Hey, want to feel good and look good, all at the same time? Well, your chance comes up this Monday, March 25, when Joseph's of Grosse Pointe, 20951 Mack Avenue, will be offering haircuts for the measly sum of $5.

The entire day's proceeds, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., will go to the Macomb County Department of Social Services to help combat child abuse, according to salon manager Tom Biondo.

This is the first year the salon is putting on this benefit, and they're hoping for a big turnout. According to Biondo, no appointments are necessary. Just walk in, put it down in a chair and get ready to look beautiful.

Nine hairdressers will be on staff, so there shouldn't be too much of a wait.

Good for you, Joseph's.

Remembering...

This coming Sunday evening will be a special one for the family of Ron Cooney, who died two years ago on this date. The 28-year-old Grosse Pointer, who was a poet, composer, pianist and photographer, will be honored with a memorial tribute on Mike Whorf's radio program at 9 p.m. on WQRS-FM 105.

According to Whorf, the program was originally broadcast on Nov. 14, 1984 and drew a large number of listeners and callers. The program has also been broadcast on 27 other stations across the country and in Canada and Great Britain.

Think — don't drink

Thanks and a tip of the hat to the Park coppers for this ironic little story. It seems they got a report of an accident at about 12:15 a.m. March 1 and found that a drunk had driven his car into a light pole at Jefferson and Bishop.

When they pulled this outstanding citizen's car away, they found a sign beneath it that read "Drivers, can you pass the test?"

It was one of those signs posted periodically trying to dissuade drivers from drinking, then getting behind the wheel. Think he'll take the hint?

The good times rolled

Forget the St. Patrick's Day Parade. The best time of all was had last month when more than 400 Italian-Americans from the Detroit area gathered at the Gourmet House to celebrate the Balestrate Gala Program.

Balestrate is a small town in Sicily, but apparently a large number of local residents can trace their families back to that particular city, so why not have a party?

According to chairperson Sara Cracchiolo-Manzo, the patrons enjoyed a lobster dinner typical of Sicily and partygoers danced the night away to music provided by an Italian band.

The climax of the event was a letter from the president of the Province of Palermo who honored them for their courage, wished he could be with them and conveyed his pride for their having kept high the image of the homeland.

He also extended an invitation to have a reunion in Balestrate in 1986.

Grazie.

P.S.

Hey, I don't usually do this, but a reliable source has told me one of the Big Three automakers, known for its dramatic come-from-behind recovery, may soon surprise the auto world by issuing its own credit card good for the purchase of a car, related products and services.

If it's true, remember you read it here first.

If not, I've lost a source.

Hospitals help to make a tough decision easier

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Your mother is 87 and is in the hospital for the third time in nine months.

The first time, doctors found a cyst on her brain that affected her equilibrium. Then, she lost her balance and fell, striking her head on the curb stone. Luckily, she only scraped the top of her head.

This time, the doctors say she had a diabetic reaction that has sapped her strength and left her too weak to care for herself. They suggest it's time to start looking for alternative care arrangements for her.

What do you do now?

Help can be as close as the attending nurse, the staff at the three local hospitals say. Each maintains a social work department that tries to help families and older persons find ways to maintain independence if possible or develop a plan to aid the older person maintain a quality of life like the one he or she had before entering the hospital.

"The bottom line is sitting down with the patient and family and finding out what's available to them, what the patient had before and what will be best for them," Frank Poma, director of St. John Hospital's social work division said.

Medical staff and screening of patients make up the bulk of the department's caseloads, according to Bon Secour's social work department Director Pat Sikora. Once referral is made, the hospital's staff of four begins the process of helping a family cope with the health care needs of an older member of the family, she adds.

Five years ago, Cottage Hospital looked at its service area and found the number of people 60 and over was steadily growing. Dan Hoffman, an administrator at the hospital said. Since then, the hospital has developed a number of departments so an older person who comes in to the hospital and needs some continuing care will have a variety of options available through the facility, he added.

It is a trend the other hospitals have followed as well. Each has or is developing facilities for long-term nursing care and home health services aimed at trying to keep the older person as independent as possible while offering the support necessary to maintain a quality life-style.

The decision about what kind of care should be made by both family and patient whenever possible, Poma said.

One frequent source of information for local residents is Services for Older Citizens and its Senior Information and Referral service at 882-9600. The organization can offer

By the year 2040, better than one in five persons will be aged 60 or older, with 10 percent of those being over age 70.

confidential help to older persons in a variety of areas, including meal programs, energy assistance, homemaking needs and other programs at the state and local level.

SOC offers any number of services, from tax help for simple financial statements to an escort service and the organization acts as a clearing-house for information and referrals to agencies in hopes of getting help for older residents.

Help is also available through Calvary Senior Center at 4950 Gateshead, west of Mack. The facility, in its third year of operation, has a senior center that offers social activities for drop-ins, home-care programs, like light house-keeping or hot meal programs, social workers available for protective service counseling or to help older persons deal with utility or medical problems, as well as its senior adult day care center.

Adult day care has been around for quite a while, Calvary Director Rod Hill said. In England, it's called day hospital and has begun catching on in the United States as well.

The program allows families who have older adults living with them but are unable to be home all day with them a chance to have their older family member in a day-long program where they are assured of getting a hot meal, where medication is sure to be taken and where social activities are available, Hill said. The program is a support service for older persons who need daily activities and offers the care-giving family assurance the older family member is safe and cared for, he added.

The program is $25 a day for the day-long activities, which includes exercise if the person is able, a current events discussion and some other activity.

To be enrolled in the program, participants should be able to feed themselves and be continent of bowel and bladder, Hill said. Before enrolling, the staff will meet with the older person and members of the family to make sure everyone understands the program.

Often, an older person may need help in getting to the grocery store or church, or help with house-cleaning and other custodial needs. For those, there are home health care agencies available.

Kitty Bacso of Professional Medical Services, an affiliate of St. Clair Health Corp., and one of the more than 100 health agencies in the tri-county area, points out that physical disabilities don't limit the person's access to home health care. Under certain circumstances, when a skilled nurse is required for 24-hour supervision, federal health insurance programs may pay for a portion of the cost that could run as high as $18 an hour, she added.

Whritner praises schools, says he plans few changes

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Grosse Pointe's new superintendent says he plans to spend the balance of the school year being "accessible and open" to community groups after he arrives

April 15.

In an interview with John Prost on "Pointers With Prost," airing tonight at 7 p.m. on Grosse Pointe Cable Channel 6, Dr. John Whritner said there is no substitute for getting out in the community to "provide a good set of eyes and ears" in order to maintain a good relationship between the school and the community.

During the 28-minute program, which will be repeated Friday and Tuesday at 7 p.m., Whritner talks about his accomplishments in East Lyme, Conn., where he was superintendent for 13 years, the challenges he will face here and the similarities between East Lyme and Grosse Pointe.

Grosse Pointe has a reputation as being "one of the leading districts in the nation," Whritner said, adding he hopes to be able to "maintain, build on and grow with" that reputation.

Since being chosen as superintendent last December, Whritner says he has visited the district and met with numerous community and student groups to learn as much as he can about the area. He adds he has found "an excitement and enthusiasm about the schools" in the community.

In some ways the two districts are similar, Whritner says in the interview. Both Grosse Pointe and East Lyme have reputations in their states as being excellent school districts. Both are made up of people from the same socio-economic class and both are waterfront communities, although East Lyme is saltwater while Grosse Pointe is fresh water, he quips.

Dissimilarities between the two include their size and budget. East Lyme has about 3,000 students and a $9.6 million budget. Grosse Pointe has more than double the students and a budget almost four times East Lyme's, he adds.

It's not that the programs in Grosse Pointe are four times better than in East Lyme, but Grosse Pointe offers more, Whritner says; more advanced-placement courses, more levels of courses available and more activities for students, he adds.

Part of that isn't because of the budget only, Whritner says. East Lyme has a single high school with about 1,000 students, while Grosse Pointe has two high schools with 1,300 and 1,600 kids, he adds.

The differences in staffing, salaries and physical plant also change budgets from community to community, he adds.

East Lyme's budget process is more elaborate because of the difference in funding between the two communities, Whritner says in the interview. Both districts depend heavily on local property tax levies and get little funding from the state, he adds.

Controversy isn't only a Grosse Pointe phenomenon, Whritner says.

In his first year in East Lyme, he said he had to pick up the pieces left by the previous administration and scattered further by a taxpayer revolt. He adds he rebuilt confidence in the school administration and has lost one millage election in 13 years, a record he says he considers amazing.

The East Lyme school district has also been rocked by declining enrollments, part of a national trend, Whritner says. There, the school system developed criteria for closing schools. One thing Grosse Pointe will have to look at is the idea of neighborhood schools, he adds, saying the idea will have to be weighed for its education benefits and financial costs.

Quality education, a term bandied about when school closing are discussed, is something that is in the eyes of the beholder, Whritner says. The quality of a district should be measured by its abilities to address the individual needs and concerns of its students, he adds, noting "If it can do that, then the district indeed is providing

Bump, run nets robber $5,000

A Grosse Pointe Park woman reported to the Farms police she was robbed of $5,000 in jewelry after leaving the War Memorial Thursday evening, March 14.

According to reports, the 56-year old victim said she left the Center at about 10:30 and walked to her car which was parked on McKinley Road. As she was driving on McKinley between Lakeshore and Grosse Pointe Boulevard, her vehicle was bumped from behind by what appeared to be a blue jeep, the type that is used by the post office.

She left her car, thinking she would be meeting with a postman, when the suspect jumped from his vehicle and knocked her down. The woman said she lost six gold bracelets, a diamond dinner ring and a gold and diamond watch to the bandit.

The suspect, described as a black male, 6 feet tall, wearing a red wool, three-quarter length jacket and blue jeans, was last seen leaving the area in the blue vehicle.

The one-man operation of the collapsible stretcher is no problem for Corporal Bill Marshall.

We are all Vietnam vets

The Detroit Chapter No. 9 of the Vietnam Veterans of America, in cooperation with the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, will present a two-part program at the War Memorial, Thursday, March 28, at 7:30 p.m.

"We Are All Vietnam Veterans" is open to everyone. It will begin with a 20-minute audio/visual presentation of the Vietnam experience that will include some historical background, personal accounts, and will illustrate how the lives of Vietnam veterans and their families are affected today by the experience. It will also show how society, as a whole, has been affected.

During the second part of the evening the audience will be invited to ask questions and share their thoughts with a panel of Detroit-area Vietnam vets. The panel will include Jack Devine, Randy Wright, Dan Reynolds and Dan McMahon. Also present will be Bob Marrs, psychologist, and ULS history teacher David Backhurst. Bruce Kefgen, assistant to the superintendent of the Grosse Pointe Public Schools, will moderate.

This will be a family-oriented program, and high school students are encouraged to attend. The purpose of the evening is to promote ongoing and meaningful communication concerning the Vietnam experience.

Admission is by a $2 donation that will go toward the VVA.

Woods sponsors tree sale

The Grosse Pointe Woods Tree Commission with the cooperation of Viane Nursery is sponsoring the annual tree sale from now through April 21. Prices will range from $95 to $195.

There are eight varieties in two sizes and two purchase options. Ornamental or shade trees are available and if planted at the curb, are eligible for a tax deduction.

Rudi Edens, chairman of the commission, said the Woods loses more than 300 trees a year. The city, with tax dollars, is able to replant about 100 a year, he said.

"Residential streets with stretches of the beautiful overhanging 'tunnel' effect are becoming increasingly scarce," he said.

"Just a few years ago, the whole Pointe had 'tunnel' driving and walking. Let's do something as individuals who care about getting our city back to its pre-Dutch elm disease beauty."

Trees add to property values, he said, adding that the cost breaks down to about $1.50 a week.

Residents can also plant a tree in honor of another through the Memorial Tree Program.

The city office has information, order forms and site-marking stakes.

Volunteers needed at Bon Secours

Bon Secours Hospital needs volunteers to help with its Delivered Meals program, which provides a hot lunch for elderly or disabled persons who cannot prepare food for themselves.

Volunteers, who work once or twice a month for two or three hours, work in teams of two and either drive or carry meals to the door.

"The Delivered Meals program provides many people with a nutritious, hot meal that they otherwise wouldn't have," said Maureen DeFour, director, volunteer services. "Our volunteers find that taking part in this community service is very gratifying."

To volunteer, call 343-1795 or 343-1095.

Ballet workshop

Jurgen Schneider, American Ballet Theatre ballet master and personal coach to Mikhail Baryshnikov, will present a three-day ballet workshop at Marygrove College March 28-31.

He will conduct the workshop for dancers on the intermediate and advanced levels at the following times: Thursday, March 28, 5 to 6:30 p.m.; Friday, March 29, 3:30 to 5 p.m. and 5:30 to 7 p.m.; and Saturday, March 30, 3:30 to 5 p.m. The classes will include ballet technique and variations.

To register and for more information, call the dance department at 862-8000, ext. 355 or 383.

Farms delays park decision

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Farms City Council Monday night decided to postpone construction of a new entrance to Pier Park until later in the season when it is certain of public support for the $130,000 project.

The motion by Councilman Joseph Fromm, with support from Councilman Mary Anne Ghesquiere, was adopted unanimously. Councilman Peter Ecklund was absent.

The project, for which the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation was to have put up $70,000 with the city paying the rest, would include construction of a new park entrance south of the current drive at Moross and Lakeshore. The move would offer better supervision and park security, according to council members.

But City Manager Andrew Bremer told the council the construction of the new entrance "is a project I have great misgivings about . . . I can't tell you it will make security any better or the entrance any safer."

The problem was as much cost as uncertainty about how patrons of the park would accept the new entrance. The location of the new drive would change traffic patterns and may inconvenience park frequenters, he added.

The council decided to put off consideration of the project until its budget discussions. In the meantime, a three-dimensional model of the proposed entrance will be constructed and put on display in the park. Questionnaires will also be made available for those who want to express their opinions about the changes, council members said.

Mayor James Dingeman, saying he would support the project's delay, added he was "disappointed that it's been under consideration for two years and . . . most people were enthusiastic about it, including your administration," he told Bremer.

The cost of the project was one factor in postponement, Bremer said. Also, there are a number of other repairs planned for Pier

Park that are required, he added. "We had some misgivings . . . but one thing that has really hit home in the last week and a half or so was the need for public acceptance for the change," Bremer said. Without that, the city may end up with "a $130,000 white elephant," he added.

"I don't want to see us go ahead with something that we will regret, but . . . I don't want to put this off for a year," Dingeman said. "I think we should consider gearing ourselves toward getting started in the fall."

Dingeman added the city should take a look at alternative methods of ingress and egress. A new security system could be developed that may not include a parallel lane of traffic entering the park from Lakeshore, he added.

The city should be able to complete the necessary polling and planning while it is holding its budget discussions, so decisions can then be made whether or not to go ahead with the project, Fromm said.

Trucks of cookies

Three long trucks packed with 6,000 boxes of Girl Scout cookies pulled up the parking lot of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church March 6 to unload its cargo. It took volunteers six hours. Teaching about drug abuse

Substance abuse is as destructive to education as any learning disability, Sis Winger says. Learning-disabled students are identified and put in special programs and the same should be done to those affected by chemical dependency.

That's the message Ms. Winger will bring to local building administrators and counselors in a four-day, 32-hour chemical dependency program to be held at South High School and the Central Library starting next month.

The Board of Education Monday, March 11, approved $2,300 payment for the program, to be held on four consecutive Wednesdays beginning April 17. The program was developed by Fairlane Health Services Inc.

The program is similar to a three-day workshop held last August in the district, Dr. Alfrida Frost, director of elementary curriculum, says. Participants in the August program were very pleased with it, she adds. Between 50 and 60 administrators and counselors are expected to take part in the coming workshop.

The four-day program is primarily informational, Ms. Winger says.

Participants learn about chemical dependency as a disease, substance abuse among teens, the impact of dependency on the family and intervention techniques, and ways to develop programs and curriculum to aid students.

The workshops try to educate those at the top of the administrative structure, Ms. Winger says. They are the ones who will make the decisions about changes in curriculum and ways to apply what they've learned. Principals and counselors are the ones who will have to make decisions what to do about a student affected by substance abuse and need information to make those decisions, she adds.

Chemical dependency affects not only the user but the whole family, Ms. Winger says. Children from families in which a member is chemically dependent need help as much as students who are substance abusers, she adds.

"We have to put this problem in the context of family substances abuse," Ms. Winger says. "There are more kids in trouble because of that than because of their own abuse."

Family violence and chemical dependency go hand in hand, Ms. Winger adds. Court officials and law enforcement personnel have become more involved in substance abuse education programs as that connection is made more clear, she adds.

Fairlane, a Dearborn-based company, began offering the workshops to schools and communities about two years ago in conference centers throughout southeast Michigan. School officials who had taken part in the program or had heard of it asked Fairlane to bring its workshop into their districts.

The workshop encourages school districts and communities to develop programs based on others that have been successful in other parts of the country, like support groups for students from chemically dependent families or inclusion of substance abuse information in health education programs, Ms. Winger says.

"What we're saying is, we will never have quality programs until we realize that those who are involved in chemically dependent families are in need of as much help as those who are chemically dependent themselves," she adds.

Easter Experience

St. John of Arc Church will present the musical passion play, "The Easter Experience," in two performances, Sunday, March 24, and Sunday, March 31, both at 8 p.m. This is the fifth year the play will be performed. The hour-long play has a cast of more than 100. Shown above are Bob Neveux as Christ, Rosemary Hage as Mary, Mike Richardson as the Apostle John, and in the back, Chris Kirouak as the Centurian. Neveux, Hage and Kirouak are residents of Grosse Pointe. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend. The church is located at 21620 Mack Ave., St. Clair Shores. A donation of one can of food for the poor is suggested.

Clergyman to be installed

The Rev. Bruce Quatman will be installed as associate pastor of First English Ev. Lutheran Church Sunday, March 24, at 10 a.m. The Rev. Kirk Havel, assistant to the bishop of the Michigan District of the American Lutheran Church, will preach.

The new associate pastor comes from Peace Lutheran Church in Albert, Kansas, where he served for 3½ years. He has experience in parish education and youth activities. Among other responsibilities, he served on the Hoisington Lutheran Hospital Board of Directors and was a member of the Great Bend Optimist Club, where he received the Key Man Award in 1984.

He is a graduate of the University of Toledo where he earned a degree in psychology. He earned a master of divinity degree in 1981 from Trinity Lutheran Seminary in Columbus, Ohio. He served his internship at American Lutheran Church in Mount Clemens.

He and his wife, Cindy, are both from the Toledo area. They have two sons, Kiel, 2, and Paul, 2 months. They will be living in the Woods.

FACTS OF LAW

by Ellen C. Wallaert

If someone fails to pay you an amount owed, you may be allowed to collect interest on that debt, especially if the money is wrongfully withheld.

Courts are reluctant to allow a place of burial to be changed, but have allowed it, for example, in the case of those who were close in life and who had desired to be together in death.

The "fine print" on a store's order form is legal language which often limits the store's responsibility and liability in filling your order. Take the time to read it.

If, during or after a spousal breakup, neither spouse wants the child, the courts may place the child in a foster home, or put him up for adoption after terminating the natural parents' rights to the child.

A RECEIVER is a court appointed party who is directed to hold, manage, and preserve money or property pending the result of a lawsuit or other legal action. The receiver does not however, own any of the property.

Performing arts center is coming into its own

By Pat Paholsky

Imagine almost 8,000 square feet of stage. Then imagine sitting in the seat farthest from the stage — in the last row of the balcony — and being only 90 feet away. Not bad, you might say.

Add to that acoustics that have been described as superb by performers and other professionals. The upholstered seats are spaced generously enough so that a 6-foot-plus patron can stretch his legs in comfort.

That's a partial description of the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, a multi-event theater that can accommodate everything from a large opera cast to a single lecturer. And it, along with the rest of the Center, must be seen to be appreciated, because the facility is designed to appeal to all of the senses.

Lee Lindberg, who lives in the Farms and is the media relations coordinator for the Center, said the most prevalent comment he hears at various events is, "I had no idea there was such a beautiful place out here."

Italian blue tiles pave the entry to the lobby which features a grand staircase and a massive spiraling chandelier. The chandelier is not a modest piece. Of contemporary design, it cost $50,000.

The performing arts center, in its third season, is finally coming into its own. About half of the professional events that have taken place this season have been sold out, some months in advance, according to Laurence Teal, executive director.

The facility, located on the center campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township, was built to serve the area in three ways. It's an educational facility; it provides an opportunity for students and performers to display their talents; and it's a cultural center.

While the professional events are giving the Center visibility — acts such as Glen Campbell, The Prague Symphony Orchestra, Boots Randolph, the Vienna Choir Boys, the Rovers — they only constitute 20 percent of its usage. With non-professional events, the Center is used 237 nights a year.

Some of those include student productions and workshops for forensics, jazz band and orchestra. High schools in the area use the auditorium for their graduation ceremonies. In May, principal dancers from the American Ballet Theatre will join the St. Clair Shores Symphony Orchestra for three performances of "Sleeping Beauty."

The Center also has a second smaller theater that encompasses 3,900 square feet. Called the Black Box, the mirrored and black-curtained room is used for dance classes, rehearsals, art exhibits, receptions and smaller productions. It seats 200.

There are two chorus and three star dressing rooms, all with showers. The stage production area, with the scent of sawdust, is 47x40. There is a room for costume repair and storage.

The main theater has 700 orchestra seats and 500 in the balcony. Called continental seating, there are no aisles on the main floor other than the two side aisles.

Teal said the concept allowed 200 more seats and wider spaces between rows. The result is a small seating area with a large stage, "one of the biggest theater stages in Michigan," Lindberg said.

There is a music shell at the back end of the stage that can be pulled out on winches to make the stage smaller. It can also be brought forward for symphonic or choral performances. When it's stored, it provides an area for rear scenery projection.

The front of the stage can be hydraulically lowered to provide an orchestra pit that will hold up to 60 musicians.

Teal, who was in on the inception and planning of the Center, said that acoustics "are at best 50 percent luck." The consultants, the designers and the engineers can measure and take into account carpeting, seats, walls, ceilings, etc., but until everything's in place, he said, it's still a gamble.

The got lucky, he said, and "we just happened to end up with a wonderful concert hall." John Guinn, classical music critic for the Detroit Free Press, wrote that the acoustics "are superb in every detail."

Teal said that ticket sales show the Center is becoming known in a four-county area, with patrons regularly coming from Grosse Pointe, Birmingham and Port Huron.

It's a 30-minute drive from Grosse Pointe and a number of residents make the trip daily. Besides Lindberg, there are 116 other Pointe residents who are employed at Macomb Community College, now the largest community college and third largest college in the state, behind University of Michigan and Michigan State. About 13 percent of its 30,000 students come from this area.

Blue is the predominant color in the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts. This is the view from the entrance with the staircase leading to the balcony at the right.

Sanders hit

City police say a gunman with an apparent sweet tooth recently robbed Sanders, in the Village, of $112.

According to reports, the bandit arrived at the store at about 4 p.m. Monday, March 4, and purchased doughnuts and a box of candy before leaving.

He returned an hour later and said he wanted to buy another box of donuts. As the cashier rang up the sale, the man produced a small revolver and demanded money. Police say the store was empty except for waitresses on duty.

The gunman was last seen running west on Kercheval. He was described as a white male, 5 feet, 11 inches; 175 pounds wearing a black three-quarter length leather jacket. He had brown hair and mustache and appeared to be in his late 20s to early 30s.

Medicare alternative

Cottage Hospital, 159 Kercheval, will host two free informational programs explaining an alternative to Medicare. The sessions are scheduled for Tuesday, March 26, and Tuesday, April 9, 1985, at 4 p.m. in the hospital's boardrooms on the lower level.

Both sessions are an introduction to Senior Plus, a plan developed especially for Medicare subscribers which helps them select a personal or family doctor from a list of primary care physicians who practice at Cottage Hospital or other local hospitals. The primary care physician will then care for the patient on a regular basis, directing and coordinating complete medical care for both office and hospital visits.

Lucas tilts toward GOP

County Executive William Lucas appears more and more likely to become a Republican candidate for governor as he opens a pre-campaign swing to 25 cities around the state that may help him decide to make the race.

Yet the more popular he becomes outstate, and he is reportedly getting excellent responses to his appearances, the more he is likely to get into political trouble in Wayne County.

In an appearance in Port Huron, Lucas made his first public attack on the record of Democratic Gov. James J. Blanchard by disagreeing with the governor's original proposal for a $200 million property tax rebate.

Instead, Lucas endorsed a Republican version of the income tax rollback which was adopted by the GOP-dominated state Senate. That bill would drop the income tax rate to 4.6 percent as of next Jan. 1 and also increase the individual income tax exemption to $1,750. Lucas' point was that the surplus generated by the income tax increase in 1983 should be refunded to all of the people who paid the increase but the governor's proposal would be a special benefit chiefly to the poor and senior citizens.

Bill Johnson, Lucas' press secretary, recently told the Detroit News that Lucas talks about ways to reduce government costs in his outstate appearances and also explains that government costs no longer are tilted toward southeastern Michigan. Yet Oakland County Executive Daniel Murphy was recently reported by the Observer and Esoteric as giving Lucas credit for helping in the fight for the "good of southeastern Michigan." From Murphy's view, and he's another potential GOP candidate for governor, those issues include the improvement of the state's business climate through reducing the costs of the state's workers' compensation and unemployment benefits and taxes.

As he tilts toward the Republicans on these and other issues, Lucas seems to be having new problems with the Democratic-dominated Wayne County Board of Commissioners. Lucas vetoed two board-adopted proposals, one increasing county pension costs by $350,000 a year and the other committing $500,000 to a youth-crime project. When the board overrode his vetoes, Lucas said he wouldn't honor them, even though the county charter apparently requires him to do so.

Both items may be questionable expenditures at a time when Wayne County still is fighting to balance its budget, but Lucas also can be criticized for failing to obey the charter requirements. The controversy also indicates the problems that Lucas faces in Wayne County as he expresses more and more interest in choosing a Republican future.

Outstate Lucas' political stock appears to be rising as he talks and acts more and more like a Republican. In Democratic Wayne County, however, his GOP talk and actions are not likely to be so popular. It would be ironic if the county that launched him on his political career as sheriff should ultimately deny him further political advancement. Yet stranger things have occurred in politics.

Starting the '86 campaign

Seldom has a single state Senate election been as important to Michigan's two major political parties as the March 26 special election to fill a Grand Rapids Senate vacancy. The future control of the state Senate hinges on the outcome.

As a result, both parties are spending heavily in the district and seeking endorsements wherever they can get them for their candidates. The Democrats claimed a coup last week when the Michigan Right to Life political action committee endorsed Democrat Steve Monsma over GOP State Rep. Vern Ehlers, although both candidates support the ban on state-financed Medicaid abortions.

Both parties also are trying to use the controversy over the income tax rollback in their propaganda war to influence the Senate election. After the GOP Senate had passed the bill providing for a Jan. 1 rollback to the 4.6 percent rate, the Democrats weighed in with a new version of a rollback some time next year along with $300 million in additional property tax relief, the closing of some tax loopholes and approval of the budget before putting the tax reforms into place.

What is occurring in this case is the resumption of an old argument over whether it is better to cut taxes and then let government adapt itself to a lower standard of living or whether the state's needs should be measured and the budget adopted before any rollback in taxes is considered. Those who emphasize the first argument — the Republicans — contend that if there is any money around, the Legislature and the Democratic administration will spend it. The Democrats, in effect, insist the state's needs merit a higher priority than the level of taxes.

In testimony last week, however, the Democrats got some support from University of Michigan economists who urged caution in approving tax reforms that would cut the state surplus future revenues. They warned about the uncertain economic future resulting from proposed federal budget cuts on aid to state and local governments and from the lifting of auto import quotas which could trim Michigan's future revenue growth.

Back in Grand Rapids, however, there appears to be little choice between the two candidates except for their influence on party control of the Senate. Republican Ehlers is a state representative, an atomic scientist with a doctorate from Berkeley, a graduate of Calvin College and the son of a Christian Reformed Church minister. His foe, Democrat Monsma, is a former state senator, a political scientist with a doctorate from Michigan State, a graduate of Calvin College and the son of a Christian Reformed Church minister.

If Monsma should win, the Democrats will regain control of the Senate because Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths will cast the deciding vote to break the tie. If Ehlers wins, the Republicans will retain control of the Senate that they won last year when two recalled state senators were replaced by two Republicans.

Either way, however, next week's election really will be the beginning of the 1986 election campaign in which all members of the Legislature as well as the governor will be facing the voters. So both sides are seeking not only control of the state Senate but the momentum of a victory to provide new incentives for their troops next year.

Our undiplomatic politicians

Life is apparently getting tougher all over. Politicians are becoming less politic and diplomats less diplomatic.

State Sen. John Kelly, whose district includes the Pointes, is a case in point. Speaking on the Senate floor recently, Kelly called a fellow Democrat, House Speaker Gary Owen, "an ignorant, uninformed, half-baked hillbilly." He went on to say that if Owen continued to oppose legislation speeding up the state income tax rollback, "he will be back there shoveling manure real soon, which he is more suited to than what he's doing now."

Kelly's attack was set off by Owen's criticism of the Democratic senators, including Kelly, who had supported the GOP-sponsored rollback legislation and deserted Democrat Gov. James Blanchard. Owen's reaction to Kelly's blast, as reported by the Free Press, was: "I don't pay much attention to that kind of stuff."

In Washington, a GOP Congressman, Robert Dornan of California, called New York Democrat Thomas Downey "a draft-dodging wimp." When Downey heard about the remark, he grabbed Dornan by the collar and tie, pulled him close and warned, "Stay out of my face, now and forever."

When Downey told a reporter he wanted an apology Dornan replied: "For what? For calling him a wimp? I am willing to concede that perhaps he just walks, talks and acts like a little arrogant wimp. But maybe it's disinformation."

An undiplomatic ambassador, Evan G. Galbraith, in announcing his resignation as U.S. ambassador to France, told the New York Times that career diplomats are overly timid "liberals." The former banker added: "There's something about the foreign service that takes the guts out of people. The tendency is to avoid confronting an issue."

In response, the American Foreign Service Association sniffed that the ambassador "gratuitously insults the very people who have done their best to keep him . . . out of trouble over the past several years."

Even Secretary of State George Schultz had his say: "Somebody ought to tie his tongue for him." Since someone once said the diplomacy is to do and say the nastiest thing in the nicest way, it is no wonder that the State Department has been unable to find a new post for Galbraith.

That ought to be a warning to Kelly and Dornan and other politicians as well. Politicians must be diplomats just as diplomats must be politic.

Skating rink needs improvements

To the Editor:
Listed below are the deteriorating conditions of the Grosse Pointe Community Rink which are obviously serious safety hazards and are of grave concern to many of us who belong to the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association. Unfortunately, these conditions have existed for several years.

1. No lights or security in parking lot and many dangerous potholes.
2. Locker rooms dirty and with inadequate heat.
3. Shower filthy. (No one can even take a shower!)
4. Referees' changing rooms unusable.
5. Bathrooms poorly maintained — often no toilet paper.
6. Management unavailable at all open hours of the rink.
7. Space heaters usually not on and surely not enough heaters in proportion to the numbers of bleachers.
8. Broken glass with no replacement.
9. Failure to clean trash and debris from the rink — such as broken hockey sticks — creating danger to young children.
10. Support beams rusting.
11. Roof leaks causing difficulty playing and viewing the games in adverse weather.
12. Poor ice due to inadequate refrigeration.
13. Frequent Zamboni breakdowns due to poor maintenance.

Why wasn't it reported?

To the Editor:
I am surprised not to read anything in your March 14 issue about the recent hold-up at Sanders in the Village. It certainly was news. Why didn't you report it?

I live in the Park and work in the Village, frequently lunching there, too. I tell you, I don't feel safe anymore, and I take precautions. I just hope Sanders and the rest of the store owners do the same. After all, the safety of the employees and customers is at stake. Something has to be done! Maybe the Village Merchant Association and Grosse Pointe Park police should get together and develop a plan of action. It's just a question of time until it happens again.

Anneliese Bajer
Grosse Pointe Park

Editor's note: The robbery occurred Monday afternoon after our deadline. The account is in this week's paper.

Blades are dull resulting in inadequate performance.

14. Early ice time sold for 8 a.m. use and frequently no one there to unlock the rink — delaying games.

15. The presence of video games draws an undesirable crowd not interested in skating.

The above conditions continue to exist despite numerous requests for improvements from formal groups and individual parents.

Dr. A.G. Nault Jr., Dr. T.A. Mascarin and Mr. L. Rossetti are three of six corporate owners of Grosse Pointe Community Rink. These gentlemen receive a good deal of support for their medical practices and businesses from the people of this community and we feel they have an obligation to us in return.

Furthermore, this rink is an embarrassment and a disgrace to all of the Grosse Pointes when you consider hockey teams from all over Michigan and Canada utilize it. Can't we do better?

Handicapped need outsiders

To the Editor:
We appreciate the concern over our son's long ride to school in Garden City.

Your readers' attention, however, might better focus on how the boy and other handicapped youths fare during the Easter break and the coming long summer days.

The placement is appropriate. The route is speedily covered by an experienced driver sensitive to our son's safety and comfort.

It is those other long hours that concern us.

His age peer group forms friendships out of participation in after-school activities and competitive sports. Many of the handicapped do not have these outlets.

There are no neighborhood friends to include him in those unheralded trips to the park, the fast food outlets, the theaters.

No one invites him over. He is then virtually confined to our yard, awaiting a share of your attention.

With two active, involved siblings and an aged grandmother in the house, we often find ourselves wishing that we were capable of bi-location.

Currently, two teams of local high school students spend an hour a week with John as a Christian service project. The groups of youth have totally different personalities and levels of activity, yet John adjusts to each and enjoys their presence.

The handicapped person in most every house is in need of an outsider to spring him from the monotony of home confinement — especially during the hours when others in the family must be served in activities that are incomprehensible to the developmentally disabled.

We feel that there are people in the community who might include a handicapped child in their activities from time to time, if they only knew how much this is needed and appreciated.

Perhaps, such a project could be coordinated in our community.

Tired of not having rights

An open letter to the judges of the Wayne County Circuit Court:

On Wednesday, Jan. 16, 1985, when I returned home from visiting a mother of a mugging victim at a funeral home, I found my back door open. The grate on the door had been pried up and the window broken. The only things taken were jewelry and jewelry boxes, some of them gifts from my children.

The Grosse Pointe Park police have been cooperative, but I have my doubts as to how much they can do, with present limitations and restrictions. As a friend put it the other day: "There's something wrong."

What I am wondering is: How long is it going to be before we know what is wrong? I know there are intelligent people everywhere handling all kinds of problems in the crime area. Is it "We, the people," who have been wrong? Have we been wrong to tolerate what is happening and what is not happening where crime is concerned? Have we been unwilling to spend enough for more efficient and safe services?

Whenever I say to someone, "Why are we putting up with this?" their answer usually is, "What can (Continued on Page 7A)"

Planning a trip to Washington?

By Dennis Hertel
U.S. Representative

Putting aside legislative business for a moment, I would like to talk about the other side of Washington, D.C. — the visitor's view of our nation's capital. As springtime and the tourist season rapidly approach, my office will be able to arrange passes for many constituents visiting some of their favorite capital city attractions.

The White House is the most popular tour; citizens are permitted to stroll through the East Wing, the social part of the White House, and see, among other things, the fabulous ballroom and dining room where many state dinners and galas take place.

Each Congressional office is allotted a small number of White House tour passes on a weekly basis, but during the spring and summer months, it is virtually impossible to fill all of the ticket requests. Public tours of the White House are held Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon. You may obtain tickets on a first-come, first-served basis on the Ellipse, across the street from the White House.

The Capitol building has continuous tours daily. Starting in the rotunda, where several presidents have lain in state, you can take a walk through history and see: the original House and Senate chambers, the old Supreme Court and battle scars from the British invasion of 1814. All of these leading, of course, to the current House of Representatives and Senate where you can observe legislative debate when Congress is in session.

My office can schedule a variety of other tours for you ranging from the FBI, Pentagon and State Department to the Library of Congress, Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and the Bureau of Printing and Engraving (where money is printed).

The Smithsonian Institution and Arlington National Cemetery are free and open daily. The Smithsonian regularly schedules concerts, lectures and a variety of special activities — you may want to check the newspaper upon your arrival in Washington for that week's events.

The monuments and memorials are open from early morning until midnight and are also free.

The third executive branch of the federal government stands boldly across from the Capitol. Tours of the Supreme Court are conducted weekdays when the court is not in session; otherwise the court permits a limited number of visitors as observers. Each year I sponsor the admission of members of the Michigan Bar Association to the land's highest court, a prerequisite to bringing cases before the Supreme Court.

If you are planning a trip to Washington and would like information about tours of government buildings or historic sights, please contact my Detroit District office (18927 Kelly Road, Detroit, 48224; 526-5900). My Washington office is located in 218 Cannon Building across the street from the Capitol. Please feel free to stop in to say hello or to pick up passes for the House or Senate galleries.

Reporters doing a good job

To the Editor:

I am writing in congratulations of your article on March 7, "Lakeshore accident ends in death," written by Tom Greenwood. I saw your photo on the front page and knew I had to write to you about it. I read the story which filled me in on what happened to that poor girl. I am very glad to see that your reporters are covering important and interesting stories like that and writing very informative stories about them. The picture itself could explain what happened. Thanks for covering a story which I did not know anything about until reading your story.

Sound Health Advice from your Family Doctor

Saint John Hospital

Q: I am a smoker and would appreciate some advice on how to stop smoking on my own.

A: Pick out a day several days to a week in advance on which you plan to quit smoking. Let your family and friends know of your quitting day. Try to find one of them to quit smoking as well on this day. This increases your chances of success. The night before you quit, dispose of all ashtrays in your home, car and workplace. Get rid of your lighter and matches.

On quitting day, change your routines that connect with smoking. Drive to work a different way if you smoked in the car. Eat in a non-smoking zone in a new restaurant with a non-smoker. Simply leave the locations where you usually smoke.

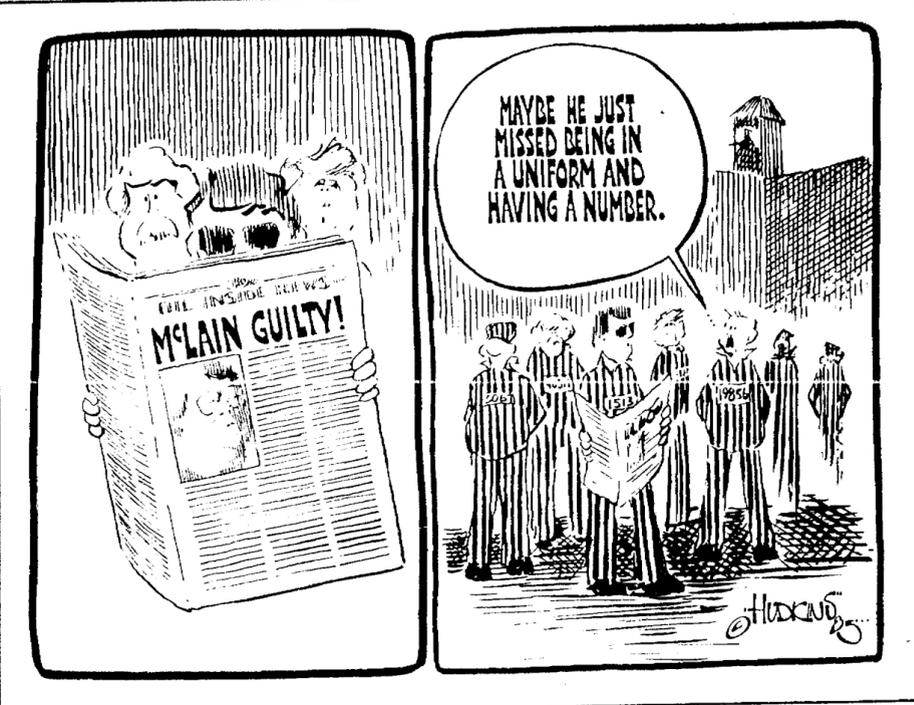

If you smoke to keep your hands busy, keep them busy with other activities such as letter-writing, needlework or crossword puzzles.

If you find that you smoke to relieve tension, exercise instead of smoking. Walk after finishing meals rather than taking a few puffs.

Reward yourself with snacks such as sugarless gum, sliced vegetables or fruit if you have the urge to smoke.

Take the money you would have spent on cigarettes and spend it on a long-distance call to a friend, buy a magazine or anything else you like.

This column is a service provided in the public interest by St. John Hospital. Questions should be sent to Christopher Goldsby, M.D., 22151 Moross, Suite 334, Detroit, Mich. 48236.

I say Non-trivial pursuits

By Pat Paholsky

There was a story on the front page of last week's paper about a chase involving teens in a pick-up truck and police officers from four cities. When I read the story, I was astounded that no one was seriously injured or killed. Any vehicle speeding through city streets and running red lights is as dangerous as a hand grenade with its pin pulled.

My second reaction was disgust with our police departments for engaging in situations that endanger the lives of bystanders unlucky enough to be in their path. Not only that, how much do the police contribute to an already bad situation by chasing a vehicle, I wondered. Are they forcing a driver to go faster?

The thing that's really bothered me is whenever there's a story in a newspaper about a high-speed chase, it seems that the driver is not a criminal in the sense of an armed robber or a murderer. Why is the public welfare so wantonly disregarded when it comes to "getting their man?" Better the offender should get away free than an innocent person get killed, I felt.

So I decided to do a story on how many citizens were victims caught in the crossfire of a chase.

My first call to the state police for statistics was a mind-opener. A spokeswoman told me they are the bottom line for all records of fatalities throughout the state, but they don't keep track of deaths resulting from police chases. She says they get numerous requests from the media for such information, but sorry. The number was low, she assured me, "three or four in the last six or seven years."

Then I called Jack Patterson, the Woods public safety director, whose department was involved in the chase. He defended the actions of his department and said their analysis of the case showed they did a fine job. Nothing surprising there. I would expect him to respond the way he did.

He read the department policy on motor vehicle pursuit in which the officer is to take into account the nature of the violation, the road and weather conditions, time of day, if the area is near a school zone and other factors. He said the supervisor back at the station, who is monitoring the pursuit, has the authority to stop it at any point. He said they are always adding to and refining the policy.

Patterson then said chases are a Catch-22. If an officer does not pursue a speeding vehicle and it slams into another car or person, the victim's family can sue the police department.

He asked how many people are killed annually by drunk drivers. They are not robbers or rapists, he said, but they do their part to add to society's woes.

Finally, he said he didn't know what the answer was. And I'm more perplexed then ever.

For starters, I think the state police, with their computerized operation, should plug in those figures. If the number is as low as they say it is — and I'm skeptical — and if there are as many requests for that information as they say, then it's time to set the facts out.

Second, I suspect there are more high-speed pursuits than we would imagine. Perhaps it's time for some public awareness of the dangers. Whenever an emergency vehicle is coming from behind with its lights flashing, I pull over to the side of the road and stop. So do other cars, yet I notice that a number do not. They just keep on going and I wonder if they're deaf or just ignorant.

Wish I had some answers.

we do?" My answer to that is: This is a free country; we don't have to put up with it; we should be doing something. Where have the media representatives been all these crime-ridden years? Do they think they can't do anything either?

Why are the wrong people being pampered while the right people are being kept prisoners in their own homes, or robbed, knocked down, beaten, maimed and terrorized, not to mention killed?

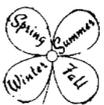

Will the person who knows the answers please speak up? I'm tired of being tired of not having my rights.

Allen Lomax: 'No point in just sitting around'

Allen Lomax collects antique ice skates and old books on the sport. Here he shows a wooden skate, probably a woman's since it has hearts cut in the blade. The skate is unique, Lomax said, because the blade is made out of brass instead of steel.

By Pat Paholsky

When Allen Lomax helped found the Grosse Pointe Skating Club in the 1970s, he had some experience. He was one of the founding members of the Detroit Skating Club in the '60s and before that, the Cleveland Skating Club in the '30s.

"It's been a lot of fun," he said. "We do have a very fine program for Grosse Pointe youngsters."

About 100 young people, ages ranging from 5 years and up, skate twice a week at the Community Rink.

Lomax's interest in skating began in Cleveland where he went to work after graduating from Harvard.

"Some Canadian skaters came to put on an exhibition and it was so fascinating," he said. "Some people decided to build a skating rink."

A skating club evolved from that and although Lomax still skates twice a week — he enjoys ice dancing to the blues — his main interest has been in judging.

Lomax, who is in his 80s, explained there are eight tests for young people who want to be competitors in the field, with the eighth being the gold test.

"Very few make it," he said. "These people have to devote their life to skating."

He added that he is probably "the only judge in captivity" to judge two champions, Dick Button on his seventh test and Tim Wood, world champion gold medalist.

"At the Detroit Skating Club, Tim always wanted to lead the grand march," he said.

In 1978 Lomax was honored "for his lifelong and continuing contributions to the community and world of skating." He was cited for being a major factor in promoting skating in the Grosse Pointe and Detroit areas.

He has served as vice president and Midwest chairman of the United States Figure Skating Association.

But Lomax, who doesn't look anywhere near his age which he doesn't like to talk about anyway, has not put all of his energy into ice skating. He founded the David L. Babson Co., an investment counseling firm, where he still works, although he retired "as we have to at a certain age."

He plays golf. "I've been practicing in the nets this winter, so my swing's going to be better than ever," he warned.

Asked if it were true that he is one of the few men to golf his age, Lomax admitted he shoots in the 80s.

He also bowls and just finished up the season at the Country Club by winning the championship with his partner.

"Playing golf, skating, bowling are my hobbies and if I get the time I think I'll take up hang gliding," he says. And he says it seriously.

He and his wife Celia have lived in the Farms since 1945. They have two daughters and three grandchildren. The couple married during World War II when he was in the Navy and she was a WAVE.

"I keep pretty busy," he said. "There's too much to do. No point in just sitting around."

Ice skating is for everyone

No debates — they're all 'good skates'

By Tom Greenwood

If your idea of a good time is hanging around with a pretty fast crowd, then Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena is the place of you.

younger than me, but we're open to anyone from pre-schoolers to senior citizens.

"We're not stand-offish," said another skater, who called himself Jake. "We're just here to get some exercise. We're a very congenial club."

The group doesn't have a proper name, and there are no admission forms or fees.

One of the younger members is Mary Lynn Morley, daughter of Helen Morley, who helped found the group in 1971 when a number of mothers petitioned St. Clair Shores for ice time for their children.

Now a student at Central Michigan University, Mary started skating with the group when she was eight.

"I'm studying sports medicine at college, so I'm away from home a lot," she said. "But whenever I make it home on the weekend or on break, I shoot over here to be with my friends. They make everyone feel very welcome."

Over the years, a form of skating etiquette has formed to help keep the group together, and prevent members from being moved down by newcomers and those a little faster on their feet. Speed skaters, and there are at least a dozen of them whipping around the rink in long, powerful strides, keep the outside while ice dancers and free formers stay to the inside.

"I come because I love it," said Marian Mai, warmly dressed in a violet ski jacket topped by a purple knit cap. "It's a lot of fun for someone like me, even though I'm only 39 like Jack Benny. In fact, we're all just 39 now."

"I'll tell you why I keep coming," said another lady, who wished to remain anonymous. "I come to exercise off all the delicious cakes and cookies one of our members brings. He's a retired baker and I have to skate to keep fit."

It isn't necessary to be an accomplished figure skater like Mary Lynn Morley to join the Tuesday and Thursday morning skaters at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena. All you need are skates and a desire for fun and exercise.

About 100 young people are members of the Grosse Pointe Skating Club. They meet twice a week — Wednesdays and Saturdays — at the Community Rink.

"The program is geared for kids who never skated before," said Fred Lux, vice president of the club. "In a period of a year, they're very confident."

"Whether they want to figure skate or be a hockey player, it makes no difference," he added.

"It's open to everyone."

There are four nine-week sessions a year, with a new session beginning the first of April.

"The kids just come out and we look at them, see their ability and put them in groups," he said.

The skaters work toward achieving different levels of proficiency. The guidelines are set by the U.S. Figure Skating Association, Lux said, which has 12 plateaus.

As the youngest reaches each plateau, he or she receives a badge. The badges, a source of great pride for the skater, are sewn on their skating vests.

All the beginner needs is a pair of ice skates. The club takes children as young as 5 and has gone up to 24 years old. The average skater is about 12 years old, Lux said.

There are seven professionals who teach at the club.

For more information, call Lux at 372-4579 or Jan Schilling, secretary of the club, at 885-5408.

Trombley: The neighborhood school at work

By Tom Greenwood

The neighborhoods surrounding Trombley School are richly varied as the students themselves who attend the nearly 60-year-old school.

Across the street from Trombley, located on Beaconsfield near Essex, are older homes made mostly of wood that sit closely together row upon row.

Behind the school, near its seemingly never-empty playground, are larger, more spacious homes with sweeping lawns and winding driveways — homes that now cost much more than the $160,000 it took in 1925 to purchase the nearly 5.3 acres the school sits upon.

Quite simply, Trombley meets perfectly the uniquely American concept of the neighborhood school. Children from many different ethnic and socio-economic backgrounds walk to the structure named for Robert Trombley, a landscape architect and longtime civic leader in the Park.

The present building was erected in 1927, replacing the original structure which was located at the corner of Jefferson and Beaconsfield. Built at a cost of nearly $700,000, the building has remained virtually unchanged except for an upstairs playroom that was converted and expanded into a school library in 1967.

Built long before the baby boom, the school currently lists 236 students on its roster, with a maximum capacity of 550 students. Trombley teachers note with pride that their school is the only elementary school in the Pointes to have its own auditorium and greenhouse.

Current Principal Sheila Joyce is especially proud to point out that the auditorium is fully paneled and features footlights for its stage. Indeed, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will visit the school in May to put on a performance for the students.

Recently, the auditorium was put to good use when the school received a visit from the actress Harriet Berg, portraying Madame Cadillac, wife of the founder of Detroit. Sitting in the darkened auditorium, the students were swept back to Detroit's beginnings as Madame Cadillac told them of the days when Detroit was a frontier wilderness in New France.

Schools everywhere are made up of auditoriums and greenhouses, classrooms and gyms. What makes Trombley unique is the commitment of its administrators, teachers, parents and students.

It boasts an active PTO with 50 parents on the executive board and a history of teachers and administrators who've committed themselves to Trombley. The school has only had five principals in its nearly 60-year history, with the first two, Ethel Cowe and Frank Welcenbach, devoting a total of 48 years to guiding Trombley and its students.

"Trombley's greatness comes from within," said 30-year teacher Eleanor Pawluk. "Its strong pulse comes from the supportive people of the Grosse Pointe Park community, dedicated leadership, and staff who together give Trombley's physical structure a spirit... dreams of things to come for another 58 years."

Sheila Joyce, principal at Trombley for the past eight months, finds the school, students and staff challenging. "The diversity and enthusiasm of Trombley parents and students is a genuine challenge to the professional staff and administration," she said. "The dawn of each new day at Trombley brings with it some new adventure. The students are 'wonder-full.'"

In two years Trombley will celebrate its 60th anniversary. Sixty years of reading, writing and arithmetic. Six decades of the shouts of children on the playground and the sound of their footsteps running through the halls.

On a bulletin board in one of those halls, there's a poster that reads, "The American Dream is alive and well in this school."

So is American education. This is the second in a series on the schools of Grosse Pointe.

 Summer Session
JUNE 24-JULY 26

Project Adventure promotes problem-solving decision-making, personal responsibility, and trust. Like Outward Bound, Project Adventure effectively teaches cooperation, mutual support, and acceptance of individual challenge. In addition, the program promotes coordination, agility, and the willingness to try. The course builds confidence and trust and enhances the enjoyment of physical activity. A strengthened self-image emerges as the student eventually realizes that persistence is more valued than performance.

Pierce sends six to math contest

In early April, six mathematics students from Pierce Middle School will attend the Regional Math Contest sponsored by the Michigan Council of Teachers of Math. The competition will be held this year at the University of Detroit.

The sixth-grade winners include David Hernquist, first place; Joy Stuckey, second; and Jennifer Schutzman, third. Seventh-grade results listed Mike Elsil as first, second was Katie Taylor, and Jonathon Nevison, third. Eighth-grader Phil Orton was first followed by Rachel Geer and Jason Parol. First- and second-place finishers will travel to the competition.

Winners in the regional competition will advance to the state contest at Central Michigan University.

Visit Valparaiso U.

High school juniors and seniors are invited to visit Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind., Saturday, April 20. The Junior/Senior Day will include programs and activities designed to acquaint the students with the campus and curricula of the nation's largest Lutheran university.

The Detroit Chapter, Valparaiso University Guild, will furnish transportation to and from the university for Detroit-area students who want to attend the visit day. The students will leave early on April 20 and will return late the following afternoon. Overnight housing will be provided for the students in university dormitories.

For further information, call Mrs. Arnold Brammeier, 885-7923, by April 5.

The scholarly dozen

Middle schoolers win 41 writing awards

Grosse Pointe middle school students took 41 awards, honorable mentions and commendations recently in the Detroit Free Press Writing Award Contest, held in conjunction with Wayne State University and the Charles Mott Foundation.

Students chosen for recognition had their work chosen from more than 4,000 entries in a number of categories, including short story, poetry, journalism, essay and sketch.

Winners from Brownell Middle School were eighth-graders Selia Bellanca, honorable mention; and Jennifer Larrabee, certificate of commendation; and seventh-graders Mark Loeffler, award of excellence; Elizabeth Johnston, certificate of commendation; Chris Brown, award of excellence; and Keith Rader, certificate of commendation.

Parcels students getting certificates of commendation in sketch were Chris Biretta, Amy Grierson, Frank Karabetos, Laura Kuntzman, Christine LaFond, Lydia Linebaugh, Joel Rejas, Bradley Risk, Lydia Thompson and Emily VanDeGinste.

Laura Kuntzman also won a certificate of commendation in the poetry category and an award of excellence in essay. Erick Trickey also received an award of excellence in the essay classification.

Honorable mention in the essay classification went to Megan Abbott while certificates of commendation were awarded to Jeff Boesiger, Tina Francis and Christine LaFond.

Winners from Pierce Middle School included, for short story, Amy Hathaway, award of excellence; Mary King, Douglas Lucas, Heather Selig and Anna Taylor, honorable mentions; and Sarah Verlinden and Jennifer William, certificates of commendations.

Brian Ehresman, Mike Elsil

and Stacy West took honorable mentions in the sketch classification while certificates of commendation went to Richard Foley, Anna Francis, Mary King, Megan Smucker and Elizabeth Solaka.

Indra Melcher and Lauren Moran won awards of excellence in the essay classification and Sascha Matish won an award of excellence in the journalism classification.

Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli said Grosse Pointe students took 27 percent of the awards in all categories, with 70 percent of the local winners being in high ability or enriched English programs.

Young authors meet next week

Elementary schools will hold their second annual Young Authors' Conference Saturday, March 30, at Kerby School.

The conference is meant to provide a forum for students from kindergarten through fifth grade to share writings and gain enrichment from professionals who will present a variety of language activities during the day.

The second annual conference will have 26 professionals speaking, up from last year's 14. Topics to be covered include speech, newspaper, idioms in music, illustrations, puppetry, word processing, science writing, television journalism, cartoons and 17 others.

Elementary school principals and elementary Curriculum Director Alfrida Frost have been meeting since the end of November to plan and organize the system-wide conference. The experience will reinforce the district's belief that writing is primary to learning and communicating, school officials said.

Students from eight of the elementary schools have been chosen from grades K-5 to participate. The day will begin at 8:45 with the students arriving at the school, followed by a 9 a.m. program by Michael Mauer and the Marvelous Music Machine.

Students in grades K-2 will spend an hour in their first learning session followed by a snack and an assembly with Arthur Slote, an Ann Arbor author. A second session will follow Slote's presentation, with certificates handed out before students go home for the day.

Students in grades 3-5 will have two morning sessions before they break for 30 minutes for lunch. Slote will talk with the students, who will then receive their certificates and leave for the day.

In his presentation, Slote will involve the students in the specifics of writing and editing. He refers to himself as a rewriter, not a writer.

Students from Defer, Kerby, Maire, Mason, Monteith, Poupard, Richard and Trombly will take part in the program.

The Farms Council unanimously rejected a similar proposal in 1975 and many concerned residents have recently signed petitions expressing continued opposition to the issuance of a public liquor license in this residential neighborhood.

Cash, clothes lost in armed robbery
The Woods police are investigating an armed robbery that occurred late Friday morning, March 15, at the Total Runner, on Mack Avenue.
According to reports, a lone gunman made off with more than $1,400 in cash and merchandise after robbing, then locking up a store employee in a restroom.
Police say the suspect entered the store and began to look at merchandise, then walked to the back of the store. He told the clerk he worked in the area, and was just checking to see if a delivery truck was still in back.
The man then announced a hold-up and kept his right hand, covered with a cloth bag, pointed at the clerk. The bandit took $150 from a front register, then led his victim to the back where he took another $400.
At this point, the clerk was ushered into a rest room and told police he heard the gunman leave, then return and leave again a few minutes later.
After calling the authorities, the clerk found that 13 running suits and eight shirts valued at more than $1,000 were also missing. The suspect was described as a black male, 6 feet, 200 pounds, with a short cropped Afro and wearing glasses.

Whritner praises schools . . .

 a quality education." Quality education comes "one student at a time," Whritner adds.
 He sees few changes that need to be made and plans to work during the balance of the school year learning about the community and its different needs. Whritner says in the interview. A superintendent needs to be "out pressing the flesh, as it were," meeting with community groups and learning the structure of the district's staffing and physical plant, he adds.
 He has maintained an excellent relationship with the unions in East Lyme, "not because I'm always caving in to their demands . . . but because I am open to discussion and accessible," he says.
 One teacher grievance has been filed in his 13 years in East Lyme, something of which he says he is proud.
 Whritner says he plans to be around for a long time, noting that a superintendent who stays with a district adds something to that district.
 "On one my visits, I had a chance to talk with Sam Brownell, one of the former superintendents here," Whritner says. "One of the reasons he was so effective and so well-liked is because he was here for 11 years. Something comes with longevity."

 Population trends nationally should allow the district to begin some long-term planning that means something, Whritner says. A "bubble" of young people appears to be working its way into the school population, but declines at elementary levels have appeared to stabilize, he says in the interview. Further declines can be expected at the middle and high school level as the small elementary classes begin working their way through the system, he adds.
 One trouble with seeing how well you have done in a school system like Grosse Pointe is "you don't know if things are happening because of you or in spite of you," Whritner says. The best way to judge a school district's strength is to see how much support it has in the community, he adds.

Hospitals help make a hard decision . . .

 Most people simply need help in getting around or doing certain chores, Ms. Bacso said. Sometimes a housekeeper-aide can stop by for two hours a day and give all the assistance a person needs to stay at home, she added.
 PMS screens its applicants' needs carefully to make sure they are asked to do all they can do and not pay for services they don't need, Ms. Bacso said. Hourly charges run from $6 to $18 hourly, depending on the level of care needed, she added.
 "You have to realize there's no place like home," Ms. Bacso said. "If an older person can stay in their own home with their own little dog, watch their own television and sleep in their own bed, how much is that worth?"
 The other hospitals also offer some kind of home health care program.
 Bon Secours offers a Meals on Wheels program that is especially helpful for heart patients who can receive hot meals and still remain inactive to meet doctors' orders, Ms. Sikora said.
 There are times when a family or older person must consider either a temporary or permanent move to a different living arrangement, Hoffman said. Cottage has two facilities that offer skilled and basic care for patients, he added.
 The move to a nursing home shouldn't be viewed as the end of the line by a patient. More than 25 percent of those who enter the facilities leave again after a short, recuperative stay, Hoffman said.
 Many who enter skilled and basic care nursing facilities come from the hospital and need some rehabilitative time for injuries such as broken hips, Hoffman said. In some cases, the stay will leave persons stronger and in better health than before their injury, he added.
 The home offers a healthy active atmosphere that fits in all the activities a person would normally take part in were he or she still living at home, Hoffman said. The medical supervision is downplayed although still present, he added.

 For patients whose memories or links to reality are fading, there are "reality orientations" where staff will remind the person of day, date and time without being intrusive, he added. That technique can help arrest or slow the deterioration, he added.
 Programs are planned by a team of staff members to enable each person in the facility to do as much as they are able, he added.
 Bon Secours' recently opened Nursing Care Center tries to offer an environment like a hotel or motel around which is built the necessary medical supervision of residents, Director Gary Gintzig said. The facility tries to develop a quality of life for its residents instead of maintaining the level of activity, he added.
 A team of staff members puts together programs and sets goals that residents are aided in meeting, Gintzig said.
 The perception of the nursing home as a place to die is slowly changing as more older persons find themselves forced out of their homes by financial considerations, Gintzig said.
 There are still the fears of new residents, guilt feelings of the family and financial considerations to be dealt with, however. Funding for long-term care at the facility comes from four sources, Gintzig said. Medicare takes care of some of the costs but not many, he said, while Medicaid, although covering more costs, requires a resident to be financially in need. A single person must have cash assets under $1,500, with a couple allowed under $2,500, to meet the Medicaid ceiling.
 Also, Medicaid will only pay the full bill for the first 20 days, then 80 percent afterward. A long stay in a nursing home can be financially debilitating to the resident and the family.
 Some insurance companies have experimented with offering cover-

Requiem to be offered twice

The chancel choirs of St. Paul on the Lake and Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church will present "Requiem," a mass by Gabriel Faure, on two dates during the Lenten season.

Piano competition deadline nears

Young concert pianists between the ages of 18 and 32 have until Friday, March 29, to enter the Fifth Annual Grosse Pointe Piano Competition.
 Entrants will compete on April 13 and 14 for concert bookings and more than $2,000 in cash awards, made possible, in part, by the Michigan Foundation for the Arts.
 For entry requirements, write or call the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Drive, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236, or 881-7511 Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. The War Memorial is a non-profit, non-tax-supported cultural, civic and educational community center.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of February was at elevation 576 feet or 52 inches above chart datum. This was about eight inches above one year ago, and the February monthly mean of 575.35 feet was 35 inches above its long-term average for February.

David Wagner, organist-choir-master at St. Paul's, will be at the organ console, and Cleopatra Rigas Greenwell, director of music for United Methodist, will conduct both performances.
 Both events are free and the public is invited to attend.

SPINAL HEALTH

Chiropractic utilizes a structural approach to maintain a healthy body. The spine must maintain normal biomechanical movement to be healthy. Normal biomechanical movement entails unrestricted and painless motion in all directions of bending the neck, mid-back, and lower back. Abnormal motion leads to premature joint and disc degeneration of the spine. This also leads to symptoms such as: low back and leg pain, neck and arm pain, headaches, dizziness, etc. which surface due to the irritation of the nerves, muscles, and ligaments of the spine. Abnormal spinal movement is detected via a motion palpation examination which can easily detect spinal problems. Brought to you as a community service by Dr. David Jantz. If you have any further questions call or write the clinic. Grosse Pte. Wds. Chiropractic Clinic, 20217 Mack G.P.W. phone 881-7677. All insurances accepted.

From Another Pointe Of View

By Janet Mueller

Marjean (Mrs. Luis H.) Toledo, Sue (Mrs. Desmond) Davies and Chrissie (Mrs. William) Zoufal are busy getting it all together — with the help of over 100 volunteers — and what they've got for the Grosse Pointe Academy's 18th Annual Action Auction, scheduled for Saturday, May 11, at the Academy, is extraordinary.

How would your little boy or girl like a mini-car (seven feet long, with a 3-horsepower engine)? It comes with a push-button musical horn and travels up to 22 miles per hour. How would your friends (30 persons in all) like a Pub Crawl through Detroit's Historic Rivertown, with appetizers and reserved space at five oozing-with atmosphere stops? The Grosse Pointe Academy will supply the private bus.

How would you like to get away from it all in a double junior suite at Mexico's Las Hadas Resort? Among the amenities you'll enjoy there (for seven days and six nights) are international dining, tennis, golf on a course ranked among the Most Beautiful by Golf Digest and a magnificence of beaches and hideaway coves.

These are a few of the hundreds of items going up for bids at Action Auction '85, in the Academy's Centennial Year. The silent auction starts at 5 p.m., the live auction at 7. Tickets are $35 per person, including hors d'oeuvres and a strolling supper. There'll be a cash bar, fine wines and valet parking. Reservation information may be obtained by calling 886-1802.

All proceeds go to support the Grosse Pointe Academy, an independent school funded solely by tuitions and fundraising dollars. It was originally the Grosse Pointe Academy of the Sacred Heart, founded in 1885 as a boarding school for girls, and still operates under the same charter although it was acquired from the Religious of the Sacred Heart and became a coeducational day school for children 2½ years old through Grade Eight in 1969.

Eight years later, in 1977, the Academy campus on Lakeshore Road was designated a Michigan Historical Site. In this, its Centennial Year, 387 students from 295 families are enrolled in the Grosse Pointe Academy's Early, Lower and Middle Schools.

Join the Swashbucklers

Now WHY is it that the really neat things to do come all at once? On the very same evening as Action Auction, Saturday, May 11, downtown at the State Theatre, the Friends of Barat Human Services are inviting you to "join the Swashbucklers," to sign aboard Captain Blood's pirate ship for an adventure cruise with cutthroats and courtiers, Long John Silver and the dueling swordsmen from Wayne State University's National Champion Fencing Team.

You'll learn the History of Swashbuckling. You'll see Er-

Exhibit focus is the glitter of beadwork

"All That Glitters: An Exhibition of Beaded Garments, 1840-1980" will open to the public at the Detroit Historical Museum on Thursday, Apr. 11, and remain there through Aug. 11.

It will feature more than 150 items from the museum's costume collection: garments and accessories by European and American designers as well as those made in the home, fans, purses, shoes, capes and dresses that were worn by prominent metropolitan Detroiters.

Grosse Pointers are well represented among those prominent metropolitan Detroiters. The list of donors and original owners of garments and accessories to be exhibited in "All That Glitters" includes such names as Frances Alger Boyer, Mrs. Joseph B. Schlottman, Mrs. Stephen T. Stackpole, Mrs. Seabourne R. Livingstone, Mrs. Roy Chapin Jr., Mrs. Hugo Scherer, Mrs. Longyear Palmer, Mrs. Russell A. Alger, Mrs. Truman Newberry . . . to name a few.

"All That Glitters" begins with the 19th century revival of beadwork and ranges from mid-Victorian jet-embroidered and fringed Pinet of Paris fashioned the black satin and rhinestone evening pumps above that were worn in the 1920s by Helen Newberry Joy. glamour and contains examples of the pearl and rhinestone-encrusted sweater sets of the 1950s and the blatant "glitz" of the '60s. It ends in the subdued but no less dazzling elegance of the 1970s and '80s.

The exhibit will also trace the historical usage of beads, illustrate bead techniques and explain bead vocabulary.

Beads — small pieces of material pierced for threading on a string or wire — have been used for centuries to decorate the body, clothing and household articles, for counting, for currency and for sacred rites in all cultures. Ancient man made beads from nuts, seeds, shells, done quartz, copper, teeth, ivory and soapstone.

Early beadmaking was a slow process, requiring days or weeks of drilling and rubbing a single bead. The results were highly valued; for a time, beads were used in a complicated system of currency by which many countries carried on trade.

The word "bead" is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word "bede," meaning prayer. The ancients believed that certain types of beads worked protective magic, keeping away the evil eye and preventing catastrophe and illness. Druids used large, strung balls in their religious ceremonies. By the 11th century, counting prayers by beads on a string was established practice in European and English churches.

Glass beads were used in Egypt as early as 8,000 B.C. Seed pearls found in fresh water mollusks were used for centuries to enrich embroideries; they were extremely popular in the embroideries of the 13th century. Natural and handmade beads were employed in embroideries until the Middle Ages, when the making of glass beads developed in Venice and Murano.

The craft of bead making was secretly guarded, but emigrating Venetians established factories in other parts of the world. Glass beads were a tremendous advantage, as they were manufactured with a hole. Other materials had to have holes bored.

European explorers of the 15th and 16th centuries exchanged glass beads for natural resources in con-

Ethnic Sunday will spotlight Ukraine Easter

The Ukrainian National Women's League's Detroit Regional Council will host a Ukrainian Ethnic Sunday on Mar. 24, at 2 p.m. at The International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit, located on East Kirby Street in Detroit's University/Cultural Center.

The program begins with a traditional Ukrainian Easter Basket blessing and includes a Ukrainian Folktale presentation, "Adventures of an Easter Egg," plus entertainment by the Ukrainian Choir.

There'll be a film and live demonstrations of Pysanky, the art of Ukrainian Easter Egg decorating, and a sampling of traditional Ukrainian Easter foods: holy bread called Paska, ham with beet and horseradish relish, cabasa, cheese and eggs, borsch and dessert.

Ukrainian embroidery and Pysanky kits will be available for purchase. Admission is $5 ($4 for International Institute members). Reservations are limited. Further information may be obtained by calling 871-8600 during regular business hours.

DSO Women plan fashion extravaganza

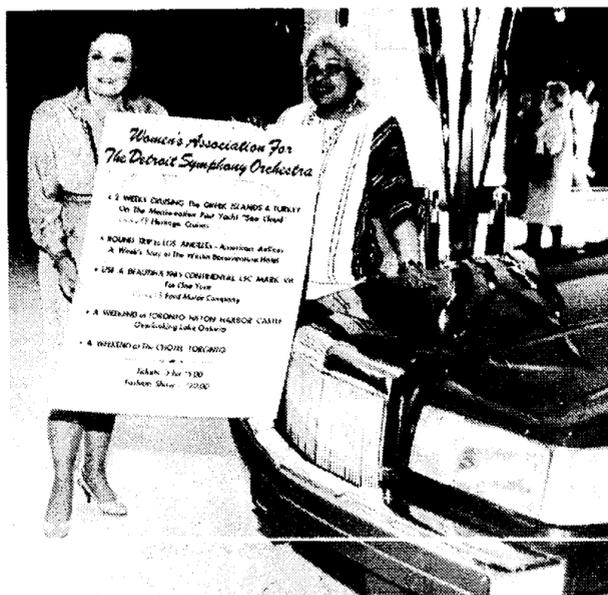

The Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will present its spring luncheon and fashion show, "High Notes in Fashion," on Wednesday, Apr. 3, at the Hillcrest Country Club.

Cocktails at 11 a.m. and luncheon at noon will be followed by the fashion presentation in the theater-in-the-round setting of Hillcrest's Penthouse Ballroom — a "first" in WADSO fashion shows. Jacobson's of Jackson will feature clothes by New York and Paris designers in a production staged by producers imported from New York.

General admission tickets at $20 per person are available in the Pointe area through Mary Nolan, 886-6244. Also available are patron tickets at $35 and benefactor tickets at $75, entitling the purchaser to a listing in the program and luncheon next Wednesday, Mar. 27, at the home of Florine Mark Ross, president of Weight Watchers. Reservation deadline is tomorrow, Friday, Mar. 22.

Tickets for chances on a number of special prizes are three for $5, available from Anne Simons, 824-1398.

Grosse Pointe has a long tradition of support of the Detroit Symphony Women's fashion presentations. The first was held 40 years ago and was chaired by Grosse Pointe's Marjorie (Mrs. Winfield S.) Jewell. Later, in 1947 when Pat (Mrs. Charles A.) Barlow, left, chairman of the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's spring fashion luncheon, and Anne (Mrs. Henry C.) Simons, hostess chairman, hold up the list of the year's special prizes.

Marjorie was president of WADSO, the first evening fashion show was held at the Detroit Athletic Club. Mrs. Jewell is now president emerita of the Detroit Symphony Women.

Hudson's Madelyn Coe, also a Pointer, coordinated the shows for years. Many of the earlier shows were held at Hudson's, which brought in such celebrities as Jinx Falkenberg, Carmel Snow, editor of "Harper's Bazaar," and Kathleen Ashton Casey, associate editor of "Vogue."

This year's luncheon and fashion show is unique in that the luncheon will be served in one ballroom, the show staged theater-in-the-round in another.

Last year, 1200 women attended the fashion luncheon, one of WADSO's major annual fund raisers. It is anticipated that attendance this year will top 1500.

Health Education Council presents a special speaker

The Health Education Council of Grosse Pointe will feature Marge Price, educator and author of "Life is a Boomerang," as guest speaker at its general meeting next Monday, Mar. 25, in the Exhibition Room of the Grosse Pointe Central Library, Kercheval Avenue at Fisher Road.

Her lecture, which is open to the public, will begin at approximately 1:30 p.m., following a brief business meeting.

She will give a motivational presentation designed to show teens and adults how to develop a positive self-image, how to improve decision-making skills, how to "set goals for the total you" and how to keep motivated and in control of one's life.

Mrs. Price has extensive experience in leading groups of all ages. Her observations and personal experiences confirm her deep belief in the principles she presents. "Helping teens to feel good about who they are and know where they are going is my number one priority," she says, adding that "the message and techniques are of tremendous value to adults as well."

Federated Garden clubs are ready to meet in Pointe

Mrs. John F. Passfield, director of District I of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, will conduct the district's spring meeting, "Unique to Antique," at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial next Thursday, Mar. 28. Hostess garden club is the St. Clair Shores Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association.

Mrs. William B. Heermann, of Traverse City, Federated Garden Clubs' president, will extend a welcome to the membership.

"Roses Are for You" is the topic to be presented by morning speaker Deanna Stephens, a member of The Pointe Garden Club, Detroit Rose Society, American Rose Society and Royal National Rose Society of England... to name a few.

Afternoon designer/speaker is Mrs. Jack E. Collins, of Germantown, Tenn., a Master Judge, National Council Instructor of Flower

Show Schools in Design and Judges Symposium Instructor. In her program, "Unique Designs," she will use lighting, modern and collages as background and part of her designs.

Table centerpieces will be hand-crafted wood geese, designed and assembled by Mrs. Fred Smitka and Mrs. Osborne Day. The geese will be wearing straw hats trimmed with dried flowers, rose hips and small flower pods, tied under the beak with a pale orange bow.

A committee consisting of the Mesdames James Commins, Ervin Marz, William Smith, Robert Sarver and Raymond Kaye has completed 40 hats and will add a ring of fresh ivy around the base of each centerpiece.

Reservations chairman Mrs. Frank Losh anticipates that 340 members will attend the meeting.

To view women's issues worldwide

Kimberly Colcernian, member of the Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women, will report on "Women's Issues Worldwide" at a free, open-to-the-public meeting next Wednesday, Mar. 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Exhibition Room of the Grosse Pointe Central Library, Kercheval Avenue at Fisher Road.

Kimberly, an AAUW participant in the 1984 United Nations Conference in New York, will focus on women's issues in both the Third World and the West, in light of the International Women's Conference to be held in Nairobi, Kenya, in July.

Her program is part of the Pointe Branch AAUW Legislative Committee's on-going series "Economic Independence for Life; Not a Trivial Pursuit."

Miss Sutton wed in Utah

Saint Mark's Cathedral, Salt Lake City, Utah, was the setting Saturday, February 16, for the wedding of Barbara Ann Sutton and David Andrew Watson. She is the daughter of Mrs. Robert James Sutton, of Mount Vernon Road, and the late Mr. Sutton. Mr. Watson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh H. Watson Jr., of Tulsa, Okla.

The Very Reverend William F. Maxwell presided at the 1 o'clock rites. Stephen Ridgley Whitehouse, the cathedral's organist and choir-master, provided the organ music. Edward Gornik played the baroque trumpet. Processional was the Prince of Denmark's Marche by Jeremiah Clarke. Recessional was the Hornpipe by G.F. Handel.

The bride, given in marriage by her brothers, William C. Sutton, of Petoskey, and George D. Sutton, of the Farms, who also, with Daniel Ogden, of Houston, Tex., served as an usher, wore a seed pearl-accented gown of embroidered organ-dy over peau de soie.

Her full veil of silk illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and lace. She carried an arrangement of rubrum lilies, white freesia and stephanotis.

Honor maid was Lynn M. Attard, of Salt Lake City, a college friend of the bride. Best man was Billy Burr Wyatt, of Denver, Colo.

Ms. Attard and bridesmaid Elizabeth Watson Mirell, of South Lake Tahoe, Calif., the bridegroom's sister, in full length dresses of deep rose crepe de chine, wore wreaths of baby's-

Kellett-Dunbar vows are said

A reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial followed the Friday, November 30, wedding of Laura S. Dunbar and Peter M. Kellett. Monsignor Francis X. Canfield presided at the 6 o'clock rites in Saint Paul's-on-the-Lake.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Dunbar Jr., of Port Huron, wore the gown of satin and lace in which her Aunt Dorothea Tebeau was married in 1944. Honor attendant Leslie Nurse and bridesmaids Katherine Kellett, of Washington, D.C., and Rose Byers wore tea length dresses of forest green velvet.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Charles P. Kellett Jr., of Devonshire Road, and the late Mr. Kellett, asked Michael McInerney to act as best man. Guests were seated by George Dwaihy, John Kellett and Thomas Dunbar, of Woodland, Calif.

The newlyweds vacationed in Cancun, Mexico, and are at home on Lakepointe Avenue.

breath in their hair and carried bouquets of rubrum lilies, white stephanotis and ivy.

The mother of the bride chose a dress of deep periwinkle blue silk. The bridegroom's mother selected a dress of champagne crepe de chine. Both wore gardenia corsages.

The newlyweds vacationed at Snowbird Ski Lodge and Yellowstone National Park. They will make their home in Denver.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. David Ogden, of Houston, Tex., Mr. and Mrs. Tracey Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Steven Duty, of Denver, Robert Gwilym, of Indian Hills, Colo., and Mrs. William Sutton and Mrs. George Sutton, who accompanied their husbands from Michigan.

Pair set June wedding date

She is currently employed as benefits coordinator at Paul Stuart Inc., Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y.

Mr. Controulis, a Grosse Pointe South High School alumnus, was

He is an associate with IDD Information Services Inc. in New York City.

Civil War 'soldier' tells of his times

"Hardtack and Coffee: Michigan in the Civil War" is the program to be featured at a combined meeting of the St. Clair Shores Genealogy Group and the Friends of the St. Clair Shores Historical Commission next Thursday, Mar. 28, at 7 p.m. in the St. Clair Shores Public Library, located on the corner of Jefferson Avenue and 11 Mile Road.

Steve Mrozek, curator of the Troy Museum, will be dressed in an authentic Union Army uniform as he describes the Civil War from the viewpoint of the common soldier.

The program is free and open to the public. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Mary Karshner, curator/archivist, at 771-9020.

Worth-Less women are tonight's topic at Wayne State

Are women in today's work force given comparable worth? Janet Cooper, member of the Michigan Department of Civil Rights Legal Bureau and adjunct professor, Wayne State University Law School, will address this and other questions concerning women's worth in "Why Women are Worthless," a program sponsored by WSU Commission on the Status of Women, running from 5 to 7 p.m. tonight, Thursday, Mar. 21, at McGregor Memorial Conference Center on the WSU campus.

Geraldine Hill, from Wayne State's Labor Studies Department, will be the respondent.

The program will look at the concept of comparable pay — which, unlike equal pay, means that people working in similar worth capacities receive similar pay — as it relates to today's working woman. Criteria for comparable worth in terms of job evaluation will be given. Tickets, at $2 each, may be obtained by calling 577-5093 or 577-1750.

Miss Beshouri was graduated from Shrine of the Little Flower High School and holds a Bachelors degree in Business Administration from Michigan State University. She is a consolidation accountant at Masco Corporation, Taylor, where her fiancé is a financial analyst.

He was graduated from Bishop Gallagher High School. He holds a Bachelors degree in Business Administration from Wayne State University and a Masters degree in Business Administration from the University of Michigan.

rol Flynn's magnificent Swashbuckler Epic "Captain Blood." You'll be given your own "pieces of eight." You won't have to worry about flogging: there's such a thing as being TOO authentic.

There'll be wine to sip, displays to admire, a cash bar, a souvenir program, dancing and a dessert buffet served after the show. Among those buckling up their swash and getting it all together for Barat are Pointe residents Karl Bates, Bonnie Levitan, Josie McLean, Yolanda Turner, Larry Van Til, Kay Bolles, Beth Crane, Lynn Turner and Bob Davis. Information on Swashbuckler Evening tickets, at $25 per person, may be obtained by calling 833-1525.

All proceeds go to support Barat Human Services' Respite Care Center for children up to 5 years of age in danger of abuse or neglect. The Center offers protection for these children and relief for parents by removing the children from the home for up to 22 days.

Like the Grosse Pointe Academy, Barat Human Services is celebrating an anniversary this year: it 60th. It originated in 1925 as a residential program for young women called Barat House. Again like the Academy, Barat has evolved, becoming a multi-services agency in 1977 with the acquisition of the Family Center which originated in 1973 as a pilot program for abuse prevention through Children's Hospital of Michigan.

The latest addition to Barat Human Services is the Respite Care Center, which opened in 1981. Today, through Barat House, Family Center and Respite Care Center, Barat Human Services addresses the issue of child abuse and its prevention from birth to adulthood.

Footnote to the above: the parallels between Barat Human Services and the Grosse Pointe Academy really are amazing. Barat was named for Saint Madeleine Sophie Barat, who founded the Religious of the Sacred Heart, who founded the Grosse Pointe Academy, which is holding its major 1985 fund raiser, Action Auction, on the same evening Barat Human Services is holding its major fund raiser this year! But WHY is it that the really neat things to do come all at once?

A Triple Centennial

Tuesday Musicales of Detroit, currently celebrating its Centennial Year, will also celebrate the 100th anniversary of the world's greatest comic opera, "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan, next Tuesday, Mar. 26, at 10:30 a.m. in the Lecture Hall of the Detroit Institute of Arts — which is also celebrating its 100th year.

The Musicales's concert version of "The Mikado" is free and open to the public. It will be presented in costume. The popular "Three Little Maids from School" trio will feature Grosse Pointers Jean Ground and Johanna Gilbert as two of the Maids (Peep-Bo and Pitti-Sing, respectively), with Anna Speck, of Troy, as Yum-Yum, the third.

Appearing as Katisha will be Nora Skitch, contralto, also of The Pointe. Completing the cast as Nanki-Poo, Ko-Ko and Pooh-Bah are guest performers David Reynolds, George Bloomfield and Matthew Eskola. Martha Welton will narrate. Fran Wilson, of St. Clair Shores, will provide piano accompaniment.

Catherine Goodsell, also of St. Clair Shores, is the Musicales's general program chairman during its Centennial Year, which began with a Founders' Day program in January. The performers appeared in authentic 1880's attire and interspersed music typical of that era with dialogue focusing on the early days of the organization.

February recitals began with the Musicales's traditional "Parade of American Music," spotlighting woman composers, and included a New Members' Program that featured a tribute to five of the oldest members, among them Grosse Pointe's Marjorie Jewell, each of whom received a corsage of white flowers and blue ribbon. Blue and white are the Musicales's colors.

Throughout the month of March, a Centennial Display of Tuesday Musicales historical objects is on view in two large cases near the Cass Avenue entrance of the Detroit Public Library's Main Branch on Woodward Avenue, opposite the Institute of Arts.

The exhibit features scrapbooks and newspaper articles about the Musicales, photographs of featured artists (Paderewski, Fritz Kreisler, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Claudio Arrau and others), Federation of Music Clubs awards and Mayor Coleman Young's proclamation declaring Jan. 22, 1985, Tuesday Musicales Day in Detroit.

Miss Andreou will be bride

Her fiancé, who received his Bachelor of Arts degree in American Studies from Tufts University, also studied abroad during his junior year, at Ithaca College, London. He is now employed as a journalist with the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune, Lawrence, Mass.

To say vows in the spring

Early May wedding plans have been made by Kathryn Ann Showalter and William Harry Albrecht III whose engagement has been announced by her father, Weldon J. Showalter, of Charlottesville, Va.

Local famine relief auction will feature local talents

Paint brushes are dabbing, knitting needles clicking, mixing bowls being scraped, rootings potted... all for Make-It, Bake-It, Sew-It, Grow-It, a fund raising event at Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church.

This Sunday morning, Mar. 24, following the 11 a.m. Spring Concert Worship Service, handcrafted, homebaked, handsewn and hand-grown items will be auctioned off to the highest bidder, all proceeds going to help alleviate hunger in Ethiopia.

"We have some very talented people in our church," says Ardy (Mrs. Robert C.) Jones, chairperson for the event. "They've been bringing in paintings, silk flower arrangements, knitted items — and gorgeous plants."

Many of the goods to be auctioned are one-of-a-kind. "Our Youth Director, Sue Rushton has made a child's picnic table," says Joan (Mrs. Charles) Tuffley, assisting with auction arrangements. "Bill Bakeman has carved a cheese-and-crackers duck platter. Renee McBrayer has embroidered clever wall hangings."

"It's a very worthwhile cause," observes Patly (Mrs. Ken) Morton, who visited Africa last year and had experiences she will never forget. "Some people were concerned that the money we are raising for Africa would not reach the people who need it. They put me in charge of finding organizations where our money would do the most good.

"After a thorough investigation of African relief organizations, I feel our benefit funds will not be diluted for administrative or political purposes."

"All this year, the Woods Presbyterian Church has been stressing hands-on events," adds Diane (Mrs. Lyle) Heavner. "This Make-It, Bake-It, Sew-It, Grow-It auction is an excellent way individuals can use their talents to help others."

Helping with auctioneering duties will be Bruce Feighner, Mary Dykstra, James Spencer, The Honorable Patricia Schneider and Allison Jones. Other committee members include Jan Hagen, Esther Gompers, Harriet Kamm, Joanne Spencer, Sue Van Hollebeke, William Bakeman, Paul Bakeman, Red Arnold, Sam Moorhatch, Theresa Arnold and Betty Kirk.

"We want the community to know that everyone is invited," says Pat Bakeman, Woods Presbyterian's director of Christian Education. "Anyone unable to participate but still wishing to donate to African Hunger Relief may send checks, earmarked for the relief project, to Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, 19950 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236."

New Exermetrics classes to begin

Spring Exermetrics classes begin the week of Mar. 25 at First English Church on Vernier Road and Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church on Mack Avenue. Theme this season is "Gimme Five," part of a kick-off for losing winter-gained weight. Focus this spring is on diet and nutrition as well as the Exermetrics exercise program.

Exermetrics originator/developer Kathy Peacock, of The Shores, is compiling a nutrition and fitness "tipster" as a bonus for members of her spring classes.

Her exercise program is based on a common sense approach to fitness. It is a safe, well-rounded program for both men and women. Equal emphasis is placed on improving muscle flexibility and strength, building cardiovascular stamina via walking and running aerobic techniques and a sophistiated knowledge of yoga and relaxation exercises for reducing stress.

Exermetrics class members have "unlimited memberships," allowing them to attend as many classes as they like. There are different programs for different fitness levels, including one, designed for those who do not wish aerobic activity, that uses only floor exercise and yoga techniques. "Dollars-off" incentives encourage students to bring friends and family members; this makes for a good mix of people and a fun class atmosphere and work-out.

Exermetrics programs have been in Grosse Pointe for the past four years, on the East Side for 12 years. Additional information on the spring class schedule and program content may be obtained by calling Exermetrics, Inc., 881-6149.

Clay & paper for Pewabic

"Clay and Paper," on display at Pewabic Pottery through Monday, Mar. 25, brings together three well-known artists, Margie Hughto, of Syracuse, N.Y., Jamie Fine, of Ann Arbor, and Detroit's Jim Lutomski, in a bright and colorful show, open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Hughto's pieces are large tablets of clay in soft pastels which move from the fan shapes for which she has been known and admired toward muted landscapes and beautifully made and framed dyed paper collages which reflect similar ideas.

Fine's clay art is influenced by repetitive themes drawn from work in fiber and textiles. Lutomski has moved from ecological, topical slabs to vessel forms with landscapes and figurative decorations and to bold, mixed media pieces.

Pewabic Pottery is located on East Jefferson Avenue, opposite Detroit's Water Works Park.

Spring arts, crafts show is scheduled

More than 130 exhibit booths will be featured at "Breath of Spring," the 11th annual art and craft show sponsored by the Ladies Guild of Lutheran High North, running from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Mar. 23, at the school, 24 Mile and Romeo Plank Roads.

Admission is 30 cents (children under 5, free). Handcrafted items and homemade Easter candy will be available, along with baked goods, Lutheran High North cookbooks and doughnuts freshly baked throughout the day. Lunch will be served continuously, and there will be craft demonstrations.

Operation LINC

LINC IS MOVING! In order to improve efficiency and service, the Executive Committee and general membership has approved the relocation of Operation LINC (Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community) offices to 17800 East Warren Avenue, effective Mar. 28, 1985.

LINC has had a very positive, long-term relationship with the Northeast Guidance Center, where it is presently headquartered, and with the NEGC directors, and would like to thank the NEGC and its staff for their cooperation during the past years.

In its new location, more accessible to agencies and volunteers, LINC will continue to offer the concern and care it has become noted for, and hopes to expand programs to provide more help to more people.

Though the upcoming move is foremost in the thoughts of the LINC membership, the Monte Carlo benefit held Mar. 2 at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House is foremost in their memories. A sell-out crowd enjoyed tours of the house, plentiful food and drink and good company. Many guests took home prizes donated by area merchants.

Special thanks go to Becky Cipriano, Sylvia Russell and their committee, who did such a grand job of planning the event. The LINC volunteer party staff would also like to thank members of the Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe and Optimist Club and their wives for their assistance during the evening.

Benefits of this fund raiser will be felt by many as volunteers reach out to the various agencies which turn to LINC for help. One such group is World Medical Relief, Inc., which has helped people in both the Detroit area and around the world since 1953.

Mrs. Irene Auberlin is president of WMR, a non-profit agency. She began with the idea that drugs that might be wasted (cast-offs from doctors' offices, for instance), hospital equipment that might be obsolete (in a hospital which has acquired newer, more modern equipment), old eyeglasses and surplus food supplements all have value to the sick and suffering.

Every day of every month of every year since August, 1953, the voice of Irene Auberlin has been heard on behalf of the ill and destitute in the far corners of the world. She speaks, too, for the elderly in her own neighborhood, city and state and in needy areas throughout the United States.

WMR is headquartered on 12th Street in Detroit. Its local programs include aid to all Michigan Way relief agencies and the Visiting Nurse Association, via supplies and equipment, and assistance to three drug and alcohol clinics. It provides a free tri-county prescription program for the needy elderly (62 and over, with documented proof of income), 90 percent of whom are existing on less than $400 per month.

In 1984, Mrs. Auberlin received the President's Volunteer Action Award. A recent letter to LINC from World Medical Relief is evidence of the benefits derived from work which fund raisers such as the Monte Carlo party allow to continue uninterrupted:

"Dear Friends: How grateful we are for your donation! Our supply of medicine is at an all-time low, although our requests for help are at an all-time high. Please promote WMR. The need for all types of supplies and medicine is urgent."

WMR's list of needed items is ongoing, but a special mission is currently underway for soap which helps to prevent disease in Third World areas. Mrs. Auberlin suggests contacting hotels and motels which discard soap left in rooms. Soap is $10 a bar in Ghana. If you can help, please contact the LINC office at 331-6700.

rently underway for soap which helps to prevent disease in Third World areas. Mrs. Auberlin suggests contacting hotels and motels which discard soap left in rooms. Soap is $10 a bar in Ghana. If you can help, please contact the LINC office at 331-6700.

In order to keep up with the constant flow of requests to the LINC office, a spring fund raiser, LINC's Annual Flower and Garage Sale, will be held on Saturday, May 11, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Assumption Greek Orthodox Church and Cultural Center, 21800 Marter Road, St. Clair Shores. Co-chairmen are Martha Brosky and Trisha Fishman.

LINC has placed more than $200,000 worth of donated goods with area agencies during this fiscal year. Included are such unusual items as hundreds of home permanents, a seatless school bus, used lumber and tennis balls. But LINC often receives items which are not within the needs of its participating agencies, and these are set aside for the annual garage sale.

Among these garage sale-earmarked items are collectible glassware, jewelry, baskets and decorative household accessories. Money raised from the garage sale, and the Monte Carlo party, helps to cover LINC's rent, telephones, insurance, office supplies, postage and professional fees for an accountant and attorney, equipment repair, dues and memberships in professional organizations and the salary of one full-time employee who handles the daily operations of the LINC office.

Everyone is invited to "come to the Assumption garage" May 11 (just in time for Mother's Day) and help LINC continue to help others help themselves. Advance ordering of flowers is available through Apr. 30. Any questions? Call 881-9357, or the LINC office.

One final but exciting news item this month is the new LINC Executive Committee for 1985-86, announced at LINC's annual meeting held Mar. 7 at the home of Mrs. Chris Litka. The membership voted unanimously to approve a slate of officers headed by Chris as president. First and second vice-presidents, respectively, are Martha Brosky and Victoria Buckler. Treasurer is Barb Earl. Secretary is Jeanette Stumpe. Outgoing President Mary Matvias will assume the duties of nominating/future planning.

LINC's office coordinator, Fran Mumma, submits this interesting item concerning the trash bags that are being sold as an ongoing LINC fund raiser. Seems that Fran's daughter went sledding with her friends this winter. They used trash bags instead of sleds — and the other children voted Fran's daughter's bag The Best, as it did not self-destruct after many trips down the hill.

So... for trash, attic storage — or sledding — "the best bag in town" is LINC's. The trash bags are offered at $12 for a box of 100. You can get them by calling the LINC office.

Don't forget to do your spring cleaning early and donate to LINC! LINC column space is provided each month by the Grosse Pointe NEWS as a community service. Operation LINC is a non-profit, volunteer organization which helps numerous Wayne County agencies and depends on your support. To volunteer or donate usable items, please call us at 331-6700. Our office hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, throughout the year.

A glittering exhibition quered lands. Spangles of gold, copper and silver, artificial jewels, sequins and paillettes began to be manufactured in the 16th century, but beads remained costly luxury items, symbols of opulence, and were used sparingly in dress — except in the case of royalty.

All beadwork was accomplished by hand until 1891, when a machine was invented to apply beads to fabric. But this invention worked only with steel beads, which could be manufactured uniformly. Not until the 20th century were glass beads produced sufficiently enough to be applied by machine for a mass market.

Beadwork has followed the trends of fashion, going in and out of style over the past two centuries. The reflective quality of faceted surfaces, the depth of color offered by pieces of glass in the light, the movement and interesting textures produced by beadwork appealed particularly to Victorian taste.

Beadwork was revived in the mid-19th century with the help of fashion periodicals, domestic journals and displays of the craft in the Crystal Palace at the Great Exhibition in London in 1851.

Meeting today for Pear Tree

The Pear Tree Chapter of Quarters gathers this morning, Thursday, Mar. 21, at 10 a.m. in the Renaud Road home of Mrs. Marvin Brinkman for a paper on "Presidents' Wives and Their China" presented by member Mary Jane Wicklund, who will also give some White House recipes.

Other members are bringing a selection of favorite recipes. A brief business meeting will follow the program.

Spring is always busy season at Assumption

Spring is always a busy season at Assumption Cultural Center, located on Marter Road, at the border of Grosse Pointe Woods and St. Clair Shores. Assumption, now in its eighth year of providing a wide variety of classes and activities to the community, begins its spring schedule this week. Its season brochure lists many returning favorites along with new programs.

Leading the list is Assumption's popular Kalosomatics Fitness Program: the state of well-being through body movement. Metropolitan Detroit's original, three-level, nine-week progressive exercise regimen has, since 1977, motivated thousands of participants to learn and enjoy the benefits of a total workout certified by leading Wayne State University Doctors of Sports Medicine.

Kalosomatics allows each person to work at his/her own level to build stamina, with emphasis on heart and lungs. Assumption offers beginner, advanced and moderation classes for men and women, plus Kalo for Kids ages 9 to 12 and Kiddle Kalo for preschoolers.

Prenatal Fitness, designed with a team of gynecologists and sports experts, improves posture, muscle tone and body alignment and encourages relaxation for labor and childbirth.

And Assumption's spring fitness classes do not end with Kalosomatics. Runners' World Fun Runs on the first and third Saturdays of each month span distances from one-half to five miles. Refreshments are served and certificates presented after each run. Fitness Walking classes, directed by Frank Soby, National Masters Race Walker and marathon runner, begin Saturday, Apr. 20.

Seminars on health in Assumption's spring brochure include "Treat Yourself to a Low Sugar/Low Fat Diet." The program is scheduled for Wednesday, Mar. 27, and will be conducted by Paula Gerow of Bon Secours Hospital. Mrs. Gerow returns Wednesday, Apr. 24, to conduct a "Low Sodium/Low Cholesterol" seminar. Dr. Dan G. Guyer of the Psychiatric Center of Michigan will conduct a "Stress and You" seminar on Thursday, May 23.

Also scheduled at Assumption this spring are classes in yoga, square dance, ballet, tap, latest dance techniques, karate, golf and Self-Defense for Women.

Angelo Gust, head baseball coach at Wayne State University and Great Lakes Conference League Baseball Coach of the Year, is

MAHA schedules annual workshop

The Southeast District of the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries will hold its 28th annual workshop Monday, Mar. 25, at the Troy Hilton Inn. Morning workshops will focus on Goal Setting and Implementation, How to Prepare Newsletters and Press Releases, How the Volunteer is Absorbed into the Program, and New Services. Post-luncheon speaker will be Marilyn Gonte, author of "It Can't Happen to Me."

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is coming back by popular demand to teach "Coaching Boys' Baseball" for Little League and Colt League teams. He emphasizes individual skills, pitching, hitting and throwing, as well as team skills.

Assumption's arts and crafts spring listings include needlepoint, pillow-finishing, quilting, flower arranging, sweatshirt painting, stained glass, photography, calligraphy, drawing and painting, all of which have been previously offered.

Special spring listings include a Dough Easter Basket class in which participants will learn to weave bread dough baskets to be used as centerpieces or as gifts to fill with cookies, eggs or candy. The Wolonick Family will provide instruction in Ukrainian Egg Painting. Lorraine Christy will conduct a class on Easter Counted Cross Stitch Eggs.

New this season is a four-week workshop on Copper Enameling. Added to Assumption's self-improvement class roster are Ultima Salons' Orlando & Tsielos offering spring hair styles, make-up and fashion success and eyebrow shaping. A class in "Writing for Resumes and Publication" is another addition to Assumption's spring brochure.

Back again are Discover Your Voice, Nail Care, Color and Make-Up Techniques, Italian, Guitar, Organ Playing, CPR, Making Your Will, Investments for Changing Times and Real Estate Limited Partnerships.

Parenting nights at Assumption Nursery School are planned for next Tuesday, Mar. 26 ("Your Child's Speech and Language," with Marlene Cummings), and Tuesday, May 21 ("Understanding the Child within You," with Barry Hull).

Culinary crafts at Assumption this spring include Easter Candy Making and "Cooking Naturally" with Chef Diane Watt. Back again are the McCallum Microwave Classes and "Discover Greek Cooking," featuring spinach pie.

Hellenic Culture classes include Greek Language for adults and children and Greek folk dancing for all ages.

Teen and youth programs range from a beauty clinic to driving lessons, from golf clinics to instruction in ballet, tap, the latest dances, karate, gymnastics and, of course, Kalosomatics.

Instruction is also offered in how to "Be A Better (Baby) Sitter." More Assumption spring classes for the young set are Fun with Art, Simple Magic, La Petite Cuisine for ages 8 to 13 and La Petite Cuisine for Tots ages 2½ to 5.

Assumption's Nursery School and Toddler Center will soon be enrolling for summer camp and maintains open enrollment for the current and next fall's term.

Discounts on Assumption classes are available for senior citizens. Further information on the cultural center's spring programs may be obtained by calling 779-6111.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol — and penny-wise — collection of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth focusing, this week, on FOODS RICH in IRON.

Iron is a mineral used by the body to form hemoglobin in the blood to help circulate oxygen and carbon dioxide. Iron is required for optimal health and fatigue-fighting. While an iron-rich serving of liver once a week makes iron available for storage, the "iron robbers" (pollutants, smoke, tea, dieting, plus such iron blockers as inorganic calcium and food additives) make a daily supply of iron a necessity.

BEEF A LA MODE
1 3-lb. lean beef bottom round
1 cup beef broth
1/2 cup dry red wine
1/4 cup wine vinegar
1/4 tsp. salt
5 whole peppercorns
1 cup water
1 cup peeled, sliced onions
1 tsp. peeled, minced garlic
1 medium-sized carrot, peeled and sliced
1 bay leaf
1/4 tsp. thyme
8 medium-sized carrots, peeled and cut into 2-inch chunks
2 cans (16-oz.) boiled onions, drained

Place beef in large bowl. In small bowl, mix beef broth, wine, vinegar, salt and peppercorns. Pour broth mixture over meat; cover and refrigerate overnight. Remove meat from bowl and dry with paper towels; save marinade.

Preheat oven to 350°. Heat a Dutch oven over moderate high heat; add meat and brown all over. Reduce heat to moderate; add reserved marinade, water, sliced onions, garlic, sliced carrot, bay leaf and thyme. Cover pot and bring liquid to a boil; place pot in oven and bake 2 hours. Remove from oven and discard bay leaf and peppercorns.

Ladle meat juices, after removing all grease, and the vegetables into a blender or food processor; process at high speed. Pour pureed mixture back into pot and add the carrot chunks. Cover pot and bake 30 minutes more, or until meat and carrots are fork tender. Add boiled onions to pot and bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

The long way to Mackinac...

Why (I've always thought to myself each July) would anyone want to sail 259 nautical miles to Mackinac Island when they can make perfectly good use of I-75 and drive there, saving the boat ride for the 10 minute ferry over to the Island?

Sure, so there's supposed to be something glamorous about the yearly race in which hundreds of sailors culminate months of planning and carry on years of tradition in a thrilling sail up Lake Huron. But it's never been glamorous enough to give me the urge to try it.

Until now. You see this year, Bayview Yacht Club, the folks who put on the annual Port Huron to Mackinac race, want to live dangerously. They want to place a reporter on each boat rather than just have them watching from the relative safety of the press boat or plane. They want the reporter to actually be part of the race. Which to my mind is sort of like singing the praises of the human appendix — reporters serve some purpose, but other than that, who needs 'em on a racing yacht? And they sure can end up being a pain in the side.

Even stranger, they want me to be one of those sea-going reporters. Pretty funny, huh?

I thought so too when I first got a letter from BYC's race public relations representative, Jim Dundas. His letter informed me that BYC would like to have me participate in the race on one of the contending yachts. The reporter on the boat that finishes with the best corrected time would also receive an award, he said.

Dundas took an awful lot for granted in sending me a letter like that. With me on board, that "contending" yacht might just become a pleasure boat out for a 259-mile cruise. One thing for sure, they wouldn't have to worry about putting my name on an award.

After all, I thought to myself, what could befall a fine yachting team but disaster with me, a certified landlubber who has to close her eyes and think for a minute to tell the difference between port and starboard. No, I have too much respect for sailors to do that to them. So I put the whole thing right out of my mind.

But the "P.R." in public relations doesn't stand for "Persistent, Really," for nothing. And soon Dundas was in my office, sitting in front of my desk, shaming me into agreeing that yes, it was a good idea to have a reporter on every boat and sure, what the heck, I'll be happy to participate.

Did I really say happy? Dundas explained that I didn't really need to know anything about sailing, since that minor detail would be taken care of by the crew. Everything else I'd need to know (what to wear, how to radio in my reports to the newspaper, where to buy the best cure for sea sickness and how to behave like I'd actually seen a sailboat once or twice) would be explained to me at a press conference this spring.

I didn't have to know anything? I think I can handle that. And I still can't believe I said I'd do it. But I will.

There are a few things I want to know first. Like, how am I going to get back to Detroit after the race? I have a feeling that after three days on a sailboat, southbound I-75 is going to look awfully good to me; but not without a car. And I have an even stronger feeling that if my boat isn't a winner, my skipper is going to come up with the second best solution after keelhauling: making the lousy reporter walk home.

And can God really hear the prayers of a reporter whose first sojourn out into the middle of the inky, icy depth of Lake Huron comes complete with a) fog; b) no wind; c) hurricane-like storms; d) all of the above?

And finally, do these experienced Port Huron-to-Mackinac racers realize down deep that they'll be sailing with a dry-behind-the-ears novice? And will they be nice to her and not make her cry? Even if 'Lights, camera... play ball!'

By Peggy O'Connor

They've gone video at North and South.

But don't look for your favorite Blue Devil or Norseman on MTV. They're right here in Grosse Pointe on videocassette, in all their athletic glory, now that videotaping sports events has become as much a part of the sports scene in Grosse Pointe as taped ankles and early-morning practice sessions.

At North, athletic director Tom Gauerke says they've "completely converted" to using videotaping as an athletic teaching tool, with the exception of varsity football, which lends itself better to 16 mm film. It's the same at South, Blue Devil coaches say.

"It's incredible the amount of use the video equipment gets here," Gauerke says. "It's used on a nightly basis, especially during the winter season."

"It's an outstanding teaching tool. If you can have the athletes actually see themselves perform rather than just tell them... well, that old adage 'A picture is worth 1,000 words' tells the story here," he adds.

North has two sets of video equipment in use, so that while one sport is being taped, another may be shown; or two sporting events may be taped at once. Both schools use students to fill the videotaping jobs.

North High junior Jim Baubie got involved in the videotaping program when Gauerke, Baubie's across-the-street neighbor, told him the job was open. His video experience had come from watching when his grandfather rented some home video equipment.

"I knew how to work the equipment when I started and I taught myself the rest when the girls who were supposed to teach me didn't show up," Baubie laughs.

Baubie says he enjoys the job, which pays minimum wage and offers him a variety of sports to shoot each week during the sports season. He admits that he wasn't much of a sports fan before, but has found that his interest in athletics has grown.

"I enjoy it. It's not a bad way to spend a couple of nights a week. Basketball is the hardest because there's a lot of back and forth action. And hockey isn't difficult... just cold," Baubie says.

He adds that he does his best taping jobs when he "watches" a game from a coaches' perspective.

"Oh, sometimes the coaches get angry when the cameras miss a play or two, but for the most part, they're usually in good spirits about the whole thing," Gauerke says. "They know that this is a learning experience for the kids who do the taping, too. What come of it is a better dialog between the coaches and the kids when the coaches get involved and communicate what they want on the tape."

South High varsity basketball coach George Petrouleas is another "one picture is worth 1,000 words" club member. His team watches a tape of each opponent before game day and all of South's basketball statistics are verified by the videotape.

"It's an excellent teaching tool. I think it reinforces the positive and lets a youngster see the negative aspects of his game in a learning situation. It's one thing to tell them what the problem is and another when they can see it themselves."

"The tape doesn't lie," Petrouleas says.

"Wherever you have a sport where motor skills are emphasized, videotaping is important because you can stop it, back up, replay something to point out what an athlete's body is doing. It's also invaluable within the team concept in showing how set plays work, what a defense is doing, etc."

"I don't know what I'd do without it," Petrouleas says.

But some coaches and teams are doing perfectly well without it. University Liggett School doesn't use videotapes on soccer anymore or since it dropped football. Athletic director and coach Bob Wood says the problem was time.

"Oh, it's a fabulous teacher, but we just didn't find that we had the time to fit it into the schedule. It's important for the kids and the coach to go over the films together and it was just too time-consuming for use here at ULS," Wood says.

North varsity soccer coach Guido Regelbrugge rarely uses videotapes with his girls and boys teams.

"Occasionally I'll look at a segment or two with the kids, or to use it to practice a specific play or to look at a certain skill, but I really don't like it," Regel-

PENGUINS-FLYERS

The Penguins concluded an outstanding season with a 3-1 win over the Flyers. B-liner Shane Penczak opened the scoring with his 11th goal of the year on a breakaway. A-liner Justin Braun notched his 22nd of the year on passes from Dave Ferguson and George Christensen and C-liner Mike Weyhing added his 11th goal of the season. Kenny McIntyre played another strong game in goal behind the strong play of D. Gracey, J. McMillan, T. Waldron, M. Champbell, B. Faber, J. Romine and B. Kuhar. Todd Dunlap scored from Brad Klein for the Flyers. Coach Denny Campbell was voted No. 1 star by his Penguin team for leading the squad to a 23-8-1 season and a play-off record of 5-2.

Squiri Division

FLYERS-BLACKHAWKS

The Flyers earned a spot in the finals with a 5-0 win over the Hawks in first round tournament action. Kristian Hoglund opened the scoring on assists from Robby Wiczorkowski and Andre Emery. Matt Spicer scored twice in the second period — with Robby W. assisting on one — and in the third period, Hoglund scored his second goal, assisted by Danny Bombich and Tom Best. Bombich closed the scoring from Peter Antonenko. Goalie Geoff Miller earned the shutout, making five stops on Pitters and Gracey. Perkins played well for the Black Hawks, who faced a number of power plays. Also playing well were the Flyers' Robert Cardillo, Mike Gandelot, Mike Ugval, Gary Olson, Jacon Chevalier and Scotty Wiczorkowski.

RED WINGS-BLUES

The Wings beat the Blues, 2-1. Joe Sucher opened the Blues' scoring in the first period, before Chris Crain scored from Geoff Everham. Crain notched the winning goal for the Wings in the third period, J.P. Sweda and Teddy Hanawalt assisting. Tommy Lee, Tony Marl, Amy Kendall and Alex Olmstead played well, as did goalies Nate Ericksen and Chris Eldridge.

RED WINGS-FLYERS

The first-half champion Flyers faced the second-half champion Red Wings in the Squiri Division championship, with the Wings emerging as the 1985 Squiri Division titlists, 2-1.

The game was dominated by excellent defensive plays and after a scoreless first period, the Flyers opened the scoring. Olmstead tied it for the Wings from Jay Berger and Kip Gotfredson; then Berger scored the winning goal in the third period from Olmstead. Goalie Ericksen got the help he needed from the defensive pairings of Kendall, Hanawalt, Gary Corona and Everham. The lines of Lee, Sweda and Keith Crain and of Marl, John Wise and Peter Spivak, contributed to the game with excellent forechecking and backchecking.

Lance Gotfredson coached the Wings; Gary Berger was assistant coach.

LEAFS-NORTH STARS

The Leafs kept on rolling in the playoffs with a 1-0 win over the Stars. George Petersmarck scored the only goal of the game on passes from Juan Ganum and Kevin Kirchner. Brian Dennis was excellent in goal getting the shutout. John McGlone, Vince Palazzolo and Danny Ritter skated well. North Stars Jack McSorley, Derek Smith, Brad Kimmel and Brad Hea played well.

LEAFS-BLACK HAWKS

The Leafs capped an exciting playoff series with a 7-2 win over the Hawks in the championship game. Scott Nesom, Palazzolo (two), Scott Partridge, Jeff Osborne and Petersmarck (two) scored for the Leafs. Earning assists were McGlone, Nesom, Osborne (two), Ritter and Petersmarck. Gideon Redding, Ben Braun and Ganum turned in great games in support of goalie Dennis. Black Hawks' goals came from Scott Soule and Gabe Benvenuto, with assists to B. Wilson and D. Chute.

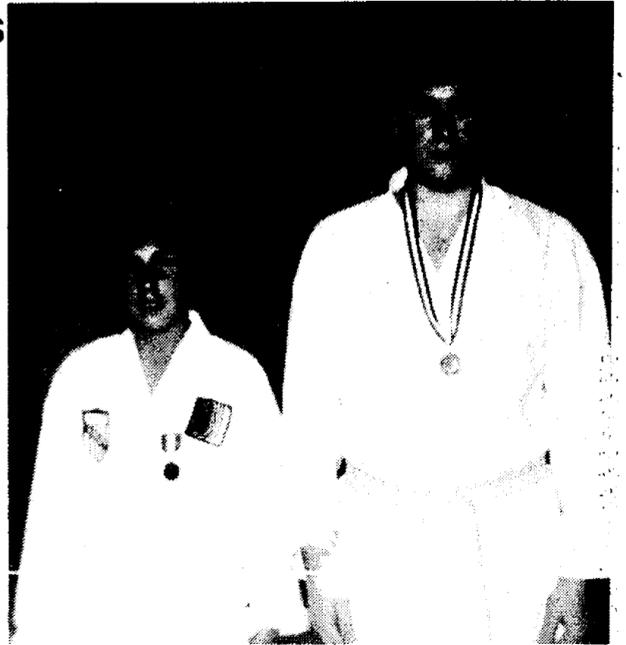

Club produces A.A.U. winners

The First Annual Muskegon National A.A.U. Winter Games held Feb. 24, produced two winners from the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club's Karate Program. They are Scott Sowinski, bronze medal winner, June Division along with Vince Rohr, silver medal winner, Adult Division.

Their instructor, Jeff Seibenick, Secretary/Treasurer of the Michigan A.A.U. Karate Association, heads the karate program at the Neighborhood Club. The program recently joined the National Amateur Athletic Union along with five other major karate systems in Michigan for the purpose of gaining entry into the Olympics.

Other A.A.U. events that took place besides karate were luge, wrestling, biathlon and cross country skiing.

Currently, the National A.A.U. Committee is working with the International Olympic Committee to have karate accepted as a sport in the Olympics.

Scott Sowinski and Vince Rohr, karate winners of the A.A.U. Winter Games in Muskegon from the Neighborhood Club.

ULMS icers place in tournament

The University Liggett Middle School Bantam hockey team ended its season on March 2 by taking the consolation trophy of the Bantam Division in the Fellowship Cup Hockey Tournament.

The Knights had not had a winning season coming into the tournament, finishing with a 0-16-1 record. The round robin format of the tournament had the Knights facing off against three opponents which had defeated them in the regular season, and it seemed unlikely that they would be able to defend the championship. However, ULMS saved its best hockey until the tournament, losing its first game to the Grosse Pointe Nordiques by only one goal scored with 26 seconds remaining.

In the second game of the tournament the Knights took the Grosse Pointe Whalers to the wire before losing, 4-3. The team then faced its strongest opponent, the St. Clair Shores Hawks and with a stellar performance by goaltender Matt Kreig and four goals by Andrew Lightbody, skated to a 7-4 win. In the consolation finals ULMS faced the same Hawk team it had defeated the night before, winning, 3-1 to end the season on a positive note.

According to Coach Jim Kosak, "The boys played their hearts out. I'm extremely proud of their growth this season."

The Bantams were led by Lightbody, last year's leading scorer, and John Bellamy. After being converted to a defenseman early in the year, Lightbody led the team with his bruising body checks and inspired defensive play. Bellamy matured as the season progressed, finishing with several key goals in the last five games of the year. Aside from Lightbody, the defense was made up of Andrew Joel, Charlie Goodyear and Steve Vorhees. The development of all four players helped to lower the goals-against average over the course of the season. Goaltender Matt Kreig was the most improved player, finishing only his second year in goal with a 5.24 goals-against average and an 80 percent save percentage.

The forward lines were composed of Bellamy, Bob Scoville and John Southall, the most productive line by season's end; Steward McLaren, Kamran Jafri, and Gene Gargaro, a hard working group which showed a great deal of growth through the year; and Whitney Stroh, Steve Gove, and Bert Paul.

Peewees are 3rd

The ULMS Pee Wee hockey team's record of 3-17-1 for the year is deceptive, as it does not reflect the excellent progress the boys made. The group that took the ice in November bore no resemblance to the team that capped off the season with a third-place finish in the Fellowship Cup tournament by defeating the Grosse Pointe North Stars.

Jason Bucko was the leader on offense, notching 11 goals and six assists, despite missing six weeks of play for an injury. Chris Paul assumed the goaltending duties and anchored the defense, which improved steadily throughout the season.

In the tournament, Coach Ford Gardner's squad began play by beating the North Stars, 4-2, but lost to the Grosse Pointe Maple Leafs, 6-0, in the next game. The Knights rallied in the next game, dropping a hard-fought 5-2 decision to the St. Clair Shores Spartans, who previously had beaten the Knights, 7-2 and 12-0. ULMS then finished the season on a high note with a thrilling 4-3 win over the North Stars to gain third place.

Grosse Pointe soccer players Amelia Dugan and June Langs are among Michigan girls chosen for the 1985 Michigan State Select Soccer Team, according to the December newsletter from the Michigan State Soccer Association.

Dugan, an All-State soccer selection from North High, was named to the girls' under 18 squad. Langs, who plays for South High, was named an alternate on that team. Both girls are members of the same team in the Bonanza League's under 18 Premier Division. That team finished second in the league and second in the State Cup Tournament last year. Langs and Dugan will return to play for their South and North squads this spring; both the teams are highly rated in the pre-season.

GPD wins Squiri Minor hockey crown

GPD won the Michigan National League Squiri Minor Championship and the unofficial Squiri Minor state crown last weekend at Melvindale Arena by defeating Michigan Dynamo in a two-game, total-goals series.

In the evenly-played series, GPD outscored Dynamo by a single goal, 5-4, for the championship. Spectators were entertained by the play of the two well-coached teams in a series that went down to the final buzzer of the second game.

GPB outlasted Dynamo in the first game, 4-3. Unlike the previous meetings between the two teams that were characterized by close checking, this game featured a number of great scoring chances by both squads. GPD took control at the opening faceoff and after missing an excellent scoring opportunity, Mike Klobuchar gave Grosse Pointe the lead when he converted Brandon Fuzi's pass at the 48 second mark.

Dynamo tied the game just 10 seconds later when center Bobby Hayes won the faceoff, split the defense and put the puck past the GPD goalie. Dynamo then took the lead before the end of the first period on a goal by Jason Collins, who skated the puck out of the corner and beat GPD.

GPD came back with two goals in the second period. Marcel Chagnon tied the score at 2:55 of the stanza with a high shot after carrying the puck into the zone himself. Klobuchar put GPD ahead to stay two minutes later with his second goal, this one from Fuzi and Kevin Brennan.

The contest appeared to be over midway through the third period when Fuzi, assisted by Klobuchar and Brennan, put GPD up by two goals with less than four minutes left. But the feisty Dynamo squad refused to give up, scoring again in the final minute. Tony Harris slid the puck past a GPD defenseman to Brad Cook, who tapped the puck into the net. Dynamo then pulled its goalie for the rest of the game, but couldn't tie the score.

That goal in the last minute of play was important since it cut GPD's margin of victory in the first game to a single goal. If Dynamo could win the series' second game by one goal, the winner of the series would be decided by a sudden death overtime period, with every shot representing a potential tournament winner.

THE SECOND GAME between the teams was a defensive struggle which ended in a 1-1 tie. Both goalies played well, with GPD's Mark Tapp stopping 19 shots and Dynamo's J.J. Burton saving 16.

Dynamo opened the scoring with a disputed goal midway through the first period. Cook took a pass from Hayes and skated in alone on Tapp. He shot into the goalie's pads and the referee ruled that the puck crossed the goal line. But GPD's Brennan tied the game and closed out the scoring early in the second period when he blasted a shot from the slot past the Dynamo goalie. Fuzi drew an assist on the play.

Both teams played aggressively the rest of the way. A number of penalties were called against GPD, especially in the early going, but GPD's defense of Joey Provenzano, Sean Lancaster, Kyle Cook and Brandon Stinnett held on.

GPD was coached by Kerry Rose, Chuck Bozniak and Tim Smith and sponsored by Emmet Tracy.

Hunt Club hosts Olympic-style show

For the first time in 11 years, the Mini-Prix class will highlight the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club's Mini-Prix and Jumper Show, Saturday, March 23, beginning at 1 p.m.

Similar to the Olympics' Grand Prix event, the Mini-Prix's course includes tight turns and fences up to 4 feet, 9 inches. Judging is based on speed and clearance of jumps.

Over 35 entries from Michigan, Ohio and Ontario will be competing for a purse of over $1,000. There are five classes of competition: Schooling Jumper, Low Jumper, Junior/Amateur Jumper, Open Jumper and Mini-Prix.

Each of the classes will be governed and judged by the rules and specifications of the American Horse Show Association.

This is the last in a series of Mini-Prix; the other two were at Haverhill Farm and Bloomfield Open Hunt. The Michigan Hunter Jumper Association is sponsoring a $500 Leading Rider Award for the three shows.

Speed and elevation will be the horses' concern at the Mini-Prix and Jumper Show, Saturday, March 23 at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

Admission for this equestrian event is $3 and $1.50 for students and senior citizens. The GPHC is located at 655 Cook Rd., Grosse Pointe Woods. For further information call 881-1010.

Strong steelhead season predicted

Good natural reproduction and increased plantings should make the spring steelhead season a repeat of 1984, when catches were the best in a decade, reports the AAA Michigan.

Most state fishery biologists contacted by AAA expect results to equal last year. However, a significant number — at Clare, Imlay City, Roscommon, Plainwell and Escanaba — predict generally better results for 1985 in their areas.

Peak runs are expected in early to mid-April in West Michigan, early April to mid-May in East Michigan, early April in Southeast Michigan and late April to mid-May in the Upper Peninsula.

More than 1.7 million steelhead were planted by the Department of Natural Resources in 1983, a 13 percent increase over 1982. Lake Michigan received 485,000 yearlings and 850,000 fall fingerlings two years ago. About 210,000 yearlings and 150,000 fall fingerlings were planted in Lake Huron. Lake Superior received 85,000 yearlings in 1983 and 90,000 more yearlings were planted in the Huron River at Flat Rock and in St. Clair County rivers in Southeast Michigan.

Steelhead planted in 1983 now should weigh between 2 1/2 to 5 pounds. D.N.R. officials said the 1982 plants would range from 6 to 9 pounds. Four-year-old steelhead generally should vary from 9 to 12 pounds.

The 1985 AAA Steelhead Guide lists 43 Michigan rivers and streams where the best steelhead fishing can be expected:

In West Michigan, the Muskegon, St. Joseph and Big and Little Manistee rivers are ranked as the best for steelhead fishing. The east branch of the Au Gres River and the Au Sable River should be the top spots for East Michigan fishermen. Most Thumb area steelheading is done from banks and piers.

Best steelhead results for fishermen in southeast Michigan should be trolling on the St. Clair River while the Huron River should provide best results for those wading or along the shore.

Steelhead action in the U.P. will be strong on the Big Cedar and Manistique rivers along Lake Michigan; the Huron, Rock and Sucker rivers off Lake Superior, and the Carp River along Lake Huron.

In spring, stream fishermen who prefer using bait should find good results from salmon eggs or roe from a captured steelhead. Tuck the eggs into a piece of cheesecloth or old nylon stocking to make a sack one-half inch in diameter. Place the little bag, called a spawn bag, on a hook and allow it to bump along the bottom, either by casting upstream or by letting it drift down into the upper end of likely looking holes.

Like their cousins the brook trout, steelhead like deep holes, dark pockets under stream banks and secret little places behind logs or under stumps or rock ledges. Good catches also can be found on spawning beds with spawn bags, spinners or flies.

Sportsmen should check specific rules for individual rivers in the 1985-86 Michigan Fishing Guide because some upstream limits and other specifics may have changed since last season. Some rivers are open all year while others open April 1 or April 27, the start of the general trout season. The guide is free when purchasing a new fishing license.

Sports Week

Despite all the unanswered questions, my reporter's heart yearns for the opportunity to test uncharted (for me, silly) waters. I'd probably have the time of my life, I assured myself. It would be an experience that I'd love, have a great time writing about and one I'd never forget.

I just about had myself convinced when I saw a magazine advertisement for deck shoes. The picture showed a sailboat crew all on one side of the boat, straining and pulling on ropes (I told you I didn't know anything about it). The caption said something about how sailing was not for the squeamish, or the silly, I can't remember which.

Then I kept getting weird responses from people I told. They ranged from "YOU, in the Mackinac Race?" to "You've got to be kidding!" to "Well, it's been nice knowing you" to just a simple bellylaugh.

So, when I waver a bit in my firm resolve to participate in this race, I just keep telling myself that those courageous sailors who sailed in the first race 61 years ago probably weren't any smarter than I. And they didn't have Dramamine, either. And that I'll probably draw a great boat, a fantastic, understanding crew and some terrific weather.

Just don't go putting my name on any awards yet.

They've gone video at NH, SH

"Psychologically, I don't think it's good. Kids basically don't look as good on film as they think they did on the field. They watch the tape and say 'Oh, did I do that?'. I think it's too discouraging.

"And generally speaking, soccer doesn't lend itself well to proper taping. It's a game of action and immediate reaction and unless you know the game very well, it can be difficult to anticipate where the action will be next," Regelbrugge adds.

"If I had to choose, I'd much rather get right out there on the field and show the kids what I want — and give them the positive reinforcement they need — rather than have them watch it on tape."

Most Pointe coaches, though, agree that the videotaping system is essential to their preparation. The proof is in the fact that at both schools, the cameras start whirring in August and don't stop until the end of spring sports the next June.

"I just can't say enough about how valuable it is to our program. I see that when I watch the process. The first time the kids see themselves on tape, its entertainment, a big show. Then they are taught to watch themselves... and that's when they learn," Gauerke says.

Coping with cancer course offered

A patient education program designed to help people seek strengths and resources to cope with cancer and its therapies is being offered at Saint John Hospital through the efforts of American Cancer Society volunteers.

The "I Can Cope" program series, developed at North Memorial Medical Center, Minnesota, will be presented on eight consecutive Tuesdays, April 9 through May 28 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the cafeteria at the hospital located at 22101 Moross Road.

The objectives of the patient education classes are three-fold; to increase the cancer patient's knowledge of the disease, to increase the cancer patient's control over his/her life, and to decrease the anxiety the cancer patient feels about the disease.

The program will be led by Diane K. Nicodemi, B.S., I Can Cope coordinator, and Camille C. Klimecki,

M.A., manager, Patient Education at Saint John Hospital.

The weekly class sessions help participants increase their knowledge about physical anatomy, cancer, potential health problems that may arise, nutrition, communication skills, stress awareness, physical fitness, utilizing community resources — and the essential role patients play in their own treatment.

Bon Secours offers alternative plan

Bon Secours Hospital recently became a participating member of Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Michigan's new health care delivery system known as TRUST.

TRUST stands for The Responsible Use System of Treatment. It is an alternative health benefit plan offered to employees of General Motors, where it is called Preferred Care.

Cancer patients and family members can register for the course by calling the Patient Education Department at 343-3870. There is no fee but class size is limited and participants are expected to attend every class session. Persons interested in courses held at other tri-county locations should inquire at the American Cancer Society by calling 425-6830.

Bon Secours participation is part of a trend toward forming preferred provider organizations designed to help control health care costs. As employers attempt to reduce their health care costs, TRUST and other PPOs are becoming more widely available alternatives to traditional health care benefits.

QUALITY SERVICE AND TERRIFIC LANDSCAPING OPPORTUNITIES ARE AVAILABLE NOW!

Community education classes start April 15

Among the more than 200 sections of leisure-time, non-credit classes for adults scheduled by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe public school system for the term beginning April 15 are 56 new-for-spring-and-summer offerings.

Interested in giving your home a fresher look? You might wish to consider Be Your Own Interior Designer. Want to know more about bicycling? Take Re-inventing the Wheel. If you wish to improve your grasp of today's computer explosion, you might consider Data Base Management with Base II. If you have been wondering about that "world language," you might enroll in Esperanto.

If your goal is a better understanding of business affairs, you might consider enrolling in How to Read the Financial News. If your local community holds a bit of fascination for you, you might wish to register for Grosse Pointe History: An Introduction. And, if you are planning to attend the opera "Aida" at the Michigan Opera Theatre on April 16, why not take a single-session class called Verdi's "Aida" on April 15?

Parents may be drawn to such new-for-spring offerings as Get Your Kids to Clean Their Rooms (And Other Impossible Tasks), Help Your Learning Disabled Child, How to Entertain a (Pre-School or Kindergarten) Child, and Piano — for Parents of Pre-Schoolers.

Residents interested in improving their sewing skills can enroll for Sew a Bathing Suit, Sew a Wrap Skirt, and Sew Summer Place-mats. Those who want to enhance in improving their knowledge of astronomy are directed to three single-session classes: An Introduction to Celestial Navigation, An Introduction to Observing the Sky and Photographing the Night Sky. In addition, the popular public shows presented by planetarium director Tim Skonieczny will continue with Cosmic Mysteries.

Those with an appetite for art history may wish to consider two options by local residents and art historian June Nelson. They are Adventures in Understanding Art: The Collection of Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford. This will be held at the Lakeside Ford estate and includes lunch in the dining room. In addition, Mrs. Nelson will present a six-part program, Adventures in Understanding Painting: The Fabulous 17th Century.

The roster of new-for-spring-and-summer cooking classes includes three offered by Grosse Pointe's own acclaimed master cooking teacher, Charity Sucek. They are The Perfect Leg of Lamb, Spring and Summer Soups, and A Spring Dinner Menu.

Other new culinary classes are Cold Soups for Summer, Cookie Favorites for Summer Time, Dim-Sum Cooking, Fruit Tarts, Make Bread in Your Food Processor, Literary Desserts, Meringues, Naturally Good Desserts, Plan a Seafood Dinner, Quick Breads and Muffins, Salad Meals for Summer, Spinach Pie and Tex-Mex Cooking

Detroit area photographer Joe Messana will present Architecture and the Related Arts, Part II.

If self improvement is a goal, the Department of Community Education offers a number of options for spring and summer. They include such offerings as Color Psychology, Coping with the Blues, Dealing with differences in People, The Family Response to Alcohol and Alcoholism, Improve Your Relationships, Improving Your Emotional I.Q., Non-Verbal Behavior, Perfectionism: Its Cause and Cure, Problem-Solving Strategies and Procrastination: How to Overcome It.

Other new offerings are a seminar, Professionalism in Business, Tips for Healthy You, Yoga: An Intensive Introduction, Religions of the World: An Overview, "Over 30" Skin Care, and Teens through 20's — Looking Good Skin Care, Crocheting, Painting: Acrylics, and Pottery with Pewabic Society, Inc.

Full details on the new-for-spring-and-summer offerings will be found in the flyer mailed to all residents in the school district around April 1.

Call 343-2178 for further information.

Heat tapes can cause fire

Homeowners and mobile home residents who use electric heat tapes to prevent exposed water pipes from freezing are being cautioned by government safety experts to inspect the tapes for possible fire hazards.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, more than 500 house fires in the last seven years are believed to have been caused by electric heat tapes. Also known as pipe heating cables, heat tapes consist of two wires enclosed in molded plastic insulation which emit heat due to electrical current passing through the wires when the cable is plugged into an outlet. The tapes are commonly used in crawl spaces and in the substructure of homes and mobile homes, and are usually energized after the first freezing temperatures. Some heat tapes are plugged in year-round, and a thermostat located in the power supply cord of the heat tape turns on the tape whenever the outdoor temperature approaches freezing.

CPSC reports that improper installation by consumers is a frequent cause of home fires. In one study of 35 fires, agency investigators learned that 40 percent of the heat tapes were "overwrapped," that is, the tape was wrapped over itself when the consumer installed the tape around the pipe.

The safety agency offered the following suggestions for consumers:

• Inspect all heat tapes now or have a licensed electrician check for proper installation or deteriorated electrical insulation. Refer to any installation instructions that accompanied the heat tape when you bought it.

• If you are purchasing new heat tapes or cables, know the diameter of the pipe you are protecting as well as the length of pipe to be protected. Manufacturers normally suggest specific lengths of tape for certain pipe lengths and the diameter of the pipe. Match your specific needs to the heat tape you are buying.

• Older heat tapes should be checked for cracks in the plastic insulation or bare wires; in such cases, replace the heat tape immediately.

• Not all heat tapes may be used in plastic pipes; check to make certain the heat tape you are using is recommended specifically for the plastic pipe in question.

• Finally, manufacturers emphasize that heat should never be used over the thermal insulation on a pipe or near flammable objects. Inspect previously installed tapes to make certain these fire hazards do not exist in your home.

THE BEST JAGUAR EVER BUILT.
Breeding tells. While trends in automotive design come and go, the 1985 Jaguar XJ6 remains defiantly true to its heritage: lithe, graceful and utterly distinctive.

It is the nature of automotive styling to be transient. While fashions have come and gone, and a dozen other designs have come and gone, the Jaguar XJ6 has remained the greatest cars of their time. It is a car that has been built to last. It is a car that has been built to last. It is a car that has been built to last.
