Gypsy moth is shown right in destructive stage of its development. Mature females lay egg masses, light-colored fluffs on a tree, which hatch in the spring into hundreds of caterpillars. To combat the moths and test for possible infestations, traps like the one above are being placed in the area by volunteers. Male moths are attracted to the orange boxes, marked moth trap, and become stuck on the inside. The traps will be collected later this year by Michigan Department of Agriculture officials as the MDA determines whether or not there are signs of an infestation in the area.

Voters sink pool by a margin of 15-1

By Joanne Gouleche Grosse Pointe voters sent a strong message to the Board of Education in Monday's school election by resoundingly defeating a ballot proposal to conduct a $125,000 feasibility study for a new community pool.

Official election results showed the ballot question suffered a miserable 15 to 1 defeat of 5,331 to 354 votes.

Board President Jon Gandelot was re-elected to a second four-year term with 2,864 votes in an uncontested race.

Park will vote Aug. 10 on 2 mill street tax

Park voters will decide in August if they want to keep rattling over pock-marked local streets or pay a special 2 mill property tax to begin repaving them this fall.

The city council, Monday, June 14, approved formal ballot language for the Aug. 10 primary election asking residents to add 2 mills to the city's 16.8 mill tax rate for the next five years. (A mill equals in poor condition by the administration $1 for every $1,000 of state are Beaconsfield, Somerset, Balfour, $1 for every $1,000 of state equalized valuation.)

The tax will raise about $100,000 a year to be used specifically to patch and repave dozens of local streets that are in poor condition after last winter's record cold weather.

The city's 1982-83 budget, approved last month, calls for a 4.7 percent in-crease in tax revenues but contains little money for resurfacing streets.

Mrs. Bartoszewicz added the "economic times" and voters' "rebel-lion against high taxes" brought the pool question down to defeat. "We're finished. But I think it's sad for the community, the kids and especially for South High School."

Schools' Director of Business Affairs Larry Rankens interrupted Monday's school board meeting with the election results. "It apparently went down in flames," Gandelot remarked after scanning the pool vote.'

Gandelot later said he was astounded by Monday's turnout at the polls. "I'm delighted. It certainly was a mes-Pool proponent Joan Bartoszewicz sage - more of a message than I ever dreamed we would get. I felt confident the community was against the pool but I was astounded at the turnout.

City Council members, who agreed to put the question on the ballot last month, have said they have a consid-erable selling job ahead of them if the tax is to be approved.

The Grosse Pointe News surveyed 46 Park residents by telephone last Friday, June 11, and found almost 39 percent said they were in favor of the tax. Only 18 percent said they'd vote "no" in the election, 30 percent said they knew nothing about the proposal and 13 percent were undecided.

Among the local streets identified as Berkshire, Devonshire, Audubon, Kensington, Yorkshire, Bishon, Grayton, Jefferson Avenue. South of Jefferson, poor streets are Middlesex, Trombley, Harcourt, Ellair Place, Essex, Avon-dale, Korte and Hally Place. The total bill for resurfacing those streets is estimated at $1.38 million.

Major streets that need some $727,400 worth of work are Wayburn, Cadieux, Charlevoix, Vernor, Maumee City adminstrators identified more and Windmill Pointe Drive, according

The last time a school election attracted a large number of voters to the polls was in 1979 when 11 candidates ran for two board seats Just over 5,000 persons voted in that election.

Interestingly, residents in the Richard school district voted down the pool proposal by 841 to 91 votes. It was in the Richard district that pool proponents had conducted their own feasibility study for a 50-meter, 10-lane pool on Messner Field

The advisory ballot question asked voters whether the Board of Education should spend $125,000 for a feasibility study for a new community swimming pool. Advocates of the pool went before the school board last year claiming swimming facilities at South High School were antiquated and inadequate for competition by the South swim team.

Later, the group led a petition drive to place the pool question on Monday's ballot. After some 2,000 signatures were presented to the board, trustees voted to place the issue on the ballot. Price tag of the new pool was pegged at $3.5 million

The Board of Education did not take an official stand on the pool question but trustees Gandelot and Ronald Dalby several times voiced opposition to the proposal.

Gandelot later commented the election "showed that we were right in putting it (pool question) up to an advisory vote.

Precinct election results follow:

Trombly - 36 yes; 252 no Defer - 60 yes; 361 no Maire - 28 yes; 404 no Richard - 91 yes; 841 no Kerby - 70 yes: 532 no Ferry - 18 yes; 737 no Mason - 4 yes; 478 no Monteith - 26 yes; 771 no Poupard - 4 yes; 253 no Barnes - 11 yes: 499 no Absentee ballots - 6'yes; 183 no

The schools' business affairs office reported 37 write-in votes for Gandelot's seat with two of those votes going to Joan Bartoszewicz and 32 votes to Francis Markey.

Detroit appeals

Residents of Wayburn and Barrington Roads thought their 12-year fight to become full-fledged residents of Grosse Pointe Park was over earlier this month when the Michigan Supreme Court declined to hear Detroit's appeal of the long-standing border dispute. They were wrong. Attorneys for Detroit field a motion for reconsideration with the Supreme Court on Monday, June 14, asking the justices to once again hear their arguments about the boundary line, according to Park City Attorney Herold "Mac' Deason.

The last trapping in the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods area yielded seven moths, but MDA officials were quick to point out that all were males. and there was no reason to believe the moths had gotten a toe-hold in the area

But to be sure, the Agriculture Department is returning this year and trapping at a greater density to insure they don't have a problem with the moths.

The traps contain a pheromone stick which attracts the male moths from as far away as a quarter mile. On entering the trap, the moths get stuck on the gummy insides and are held there until the traps are retrieved in the fall. The MDA and the Shade Tree Council are doing their best to make sure the traps stay in place so an accurate evaluation can be made by the Agriculture Department

Gypsy moths are destructive insects which have defoliated millions of acres since they were accidentally introduced on the East Coast in the 19th century. Although the moths themselves only mate and lay eggs, the larvae can deloliate trees in a single night in areas with serious infestations. MDA officials said.

The caterpillars are about onequarter-inch long when hatched, but by early July they can grow as large as two inches. They are brown or black, the Shade Tree Council says. with three light stripes along the back and hairs Each body segment except sive tri the first has wartlike projections; the forestry their growth, emerging about two weeks later as moths.

The Shade Tree Council and the Agriculture Department have put together a public information campaign which includes a 24-hour holline number, posters and pictures of the caterpillars and moths, and a soonto-be-televised show titled "Where is The Shade Going?

The Gypsy Moth Hotline number is 343-5045, but Shade Tree Council members ask that residents call their city halls first with questions they may have about the moths. Council members will pick up the calls and return them when they have the answers

Council members and MDA officials stress that no control measures should be taken by residents. If they see caterpillars feeding on leaves or notice moths that could be gypsy moths, residents should catch the insects and hold them until they call their city halls

If the identification sounds like the real thing, residents will be asked to bring the moths in. The samples will be collected weekly and taken to laboratories for identification

Residents are urged not to take any control measures themselves. If there are moths or caterpillars, the MDA will take over.

The Shade Tree Council is a nonprofit organization whose purpose is to educate the public about comprehensive tree management and urban make them smooth again. Several of the streets are in need of immediate attention, public works director James Ellison said at an earlier council meeting. In some cases the base itself is beginning to crumble and the entire street will have to be removed and replaced, he said.

City Manager John Crawford said the past winter "caused substantial deterioration to city streets" leading to "numerous complaints from residents about road conditions.'

"Nearly all are justified," he added.

On a home with state equalized value of $50,000 ($100,000 market value) the 2 mill tax would add $100 a year to the tax bill.

In his report to the council, City Manager Crawford said there were five specific benefits to residents under the program: • Tax advantage — the gross cost to residents is $100 a year, but that will be reduced by Michigan State Tax Credit and Federal Income Tax deductions • Property values - real estate, he said sells faster and increases in value faster on improved streets.

On Father's Day this Sunday, June 20, many persons will undoubtedly shower dad with gifts and cards. But infrequently do sons and daughters take the time to sit back and reflect on the memories and impressions their fathers left upon them.

exempt status, but they won't admit they didn't qualify last year, so they are appealing that one." Sullivan and Killebrew agree the Ford House will most likely be asked to show the difference in its operations this year over last year, in hopes of not repeating 1981's two-week hearing before Presiding Hearing Officer Claris Cwirko "I DON'T THINK they are really doing anything different," Sullivan said, but he noted the estate is now open to tours six days a week. This, he said, has increased both the number of people who tour the grounds and the number of groups that have requested to use the facilities.

"One of the claims made last year was that the Ford House was not sufficiently open to the public to justify the tax-exempt status," he said. "There are more people going through as individuals and there have been increased group requests.

The increased usage is because of greater public awareness of the estate. along with publicity about the hours of public tours. Sullivan said

Jon Gandelot was returned to uff

Monday.

The increased tours are not an attempt to make the Ford House's appeal look better, estate director Paul Alandt said. The expansion of tour hours would have taken place earlier had the staff been available and trained, he said.

"We have planned all along to make more tours available." Alandt said "It was just a matter of getting the staff trained and ready to go. You have to open up and get your feet wet first.

"We haven't changed out attitude at all toward selection of groups, Alandt said. "We've always had that respect for groups involved

One problem with advertising hours has been a request by the estate to erect a sign on Lakeshore near the front of the house which would have tour hours and a telephone number on it as well as the Ford House name, Alandt said

Ordinances in Grosse Pointe Shores prohibit any sign other than a "For Sale" sign or a temporary placard during construction of a home

Shores trustees rejected the Ford House request for a variance to put up the sign last month, saying it would be possible traffic hazard, would not blend in with the surrounding residential area, and could set a precedent for other sign requests.

The sign would be near the Lakeshore curve, which trustees have said is dangerous enough without placing a sign to distract a driver's attention away from the road.

Trustees argued the sign could slow

In addition, the sign, which one trustee said "would look all right for a bank, but not in a residential area," would not blend with the area. Trustees recommended a bronze or brass plaque placed on or near the gatehouse instead of the six-squarefoot plywood sign the estate requested.

Or, trustees said, the historical marker on the estate grounds could be moved to the front of the property near the gatehouse

NEITHER SOLUTION would have the desired effect, Ford House representative Frederick Dindoffer said.

"We have been accused of being an elitist outfit that doesn't open its gates to the public and this sign is meant to dispell that image." Dindoffer told the trustees. "We want to make sure there is no question the public is welcome at the Ford House.

"That plaque isn't going to ac complish anything," Sullivan said. "It is something that should stand out a little bit and put the hours of visita-tion." The bronge plaque affixed to the gatehouse "really doesn't accomplish the purpose," he added.

While the Tax Tribunal is ruling on the estate's 1982 status, Sullivan said the Court of Appeals could be ruling on the tax tribunal's decision of last year which the Ford House is appealing.

Sullivan said the estate requested a, transcript of the proceedings, called a record, which they have yet to re-ceive. When the estate has the record, it will be filed with the Appeals Court, followed within 60 days by the Ford

House's written arguments, Sullivan

"This is an appeal of the denial of the tax-exempt status as a public in-stitution," Sullivan said, adding the hearing officer and the tribunal had misinterpreted some of the evidence.

The tribunal in its opinion wrote that "because it is involved in some charitable works, we should therefore conclude that all or the majority of its works are charitable and it is entitled to exemption from taxation.

Michigan law says to quality for exemption, an institution must meet the following criteria. It should be incorporated under state law, be a nonprofit theater, library, educational scientific or charitable institution, be the owner and occupant of the real property and occupy the property sol-ely for the purpose for which the institution was incorporated

The 60-room mansion and the 87 acres of surrounding property were bequeathed by the late Eleanor Clay Ford for the benefit of the public."

In reviewing activities held at the home during 1979 and 1980, only 39 percent and 23 percent respectively could be classified as fund-raising benefits for charitable organizations, the tribunal said

The Ford House contended that "99 percent of the sponsoring organizations were non-profit, charitable organizations whose purpose in using the Ford House facilities was to raise funds.

The house, which took three years to build and furnish, was the home of Edsel and Eleanor Ford until their deaths. In her will, Mrs Ford asked the home to be used to benefit the pub-lic and left a trust fund for its maintenance. The estate first opened its gates to the public in 1980, and has expanded tour hours since then. There are now two tours a day six days a week, with no tours on Saturday.

He was a man of continuous love and caring, and I suppose his sense of stability and peace due to his older age So much of my life was shaped by his fatherly love."

Barbara Gattorn, Wayne County Charter Commissioner: "When I look back on it, the greatest thing my father allowed us to do was to make mistakes. As we got older, he never demanded we do something one way or the other. Very often we don't appreciate things like that until we become parents ourselves Now I look back and see his wisdom."

solutely ridiculous," noting that both the state and Detroit had passed income tax increases in the last year. With the state in economic doldrums, now is not the time to raise taxes, she said

Rather than raise taxes, the county should adopt a "get-tough" policy with unions or pursue further layoffs in some combination, Gattorn said. The tax question only points out salaries are too high in the county already, she said, and county employes should be asked to make the same concessions workers in both the public and private sector have inade

"These are not easy decisions, but ones that have to be made." Gattorn said. "In order to cut the budget, you have to go where the money is; wages and tringe benefits

The new charter which takes effect in January may not be perfect. Gat-torn said, but weaknesses in it are the fault of enabling legislation, not the Charter Commission Weaknesses Gattorn pointed out are in areas such as the Road Commission not being mainstreamed into the rest of the county government, something she said was state-mandated.

In addition, the state decided the county executive officer should be elected through the partisan primary process, rather than a single at-large election. Gattorn said. The partisan primary is not only more expensive, but leaves room for political squabbles, she said

Areas where the new 15-member commission can be effective will be in the consolidation of county offices, the elimination of jobs, budget proceedings and the reviewing of expendi-

The Park's Beautification Commission is taking steps to preserve the city's hundreds of towering elm trees by establishment of an elmtree injection program under the chairmanship of Al Mazur.

Mazur is prepared to order the fun-gicide Lignasan BPL and train interested individuals and block groups in its use. He also has slide presentations and information packets about the Dutch Elm disease-fighting chemical for use by Park residents.

penditures could be reviewed and, if hings were getting out of hand, could be cut back.

Another effective tool for county reform will be the commission's ability to review appointments to department head positions in the county, eliminating what Gattorn said are people who are unable to run departments which they now head Steiner, after meeting in Lansing last week with state Republican Party officials, decided Monday he will continue his efforts to win the county commission seat. "Although highly complimented at the confidence the state Republican Party has evidenced," Steiner said he has decided against running for the state Senate in the First District, a seat he said polls showed he could win.

Instead, Steiner said he feels there is still much to be accomplished in the county, and as a part of the Wayne County charter transition team, he felt it necessary he continue to "correct the inequities in the new charter.

There are still departments that can be combined, Steiner said, which he felt the Charter Commission should have done. One such department is the Wayne County General Hospital, which Steiner said is "over-staffed and under-utilized with 220 patients and 1,125 staff." Cottage Hospital, he noted, operates with 500 staff for 200 patients.

"The hospital is a drain on Wayne County taxpayers," Steiner said, and as a member of the transition team. he thinks he could be instrumental in saving county taxpayers' money.

Gattorn took exception to Steiner's example of charter weakness, saying the Board of Commissioners has always had the power to cut back the staff and facilities as it felt necessary.

The new charter simply reads the county must maintain and administer some type of health care facility, Gat-torn said. Size, staff and type of treatment are not specified.

of-the-art self sufficient facility. They must put in better techniques, and they must put in a better governing body" to make the hospital more accountable, Steiner said.

Steiner voted no on the added millage question on the fall primary ballot, and recommended instead that every employe, including elected officials, take a 10 percent pay cut as an alternative to layoffs and payless paydays. "We've got the best run county in the state," Steiner said. "We have de-creased our spending by $80 million and have not increased our deficit." pointing out the state government found itself having to slash spending and was still facing a whopping de-

Democratic hopeful John Hertel will forgo running for the Senate seat he held since 1974, he said, to show voters he means what he says when he wants to reform county government, which he calls the most corrupt in the state. There are two other reasons for his commission candidacy, Hertel said The first was his inability to raise the targeted $150,000 for his county executive officer race, which Hertel blames on his unwillingness to make commitments to certain labor and governmental groups during fund raising efforts. The second is the long commute to Lansing, which Hertel said limits the time he has to spend with his family As soon as the Senate summer break comes, Hertel said he will be available for the candidate night circuit, and will speak anytime and anywhere he is asked. "I'm concerned there are not enough interested voters in the county," Hertel said, and his hope is to stir up interest in some of the county's problems.

As a senator, Hertel said he was able to introduce legislation that would reform the civil service process in the county as well as continuing his fight against the Wayne County Road Commission and its union, the Association of County Road Administrators. Hertel said he felt "really good with his decision" to run for the commis-sioner's seat. "I can look in the mirror and sleep well at night." he said. "You can't do anything for the county if you run and lose." Wisniewski, who is running for his fifth term on the Board of Commissioners, called the tax question a 'stop-gap sort of thing' brought about by the loss of state revenue sharing, Medicare, Medicaid, foster and child care funds by the state.

'I think the voters should be asked to decide," Wisniewski said, adding he thought the ballot question has as much chance "as a sinner in Heaven" to be passed.

The county is faced with trying to maintain the same level of services as manpower levels fall, Wisniewski said, pointing out that state funds owed the county would help get the government back on its feet. Lay-offs would mean further curtailing of county services. which have been under fire by com-munities who see as the county's responsibility the maintenance of roads and other services.

Wisniewski was quoted incorrectly last week in a story. The quote should have read "I don't spend a lot of time in the Lansing and my opponent does spend a lot of time in the City County Building.

Wisniewski said it will be an exciting two years for the new commis-sioners under the charter. "I feel motivated now to work more conesively with the man who will wield the stick.

Fond, funny memories from 25 Festival seasons

By Irene Moran

"Concert in Safari Setting" - while listening to chamber music? That was how Frank P. Gill, music critic for the Detroit Times, headlined his review of the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Fes-tival's concert back in 1959 at the War Memorial.

To clarify the statement we have to go back to the Music Festival's premier season in 1958. There were three chamber concerts. Performers were Marily Cotlow, soprano; William Doppman and Ruth Meckler, pianists; Paul Olefsky, cellist; Richard Roeck-lein, harpsichordist; Gordon Staples, violinist and Alexander Suczek, troubadour.

The concerts were held outdoors in the Memorial Courtyard and musicians performed on the front entrance steps of the Memorial's Alger House. The audience was seated around the circular reflecting pool. However, problems did arise. Alternate dates had to be provided in case of rain, the protection of the piano became a major consideration and the arrival of fishflies in the middle of the concert nearly broke up the program. Roecklein kept a constant sweep of the insects from his keyboard while playing. At times the wind played havoc with the music sheets. In order to anchor the music onto the stands, the musicians used clip clothes pins. So, when the second season came along, in a gesture of bold bravado and defiance, Festival officials surrounded the outdoor stage with mis-quito netting. This was what prompted Frank Gill to refer to the setting as somewhat of a "safari look to the pro-ceedings." During the concert, while soprano Marilyn Cotlow was singing Schubert lieder with Karl Haas at the piano, a floor lamp was blown down by the wind. Miss Cotlow didn't bat an eye and didn't miss a note. The audience gave her a standing ovation. Net-ting or no netting, one music-minded fish fly managed to perch on Nathan Gordon's viola bow and rode it for the entire piece. In spite of the occasional inconveniences created by Mother Nature, the audiences continued to grow. The Summer Music Festival, now celebrating its 25th season, is one of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's traditional musical events. It was founded by Suczek to fill a gap in the musical life of the Grosse Pointe community during the summer. Suczek had inspiration and assistance from two Detroit Symphony Orchestra members — concertmaster Gordon Staples and Paul Olefsky, former principal cellist, who became the Festival's first music director. John W. Lake, former War Memorial executive director, contributed to the premier planning. The Festival was under his guidance for 24 years. After Olefsky left Detroit, Staples became music director. Frederic DeHaven served as artistic director in the 1970's and Alex Suczek has assumed the post since 1980.

The late Mrs. Frank W. Coolidge became the general chairman. She organized the first committee to promote the Festival project. Subsequent chairmen were Mrs. David Sutter, Chairmen were Mrs. David Sutter, Mrs. Frederick Lunsberry, Mrs. George Basarich, Mrs. John M. Lesesne, Mrs. Arnold W. Lunger-shausen and Alex Suczek. This sum-mer marks the fifth season for Mrs. Sterling S. Sanford as general chair-

The Music Festival got underway without a penny and has always met its budget through subscribers, box office reciepts, patron contributions and community support. Helping insure its financial success during the first decade were patrons Mr. and Mrs. Burns Henry, Jr., Mrs. Stephen Thrall, Mr. Charles Koebel, Mrs. Russell A. Alger, Mrs. Alan Shelden, Mrs. Joseph B. Schlotman, Mrs. Lester F. Ruwe, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Morely, Dr. Carl R. Von Gruenigen and Dr. Scholdager.

By the sixth season, a dramatic change of location was made. A be-quest from William H. Fries, in excess of half a million dollars, made possible the building of the William Fries Auditorium at the War Memorial. The Festival left the outdoor setting and moved into the Fries Auditorium --with the exception of one traditional al fresco concert each season staged on the Lakeside Terrace of Alger House with the audience seated on the lawn. In 1978 Werner Torkanowsky con-ducted the Detroit Symphony Orchestra on that stage.

The Festival, now considered as one of Michigan's leading music festivals, attracts concert-goers from far and near. Its beginning can well be remembered by many friends who joined in supporting it. Since the late 1950's Festival-goers have been arriving as early as 6 p.m. for pre-concert picnicking on the Memorial grounds and Lakeside Terrace. In 1968 the Russian Balalaika Orchestra, conducted by Michael Kuzmich, opened the season. For the occasion a gourmet banquet of Russian dishes was served on the Lakeside Terrace. And since then the picnics have become very popular Also, for those who didn't wish to bring their own picnic baskets and re-freshments, the Memorial began to cater special picnic box suppers. On rainy days the picnics move indoors. For a few seasons, before the high sea wall was built, the Festival had a nautical audience of boats anchored off-shore. Warren Trafton, Memorial youth director paddled a dingny from boat to boat collecting ticket money. Everyone was hospitable and offered him a drink. Before he was through, the dinghy and he both capsized Silhouetted against a full moon, he managed to swim to shore with one hand pulling the boat and the other clutching ticket money. The Detroit Symphony Orchestra was playing that evening with Pierre Hetu conducting. Every once in a while a passing freighter would toot. And once during Handel's "Water Music," it was right in tune. There was an appreciated rip-ple of laughter, but no disturbance. It, in fact, enhanced the entire mood of

It was in July of 1964 that a gift of an 18th century Italian fountain was made by Mr. and Mrs. Alger Shelden to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The 3,000-pound marble fountain was installed in the center of the circular reflecting pool in front of Alger House. The Festival opening concert was dedicated to the Sheldens, In their honor, violinist Gordon Staples and violist Nathan Gordon played the Handel-Halvorsen duo by the fountain.

tragic episode, 600 people gathered in the Fries Crystal Balfroom for the Cabaret. The atmosphere was an electrifying experience for all as the release of tension was left.

The 1970 season was co-sponsored by the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, of which Alice Lungershausen was general chairman. Proceeds from the Music Festival went towards the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Maintenance and Pension Funds. The season held three concerts by members of the Detroit Symphony; all contributing their services for the benefit The first concert featured the Summer Festival Orchestra with Sixten Ehrling conducting, the second offered an Even-ing of Chamber Music, and the closing event was a Viennese Ball with the Strauss Waltz Orchestra, conducted by Paul Freeman. The popular Viennese Ball is still sponsored by the War Memorial, but not at Festival time any longer.

The success of the evening led to a 1981 Michigan-wide piano competition. Stephanie Leon was judged as winner. Her Festival recital also won her rave reviews

Through the years the Festival has introduced young talent, some have risen to great musical heights. Pranist Ruth Meckler Laredo made her ap pearance with the Festival in 1959 and has since become an international artist. Pianist Cynthia Raim, who was a Festival recitalist in 1978, has since made her debut with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and is rapidly gaining an international reputation. Among other Festival performers were Albert Tipton, then principal flutist of the Detroit Symphony, and his wife Mary Norris, pianist, and Six-ten Ehrling, then Detroit Symphony conductro, who performed an all sonata program at the piano with vio-linist Cordon Studies. linist Gordon Staples. There were also the Stanley Quartet, soprano Marjorie Gordon, cellist Italo Babini and the Detroit Concert Band, under conductor Leonard Smith.

More recent were internationally known piamists Mischa Kottler, James Tocco, Gary Graffman and Leonard Pennario, Broadway stars Barbara Meister and David Bender, soprano Leigh Munro, soprano Maria Ewing, of the Metropolitan Opera, the New England Conservatory Ragtime Ensemble, James Dapogny's Chicago Jazz Band, the Fine Arts Quartet and the Pastiche Quartet

Considered as one of the architec tural gems of the Midwest the War Memorial is situated on the shoreline of Lake St. Clan. surrounded by Trial and Memorial Gardens and spouting fountains. The house and grounds were deeded to the Grosse Pointe community in 1949 by the Russell A Alger family to serve as a War Memo rial

The Music Festival is a non-profit cultural activity sponsored by the War Memorial Center, headed by Dr. Mark R. Weber, executive director. It attributes its continuing success to the great community support it has enjoyed for the past quarter of a century

The Festival will open its silver an niversary season on Sunday, June 27, with a recital by 23 year old planist William Ransom, who was top winner in the Festival's second plano competition this spring Additional concerts (on consecutive Wednesdays) include Detroit-born pranist Ruth Laredo on July 7; a chamber trio composed of Detroit-born planist James Tocco, Detroit Symphony Orchestra Concertmaster Gordon Staples and Detroit Symphony assistant principal cellist Marcy Chanteaux on July 14, Grosse Pointe-born soprano Elizabeth Parcells with the Ann Arbor Chamber Or-chestra, conducted by Carl Daehler, on July 21: and the Royal Canadian Legion Concert Band, Paul Cross, conductor, on July 28 (outdoor concert indoors in case of rain+ Curtain time is 8 p.m

War Memorial hosts three art courses this summer

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Center-with its Italian Renaissance architecture, sweeping lawns overlooking Lake St. Clair and gardens in full bloom-is a great setting for art classes.

Art students have three classes from which to choose this summer. Paolo Coppini will begin a nine week course in oil and portraiture on Thursday, June 17. Coppini, who has just returned from a two-month stay in Italy, paints in the Renaissance style. The class will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. and course fee is $54. Mary Louise McCarroll will offer a sketching class on Tuesday mornings beginning June 29 and continuing until Aug. 10. Students will meet from 9 to 11:30 a.m. on the center grounds with an occasional trip to neighboring locations. A pencil, felt tip pen and sketch pad are the only materials required. Miss McCarroll, who is on the faculty of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Assocation as well as that of the War Memorial, received a Masters of Fine Arts degree from Southern Illinois University with continuing studies in Boston, Italy and Ireland. Her paintings have been exhibited on a national level as well as in Italy and France. She is listed in the "World's Who's Who of Women." The fee for Miss McCarroll's sketching class is $45 for seven, two-and-ahalf hour sessions. Marilyn Derwenskus who is also on the faculty of Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association, and Center for Creative Studies, will present a three-day workshop titled "Painting Water With Water." Students will meet on the lake side lawn where the marine activity on Lake St. Clair and distant view of the Yacht Club spire are models to be transferred to canvas. The course runs July 6, 7 and 8, meeting from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Students should bring a sack lunch. The workshop fee is $50. Mrs. Derwenskus recently had a watercolor accepted in the Marietta National and has exhibited in "Men and Women in the Art-M: in Wind Bend Winc.

Photo show focuses on the beauty that surrounds us

By Jenna Doe

Grosse Pointe photographer Elizabeth Carpenter has captured an extraordinary view of Grosse Pointe in a collection of photographs that are on display this month at the Lochmoor Country Club

"My philosophy on photography is that the world is a gorgeous place and much of the beauty is right under our feet, ' said Miss Carpenter "The best part of the world is where you live." Many of the shots in the collection, Miss Carpenter said, were spotted while walking her basset hound, who can't walk very far Having lived in Grosse Pointe all of her life. Miss Carpenter said that she did not always appreciate the beauty of the community

"I was like everyone else, I got up-and left for work in the early morning and returned after dark," she said. It was not until she left her 9-to-5 job and began her own business last year that she had time to really explore the beauty that surrounds Pointers "The way the community is maintained is beautiful," she said. The collection consists of photo graphs that Miss Carpenter has been working on since last September

"I shoot 180 pieces of film for six or seven shots that can be used." she said, "But I consider that a good average. Six shots require about five weeks work

"My first intention in this project is to obtain a good picture, not a record shot," Miss Carpenter said "In some Fve tried to keep out specific struc-tural identification so they're more

The film traces the rise and mysterious downfall of a brucklaster when is manipulated by the government into becoming a national hero.

In its original version, "Man of Marble" made reference to the Gdansk shipvard riots of 1970 Al-though the elerence was cut from the film before its release, "Man of Marble' became one of the most popular films in Polish history, causing a governmental shake up in the process, according to Classic Film Theater

The government was unsuccessful in its at-tempt "'Man of Iron" was allowed to compete for the Best Foreign Film Award, although it did not win. The film did win grand prize at the Cannes Film Festival

"Man of Marble" will be shown at the Punch and Judy on Thursday and Friday, June 17 and 18, at 6 and 9 p.m. "Man of Iron" will be shown on Thursday and Friday, June 24 and 25. at 6 30 and 9 p m.

An example of this technique is evi-dent in her photograph named "Elm Trees in Morning Haze". It is a shot of the double row elm trees on Kercheval and Kenwood, but there are no identifying buildings to give viewers a clue that it was taken in the midst of a busy community. It has a peaceful and serence appearance The beauty of the trees and the color of the photograph are outstanding

Miss Carpenter also shot the Hunt Club in the winter. This is also photographed from an angle that does not reveal the location, but illustrates the calm quiet of the snow-covered stables. on a cold evening

'Timing is everything," said Miss Carpenter If she had waited just one day to capture the Hunt Club the photograph would have been lost. The next day the snow melted Also in the collection are some photographs of the monuments in Grosse Pointe She photographed St Paul Catholic Church, a familiar site to Pointers, but few have seen the church at dawn when the sun's rays give the doors a golden appearance. the way it appears in the photograph The photograph of South High School was taken in autumn and Miss Car-penter calculated the angle of her camera and the time of day so that even the leaves on the ground cast small shadows

Miss Carpenter said that sometimes while working on the collection she would see a scene she wanted and the time was right while she was out driv-ing. She would go home, get her cam-era, and return. "Kercheval Avenue in the Morning" was composed this way. The photograph is a shot of Kercheval as autumn trees frame the street and just a few rich colored leaves have fallen to the ground.

The prints are all done in the Cibachchrome process. This process presents each image in the finest possible manner. It allows each photograph the sharpness it deserves and a richness in color that will never fade or discolor

Miss Carpenter is a graduate of Grosse Pointe University School and Wellesley College She also attended the Society of Arts and Crafts (now called the Center for Creative Studies Studies) and taught at the Toledo Museum of Art Miss Carpenter began working in photography at the JL. Hudson Co., where she was a photographic set designer for 14 years. "A factor of commercial work is that the photographer can only choose one angle. This discipline has carried over into what I do now," she said "I've been composing at a camera for 14 years, and now I suppose I'm composing the outdoors

Although Miss Carpenter has worked in other art forms -- drawing, painting and graphic processes photography is the medium that she enjoys most. "Photography is every bit as creative as other art forms I've done." she said "It has an element of mystery because you don't see your work until it is completely finished. Creative decisions cannot be made during the process, as in other art forms.

Miss Carpenter said that another local photographer, John Gajda, 70, has helped her develop her art. "He is my hero," she said. "He taught me simple and clean shooting and to wait for the right shot. Miss Carpenter said that many times she was out every morning for five weeks to get only two shots Miss Carpenter's photographs will remain at Lochmoor until July 4 After July 4 a select group of photographs from the collection will be displaced at the Farm's Market, 355 Fisher Road The Hunt Club will exhibit the collection in a one-day showing on July 17. and it will also be in the September Art Show at the War Memorial For further information call her at 886-0243

Father-son team invents solar unit

By Tom Greenwood A Grosse Pointe father and son think they have at least a partial answer to ever rising energy costs

Dr Danforth Holley and his son. Danforth Earl Holley, are inventors of HOLLEY HEATER-the Holley Solar Perpetual Motion Room Heater, a passive heating sys tem utilizing the sun's energy

Although the words "perpetual motion" may evoke images of Rube Goldberg selling snake oil, the heater works efficiently enough to have been granted a US patent

"Every second of the day the sun turns four million tons of matter into energy," said Dr. Holley "This has been happening for about five billion years and should continue for at least another five billion. The earth receives only about a two-billionth of this energy Of that 1,500 quadrillion kilowatt hours of power, about 34 per cent is lost due to gases, dust and reflection back into space by clouds Another 19 percent is absorbed by the different layers of the atmosphere

<sup>2</sup> "The final 47 percent reaches the ground or ocean where it is absorbed as heat. This represents 700 quadrillion kilowatt hours of energy. Man uses about 90 trillion kilowatt hours of energy each year. In 40 minutes, the sun delivers to the earth's surface as 'much energy as we use in a year! Why not use it?"

The heater itself resembles a flat, enclosed rectangular box divided in two length-wise with two openings for cold air intake and hot air outlet

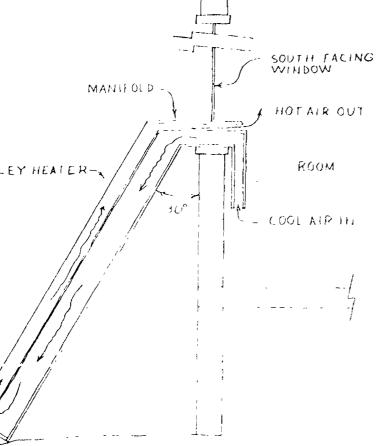

The box leans outside a window at a 30 degree angle to the ground, with a perpendicular mainfold inserted into the home through the window.

Cold air is drawn into the box, circulated up beneath a plexiglass covering over a black painted absorber plate and heated by the sun's rays. The hot air rises to the top of the box and is released into the room to be heated. The natural rise and fall of the air as it heats and cools gives the invention its perpetual motion characteristics

Instructions on how to assemble the heater, which costs about $160 with most materials available at local lumberyards, are contained in a 26 page manual complete with diagrams.

"Almost anyone can put this devise together in a day using a hammer saw, tin snips, caulking gun staple gun, plane, screwdriver and hand or electric drill," said Dr. Holley

"The unit is easy to assemble, cheap to build, gives a never ending supply of energy and qualifies the home owner for an energy write off on his taxes. Plus, it requires no re-modeling. of the home no parasitic energy means to fuel it such as pumps or ventilators. It's a completely selfcontained unit that can be moved from room to room and stored during the summertime

According to Dr. Holley, it was his son who started the heater project as a 14-year-old student at Grosse Pointe Academy. In fact, the Academy currently has a working model installed at the school.

The Holleys have sold about 200 of the manuals so far, at a cost of $5.95.

which includes $1 for handling and postage They printed up 1,000 of the manuals initially, but hope to see sales grow after a planned mail campaign gets under way

Besides the instructions on assembling the heater, the manual includes information on tax credits (including a tax form from the IRS to practice on). list of suppliers and a solar source sheet for all 50 states. Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands

Barbret named AARP president

Arthur F. Bouton, national president of the American Association of Retired Persons, has announced the formation of the Grosse Pointe City Chapter No. 3430 in Grosse Pointe. Bouton offered congratulations on behalf of the 13million-member organization to the new chapter and its president, Marie Barbret, Waterloo Road.

Local AARP chapters sponsor community public service programs; work to influence the enactment of local, state and national legislation of benefit to older Americans; and acquaint members and other older citizens with the programs and services offered by the national organization. Founded in 1958, AARP is the nation's largest organization dedicated to helping older citizens achieve retirement lives of purpose, dignity and independence The Association encourages older Americans to remain active in community and public affairs, provides legislative representation at all levels of government, and sponsors services to help them stretch retirement incomes. It also publishes magazines and other materials of special interest to older readers.

For further information, write to AARP, 1909 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20049.

Congressman Dennis Hertel and Jim ; Blanchard announced today that they; will jointly sponsor a "Social Security Forum" Saturday, June 19, from 10 a.m to noon, at Macomb Community College, South Campus, in Warren The two congressmen announced they were prompted to sponsor the forum as a way to clarify the current status, as well as proposed changes of : the Social Security program, for the citizens of their two congressional dis truets

"During the past year or so, many questions have arisen concerning the soundness of the Social Security Sys tem, its funding levels and any possi ble changes in benefits for current re cipients. We telt it was only appropriate to provide as much up to date in formation as possible to concerned recipients and other interested members of the public said Blanchard Macomb College, in addition to being the site of the Forum, is also a co sponsor of the event Hertel and Blanchard also announced that Wilbur J. Cohen, former Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), will be the featured speaker at the forum Cohen has been involved with the Social Security System since its incep-tion in 1935. He has served as Assistant Secretary, Under Secretary and Secretary of HHS and was instrumental in developing medicare and medicaid legislation as a member of President Kennedy's Task Force on Health and Social Security

Cohen is currently a professor of public affairs at the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas, Austin

Hertel explained that while the presentations at the forum will focus on Social Security arrangements have been made to make information about a wide variety of senior citizen ser vices available to those who attend He stated that representatives of nearly 20 agencies would be on hand with materials describing the services available to seniors in the tri-county area.

Blanchard stressed the fact that the forum is open to the general publicwithout charge. He encouraged anyone, interested in the concerns of the elderly to attend

PREMIERING THIS WEEKEND

Grosse Pointe Cable is proud to present a unique new service for the Discriminating Television Viewer!

Seven nights a week, Bravo offers critically acclaimed American and Foreign Films, as well as the best in Music, Ballet, Opera, Jazz, and Dance.

AWARD WINNING FILMS

Films not normally available on TV or in most community movie theatres make up the foundation of BRAVO. These are not the standard Hollywood releases, but are those celebrated at the international film festivals. Critics and "film buffs" consider them to be the world's finest. Over the course of a year, BRAVO will feature more than 100 films showcasing the talents of accomplished directors and international stars such as Elia Kazan. Glenda Jackson, Lina Wertmuller and Francois Truffaut. BRAVO airs a feature film every evening, each introduced by host E.G. Marshall to enhance viewer appreciation. Foreign. films are shown in both subtitled and dubbed versions.

HIGH-QUALITY PERFORMING ARTS

Full length performances by the world's most popular artists are also a part of every evening on BRAVO. Legends such as Aaron Copland. Beverly Sills, Itzhak Perlman, Rudolph Nureyev and Eubie Blake are regulars on BRAVO. BRAVO also travels across the country and around the world to find the most imaginative programs. Providing exposure to the stars of tomorrow. Insightful introductions by stage and screen star Rita Moreno and opera diva Roberta Peters add to the subscriber's understanding and enjoyment of every BRAVO presentation.

the lifetimes of older people living today-television, jet planes, satellite communication, to name a few. But a major contribution which we take for granted is the time which has been added to our life expectancy. If we to our fife expectancy. If we think about it, it is truly re-markable that our earthly time allowance has shot up rapidly from an average age of 40 years to 70 within the lifetime of older people today. Just a few years back, it was accepted that the body had been programmed for three score years to 10. For a man to "live out his time" was rare. Until now very few did.

MEN AND WOMEN became toil-worn and disease-marked at an early age in those days, but they were not old. They did not go through an aging process. Death was always untimely. There was no gradual decline of the physical body. There was no quiet acceptance of time pass-ing. Life came to an end abrupt-

Yet for all their fatal illnesses, people were once vital, capable and very much alive right up to the end of their short days.

This is the heritage we should claim from them—that the added years granted to us shall be lived with that same spirit. Per-haps the notion of living to be old is too novel to appreciate. But if we think about it, it is indeed wonderful that, by the year 2000, most people will be more or less guaranteed a full life.

This first generation of fulltimers has cause for you. How-ever they also have cause for concern. In order to make those years truly rewarding, they have a responsibility of blazing a trail not only for themselves but for all those who will follow them into the untried world of the old.

Much has been gained. For some who had rough starts, little education and worked long hours for low wages, these later years are golden years, particu-larly the early years of relifiement. The worries of the world are turned off. There is time for pleasurable activities that do not tire.

But many of these pleasures depend on Social Security, Med-icare and pensions. Without such bolsters, the good life is not pos-sible. That is why every older person should be concerned that benefits are maintained and improved. Particularly in this climate of budget cutbacks, it is important to maintain a watchful eye and a demanding voice. There are those among us who are aware of this. On May 11, 6,000 Michigan senior citizens converged on Lansing in observance of Senior Power Day. The topic on every mind was Social Security. A broad based list of demands were presented to the lawmakers. The program, called Michi-gan's "Eight for the Eighties," encompassing survival needs, was ratified. The demands were reasonable — affordable heat, housing, health care, job security and support for service agencies. Claude Pepper, congressman from Florida, was the keynote speaker. He received a standing ovation which, in view of his record of support for senior ben-year-old Pepper, chairperson of the House Select Committee on Aging, a hero to senior citizens throughout the country.

Asked to give his views on Social Security, Pepper replied: "I BELIEVE that action must be taken in order to restore the confidence of the 36 million beneficiaries of and 115 million contributors to the Social Security system. However, I cannot in all good faith abide by the Presi-dent's proposals. The Adminis-tration's Social Security propos-als would cut $83 million in promised benefits over the next five years. Over the long run, the entire operation of the com-bined Social Security retire-ment, disability and Medicare programs would be reduced by almost one-fourth."

He went on, "The Social Se-curity system is not going hank-rupt. The trust fund assets are simply a contingency reserve to be used when incoming contributions are not enough to meet all benefit obligations. Congress has always acted to address in-stability in the trust funds caused by economic fluctuation. The projected short-term debt amounts to 6 cents on the benefit dollar-a serious matter but eminently solvable." Pepper had his own solution to the current problems in the Social Security system.

"I have introduced the Pepper Retirement Enrichment Pension Annuity Reform Equity Act (PREPARE), a five-bill legislative package designed to revamp the system. The over-all goals of this Act are to expand private retirement savings; guarantee the financial stability of Social Security; supplement retirement income with a minimum private pension; provide an adequate income floor for present retirees; encourage older persons to remain in the labor force; eliminate age-based employment discrimination; and curb future de-pendence on public assistance in old age. Included in this package are measures designed to elim-inate mandatory retirement:"

A box lunch was served to the 6,000 participants by legislators and other public officials. A march to the Capitol, led by a Dixieland band, to deliver the platform to the Governor and other legislative leaders ended the largest gathering of senior citizens in the United States planned by and produced by senior citizens themselves. On June 25, the City-County Building in Detroit will be the site of a public hearing on how the 1983 federal budget will affect the Offices of Service to the Aging's plans to provide services to the elderly next fiscal year, particularly programs like Social Security and Food Stamps. Just a glance reveals how these proposed 1983 Federal Budget plans would affect elderly programs and services nationwide. THERE WOULD BE a $2.3 billion cut in the food stamp program. This would mean that nine out of 10 older people receiving food stamps would have their benefits reduced. A $37.7 million cut in funding for congregate meals and home delivered meals would, according to the Administration on Aging, reduce the number of meals served by more than (Continued on Page 10A)

A $600 million reduction in the Federal Medicaid matching rate for optional services may cause states to take additional actions to reduce Medicaid eligibility levels or lower Medicaid reimbursement rates for approximately 55,000 elderly nursing home residents who are Medicaid recipients.

A proposed 5 percent co-pay-ment under Medicare for all home health visits will affect some 900,000 elderly beneficiaries.

Requiring co-payments for all services under Medicaid will likely increase out-of-pocket costs for some 3.6 million elderly people.

A 30 percent reduction in funding for low-income energy assistance will further escalate heating bills for over two million aged heads of households who now depend on this assistance and who also could risk hypothermia.

Specifically the impact on Michigan will mean that a reduction in funding for low-income energy assistance will represent a 32.5 percent cut that comes at a time when Michigan's energy costs have escalated more than 16 percent annually. A cut in Medicaid affects the medically needy, a group of people who are aged. The three percent reduction would affect this population along with clients costs.

SJH awarded accreditation

St. John Hospital's Blood Bank has cal expertise that meets and exceeds been awarded a two year accredita-tion by the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB), according to Glenn A Wesselmann, executive vicepresident and chief operating officer. Accreditation follows an intensive on-site inspection by specially trained representatives of the Association and establishes that the level of medical, technical, and administrative performance within the facility meets or exceeds the rigiorous standards by the AABB. By successfully meeting those requirements, St. John Hospital's Blood Bank can join more than 2,200 similar facilities across the U.S. and abroad that have earned the association rating and recognition.

Wesselmann explained: "The AABB's inspection and accreditation procedures are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a blood bank or transfusion service to be accredited. but like many others, our facility has sought accreditation because it repre-sents a level or professional and medi-services, basic nursing home services and many other preventive or supportive medical services.

Other proposals would require co-payments. Michigan has already instituted co-payments on dental, vision, podiatric, chiropractic, pharmacy and hearing aid services. Studies have shown that when co-payments are imposed, the sickest patients suffer the greatest financial burden and many delay treatment until the condition is life threatening and requires more extensive care.

A cut in food stamps would mean that taxes and FICA would no longer be income deductible. All food stamp recipients with earned income would be affected, which would reduce the incentive to work. Most recipients would experience a 10 percent reduction in benefits. This is especially critical if you consider that Congress lowered food stamp totals three times with elderly members would be affected, losing an average of

In an effort to cut down on "freeloading," officials of Grosse Pointe Cable TV Inc. Last month began a major advertising public relations and legal campaign to crack down on patrons pirating cable diannels.

The newspaper warming which can June 3 in the News spelled out the definition of theft as applied to cable television, the penalties involved and offered cable patrons a July 1 no questions asked numeric period to turn in control boxes converted to receive extra channels not contracted for

Apparently the message is slowl, getting across "We ve had between 20 and 20 per the resolvent station of far is said. Mike Reynolds District Manager for Detroit Chicago Markets for Group W Cable, co-owners of Grosse Pointe Cable

The people turning the boxes in for repairs have said things like I didn't realize it was illegal - f don't know who tampered with the box mashe my son did it and the box was just dropped on the floor. Can yim check

Reynolds said his office has also fielded calls from persons offering leads on suspected cable thieves. The callers usually mention overhearing their neighbor bragging about getting more channels than they re paying he said

Spanish society inducts members

Fifteen University Liggett School students were inducted to the Spanish Honor Society on May 18, in a special ceremony held in the courtyard of ULS. The chapter of the Sociedad Honoraria Hispanica, established at ULS in 1980, is called El Cid after the Spanish national hero of the medieval

The Spanish honor society was founded in 1953 by the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese to honor those students who distinguished themselves in the study of the language of Don Quixote during no less than three semesters.

Jennifer Curtis, William McFeely, Thomas Persing, Kathleen Barron, John Hunter, Michael McCarthy, Frank Penirian, George Zinn, III, Karen Cavazos, Charles Farrar, De-bbie Lubera, Stephen Pack, Thomas Petzold, Jean Zotter and Marina Peck received a certificate from the chapter advisor Luis Gomez and ULS Spanish teacher Mariela Brown. The Spanish Club headed by senior Nancy Hines provided the refreshment with the assistance of the chapter's president, junior Muffy Hastings. Following the event, parents and students proceeded to the Mexican Village for a Spanish dinner.

Liggett students compete statewide

University Liggett Upper Schoolers received numerous awards for their academic performances during this past school year. At the awards as-sembly on May 27, the following hon-ors given by state and national organizations were announced.

Competing in the Michigan Math League, the ULS team placed first in Wayne County with sophomore Michael Brozowski tying for the fourth spot in Michigan. In a second mathematic competition, the Annual High School Math Exam, senior Rob Swaney earned recognition as the tea Swaney earned recognition as the top scorer for ULS.

At the first statewide Chemistry Olympics sponsored by the American Chemical Society, students from 21 schools competed in such events as lab experiment, computer problem solving and model building. Scores were com-piled for individual students as well as teams with ULS junior David Wu earning an award for finishing second on his team. ULS students also excelled in foreign language competition. In La-tin, sophomore Michael Brozowski and freshman Gillian Darlow, earned Summa cum Laude honors for their performance on a national Latin examination. Magna cum Laude hon-ors were awarded to freshmen Peter Dahling, Christian Tincu, Monique Wise and sophomore William Cleland in the same contest.

ULS French students competing in the National French Contest also performed well. In all 35 awards were captured. A few highlights included senior Hilarey Feeser and Gillian Darlow who earned first place in Detroit for their respective levels. On the same exam, Hilarey took first place in the five-state region while Gillian placed third. Both girls also earned sixth place in the nation in the competition

ULS June awards salute students

Twelve University Liggett Middle School students received special hon-ors June 2 at the school's annual Awards Assembly. Presentations were made in each academic area in addi-tion to awards for citizenship and sportsmanship. Recipients were cho-sen by the school faculty and administration.

The Bertram P. Shover and Helen d'Avignon Cups, the top Middle School awards given, are presented to the boy and girl demonstrating and highest degree of enthusiasm, leadership and general excellence in all classes and activities of the school. The 1981-82 recipients were Oscar Alcantara and Kathy Davies, both eighth graders.

Sportsmanship Cups were presented to Rob Wood and Heidi Jaeger, while Joe Jurewicz and Patty Mertz were honored as demonstrating outstanding citizenship throughout the year. Each department at University Liggett Middle School also selected a superior student to receive special honors. They include Carolyn Seydel, mathematics and Latin, Oscar Alcantara. English Brain David history and Bryant Kong, science and French. Other special honors include The Polly Heeb Award in Visual Art to Fred Chang, The Frank J. Sladen Jr. Award for Music to Oscar Alcantara and Joe Jurewicz, and The Elizabeth A. Campau Drama Award to Anthony Malcoun.

A final presentation was made at the Awards Assembly to the sixth grade student designated as the "Most Enthusiastic Camper" during the outdoor education week at Proud Lake. This year's recipient was Kevin Darby '88.

Personal growth a high priority

Parents of Grosse Pointe's middle middle school homework experience school children want more demanding homework for their seventh and eighth graders, a progress report on local public middle school shows. The recent survey on the middle school program revealed only 33 percent of parents polled felt homework is 'about right.'

"These parents are balanced by an equivalent proportion who feel that homework is 'not demanding enough,''' the survey concludes.

The survey, part of a Board of Education goal to study the middle school program in Grosse Pointe, was conducted by the Office of Research and Development.

About 50 randomly picked parents with at least one current middle schooler and a child in high school were solicited for their views, along with middle school teachers and students and ninth grade students.

The study points out the level of pa-rent dissatisfaction was greater when it came to homework than on any other issue in the survey. Thirty-seven percent of the students polled felt their middle schools. When asked that question about 90 percent of all respondent groups responded with moderate or high satisfaction with middle school achievement levels.

"One may conclude that, whatever concerns parents and teachers have about middle school, achievement is not among the most serious," the report says.

The one issue parents disagree about the most is student conduct in the middle school, the report suggests. Clearly responding appropriately to this finding will require creativity, wisdom and extreme caution."

While one in five parents polled said behavior is "worse than expected," more than one-third say such behavior is "about right." Former middle school students are most critical of the behavior issue, according to the report

State highway costs climb 25 percent

The cost of snow and ice control on the state highway system jumped more than 25 percent last winter, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT).

"This has been a tough winter. especially in comparison with the mild winter of 1980-81," said Donald Orne, the department's chief maintenance engineer. "Inflation also helped to push up the costs."

The winter maintenance bill on the 9,450-mile state highway system (Interstate and US- and M-numbered highways) totaled about $38 million on April 11. That is $7.86 million higher than the $30.14 million spent in the previous winter for snow plowing and spreading salt and de-icing chemicals on the highways, Orne said.

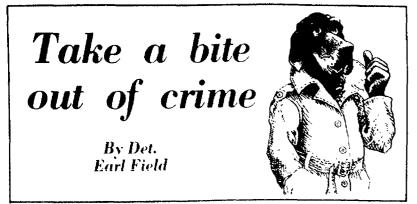

"The final cost will be somewhat higher," Orne said. We haven't received our final billings from the county road commissions which maintain state highways in their respective areas under contract with the department." The transportation department has reduced the level of winter maintenance in recent years in an effort to hold down spending.

Law enforcement agencies in the Pointe are becoming increasingly aware that the public can help them do a better job preventing crime. They're trying to get people involved - through Neighborhood Block Watch groups, home security seminars, business security checks and, now, through a regular column in the Grosse Pointe News. Four local crime prevention officers — the Park's Sgt. Randy Cain, City's Ptl. Dennis VanDale, Farms' Del. Eurl Field and Woods' Ptl. Patrick M. Fagan — will take turns writing the column. They selected "McGruff, the Crime Dog" for their logo, representing their efforts to help citizens "take a bite out of crime." The Farms' Earl Field begins this week with a column about shoplifting.

growing crimes against property in the U.S. Compared to other larceny and thefts, shoplifting has shown the greatest increase within the last five years

General merchandise stores are losing the battle against shoplifters. The 'mass merchandising" technique is a major contributing factor. The concept of serve yourself allows the shoplifter to help himself to any merchandise he would like to take. This free access to the merchandise has caused shoplifting to rise to the point that one out of every 10 customers who enters a store is a shoplifter. The accumulative effects of shoplifting are extremely high. In fact, authorities have suggested that such losses now exceed 2 percent of all general merchandise sales, which incidentally is greater than net profits being realized by those stores. This loss can be more readily seen in the fact that in 1973, 440,000 new businesses ceased to exist due to operating costs overriding profits. The increase in operating costs is a direct result of shoplifting losses, and it is increasing today. Shoplifting is considered a pure risk for the purposes of risk-management and, therefore, the concept of risk transfer plays an important part in determining who actually "pays for the losses." Business works on a profit motive, and whenever an extra expenditure occurs (shoplifting), business passes the loss on to the customer. If the businessman had to absorb the loss totally, it would not be long before the businessman would be bankrupt.

Therefore, he passes the loss on to the customer. The loss of property due to shoplifting has risen to the point where now businessmen increase the Shoplifting is one of the fastest price of merchandise between 3 percont and 15 percent i to compensate for the shoplifting loss. It can be seen that the customers (you and I) are the ones who actually pay for the shoplifter.

In the past, the retail industry has tried to offset shoplifting by increasing sales. This approach worked when losses were nominal, but it is no long-er acceptable or workable because of the monetary amounts involved. So now the emphasis has turned to preventative action, but the lack of knowledge and the resulting fears (of the businessman) have become the greatest contributing factors of the failure of merchants to act. The merchants realized almost immediately that they did not know who shoplifters were, nor how they operated. Too many times, the merchant relied solely on security companies for the development of preventive measures. What occurred was that the businessman was given a quantity of preven-tive measures which lacked the quali-ty needed to stop the shoplifter. Many times, the merchant could not afford the recommended preventive measures and as a result, little or none of the security measures were implemented.

The merchants then turned to the police for assistance in combatting the shoplifter. After researching the problem, the police and the merchant agreed that the most effective means of combatting the shoplifter was for the merchant to know who was a shoplifter, and to know how to catch him. A valuable function of crime preven-tion personnel will be the filling of that knowledge void with instructional programs.

Types of shoplifters

For years security experts, police' officials and others have studied the problem of shoplifting and are now convinced that the bulk of losses are not attributable to the professional shoplifter but rather to ordinary customers. Well planned displays of attractive merchandise that promote impulsive buying may also appear to prompt impulsive theft.

Moreover, shoplifters may be impul-sive, compulsive, deliberate or des-perate; come from all walks of life; and can be ordinary customers or professionals that steal for a living. As a point of departure for filling the businessman's "knowledge gap," there-fore, the following breakdown of shoplifting "types" is presented

The amateur - The amateur steals impulsively due to the simple desire for an item. They are never self-conscious but exercise caution. They generally take such items as food, clothing and many other items for personal

The kleptomaniac - This type of shoplifter steals compulsively whenever the urge strikes. Such persons are normally quite nervous and shy. There are however very few true kleptomaniacs.

The juvenile - Experience has shown that the majority of teenage shoplifters are girls. They frequently work in small groups but not necessarily informal gangs. They steal partly for thrills, or to gain status with their group. Such merchandise as rec-ords, clothing and recreation goods are commonly the objectives of the juvenile shoplifter.

The narcotics addict - Such persons usually steal because they need money to support their habit. They frequently take things in a brazen manner and, when desperate, exhibit a condition of being frantic beyond reason. As a result, caution should be exercised because the addict could be dangerous when apprehension is attempted.

The vagrant or drunkard - Probably the most clumsy type of shoplifter and easiest to detect, this type normally steals out of need for such things as food, alcohol, tobacco and articles of clothing. These shoplifters are frequently under the influence of alcohol

The housewife - This type of shoplifter comprises the largest portion of the adult amateur shoplifters. Because the housewife usually does most of the grocery shopping for the family and because the cost of food and household items is increasing constantly, the housewife believes that the store "owes her something." The items "owes her something." The items usually taken by the housewife are small packages of food, cosmetics. and other household goods.

The professional - The professional shoplifter generally steals for a living, knows all the tricks of the trade and is very cool-headed. He is most commonly interested in small, highly valued items for which he can find an easy resale market. The professional is always cautious and does not take unnecessary chances. Professionals can be discouraged, however, if they see that store personnel are alert or that special protective devices are in use.

Common methods

As in the case of other criminal actions, the professional shoplifter develops and generally sticks to a method of operation best suited to his particular talents and to the kind of merchandise he intends to steal. On the other hand, amateurs use crude and obvious procedures such as simply putting an item in their pocket. Regardless of the sophistication or simolicity of the methods, however, employees must be trained to detect them if such theft is to be reduced. In this regard, some of the shoplifting methods most commonly used include: Palming - Using this technique, a shoplifter carries a small item out in his hand. Other packages, newspapers, coats, gloves and similar items usually carried in the hand may be

Special garments - This method includes the use of slits in a pocket of outer garments in which a hand can be placed, as well as the wearing of skirts, trousers or other garments with elastic waistbands. In addition, the shoplifter may wear "shoplifter bloomers." They may also wear a large blocked hat or unusually baggy ski hat that may be used to enser ski hat that may be used to conceal small expensive items.

Trying on for size — Using this technique, the shoplifter enters a dressing room to try on a garment. While there, he (or she) places an outer garment over what is being stolen and wears the stolen item out of the store.

among professional shoplifters whose a normal temperature, and, several methods are smoothed by experience, other types of shoplifters often display physical characteristics that should catch the attention of trained sales personnel.

Some of these tell-tale characteristics include individuals who leave a sales area with undue haste; persons who frequent washrooms; people with bundles, bags, boxes, topcoats over arms, briefcases, newspapers, umbrellas, or have an arm in a sling. All of these provide the opportunity for concealment of merchandise; People wearing heavy outer garments out of season, baggy clothes, or full-pleated skirts

Other characteristics include individuals with unusual walks, who tug at a sleeve, adjust socks, rub the back of their neck or who are observed in various other unusual actions that might assist in hiding articles, customers who reach into display counters or walk behind sales counters; fussy customers who don't seem to know what they want or interchange articles frequently; persons who don't appear interested in articles about which they have inquired; the disinterested roamer who claims to be waiting for a companion or friend; the nervous, tlush-faced, or dry-hpped person, or a person who appears to be a normal temperatury, and several people who are obviously together "swarming" a department trying on items or handling merchandise

Combatting the Shoplifter

Although the best policies and procedures will not eliminate all shoplift ing, significant reductions can be af fected through the adoption of some standard practices

Customers should be served as promptly as possible. Shoplifters will be scared off by sales personnel who approach them promptly, customers will be happy to receive such service.

All customers should be acknowl edged. That is, when busy with another customer and someone enters the store or department a salesperson should acknowledge his presence by saying something like "I'll be with you in a moment". This will also serve as a psychological deterrent of a poten tial shoplifter

A salesperson should not turn his back on a customer. In such cases, it a customer is so inclined this action serves as an open invitation to shop lifting Lotterers or wanderers should be carefully watched. A store or de partment should never be left unat tended If possible, each customer should receive a freeigh chase -- this will help prevent shop (Continued on Page 15A)

Police departments in the Park and Woods last week each received $1,000 grants from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to fund crime prevention programs using McGruff the Crime Dog (center) as mascot. On hand for the awards were (from left to right) Gerard McNamara, Wood administrative aide, Nancy Luvall, from the Detroit Wayne County Criminal Justice Coordinating Council, Woods Ptl. Patrick Fagan and Park Sgt. Randall Cain. The funds will be used to buy a McGruff costume similar to the one in the photograph above, publications, t-shirts and other crime prevention supplies, Cain said. "We hope to make McGruff as famous in Grosse Pointe as Smokey the Bear," Cain said. "Whenever people see McGruff they're going to think of protecting themselves and their property." The two cities were the first in Wayne County to receive the grants.

Mental health group cites Snyder

Former State Sen. Joseph M. Sny-der, of St. Clair Shores, a champion for the rights of mentally handicapped people, was honored June 13, at the Macomb-Oakland Regional Center (MORC), 16200 19 Mile Road, Mt. Clemens.

As a tribute to Snyder, the name of MORC will be changed in Joseph Snyder's honor

"We are terribly proud to be bearing Joe Snyder's name," said MORC Director Jerry Provencal. "We couldn't have a namesake with a purer reputation for fighting on behalf of people with developmental disabilities.

"Joe has not just struggled to gain understanding and empathy for per-sons with mental retardation," Provencal added. "He has fought to have these individuals recognized as citizens of the first class with all the accompanying privileges — beginning with the right to live next door."

During his 16-year tenure in the state, Snyder served at various times as chairman of both the House and Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Mental Health and as chair of two special committees studying the ne of adults with developmental disabilities. In order to focus more attention on the plight of mentally handicapped persons, Snyder helped to create the Legislative Mental Health Committee. His unannounced visits to large state institutions convinced him that they were hurting people rather than helping people.

Conditions at institutions caused Snyder to modify plans for the origi-nally designed 650-bed MORC. Final plans called for a community placement agency and a 100-bed facility.

"No matter how much you dress up an institution, it's still an institution." Snyder later said. "An institution is virtually a foreign world. Community placement is a logical evolution of services for people. A child vibrates in a loving setting and experiences a more normal day-to-day existence.

Snyder also was instrumental in removing some outdated terminology from state statutes, such as "feeble-minded," "idiot" and "institution for the criminally insane."

In 1978, Snyder retired from the legislature after serving 12 years in the Michigan House of Representatives. He is a former St. Clair Shores councilman and Macomb County Supervisor, as well as international representa-tive for the United Automobile Work-

Among the speakers were C. Patrick Babcock, director of the Michigan Department of Mental Health, and State Sen. Gilbert DiNello. The name change is being made pursuant to Senate concurrent Resolution Number 217, which was introduced by DiNello. The resolution cites Joseph Snyder's substantial contributions, achievements and leadership in the area of mental health care.

Snyder's passion for public service and the rights of mentally handicapped persons did not lessen after leaving public office. He currently is on 15 different committees, including Commission on Handicapper Concerns, Macomb County Social Services Board, Agency on Aging, Mental Health Association in Michigan, and Michigan Protection and Advocacy Services for Developmentally Disabled Persons

Snyder is also currently president of the Shorewood Kiwanis. With the help of other surrounding Kiwanis chapter members, a special ice show for han-dicapped children is held annually.

stolen merchandise Other good practices include a warning system such as a code word or other technique should be developed so that all employes can be alerted when the presence of a shoplifter is suspected. A procedure should be developed whereby employes can notify the office or some clerical locations when they suspect thieves are present. Expensive merchandise should be locked in a showcase display in a position where it can be viewed by more than one salesperson. Articles should not be stacked on corners at such a height that they block the view of salespersons Merchandise should be arranged so that customers must physically "pick it up" in a manner which will not allow a thief to push it off the counter into some type of container

If items are sold in two parts or are made up of pairs, only one part of the pair should be displayed. Whenever possible, merchandise should be attached in such a way as to make its removal difficult, fables and aisies should be kept neat and orderly. A store's intercom or telephone system should be placed in such a position so that when salespersons are using it they can easily view their sales area.

Sales people should be instructed to return to stock promptly any merchandise that is inspected and not sold. Service should be kept fast and efficient as a deterrent to shoplifting. especially when waiting on juveniles. Sales areas should be kept clear of discarded sales checks, shoplifters may use them as apparent evidence of purchase.

Special cash register procedures should be instituted to deter "till tappers"; i.e. keep registers open while it is actually being used to ring up a sale: close the drawer before wrapping merchandise: do not allow a customer to distract a cashier while another person is being waited on; and, keep registers locked while not in use

Clothes on hangers should be placed in an alternating array so that every other hook faces the same way in order to lessen the opportunity of the 'grabber'' to steal more than one or two articles. Price marking equipment should not be left unattended for obvious reasons. Large bulky items such as coolers, should be physically examined to insure that other smaller items are not about to be carried out while inside the larger item. An item found on a completely different shelf may indicate that a shoplifter is present and believing that he was observed, disposed of the item on another shelf.

Apprehension and Arrest

Apprehending a shoplifter is possibly the trickiest step in the entire pro-cess. In fact, the act of apprehension is considered the key point upon which top management should focus its attention; for unless extreme care is taken, the result could be a false arrest suit.

One special precaution is to insure that at least one top store official or

These are the theft has actually been observed; the employe who wit-nessed the theft has not lost sight of the suspect even for the shortest time; and the customer left the store without paying for the merchandise Moreover, it is necessary to use caution and common sense to approach the suspected shoplifter after it is certain that he has violated the law Even at this point when addressing the potential violator, experts suggest that a good approach to use in stopping a suspect is to identify yourself and say something like: "I believe you have some merchandise on your person or in your bag which you have forgotten to pay for Would you mind coming back to the store to straighten out this matter?" This is a touchy situation and should be handled with great diplomacy, delicacy and care. Merchants should also be advised never to twich the suspect in that such action may be construed as roughness which can also result in a law suit.

In conclusion, the businessman must be extremely careful in apprehending program at 343-2025.

mammoth response

The size of the turnout and the more than 15-to-1 margin by which Grosse Pointe School District voters rejected an advisory question calling for a $125,000 feasibility study for a new swimming pool were the biggest surprises in Monday's school election.

In a column in the Grosse Pointe News prior to the election, Supt. Kenneth Brummel had said, "A small turnout will not give the board the advice it has requested." He and the board got their answer and their advice with a mammoth turnout that showed without question the opposition of the majority to the plan to build a $3.5 million pool to serve the south half of the district.

OBVIOUSLY PEOPLE felt that this was not the time to burden the district with additional expenditures. Even though Grosse Pointers often are regarded as impervious to minor ups and downs in the economy, they are feeling the effects of the economic downturn along with the rest of the country. They did not favor the on to other matters. Later Gandelot said he extra burden of financing a new swimming pool at this time.

It was not expected that precincts in the caused him any campaign trouble. northern part of the school district would give strong support to the pool feasibility proposal for the southern half of the district and they did not disappoint such expectations. But even in the southern part of the district where the proposed pool would have been located, there wasn't much more backing. At the Richard school precinct, for example, the largest in the district, 841 voters said no and only 91 said yes, even though Messner Field near the school was the site favored by the pool backers. And in the Kerby School precinct in which Joan Bartoszewicz, the pool committee chairperson, lives and votes, the margin was 532 to 70 against the proposal.

With 5,331 votes against the proposal and only 354 in favor of it, sponsors of the pool fell far short of the number of signatures they had pre-sented to the school board to press their demand for an election. That petition had included more than 2,000 names, a fact that may have simply aroused the foes.

The overwhelming rejection of the proposal ought to put the pool plan on the district's back burner for a long time. At a time when Grosse Pointers and other Michigan residents are concerned about their taxes, and especially their property taxes, it is clear that local people are not in favor of expenditures for what must be regarded as luxury items. The new pool was widely regarded as one such item.

Jon Gandelot, the school board president who was reelected in Monday's voting without op-position except for a scattering of write-in voters for other candidates, received the news of was "delighted and astounded." His own outspoken opposition to the pool obviously had not

IN BETTER ECONOMIC times, there still might be opportunity to build a new pool for South High which was the intent of the recent campaign. Yet with a declining school population, even that proposal is somewhat suspect at present. And while it is an inconvenience to South swimmers and their parents to hold practice sessions and competitive meets in pools at other schools, it is an inconvenience that voters are not ready to end at a cost of $3.5 million or more.

In this newspaper's view, the voters made the right decision for these times. So congratulations are due for both the voters and for President Gandelot on his reelection.

Few lessons from primaries

Early primaries elsewhere around the country seem to have offered few specific guidelines about what to expect when Michigan goes to the polls in its primary election Aug. 10.

After reviewing the primaries from Maine to California, a New York Times reporter found that by and large Republican winners had presented themselves as supporters of President Reagan's economic policies while Democratic nominees had campaigned on their effectiveness in making their party's case against the administration.

BUT THERE'S nothing new or different about that conclusion. The "ins" generally sup-port their own administration while the "outs" oppose the "ins" and contend they could do better if they were elected .

So the early primaries indicate that the real test of the administration's policies will come in the November election. Then the country will learn whether the general public - Democrats and independents as well as Republicans - support the Reagan administration on domestic and foreign policy issues or whether the majority of the voters prefer Democratic alternatives.

As in the past, good organization, an early better known as an author than a politician, was an also-ran in the contest for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate.

A niece of former President Richard Nixon also lost in her bid for the Republican nomination for a California congressional seat but Tom Hayden, the one-time radical leader of the 1960's at the University of Michigan, was nominated to the California State Assembly with the help of a $450,000 campaign budget, one-third of which was contributed by his wife, actress Jane Fonda.

However, nationwide attention will be centered on California in the November general election because of two Democratic nominees. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was nominated for the U.S. Senate and, if elected, no doubt will use his new base to continue his campaign for the presidency. Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles was nominated for governor and would become the first black governor elected by any state if he wins in the fall. Both Democrats will face strong GOP foes in President Reagan's home state.

IN THE MIDWEST, Republicans will have special worries in the fall. In at least five states - Michigan, Iowa, Ohio, Wisconsin and Minnesota - Republican governors are retiring. In most cases, there are no clear-cut successors, which means spirited contests in the fall as well as in the remaining primaries. In Michigan, no fewer than seven Democrats and four Republicans filed for the post to be vacated by Gov. William Milliken at the end of the year.

By Kenneth Brummel Supt. of Schools

As the school year draws to a close, I think it appropriate to note that one of the real strengths of The Grosse Pointe Public School System is the dedicated staff which provides instructional and support services for the residents of this community. Several of our staff members have contributed to that strength by spending most of their careers in this community.

Last month the Board of Education honored 21 such employes at a recep-tion for retiring staff members. The 21 persons retiring this year collectively contributed more than 470 years of service to our schools and spent several more years in the field of educa-

Thus, in Ohio, Seth Taft of the famous family that has produced a president, a chief justice, several senators and lesser political fry, failed in his effort to win the Republican nomination for governor. He was beaten by Rep. Clarence J. Brown from rural Ohio in his first bid for a statewide office.

President Reagan's daughter, Maureen, also did poorly in her bid for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate from California. Rep. Barry Goldwater, Jr., seeking the same office, did a little better but ran third behind the winner, Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego. Gore Vidal,

The Midwest's economic distress, which contributed to the retirement of most of the GOP governors, prompted one presidential advisor to term the area "the soft underbelly of the GOP." It is often dangerous to generalize about area political trends because of the states' individual problems. Yet the recession - make that depression for Michigan — is bound to be blamed in part on Washington's policies. So Michigan with the highest unemployment rate in the nation could be the softest part of that Midwest underbelly of the GOP.

Too many tax referenda

The tax-cut mania that became a national reviewed, not just narrow demands of those inepidemic after the successful passage of terested in relief from a particular tax. California's Proposition 13 several years ago is still alive and well in Michigan.

Most of the proposals in Michigan call for reductions in property taxes with little or no replacement of the lost revenue. But one, by the Michigan Townships Association, would require an increase in the sales tax to offset the loss of property tax revenue.

Sponsors of the property tax cut proposals are now scurrying around the state seeking signatures for petitions to put them on the ballot in November. From the popularity of the Tisch proposals in the past, we can assume there is considerable support for Tisch III and others for which petition support is being sought. Yet this newspaper still believes that voting on such proposed referenda is a poor way to enact tax legislation.

IN THE FIRST place, most such proposals reflect a demand for cuts in property taxes without consideration of the effects of such reductions on public services, including public education. The townships association proposal would meet that criticism by raising the sales tax. In effect, it is a plan for shifting the tax load in part from property taxes to the sales tax

In the second place, major tax changes should be made only in the context of the state's overall tax problems and revenue needs which are rarely considered by sponsors of tax cut referenda. Michigan taxes ought to be in line with those in competitive and neighboring states in as many ways as possible. The whole gamut of taxes and their impact on business, industry and personal incentives ought to be achieve tax relief.

Thirdly, the writing of tax legislation through passage of referenda deprives citizens of the kind of legislative debate and discussion that any other member of the steering often illuminate the weak points as well as the strong points of the proposals under consideration. In their campaigns, supporters of referenda tend to make excessive claims for their proposals, just as opponents often read more for new judge dangers into them than are actually present.

Fourthly, many of the tax-cutting proposals would require votes by citizens before any tax increases could be voted by local levels of government. Such a limitation tends to tie the hands of local governments in writing and balancing their budgets and at the very least to delay the implementation of local programs that may have broad public support.

In a democracy, representatives are elected to make decisions on behalf of the citizenry. If the people object to the decisions made, they can oust the responsible officials by recall or at the next election. That is the way it works in troom on Memorial Day. Four private gardens featuring rhododendrons, azaleas, espaliered trees, patios, three swimming pools (one with a Jacuzzi), a life-size bronze statue, wisteria vines and hanging baskets, even a small orchard . . . plus an unique Nature Center at Ferry School, maintained by community adults as well as students . . . plus the Formal and Trial Gardens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial . . . plus a Rose Show, presented by the Grosse Pointe Rose Society at Barnes Elementary School — that's the menu for the Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council's Ninth Annual Grosse Pointe Garden Tour.

It goes on, rain or shine, this Friday, June 18, and Saturday, June 19, from 1 to 5 p.m. both days. Tickets are $3 each and a brochure, complete with a map of the area and descriptions of the gardens, accompanies each ticket. Tickets can be purchased on the days of the Tour at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, starting at 10 a.m., and at the Ferry School Nature Center on Roslyn Road and Barnes Elementary School on Morningside Drive. both during Tour hours.

Tickets also will be available at any of the four private gardens during Tour hours - but since the owners have requested that their names and the location of their homes not appear in any media publicity, we can't tell you how to get to them. We can give you three numbers to call, 881-8574, 886-2096 or 886-7682, for directions or further information. We can also tell you that the Detroit Garden Center's Upstairs Shop will have craft items for sale at one of the gardens. And we can tell you that you can get expert advice on rose growing from Pointe Rose Society members at the Rose Show.

We can tell you, too, who pulled this perfectly beautiful 1982 Garden Tour together: Mrs. David Lowe, general ful 1982 Garden Tour together: Mrs. David Lowe, general chairman, assisted by Garden Club Council members repre-senting 18 garden clubs. Education, conservation and beautification of the Grosse Pointes are the prime concern of the Garden Council which has spent a total of $4,500, monies raised via last year's Garden Tour, on community beautification this spring. Nineteen trees, including Radiant Crab, Bradford Pear, Crimson King Maple, Green Ash, Honey Locust, Norway Maple and Littleleaf Linden, have been planted along Lakeshore. In addition to this planting, 48 Tallhedges, four Arborvitae and one Norway Maple were added to the grounds of Grosse Pointe South High School.

New Meadow Brook Theatre season slated

Terence Kilburn, artistic director of the Meadow Brook Theatre, has announced a 17th season Meadow Brook hounced a 17th season Meadow Brook list of seven plays and one musical. The season opens Thursday, Oct. 7, at 8:30 p.m. with William Shakespeare's powerful tragedy "Macbeth." George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber's "Royal Family" follows on Nov. 4, and the holiday season will be ushered in Dec. 2 with a new adapta-tion by Charles Nolte of Charles Diction by Charles Nolte of Charles Dickens' beloved "Christmas Carol."

"Talley's Folly" premiers in Detroit Dec. 30. This touching and funny play about a seemingly mismatched couple who triumph over their differences won for its author, Lanford Wilson, both the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award, Lillian Hellman's "Children's Hour" follows on Jan. 27. Miss Hellman, au-thor of two memorable Meadow Brook hits, "The Little Foxes" and "Another Part of the Forest," had her first sensational success with this dynamic drama about the devastation caused by unfounded rumor, the lie and the smear.

A recent Broadway smash hit, "Morning's at Seven" (if available) will follow on Feb. 24. Reminiscent of last season's Meadow Brook hit "On Golden Pond," "Morning's at Seven" is a heartwarming American comedy of small town life. It involves four inseparable sisters and the men in their Agatha Christie's famous "Unex-pected Guest" will open on March 24. The curtain rises on a foggy estate in Wales. A stranger walks into a house to find a murder has just been committed — and the victim's wife is standing over him with a gun!

The season's final production, Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones' imaginative musical "The Fantasticks," opens on April 21.

Those who subscribed to the next Meadow Brook Theatre season before June 10 enjoyed an Early Bird discount to see all eight plays for the price of six. Post-June 6, season subscriptions will be available at a dis-count of eight plays for the price of seven. Orders may be placed now by calling the theatre box office. 377-3300.

Honor Fine Arts 'unsung heroes'

Fine Arts Society of Detroit, the oldest amateur dramatic and artistic organization in the area, has elected Frederick S. Neumann president for the 1982-83 season. He was chosen at Fine Arts' annual meeting and dinner dance, held early in June at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, to succeed Kenneth W. Kurtz, who headed the society in its just concluded 75th year.

Serving with Mr. Neumann will be Mrs. B. Fred Guertler and Dr. Frank Van Deventer, first and second vicepresidents, respectively, Mrs. William R. Ludwig, treasurer, and Mrs. Donald W. Kuhn, secretary. Directors Mrs. Anita Mikos and Francis E. Brossy will be joined in the coming season by newly elected directors Dr. Starben Shreder and Pehert F. Wabar Stephen Shrader and Robert F. Weber.

During the meeting, Fine Arts hon-ored 27 of its members for their behind-the-scenes work over the past 10 years. Those who have appeared in major roles onstage in the society's productions and those who have been elected to the board of directors since 1971 were not eligible to receive the awards: specially cast medals with the inscription "Unsung Hero - 1982" surrounding the Fine Arts shield The four categories of awards, presented by Past-President Roy Adelberg, were denoted by different colors of ribbons suspending the medals.

Recipients of the first category (Blue Ribbon) for members who had given at least five years of service as committee chairpersons were Haig Avedisian, Mrs. William Bundesen. Mrs. Richard Hanna, Mrs. Bernard Pearse, Mrs. Diamond Phillips and Milton Volkens.

Second category (Red Ribbon) awards were given to those who had worked behind the scenes on between 10 and 20 performances since 1971. These medals were presented to Mrs. Roy Adelberg, Mrs. Albert Berteel. Dr. Michael Bucciero, Mrs. Philip Dickier Physics Mrs. Michael Bucciero, Mrs. Philip Dickinson, Paul Eliason, Mrs. Mar-garet Hawksley, Mrs. Kenneth Kurtz, Jeff Kurtz, Burton Lord, Mrs. Steven Shrader and Stanley Thorwaldsen.

Third category (Green Ribbon) awards for backstage service on more than 20 performances went to Mrs. Thomas Carey, James Hughes, Mrs. Martin Linder, Dr. Steven Shrader, Mrs. Frank Van Deventer and Mrs. Francis Van Deusen.

Fourth category (Gold Ribbon) awards for outstanding service to the society in the past decade were pre-sented to Arthur Gohle, Jack Moldo-wan, Diamond Phillips and Mrs. Milton Volkens.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard P. Pearse chaired the dinner dance committee, aided by Mr. and Mrs. James B. Doll, reservations, and Mr. Adelberg, invitations and awards presentation. Mr. and Mrs. W. Victor Benjamin, Mr. Thorwaldsen and Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Weber all worked on the clever, Oscar-like table centerpieces. Music for dancing was provided by Art Quatro's band.

ANGELIQUE MIELKE, CATHY DE RONNE, DIANE HEISNER, KARLA FINGER and JEANNE LEITHAUSER (left to right), senior class of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Corps de Ballet currently marking its 30th year under the direction of Mary Ellen Cooper, practice for the evening of ballet that traditionally ends the ballet class season at the War Memorial. The Mary Ellen Cooper Dancers will perform next Thursday, June 24, and Friday, June 25, at 8 p.m. in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium. Their program opens with "La Danse," a set of dances with variations which include Landler, Quadrilles, Grand Waltz, Hungarian Dance and Mazurka, presented by the Senior and Junior Corps de Ballet. An Evening of Ballet, in three parts, also includes four demonstrations of barre exercises similar to those being performed by the quintet above. The combined talents of stu-dents from each level of ballet will be presented in dances interwoven with barre movements. First, the Beginners will execute their techniques. Then the Elementary Level will present a minuet, followed by Intermediate students performing a Norwegian Wedding Dance. Finally, the Advanced Class will execute the full blossom of ballet at the barre, including a Pas de Trois, au milieu. The final part of the Evening will be an original work based on Leonard Bernstein's ballet of the early 1940s, "Fancy Free." This charming selection, which includes pointe work set to various velocities and rhythms of jazz music, tells the story of three sailor girls on leave who enjoy dancing and making friends. All choreog-raphy is by Mary Ellen Cooper. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the War Memorial or at the door. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for children under 11. Further information may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

help, the following criteria must be met by the agency and, subsequently, approved by the LINC board. The agency • must be in Wayne County.

- must have non-profit status.
- must serve the needs of the
- disadvantaged.
- must be non-political. must receive insufficient funding.
- must have a secure place of operation.

This year we have added 28 new agencies to our list. Susan has also been busy updating agency files to keep informed on agency status and present needs of various agencies. In doing this research, she has discovered that federal cuts have hurt many agencies we serve. It is difficult for many of them, trying to expand and grow, to meet the needs of more people who need help. These agencies, consequently, de-pend on LINC's help at a time when it is needed most - and, in turn, LINC appreciates your donations to help those less fortunate of our city.

Your donations have helped so many of our agencies. Recently, for example, the American Progressive Association in Romulus for Disadvantaged Youth and Adults received a copy machine from LINC. The Society for Crippled Children and Adults just received crutches; it is still in need of wheelchairs.

Another agency we have helped is Cross Road, East, a community development agency on East Jefferson Avenue. We were able to give a desk and office equipment, and to locate a refrigeratorfreezer for Cross Roads East. We were also happy to give The Sob-

LINC also needs your support in volunteer capacities. We have many wonderful volunteers, like Susan Kvale, who give their time to help others. Her job gives her the opportunity of helping people and getting to know her city better while visiting the various In order to qualify for LINC's agencies. In her work, Susan has been impressed by the commitment of agencies to improve the quality of life.

Heat is health risk in summer

Along with the fun of summer and enjoyment of the great outdoors come health and accident hazards that have their highest risk in hot weather, according to the Michigan State Medical Society

Sun strokes and heat strokes are life-threatening emergencies which occur from too much exposure and too much exercise in the hot sun Prolonged excessive heat, either in or out of doors, can result in heat strokes These emergencies, disturbances in the body's heat-regulating system, are caused by extremely high body temperatures due to exposure to heat. The body temperature can be 106 degrees or higher The skin is red, hot and dry. and there is no sweating. The pulse is rapid and strong The sufferer may be confused or lose consciousness

In such a case, the victim should be draped with a wet sheet or towels to rapidly cool the skin. In some cases, the victim may be placed in a tub of cold water. The victim's skin may also be cooled by sponging it with cool water or rubbing alcohol, or by applying cold packs. The process should be continued until the temperature drops to 101 or 102. Medical help should be sought immediately

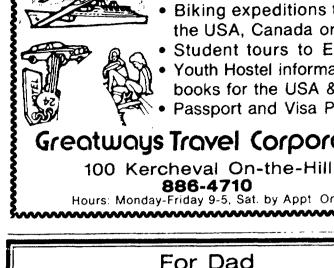

Heat exhaustion can also occur after prolonged exposure to high tempera-tures and high humidity, either indoors or outdoors. Body temperatures may be normal or only slightly elevated, the skin is pale and claminy and there is heavy sweating. The victim is tired, weak, dizzy and has a headache He or she may be nauseated and have stomach cramps.

To help victims suffering from heat exhaustion, move them into shade or a cooler area. The victim should lie down so that the feet are elevated 8 to 12 inches. Wet cloths should be placed on the forehead and body. If the victim is not vomiting, clear juice or sips of cool salt water can be given. Al-coholic beverages, coffee and or tea should never be given

The best prevention for this type of risk begins with two words: moderation and gradualism. Go moderately when temperatures and humidity are above normal, and gradually accli-mate your system to the more intense heat exposure that summer brings.

Dairy product use is down

Americans have gradually lowered their consumption of milk and many other dairy products during the past decade; this is one of the less publicized factors that have contributed to the buildup of government dairy stocks.

Why don't consumers buy more milk and dairy products? One big reason is a lower birth rate. Little babies are big milk consumers, but there are fewer of them these days. And preteens and teenagers, traditionally other big milk consumers, do not view milk as a chic beverage, according to some recent studies. Carbonated be-verages have captured that soughtafter image with young people.

This situation is inconsistent with another consumer demand, that for more natural products, for milk is one of the few foods with no list of ingre-dients — because it rarely contains additives.

Per capita consumption of fluid whole milk is down 29 percent; in fact, only four dairy products, lowfat milk, skim milk, cheese and yogurt, had per capita sales increases during the '70s. Their increased consumption did not make up for the loss of sales in other dairy foods. Milk and milk products supply calcium, protein, riboflavin and other nutrients. Protein is available in the general American diet from many other sources, but milk and dairy foods are almost the only source of calcium.

To get the recommended dietary allowance of calcium, children need three or more glasses of milk, teenagers four or more glasses and most adults two glasses of milk per day. Pregnant women require three or more glasses of milk daily. Nursing women need four or more glasses.

Foods made from milk can be substituted for all or part of this milk. To get the calcium found in one cup of milk, you can eat one cup of yogurt, one-and-a-half slices (one-and-a-half ounces) of cheddar cheese, two cups of cottage cheese, one cup of pudding made with milk or one-and-threefourths cups of ice cream.

Dairy promotions now run throughout the summer rather than just during June. This gives consumers increased opportunities to try out new dairy products. One of the newer dairy products is frozen yogurt, a cultured milk product which has been thickened through fermentation. Stabilizers are added to maintain the creamy texture

Cottage cheese consumption generally increases during the summer. possibly because cottage cheese goes so well with fruit. Many people have asked why cottage cheese, once so in-expensive, has increased in price. One reason is that demand is high. More and more people are on special diets, and cottage cheese is ideal for those on low calorie, low fat or low cholesterol diets.

St. Paul's names top athletes

St. Paul School has named Julie McGann and Patrick Imesch as its outstanding athletes for 1982. The awards were made at the school's recent sports banquet.

McGann was involved in sports activities throughout her eight years at St. Paul. In seventh grade she was a cheerleader, played No. 1 singles on the tennis team, was a starting guard on the basketball team and served as third baseman on the softball team.

This year she again played No. 1 singles on the tennis team, served as shortstop and pitcher on the softball team, captured the girls' long jump school record and the 220 and 440 meter relay records in track and was a starting forward on the CYO Divisional Championship St Paul Laker basketball team (She was also the leading rebounder for that team).

McGann still maintained her average as an honor student, earning excellence awards in history, reading, English, science, mathematics and

Patrick "P.J." Imesch, echoed McGann's accomplishments during his junior high years at St. Paul Last year, Imesch participated in track, basketball and soccer. In track, he broke the school record in the half mile with a time of 2.19, and the record in the high jump with a height of 512 feet. As a seventh grader, he started on the eighth grade basketball team as a point guard and playmaker

In the eighth grade, Imesch played on St. Paul's boys' soccer team which ended its regular season as the CYO's Southeast Division champion with a record of 7-0. Intesch scored 14 goals during the season and had nine assists.

Imesch also played basketball as an eighth grader for the Lakers, scoring 80 points during the 1981-82 season. As a student, he maintained a "B" in junior high.

St. Clare takes CYO track championship

St. Clare hosted the top 25 Detroit area schools in the Catholic Youth Organization (C.Y.O.) track and field meet at Grosse Pointe South High School on June 6. St. Clare capped its fourth straight undefeated dual meet season (7-0) with its unprecedented third straight C.Y.O. championship. The vic-tory upped St. Clare's six-year record to 53-3.

tingninging seven new St. Clare records this year was Chris Astfalk's 800 meter victory in the C.Y.O. finals. Astfalk broke the oldest C.Y.O. record (1969) by six seconds with his 2:07 time in the half mile. He also established a new school record in the high jump at 5 feet, 4 inches and snahed the 1,600 record with 4:50 Seventh grader Scott Fischer was the meet's top point scorer with 16 points, capturing first place finishes in the long jump (18 feet, 6 inches), 200 dash (24.9) and a second place in the 400 (55.8). Also placing for St. Clare were Rob Haun, Sean Bruce, Chris Kelley, Chris Gross, Mike Weist, Bill Hess and Nick Frontczak Frontezak established a shot put record with his throw of over 41 feet ,

St Clare's girls' team became the first team in C.Y.O. history to win three straight championship titles. The girls scored 35 points to take the victory over second place St. Mary of Redford, with 24. No other school scored more than 20 points.

Three CYO individual champions were crowned at the finals, including St. Clare's Kris Rettig in the high jump, Amy Vitale in the shot put and Laura Brozo repeating as champ in the 1,600 run. Others placing were Theresa Schulte, Jill Brozo, Kristen Lenhard, Charlyn Carrier, Tracey McQuerry, Stacey McQuerry and Kethy Morandini.

St Clare was coached by Steve Zaranek, Joe Beldyga, Tom Ossy and assistants Mary Unti, Linda Radu-lovich and Mary Rosasco.

Angels are All-American League first half champs

In the American League, the Indians defeated the Yankees, 9-5, on May 31. The Indian offense was paced by Eric Doelle's double and triple. The Yankee attack was led by Richard Jones' double, George Chazal was the winning pitcher. On June 4, the Indians defeated Pioneer (Woods), 8-7. The Indian offense was led by Scott Evans who had three hits; teammates Ghazal and Steve Palffy contributed two hits each. Dave Spindler was the winning pitcher.

The Yankees defeated the Red Sox, 5-2, on June 7. Jerry Henry paced the Yankee offense with a double as Jerry Joliet and Kirk Bevier each contributed clutch hits. Jones was the winning pitcher. Costa Papista pitched good game for the Red Sox.

On June 7, the Indians came from behind to win a close extra-inning game as they defeated the White Sox, 4.3. The Indians scored two runs in the eighth inning on a perfect sacrifice bunt by Palffy. Rick Camp-bell and Ghazal led the Indians at-tack. Excellent pitching by Ghazal (the winning pitcher) with relief help from Scott Tucker provided the win. Mike Williams paced the White Sox attack with two hits.

The Indians defeated the Tigers, 10-1, June 8. The Indian offense was paced by Doelle, Spindler, Ghazal, Jed Reganti and George Jerome. Excellent defensive plays by Tim Kirchner. Jeff LeFebvre, and Palffy con-tributed significantly to the victory. The Tiger attack was led by Bill Adlroch's triple. This victory moved the Indians into first place in the second half with a record of 4-0. On June 10, the Yankees defeated Simon (Woods), 6-3. The Yankee attack was led by Steve Butala's home run, Bevier's two hits and doubles by Ryan Hoeh and Jones. Chris Pettit played excellent defense in the outfield. Jerry Joliet won his third game of the season. In the All-American League, the Angels are continuing their winning ways of a year ago. The Angels won the league championship in 1981 with a record of 13-5. So far this year they have won the first half and currently have an 8-2 record. Starting pitchers Jeff McKean and George Krappman each have 4-1 records and have each pitched five complete games. The Angels' hitting has been sparked by Ken Irvin, Steve Smith, Mike Loosevelt and D. J. Sine. Outfielders Taylor Lincoln and Bob Nolan have been a steadying influence to their teammates this year. On June 10, the Rangers defeated the Astros (Park), 7-3. The Ranger attack was paced by Rich Pike and Dave Blondell with three hits each. Mark Grall thwarted an Astro uprising in the fifth inning with a fine running catch.

Cliff Grabowski hurled the first five innings and earned the victory for the Rangers. Hard-throwing John Mulier pitched three scoreless innings in relief. Thomas and Dave Loffredo pitched well for the Astros.

The Rangers defeated the Reds, 10-4 on June 12. The Ranger offense was led by Gordie Langs who hit a pair of doubles while George Baer, Rich Pike, Peter Lewis, and Curt Swathiewicz contributed two hits each. The Reds' attack was paced by Aaron Jabbour with two hits. Peter Riley of the Reds made several fine catches at first base. Curt Swatkiewicz was the winning pitcher.

SH baseball year ends

South's varsity baseball team, riding a 9-5 Eastern Michigan League record and a second place league finish, entered the pre-districts against defending state champion Bishop Gallagher with high hopes — but was defeated, 6-1.

South's chances for a win were bright until the fifth inning. Blue Devil pitcher Jim Blondell's fastball was overpowering and he shut out the powerful Bishop Gallagher squad through five frames. When sophomore third baseman Tony Tocco smashed a single to score the game's first run, things looked good.

South's Blondell tired, however, and two innings and a mammoth home run later, Bishop Gallagher had turned the 1-0 deficit into a fiverun advantage.

The "weit until next year cry" has new meaning to South fans this season as South promises to be very strong in 1983. The Blue Devils will return six starters, including sopho-mores Tocco (third base), Brian Rathsburg (centerfield), Jim Arnold (catcher) and Steve Carrier (DH), and juniors Kurt Maunz (leftfield) and Mark Brooks (first base). All performed well this season and with help from a 14-2 JV squad, South should be a force to be reckoned with, (By Kevin Roberts).

South tennis: The boys' varsity ten. nis team finished a very successful season by placing eighth among 34 teams in state competition June 4 and 5 in Holland.

No. 1 singles player Steve Kornmeier scored two points, the only singles player to accomplish that feat. The No. 1 doubles team of Peter Ruwart and Brian Doyal scored one point and Casey Grow and John Strabel lost in the No. 3 doubles finals but scored four points for South,

"We did as well as we expected. We were very happy to finish in the finals," coach Zysk said. (By Brooke Reuther).

Denver defeated Phoenix, 8-7, in a tight game that featured good pitching and great defensive plays for both teams. Mike Semack batted in the game-winning run with a clean double up the middle and Jason Williamson went three-for-three for Denver. For Phoenix, Robert Kinnaird went threefor-four and Brian Jenkins was twofor-three including a double.

LOUISVILLE-DENVER

Denver won another tight battle, defeating Louisville, 9-6, behind the strong pitching of Paul Chase. Strong defensive play by both teams kept the score close. Denver's hitting was led by Williamson and John Bednarchik, while Jeff Blovits, Tim Droste and Craig Butt hit well for Louisville. Blovits slugged his fourth home run of the season as well.

SAN ANTONIO-PORTLAND

David Rabbideau pitched the distance and made a fine double play to lead San Antonio to a 7-6 victory over a tough Portland team that just missed pulling the game out of the fire with a six-run sixth inning. Grayson Williamson's fine catching and baserunning and Joe Helminski's strong bat aided San Antonio, while sharp ballhandling by Kevin Nesler and Tom Smith kept Portland alive until the final out.
