With so many break-ins occurring lately, it's nice to see someone break out for once. Although the intent was just as bad as any break-in. At least that's what Eric Steiner thinks.

Steiner is the owner of the Esquire Theater and it seems some persons broke out of his place sometime Saturday night, after they hid themselves in the building.

Steiner said it was quite a shock to visit the theater on Sunday and see a formerly unused, nailed-shut door laying the alleyway.

He and the police were scratching their heads wondering what was going on, since an inventory showed no damage and nothing seemed to be missing. Unfortunately that lucky feeling didn't last long once Steiner remember two brand new Dolby speakers that had been delivered to the theater just the day before.

A quick search showed the 3x2x2 foot speakers, valued at $2,000, were missing. According to Steiner, his ushers did remember seeing two juveniles heading toward the restrooms Saturday evening as the movie house was closing.

The ushers and the theater manager checked around, but couldn't find the kids, and locked up for the night. Steiner says his workers believe they can i.d. the suspects, and he's working with Park police to sit down and have a long heart-to-heart with the two film fanatics.

More later.

In the same vein, we've got a delicious little tale from David Markowitz and Bob Mowbray, of the Village Locksmith Shop on Mack Avenue.

To put it quite simply, they were locked out of their shop earlier this week. According to Dave, he and Bob showed up for work bright and early Tuesday morning and couldn't get in their place of business.

It seems their shop is equipped with two locks — a key-activated deadbolt and a key-operated knob lock. They never, ever use the knob lock, so they don't have a key for it. As they left work Monday afternoon, a carpenter working on their shop locked both locks as he finished up for the day.

Consequently, Dave and Bob were in for a bit of a shock come Tuesday morning. After they stopped laughing, Dave said the picked the knob lock in less than a minute.

He's planning on making up a new set of keys right away.

Okay, listen up all you camera clickers out there. Here's your chance to cop a prize in the upcoming photography contest celebrating reading in America, sponsored by the American Library Association in cooperation with the Library of Congress.

Locally the competition is sponsored by the Friends of the Detroit Public Library and it allows photographers to enter both the local and national contest with the theme: A Nation of Readers — the significance of reading in American life.

The contest is open to adults and youths, which include students through grade 12. And the contest is open only to amateurs. They have defined an amateur as someone who doesn't support himself through photography, although you may have sold a photo or two somewhere along the line.

Prizes in the adult and youth category include: first prize — $100; second — $75; third — $50. All first-place entries entered in local contests will automatically be forwarded to the national contest for judging.

Prizes in the national contest are $1,000, $500, $250 and a president's prize of $100.

Entry deadline is April 2 and you can call Dorothy Manty at the Detroit Public Library at 833-4043 for more specific information.

I'm giving myself a pat on the back here. Not once did I stoop to using the word "shutterbug" in the above story.

Tuition set for TMI summer program

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Board of Education Monday night approved changes in the district's summer program for trainable mentally impaired students that will require, for the first time, parents to pay tuition and provide transportation for students in the program.

The summer TMI program changes were part of the package of recommendations approved by the board for this summer's programs at North and South high schools.

Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli told the board the district lost $11,500 on the TMI summer program last year. The cost of the program would exceed $12,000 this year, for which the board would have no reimbursement, he added.

Under new rules, parents will pay $90 to enroll students in the five-week, five-hours-a-day program. That is the same a high school student would pay to attend

Police cars rammed in chase

By Tom Greenwood

A high speed chase which began in Grosse Pointe Woods early Saturday morning resulted in injuries to the occupants of the fleeing vehicle when it overturned near the Ford expressway. Three police cars were damaged, but no police officers were injured in the chase.

The incident began at 12:43 a.m. March 9 when Woods Public Safety Officer Jeffrey Williams observed a white 1983 Chevrolet pick-up with three young men run a red light at the intersection of Vernier and Mack Avenue.

Reports say the truck turned south on Mack and left the roadway, running over the curb. Officer Williams activated his lights and the truck began to pull over near the intersection of Country Club Drive and Jackson, when it suddenly accelerated and sped away.

The ensuing chase saw the pick-up allegedly run stop signs at Jackson, Hunt Club and Mack Avenue, reportedly just missing several cars. Officer Williams said the suspects looked back at him and buckled up their seats belts as the chase progressed.

Pursuit continued down Allard Road where the truck reportedly drove through the driveway of a gas station going across the sidewalk, then back onto Allard. Speeds at this time reportedly reached 60 mph and the truck ran stop signs at Bramcaster, Chester and Arthur.

A Harper Woods scout car, monitoring the chase on the radio, was waiting at the intersection of Harper and Allard and joined the chase after the truck ran a red light at the intersection.

The chase continued down Eastwood Drive toward Beaconsfield and the truck allegedly ran lights at Nine Mile, Eight Mile and Stephens Avenue. The truck also reportedly ran a light at 10 Mile and Kelly and struck a Roseville police car driven by Officer Dale Louw, who was uninjured in the crash. Roseville police say their car was struck when the fleeing vehicle ran over the curb to avoid a police blockade. A St. Clair Shores police car, manned by Officer Charles DeBruyne, was also reportedly rammed during the chase. DeBruyne was not injured.

Miraculously, no one was killed in the wreck of this pick-up truck which overturned near the Ford freeway last Saturday night after being pursued by police cars from the Woods and three neighboring cities.

Park opens talks on consolidation

By Pat Paholsky

Consolidation of the police and fire departments in the Park — if it happens — will not come about without a hard fight. That was apparent Monday night when the city council held its first public discussion of the matter.

The council officially received the Jan. 31 report at its Feb. 11 meeting and voted "to digest it, talk around and come back in a month to begin discussion." The Ci-

When Prost asked why less than one percent of American cities had public safety departments, Wasinger replied, "It may be inertia. The traditional way is the way it's been done."

During a discussion of cities that have tried the public safety concept and later reverted back to separate departments, Wasinger charged that "firefighters have been very vigorous in promoting dissension."

Commission member Phillip Tannian, who voted with the majority, said, "The question is who is going to run the city — the council, the city manager or a public employees union?"

Councilman David Gaskin asked why the commission broke down the number of hours a year the fire department spent fighting fires and did not apply the same criterion to the police department figuring the actual time spent arresting criminals. The report said that members spent 84 hours fighting fires in 1983, and during the past seven years, less than one percent of their time in actual service hours.

"Isn't that a political judgment?" Gaskin asked.

A member of the commission answered that surveillance or cruising by police officers was considered to be "productive time."

Wasinger said that even consitizens Commission on Public Safety, after a year of meeting and investigation, voted 11-2 to recommend consolidation.

About 70 people filled the meeting room to hear 2½ hours of discussion between members of the council, the commission and the audience. The only action taken by the council came before the talks began when Mayor Pro Tem John Prost moved that the administration find out what it would cost to combine the departments into a public safety unit.

Mayor Palmer Heenan asked the chairman of the commission, Stephen Wasinger, what would happen to the EMS if consolidation took place.

"The recommendation is that it be continued, and not only continued, but improved," Wasinger said.

"We said let's build on the excellence we have. We do not have to dismantle to build something great."

dering fire hydrant checking, inspections and equipment checks, "the major part of their time is spent waiting around."

Commission member John Molinari, who voted against consolidation, asked, "How many of us can say we spend one percent of our time risking our life? We are losing the essence of what we are talking about. We do not have poor fire service. We do not have poor police service."

"We said let's build on the excellence we have," he continued. "We do not have to dismantle to build something great."

Eleven residents spoke during the last 30 minutes of the discussion, some who preferred separate departments, one who advocated adding a volunteer civil defense and some who wanted more police presence.

Prost said, during a recess, that he believed there would be a public hearing on the matter.

a class that meets for 2½ hours, five days a week for five weeks, the deputy superintendent said.

Parents will also be responsible for dropping off and picking up their children from the program, he added.

Last year, 27 students from Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods attended the program. The Harper Woods public school system was billed $2,500 for the cost of their students enrolled in the TMI program. Transportation and a field trip cost $5,180, Christian Fenton, director of business affairs, told the board.

This year, the district will absorb a $4,700 loss for the program, based on an estimated enrollment of 25, Spagnoli said.

In past years, organizations such as the Neighborhood Club have

Board changes precincts

To simplify the system and possibly save some money, the Board of Education Monday night approved a plan that will cut the number of voting precincts for school elections from 10 to six.

The new system will have one voting precinct for each of the municipalities served by the district. Absentee ballots will be available at Barnes School.

The old system divided school election precincts different from those used for other elections. Five of the school precincts included voters from two or more communities, confusing voters who were unsure where to cast their ballots, the school administration said.

Before voters go to the polls June 10 to elect two trustees to four-year terms, the district will notify all registered voters by first class mail of the changed precincts. Trustees also asked that the change be publicized through a variety of school publications.

Under the system;

• Electors in the Park will vote at Pierce Middle School, 15430 Kercheval.

• Electors in Grosse Pointe City will vote at Maire Elementary School, 740 Cadieux.

• Electors in the Farms will vote at Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte.

• Electors in the Woods will vote at Parcels Middle School, 20600 Mack.

Electors in Harper Woods will vote at Poupard Elementary School, 20655 Lennox.

• Electors in the Shores will vote at Vernier School, west of the village municipal building at Lakeshore and Vernier.

The school district will make the official request to Shores officials for use of the building, according to Ronald Tonks, director of personnel in charge of this year's elections. The village uses the building as a polling place during other elections.

Although the school system won't save any money under the new precinct system this year because of the cost of notifying voters, it will save money in the long run through lowered costs for machine rental and elimination of election inspectors, Tonks said.

The district rents its voting machines and uses three per precinct; two for use and one in reserve, Tonks said. With four fewer precincts, the district eliminates 12 machines.

The school district also employs five election inspectors at each precinct, Tonks said. State law requires three. Even if the district decides to have six workers at each of its six precincts, that's 14 fewer than under the old system, he added. Election inspectors earn about $50 a day, school officials said at the Monday, March 4, conference meeting of the board.

Sound Health Advice from Family Doctor

Saint John Hospital

Q: My elderly mother recently fractured her hip and her physician told us this was because of osteoporosis. I will be 54 years old and would like to know how I can lessen my chances of getting osteoporosis.

A: Osteoporosis is a devastating disease which approximately 25 percent of all women in the United States will suffer from by the time they reach age 65. The hip fracture that your mother suffered from is often the first awareness patients have of this horrible process because the early stages have no symptoms.

Osteoporosis is a process where demineralization or thinning out of the bone occurs. As bones age, they do not continue to form bone as they did during childhood and early adult life and thus become weaker as one grows older. Often a first sign of osteoporosis is a loss of height which occurs because of the decreased amount of bone or collapse of the bones in the vertebral column.

Risk factors that would make you more likely to develop osteoporosis are:

- a family history of osteoporosis,
- being post-menopausal,
- an inactive life style,
- inadequate calcium intake and
- smoking.

To prevent you from developing osteoporosis, these are some simple measures that may help:

1. Exercise on a regular basis. This promotes the formation of new bone. A good example would be walking 20 to 30 minutes every other day.

2. Increase the amount of calcium in your diet. Approximately 1,400 milligrams per day for post-menopausal women is the current recommended amount. Good sources of calcium in your diet would be milk or dairy products. If this is difficult to do, your family physician may recommend pharmaceutical supplements of calcium.

3. Stop smoking. Smokers are more prone to develop osteoporosis quicker and earlier than non-smokers.

4. There is nothing that can be done to prevent the "change of life," but some physicians are recommending estrogen supplements to prevent bone loss. This is a very controversial area because of the risks that estrogen supplements pose to women when taking them on a long-term basis.

With this knowledge this should lessen the chances of you developing osteoporosis.

This column is a service provided in the public interest by Saint John Hospital. Questions should be sent to Christopher Goldsby, M.D., 22151 Moross, Suite 334, Detroit, Mich. 48236.

Mason School: 56 years of educating children

By Pat Paholsky

One of the strong features of Grosse Pointe is its schools. From a well-established public school system to a diverse group of non-public schools — church-sponsored or independent — there is a wide range of choices. If a community is judged by the way it educates its young, then Grosse Pointers have reason to be proud. Following is the first in a series of informational stories on the schools of Grosse Pointe.

When Mason School first opened its doors in February 1929, it was part of Rural Agricultural School District No. 1. Grosse Pointe Woods was non-existent; the area was Lochmoor Township.

The 7.35 acres that belonged to the school was surrounded by dirt roads and grazing cows. It was the only school north of Moross.

And while the pastoral setting might suggest a simple schoolhouse, such is not the case with Ma-

The Stevens T. Mason School was the only school north of Moross when it opened in 1929. It has gone from rural to urban in its 56 years.

son. Designed by George J. Haas, the building contains examples of fine craftsmanship.

The cement beams in the gym are maintained with the original hand-painted gold and blue design. The door handles in the old part of the building bear the crest of the Grosse Pointe school system. And decorating the tops of the doors to the classrooms are semi-circular plaster designs.

But the library is where the artisans unleashed their creativity. It features a Pewabic tile fireplace. Altogether there are two fireplaces and three drinking fountains in the building made of Pewabic tiles. The ornate mahogany wood carvings above the doors would be prohibitive to duplicate today. Principal William Mestdagh said when he inquired 12 years ago, he was told it would cost $3,000 then for each piece.

The plaque near the door reads like a who's who of Grosse Pointe. Members of the board of education then — Parcels, Poupard and Maire, as well as Superintendent of Schools Samuel Brownell — all have schools in the district named after them.

The school is named after Gov. Stevens Thomson Mason, the first elected governor of Michigan when it became a state in 1837. He was 24 years old and was known as the boy governor. He founded the public school system in the state.

And while Mestdagh, who has served as principal of Mason for 19 years, takes pride in pointing out the history of workmanship that is Mason School, he may well be the school's number-one booster when it comes to the people who are part of the facility.

On the students: "We are proud of our student participation. They take a lot of pride in the school. They're involved in groundskeeping and planting flowers and trees.

"Also every fifth-grader is involved in school responsibility. We have 100 percent participation. They are involved in safety patrol, library or service club, which has indoor duties, such as helping in the lunchroom or assisting a kindergarten teacher."

On the teachers: "We contributed to the Grosse Pointe system by developing and piloting a language arts program in the early '70s. It's been adopted here and has been receiving a lot of national interest."

Mestdagh said the school's motto is "Teachers and parents equal partners in quality education." Another motto might be that Mason builds quality teachers. Three former teachers were appointed to be principals in the district. They are Joan Kubista, principal of Monteith; Audrey Prim, principal of Ferry; and Leo Warras, principal of Kerby.

"It makes me feel proud that they were Mason school teachers," Mestdagh said.

And Bruce Kefgen, assistant to the superintendent, is a former Mason student.

On the parents: "We have a very strong PTO, very active and most supportive. They would do just about anything. Not only do they help constantly by installing playground equipment, painting, fundraising for field trips, assemblies, enrichment and supplemental materials and computers, they provide parties to honor people and give staff appreciation lunches."

Mestdagh said about 80 percent of the 215 families are dues-paying members of the PTO.

Regarding some of the volunteers, he said the four senior citizens — Louise Young, Stella Fox, George Spaulding and Jerry McCarthy — provide an invaluable service by helping the youngsters with their lessons.

There are 12 sections in the kindergarten through fifth-grade program, two at each grade level. Enrollment which has ranged from 99 to 900, is at 278 students today.

"It's the ideal class size for the education of young children," Mestdagh said.

Before he was appointed principal 19 years ago, Mestdagh taught at Maire School for eight years. He and his wife, Mary Ruth, have three sons.

"You never know what to expect on a job like this," he said. "Ninety-nine percent of the time it's pleasant happenings. It's most enjoyable."

William Mestdagh has worked in the Grosse Pointe Public School System for 27 years, the last 19 as principal of Mason. He's shown here sitting near the Pewabic tile fireplace of the

Farms issues 1984 crime report

By Harriet Nolan

Grosse Pointe Farms recorded a 15 percent drop in larcenies and a 53 percent increase in car thefts from 1983 to 1984, according to the latest crime report.

Farms Police Chief Robert K. Ferber noted that for the last 10 years larcenies have served as an indicator to charting the rise and fall of major crimes in the Farms.

Major crimes include murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny, car theft and arson. This includes attempts as well as the commission of the crime.

Ferber attributes the decrease in larcenies to the fact there were 50 less bike thefts and 35 less shoplifting arrests by local businesses for 1984 compared to 1983.

Car thefts showed the largest increase and followed the trend from 1983 when figures rose by 34 percent over 1982. Ferber said these crimes also parallel metropolitan areas, state and national crime statistics.

The Park had a 52 percent increase in car thefts and the City a 30 percent increase from 1983 to 1984. The Woods had a 9 percent increase and the Shores a 3 percent decrease for the same period.

Labeled Detroit's fastest growing crime, it reported 42,505 cars were stolen in 1984, up by 18 percent over 1983 figures.

National figures indicate 26.5 percent of stolen cars are taken from the owner's driveway, 19.2 percent disappear from off the street followed by theft from shopping malls, stadiums and other public parking areas.

Residents can take steps to prevent their car from being stolen, says Ferber, by parking it in a locked garage. Also, don't leave it running unattended and park in lighted areas as well as where a security guard patrols the lot.

But he noted the real impact upon this crime must come from American automobile manufacturers in terms of building anti-theft security systems within the automobile itself.

In other areas, burglaries rose by 15 percent while felony arrests decreased by 43 percent.

Twenty-eight percent of the people arrested for felonies were under 17 years of age compared to 32 percent arrested in 1983. Twenty percent of the juveniles and 10 percent of the adults arrested lived in the Farms.

Continuing the trend first noted in 1983, Ferber said that 52 percent of all persons arrested during 1984 lived in Detroit.

Except for robberies, he anticipates a continuing pattern of low index crimes against the person and a higher index with regard to property crimes. Of particular concern to property crimes are burglary, auto theft and larceny.

Ferber said he expects a burglary rate similar to that of last year, if not higher, because of a known law enforcement fact that the majority of all burglaries are committed by persons "working" a given area until it's exhausted, or statistically more likely, until they're caught.

Therefore an arrest in the Farms can have a correlating reduction on burglaries in the City and vice versa.

He said it's unfortunate "that under the state's criminal justice system, because of its inability to absorb offenders due to plea bargaining, probation and ridiculously early release, crime pays."

Arrests of the same people are made again and again, he said citing the case of two separate people who were found to be responsible for 28 Farms burglaries last year.

Both were convicted and sentenced to five to 10 years in Jackson State Prison, he noted. After a 45-day processing period, however, they were released to halfway houses. Both were later arrested by other police departments for burglary and possession of stolen property.

Comcast cracks down on cable theft

Michael Singpeil, vice president and general manager of Comcast Cablevision, announced last week that a man has been arrested and convicted in Warren of theft of cable service.

The district court in Warren imposed a $500 fine and probation for the illegal sale and installation of Comcast services, the company said.

Singpeil said the company will continue to pursue cable theft under state and local laws. This is the first conviction since the end of the company's amnesty period for reporting illegally obtained services expired

Park crime rate increases 6 percent

Fueled by jumps in burglaries and auto thefts, the Park recorded a 6 percent increase in serious crimes reported to police in 1984 compared to the year before.

In this statistical report compiled in January, now-retired Chief of Police Henry Counce said the increase was "primarily attributed to increases in burglaries and motor vehicle thefts."

Serious, or Part One crimes, are homicide, rape, robbery, burglary, larceny, arson and auto theft. National statistics are compiled on these crimes by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

There were 831 Part One incidents reported to police last year, compared to 783 the year before.

One homicide was reported last year. There were no homicides in the Park reported in 1983.

Two forcible rapes were reported in 1984, up from a single incident in 1983. There were no attempted rapes reported last year, compared to two the year before.

There were 44 robberies reported to police last year, down from 48 in 1983. There were 20 armed robberies and 24 strong-arm robberies in 1984, compared with 14 armed robberies and 34 strong-arm attacks in 1983.

The number of aggravated assaults dropped sharply in 1984 from the year before. Of the seven assaults recorded last year, six involved weapons. Thirteen incidents were reported to police in 1983, a dozen of them involving weapons.

Burglaries increased by nearly 75 percent in 1984 when compared to the year before. Last year, there were 146 reports of forced or unlawful entries or attempted burglaries. In 1983, there were 84 reported forced or unlawful entries and attempted burglaries.

The number of break-ins almost doubled in 1984 compared to the year before. Last year, 111 were reported, compared to 57 the year before. Unlawful entries increased slightly, from six to eight last year, and attempted break-ins went to 27 last year from 21 the year before.

Larcenies fell by 12 percent in 1984 compared to the year before. In 1984, 445 incidents were reported, compared to 505 the year before.

There were six reported cases of arson last year, compared to three in 1983.

The 29 officers and patrolmen in the Park, along with the two civilians at the communications desk, three crossing guards, one parking enforcement officer, one code enforcement officer and one secretary offered residents assistance in a variety of non-criminal incidents as well.

Park police made more arrests, answered more false alarms, searched for more actual and suspected prowlers, found more missing persons, handled more fugitives and made more non-criminal investigations last year than the year before.

The department also processed more purchase permits for firearms, handled more requests for carrying weapons and registered more weapons in 1984.

While crime statistics went up in 1984, the losses to fire last year were less than the year before, according to Fire Chief Phillip Costa in his annual report. The department answered 982 alarms last year, compared to 920 the year before and 949 in 1982.

Last year, there was $519,947 in damages due to fires, or $38.16 for each of the Park's 13,625 residents, according to the report. No statistics were given for 1983.

The Park also assisted Detroit firefighters on Devil's Night after a request was made by Detroit's Chief of Department Walter Chapman, Costa said in his report.

The fire department's ambulance responded to more calls and took more patients to hospitals last year than in 1983. The department answered more false alarms in 1984, with more of them called in as pranks, the report said.

Farms Pier Park gets spring cleaning

By Harriet Nolan
It's hard to think of summer, much less spring, when the weather alternates between rain, snow and hail — all within a couple of hours. But it's spring housecleaning time for Farms Pier Park workers.

There are benches to paint, boatwells to repair, asphalt to replace and flowers to plant in the 16-acre playground, all before the Memorial Day weekend opening, says Jon Austin, parks and recreation director.

He also says the city plans to build a new entrance to the park this spring. It will be located near the pump house. The current entrance would then serve as the exit point and eliminate much of the congestion that occurred in past years.

"As soon as the weather breaks, we've got to repair and rebuild about 1,000 feet of dock," says Carl Ayres, harbor master. "We might have to do more depending on the ice damage."

"Also, there's about 800 feet of water line under the center dock and if the ice moves, it's liable to take it along," he adds.

One of the biggest jobs for Assistant park maintenance supervisor, is getting the two swimming pools in shape. The large one, which holds about 350,000 gallons of water, will take about 40 gallons of paint, Ayres said, with the wading pool using a mere 10 gallons.

Lined up like soldiers at attention, these picnic benches will soon be scattered across the Farms Pier Park to welcome the first picnickers of spring.

He's hoping that the water off the 450 feet of sandy beach will be as clear and clean as it's been the last couple of years when the bottom could be seen in seven feet of water.

While picnickers are eager to dip toes in water and hot dogs in mustard, boaters are hopping at the bit to dip their vessels in Lake St. Clair.

"The docks will open May 1," says Austin. "We have a very active boat club."

"We have more than 5,000 people attending the annual regatta. They really enjoy the weekend celebration which includes a water pageant, dance, entertainment and games for the kids," he adds.

But humans aren't the only ones keeping a keen eye out for the park gates to open.

"We always have lots of ducks, swans, geese, sea gulls and turkey buzzards which the people feed," says Austin. "Last year, we even had a Canadian goose."

Look out, Ms. Fonda! Here comes Alice

By Tom Greenwood

She describes herself as French, female, fit and fifty-plus. The accent here, with a definite French twist, is on fit.

To prove it, all you need do is look at Alice Belfie's well-sculpted legs. Actually, at a poster of her legs that she uses for advertising. Dramatically back- and side-lit against a black background, the legs are sleek, smooth, well-muscled and appear to belong to a Russian ballerina.

"Everyone comments on the photo," Ms. Belfie said, with an accent born and bred in Montreal. "Most people can't believe I'm 54 years old and the mother of four children. But I want those facts made public. If I can look this way, so can other women."

She is not a member of the "Jane Fonda no pain, no gain — all is aerobics" school of exercise. She's a health and fitness expert with the Birmingham-based Dynamic Energie, Inc. dedicated to increasing a person's productivity and dedication to total, lifelong fitness.

"I became conscious of health habits when I was a young girl," she said. "I am one of seven sisters in Quebec. To this day they are all obese, out of shape, but the greatest French cooks in the world. I didn't want to become 5 by 5 like them, so I turned to exercise as a lifelong dedication. I work with many women who say they're overweight because they had two children, or they were operated on and the muscles were severed and, that's why they're fat. It doesn't have to be that way. Anyone can be fit."

Ms. Belfie doesn't believe a person has to push for a "burn" in order to maintain his or her fitness. Her classes, both on a private and classroom level, offer a combined program of aerobics, lightweight training and yoga.

"I don't really approve of most of these aerobics classes," she said. "Mostly they're just 'flipping the flab.' They're faddish and many don't have really trained instructors who can handle people correctly."

"There's nothing terribly demanding handling a class of 20 year olds who are already in pretty good shape. But it can be dangerous when the class is 40 or older, or there are people with special problems, like arthritis. There can be incorrect supervision."

She defined her program of yoga, weightlifting and aerobics while pursuing a master's degree in recreational therapy at Wayne State University. She began offering it to community centers and senior citizen homes before opening Dynamic Energie, Inc.

While her headquarters are on Hunter Road, in Birmingham, she does conduct classes at the War Memorial, twice a week.

"So far the classes have been well received, although they've only attracted a small number of people," she said. "They're open to both men and women. Here at the studio we offer private and group instruction, hydrotherapy, 12 different kinds of massages, nutritional guidance and we have on-staff chiropractor who uses non-force type of adjustments."

In her studio's exercise room, Ms. Belfie and fellow instructor Beverly Ruskin moved through an hour's session beginning with a stretching routine, then advancing to calisthenics and a quick ride on an exercycle.

"We electronically monitor everyone's heart rate to see how they're doing," Ms. Ruskin said, pedaling away. "Once we've established your range, we try and keep you there for a better workout. I joined the studio because I wanted to shape up after my baby was born. In about a year I went from a size 12 to a five. She's fantastic. You get a good concentrated workout, but she doesn't inflict any pain."

The class continued with aerobics, breathing exercises and a workout with weight machines.

"We don't build bulk and muscle here, like you see with so many women now in body-building magazines," Ms. Belfie said. "We don't put on muscle mass. We tone and make them more sleek with light workouts. Also the weights are very beneficial in helping combat calcium loss in the bones which is a real concern to older women. The weight training strengthens them and helps them fight brittleness that can result in the later years."

Belfie's own fitness regime consists of plenty of exercise at her classes assisting her students, plus running and a once-a-week tour of the exercise machines at a health spa. She eats a lot, but well, staying away from junk food, red meat, pop and drinking very little coffee.

"I'm French, so I like a glass of wine once a day," she said. "All my food is homemade, plus I supplement my diet with vitamins."

"When I was growing up in Quebec, we were taught by the French nuns to be 'une vraie femme' — a true woman. That was and still is my ideal."

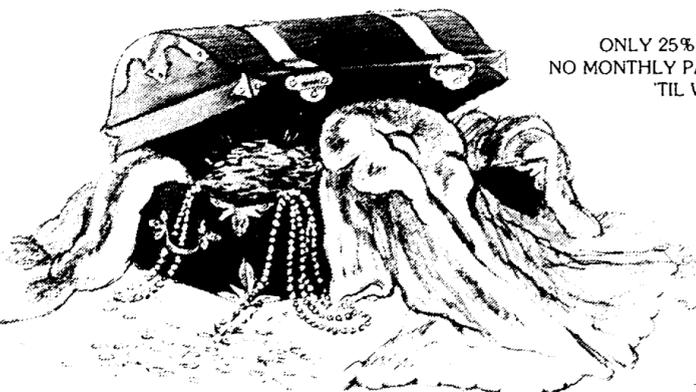

Alice Belfie and Beverly Ruskus.

Remote islands featured

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will present "Islands Rediscovered," a 16mm film by Rip and Fern Zwickey, when it meets in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium, 32 Lakeshore Road, on Monday, March 18, at 8 p.m.

The film was made during 10 weeks of travel to some of the most remote islands of the South Pacific and the Indian Ocean, many of whose inhabitants have had little or no contact with the outside world.

The ship was the hotel at the Galapagos Islands, a prehistoric world with the giant tortoise a highlight. Easter Island provided a week of filming, including the hundreds of 20-ton, long-eared statues of men of a vanished race.

Two islands of Western Samoa have never deviated from their ancient customs and shell beads are still their common currency. Scenes are filmed on the island of New Britain which was the headquarters for the Japanese forces in the Pacific during World War II.

New Guinea's stone age people are shown, with native dances in full regalia, including a performance by the mudmen. Kiriwine Island of the Trobriands with its wood carvers and Timor with its unbelievable way of life are featured.

In Australia, the Zwickeys were invited to visit an Aborigines reservation deep into the Northern Territory, where many dances of their ancestors were filmed and their music recorded.

The film ends with Islands of the Indian Ocean 6,000 miles away.

The public is invited. A $1 admission fee will be charged for non-members.

Women's workshop

A day-long event, "Women's Success Workshop," will be held Saturday, March 30, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at Marygrove College, 8425 W. McNichols at Wyoming.

The workshop will explore techniques for goal-setting to help women become aware of the special factors that need to be dealt with in order to achieve their goals for life enrichment and career development.

Cost is $30. For more information and to register, call 862-8000, ext. 240.

Not a trivial pursuit

Critics of modern education often complain that spelling is a lost art. Maybe that is true in some school systems. But not in Grosse Pointe.

Thus the Grosse Pointe News is happy to congratulate the winners in the spelling bees at the three middle schools — Parcels, Brownell and Pierce — whose pictures appear elsewhere in today's issue of the paper.

Some educators contend that spelling bees tend to force teachers to concentrate their attention on good spellers to the detriment of poor spellers. Yet honoring good spellers makes them role models for other students. And surely providing role models who have made outstanding records in spelling can be regarded as a useful educational aim.

Some tests show that there is no correlation between intelligence and spelling. Perhaps that is true. But taking the long view, we contend that, like the use of correct grammar, correct spelling is required to preserve the English language from the barbarians who mutilate and abuse it and who, if they had their way, eventually would make it impossible for us to communicate in our own language.

In the days before radio and television, spelling bees were often scheduled as part of the programs at parent-teacher organization meetings and, in fact, in social gatherings. On such occasions, it was not at all unusual for parents to learn through the experience of a spell-down that they could not spell as well as their children or their children's friends. In the interest of re-awakening interest in better spelling among adults as well as among school children, spelling bees might be revived as a form of social entertainment — perhaps as a substitute for Trivial Pursuit.

Our point is that learning to become a good speller is not a trivial pursuit. So we congratulate not only the Grosse Pointe middle school winners, but also the teachers and administration for making sure spelling does not become a lost art.

Tax amnesty a good idea?

Will Michigan adopt a tax amnesty program similar to the plans that brought in $65 million in revenue to the state of Massachusetts and $150 million to the state of Illinois? Nobody knows but the plan deserves serious consideration.

The proposal was first introduced in the Legislature by Rep. William Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe and it got new impetus from Gov. James Blanchard's disclosure he is considering the amnesty idea for Michigan.

Under the proposal, delinquent taxpayers would be given a three-month period during which they could pay up their taxes without penalty and without criminal prosecution. It would be a one-shot proposition, but it already has prompted some difference of opinion between Republican Bryant and the Democratic administration over the use that might be made of the revenues produced.

Bryant believes the funds should be used on a one-shot deal for some special project that the state needs, such as the prisons that are being proposed. The governor is talking about the plan as one means of helping finance his tax plan that includes an early rollback of the state income tax as well as more property tax relief.

The Grosse Pointe representative does not believe that amnesty revenues should go toward an early tax rollback, especially because the plan would be only a one-shot proposition. Bryant does, however, support the GOP income tax rollback.

State Treasurer Robert A. Bowman is skeptical of the amnesty plan on the grounds that it might ruffle the feelings of honest taxpayers or might slow future tax returns. But Bryant pointed out that the legislation would make it clear that the tax amnesty would be available only once which ought to answer those who think the plan might cause new tax delinquencies in the future.

It is true, as Bryant points out, that many Michigan taxpayers were hard hit by the recession and failed to pay their taxes on time. With business rebounding, at least at the moment, the belief is that such people now would be able to pay their taxes and their delinquencies and would have the opportunity to do so without penalty under the proposed amnesty.

The plan would do nothing for people who have continued to pay their taxes in full and on time, of course, and so there might be some popular resentment on that score. Yet the payoff in both Massachusetts and Illinois indicates that the amount recovered under their amnesties was greater than anticipated — and the complaints from the honest taxpayers were minimal.

We tend to support the idea but prefer Bryant's proposal to use the revenues from a tax amnesty for some specific need or project in the state. Since the state and the public seem to agree on the need for more prisons to keep criminals off the streets, using the funds to build the new institutions the state is planning would appear to be a desirable use of the amnesty revenues.

Over the years, public libraries have set amnesty periods during which borrowers who had lost or mislaid books were permitted to return them without penalty, and libraries have reported great success in reclaiming books that long had been absent from their shelves.

Of course, enactment of tax amnesty might encourage demands for similar actions in other fields, such as an amnesty on penalties for parking tickets, an amnesty on fees for check overdrafts, an amnesty on failing grades in school, an amnesty on punishment for failing to do the chores at home and so on.

In the end, the question probably will be resolved on the basis of estimates of what an amnesty would produce in new tax revenues in Michigan. Bryant thinks the total might reach $120 million. The question nobody can answer is what proportion of that sum in tax delinquencies would be collected without an amnesty. But one factor is certain. The Legislature now must either adopt the plan or vote it down. Otherwise, the idea will be alive, a fact that could persuade some people to wait for its enactment before paying current taxes and delinquencies.

Both parties play politics

Democratic Gov. James Blanchard's proposed alternative to the Republican income tax rollback plan already passed by the GOP-controlled state Senate is another round in the continuing tax propaganda war between the two major parties in Michigan. The governor's proposal makes both parties guilty of playing politics with the state's future.

The governor is proposing, we are told, a rollback of the income tax rate to 4.6 percent some time early next year, as contrasted with the GOP Jan. 1 rollback date. In addition, the governor will propose tightening tax loopholes, such as increasing taxes on domestic insurance companies and banks, and other moves to increase revenues to finance $200 million to $300 million in property relief as well as the income tax rollback.

With all members of the Legislature and the governor facing re-election next year, both parties are jockeying for position on the tax issue. It is still regarded as the state's major political issue because of last year's recall of two Democratic senators who voted for the controversial 1983 income tax hike and their replacement by two Republicans. That switch enabled the Republicans to grab control of the Senate.

Both parties also are looking forward to the March 26 special election to fill the Grand Rapids state Senate vacancy. That election will decide whether the Republicans will retain control of the Senate or whether the Democrats will be able to reassert control by having Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths cast the vote to break the tie that would ensue in the event of a Democratic victory.

First the Senate and now the governor wanted to get on record in favor of a tax rollback prior to March 26 in order to boost their respective nominees, the Republican, state Rep. Vern Ehlers, and the Democrat, former state Sen. Steve Monsma. Now that both parties have expressed themselves in favor of the rollback, the only questions left undecided are when and what conditions will be imposed on the action.

Yet the emphasis on the rollback tends to obscure the state's revenue needs for the future. True, there will be a surplus as of next Oct. 1 but there are many questions about whether Michigan's economy will continue on its current roll. The cut or elimination of federal revenue sharing and other federal aid, plus the end of the voluntary Japanese car export quotas at the end of this month will have financial and economic consequences. Those actions will cut federal aid to Michigan and also could mean fewer jobs, fewer cars produced and less state revenue. So what is the hurry to get rid of the surplus and reduce taxes before the economic future becomes somewhat clearer?

The answer to that question, of course, is that 1986 is an election year and the eyes of lawmakers in both parties are so firmly fixed on that date that they can see little else. In the past this newspaper has been somewhat critical of the Republicans for seeking what may be a premature rollback. Now the governor has entered the bidding with his own rollback which could become effective early next year. So he is equally guilty of using the rollback as a political issue, whether the action is justified at this time or not.

Without any action, the income tax rate would slide back to 4.6 percent on Oct. 1, 1987. It would seem that the Legislature and the governor, if they insist on approving an earlier rollback, might well wait until early next year before taking action. By that time, the pattern of Michigan's roller coaster economy — up today and down tomorrow — might be more apparent and an earlier rollback could be considered on the basis of more accurate forecasts about the future than can be made this year.

That is unlikely to be the outcome, however. With both parties in the bidding contest, the income tax rate almost certainly will be rolled back to 4.6 percent sometime next year and perhaps as early as Jan. 1. Our sad conclusion is that the timing is being dictated more by the 1986 election than by economic facts.

Include all of the children

To the Editor:
I have just finished reading the sixth, and hopefully, last article concerning Joseph Callahan's taped interview with Joan Hanpeter. I have also read all of Mr. Callahan's previous correspondence concerning the need to close more schools.

I have found these letters very unsettling. I am a G.P. resident with a handicapped child who is attending a school outside of the community. It has not been my choice to send our son to Detroit for his education. I feel that before any more schools are closed, all of the children who reside here should be included in the local school population.

Today, I read the last part of this interview. Mrs. Hanpeter cites a cost of $94,000 to cover the tuition and transportation for five handicapped students commuting to out-district centers. She comments that this is required by the state.

What does this mean???

— If transportation was not required, G.P. would then educate these children locally?

— If these five children did not exist, there could be a cost saving?

— Or perhaps, since they are only handicapped persons, they do not require an education?

I do agree that $94,000 is a steep price to pay for the education of five youngsters. However, there are alternatives not discussed in this interview. Why doesn't G.P. open up center programs to serve the needs of these students? The cost of a center program is paid through the one-mill assessment to Wayne County that we are already paying. G.P. could then receive tuition from out-of-district students attending these classrooms. Once these special education programs are established, it may not be necessary to close additional local schools since the special education funding could offset the cost of building operations.

How can any person sit on a school board and send a child from G.P. to Garden City for his schooling? How does one justify sending a child on a bus ride that lasts two hours daily on the city freeways? As long as the G.P. board chooses to send handicapped youngsters out of their local district, please spare me a recital of the "transportation cost blues."

Odor may be hazardous

To the Editor:
As a chemist involved in education, it is necessary to very carefully select the chemicals which students use in our laboratories. Solvents, such as carbon tetrachloride, which were once commonly used in an almost off-handed manner, have been shown to be carcinogenic. There are many such solvents. Anyone working with chemicals must be aware of current research in the safe use of such substances. You would think that no one would knowingly expose themselves or others to harmful chemicals.

There seems to be a major industry in our area, however, which is either not aware of potential dangers or not concerned with exposing the public to dangerous chemicals in our air. Perhaps you have noticed the strong "plastic-like" odors; such is especially noticeable in the Park when there is little wind or when the light breezes come from the west (which is much of the time). This is true in the evening as well as early some mornings. Sometimes the odor is noticeable all day long.

The odors are coming from the Jefferson Avenue plant of Chrysler Corporation. I am told that the vapors are escaping from their paint line. I believe that these substances in our air may be capable of damaging kidneys and liver. I am sure that the strong odors are an annoyance and do nothing for the quality of life (or our property values!).

If you note these same odors and find them offensive, please call the Wayne County Air Pollution Control, 224-4650. They may do something if enough citizens show concern.

Time to consider buses

To the Editor:
I am prompted to write this letter after reading Mr. Bloink's Feb. 28 letter to the editor regarding the practice of keeping schools open in Grosse Pointe during periods of extremely cold weather and inclement conditions. I would like to add my thoughts to this subject.

Many Grosse Pointe students have "always" walked long distances to schools. Many years ago my husband spent hours walking and attempting to hitchhike from Lochmoor Boulevard to South High School. He does not recall these memories fondly. When I expressed my dissatisfaction that my elementary school-age children would have to walk from approximately Vernier and Marter roads to Ferry School, especially when cold weather aggravates their asthma, I was told that this walk was at least not as long as some youngsters attending Ferry School who have to walk from the Barnes School area now that Barnes has been closed.

It should no longer have to be a half-hearted joke among parents that we guess we'll just have to put up with this situation because this is the way the school system has always operated and always will operate. For the life of me, I cannot recall a school system this size except our own which does not operate its own bus system. If we had a bus system, and the buses could not navigate in the snow or be made operable in the cold, then obviously there would be no school that day. And that might not be a bad idea. If buses cannot undertake a considerable journey due to inclement conditions, why do we assume small children can under the same conditions, especially for great distances in many cases?

I would hope that any reader who has concern for this issue will call the school system superintendent's office and at least request a study of this problem. More mothers are working than ever before and cannot drive their children to school during any portion of the school year. I am one. Also considering that we have closed schools and may be closing more in the future, it seems evident to me that such a study is warranted and needed.

Sidewalks are not equal in the Pointes

To the Editor:

Now that the end of winter finally is in sight, it is time to rate the contribution our lakeshore neighbors have made to the ease and pleasure with which runners, joggers and strollers have negotiated the length of that beautiful strip during our long season of ice and snow. As one of the slower members of that foot-weary cohort, though among the most regular, I may have more time than others to reflect as I do my daily 10 miles along Lake St. Clair to and from my office. Recently I have been reflecting upon the wide variation in sidewalk maintenance between Shores and Farms as I skip through the first and slog through the second. This winter at least, there's no doubt about the winner.

Grosse Pointe Shores has managed to clear the sidewalks of all but the most punishing snowfalls, while the Farms was distinctly laid-back about that chore. The result for me, as for many other pedestrians, was a frequent deviation from the relative (!) safety of the sidewalk to the street, where some motorists hotly contest the runners' right-to-life, or an even more pronounced detour inland to a safer but less-scenic artery, a gain for survival but a clear aesthetic loss. I conclude that one ought not to have to sacrifice longevity merely to enjoy the benefits of this supposedly life-extending, or at least life-enhancing activity. While I walk for health and pleasure, I do not really believe that I should be forced to have a short life just to have a merry one. For the many benefits extended to me and my pedestrian colleagues, then, I thank the Solons of the Shores for their fat snow-removal budget. I hope that the Farms will try to outdo them next winter.

We are entering another season, that of the menacing lawn sprinkler. Here, too, if last season is any measure, the Farms' heart is hardened against the footbound passerby. There, in the early morning, vicious streams of icy water assail the runner, jogger, etc. because the stately homes of Lakeshore aim carelessly, soaking their luxuriant lawns at the expense of sidewalk users. The benefits to the cardiovascular system attained by running this gantlet are diminished by the shock when one miscalculates and gets drenched. In comfortable contrast, the Shores residents take better aim and I can traverse this territory with no more than a wet foot from a pool left by a broken sprinkler head.

I do not attribute the difference in water husbandry to variations in budget, however, for, unless the Shores maintains a covert water

War Memorial needs addition

To the Editor:

I am wondering why the Grosse Pointe War Memorial is not able to afford at least one restroom for the handicapped in that beautiful Crystal Ballroom?

We citizens have contributed to their drives each year and they have recently received a good sum as an inheritance — but there is still no restroom for the handicapped.

There are sometimes as many as 350 men attending the Senior Men's Club. Perhaps others would take advantage of some of the great programs offered, if these facilities strike force to punish offenders, keeping the water where it belongs ought not to involve much cost. Without assessing blame, but in a mild spirit induced by contemplating the prospect of Spring, I applaud the Shores for their good works and offer their example to others for emulation.

were provided. Senior ladies also meet there. Among these elderly people there must be many who would welcome this addition.

It seems ridiculous that there is one stall and one urinal in the men's bathroom and two stalls in the ladies room, when over 300 people are in attendance in the Crystal Ballroom.

The authorities who administrate the building have been contacted several times, but no changes are made.

Sincerely,
C. Grace Reins

Unhappy with coverage

To the Editor:

The front and second pages of the March 7 sports section was the most slanted display of journalism that I have ever seen.

In the article by Peggy O'Connor titled innocently enough, "Hockey power ends Pointe playoff hopes," she continues by writing almost exclusively about South's loss to Trenton and finishes by mentioning North's game almost as an afterthought. Considering that North's game was a more evenly matched contest than GPS vs. Trenton and the final scores reflected that, the article is an excellent example of unequal representation of schools in the sports pages of the Grosse Pointe News.

Furthermore, the chop job that was done on North's varsity volleyball article was insensitive to the fact that the team accomplished one of their most important goals of the season to win their league tournament. The 1984-85 spikers had one of the best records in North's history — 21-7 — and when they won the bi-county tournament, this achievement was hardly noteworthy in the eyes of the GP News. It's unfortunate that the final coverage of these two winter sports had to end this way.

Brooke Bessert
Grosse Pointe North

Editor's note: Miss Bessert, the writer of the varsity volleyball story, neglected to mention in her story that the team was involved in tournament play or that the players had one of the best records in the school's history. Also the story on South's hockey loss to Trenton was more extensive since it was played March 4, while North's game was March 5, the day the Grosse Pointe News is put together. A two-inch hole was left on the sports page and production was held up at the printer's until the sports editor returned from the game and wrote a quick report.

Lutheran agency gets new logo

Lutheran Social Services of Michigan (LSSM) enters the second half of its first century with a new logo reflecting the changes of the first 50.

The large block letters (Eurasian style) convey a contemporary sense, stability and solidity.

The new logo emphasizes the agency rather than the geography as did the previous logo and so emphasizes the services provided.

LSSM owns and operates Calvary

Senior Center, Gateshead and Mack, which helps older adults stay independent as long as possible in their own homes through home care maintenance, protective services, a variety of courses and providing a Food and Friendship site.

Calvary also operates the Adult Day Care Center with Bon Secours Hospital which provides supervised care for the older adult who is not quite ready for a nursing home.

LSSM is in 17 cities in Michigan, offering refugee resettlement, nursing and residential care for the older adult; foster care and adoption placement; family and individual counseling and education. LSSM operates community centers for children and older adults and manages group facilities for the developmentally disabled.

Wayburn home robbed

A Wayburn home in the Park was reported broken into Tuesday night, Feb. 26, Park police said.

The thief or thieves entered the home by breaking the glass from the rear door of the home. The home was thoroughly searched. An unknown amount of cash, personal checks and an f.m. tuner were taken, reports said.

Youths rob woman

A 78-year-old woman was attacked and robbed by two youths Monday afternoon on Devonshire, Park police said.

The woman had parked her car and was knocking on the rear door of the home when she found herself confronted by two juveniles, between the ages of 12 and 15, police said.

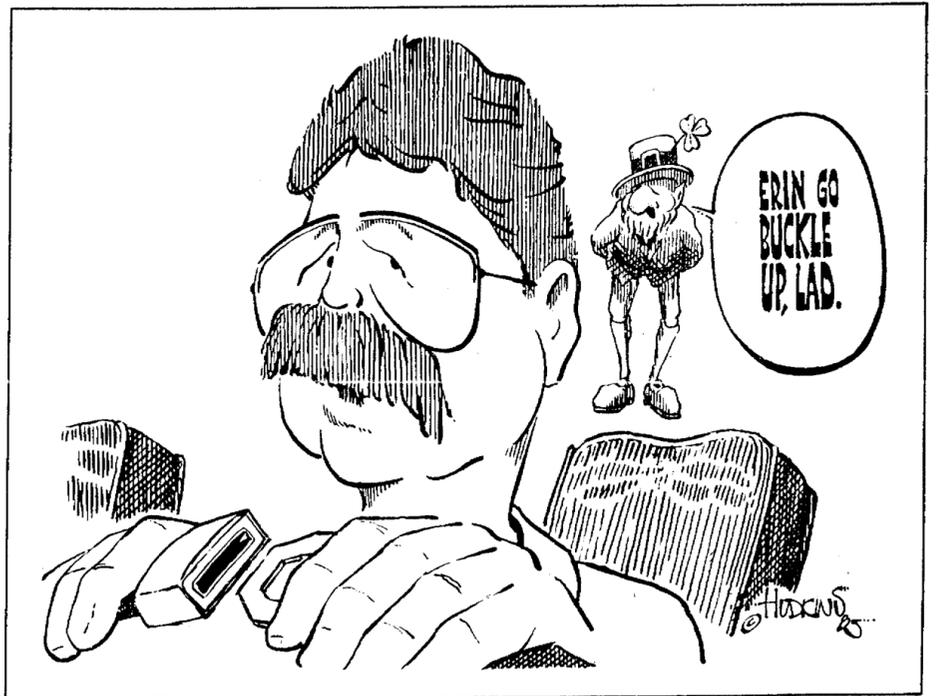

The assailants struck the woman and took her purse, which contained $78, and escaped on foot, police said.

Woman robbed

A young woman was robbed at about 5 p.m. Thursday, March 7, in the parking lot of the Ophthalmic Surgeons building, Park police said.

The woman was headed to her car at the rear of the lot when she was confronted by a black man in his 20s, about 5 feet 5 inches, and wearing a navy blue jacket and dark trousers, police said.

The man held his hand in his coat pocket as though he was carrying a weapon and ordered the woman to hand over her purse, which she did. The purse contained an unknown amount of cash and the woman's identification. The man then fled, police said.

I say

Hey, Big Boy!

By K.M. O'Connor

This space, filled by staff writers on a rotating basis, is for rent every five weeks. This column is by K.M. O'Connor, a faithful reader. We know he's a faithful reader, because his sister, Peggy O'Connor, sports editor, quizzes him every week on the contents of the paper. Persons from the community who would like the opportunity to wax ecstatic or just do some plain talkin' are welcome to submit their piece for consideration.

As a free-lance writer, I don't get the chance to reach a stable audience as often as I'd like. So, this opportunity to speak with my fellow Grosse Pointers affords me great pleasure! Pleasure mixed with concern. For what should we speak of? Something relevant, something important... then it hit me... Big Boy!

Yes, Big Boy. That portly, pompoured purveyor of purchased, prepackaged potables. I thought, why not congratulate the little guy on reaching his 50th year working with Elias Brothers, Inc.?

So I looked him up. Not surprisingly, I found him at the Big Boy's restaurant on Vernier and Mack. (You were thinking Wendy's, maybe?) What was surprising was the absence of his familiar happy grin. When I told him about the piece I planned on him, he just sadly shook his Brobdingnagian head (taking care not to jostle his giant burger). Then he told me his sad tale.

It seems that the Elias Brothers Co. is worried about his image, that he's losing his saleability. And Big Boy, trusting soul that he is, never got a contract.

B.B. is afraid it's going to be 50 and out. But he's got one chance. The company has decided to let the people vote on his fate.

If the vote is nay, Big Boy is out on his over-large plastic kiester and the headlines will read: Big Boy, we hardly knew ye! If yea, he'll continue to stand as the symbol of all that's good and decent in America.

I asked B.B. why he hung around here, with all that's happening to him.

"I've got no beef with the restaurateurs. Especially here," he replied, gesturing with his giant burger. "I'm respected in there. Being plastic, I don't eat, but I'm told the food is real good."

"The atmosphere is nice. It's a comfortable place, staffed by good people. I feel at home here! Like I said, I got no problem with the people. It's the company that wants to shake me now that my salad days seem to be gone. It's a real kick in the buns, if you ask me."

Strong words from a strong, burger-toting guy. As I took my leave, I said, "You keep a stiff upper lip."

"I'm plastic; that's all I can do," he quipped.

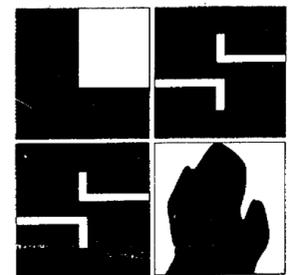

Leaving the lot, I encountered a man in whiteface with shocking orange hair. He told me he was a friend and supporter of B.B. who, for "business reasons," wouldn't identify himself other than as Ron, the hamburger clown.

He had a few words. "I knew it! Back when they deposed the Burger King, I thought, 'Our days are numbered,'" Ron said. "But who could imagine the Boy would be next? He's been in the business for 50 years! What'll he do?"

"I mean, face it, the job market for 50-year-old hamburger toting icons is virtually non-existent. I wish I could help! But what can I do? I'm only a clown."

What can any of us do? Vote April 1 through 26. Why? Think about it. Nobody who's anybody goes to Elias Brothers; everybody goes to Big Boy's! A vote for Big Boy today could mean the first step toward the end of tyranny and injustice throughout the world.

Or it might not. But vote anyway; it's something you can do rather than sit on your hands. Or are we all "only clowns?"

Pre-school program rents room at Barnes

By Mike Andrzejczyk

After an April 1 inspection by the state Department of Social Services, Clark and Barbara Lawrence expect to open the doors to their Grosse Pointe Pre-Kindergarten North program on April 22.

The Lawrences, owners of the pre-kindergarten that has been at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church since 1969, will hold their program in one of the two vacant kindergarten rooms at Barnes School.

The Board of Education Monday night unanimously approved a 14-month lease with the Lawrences. The district will receive $750 monthly from April 1 through May 1986 for Room 110 at Barnes.

Many parents have asked if the Lawrences would consider opening a location in the north end of the school district along with their classes at the Unitarian Church to cut the commuting distance for the children, Mrs. Lawrence said.

The rent will cover utilities. The Lawrences will not be able to use the school's gymnasium or kitchen. The program will have playground privileges and the Lawrences will carry a $1 million combined single-limit liability insurance policy.

Application has been filed with the DSS to allow enrolling 30 children a session in the Barnes program, Mrs. Lawrence said. The program won't receive its license until after the state agency inspects the facilities April 1. The fire inspector from the Woods has already been to the school, Mrs. Lawrence said.

Children aged 2½ to 5 may attend two, three or five morning or afternoon sessions weekly. The program will offer a one-month "introductory" program before it begins enrolling for the summer sessions, Mrs. Lawrence said.

The program tries to help each child have a good pre-school experience and provide an enriched program with activities to meet children's needs and lay a foundation for the future school experience, according to the program's literature. It is designed to build ability, a good self-image and help prepare children for their next step in school.

The Unitarian Church program is currently licensed by the state to have 60 children in its four sessions, Mrs. Lawrence said. There will be one teacher for every eight students.

The program will begin with 1½ hours of free time, which offers the children a variety of play activities. Afterward, children clean up the play area and are divided by age into groups of no more than 10 for "quiet time." The second half of the day will include a snack and a pre-arranged lesson plan in a variety of educational and socialization areas.

Board treasurer Vincent LoCicero asked for certain clarifications of the lease language. The lease didn't clearly define the playground area that the Lawrences would be able to use, he said.

The lease didn't cover the possible loss of state license for the program or clearly spell out the Lawrences' right to first refusal in their option to rent the second of two vacant kindergarten rooms at Barnes, LoCicero added.

The stipulations brought up by the board will be reviewed and written into the lease before both sides sign it, Deputy Supt. Joseph Spagnoli said.

Since being closed to K-6 programs this school year, Barnes has become the center offices for the Department of Community Services and Instruction Materials Department. The Grosse Pointe Education Association recently rented office space in the building.

Barnes' Room 110 may once again be filled with the sounds of playing children. The school board Monday night decided to lease the vacant room to Grosse Pointe Pre-Kindergarten so the company can offer a program for 2½- to 6-year-olds.

St. Clare will perform 'The Mikado'

St. Clare of Montefalco Junior High School will celebrate the centenary of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" with two performances almost 100 years to the day after the opera's first performance at London's Savoy Theater.

The original Mikado was greeted with international acclaim, and over the past 100 years has endured throughout the world in countless translations and interpretations.

The St. Clare production will be presented Thursday, March 21, at 7:30 p.m. and Friday, March 22, at 8 p.m. Both performances will be in the church social hall.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

Along with seed catalogs and travel folders comes the Elderhostel 1985 summer catalog offering exciting possibilities for summer enjoyment.

Elderhostel is a network of 700 colleges, universities and independent schools in the United States, Canada, Australia, Bermuda, France, Germany, Great Britain, Ireland, Holland, Israel, Italy, Mexico, Scandinavia and Spain which offer special low-cost, short-term residential programs for older adults.

Most domestic programs begin Sunday evening and end Saturday morning. There are no exams, grades or homework.

Students live in dormitories. Most meals are eaten in the regular college cafeteria.

Looking at the catalog, it is apparent that here is a chance to visit a part of the country you have wanted to see, and to learn about a subject that interests you for a nominal charge. A week's lodging, meals included, five days of classes and the use of campus facilities such as the library, golf course, swimming pool and exhibits is $195.

You may elect three courses or if you want more time to sightsee, choose just one. The courses do not presuppose previous knowledge of the subject nor are there any academic restrictions.

All in all, the program appears to be an opportunity not only to enjoy a vacation at a bargain rate but also to expand your horizon by acquiring knowledge of a subject that may provide a springboard for a lifetime interest.

Snapshots and movies of vacations are fun to view during the long winter nights. They can remind you of good times you enjoyed on your summer trip, but after you have seen them and shown them to your friends a few times, they are put away.

A summer spent gardening can be enjoyable and rewarding but when the summer is over and the flowers and vegetables can no longer resist nature's demand that the earth rest and replenish itself, there's not much left to lift the spirit during the long winter nights.

However, if you elect to spend a week learning something about a subject that excites you, you can expand and draw on that knowledge; a quest that will see you through months and years of leisure time.

Another advantage of spending one week of the summer in a learning situation is what the acquisition of new knowledge can do for you as a person.

We read about people who go to health spas to rejuvenate their body. But we know while good looks attract, if the person has nothing to offer in the way of intelligent conversations and a certain joie de vivre those who are interested in something beyond themselves possess, that attraction wears thin. Like the advertisement that so subtly delivers the message of need to keep up with the world, the reaction to surface beauty becomes: Nice house. Nobody home.

Studies have shown that those who keep mentally alert have an aura of youth that belies their years. They are interesting, stimulating and generally good company. Think of the older people you have seen in the news or know personally. As they talk and comment, they become contemporary with any age. They, by their intellectual curiosity and openness to new views, have broken the age barriers. They have left far behind that area of self-indulgence which concerns itself with physical ailments that age inevitably brings: demands that children provide for their outings and recreation; arrogant stipulations that they, because of their years of experience, be allowed to arbitrate and control their children's lives; guilt complexes afflicted on what they deem neglect by children.

The sad part of this litany of complaints is that there is some degree of truth in them. Adult children should not abandon parents but the more they are reminded of their obligations, the harder they resist them. The key word is obligation. Whatever is given should be given freely.

More often than not, it is. More often than not it comes to those who choose independence and the independence of the mind is the surest way to go.

People can become disabled physically but no matter what their physical condition or their financial status, they can rise above them if they keep fit mentally.

You can be limited by illness, weather or income, but you can create a world of your own through reading and study.

Studies have shown that the capacity for learning does not diminish with years and the mind, like the body, improves with use.

Many people enjoy learning. Some even invest the time and money to enroll in a regular college, complete the requirements and earn a degree.

Thomas Small, who lives in Boston, took advantage of this proximity to Harvard to earn a certificate of advanced study. He achieved that goal when he was 85. Two other members of his family graduated from Harvard facilities the same year. A grandson graduated from Harvard Law School and another grandson graduated from Harvard University. At age 88, Small began working on a master's degree in English literature.

"I always had in mind to return to school after I retired," he said. After serving as treasurer of a company in Boston for 50 years, he did.

His philosophy? "It would be easy for someone in my position to become a rocking-chair old man. Only by mental discipline can you prevent that."

No one is suggesting that those who attend an Elderhostel program will spend the rest of their lives pursuing whatever subject is elected. However, a week spent in a college atmosphere, learning about a subject taught by a professor in the field and in the company of people of the same age group could be an invigorating experience.

One of the great advantages of Elderhostel is the possibility of choosing any part of the country to attend courses. Some students make it a part of a vacation package — one week of study, one week of leisure time activities.

Some stop over for a week on their way to a favorite vacation spot. Others choose to register in two areas, spending one week at one college, another week at another.

Besides location and interest, a prospective student has the choice of weeks ranging from May 5 to Sept. 9. Another consideration is the physical facilities. All of them are comfortable. For instance, Central Michigan University offers Elderhostelers three room suites with private bath, two persons per suite.

The choices of location are numerous. A student can choose to attend a college close to home to save the expense of traveling. University of Michigan, Michigan State, Adrian, Albion, Cranbrook are some of the colleges in the state which offer Elderhostel courses.

In addition to location, students have choices on what they wish to study.

For instance, if you are interested in automobiles, you might want to enroll at the University of Michigan in Flint where three courses are offered on the auto industry.

If you have a fondness for Northern Michigan, you might opt to attend Suomi College in Hancock. Located near Lake Superior, rustic forests and historic copper mines, Suomi offers nine courses. Among them are "Exploring the Copper Country Outdoors." Perhaps you would enjoy sightseeing in Washington D.C. You can add interest to the trip by attending courses at the Peabody Institute in Maryland. Culturally oriented and internationally famous for its Conservatory of Music, it offers such courses as "Frederick Chopin: A Portrait through Music."

Montreal has long been a popular port of call for travelers because of its excellent dining, shopping and sightseeing possibilities. McGill University in Montreal offers for the history-minded: "War and Society in Modern Europe," a 20th century social and political history, and for those attuned to the music world, "Music and Dance," which focuses on music inspired by theatrical works.

A trip to Hawaii could be made more memorable by electing "Hawaii: An Island History" at Brigham Young University.

There is no area of America where you choose to vacation that Elderhostel has not made possible for you to stop off for a week of learning. Nor are all the areas academic. Those interested in crafts will find many courses to interest them.

Like all catalogs, the Elderhostel 1985 Summer Catalog is replete with choices enough to require long hours of pondering on what to choose from and what part of the country you wish to visit.

You can have a copy sent to you by writing Elderhostel, 80 Boylston St., Suite 400, Boston, Mass. 02116, or you can look it over at the Grosse Pointe libraries.

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE FARMS ORDAINS:

Section 1. Sections 1(a) and 1(b) of the Fence Ordinance, Code No. 11-03, enacted on December 1, 1952, are hereby amended by revising Section 1(a) and 1(b) to read in their entirety as follows:

- 1(a) Fences and walls which do not exceed four feet in height. Any fence or wall of any height which is to be placed in front of the building line shall be set back at least 2 feet from the public right-of-way and shall be located so as not to restrict proper visual observation of vehicles or persons using the public right-of-way as determined by the Director of Public Services.
- 1(b) Fences and walls exceeding 4 feet in height but not exceeding 6 feet in height, in the rear of the building line permitted under the Zoning Ordinance as from time to time in effect, with the consent of the owner of the adjoining property nearest the fence or wall. Such consent shall be in writing and shall be filed with the City, and shall be irrevocable and binding on succeeding owners of the property with respect to the fence or wall for which it is given. The limitation of such fences to the rear of building lines applies to every street on which the property may abut, and refers to the side of such line away from such street. If the adjoining property nearest the fence or wall has a building line further from the street than the building line of the property on which the fence or wall is built, the fence or wall exceeding 4 feet in height shall be built only to the rear of the building line of such adjoining property.

Section 2. Section 5 of the Fence Ordinance is hereby amended to read in its entirety as follows:

5. A fee in the amount established by the council resolution shall be paid to the City prior to the issuance of each permit.

Section 3. Except as amended herein, Ordinance No. 50, as heretofore amended, shall remain in full force and effect.

Circulatory system explained at Cottage

Vascular surgeon Richard A. Berg, M.D. will present "The Circulatory System - Parts, Maintenance, and Repair," Wednesday, March 20, at Cottage Hospital. The program begins at 7 p.m. in the boardrooms on the lower level of the hospital, 159 Kercheval Ave.

It is important that people understand the risk factors for vascular disease," Dr. Berg said. "Smoking, obesity, lack of exercise, and high levels of cholesterol contribute to the build-up of plaque. This clogs the arteries, restricts the flow of blood, and may result in heart attack or stroke."

His program explores other common abnormalities of the circulatory system such as varicose veins and blood clots. Symptoms may include cramps, aching or swelling of arms and legs, chest pain or pressure, shortness of breath, headaches, dizziness, slurred speech and impaired vision.

To register for this free program, call the hospital at 884-8600, ext. 2390.

Mason holds science fair

Michael Dib, fifth-grade teacher at Mason Elementary School, recently sponsored a Science Fair to encourage students to explore the world of science on a more personal level.

The fair attracted nearly 30 students who planned, researched, constructed and submitted their project for final judging.

The judging took place Wednesday, Feb. 27. Judges for the event were William Arbaugh, counselor at Parcels Middle School; William Taylor, Administrative Intern at Parcels, and Carolyn Thompson, a former Mason parent.

Winners from the fourth grade competition were William Duell, Duffy Chapie and Kristine Armaly. Fifth grade winners were Mike Garzell, Rob Meldrum, Jon Wilson, Heidi Kraetke, and Krista Lanhoff.

Health council teaches kids about food

Nutrition can taste good. With this encouragement, fifth-graders at Defer Elementary School set out to investigate food by tasting it, taking it apart and putting it back together again. The students took part March 6 in the Grosse Pointe Health Education Council's pilot Nutrition Fair Program, held at Defer.

Following a presentation by registered dietician Linda Rhodes, the students moved around the classroom in groups to file stations where they examined the properties and value of food by making choices in a mock cafeteria line, graphing nutrients, tasting, determining starch content and relating nutrients to particular foods.

Defer's Health Education Council delegates Anne Schultz and Anita Serra initiated the concept of the fair with Mrs. Rhodes. They believed that a nutrition fair would not only be interesting and exciting to the students, but would create a high learning index, supplement the existing curriculum and could be implemented by a small group of volunteers at a minimal cost.

If the pilot program is approved by the Health Education Council's board, it will be offered to each elementary school, school officials said.

Many of the activities at the fair were provided by the Dairy Council of Michigan. Volunteers included Karen Hill, Jane Nutter, Nina Binder, Gerry Krag, Jan Hodgis, Dianne Patanella, Kathy Adams and Sue MacKechnie.

Registered dietician Linda Rhodes, standing far right, tells Defer fifth-graders about nutrition during the school's Nutrition Fair program last week while adult volunteers look on.

Support wildlife

Michigan residents are urged to remember wildlife when they fill out their income tax forms. Line 33B on the 1984 Income Tax Form has been set aside for donations of part or all of an income tax refund to the new Nongame Wildlife Fund in Michigan.

Two years ago, Michigan Audubon, along with several other major statewide environmental organizations, helped to establish an income tax checkoff to help provide funds to help species of wildlife which are not supported by game revenues.

At this time, game revenues, which include license fees and portions of sales from equipment used by hunters trappers and fishermen, are used to support only those species harvested by sportsmen.

Residents may now provide monies to help those animals which are not hunted, the nongame species.

Guest artists

Appearing as guest artists of the Chamber Music Players of Grosse Pointe at the monthly concert Sunday, March 17, at 2:30 p.m. in the Fries Ballroom at the War Memorial are four members of the Renaissance City Chambers Players. They are, from left, violinists Daria Tedeschi and Ann Elliott, cellist Martha Reikow and violinist Margaret Lang Van Lunen. The program will feature string quartets by Haydn, Wachsman and Mendelssohn. Admission is $3 at the door. Members admitted free. Refreshments will follow the program.

Tuition set for program

helped sponsor the TMI program and reduced the cost to the school district, Spagnoli said. Last year, the school system carried the brunt of funding for the program, he added.

The TMI program is mostly recreational, with students meeting regularly at the Woods' Lakefront Park as well as Barnes school, summer school principal Kathy Herschelmann said.

The summer school program as a whole is coming off its best year ever, Mrs. Herschelmann said. Enrollment was higher than ever before and the program ended up in the black last summer, she added.

Offering programs at a number of buildings was the only thing the program tried last year that didn't work, she said. This year, North will be the main summer school center for the most of the five-week programs and August mini-courses. South will offer the computer courses, computer camps and typing classes, she added.

North is air-conditioned, so programs can be offered throughout the building, allowing the summer school program to best use the resource available, Mrs. Herschelmann said.

Offering elementary, middle and high school courses in the same buildings worked out very well last year, Mrs. Herschelmann said. The feared "terror in the halls" didn't materialize as students and teachers worked together to give the programs a "one-room schoolhouse" feeling, she added.

Most of the same courses as last year will be offered this summer, Mrs. Herschelmann said. Courses that didn't secure enough students but were first time offerings, like middle school science programs, will be offered again this year.

"The things that absolutely didn't go last year won't be offered this year," she said. "Some programs, like the middle school science programs, will be offered again. We aren't decreasing the offerings at all."

Tuition will be the same as last year. Elementary school five-week programs meeting 1 1/2 hours a day, three days a week will cost $35. Middle school programs meeting two hours a day, three days a week for five weeks will cost $45.

High school students will pay $90 for a five-week program that meets 2 1/2 hours weekdays. Computer Camp will cost $50 for the five weeks of 1 1/2 hour classes three times a week.

The program forecasts collecting $51,000 this summer and will allow smaller classes to be offered in skills courses without raising tuition, Mrs. Herschelmann said. Last year, the forecast was $40,000 but the program actually collected more than $56,000.

The five-week sessions will run from June 24 to July 26, with July 4 as a holiday and July 24 as the annual summer Open House. Mini-courses will run for two weeks beginning Aug. 12.

Last year, 948 students attended summer school programs, compared to 834 the year before. Besides the higher enrollment, the program maintained better attendance, with fewer students dropping out and requesting refunds, Mrs. Herschelmann said.

Enrollment in summer school is just about evenly split between students attending to make up credit for courses they failed during the regular year and students looking to supplement the regular school-year curriculum, Mrs. Herschelmann said. Each year, there are six to eight seniors who, having failed courses during the regular school year, make up enough credit in summer school to graduate from high school, she added.

"It looks like it's going to be a good summer," Mrs. Herschelmann said, adding that parents and students are already asking when certain courses are going to be offered.

Tax tips

Q: I have owned a four-family apartment building and have rented it out for the last six years, but the neighborhood is deteriorating, and I want to sell it. If I sell it, and within one year reinvest the proceeds of the sale in another apartment building, I don't have to pay any tax on the deal, do I?

A: Yes, you do — if you realized a gain on the sale. The one-year idea you mention applies only to certain tax-free exchanges — not to sales. A reinvestment rule might also apply if the property were condemned by a government authority.

ULS students join Spanish society

Promising to continue their efforts to master the Spanish language, and to promote friendship and understanding between our country and other lands of the world, 12 new members were welcomed Feb. 25 into University Liggett School's El Cid chapter of the National Spanish Honor Society.

Students are chosen for membership in the Society by the recommendation of their Spanish teachers and by earning a 3.3 grade point average after three semesters' study of Spanish.

ULS students included this term were Amina Ali, Susan Cleek, Simone Early, Judy Ann Go, Michael Isip, Mark Kozlowski, Suzannah Maycock, Tessie Raymo, William Reuther, Shafali Sharma, Marty Tibbitts and Shelly Tibbitts.

The featured speaker at the candle-lit induction ceremony was Dr. Manuela Manzanares de Cirre, the professor of Spanish who wrote the textbook from which the students study. Her welcoming speech, delivered in Spanish, recalled the many heroic exploits of El Cid, the national hero of Spain for whom the ULS chapter is named.

After a reception following the ceremony, students, parents and teachers joined Sra. Mariela Brown, the group's sponsor, at a celebration dinner at Xochimilco.

Tough love can save tough kids

By Harriet Nolan

Jenny has a middle-aged son who takes her purse and steals her charge cards. To keep him from charging thousands of dollars in her name, she now hides such negotiable items inside her locked bedroom.

David and Laura have an 18-year-old daughter who's taken drugs since grade school and doesn't want to change her lifestyle. They've decided not to help further her habits and have stopped giving her spending money.

While the names have been changed, the incidents are real. Each of these families has learned to deal with their problems with the support of a group called Tough Love.

Millie Miller, of the Park, conducts the weekly meetings which give support to parents whose teens want to run their own lives, not take orders or follow any rules.

In Jenny's case, signing a police complaint against her own son was out of the question, says Mrs. Miller. But putting locks on the bedroom door was an acceptable alternative.

Referring to David and Laura, she says, "The first step is to make the teen accountable for her own actions. Take a stand and stick with it."

"Often, parents are afraid to say no because they're afraid their child won't like them. But we have to make children responsible for themselves."

"How can they be if they're on the dole from their parents? If they don't abide, they don't deserve to be helped," she adds.

Another couple's last-ditch effort to save the family's sanity was to pack their disruptive son's belongings in two paper bags. He was greeted with that surprise after returning from one of his regular escapades.

He soon shaped up, got a job and an apartment, says Mrs. Miller, "and is doing fine."

Fran Pastoria, a former community consultant at Northeast Guidance Center, founded the Pointe group several years ago. She says members share experiences and offer advice and suggestions based on the guidelines set forth in a manual, "Tough Love," written by Phyllis and David York.

G.P. High reunion

The Grosse Pointe High School Class of 1965 is planning a 20-year reunion July 6 at the Detroit Boat Club. Members of the class or those who know the whereabouts of graduates should call 882-2474 or 882-5863.

Realtors course

The new six-hour continuing education course for persons in real estate will be offered by the Detroit Board of Realtors Education Committee. Michigan law requires that every licensee complete the course in 1985 before a license can be renewed for 1986.

Classes will be offered at various locations, including the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, 19950 Mack Ave., between Moross and Vernier, on Monday, March 25, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Cost to members of the board is $20; others are $35. For information or reservations, call 961-6168.

"We deal with the parents at their level and not with the child's problems," says Mrs. Pastoria of the Farms. "There aren't any easy answers and we don't do any counseling."

"We advise parents to support any action that is positive to the child's growth and development and not to support what they consider negative or destructive behavior," she says.

A power struggle is a no-win situation, she offers. Instead, she recommends sticking to the facts at hand.

For example, if a teen wants to come and go as he pleases and also wants to use the family car, try to find rules acceptable to both parties. "Offer the least resistance so the teen recognizes that the struggle is within himself and not with the parent," she says. "Explain how you feel, that you're willing to cooperate and if they're not, there will be consequences."

"First offer choices, she adds. "Then follow through with the consequences such as having a privilege taken away."

The Tough Love support group meets each Monday from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church. There is no charge. For more information, call 885-1049.

Tax day nears

In case you're counting, it's three days until St. Patrick's Day, seven until the first day of spring, 18 until April Fool's Day and 24 days until Easter.

And only 32 days until the deadline for filing income tax returns without penalties.

As tax time draws nearer, the most common questions being asked of the Internal Revenue Service are about the taxing of Social Security benefits, according to IRS Detroit office Public Affairs Officer Walter Dunningan.

The offices of the Social Security Administration as well as the IRS have received quite a few phone calls about the taxing of the benefits, he said.

Changes in the law that made portions of Social Security benefits taxable will only affect perhaps one in 10 recipients, Dunningan said. Those who report $25,000 in earnings and file singly or those who report $32,000 on joint returns come under the new regulations, he added.

Typical questions from concerned taxpayers include some about the changes in the charitable contribution deduction, credit for owning diesel-fueled vehicles and where to get the necessary forms to file for the credit, and the registration of tax shelters, Dunningan said.

With little more than a month until the filing deadline, most people should have their W-2 forms reporting their gross earnings for last year, Dunningan said. If employees still haven't received their W-2s, they should contact their employers first and then the IRS, he added.

If you aren't going to be able to file your return before the deadline, be sure to pick up Form 4860 from your local IRS office, Dunningan said. Extension for filing returns will not require approval, as in past years. Filing the extension doesn't mean you can delay paying any amount owed the government however. Penalties will be assessed on the amount owed, he added.

For more information about federal tax returns, call the IRS at 237-0800.

Commission seeks art for new building

The Commission on Art in Public Places is planning to identify three to five Michigan artists who will be commissioned for major works in the State of Michigan Library/Museum/Archives Building to be constructed in Lansing. An Artist Selection Jury will select Michigan artists who will collaborate with the architect on this project. Those artists chosen will be an integral part of the project at all levels of development.

Professional artists who are residents of Michigan, former residents of Michigan or natives of Michigan are eligible to submit slides of their work and resumes for consideration by the Jury. Interested artists should send a resume and a maximum of six slides, with no more than two slides per work to: E. Ray Scott, Director, Commission on Art in Public Places, 1200 Sixth Avenue, Suite P-120, Detroit, Michigan 48226.

Slides and accompanying resumes must be received no later than March 20, in order to be considered. Artists selected will be notified by April 15.

Slides will not be returned, but will be filed in a Slide Bank being established by the commission. The bank will be used as a resource in selecting Michigan artists who will be commissioned for works incorporated in future public and state buildings. Slides and resumes received after the March 20 deadline will also be retained for inclusion in the slide bank.

Architect William H. Kessler said, "For this first project, we are looking for artists who can depict Michigan history... artists whose origin is the state of Michigan and artists whose work reflects the life, times and future of our state. For the initial stages we are particularly interested in sculpture, both three-dimensional and bronze bas-relief (interior and exterior sites) and murals. In the later stages, paintings and graphic arts will be considered."

Bettejane Crossen, who with her husband Dr. Robert Crossen lived in Grosse Pointe for 25 years before moving recently to Ann Arbor, where Dr. Crossen is on the faculty of the University of Michigan Medical School, is coming home to be presented in a piano recital by the Pontchartrain Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

Her program on Sunday, Mar. 24, at 2:30 p.m. will feature works by Beethoven, Hindemith and Chopin, and will be followed by an afterglow.

Bettejane, who holds a degree in Piano Performance and Music Education from Indiana University, has also done graduate work at Indiana and Oakland Universities. Her teachers have been Ernest Hoffzimmer (a Busoni student) and Flavio Varani. She is also an accomplished trombonist; she played with the Grosse Pointe Symphony for 11 years and the Grosse Pointe Theatre Pit Orchestra for 15 years.

She's an active member of Sigma Alpha Iota, Tuesday Musicale of Detroit and the Four Octave Club, and continues to perform with the Chamber Music Players of Grosse Pointe. She's also active in the Ann Arbor Area Piano Teachers Guild and the Faculty Women's Club of the University of Michigan.

The fourth of five 1984-85 programs sponsored by the Detroit Symphony League and Village Records & Tapes will take place next Wednesday, Mar. 20, when guest lecturer Dave Wagner of WQRS-FM, organist at St. Paul's-on-the-Lake (among other things), discusses works by Bach, Beethoven and Brahms at 8 p.m. at Village Records & Tapes, located on Kercheval Avenue in-the-Village.

The Symphony Preview Series, produced in cooperation with WQRS-FM and Music Center USA, offers a unique opportunity to learn more about music performed by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. Speakers are all experts in the music field. Their programs focus on this season's DSO performances and personalities, in a manner designed to interest persons of all ages and all levels of musical knowledge.

All previews are free and open to the public, but it's wise to arrive early. The series, which closes next month (Wednesday, Apr. 24) with Detroit News critic Nancy Malitz' presentation on Brahms, Mozart and Shostakovich, gets more and more popular with each program.

Anything more you want to know? Village Records & Tapes will be happy to oblige; the number to call is 886-6039.

Robert Lacey, most recent in this season's series of Detroit Branch English-Speaking Union speakers, is pictured above with his wife Sandy in the foyer of Lochmoor Club prior to addressing the E-SU at a dinner meeting there. Lacey, author of "Majesty" (a biography of Queen Elizabeth II), "Princess" (about Princess Di) and "Kingdom: Arabia and the House of Sa'ud" and host of "Aristocrats," airing Wednesday evenings on Grosse Pointe Cable TV's Arts & Entertainment Channel, is living in The Pointe while he researches a book on the Ford family. In his talk on "The Noble Families," he touched on such items as Prince Andrew's prep school pinup collection (mind-not to mention eye-boggling) and what to do when the King of Saudi Arabia invites you to dinner (don't hang around afterwards). The Detroit Branch E-SU sponsors theater and museum parties, international travel and metropolitan area excursions in addition to its program dinners which feature speakers like Lacey and Donald G. Geddes III, member of the board of directors of the Institute of Nautical Archaeology at Texas A&M, whose slide presentation in February at the Grosse Pointe-War Memorial covered the earliest shipwreck ever excavated: the 3,400-year-old vessel discovered near Kas, Turkey, and announced worldwide last December.

'Angel Street' opens Friday for Fine Arts

Fine Arts Society of Detroit has elected to present the Victorian thriller "Angel Street" as its third production of the 1984-85 season. Performances will take place Friday and Saturday evenings, Mar. 15 and 16, at The Players Playhouse on East Jefferson Avenue.

The film version of this three-act play by Patrick Hamilton is a classic. It was titled "Gas Light" and starred Ingrid Bergman and Charles Boyer. The story, set circa 1880, exposes the mystery surrounding one man's greed.

Portraying this unscrupulous character is Fine Arts President Stephen Shrader. Yolanda Turner will be seen as the wife he tries to drive mad, Aaron Drucker as the crafty police inspector. Completing the "Angel Street" household are a housekeeper, played by Joann Koch, and a maid, played by Maureen Bruce.

Director is Michael Traicoff. Producers are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis. The elegant Victorian set design and dressing are by William Lafer.

"Angel Street's" backstage crew includes William Oulette, stage manager, Frank van Deventer, lighting, and Barry Trombley, sound. Deanna Traicoff will be holding book. Sally van Deventer will be attending to properties.

The cast of characters has been costumed by a committee consisting of Norma Gohle, Margaret Garmhaus and Jean van Bever. Make-up will be supervised by Jeanné Whitfield. Reservations for the audience of Fine Arts members and their guests are being taken by Elizabeth Aikens and Sue Oulette.

The reception committee for the performances consists of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weber and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Adelburg. Dress rehearsal refreshments were provided by Jean Dickinson. Preparing the suppers that traditionally follow each Fine Arts performance is the Fine Arts Gourmet Group, under the supervision of Bill Rohloff.

Other Fine Arts members involved in the "Angel Street" production are Pearl Linder, program, Norma Gohle, publicity, Martha Ann Kurtz and Joseph Lackey, photography.

Busy month for Questers

Members of the Windmill Pointe Chapter of Questers No. 385 gathered Tuesday, Mar. 6, for a farewell luncheon honoring two members, Mrs. Stanley Kenn and Mrs. William Koontz, who will be moving out of town. Two new members, Mrs. Jerry Ricard and Ms. Jean Obenauer, were installed at the chapter's mid-February meeting.

The nominating committee's proposed slate of officers for 1985-86 is headed by Mrs. Carl Kasza as president and Mrs. Edward Wells and Mrs. David Rieven as first and second vice-presidents, respectively. Mrs. Steven Christian will serve as recording secretary, Mrs. Howard Reed as treasurer.

The chapter's next meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Mar. 19, at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Howard Harrison. Mrs. Harry Carson will present a program on The History of Tombstones.

Salvation Army's Auxiliary convenes

The Auxiliary to the Salvation Army's meeting at 11 a.m. Monday, Mar. 11, at Salvation Army Royal Oak headquarters on North Main Street was followed by a brown bag luncheon (dessert and beverages provided).

The afternoon program was a movie, "Blood and Fire," a history of the Salvation Army's work, trials and accomplishments.

From Another Pointe Of View

they, like MOT itself, are both glad and sad that the company will be moving from the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts, its original home, to the Fisher Theatre for its 15th Anniversary Season.

It's a question of elbow room. MOT needs an increased seating capacity for its audience and increased administrative working space for itself. It needs to develop an in-house rehearsal site that will be under direct control of its staff. All this is available in the New Center Area — but it's not easy to say goodbye to the place you were born in. Those sound system screeches and lapses that punctuated MOT's Music Hall performances will certainly not be missed, but there are other, very good, memories . . .

MOT's 1985 fall season will open at the Fisher Oct. 11 with a double bill: Puccini's "Gianni Schicci" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci." This will be followed by Friedrich von Flotow's "Martha," opening Nov. 1, and the Bernstein/Sondheim musical theater classic "West Side Story," opening Nov. 15 and running through Dec. 7.

MOT will continue the tradition of capping its schedule with a spring Grand Opera production at Detroit's Masonic Temple, presenting Bulgarian soprano Gheňa Dimitrova in her first North American performance of the title role in Puccini's "Turandot" in March of 1986.

And Still More on Music . . .

This seems to be shaping up as the Second Section's Spring Music Issue (see this week's "Pointer of Interest," in addition to the above). Before we move on to other topics, we'd like to add one more item to your music-related events/news agenda: High Notes in Fashion, the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's annual spring fashion luncheon.

It's scheduled for Wednesday, Apr. 3, at the Hillcrest Country Club. The fashions will be by Jacobson's. The grand prize in the DSO Women's drawing this year is a real winner: two weeks on the Mediterranean, cruising the Greek Islands and Turkey aboard the Merriweather Post yacht "Sea Cloud."

If that grand prize vacation idea doesn't grab you (we don't see how it couldn't, but maybe you get seasick), how about a five-day trip to London? England, not Ontario. That's the grand prize in the drawing to be held in connection with Friends of Barat Human Services' "Swashbucklers" extravaganza at the Palms State Theater in early May. We'll report more fully on the "Swashbucklers," which promises to be something REALLY out of the ordinary, in a later issue.

Collectors and Creators

The March issue of "Art & Antiques" magazine spotlights America's 100 Top Collectors. Among them are our own Richard A. Manoogian, who specializes in masterpieces of American Art, and Alfred Brush Ford, whose specialty is Oriental Art. Among their "Art & Antiques" Collectors' Company are Malcolm Forbes, Lamar and Norma Hunt and Bill and Camille Cosby.

If you're interested in building up your own collection, acquiring work by artists on-the-rise, you might check out the work of Park resident Brian Fekete. He's studied with John Egner, John Hegarty and Tom Parrish, of Wayne State University. He's just received first prize ($700) in the Macomb Art Center's Michigan Annual XIII, for his oil on canvas entitled "Burning Witch."

Previous honors include a prize in the "Tunnel 3" exhibition held in conjunction with the Freedom Festival. Brian recently was awarded a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, presented to qualified artists to complete works in progress or develop new works. He exhibits at the Detroit Artists Market and Detroit Focus Gallery. You can see his "Burning Witch" at The Art Center, located on Macomb Place in Mount Clemens, through next Wednesday, Mar. 20. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

The Obligatory St. Pat's Story

It's that time of year, and for our obligatory St. Patrick's Day story this year we present the tale of Mary Lou Coyle, daughter of R. Gerald and Marian Coyle, of Grand Marais Boulevard. Mary Lou is one of 27 Aquinas College, Grand Rapids, students participating in Aquinas' 14th annual Semester in Ireland program.

She's living in Tully Cross, a small, rural town in County Galway. Tully Cross consists of a church, a town hall, two grocery stores, two pubs, a gas pump and the nine thatched holiday cottages the students use during their stay, doing their own cooking and housekeeping — and nearly doubling the town's population.

They're in residence there until April, experiencing Irish culture firsthand, studying Irish literature and history (among other subjects), taking advantage of the opportunity to work in local schools and visit places of interest. And, in general, having a ball. Wouldn't you?

Fort Pontchartrain to have a birthday

Fort Pontchartrain Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution celebrates its 69th birthday at a noon luncheon tomorrow, Friday, Mar. 15, at the Detroit Boat Club. An historical program theme will feature Mrs. Marvin R. Putnam, past-regent of the DAR's Elizabeth Cass Chapter, speaking on "The Folkways of Courtship and Marriage."

Mrs. Bernard Seitz, regent, who is taking reservations for the luncheon as is Mrs. Leonard L. Jensen, will introduce guest regents of neighboring DAR chapters. They are Mrs. William Froberg, Alexander Macomb; Mrs. Frantz E. Johnson, Colonel Joshua Howard; Mrs. Bill Jones, Elizabeth Bienaime; Mrs. Robert Garner, John Sackett; Mrs. George Edson, Louisa St. Clair; Mrs. Roger Harter, Piety Hill; Mrs. Neil Huard, Quakertown; Mrs. Robert Willoughby, Sarah Ann Cochrane; Mrs. Jack Blom, General Josiah Harmar; Mrs. Robert R. Henson, Ezra Parker; Mrs. Frederick R. Heath, Elizabeth Cass; and Mrs. Morley Foster, Three Flags.

Mrs. Clifford M. Stock, chairman of the Fort Pontchartrain committee that selects high school seniors for citation as DAR Good Citizens, will present pins and certificates to those chosen this year. They are Pam Mauro, of Melvindale, Elizabeth Petrosian, of Allen Park, Kim Paling, of Memphis, and Joseph Gall, of Lincoln Park.

The DAR's 211,000 members nationwide have participated in a coordinated effort to raise funds for the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. Each Fort Pontchartrain member has made her own donation, and contacted at least five non-members for donations. The results of the chapter's efforts will be reported at tomorrow's meeting.

FLEC Friends to greet spring at Ford House

Friends of FLEC (Grosse Pointe's Family Life Education Council) and their friends will say "Bonjour printemps" at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House on Saturday, Mar. 30. For the non-Francophiles among our readers, "Bonjour printemps" translates as "Hello spring" — and there's no better way to greet the greening season than at this fifth annual FLEC Friends' benefit.

Honored guests will be Wayne County Executive William Lucas and Mrs. Lucas. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be followed by dancing to the Big Band Beat of Chet Bogdan's Orchestra. Entertainment will feature Detroit's own "Neil Diamond," Erik Erikson, recently featured on TV's PM Magazine. Erik, like FLEC, is a hometown product; his parents live in The Shores.

General chairpersons of the evening are Jane Marshall, Paul McCarthy and Myrna Smith. Honorary chairpersons are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Fridholm. Committee chairpersons are Mr. and Mrs. James Herrington (she's the FLEC Friends' special projects chairperson), Mr. and Mrs. Michael Duffy, Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart and Mrs. Carol Rock.

The black tie optional party begins at 7 p.m. and runs to midnight. Gourmet desserts and coffee will be served, starting at 10 p.m. "Last year's spring benefit was a sell-out."

Meeting for Polish genealogical group

Betty Starkman spoke on "Jewish and Eastern European Genealogy" at a free, open-to-the-public meeting of the Polish Genealogical Society of Michigan on Saturday, Feb. 16, at 3 p.m. in the Explorers Room of the Detroit Public Library on Woodward Avenue. Free genealogical assistance was available with many late-comers disappointed," says Mrs. James Carne, Friends of FLEC president. "We anticipate a sell-out again this year, so we hope our friends will make their reservations early," she adds.

Tickets are $37.50 per person (tax-deductible donation). Reservation information may be obtained by calling the FLEC office, 885-2222.

The Family Life Education Council is a local community service. It offers counseling and crisis intervention, with emphasis on youth and the problems of teens and young adults. Among FLEC's services are a medical and a legal clinic, a Crisis Phone, Juvenile Offenders and Alcohol Awareness programs and Parenting Workshops.

FLEC receives no government funding. It is entirely dependent upon the community for financial as well as volunteer support.

Goal topped by Marathon

Goal of the 1985 Detroit Symphony Orchestra/WQRS Radio Marathon, aired this year Feb. 6-10, was $140,000 — and the grand total raised to help support the DSO's youth education and outreach programs was more than $150,000, topping that goal substantially.

The Marathon climaxed with a Saturday, Feb. 16, celebration party at the Millender Center, hosted by Omni International Hotel, which was also a preview of the Millender Center's model apartments.

The Radio Marathon is sponsored annually by the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the Detroit Symphony League. Over 300 volunteers worked on the project this year, under chairman Carol Ann May, of Bloomfield Hills, and vice-chairman Mary Baynert, of The Pointe. Honorary chairman was Walter J. McCarthy, chairman of the board of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Park Garden Club convenes

Mrs. Ramon Brinkman opened her home at noon Monday, Mar. 11, for the Grosse Pointe Park Garden Club's first meeting after its winter recess. Mrs. Ralph McKenny served as co-hostess. Sylvia Ogi, the club's scholarship recipient for a summer session at Higgins Lake Environmental School, presented a program on "Water Problems in Michigan."

Local church circles meet

St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church Women's American Lutheran Church Women Circles meet next week at the church, Chalfonte Avenue and Lothrop Road.

Woman's Club to have a gem of a program

Grosse Pointe Woman's Club members and guests meet next Wednesday, Mar. 20, at 12:30 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Crystal Ballroom to hear W. Michael Williams, of Charterhouse & Company, talk on "Estate Jewelry — How to Find Hidden Value in Things You Own."

For many major banks and prominent law firms, and Williams is considered one of the United States' principal experts on estate jewelry and antique silver. His firm is the only one in Michigan that specializes in buying jewelry and objects of value from private owners.

Charterhouse is a key appraiser Mrs. George Gerow, the Woman's Club's vice-president and program chairman, will introduce the speaker. He will conduct a free appraisal clinic (one item per person) at the conclusion of his talk, for anyone who has a piece of jewelry she would like valued.

Mrs. Henri Gelders, social chairman, and Mrs. Phil Saverino, her assistant, plan a spring theme for the tea table. Ladies serving on the tea committee are the Mesdames Charles E. Collins, Gilbert W. Groehn, William Haarz, Harry M. Knapp, Harold Nobel, William Schneider and Merle C. Weaver.

The Mesdames James H. Allen, Philip C. Davis, Bruce A. Kirk and Howard G. Reed will pour. Members planning to invite guests are requested to make reservations in advance by contacting the club's hospitality chairman, Mrs. Lloyd Beemer.

Sorority alumnae set joint function

Grosse Pointe Alumnae of Sigma Kappa and Delta Kappa Gamma join forces next Wednesday, Mar. 20, for the presentation by Charterhouse, Inc. at the Grosse Pointe Central Library, Kercheval Avenue at Fisher Road.

Each sorority will hold a half-hour business meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m., prior to the Charterhouse slide show, display of antique jewelry and informal appraisals of small items brought by members.

The refreshment committee, headed by Ruth Saur, a member of both groups, needs an exact count of those who plan to attend. Members of both sororities are asked to call her (331-5812) before Sunday, Mar. 17, if they plan to attend — and especially if they plan to bring guests.

Sigma Kappa's business meeting will include a report on a Traveling Consultant's recent visit to the collegiate chapter at Eastern Michigan University. Nominations will be open for the coming year's executive board.

Area Sigma Kappas interested in more information on the Charterhouse presentation and/or the local alumnae are invited to contact Ruth, Delores Parham (Mrs. Don) Littlefield, 881-1042, or Maryn Cation (Mrs. John) Horn, 884-3018.

German-American ladies will lunch

The Ladies Auxiliary of the German-American Cultural Center will sponsor a spring luncheon and show of fashions by Lena of Troy on Tuesday, Mar. 26, at noon at the center's clubhouse on East Outer Drive. All tickets are reserved. They are $9 per person, and may be obtained through Zelda Varkula, 527-2958, until Friday, Mar. 22. Chairperson of the day is Gertrude Allor.

Beta Epsilon DKG adds to its ranks

Members of Beta Epsilon Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society, an honorary international, professional sorority for woman educators, gathered in late February at the Fisher Road home of their current president, Kathleen Zola, for an Orientation Dinner for invited prospective members Margaret Franzel and Lillian Lagerkvist, educators in the Van Dyke School System.

The membership committee explained the basic purposes which govern the society's program of work and study. Hostesses were members of the chapter's executive board: Mary Julian, vice-president; Nancy Muzyczka and Alice Stock, recording and corresponding secretaries, respectively; Mildred Bush, treasurer; and Lola Mukogawa, parliamentarian, with the membership committee.

The chapter gathers tonight, Thursday, Mar. 14, at the Schmid Haus in Warren for the Initiation Dinner at which Franzel and Lagerkvist will be formally welcomed to DKG membership. Hostesses are the membership committee (Connie Burnagiel, Barbara Hopper, Norma Lisby and Olga Baich) and the nominating committee (Betty Jean Nahat and Florence Crawford). The executive board will participate in the initiation.

An ordinance in Waterville, Me., makes it illegal there to blow your nose in public.

To mark P.E.O. Founders' Day

The Lakeshore Round Table of P.E.O., representing East Side Detroit, Grosse Pointe, Mount Clemens and Port Huron chapters, will celebrate P.E.O.'s 116th Founders' Day this Saturday, Mar. 16, with a 10:30 a.m. continental breakfast at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

Members of Grosse Pointe Chapter DB will serve as hostesses. Roma Hess, of Lochmoor Boulevard, is responsible for the morning's agenda. Guests will be welcomed by DB's current president, Jane Slater, of Lewistown Road. Chapter T's Barbara Tamblin, of Moorland Drive, is the current Round Table chairman.

Entertainment, following a brief program honoring the founders, will be a selection of light classical music performed by pianist David Butzu, a senior at University Liggett School, who is currently studying under Mischa Kottler.

P.E.O. is a philanthropic sisterhood which works to increase opportunities for women through higher education. P.E.O. owns and supports Cottey Junior College for Women, located in Nevada, Mo., and maintains the International Peace Scholarship Fund which grants aid to foreign women wishing to pursue advanced degrees in the United States.

The Sisterhood also maintains a Continuing Education Fund to assist women who need financial help for further education in order to re-enter the business or professional world.

Marion (Mrs. Stanton R.) Wilson will review "Let Justice Roll Down" by John Perkins, who started the Voice of Calvary Ministries in Jackson, Miss.

His book describes this ministry which helps black people in an underdeveloped area via tutoring, clothing, food et al., all given with a religious emphasis. The forward is by Senator Mark Hatfield, who has been much impressed with Perkins' work in this poverty-stricken area.

His first program covers "The Heroes of Troy," focusing on how archaeologists discovered the actual world of Helen of Troy and the palaces of the legendary Greek heroes who fought for and over her.

The following week, Bertman will discuss "The Ruins of Athens," the proud ancient city that lived by idealism but ended in tragedy. His final lecture, in April, will revolve around the beautiful and powerful Greek statues, reflections of their civilization's search for human perfection and dynamic commitment to life.

The series is offered at $19, or $8 per lecture. Registration information may be obtained by calling 881-7511.

'Vienna' inspires St. Clair Shores Symphony Ball

The most glittering event in the 23-year history of the St. Clair Shores Symphony Orchestra, "Viennese Reflections," is scheduled for Saturday, Mar. 23, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. The symphony's first grand ball will begin at 7:30 p.m. with cash bar cocktails in the main dining room, followed by dinner in the grand ballroom.

Dancing will be to music by the St. Clair Shores Symphony, under the direction of Michael Krajewski. Seating will be at tables for 10. Tickets may be purchased individually or by the table.

Admission is $30 per person. Tax deductible proceeds go to support the orchestra, co-sponsored by WQRS-FM and partially funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts during the 1984-85 season. Mothers and their children are invited to observe a typical session at the Grosse Pointe Co-op Nursery Inc., located in the basement of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church on Moross Road, from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. next Thursday, Mar. 21.

A co-op nursery's philosophy is that young children need a good group experience, and it makes good sense for their parents to share in that experience. At Grosse Pointe co-op, teacher Pam Barthel is assisted by parents who rotate working days.

The children participate in large and small group activities and free-time play to promote positive social experiences. They are given opportunities to do craft projects and paint at easels, to use dress-up clothes, riding toys, indoor gym equipment, puppets, puzzles and blocks.

Grosse Pointe Co-op's facilities include a housekeeping area, workbench, water and sand tables. A number of field trips are scheduled throughout the year. The nursery is now accepting fall 1985 registrations for 3, 4 and 5-year-olds.

Further information on the school and/or the Open House may be obtained by contacting Adrienne Murphy at 882-7430.

Pi Lambda Theta Alumni will meet

The Detroit Alumni Chapter of Pi Lambda Theta, a national honorary education association, will meet Friday, Mar. 15, at 7 p.m. in the Bloomfield Hills home of Theresa Denman for a slide presentation on San Simeon, the Hearst Mansion in California.

Parking, either on Jefferson or in the lot behind Moross House, is free. The center's courtyard garden, with plantings found in Detroit gardens of the 1800s, is a quiet oasis in the heart of the city in spring, summer and autumn months.

Pointer of Interest

by Janet Mueller

"Way back in the fourth grade, Nancy made her mind up. The Detroit Symphony Orchestra Woodwind Quartet had come to Ferry School to present a program, and Nancy, arriving home later that day, announced she had found both her instrument and her teacher."

If, as you read the above paragraph, you were shadowed by deja vu, you have reason. You may indeed have read that paragraph before — 10 years ago, in the NEWS issue of Jan. 23, 1975, when Nancy Ambrose, "Pointer of Interest," was preparing for her debut as a performer playing a major work from the oboe repertoire.

The 12-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Ambrose was, by then, a seventh grader at Parcels and the Grosse Pointe Junior Symphony's principal oboe, scheduled to solo with the Junior Symphony in a few weeks, in Cimarosa's "Concerto for Oboe and Strings." She did, and she did beautifully.

This Sunday, Mar. 17, 1985, Nancy Ambrose, currently doing graduate work at the Eastman School of Music, is coming home to perform in a "Music For a While" concert at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. Her program includes a Poulenc sonata, a Bach sonata, a piece by Ravel and a "surprise."

Her credits include a degree from the University of Michigan, where she was recipient of a U. of M. Merit Scholarship, winner of the 1983 Concerto Competition and winner of the Stanley Medal upon graduation last spring.

For the past two summers, she has performed with the Los Nancy, then Angeles Philharmonic, under the direction of Leonard Bernstein and Michael Tilson Thomas. She has been principal oboe with the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Toledo and Jackson Symphonies. She was a semi-finalist at the IDRS Concerto Competition in Graz, Austria, last year.

THE TEACHER she found 'way back in the fourth grade, Arno Mariotti, had been principal oboe with the Detroit Symphony for 20 years and was professor of oboe at the University of Michigan. This "real tall guy with a funny name" (Nancy's description of her future mentor, to her mother, after the Detroit Symphony Woodwind Quartet's performance at Ferry School) was Nancy's instructor until he retired at the end of her sophomore year at U. of M.

He lived in Royal Oak when she first began studying with him, then moved to Ypsilanti. Ten years ago, Nancy and her mother made the long trip out and back once a week, neither complaining. It was worth it for "a marvelous teacher and a wonderful person."

At the end of the lesson, Mrs. Mariotti always had a dish of ice cream and a plate of cookies for the young pupil. Nancy remembers... and her relationship with the Mariottis remains warm and strong. She studied under Harry Sargous during her last two years at the University of Michigan.

A decade ago, Nancy "knew" she'd eventually attend Philadelphia's Curtis Institute. But Richard Killmer, considered the best teacher of oboe in the country, is on the Eastman faculty, so it's Eastman today for the grown-up graduate student.

A decade ago, Beethoven, Tchaikovsky and Bach were Nancy's "three favorites." Today, she's substituted Handel for Tchaikovsky in her Favorites' Trio. Her preference is for Baroque music, but she also enjoys pieces by contemporary, experimental composers.

A DECADE AGO, she thought she might eventually be director of the New York Philharmonic. Today, she'll settle for principal oboe in a major symphony orchestra. What she'd REALLY like to do is play in a very fine chamber group; today, chamber music is her first love.

Nancy's parents still live on Roslyn Road. She's the youngest of five children, all of whom, a decade ago, were very much involved in music. Today, only Nancy and her brother Bob, band conductor and instrumental music teacher at Buchanan High School, Buchanan, Mich., are professionally involved in it.

Elizabeth played flute in the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra and was expecting her first baby when her little sister's first "Pointer of Interest" profile appeared. Nancy couldn't wait to be an aunt!

Today, Elizabeth has three children and another sister, Mary Alice, just had her fourth baby: a boy after three girls. Aunting is old hat to Nancy now.

Virginia Ambrose, the Middle Big Sister (between Elizabeth and Mary Alice) will be married in June. Virginia is executive coordinator of the Middlebury Campus of Vermont Community College.

Their father is still a surgeon, but has retired his trumpet. Their mother, who played piano well enough as a young girl to sit in with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, now confines herself to directing the Handbell Choir at her church.

A DECADE AGO, Mrs. Ambrose noted that her children "seemed to collect cats at college." Nancy is continuing this family tradition with Isolde; there was a Tristan, but he's been given away.

Making reeds for her oboe still occupies a good deal of Nancy's time. The reeds are made from a certain kind of cane that grows only in a certain part of France. To get good reeds you have to do-it-yourself, working with a ruler and knives, shaping and scraping and measuring for two to three hours to make a single reed — which lasts one week. And the oboe, remember, is a double reed instrument!

Practicing takes up more time, as it must for any professional musician. In the time left over, Nancy, who loves to sew (she finds it relaxing) makes many of her own clothes. That, too, is a family tradition.

When she made her debut as a soloist with the Grosse Pointe Junior Symphony 10 years ago, Nancy "wore" her family. The skirt in which, with a shirbet pink blouse, she played the Cimarosa was a patchwork of her sisters' prom dresses, her brother's ties and bits and pieces from her grandmother's scrap box.

Mrs. Ambrose made that skirt for her daughter. Mrs. Ambrose reports that she doesn't make skirts anymore. And Nancy's tastes have changed: patchwork is an unlikely choice for a serious, professional musician. The Nancy Ambrose pictured above, in pearls and basic black, is a far cry from the 12-year-old in owl glasses, braces on her teeth, wearing a fuzzy sweater, who posed for her first "Pointer of Interest" picture 10 years ago.

Or is she? The smiles are the same, and both the 12 and the 22-year-old hold oboes. The dedication and drive are the same. The love of the instrument Nancy "found" at Ferry School remains constant.

So does the talent, and as for the performance... that just gets better and better.

Ticket information for Nancy Ambrose's "Music For a While" concert this Sunday may be obtained by calling 884-7815.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — collection of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth focusing, this week on FOODS RICH IN ZINC.

Research has proved that zinc is essential to growth and vital for the proper division of cells. It fights heart disease and infections. People on diets should be careful to include sufficient zinc-source foods to insure the maintenance of a proper metabolic rate.

In general, meat, grains and nuts are rich sources of zinc. Toasted wheat germ is probably the richest source, followed by oysters (which also contain calcium, iron, copper and iodine), pork, whole wheat flour, pumpkin seeds, soybeans, chick peas, Brazil nuts and cashews.

OYSTER CHOWDER

This savory Manhattan type chowder, though low in calories, offers a wealth of valuable nutrition. It is rich in iron and Vitamins A and C. Complement it with a high fiber muffin or toasted garlic whole wheat bread, fresh fruit and homemade cookies.

2 cans (8-oz.) whole oysters
2 Tbsp. unsalted margarine
3 slices Canadian bacon, diced
1 cup carrots, diced
1/2 cup celery, diced
1/2 cup sweet onions, diced
1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced
1/2 cup dry sherry
1 can (16-oz) stewed tomatoes
1/2 lb. red potatoes, peeled and diced

1 tsp. chicken consomme granules
5 cups water
1 tsp. crumbled marjoram
Salt and pepper to taste
1/4 cup flour

Drain oysters, reserving liquid. In Dutch oven, melt 1 Tbsp. margarine and brown bacon; when lightly browned, remove with slotted spoon to paper towel. Add remaining Tbsp. margarine to kettle; when hot, add carrots, celery and onions, stirring constantly until onions are limp. Add mushrooms and continue to saute until they have given up most of their moisture. Add sherry and stir to deglaze bottom of kettle. Return bacon to kettle along with tomatoes, potatoes, consomme granules, water, marjoram, salt and pepper and reserved oyster liquid. Simmer, uncovered, 25 minutes. Blend small amount of broth with flour to make a paste. Gradually stir paste back into broth until well blended. Add oysters. Simmer 10 minutes longer. Serve to 6.

COTTAGE CHEESE NUT LOAF

1 small onion, chopped
2 1/2 tsp. vegetable oil

1 cup English walnuts, chopped
2 cups cooked brown rice
2 cups cottage cheese
1 Tbsp. chopped shallots
3 1/2 Tbsp. sesame seeds, toasted
3 1/2 Tbsp. minced parsley
1/2 tsp. thyme, crushed
1/4 tsp. dill weed
Seasoning to taste
3/4 cup "Egg" substitute, thoroughly beaten

3 1/2 Tbsp. wheat germ
Saute onion in oil until transparent. Add celery and cook 5 minutes. Combine all remaining ingredients except wheat germ; add the sauted onion and celery. Oil a loaf pan, and sprinkle bottom with half the wheat germ. Pour ingredients into the pan; sprinkle with remaining wheat germ. Bake for 1 hour, or until firm, in moderate oven. Rose Society thinks spring

Consulting Rosarian Bruce Romant will focus on "Early Spring Care" at the Grosse Pointe Rose Society's meeting next Wednesday, Mar. 20, at 7:45 p.m. in the Brownell Middle School Cafeteria.

He will explain what to do to ensure a successful growing season, discuss the proper time for and method of removing winter protection, garden clean-up, the planting of new rose bushes and early fertilization programs, and demonstrate methods of pruning different varieties of roses.

He will also review the rose varieties that grow well in Michigan.

Romant is a past-director of the American Rose Society's Great Lakes District and a Life Judge. He has been awarded the American Rose Society's Silver Honor Medal for outstanding service. He grows over 300 roses in his Pleasant Ridge Garden, and has been a Rosarian for more than 35 years.

Pointe Rose Society hostesses for the evening are Deborah Leslie and Marian Mountz. The local rose society is co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Wine offers skill advice for 'thinkers'

"Intelligence is not merely a matter of genetic inheritance or environmental conditioning," says Sherwin Wine, director of the Center for New Thinking, who will offer a new lecture series on Skills for Intelligence starting Wednesday, Mar. 20, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

"Intelligence is also a matter of some very simple skills that anyone can develop."

The three skills Wine will teach from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on three consecutive Wednesday mornings are Intelligent Reading, Rational Thinking and Sensitive Perspective. Cost is $16 for the series, or $6.50 per session.

Intelligent Reading is subtitled "Getting the Most Out of a Book." Students at this first lecture will learn to distinguish between what is important and what is not, to focus on the author's major ideas and to sort out tedious passages.

In his second lecture, Mar. 27, Wine will focus on "Getting the Most Out of What You See," illustrating how being rational is more than being logical.

"If we have silly premises," he says, "we will come up with silly conclusions. Very often, we do not notice important realities because we emotionally resist them." Students in this session will learn how to transcend irrational thought premises.

Going beyond narrowly vested interests and acquiring a broader view of human nature will be emphasized in the final lecture Apr. 3. The rational thinker sees both sides of an argument.

"Intelligent people avoid narrowness and fanaticism," says Wine. "They know that most contentions are never completely right or completely wrong. When we become self-righteous, we cease to be intelligent and we lose perspective."

Tickets to this Council of Sponsors lecture series can be purchased in advance or at the door. The number to call for further information is 881-7511.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Our Lady Star of the Sea High School athletic director Margaret Spindler was right about one thing: no matter how much she "doth protest," the outcome of Star's contest with Flat Rock in the March 2 Class C volleyball districts will remain the same.

Spindler filed a protest with the Michigan High School Athletic Association last week on behalf of Star after varsity volleyball coach Valerie Johnson alleged that a game official told her that he "didn't like" a Star player and that if that player was the best Star had, then "they didn't deserve the wins they had gotten."

According to Spindler, a letter from MHSAA executive director Vern Norris to Star of the Sea principal Donald Sloan denied the protest, calling the officiating of the game "fair and unbiased," and noting that it would be "inappropriate" to honor Star's request to replay the game. Norris' letter also claimed that neutral observers called the game "fair," and that his office had been unable to contact the official in question but that the conversation as described by Johnson was "unfortunate."

Spindler tends to agree on that point.

"This is a tough one to swallow. If our kids had lost the game, or if Val or I had, that would be a different story. We didn't even get a chance to lose it... that's what's so hard to take," Spindler says.

For the record, other area coaches I spoke to found the alleged exchange unusual for a game official. So Spindler and Johnson aren't going crazy, which is what they must feel like after the state's "non-action" on the matter.

University Liggett School athletic director and tennis coach Bob Wood said that nothing like the alleged incident had ever happened to him. "I've never heard an official make a statement like that... and of course, I didn't hear it this time. But number one, you can never protest a judgement call, only a violation of the rules," Wood says.

Spindler knows that now.

"I understand that there are injustices in life... but how do you explain to kids that an adult behaved in a manner in which we teach kids NOT to behave and that nothing is going to be done about it?," Spindler wonders.

She also recalls an incident she experienced while coaching Star's spikers a few seasons ago. She says the state repented in a similar fashion to what Spindler reported as inappropriate behavior by game officials during a contest then. "What it boiled down to then was that it was my word against their's. Just like this time," Spindler says.

The tendency of those removed from the scene is to say "Sure, and would Star have protested if they had won?"

"You bet your life we would have. Listen, we have some very consistent, conscientious officials working these games; I've often thought I might like to go into officiating if I ever quit coaching. But there are also a lot of them who are officiating as an extra job for extra money and many times, the work reflects that.

"What I want to see is for officials to be consistent — make the same calls for both teams — and for incidents like this not to happen."

ULS's Wood agrees that there is a certain level of inconsistency in the officiating of high school sports. "Particularly in ice hockey. Many times a penalty is called for an infraction and not for an identical infraction later in the game. But there again, that's a judgement call," he says.

"Listen, officials are human too. There are ways to get on their good side, to show them what kind of sportsman you are. Like going after a loose ball instead of just standing there and making them (officials) chase it. Or when a foul is called, not giving an argument or doing anything to show the official up."

Spindler has her own ideas.

"Maybe we ought to be stricter on officials. Make them take a course and learn the finer points of a game. Then pay them what they are worth. Maybe then the level of officiating will improve," she says.

But what about the level of responsibility of those who govern the officials? Probably not, if the MHSAA's assessment of the incident — "unfortunate" — is all that will come of the entire episode.

As for Star, the girls have turned in their volleyball uniforms and pretty much accepted the whole thing, Spindler says, despite the fact that this was not how Star had pictured its 22-3 season coming to an end.

"The girls are taking it better than the coaches," Spindler says. "Like I said, it's tough to swallow."

That's probably because the girls haven't been around as long as the coaches and seen what the system has to offer. All too often, as in Star's case, it doesn't seem enough.

South cagers finish with 17-4 mark

By Peggy O'Connor

Goal-wise, South High's varsity basketball team shot around 50 percent this season. That's team goals, not field goals.

The Blue Devils approached the 1984-85 schedule hoping to accomplish four tasks: win the Eastern Michigan League title, show some improvement over last season, be competitive in the tournament and win the districts.

South finished one game behind the EML-champion Mount Clemens Bathers and didn't win a district title, either. But the Devils were vastly improved over last season and put up a spirited fight against Southeastern High in the districts last week, before losing, 60-50.

"Southeastern got the key baskets and we didn't, it was as simple as that," said South coach George Petrouleas. "When we needed a basket, we couldn't get one and when they did, they got it. But our kids never quit and that's what impressed me about the game."

Southeastern, led by sharp-shooting Darren Brown and high-scoring Melvin Thomas, played an aggressive game against South in the districts at North High on March 6, taking a 15-8 first quarter lead. But the accurate shooting of South senior center Al Ament kept the Blue Devils in the game and down only by one point, 27-26, at halftime.

Guard Sean Bruce opened the third quarter with a basket to give South its first lead of the night, 28-27. Unfortunately, it was also South's last lead, as Brown and Thomas came back with eight straight points and South's shooting touch seemed to vanish.

The Jungaleers led, 39-35, after three quarters and quickly increased the difference to seven points after converting on several steals. South closed the gap to nine late in the game, but couldn't overcome Southeastern's advantage.

"Outside of Brown, Southeastern is not a flashy team. People who look at their record (it was 9-9 going into the districts) don't realize that they only played one bad game this season. Other than that, they lost five games by a total of nine or 10 points. They are a well-disciplined team and they showed that against us," Petrouleas said.

Ament led South in scoring with 22 points as he closed out his three-year career with the Devils. The crowd of well-wishers that surrounded him following last Wednesday's district loss was nothing compared to that of college recruiters who have been following his progress. According to Petrouleas, some 35 schools have been in contact with Ament and South, including several Division II and III schools; and others, like Eastern Michigan, the University of Detroit and Ball State have expressed interest in the 6-6 Ament.

"You know, he's just had three years of basketball... he hasn't even reached his full potential yet. He's the type of young man who will play very well for a college team," Petrouleas said. "The kids look to him for leadership, he has a great many offensive weapons and the confidence that is surprising in someone who has so little experience.

"Al is an outstanding shooter and very quick. He also has great jumping ability and that will help in college. He'll be a real asset for some team," he added.

Just as he has been for South, Ament played well with guards Sean Bruce and Rick Whitney and forwards Tim Hudson and Alex Mellos and the Devils were able to improve last year's 12-7 record to 17-4, best since the 19-2 1981 season. And improvement was goal No. 1.

South was competitive in the districts against Southeastern: goal No. 2. And although the Devils didn't win the EML or the district, Petrouleas couldn't complain about the overall picture.

"From a won-loss aspect, we were successful. The kids showed progress throughout the year and more importantly, we were able to blend together well as a team. And that's success, I guess."

Swim, gym seasons end at North, South

The swimming and gymnastics teams at North and South High finished their seasons by participating in state and regional competitions last weekend.

South's varsity swim team, coached by Fred Michalik, finished in seventh place in the state competition at Eastern Michigan University. Ann Arbor Pioneer won the Class A crown with 131 points, followed by East Kentwood, 93; Andover, 90; Dearborn, 84; Ann Arbor Huron, 81; and Rochester Adams, 71.

The Blue Devil tankers' best finish was second place in the 200 medley relay (1:38.07). North did not place in the top 10 overall, but diver Mike Reynolds bettered last year's 11th place finish with a ninth place standing in this year's state final.

'Last chance' hockey this weekend

The 1985 Last Chance Invitational Hockey Tournament is set for Fraser Hockeyland March 15 through 24 for all divisions. The tournament will begin March 15 for local Michigan teams; out-of-town teams will begin play March 21 and the finals

South ended the season with a 10-3 dual meet record; North won the Bi-County swim title.

The gymnastics teams at North and South did not place in the top 10 in the Class A regionals at Westland last Saturday. Troy won the meet and Dearborn finished second.

South's Patty Leppala had an 8.1 on the vault and a 7.6 on the bars. Jennifer Tyrer had a 6.9 on the bars and on the beam, Gwen Adik had a 7.85 and Karen Howe had a 7.6.

North's Cindy Dondon finished 19th in all-around competition with a 31.08. Her 8.7 on the vault was good for ninth place, just missing the top-eight cutoff for state qualifiers. Dondon was asked by state coaches to travel to the state meet this weekend to perform on the vault as a "base" scorer, a girl not in competition who performs anyway and whose score is used to figure the score of the competitors.

Other scores for North included Nicole Lehman, 8.15 on the vault and 8.15 on the floor; Cindy Dondon, 7.0 on the bars, 8.05 on the beam and 8.05 on the floor; and Sharon Frakes, 7.4 on the beam. North's season didn't quite go the way coach Gretchen Madison expected after the girls finished eighth as a team in 1984. An injury to key performer Jill Boardman and several meet cancellations due to weather didn't help.

"Next year I don't think we'll be disappointed. Nicole Lehman is really coming along, and Cindy Dondon and Jill Dornbrock are coming into their own, too," Madison said.

St. Clare wins east-side title

The St. Clare boys' varsity basketball team captured the CYO Metro-Detroit east-side title by defeating Birmingham Holy Name, 46-37, last week. St. Clare had advanced to the semifinals by winning division, district and regional titles.

Taking on west-side champion Detroit Gesu in the finals, St. Clare couldn't break Gesu's two-year unbeaten streak as city champ, losing, 61-47. High scorers from St. Clare included Mike Pote, Chris May and Frank Zielinski, who had 12 points each.

Against Holy Name, the Falcons started slowly, scoring only two points in the first quarter. But they exploded for 28 second quarter points to take the lead for good. May and Zielinski combined for 35 points; Paul Mogielski, Pote, Rob Whitty and Louis Dobbs contributed to the scoring.

St. Clare's varsity girls' team, which had also captured division, district and regional championships, lost its semi-final game to Bloomfield Hills St. Hugo. St. Clare finished the season with a 19-1 record.

North athletes are honored

By Bill Hoover
North High

The 1984 fall season was a successful one for all North athletes and teams. North teams which competed in the fall season finished first in the Bi-County; and besides exhibiting excellent athletic ability, many of the players were just as successful in their studies.

This year the Bi-County League formed an honorary team to recognize those athletes who earned a varsity letter award in their sport and at the same time maintained a 3.0 (B) grade point average or better. The 1984 Bi-County League Athletic/Academic Team includes these student athletes from North.

Football: Chuck Dale, Greg Guest, Dennis Kim, Dan Kopitzke, Mike Miller, Dave Neal, Rob Olds, Keith Peltz, Paul Snow, Joe Weidenbach and Rob Wells.

Girls' Basketball: Pam Boesiger, Dawn Cartwright, Gina Grammatico, Paula Harms, Barb Loeher, Missy Preston, Virginia Sanders, Celeste Sartor, Leslie Talos and Robin Wheatley.

Girls' Tennis: Katie Ashare, Mary Garcia, Beth Keyes, Barb Labadie, Nicole Lehman, Lisa Lucido, Lisa McCormick, Martha Nicholson, Lynda Rayos and Andrea Thomas.

Girls' Cross Country: Katie Beal, Ann Finlan, Beth Eleczko, Patty Loeher, Sue Regalado and Kerry Rice.

Pierce cagers are perfect ... again

Pierce Middle School's boys' seventh and eighth grade basketball teams have completed outstanding seasons. In fact, the eighth graders were downright perfect.

The league-leading varsity squad compiled an 11-0 record. This team was also undefeated last year as seventh graders. Leading scorer and rebounder, Lance Harding was named Most Valuable Player. Voted Most Improved Player was Chris Rowan. Co-captains Chris Markus and Chris Gramling led in assists.

Pierce coach Dick Benoit remarked, "This was a total team effort. The squad worked hard to achieve this record."

The seventh grade team under coach Dennis Hawhee, finished the season with an 8-3 record.

Leading scorers were Gus Grodinsky and Steve Stang. Grodinsky and Mike Montagne led in rebounds. The team's Most Valuable Player was Alex Turner. Ken Fama was voted the Most Improved Player.

"This team did well in all aspects of the game. The players are a credit to their school," Hawhee said.

Other players include Chris Brow, Geoff Finger, Ethan Mandziara, Chris Martin, Tom Mollering, Chris Rooney, Andrew Shaffer and Kevin Sherwood.

'Swim for Sports' this weekend

By Lisa Wood
North High

"Swim for Sports is one of the most successful high school athletic fundraisers in the state of Michigan," says North High athletic director Tom Gauerke. It is a joint effort of the coaches, athletes and the athletic booster club at North to raise money for its athletic program.

This year, Swim for Sports will take place at North High from 6 p.m. Friday, March 15 until noon on Saturday, March 16.

Half of the money that each student earns is credited to the individual sport and the other half is credited to a general athletic fund, according to Gauerke. All of the money earned is spent on Norsemen athletic programs. Some of the recent purchases from Swim for Sports money include a new ice machine and hydroculator for the training room, plus trophies for athletes whose team won league championships and food money for teams in invitational competition. Last year $11,500 was raised.

Students received booklets for Swim for Sports from coaches or gym teachers on Feb. 20 and they will continue soliciting pledges until swim time on March 15. All money must be collected from those who pledge and turned in by April 4. A Swim for Sports dance will be held on May 17 when all prizes will be distributed.

"Swim for Sports is an excellent fundraiser for Grosse Pointe North," comments Bruce Bentley, health teacher and coach. "It provides additional money to further enhance our athletic programs."

G.P. swimmers improve

By Margie Reins Smith

Grosse Pointe Swim Club swimmers competed in a "B-C" swim meet sponsored by the Center Line Swim Club on March 2 and 3 at Center Line High School. Twenty-nine other Detroit area swim clubs participated in the two-day USSM sanctioned short course meet.

The approximately 160 Grosse Pointe Swim Club members, aged 6 to 18, are grouped into four categories of competition — AA, A, B, and C — according to cutoff times determined by previous performances in sanctioned meets. Many Grosse Pointe youngsters at the Center Line

"B-C" meet made cutoff times to move from "C" to "B" classifications; others moved from "B" to "A" times in their races.

Jeannie Schrage took a first in the 11-12 girls' "B" 50 breast with an "A" time. Gerylun Bocci took second in the 13-18 girls' "B" breast and first in the 200 free. Peggy Francis took fifth in 10 and under "B" 50 backstroke, with an "A" time.

Katie Tompkins swam "A" times for a first in 10 and under 50 fly and a fifth in the 50 breast. Alexandra Oery took second and fourth, respectively, in the 10 and under 50 fly and 200 IM. Susan Llewellyn swam an "A" time for sixth place in 10 and under 50 fly and Jenny Smith won a second place ribbon for 10 and under 50 free, with her "A" time. Jon Sieber took a sixth in the 10 and under boys' 200 IM.

Many "C" swimmers achieved "B" times in individual events. Kathie Schrage made the "B" cutoff with first places in 10 and under 100 back and 50 breast, and second places in 50 fly, 100 free and 100 breast. Andrea Meier won fifth place in the 10 and under 50 fly, with a "B" time, as did Sarah Young with a fourth in the 10 and under 50 breast.

Paul Sippola took first in 10 and under boys' 50 breast, and Susan Llewellyn won a third in 10 and under girls' 100 free. Peter Ellison also made a "B" time, with third place in the 11-12 boys' 100 free. Jeannie Schrage moved from "C" to "B" times with first in 11-12 girls' 100 free, 50 fly and 50 back. Erin Sullivan took fourth in the 11-12 girls' 100 free.

More "B" times from "C" swimmers included Rachel Robichaud, third in the 50 breast; Geoff Prysak, third in 100 breast; Mike Reynaert, first in 50 back and second in 50 free. Jon Wilson won second in the 50 back and Maggie Weyhing touched first and third in the 50 back and 50 free.

In the 8 and under age group, Elizabeth Bursiek placed third in the 100 free and Tim Reynaert won first place in the 50 free. Megan Moran was fourth in the 25 free.

Coaches of the Grosse Pointe Swim Club are Scott Teeters, Fred Michalik, Liz Stavale and Alan Faust. Team members and coaches will gather at North High School's pool for a team picture on Saturday, March 30 at 10 a.m.

New twist for North's winter sports awards

By Bill Hoover
North High

Grosse Pointe North's winter sports awards ceremonies, previously planned as two separate events, will be combined and held Tuesday, March 19, starting at 6:45 p.m.

The teams involved will be ice hockey, boys' swimming, gymnastics, ninth grade boys' basketball, junior varsity and varsity boys' basketball, ninth grade girls' volleyball, junior varsity and varsity girls' volleyball and wrestling.

Criticism from parents, players and coaches prompted the idea of combining the nights to make the awards programs more efficient. Coaches felt that not enough time was designated for the individual teams, despite the fact the ceremonies lasted over two hours.

The new agenda for awards night should allow for adequate recognition time for each team. From 6:45 to 7:15 p.m., parents and athletes of all winter sports teams will gather in the North High Cafeteria for a dessert of pie, brownies, coffee and milk. At 7:30 p.m., the ceremonies will be opened officially with brief comments by North High principal Dr. John Kastan and Booster Club president Dave Kopitzke. North's athletic director Tom Gauerke will then introduce the coaches and their teams as a group. Also, at this time Gauerke will comment about special recognition, such as All-State or All-League.

At approximately 8 p.m., after recognizing all the teams and coaches, Gauerke will direct the specific teams and their parents to six locations in the school where the coach from each respective sport will make comments and give awards. As the groups finish, they are dismissed.

This winter awards night program is on a trial basis and will be evaluated by the parents and the athletes. Gauerke said he feels that the program will show "togetherness" within the opening ceremonies while giving more time to each individual team.

A letter of invitation has been sent to each family involved in the winter sports night.

ULMS teams wrap up season in style

University Liggett Middle School's teams may not have concluded their season with winning records, but the basketball and volleyball teams at ULMS turned in some interesting performances this season. Following is a summary of the season's action:

The ULMS varsity basketball team started the year off with their annual Thanksgiving tournament where the team lost one game and then went on to take third place. In the next four games, the varsity trounced its opponents, St. Thomas, Grosse Pointe Academy (two games), and St. Paul, before testing the Detroit Country Day School.

Coach Josh Schmidt's team then defeated Harper Woods on its home turf in a close two point victory, and went on the beat Inter-City Baptist and Cranbrook. In the Greenhills Invitational Tournament, ULMS won second place, losing only to the home team, the Gryphons. Then ULMS took a grueling one-point loss to DCDS. The season ended with a redeeming two-game sweep against Inter-City Baptist and Harper Woods. (By Brad Bartos and Ivan Mon-clova).

The ULMS JV basketball team appeared to be a good — if not tall — team from the start. ULMS's JV squad beat Grosse Pointe Academy, but lost to Trinity Lutheran before beating Southfield Christian.

With ULMS's JV at one game below .500, the squad beat Inter-City Baptist, 35-27. Guard Wade Brown led the scoring with nine points. Following him was Arne Knudson with six, John Davis and John Ellis with five each, Bo Ollison and Neil Weyhing with four apiece and Chris Lawrence with two.

On Tuesday, Feb. 26, ULMS beat Harper Woods, 40-24. John Ellis scored a personal high 14 points. Other scorers in the game were Eric David and Neil Weyhing with seven each; and John Davis, Wade Brown, and Bo Ollison with four each.

Coach Domenic Facciolla's team ended the season with a winning record of 6-5. (By Arne Knudson).

The ULMS reserve basketball team had games against Cranbrook and Detroit Country Day School ("C" teams (seventh and eighth graders), Trinity Lutheran and Grosse Pointe Academy (sixth and seventh graders), and powerful St. Matthews, which led to a 0-7 "A" team record and 0-5 for the "B" squad.

What Coach Tom Taber's freshman team lacked in the win-loss column, however, it certainly made up for in spirit and enthusiasm. Outstanding rebounding came from Dave Darby, Ken Dorsette, Brian Thornton and Mike Nickerson. Fine ball handling was displayed by Ron Guevarra, Jason Shannon and Andrew Stewart. Good outside shooting was turned in by Jim Kim, Kaveh Kashef, Sammy Khatib and Jeremy Africa.

The ULMS varsity volleyball team has a 3-2-0 season with one game left to play.

The ULMS JV volleyball team has bumped, set and spiked its way to two wins against Academy of Sacred Heart (ASH) and two losses to Detroit Country Day School (DCDS).

Skidmore College qualified a school-record 13 team members for the New York State Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women Swimming and Diving Championships Feb. 14-16, and Mary Harrity of Grosse Pointe was among them. Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Harrity, of Vendome Road, is a freshman diver for Skidmore, which finished its regular season with a 12-4 record.

Catherine Schmidt, a University of Michigan varsity cross country runner, was named to the U of M women's athletics honor roll for the fall term. A senior in the college of Business Administration, Catherine earned at least a 3.5 grade point average to merit the honor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Schmidt, of Edmondton Drive and is a North High graduate.

The University of Detroit's women's softball team is counting heavily on Macomb Community College transfer Margaret Cadieux, of Grosse Pointe this upcoming season. Margaret, a four-year standout at North High, hit .421 and earned All-Conference honors with Macomb last season and is part of the reason why USA Today named UD's softball recruiting class this season among its top 25 in the nation. Titan coaches call Margaret a great hitter with a strong throwing arm and says she should be a standout in the catching spot — even though she never played catcher until her sophomore year at Macomb. The Lady Titans set a school mark of 26 wins last season.

Michele Coddens, a member of the 1981, 1982 and 1983 State Class A tennis champions at South High, will play for the Western Michigan University women's tennis team this season. The 5-5 WMU freshman was state runner-up at No. 2 doubles in 1981 and 1982, and was runner-up at No. 3 doubles in 1983. She majors in business at WMU. The women's team opened its season March 2 against the University of California-San Diego. The women are the defending Mid-American Conference co-champions.

Christian Darby of Grosse Pointe is among eight Kalamazoo College swimmers and divers who have qualified for the NCAA Division II Championships at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., March 21-23.

Darby, a junior business/art major who graduated from Gilman Prep in Baltimore, Md., qualified for four events on the basis of his times in the MIAA Championship in February. They are the 100 back (55.15), the 200 back (1:58.45), the 800 free relay (7:01.16) and the 400 medley relay (3:37.61). Darby's swim records at Kalamazoo include All-MIAA, MIAA champion in the 200 back in 1983; All-MIAA, MIAA champ in the 100 and 200 back in 1984, MIAA champ in the 100 and 200 back (school, MIAA record), the 400 medley relay, the 800 free relay (school, MIAA record), and second place in the 400 free relay, in 1985. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Darby, of Kercheval Avenue. —Peggy O'Connor

Tirikian honored at Soccer Ball

The second annual Soccer Ball held at the War Memorial Feb. 9 included a special tribute to one of the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association to North High graduate Marc Tirikian, a 1983 Parade Magazine High School Soccer All-American.

The G.P.S.A.'s Dr. Jean-Claude Elie presented the tribute noting in his speech that Tirikian's success should be shared with his North High coach, Guido Regelbrugge. "Marc motivated his coach to put greater demand upon him and to expect higher performance from him and in return, Marc was always trying to produce more and more," Dr. Elie added.

During Dr. Elie's remarks, slides of Tirikian in action on the soccer field were projected to background music taken from the score of the film "Chariots of Fire." Joseph Bourbeau, vice president of the G.P.S.A., presented Tirikian with an award of excellence. Following a standing ovation from those in attendance, Tirikian expressed his gratitude to his parents, the G.P.S.A., Dr. Elie, and Regelbrugge.

Organizers said they believed the Soccer Ball to be a success. After cocktails and dinner, guests were entertained with a slide presentation showing their children learning soccer skills and using them in

ULS spikers second in districts

University Liggett School's varsity volleyball team completed its season with a second place finish in the Class C district playoffs on March 2, falling in the finals to Flat Rock, 15-10, 15-5.

The Lady Knights had received a bye in draw for the quarterfinals and in their first match, beat St. Martin dePorres, 15-6, 15-3. ULS's next win was over a strong Riverside team, 15-1, 10-15, 15-7. Awesome spikes came from Barb Roman, Gerri Ocampo, Simone Early, Gillian Darlow and Kara Van Dellen, thanks to the setting of Kathy Bianchi, Cindy Paul and Rebecca Boone.

Coach Shelley Owens' team performed well in the districts, despite losing two straight contests to close out the regular season. The Knights lost to Greenhills on Feb. 26, despite the strong play of Roman, Ocampo, Early and Van Dellen. They also fell to Kingswood on March 1 in three close games.

ULS's JV volleyball squad beat Bethesda, 12-15, 15-8, 15-6, on Feb. 13. Freshman Sue Georgi's serves were keys to the victory.

Then on Feb. 20, the Lady Knights beat Academy of the Sacred Heart on two sets in the last home game of the year. Kim Owens served well in that contest. (By Joanne Cruz).

JV cagers second

ULS's JV basketball team finished second in the first Michigan Independent Athletic Conference basketball tournament at ULS March 8 and 9. ULS nipped Lutheran Northwest, 42-40, in the opening round before falling to Southfield Christian in the finals, 47-42.

"While the final score was extremely disappointing, our kids played their hearts out," said coach Chuck Wright. "We were a smaller team, but still managed to out rebound Southfield by 21. We simply couldn't make our shots." Kevin Darby led ULS with 18 points; the 18th time he was tops in scoring. Mike Isip contributed 10 and Frank Karabetos had nine points. The squad finished the season with a 9-11 record.

ULS ended the regular season with a 41-32 win over Harper Woods on Feb. 26 and a 50-49 defeat to Southfield Christian on Feb. 27.

Against Harper Woods, ULS got key rebounds from Peter Hardy in the fourth quarter to secure the win. Darby paced the Knights with 18 points and Karabetos had 10.

ULS scored more field goals and had more rebounds against Southfield Christian on Feb. 27, but lost the game with an 11-for-30 performance at the foul line. After a 20-20 halftime tie, Southfield Christian took a five-point third quarter lead and extended that to eight points. Key buckets by Isip and Darby cut the lead, then David Chilingirian converted a three-point play. ULS got close, but with 11 seconds to go, failed to score on a 15-footer.

Darby led all scorers with 21 points.

South loses height, not heart

South High's varsity volleyball team captured an Eastern Michigan League championship and finished with a 22-2 record last season and after losing a pair of starters measuring 6-0 and 5-10, didn't expect to be able to duplicate that finish this year.

"We didn't come back with a lot of height, therefore our expectations were not high," said coach Jan Hooper. "And it hurt to lose Karen Soullier to an injury. But considering all of that, it was a good season for my kids and I'm pleased with the way we played," Hooper added.

South repeated as EML champion this season, collecting a 19-5-1 mark and beating rival North High in the first round of district play before falling in the second round to eventual district champ Bishop Gallagher on March 2.

South's future looks bright, considering that the JV squad lost just one game this season and the varsity will return Mary Ann Montagne, Theresa Schulte, Kris Rettig, Christy Beers and Kim Wood from this year's league championship team. The bad news is that Hooper's squad will lose a little more height to graduation this year: in the form of middle hitters Kerry Bruce and Anne Schwarz. Seniors Bev Zuelch, Andrea Roesch, Soullier and setter Debbie Friedman also played their last game March 2.

Hooper said she has high hopes that Kelly Buchanan, who played for the Blue Devils this year until sidelined for the season with a broken wrist, will be back. She measures 6-2.

"It would be nice to have her. None of the other girls are really that tall and that can hurt a volleyball team," Hooper said.

L'Anse Creuse, South's main challenge for the EML crown this year, will graduate several players, according to Hooper, as will district foe Bishop Gallagher. So South may have another shot next volleyball season.

"The league is up for grabs next year... we'll have to wait and see," Hooper said.

South JV ends year with wins

South's JV basketball team finished the season on a high note with three straight wins, beating Roseville, 46-24, Port Huron Northern, 53-46 and L'Anse Creuse North, 56-39.

Every player scored in the L.C. North game. "We were not up to full strength until the final three weeks of the season due to illnesses and injuries," commented coach Al Devine. "This team never quit, that's why those wins were so special," Devine added. South had won only twice until the last week.

South was led by Dave Caldwell and Brady Kraushaar who scored 217 and 168 points, respectively. Caldwell also led the team with 44 assists. Dave Arnold led the Blue Devils with his 116 rebounds. Phil Keller and Tom Liliensiek grabbed 195 rebounds between them. Scott Stafford, Mike Paul and John Joliet each played well at guard and helped South average 10 assists per game. Craig Dembek, Kevin English and Doug Lucas each were important in the rebound department helping the team average 30 boards per game. Drew Brooks and Taylor Lincoln came on strong and added needed bench strength.

MAJOR MAGICS-FLYERS
The Major Magics and Flyers played to a 4-4 tie. Scoring for the Flyers were Matt Elich, Joe Pierce, Brad Klein and Todd Dunlap. David McKinnon, Booth Platt, Pierce and Klein drew assists. The Magics' goals came from Nate Cook (two), Kevin Baskel and Carl Rashid on assists from Chris Dettmar, Ali Bararsani, Brian Holliday and Mike Anway. The Flyers came back from 3-1 and 4-3 deficits to tie this game.

MAJOR MAGICS-RED WINGS
The Major Magics defeated one of the league's toughest and best-coached teams, the Red Wings, 2-0, to win a spot in the championship. Goalies Behi Rabbani (Magics) and Kevin O'Malley (Wings) held the game scoreless until Anway scored from Rashid in the second period. Rashid added an empty-net goal with five seconds left in the game. Playing an outstanding game for their teams were the Magics; David Collins, Rick Gokenbach, Frank Zimmer, Cliff Czerwinski and Sarkis Solomon; and the Wings' Leo Salvaggio, Marty Hage, Lucien Hudson, Sebastian Yofre, Françoise Berube, Chris Gibson and No. 99, Billy Crandall.

MAJOR MAGICS-SEALS
The Major Magics played the Seals to a 2-2 tie in the Mite Division playoffs. But the story of the game was the "re-placement" coaching staff for the Seals. Coach Rick Semack sat in the stands as seven "Mite moms" performed the behind-the-bench duties. (The moms had told Semack all season how to coach; this time he gave them the chance.) Anway and Rashid scored to give the Magics a 2-0 lead, but Tim Kimmel converted a Joe Lucido pass for one goal and Peter Blake scored the tying goal from Joey Berger and Geoff Kimmel with two minutes left in the game. Goaltenders Rabbani and Chuckie Schervish (Seals) played well, as did George Andary, William Conway, Collins, Frank Zimmer, Colin Darke, Danny Magdowski and Matt and Ben Debski.

PENGUINS-RANGERS
The Penguins ran their playoff record to 4-2 and won the season series against every team in the league with this 5-3 victory over the rangers. Mike Weyhing had two goals and Shane Penczak, Mark Campbell and George Christensen had one each for the Penguins. Bill Faber and Chris Amsten drew assists. Mike Hendrie (two) and Bob Rahaim scored for the Rangers. Penguin goaltender Kenny McIntyre played well.

SEALS-FLYERS
The Seals and Flyers skated to a 0-0 tie. Goaltenders Schervish (who earned his sixth shutout for the Seals) and Nick Kallas (Flyers) played superbly. Greg Ryan, Peter Brown, Geoff Kimmel and Doug Semack played well for the Seals; as did Flyers Jon Bayko, Abbey Fox, Nat Bayko and Dunlap.

GPD-SEALS
GPD ran its playoff record to 2-1 with a 1-0 shutout of the Seals. Goalies Jamie Bufalino (GPD) and Schervish (Seals) turned in strong performances. Blair Ridder scored for GPD late in the second period for the game's only goal.

GPD-RANGERS
GPD won its third playoff game by beating the Rangers, 1-0. P. Megler played well in goal for the Rangers, turning back several shots. Bufalino played well for GPD. After a scoreless first period, Chris Coates scored GPD's only goal from Alex Bieri. Gordie Todd, Paul Huebner and Tim Tracy played well.

GPD-PENGUINS
GPD grabbed a spot in the championship game with a 4-2 win over the Penguins. Faber scored from Campbell for the Penguins. GPD got goals from Bieri, (two) P. Huebner, and Val Covacha. Chris Coates (two), Bieri and P. Huebner drew assists. GPD got strong performances from Scott Johns, Jeff Huebner, Weston Norton and Kevin Collins.

GPD-RED WINGS
GPD beat the Red Wings, 3-0, to run its playoff mark to 5-1. Collins, J. Huebner, and Mark Best scored for GPD. Coates, Johns and Tim Miller drew assists. Mike Collins, M.J. Morris, Terry Brennan and Ridder played well for GPD. Gordie Todd, sidelined with a broken leg, cheered his team on from the sidelines.

Squirt Division

SABRES-FLYERS
The Sabres ended their season with a 3-1 win over the Flyers. Robbie Wiczorkowski scored from Michael Gandelot to give the Flyers the lead, but the Sabres came back with goals from John Maycock, Everett Covacha and Gabe Erikson. Bryan Cass, Garrick Ryan and Matt Smith drew assists. Bill Burns, Bobby Rabbani, Mark Waterman and Mike Owens played well for the Sabres; Jason Chevalier, Matt Spicer, Michael Ugal and Peter Antonenko were outstanding for the Flyers.

BLACK HAWKS-SABRES
The Black Hawks topped the Sabres, 1-0, in a tough game. Brilliant goaltending by Ryan Perkins (his first shutout of the season) and Gabe Erikson was a key factor. Riley McCormick scored the only goal, unassisted. The Hawks' Michael DeNardis, Mike Pitters, Peter Megler and Jeff Adams played strong games; as did Maycock, Stephen Wesley, Erik Lindsay and Smith for the Sabres.

FLYERS-BLACK HAWKS
The Flyers improved their playoff record to 2-1 with a 3-1 win over the Black Hawks, scoring three first period goals. Kris Hohlund, Tom Best and Matt Spicer scored on assists from Robby Wiczorkowski (three) Peter Antonenko and Danny Bombich. Wiczorkowski was playmaker of the game. T.R. Youngblood scored a power play goal from Pitters and Omar Sawaf. Robert Cardillo, Scotty Wiczorkowski, Gary Olson and goaltender Geoff Miller played well.

RED WINGS-BLUES
The Red Wings finished the playoffs with a 5-1 win over the Blues. Chad Yates opened the scoring for the Blues. Scoring for the Wings were J.P. Sweda, Alex Olmsted, Gary Corona (two), and Jay Berger. Earning assists were Geoff Everham (two), Olmsted and Kip Gotfredson. John Wise, Peter Spivak and Chris Crain played well for the Wings, as did goaltender Nate Eriksen. Pat Alle had a strong game for the Blues, as did goaltender Chris Eldridge. The Wings finished first in the round robin with a 3-1 record.

PEE WEE DIVISION
NORTH STARS-LEAFS
The Stars and Leafs played to an exciting 3-3 tie in a game in which the Stars came back from a 2-0 deficit to earn the tie in the last 1:02. Scott Nesom opened the scoring in the first period with two goals, one on an assist from Juan Ganum. The Stars' defensive unit of Al Fisher and Peter Cueter kept its team in the game; Fisher's unassisted slap shot got the Stars on the board in the second period. Cueter added a goal from Brad Kimmel and after Ganum beat Stars' goalie Brad Hea for the lead goal, Richie Harder got the game-tying goal on a set up from Derek Smith and Jack McSorley.

LEAFS-BLACK HAWKS
The Leafs beat the Black Hawks, 2-1, for the second time in the playoffs. George Petersmarck opened the scoring on an assist from Scott Nesom. Renato Roxas tied it up for the Hawks on a pass from Scott Soule, but Jeff Osborne popped in the game-winner at 1:48 of the final period from Petersmarck. Goaltenders Brian Dennis and Jim Bunn were outstanding.

BLACK HAWKS-NORTH STARS
The Black Hawks continued their quest for the house championship with a 7-1 win over the Stars in the round robin series. Paul Cavazos scored from Fisher for the Stars. Scoring for the Hawks were Peter Masouras, Roxas (two), Kevin McCracken (two), Soule, and Gabe Benvenuto. Roxas (three), Soule (three), Benvenuto and Josh Ferry earned assists. Hea, Jim Bunn, Greg Semack, Ferry, Zack Van Aukon, Jeff Antonenko and Dan Grundman, played well for their teams.

Deducting a home office

A college professor from New York City recently fought the IRS and won. In a battle to deduct his home office, the philosophy professor fought all the way to the Federal Circuit Court.

The professor's case highlights the complexities involved in taking deductions for a home office. If you have an office in your home, you should be familiar with the rules for taking this deduction and be aware of all the ways it can lower your tax bill, says the Michigan Association of CPAs.

But CPAs say homeowners should examine the possible drawbacks of taking these deductions. By treating part of your home as business property, you may lose some tax breaks when you sell your home and want to defer or exclude a gain from the sale.

Nearly 100 photographs from the Detroit Institute of Arts' permanent collection, recent acquisitions as well as photographs that have not recently been exhibited, are on view in the museum's Albert and Peggy de Salle Gallery of Photography through Sunday, Mar. 24.

These "Selected Photographs from the Permanent Collection" range in date from 1854 to 1979 and include American, European and Japanese works. On view in the Treasure Room, a small gallery within the de Salle Gallery, is a selection of 19th century Japanese photographs, most of them hand-tinted, depicting a traditional culture threatened with rapid transformation.

Other 19th century European works are views of Italy, England, Scotland and Greece, by Robert MacPherson, Carlo Naya, Bisson Freres, Francis Prith, the studio of James Valentine and James Robertson.

Bach birthday

The First English Evangelical Lutheran Church at 800 Vernier in the Woods, will host Roger and Caroline Jamison in a Bach impersonation/concert Sunday, March 24, at 4 p.m.

Roger Jamison came to Michigan to join the faculty of the Detroit Conservatory of Music after receiving his master's degree from Ohio State University. He has performed widely both as a singer and a pianist, collaborating with Robert Shaw, Antal Dorati and Neville Marriner.

The price for the impersonation concert and the birthday party is $5. Tickets may be purchased in advance or at the door. For more information or to reserve tickets, call the church office at 884-5040 during business hours.
