed builders of the retail building.

Without the state's approval, the work of private investors, Hill merchants and the Farms Council would collapse like a row of dominoes.

SPEAKING AT the news conference, Wildgarde said the parking deck construction "was several months down the road." He added that the hospital was still working on a design and arranging financing.

In a joint statement, Benfer and Wildgarde said the CON awards for other projects were significant be-cause they represent the first cooperative ventures of two non-merging hospitals following guidelines for state mandated health services planning for the general good of the community.

The administrators went on to say that the $1.6 million cost of scanner will be shared on a 60 percent (Bon Secours) — 40 percent (Cottage) basis, with the scanner located at Bon Controls necessary to analyze and interpret the data will be located in both hospitals, with images generated at Bon Secours instantaneously available to radiologists at Cottage via a shared linkage system transmitted by Grosse Pointe Cable, Inc.

The unit will be the most advanced on the east side of the metropolitan Detroit area, the hospitals said. There is another CAT scanner at St. John Hospital, but officials report a two to three week wait for Bon Secours and Cottage patients to gain access to the St. John unit.

Forget the birds, bring on the bees!

By Tom Greenwood

Two Detroit area men have a honey of an idea. Gerry Adams and Jerry Catana have been mailing "wanted" posters to all the Grosse Pointe police

The culprits they hope to capture wear yellow and black striped suits and are everywhere . . . Bees.

"We're coming off a long hard winter that's been tougher on the bees than on us," said Adams, over the phone. "A severe winter and a weak queen will kill off half of most hives. When it warms up they begin to swarm, sometimes in trees, cars, garages or backyards.

"One Pointe family had them living in a chimney. When it rained, they all flew into the living room. When we arrived the lady of the house and her dog were sitting on the front porch. She didn't know what was going to happen. We used an oxygen depleter to kill them off. It was the only way."

Adams and Catana don't like to kill the bees. Both are avid apiarists who maintain a small number of hives on farms further out from Detroit. To them it's just a hobby, since at least 1,000 hives are needed to make money from selling honey.

They had been buying hives from a major bee distribution firm in Alabama where, believe it or not, bees are sold by the pound. An average purchase is a three-pound hive for $18.

"They're sent in a screened box through the mail," said Catana, a muscular man with auburn hair. Most of the workers are on one side with a drip container of liquid sugar. The queen, along with seven workers, is screened in a seperate compartment with a piece of rock candy. She has to be separated or the mass of worker bees would inadvertantly crush her.

"We finally got smart and decided to do people a service and save money by collecting bees for free. If we have to destroy the swarm for some reason, or rid a home of wasps or yellowjackets, there is a small charge. Usually less than a professional exterminator would charge.

Adams and Catana estimate they made about 10 trips into the Pointe last year to recover unwanted swarms. Apparently the area is very popular with bees because of large gardens, old trees and wooden houses with gabled roofs.

IT'S TIME FOR

CLASSIC STYLE.

Three new classes meet during May

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial will offer classes about home computers, picture framing and bridge during May. Registrations are handled at the center's office, 32 Lakeshore Road, where classes meet. Call 881-7511 for information.

Marguerita Ibarluzea will teach picture framing at the War Memorial on Thursdays, from 7 to 10 p.m. through June 24. The evening class will be held in the lower level of the art studio and will allow the students to properly select the correct color matting and framing that will add to the beauty of the picture being framed for far less than having it done professionally. Ms. Ibarluzea is a member of the faculty of Our Lady Star of the Sea. The course fee for eight weeks is $39.

Frank Welcenbach will teach both beginning and refresher classes in bridge at the War Memorial this spring.

Welcenbach is active in Metro Detroit Bridge circles and has been a teacher with Grosse Pointe public schools for many years.

Cost for the 10 lessons is $26. Beginning bridge class meets Mondays, May 10 to July 26, and the more advanced refresher bridge class on Thursday evenings, May 13 to July 22. Both classes meet from 8 to 10 p.m. The courses use the Goren System of Contract Bridge and will begin with one hour of instruction followed by one hour of play.

A course on home computers will meet Wednesdays, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., beginning May 12 through June 16. Students will learn the potential use of new small computers for home or office use. The class will explore the future of mini-computers in the American home and business and methods of selecting a personal computing system. The class is designed for those who recently purchased or are planning to purchase a small computer. Demonst-rations of various models will be handled by instructor Thomas Pointe, a Wayne County Community College instructor and sales manager for Computer Mart.

The six-week, two-hour course is $55.

Art auction is fund raiser for Jaycees

The Harper Woods Jaycee Auxiliary will hold an art auction Thursday evening, May 20, in the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library, 19601 Harper. Proceeds from the auction will be used to purchase more infant restraint seats for the Auxiliary's "Buckle Up Babes" infant car seat rental program.

The auction will begin at 7 p.m. with a preview in the library's lower level. Auctioning begins at 8 p.m. Fine Arts Posters, Inc. a private studio from Detroit, will present more than 100 posters. Most museum-mounted, but some unmounted and framed pieces will also be available. Prices will range from $5 to $100. Designs will range from contemporary to traditional, including landscapes, stills and florals.

Refreshments will be served during the evening. In addition, there will be a drawing for a door prize of a framed art work valued at $100. The winner need not be present to win.

Infant car restraints and child restraints are mandatory under a Michigan law which took effect last April 1. Automobile accidents injure more children each year than any disease or other type of accident, the

Tickets for the auction are available at the door for $2.50 donations which cover admission and door-prize drawing. For more information, call 839-2963 or 882-4954.

The men usually try to harvest the swarm at night, when the insects are calmer and all the bees are in the hive. Some jobs are fairly simple, usually sawing off a tree limb laden with the swarm and dropping it into a

Others are more difficult. Adams once worked for two days chopping a hive out of the walls of a home where the bees had been gathering for

"I'd say the hive was five by three feet big and contained 120,000 to 150,000 bees," said Adams. "We carted off 80 to 90 pounds of wax and honey. Once they're in the walls you really should chop them out. We can kill them, but that won't end the problem. Once another bee smells the honey he'll go back to his hive, do a little dance and you suddenly have thousands of new friends living in your

Both men agree that bees are usually placid, peaceful insects with a live and let live attitude. However, they still protect themselves with long sleeved shirts, gloves and veils when working. But when things go wrong, even protective clothing doesn't help

Adams was once stung 60 times in about three minutes while Catana received 40 in a two-minute span. Both men said they felt woozy and light headed from the venom.

"It wasn't the bees' fault," said Adams. "I accidently hit their hive with a box while climbing a pine tree to get at them. They got angry and responded.'

With Catana, the bees were stirred up when kids knocked over their hives.

"Some colonies are naturally hostile though," said Catana. "I have two that start attacking if I drive within 50 feet of their home. You can see them bouncing off the windshield of the truck. They mean business."

Usually however, the bees rarely cause any trouble. Both men keep small hives in their back yards to educate children to the ways of nature.

"All summer long, we had only two stings to my kids and one to my Beagle," said Adams, with a smile. "My neighbors were all bragging about how beautiful their flowers were and how their gardens were flourishing. My bees did it all." Adams, who works full time at Ford, became interested is bees about nine years ago when he worked part time for a bee keeper. Before his employer retired, he gave Adams two hives to work with and he's been bitten by the bee-bug ever since. Catana, a construction worker, is a life-long friend of Adams and would call him when bees came ento a construction site. One day he took a closer look at the winged warriors and began collecting colonies himself.

Both are fascinated by bee society and the beneficial nature of the in-

"Honey is a pure food," said Catana. "They've found 2,000-year-old honey in Egyptian tombs that was still good. It's used as an antiseptic against infections and in many countries people bind wounds with honey to help them heal

"Honey will also soften your hands. My hands get very rough and sore from construction work. After I work with my bees, they're soft and smooth The best honey in the U.S. is sourwood and it comes from the south. You can't buy it here," Catana said.

"My personal favorite is Buckwheat honey. It's very dark with a purplish tint to it. Next best is clover and alfalfa. Most of the supermarkets in "This is a case we'll take as far as possible within the judicial system," Killeen said of the appeal. "We'll use every means possible to prevent the raping of the taxpayers under this guise of a labor organization claiming to protect the worker. In truth, this is an extortion attempt equalling the infamy of Al Capone.

The economic crisis in the county which is facing a $17 million deficit, may make the law suit "a moot question," he pointed out.

Cutbacks will have to be made to erase the deficit, Killeen said, and the layoff of some Road Commission executives is probable. That, he said, would undermine the union before the accelerated judgement from the Court

Commission draws new county districts

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Facing a Monday, May 17, filing deadline for precinct delegates, the Wayne County Apportionment Commission was expected to approve a new reapportionment plan when it met Wednesday, May

The new plan was necessary after the Michigan Supreme Court handed down a four-part, 66-page opinion which upheld in part an earlier Appeals Court decision calling for a new

The redesigned Holley plan, first approved by the commission in January, was submitted to the fivemember commission Friday, May 7. The commission handed it over to staff for final work and expected approval Wednesday.

The commission decided to modify the Holley plan rather than look for an entirely new redistricting plan, citing the need for speed. The commission decided that no other plan could or would be considered if the county were to meet the May 17 deadline set by the Supreme Court, according to the county information office.

The plan agrees with the two major requirements of the Supreme Court decision. It limits itself to a 11.9 percent variance in population among districts and splits no boundaries of cities and townships, except for Detroit.

The Supreme Court set the 11.9 percent variance as part of its ruling on the county's appeal of an court of Appeals ruling. The Appeals Court earlier threw out the Wayne plan because it did not strive for mathematical exactness. The Supreme Court disagreed and said that mathematical city and township boundaries was more important than mathimatical exactness

'We thus conclude" the court said in its majority opinion, "that commissioner district lines be drawn to preserve (boundaries) ... without exceeding the range of allowable divergence under the federal constitution (11.9 percent). Between two or more alternative plans, which comply with that standard, compactness and squareness in shape to the extent pacticable shall govern.'

The First District, which lumps the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and northeast Detroit in a 156,000-person district, may be thrown out by the court based on the squareness and compactness rule, Killeen said.

While the First District did not change under the modified Holley Plan, the area which instigated the appeal in western Wayne County has undergone major revamping.

Other changes in the redistricting will join Ecorse and River Rouge with southwest Detroit, and combine Hamtramck and Highland Park with Detroit districts.

While Killeen is hopeful the plan will go through because of the necessity to get precinct lines drawn before the May 17 deadline, the plan will face appeals, if approved, by two western Wayne county commissioners who argue that Detroit has received a majority in one more district than called for, based on the city's majority of population in the county.

The program is aimed at 18 to 21 year-olds who are either unemployed or underemployed and qualify under CETA requirements, according to

The Youth TRANS Program requires the city to look for an employer who needs trained personnel. The city then contacts the company, sees if it is willing to train and then later hire the program participants, McNamara said.

To our friends in Grosse Pointe:

Charterhouse is changing. But in many of the most important ways we're still the same.

Over the years our interest and expertise in estate jewelry has grown. Our reputation as estate jewelry specialists is nationally known. Estate jewelry means classical jewelry, those pieces from a few months old to dozens of years old that will always be in style. Many of our pieces we purchased from estates through major banks and important law firms. Others we bought from private owners. Each of our estate pieces has already proven itself to be of lasting beauty and value. To us estate jewelry is more beautiful and exciting. And represents far better workmanship and value than most newly made jewelry. The prices on fine estate jewelry are significantly lower than new jewelry. People who understand value are now buying estate jewelry, and the demand for fine pieces is stronger than ever.

As a result we've decided to specialize in the buying, selling and appraising of estate jewelry, and we are discontinuing the sale of most new jewelry. We still have a large inventory of beautiful new pieces that we are selling AT OUR COST until it's gone. We suggest you come in and take advantage of the SAVINGS OF 50% AND MORE!

Of course we will always have a large estate inventory of engagement rings, earrings, pendants, bracelets, pins and necklaces for you to choose from. (Remember, 'estate' doesn't always mean 'old'. In fact, we often disassemble the less stylish older pieces and use their beautiful diamonds and precious stones to make up modern pieces. These 'new' pieces can then still be sold at estate prices.

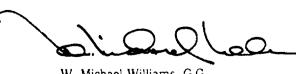

Our main emphasis is still jewelry and silver, but we have expanded our interests to include the purchase of fine porcelain, bronzes, paintings, old clocks, pocket watches, wristwatches, and especially objects of Art Deco and Art Nouveau.

We still offer a complete jewelry appraisal service.

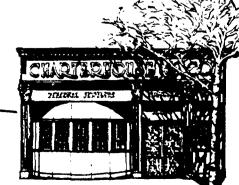

Our doors are still open to the public during regular business hours, or you are welcome to make an appointment.

We're still in our antique oak paneled store in the Village. In fact we've just purchased the building and are in the process of making the decor even more elegant.

Come visit us soon and learn more about the new Charterhouse.

W. Michael Williams, G.G President

P.S. An important part of our new estate jewelry service is buying jewelry from the public. If you have some jewelry that you have considered selling or trading in, we'll pay an extra 20% for it now through the end of June.

Summer music festival plans star-studded 25th season

By Irene Moran

Plans for the Grosse Pointe Music Festival's 25th anniversary season celebration were announced by artisitic director Alex Suczek at a recent wine and cheese party held in the Lakeshore Road home of Mrs. Anthony Vermeulen.

The 1982 festival begins on Sunday, June 27 and continues on for consecutive Wednesdays from July 7 to June 28 Curtain time is 8 pm

All performances will take place in the Fries Auditorium of the War Memorial Center, 32 Lakeshore Road, with the exception of the closing July 28 concert which will be held outdoors.

At the wine and cheese party, holding a slightly yellowed program, Alex Suczek, founder of the music festival, recalled the festival's first season of July, 1958. It listed three chamber concerts, held in the courtyard of the Memorial's Alger House.

"Artistically, musically and with emphasis on family fun appeal, the festival has become a real institution" said Suczek "We have had first class artists and 'people support,' and that makes the festival special and distinguished."

Mrs. Sterling S. Sanford, of Grosse Pointe, has been general chairman for the last several years.

"We invite all metro Detroit communities to join us in our silver cele-bration," said Mrs. Sanford, "and as always, there's something for everyone's musical taste."

The festival opens June 27, with the Young Artist Debut Concert which will feature pianist William Ransom, the recent Recital Award winner of the second annual Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival Piano Competition. Ransom, 24, well on his way to a successful musical career, will be leaving in July as winner of the Rotary Foundation Award for a year's study at the American International Institute in Tokyo, Japan. He will also be concertizing throughout Japan and learning

Ransom was a scholarship student of William Masselos at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City, where he earned both his Bachelor the Masselos at the Juilliard globe.

He has appeared in special invitational concert at the White House and and Master Degrees. He also attended the Ravel Academy in St. Jean de Luz, France, where he studied on a full scholarship with Mme. Gaby Casadesus. Currently he is a Doctoral candidate at the University of Michi-gan School of Music as a full scholarship student of Theodore Lettvin. For his festival recital program he will play selections by Chopin, Bach, Debussy, Ravel and Liszt.

Pianist Ruth Laredo returns to the festival stage on Wednesday, July 7. She was one of the seven artists who performed at the festival's premiere. Born in Detroit, Ruth Laredo's early piano studies were with Detroit's pianist laureate Mischa Kottler. She attended the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia where she studied with Rudolf Serkin.

Ms. Laredo has achieved distinction on three continents with concerto and recital performances and many recordings. She has appeared as soloist with practically every major American orchestra, including the New York Philharmonic, Cleveland and Philadelphia Orchestras, Boston, Detroit, National, St. Louis, Indianapolis and Baltimore Symphonies and Buffalo Philharmonic.

In 1978 she was nominated by the Ladies' Home Journal as Woman of the Year. Her festival recital program will include works by Chopin, Beeth-oven, Scriabin and Ravel.

An evening of chamber music will be played on Wednesday, July 14, by the Tocco-Staples-Chanteaux Trio. Its members are pianist James Tocco, violinist Gordon Staples and cellist Marcy Chanteaux. Their program will consist of selections by Beethoven and Ravel

Pianist Tocco was heard in a recital at last year's festival. Tocco, a native of Detroit, has played in recitals and with virtually every major orchestra

at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. He has been soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Washington National Symphony, the Detroit, Atlanta and Baltimore Symphonies, the Munich Philharmonic, the Austrian Radio Symphony, and many

Violinist Staples was instrumental in helping found the Summer Music Festival and was one of the seven artists at the festival's premiere. Staples was named concertmaster of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in 1968, and has frequently appeared as soloist with the orchestra Staples was born in Los Angeles and began playing the violin at age 6. When he was 10 his family moved to Vancouver, Canada, where he studied with Gregori Garbovizky. He was only 12 when he began concertizing and at 14 he was made staff soloist for the Canadian Broadcast Company. His further studies were with Jami Santo at the Philadelphia Academy of Music, from which he was graduated, and with D. C. Dounis in New York. He concertized extensively in the United States, Latin America and Canada before joining the Detroit Symphony in 1955.

Ms. Chanteaux, cellist, was heard in the festival's 1980 season when she appeared with her colleague Staples and pianist Leonard Pennario in a chamber recital.

Chateaux, born in Aberdeen, S.D., received her early musical training in piano, harpsichord and cello. She was awarded the National String Compe-tition Award when only 16. She was cellist with the Washington National Symphony before joining the Detroit Symphony Orchestra as a pianist in 1970, and a year later became its official pianist. After four years she moved to the cello section and in 1979 (Continued on Page 6A)

The season's closing outdoor concert on Wednesday, July 28, takes on a change of pace. It will feature the Royal Canadian Legion Band from Stratford, Ontario. The 45-member band of men and women, conducted by Paul Cross, will perform on the lakeside terrace of the Memorial's Alger House. "Sousa" marches will be played in all their glory along with other military selections and music from Broadway hits including

There will be a special attraction of three marching bagpipers and drum-mer from the Royal Canadian Regiment, colorfully attired in full dress uniform with kilts. The musical extravaganza will include audience participation.

In the event of weather not permitting the show moves into the Fries Crystal Ballroom. Picnic box suppers are $5.50 each by prepaid reservation three days prior to each concert date.

Festival-goers are welcome to arrive as early as 6 p.m. for pre-concert pic-nicking on the lakeside lawn or termanager. In case of rain, picnics move indoors.

The regular series of five concerts is priced at $37. Single concert admission is $9 per person, with the exception of the Young Artist Debut Concert, which is $6 (all reserved seating). Lawn admission for the Royal Canadian Legion Band concert only is $4 (bring own blankets and folding chairs). Children and student tickets (age 18 and under) are half price. Harper-Grace Hospitals is proud to be an important part of the American health care system. During this National Hospital Week we salute the people who help make Harper-Grace a very special place.

A heart attack that would have been fatal only a few years ago may prove only a temporary setback now, thanks to our people, technology and facilities. Patients owe their lives to advances such as ultrasound technology, portable balloon pumps for the heart, new techniques in cardiac catheterization and the newest procedures in open heart surgery.

Because of other new surgical methods, the accidental loss of fingers, a hand or even an arm or leg may no longer be permanent. Harper-Grace surgeons routinely reattach them with the aid of a microscope and incredibly tiny instruments.

Harper-Grace's nationally recognized cancer program is also making giant strides. Progress includes developments such as a space-age radiation oncology center, germ-free intensive care unit, bone marrow transplant program and extensive research activities.

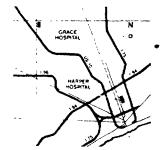

The famed Kresge Eye Institute, a joint endeavor of Harper-Grace Hospitals and Wayne State University, attracts patients from all over the world who come for treatment of every known eye problem.

Harper-Grace Hospitals, the largest teaching hospital for the Wayne State University School of Medicine, pledges to the people of Michigan its continuing commitment to care for patients, perform research and provide medical education. These developments and more make us a place for all reasons.

Prime Time

For Senior Citizens-

By Marian Trainor

This is traditionally the season of graduations, a time when thousands of successful degree candidates will be awarded diplomas in solemn ceremonies. Speakers will laud their accomplishments and predict the great contributions, they are now equipped to make to society.

But for a group of 20 women and two men who have spent 12 weeks preparing to serve the community, graduation day has come and gone. It was not a large class compared to the numbers that make up the graduation roles in colleges and universities, but a unique class whose sole purpose was to serve their peers.

Designed and implemented by Elizabeth Williams, gerontology professor at Mercy College, the program prepared the students to serve as volunteers in educational settings or project agencies dealing with the elderly in the Detroit area.

Not only was the program the first of its kind, but the class makeup differed from the usual students found in the traditional class membership. The students were all senior citizens and their purpose in enrolling in the program was to learn how to help other senior citizens.

"IN MY WORK in gerontology I found that many older people were anxious to do meaningful volunteer work in a field which would utilize skills learned over a lifetime,' Mrs. Williams said. "I found that agencies needed volunteers to fill in the gaps left by cutbacks in personnel made necessary by reduced budgets.'

With a grant to Mercy College of Detroit from the Sisters of Mercy Health Corporation, the Mercy College Senior Program was implemented to prepare senior citizens to use their knowledge and experience for the betterment of their peers in the Detroit community.

"In essence, the Mercy Senior Volunteer Program was an attempt to use the most neglected of America's resources - older, seasoned experienced persons in an impor-tant way," according to Mrs. Williams.

"A real commitment was required. The hope was that their desire to make a contribution to their fellows would be increased, directed and maintained by the intensive training program and the continuing support provided."

Mrs. William's hopes were not unfounded. Twenty-two people started, 22 finished the courses. They were truly dedicated. There were no absences despite the very severe weather. Under Mrs. William's direction, the weekly three-hour sessions were held in the warm, convivial atmosphere of the Campus Ministry House. Those who chose to work in the educational setting will be placed at Mercy College as assistants in student activities, counselors, tutors, adjunct professors and resource people in class. Those who chose to train as senior peer advocates were taught to understand normal age-related changes, particularly sensory ability; build emphatic listening skills, indentify and manage problems; utilize advocacy skills and assertiveness techniques; understand community resources and planning and present educational group activities.

Activities that the senior volunteers could be involved in include planning workshops on health-related issues, establishing a telephone reassurance program, assisting, in the preparation of government forms, acquinting their peers with available community resources, helping them with hospitalization proceedures, planning advocacy projects and others.

Participants in the program came from a wide range of backgrounds. They ranged in age up to 70 with most in their 60s. Several people came from downtown senior housing proiects where they hope to serve as resident peer supports; several from St. Pius Church in Southgate where a new program for senior citizens is being planned; others from both the city and subrubs.

EDUCATIONAL levels varied from 10th grade to masters degree level. The assistant to the program director is a 65year-old Mercy College student, using her experience to fulfill one of her gerontology program requirements. One of the students, Nora Blixt, a registered nurse, is from Grosse Pointe Woods.

At a luncheon culminating the completion of the program and the presentation of certificates, each student presented an individual research project on community aging. The proiects were duplicated and placed in a booklet so that each participant had a copy of all the completed works.

One of the highlights of the program is the special care that is being given to the placement of the students. It is felt that this is a very important phase of the program in order to gaurantee a mutually rewarding experience.

A number of organizations and groups, including Adult Service Centers, The Detroit Recreation Department R.S.V.P. and the Renaissance Home Health Care Agency have expressed interest in having trained volun-

However no assignment will be made without counseling each volunteer.

The group has requested that in addition to the supervision by the Program Director of their individual placements, there also be scheduled monthly support sessions for the total group. They see these as being supportive and educational as well as combining sociability which they have en-

On March 24, they all cooperated in the Mercy College Health Education Day serving as guides, hosts and evaluators for the innovative educational program. In the planning stages is a project to form a gardening group at St. Patrick's in Detroit and perhaps a choral group.

Although the success of any program depends on the willingness and enthusiasm of the participants, the major credit must necessarily go to the innovator, in this case Elizabeth Williams, who brought years of experience and study to the project.

MRS. WILLIAMS has been a professor for three and a half years at Mercy College where she heads the gerontology department. Before going to Mercy, she taught in Wayne's College of Lifelong Learning corner, it is a light and airy and was a coordinator of Wayne's undergraduate gerontology program. She also You've been going through the Sunday want ads. You've either found yourself unemployed due to cutbacks or, for some reason feel a need to make a career move.

By Lynn Brooks

In today's job market, no matter what field you are in, if you're going to be making contacts, filling out applications and seeking job interviews, you will need a resume. In fact, take a look through the want ads again and you will find that in most cases, employers request them.

Not too long ago, even as recently as five years ago, resumes were not a prerequisite to an interview. Today's job market is an employer's market, especially in Michigan where there are a number of qualified individuals for any one available position. Chances are, if you need a job, you will need a resume.

Your resume is a summary of your background, education, job experience, interests and other data. It is you on paper and always should represent you in the neatest, briefest manner possible. A poor or sloppy resume can do more harm than good. In fact, chances are if you don't take the time to prepare a neat and attractive representation of your qualifications, your resume will find its way into the circular file instead of the future employe file. Always keep in mind that your resume is an introduction and is the first thing that a prospective employer will know about

If you have any doubts about your abilities to represent yourself in an objective, persuasive way and in as few words as possible, it might be advisable for you to seek the assistance of a professional resume preparer.

Sometimes, this is the wisest decision to make. You may be great at your profession, but not as great when it comes to describing what you do. This is not uncommon. One word of caution, however: be careful in your choice of professional preparers. Many will charge a minimum fee, provide you with multiple copies, but give you a resume that resembles closely very other resume that is done by the same agency. Make certain that your resume will reflect you. Vague, overly descriptive career objectives are not as effective as the more simple and directly stated objectives. Be wary of professional preparers who claim to be able to give you an effective resume within 30 minutes - copies and all. You can probably be assured that not too much thought or energy is being spent on your behalf. Getting ready

How do you begin to write your resume? The first step is to gather all pertinent data and assemble it on a worksheet. Include personal data such as birthplace, citizenship, marital status, address, phone, state of health, etc.; educational data such as names of universities, trade schools, business schools or other formal training, honors, activities, degrees, certifications, continuing education classes or any other educational training; military; civic activities; hobbies, avocational interests; professional affiliations or membership; publications; other pertinent data such as your willingness to travel or relocate, state licenses and security clearance.

determine your career objective. What kind of job are you seeking? What are your long range and short range goals? Where do your skills and experience fit into the job market? With this basic information assembled and at your fingertips you can begin to write a rough draft.

Construct a rough draft

When you begin to construct your rough draft, begin with your name, address and phone number. It should be the first thing that the interviewer sees and therefore should be placed in the upper left corner or top center, depending upon the layout that you will use to best present your data

Next, state your career objective. This can be stated simply as in one or two word job descriptions like "Secretary for an established manufacturing firm" or "Supervisory position in residential construction." Your objec-tive should state your goals succinctly. State what you are and what you are looking for. Don't be shy, don't be vague — this is your career.

Probably the most important element in your resume is the description of your job experiences, especially those that relate to the job for which you are applying. There are several ways to break down your job experience. One is by listing in inverse chronological order under the heading EXPERIENCE, all of the jobs that you have held in the field in which you seek a position. Any other job experience can be listed under RELATED EXPERIENCE, OTHER EXPERI-ENCE or similar headings. Jobs in which you used skills that may be applicable to the position you are seeking but not in that particular field can be listed under headings such as these.

An effective way of listing your jobs is by first giving the titles or positions held, names and addresses of compa-nies for which you worked, and dates of employment. Unless your employment lasted less than a year, it is not necessary to include months. Descriptions of job responsibilities followed by noteworthy accomplishments should complete the listings. For instance: WRITER EDITOR, Detroit Bi-

Weekly Journal, Detroit, Michigan, 1975 to present. In the course of the last several years responsibilities have included writing feature and news articles, editorials and some ad copy. Edit all copy, do rewrites, dummy pages, and other responsibilities as necessary for this small newspaper whose mailed circulation exceeds 25,000 in one Detroit suburban

Accomplishments include award from National Association of Journalists for outstanding coverage of a local news event; recipient of "Thanks" award for local coverage of GOP convention and its effects on the city by Mayor of Detroit.

Education is next If you are a student, your education probably will come before your job experience. In any other case, education follows ex-perience. Employers are interested in your expertise based on practical experience and then your education as a general rule. The ability to learn is valuable, but the practical applicabil-

Your second preparatory step is to ity of those things learned is usually of more value to an employer.

Education can also mean technical or vocational training, job-related seminars and workshops, courses taken for state licensing such as real estate, nursing, career counseling, etc., or any other training or learning experiences of value. You might list your education like this: CENTRAL MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY,

Mount Pleasant, Michigan, Bachelor of Science degree in Education, 1972. UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN. Ann Arbor, Michigan, Master of Science in Human Resource Management, DALE CARNEGIE, Sales & Leadership, Detroit, 1975.

Following the main headings of experience and education are professional activities and affiliations, civic and social activities, military, publications, interests and hobbies, skills such as typing, shorthand, computer programming basics or other information that may reflect your employability and personality.

Your rough draft can be as many pages as you need it to be. Ideally, the final draft should be one page, but never more than two. If you are unable to say what you have to say in two pages, you need to get better or-ganized. Brief is best. You are not writing your autobiography this time, merely its outline.

References

They are not necessary on a resume. If you wish, type them on a separate sheet of paper to be available on request. State at the bottom of your resume "References Will be Furnished on Request.' Helpful tips:

Here are a few tips to make it easier for you to make a good impression. Consider these practical aesthetics:

- Type your name and all headings in capital letters. Avoid underlining words. Capitalize for emphasis.

 • Show your resume to someone ob-
- jective for appraisal and constructive criticism. He or she may be able to offer ideas that you have forgotten or may provide an edit-ing service to help you eliminate unnecessary statements.
- Type your original on a clean, 8½ by 11 inch sheet of white paper. Should you decide to have them printed, choose an off-white, tan, gray or other subtle color; pastels are not appropriate. Ask for a few extra sheets of matching paper for cover letters and a few matching envelopes.
- · Always send your resumes accompanied by a typed cover letter. Do not assume that the individual receiving it will know why you are sending it.

 • When writing your cover letter, remember that there is another
- person on the other end who will be reading it. Empathize. Yours may be the 207th resume that this person has read today or it might be the first. Write a personable but businesslike letter that will define what you want, state your qualifi-cations, invite a reading of your resume and an interview. And do it so that you'd enjoy reading it.

Brothers grab suspect in Park robbery

A 17-year-old Detroit man ended up in Wayne County Jail last week after he was nabbed by two local men after allegedly robbing a woman on Kercheval Avenue near Maryland on Tuesday afternoon, May 4. The men, brothers Allen and Brian

Myers, chased and collared the suspect and turned him over to police. The suspect was identified as Robert Rutledge, 17, of Cadillac Boulevard in Detroit. He was arraigned on robbery charges Wednesday, May 5, when a not guilty plea was entered on his be-half and he was remanded to the county jail in lieu of $3,000 bond.

Allen, 27, said he was coming out of his back yard at about 3:30 p.m. on Tuesday when he saw a 55-year-old woman handing money over to the suspect who then fled on a bicycle. Allen gave chase and caught the suspect and restrained him, with help from his brother, Brian, 23, until police arrived.

The robbery victim told police the suspect approached her and demanded money. She said she offered him change, which he refused, and then she gave him dollar bills, according to Police Chief Henry O. Coonce. Police received a complaint just minutes earlier from a 28-year-old woman who said a man had just tried to rob her while she was walking in the same area. The young woman backed away and ran away from the robber and called police.

Chief Coonce said the Myers brothers will be considered for a police commendation later this year.

"It was nice to see these young men extend themselves to help us take a criminal off the streets," Coonce said.

Parcells School hit by thieves

Robbers broke into Parcells Middle School at Mack and Vernier sometime Monday night, May 3, taking a com-plete set of keys to the school and two stopwatches.

Woods police were called to the school Tuesday morning, May 4, by the head engineer, who showed police where a classroom window on the east side of the school had been broken out. Investigators found blood on shards of glass in the room, and blood smears on door knobs of other rooms they believe were entered. The robbers entered the machine shop, the boys' gym and the gym coach's office and personal locker. Taken from the coach's office were a pair of L.E.D. stopwatches of unknown value, and a complete set of keys to the school.

Police also found an empty bandage wrapper on the floor of the office, re-ports indicate. In addition, several pages from the coach's class book were pulled out and thrown in a garbage basket.

The head engineer told police the robbers may have used a master key to enter the rooms.

"You don't have to be athletic to be in the Reading Olympics," was the slogan at Defer elementary school recently when some students took on a project to benefit themselves as well as others.

Each child found a few neighbors

Out of the 118 students participating. ranging from grades 1 to 6, 40 students read more than 20 books, on their own reading level. As a reward, the students were given gold medals by the March of Dimes. Thirty seven silver medals and 41 bronze medals also were awarded.

The children raised more than $1,300 for the March of Dimes.

Citizens rate state schools

When asked to rate the quality of the public schools in their community four out of every 10 Michigan adults gave the schools an "A" or "B" on a report card rating scale. Another 33 percent rated the public schools a "C" while 14 percent gave schools a "D" or "E."

The ratings were part of a public opinion survey with 802 adults in the state, conducted by the staff of the State Board of Education's "Project Outreach" program in December, Michigan citizens rated the schools significantly higher than a nation-wide sample of adults did in the 1981 Gallup poll, according to State Superintendent Phillip Runkel. Citizens in this state also gave significantly fewer 'failing grades' to schools than those found by Gallup pollsters.

When compared to a number of other state-supported agencies or services, eight out of every 10 (82 percent) persons polled opposed reducing state allocations to public schools, the statewide Michigan survey revealed.

Survey date also revealed that the typical Michigan citizen both praised and criticized the public schools, but praise exceeded criticism. Citizens interviewed in the study praised the school curriculum, teachers, school facilities and special programs or services. Dislikes mentioned focused chiefly on school dicipline, some teachers, some curriculum weaknesses and school financial needs. The latter - school financial needs, was named by respondents as the biggest problem facing their local school board last year.

Forty-seven percent of those polled feel the public schools have enough money to provide a good school program, while another 38 percent believe the schools need more funds. Only six percent of the survey respondents feel the schools have too much money. When asked to rate how the public schools spend the funds available to them, five percent said "excellent," 35 percent said "good," and 32 percent said "fair." One out of every five adults in the state (19 percent) gave schools a ''poor' rating in school spending practices.

The opinion survey found a vast majority of Michigan citizens (69 percent) favored changing the school tax collection period from December to mid-summer. Survey participants also were asked to react to a list of 10 possible ways school districts could save money

Only two of these cost-cutting procedures were favored - reducing the number of school administrators (72 vercent favored this) and reducing bus transportation costs by increasing the walking distance of students (53 per-cent support). Most vigorously-opposed suggestions were reductions in special reading services (84 percent opposed), reducing student counseling services (78 percent), and increasing class sizes by reducing the number of teachers (71 percent opposed).

Seventy percent favor having students pay for driver education in public schools.

Market study a good idea feasibility and market study before it gives further consideration to a proposed new zoning ordinance that would limit future establishment of non-retail businesses on Kercheval-on-the-Hill and on Mack Avenue in the Farms.

From such a study, the council expects to learn more about the consumer traffic that could be attracted to the Hill and to Mack by certain kinds of businesses and whether an ordinance of the type proposed would be helpful in generating more retail business.

THE PROPOSED ordinance would prevent such businesses as real estate agencies, medical or insurance offices, doctors, lawyers and manufacturers' representatives from occupying first floor space in most cases. Those businesoccupy the rear half of the first floor or the first floor if they met certain conditions set by

While the intent is to attract more retail stores and a greater variety of them to the two business streets in question, some people feel that an ordinance of the nature proposed might be self-defeating. When the proposal first was discussed at the council early this year, several people from the non-retail businesses objected on the grounds they would be treated as "sec-ond class citizens." Others saw such an ordi-nance as being a possible unlawful restraint of

The proposed ordinance would "grandfather" in service businesses like those now fronting on Kercheval but it would regulate such properties in the event of a sale. That apparently would mean the council would have to approve sales, or at least any new purposes to which buildings

The Farms Council has wisely asked for a might be put by new owners. That would increase, not decrease, local government regulation of business.

Passage of such an ordinance in not assured, of course. The council wants to study the completed feasibility and market study before taking any action. If the council decides to give the proposal some support, a public hearing will be called to enable all interested parties to air their views.

It is similar to an ordinance enacted by the City last year to prohibit new non-retail businesses from occupying first floor office space in establishments in the Village. But the Hill and the Village have been different kinds of shopping areas since they began. The Hill first floor space in most cases. Those businesses would be permitted under the ordinance to professional offices while the Village has been and is more oriented toward retail establishments. As we have pointed out earlier, what is good for the Village may not necessarily be good for the Hill and the Farms.

IT IS TRUE there are vacant stores both on the Hill and on Mack. If the Farms Council can figure out some way to attract more retail businesses into these buildings, it obviously would be good for the owners, those running businesses and shoppers looking for a wider variety of goods.

On the basis of the present evidence, we don't think the proposed ordinance will achieve its goal because it appears likely to limit rather than expand the potential uses of buildings now vacant. So we have strong doubts that it will stimulate retail trade on the streets in question. On the other hand, the forthcoming market and feasibility study could persuade us—or the many waves forcing one to council sponsors—to change our minds.

A 'No' vote on the pool only a month away, it is heartening to read the strong stand taken against the advisory question on a new community pool by Jon Gandelot, the only candidate for the school board post to be filled in the voting June 14.

"I am definitely against it," Gandolot told the Grosse Pointe News. "There is absolutely no educational purpose for it at this time when we are facing cutbacks in programs and our taxpayers are out of work. There is no educational justification for it.'

GANDELOT, THE current school board president, emphasized that the board voted to put the question on the ballot because of the pressure from those favoring a new pool. They presented a petition signed by 2,500 residents asking for the vote and the board agreed to the request without, however, taking a position on the

In discussing the issue at a school board meeting last week, Ronald Dalby, vice-president of the board, also expressed opposition to the pool and to the ballot proposal which calls for a feasibility study estimated to cost $125,000. The cost of the pool has been estimated at $3.5 million although some pool supporters think both estimates are too high. But Dalby made it clear he is opposed to both.

Behind the demand for a vote is the understandable desire of parents of a number of South High School swimmers to provide facilities at South to match those at North. That was the rationale at the start of their campaign and although the interested parents now call themselves "Citizens for a New Community Pool," even the committee chairman acknowledged in a recent letter to the Grosse Pointe News that "In the final analysis our committee is asking the voters to say 'yes' to a pool for South High." It is an inconvenience for both parents and students, as we have pointed out earlier, when the South High swimming team is forced to use the North High pool for its competitive meets and to swim its practice sessions in the Brownell School pool. But inconvenience hardly jus-

With the Grosse Pointe school election now tifies expenditure of these large sums to study the feasibility of and construct a new pool, especially in these economic times. As Gandelot pointed out, many taxpayers in Grosse Pointe as elsewhere in the state are unemployed.

Nor has the community heard any great demand from the senior citizens, the handicapped and the other groups that presumably would be eligible to use a new community pool. The issue really is whether such a pool should be regarded as a high priority item for the Pointes. This newspaper agrees with Gandelot and Dalby that this would be a poor time to increase the school district's spending for this purpose.

In fact, just last week layoff notices were sent to more than 30 Grosse Pointe teachers to reduce the teaching staff because of declining enrollment and loss of state and federal aid. Since its peak of 13,700 in 1970, the enrollment in the public schools has dropped to the point that it is expected to be less than 8,000 this fall. The school board has been well aware of the need for economy and, in fact, has been able to roll back millage more than required by the Headlee amendment. So it would not make much sense to keep a lid on spending for educational purposes and then put out funds for a new pool, whatever its cost.

IT IS TRUE that another vote would be required for a bond issue if voters approved the June 14 question to authorize a feasibility study for a new pool. But it would be much more difficult to halt the construction of the facility if voters gave the go-ahead to the feasibility study. So the way for residents of the Pointes to guarantee that no pool will be built in the near future is to vote a resounding "No" on June 14.

So while there will be no contest for Gandelot's seat on the board, and the board president will be reelected without opposition, residents of the Pointes should remember that the swimming pool advisory question will also be on the ballot. If they fail to vote, they will miss the opportunity to express themselves on the controversial issue of the new pool that could cost them tax dollars for years to come.

Readers call pool proposal 'lunatic'

To the Editor:

In a letter to the editor in the March 25 issue Joan Bartoszewicz put forth reasons for building a new pool for "the community." I just wish to state that, in my belief, the new pool issue is not only ridiculous, it borders on lunatic.

I am sure that Mrs. Bartoszewicz meant well. However, there are many activities that To the Editor:

I would like to add my views to those already expressed in your paper regarding the proposed community swimming pool.

This letter is written by a life-long resident of Grosse Pointe, a high school swimming team (1968 Class A State Champions, second in 1967 and sixth in 1969), a professional marketing consultant and a new property taxpayer to the Grosse Pointe school system.

The entire controversy is rediculous. By looking at the situation logically it would be obvious to everyone that Grosse Pointe does not need this proposed pool.

As was outlined in previous letters and articles this is to be an indoor olympic-sized 50-meter pool of which there is only one other in the state at University of Michigan known to this writer. Michigan State has only a 50-yard pool which is not considered olympic-sized. The first question I must ask is why does this community need such a pool? Is it to demonstrate prestige? Is it to attract the Olympics to Grosse Pointe? Is it to be a monument to an area resident (maybe a member of the last State Championship swim team Grosse Pointe has been able to produce)?

Other questions are: Who is going to use this pool? Are the other indoor pools used by the community during the winter too crowded? The answer will probably be that the other pools are not too crowded and that the swim team from South High School will almost exclusively use the new pool. If my memory serves me correctly that may be about 50 to 75 boys and girls using the pool from September to April.

Those students must now work out at Brownell and compete using North's pool and they apparently don't like it. They must not like shuttling all the way to Brownell although our state champ team did over 10 years ago for preseason training. Also Brownell's pool is not considered a "fast" pool meaning that the design is poor, creating too work harder to achieve the same result as in a well designed pool. Maybe they don't like using North's pool although it is an excellent facility and a "fast" pool. The proposed pool would not be a home pool anyway, as it is not to be on the South High cam-

Would the spending of approximately $4 million of taxpayers' money somehow produce a team capable of being state champions? I cannot answer that but would be interested in finding out.

Speaking as a marketing consultant who deals with demographics on a daily basis. I must remind the school board to ask themselves: Who is going to use this pool in 25 years? And who is going to pay for it in 25 years? As a reformed liberal myself, I must say that possibly had the school board performed an in-depth analysis like this they would not have built such an extravagant second high school, but found a way of modernizing the existing school, which has also been done several times.

In closing I would like to urge the parents of the South High swim team members to stop asking me to pay for their pool. There must be some other way to placate their children without spending nearly $4 million.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

In April, 1932, Mrs. Edwin Hewitt Brown returned from a visit to The Cleveland Garden Center and suggested to The Garden Club of Michigan that a Detroit Garden Center would be of valuable service to the metropolitan community. Fifty springs later, at its head-quarters in Moross House on East Jefferson Avenue, The Detroit Garden Center is poised to celebrate its Golden Anniversary with a gala weekend of activities.

Festivities begin tomorrow, Friday, May 14, with the placement of a plaque by Louisa St. Clair Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, designating the Moross House as an Historic Site, followed by a Golden Anniversary Tea for DGC members. The public is invited to tour Moross House Saturday, May 14, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday, May 16, from noon to 4 p.m. Members of the Fox Creek Chapter of Questers, in vintage clothing loaned by Ruth Chosy and Marlene Harle, will serve as hostesses and relate the history of the build-

The Historic Moross House (circa 1847) will be decked in spring finery by the Hill and Dale, Seed and Sod and Harper Woods Garden Clubs, and the Saint Clair Shores Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association. It's a lovely home, and a fitting one for the DGC — and one that the DGC, after a definitely nomadic first 50 years, certainly deserves!

In The Beginning

The Detroit Garden Center's first home under its first president, Mrs. Esther Longyear Murphy, was an office in The Arts and Crafts Building on Watson Street in downtown Detroit. A charge was made of $10 a month to cover heat, light and a room for exhibits. In 1935 the Detroit Institute of Arts rented the DGC a room for information, service and a library, established that year with a gift from Mrs. Howard Longyear in memory of her daughter, Mrs. Fred T. Murphy. The DIA also provided its auditorium free to the DGC for lectures twice a

... until the DGC was informed that the East Grand River building was coming down to make room for a parking lot.

Now, moving may be today's American Way of Life, but there comes a time when enough is enough! Do you wonder that the idea of a permanent home was becoming a Detroit Garden Center obsession? Fortunately, miracles do happen: The Detroit Historical Museum approached the Garden Center with a proposition: Would the DGC be interested in becoming a lessee in an historical building — provided funds could be raised to restore it, and provided the DGC would contribute financially to the restoration project?

On to Moross House

Talk about an offer you can't refuse! Back in the days when the DGC was still headquartered in the Belle Isle White House, a sum from the sizable amount raised via a fair at the Tuller Hotel had been set aside as nucleus "for our new home." In 1967 The Detroit Garden Center contributed $17,000 to the restoration of Moross House, in return for a 17-year lease.

While the House was being restored and the Garden Center's Grand River building torn down, the Historical Museum gave the DGC an office and stored the Center's furnishings, files and library at Old Fort Wayne. Through the years, through the moves, the DGC had been true to its original purpose: to serve as an educational center for all horticulture and allied activities and to be of service to the community and persons seeking information and inspiration along these lines. The DGC had sponsored lectures, staged exhibits, stockpiled books and pamphlets, conducted outreach programs, involved itself in community service.

Now, waiting for the Moross House to be restored, the Garden Center's programs were, of necessity, greatly curtailed and a Steering Committee was appointed to take control. That committee steered successfully through some rather troubled waters and brought The Detroit Garden Center into safe harbor. In May, 1973, the DGC moved into its new, old house.

The DGC, At Home

Don't think that settling into the oldest brick residence in Detroit was a picnic. Moross House may have been restored, but The Detroit Garden Center wasn't. There was a library to reorganize. There was an office to establish. There were programs and projects to get going again. There were the basic problems involved in "setting up housekeeping" — and there was a garden to plant. A Garden Center without a garden was unthinkable, and the DGC remains permanently in debt to The Garden Club of Michigan for offering to undertake this huge project.

Mrs. Frederick J. Schumann, president of the first DGC Executive Board in the Moross House, sums up the situation to date in the Highlights of 50 Years address she'll be giving at tomorrow's program:

"Since our occupancy in the Moross House, we have been a most active and are a most flourishing Garden Center. We have celebrated each year since we have been here with an Anniversary Tea. Our House is decorated for Christmas, and opened to the public for viewing the first weekend in December. Children's gardens have been planted in Black and Latino neighborhoods. Children's horticultural lectures are held in the Detroit Public Schools. Lectures and craft classes are given. Field trips to places of horticultural interest are offered. An outstanding quarterly bulletin is issued to members."

Detroit Garden Center Past-President Clara Schumann (she's currently chairman of the DGC's Gifts and Endowments Committee) is, incidentally, like so many, many DGC members and supporters through the years a Grosse Pointe resident. Three of the DGC's current officers — Mrs. Richard E. Noyes, first vice-president, Mrs. Richard Mertz, recording secretary, and Mrs. Stanley Remus, assistant treasurer — live in The Pointe, as do Mrs. Robert C. Palmer, current chairman of the House Committee, and Miss Eleanor L. Carmody, Tuesday Docent co-chairman.

Colony Town Club to meet

The Colony Town Club's annual meeting scheduled for Wednesday, May 19, will have something to please everyone but will probably be remembered for what it doesn't have. According to club members, the annual reports of officers and committee chairman have already been mailed to members to read at home, thus eliminating from the meeting what many consider a less exciting aspect of the day.

President Mrs. Cowald Zeidler, of Buckingham Road and Mrs. Windsor S. Davies, of Lakeshore Road, chairman of the day, will welcome members to the social hour at 11 a.m., followed by luncheon at noon. The menu includes Mandarin Oranges Supreme. rolled imported ham with asparagus spears, braised celery hearts and lemon meringue pie. Tables will be decorated in pink; Mrs. Harvey Groehn, chairman of social affairs, has made pink need-lepointed candy containers for each

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Walter G. Bernard, chairman of the Cancer Loan Closet Foundation of Greater Detroit, will introduce Sister Rosario Buesching, O.P., who will speak about the Bon Secours Hospice Home Care Program set to begin this spring. Sr. Rosario is director of the pas-toral care department at Bon Secours and was instrumental in the organization of the home care program Prior to her arrival at Bon Secours in 1976, Sr. Rosario completed an internship in mingham.

the chaplaincy program at Duke University Medical Center. She holds a Master of Science degree in biology from the Catholic University of America.

A short business meeting will follow, during which time Mrs. Zeidler will address the group and supervise the election of five new members to the Board of Directors for three year terms. Retiring directors include Mrs. C. Herbert Ewing, Mrs. Harvey G. Groehn and Mrs. Alfred W. Massnick, all of The Pointe and Miss Grayce

Cruikshank, of Detroit.
After the election, Mrs. Edwin Secord and Mrs. Richard Parks, both of The Pointe, co-chairmen of the Committee on Projects, which has the responsibility of raising money to support the Cancer Loan Closet, will announce the winners of the raffle.

The first prize is a Waterford crystal wine decanter and six wine glasses. Second prize is a Lladro figurine and third prize is a large basket of cheer. Proceeds of ticket sales are ear-

Celebrate May in Old Vienna

The Johann Strauss Salon Orchestra led by Dr. Robert Warner, retired assistant dean of the University of Michigan School of Music, and his flutist son, Allen, will bring the waltzes, polkas and one-steps of Strauss and Lehar to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom Saturday evening, May 15.

Occasion is the War Memorial's traditional Viennese Ball, hosted by Alexander and Maribel Suczek who, at intermission, will perform Viennese lieder in the Schrammel style, inviting everyone to join in the choruses. That's a Viennese tradition, too. For those who don't know the words, they'll be printed in the program.

The party runs from 9 p.m. until midnight, and the 15-piece Strauss ensemble promises some contemporary tangos and paso dobles as well as the "usual" waltzes. Sparkling refreshments will be available.

Tickets, at $9 per person, are available at the War Memorial — while they last, for this is a very popular party, and it's advisable to reserve early to avoid disappointment.

The place where you live is where nearly all this moving, exploring and learning will occur.

Your house is, in one sense, a laboratory of child development where one very special baby, your baby, is going to get acquainted with the world while she gets acquainted with herself as one person in that world. It is the place where your baby will conduct thousands of experiments of discov-rations, are seldom best for her. Make your house liveable. From your child's point of view, perhaps the best place to start is at the bottom: on the floor.

The floor is one of the most important parts of the place where you live. Most important for baby, that is. As soon as she becomes mobile she should spend a lot of time on the floor. The floor is her school now; it's the place where she will do her moving and have some of her most important early learning. Try this experiment: lie down on the floor yourself and see how your rooms look from your baby's point of view. Lie on your back and ook around. You'll be surprised at the different things you see and feel. Is the floor nice and warm, or are there drafts? Roll over on your stomach and take another look. Is there room to move and crawl without tripping over wires and furniture legs, and are there things to look at?

Raise your head, from this lyingdown position, and look at the objects within reach. Everything down there is fair game for an exploring baby and any object that you do not want her to grab, taste, bang, drop, throw or otherwise explore is best put away - or at least up high - for now. This is called "baby-proofing." It's as necessary for baby's own safety as for the safety of your prize china doll collection.

After you have taken away all breakable, dangerous or non-touchable items from baby's reach, turn your thoughts to the kind of common household items you do want her to be able to touch and explore.

Archivists battle to save paper history

By Boris Weintraub National Geographic News Service

There is a tiny hole in the Atlantic Charter, and a little brown spot where a second hole may develop. President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and a host f other Allied leaders signed the Charter, a sort of bill of rights for all pations after World War II; now the priceless document is in the preservaion laboratory of the National Archves in downtown Washington, where specialists are trying to figure out how repair the damage and protect it.

The Charter is one of about 150 socalled treasures of the National Archves that are part of a pilot project to Identify the condition of documents and determine what needs to be done to preserve them. Reading the list of treasures is like a lesson in the basics of American history. They include Washington's acceptance of the post of Commander in Chief of the Continen-tal Army, the Treaty of Paris that sended the Revolutionary War, the souisiana Purchase, the United Nations Charter and the 1963 Nuclear Pest Ban Treaty.

Also included are some oddities, uch as Washington's Revolutionary War account book and designs for the Great Seal of the United States.

Preservation is a major problem at he National Archives. Alan Calmes, preservation has the highest priority with limitations. "The National Archives has three billion document pages in its custody, and we can process only about 300,000 a year," he "So if all of them needed to be preserved in their original state, it would take about 1,000 years."

Fortunately, not all need to be kept in their original state. Many are more important for the information they contain than for their intrinsic value and can be duplicated, either by microfilming or by photocopying. But nobody knows how many documents are in which category, which is why the "treasures" project is a first step. These are papers that everyone agrees are intrinsically valuable. The ques-tion now is: what shape are they in? To find out, the Archives has con-tracted with two paper conservators from the Library of Congress, who are going over the treasures page by page. Once the experts report on the condition of the treasures, Archives officials will decide what to do next. "A pot of money, about $150,000, has been set aside for that purpose," says William Leary, preservation officer on the Archives' program coordination staff. Preservationists also are concerned with saving records on materials other than paper, such as film, much of which is highly flammable. But for paper the key culprit is acid. "Some papers start out acidic," says Chandru Shahani, chief of the preservation laboratory. "This is especially true of paper such as newsprint, which is made from wood pulp.

Wood-based paper, Shahani ex-plains, contains cellulose and lignins, which are acidic. After a time the acid begins to eat away at the paper, first showing up as brown spots, then turning to holes, eventually destroying the paper. Ironically, the older documents in the Archives are in better condition than many recent ones, because paper used to be higher in quality and more acid-free than it is today.

The painstaking deacidification process involves treating the paper with a chemical that neutralizes the acid and adding an alkaline reserve to prevent future acid attack. Either the paper dunked in a chemical bath or the solution is painted or sprayed on. Once deacidification is completed, preserva-tionists remove any surface dirt and any other "foreign" elements.

Then they encapsulate the document, sandwiching it between two pieces of Mylar, a thin but extremely strong modern material, and seal it with clear, pressure-sensitive adhesive tape. This enables a researcher to hold and see the document without further endangering it

Unlike the specially selected treasures, most of the documents sent to the preservation laboratory are chosen at random, usually by archivists in a given field. Because the Archives' holdings are so vast and the number of archivists so small, it is impossible for all but a few documents to be examined by these specialists. Budget pressure will reduce the number of archivists even more. A planned study to be made under contract with the National Bureau of Standards should help officials judge how severe the preservation problem really is.

Archives officials emphasize that few valuable documents are in immi-nent danger, despite the slow preservation process and the relatively few dollars — $4 million out of a total-agency budget of $89 million last year devoted to preservation. But until current experiments lead to a mass deacidification process, budgetary problems will cause delays in preservation. And that frightens specialists who work with these documents.

"Every document has its story, says Milton Gustafson, head of the Diplomatic Records Branch. "These will all turn to dust eventually. We ought to make sure the most important ones turn to dust later rather than

Pointer of Interest

By Janet Mueller

"We have people from all walks of life. Barbers to bankers. Doctors, lawyers, company presidents and clerks. We have about 550 members, and we'd be happy to have more. Unfortunately, I think the Saint John Men's Guild has a bit of an Image Problem: the average guy on the street does not know the Guild is open to him. And it is, and it's not an organization that's dominated by one professional group or another. It's not an organization you join to further your business interests, to blow your own horn."

The fact is: if you blow your own horn at a Men's Guild meeting, you're likely to find yourself blowing in a vacuum. It's just not the sort of music the Men's Guild is interested in hearing.

If, however, you're interested in Saint John Hospital, and in working (as much or as little as you want, behind the scenes or up front — not everybody's comfortable with the same "style") to raise funds for Saint John, and in being involved with a group of men who are involved for exactly the same reasons you are . . . and are not averse to sitting down to a friendly game of euchre after a meeting (if that happens to be your thing — not everybody's comfortable with the same "style"), the Men's Guild may be your thing. You don't have to be rich. You don't have to be famous. You don't have to know anybody

"WE HAVE AN OFFICE," says Bob LeFevre. "We have a phone number, 343-3670. Give us a call.'

Bob became interested in the Guild 12 years ago through Dr. Gennaro J. DiMaso who was the pediatrician for all the LeFevre

There are five of them: four boys, Gregory, James, Thomas and Michael, ages 27 to 22, and a girl, Susan, a junior at Grosse Pointe North High School. All the boys have been members of the Saint John Guild for three years and work on the Guild's Annual Stag Dinners. Susan halps sall tick Stag Dinners. Susan helps sell tickets for Saint John Hospital Fontbonne Auxiliary events. She's also a J-Girl at Jacobson's.

Their father is a native Detroiter, a graduate of Assumption Grotto Grade School and De-LaSalle Collegiate High. He met Mary Lou, Mrs. LeFevre for 28 years now, when she was attending Dominican and he was at De-when he was 12 years old, at and hors d'oeuvres and continues Remer Pharmacy on Gratiot. It through a gourmet meal served at was a case of propinquity. "We lived just off Gratiot, in the first house behind Remer." A few the Guild's Stage Dinners have years later, he began working for become famous.

(since merged with Wayne State of Science degree in Pharmacy. He spent two years in the United States Army, one-and-a-half of them assigned to the 5th MASH Unit in Heidelberg, Germany. Mary Lou and eight-week-old Gregory went with him; before they left, Mary Lou took her new baby to Dr. DiMaso to be about 1 out, and Dr. DiMaso asked where they were headed ... and would you believe Dr. DiMaso was just back from serving at the same army hospital in Heidelberg!?

BOB ALSO WAS PART of a surgical scrub team at Valley Forge Hospital in Pottstown, Pa., and Fort Sam Houston's Brook Medical Center, Houston, Tex.

Back in Detroit, he and his uncle opened LeFevre Prescriptions on Eight Mile and Gratiot. Bob bought another pharmacy by himself, on Kelly Road. The drugstores were a success, but something else was in the wind: Robert LeFevre had begin to invest in leisure living businesses. His investments soon became a full time job. Now he's involved in Continental Lanes and Lido's His to benefit sons, following in his footsteps, own and operate two restaurants called The Flying Machine.

With four boys, Bob was bound to wind up coaching Little League baseball. He coached basketball,

Hospital Auxiliaries meet next Tuesday

The program is open to members of all district auxiliaries.

A selection of recipes from the forthcoming low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — cook-book by Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth presenting, this week, accompaniments to last week's main course of an elegant VEAL SHANK DINNER.

CHOCOLATE LOAF CAKE

- 114 cups sugar 12 cup cocoa
- Pinch of salt
- 2 3 cup unsalted margarine 1 cup buttermilk

- 2 eggs 1 tsp. soda

Sift dry ingredients into a bowl. Cut in margarine with a pastry blender until mixture is very fine. Add milk which has been mixed with vanilla, beat mixture 200 strokes. Add eggs and beat 2 minutes more. Pour mix-ture into greased 9x5-lnch loaf pan. Bake in preheated 350° oven for 45 to 60 minutes or until cake tests done.

Krickstein returns to Seventeen tourney

Three Michigan girls are representing the state in SEVENTEEN Magazine's seventh annual Tennis Tournament of Champions, taking place from now through May 15 in Mission Viejo, Calif.

Renee Krickstein, 16, of the Woods, Erin Ashare, 16, of Bloomfield Hills and Wendy Gilles, 14, of Plymouth are among 156 teenage girls from across the country playing in the national tournament. Each state in the U.S., plus Washington, D.C. and Puerto Rico, is represented by three players, one for each age division in the tourney: 18, 16, and 14-and-under.

Presented by the Maureen Connolly Brinker Tennis Foundation, SEVEN-TEEN Magazine's Tennis Tournament Champions is sanctioned by the United States Tennis Association. The tournament annually attracts the top performers in junior tennis with past winners including Tracy Austin, Andrea Jaeger, Kathy Rinaldi and Anne Smith, now all strong contenders on the professional circuit.

Renee Krickstein, the 18-and-under competitor for Michigan, is the daughter of Herbert and Evelyn Krickstein. She is ranked No. 9 in the Western Tennis Association's 18-and-under age division and is ranked No. 43 nationally by the U.S.T.A. in the same category.

On the national circuit last summer, Krickstein played in the U.S.T.A. National Hard Courts in California, the National Clay Courts in Florida and the National Championships in West Virginia, all in the 16-and-under category. In Newtonia 18-20. ory. In November, at the National Indoor 18's in Kansas, she reached the third round before she was defeated by No. 5 seed Beverly Bowes of Texas, a player she may meet again at SEVENTEEN's tourney.

Krickstein played in the Orange Bowl Junior Championship 16's last December in Miami Beach, where she advanced to the second round and was a semi-finalist at the Avon Women's Qualifier in January. She returns to play in her second SEVENTEEN tournament, where last year, in the 16-and-under division, she defeated Linda Maneely of Montana in the first round, Heather Comfort of Alabama in the second round and was defeated by Kirstin Laux of Nebraska in the third

As a junior at Grosse Pointe North High School, Krickstein is No. 1 on her school tennis team. A member of the National Honor Society, Krickstein is involved with the youth group at Tem-ple Beth El and volunteers as a candy striper at a local hospital. She plans to major in communications or business in college. She is considering colleges in Florida and Arizona as she would like to continue on with her tennis after high school.

In last year's SEVENTEEN tournament, Krickstein competed with Christine Nagel and Lisa Bonder as representatives for Michigan.

Winners and runners-up in the main draw and consolation matches of SEVENTEEN's tournament will receive trophies. In addition, a "Most Promising Junior Player of the Year" will be announced at the tourney, selected by a distinguished committee of executives from the United States Tennis Association and the Brinker Foundation.
The "Most Promising Junior Player" will be awarded a trophy and a travel grant to cover tournament expenses for one year. Tracy Austin, Andrea Jaeger and Anne Smith have all captured this title in the past. Winners of last year's tournament were: Zina Carison (Texas), 18-and-under and "Most Promising Junior Player;" Moliy Van Nostrand (New York), 16-and-under and Tatjana Schrobsdorff

The boys' baseball team, coached by Rick Champine, opened its baseball season with a well-played, 7-2 victory over Country Day of Birmingham. Kirk Haggarty paced the attack with three hits; John Petrilli also had a key hit. The Academy team scored five runs in the first inning and coasted from there with the help of some fine defensive plays. Steve Kinsley was the winning pitcher, allowing only four hits and striking out 10 batters.

The track team, composed of both boys and girls, traveled to Grosse Pointe North, where it lost to St. Joan of Arc. The boys' tennis team has lost both its matches to Country Day and Liggett.
