

Invasion imminent

Remember all those times. you've smacked down fish flies that got in your way? Well, apparently the little critters have had it up to their little keisters with being kicked around and are fighting back.

The first skirmish in the war was struck Thursday morning when a Woods man was motoring down Lakeshore Road in the Shores when he felt something hit him in the neck. He reached up to dislodge a fish fly from the side of his face, lost control of his car, clipped a telephone pole and flipped over.

The victim sustained multiple abrasions and required 24 stitches to close a cut beneath his chin. The fish fly got away. Stay tuned for further developments.

Future Felon

What's this world coming to? The Park police report that two little kids in the 1400 block of Wayburn who set up a lemonade stand last week were robbed.

Police Chief Henry Coonce said a bigger kid came up to the young capitalists and asked them if they'd like to play a game. Sure, they said. He bet them they couldn't "climb that tree over there." While they were busy scrambling up the tree, he ripped off their entire day's receipts — $1.58.

What can you buy with $1.58 besides 300 White Castle hamburgers? What's the next step? Lemonade stands surrounded by bullet proof glass?

Classy class

Speaking of one of the best high schools in the country, one of the best (and smartest) classes of that high school had its 20th reunion at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club recently.

About 400 persons from the 730 member class of 1963 from South gathered under a full moon one night last month to talk, dance and reminesce about the good old days. One of the most discussed items was the 80-page booklet given to each graduate tracing what 600 of their fellow classmates are up to. Surprisingly, only about 390 of the class still live in Michigan, with the rest spread across the continent. California claims the most with 40 transplanted Pointers, and Illinois claims the second highest total with 19. Thirteen classmates have died since 1963. Most in traffic accidents, one drowning, one drug over dose and one in Viet Nam. According to John (Jack) Thomas, who drove from California, the class of '63, was the smartest, with one of the highest SAT scores in the school's history. Thomas reported to us that the scores have been on a downslide ever since his class went out to face the world.

In some interesting side lights, Thomas said three classmates are heavily involved in anti-nuclear politics: Dennis Nahat, who went on to the Juilliard School of Music, is founder and director of the Cleveland Ballet Co. and choreographed the 1976 film "Turning Point," which starred Shirley MacLaine. Dennis also appeared in the movie.

Good old Paul Rentenbach, who ran and won the class presidency, is still running. He's competed in and completed 11 marathons. All in all, the class of 1963 was a good one with no "axe murderers," said a surprised Thomas, and he should know. Thomas is a newsman for radio station KOBO, outside of Yuba City, Calif., where mass murderer Juan Corona did some of his best work. Cheer up Jack, perhaps things will pick up by your 25th class reunion.

Union hot about Farms fire truck safety

Grosse Pointe News

By Tom Greenwood

Battle lines are being drawn in the Farms over the question of safety standards and reliability of the city's fire trucks. On one side stand members of the Farms Fire Department and the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM, the department's union) which claim the trucks are in dangerous need of repair. They have accused the city and its fire chief of not being concerned with the situation.

Opposing them are the city administration and Fire Chief Warren Schultz who have confirmed the trucks need minor repairs, but have issued statements reaffirming the trucks' reliability, calling the issue "sour grapes" and "fire house politics."

The debate about the trucks' reliability was brought to a boil by a four paragraph article that appeared June 23 in the Detroit

News in which POAM director Carl Parsell said the trucks were "unsafe" and that the union had asked the trucks to be inspected by the State Police and the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration because "Fire Chief Warren Schultz refused to respond to union concerns regarding unsafe conditions of the city's fire trucks."

While all sides of the issue agree there are problems with the trucks, no one can agree on how severe the problems are.

Responding to the charges, Chief Schultz said "none of the allegations are really true.

"There's nothing really readily wrong with the trucks," said Schultz. "It's true they have little problems but it's the same as your family car. Things can be trucks are still running.

"The brakes lose air and the clutch is bad," continued Schultz, "but we're waiting for a part for the clutch right now. It's been on order for three weeks and the trucks are still rollable.'

Schultz said the trucks, built in 1972 and 1973, only have six to seven thousand miles on them. "The biggest problem with these trucks is that they sit so much," said Schultz. "They've had the same problems in the City. We did recently put a new alternator on the truck and it went bad. It was under warranty and replaced. I are okay. The trucks are inshow that the crew members ones signing the charts okaying dards." the trucks for duty. How can that be? The whole thing is sour wrong but it still works. The grapes over promotions and senority problems."

For their part, members of the Farms city administration expressed criticism of Parsell for his handling of the alleged safety complaints concerning the trucks.

A Farms spokesman said that Parsell hadn't approached the city, to express his concerns before releasing a statement to the press.

"Certainly if he (Parsell) was concerned with the safety of his union members, that would have been the logical and responsible course of action to take," said the spokesman. The city backed Chief Schultz in a press release in which have records to show the trucks it said an independent inspection of the trucks by the Michigan spected daily and the records State Police confirmed the city's belief and has "certified the vemaking the accusations are the hicles as meeting safety stan-

The release also stated that the trucks "were the best maintained trucks they had seen," said a Farms spokesman.

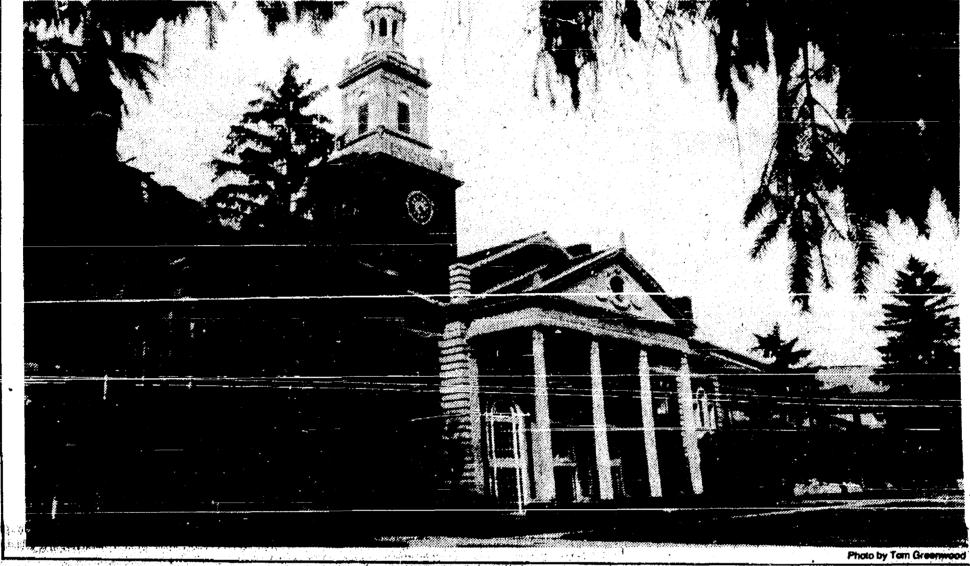

Speaking for POAM, Parsell said the problem in the Farms was "with the chief, not with the city or its council.

"There's a leak in the tires and with the clutch," he said. "With the clutch in, the truck will move forward when it's started. Someone in front could get hurt.

"There is also a real problem with the air pressure in the trucks," he continued. "The entire truck is run by air. The horn is run by air, so are the brakes and the ladder is put up and down by air pressure. Deplete the pressure by using the horn and eventually the brakes could lock up."

Parsell said it was inconceivable that a city that "brags" about being debt-free could allow the trucks to get in that "kind of condition."

National honor goes to South

There will soon be a new flag flying from the pole in front of Grosse Pointe High School South — designating it as one of 144 outstanding secondary schools identified through a nationwide search by the U.S. Department of Education. Secretary of Education T.H. Bell announced the honor on Thursday, June 30, and local school officials were notified by a telephone call from Washington that day. South was nominated for the honor by Michigan Superintendent of Public Instruction Phillip E. Runkel. An official from Washington visited South High in May to gather more information about the school's programs. The program's objective, according to Secretary Bell, was to find schools that are "unusually effective in meeting the needs of their students. All of the schools selected were those which had impressive student performance on standard achievement and minimum competency tests," he said. Other factors the schools share are low dropout rates and high daily attendance.

Arrests, costs increase under OUIL law

By David Steinkraus

As Michigan's new drunk driving law takes effect, the number of arrests continues to climb and the outlook for the law is hopeful among Pointe law enforcement officials.

Park police report that the number of drunk driving arrests has risen to 2.67 per month. That is up from 1.91 arrests per month in 1981 and 2.58 in 1982.

The Woods has also experienced an increase in arrests. For the first four months of 1982, Woods police arrested 16 drivers. For 1983 the

The new law, which went into effect on April 1, provides additional penalties for the driver convicted of drunk driving. In addition to the prison terms and fines of the old law, the person convicted under the new law also faces the possibility of license suspension or community service.

In addition, there is now a stiffer penalty for refusing to take the standard chemical test. A first refusal will bring a license suspension for six months and six points on the driving record. A second of one year and six points.

The psychological impact of the new law, said George B. Catlin, Woods city attorney, is that drunk driving is now a serious issue. "You see a pattern in the traffic record of an alcoholic driver," said Catlin. "That person is going to be off the road.

Patricia Schneider, Woods municipal judge, said that the new law will make prosecution easier. When one has the chemical evidence as well as the observations of the police officer, said Judge

Another addition to the new ordiances is a per se rule which means automatic guilt if a driver is found to have a blood alcohol concentration of .10 percent or more. The per se rule, said Beverly C. Grobbel, municipal judge for the Park, makes it extremely

The Park is getting the $400 machines and is waiting for the State Police to announce training sessions on their use.

The Farms, according to police chief Robert K. Ferber, doesn't have the money for the purchase. City police chief Bruce D. Kennedy is waiting to see how the new machines work.

Garage burns as fire crews wait for help from Edison

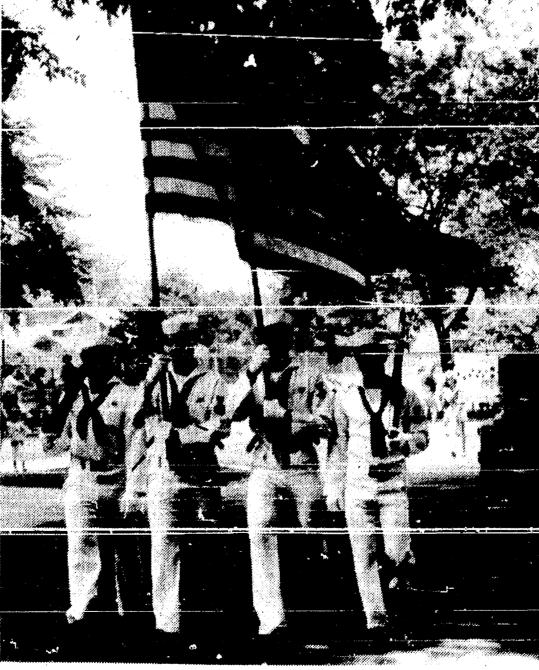

Park firefighters Friday waited for more than an hour for Detroit Edison crews to respond to their call for help with a 4800 volt power line that fell over a garage on Harcourt Road, electrifying the structure through its gutters and door and causing a fire that threatened nearby homes.

The fire; which was reported at about 4 p.m. July 1, completely destroyed the interior of the garage and spread to another one nearby after the wire finally burned through the first roof and drooped lower across the yards, according to fire reports. The electrical energy from the line fi-nally melted its aluminium parts, Chief Phillip Costa said.

The Park fire crew was unable to go near the burning garage because of the dangerous high voltage, the report said. They did create a water curtain to prevent the fire from leaping to nearby homes. A 1974 Plymouth parked in one of the garages was among the items destroyed.

Chief Costa said the fire would have been out in minutes if not for the power line. He said Edison dispatchers "just don't seem to take our calls seriously."

Board praises Brummel and extends his contract

By Susan McDonald

Public school Supt. Kenneth Brummel might not be popular with some parents these days, but he has unanimous support from the Board of Education. The trustees last month voted to raise the superintendent's salary to $53,000 a year, grant him a $2,000 bonus and extend his contract through Brummel came to Grosse Pointe two years ago from Westport, Conn. After spending his first year on the job learning the community and meeting residents through a series of informal coffees, he tackled the toughest issue to face the public schools here for years: declining enrollment and an excess of classrooms.

His April proposal to close four elementary schools and relocate their programs in near-by middle schools has caused an uproar among many parents of young children. The furor forced the Board of Education to postpone a decision on school closings until this fall while it studies alternatives to Brummel's plan.

Despite the criticism directed at the superintendent in recent months. school board president, Dorothy Kennel, said the trustees are very pleased with his performance. The trustees agreed to the contract extension and raise after a formal evaluation of his performance.

"Ken Brummel received the highest ranking of any superintendent we've had in a long while " Mrs. Kennel said at the Board's. June 20 meeting. "This is the first time in my memory we've been unanimous about an evaluation."

Another board member, Jon Gandelot, said in a telephone interview that he agreed with Mrs. Kennel's assessment.

"Brummsl's done a great job," Gandelot said. " He hasn't shied away from the job. He's doing some things that should have been done a while ago and he's taking the heat."

Trustee Roger Mourad also agreed and noted that "we have to keep in mind that his position isn't one that necessarily causes popularity."

The trustees evaluated Brummel on the basis of several criteria including his management techniques, knowledge of cducation trends and issues and communications with the board, faculty, community and students.

Brummel, 48, is a Holland, Mich., native and father of three children. He received his Ph. D. from Columbia University's Teachers College, his Ed. M. from Harvard and B.A. from Michigan State University.

In addition to his salary of $53,000 a year and bonus, the superintendent lives free of charge in a Board of Education owned home on Grosse Pointe Boulevard. His salary last year was $51,000.

Fire truck safety questioned

(Continued from Page 1A) power on the truck went out," said Parsell. "If that sort of thing happens at night . . . well it could be a dangerous situation. The Chief took the truck out of active duty because of it. The Chief bleeds the sir off the brekes him. bleeds the air off the brakes himself. That allows them to work for awhile, but it promotes a danger-ous situation. I've never heard of a chief getting down under a truck to work on it mechanically. When the men do come to him with concerns he dismisses them by saying 'it's no problem.' ".

Parsell did confirm that he hadn't consulted the city before issuing his statement to the media, but that he had talked to the Chief and the City Clerk Richard Solak earlier.

"The clerk is the one who got Schultz to order the parts," said Parsell. "They're on order now but the problem has been apparent for three or four months. No one knows when those brakes will give out. Someone could be hurt or the truck might be locked up a block short of a fire."

Parsell said the next step would be to get MOSHA to inspect the trucks. "We don't want this white-washed," said Parsell. "We've notified the chief, the city administration and now we've made it public. If a life is lost, a fire fighter or citizen, the city will suffer liability about a million times more than the cost of those trucks."

The fire fighters working in the ting the parts."

Farms appear to be equally di-vided about the conditions of the trucks. One veteran fireman echoed the chief's viewpoint saying the trucks did "have problems, but were just like your car. You work with it until it gets fixed. The trucks are safe."

Other firemen disagree. "That truck is 19½ tons," said one. "You'd better know what you're doing. At least once a month we have to bleed those lines or make sure the doors are open when you start the truck. Otherwise you'll go right through them."

Another fire fighter said the problem "wasn't politics, but a lack of communication between us and the chief.

"You tell him about this or that and he'll tell you 'not to worry about it,' " said the fireman.

"But it's embarassing to be stopped dead in the middle of the street with all your lights flashing while you wait for the air pressure to build back up to release the brakes. We're not trying to tell him how to run the department or make him look bad, but there are things that have to be taken care

All the men quoted wished to remain anonymous. Fire Fighter Mel Fosgard, president of the Farms chapter of POAM, confirmed that "he was getting cooperation from the city in regard to repair problems with the vehicles," but that the union "was upset with the time delay in get-

Both Judge Grobbel and attorney Catlin expect more people will fight drunk driving charges and ask for jury trials. Catlin cited a recent jury trial for a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence which cost the Woods between $400 and $500. Catlin said that because of the stiffer penalties, especially for subsequent offenses, people will consider it worthwhile to fight the

Then there is the cost of jailing. Ferber said that the current cost to the Farms for sending one person to the Detroit House of Corrections is $67 per day. Ferber pointed out that this may not be the total cost of keeping a pris-oner at DeHoCo. Catlin placed the ligure at $140 per day.

Judges have the option of sentencing to community service, but even here there are problems. The person sentenced to perform such work must pay the cost of any in-surance which the city is required to carry, but Judge Grobbel pointed out that such people must still be processed and supervised. The court system, she said, is not set up to handle such state mandated programs. She said that there is no state offsetting of personnel costs.

Judge Grobbel and Judge Schneider favor the idea of community service.

"To me it's a much more meaningful type of service," said Judge Schneider.

Yet Judge Grobbel said, "I'm running out of places to send

There are other things which a judge can do, however. Robert H. Pytell, municipal judge for the Farms has been requiring that youthful drivers appearing in his court write 750-word essays on drinking as it relates to driving. Judge Pytell said that young drivers need to be seen a bit differently from adult drivers.

Both Judge Grobbel and Judge Schneider agree that their discretion as judges has been narrowed by the new law. Both also said that the law was aimed at getting judges to conform to the wishes of citizens.

"I can understand why people did it," said Judge Schneider. She said that this nar-rowing of discretion expresses the people's will and that this responsiveness in the law is as it should

A downed power line was also blamed for a fire at a two-car garage on Moran Road July 4, according to Farms firefighters. The blaze was brought under control before the garage was destroyed, but its roof and contents were heavily damaged, according to reports. Lightening also struck a home at about the same time on Moran Road, knocking a hole in its roof. No one was injured and damage was not extensive, according to firefighters.

Parade goers enjoyed color guards from Selfridge Air Force base, antique cars, a marching band, clowns, floats and the Tattooed Lady who showed us her nontattooed tongue. Bringing up the rear of the parade was the choo-choo float of the St. Ambrose Community Players. The Park parade began at 2 p.m. Monday, starting behind Pierce School and ending up at Patterson Park. Northwest Woods may switch to one-way streets

Woods residents on the north side of the city west of Mack will be getting petitions from city hall soon proposing that streets be changed to one-way roads in the

At a meeting with residents Monday, June 27, the Woods council recommended that Brys, Roslyn, Hampton and Ridgemont be one-way westbound from the alley west of Mack to Helen.

Helen will be one-way southbound from Brys to Vernier. Anita, Hawthorne and Hollywood will have signs posted for right turn only between 3 and 6 p.m. and no left turn during the same hours.

The recommendation from the council committee of the whole bears little resemblance to any proposal referred to it by the city's Department of Public Safety. The eight alternative signage plans were presented to the council in June, when a meeting with northwest residents was called.

The plan is a compilation of alternatives proposed in a traffic study by Goodell-Grivas, Inc. of the area, city officials said. The idea is to alleviate traffic problems during rush hour along those streets by forcing drivers to use the main roads, Councilman Frederick Lovelace said.

Recent improvements at Vernier-Mack and Harper-Mack have not appreciably reduced the number of autos using side streets, he said. "We have to do something in that area to alleviate the number of cars," Lovelace said.

Residents were enthusiastic about the proposals, city and public safety officials said. Petitions will be circulated among northwest side residents to give the council an idea of support for the plan, officials said.

The council will take up the matter at either its July 11 or July 18 meeting, depending on when results can be prepared for its re-

"South Pacific," the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic musical, will wrap-up Grosse Pointe Theater's 1983-84 season, marking the group's 36th consecutive year. The roster of upcoming shows was recently announced by Dick Vreeland of Audubon Road, GPT's new president, who takes office Aug. 1.

The four-show season will open with another musical, "On A Clear Day You Can See Forever," with book by Alan Jay Lerner and music by Burton Lane. "Clear Day" is the story of a young lady and her psychiatrist. Under his care, her uncanny powers of seeing both future and past are revealed. Creative financing

Tax ruling impact is uncertain

By Mike Andrzejczyk

City and county tax officials are waiting for more details to determine how a recent Appeals Court ruling will affect their tax bases.

The state Tax Commission was ordered by the court to develop formulas to figure the effect alternative financing methods have on property tax assessments. The court ruled that financing methods such as land contracts and assumptions inflate the cash value of property.

County tax equalization director George McEachran said he was unsure what effect the ruling, which the state plans to appeal, will have on Wayne County assessments. In addition, it was unclear what the state tax commission would do to determine the differences in alternative financing prices and those of conventional home sales, McEachran

The 2-1 appellate court decision was handed down Wednesday, June 22, in a case brought by Washtenaw, Lapeer and Oakland counties, which protested the tax commission's increase in the counties' property tax assessments. The counties argued and a majority of the court agreed, that alternative financing and the use of 30-month sales averages unfairly inflated the values in those counties.

THE COURT SAID the state Tax Commission should give more weight to sales of properties nearer the end of the assessment year as well as develop a method to account for creative financing.

Creative financing, such as land contract agreements and assumption purchases, offers home buyers lower interest rates in exchange for a higher price on the home. Since assessments are based on aggregate sales of comparable homes, a large number of land contract sales could inflate sales in nine Canton Township sub-divisions compared sales price differences between conventional financing, which once carried mortgage rates of as high as 20 percent, to other forms of financing, such as land contracts, which are limited by the state's usury law to 11 percent.

The 1981 sales of 90 parcels were compared based on their financing and purchase price, McEachran said. Of the sales, one half were assumptions, while the rest were roughly split between land contracts and conventional sales, he noted.

THE WHAT COUNTY found was that, in the aggregate, land contract and assumption sales prices were about 3 to 3.5 percent higher than those financed through conventional means, McEachran said.

One or two land contract sales would not be enough to push up assessments, he pointed out. The county, as part of the equalization process, takes all the sales of homes and breaks them down to a community level. The aggregate level is then compared to the community level to form the final valuation, he said.

Although there were a large number of land contract sales in the county, most were never re-

McEachran said.

Land contracts and other alternatives became popular when conventional mortgages sometimes carried interest rates of as high as 20 percent. As interest rates have fallen and mortgage rates approach land contract rates, the popularity of the land contracts will diminish, McEachran said. State assistant attorney general Ross Bishop, said the tax commission will ask for a rehearing on the case. The state has 20 days to appeal, he said.

When asked how the state could develop a formula to reflect the differences in land contract and conventional sales, Bishop answered, "Good question."

No time limit was spelled out in the decision for the formulation of the factor, Bishop said. In addition, Ingham and Livingston counties are awaiting the appeal before the court of their 1982 assessments, he said.

THE APPEAL will give the state time to consider how a formula would work and begin putting it together should it lose an appeal, McEachran said. Should the rule be applied state-wide. McEachran said the county asses-ors would be swamped by the upcoming sales averages. Probably the easiest way to calculate the formula would be to compare the sales prices of comparable homes financed conventionally and creatively, McEachran said.

On the aggregate, the county could formulate lists of comparably priced homes that were sold on land contracts and through conventional mortgages, Mc-Eachran said. By taking the difference of the prices and forming an average as a percent of the sales price, the assessor could then multiply the sales price of a land contract home by the percentage, subtract it from the price and have what the home would sell for at conventional rates.

At the same time, the variations of prices and finance terms could make such a factor as incorrect as no calculation at all, McEachran said. "It's a bad deal," he said. "Logic can be falsely logic."

Local assessors said that the details of the ruling were still sketchy and could not say whether the ruling would have any effect on their communities. Home sales in the area have picked up, they

(from "Administrative Response to Questions Raised at Mason School Public Hearing May 11, 1983" — available at Board offices).

As to the comparison of public vs. private and parochial systems with a kindergarten through eighth grade structure, there are important differences. The administration's proposal would have had a kindergarten through fifth grade (k-5) grouping of about 250 students within the middle school (grades 6-8) of about 525 students. This disproportionate ratio of 2-1 in favor of the middle school students does not exist in private and parochial schools. Discipline and other factors make comparisons between the public and the private and parochial schools difficult at best. Parents' objections to combining K-5 with the 6-8 in the middle schools are based on facts, not mindless objections to walking a block or two further (in fact, it's closer for some of us). Police report of incidents occurring either at Parcells or on the way to or from school includes the following: marijuana possession,

The letter, signed by Sen. Richard G. The grammar is bad but the meaning is

According to the letter, the president is "very worried about the outcome of the 33 Senate races" in 1984 and "wondered aloud whether that congressional support would be there if he ran for a second term." Lugar says that comment made him realize the "president might decide not to run if he thought we were going to lose the only sure support he can count on our Republican majority."

That thought, Lugar writes, is what prompted him to compose his letter urging recipients to cast two votes: one urging the president to run for reelection and to support him "every step of Michigan's $1 share of each individual $33 GOP the way" as he completes the job of reviving contribution toward electing another Repubthe economy and restoring the national de- lican Senate majority in 1984. > It's an intriguing idea, as we said, because it enables Republicans to vote for the president in 1983 as well as 1984 — assuming Lugar's message sells — and at the same time to support efforts to retain the GOP majority in the Senate. McEllveny has served on several committees and commissions under three mayors and is still a very active member of the Arts Commission. In 1959 he headed up the "Detroit Tomorrow" committee, a group of public-spritied men who worked hard to maintain Detroit's status as a major city. Hs served in an advisory capacity on the waterfront commission, a group which tried to make Detroit a major port. He received the United Foundation Award in 1961 and he was invited, as one of a group of distinguished civilian and military leaders, to a seminar at the War College.

There are more services and honors than there is space here but some accolade must be included for his dedication as a member of the Arts Commission. It is no small assignment since the commission is responsible for the direction and the operation of the Art Institute including decisions on what art shall be purchased. In his terms there, McElvenny has seen both the north and south wings added.

It is not easy to ascertain the organizations and elubs that count Ralph McElvenny among their members. However, mention the Detroit Club and he will casually say that he is a longtime member and was once president there. The same with the Country Club. He never volunteers mention of his contributions as an executive, civic-minded citizen or acuity as a sportsman.

Since his college days he has collected trophies and awards for his tennis. He holds his own on the golf course and he is an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman. He has shot partridge in Spain, grouse in Scotland, fished in Ireland and, closer to home, shot ducks at Walpole Island.

"The Indians raise corn on Walpole," he says. "After the corn is harvested, there is left on the ground an inestimatable amount of kernels. Ducks, both mallards and canvasbacks, flock there." Incidently, Mrs. McElvenny has an outstanding recipe for duck with a very special sauce. McEl-venny has a rare antique duck

Fishfly causes Shores mishap

How many fishflies does it take to overturn a Honda?

It's not an ethnic joke and it's not particularly funny to a 20year-old Woods man who lost control of his car and struck a Lakeshore Road Edison pole in the Shores after a fishfly reportedly landed on his neck while he was driving.

Shores police on patrol Thursday morning, June 30, spotted a 1979 Honda Civic two-door upside down along the side of the road. Investigating, the officers found the driver standing nearby bleeding from cuts about his head and chin.

According to reports, the man

Creative anger will be the topic at the next meeting of Parents without Partners on Friday, July 8, at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road in the Farms.

Nancy Schochetman, of the Community Resource Center of Macomb County Community College, will discuss anger and how it can be helpful if used properly.

Parents Without Partners meets on the second and fourth Fridays of every month. The meetings begin with coffee and conversation at 7:30 p.m. The general meeting and guest speaker follow at 8:30. And Rachelle's response won her top prize in Junior Achievement's annual essav contest and a chance to present her speech to a crowd of 500 business leaders and educators at the annual Project Business recognition dinner.

Project Business is an economic and career education program designed to bring metropolitan Detroit business leaders into junior high schools to work directly with students. It provides youngsters with first-hand opportunities to understand the business system. During the past school, year, more than 9,000 Detroit area students participated. A Junior Achievement spokesman said Rachelle's winning speech about her experience "demonstrated not only a sharp understanding of the economic system, but also a dignity and composure that inspired great respect from the audience.'

Particularly proud of Rachelle's accomplishment were her family, her teacher at St. Clare, Bernadette Denison, and her Project Business consultant, Geraldine Harubin, of Manufactures National Bank. Mrs. Harubin voluntarily taught Mrs. Denison's class

Rachelle's award winning essay follows: "Looking out the window from the 12th floor at the streets below, I see so many people. Some of them are rushing to work already late, while others are sitting on the benches reading the morning paper. Meanwhile, I am standing in my office of my company. Standing there, I began to think back on all of the hard work that I did before I finally got my own company. I felt proud of myself for becoming a success in the world.

"Of course, this is only a dream. A dream that someday I hope will come true. But that will be quite a while from now. I have so much to learn and a lot of work ahead of me before I even think

Who will win out?

The stock market's strength presumably reflects the consensus belief that the U.S. economy is heading towards better times, including significant gains in productivity, corporate profits, and dividends. In this view, U.S. structural problems - large government budget deficits, the third world countries, the debt overhang, and difficulties competing internationally — will not derail the current U.S. economic expansion.

Meanwhile, the bond market's caution presumably reflects the belief that the budget-deficit pro-blem will not be meaningfully addressed, at least for the time being; that there will be no further significant declines in the trend rate of inflation; and Federal Re-

These developments have not, however, deterred the stock market, which apparently continues to believe that inflation will remain relatively subdued in coming quarters. The severity of the recent recession has made industry more efficient, they conclude (good for future productivity gains). Consequently, wage in-creases are likely to remain relatively modest as a result of continuing high unemployment.

It could be, then, that the contrapuntal U.S. stock market and bond market action is not as contradictory as it might appear. The stock market is apparently indicating that the U.S. economic expansion can proceed despite today's high interest rates. And the bond market is apparently not expecting any significant declines in yield, at least for the time being. These are both consensus views now and may be for some time to Remember, the consensus is only wrong at market turning points. By definition, the majority are correct during the duration of major moves or else those moves would not take place, would they?

Another Pointer, W. Victor Benjamin, of Ridge Road, is marketing director for

The 'liquid bandage was Inducted developed by a team of Michigan researchers who claim, when properly used, the chemical acts as an artificial skin to protect skin that has been burned or cut.
The base of the preparation is called Pluronic Polyol F-127, a synthetic with the ability to remain liquid at room temperature and to gel in place at body tem-perature. The only known substances occurring in nature with this "negative temperature coefficient of gelation" are protein from milk and sickle-cell hemoglobin, according to Dr. Raymond L. Henry, professor of physiology at Wayne State University. If the Pluronic Polyol F-127 is put in the refrigerator it becomes liquid. If it is heated, it gels, he said.

When applied to burns or minor cuts in liquid or aerosol form, the preparation gels, reduces pain and completely seals off the injury, according to the company. The "liquid bandage" has been used on rats and pigs and is now ready for testing on humans, Mediventures says. Since thermal burns are one of the most common injuries of mankind, the company expects the chemical to have wide use.

Former mayor Butler heads foundation

By Tom Greenwood

The Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation recently announced the resignation of Paul Marco as president of the foundation. Marco, who has been the head of the organization since its inception in 1980, was replaced by former Mayor William Butler. Butler was mayor of the city from 1966-1975.

The Farms Foundation is a non-profit organization that provides a vehicle for intervivos (during the life time of the donor) and testamentary gifts and grants to the Farms for the betterment of the city and its citiznes.

The remainder was used by the Farms to construct a new boat house in the Pier Park on the site

The car was later recovered by Detroit police in the 7th (Livernois) Precinct, who arrested two men in the act of stripping Symphony Under The Stars, a traditional summer event in Grosse Pointe, will fill the air with music in D'Hondt Way, directly behind Jacobson's in-the-Village, a week from tomorrow: Friday, July 15. That's IF the weather cooperates — if it doesn't, the Grosse Pointe Symphony will present its program of light classical, show tunes and familiar favorites at Parcells Middle School, corner of Vernier and Mack Avenue.

In either event, Conductor Felix Resnick will raise his baton at 8:30 p.m. But we're all praying for no rain.

The concert is co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association and Jacobson's, where the audience is invited to dine and sip champagne prior to the program, at 6:30 p.m. Tables of six, eight, 10 or 12 may be reserved in advance. Concert/dinner ticket prices are $50 benefactor, $30 patron and $20 general admission. Admission to the concert only is $6.

Tickets may be obtained through Mrs. Elmer L. Barber, 885-3932, or at Jacobson's. Mrs. Barber and Mrs. Verne Ansel are in charge of reservations for the evening: members of a 1983 Symphony Under The Stars committee headed by Mrs. Robert Buhl, general chairman, and Mrs. John Nolan, co-chairman, and including Mrs. Wayne Wiseman and Mrs. Gerald Stoetzer, invitations, and Mrs. John E. Young Jr., publicity.

There'll be informal modeling of men's and women's clothing during dinner, by a corps of Grosse Pointe Symphony Women and their husbands collected by Mrs. Robert Reisig. Look for Mr. and Mrs. Wiseman, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stefanovich, Mr. and Mrs. William Fiscus, Mrs. Ramfis Fahim, William Gorski, Mrs. Robert Jay and Mrs. Vollrad von Berg.

The corps of hostesses, collected by Mrs. Robert Smith, includes Ms. Barbara Guttridge, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wallrich, Ms. Florence Edgar and Mrs. Michel Skaff.

A Loaf of Bread . . .

... a jug of wine - and pate en croute, perhaps, with lobster salad to follow, chocolate truffles, a dollop of brie cheese . . . Sounds like your kind of picnic? It certainly sounds like mine!

That's the sort of fare the beribboned, ballooned, bedecked picnic "baskets" will contain at the Second Annual Gourmet Box Social benefit for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Once again, the glamorous evening is being chaired by and held at the glorious Vendome Road home of Penny and George Simon. Once again, the man who'll auction off those beautiful picnic boxes is George Farris. Once again, there'll be an opportunity to work off excess calories with moonlight dancing.

Once again (sigh!), the social is limited to 75 couples, each lady bringing a dinner for two; plus wine, wrapped (Continued on Page 4B)

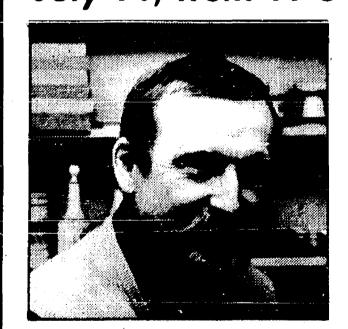

The 11th Annual French Festival of Detroit will be held this weekend, Saturday, July 9, from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Sunday, July 10, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., on the grounds of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Admission and parking are free. Featured will be typical Gallic entertainment, continuous and free, ranging from jugglers to troubadours to dance troupes performing at 2, 4 and 6 p.m. each day. The dancers range from a can-can chorus line to Marygrove College's Madame Cadillac Dancers and Musicians, Harriet Berg, director, including DAVID McKAY, DARLENE MONTGOMERY, CONSTANCE HOUGHTON, DENNIS EAST, SHARON SCHULTE and GARY EBERLE (left to right, above), AL SMITLEY and CHARLES WILKIE (left and right, at left), who will demonstrate the historic French quadrille, ancestor of our square dance. Outdoor displays and refreshment areas will offer French wines and cheeses, crepes and such baked goods as quiche, croissants, brioche, tartes and French bread. There'll be a boutique, stocked with authorite French items, and a flee market for stocked with authentic French items, and a flea market for bargain hunters. The event, endorsed by French Consul Jacques Royet, is the only French Festival to be held in the metropolitan area. Proceeds will be contributed towards a French Room at the Detroit Historical Museum.

An idea. A story. An image becomes an artist's sketch and is then transformed into the famous Royal Copenhagen blue Collector's Plates. Sven Vestergaard, creator of the Mother and Child Series, is just such an artist.

For the Royal Copenhagen Porcelain Manufactory he has designed the motifs for special items among which may be mentioned, the Olympic Plates 1972-1976-1980, and the Bicentary Bowl 1976 on the occasion of America's Declaration of Independence in 1776.

Join us for this very special occasion. Mr. Vestergaard will be pleased to autograph your pieces.

National honors for museum and village

The National Park Service of the Department of the Interior has made official what most of Michigan's residents and visitors have known for years: the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village has been designated a national historic landmark.

The bronze plaque presented to the museum complex states that "the site possesses national significance in commemorating the history of the United States of America."

The museum and village was founded in 1929 by Henry Ford under the name, The Edison Institute, in honor of his friend, Thomas Alva Edison.

The social, sponsored by ALSAC (Aiding Leukemia Stricken American Children), is set for this Saturday, July 9. It's hoped 1983's proceeds will top 1982's remarkable $6,000-plus for the children of St. Jude, for well they need it. This year alone, two children from the metropolitan Detroit area have died from as-yet incurable Acute Myelocytic Leukemia.

George Simon sits on the National Board of Governors of St. Jude, one of the world's leading pediatric research hospitals — and one that is free of all charges. ALSAC chapters throughout the nation will provide transportation to and from the hospital for both the sick child and a parent, and parents are housed free of charge in Memphis while their children are being treated.

Admission to the social is $35 per couple. Information on tickets, if any are still available, may be obtained by calling the ALSAC office, 843-5880.

Kathy Groustra, East Side Membership Development chairman for the Detroit Symphony League, invites anyone interested in joining this dynamic group of men and women who actively support the DSO to a new member coffee next Wednesday, July 13, at 9:30 a.m. on three boats at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. But please, she says, remember to wear boating shoes!

Officers of the DSL, including the chairmen of Beethoven's Basement Garage Sale, the Christmas Walk and the DSO/WQRS Radio Marathon, will be on hand to tell about their projects. More information on this intriguing opportunity to learn about one of metropolitan Detroit's major volunteer organizations may be obtained by contacting Kathy at 822-1257, Linda Williamson at 886-9046 or Debbie Tischler at 823-1509.

A Touch of Blass

If you wonder why Grosse Pointe's streets are virtually deserted next Tuesday evening, be advised that that's the night "A Touch of Blass," presented by the trustees and Gaia Benefit Committee, under honorary chairmen Mr. and Mrs. William Clay Ford, of the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts, runs from 6:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at Saks Fifth Avenue, Somerset Mail Concourse.

The invitational, black tie party begins with cocktails and a light buffet supper. Bill Blass presents his Fall 1983 Collection at 8 p.m. Afterwards, there'll be a dessert buffet and dancing to music by the Levi Mann Orchestra.

A Winning Artists what has alleged to the Congressman Dennis Hertel has announced the selection of a watercolor by Grosse Pointe North High School student Elizabeth Farrell as winner of the 14th Congressional District Artistic Discovery competition for local high school students. Her painting, "Fruit from Mom's Kitchen," will be displayed later this year in a special national exhibition in the corridor leading to the United States Capitol.

Runners-up in the competition, which attracted 30 entries, included University Liggett students Jesse White and Hilary Kubista. Among those who received honorable mention were North High students Mark Keatts and Katherine Wallace. Although Elizabeth's entry must be sent to Washington, runner-up and honorable mention entries are on display now at the Detroit Historical Museum, in a special exhibition that will run through Aug. 31.

What a pretty place for tea . . .

Bright summer dresses will blossom on the Grosse Pointe War Memorial terrace (pictured above) next Wednesday. July 13, when the Grosse Pointe Garden Center hosts its annual garden party and old-fashioned afternoon tea, and chief topic of conversation for Garden Center members, guests and interested prospective members may well be the beautiful new terracing, and landscaping of the hillside gardens adjacent to the prizewinning Trial Gardens which have long been a Grosse Pointe landmark.

The terracing/landscaping, funded by donations by her family and friends, is a memorial to the late Mrs. Rollin Allen, a trustee of the Garden Center and a devoted volunteer gardener in the Trial Gardens for many years.

It's a project the Garden Center has long desired. The new terracing and winding flagstone walks replace the former pebbled concrete and woodchip paths and steps, with augmented planting leading through the gardens to the information may be obtained by millstone in the center of the calling the Garden Center, 881wheel-patterned Trial Gardens. Most analysts expect pork prices and beef prices to hold their own during July. Broiler production has been curtailed and prices show signs of strengthening. Movement of whole turkeys is unclear, but slaughter is up and there definitely is an increase in the movement of processed turkey products.

Michigan strawberries have been delayed so long that a smaller crop is now predicted. Look for homegrown strawberries to be in heavy supply during the first extended heat wave. The fresh strawberry season will then be over...all too quickly.

Grosse Pointe Public School System Retiring Teachers Alice D. Brown (center), Carol Droege and James L. Webers

By Janet Mueller

Teaching, for Alice Brown, was a second career. "First I raised my family (sons William I. Brown Jr. and Gary Charles Brown and daughter Linda Brown Sampson). Then I began to teach." For 17 years now as a full-time Grosse Pointe Public School System staff member, that's what she's done.

Mrs. Brown retires as a kindergarten teacher at Trombly School — and one thing she WON'T miss is hearing her name, "Mrs. Brown!," shouted out "about one thousand times a day.

She won't miss the deadline pressure of having to have something (lesson plans, e.g.) ready at a certain time, either.

She will miss the children, and the companionship with the staff, and the interaction with young parents of children.

Alice was born in Philadelphia and still, if you ask her, describes herself as a Philadelphian, although she's lived here for many more years than she lived in Pennsylvania. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Wayne State University. The family she raised has presented her with four grandsons and one grand-

She has no plans for a third career. ''For a while, I'll just pamper myself: play bridge, shop, travel a bit." She's entitled. And after that? "We'll see."

FOR JIM WEBERS, retirement presents endless possibilities. "I'll be chasing morels and wildflowers, and the ceramics market. I might try another career: maybe nursing."

Nursing? "Sure. There's a big need for male nurses." Jim's certainly strong enough for it; in his undergraduate years at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wis. (he was born in Racine), he captained the football team for two years, and was All-Conference offense/defense. He also was Lawrence's undefeated heavyweight wrestling champion for two years.

If nursing doesn't work out (even if it does: there's always time for what you really WANT to do), he may do some woodcarving, work in watercolors ... and when it comes to ceramics, you couldn't stop him. Jim studied at Pewabic for four years.

He's a member of the Michigan Potters Association and the Grosse Pointe Artists Association. He's won several art awards, from the Michigan Art Teachers, the Warren Cultural Society and the Grosse Pointe Artists.

But his field, as a teacher, has been words. He retires as an English teacher at Parcellis, Public Schools. That's not his whole career in education; he taught two years in Clintonville,

Jim Webers expects he'll miss his students and fellow staff members individually. He's very definite about what he won't miss in retirement: "The hectic rush of waves upon waves of children smashing into your consciousness!"

She taught in Pittsburgh, Pa., Riverside, Calif., Phoenix, Ariz., and Ferndale before she returned to her alma mater school system in September, 1964, with a new designation: kindergarten teacher.

She's taught kindergarten at Barnes, Monteith, Richard and Ferry as well as Poupard.

She'll miss her staff associations, she says, and the children — but she WON'T miss recess duty. She enjoys travel, hiking, singing with the Detroit Lutheran Singers, and she has definite plans for a second career:

We'll keep at this until we get it right . . .

Faithful readers (reader?) will recall that a few weeks back, I briefly addressed what has become a growing problem in Grosse Pointe: the bitter resentment between a small, albeit vocal, number of sports "parents." It seems that some soccer parents (I can just hear them saying: "who, me?") are angry with the emphasis placed on baseball in this community. (One guess at whom much of this anger is directed.)

In return, some baseball parents are a little peeved at the attitude taken by soccer parents in terms of field space

Big deal, you say? It is a big deal. Especially since the people who really matter — league representatives of both baseball and soccer interests in the area — are whistling an entirely different tune than the one this motley group of overbearing dads and overanxious moms are spitting out.

The name of that tune is cooperation. Let me spell it for those who only understand monosyllabic words. That's C-O-O-P-E-R-A-T-I-O-N.

Cooperation? Between baseball and soccer people? I might as well have said that Menachem Begin and Yasser Arafat are thinking of sharing a vacation condominium on the Golan Heights, right? After all, soccer people and baseball people have been feuding in these parts longer than the Hatfields and the McCoys, right?

Wrong. For nearly a year, OFFICIAL representatives of Little League baseball, Babe Ruth League baseball, the Neighborhood Club and the Grosse Pointe soccer associa-

That cooperation has come in the form of a field use committee inspired by the Neighborhood Club's John Bruce, whose long-time dream of gathering the leaders of major sports interests in Grosse Pointe for a dialogue on field use and — there's that word again — cooperation, came true last fail.

In a March 3 News' story, Bruce told me that until that first meeting, even he'd been concerned over the potential conflict such a meeting might arouse. "... I still dreaded bringing these people into one room. I came into it thinking there was the potential for conflict . . . but it just wasn't there." Bruce said in the interview.

What was there, Bruce said, was an open channel of communication between soccer people AND baseball people. In fact, the two factions were actually sitting together, arranging to give up a bit of field time here and there, to accomodate the "other side."

The group has met several times since, making recommendations on field use and upkeep, and in general keeping lines of communication open.

Which brings me to my point: if the official representatives of the leagues can get together, communicate and cooperate freely and openly, what's the problem with the parents? After all, these parents don't disagree so violently with other policy decisions made by their league and board officials that they pull their kid out of the league, do they? Aithough I have a hunch some board members wouldn't be too upset at such a turn of events.)

I hate bringing all of this up again, but I thought some of these parents should know what's really going on. And judging by my mail and telephone calls lately . . . they don't. Some callers beat around the bush and call me a jerk; others get right to the point and tell me that this sports section favors baseball, slights soccer and in general, say I'm completely responsible for the bad feelings between soccer and baseball people. (It sounds stupid to me, too. But what do I know, I'm just a jerk?)

So, from one jerk to a host of others: wake up. The leagues are cooperating with each other in an effort to make athletics in Grosse Pointe an enjoyable experience for all. As one soccer board member told me this week, "cooperation is the attitude of the board as a whole."

And that certainly should be the attitude of the parents of children who play sports — for the sake of a well-rounded development — in this community.

The good news is . . .

We told you last week about North High varsity baseball starters Marty Mitchell, John Menzo and Dave Babcock earning all-state honors (first baseman Mitchell and shortstop Menzo were named to the first team; Babcock, to the

And we told you a few weeks back about University Liggett School's Andrea Kincannon, who finished first in the 400 meter dash to win All-State track honors.

Now we're telling you about North High's Amelia Dugan, who has been named to the 16-member All-State girls' soccer squad. Middle forward Dugan helped North's first year varsity soccer team to a district championship and a regional runner-up spot.

And the best news of all: All-Stater Dugan is only a

Horse show organizers love sport

The object of their affection: horses

By Peggy O'Connor

By day, they fill the roles of mild-mannered attorney in the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, straightforward advertising/marketing writer for the Detroit News and unassuming high school teacher and independent television producer.

But by night, the three Pointe women trade their briefcases and books for saddles and boots and become . . . Super Horsemen.

The transformation isn't really all that dramatic. It's just that for attorney Rosemary Gordon, reporter Leslie Weller and teacher/producer Sue Snethkamp, the excitement of newsrooms, courtrooms and classrooms pales in comparison to what all three really love the best: riding horses.

Horses have brought the three together, first as friends and riding buddies; more recently as the guiding force behind the 1983 Horse Show and Horse Show Exhibition at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. Gordon, Weller and Snethkamp think they've put together a horse show and exhibition that's better than most and maybe even the best around; it's 15 and 16 at the Hunt Club.

When it comes to horse shows, Gordon, Weller and Snethkamp ought to know a good show when they spot one . . . between the three of them, they've seen just about all of them.

Gordon says she learned a lot from last year's show, one that had exhibitors from around the state buzzing, "The real impact of last year's success didn't hit me until about a week after. I had people come up to me at a show in. Kalamazoo and tell me how much they liked the show. In fact, all winter people were asking if we were going to have a show this year, It's important to build a good reputation."

Well, if last year's show was good, this year's promises to be better. Gordon added a third ring to the outdoor show site, scheduled the exhibition for a Friday evening so exhibitors could enjoy the exhibition and the competition, and in general, has paid scrupulous attention to the tiniest of details.

Experiencing the Sarnia-Alpena race

One of the two long distance sailing races run each year for local sailors is the MORC Sarnia to Alpena Race. This year's event begins on Saturday, July 16, one week before its better known big brother, the Bayview Port Huron to Mackinac Race. The biggest difference between the races is that the Sarnia to Alpena is for boats 30 feet and under. However, because of its growing popularity, it is again open to boats up to 36 feet in length. With all the pre-race festivities and a resort city finish, the Sarnia to Alpena race offers all the excitement and fun enjoyed by the Mackinac racers except participants do not have to have the same level of experience and sophisticated equipment. Sailors who have never been in a long distance race find this one a good place to start. It gives them an opportunity to test navigation skills, day and night sailing and a variety of wind conditions. The 140 mile race normally lasts between 25 to 35 hours.

There are three elements of a race like this that make it enjoyable all year long. There's the preparation, the race itself, and the cruise back home. For most, the preparation and the cruising are as much fun as the race itself.

Preparation begins usually as the boats are finishing the last race. The "we should of ..." or "next year, we'll ..." comments abound as the racers hit shore. In the dead of winter many of the racers set up their vacations and crew member vacations to allow time for the race. There are also arrangements for the motels, getting cars up north and planning the boat move to the Sarnia Yacht Club — an adventure in navigating up the St. Clair River among the freighters.

Planning the menu for meals during the race also takes some doing. Some of the crews get by on bags of sandwiches and lots of candy bars while others have gourmet meals that exhibit abso-limited cooking facilities.

During the winter there is also a lot of studying up on weather forecasting and navigating. Even though the MORC group provides up-to-date weather forecasts before the race, the real test is to anticipate what is going to happen so routes can be planned accord-

The night before the race, families and friends visit as the boats are packed up. Putting things where they can be found in the dead of night is a challenge to even the most proficient pack-rat. After the dockside partying, skippers and crews try to squeeze in a few hours of sleep before the race.

Saturday and Sunday are spent racing up Lake Huron. As the boats near Alpena careful navigation is the word. stored and easily cooked on the weekend is capped out by an awards party later on Monday.

From Alpena, crew members return home, leaving behind those that will bring the boat back.

Another Sarnia to Alpena race is over for the year, but memories will carry skippers, crew and their families through another cold winter. When the snow clears, the cycle starts over.

shows to know; whether your horse does well or not, if you've felt comfortable and had a good time, you'll come back."

IF EXHIBITORS and the general public has a good time at the Hunt Club's exhibition and show, they'll have special events director Sue Snethkamp to thank in part. The Michigan State University graduate, Hazel Park High School teacher and independent television producer has scheduled a number of interesting features for the exhibition.

The Detroit Mounted Police Drill Team, U.S. Equestrian Team Rider Carol Grant (on Percy III), rider Sue Ashley (on Protege) and a sample of combined driving will headline the Friday night exhibition, which is a benefit for the Detroit Institute for

"I think the exhibition is going to be a great interest to the general public . . . whether they know about horses or not. The Detroit Mounted Police should be great for the kids. And Carol Grant is a very good rider. Just to see dressage as the art form it is will be great," Snethkamp says. "I'm really excited about the whole thing."

Snethkamp's interest in horses. doesn't go back as far as Rosemary Gordon's, but her enthusiasm for the sport is just as great. "I started riding in Europe when I took a year off from college. I went to an equestrian center there where the first phase — and the toughest — was dressage.

"I found when I got back to MSU that there wasn't as much interest in the area." Unfortunately for Snethkamp, she found that out after her interest was at its peak - she'd received a British horseman assistant instructor's certificate in Europe.

Somehow, Snethkamp was directed to the Rowe dressage stables in Okemos and her riding "career" has been full speed ahead since then.

"I started riding with Carol Grant. Last year, I completed on 'Risbie' and we compiled a number of wins. This year, because I've gotten engaged, been involved in the show and in filming my own documentary on norses, I've given 'Risbie' a year off. We'll get back to it, though," Snethkamp says with a grin.

UNTIL THEN, Snethkamp's documentary "Portrait of a Horseman," will have to serve as the outlet for her interest in horses. She hit upon the idea when she met Margaret Culver, a teacher in the Berkley schools. "We both had an idea to do a television series on horses for cable TV. Margaret had already done the pilot, it was a tape of rider Tim Wright, Well, that worked so well and got such a great response that we decided to do more. We plan on filming four parts — for non-profit cable TV and school use - because there is just so much to show," Smethkamp says.

"The focus of the series is on horsemen in Michigan. The goal is to promote the industry — and people don't realize what a vital industry it is - here in Michigan. We want to help young people get started, to let them know what is going on.

'There is so much to the area of riding. And once you get into it ... I can remember saying I'll never get into carriage riding, buying all the stuff that goes with it . . . now I can't get enough."

Leslie Weller is the third

who have found riding an insatiable hobby.

"I first started riding to get away from things. The tables "I've been in enough horse have turned and I think it's become sort of an obsession. Instead of thinking of making it part of your life, I've found myself thinking of how I can make it my life,'' Weller says.

> WELLER, A reporter for the Detroit News, serves as chairman of the program booklet and community affairs for the Hunt Club Horse show. She calls herself "an exthusiastic novice in the horse world." That sounds nice . . . except that enthusiastic novices don't usually graduate from kiddie camp riding to jumping cobblestone fences in Ireland — capitol of kamikaze riding.

'Oh, I grew up with riding . . . I think it's a genetic aberration from my family. My father was big in the hunt class and my grandfather was master of the hounds. I didn't really ride much until a couple of years ago, then I really got into it.

"But I'm not a dressage rider. I'm mainly in the hunter-jumper class," Weller says. (Translation: the rougher-tougher class.)

"I don't think I can ever be scared of anything again, after riding in Ireland. Irish riders are rugged . . . and a little bit crazy when it comes to riding. But I knew what I was getting into."

She took one tumble ... and when she let out with a universally recognizable swear word, her Irish mentors knew she'd be alright. And she was.

"It was a wonderful experience and I can't wait to get back. It's what horses and riding are all about," Weiler adds.

Just as horses and riding are what Weller, Gordon and Snethkamp are all about . . . especially this summer.

"This horse show has been a wild experience. I'm delighted to have been one of the people rowing in Rosemary's boat. Some of the work has been brutalizing it's tough directing the program (which underwrites the cost of the show) - but I've loved it. And the support we've received from the business community just pleased me terrifically. It was much more than I'd hoped for.

"Rosemary put a bug into my ear about future years of horse show management. I don't know ... but I am sure that I want to remain active in hunting-jumping. I'd like to do some serious shows, keep riding and remain challenged. I don't think you ever stop learning about riding," Weller

Gordon, who sees herself in horse show management (in addition to owning "no more than two horses at a time") agrees. "I'll always ride. It's just part of me."

And Snethkamp, even though she's been a bit busy with interests outside the horse world, plans a horse-filled future. She's already purchased farmland in Metamora and plans to someday retire to a farm filled with ... what else? Horses.

"You make tremendous sacrifices . . . not just financially, but in terms of time, social life, everything you do. But the return is that riding is something I can carry on with my whole life," Weller says.

Information on the Friday, July 15, Horse Show Exhibition, or the day-long schooling show set for Saturday, July 16, may be obtained by calling Rosemary Gordon at 224-5741 or 885-9416, or Lesmember of the Hunt Club's trio lie Weller at 222-2746 or 823-3787.

Take a river challenge

Want a challenge? On Saturday, Aug. 6, enthusiastic small boat sailors from all over Lake St. Clair (and Canada?) will be gathering in front of Crescent Sail Yacht Club to participate in the Third International Thames River Challenge.

The Challenge was first held in 1981 and involved a "fun" grudge match between 15 Cal 20 and Ensign 22 sailors. In 1982, the number of participants jumped to 35 and involved many other small boat classes, such as Folkboats, Columbia 22's, Sea Sprites, Catalina 22's, and various others. This year's Challenge promises to be even bigger and better.

The Challenge is officially open to small cruising keelboats with an approximate PHRF rating of 200 and higher. This year, organizers hope to see some Cal 25's, Pearson 26's, Morgan 24's, etc., etc., in addition to the other boats.

There is no entry fee and no club affiliation required. There is no race committee, but there are a few rules (just a few) if you want to try for an award (a dubious honor). Generally, the Challenge is intended to provide capable local sailors with the opportunity to sail over to the Thames River with family and/or friends, stay overnight at Radlin's Marina, and have a little fun while doing

The flavors of summer -Over The Rainbow style

By M. Neubacher

Over The Rainbow, Grosse Pointe newest ice cream parlor, is a dream come true for ice cream aficionado and owner-manager Stacy DeLisle.

Over The Rainbow Ice Cream Parlour is that bright yellow brick house on the Hill with rainbows spanning the front windows. Inside the dark brown wood paneling, fireplace and chandeliers take many first-time visitors by surprise, while regulars mill around the fullservice fountain. For Stacy, a 15-year Pointe resident, Over The Rainbow is the realization of a life-long dream to own and develop her own business. "I told my family the day Kent Drugs (now Wild Wings) goes out of business I'd buy the building and turn it into my ice-cream par-

Stacy's Rainbow is not without competition. Located nearby are Friendly's, Baskin-Robbin's and Bresler's ice cream parlors. "I could have set-up a franchise too," says Stacy, "but I would have sacrificed my originality."

train will again ply the route of the fabled "Wabash Cannorball" on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 13 and 14.

Twin excursions sponsored by the Bluewater Michigan Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society will provide passage into history between north suburban Detroit points and Montpelier,

"These excursions are designed to renew memories for Detroiters who watched and rode behind in the first half of the century and to acquaint a more youthful generation with the way it was," said Paul A. Corrin, Sr., president of the Bluewater Michigan Chapter.

The locomotive for the 1983 reincarnation of the "Cannonball" is Number 765, a restored Berkshire type (2-8-4 wheel arrangement) built in 1944 by the Lima Locomotive Works for high speed passenger and freight service on the Nickel Plate Road. The 765 is operated by the Ft. Wayne Railroad Historical Society. It is one of only nine mainline steam locomotives currently available for excursion service in the U.S.

The 18 car consist will include a privately-owned former New York Central coach/baggage combine and former Pennsylvania and Union Pacific coaches owned by the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA). A food service car will provide snacks, refreshments and railroad memorabilia.

In a cooperative arrangement, SEMTA diesel locomotives will pull the train over the Grand Trunk Western from Pontiac, with additional passenger stops in Birmingham and Royal Oak, to Detroit. Here the diesels will be replaced with the 765 for Free tours of the railroad-oriented country historical museum and bus service from the train to the business district and fairgrounds have been arranged by the Bluewater Michigan Chapter and the Montpelier Chamber of Commerce.

"The people of Montpelier, the Norfolk and Western, Grand Trunk, SEMTA and the Fort Wayne Society have joined in eagerly to make this set of excursions become reality," said Bluewater Chapter President Corrin. "And we expect a big turnout of people who want to take advantage of the rare chance to ride behind bigtime steam."

The original "Wabash Cannonball" started its daily trips between Detroit and St. Louis in 1950, taking its name from the popular song that described a fantasy train linking Atlantic to Pacific and South to North. For several years the "Cannonball" was powered by Wabash Railroad steam locomotives. After taking over the Wabash in 1984, the Norfolk and Western continued to operated the train until Amtrak assumed control of all rail passenger service in 1971 and found it necessary to eliminate numerous
