Here's a good news-bad news shaggy dog type story. It seems that last week a Farms woman (whose husband wishes her to remain anonymous) was playing bridge at a home on Cadieux Road when her car was stolen. Bad news.

What made it worse was that her dog (described only as shaggy and apparently very, very friendly) was in the car when it was stolen.

Detroit police recovered the car the next day, stripped down to the bare bones. Here's the good news. Their pet was still with the car, unharmed and happy to be re-united with its

If only it could wag its tongue instead of its tail.

There is good news, too, for those of you worried about that Commie Cosmos satellite which may or may not come crashing down on our heads later this

The Mothers of Mary (MOM) prayer group, founded by Pointer Sally Reynolds, has asked President Reagan to pro-claim the weekend of Jan. 21-23 as national Days of Prayer, "in the wake of news reports that a nuclear-active Soviet Cosmos satellite may plunge to earth" that weekend.

MOM is hosting a Night of Prayer on Friday evening, Jan. 21, at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C. and has invited the President, Vice-President, their families, the Senate and Congress to join them.

The weekend ceremonies will include prayers, services, marches and candle lighting ceremonies dedicated to a "spiritual healing of our land."

Those unable to make the trip to Washington are asked to light up and pray at home. Non-Catholics are included.

Esquire Theatre threatened to do it, but it looks like the Punch and Judy will beat them to the punch. "It" is the two day premiere run of an X-rated movie later this month.

Before anyone gets upset, the film isn't anything turned out by the sleaze merchants of L.A. with names like "Planet of the Rapes" or "One Million Years AC-DC." Instead, "Memoirs of a French Whore," has been praised for its realistic depiction on the squalid Parisian underworld.

The film concerns a young prostitute who is determined to escape her sadistic pimp and start life anew. It stars Maria Schneider, of "Last Tango in Paris" fame and actress Miou-Miou, who won a French Academy Áward for her role as the prostitute.

The film premieres Thursday and Friday, Jan. 27 and 28 with showings at 6:30, 8:15 and 10 p.m. Classic Film Theatre Inc., of Ann Arbor, is the backer of the P&J showing.

The Farms Council had a bit of a chuckle at a meeting last week when the fire report for December was presented.

Seems Fire Chief Warren Schultz took a gentle poke at his counter-part Police Chief Robert Ferber when he "reported" his department made a run to the Cloverly Road home of former Councilman Jim Mast to put out a fire.

The report stated that while R.F. was talking to Farms Councilman Joe Fromm, he inadvertently set his sports coat on fire by leaning over a candle. Fromm and the "Top Cop" said they smelled something burning, but didn't know what it was until they traced it to Ferber's elbow. Scratch one $150 sports coat.

The incident seemed even funnier when Farms Mayor Pro Tem Lloyd Semple confessed the same thing had happened to him two years earlier.

Whew! Wasn't that a party!

Do sixth graders belong in middle school?

By Joanne Gouleche

The shift of sixth grade students into middle school classrooms that was proposed last week by a citizen panel studying enrollment de-clines in Grosse Pointe public schools has drawn some concern from local PTO groups.

In its controversial report to the Board of Education last week, the committee studying the future organization of the school district recommended that sixth grade students be transferred to the district's three middle schools - at Brownell, Parcells and Pierce. Sixth grade students now attend the district's 10 elementary

Committee chairman Ed Deeb said the proposed sixth grade shift was "one of our toughest deci-Calling the K-5 grade structure, "a sound educational design," the committee recommended that a special program be created to meet the special needs of sixth grade youngsters with an emphasis on reading, spelling, mathematics and handwriting.

"Should the sixth grade become an integral part of the middle school program, the quality of education and educational oppor-tunity would be enhanced for sixth, seventh and eighth graders," the report said.

In reaction to the school report on that point, some PTO presidents aren't sure right now that a 6-8 middle school program is such a good idea.

Ferry School PTO President Sally Giacobbe said some parents are concerned that something should be done first about the discipline problem in the middle schools before 11 and 12-year-old students are sent off to join 13 and 14-year-olds.

"They fear there will be too much exposure to all the negative things that happen at puberty,' Mrs. Giacobbe said.

Maire PTO President Billie Deason said that school's parents' group met two days after the report was filed with school trustees and the subject of a 6-8 grade structure came up: "Our biggest concern is the adjustment of the child that is thrown into that kind of situation.'

She added: "Our board feels the citizen advisory board did a very thorough job. We thought they did their research. We're glad to know, though, the public will have some in-put before the final decision is made."

Pierce PTO President Andrea Rasmussen said parents at that school would have liked to have seen a 7-9 plan recommended, but "in general the 6-8 organization was probably the best of all alter-

In a school board study of the middle schools last year, evidence showed "a substantial number of parents, teachers and former students (who felt) that middle school behavior is worse than (the school system) should expect.'

The enrollment decline commit-satisfies the needs of sixth grade students and increases parental involvement in the middle schools, it also would leave the district with a very small elementary school population, providing there is no redistricting of elementary

The committee report, which also recommends that a middle school be mothballed by the 1986-37 school year (if enrollment declines persist) also drew some initial remarks from school trustees, including board president Dorothy Kennel, who commented: 'I think the report was pretty much as I expected it to be. It now comes down to a point where the board has to make a decision. It's going to be a tough one. I don't think this community realizes we may have to close schools (in order to maintain quality education)."

ferent reaction from school trustee states in its report that while a K-5, 6-8, and 9-12 grade structure report was not as specific in its recommendations as I had anticipated, considering all of the data and man-hours that went into it. I think we can accomplish the objective of parents and continue the superior quality of education if we have fewer schools than we have now.'

> Teacher union president Curt Lange called the report "complete and comprehensive," but wouldn't comment on its content

> Amid its charts, diagrams and tables, the committee's report points to a 54 percent drop in public school enrollment since the district's peak year of 1970 when 13,337 attended the schools. By the 1986-87 school year, the committee only predicts 6,287 students will attend Pointe public schools.

Farms man faces criminal charge in friend's death

By Joanne Gouleche

A Farms man was charged this week with manslaughter after the car he was driving early Sunday went out of control and overturned, killing a 21-year-old Grosse Pointe student, police said.

According to police, the man identified as 20-year-old Edward W. Caulkins, of Willow Lane, drove his vehicle at a high rate of speed down Jefferson Avenue near Cadieux on Jan. 15 about 1:55 a.m. while legally intoxicat-

The dead man was Robert Todd Elvidge of Grosse Pointe City, who was asleep in the back seat of the car when the accident occur-

Police said Caulkins, Elvidge and a third passenger, 22-year-old Jeffrey Grover of Midland, Tex., were returning from a party in Hamtramck. The three were college friends, police said.

WITNESSES told police Caulkins' car passed their vehicle on Jefferson approximately 30 seconds before the mishap at about 60 to 65 mph when it suddenly overturned. The car hit Edison poles before it flipped over, police said, although they are still investigating whether the vehicle may have hit something else before it overturned.

When police arrived at the scene, they found Caulkins and Grover sitting beside the overturned vehicle, according to reports. Police discovered Elvidge unconscious in the rear of the vehicle. He was later pronounced dead on arrival at Bon Secours Hospital. Police said they found an empty beer bottle in the veh-

Caulkins was taken to the Grosse Pointe Park police station where a breathalyzer test showed a blood/alcohol content of .20, according to police. Under state law, a person is legally drunk with a blood/alcohol content of .10.

Caulkins was arraigned on the manslaughter charge by Judge Stan C. Kazul on Tuesday, Jan. 18. He was released on bond pending that evening. a February preliminary exam.

Grosse Pointe City police also reported two other accidents that same day, including one mishap in which a Corvette struck a traffic light control box at the intersection of Kercheval and Fisher about 2:30 a.m., Jan. 15.

Police said minutes later the car ran through another intersection at Fisher and Lakeshore and struck an iron fence. Police found the car unoccupied and are continuing their investigation.

Late Saturday evening, Jan. 14, police reported a 18-year-old City woman struck a tree on Neff near Jefferson at about 10:30 p.m. while traveling with three friends. Police said witnesses reported Dawn Marie Clark of Fisher Road was traveling fast when she made a wide turn onto Neff off of Jef-

Occupants of the car included 17-year-old John T. Shilson II of Grosse Pointe Farms, 17-year-old Barb Grutter of Grosse Pointe City and a 16-year-old Grosse Pointe Park youth.

A spokesman for the Caldwell Equity Co., proposed builders of 18 cluster homes on the Lakeshore Road property of Henry Ford, II, said that no date has yet been set for the demolition of the 76-room

'Right now we're waiting for permits to take reservations, said Curt Clauser, vice-president for design and planning. "We are requesting permits from the state to take lot reservations and to sell. After permits are secured, the company can take down payments on lot locations.'

Clauser indicated that surveyors had been out to the Ford home to conduct preliminary engineering studies of the site. He said the company was "moving forward" on its plans for demolition.

CLAUSER ALSO confirmed that the company had made inquiries into obtaining the 5.5 acre Webber on the homes would begin at about estate located next door to the nearly eight-acre Ford property.

Mrs. Eloise Webber, owner of the property, died Aug. 29, 1982, one week after Ford approached the Farms council for permission to subdivide his land.

Cellist Chanteaux solos with symphony

She has been the Detroit Symphony pianist, succeeding Mischa Kottler in that position, and is now Assistant Principal Cellist with the orchestra, a post to which she was promoted five years after switching to the cello section. Because of her expertise with both instruments and her ability to memorize rapidly and extensively she is often referred to as "Detroit's Rostroprovich."

Her name is Marcy Chanteaux and she will bring her considerable musical talent and experience to the stage of Parcells Auditorium, Mack at Vernier, Sunday afternoon, Jan. 23, at 3:30 p.m., when she performs as guest soloist with the Grosse Pointe Symphony, playing Dvorak's Concerto in B minor for Cello.

'Many people think this is the most perfect and expressive concerto written for any instrument," says Miss Chanteaux. The composition was completed in the early 1880's when the Bohemian composer was director of the National Conservatory in New York. It premiered in London in 1896.

Born in Aberdeen, S.D., Marcy Chanteaux grew up with music, starting piano lessons at age 7 and adding cello three years later. The Cleveland Institute of Music was the scene of her advanced studies, which she pursued under full scholarship award. Her father was a college professor of music, as well as composer and organist, and her mother a concert-caliber pianist and teacher. Her sister presently plays viola and piano with the Dallas Symphony.

Marcy Chanteaux won a national string competition at age 16 and later made her professional debut with the Washington National Symphony Orchestra. In 1970, after moving to Detroit to join her husband, she became a member of the Detroit Symphony, which featured her as soloist in 1981, when she played Victor Herbert's Cello Concerto No. 2.

Area music lovers also remember her all-Bach recital in Birmingham the same year, which drew a standing room only crowd, her guest performance with the Dearborn Symphony, as well as her two appearances during the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival at the War Memorial.

As a member of the Brio Trio, a Detroit-based ensemble, she participated in countless concerts to

Lions do their share at St. John

WCCC offers gerontology study

Gerontology, a career education program at Wayne County Community College, is offering 15 classes in its curriculum this winter. The program explores the normal processes of aging and related social, legal and economic issues, while preparing individuals for work in agencies and organizations serving the needs of older citizens in the community. In addition to regular academic courses, the program offers a field placement experience in direct services to or on behalf of the older adult population.

WCCC's Gerontology Program is the only degree program in gerontology available on a community college level in southeastern Michigan. It offers students the opportunity to earn either an Associate Degree or a Certificate. Courses may also be taken as electives or for personal enrichment. Instructors for the classes are all practitioners in the Detroit area. The program provides learning opportunities for students new to the field of gerontology, as well as those currently employed in the field. The training will also be beneficial to other individuals in planning and preparing for successful aging.

Tuition for the classes is $24 per local structures which provide WCCC service district, and $34 for out-of-district residents. Tuition is free to all persons 55 to 59 who are retired, and to all persons over 60.

This winter, classes will be held at the WCCC Downtown Center, 1001 W. Fort Street at the John C. Lodge; the Eastern Center, 5901 Conner: the Greenfield Center, 8551 Greenfield; and the Down-river Center, 21000 Northline Road in Taylor.

• Introduction to the Study of Aging, an overview of the field with emphasis on the normal aging process, will be offered at all four locations.

• Mental Health and the Aging focuses on the mentally healthy older adult from the socio-psychological perspective. This class will meet at the Downriver Center and at the Downtown Center.

• Health and Physical Processes of Aging examines the physiological changes which are normal to the aging process, and changes which are the result of the environment or disease. This class will be held at the Greenfield and Downtown Centers.

• Programs and Services to the Aged presents a comprehensive view of the national, state and credit hour for residents of the services to the older adult population. The classes will be held at the Eastern Center and at the Greenfield Center.

Toma visit

Kids concerned with alcohol abuse

By Joanne Gouleche

The tough-talking cop who came to Grosse Pointe last year to get kids thinking about pitching their next marijuana cigarets should have stressed the effects of alcohol abuse in length.

At least that's what an unscientific survey of Grosse Pointe students revealed about David Toma's visit to local schools.

'Alcohol is much more widely used in Grosse Pointe and should have been discussed much more seriously," one high school student said in the survey. Another ninth grade girl wrote: "I thought he was a little too overactive. There is nothing wrong in my opinion of a little social or playful drinking as long as you don't get drunk too often." A 10th grade boy revealed: "I don't have an (alcohol) problem yet. But I may be developing one.'

The survey, conducted by Grosse Pointe's Substance Abuse Community Council, was given to 4,917 students in grades eight through 12 to find out what kind of affect Toma had on their lives.

Toma, a former New Jersey cop, was invited by the council last October to speak to students in public and parochial schools about alcohol and drug abuse. Thedrug preacher, whose life was model for the television series "Baretta," is known for his hardsell delivery and ability to communicate the problems of substance abuse to kids.

During his two-day visit, Toma bluntly told students there is a drug "pandemic" in Pointe schools and many parents don't know their children are getting high at the kitchen table.

Later, reports of kids turning over their drug paraphernalia to Toma, promising never to do drugs again, were common.

When asked how David Toma changed their attitudes about alcohol and other drugs, nearly half of the survey respondents or 49 percent indicated "I will not begin using alcohol or other drugs," the council said. Eight percent of the respondents or 380 students said they would stop using alcohol and other drugs, but others out of that group crossed out the word alcohol so the answer read: "I will stop using drugs," the survey showed.

"Many of this group added

comments about their feelings that alcohol was 'okay,' " said the survey. "Many others said that Toma should have talked more about the dangers of alcohol and called it 'the real problem in Grosse Pointe' or 'the real problem at . . .' and named their own school. The Substance Abuse Council has called alcohol the most abused drug in Grosse Pointe - by adults and kids alike.

Council members noted that only a small percentage of students (1 percent) said they didn't believe what Toma said.

"Many students had specific and varying criticisms of Toma's approach, but most indicated some positive change of attitude and few could say they didn't be-lieve him," the survey said.

Council members said 47 percent of those students surveyed wanted more information on alcohol and drug abuse, but some specified only more data on alcohol. Some 685 students said they would be interested in participating in a discussion group of some kind on alcohol and drug abuse. Many such discussions groups are already underway at some individual schools, according to the

The Substance Abuse Community Council was formed nearly two years ago when School Supt. Dr. Kenneth Brummel invited community leaders to address the serious problem of alcohol and drug abuse in Grosse Pointe schools. He had formed a similar community-based program in Westport, Conn., where he was superintendent for 10 years. The council meets monthly and welcomes new members. Its next meeting is scheduled for Monday. Jan. 31, in South High School's Cleminson Hall, at 4:30 p.m.

Council chairperson Ruth Zinn said the group has invited Dr. Robert L. Dupont, president of the American Council on Marijuana and Other Psycho-Active Drugs, to speak to students, parents and teachers on Wednesday, Feb. 23, 8 p.m. in North High School's Performing Arts Center.

Dr. DuPont, clinical professor at Georgetown and Harvard medical schools, will speak on teenage alcohol and drug abuse. He also is scheduled to speak to students and teachers from public and parochial schools earlier that day.

Woods boaters plan Commodore's Ball

The Grosse Pointe Woods Boat Club will hold its Annual Commodore's Ball Saturday, Feb. 5, at 6:30 p.m. at the Polish Century Club, 5181 East Outer Drive in Michigan will again have an opportunity to compete for concert bookings and $2,250 in awards at the third annual Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival statewide piano competition.

The event will be held this year on Saturday and Sunday, April 9 and 10, at the War Memorial, at 32 Lakeshore Road. Competition director Alex Suczek announced a major grant from the Michigan Foundation for the Arts and the continued participation of the Grosse Pointe Symphony will again make the competition pos-

As in the past two years, the jury will include concert pianists and conductors of Michigan orchestras who will determine which contestants will play the recital and concerto bookings that are to be awarded, and receive cash awards.

Chief juror and artistic director of the competition is Mischa Kottler, Detroit's pianist laureate and longtime pianist of the Detroit Symphony. Judging with him will be concert pianists, Cynthia Raim and Flavio Varani, and Felix Resnick, conductor of the Grosse Pointe Symphony. Also participating will be representatives of phony Orchestra.

Any pianist between the ages of 18 and 30 currently living, studying or working in Michigan, or who has been a Michigan resident and received an important part of their education here, is eligible. Last year's 18 entrants included young pianists from all over the state as well as Michigan trained artists from such prestigious music schools as Indiana University and the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. The repertoire of the contestants makes an exciting program for listeners. The requirements call for a Bach prelude and fugue and a romantic or impressionist work for the preliminaries on April 9, and a Beethoven sonata, a contemporary sonata and a concerto for the finals.

Audiences on both days in the past two years rated the performances among the most exciting they had ever attended. They also submitted audience ratings of the performers which provided a supplementary evaluation for tie

Shores home damaged in fire

Shores and Woods public safety officers joined forces Saturday night, Jan. 8, to put out a fire on Webber Place in the Shores that was apparently started by embers from a fire in the family room fireplace.

Shores officers received the call from the homeowner about 8:30 p.m. At the same time, Shores Sgt. Stanley Otulakowski spotted the fire while on patrol in the area. Shores officers responded with equipment and five officers. The Woods offered mutual aid 20 minutes later and responded with three officers and equipment.

According to Shores fire reports, the fire was started when embers from a Christmas tree being burned in the fireplace inside the home's family room landed on a tarpaulin covering the home's outside patio. The tarpaulin ignited, spreading flames to the patio below and along the outside wall of the home, damaging lead-mullioned windows along the first, second and third floors of the home. Fire ignited insulation in a third floor crawl space by either burning through the outer wall or through a hole in the eaves, reports said. Officers took about 30 minutes to put out the fire and to make sure it was out.

Shores officers spend about two hours on the scene, reports said, while Woods officers returned to service after an hour. No injuries were reported to either homeowners or firefighters.

Park council tackles parking problem on city's west side your house on the west end of Grosse Pointe can be a tough proposition at times. The neighborhood is tightly packed with twofamily flats, built before every American owned a car and often lacking even one off-street parking spot per building. Cars are usually lined up bumper-to-bumper along Wayburn, Maryland, Lakepointe, Beaconsfield and Nottin-

City workers have problems with parking in that neighborhood, too. All those cars make it almost impossible to pick up leaves, sweep the streets and remove snow in the winter.

Under the plan, parking will be allowed on the west side of the streets at all times except Mondays, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. There would be no parking allowed in the east side of the street except on Mondays

Investments

Monthly tax free income

By Dean W. Crowder, III

For many investors, incomes are increasing each year. Unfortunately that means a larger tax bite. While you have more income now, after taxes there are actually fewer dollars to spend. For this reason, many investors are looking for an investment which provides interest that is exempt rom federal taxes.

Annually, many billions of dol-lars of municipal bonds are brought to market. From this vast array of municipal issues, selecting the appropriate bond of investment quality that will provide a high level of tax-exempt income is a very difficult task for even the most sophisticated investor. Many investors are considering the tax exempt trust. Each trust series is a diversified portfolio of professionally selected, investment grade (A rated or better) municipal bonds, structured to provide federally tax-exempt income and conserve the principal amount invested.

Virtually all tax-exempt trusts provide monthly income to investors. This regular cash flow—federally tax exempt—can be attractive for day-to-day expenses, savings reinvestment, or cash flow management.

An investor owning units of the tax-exempt fund (each having a face amount of approximately $1,000) owns an individual fracprinicpal of, all the bonds in the files joint return of $35,000, which trust's portfolio. The portfolio generally consists of between 15 to 25 different issues of investment grade long-term bonds. Because the investor owns a portion of a diversified portfolio rather than a single issue, his investment is not subject to the same kind of market fluctuations that can affect specific issues. The trust will be subject, or course, to the market fluctuations that affect tax-exempt bonds generally.

Nearly all tax exempt trusts maintain a secondary market in order to offer market ability to investors who may desire to liquidate their trust. The price of units repurchased from investors is determined weekly by an independent evaluator, Standard and Poor's Corporation, based on the aggregate offering price of the underlying bonds. As with any marketable investment your redemption price may be more or less than your original purchase

The tax-exempt yields provided by municipal bonds can compare favorably to the pre-tax yields from fully taxable investments when the investor's tax bracket is taken into consideration.

Currently, many tax exempt trusts are offering 10.25 percent tax free monthly income. Now, using this current rate as an extional share of the interest on, and ample, assume a married couple puts them in the 44 percent bracket. If the couple were to invest in a tax-exempt unit investment trust yielding 10.25 percent, that rate of return would provide the same after tax income as a 18.3 percent yield from a fully taxable investment. Clearly an investment in a diversified portfolio of municipal bonds might be of interest to this couple.

Tax-free monthly income in a diversified portfolio of high grade municipal bonds is particularly attractive at the current high rates and should be considered as a relatively safe addition to any portfolio.

Park purchases new computer

Grosse Pointe Park administrators say they'll be better able to provide citizens and the city with up-to-date information on payroll, budget matters, water bills, voter registration and park pass applications with the purchase of a new computer recently approved by the council.

The NCR equipment, which cost more than $75,000, is expected to be installed this month, according to a city spokesman. It will replace a more than seven-year-old computer which was not fulfilling city needs, according to Comptroller Nunzio Ortisi. The city had been forced to hire an outside firm at the cost of $1,000 a month just to process water and sewage bills because its old computer couldn't handle the material, Ortisi said.

Planning for your future is important. And it's smart to save some extra money for your retirement. That's why it's a good idea to invest in an Individual Retirement Account at National Bank of Detroit.

Just earning an income makes you eligible for an IRA. You get an immediate tax deduction on the amount you invest. And your earnings are tax-deferred until you withdraw your money, usually after retirement* when you're in a lower tax bracket.

But choosing the right IRA investment can be confusing. And that's where NBD knowhow can help. Some IRA investments mature in as little as six months, while others are designed to earn you the highest interest possible over 31/2 years. Beyond that, minimum deposit requirements for an IRA can range from $10 to $2,500, depending on which investment you choose.

As you can see, there are a number of variables to consider when it comes to IRA investments. So before you decide, it's a good idea to spend a few minutes with us to find out more.

Once you do, your high-yield IRA can start earning you money. And some added security for the future.

Tax hike could hurt recovery

Grosse Pointe's State Rep. William R. Bryant Jr., isn't convinced that another hike in income taxes is the only way out of the state's current budget crisis — despite support the yet un-proposed increase has received from state university presidents, the governor's Financial Crisis Council and Wayne County's new executive William Lucas.

Bryant, who was appointed vice-chairman of the House Taxation Committee last week, said he's not convinced an increase is needed or advisable. His primary concern is the economic upturn that is hoped for this spring — and what damaging effects a tax hike may have on the fragile psychology of recovery.

The tax increase proposal from 4.6 to 6.6 percent — was made by Wayne State University President David Adamany and seconded by Senate Majority Leader William Faust last week.

Bryant said he hopes to begin meeting with other Republican House members next week to start "brainstorming" and taking a closer look at the state's deficit,

Ducking a major issue?

the recommendations are hardly as specific as the public might have hoped in view of the amount of time and effort expended on the study.

True, the committee did recommend that elementary enrollment districts be redistricted and/or consolidated and it proposed a school organization covering kindergarten through the fifth grade in the elementary schools, sixth through eighth in the middle schools and ninth through twelfth grades in the high schools. This proposal would shift the sixth grade from the elementary to the middle schools.

BUT ITS recommendations for any possible school closings - which really was the major reason the committee was first appointed - were vague despite the decline that already has cut enrollment by more than 40 percent, from a peak of 13,337 in 1970 to 7,806

The best the committee could come up with was a statement that "serious considerations should be given to closing one middle school in 1986-87 but such a decision should be made only if supported by en-rollment trends and projections at that time." The current projection for enrollment in that year of 1986-87 — which, incidentally, is still more than three years distant — is 6,287, or a further decline of 1,519 from last fall's level.

Apparently the caution about future enrollment trends reflects the committee's contention that the current decline in enrollment will cease in 1986-87. Its report pointed out that earlier projections for last fall's enrollment were actually exceeded, a fact that gave the committee a "reduced sense of reliability" about future projections. The committee also was influenced by a "significant indication" at public forums that "smaller is better" and "closer to home is better" with respect to neighborhood schools. Overall, the committee emphasized that its highest priority was promoting and enhancing quality education and educational opportunities in the Grosse Pointe system.

At long last, the citizens' advisory committee studying the future organization of the Grosse Pointe public school system has issued its report, although should be given the highest priority but it was unwise, in our opinion at least, to denigrate whatever savings might be made from school reorganization or the closing of certain school buildings.

The Grosse Pointes are in many ways aging communities which account in part for the decline in school enrollment. Desirable as it may be for parents to have smaller school enrollments and schools closer to their homes, the strong possibility exists that unless the cost aspect is given greater attention those Grosse Pointe residents who no longer have children in the public schools will band together to vote in a new school board or even to oppose the renewal of the operating and library millage that will be up for a vote in March.

This newspaper does not advocate either course of action. It believes the current board will listen to all elements in the community and take action for the benefit of all. It also believes that the renewal of the millage is currently needed, and that the slight reduction in rates proposed is appropriate in light of the unsettled but still inflationary economic condi-

But the Pointes' desire for quality education and its enhancement in the future must be weighed against the cost of maintaining buildings that might well be closed and the economies that might make possible further reductions in costs and hence in taxes. Those who insist on maintaining the status quo with respect to school buildings regardless of the cost should realize that such an attitude might do more in the long run to jeopardize quality education in the Pointes than any single action to close a school building or two.

THESE COMMENTS are not meant as criticism of Headline the people who worked long and hard on the report. They are, however, intended to serve as a reminder that there are opinions that must be considered in any school system in addition to the opinions of those who are employed in the school system or are parents of children in the schools.

Reagan at mid-term

Under Ronald Reagan's picture in the Dixonian, the 1928 high school yearbook in Dixon, Ill., appeared the words, "Life is just one grand, sweet song, so start the music." That line described a high school senior's view of life and for the amiable man who is our 40th president it still reflects the optimism that characterizes his outlook as he arrives at the mid-term mark of his first, but perhaps not his last, four years in the White House.

It was Reagan's optimism and the hope he expressed for a better life for the American people that helped elect him president in 1980. Americans welcomed his offer of hope and his promise of change after the disappointments and failures of Jimmy Carter's presidency. The public felt in 1980 it was time for a change and they made it. Now after two years it is appropriate to make a mid-term assess-ment to try to discover whether the people got what they voted for.

FROM REAGAN'S presidency, we did get change. Whether it was the kind and extent of change the people wanted is still open to question. But, as Reagan promised, we've had less government and the federal establishment is slashing its services as leral establishment is slashing its services as well as its aid to the states, cities and private indi-

These cutbacks are consistent with the Reagan belief that Washington should exercise less control over citizens as well as business. The Reagan administration believes American competitive enterprise will be more productive and expand faster without minute government direction. To carry out this belief, the administration is deregulating American business and industry, removing many of the controls and restrictions imposed by Washington and appointing to the federal regulatory commissions men and women who tend to be friendly to the industries they presumably regulate.

In his campaign for the presidency, Reagan promised to balance the budget. It is clear he has not done so and will not be able to do so in the two years remaining in his term. In fact, the deficit for the next fiscal year will be $200 billion or even more, perhaps double the previous record. Adopting supply-side economic theories, the president had assumed a huge cut in taxes would stimulate the economy to such an extent that tax revenues would be sufficient to finance increased arms spending. The tax cuts didn't create the economic miracle he promised and, instead, the nation moved into a severe recession, with massive unemployment and record deficits, despite cuts in domestic spending.

True, as promised, the administration has reduced inflation and interest rates, both of which are severe be whether he can convince the American people handicaps to the economy and to the average citizen. that they are better off now than when he took office But unemployment, the highest since the great and whether they believe his continuing optimism depression, now is causing serious distress at a time offers them enough hope for the future.

when the administration continues to cut back services to the needy and underprivileged. As a result, many people feel the administration is insensitive to the less privileged.

In his campaign, the president also promised to strengthen U.S. defenses. He has done so but defense spending is taking an increasingly large percentage of the budget at a time when spending for domestic programs has been cut. The heavy price the nation is paying for an improved defense establishment has convinced many people that it, too, will have to be reduced in size as well as in cost.

With unemployment deepening and the economy still lagging, a Gallup Poll in mid-December showed that Sen. John Glenn of Ohio and former Vice President Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota would run well ahead of the president if the election were held at that time. The two Democrats were ahead in all sections of the country except the Middle West in which Reagan ran no better than even with his two potential foes.

Most first-term presidents do not disclose their intentions as to whether they will run again until they have to. Reagan is following that practice, too, in the Jan. 6 edition on video because no president wants to admit he's a potential lame duck until he becomes one. The speculation now is that Reagan will run, if Nancy approves, if his health remains good and if the economy starts to recover at least by early next year.

Already, however, Reagan is beginning to act like a candidate. He has just appointed two women to the Cabinet, moves that presumably would strengthen his candidacy with women who have been noticeably cool to his presidency. He has persuaded his secretary of defense to announce a $8 billion cut in his defense budget. He has announced new federal programs to benefit hard-pressed farmers. In these and other ways, he is offering evidence that he is inching toward a decision to run again.

THE PRESIDENT is still the amiable, usually ebullient man he was when he took office two years ago today but his personal popularity has suffered. The question now is whether he can repair the damage his administration has done to his personal standing and, even more important, whether the economy will begin to revive by the time he has to decide whether to run again.

Former actor Reagan obviously is playing his last major role as president but whatever he finally decides to do he already has learned that in the White House life is not just one grand, sweet song. And if he decides to seek a second term, the question will

How much is too much?

A trial balloon proposing an income tax hike of more than 43 percent was launched in Lansing last House speaker, Gary Owen, another Democrat. week as Gov. James Blanchard's Financial Crisis Council and key legislators began wrestling with ways of balancing Michigan's budget in the face of a $750-million deficit. The crisis is obviously worse than everyone thought.

The proposal for a two percentage point tax hike - from 4.6 to 6.6 percent — was first made public by David Adamany, president of Wayne State University and a former revenue director for the state of Wisconsin. Adamany said the increased tax would raise only the "minimum" needed to solve the deficit problem. The crisis already has caused the government to the control of the state of t ernor to defer scheduled state payments to higher education as well as local school districts and to freeze state employment at the current 59,500 level.

ADAMANY'S proposal was quickly seconded by Senate Majority Leader William Faust although the senator said later his announcement of support for a bill to raise the income tax to the 6.6 percent level was "premature" because it was supposed to serve only as a starting point for negotiations for a tax hike. Faust admitted he probably would settle for a single percentage point income tax hike since the proposed two-percentage point increase was sharply

Yet W. Michael Blumenthal, Burroughs Corp. board chairman and a key member of the governor's crisis council, also has come out strongly for a substantial tax hike and the governor's aides consider such an action almost inevitable because it is the most effective way of increasing revenue in a hurry. Further cuts in state spending are being advocated by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, which also backs a temporary increase in the sales tax which, however, would require a constitutional amendment as well as approval by three-fourths majorities of both houses of the Legislature.

SO FAR IT appears the question is not whether there will be a tax hike but simply how much it will be. So Michigan citizens might as well get accustomed to the idea that the state's budget crisis is going to cost them more in taxes as well as a further reduction in state services. Somehow the words of the incoming state Democratic administration sound no different from those of the outgoing Republican administration. As for the size of the proposed tax hike, we hope someone still is considering the question of how much is too much.

Lower speeds on Vernier needed

For many years I have used Vernier Road in the Woods as both a pedestrian and a driver. In these years, I have seen many accidents because of reckless, itchy-footed impatient drivers.

Being a Grosse Pointe North student myself, I understand the crossing conditions on Vernier Road. If it weren't for the crosswalks, it would be like trying to cross a highway. Many times, as I have walked to school, I saw children, filled with the eagerness of youth, cross the streets in danger zones between the crosswalks. Sometimes the students were lucky thanks to careful drivers but sometimes they were not.

Just recently I have begun to understand the driver's point of view. It's very hard to put up with lead-foots while at the same time watching for pedestrians and crazy cyclists.

Summing up both points of view, I think the speed limit on Vernier Road should be reduced to 25 mph. This will provide safety and ease to both the pedestrian and driver.

The first Knight of Charity, back in 1954, was Pat O'Brien. Over the years such notables as Danny Thomas, Stanley S. Kresge, Walker L. Cisler, Mrs. Stanley J. Winkelman, Jules R. Schubot, Lynn A. Townsend and Thomas A. Murphy have been honored.

This year's Knight of Charity, who will receive his award at a black tie dinner Friday, Feb. 4, at the Westin Hotel, is recording artist, radio and television star Perry

The dinner serves a two-fold purpose. First: it honors persons who deserve honor, who exemplify charity in action and service to one's fellow man, individuals who have been inspiring models of moral integrity through hard work and devotion to others. Second: proceeds from the $125 per person tickets for the evening help relieve human suffering in the underdeveloped nations of the world through social and benevolent activities conducted by the Pontifical Institute for Foreign Missions.

World Hunger Year, on Saturday, Jan. 8, at the University Club, and they sent out invitations (donation a very reasonable $5 for reservations received by Jan. 1, a modest $7.50 at the door), and they contracted for live music by The Urbations . . . and they settled back to see what

It was, after all, conceivable that nobody would come. But what happened was this: the party was a smashing success; 350 persons showed up, and virtually every one of them had a wonderful time; the Grosse Pointe Association for World Hunger Year raised $1,200.

That's a modest amount, you say? Well — it's $1,200 more than World Hunger Year would have received if the two Jennifers, Tammy, Sheryl and Karen hadn't put the party together. They're thinking about making it an annual event.

The Leon Girls Do It Again

Violinist Suzanne Lai Leon has been awarded the Michigan Foundation for the Arts' first prize of $1,000 in the Plymouth Symphony Society Young Artist Competthe Plymouth Sympnony Society Young Artist Competition, and her sister, pianist Stephanie Leon, received an honorable mention from the adjudicators: Thomas Hardie, chairperson, Vocal Area, Western Michigan University School of Music and governor of Michigan NATS; Boris Nelson, music critic and arts editor for The Toledo Blade and former professor of Humanities at the University of Toledo: Alfie Pignotti, solo violinist and professor sity of Toledo; Alfio Pignotti, solo violinist and professor of Music at Eastern Michigan University; and ex-Pointer Russell Reed, now associate professor of Music and director of the Symphony Orchestra at EMU.

Winning and placing in music competitions is, of course, nothing new for the daughters of the Harold Leons, of Ridgemont Road. Stephanie was the first winner of the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival Piano Competition back in 1981. Suzanne took first prize in the 1982 Orchestra Hall String Competition.

Suzanne is currently a senior at the Curtis Institute of Music, a student of Jascha Brodsky and Arnold Steinhardt. She has attended Juilliard, Meadowmount and the Taos School of Music. She'll accept her most recent award and appear as soloist, performing the Prokofieff Concerto No. 1 in D major, at the Plymouth Symphony's Young Artist Concert Sunday, Feb. 6, at 4 p.m. in the Plymouth-Salem High School Auditorium.

Fun Fund Raiser for 'Downtown'

We have The Village, The Hill, Mack and Kercheval Avenues, Fisher Road ... but say "downtown" and Grosse Pointers automatically think RenCen, Woodward Avenue, the New Center Area. In other words: "downtown" is Detroit, and concern for the health and welfare of the central city doesn't stop at Alter Road.

So Grosse Pointers should be especially interested in supporting the Central Business District Association's special benefit performance of Michigan Opera Theatre's production of "The Sound of Music" at the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts, set for Tuesday, Feb. 1, at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are available starting at $22 for main floor seats. Special "inner circle" seats at $50 each include a champagne and hors d'oeuvres afterglow with the stars. Greektown's Pegasus Taverna is donating the refreshments. Additional seats are available in the loge at $35 a ticket.

The evening's proceeds will go toward funding CBDA's 1983 programs and improvements for downtown Detroit, including beautification, entertainment and promotion. Ticket orders may be placed by phone at the CBDA office, 961-1403. Honorary chairpersons of the benefit are William J. Cudlip, David B. Lewis, Amy S. McCombs and Charles T. Smith Jr.

Hot beverages for cold days

Bahia would seem to be of little concern to most Americans. Not so for those who love chocolate.

Chocolate is the number-one flavor preference for Americans and Brazil is one of the world's largest exporters of cocoa, the source of chocolate. A drought in Brazil is threatening the crop. Analysts say the first world cocoa deficit in six years will occur if it continues.

This would translate into even higher chocolate prices - and wholesale cocoa prices more than doubled during the last cocoa shortage in 1977

Many factors influence the price the pods, or fruits, of the cocoa tree. This special variety of evergreen is cultivated mainly within 20 degrees north or south of the equator, making Brazil and western Africa the two key growing areas for cocoa.

The United States and most other developed nations must import cocoa. As other countries have become more prosperous the worldwide demand for cocoa has increased Cold weather increases the popularity of many products made from the cocoa bean, especially hot chocolate. Many convenience economical hot beverage on the products are on the market but none matches the flavor of hot chocolate made from cocoa and fresh milk.

Hot chocolate made from scratch with fresh milk is about equal to the price of bulkpackaged instant mixes which contain dry milk solids. Chocolate mixes packaged in individual servings are the most expensive form of hot chocolate.

Coffee is another beverage with one of the largest suppliers of coffee beans. Colombia, Guatemala fannings and dust.

Weather in the Brazilian state of and Angola (Africa) also export substantial amounts of coffee.

Weather is the most important factor affecting fluctuating coffee prices. Politics are another important factor, because some coffee countries are often in turmoil politically. Coffee is the second most valuable commodity (behind petroleum) in international trade.

Brazil and other big coffeeproducing nations rely heavily on coffee exports for national income. During the 1977 coffee shortage coffee shelves were bare in the supermarkets of producing countries, while coffee just cost more in the United States.

Coffee is still the most popular hot beverage in the United States of a commodity but one of the greatest is supply versus demand. Cocoa beans, the source of all cocoa and chocolate, are found in since 1962. Consumers trying to economize on coffee without drinking less might try one of these options: buy the least expensive type of your favorite brand, choose a less expensive brand, or use less coffee for each cup brewed. Anyone already using powdered instant coffee is spending about half as much per cup as it would cost for the same brand of similar strength freeze-dried instant or regular grind coffee for brewing.

Tea is definitely the most market. Almost all tea now used in the United States is black tea. Though usually grown in different locales, black and green tea are dried leaves of the same plant. After tea is picked it is withered, dried and machine-broken. Black tea goes a step further than green it is fermented.

The words "orange pekoe" on a package have nothing to do with flavor. Orange pekoe describes tea made from large leaves. Broken orange pekoe tea is made a foreign connection. Brazil is also from smaller leaves. Pekoe tea is made from even smaller leaves,

Smith-Huetter rites are read

The midsummer wedding of Katherine Jeanne Huetter and Glen Randolph Smith in the garden at the St. Clair home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Randolph Smith Jr., was followed by a garden reception. The Reverend Brady Seeley presided at the 2 o'clock ceremony Saturday, Aug-

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jeffery Huetter, of Raymond Road, wore her mother's wedding gown of barathea silk and a two-tiered illusion veil, caught with seed pearl day lilies. She carried an arrangement of silk day lilies.

She was attended by her sisters, Julie Beth Huetter as maid of honor and Jane Suzanne Huetter as bridesmaid, wearing identical dresses, pale lavender in color, and matching hats. They carried baskets of silk day lilies, stephanotis and violets.

Flower girl Marney Baker, the bridegroom's niece, in a dress of off-white crepe, carried a basket of silk flowers similar to those of the honor maid and bridesmaid. Robert Jeffery Jay acted as best man for his cousin. William Ward Baker, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, ushered.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen R. Smith

The mother of the bride wore a ruffled, melon-colored dress of silk taffeta and a hat trimmed with matching silk flowers. The mother of the bridegroom accented her dress of dove grey georgette with lilac accessories. She wore an orchid corsage.

The newlyweds vacationed at Niagara-on-the-Lake. They are at home in Grosse Pointe City.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. George Delaney, of Tucson, Ariz., and the bridegroom's mother's cousins, the Fletchers, of Ohio.

It was a small world even in the days of the Roman Empire, for the Romans, and at least some of their subjects, traded with lands as remote as India. Goods from the mysterious East flowed through small Egyptian ports such as Quseir al-Qadim on the Abandoned when the Roman Empire fell on hard economic times in the second century, Quseir al-Qadim was deserted for hundreds of years, but again attracted the world's riches in the 13th century, under Medieval Islamic rule.

An expedition led by archeologists Janet H. Johnson and Donald S. Whitcomb, of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, has turned up hundreds of thousands of artifacts, including Chinese porcelain, pieces of Indian batik and rare Alexandrian glass, at the site of the old port. The dig, about 300 miles southeast of Cairo, is partly supported by the National Geographic Society.

The people in this seaside settlement lived a harsh life, despite the riches that sometimes piled up around them. The port, situated in a desert landscape, had few natural resources. Food, water, even feed for animals had to be imported.

Among the many letters found in the excavations is an urgent plea on a potsherd from a parched Roman tribune on maneuvers in the nearby desert for three jars of Intent on exploiting the spice trade, the Romans supported the hardship post because of its strategic location at the end of the shortest overland route between the Nile Valley and the Red Sea.

Peppercorns, a spice as valuable as gold in ancient times, coarse jute cloth and teak wood found at Quseir al-Qadim confirm the port's trade ties with India.

We were also surprised to find inscriptions in the ancient Tamil language of India on a number of pottery sherds," said Dr. Johnson. "Roman historians mentioned an Indian presence in Egypt — but this is the first actual physical evidence."

Several of the inscriptions and a small forge were found in a series of humble rooms that may have housed Indian merchants and ironworkers.

At its peak the port's population probably numbered less than 2,000. "Egyptians, Greco-Egyptians, Indians, Nabateans — it's very difficult to determine just who was living there then," said Dr. Whitcomb. "But it's fairly certain the Roman presence was small: only a few administrators and a small garrison at most."

One of the most poignant

Roman remains, the skeleton of a youth, was found buried in a ruined storage building.

"The Romans normally buried their dead in a distant necropolis, but this unfortunate boy was secretly placed beneath the rubble," said Dr. Whitcomb. "You can almost visualize a night burial, someone sneaking off after digging the shallow grave and cover-before dying.

In the Islamic Era, most of the dead were buried near the town. The archeologists have found remnants of their highly decorative clothing — fancy silks and distinctive blue and white checked distinctive blue and white checked head cloths — and many of their letters have survived the centuries because of the dry climate and high rag content of the fine quality paper. "We discovered hundreds of them," said Johnson. 'It's as if someone had emptied a wastebasket over the site.'

Among the missives are a love letter and a note from an anxious mother to her son containing the time-honored question: don't you write more often?"

Her son may have been a promising young member of one of the trading families that controlled the flow of goods through the port. Like junior executives today, younger men often had to serve time in the hinterlands before moving on to corporate headquar-

In the monsoon season the port's modest, limestone storage buildings would have been stacked high with goods such as spices from India and pottery from the Sudan and East Africa. The Louisa St. Clair Chapter was formed by a group of eight women in the Congress Street home of Mrs. William Fitzhugh Edwards on Jan. 19, 1893, and named for the daughter of General Arthur St. Clair, Governor of the Northwest Territory following the Revolutionary War. Mrs. Joy later deeded the property to Louisa St. Clair. It remained the chapter's home for the next 24 years, until the property was condemned in 1961. An office was then established at the Women's City Club and moved to the Whittier Towers in 1976.

Some toys are dangerous in a young child's hands

No, this isn't a street sign. It's a reminder that some toys can be dangerous to children.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, reminds parents that children are imitators and experimenters. Not only do they imitate their parents, they are continually experimenting with their toys: poking, pulling, prying, pinching.

Some stuffed animals, for instance, have cute button eyes that pull off easily, exposing the sharp points which fasten them on These points sometimes do not lock, like staples, but are just pushed in like a double-point thumb tack. These types of stuffed animals are apt to be found in souvenir shops or sold at carnivals. They are attractive to children and are frequently a casual or spur-of-the-moment gift. Avoid them - or inspect them carefully.

Children are rough on toys.
They experiment by dragging them, banging them and sitting on them. Avoid anything with sharp or rough edges that will cut or

Also avoid toys or objects with small, removable parts that can be swallowed or pushed into an ear or nose. No one knows why a child will push a small object up his nose: perhaps just because it's there, the object is handy and it happens to fit.

If a toy is painted or has painted decorations, be sure that the paint is non-toxic. Imported toys, especially those from Mexico, may use lead-based paints, and eating paint chips has resulted in lead poisoning. Some plastic toys may be flammable if exposed to heat.

So what are desirable toys? For infants: Bright, colorful toys in many shapes, sizes, tex-

ELEGANT EATING

A selection of recipes from the forthcoming low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise cookbook by Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth featuring, this week, a trio of INTER-ESTING BREADS.

CRANBERRY-ORANGE NUT BREAD

21/4 cups unbleached flour 3/4 cups + 2 Tbsp. sugar 2 tsp. baking powder 1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. baking soda
1 cup coarsely chopped
cranberries

1/3 cup chopped nuts 1 egg, well beaten

1/2 cup orange juice 2 Tbsp. margarine, melted

Mix flour with sugar, baking powder, salt and soda. Add cran-berries and nuts. Combine wellbeaten egg and orange juice. Add to flour mixture with melted shortening; mix until all flour is dampened. Pour into 9x5-inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated oven 350° for 1 hour, until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes; then remove from pan and finish cooling on rack. ORANGE NUT OR ORANGE RAISIN BREAD

This is a most delightful bread that is very economical! For parties, try baking in 6-ounce juice cans. Fill well-greased cans only 3/4 full and bake for shorter time than loaves. Quick fruit and nut breads slice better if, after baking and cooling, they are wrapped tightly in foil and refrigerated for at least 12 hours.

3 cups sifted all-purpose flour 3 tsp. baking powder

1/2 tsp. salt 1 Tbsp. grated orange rind 2/3 cup sugar 1 egg, well-beaten

1/4 cup orange juice 1¼ cups milk 2 Tbsp. margarine, melted 1/2 cup chopped nuts or

1/2 cup chopped seedless raisins Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; combine orange rind and sugar; add to flour mixture. Combine well-beaten egg, orange juice, milk and melted margarine; add the nuts or the raisins to the liquid mixture. Pour the liquid mixture into the flour mixture. Combine all ingredients with a few swift strokes, stirring lightly until barely blended. Bake in 2 well-greased 8½x4½ loaf pans in a preheated 350° oven for about 50 minutes or until done. Makes 2 loaves, 16 slices per loaf.

WAC to focus on fund raising

Five experienced fund raisers -Agnes Scott, vice-president of Development, WTVS-TV, Channel 56; Doris DeDeckere, director of Public Relations and Promotion, Bob-Lo Corporation, former March of Dimes PR director; Marion Cartwright, staff manager, Corporate Contributions, Michigan Bell Telephone; and veteran volunteers Betty Gerisch and Phyllis Marra - will share their secrets of success at a meeting of the Women's Advertising Club of Detroit this Monday, Jan. 24, at the WTVS Studios on Second Avenue in Detroit.

Reservations for the evening, which includes a wine reception and buffet at 6 p.m. with the program following at 7 p.m., at $8 per person may be obtained by contacting Rita Walby at 775-3221 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

From busboys and bartenders to bookies and bail bondsmen ... everybody has the answer to what's ailing the Detroit Lions. The Lions had what some might call a lousy year and now people with even the tiniest bit of knowledge about football (some might call them members of Lions' management) want to pin the blame on somebody.

Some say it's the owner, some say it's the coach. Others feel the two-quarterback system left the Lions two quarterbacks short of success. I don't like to brag, but I think I've got the definitive answer. National television.

The same Lion team which was capable of returning kickoffs 90 yards for touchdowns, completing at least half of its passes and running up 42 points on an opponent, earned a spot on national television a few times this season — and was immediately reduced to a quivering mass of penalty-prone, pass-dropping Jello. A Monday Night Football date more often than not meant Monday Night Massacre. And when our heros were the featured fare on Thanksgiving Day telecasts, the whole country knew just which team would turn out to be the turkey.

Call it stage fright or whatever you like — but when the networks yelled lights, camera, action for the Lions this year, our boys in Honolulu Blue and Silver responded with a fumble, flop and fizzle.

And speaking from personal experience, I can't say I

My television debut . . .

I, too, am familiar with the tension caused by a television appearance. The anxiety, the fear of failure or embarrassment . . . those feelings are all too real to me. When it comes to television, I've never been the same since my debut on the Poopdeck Paul Little Sports Show.

As a sidekick to the host of the long-running Captain Jolly kids' show, Poopdeck Paul filled a role not unlike that of Frank Gifford on Monday Night Football. Although Howard Cosell is the boss, Gifford is around to keep things at an even keel; Poopdeck served the same purpose on Captain Jolly's show. The only difference was, Poopdeck, unlike Gifford, got to run the show all by himself every once and Poopdeck's segment of the show was called Poopdeck Paul's Little Sports. Local kids sent in a card in hopes of being chosen one of Poopdeck's Little Sports. Winners got to appear on the show to compete for prizes in a kids' version of various sports.

When Poopdeck told kids to send in their cards for the bowling show, my big brother wasted no time in submitting my name, age and bowling average. Thinking, naively, that I had no chance of winning, I gave him my consent.

About three weeks later, I walked into the house after a grueling day at kindergarten to find a letter from CKLW-TV, home of Captain Jolly, Poopdeck Paul, et al. "Congratulations," it said. "You have been chosen to participate in the next production of Poopdeck Paul's Little Sports. Please report to the television station this weekend."

Needless to say, I spent a restless week in anticipation of the big day. As it turned out, I should have slept in that

Upon arriving at the station, Poopdeck Paul's Little Sports, as we would henceforth be known, were ushered into a waiting room in preparation for our television debut. There were four of us: myself, two girls outfitted in pink satin party dresses, and a boy who was amusing himself by staring at the test pattern card propped against the studio

"My, isn't your little girl cute!," said the mother of the pink satin party dresses to my mother. "I know my darlings are a little overdressed, but I think pink will show up well on television, don't you?" "I told you I should have worn something nicer than this crummy school dress," I hissed at my mother. I was sure that Poopdeck Paul would give the pink satin party dress sisters a 10-pin advantage just by looking at them.

We were interrupted by Poopdeck's booming voice. "Who's the kid with the 150 average?," Poopdeck asked. "She's right here," my obnoxious brother said, pushing me to the front of the group. "I wrote on your card that you had a 150 bowling average," my brother whispered. "Make it look good."

A 150 average! I hadn't ever seen a bowling ball until that afternoon! Poopdeck asked me to pose with him for a special snapshot; he'd never seen a 5-year-old with a 150 average, he said. "That makes two of us, pal," I thought.

The other Little Sports and I were then taken to the stage, which had been converted into a mini-bowling alley. Poopdeck showed us the array of prizes which would be awarded to the winner. "Let the kid with the 150 average start first," Poopdeck said to his assistant. "Okay, everybody, let's start the show."

The last thing I remember was staring at myself on the television monitor and watching as my bowling ball bounced down the lane, hitting cameramen, sound technicians, props ... everything but the bowling pins.

Try a few tears, Lions . . .

Needless to say, I was not awarded the array of prizes. Those went to the pink satin party dress sisters. Even the test pattern kid, who by the end of the show was almost completely cross-eyed, outscored me. But then, outscoring zero isn't too difficult a task.

As Poopdeck Paul lined us up to receive our prizes (or in my case, take my medicine), the whole event began to take its toll on me. I broke into tears, which gave way to sobs, which turned into uncontrollable wailing. Poopdeck, in an effort to shut me up, broke precedent and sent the last

Logan begins Olympic odyssey

By Peggy O'Connor

In 1980, the world fell in love with a determined bunch of amateur hockey players who beat the odds, overcame youth and in-experience and managed to pull off the greatest upset in Olympic hockey history, defeating teams from Russia and Finland to earn the United States' first hockey gold medal in 20 years.

In 1983, a different, but equally determined, group of hockey players is making its way through a whirlwind schedule of pre-Olympic, pre-world tournament, warm-up games. From that gutsy bunch will come members of the 1984 Olympic team whose task it will be to defend that gold medal earned in 1980. And Jeff Logan, 22, of the Shores, just may be among them.

Notre Dame graduate Jeff Logan (pictured in uniform at right) is a member of the 1983 U.S.A. hockey team, from which the 1984 Olympic hockey team will be chosen.

The 1983 team is coached by Lou Vairo and managed by Hal Trumble, who is executive director of AHAUS, the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States. The Miller Brewing Company, Sasson, Bristol-Meyers Company and Isuzu Motors are sponsoring the U.S.A. hockey team by making a financial committment to the team and supplying clothing, transportation and other products.

In fact, Logan has so much versity of Notre Dame hockey Dame on a full hockey scholar-going for him right now, it would team. be a surprise if he wasn't on the squad which will represent the U.S. at the 1984 Winter Olympics in Zagreb, Yugoslavia. And although there's still a while before the final Olympic team selection is made, Logan's chances are looking better every day. Just ask

Susan Logan should be forgiven if she sounds just a bit biased when the subject turns to her son's hockey career. But who could better serve as a guy's press agent than his mother someone who's been around since the beginning? Susan Logan was there from Jeff's days as a Squirt in the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association, to the time he and his Roberts' Pools Bantam team won the national bantam title and throughout Jeff's years as a highscoring right winger on the Uni-

And now that Jeff Logan's hockey career is nearing a high point, no one could be happier than his mother.

"Like all mothers, it's a joy to see your son get recognition. He's such a good boy ... he's never given me a single moment's worry or unhappiness," Mrs. Peter Logan says.

Logan and the chosen for the U then placed with Logan and the other players chosen for the U.S.A. team were then placed with the farm teams of various professional hockey clubs. Logan spent time with the Minnesota North Stars' farm team, the South Stars, in Birmingham, Ala., where he worked on conditioning building skills. He was granted permission to play five extra games beyond the 10game amateur limit with the South Stars and has been invited by the team to return for the season playdowns.

Jeff feels skating with the South Stars was a wonderful experience," Mrs. Logan says. "The transition from college hockey was made easier by skating with a professional club."

After his time with the South Stars was up, Logan took off for the Olympic training center in Colorado Springs, Colo., where he joined his U.S.A. teammates. The squad is guaranteed to stay together through March 8, at which time the team will be evaluated. Some players will be dropped and the finalized squad will go on to Tokyo, Japan, for the International Ice Hockey Federation's "B" Pool World Hockey Championship.

The final U.S. Olympic hockey team will be chosen after next summer's National Sports Festival in Colorado Springs. That team will play a traveling schedule similar to the one the 1983 U.S. team is playing now, before competing in the 1984 Olym-

IF LOGAN'S current statistics are any indication, he'll be on that Yugoslavia-bound team. He is currently second in goal scoring and in total points on the 1983 team. And he's already demonstrated the exciting, comethrough-in-the-clutch style of play reminiscent of so many members of the 1980 gold medal team. It was Logan who got the tying goal in a game against the Russians in the recent Battle Creek World Tournament. The U.S. team won

Looking back on that experience, I can completely sympathize with the Lions. There's something terribly unnerving about lights, cameras, close-ups and commercial breaks. I can certainly understand why the Lions have had their problems on television.

My advice is to turn down those national television opportunities. Although it might give a number of errant sons-turned linebackers a chance to say "Hi, Mom!" it does nothing for a football team's position in the standings.

And if a national television appearance is unavoidable, perhaps the Lions should try my ploy. If the tears of a 5-year-old could wangle a free case of soda pop from a salty sea dog like Poopdeck Paul, imagine what 44 sobbing, wailing football players could accomplish. They might even come out of it with a contract to endorse Kleenex.

Olympic odyssey

But Jeff Logan still has much to prove before that final Olympic team is chosen — and he has a lot of time to do it. The team is currently in the midst of a 37-game schedule in preparation for those IIHF World Championships in Tokyo. Logan's travels with Team U.S.A. will take him from Belgium, the Netherlands, and Tokyo, Sapporo and Kobe, Japan, to Anchorage, Alaska and Sun Valley, Idaho - and a number of other stops in between.

If Logan can learn the demanding, European-Style play U.S. team coach Lou Vairo is imposing upon his players, and if he can continue to impress team officials with his play, he has a good chance of making the 1984 Olympic team. One of Logan's former coaches thinks Logan has all the necessary skills.

"He's extremely fast with tremendous scoring ability . . . in fact, he's the fastest player I've ever coached," says Chris Coury, coach of the Little Caesars midget hockey team.

"If he plays up to his potential he can make the Olympic team with no problem," Coury adds. 'But he has to have talented players around to get the puck to him . . . and he has to have a coach who can motivate him."

AND COURY says right winger Logan's potential goes far beyond the 1984 Olympics. "He could play with almost any professional team the 1984 Olympics. "He could play with almost any professional team if he plays — and there are those words again — up to his potential. Again, if he has the right players and coach to support him he are and coach to support him, he can great potential. If he doesn't, he's just another pretty face.'

So far, it seems, Jeff Logan is fulfulling that potential. He managed to earn a degree in economics from Notre Dame while playing four years of varsity hockey, made the University Liggett School varsity tennis team for four years while playing youth hockey, and pursued an Olympic dream to the point of turning down a professional contract because he was already committed to the U.S. program.

"Jeff has devoted his life to hockey. He loves it and he wants to pursue it," Logan's mother says. "You have to sacrifice an awful lot for these goals - but Jeff is willing to make those sacrifices to achieve his goals.

"He says he thinks he should go, after it as far as he can.'

And that kind of attitude is pretty much what the world loved about that determined bunch of hockey players back in 1980.

The Marlies dominated the opening game of the series with a 7-1 victory. The Pointe opened a 5-0 lead in the first game on goals by Richard Pésegna (two), Tom Ugval, Len DiGiuseppe and Kevin Tisdale before South Bend came back with its lone goal. The Marlies quickly squashed any hopes for a Shamrock rally by finishing the game on late goals by Tisdale, his second, and Joe Sullivan.

The Marlies completely dominated play — even in penalty situations - with their superior skating speed. Goalies Coley Connolly and Heath Cking were outstanding, repeatedly turning away South Bend shooters. Bob Alcott, Scott Nied, Eric Warezak Craig Donahue, Brian Warezak, Craig Donahue, Brian Hein and Mike Fulgenzi collected assists; as did goal scorers Ugval,

Two evenings of swimming, ping-pong and staying up late took their tolls as the Marlies dropped Sunday's rematch, 6-4. The Marlies dropped behind, 4-0, before they woke up and staged a furious comeback with three third period goals before South Bend iced the game and the win late in the contest. DiGiuseppe led the Marlie attack with two goals; Nied and Sullivan had single tallies. Donahue and Sullivan had one assist each. The Marlies split their pre-South Bend Adray League contests last week, defeating Royal Oak, 3-2, and losing to Fraser, 3-1.

Grosse Pointe spotted Royal Oak an opening period, one-goal lead before they found the range and dominated play with three second period tallies. Tisdale scored the first two goals on picture set-ups from Sullivan, before Ugval sealed the victory with an unassisted goal after stealing the The Marlies' visit to Taylor

Defense has been the Bruins' strong point, and the team's de-fensemen, Chris Smude, Captain Chris Luongo, Dan Follis, Eric Grant and Bob Nelson have added scoring punch and stopped their opponent's scoring.

The goaltending duo of Dino Masella and Dan Geffert has combined for an overall goals-against-average of 1.30.

The third Bruin victory of the week came over Compuware AA, 4-3. The Bruins opened 4-1 lead with goals by Sanclemente, Rickert, Dettloff and Nelson. Madden, Hirschfield, Garrett and Luongo drew assists. Solid defense and good goaltending by Masella and Geffert provided the margin of victory.

A full schedule of Squirt Division play highlighted Grosse Pointe Hockey Association action last week. The Oilers and North Stars got things started with a high-scoring game, won by the Oilers, 7-5. A sky-high Oiler team maintained pressure from the opening faceoff to take the win. Paul Bogos led the Oilers with four goals; single tallies were notched by Renato Roxas, Nancy Alcott and Jason Bucko. Blake Crawford, Mark Schweitzer, Bucko and John McGlone added assists. The North Stars' Charlie Stumb continued his torrid scoring pace, firing in three goals to run his totals to 23 on the year. Brad Hea and Gabe Benvenuto also scored for the

ISLANDERS-SHARKS

The Islanders invaded St. Clair Shores for a game with the Sharks, fighting to a 3-3 tie. The Islanders' Nick Lorenzini and the Sharks' Matt Schalker scored twice each before Steve Bai put the Islanders ahead in the third period. Chad Parr's goal in the final minute earned a tie for the Sharks.

OILERS-HUSKIES

The Oilers and Huskies battled to a 2-2 tie in this close-checking, hard-skating Mid-Season Tourna-ment contest. Roxas put the Oilers on top early with his goal, but Dan Grundman tied it up for the Huskies. In the third period, Bucko put the Oilers ahead again after converting passes from Bogos and McGlone, but Brian Dennis scored his first of the year for the Huskies. The Oilers' Jim Bunn and the Huskies' Paul Cavazos were sharp in the nets for their teams.

NORTH STARS-BANDITS

In a rematch with the Bandits at St. Clair Shores Civic Arena, the North Stars jumped to a two-goal lead and were never threatened as they skated to a 3-1 win. Jack McSorley knocked in a rebound off Hea's shot to open the scoring. Stumb iced the victory with his two goals. Brian Haworth scored for the Bandits in the third period. Dan Henry and Andy Martin turned in strong defensive efforts for the North Stars.

ISLANDERS-OILERS

The Islanders went on a scoring rampage in this 8-2 victory out-gunning the Oilers by scoring twice in the first period, twice in the second and four times in the. third. Bai notched five goals to lead the scoring; Billy Schervish, Dan LeFebvre and Lorenzini jot. the other Islanders' goals. Bogos and Schweitzer scored for the Oil-

NORTH STARS-HUSKIES

The Huskies came from behind twice to battle to a 2-2 tie with the North Stars in this close-checking game. Darren Burt scored his first goal of the year to give the North Stars the lead, but Derek Smith took a pass from Chris Shaya and scored to tie the game. Benvenuto finished off a nice passing play from Stumb and Mc-Sorley to put the Stars ahead after two periods, but Sean Trainor got loose and tied the score early in the third period. North Stars' goaltender Richie Harder and Huskies' netminder George Petersmarck held the skaters scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Harden Fine (UC) Furniture

Draper's fine furniture SINCE 1965

Crafted by the hands of Flarden

What distinguishes Harden from most other furniture makers is the extraordinary amount of hand work that goes into every piece considered to be good enough to carry the Harden name.

Harden also maintains its own forests of native
American cherry trees from which only the finest logs are selected for Harden's renowned solid cherrywood furniture.

There's pride, too, that goes way back to 1865 when wood workers who had settled in McConnellsville, New York spent the long winter months making Windsor Chairs of exceptional quality.

Today, descendants of these craftsmen can be found at Harden, carrying on the tradition of quality, durability and fine craftsmanship that started over a century ago.

Few things that can be purchased today offer the lasting value to be found in Harden furniture.

This sale is an exceptional opportunity to begin or add to your Harden collection at substantial savings.

Nothing adds to the charm and warmth of a dining room quite like solid cherry. Harden's superb designs and superior craftsmanship will give a lifetime of pride and pleasure.
