Mull this over

I don't know about you, but it's been a long time since I've quaffed down a mug of good old wassail. The place to quench your thirst this year is the Wassail Feast at the War Memorial on Wednesday, Dec. 5.

The wassailing will begin with a champagne reception at the Alger House at 6:30 p.m. and at precisely (see the press release), 7:30, trumpets will announce the opening of the great hall and the lord of the manor will invite the guests inside.

After everyone is seated, instrumentalists will begin playing, singers singing and the trumpets (lots of brass here), will announce each course of the meal, brought out for m'lord and milady's approval by mimes.

The feast will include beef barley soup, whole wheat bread, roast beef, veggies, potatoes, Yorkshire pudding and the ceremonial flaming figgy pudding.

All of the above will be accompanied by singers, dancers, musicians, jugglers, minstrels, mimes and the court foole. (it won't be me this year, I have another engagement).

Deadline for reservations is Dec. 1. Tickets are $50 per person, payable to "Music Booters," David R. Cragg, Treasurer, 1313 Buckingham, GP Park, 48230. And it's all tax-deductible, and will benefit the Wayne State University Glee Club.

What's wassail? It's a base of whiskey and spices that is mull'd for days, added to beer and garnished with apple slices.

What's "mull'd?" Go look it up.

Goodfellows all

If you're a Thanksgiving Day Parade fan, keep your eyes peeled for a few Grosse Pointers marching along the route this year. Probably the easiest to spot will be Mayor Young's favorite columnist, Pete Waldmier.

Pete will be marching with 10 Goodfellows. The Newsboy Goodfellows are 71 years old and this year will distribute 42,500 Christmas packages to kids between the ages of five and 13. They'll also buy 600 pairs of shoes for needy Detroit schoolchildren and pay for the dental work for more than 550 kids. All right!

Another Pointer, Bill O'Keefe, of Vernier Road, decided he wanted to do something for his kids and those of his friends, so he contributed enough money to the parade that his group will march next to the "Michigan, Fun for all Seasons" float.

That particular float is sponsored by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce. It'd be nice if the kids carried a banner that read "Sponsored by Bill O'Keefe—a 'good fellow' all year 'round."

First public interview draws interested crowd

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education interviewed its first superintendent candidate in public Monday night and that candidate, Dr. John Whritner, received generally good reviews from the Pierce Middle School audience.

Whritner, currently superintendent of East Lyme, Conn. schools, said in opening the 30-minute interview that he considered himself an educational leader and a politician, "that is, working with people to get things done."

Whritner said he was sorry that time and the law didn't allow audience participation, but added if he were appointed, he would want to get to know as many people as possible.

The 49-year-old Whritner fielded questions from the six board members present. Board Vice President Jon Gandelot said the questions asked were taken from the 35 or so cards received at the board office from residents responding to board President Joan Harpeter's invitation to write in questions.

The first question, read by Gandelot, asked Whritner if he planned to stay in Grosse Pointe or use the position as a step on to another.

Whritner said he didn't think of the position as a stepping stone but as a culmination of his career. He noted that in East Lyme, where he has been superintendent for 13 years, there have been two top administrators in 30 years, compared to Grosse Pointe's, which is going on 10.

He and wife Katherine and their three children don't "have a strong desire to pick up and move at the drop of the hat," Whritner said, adding that his philosophy about change also meant he would remain in the district.

"I don't believe in moving quickly," Whritner said. "I believe change should come in increments. To bring about change, we should move slowly."

On a question about low teacher morale, Whritner said there was a need to offer "strokes" as well as rewards and incentives to improve morale. Teachers should also have input into decisions to change curriculum, he added.

Responding to a question read by trustee Vincent LoCicero, about what he thought were good student-to-teacher ratios, Whritner said in East Lyme, he tried to work for lower class sizes in elementary schools, usually at 22 or less per room, while looking at class sizes of about 25 per teacher in the upper grades.

East Lyme achieved its lower class sizes through a fall-off of enrollment and elimination of teachers as enrollment fell, he added.

Asked to rate the importance of a public library to a school system, Whritner responded it was very important. (Continued on Page 15A)

City voters approve liquor by the glass

By Harriet Nolan

Candy is dandy and so is liquor, decided Grosse Pointe City residents last week when they approved a referendum to allow liquor to be sold by the glass in their city.

While 1,877 of the 4,829 registered voters said yes to issuing Class C (liquor) licenses, almost one-half felt it would be fine to have establishments serve beer and wine.

"I feel fortunate that an issue of this sort, not only political, but moral, has the grand old American approach to the problem by free election," said Richard Hinks, city attorney. "I'm very pleased we held off on voting on this issue until the presidential election. We actually have the vote of the people and not a splinter group."

The city went dry along with the rest of the nation on Jan. 19, 1919, when the 18th Amendment to the Constitution went into effect. After Prohibition was repealed on Nov. 6, 1934, city residents voted 963-574 to continue the ban.

Under state law, the City is entitled to issue a total of four licenses, either Tavern (beer and wine) or Class C (liquor), and Council's next move is to establish a resolution setting forth specific criteria regarding approval, review and control of licenses.

Council has studied proposed licensing criteria submitted by Brandon M. Rogers, the city's planner. Hinks said that it was the hope that the criteria would be adopted at the Nov. 19 meeting or at least considered along with possible changes.

Rogers' suggestions include that establishments be primarily a restaurant, alcoholic beverages not be served to patrons over a bar, that its location be compatible with surrounding land uses and not have a detrimental effect on existing and future development of the surrounding area.

So far, the only application received has been from Andrew Moquin, co-owner of the Cafe Le Chat.

Moquin said his business hopes to get one of the four licenses. "We're doing quality business here and we hope council takes that into consideration."

Three other businesses, Jacobson's, Clairpointe Restaurant and Rams Horn on Mack, also plan to apply for licenses.

Anyone who wants a license should make application to the Michigan State Liquor Control Commission which forwards it to the city for recommendation, Hinks said.

Homicide charged in fatal crash

By Tom Greenwood

Farms police last week charged a Ridgemont Road man with negligent homicide in the death of Joseph Gregory Siero, 21, of Devonshire Road, when the car they were riding in crashed into a tree during the early morning hours of Sept. 6.

Lawrence Stephen Diener, 21, was arraigned Wednesday, Nov. 7, before visiting Judge Calvin Rock, of East Detroit, who was substituting for Farms Municipal Judge Robert H. Pytell.

A plea of not guilty was entered for Diener, who stood mute during the proceedings. Diener was accompanied by his father, according to witnesses, and was released on a $5,000 personal bond.

According to police reports, the crash occurred at about 2:15 a.m. Sept. 6, when a leased 1984 Dodge Daytona left Kercheval Avenue at a high rate of speed and struck a large tree near the intersection of Moran Road. Glass from the impact was found more than six feet up the tree, which measured 91 inches in circumference.

Responding officers found the vehicle 22 feet beyond the tree with its passenger side completely caved in. Mr. Siero was thrown through the front windshield and was found lying on the sidewalk near some hedges.

He was rushed to Cottage Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Diener, who police believe was driving the vehicle, was taken to Cottage, where he was treated for head lacerations.

While at the hospital, Diener gave permission to have a blood sample taken for alcohol analysis. While police have refused to release the findings of the analysis, they have confirmed that an analysis taken from Mr. Siero by the Wayne County Medical Ex-

Friends of Vision forms group

Visually impaired find local support

By Pat Paholsky

Katherine Gee began to lose her sight in the latter part of 1981. When her vision deteriorated to the point that she was considered legally blind, the former social worker said it was a devastating experience.

"I called an agency and had to wait 30 days for someone to come out," she said. "I couldn't read the paper. I couldn't see the calendar — it was like losing one's place in time and space."

"I wanted so much to continue with my work," she added. "My head was the same, but your handwriting goes berserk."

At a friend's suggestion, Mrs. Gee, a Park resident, contacted the Michigan Commission for the Blind which has a rehabilitation center in Detroit. In three weeks, she learned how to get around with the use of a cane.

Knowing the need a newly blind person has for moral support and resources, Mrs. Gee offered her services to Dr. Philip C. Hessburg, medical director of the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology. He put her in touch with the Friends of Vision, a group started by eight Pointe women in 1977. The meeting was "a natural," according to Mrs. Gee, and a support group for the visually impaired was established early this year.

The Friends of Vision had been looking to do more for the visually handicapped. The group up to that time had been involved in distributing low vision aids and serving coffee to patients at the DIO and organizing fundraisers.

"It was very frustrating," said Marleine Ricca, president of the group. "We were giving them magazines and we wanted to do more."

Pumped full of enthusiasm, the group, which now numbers about 50 members, branched into several activities.

In February, Mrs. Ricca began reading the Grosse Pointe News into a tape recorder and the talking newspaper was begun locally. Helen Leonard at the Central Library duplicates the tapes and 14 residents who are unable to read are kept up to date on what is going on in the area.

Marleine Ricca, at the left, president of the Friends of Vision, and Jane Stone, leaning forward, lead a discussion at a recent meeting of a support group for the visually impaired. Listening to them are, from left at the lamp, Katherine Gee, Boynton Hartz, Helen Long, Isabel Blanchard and Frank Haley. The group meets twice a month and is looking for more members.

"It took us about 3 1/2 hours to do that first paper," she said, "but the euphoria — we were really doing something for somebody."

Persons who would like to volunteer to read can call Mrs. Ricca at 824-4710.

The group has put together a brochure that will be distributed to ophthalmologists in the Pointes and the east side of Detroit. In it, the Friends of Vision offer themselves as a support group for those who have lost or are losing their sight. They will advise the person about the help that is available, free services, new aids and above all, members will offer moral support.

"We will get them in touch with whatever help they need," Mrs. Ricca said.

According to Mrs. Gee, there is an urgent need for such a group.

"Very often, the physician is concerned with the health of the eye rather than the general health and well being of the patient," she said. "I remember asking the doctor if he knew of a support group and he didn't seem to know what I was talking about."

Dorothy Sutter, a Farms resident who is involved with the support group, began to lose her sight in 1979. The former teacher and social worker said:

"Kay (Gee) and I had a dreadful experience trying to find help. It took me about four months to find assistance. I was a basket case and the ophthalmologist didn't know where to send me."

Grosse Pointe War Memorial

... as John Lake remembered it

Shortly before his death in 1984, John Lake wrote of his years as executive director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. For those who knew him, it tells the story in a neo-Victorian style they'll well remember — a little confusing at times, but still vintage John Lake. Others will find it a nostalgic and useful contribution to the history of our community. These segments have been edited by Charles V. Hicks, but they retain Lake's original language, and they reflect the unique personality of the man who directed and developed the War Memorial Center in its first 30 years.

III. Early Days

(John Lake takes over the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and begins building a program.)

John Lake found that he had a wonderful helpmate in one Irena Parthum, who had been in charge of the office and knew the working of the Center. On the front door was a sign that said, "Center open during the day, closed all day Thursday, and open in the evening only by appointment." Well, of course, all that changed under Lake and the Center opened in the morning and kept open until midnight.

Then new ideas had to start making their way: and John Lake had a wonderful backer in the person of Mrs. Virginia Brush Ford. She had such enthusiasm and she had a lot of fun. She had a large working Program Committee; and the meetings were very productive under her leadership. She had lost one of her sons in World War II, so her heart was really in the place and she gave greatly of herself. It was something that Mr. Lake always remembered: and hopefully, all of Grosse Pointe will remember.

The Center's program was very modest in the beginning. At that time, they began to publish and mail to the homes in Grosse Pointe a very small program card which was the size of a blotter. The program appeared on one side; and there was blotting paper on the other. This, of course, was before the public changed their habits from using fountain pens to ball-point pens.

Those program cards would cover perhaps three or four months of activities. There was a very noted jewel expert brought here to talk about jewels. There was a shell decoupage lecture that attracted many residents. Also, at that time, there were organizations formed within the Center. There was a Center Club for young adult singles that met, and everybody had a lot of fun. Many marriages resulted from the activity; the couples still live here in Grosse Pointe.

The board was always behind John Lake; and he could not have brought any of these things into being without their help. The board met in what is today the executive director's office. There was a rather unprepossessing collection of furniture. There was a long table that had been used in a laundry; and the chairs had come from the J.L. Hudson shoe department; but a great deal of earnest business was attended to.

The first time the Center went out to get public participation to contribute funds, $18,000 was the goal. Everyone went out to get it in fear and trembling, but it was a successful campaign.

Board discusses program for college-bound

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education next month will discuss adoption of program recommendations for students who plan to attend four-year colleges.

The college-bound program will recommend students take two years of a foreign language, an extra year of math and science and an extra semester of social studies beyond the minimum graduation requirements, according to Robert Welch, director of secondary education.

Not everyone who graduates from high school intends to go to college, but those who do should have prepared themselves by taking a strong program, Welch said. Students who aren't sure they want to go to college can take the college-bound program and keep their options open, he added.

The college-bound program will recommend students take four years of English, three years of math, science and social studies and two years of a foreign language.

To graduate, a student must complete four years of English, two years of math and science and two-and-a-half years of social studies. Foreign language study is not required for graduation.

If adopted by the board, the program recommendations will be put in the 1985-86 program of studies for the use by counselors, parents and students.

For physical education and the fine or practical arts, the college-bound program recommends no more than the minimum graduation requirements.

The state Board of Education released a study earlier this year titled, "Better Education for Michigan Citizens: A Blueprint for Action," that made recommendations for a college-bound program nearly identical to those the local board will discuss next month, Welch said. Also, college boards have put out recommendations on how a student should prepare for college.

By adopting a philosophy and recommendations instead of a required program, students will find some flexibility in consideration of classes. A student unsure about attending college won't be "locked in" to a curriculum, while a student who wants to go to college but can't meet part of the curriculum won't be locked out, Welch said.

The recommendations will not be meant to be substitutes for college planning or meetings with counselors to discuss college planning. They are also not meant to be taken literally by those students whose levels of ability or motivation make it too difficult to complete the college-bound program, according to the program's proposed philosophy statement.

The college-bound program can offer direction to students to plan, review and decide on their future with the aid of parents and counselors, Welch said.

The college-bound program is really for any student who can handle the workload, Welch said. The growth of service industries and changes in the economy will mean some students will go straight from high school into the job market. The college-bound program recommendations will insure "quality of life," he added, saying the programs recommendations were "good for anybody who wants to lead a good life, and can handle it."

The development of the college-bound recommendations is an outgrowth of the review of curriculum at the middle and high schools and the adoption of the increased graduation requirements that become effective with the class of 1988, this year's sophomores.

The board decided at its organizational meeting Nov. 5 to put off discussion of the recommendations until next month because three departments have yet to submit lists of "foundational courses." Those courses would be meant to give students a background and understanding of the subject as well as strengthening and developing skills.

Foundational courses are being developed for the science, social studies and English departments, Welch said. Debate continues about what kind of foundation should be laid in those subjects on which to build a higher education, he added.

The board will have to take some action on the program next month if it is to be put into the coming year's program schedules.

Trustees will be asked to approve the program recommendations with or without the foundational courses, Dr. Spagnoli told the board, adding the administration can proceed without them but not as well as with them in place.

PSO group runs miles for money

By Tom Greenwood

Everyone has heard of the "long arm of the law," but Grosse Pointe Shores is also blessed with the "long legs of the law."

Specifically, those legs belong to Shores Public Safety Officers John Trevillian, Archie Grieve, Jackie Renard and clerk/dispatcher Jim Baker.

Together, they form the Grosse Pointe Shores Police Striders, four officers who pound the pavement in running shoes for fun, health and charity.

They've always been interested in maintaining their health through running, but decided earlier this year to band together and run as a team for charity.

The idea earned the blessing of Shores Director of Public Safety Joseph Vitale and four eager sponsors, Alexander Nick of A.M.N. Enterprises, Anthony Giorgio of Allstate Fastener Co., Leo Kalyvas Jr. of Union Music Co. and James Coates of Sequoia Industries, who kicked in to outfit the peacekeepers from top to bottom.

Although many of their fellow officers have hemmed and hawed about joining the fleet foursome, they've supported them with their wallets, pledging money for each mile run by the striders in numerous competitions.

They've already run in four events since they formed in September and, since then, have won three trophies and raised $546.60 for the Association for Retarded Citizens.

"Our first run together as a team was in Lansing last September," said Grieve, a tall, lean 13-year veteran of the force. "The guys here at the station kicked in a lot of money for that 10k run. It was a lot of fun and for a good cause."

"I think we're the only police team here in the Pointes," added Trevillian, senior Strider, with 17 years on the job. "There's a lot of Pointe officers who run individually, but not as a group, although we don't usually practice together because of different shift schedules."

"We don't even live near each other," he continued. "Besides, old Arch here is so fast we couldn't keep up with him anyway."

All of the officers run at least two to three times a week, with the average session at about five to six miles. All the Striders agree that Renard probably runs more often, since she's fresh out of the police academy.

"At the moment, I'm coming off the injured list," Renard said.

"I've had a few foot problems, but I've been seeing a doctor and things are almost back to normal."

The formation of the group began innocently enough, with one runner mentioning an upcoming fun run and with the dare of "I'll run it if you will." Soon the group grew and the Striders was born.

Future plans call for them to run in the 10K Turkey Trot planned for Thanksgiving Day, when they will run along the parade route in Detroit. Then there's a Little Caesars Fun Run slated for New Year's Day and a big police competition in Frankenmuth later in the spring.

"The Chief even said he'd come to that one," said Grieve. "He's always wanted to but he never had a team to enter. There'll be all kinds of law enforcement officials there. Everything from cops to sheriffs to state troopers and FBI agents. Afterwards, of course, there'll be an all-you-can-eat chicken dinner. I hope we can win a few trophies."

"A few trophies" will come with time. For now the Striders have won themselves a lot of fans.

Market celebrates 45 years
 By Ted Coutilish
 Edwin Schmidt knows what it takes to be a successful businessman. His Grosse Pointe Fish and Seafood Market celebrated its 45th anniversary last month.
 Since its beginnings, the store has undergone many changes. Now in addition to fish, gourmet foods are offered as well as beer and wine and canned goods.
 Schmidt's father started in the business in 1929, managing a fish market. After World War II, he opened the current store on Mack between Seven and Broadstone. Schmidt remembers the days when Mack Avenue was a one-lane dirt road surrounding by swamp and farm land and the fish market stood alone.
 Since then, it has catered to many local notables and Schmidt said people come from all over the country for the tartar and cocktail sauces that are made on the premises.
 He recalled an incident that occurred when his wife Charlene, who was new to the business in the early 1970s, was scheduled to make a delivery to the Ford mansion. He told her the guard at the gate would recognize the car, and it wasn't necessary to stop. "Just roll on through."
 At the time of delivery, however, there had been some death threats made against the Fords and security was beefed up. As she passed the gate house, a guard jumped on the hood of her car and pointed a gun against the windshield. After a quick explanation, she was allowed to drive through.
 Tom Delise, the 24-year-old manager who has worked at the store for six years, said more people are buying fish today because of the increased interest in dieting.
 Owner Schmidt said it's his goal to sell the best quality and freshest fish possible. "We have a long standing reputation in a community that appreciates good service."

Still a GOP island

The Grosse Pointes reaffirmed their Republican tradition by strongly supporting President Reagan and Republican nominees for county, state and national offices in last week's election. But they also showed they can express differences of opinion as well by splitting their votes over Proposal C, the Voters' Choice amendment. It was favored by the Shores and the Woods but opposed by the Park, the City and the Farms.

Altogether, the Pointes again went Republican by a big margin, giving the president 23,911 votes to 6,154 for Democratic nominee Walter Mondale. And on Proposal C, the five Pointes cast 15,595 votes against the Voters' Choice amendment and 13,483 in favor to contribute to the measure's statewide defeat.

Pointers' ballots helped bring victory to GOP nominees in 10 out of 12 statewide races, as well as to the president, but the Pointes are still represented by a Democratic U.S. senator, two Democratic congressmen, a Democratic county commissioner and a batch of Democratic county officials including one Pointer, James Killeen of the Farms, the county clerk. In Wayne County, the Pointes are still a GOP island in a sea of Democrats.

In various contests, voters in the Pointes helped elect eight Grosse Pointe nominees to public office but saw six other Pointers go down to defeat. Two Pointers were among those winning statewide contests. They were Dorothy Comstock Riley of the Farms, who was returned to the Michigan Supreme Court, and George Bashara of the Shores, who won one of the two seats on the Wayne State University Board of Governors. Both were nominated by the Republican Party.

As expected, City resident William R. Bryant Jr., the veteran GOP incumbent, was re-elected state representative from the 13th District while Dennis Mongoven of the Woods won the nonpartisan race in the 1st District for a seat on the reorganized Wayne County Community College Board of Trustees. County Clerk Killeen easily won re-election over Henry Lauve of the Woods, the GOP nominee. And in the contest for county commissioner in the 1st District, the incumbent Democrat, John Hertel of Harper Woods, was re-elected over Republican Eric Steiner of the Farms in what proved to be a close race.

In the 14th District Congressional race, Democratic Rep. Dennis Hertel of Harper Woods won over GOP challenger John Lauve of the Woods. And in the 13th District, which now includes both the Park and the City as a result of a gerrymandering reapportionment after the 1980 census, the veteran Democratic incumbent, George Crockett of Detroit, was re-elected despite the heavy Pointe vote for his GOP opponent, Robert Murphy, also of Detroit.

Other Pointes who won elections were Harry Dingeman and William Giovan of the Park and Roland Olzark of the City who were returned to the Circuit Court. Among the losers from the Pointes were three who had sought court seats: James Hathaway of the Shores, who lost to Justice James Brickley in one Supreme Court race; Robert Riddis of the Farms, who was beaten by Mrs. Riley for the full Supreme Court term and Robert Costello of the Farms who sought one of the Circuit Court posts.

What conclusions can be drawn from the election results in the Pointes?

At least two traditions were reaffirmed. Not only did the voting continue the GOP tradition but it also resulted in a heavy turnout at the polls. Pointers value their franchise and believe in making use of it, as candidates continue to learn both to their satisfaction and their sorrow.

The division over Proposal C also proves that there is no one monolithic view on ballot proposals in the Pointes and that Pointers can disagree without being disagreeable. The affirmative votes on the liquor issues in Grosse Pointe City, after decades of prohibition, also illustrate that Pointers can and do change their minds — but not overnight.

The coattails in Michigan

President Reagan's sweeping victory in the national election did have a coattails' effect in Michigan even though it was not sufficient to give the president even a working majority of the U.S. House of Representatives.

In Michigan, the big vote for the president obviously helped the other Republican candidates. In statewide races, for example, the Republican nominees for the Michigan Supreme Court, the State Board of Education and the ruling bodies at the University of Michigan, Wayne State and Michigan State won 10 of 11 contests. The only Democratic nominee to succeed in these statewide races was the Democratic nominee for the Supreme Court, Justice Patricia Boyle.

In addition, Michigan Republicans gained six seats in the state House of Representatives and one seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. Even though Republican challenger Jack Lousma lost his bid to upset Democratic Sen. Carl Levin, the race turned out to be much closer than the polls and experts had predicted in advance.

Nationally, however, we concur with the experts who saw the president's victory as one that reflected his personal popularity and the fact that the economic upturn in the last two years has benefited the great majority of the people. The president is an amiable, likable man and even many of those who criticized his failure to discuss the national issues in detail voted for him.

As to what the future holds, nobody really knows. The president did not spell out his plans, but it may well be that events such as the future course of the economy and U.S. relations with foreign nations will dictate the paths that Reagan will take in his next four years. If Reagan was the beneficiary of a booming economy in 1984, he may be the loser of congressional support in 1986 if the economic downturn some are predicting does materialize.

Asked whether he was claiming a mandate in view of the fact that Republicans did not pick up all of the 26 House seats lost in 1982 and had lost two Senate seats, the president said he was satisfied with the way things had turned out. And then he added, in first post-election press conference:

"I'm claiming that I think the people made it very plain that they approved of what we're doing and approved of the fact that things are better and the economy is expanding and that's what we're going to continue to do."

To that rather vague description of his future plans, his aides have added such domestic issues as a tax simplification plan, renewed support for enterprise zones legislation to give tax credits to businesses that settle in inner cities and create jobs, a measure to restore official prayer to the public schools, a proposal to grant tax credits to parents who send their children to private and parochial schools, and a constitutional amendment to give future presidents power to veto separate items in a budget bill. In a divided Congress, however, Reagan is unlikely to get everything he wants.

In foreign affairs, the future is even more murky although it became clear during the campaign that Reagan had moved away from his extremely tough stance against the Soviet Union to an appeal for negotiations to reduce the threat of nuclear war. He is still dedicated to further buildup of U.S. defenses on the grounds that the United States, as Theodore Roosevelt said, should walk softly but carry a big stick, and his view that the Soviet Union is more likely to react peacefully to U.S. strength than to U.S. weakness was even endorsed by Walter Mondale during the campaign.

The nation's 40th president, chosen in the nation's 50th presidential election, looks ahead with his traditional optimism to "four more years," but developments in the economy and abroad may result in policy changes that neither Reagan nor the public anticipates in November 1984. Yet the president has reason to savor his unprecedented electoral college victory and, at the moment at least, to view the future with his customary confidence.

Senior citizens enjoyed day tour

To the Editor:

When we boarded the Seniors Unlimited bus at the Neighborhood Club at 7:30 a.m., it was dark and cloudy, but as the day wore on, the beauty of the autumn season unfolded.

Our first destination was Starr Commonwealth for Boys, situated on a 358-acre campus on the outskirts of Albion, Mich. Hot coffee and cinnamon doughnuts awaited our arrival at the community house.

Anita Walker, our hostess, presided over a film discussion of the faculty. Boys aged 10 through 17 are screened by the courts, social services or health departments and given a chance to straighten their lives at Starr Commonwealth.

The average stay at the campus is one year. However, many have graduated from high school at Starr. There are 14 residences, 10 to 12 persons in each, presided over by a dorm mother. The present program contains 165 boys. Each attends church on campus on Sundays. Bed is at 10 during the week, arising at 6. On weekends, bedtime is stretched until 11.

This beautiful facility is doing a most worthy job in helping young people lead useful lives.

Back on the bus to Marshall and lunch at Win Schuler's.

The historic home tour began with Honolulu House, being restored gradually. It was built in 1860 with 15 foot ceilings, frescoed in Hawaiian motifs. A truly unique home, bedrooms in the basement with full-sized windows.

Then on to the National House Inn, a homestead restored and converted to a Wayside Inn, in all its Early American beauty.

The tiny circular garden and the front gardens were lovely with impatiens, and deep vinca. It is the oldest building in Marshall, being built in 1835. All the interior light fixtures on the main floor are custom made in pierced tin.

The navy blue doors and "minic red" woodwork of the bedroom halls upstairs are striking in their old-world charm.

On to director's next choice; Capitol Hill Schoolhouse, a Gothic Revival built in 1860, across from the old State Fair grounds and awash with big yellow maples.

We took a running bus tour to several other historic homes, highlighting their various features.

Then it was time to drive home. Thanks to Terice, our Neighborhood Club tour director, we had a most pleasant, informative day.

Tax hike not working

To the Editor:

I am writing to bring to your attention the fact that the man in the White House isn't the only one who has shown his scorn for the outdoors and the environment. The man in Lansing has, too.

The decline of the Waterloo Recreation area near Chelsea, one of the finest and most accessible natural areas in Michigan, is nothing short of a disgrace. In six years, the staff has been cut from 13 to five. The area has gotten trashy, the campgrounds aren't policed well and the nature center has closed, depriving thousands of our children the opportunity to learn about the wonderful world of nature around them.

A lot of us supported Governor Blanchard's income tax hike because he told us it was the only way to avoid permanent, devastating cutbacks in the state recreation program. He got his tax hike, the state is in good financial shape — but recreational areas like Waterloo slide further and further into neglect.

What happened to the good things that were supposed to happen if we approved your income tax hike, Governor Blanchard? Where did the money go?

S.T. Charlemagne

Taxes still a hot issue

The issue of taxes, which played such an important role in both the Michigan and the national elections, just won't go away. In fact, it will raise its ugly head soon in both Lansing and Washington as the legislative bodies return to work.

In Michigan, the Republicans had decided to demand an immediate return to the 4.6 percent income tax rate if they won the state House of Representatives. They didn't win, but they did add six more members which means they will be an even stronger minority, although the Democrats still will control the House, 58 to 52.

Those gains, plus the defeat of four Democrats who voted in 1983 for the 38 percent increase in the state income tax, will give new impetus to the GOP drive for an immediate rollback of the income tax. That may be coupled with a demand for the refund of some of the state's surplus which has been accumulating because of the economic revival in Michigan.

The heat generated by the tax issue in the campaign was all the more surprising because the rates had already dropped twice this year and will dip to 4.6 percent, the pre-1983 rate, on Oct. 1, 1987, as a result of legislative action. The cuts, from 6.35 percent to 6.1 percent on Jan. 1 and from 6.1 percent to 5.35 percent Sept. 1, were expected to take the heat off the Democrats who voted for the original increase. Those cuts may have helped Democrats in some districts but obviously not in Macomb County and other tax-oriented districts.

It is true the state rejected Proposal C, which would have rolled back all taxes to 1961 levels unless the people voted to retain increases since that date. But the sponsors are already talking about reviving the Voters' Choice amendment in 1986. Richard Heedie, the defeated GOP nominee for governor in 1982, promised, "We'll be back." So Heedie may lead such a campaign again along with another attempt to win the governorship. And without new legislative action, the income tax rate would not return to 4.6 percent until 1987, or after the 1986 election.

Taxes also played a role in the presidential campaign. Walter Mondale's early announcement that he would seek a tax increase as well as further spending cuts in order to reduce the federal deficit was regarded as one of his major blunders. The Reagan campaign responded by ruling out a tax increase except as a last resort, and hooting at Mondale's claims the administration was secretly harboring a tax hike plan.

Yet most economists believe some tax increase will be required. The Reagan administration is already looking into the possibility of tax simplification through the use of the flat-tax idea and the elimination of some current deductions. That might result in lower tax rates for many people — but higher taxes just the same.

The president tried to answer speculation about the possibility of tax increases at his first post-election press conference. He said that any changes in deductions resulting from the flat-tax idea "would have to be offset with regard to the rates so that it would not result in any individual having his taxes raised by way of a tax reform." But that sweeping statement presumably would mean that no individual would have his taxes raised even if his tax loopholes were eliminated.

Reagan also said that "the government is still larded with a lot of fat." Many of his aides disagree. But the president also has said he won't cut Social Security or defense spending. And he can't cut interest payments on the debt. Those three items account for more than half of the budget. And most of the savings in his first term came from the non-defense items in his budget. So even the president's aides are saying it is unlikely that he will be able to live up to his assertion that the administration's plan "would not result in any individual having his taxes raised."

Taxes support a wide variety of public services ranging from education to national defense. Somewhere along the line as the state and federal governments ponder tax issues, more consideration ought to be given to the kind and extent of services government ought to provide and the amount of support that ought to come from local, state and federal sources. Otherwise, the jockeying between the various levels of government over taxes simply will continue to the detriment of the quality of public services at all levels.

Gus is a remarkable man

To the Editor:
This may seem an unusual letter; however, I feel strongly that it should be written.

With so much dissension around us, I would like to share a little kindness. As a Grosse Pointe Park businessman and resident, I have had the opportunity to observe a very unusual business in my community. That business is Fairfax Market, on the corner of Beaconsfield and Fairfax. The reason this business is so unique has to be the owner and his staff. Gus always had a kind word for his patrons, along with a friendly smile.

What is even more interesting is the way in which Gus treats the youngsters who buy his penny candy or bottle of pop. He shows them the same respect and courtesy he would an adult spending a hundred dollars. It's no wonder the children respect and like Gus. He is truly a rare and unfortunately vanishing breed.

To top it off, as a conscientious citizen and businessman, Gus has made a substantial investment in our community and has beautified the corner of Beaconsfield and Fairfax.

The residents of the Park owe it to themselves to meet this remarkable man.

Steiner says thanks

To the Editor:

I would like first to thank the 32,071 residents who voted for me on Nov. 6. I was 4,000 votes ahead in the Grosse Pointes and in Harper Woods, and I am thankful to all the people in my home community who showed me their support.

I would also like to thank the Grosse Pointe News and Mike Andrzezyk for all of the stories and support that was given to me during this campaign. These contributions helped me gain support from the local residents and it was greatly appreciated.

Lastly, I would like to thank my opponent for keeping it a fair and clean campaign. I am glad I had the opportunity to meet a lot of interesting people and I am glad I had the chance to run for public office.

I will not be going into hiding, and I will be back to run for public office again in the future. Again, thank you and the community.

I say . . .

When the children in my family used to moan and complain about having to walk to school or to the store when Dad could surely have driven us, my mother would whip out her little Book of Trite Motherly Sayings and read one to fit the situation. She'd simply say: "You have two good legs. Use them."

Funny how those were the exact words which popped into my mind one recent, chilly Wednesday when I had to turn my until-recently reliable car over to the cold, cruel hands of the car dealer for repairs. The tow truck driver was nice enough to drive me to the dealer, then back to the tow truck station . . . but from there, I was left to find my own way the 2½ miles home. So I walked.

On the way, I discovered that driving down Mack Avenue between Moross and approximately 8½ Mile was not nearly as exciting and adventuresome as walking that stretch. And, while I looked less like 1984 Olympic women's marathon winner Joan Benoit and more like Greta Weitz, (the one who collapsed just before the finish line), I enjoyed the walk, physically speaking.

I also learned a lot. During the one-hour journey, I saw plenty of folks driving, but hardly anybody walking. Those who were on foot eyed me suspiciously, apparently surprised to see someone with "drives compact car," written all over her face, walking and not driving.

I didn't see any buses. Oh, there were bus stops, left perhaps from some little-known, long-dead civilization. But no buses.

I also didn't see any place to sit. I'm sure that someone, sometime, when walking down Mack Avenue, might like to sit and rest their weary . . . well, sit anyway. But unless they are willing to lean on a parked car (thereby risking life, limb and reputation), or plunk themselves down in the middle of the sidewalk, or fold up their legs and crouch on the curb (prompting motorists to wonder why Mack suddenly has tennis ballboys) . . . walkers just don't sit.

But then again, if one sits, one misses all the things which ARE on Mack. Like pizza parlors. There were six of them in the 2.5 mile distance I walked that day. I think that's just in case those who feel they will perish without a pepperoni per day need only to crawl a short distance between pizza joints to satisfy their cravings.

And speaking of cravings . . . I found more than a few obstetricians on my travels down (or up, if you will) Mack. Not to mention the pediatricians, podiatrists, neurologists, psychologists, psychiatrists, dermatologists, endodontists, orthodontists, ophthalmologists, chiropractors, opticians, eye surgeons, maxillofacial surgeons, M.D.'s, P.C.'s; in all, more than enough medical training to fill a couple dozen softball teams at the A.M.A. picnic.

I also counted four churches on Mack, not including St. Michael's Episcopal. It is possible to see St. Michael's from Mack, if you strain your neck and look real hard past the Bonanza Restaurant.

I saw many attractively decorated shop windows and promised myself, if I ever get home, that someday I'd drive back and buy something from one of the shops.

One or two rather strange things happened on my journey. I was chased by a landscaper bearing a power blower and a sense of humor. I tripped twice, injuring nothing but my dignity. And I saw a green faced witch emerging from a bank, an adult man strolling down Mack dressed in a Tiger suit and giving away plastic cups and pencils, and two people emerging from a car dressed in what appeared to be a donkey suit.

Take a walk on the wild side

By Peggy O'Connor

At that point, I told myself, I was nearly home and should just blot such bizarre mirages permanently from my memory. And then I remembered that it was no mirage, just Halloween on Mack Avenue.

Just before I got home, I stopped at the door of a furrier. The sign near the entrance asked potential patrons to please ring the bell. I thought about it, then caught a look at my reflection and dismissed the idea.

Tubgoat Annie stared back at me from the window glass. And staring out at me from inside the store were several worried faces, hoping against hope, no doubt, that I wouldn't touch that bell. I didn't.

All too soon, it seemed, I was home and my walk had ended. But before I sat down to rest, I looked something up in the dictionary, just to satisfy my curiosity.

Walk: To go on foot at a moderate pace; to follow a certain course. A stroll or hike.
Webster's New World Dictionary doesn't know the half of it.

Sound Health Advice from your Family Doctor

Saint John Hospital

Q: I've had a cough for a week. What should I do?

A: A cough can mean many things. A viral infection may cause a cough with sore throat, head congestion, aches and low-grade fever. Allergies may cause a cough with itching, sneezing and post nasal drip. Over-the-counter medicines can be used for these symptoms such as Benylin or Robitussin for cough or Chlor-Trimeton for allergies.

There are several symptoms that I would suggest seeing a doctor for: a cough and a persistent fever (over 48 hours); a cough with thick sputum that is dark beige, yellow, green or bloody; a cough and chest pain or a cough that lasts over two weeks.

Chronic bronchitis caused by smoking is one of the common reasons for persistent cough, but it should always be evaluated and followed by a physician.

This column is a service provided in the public interest by Saint John Hospital. Questions should be sent to Christopher Goldsby, M.D., 22151 Moross, Suite 334, Detroit, Michigan 48236.

Indian history is topic of program

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society will present a program about Indians of the area Monday, Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at Kerby School's Heritage Hall.

The exhibit of Indian lore and artifacts created by both the society and the Heritage Hall Committee, will be available for viewing. Admission is free for students, $2 for members and $3 for non-members.

The evening's speaker is Jerry DeVisscher, who grew up on a farm on Cook Road and attended Kerby School. As a boy, he was inspired by Indian tales and objects found in the area.

DeVisscher has been an amateur archeologist for the past 50 years. He discovered the first Pelee Indian site found in this area, dating back 11,000 years. Following that discovery, the University of Michigan conducted a major dig and found a variety of artifacts, including caribou bones. DeVisscher has found six other sites in the same area and will bring artifacts from these digs as well as pottery found in the Grosse Pointe area.

The Heritage Hall at Kerby was conceived by then-principal Dick Kay as a bicentennial project. A 60-foot-long mural painted by the students is a highlight of the hall and traces the character of the lakefront from its early days to the present and on into the future.

A model Indian canoe constructed by the students hangs at one end of the hall. The Heritage Hall Committee and the historical society welcome information about the area's early days and artifacts for donation.

For more information about future programs or membership, call the historical society offices at 884-7010 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Concert to feature music from Venice

"Music from Venice," a concert of 17th and 18th century Italian composers will be given at Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd., on Sunday, Nov. 25, at 4:30 p.m.

This first event of the Christ Church Concert Series will feature all sorts of music ensembles: a baroque orchestra, two brass ensembles, a consort of lutes, harpsichords and organ, and the Men, Boys and Girls choirs and the Christ Church Chorale.

The brass ensembles will perform antiphonal canzonas by Gabrieli (frequently used at Easter morning services). The baroque orchestra with harpsichord will be used for the Vivaldi Magnificat; and the consort of lutes, theorbos, two harpsichords, brass and organ will provide the bright accompaniment for the Vespers 1610 by Monteverdi, all works which have had magnificent performances at St. Mark's Cathedral, Venice.

A feature of the concert will be a performance of the Jubilate Deo by Gabrieli by the Choir of Girls and Men which performed the same work for the Pope's audience in Rome on July 4, 1984.

Soloists for the Vivaldi will be Doris Williams, Karen McConachie, Sharon Babcock, Paul Nelson and Romulus Murrell. Additional soloists for the Vespers 1610 are Jeanne Heller, Marilyn Saum, Tom Hueber and David Ludwig.

Tickets are available at the church office during the week, or can be reserved by calling 885-4841.

Camera Club meets

The Grosse Pointe Camera Club will meet Tuesday, Nov. 20, at 7:45 p.m. at Brownell Middle School, 280 Chalfonte in the Farms.

Along with the color print and nature slice competition, a program by Mary Rahme titled "Shopping in China" will be featured. Visitors are welcome.

Weapons confiscated

Five knives, one with a 21-inch blade, a BB gun, a bottle of beer and a hash pipe were confiscated by Woods police from a car with two 17-year-olds inside. The youths, both Woods residents, were stopped for making an illegal turn.

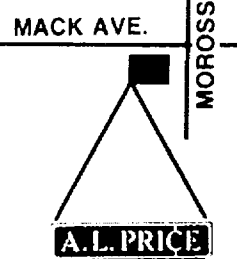

The driver was issued a ticket for the illegal turn and both he and his passenger were ticketed for having alcohol in their possession. They were taken to the police station and released.

Their parents have been notified, according to Det. Bob Kwiatkowski, and the matter has been referred to the city attorney for further action.

A well-dressed turkey

Delicately revealing the size 84-D running shoes that cover more ground than many a sports car on Tom Turkey, mascot of the Michigan Thanksgiving Parade Turkey Trot, is Pointer Jeanne Bocci, left. Ms. Bocci, wearing the medal she won in her division in the New York marathon, is race director for the parade's Turkey Trot. Here she uncovers Tom's shoes while Sonny Elliot takes his off for comparison. Mary Krupa, right, public relations director of Independence Health Plan, the events corporate sponsor, watches.

Let's talk turkey

The following article was written by Marianne Wehl, a dietetics student at Mercy College and a resident of Harper Woods.

Turkeys are America's favorite holiday dish, but when planning this main attraction, keep in mind safety as well as palatability.

The two most important considerations in selecting a turkey are safety and quality. Make sure that it is USDA inspected and of Grade A quality.

There is no significant difference in quality between a frozen or fresh turkey.

Take extra precautions, however, with frozen, pre-stuffed turkeys: Be sure that they are NOT thawed before they are cooked. Put them in the oven at the roasting temperature while they are still frozen.

There are two methods for thawing frozen, unstuffed turkeys. The preferred method is in the refrigerator where it will take three to five days to thaw a 15- to 25-pound turkey.

The other method is in cold water: Make sure that the water is very cold and is changed every 30 minutes. Always cook the turkey promptly after thawing, since bacteria grow rapidly between 60° and 125°F. Room temperature falls within this range, and that is why thawing a turkey on the kitchen counter is not recommended.

If you blend the stuffing by hand, remember that bacteria from the hands grow well in warm, moist mixture. If a turkey is stuffed and allowed to sit at room temperature before roasting, a large amount of toxins can be produced.

In order to prevent the development of these poisons, stuff your turkey just before cooking it.

Also, do not cook the turkey at a low temperature (under 250°F) for a longer than normal period of time since the quality and safety of the turkey may be questionable.

The best way to determine whether a turkey is thoroughly cooked is by using a meat thermometer. When the temperature of the inner thigh of whole turkeys, or the center of the thickest part of turkey pieces, reaches 180° to 185°F, the turkey is considered safely cooked. The stuffing temperature should reach 165°F.

A second method of determining doneness is to twist the leg joints. If they move easily or break, the turkey is done. Another indication of doneness is when the meat juices look yellow rather than pink.

After the meal is finished, remove the stuffing from all cavities and refrigerate as soon as possible.

Leftover turkey will keep in the refrigerator for up to three to four days if well wrapped. Leftover stuffing and gravy will keep one to two days. Refrigerate or freeze turkey and stuffing in small quantities and in shallow containers so that temperatures will drop quickly below the 60° to 125°F danger zone. Eat leftover frozen turkey and stuffing within one month after storing to ensure the best quality and safest eating.

They love a parade

Well, it's almost that time of year again. Time for the annual Christmas Parade in the Village, traditionally scheduled for the day after Thanksgiving. Some of the sponsors of this year's parade, scheduled to depart from South High at 10:30 a.m., are from left, Susan Dennis, of Susan Charles Pottery, Darrel and Liz Finken, of Sparky Herbert's; a fuzzy-haired clown; Otto Glines, driver of the 1948 fire engine donated to the parade by the Grosse Pointe Woods Lions Club; Santa Claus; George Tilton, also of the Woods Lions Club and Bob Jose, of Grosse Pointe Auto. And let's hear it for good weather for this year's parade!

New program director afire with plans

Jan Arndt says she's enjoying her job as the new program director at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, a position she's held since her appointment in mid-August.

Mrs. Arndt, a Woods resident and graduate of Alma College with a master's from University of Michigan, said hers is a "very excited, varied job." It includes supervising War Memorial-sponsored groups, coordinating youth activities and working with the volunteers at the center who provide clerical and other help.

She was not affiliated with the War Memorial before becoming program director, Mrs. Arndt said. "I just attended various functions here and was aware it was a very vital community center for the area," she added.

Previously, Mrs. Arndt was affiliated with the Northeast Guidance Center, where she was public relations director and volunteer coordinator. She also served more recently as president of the American Association of University Women local chapter, putting her in charge of the overall program for the AAUW.

A large part of her job at the War Memorial is the creation of cultural and educational activities. Members of the community with ideas about things the center might consider taking on are welcome to call her, Mrs. Arndt said.

Some of the things the War Memorial hopes to do is to increase the number of day-tips it offers to three a month, Mrs. Arndt said. The trips are popular, she added, noting "They are a lot of fun, setting them up and going on them."

Ideas "on the drawing board" include cable television production of a financial management or health program, singles' programs expansion and possible babysitting for day-time programs, Mrs. Arndt said.

Board accepts $11,000 in gifts

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education accepted with appreciation gifts totaling almost $11,000 from the Ferry, Richard and Kerby parent-teacher organizations at its Monday, Nov. 12 meeting.

The gifts will be used for the purchase of computers, science materials and playground equipment at the three schools.

The Ferry PTO made a donation of about $2,000 to be used for the purchase of an Apple II computer, software and a printer.

The Richard PTO donated $2,000 so the board can purchase "playscape" play equipment for the Ridge Road playground of the elementary school.

The Kerby PTO donated $6,670 to cover a variety of purchases, including a Commodore 64 computer, disk drive and monitor; program enrichment, service organization and science room materials; playground equipment; computer software; and enrichment activities.

Also included in the donation was $500 to cover the services of a science coordinator, according to the school system.

Dyslexia film at the library

The Grosse Pointe chapter of the Michigan Association of Children with Learning Disabilities will present a movie titled, "Backwards: the Riddle of Dyslexia," at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 20, at the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

The movie is about a teenage boy who is afflicted with dyslexia and how he copes with his disability. Dyslexia is defined as an impairment of the ability to read. Two of those who have suffered with dyslexia are U.S. Olympic decathlete gold-medalist Bruce Jenner and television and movie actor Henry Winkler, according to the MACLD.

Popcorn and soda will be served during the film. A discussion will follow to allow parents to exchange ideas about coping with learning-disabled children.

Future meetings include Dr. Ralph Friedman on Jan. 15, talking about "Self Image and Socialization in the Learning Disabled;" a program Feb. 19 titled "Success in College;" "Meet with Success" March 19; and a "Mock I.E.P.C." or "A Way Through the Maze" on April 16.

For more information about the open meetings, call 882-8237 or 343-9168.

MADD offers victim support

Mothers Against Drunk Driving has a victim support group that meets the third Thursday of every month. Its purpose is to help the surviving victims of drinking and driving crashes, that is those who have had someone close killed or maimed in such crashes.

All are invited to attend these sessions where others who have suffered through such a crisis are on hand to talk with and assist such victims.

This month the meeting will be held Thursday, Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. on the campus of the Henry Ford Community College at 5101 Evergreen Road in Dearborn in room L-13 of the Liberal Arts Building. The campus is located just south of Ford Road near where Hubbard Road meets Evergreen.

As in the past, next month's meeting will be held in the usual location on the campus of the University of Michigan in Dearborn on the third Thursday, Dec. 20 at 7 p.m.

Astrology workshop offered by center

The Center for Jung Studies will sponsor a workshop on the ancient science of astrology on Saturday, Nov. 17, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Miller Hall, Christ Church, in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Shirley Lloyd, astrologer, will lead participants in the application of astrological symbols in a personal way through discussion, art and group interaction. She will direct an exploration of all aspects of the birthchart, the symbolic form of personal potential fulfillment, which inevitably refer to the 12 signs, their significance and their relationship. The more immediate the experience of the archetypal symbols, the greater is the individual's potential for realizing the plenitude of the birthchart.

The cost of the workshop is $20 for members and $25 for non-members. For further information or to pre-register, call 885-8792.

Learn bridge

Frank Welcembach will offer new sessions of Basic Contract Bridge to beginners and intermediates at the War Memorial.

The class for beginners will meet on Tuesday evenings Nov. 29 through Feb. 7. Refresher bridge, which provides one hour of instruction in the finer points of the game and one hour of play, will meet on Mondays, Nov. 19 through Feb. 4.

Both classes will meet from 8 to 10 p.m. and cost $30 for each 10-week session.

Holiday dance for 6th-8th graders

Tickets to the dance, which will feature J.R. Entertainment, are $3 each and must be purchased in advance.

Church will host equal rights talk

Carole King, administrative assistant to Detroit Councilwoman Maryann Mahaffey, will talk about the Equal Rights Amendment Thursday, Nov. 15, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

Ms. King is formerly president of the Michigan National Organization for Women and is currently director of the Great Lakes Regional NOW.

The discussion will be held in the library of the church. The public is invited.

This is one of a series of adult forums organized by Mary Moreshead of the Woods.

For more information, call the church from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 881-0420.

ULS will hold open house

The doors are open for Open House at University Liggett School on Sunday, Nov. 18, 2 to 4 p.m. The school's four divisions -- pre-kindergarten, 3- and 4-year-olds; lower and upper schools, grades 1 to 5 and 9 to 12; and the middle school, grades 6 to 8; welcome everyone in the metro area who would like to learn more about ULS and its programs.

Both campuses will be open. The main campus is at 1045 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, and the middle school site is at 850 Briarcliff Road. Students, faculty and parents will be on hand at both locations to give tours, answer questions and demonstrate typical school-day activities.

University Liggett is the oldest independent day school in Michigan. Students are exposed to programs in the humanities, math, science, the arts and physical education. Dedicated to the concept of personal excellence, students, faculty and administrators form a single community which focuses upon individual responsibility, diversity and concern for others.

A school of 900, ULS draws students from the entire metropolitan area. Transportation, financial aid and an Extended Day program are available. For further information please call the school at 884-4444.

Drugs stolen

The Grosse Pointe Pharmacy on Mack Avenue was the target of thieves intent on one thing only -- drugs. One or more persons cut a hole in the roof of the building Wednesday night or Thursday morning directly above the drug department. A variety of drugs were taken, and according to Woods Detective Bob Kwiatkowski, a value has not been determined.

The two cash registers in the store were untouched. The case is under investigation.

College aid night

Parents who have juniors or seniors enrolled at North High may attend a program that will explain the availability of college financial aid Tuesday, Nov. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Courtney McAnuff, director of financial aid at Eastern Michigan University, will discuss the varsity government programs, the role of the financial aid officer and procedures for applying for aid.

First public interview draws . . .

 portant, adding the situation in Grosse Pointe, where libraries are affiliated with the schools, was unique.

In answer to a question read by board President Joan Hanpeter about declining enrollment and possible consolidations, Whritner said it would be "extremely presumptuous to come in with a set plan" to deal with the problem. "To come in with a package plan and try to force it on the community would be, as I said, extremely presumptuous," he added.

Were it necessary, Whritner said he would not hesitate to come forth with a plan, but only after careful study. His home district was also faced with declining enrollment and set criteria by which a school would be closed. The criteria never were met and the planning was done far enough in advance that the community was well aware of it, he added.

Asked where he thought the transition should be made from elementary to middle school and from middle to high school, Whritner said there was no body of evidence that one split was better than another. His district, he added, followed the K-5, 6-8 and 9-12 split.

Changes in transition grades shouldn't be given educational justification, he said, noting that economic or enrollment pressures should be explained before the change is made.

Whritner also met Monday afternoon with about 30 people who had helped consultants Dr. John Brubacher and Dr. Carl Brautigan put together evaluation standards for the candidates.

Dr. William Brownscombe, who attended the session, said he was "very impressed" with Whritner, adding the applicant had briefed himself well before he came into the meeting.

Whritner handled himself well, Brownscombe said. The group asked about school closings, curriculum, teacher morale and the transition grades for elementary school students, he added.

"I was very impressed with him," Brownscombe said. "I can't think of anything he said that could be counted against him."

The board should hold more interviews in public meetings to give the community a basis for comparison, Brownscombe said, adding he was glad to see the board holding interviews for the community since it was "good public relations."

Trustee Dr. Earnest Buechler said he felt it was important for the community to get involved by coming to hear the interviews.

Although the board hasn't scheduled other interviews yet, there are still a number of strong candidates under consideration, he added.

Mrs. Hanpeter said she didn't know whether there would be more interviews because the chairman of the search committee, Dorothy Kennel, was out of town. The search committee made the recommendation that the full board interview Whritner.

She added she'd received several calls from residents about the open interviews and Whritner's credentials.

Mrs. Hanpeter said she was very impressed with Whritner, adding she thought he "handled the questions well, was open and gave honest answers . . . without trying to sugar-coat them."

The board may decide on a superintendent in a couple of months, she added.

Visually impaired find . . .

The support group, which meets the first and third Wednesdays of every month at the Neighborhood Club from 10:30 a.m. to noon has about a dozen members. They include a man who comes from Birmingham and a woman from Detroit.

Anyone who is visually impaired and his or her driver is welcome to attend the meetings, Mrs. Ricca said, which sometimes features guest speakers who are unable to see and who talk about how they cope. Members of the group are kept up to date on new services for the blind. Sometimes members vent their frustrations at being unable to see and that also is part of the support offered by the group, Mrs. Ricca said.

The group's purpose, she said, is to find help for people so they can live in dignity.

And both Mrs. Gee and Mrs. Sutter are testimony to the fact that losing one's sight is not as tragic as it would first appear.

"After the despair went away, I regarded this as the biggest challenge of my life," Mrs. Sutter said. "I can think of a lot of worse things. It has not impeded my social life."

The proud new grandmother of baby Jessica is the chairman of the instrument fund of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association.

Mrs. Gee is president of the Detroit branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, a group founded by Jane Addams, the social reformer, in 1915. Besides belonging to a "good many other peace organizations," she is a charter member of the Grosse Pointe Symphony and a member of the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts, the American Association of University Women, the League of Women Voters and the National Association for Social Workers. She is also a member of Christ Church.

 amins office showed a blood alcohol level of .12.

According to police reports, Diener stated that he and Mr. Siero had been drinking at a local tavern, had become involved in an altercation with another patron, and had left.

Diener allegedly said they had been driving back at a high rate of speed, discussing the altercation when their car ran over the curb and into the tree. Diener is expected to undergo a preliminary examination later this month. At such an exam, it is determined if a crime has indeed been committed and if the person charged is thought to be the probable cause of the crime.

According to police sources, conviction of a negligent homicide charged can result in a maximum two-year sentence in prison and or a fine.

New justice makes plans

By Pat Paholsky

Dorothy Comstock Riley, elected to the Michigan Supreme Court last week, said she is busy digging her way out of mounds of correspondence. Since she answers her mail herself and usually by hand, she figures she'll be working up to the final hour before she takes her seat on the court Jan. 1.

Mrs. Riley defeated Justice Thomas Giles Kavanagh last week by about 500,000 votes. He had been pened. I had nothing more to say. "I felt if I lost, I should not say another word. I believe in putting periods on things. And if I won, I thought it important to cut it off."

Mrs. Riley said she is looking forward to seeing the public's confidence in the court restored.

"I also want the legal community to feel they can respect their court and to be proud to say they are a part of the Michigan court system," she said. "The way we will get that is by doing our work promptly and disposing of the issues."

And for the time being, Mrs. Riley is racing against the clock easing her way out of her law practice, answering those letters and making plans to hire a staff of law clerks and a secretary. She's hoping to take a few days vacation during the Christmas holidays.

Other Grosse Pointe residents who were elected to office last week are listed in an editorial on page 6A.

the longest-serving member of the court, first elected in 1968.

During the campaign, which she began formally in March, the Farms resident said the court had lost respect with the public. She charged that the court lacked leadership. She foresees no problems, however, in working now with the other justices.

"One of the things I did on the day of the election was I issued a press release that afternoon thanking the people of Michigan, particularly the media and my family and friends, for their support," Mrs. Riley said. "My purpose (in raising issues) was to focus attention on the court and whatever hap-

Fire chief witnesses department's growth

By Harriet Nolan

Thirty-five years ago streetcars ran on Gratiot and Jefferson avenues, Cunningham Drug Stores served lime rickeys at marble topped soda fountains, theaters held free dish day for ladies with the price of an admission and firefighters learned their trade by the seat of their pants.

"In the old days, it was like an army," says Phillip Costa. "The men were a hearty, tough breed who relied on courage. Then you learned by grabbing the shirttails of the commanding officer, following him and relying on your wits."

Arms crossed, leaning back in his chair, Costa reminisced about the changes he's seen since joining the Grosse Pointe Park Fire Department, first serving as a rookie and now as its chief.

"Many men took the job for security and used to work seven days straight and then get 24 hours off," says Costa. "They chopped down doors to get at fires, used hoses that pumped excessive amounts of water causing damage, and ran the risk of suffocating or getting badly burned."

Today, self-contained Scott Air-Packs have replaced face masks that depended on getting 16 percent oxygen from the air in order to filter out noxious fumes, according to Costa. Care is taken to avoid damaging furniture and adjacent parts of burning homes and hoses now release water by computerized droplets to absorb the heat and turn it into steam that condenses and cools.

Accident victims are no longer trapped in auto wrecks while fireman cut through metal with welding torches that ignite sparks. Hydraulic-operated equipment resembling large pliers and scissors put thousands of pounds of pressure into operation and neatly shear metal off the top of cars and steering wheels in record time.

"Now men have gloves that can pick up red-hot objects and grab onto glass," says Costa. "They wear helmets that you can drop bricks on. You may get a headache, but it won't crush or split the helmet."

"And lifesaving procedures, previously known only to doctors and nurses, are being used by firemen who are taught emergency medical training. It helps reduce the victim's degree of injury and hospital recovery time," he adds.

Costa remembers when fire masks were at a premium at the station and trainees, on probation, had to wear their own clothes to work. "I had been there less than a week," he says. "It was Easter Sunday and the chief had just said 'we'd probably have a quiet day' when we saw smoke in the sky.

"It was my first fire and I was wearing dress slacks, a white shirt and tie. I remember coming back to the station and rolling all my clothes in a ball. To this day, I don't know what my wife did with them," he adds.

That roof fire would only be the first of many for Costa, who remembers that during the winters of 1948 through 1951, the department averaged about 12 a month. "Every house south of Jefferson on Nottingham and Beaconsfield must have had a roof fire of some sort in my time," he says.

Saving lives and property gives a feeling of satisfaction one can't get from building cars, according to Costa. He says when his men do something good, they come back to the station and talk about it.

"They go out and deliver babies and put out a roaring fire before it eats up the whole house," he says. "It's a dirty job, but there's great satisfaction and they feel like heroes."

But Costa, born 62 years ago and raised in the predominately Italian neighborhoods of St. Aubin and Erskine, and later Harper and Gratiot, recalls he didn't intend to become a fireman after graduating from Wilbur Wright Vocational Trade School.

In fact, he remembers feeling on top of the world working as a tool and dye designer at Ex-Cello Corporation and married three months to Anne, a young Austrian artist he met through his sister.

But he got a call from Uncle Sam and found himself in an army camp in Fort Wheeler, Ga., training for overseas duty. From there he was assigned to Australia and made the 40 day trip on a 600-passenger cruise ship packed tightly with 3,000 seaskick soldiers.

While stationed at Camp Ascot in Australia, Costa heard his name called and was sent to Brisbane.

"To a beautiful hotel with hot water and two people in a room," he says. "I thought it was the last supper until I learned I had been assigned to General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters to help translate Japanese map topography into English."

When MacArthur needed an athletic director for troops stationed in New Guinea, Costa, who describes himself as a fairly decent ball player fit the bill and spent the rest of his duty traveling and playing baseball. From there he was transferred to the Philippines. His next destination, Okinawa, was re-ruoted when it was learned that Japan had surrendered. He finally ended up in Japan and returned to the states four months later.

Settling back into civilian life, Costa lived on Wayburn. He had rejoined Ex-Cello Corporation and was traveling around the country as a service engineer when his sister-in-law gave him an application for Park fireman, an application her husband had decided not to use.

"At that time my aim wasn't to protect people like many firemen do," says Costa. "I wasn't fond of traveling all over the country and wanted to be close to my family."

He was in Pittsburgh, Pa., when he got his notice to take the fireman exam. He drove back overnight, took the test and returned to his job the same day.

He tied for the top spot, but lost out to the other applicant who had lived in the Park longer. Six months later another opening occurred and he took the job.

"I did know that I wanted to set my sights on becoming an officer in the department someday," says Costa. "I took any extra training I could and enrolled in a fire master-ship program at Macomb Community College, all on a voluntary basis."

Always placing first on examinations he took, Costa became fire inspector in 1961 where he worked an eight-hour shift inspecting commercial buildings, multiple dwellings and schools.

"The job paid the huge sum of $150 more a year than a firefighter," says Costa. "But it was a position that would mean gaining more knowledge."

In 1962, he was appointed sergeant, and in 1967, he made lieutenant. Continuing to take management classes, he filled the newly created position of assistant chief in 1970 and was named fire chief in 1972.

Many programs have been implemented throughout the years with Costa's help. A house-to-house fire inspection program established in 1953 is the last of its kind in the United States, he says. In the late '60s, the department converted a station wagon into a makeshift ambulance and Costa became a first aid training officer, teaching men how to aid citizens.

"The department purchased a Ford Van in 1972 with a regular stretcher and radio and we thought we were really in business until the state came along and handed out more criteria," says Costa. "So three of our men became emergency medical technicians."

"Through incentives, nine additional people received training and we were recognized by the state of Michigan as the first fully trained ambulance service in the Pointes.

"We did it because the men felt it was a way to serve the community at its fullest potential. Fire prevention programs are ongoing, and two ambulances, equipment, buildings, and all the other gadgets used to save lives and property are maintained.

"Now I've got satisfaction for having done my job well. I've served the community and always gave a bit extra," he adds.

Schools are working on cable programming

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Local schools may not yet be giving WTWS' "College Cable" a run for its money for access on Grosse Pointe Cable's education Channel 19, but they are back in the running with an average of four to five hours of programming a week.

The schools, public, private and parochial, hope to produce six to eight hours of programming each week by the end of the year, one of three recommendations made in a study last year titled "The Cable Connection," according to public schools assistant to the superintendent Bruce Kefgen.

The study also recommended the district purchase equipment, such as cameras and video cassette recorders, as well as reassign staff to handle production and direction of programming. The district spent $15,000 for equipment. Kimberly Kirkpatrick, North's performing arts center technical director, has taken on much of the cable directing duties, Kefgen said.

The school system surveyed other districts to find out what kind of programming they developed for their systems, Kefgen said. Three types of programs were found to be most popular: interview, instructional and student activities shows.

The system had developed a four-program series titled "Education in Our Town," which Kefgen hosts. The series includes interviews with Dr. George Eddington, director of Community Education; Christian Fenton, public schools business manager; school board trustee Dorothy Kennel on choosing a superintendent; and Marge Nixon, coordinator of volunteers.

Taping may be done of selected Community Education classes or special speakers that come to the schools for later broadcast, Kefgen said. The programs will then reach more people than those in the classroom, he said.

Video cassettes can be used not only for instruction, but can be stored to be recalled and reused when needed, Kefgen said. A once-in-a-lifetime speaker becomes available to all present and future classes through the use of the videotape, he added.

"It's potential for reaching out is tremendous," he said. "Instead of reaching just those 20 or so kids in the classroom, you can reach 2,000 or 20,000 people in the community. It becomes teaching for more than one class."

Sports events are very popular, but the district needs qualified people to handle the commentary and must also work to make its programming representative of the district, Kefgen said. To do that, the system has tried to tape one sport a season from each school, including "minor" sports, so called because of relatively low numbers of students involved, he added.

The system should also tape the monthly board of education meeting for rebroadcast, Kefgen said.

While the meetings may not always be interesting, the community should have the opportunity to watch its administration at work, Kefgen said. "Programming ought to be community-oriented. That's what it's about; watching your friends, neighbors or kids on television," he added.

The system could probably put together 10 to 12 hours of programming a week average, but not much more than that, Kefgen said. Schools are limited by lack of personnel and money in developing programs, he added.

Kefgen and Ms. Kirkpatrick are the only two staff members who devote considerable time to cable television production, with the rest handled by volunteers. The district's $15,000 equipment cost is a one-time expense and there is no programming budget, Kefgen said.

Other districts, like Birmingham, have yearly programming budgets and permanent staff to develop programming, he added.

Also, the schools last year signed an agreement with Grosse Pointe Cable for the 15-hour prime time slot, 8 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. The rest of Channel 19 time is taken by College Cable programs which are produced by WTWS.

Kefgen, who negotiated the compromise, noted that schools originally had two channels for education purposes. One of those was taken by C-SPAN, which covered congressional floor debates, committee hearings and other programming.

The franchise agreement said the channels were to be used for educational purposes and C-SPAN was brought in because the company said it was educational programming, Kefgen said. The public and private schools got the good time slot for the programming during the weekly prime time, he added.

Were the schools to produce more than 15 hours of programming a week, it is likely their slot on Channel 19 could be expanded, he added.

Despite the limitations, Kefgen said he's pleased with the district's progress so far. Something he would like to see is the construction of a studio that could double as a teaching station. A studio would get students involved in cable television production as well as teaching them about production.

Wagner to perform Sunday

David Wagner, concert organist and radio personality, will present a recital at the First English Ev. Lutheran Church Sunday, Nov. 18, at 3:30 p.m. The church, located at 800 Vernier Road in the Woods, is recognized for its exceptional acoustics.

Wagner, who has performed throughout Michigan, Ohio and In-Meadowbrook Music Festival.

He has served as a teaching fellow at the University of Michigan and assistant professor of music at Macomb Community College. He is currently adjunct assistant professor of music at Madonna College in Livonia.

Wagner is the afternoon host at WQRS-FM, Detroit classical music station. He is also director of music and manager of the concert series at St. Paul's Church in the Farms.

Tickets are $8 each and $6 for students and senior citizens. A limited number of premium balcony seats are still available at $15 each. Tickets will be available at the door or by calling 884-5040 during business hours.

"I think we're being blind if we don't realize that working in television and broadcasting is a very viable career," Kefgen said. "If you really want to do it (production), there's going to be a career in it."

Schools are playing catch-up with the world's technology, Kefgen said, adding the system will have to "recognize the technologies of the 20th century that we haven't given proper consideration."

"You know, I agree with what (Utica superintendent) Don Bemis said about schools. He said we have the two most important things to people, their kids and their money."

"Cable television gives us the opportunity to keep the community involved and informed and to show them what we're doing with their kids and their money," he added.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

On Thanksgiving Eve, when most of us are thinking of tomorrow's turkey and trimmings, of parades and football, a band of men, decked out in black tie, gathers at the Detroit Club for a Very Special Feast, its origins more than 100 years in the past. They're the Brothers of Delta Kappa Epsilon, and they gather annually on this most inconvenient date to renew old and establish new friendships spanning several decades and multiple generations.

This traditional banquet stretches back at least to 1873, when The Omicron Literary Association was formed to build the Deke "Shant," the first fraternity building on the University of Michigan campus — and the oldest still standing. The site of the dinner has varied over the years, but traditionally (and tradition is very important at and about this banquet!) it has been held at the Detroit Club, to which it returned eight years ago after a slight hiatus.

Maitre d' Calvin Young, who has presided over more than 15 of these affairs, promises his typical elaborate feast, capped with toasts and cigars. This year's edition starts with a business meeting at 6 p.m., followed by cocktails and dinner at 7 p.m., with speeches and songs until ... who knows when?

Pointers, who have always comprised a significant percentage of the fraternity's local membership, will be well represented at the banquet. Farms residents currently fill three undergraduate leadership positions: Robert Kost, president of the U. of M. chapter, George McKean, rush chairman, and Robert Hickey, pledge trainer. Woods resident Brian Connors is chapter treasurer.

With the pledging of Jim Roland to join brothers Dick and Dave, and Dave Sutherland to follow in the footsteps of brothers Malcolm and Mark, the fraternity now has two sets of three brothers — an event that last happened when Stu Dow joined brothers Pete and Bryden more than 20 years ago.

Other undergraduates from The Pointe feasting at the Detroit Club next Wednesday will include Jeff VanTassel, Al Schwartz, Matt Howell and John Hurley, who will be attending with his father, Bill. Pointe residents playing an active role in the fraternity's alumni operations include David Easlick Jr., alumni president, John Lambrecht and Ray Ploughman, board members, Dick Kost and R.T. Johnstone, Rampant Lion Foundation trustees, George Zinn, Bill Moll and George Nicholson, housing partnership members, and Mart Oetting, Gilchrist Loan trustee.

As always, an excellent turnout is expected. The featured speaker will be Duncan Andrews, executive director of DKE International. The banquet is opened to alumni and actives from all chapters, who may contact Dave Easlick at 343-9123 for reservations.

Big holiday happenings on-the-Hill for children

Andrew and Jeffrey Maurer were born two months premature. Their low birth weight and other complications required neo-natal intensive care for over a month before they could be taken home; two years later it was learned that both children have cerebral palsy.

The twin boys, pictured at right, now participate in physical and occupational therapy at The Detroit Institute for Children on a weekly basis. They are fairly typical of the more than 3,000 children D.I.C. treats every year as it seeks to normalize a child's lifestyle as much as possible, focusing on abilities as well as disabilities to provide comprehensive care.

Jeffrey is able to ambulate with the aid of a walker. Andrew is unable to walk. Both use motorized chairs as their main source of assistance with mobility.

"D.I.C. involves us in the care for the twins so that, together, staff and family can encourage Andrew and Jeffrey to become more active, vital and independent people," say Anne and Mike Maurer, the boys' parents.

The Maurer twins began school this fall in the kindergarten class at Monteith in The Woods. They are excited about it, "eager to learn and able to use the tools of kindergarten, such as pencils, crayons or scissors, even though their patterns of movement are not always the most efficient or well-coordinated," Mrs. Maurer says.

"An Old-Fashioned Celebration" will be held this weekend throughout the Hill shopping area of Grosse Pointe Farms for the benefit of The Detroit Institute for Children. This three-day (Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 16, 17 and 18) fund raising event is part of the Sigma Gamma Association's celebration of its 80th year of community service.

neurological, developmental and emotional disabilities.

Merchants in the Hill shopping area, between Fisher and Muir Roads on Kercheval Avenue, will be donating a percentage of designated Saturday and Sunday sales to D.I.C. Free parking will be available at all city meters officially covered by bags. Street minstrels and mimes will guide shoppers and strollers to a Gingerbread House Workshop, a Holiday Flower Shop, a "For Children Only" gift boutique — and a United Parcel Service Mailing Center, where purchases can be boxed and shipped.

Calliope music and the aromas of roasting chestnuts and baking pretzels will help create a mood of excitement and fun-for-the-family festivity.

It all begins tomorrow, at 6:30 p.m., with a Tree and Street

Krause-Hills rites in June

Marriage vows were spoken Saturday, June 9, at the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, Oak Forest, Ill., by Sarah Marie Hills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester I. Hills Jr., of Oak Forest, and Timothy Scott Krause, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane K. Krause, of Briarcliff Drive.

The Reverend Warren D. Freiheit presided at the 4:30 o'clock double ring ceremony. It was followed by a reception and dinner in the ballroom of the South Suburban Holiday Inn, Harvey, Ill., where the tables featured centerpieces of pink, white and lavender flowers.

The bride's white organza gown featured an Alencon lace bodice with leg-of-mutton sleeves and an off-the-shoulder neckline accented with orange blossoms. Her A-line skirt, appliqued with seed pearl-studded Alencon lace, flowed into a cathedral train edged with matching lace.

An orange blossom and seed pearl neapiece caught her fingertip veil, highlighted with scattered pearls, and she carried a cascade of Bridal White roses, white freesia, stephanotis, baby's-breath and English ivy.

In identical dresses of Dior Rose taffeta, styled with round necklines dipping to a low V in back, were honor maid Teresa Bush, of Oak Forest, and bridesmaids Valerie Cline, also of Oak Forest, and the bride's college roommates, Julie Kositzke, of Appleton, Wis., and Sherry Hitzke, of Hinsdale, Ill.

Their waists were accented with large back bows, falling into a drape effect. Bows also accented their short, puffed sleeves. They carried round bouquets of Bridal Pink roses, white miniature carnations, lavender freesia and purple status.

Flower girl Lisa Wyrock, of The Woods, a relative of the bridegroom, wore a pale pink dress identical in style to those worn by the senior attendants, and carried a basket of matching flowers and hanging ivy.

Bob Krause, of Chicago, acted as best man for his brother. Guests were seated by Mark Leibrock, of Park Ridge, Ill., David Buck, of Bellevue, Ohio, and Peter Koenig, of The Woods.

The mother of the bride selected a long gown of aqua blue chiffon and a sheer overlay jacket with long, sheer, lace-cuffed sleeves, matching the lace at her neckline. She wore a wrist corsage of Bridal White roses and baby's-breath.

The bridegroom's mother's long gown of pale mauve pink featured a lace bodice, a crystal-pleated skirt and three-quarter length, crystal-pleated sleeves, ending in lace cuffs. She wore a wrist corsage of Bridal Pink roses and purple violets.

Her honor attendant was her sister, Kathleen Stoller, of Birmingham. Bridesmaids were Margaret Monaghan and Mary O'Sullivan. They wore tea length dresses of peach crepe de chine. Peach carnations and lace accented their bouquets.

Best man was Michael O'Sullivan. Mark Monaghan and Sean Fielding, of Boulder, Colo., ushered. Flower girl was Natalie Stoller, the bride's niece. Ring bearer was Aaron Swanson, the bride's son.

Coury-Brown vows spoken

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brown, of Bloomfield Hills. Mr. Brown sang "Perhaps Love" and The Lord's Prayer at the wedding service. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Coury, of Young Lane.

The Reverend Guenther Branstner presided at the rites for which the former Miss Brown selected a gown of taffeta and Chantilly lace, styled with a sweetheart neckline and flounced skirt. A layered train of Chantilly lace fell from a cluster of silk roses at her waistline.

She wore a fingertip veil and blusher, and carried an arrangement of 20 white roses with trailing ivy.

Debra Susan Brown, of Athens, Ga., honor maid for her sister, and bridesmaids Karen Brown, another sister, Rosalyn Coury, the bridegroom's sister-in-law, Julie Byrwa and Sherri Isaacson, both

British play to open Fine Arts' season

The Fine Arts Society of Detroit opens its 1984-85 season with Friday and Saturday, Nov. 16 and 17, performances of "Separate Tables" at the Players Playhouse on East Jefferson Avenue. Rae Kuhn is directing, with assistance from Maureen Bruce.

The play, first produced at London's St. James Theatre in 1954, was written by Terrence Rattigan. It intersperses comedy, love and drama, focusing on the lives and relationships of a potpourri of characters living in a small, private hotel in Bournemouth, England, during the 1950s.

The curtain opens on the hotel dining room where the characters, sitting at separate tables, are introduced. Lady Matheson (portrayed by Norma Gohle), Miss Meacham (Mary Whitley), Mrs. Railton-Bell (Dorothy Ludwig) and Mr. Fowler (Ken Kurtz) are talking to one another across the room, and giving orders to waitresses Mabel and Doreen (Joanne Davis and Sarah Peters).

Only one table is shared. Its occupants are Mr. Stratton (Mike Traicoff), a medical student, and his friend Miss Tanner (Yolanda Turner).

The newcomer to the group is Mrs. Shankland (Mildred Avedisian), former wife of Mr. Malcolm (Steve Shrader), writer and political satirist. Completing the first act cast is Miss Cooper (Joanne Koch), proprietress of the hotel.

The second act takes place in the same hotel several years later. All the same characters are present, with the exceptions of Mrs. Shankland and Mr. Malcolm. Two new characters take center stage: Major Pollock, a "dirty old man," played by Tom Peters, and Miss Railton-Bell, the shy, retiring daughter of Mrs. Railton-Bell. Miss Railton-Bell is portrayed by Mildred Avedisian in a tour de force switch from her previous glamorous appearance as Mrs. Shankland.

Joanne and Paul Koch have opened their home for rehearsals. Producers of the show which inaugurates Fine Arts' 79th year are Sherry and Barry Trombley. Maureen Bruce is stage manager.

Set design and dressing are being handled by Ken Kurtz, properties by Sue and Ben Gravel, costuming by Sally van Deventer. Make-up is under the direction of Jeannie Whitfield. Jeff Kurtz is in charge of lighting. Hosts and hostesses are being organized by Jean Dickinson. Photographs are by Martha Ann Kurtz.

Pearl Linder is compiling the program, Marianne Shrader is doing the publicity, and reservations for Theatre Arts' members and their guests are being taken by Judy Mecum, with the help of Liz Aikens.

DIA features Bach Brunch each Sunday

Brunch with Bach performances at 10 and 11:30 a.m. continue on Sundays in November in the Detroit Institute of Arts' indoor garden cafe, Kresge Court. Two menu selections are offered: a full brunch featuring a hot main course at $7.75 and a substantial continental brunch at $6.75.

Stairway seating at considerably less cost is also available, but on a limited basis. Reservations are required for all performances; they may be made through the museum's ticket office — 832-2730 during regular business hours — as early as a month in advance and as late as the Friday before a desired performance.

The month opened with pianist Bernard Katz presenting music of Scarlatti, Schumann and Chopin Nov. 4. Compositions by Hummel and Britten were featured last Sunday, Nov. 11, by John Snow, oboe, and Marie-Paule Parcellis, piano.

Earnestine Nimmons, soprano, Douglas Cornelson, clarinet, and Lawrence LaGore, piano, will perform works by Schubert, Bizet and Barber on Sunday, Nov. 18. The month closes with Jerome Jelinek, violoncello, and Joseph Gurt, piano, playing music of Bach and Schumann on Sunday, Nov. 25.

Pointe Book Club to meet

The Pointe Book Club will meet Monday, Nov. 19, at the home of Mrs. William Hosbein who will be assisted by co-hostesses Mrs. John Marshall and Mrs. Bernard Whitley. Following luncheon and a business session, Mrs. Benjamin Zenn, of the Grosse Pointe Library Service, will review several current books, including "Lincoln" by Gore Vidal, "First Among Equals" by Jeffrey Archer and "Strong Medicine" by Arthur Haley.

Support group assists WSU Med School

FRIENDS of Wayne State University School of Medicine will hold their fall general meeting Tuesday, Nov. 27, at the Detroit Institute of Arts. The day begins at 11 a.m. with a Docent-guided tour of "The American Masters: Baron Thyssen-Bornemisza Collection," one of the world's largest privately owned art collections.

The exhibit visit will be followed by a wine reception at noon and luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Park resident Audrey France, FRIENDS' president, will officiate at the business meeting beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Reservations for the program planned by Mary Kaufman are limited, priced at $10 per person covering all events. Mrs. France may be contacted at 824-7027 for further information.

The FRIENDS celebrated the opening of the Medical Museum at the Gordon H. Scott Hall of Basic Medical Sciences at a dedication ceremony and 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. reception on the first Friday of November. Mrs. France served on the dedication committee, along with Harriet Bernstein and Shirley Weiner, under chairman Gloria Krabbenhoft.

Theme of the Medical Museum is pre-1900. Among the interesting objects, all loaned or donated, it contains is a model of an early doctor dressed in a frock coat, striped trousers, collar, bow tie, shoes and beaver top hat.

Also on display are a transfusion syringe, a hearing aid, a bleeder kit and a Civil War surgeon's instrument kit, with lead pellets.

Supporting and encouraging activities and projects, such as the museum, helpful to the WSU School of Medicine is the purpose of the men and women who belong to FRIENDS. Monies from the FRIENDS' Proctoring Committee, chaired by Farms resident Aline Orten, contributed greatly to the museum's establishment.

Murder, for the Nonce

Advanced modern and ballet dancers are invited to audition for an innovative murder mystery dance by choreographer Denise Szykula on Saturday, Dec. 1, at the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College. Doors will open at 1 p.m. for individual warm-up. Auditions begin at 2 p.m. Further information may be obtained by calling 776-3593.

The story of "Quintet: A Dance of Mystery and Murder" was written by Pointe-bred Thomas LoCicero, award-winning producer and director at WXYZ-TV Channel 7. It calls for five main characters plus supporting dancers. Rehearsals will begin the third week of January in Grosse Pointe. "Quintet" is scheduled to premier in early June at the Wallace F. Smith Theatre for the Performing Arts on the Orchard Ridge campus.

The project is supported in part by the Michigan Council for the Arts. The choreographer is winner of the 1984 Michigan Foundation of the Arts Achievement Award, founder and artistic director of the Nonce Dance Ensemble: a modern dance company that has been entertaining Detroit metropolitan area audiences for the past 11 years.

Bazaars, for the Weekend

Continuing our effort to keep you current on this season's holiday marts/bazaars, we list two scheduled for this weekend, one in the Saint Clare of Montefalco Church Auditorium, Mack Avenue and Whittier Road, one in the Social Hall and school hallways of Saint Peter Church, Vernier Road near Beaconsfield, across from Eastland Center.

If you're in the market for a dulcimer (and who isn't?), the Saint Clare Country Craft Show is the place to go. It runs from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children ages 6 to 14.

Saint Clare's is the show with the Colonial flavor. There'll be demonstrations in Colonial crafts, and 50 exhibitors offering, in addition to dulcimers, Colonial furniture, tin ware, weavings, pottery, quilt goods, dolls, brooms, laces, shaker boxes, baskets, carved birds, patchwork... and much more.

Over at Saint Peter's, the Altar Society's 11th Annual Arts and Crafts Show running from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, presents more than 80 tables of Christmas gifts, soft-sculptured and porcelain dolls, folk art, crocheted work, pillows, quilts, pottery... and much more. Admission is free. Hot sandwiches and other foods will be available for on-the-spot eating. A Bake Sale will offer take-home treats.

Carol Is Hanging Around

If you didn't make it out to Trenton last weekend for the Fall Festival of the Arts at Saint Thomas Episcopal Church, you missed seeing Grosse Pointe artist Carol A. Sinclair's work on display there. But you don't have to go outside The Pointe to view the very detailed pen-and-ink, watercolor work of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association's first vice-president.

Her commissioned portrait of the newly-remodeled Grosse Pointe Shores Municipal Building hangs in the office of Shores Village Manager Michael Kenyon. And her commissioned portrait of Robert Trombly School was presented to Sheila Joyce, principal, by P.T.O. President Florinne (Mrs. Donald C.) McCain Jr. recently, at Trombly's Annual Parents' Night. That portrait is on display with the portraits of past-principals of Trombly School.

Berry Lecture is Tomorrow

If you haven't made reservations for the subscription luncheon following tomorrow morning's Berry Memorial Lecture, you've left it too late: the luncheon reservation deadline was yesterday. But you can still attend John L. Enterline's "Holiday Decorations-Back to Basics" program at 10:30 a.m. Friday, Nov. 16, in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Fries Auditorium. Just show up at the door, $5 in hand if you're not a member of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center. If you are a Garden Center member, you don't even need $5: you get in free.

Book Review Group to meet

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's Book Review Group meets next Tuesday, Nov. 20, at 1 p.m. after a noon luncheon at the church to hear Marjorie Little Oakman review "Angel in the Parlor: Five Stories and Eight Essays" by Nancy Willard. Group chairman Mabel Hillegas will introduce the afternoon program.

Nancy Willard, a native of Ann Arbor, has received many awards for her poems, fiction and essays. She is a witty, creative artist who spins her own experiences into stories that reflect the world through the magic of her imagination.

Marnie Oakman, herself a creative writer, has some interesting and exclusive stories about Nancy's family and their old Victorian home in Ann Arbor.

The reviewer was graduated from Denison University with a degree in English Literature and studied at the Detroit Conservatory of Music. She is a member of Memorial Church's Chancel Choir and active in the creative arts groups of the Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Visitors are welcome at the book review and at the luncheon preceding it in Fellowship Hall, but reservations are requested for the luncheon. They may be made by calling 882-5330. Nursery care is provided.

A good year for nuts

The holiday season is just beginning, and already MRS. DEWEY NORTON (left), of The Woods, and MRS. DWIGHT BLACK, of The Farms, are going nuts — over the Smith College Club of Detroit's Annual (25-plus years) Pecan Sale. Proceeds provide funds for the endowed scholarship at Smith, located in Northampton, Mass., awarded to area students; its most recent recipient is Vicki Blodgett, of Detroit, 1982 Valedictorian of her Renaissance High School class. This is not only a good season but a good year for nuts, the Mesdames Norton and Black report. Deluxe mammoth halves, perfect for holiday baking or giving, are available in one-pound packages for $5.50. A special recipe sheet comes with each purchase. Pecans may be ordered by calling 884-9432 (evenings) or 881-7810 (days). If you prefer, you can purchase them on-the-spot at CM Gallery, 17 Kercheval Avenue on-the-Hill.

Jan Kay, president, Judy Jablonski, vice-president, and Fran Bassett, secretary/treasurer, greeted those attending. The evening's entertainment was provided by Ginny Shover at the piano.

New wives welcomed into the group this year include Mrs. Peter Comilla, whose husband teaches remedial reading, Mrs. Daniel Griesbaum, whose husband teaches health education at Grosse Pointe South High School, Mrs. Ernest Kalina, whose husband teaches second grade at Richard, and Mrs. Rex Marshall, whose husband teaches industrial arts at Pierce.

More are Mrs. Francis Martin, whose husband teaches chemistry at South High, Mrs. Blaine Morrow, whose husband is at Grosse Pointe Central Library, Mrs. James Rakowski, whose husband teaches science at South High, and Mrs. Harold Tiburzi, whose husband teaches industrial arts at Grosse Pointe North High School.

DSO Chamber Series offered

Music from the 17th to the 20th centuries will be featured in the 1984-85 Detroit Symphony Orchestra Chamber Concert Series, to be presented on Friday evenings and Sunday afternoons in Orchestra Hall.

Six concerts led by three conductors will feature six soloists, all members of the DSO, performing with the DSO Chamber Orchestra. Subscriptions to the three Friday and the three Sunday concerts are on sale at $20, $18 and $16, a considerable savings over the purchase of single tickets, until Thursday, Nov. 22.

Single tickets may also be purchased. Ticket information may be obtained by calling 567-1400.

English Conductor Christopher Hogwood will pay tribute to the music of Handel (1685 is the 300th anniversary of his birth) in the series' opening concert Friday, Nov. 23, and Sunday, Nov. 25. Hogwood, a well-known early music expert, appeared with the orchestra last season in three performances of Handel's "Messiah."

DSO Resident Conductor Kenneth Jean, who led last year's six-concert chamber series, will be on the podium for programs featuring works of J.S. Bach, Haydn, Handel, Mozart, Britten and others on Friday, Jan. 25, and Sunday, Jan. 27. Jean, with the DSO since 1978, also serves as principal guest conductor of the Hong Kong Philharmonic.

Vittorio Negri, a specialist in music of the Baroque era and of the Venetian masters, will lead concerts on Friday, Mar. 8, and Sunday, Mar. 10. His programs offer a number of works not previously performed by the DSO at these chamber concerts.

DSO soloists include principal flutist Ervin Monroe, trumpeters Ramon Parcels (principal) and Kevin Good, and violinists Geoffrey Applegate, Ann Alicia Ourada and Stacey Woolley.

Yachtswomen hold meeting

Celebrate with Santa

FRAN and ANDY PASTORIA, chairing the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center's "Celebrate with Santa" party, invite League members and friends to join them Saturday, Nov. 24, at 7:30 p.m. to kick off the opening of "Santa Haus," the official 1984 Pointe residence of Mr. and Mrs. Claus (in other seasons, it's known as the St. Paul's Parish House) at 147 Lakeshore Road. Santa Haus, in its fourth year, gives metropolitan area children a chance to visit the Clauses in their own, holiday-decorated home. The youngsters will be treated to juice and cookies, a story or movie, and have a chance to shop. The Haus will be open to little visitors for three weeks, Nov. 28 to Dec. 19 — but the initial party is for grown-ups. Refreshments, hors d'oeuvres and dessert will be served. Bob DuRant, who has been musical director for the League's "Collies," will be at the piano. Honored guests will be Dr. Jon York, the NEGC's resigning director, and his wife Kathy, who will be moving out of town. Both have worked with the League as chairmen and/or volunteers on many projects during the past five years. All proceeds from Santa Haus go to the NEGC, which provides mental and emotional health care to people of Grosse Pointe, Harper Woods and northeast Detroit, on an ability-to-pay basis. Reservations and information about "Celebrate with Santa" and the Santa Haus may be obtained by calling 824-8000.

To consider '84 election

How did media coverage of political polls prior to the election influence voters?

Are presidential debates good or bad?

Alexander P. Gage, vice-president, Political Division, Market Opinion Research, explores these questions and more tonight, Thursday, Nov. 15, as he looks back on the 1984 national election process — and ahead to future elections — at a dinner meeting at the Detroit Press Club co-sponsored by the Detroit Chapters of Women in Communications (WICI) and the Society of Professional Journalists.

Reservation deadline for the program was yesterday. Information on WICI and its activities may be obtained by contacting Barbara Ahlberg, of Mount Clemens, at 791-1277.

Tickets for the programs, ranging in price from $13 to $19, are available at the Ford Auditorium box office, 567-1400, Hudson's and CTC/Ticket World outlets. Group rate information may be obtained by calling 446-0909.

Hilberry fetes 'best friends'

Wayne State University President David Adamany entertained the Hilberry Theatre's Golden Chair Holders and Sponsors at a special performance of the musical revue "Cole" in mid-October at the Hilberry.

The evening celebrated the theatre's 22nd season of outstanding community support. It began with a dinner sponsored by Hilberry's "Understudies" at McGregor Memorial Conference Center, and ended with a post-performance champagne reception with members of the repertory company in the theatre foyer.

It was also the occasion to celebrate another record breaking year for fund raising by the Understudies, the association of metropolitan area women who have assumed the task of finding Sponsors to contribute to the support of the graduate students who make up the Hilberry company.

Mrs. Wilber Hadley Mack, of The Pointe, Understudies president, reported that $78,000 had been raised — $550 more than during last year's record breaking campaign. The President's Preview annually culminates the Understudies' fund raising drive for support of the company, unique in the nation.

which this year consists of 20 actors and actresses, three stage managers, nine scenic assistants, three costume and four lighting assistants and seven management assistants.

Among those attending the preview were, from The Pointe, Mr. and Mrs. Mack, Dr. and Mrs. L. Murray Thomas, Dr. and Mrs. John Balian, Dr. and Mrs. C. Jackson France, Justice and Mrs. G. Mennen Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Saad Elias Zara, Mrs. Joseph A. Vance Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wilber M. Brucker Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Vollrad J. von Berg, Mr. and Mrs. Bogdan Baynert, Dr. and Mrs. Carl W. Lohmann, Mr. and Mrs. Edward St. C. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wall and Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Tullag.

Hilberry's 1984-85 season includes eight productions, presented in rotating repertory: Shakespeare's "Hamlet," a new play by Stephen Taylor, "Appear and Show Cause," in a pre-Broadway production, Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," Sheridan's "The Rivals," "A Streetcar Named Desire" by Tennessee Williams and "Hotel Paradiso" by Feydeau and Desvalheres.

general and a national defense report.

Mrs. Frank S. McKinnon and Mrs. Leonard L. Jensen are taking reservations. Among those expected to attend are, from the Pointe area, Mrs. Robert Brines, Mrs. Gordon N. Cameron, Mrs. Robert Callaway, Mrs. Paul Honderich, Mrs. George F. Killeen, Mrs. Edwin Langtry, Mrs. Frederick McNamara, Mrs. Charles Ross, Mrs. Frederick Scheiter and Mrs. Joseph Thomas.

Pointer of Interest

by Janet Mueller

If you've ever worn a denim suit . . . an animal print gown . . . an all-white wool coat . . . If you've ever "thought mink" — you have Elizabeth Grant to thank for it. She's been in fashion and of fashion forever: a trend spotter and a trend setter. "I've been lucky all my life," she says. That's not, of course, the whole story.

You have to be able to recognize your luck when it comes to you, to use it, to run with it. You have to have the intelligence and know-how to translate "This should/could be a winner" into "This is one!"

In 1953, when Liz was Fashion Coordinator for Jantzen Mills, she looked at the first photographic print of fur ever attempted: a hand sample of mink photographed onto nylon fabric. She KNEW she was looking at a winner. Thirty-plus years later, animal print fabrics are a staple of the fashion industry.

The boudoir chair in the bedroom of Liz's apartment on Mack Avenue is covered in that original mink print.

The woman standing behind it introduced the concept of fashion to the auto industry via her "accent color" proposal to Chrysler Corporation. That proposal, suggesting a third, bright color to complement two other functional colors, one light, one dark, became the signature of Chrysler's 1954 line.

From the time she was four, Liz knew exactly what she wanted to do. "I was never interested in anything but clothes." She had a little — a VERY little — doll, and she made wonderfully detailed garments for it.

SHE GREW UP in Mount Clemens, member of one of that town's first families, granddaughter of Captain William du Lac, a lumber baron whose residence, The Chateau, was the town's showplace. She's very proud to be of French descent. "The French came to Detroit and did all the work," Liz's mother told her daughter. "The English came and took all the credit!"

She wanted to go to New York. That, after all, was the fashion center of America. It still is, as far as Liz is concerned, and it's still her spiritual home. "You live in New York," she maintains. "You EXIST elsewhere."

She worked for a time as an estate manager, ran the clubhouse at Pointe aux Barques during the summer — and when the opportunity to travel to Manhattan came, she took it, and when that initial visit brought, through family connections, the opportunity to work in New York as estate manager for

ELIZABETH GRANT, AND HER "MINK" CHAIR

Thelma Chrysler (Mrs. Byron) Foy, she took that, and she took the opportunity to study, at the Fashion Academy on Fifth Avenue and the Traphagen School, graduating from both.

And when the opportunity came to join an Executive Training Group at Lord & Taylor, she took that, rising from sales girl to assistant buyer in six months, with no prior department store training.

From then on, there was no stopping her. "God gives us the talent," Liz believes, "and we are obliged to use it. Far more importantly: we are obliged to share it."

She's sharing it via a book, her own fashion story, available at Jacobson's and by mail ($25 plus $3 postage and handling) from Retail Review Enterprises, P.O. Box 36779, Detroit, Mich. 48236-0779.

LIZ WANTS TO share her practical experience in the fashion world as well as the excitement of being in it. "It's the weirdest field in the world," she says. "You can go to school and learn the basics of retailing, of fashion merchandising, of design . . . but a Fashion Director is more than the sum of these parts."

How do you "learn" to be creative? How do you "recognize" tomorrow's trend? What is the reality behind the glamor image . . . the time lag between the idea and the fully launched campaign . . . the experience you must have before you can attempt to translate a fashion possibility into a fashion fact?

"I like to work with figures," says Liz. "My accounting background has been extremely valuable." The Fashion Director, she emphasizes, brings everything — experience, training, business as well as fashion sense, enthusiasm, practicality — to the job. And more.

The rewards are great. Elizabeth Grant wouldn't change lives with anyone. "I believe in elegance in everyday life," she says. "Take cars, for instance: they're a necessary part of life. But they used to be so dull, so ugly to look at."

Not after Liz Grant got after them, they didn't! And she brought denim, that down-on-the-farm fabric, to town. And she took the animals out of the wild, into ball gowns and bathing suits and onto her own boudoir chair. And she designed a Bicentennial Emblem that's now a part of the Smithsonian Institution's permanent collection. Among other things . . .

And that's the thing about Elizabeth Grant: when you come to the end of one thing or another about/because of her, there are always other things. She wouldn't trade lives with anyone. If you were her, would you?

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Read this, but don't quote me...

Much has been made recently over some remarks allegedly made by Detroit Lion quarterback Gary Danielson. Danielson was speaking at a men's club in Grand Rapids and according to a local reporter who was present, made some rather disparaging remarks about some of his Lion teammates, his coach and his general manager. When the spit hit the fan and the remarks were published, Danielson squirmed his way out of the whole mess by falling back on a common refrain: saying he was misquoted and his remarks were taken out of context.

That's a popular excuse, heard quite often from those in the public eye. Fortunately, not too many people have said it about me... yet. I've even used it myself. Once when I was quoted by a Detroit Free Press reporter about my feelings on the then-newly opened Joe Louis Arena, it seemed to me that the quote which appeared in the paper the next day wasn't even remotely close to what I'd said the night before at the arena.

I felt deceived and worse than that, stupid. What was this guy trying to do to me? Didn't he hear what I'd really said? I spent most of the day denying the quote attributed to me, mumbling something about "yes, it WAS funny how a reporter got misquoted."

So I guess I know a little bit about how Danielson must feel. Then again, maybe I don't. According to published reports, Danielson says he didn't know a reporter was present when he made his remarks. That suggests that if he had known, perhaps he wouldn't have made the type of statements he did. And you know what that suggests about Danielson.

It's a human trait to complain about one's co-workers, working conditions, etc., to any and all within earshot. But when a highly-paid, prominent athlete does so, it's also news.

Why do reporters use quotes? Because what people say is news. And because it improves a story to include information, directly from the horses' mouth if you will. Facts are more reliable and better verified if they come from a source quoted within the story.

From my side of the fence, reporters have nothing to gain and everything to lose by taking statements out of context or deliberately misquoting someone. And a reporter in a small community like this one has even more incentive to get things straight: we must go out and face our sources day after day. They let us know immediately if we've made a mistake (and even if they only think we have).

How does "misquote" happen? Occasionally, it's an error of misunderstanding or in proofreading — both of which can be fixed. Other times, a source may not really be misquoted, but may not recognize his own words. That's because we rarely speak as we write... and not many of us get to see our own words in print.

It can be a shocking experience... kind of like hearing your own voice on a tape. You can't believe it's really you. For example, a coach might say, "I'm damn proud of my boys because they went out and played like they meant business." If, as a reporter, I take the "damn" out, I'm mis-

In pursuit of Tiger trivia fans

By Peggy O'Connor

What was unique about Cesar Gutierrez's seven hits in one game as a Detroit Tiger? Why did manager Mickey Cochrane leave the 1936 Tigers? And most importantly, who ruined Bob Lemon's bid for a perfect game against Detroit in 1951?

If you know the answers or if any or all of these questions peak your interest, then Park resident Dr. Kevin Burnett has a game for you. Burnett, a 32-year-old dentist, is the inventor of Bengal Pursuit, a new trivia board game which centers around the lives and times of the hometown favorite Detroit Tigers.

Burnett, who with his wife owns and operates Sportstrivia, Inc., the Detroit-based firm which distributes the game, is an admitted Tiger fanatic. He says the idea for Bengal Pursuit came to him this past spring.

"I was sitting around playing Trivial Pursuit and thinking about the Tigers. Then I got to wondering how I could relate a trivia game to the Tigers. I put it together and got it on the market by Sept. 1.

"In its last issue, Sport Magazine calls Bengal Pursuit the 'class of sports trivia games,'" Burnett says.

Bengal Pursuit-buyers will undoubtedly judge that for themselves. In the meantime, Burnett says his company has sold 10,000 units and expects to sell an additional 15,000 for Christmas.

After he got the idea for Bengal Pursuit, Burnett went to the Detroit Tigers' organization to fill them in. Tiger officials recommended some books written about the team which they felt were representative of the organization, including "This Date in Tiger History," by John Hawkins and "The 995 Tigers," by Fred Smith. Burnett added some additional material from The Baseball Encyclopedia and fed the whole thing into his home computer.

"I'd come home and work on the idea for three or four hours every night," Burnett says. "I had no idea that things would take off like they did." Burnett admits he has the Tigers to thank for that in a way.

"The way the season went, as much as the city was into what the Tigers were doing... it helped, that's for sure."

BURNETT SAID he presented a copy to the Tigers after the game was printed. "The last thing I wanted was to do something that the Tigers wouldn't approve of. So far, they haven't commented. No response is good response, I guess."

The object of Bengal Pursuit is to score runs by correctly answering questions at first, second and third base and at home plate. Each player is allowed three outs (missed questions) per inning, maintaining board position between innings. The winner is the player who scored the most runs over nine innings.

The game board is laid out in baseball diamond form, surrounded, like Tiger Stadium is, by city streets Michigan Avenue, Trumbull Avenue, Kaline and Cochrane.

The six categories cover the Tigers of the 1980's, 1970's, 1960's, and 1950's, plus the championship years and "ancient history" with questions regarding Tiger doings from 1901 through 1949. The 1,100 questions range from the simple (Where was Barbaro Garbey born?) to the silly (What brand of hot dogs is served to Tiger fans?) And most Bengal Pursuit players with keen minds and clean ears can keep up with the game, answering a question like (What current Tiger was traded for Steve Kemp?) when a related question like (What All-Star center fielder made Tiger fans forget about Steve Kemp?) is previously answered.

Burnett has created football trivia games involving the University of Michigan and Notre Dame, and plans a complete series of games on other baseball teams. "I'll be making them for every team that has a history, let's put it that way. I don't think we'll be doing one on the Seattle Mariners," Burnett chuckles. (The Mariners, trivia buffs, have only been in existence since 1977).

Sportstrivia, Inc., has printed a second edition of the game, hoping to clean up some of the errors and typos present in the first edition. Burnett says he even encourages buyers to let him know when he makes a mistake.

"We've started something called the Bengal Pursuit Society. The first 5,000 buyers got postcards entitling them to membership, and are asked to write the company when they discover errors in the material or printing typos. I think there were 17 mistakes in the first printing... that will improve," he says.

GAME OWNERS can also purchase the 1984 playoff and World Series edition of cards (50 cards with six questions each) to update the game. That edition was developed by Burnett and Detroit Free Press columnist Bob Talbert.

"If you've got the money and the time to add to it, you can keep going for a long time with this game," Burnett says.

The price of the basic Bengal Pursuit is a not-so-trivial $19.95. It's available in some local stores or by writing P.O. Box 31-5014, Detroit, Mich., 48231 or calling 824-3017. Burnett says the game's production costs were "astronomical," with the money due "up front." The games are selling, though, and that keeps Burnett very busy.

"I still sit down every night at the computer and do two hours worth of work. Things are a little calmer now that the World Series is over. I'm back on schedule," he says.

And he's still playing his own game. Burnett participates in call-in sports trivia programs for two radio stations. "People call me and try to stump me... it happens more often than I like to admit," he says.

Oh, yes. Cesar Gutierrez's seven hits in one game were unique in that three were inside nits. Mickey Cochrane left the 1936 Tigers because he had a nervous breakdown. And Vic Wertz hit a homer in the eighth to spoil Bob Lemon's day in 1951.

Those who haven't the faintest notion of who Cesar Gutierrez, Mickey Cochrane or Bob Lemon are, should contact this story's writer immediately to arrange to play a couple dozen games of Bengal Pursuit.

The Park's Dr. Kevin Burnett, Bengal Pursuit's inventor, plays his favorite game with former Tiger great North Cash.

Benson's Red Wings took a 4-3 win over the Flyers on goals by Lucien Hudson, Billy Crandall and Marty Hage. Davis Pulis had two assists. The hard-skating Hudson tied the score with 2:25 left in the game, then scored the winning goal for the Red Wings in the final seconds. Todd Dunlop, Ev Meade and Matt Mullenhagen scored for the Flyers.

RED WINGS-SEALS
 Coach Ed O'Malley's Red Wings won another thriller, beating the Seals, 2-0, despite the superb goaltending by the Seals' Geoff Kimmel.

The Wings' Leo Salvaggio scored his first of the season; Chris Gibson assisted. Gibson then scored an unassisted goal to ice the game. Goaltender Kevin O'Malley played well in earning his first shutout of the year. Francois Berube and Sebastian Yofre played excellent defense. The Wings' record is 3-1.

SEALS-G.P.D.
 The Seals took a 1-0 win in this energetic and well-played defensive contest. Geoff Kimmel and Jeff Huebner were excellent in goal for the Seals and G.P.D., respectively. The shutout was Kimmel's first of the season. After two close first periods, Chuckie Schervish took a pass from Peter Brown and scored the winning goal in the final two minutes of the game. Joey Berger and Danny Magdowski played heads-up defense for the Seals.

G.P.D.-MAJOR MAGICS
 The G.P.D. team won its second game of the season, beating the Major Magics, 4-2. Terry Brennan scored on a breakaway in the first period, followed by Chris Coates, who made it 2-0 on an assist from Blair Ridder. Coates added another goal in the second period; Tim Miller assisting. Goaltender Val Covacha kept the Magics off the board until late in the second when Behi Rabbani scored on a breakaway. M.J. Morris put it away for G.P.D. with a breakaway goal. Rickey Gokenbach added a breakaway goal of his own for the Magics late in the game.

SEALS-RANGERS
 Schervish earned his second shutout of the season in a 4-0 win over the Rangers. Brown scored his first of the season in the first period; Kimmel drew an assist. In the second period, Ben Debski took a beautiful pass from Berger and scored his first goal as a Seal. Colin Darke added his first goal in the last few minutes of the second period; Timmy Kimmel drew an assist.

In the last period, Darke scored again, with Doug Semack and Joey Lucido getting the assists. The Seals' David Gakstatter and Bobby King played well.

PENGUINS-RED WINGS

The Northern Group Services Penguins won their opening game, 2-0, over the Red Wings. The game was tied at 0-0 with just three minutes to play when Penguins' Justin Braun and George Christiansen scored on their last shift. Penguin goalie Jon Romine played very well in his first shutout and the Wings' netminder O'Malley held off the Penguins' fierce attack until the very end.

PENGUINS-MAJOR MAGICS
 The Penguins took their second win of 1984, beating the Major Magics, 4-1. Goaltender Romine had another fine performance in his second start. B-liners Mark Campbell and John Gracey scored; the goals were Campbell's first two of the year. A-liner Braun also came through with a goal.

PENGUINS-G.P.D.
 After a close loss to the Rangers, the Penguins beat G.P.D. 2-0, to tie the Seals for the league lead. G.P.D. had more shots on goal, but goalie Kenny McIntyre outdueled G.P.D. goaltender Weston Norton for the win. Braun and Campbell scored for the Penguins.

MAJOR MAGICS-RANGERS
 The Major Magics took a 5-3 victory over the Rangers. Nate Cook opened the scoring for the Magics early in the first period, drawing an assist from William Conway. The Rangers came back with three goals, two by Mike Hendrie and one by Phil Descamps, but the Magics got the win on goals from Ali Bararsani, and two more by Cook, who had the hat trick. C-liner Kevin Baskel notched his first goal and closed the scoring. Behi Rabbani drew an assist. Goaltenders David Collins and John Solobodowski played well for the Magics and Rangers, respectively.

Squirt Division

SABRES-G.P. BLUES
 The Sabres and the Blues skated to a 3-3 tie before a full house at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink. Matt Carrier opened the scoring for the Blues with two first period goals. Pat Alle (two), Chad Yates and Jamie Brock each drew assists.

Second period action saw the Sabres' Garrett Ryan score two unassisted goals to tie the game. In the third period, Bryan Cass went around two defensemen to score the go-ahead goal for the Sabres. The Blues' Joey Sucher tied it up again; Jamie Masouras assisting. The Sabres' Gabe Eriksen and the Blues' Scott Cook were outstanding in goal.

BLUES-FLYERS

The Flyers went into the game undefeated, but came out on the short end of a 2-0 shutout. Both teams played a high-pressure offense, but goaltenders Peter Antonenko of the Flyers and Eldridge of the Blues kept the game scoreless for two periods. At 6:03 of the third period, Blues' center Carrier scored on a nifty pass from Cook. Carrier then closed the scoring with 1:43 left on a feed from Bill Bufalino. Gary Olson and Danny Bombich were outstanding on defense for the Flyers.

FLYERS-RED WINGS

The Flyers improved their record to 4-1 with a 3-1 win over the Red Wings. Robby Wiczorkowski opened the scoring for the Flyers in the second period, with his brother Scotty assisting. Just 15 seconds into the third period, the Wings' Jay Berger beat Flyer goalie Geoff Miller to tie the game. Alex Olmsted assisted on the play. Miller closed the door the rest of the way and Matt Spicer scored an unassisted goal after digging out a loose puck. Tom Best added the final goal on a rebound from Antonenko's shot. Bob Cardillo and Jon Paul Sweda each played very well.

Pee Wee A Sabres bid for title

The Pee Wee A Sabres opened their 1984-85 season with a 6-1-1 record.

The season opener, a 2-2 tie with the Michigan Golden Knights, was followed by four consecutive wins, 5-3 over the Omega Outlaws; 5-1 over Dearborn Bike Shop; 3-1 over Mic Mac Spoilers and 3-2 over Roman Village Knights. Coaches Dan Adair and Bob Frushour look forward to a great season.

The Sabres have outscored opponents 28-18 so far this year. Scoring leaders are Patrick Bond, Daryl Adair and Mark Sliwinski.

The Sabres traveled to Westland on Nov. 6, taking a 6-1 win and running their record to 5-0-1. The game started slowly, with both teams playing raggedly. Sabres' goalie Mike Janish made two big saves early in the game. Mark Schweitzer dumped the puck in deep, dug it out and fed Andy Bond. Bond's shot was stopped, but Daryl Adair picked it up and scored his seventh goal of the year. Patrick Bond and Schweitzer drew assists as the first period ended with the Sabres up, 1-0.

Pat O'Brien and Paul Karaban had nice shots early in the second period, but the Sabres didn't score again until defenseman Pat Pasegna fed Ryan Oliver, who passed to speedster Mark Sliwinski for the score. Oliver got his third assist of the year. Janish again held off Westland, and Sliwinski and Bryan Cass mounted scoring threats, but the score remained at 2-0 after two periods.

The Braves scored their only goal early in the third period. A minute later, Bob Cass pushed the puck to Chris Shtino for the score. One minute after that, the same duo combined for another goal, this time it was Cass who picked up a Shtino pass and scored to give the Sabres a 5-1 lead.

With less than five minutes to go, Pasegna passed to Sliwinski, who scored his sixth goal of the season. Pat Bond's 10th goal with one minute left iced the game; Sliwinski and Schweitzer assisting.

The Sabres pushed their record to 6-0-1 on Nov. 8, with a 7-3 win over the Warren Blues in the Little Caesar's League. The Sabres scored all seven goals before Warren had one goal; the Blues scored all three in the last four and one-half minutes. Grosse Pointe led 3-0 after one period on goals by Patrick Bond and Sliwinski (two). Pat Bond's goal was assisted by Andrew and came after a Brian Michalak slap shot. Sliwinski's first goal was on a power play; Adair and Bond drew assists. His second came on a give-and-go — he won the faceoff, then took the puck from Andy Bond and scored.

Sabres goalie Kenny Shtino played well, but was injured and his replacement, Janish, made several fine saves. Schweitzer scored the only goal of the second period; Adair assisting. Bob Cass and Jason Erbecker played well.

The Sabres played the last 50 seconds of the second period and the first 1:10 of the third, two men short because of penalties. Janish made some key saves. Pat Bond completed his hat trick with two goals and Chris Shtino added one. Sliwinski, Andy Bond, Cass and Patrick O'Brien drew assists. Erbecker, Michalak, Bond, Pasegna, all played well on defense according to coaches Dan Adair and Bob Frushour.

The Sabres saw their record fall to 6-1-1 after a league loss to the DC Flames, 3-3, on Nov. 5.

Grosse Pointe was never really in the game. The Flames scored 23 seconds into the game and never looked back. They took a 2-0 lead in the first and the Sabres didn't get a shot on net until 6:30 when Karaban's shot was turned away. In the second period, the Sabres got into penalty trouble and gave up a power play goal and four more scores. They trailed 7-1, with the only Pointe goal coming from Oliver, who was assisted by Sliwinski.

Andy Bond and Adair scored in the third period; Sliwinski, Oliver and Michalak drew assists. Sliwinski earned the playmaker award for his three assists. Goaltender Janish played very well. Forwards O'Brien, Shtino, P. Bond and Bob Cass tried to keep the Sabres in the game. Erbecker and Pasegna had scoring chances stopped by the Flames' goalie, as the Flames ended up with the 8-3 win.

Sports Week

 quoting him. If I don't, I'm letting him look awfully bad in print.

Another coach might ramble on, not getting to the point until the very end of a long, long quote. But if I print the part of the quote that makes the most sense, he might get mad because I didn't print the entire thing and claim that I took his words out of context.

Then there are the folks who will never be happy with anything that is written. Just this spring I quoted a coach who, in answer to my question, outlined the weaknesses on her team. Now, most sensible people recognize that athletic teams, especially high school squads with young and inexperienced players, have weaknesses. Not so one parent, who became incensed when she thought the coach was making a personal attack on one child.

The coach, of course, was doing nothing of the kind. Experienced in these sort of situations, the coach just laughed it off and stood behind her statement. For my part, I just listened to the parent until she cooled off.

Another coach I once interviewed had absolutely nothing good to say about his team. And I mean nothing. I tap-danced all around the issue with him, trying to pull at least one good thing out of him about his football squad. Still, he wouldn't say anything but how his team was too inexperienced, too slow, not talented enough to do anything but lose most of its games. Consequently, that's how he came across in the article, even though I included a rival coach's somewhat kinder assessment of the first coach's team.

When the article was printed, the coach called me and cursed me up one side and down the other. Irresponsible, unthinking idiot were the kindest words he had for me. The impression I got was that he couldn't take the responsibility for his statements. I had humiliated his players with my article, the coach said. I had to agree with him on one thing: his players were humiliated. And both of us knew who was really responsible.

I guess that's what it comes down to: taking responsibility. When I interview a source, I have a responsibility to let that person know I'm taking notes and that if he or she says something "off the record" it stays that way.

And public figures like Danielson have a responsibility, too. If they are speaking in public, they should be ready to take the heat if what they say isn't necessarily what everybody wants to hear.

In other words, if you're going to say something about someone which that someone might not have heard from you already, you'd better be prepared to back up those words like the Grosse Pointe coach did this spring. Or just not say them at all.

A new 'pitch' from Welch

Tradition paints a picture of the all-American athlete who is a clean-living role model for youth, but as one professional athlete after another is busted for drugs or gets help for a drinking problem, communities like Grosse Pointe are forced to face the reality that many young athletes face the same kind of pressures.

"It's a Whole New Ball Game" is a public forum featuring Hazel Park's Bob Welch, a pitcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers. He will speak at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16 in the gymnasium at South High School. Welch gained fame at age 23 when he struck out the New York Yankees' Reggie Jackson to win a game in the World Series. But not even Welch knew then that he was an alcoholic. Speaking on youth, sports and alcohol, Welch has a special message for young athletes in grades 1 through 12, their parents and coaches.

"Bob Welch is an iconic and a professional athlete and also a young man trying to grow up in America," wrote George Vecsey in the prologue to "Five O'Clock Comes Early," a book he co-wrote with Welch. "Until the age of 23, Bob tried to behave the way he thought other people expected him to behave, taking his signals from the family kitchen, the locker room, the neighborhood tavern, the billboards and newspapers and televisions. These signals took him as far as the pitching mound, in front of 50,000 people, and then the signals deserted him."

"Bob Welch had his own internal signals, his feelings, which he learned to ignore with the help of a drug called ethyl alcohol. The more ethyl alcohol he put into his system, the less he had to confront his own feelings about love, about anger, about success, about money, about loyalty, about sports, about sex, and most of all about himself."

Welch got help from the Dodgers organization, and a visit to The Meadows, a drug abuse treatment center in Wickenburg, Ariz., helped him break through the shell and find his feelings again.

"I'm sober today," Welch told Vecsey. "That's what counts. I can't make any promises about tomorrow, but I'm sober today. If I follow the things I've been taught, I know I won't die of alcoholism."

Welch admits that his problems began in high school. "I was reading in the newspaper the other day that one third of high school kids in America are problem drinkers," said Welch, "which they defined as being drunk six times a year, or having experienced 'negative consequences of drinking with friends, family, school, the police, or while driving.'"

"Negative consequences — that was me. By the time I was a senior in high school . . . I had been drunk a lot. The main reason I drank was to get drunk. I loved getting drunk, but I also drank because I was shy. Scared, really," Welch recalls.

Welch's appearance in Grosse Pointe is sponsored by SAC*, The Neighborhood Club, Northeast Guidance Center and FLEC, in cooperation with the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students or $5 per family or team. They are on sale at The Neighborhood Club, the Northeast Guidance Center and FLEC and will also be available at the door.

On Saturday, Nov. 17, Welch will headline an educational workshop for coaches from 8:45 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Commons at North High School. Public, private and parochial school coaches, as well as youth league coaches, are encouraged to attend a session called "Athletes, Booze, Coaches and Drugs."

Coach Carol von Stade named Charu Nautiyal the Most Valuable Player for the varsity field hockey championship team. For junior varsity tennis, Coach Kathy Hoes named Lynne Connor as Most Valuable.

Girl's Athletic Director Muriel Brock named Laura Khelokian the top scorer and Most Outstanding player for the varsity field hockey team, while Amy Ottaway earned Most Valuable for her overall contributions to the program. Ariste Melick picked up the Most Improved award from J.V. Field Hockey coach Melinda Reuter, while Jennifer Preisman was the Most Improved on Theresa Durand's reserve team.

Awards for Coach Eric Linder's cross country team included Most Valuable to Gordie Maitland for the boys, and Most Improved to Heather Diehl on the girls' team. Golf coach Ford Gardner gave Most Valuable honors to Peter Dahling, and Most Improved to Mike Swaney.

For the soccer program, J.V. coach Domenic Facciolla awarded Most Valuable to freshman Frank Karabetos, a promising player, who played several games for the varsity. Most Improved went to sophomore Bob Jewett. The most improved varsity soccer award was given to sophomore striker Bob Williams by Coach David Backhurst; senior fullback Harold Colby was named Most Valuable Player.

Cagers split

The ULS varsity basketball team played two very tough and exciting games last week and settled for a split.

On Nov. 6, Coach Shelly Owens' team played an improved Oakland Christian team and hung on to win, 35-33. Samantha DeSmet was the game's high scorer with 16 points. Susan Cleek added eight points and Chandra Oden, seven.

Bethesda traveled to ULS Nov. 9, bringing with them a 15-1 record. In a hard-fought and determined effort, the Lady Knights led the entire game until the final 27 seconds when Bethesda finally tied it. Then, with no time left on the clock, Bethesda sank a 25-footer to steal away the win, 46-44. DeSmet once again led all scorers with a season-high 23 points, while Oden contributed 12. DeSmet, Oden, and Simone Early also dominated the defensive boards with 11 rebounds each.

ULS will host Academy of the Sacred Heart in ULS's final home game Nov. 15 at 4:30 p.m.

Playing for Albion College's women's field hockey team this fall is Suzanne Carty, (above) a two-year starter for the Britons. Suzanne, a 1983 University Liggett School graduate and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carty, of Buckingham Road, scored two goals in the early going for Albion. Another ULS alumna, Ann Clafonne, is also on the Albion field hockey squad this season. Ann, a freshman, is the daughter of Mrs. Pauline Clafonne, of Grosse Pointe.

In the Bi-County championship, Van Syckle was first with a 17:26 and Rice, third in 17:39.

A look back at a fine North year

By Fran Obeid
North High

Though originally ranked eighth in the state, North High's girls' cross country team surprised its opponents with an outstanding performance at the state meet, where it finished third.

Junior Lisa Kopacka was named to the Class A All-State team for running the 3.1 miles in 19:17 for 10th place.

"With 175 runners from 25 different schools, the competition was fierce," Kopacka said.

Also representing North at the state meet held at the Dama Farms Golf and Country Club Nov. 3, were team members Kelly Fournier (20.02); Sandy Smith, (20.13); Patty Loehner, (20.17); Christie Drummy, (20.21); Katie Beal, (20.45); and Anne Finlan (21.45).

Placing as high as the girls' cross country team did, was the icing on the cake to a near perfect season. Other high points of the season were placing first in the Metro Beach Invitational and second in the state regionals. The team's only dual meet loss came in an intense meet against South High.

"We really wanted to beat South badly at the state meet," said team captain Loehner. "Our confidence helped us finish five places higher than South. I think we had such a great season because Coach Buhagiar worked us hard. We all respect him."

North's girls' cross country team has always had an extraordinary achievement record. They have placed first in the Bi-County League every year and have lost only three meets in the past six years.

"The girls have a very competitive spirit," coach Charles Buhagiar explained. "I'm looking forward to another good season next year. We will try to continue the tradition of being Bi-County champs and performing well in state competition."

Cagers in first

North's girls' varsity basketball team defeated two Bi-County rivals last week, topping Clintondale, 49-21 and L'Anse Creuse, 40-29, to boost the North to first place in the league. The wins raised their winning streak to 12, with an overall record of 15-3. The two-game scoring leaders for the Norsemen were Celeste Sartor (29 points), Paula Harms (26 points), Pam Boesiger (18 points) and Cindy Bowman (12).

The JV lost a heartbreaker to L'Anse Creuse, 42-40. The loss forced North to share the Bi-County League title with L'Anse Creuse. Scoring leaders for North against L'Anse Creuse were Julie Cook (10 points), Julia Snow (eight), and Beth Trupiano (seven). North finished the league season with a 9-2 record.

The JV and varsity will play their next game at Dearborn Edsel Ford on Thursday, Nov. 15. The JV game begins at 6 p.m., the varsity contest at 7:30 p.m. (By Ed Comber).

GP Sail Club awards Nov. 16

The Grosse Pointe Sail Club will present the 1984 Sundown and Fall Race Series awards at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16, in the Windmill Pointe Park Recreation Building.

GPSC Commodore Boyd Schmidlin and Race Committee Chairman Chuck Latham say they recognize the active participation of area sailors in the club's weekly events, particularly the large turnout of the Tuesday Night Sundown Series.

During the summer of 1984, with 133 sailboats registered, 12 evenings of racing were conducted. A total of 943 sailboats started in these events, for an average of 78.6 boats in each evening. The registered boats each averaged 7.1 starts this summer. With the races scored for 13 separate classes, these boats earned a total of 75 flags in the two halves of the Sundown Series.

In 1982, the GPSC initiated a Fall Series which now runs on four consecutive Sunday afternoons starting in mid-September. This year, 38 registered sailboats, racing in three classes, yielded 63 starters over the series, for an average of just under 16 per week.

With 943 Sundown Series starters and 63 in the Fall Series, over 1,000 sailboats crossed the GPSC's starting line at Windmill Pointe Park this season. In addition, on July 7, GPSC conducted one of the Detroit River Yachting Association's summer series of regattas as 178 DRYA-registered sailboats competed in 22 classes.
