Souper idea

Looks like it's almost that time again. Time to have a bash and aid the needy at the Capuchin Souper Summer Celebration IV, once again sponsored by the Edmund T. and R. Lowell Ahee Jewelers, in conjunction with the Premier Center.

The lift-off is at 8 p.m. Friday, July 26, at the Center, located at 33970 Van Dyke, Sterling Heights.

The evening includes free admission, complimentary snacks, a cash bar and live entertainment from the Jerry Ross Band.

If that's not enough, the Ahees are again donating 15 prizes worth more than $15,000, including a first prize two carat diamond ring checking in at $6,500.

One hundred percent of the proceeds go to the Capuchin Community Center to aid in their ministry to the needy of Detroit.

The first year the benefit began, the Ahees turned $5,000 over to the kitchen. Last year the total was $18,000. This year the sky seems to be the limit. Reports say ticket proceeds are over $40,000 and the Ahees hope the final figure will be around $70,000.

They can make it with our help.

Unloading it all

There's a ton of stuff on my desk and it's just about time to clean it all up. Here goes.

First, congratulations to Caron and Jeff Catana, who might consider the Olympics after cleaning up the competition in national judo contests they've been entering this summer.

Both kids are students at St. Paul's School and are the children of Jerry and Darlene Catana. Jerry, you might remember, is an avid beekeeper and duck decoy collector who's been the subject of two stories here at the News.

Daughter Caron, 12, has won a lumber of local and state tournaments and recently took a gold medal in her age category at the Junior Olympics held recently at Colorado Springs. She also won another gold medal in a tourney held in Reno, Nevada over the July 4 holiday.

Brother Jeff, 8, who's been studying judo since he was four, won a sixth-place award in Colorado and took a sixth in Reno. He promises to be a force to be reckoned with in the next few years.

Caron and Jeff practice together. I'll bet the arguments over what to watch on the tube at the Catana home are doozies!

Hip flicks pix

As you may have noticed, the Grosse Pointe News has started an entertainment section. Though it's small now, we're hoping it'll grow as time goes by.

I had the honor of writing our first movie review. I don't want to say I was "up" for the task, but I felt like I was starring in a movie instead. One titled "Rambeau: First Row."

The first flick I screened was "Hack to the Future" and I gave it a pretty good rating. The first movie I made when the other papers came out was to check what other reviewers had to say about the movie.

I'm happy to report that nobody screwed up and disagreed with my opinions.

This week Michael Andrzejczyk reviews "Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome." Catch it in Section C of the Grosse Pointe News.

Red pop for me

In case you didn't know it, this Saturday is Faygo Day at the Detroit Zoo. Bring along three Faygo bottle caps and you can get in free.

Zoo guests can enjoy the renovated penguinarium, stroll the grounds or attend the "Incredible Magical Zoo Review" featuring Royal Oak magician Don Jones at 11:30 a.m. or 1:30 or 3:30 p.m.

Plan to subdivide Ranger estate unveiled

By Pat Paholsky

A preliminary plan to develop a 7.63-acre parcel of lakefront property was presented to the Grosse Pointe City Council Monday night. It calls for the demolition of the 12,000-square-foot house, known as the Ranger or Dodge estate, and the subdividing of the land into 19 parcels.

Representatives of The Blake Company, an investment real estate business in the Woods, informally discussed what was called a pre-preliminary plat of the subdivision. The property, located at 17840 E. Jefferson, adjoins the Rose Terrace Subdivision on the east boundary and the Island Lane Subdivision on the west.

Lot sizes would range from between 12,000 square feet to about 20,000 square feet. Prices for the homes would run from $250,000 to $525,000.

Three other buildings on the property — a carriage house, a pool house and a boat house — were described as completely dilapidated. They would also be scheduled for removal.

The developers said, however, that a major consideration is to save as many of the trees as possible. According to a written presentation, there are 96 trees more than six feet in trunk diameter and the developers said only three trees would be lost with their plan.

Another consideration is the formal stone balustrade and wall in the garden area which is reported to be in excellent condition. It would be retained, according to the report, because of its "significant architectural merit which could not be duplicated today."

The developers said they would also retain the iron fence on the property along Jefferson Avenue, except for an opening for a road. The road, a curving boulevard 50 feet wide, would lead from Jefferson to a cul-de-sac near the four lakefront lots. There would be another private road that would provide access to four lots.

Christopher Blake, vice president, said the company would not sell vacant lots. "It's our desire to sell a package to the buyer," he said, adding that the company would control the architectural design and employ the builder.

The Blake Company owns 439

rental units in Harper Woods, St. Clair Shores, East Detroit, Fraser and Sterling Heights. The company is currently developing Windwood Pointe, an $8.5 million 68-unit condominium project on Jefferson Avenue in St. Clair Shores.

Representatives said they hoped to get approval of the preliminary plat in August and final approval six months after that. The buildings would be scheduled for demolition following preliminary approval.

The city council scheduled a field trip of the property for Saturday morning.

Youth plan welcomed, but not embraced

The problem is, A will do it if B, C, D, E and F go along and B will do it if A, C, D, E and F agree, and so on. That's the problem Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider is encountering in her travels to the various councils and boards in the Pointes seeking funding for a program to help Grosse Pointe youngsters who are in trouble with the law.

The program would involve youngsters, ages 7 to 16, who are neither sent to juvenile court nor are their problems resolved by parents or police.

"We know there are a group of children who are not being made answerable to things," the judge said, describing the program as early intervention.

Adding that it would cost more than any individual city could afford, she said it could be implemented if all five Pointes and the school system shared the cost. The cost, set at $55,000, would serve 100 youths a year. The children would be referred to the program by the police, schools or themselves.

After listening to the presentation Monday, the Grosse Pointe City Council agreed to set up a committee to study the proposal and come back with a recommendation in September.

The Shores, at its last meeting, also appointed a committee to study the proposal and the matter is due back on the agenda July 23.

The first presentation was made to the Farms council May 20. The Farms did not reach a decision on the program then, but informally consented to participate if the other communities did. This requires supporters to return to the Farms for a firm motion of support after all of the other communities have discussed it.

On July 8, the school board authorized the expenditure of up to $12,000 for 1985-86 to support the program. The approval was contingent upon the participation of all of the Pointes, and only if they agreed to fund the program at the $55,000 level requested by Schneider. Financing is determined on a per capita basis and ranges from a high of $20,000 for the Woods down to $3,300 for the Shores.

The Woods last month approved a similar motion. With 36 percent of the area's population, the Woods has been asked to contribute $20,126 per year to the program. The council agreed to support the project financially if the remainder of the Pointes also participate.

The proposal will be presented to the Park council July 29.

Backers of the proposal originally hoped to gain approval by all five communities and the school district by the end of July so that Suzanne O'Shea, chief probation officer of the Grosse Pointe Probation Department, would have time to organize a program by the beginning of the school year.

Park Councilman Vernon Ausherman, who is sponsoring the proposal along with Judge Schneider, said "juvenile court downtown is known as a revolving door. We are hoping to address some of the problems here. We feel there's a need in the community."

Mr. Bufo's the name and teaching's the game. Mr. Bufo, an African toad, may be one ugly critter, but he's certainly caught the eye of 8-year-old Carrie Reuther who was a participant in the Adventure Day Camp experience at Barnes School recently. Co-sponsored by the Department of Community Education and the Living Science Foundation, the camp gave children a chance to study animals, plus try their skill at computers, music and art. Space running out at incinerator

By Nancy Parmenter

Out of sight, out of mind. Grosse Pointe residents have for years had the luxury of seeing their garbage vanish (some without even the effort of carrying it out to the curb). A quick trip up 1-94 to the maw of the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority incinerator, and last week's shrimp is only a memory.

In the 13 years since it burned its first ton of garbage, the incinerator has been nearly completely rebuilt. Raising the stack and installing electrostatic precipitators helped the facility meet state air pollution standards in the '70s. During the last two winters, the two furnaces were rebuilt, one at a time. The second came on line again in April.

But the incinerator could be reaching its capacity. General Manager Edwin Whedon gives it about five years before the population outgrows the incinerator's ability to keep up.

"Right now, we envision no problem population-wise until at least 1990, maybe beyond," Whedon said. "We think we can handle the foreseeable growth in Clinton."

The authority accepts outside tonnage from private contractors to even out the load differential between winter and summer. Because of shrub and lawn clippings, the May-June input is double the amount received in February. Authority officials cite the outside tonnage as evidence that the incinerator still has ample capacity.

But the summer load is already too large for the facility to handle. "We do have a problem with wet grass," Whedon said. "Bags of grass don't burn all that good." Although under optimum conditions, five percent of the incinerator's volume ends up at a landfill, during the summer, that percentage shoots up, he said.

Authority Chairman Ledyard Mitchell Jr. of the Farms thinks Whedon's estimate of five years until overload is too short.

"The pounds per capita per day has grown faster than projected," he conceded, "but we've also increased the efficiency of the furnaces by 25 percent." Mitchell said, adding that the company would the authority to increase burning from eight tons per hour to 12 or 13.

Mitchell estimates that the facility will not reach capacity for 10 to 15 years. "It depends on how you read the curve on pounds per capita per day," he said. "Ed (Whedon) thinks this increase will continue, but I don't see where it can. We're a pretty good register of prosperity — we're in a surge now."

As landfill problems reached a critical point in Macomb County last year, the spotlight has been on the Grosse Pointes-Clinton incinerator. Three community consortiums and the county itself have been trying to put together incinerator packages. Several of them have apparently approached the authority.

Board considers goals for 1985-86

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Superintendent John Whritner presented the Board of Education with seven possible topics to be considered as goals for the coming school year, topics gleaned from his meetings earlier this year with administrators, staff, parents and students.

Although they have yet to be put in "goal language" and appear to be simple, the seven that have been chosen have long-range implications for the school system.

Goals include passage of the millage election in 1986, developing a plan for telling the schools' story, revamping the district's staff evaluation procedures, a plan for staff development, ways to get staff involved in curriculum development, putting together a five-year plan for the school system and looking for ways to build on information from substance abuse workshops.

"We intentionally kept them to a small number; rather simple to carry out," Whritner said. "And yet, if we're successful with them, they will have a major impact on the system."

"I don't like creating goals for the sake of creating some additional paperwork," he added. "These have been kept very simple and hopefully very do-able."

There are still decisions that need to be made about the process by which each of the goals will be acted upon, Whritner said. There are even some more basic questions that need to be answered about some of the areas.

While few people mentioned the coming millage election as a goal possibility for the coming year, it needs to be one. Whritner said. How many years the millage is to be carried will help decide on the request for renewal or new millage, he added.

Related to the millage election is the district's need to tell its story, Whritner said. Passage of the millage request will likely be an outcome of how well the district gets its message out to the community.

While the first step in deciding how the district is going to tell its story is developing a plan, the system should look at finding out what the community at large thinks of the system, Whritner said.

"Right now, I have a very good flavor . . . of what some people think, but that's to a large degree an audience I have been talking to that is within the system," Whritner said. "We do need to look at some vehicles to find out what the wider audience is thinking about."

A large part of what the system will do to get its message across are things it has done in the past, Whritner said. The district will continue to work through its newsletters, the media and through the reactions of students to carry its message.

He has no delusions about what the system will discover when it goes to the community to find out what it thinks about schools.

"My guess is we will find concerns that are real, we will find some that are just out-and-out incorrect and we will just have to deal with that in different ways," Whritner said.

The telling of the system's story should not become a millage campaign program, Whritner said. "If we are truly successful in doing what I hope to do in (this) area, it will be an ongoing continuous part of our program," he added.

The best vehicle available is the individual school talking with each district it serves, but the district will probably need someone who can spend at least part of their day on public relations duties, Whritner said. No staff decision have been made in that area so far, he added.

Part of the goals of staff evaluation, staff development and curriculum development is the building of a process by which employees can get involved in the processes, Whritner said.

Some early steps were made last year by Dr. Joseph Spagnoli, deputy superintendent, who began meeting with a group of high school teachers, and later middle school teachers, to talk about curriculum matters, Whritner said. That process needs to be expanded to include elementary school staff as well, he added.

The district is working on the staff evaluation process right now, Whritner said. While a large part of the program will be the revamping of the evaluation procedures, part of it will switch emphasis to supervision.

"What I see as the real plus or advantage of any evaluation process is where we can get all staff dealing with the question of what makes improve! instruction," Whritner said. "I would like to see the focus of it shifting more to staff development and a way for working in a collegial relationship — administrators and teachers — to really zero in on what all of us can do to make instruction better."

"There's a slight semantic difference, but I see the focus shifting to supervision rather than evaluation," he added.

Staff evaluation, development and curriculum development will depend on the administration's efforts to get staff involved in the process, Whritner said.

Staff development takes on a more important role with the signing last week by Gov. James Blanchard of early retirement benefits for public school employees. While there will be some changes be-

Help a family member stop drinking

Brighton Hospital's next Community Education Program on Thursday, Aug. 8 will be of special interest to families who are concerned about a loved one's drinking and want to find out how to get help.

The topic, "Can We Help a Loved One to Stop Drinking?" begins at 7 p.m. with the showing of "Intervention," a film depicting how family members, acting as a team under professional guidance, can confront their loved one and insist that he or she obtain treatment.

The series is free. Brighton Hospital is located just off the I-96 freeway and is within an hour's drive of most communities in southeast Michigan.

For additional information and a free schedule of 1985 Community Education Programs, call the hospital at 227-1511, ext. 276.

State weighs effects of rulings

By Mike Andrzejczyk

State Education Department officials are still assessing the damage of two U.S. Supreme Court rulings that struck down as unconstitutional programs in Grand Rapids and New York City that sent public school teachers and federal money into public schools.

At stake are the state's Chapter One programs, which use federal money to provide extra programs for low-income students or those with special needs. Also involved may be the state's requirement that school children receive special education services from the public school districts in which they attend school, even if they don't attend public schools.

Splitting 5-4 on both cases, the courts ruled the programs violated the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment by unnecessarily entangling the public schools in the business of parochial schools.

The New York City case involved the public school's use of Chapter One money to pay public school teachers who teach in parochial schools in the city. The program has operated since 1966.

The Grand Rapids case involved shared time and community education programs that provided classes to non-public school students at public expense in classrooms leased from the non-public schools.

There are still a number of questions unanswered about the programs. When trustee Carl Anderson asked at Monday night's Grosse Pointe Board of Education meeting what effects the ruling would have, school officials had no answers.

Last school year, about 6,500 non-public school students throughout the state received instruction through Chapter One programs from 150 public school districts, according to Tom Farrell, assistant superintendent for public affairs for the state board of education. More than half the students were located in southeast Michigan, he added.

Chapter One programs may include instruction for students from low-income families in a variety of subjects, school officials said. In Wayne County, some Chapter One money goes to seven districts, including Grosse Pointe, to pay for special education services for developmental learning programs, according to the intermediate school district.

Grosse Pointe has two Chapter One programs in public schools, according to Dr. Claire Hunt, director of special education services. No non-public school receives the service, she added.

Although Chapter One money goes to school districts for the developmental learning programs, students in such programs invariably attend public schools, the intermediate school district said.

The local school district does provide special education services to non-public school students, however. According to the February edition of Emphasis, the public school system publication, 308 students from non-public schools were receiving services from the public school district. Help included use of teacher-consultants, social workers, speech correctionists and reading specialists, according to Emphasis. Non-public school students made up about 24 percent of the caseloads in the special education services department.

The easiest solution to the change would be for the non-public school students to receive Chapter One aid or auxiliary special services in the public schools or a neutral site, according to Farrell. "There's no question these students are entitled to these services," he said. "The court just said they can't receive them in non-public schools."

In the New York City case, the five justices, in the majority opinion, noted that the Chapter One statute allowed the district to provide programs for educationally deprived students, as long as they were from areas of high concentrations of low-income families and the program supplemented those in place.

In New York City, the programs included remedial reading, reading skills, remedial mathematics, English as a second language and guidance services which were carried out of public schools by school employees who volunteered to teach in the parochial schools.

The program allowed publicly paid instructors to teach classes composed exclusively of non-public school students in private school buildings, according to the court's majority opinion. The supervision system established by New York was meant to insure that no secular item intruded into the classroom while the public school teacher was holding classes, but that supervision resulted in excessive entanglement of the public school system with the parochial schools involved, the court said.

... Even where state aid to parochial institutions does not have the primary effect of advancing religion, the provision of such aid may nonetheless violate the Establishment Clause owing to the nature of the interaction of church and state in the administration of that aid," according to the majority opinion.

Previous court rulings have es-established criteria for deciding whether programs involve excessive entanglement of church and state as well as whether the classes involved take place in parochial schools where the atmosphere is pervasively sectarian, according to the court. The New York City program meets the criteria for excessive entanglement, the court decided.

In the Grand Rapids case, the court also split 5-4 in ruling the programs, discontinued in 1982, had the "primary and principal effect" of advancing religion, thus violating the First Amendment of the Constitution.

"Even the praiseworthy, secular purpose of providing for the education of school children cannot validate government aid to parochial schools when the aid has the effect of promoting a single religion or religion generally or when the aid unduly entangles the government in matters religious," the court decided.

Grand Rapids had adopted two programs in which classes for non-public school students were financed by the public school system, taught by public school teachers in classrooms leased from the non-public schools. Forty of the 41 schools involved in the cases were parochial schools, the court said.

The shared-time program in Grand Rapids offered supplementary classes to the core curriculum. The Community Education program offered a variety of classes taught by non-public school teachers at non-public schools. Classes were held at the end of the school day in space leased by public schools from the non-public schools.

In deciding the programs were unconstitutional, the majority said they promoted religion in the three ways: state-paid teachers may convert or overtly indoctrinate their students with secular ideas; the symbolic union of church and state in the program conveys state support for religion; and the programs subsidize the parochial schools by taking over part of the teaching responsibilities.

Dissenting opinions in both cases noted no instance of public school teachers trying to indoctrinate their students in secular matters. Also, the court was setting up a Catch-22 with its excessive entanglement provisions, requiring on one hand that programs be supervised, but that supervision itself is an entanglement.

Take one 8-year-old boy on a pretty fast bike, add some lazy seagulls sunning themselves on a parking lot and you can have a lot of fun. At least that's what Nathan Kuhl thinks. He's the two-wheeled terror of the seagull set who's doing his best to make sure these gulls at the Farms Pier Park do not have a nice day.

Parking law on snow-emergency routes to be considered by Farms council

The Farms council asked Police Chief Robert Ferber July 8 to work out details on a proposed nighttime parking ban on certain designated snow emergency routes. If the council can agree on the forthcoming proposal, the plan will be put into effect on a trial basis next winter.

Quoting former Superintendent of Public Services Pat Cosgrove on both sides of the issue, the council members disagreed on the potential effects of such a ban.

"It would inconvenience as many people as it would help," said Ferber. "In terms of my staffing, I think it won't work."

"In 1972, Cosgrove said a parking ban would be detrimental," said Mayor James Dingeman.

"This is 1985, and in this year's report, he favored it," said council member Nancy Waugaman, who had requested that the item appear on the agenda. "I raised the issue because of the public works report — he recommended it for purposes of snow removal. These people write reports and make recommendations and nobody listens to them."

"That report was written because of heavy snowfall on consecutive weekends — otherwise, it does as much harm as good," added City Manager Andrew Bremer.

But council member Joseph Fromm said he thought Ferber's recommendation of snow emergency routes on major thoroughfares has merit and should be developed.

The council asked Ferber to work on the plan, to be discussed with the new superintendent of public service when hired, and to bring it back to the council "long before snow falls."

If snow emergency routes are established, they will likely be along major thoroughfares such as Moran, Fisher and parts of Ridge, Ferber said. Creation of the routes would require an ordinance and four signs on each block. Snow emergencies are declared by the city and announced on radio and television.

Resident on porch, burglar in house

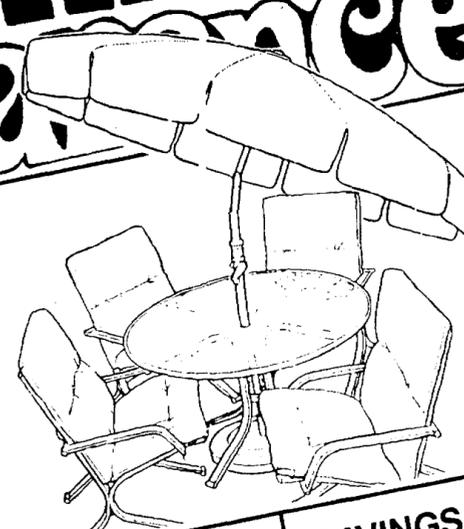

A Farms resident relaxing on the front porch of her Kerby Road home Sunday evening was shocked to discover that a burglar had broken into her house.

A neighbor across the street noticed a young man "sneaking up" to the house and alerted the resident, according to police reports. The two entered the house, surprising the youth, who ran through a rear bedroom and out to a screened porch, where he tore the screen and ran away. He jumped the fence and got away.

The homeowner's purse, containing cash, papers and a checkbook, was stolen from the kitchen.

Grosse Pointe Theatre presents awards

Grosse Pointe Theatre celebrated the closing of its 37th season July 13 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club with its annual Awards Dinner Dance. Gold statuettes, named "Clarence" after the first production done by the group 37 years ago, were awarded in technical and acting categories.

(chaired by Ruth Ellen Mayhall, vice president of Grosse Pointe Theatre, the evening was presided over by master and mistress of ceremonies Dennis Wickline and Mary Lou Britton Johnson Acting awards had been tabulated by Mayor Lorenzo Browning of the City of Grosse Pointe.

Awards went to Lois Bendler for the lead role in "Morning's At Seven" and to Cap Blood for his portrayal of Salieri in "Amadeus." Also receiving acting awards for "Amadeus" were Rob Maniscalco as Mozart and Douglas McClure. Additional winners for featured male and female roles in "Morning's at Seven" were Pat Villegas and Don Ross. Carol Purdon as Queen Agrava and Marcy Kazmirowski as the Flying Bird won acting Clarences for "Once Upon a Mattress."

Technical categories winning statuettes included Keith Sipos, musical director, and Marcy Kazmirowski and Virginia Large, make-up, from "Mame." Dorothy Kotcher was honored for tier set dressing in "The Butler Did It." Winners from "Amadeus" were John Guadagnoli, producer, Carol Purdon and Marie Boyle-Asmus, costumes, Dale Pegg for lighting, and Michael Trudell for sound. Additional awards for "Once Upon a Mattress" went to Producer Marie Devlin, Stage Manager Barbara Honey, Technical Director Arthur Thompson, set designers Jackie and Paula Di-Sante, Vocal Director Gene Shea, Choreographer Marcy Kazmirowski, and properties chairmen Gwenn Samuel and John Casey.

Voted best director for "Amadeus" a Barbara Bentley. Honored as Workers of the Year were Dorothy Kotcher and John Casey.

Following the passing of the gavel from outgoing President Michele Karl to President-elect Robert Montgomery, the season for 1985-86 was announced.

"A Chorus Line" will open the season Nov. 6-20 and 13-16. Only recently released for production outside of the professional theatre, "A Chorus Line" was originally conceived, choreographed and directed by Michael Bennett and is the longest running show to ever appear on Broadway. Book is by James Kirkwood and Nicholas Dange, with music by Marvin Hamlisch, and lyrics by Edward Kleban.

"The Royal Family" by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber will be the January production. It is a fond, hilarious, tender comedy about a mighty tribe of show folk.

The longest-running theatrical presentation in history, Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap," will be the third play presented by Grosse Pointe Theatre. Milan Stitt's melodrama, "The Runner Stumbles" is loosely based on a trial held in 1911 in a Northern Michigan town, and will be the fourth production of the season.

Leading the season is "Sugar," a musical with book by Peter Stone, music by Jule Styne and lyrics by Bob Merrill. Based on the screenplay "Some Like it Hot" by Billy Wilder and I.A.L. Diamond, this very Sunny play is the story of two young musicians who have witnessed the St. Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago and take refuge with an all-girl band heading for Florida.

Renewal applications for season tickets for Grosse Pointe Theatre's 1985-86 season will be mailed to present season ticket holders by mid-August. Applications for tickets by those not currently holding season tickets may be obtained by writing to Grosse Pointe Theatre at 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe 48236, or by calling 881-4004.

School board accepts bids for storage tank removal

The Board of Education Monday night, July 8, accepted bids for the removal of obsolete oil storage tanks from six schools and the central library.

The district will have the tanks removed at Barnes, Defer, Ferry, Kerby, Monteith and Pierce schools and the central library for about $26,600, school officials said. About $50,000 was allocated for the job.

The tanks are located under parking lots at the buildings. This school year, the tanks will be removed and the parking lots cold-patched. Next year, the lots will be repaired after the areas have been allowed to settle, school officials said.

The Michigan State Police have ordered the removal of the tanks, which once held heating oil before the schools converted to gas. The state police also rejected the district's request to remove the tanks piecemeal, to spread out the costs, school officials said.

The money not spent this year will probably go toward resurfacing the lots next year, bringing the total cost of the project near the $50,000 allocation, officials said.

Also Monday night, the board accepted a bid from PC's Limited for $13,870 to provide component parts for the high schools' IBM computers. The district had allocated $16,178 for the items.

The board also purchased 38 Commodore computers, disk drives and monitors for $23,061 from Haney's Computer Center Monday night. The district had budgeted $23,976 for the purchase.

Honors for special educators. Special Education Services Director Claire Hunt and Superintendent John Whitner pass out certificates of recognition to four special education personnel, from left, Lydia DeMeulemeester, Martha Clark, Carol Matyniak and Annette Zola, to mark Special Education Month. The Wayne County Parent Advisory Committee planned the activity in observance of Special Education Month last month in Michigan.

Something for everyone?

Lansing reporters tell us that there was something for almost everyone in the state's 1988 budget approved last week by the Legislature, but that education and social services were the two big winners. Relief for taxpayers, however, was left for another day when the legislators return in September.

The overall budget rose to record levels again, with the advent of better times in Michigan and the resulting increases in revenues. So elementary and secondary education got an 11.8 percent increase over last year, while colleges and universities received increases ranging from 11 to 13 percent. Most recipients of welfare services as well as suppliers won increases although the Department of Social Services budget was cut because of anticipated decline in the overall welfare load.

Yet the increases for both education and welfare services were in effect restorations of cuts made in the recession in recent years. In fact, some basic welfare grants will be raised only about 4 percent and will be the first hikes since 1979. And even though the fiscal year begins Oct. 1, the increases for recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children and general assistance programs will not start until Dec. 1. So the welfare boosts are hardly generous.

Agnes Mansour, DSS director, told the legislators the "real winners" were the health service providers and added, "We give very little, and conceding, to the recipients." Bob Swanson, DSS budget director, agreed, saying, "It's a political reality. Clients do not have the political clout providers do."

Yet in a politically divided Legislature the budget probably was as good as could be expected. Republicans have tended to be more concerned about better financing of education, especially higher education, and got most of what they wanted. Democrats, who tend to be more concerned about improving welfare benefits, also scored better in that field.

If there was something for almost everyone in the state's budget, the same could not be said for all of the Legislature's actions. It failed to work out a satisfactory tax relief package for the state's citizens, that largely because of political jockeying by the two political parties for the state's citizens, are looking ahead to the 1986 election. Yet the betting still is that some compromise will be found when legislators return in the fall.

The GOP Senate and the Democratic House could wind up with irreconcilable differences on tax relief, and especially on the date for the next cut in the state income tax rates. The legislators might find that the record spending approved for the next fiscal year would not permit any additional cut in the income tax that would reduce state revenues. Or they might find that the state had begun a slide back into a recession that would reduce revenues.

Yet the chances are the legislators will remember the individual taxpayers when September rolls around and the 1986 elections will be only a little more than a year away. The least the lawmakers will do will be to restore the 4.6 percent income tax rate sometime early next year.

Costly pump priming

Now that Michigan and especially Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties are assured the money for more governmental pump priming for the city of Detroit, the public will have to wait a while to see whether it works or not.

We are referring, of course, to the package of tax increases on hard liquor and Detroit-area hotel and motel rooms that the Legislature approved last week in order to finance the expansion of Cobo Hall.

We've been told that Mayor Coleman Young's long-sought $180-million proposal will nearly double Cobo Hall's exhibit space and make it the nation's third largest civic center. The expansion is required, so we've been further told, to make it possible for Detroit to compete successfully with other cities for big national conventions. The presumption is that the increased attendance at Cobo conventions will more than repay the area for the tax investments to be made on Cobo.

Since the plan now seems to be set, perhaps it is unfair to look at it with a somewhat jaundiced eye. Yet liquor consumers in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties as well as hotel guests in the three counties will be paying more in taxes with the prospect of getting only indirect benefits. Those benefits presumably will be in the increased economic activities that are supposed to ensue in Detroit and the area as a result of the increase in convention attendance that will result from the Cobo expansion. Somehow the benefits appear to be quite a way down the road except for the immediate recipients.

Of course, all taxpayers, and not just those in the Detroit metropolitan area, will help pick up the tab for the expansion. The state has agreed to pay one-fourth of the $40 million cost of rerouting the Lodge Freeway under the expanded convention center. And state and local officials are counting on federal highway construction work required by the rerouting. Those state and federal funds will come from the gasoline taxes and other transportation taxes that all of us pay.

It may be that the expansion of Cobo Hall will create the 20,000 jobs, stimulate a demand for 2,300 new hotel-motel rooms and enable Detroit to compete more successfully for more and larger conventions, as Mayor Young has contended. But somehow the hopes of achieving the mayor's goals are clouded by the recollections of the promised land that supposedly would arrive in Detroit with completion of the People Mover.

It is true, of course, that nearby suburban areas have much to gain from improved economic conditions in Detroit. But suburban residents already pay millions in income taxes to the city if they work in Detroit. They help pay the state taxes that provide more than $34 million a year to Detroit to help support its cultural institutions, help provide police protection during special events at Hart Plaza and meet other cultural and promotional costs. And suburban residents contribute millions directly to the cultural institutions themselves.

The question now is whether there ever will be any end to requests for more suburban aid to Detroit or whether new and even more costly ways will have to be found to tap suburban pocketbooks to prime Detroit's economic pump.

David Stockman's legacy

David A. Stockman's own assessment of his controversial career as the federal budget director was that "we've wrought a fundamental change" in attitudes toward government.

Talking with reporters earlier this year, Stockman did not claim that he alone had been responsible for the "fundamental change." Indeed, he implied it was the President and the administration that had been responsible. Yet his statement also indicated he knew he had played an important role in that change.

Just what was the "fundamental change?" He explained in his talk with Washington reporters:

"Nobody is suggesting major new programs. Nobody is trying to liberalize entitlements. Nobody is suggesting that he ought to be entirely preoccupied with the short run. . . . What is happening in a very complicated and subtle way is that the responsibility and role of the federal government are being redefined in a more limited way."

Stockman's critics are saying, however, that the proportion of the gross national product being directed into government support has actually increased during the Reagan administration's regime. What they neglect to point out is that overall federal spending continued to climb because defense spending rose so rapidly it more than offset the reductions for domestic programs. So Stockman is right in saying that during the Reagan administration the role and responsibility of the federal government has been redefined and have become more limited.

To his Republican critics, Stockman's "crime" was that he wasn't always loyal to the President because he insisted on criticizing his own administration's positions as well as national institutions that are regarded as politically sacrosanct. On various occasions, he was critical of aid to farmers, even though he is himself the son of a farm family; aid to middle class college students, even though he benefited from such aid himself; the military retirement program and the Pentagon in general, even though the President had called for great increases in military spending; and the "vast increases in federal social welfare outlays," which rose from "less than 6 percent of national income in 1950 to more than 15 percent today."

While Stockman made clear his own preference for further cuts in federal spending, he said in an address before the board of the New York Stock Exchange last month that to close the massive $200 billion gap in the budget, "We must either massively cut spending or raise taxes by large, unprecedented magnitudes — or, by the lights of some, enact a sweeping mixture of both."

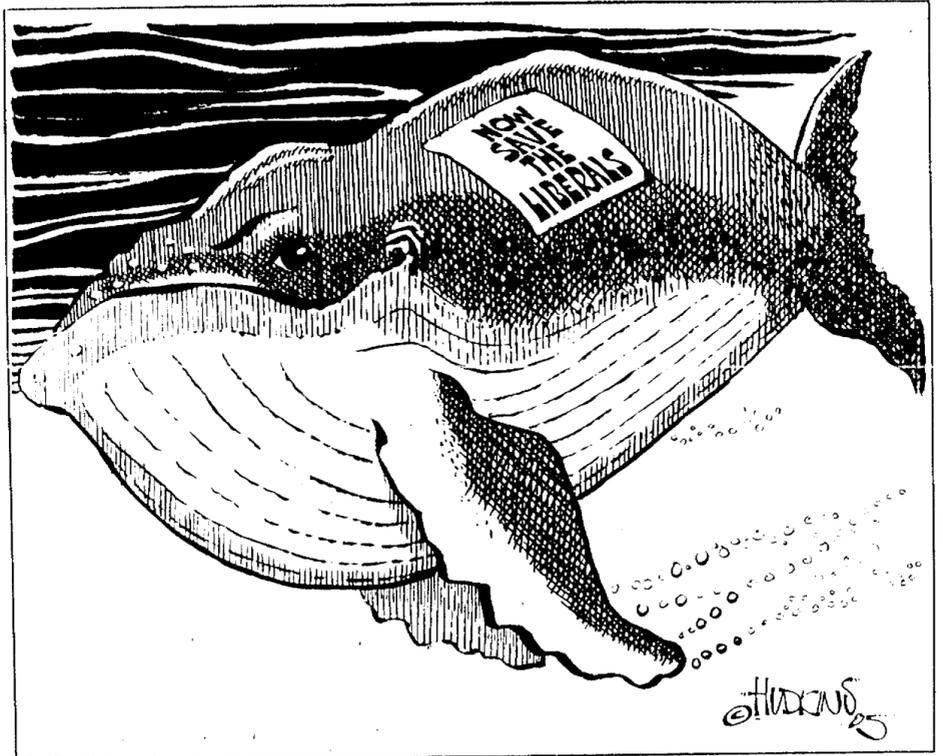

Then he went on to describe the current budget crisis in words that some believe led to his forced resignation:

"The basic fact is that we are violating badly, even wantonly, the cardinal rule of sound public finance: Governments must extract from the people in taxes what they dispense in benefits, services and protections. As the fiscal crisis has worsened and the political conflict intensified, we have increasingly resorted to squaring the circle with accounting gimmicks, evasions, half-truths and downright dishonesty in our budget numbers, debate and advocacy. Indeed, if the SEC (Securities and Exchange Commission) had jurisdiction over the executive and legislative branches, many of us would be in jail."

Democrats and some Republicans also criticized Stockman because he often called for reduced budgets for their pet programs.

Yet the budget still is farther out of balance than it was when the Reagan administration and Stockman took office. The gigantic tax cuts early in the Reagan regime, the recession and the huge increases in defense spending are usually blamed for the rising sea of red ink in Washington. But Stockman must bear a share of the blame even though it was the President who called the tune on the tax cuts and the rise in defense spending.

Overall, however, the former Michigan congressman will be missed in Washington because of his blunt assessments of the budget crisis and his knowledge of the numbers that few if anyone else in Washington can command. So while his legacy is a mixed one, his contribution to the Reagan administration's "fundamental change" in limiting the responsibility and role of the federal government is what he will be remembered for in the national capital.

Help maintain our urban forest

To the Editor:

We would like to remind readers that July and August are primary months to detect early signs of Dutch elm disease (DED). Daily tree inspection is critical since the disease can spread rapidly this time of year. You may have to observe your tree from a neighbor's yard, from an adjacent street, from the end of your block, or from any vantage point that gives you visibility of the complete foliage area. Early signs are the dropping of brown/yellow leaves and "flagging" — where a branch or branches wilt out and die. Binoculars often aid the observer in determining if a branch is simply broken or a true DED flag.

Flags must be removed immediately and it is best to cut the branch 10 feet or more below the last visible signs of DED. If the disease has reached the trunk or is close to it, the tree must be removed at once. Trees waiting for removal should be girdled to prevent the disease from getting into the roots. Girdling is the process of removing a strip of bark and wood from the entire circumference of the trunk, thus stopping the downward flow of DED.

Dutch elm disease is actually a fungus that is visible under the bark as brown or gray streaking. The fungus is spread by very small beetles who feed and nest in the bark. It can also spread from tree to tree via the root systems that intertwine and graft together. Because of this fact, rapid removal of the severely diseased tree is the only way to prevent infection of nearby trees.

Treatments include spraying methoxychlor during the dormant season to control beetle population and injecting fungicide into trees during the growing season. Since most trees in Grosse Pointe have been exposed to DED, both procedures have merit: injection is imperative if one desires to save a diseased tree. As a preventative measure, injection has value although nothing can guarantee that a tree will remain healthy. It is important to take good care of your elm tree by trimming out dead wood during the dormant season, spraying for aphids and other infestations when necessary, fertilizing, and watering during dry periods.

Grosse Pointe has about 15,000 American elms and their preservation is everyone's responsibility. It is also important to plan for the future and plant a variety of disease-resistant shade trees. Controlling DED losses and planting trees now, before losses are incurred, will help maintain the beautiful urban forest that is Grosse Pointe.

Improving the curriculum

To the Editor:

That the North Central evaluation of our high schools should recommend "greater vertical articulation of curriculum for elementary, middle and high schools," comes as no surprise to faculty, administrative and community representatives who participated in the Curriculum Development Project during the latter half of the 1960s.

In 1968 we observed three school systems — a primary, sub-secondary, and secondary — ostensibly all parts of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, but in fact functioning with little reference to each other. The project was designed to bring about improved curriculum coordination.

Work was started in 1969. But unfortunately the entire project then came to a grinding halt when voters rejected a millage proposal and eliminated project funds.

For lack of financial resource, curriculum development towards an integrated K-12 system has essentially been dormant for 15 years.

Fortunately the reports of phase 1 and phase 2 are available, and with necessary funding the Curriculum Development Project could be brought to a successful conclusion, albeit 15 years later.

Stop the war machine

To the Editor:

On Friday night, July 12, around 9:30 p.m., I was driving by the Woods Theater, Mack near Moross. Close to, but not blocking the entrance, two protesters were holding up a huge sign reading, "Affirm life. Stop the war machine."

Wondering what was going on, I parked my car and walked back. Two young people were holding the sign in obvious opposition to the movie "Rambo," being shown within and irreverently called "Ronbo" in some circles. One was a pretty young girl, apparently of high-school age. "I'd like to congratulate you on what you're doing here," I said, shaking hands with her. Then I shook hands with a thirtyish-or-so young man, who looked like a Ph.D. candidate.

A third person was distributing copies of an anti-war newspaper. He looked more like your conventional radical: He had a beard. (Of course, beards are worn these days by multinational executives, too, and by bankers and by scientists who make nuclear weapons.)

Movie critic Jack Colhoun describes "Rambo" as "Hollywood's latest right-wing Vietnam War revenge fantasy. . . . Gone is Hollywood's criticism of the unjust nature of the U.S. colonial war in Vietnam and concern about the terrible destructiveness of the war, however vaguely stated, in films like "Apocalypse Now" and "Coming Home." People in the audience holler and stamp their feet in delight as Rambo gets his revenge. It would be nice to think that "Rambo's" sinister message will go ignored. But Stallone's revenge fantasy opened to huge audiences in a record 2,074 theaters late last month (May). "Rambo" enjoyed the third largest opening gross (more than $32 million in six days) in Hollywood's history."

In the meanwhile these three people in front of the Woods Theatre are making a difference for the future of the United States. They are saying to us, "No more Vietnams! U.S. out of Central America! U.S. out of the Middle East! U.S. out of Korea! Look homeward, angel!"

I'm glad I happened to be driving that way on that Friday night, and I think that message those three Americans held up for the contemplation of their fellow citizens is well worth remembering: "Affirm Life. Stop the war machine."

An alternative to demolition

Editor's note: The following letter was sent to John Blake of The Blake Company by the president of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, Lisa Gandelot, who requested that we print it here.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, I urge you to preserve the Ranger house (17840 Jefferson Avenue, Grosse Pointe City) as part of your plans for the development of that estate. I am enclosing for your information an article from "Historic Preservation" (Sept./Oct. 1982) which describes an attractive alternative to subdivision into single family lots. The house itself could be divided into condominium units and additional new units constructed in compatible architectural style. This plan retains the property's historical and architectural integrity.

We, who are familiar with Grosse Pointe, and especially Lakeshore Road and Jefferson Avenue, as they once were, regret the passing of the beautiful estates for which our community was noted. While residents fight to maintain our excellent school system (and related property values), the preservation of a significant part of our heritage has been neglected. Looking to the future, that will distinguish Grosse Pointe from surrounding communities and attract desirable new families? Our stately homes, our giant elms, a great part of what makes Grosse Pointe unique will be gone. Will community pride and property values follow suit?

Perhaps it is time to consider an alternative to demolition and subdivision! Please consider the preservation of the Ranger home and help Grosse Pointe protect its historical and architectural heritage!

Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

In the eyes of children, old is old. It matters not that grandmothers and grandfathers compete in the job world, play golf with the best of them and feel like a 16-year-old inside, to children it is almost incomprehensible that anyone has lived that long!

Not that they don't love their grandparents and take a special pride in them. Anyone who has been associated with children knows that.

School children assigned to write a story about their grandparents will invariably write about how much they like going to their grandparents' home; how good they are to them and how much they love their grandmothers and grandfathers.

One of the most successful school functions is "Grandparents Day." Students practice for long hours to put on a program. They do their best work for weeks ahead because they want their grandparents to see how well they do in school. They proudly introduce their grandparents to their teachers. A gallery made up of hand-drawn pictures by the children of their grandparents is displayed. The most outstanding feature of the art display is that grandma and grandpa are smiling.

Children love their grandparents and for them age is no barrier. Still they wonder about them. One of the most frequently asked questions is: "What was it like when you were young? Did you have television, automobiles, airplanes?" For that matter, they may even ask: "Did you have electric lights?"

They have not yet learned to put age into perspective. They think anyone who has reached the exalted stage of being a grandparent must have lived through the entire history of the nation.

For most grandparents today, such questions present a problem. Often the very experiences children want a first hand account of, they have never been through. It is possible to wing it. Trips to sites of historic interest help. Every city and state has its own. Locally, Greenfield Village and the Historical Museum in Detroit provide good background material for what it was like in the 'olden' days.

Books are a good source also. It is possible to find books detailing every era with good accounts of how people lived, what they wore, ate and the kind of houses they lived in.

On the subject of houses, an attractive and enlightening book for children and adults as well, is "To Grandfather's House We Go" by Harry Devlens (Parents Magazine Press).

ed, it is really a pictorial history of architecture.

The first home presented is a Dutch Colonial. It was built in 1664. The house is made of cedar shingles and brownstone. The legend is that the roof extended over the body of the building to protect the masonry which in those days was cemented with clay and mortar.

Looking at the picture, the thought comes to mind, that many houses built today are built along the same lines. The main difference being that the house in the picture appears to be built on a slab rather than on a foundation.

As the reader turns the pages in the book, the realization comes that houses built in other eras have left their legacies. The Georgian-type dating back to 1771, the Greek Revival Mansion (1793), the Gothic Revival (1820) the Italianate brownstone, the forerunner of big-city brownstones, the Neo-Jacobean (1870), all, like generations of people have contributed to the present.

Such books as this transmit a continuity of past with present. Much of what has gone before is with us still. The treasures of the past are passed on through generations.

In that sense, being old means taking pride in the advancements and achievements that have been assimilated into the culture and well-being of those who follow.

What is it like to be old? There are as many answers to that question as there are people to answer them.

To a couple who have grown old together, being old is the blessing of sharing a lifetime of experiences and being drawn closer together because of that sharing. It means having time to spend with each other, uninterrupted by the demands of job and family. It means a peaceful, tranquil life with all differences forgotten and all adjustments made.

This bond that exists between two people who have spent years together has been poignantly portrayed in a television presentation; "A Family Upside Down," starring Helen Hayes and Fred Astaire. It has been shown before and probably because of the excellent of its quality, will be shown again. The acting, as might be expected, is outstanding. It tells the moving story of a husband, who has suffered a heart attack but is anxious to prove that he is capable and well. His wife, knowing his limitations is equally anxious to keep him from exerting himself and to keep him alive.

All through the story we see them dependent on each other, and drawing strength from each other. When he is confined to a nursing home and the nurse accuses him of giving up, he answers, "Oh no. I won't give up because there is someone waiting for me out there." Every minute they are apart, each one is planning and plotting for ways to be together again. When it finally happens and he asks her what she would like for a present, she answers "Long hours spent with you and not talking at all." That is what it is like to be old for two devoted people who have nurtured

I say

Two months on the heat. It isn't a long time.

I still get lost. Bob Ferber told me I would get lost for five years. The streets immediately surrounding the Hill are becoming familiar -- and, conversely, I am probably becoming familiar there. The man whose glorious Camperdown elm I stop to admire at noon hour probably thinks I'm casing the joint, but so far, he's been very restrained.

An old newspaper editor wrote that "weekly newspapers are a sustained chronicle of the life which they report and represent. Most often the best front-page stuff is acutely typical rather than violently exceptional, a respect in which the weekly newspaper differs radically from the daily."

The wise man who wrote that truth about weekly papers -- which keeps many a tired daily hack wishing his ship would come in so he could buy a little weekly somewhere -- was Henry Beetle Hough. My only acquaintance with him was as an occasional reader of the "Martha's Vineyard Gazette," a paper which captured so admirably the flavor of its home island that the mere mention of its name is enough to set my nostalgia juices flowing.

Henry Beetle Hough knew about newspapers and the double-edged effort to reflect the community and to help the community articulate its sense of self.

The heat I came from was vastly different from this. The Source tried to capture the flavor of four young Macomb County communities. Situated on the urban fringe, laced with all the promise and disappointment of progress, flexing their newly felt political muscle, torn between farm and city, preservation and change, these communities live in a state of unrest.

We covered big crime stories, battles in city council, disputes over tax abatements, construction of huge projects, landfill pollution, political infighting, along with the usual Biggest Pumpkin and Local Baton Twirler. Sometimes it was fascinating.

It made the decision to change jobs a tough one. "Does anything happen in Grosse Pointe?" people asked me constantly.

Well, as a matter of fact, once in a while, things do happen in Grosse Pointe. But, as a settled community, residents have a vested interest in having as little happen as possible.

The big decisions have already been made here. There is little land left to develop, so the big zoning issues, the tax abatements, the planning hassles don't occur often. As for infighting in some cases, the fields are too small to make the power worth the struggle. In others, the struggle is kept under polite cover, erupting only occasionally.

But parking is a continuing issue. Urban blight. Attracting viable business. Schools. Reforming the local court system. Public safety. And, always, the Great Lakes. People living so near them cannot help but care about their purity. Coast Guard stations. Water diversion. When things get dull, there's always the liquor license for the War Memorial.

Another, younger, editor has written about newspapers and their communities. Robert Maynard is the editor anti publisher of the Oakland (Calif.)

Tribune

Maynard, an urban black, started his career in York, Pa., in the heart of Pennsylvania Dutch country. On the surface of it, one might think that the two wouldn't have had much in common. But Maynard praises the leeway his paper gave him to study a wide variety of urban problems in York.

"One night I remarked to one of my editors that it was unusual to have the opportunity to study so many urban questions in such a small environment," Maynard wrote. "I'll never forget his response:

"This place is like every other place, just smaller. Here we can examine in microcosm those things you knew and saw in New York City in macrocosm. If you can understand them and write about them here, you will be able to do it anywhere."

To be sure, if a master list of microcosms were compiled, the Grosse Pointes wouldn't be very high on it. Neither its boosters nor its critics have ever accused Grosse Pointe of being typical.

Grosse Pointe seems fixated on air conditioners. I have covered municipal meetings for six years and never heard of a request for an air conditioner variance till I came here.

On the other hand, other communities fly into a tizzy at the thought of even a cyclone fence along a corner lot line for fear it will obstruct the view of the intersection. They would faint at the sight of all the brick walls in Grosse Pointe.

There are a few things that are surprisingly typical about the Pointes. Here's one that caught my eye: The number of families with three or more cars (according to the 1980 census) is no different in the Pointes than in the tri-county area as a whole. Depending on which Pointe you call home, multiple car ownership ranges from 10 to 23 percent of the population. In Wayne County as a whole, 13 percent of the households have three or more cars. In Oakland County, it's 20 percent, and in Macomb County, a whopping 22 percent.

But even Robert Maynard would have difficulty showing that Grosse Pointe is just like every other place. One of the differences struck me right away in my strolls.

In street after street of elegant homes and manicured lawns, there is no one to be seen. Tuesday, for the first time. I saw some kids on bikes with towels slung over their shoulders, returning from swimming. Where is everybody, or am I just out at the wrong time?

Nobody is sunbathing, nobody is fishing from the breakwall, nobody is just hanging out. It's private property and the public is verboten. But Algonac, Marine City, St. Clair share their waterfront. In Detroit, the papers have been raising Cain for years about access to the river, with the chain of riverfront parks the final fruit of their complaints. In Grosse Pointe, one of our reporters had to secure a chain of special permissions to get into the local parks to do a story on fishing.

The penchant for privacy has translated itself into some lush landscapes. As a gardener, I have looked with interest at the rockeries, terraces, stone walks and walls, the concealing plantings and arbors. My own garden looks better this year than ever as a result.

I'm lobbying my husband again for a stone wall at the foot of the garden. But I'm going to keep the glider on the front porch. Privacy is nice for some, but I like to feel connected.

Past presidents on parade

Their motto is "Festivities, Fun and Fellowship," and since 1959 the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe has lived up to that statement. Next Tuesday, July 23, the club will honor nine of its 10 living past presidents at a luncheon. Past presidents pictured here are, front row, from left: Herbert Bumpus, Thomas A. Cooper, Fred Flom and Louis Decker; second row, John D. King, John Carter and Kenneth Cary; third row, Frank Welchenbach and William O. Bradley Jr. Missing is Harold Meinke, now living in Washington. The club, which boasts 1,117 members, is open to any senior male resident of any of the Pointes who is retired. The club holds semi-monthly luncheon meetings at the War Memorial, with each gathering highlighted by an outside speaker.

their love so that passing years have made it stronger.

"What is it like to be old. In 'How Does It Feel To Be Old' by Norma Farber, an old woman explains to a child what being old means to her. She speaks from the heart about loneliness and love, about the past and present about hope and memory. It is written in a series of verses leavened with wit:

"How does it feel to be old? Very nice, the woman answers. I don't have to listen to parent's advice," but at the end she concludes:

"Nobody's telling me all the same I'd like to be called by my childhood name."

Again:
"How does it feel to be old?"
"Quite brave, quite bold
I say what I choose
Having nothing to lose."
The verse ends with,
"Nobody's made me cry in years
I miss the hug coming after the tears."

And so the book goes, each page drawing the reader into the thoughts and feelings of an old woman. Each verse is made more memorable by full-page black and white drawings that so well capture the mood of the verses.

Grandparents today live different lives than grandparents even a generation ago. Their life spans has been extended and because of the advancement in the control of debilitating disease and better health maintenance, they have more vitality.

As a result, older men and women are more active — the days of their youth have been extended.

But modern day grandparents, even as those of generations past, know that there are thoughts and memories and feelings they want to share with their grandchildren to create a bond between them and a heritage to pass on to future generations.

Libraries look into computers

The Board of Education Monday night, July 8, gave approval for a $10,000 consultant study of the system's libraries to decide whether to retain the current system or switch to another and to bring the school libraries into the system.

The board awarded the contract for the four-month study to RMG Consultants, a nationally recognized library computer consultant which recently landed a contract for a similar study of the Huron Valley library system, according to Dr. Charles Hanson, director of libraries.

RMG's bid was $10,572, almost $700 less than the next lowest bidder but $572 more than was budgeted in the coming year for the study.

"The technology is so sophisticated and moving at such a breakneck speed, there's no one in the system with the expertise who can help . . ." Hanson said. "I have some limited experience with computers, but not enough to do this program objectively."

Four companies were asked to submit proposals for analyzing the present public library computer system, Computer Library Systems, Inc., and recommend whether to keep the present system or link with the Wayne Oakland Library Federation's GEAC computer system.

The consultants will also be expected to recommend how to bring the public school libraries into the system.

The study will begin in September and include site visits, specification development, evaluation of computer vendors, recommendations, plans for automated services and costs for implementation, according to board documents.

The central library and two branches have been using CLSI since 1980, with its soft- and hardware, Hanson said. The system is now at 90 percent capacity, and response time of the system is beginning to slow because of the amount of data being sorted, he added.

About half the Wayne Oakland Library Federation's members have decided to consider going with the GEAC system, which is incompatible with the CLSI system, Hanson said. One thing the consultants will be asked to decide to whether it's to the libraries' advantage to switch. Hanson said.

The current system is inadequate in a couple of ways, Hanson said. Currently, it's more of an inventory program. "I would like to see an on-line card catalog," he added, saying such a function could allow patrons to search electronically for titles and authors.

Bringing the school libraries into the system would eventually mean a network for the libraries, in which each branch would be able to communicate with the others electronically, he added.

With the proper equipment and software, a computer system has a variety of other uses as well, Hanson said. It could handle electronic mail functions, work as a circulation check and may allow residents to access the system through their home microcomputers, Hanson said.

Although the school system's CLSI is only five years old, it can already be considered out of date, Hanson said. Oakland County libraries also uses the CLSI system, but because they came on-line a couple years after Grosse Pointe, that system is more up to date, he added.

Standardization of records will be another benefit of the system, Hanson said. "It takes a lot of work, but once it is done, it's just marvelous. It will give us great access," he added.

A retired man notes wistfully: "Wish I could remember when I went from wine, women and song to beer, mama and the TV."

First blind president of Woods Lions installed

Michael J. Patten was installed as president of the Grosse Pointe Woods Lions Club June 21 at the annual inauguration banquet and ball held at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

The 29-year-old Patten becomes the first blind president in the history of the Woods organization and only the sixth blind club president in the history of Michigan Lionism, according to David E. Litter, immediate past district governor of Michigan Lions District 11-A1. Patten succeeds George J. Tilton Jr., of the Woods, who served two consecutive terms as president.

Born totally blind, Patten underwent seven eye operations from age six months to 17 years to have sight restored at a 20/300 level to his left eye. His right eye merely distinguishes light and shadows. He has superb reading skills.

Considered one of the outstanding Lions Club secretaries in District 11-A1, Patten served in this capacity for the Woods Lions Club over a two-year period. Employed as a mobility instructor at Detroit Receiving Hospital, a position held for over four years, Patten is a graduate of Central Michigan University.

Outgoing President Tilton singled out 1984 and 1985 as the years that broke all records for Lion fundraising programs in behalf of Lion-sponsored projects.

Cecil W. Halbert, Woods resident, was presented a plaque for

Clown Corps meets

The Grosse Pointe Clown Corps will register new members Wednesday, July 31, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Woods public safety building, adjacent to the municipal building at 2025 Mack.

The Corps needs members to fill its ranks for the appearance Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Grosse Pointe Farms Fishing Rodeo, according to chairman Arthur Kuehnel.

Children in grade through high school from the Pointes, Harper Woods and Ilacon County are eligible for membership. For more information, call Kuehnel at 881-8186.

being the seller of Lions Good Fellow newspapers and white canes, a feat he accomplishes every year.

A husband and wife team, Burlie (Red) and Theresa Arnold, affectionately called the A-team, were jointly recognized for extraordinary teamwork in a continuing effort to achieve Lions fundraising goals.

Special guest recognition went to Darlyne Hummon, proprietor of Sweet Dreams Candy shop located in Detroit Receiving Hospital, who provides space in her shop annually for the sale of Lions coloring books for children during the Christmas season.

Installation of officers was performed by Marty Inance, former deputy district governor of Lions International District 11-A1, a Woods resident and co-owner of Rob's Drug store. Officers are:

First vice president, Red Arnold; second vice president, Vincent A. DiLaura; secretary, Jack A. Matilla; continuing treasurer, David M. Wilhelm; tail twister, Otto P. Glines; lion tamer, William E. Dinan; and continuing bulletin editor, Robert A. Carver. Board members are Fred L. Andray, Marty Inance, John Armaly and John M. Easton.

Upon receiving the official gavel of presidential authority, President Patten called former president Tilton to the podium to accept a special plaque commemorating two consecutive years of exceptional performance as president of the Woods Lions Club — a rarity among all Lions organizations.

North reunion

The Class of 1980, Grosse Pointe North, is planning its five-year reunion for Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Greek Assumption Center, 21800 Marter Road, St. Clair Shores.

There will be hors d'oeuvres, a cash bar and entertainment. Cost is $12.50 per person. Reservations must be made by July 20.

For more information, call 343-2187.

Fireworks on

A number of concerns had to be met before the Farms council would grant permission July 8 to the War Memorial to display fireworks after the Grosse Pointe Symphony performance the first week in August.

Last year, inquiring and complaining telephone calls were received by Farms and City police despite letters to the neighbors informing them of the impending fireworks display. The council asked the War Memorial to extend the notification area this year.

Dr. Mark Weber, director of the War Memorial, informed the council that the center would again meet the insurance industry standard in providing liability insurance for the event. However, the industry standard, which was $10 million last year, has dropped to $5 million this year, raising concerns among the council.

Assured that the event would be well-protected by off-duty police and firefighters, the Wayne County Sheriff's auxiliary, a Farms fire truck and a safety plan submitted to Police Chief Robert Ferber, that the $5 million policy was adequate and that the permits are in order, the council agreed to allow the War Memorial to proceed.

The fireworks will follow the symphony concert Aug. 5, with a rain date of Aug. 6. The display will last about 10 minutes, Weber said.

$14,500 donated to school system

The Board of Education Monday, July 8, accepted $14,500 worth of gifts from the Ferry PTO and Nature Center Committee, North Booster's Club and Kerby PTO.

Ferry PTO's gift of $1,200 was earmarked to be used for computer software purchases, the school's lunch hour activities program, service club expenses, concerts and assembly programs.

The North High Boosters will purchase a new scoreboard for the high school's gymnasium. Cost of the gift is between $7,000 and $9,500.

The Kerby PTO donated $3,200 to be used as a partial payment to have the Kerby playground hydroseeded. The total cost of the project is $5,800, with the balance coming by deferral of certain equipment purchased at the school.

The Ferry Nature Center Committee of Parents donated about $600 to hire a nature center resource person for the coming school year.

Under the board's new procedures, the hiring will be done through the personnel office and the gift will cover the salary and any retirement benefits the system will have to pay, according to school officials.

The board accepted the gifts with appreciation.

School retirement bill signed into law

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It may be a couple years before the full effects of improved retirement benefits for public school employees are felt locally, according to a local teachers' union president. The package includes a 30-and-out provision, eliminating the prior age requirement for certain employees.

Gov. James Blanchard signed into law Wednesday, July 10, House Bill 4192, which contains several benefit improvements for current retirees and adds an extra tier of benefits for employees who contribute 4 percent of their gross annual salary to the program.

It's the first real improvement to the retirement system since the 1970s, according to Doris Cook, president of the Grosse Pointe Education Association.

Provisions in the new law will phase in over three years. Beginning in January 1986, the law opens a three-year "window" for employees whose ages and years of service total 80.

Beginning the following January, a contributory plan takes effect which allows contributors to opt for 30 years and out, with final average compensation based on the last three years' salaries and a 3 percent non-compounded increase to the pension.

Teachers who decide not to participate will have to wait until age 55, with 30 years of service. New employees after July 1, 1988 will have a month to decide whether they want to participate. Current employees will also have to decide whether they want to participate.

Employees aged 60 will be able to retire after five years of service immediately preceding. Death benefits will be lowered from 15 to 10 years.

While some employees will opt for the 80-point plan at the end of the next school year, many will calculate whether spending another year in the system and entering the contributory plan will result in a better retirement income and benefits, Cook said.

The law increases retirees' pensions by 8 percent. Pensioners will receive either a 13th monthly check or an annual 3 percent non-compounded increase, whichever is the greater.

Cook said she expected a significant turnover in the local district because of the new law. The program will most likely draw more employees than the local system's retirement incentive program in 1984, she added.

The school system last year offered $300 above the state's retirement benefits to induce employees aged 55 with 15 years of service to retire. About 35 of the estimated 75 to 100 employees eligible for the program opted.

Provisions for current retirees, which take effect January 1986, will recalculate pensions for those who retired before July 1, 1974. The percent a month penalty for retirees who retired before July 1, 1974, with 30 years of service but who were between 55 and 60 is also eliminated.

A new part-time formula using the average of equated full-time compensation earned in 60 consecutive months will take effect in 1986. Retirees who were part time employees will have their pension recalculated.

The Michigan Education Association is working on distributing a computer program to its locals that will allow teachers and other employees to punch in the appropriate information and find out which plan will benefit them, Cook said. Some employees may find the extra year of service and the contributory plan are to their benefit, she added.

One provision of the law that Cook called her baby was the option for employees to buy back up to five years of maternity or paternity leave when followed by service as a public school employee with no intervening employment.

Although an expensive choice, the buy-back will allow employees to fill in the gaps in employment caused by child rearing, Cook added.

Other improvements in the package include extension of health care benefits to dependents of retirees. The state will pay 90 percent while the retiree pays 10 percent. Retirees who now cover their dependents under the available program will begin paying 10 percent of the premium Oct. 1, 1985. They now pay the full premium.

The MEA will schedule a number of working sessions for union representatives so they will be better able to answer questions about the program, Cook said.

Current retirees who would like more information about the bill and its effect on them can call the Michigan Association of Retired School Personnel at 1-517-484-1757.

The law's effect will probably exacerbate the growing teacher shortage throughout the state, Cook said. People who normally enter a teaching career arc going on to higher paying careers in other fields, she added.

The increased benefits for retirees will not cost taxpayers any extra, Cook added.

Sam and Big Red were happy to do the posing while others did the painting at Barnes School last week. Busy trying to catch the parrots on paper were, from left, Carli Spina, 5, instructor Doug Goudie, Jonathan Weinert, 6, Joseph Wernet, 5, and Matthew Shrilla, 5. Meanwhile outside, Kristen Smith, 8, was taken for a ride on Phyllis the Horse, while riding instructor Bonnie Neff trotted alongside. According to school officials, the first-year program was such as success, they're going to run it again beginning Aug. 12. Interested parents should call the Department of Continuing Education at 343-2178. The program runs Aug. 12-16 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Registration is $125.

South Pacific trip

For those who like to plan ahead and strike a bargain at the same time, the War Memorial's week-long cruise to Tahiti and her dream islands next March may be just the package they are looking for. Anyone who sends in a deposit of $650 per person by Sept. 1 will receive three days in Papeete free.

This South Pacific cruise not only includes a visit to Papeete, the capital city of all French Polynesia, but other island stops as well. Travelers will be able to stroll the secluded, sugar-white beaches of Bora Bora, and to swim and snorkel the sheltered, crystalline blue lagoon of Rangiroa, one of the largest coral atolls in the world.

They will venture to the remote villages and ancient temples of Huahine, and explore the trails of Mount Temehani on Raiatea, the early religious, cultural and political center of the islands.

During market day, they will discover a potpourri of tropical fruits, unfamiliar to most Americans. On Moorea, across the Sea of the Moon from Tahiti, travelers will discover archeological sites deep in the Opunohu Valley. Then all will return to Papeete with its picturesque port, its sidewalk cafes, and its thriving marketplace.

Cost of the trip depends upon cabin selection based on double occupancy. Included in the cost is round trip air fare, seven-day cruise, transfers to and from ship, all meals, entertainment and services about ship, and port taxes.

For more information, call the War Memorial at 881-7511.

New World String Quartet

String quartet to perform at War Memorial

As winner of the 1979 Naumburg Chamber Music Competition, the New World String Quartet is recognized as one of America's most prominent young ensembles. The foursome will perform at the War Memorial's 28th annual Summer Music Festival Monday, July 22, at 8 p.m. Tickets to their concert, which will be held in the Fries Auditorium, are $9.50 each.

In their appearances throughout the United States in prestigious chamber music and university concert series, and at various festivals, including Ravinia, Interlochen, Music West of Utah State University, and the San Luis Obispo Mozart Festival in California, they have performed a repertoire ranging from the standard quartet literature to premieres of contemporary American works.

Next Monday evening they will play Beethoven's Quartet in A Major, opus 18, no. 51; Shostakovich's Quartet No. 8, opus 110; and Dvorak's Quartet in C Major, opus 61.

Prior to the indoor performance at 8 p.m., concert-goers may arrive as early as 6 p.m. to picnic on the lawn or terrace overlooking Lake St. Clair. Each may bring his or her own picnic, or may order one, freshly prepared by the Center's staff, for $6.40. Reservations for picnic suppers must be made at least three days in advance.

The last two concerts of the summer Music Festival series will be held outdoors: The Johnny Knorr Orchestra and the Big Band Sound on July 29, and the Grosse Pointe Symphony Pops conducted by Felix Resnick, Aug. 5. The latter concert will include a fireworks display during the playing of the "1812 Overture." Tickets are $9.50 each for reserved seating, and $5.50 for lawn seating. For more information, call 881-7511.

Esser in concert

Detroit baritone Phil Marcus Esser will perform a benefit concert for the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice, Thursday, Aug. 8 at 8 p.m. The benefit will be held at Tremonti's Restaurant, 440 Clinton, two blocks north of Greentown. Tickets are $8.

Esser is considered a "musical anthropologist," who introduced Detroit to Jacques Brel in 1970. He also enjoys exploring a variety of musical styles, and keeps alive the essence of Kurt Weill, Cole Porter and Bob Dylan.

His most recent production "1946 Detroit," recreated the big band era and received good reviews from critics.

GPIFCRJ is a non-profit organization whose goals are to promote racial and social justice through educational and civic programs, to identify social issues, and to help citizens and community organizations respond to these concerns.

GP Singles

Brian Smith, manager of the Scarab Club of Detroit, will be the featured speaker Friday, July 19, at 7 p.m. when the Grosse Pointe Singles group meets in the Library Room of the War Memorial.

The Scarab Club sponsors Fellowship of the Arts for aspiring artists in the metropolitan area.

Because of the summer closure of the War Memorial in late August, Grosse Pointe Singles have rescheduled their August meetings for Friday, Aug. 2, and Friday, Aug. 9, at the War Memorial. Their Aug. 30 meeting and dance, will be held at the Jefferson Yacht Club.

Members will receive information about the Wine and Cheese Party to be held at the home of a member July 21, and will also discuss future plans of the Widowed Group. Both of these as well as the post-meeting afterglow dance are open to single men and women in the area age 39 and up.

Friday Night Live

Friday Night Live and Saturday, Too, returns to the Village the weekend of July 26 and 27 when more than 40 stores will take to the streets and sidewalks with merchandise.

The weekend will be kicked off with a Friday afternoon aerial sales display over the rooftops of Grosse Pointe. Friday Night Live, from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., is the only time of the year when city officials allow the closing of Kercheval Avenue between Neff and Cadieux.

The Baldock Mountain Ramblers, a traditional string band, will play blue grass, folk and gospel tunes. Gene Honderich, with a barbershop quartet from the Grosse Pointe Lakeshore Chorus, will sing along the entire three-block area. The Banjo Belles will strum and the Standard Five will also entertain.

There will be balloons, and the Grosse Pointe Senior Adults division of the Neighborhood Club's Craft Club will have a display of their handicrafts. Among those providing on-street food will be the Grosse Pointe Theatre.

Saturday, Too, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Kercheval will be open to vehicular traffic, but the sidewalk sale will continue. In case of inclement weather, rain dates are Aug. 2 and 3, at the same hours.

St. John offers audiology service

Saint John Hospital announces the availability of complete hearing testing and counseling services offered to persons who feel they have an ear or hearing problem.

An audiologist will monitor and assess such problems as hearing loss caused by ear infections, aging, exposure to certain drugs or dizziness.

This full range of hearing test procedures is available for everyone from infants through senior citizens. Appointments last approximately 15 minutes and can be made by calling 313-3728 Monday through Friday. No physician's referral is needed.

Party for Hertel

Kirk Gibson and the Jim Saros Agency, Inc., are hosting a summer party at the Roostertail Friday, July 19, in honor of Wayne County Commission Chairman John Hertel.

There will be live bands and a disc jockey spinning top 40 records. Cover charge is $10 per person and there will be a cash bar. Doors open at 6 p.m.

To make reservations, call 823-7787. Participants must be 21. All proceeds go to the Committee to Elect John C. Hertel.

Brass quintet,

The Renaissance Brass Quintet will perform Sunday, July 28, at 7 p.m. at Patterson Park. The concert is free and admission is by any Grosse Pointe community pass.

Residents should bring their own blankets, food and beverage. The concert is sponsored by the Park recreation commission and city council.

Free car wash

The United Methodist Men of First United Methodist Church, St. Clair Shores, will sponsor a free car wash Saturday, July 20, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The location is Tom's Car Wash at the corner of Harper and 10 Mile roads.

Owner Tom Loftus is donating his facility for the day and the 15 United Methodist Men are seeking persons who will donate from one to ten cents for each car washed. The men hope to raise $1,500 for two major projects - a monthly dinner they prepare at the Salvation Army building in Mount Clemens and the church's local building fund.

How to keep mail coming

Mail means a lot to students going away to school, particularly those who will be leaving home for the first time this fall.

To ensure smooth mail delivery, the following suggestions are offered.

Give your college address to your home post office. By doing this, mail addressed to your home will be forwarded to your college address under the following conditions:

All first-class mail will be forwarded without charge. Second-class mail will be forwarded without charge for 60 days. Other classes of mail will be forwarded postage due provided the sender or addressee guarantees to pay the forwarding postage.

Let those who send you mail regularly — newspapers and magazines, business, family, friends, club, etc. — know your college address. Free change-of-address cards are available at the post office.

In most college housing, including dormitories, mail usually is distributed from a central mailroom. If you move during the school year, notify your mailroom, your post office at home and in the college community. And, again, your correspondents via the change-of-address cards.

Where college housing doesn't have a central mailroom, letter carriers deliver directly to individual boxes in the building lobby. Make sure your box is identified with your name.

If you live off-campus in an apartment, fraternity, sorority or rooming house, make sure there is a clear understanding of where your mail is to be delivered and distributed.

During holidays and recesses, you can arrange to have the post office hold your mail until you return or have someone at your school address hold it. You also can ask the post office in your college community to forward mail to wherever you will be according to the forwarding conditions listed above.

Crim honored

Pointer Mort Crim, newscaster on WDIV Channel 4, will be honored Sunday, July 21, by the Kiwanis Club of Southeastern Michigan in ceremonies preceding the Detroit Tigers-Texas Rangers baseball game at Tiger Stadium.

The Kiwanis will host hundreds of handicapped persons from the Detroit area that day, who will be brought to Tiger Stadium from nursing homes, rest homes and other facilities. Wheelchairs will be provided.

Crim will be honored for his work with the handicapped, activities that have included anchoring Easter Seals telethons, and assistance to Goodwill Industries, Focus: HOPE and the Grey Panthers. He has devoted some of his Free for All telecasts to the problems of the aging and handicapped.

Crim has lived in the Pointe since coming to WDIV. He and his wife Naomi have two children, Albert, a sophomore at Villanova, and Carey, a South freshman.

Forty-four Kiwanis clubs will participate in a stadium parade before the game. Connie Grubaugh of Orchard Lake, confined to a wheelchair for more than 20 years, will sing the national anthem.

Eight graduate from Bon Secours program

Bon Secours Hospital honored its eight graduating resident physicians in family practice and internal medicine June 22.

Michael J. Dionne, M.D., and Angela D. Mosley, M.D., are the first graduates in the three-year internal medicine residency program. Robert J. Heyka, M.D., chief resident, also graduated from the program.

The family practice residency program graduates are Michael Banka, M.D., John R. Connors, M.D., James L. Gross, D.O., Vern E. Orlang, M.D. and Ronald F. Williamson, M.D.

The Semmes Award is given to the residents who best represent the Sisters' of Bon Secours philosophy of compassionate and personalized care: It was awarded to Michael Dionne, M.D., and David Beyer, M.D.

For the best scientific papers submitted by residents, the Holden Award was given to John VanArendonk, M.D., Michael Banka, M.D., and Elaine Schmidt, M.D.

Recognition awards for outstanding teaching by members of the medical staff were awarded to Paul Nehra, M.D., and Eduora Coello, M.D. Peter Rodin, D.O., received the teacher of the year award and Michael Banka, M.D., received the Dwight D. Dutcher, M.D. Award for the resident physician who best represented the philosophy of family practice.

The Internal Medicine Teaching award was given to Victor Abiragi, M.D.

Seat belt law credited

State Police credit the new seat belt law with helping to keep the number of fatalities down over the 102-hour holiday weekend. Fourteen people lost their lives on Michigan highways as compared to 22 fatalities during the fast long Fourth of July holiday in 1978. This was the first holiday with the seat belt law in effect.

Of the 13 fatalities, seven did not have seat belts available, four did not wear them, and three who wore belts were involved in non-survivable accidents.

Col. Gerald L. Hough, department director, said the message is clear: "Seat belts do save lives." But Hough stressed the fact that alcohol involvement continues to be a key factor in fatal accidents. Drinking was involved in five, unknown in four, and ruled out in three of the 12 fatal accidents.

Increased citizen awareness generated by Operation CARE activity along with safety breaks staffed by volunteer groups at 35 rest areas also contributed to the lower fatality count, Hough said.

During the first week of enforcement of the new law, 631 tickets and 1,205 warnings were issued

Space running out at incinerator

rity about sharing site and/or facilities.

"I've heard that rumor, but no one has approached us on it," Whedon said. "If the county builds an incinerator, we might want to take our excess there. I would hope they would take an affirmative response to that."

Mitchell was more blunt. "We've had proposals from a bunch of wild-eyed guys who don't know what they're talking about," he said.

Gordon Sutin of Energy Answers, an Ontario company, said his firm had talked with the authority more than a year ago. "They weren't at all interested," Sutin said. "I think we even offered to buy their facility, but they didn't seem to want to get involved."

Energy Answers has also been negotiating with a group of northern Macomb communities and last week reportedly purchased the old Marsack gravel pit property in Roseville for the construction of an incinerator.

Greg Carpenter, director of the South Macomb Disposal Authority, said he had held several unofficial, preliminary conversations with Whedon about sharing the Grosse Pointes' incinerator property. He stressed that nothing official or concrete had been negotiated.

"It has been discussed through the operators of the facility," Carpenter said. "We haven't gotten down to nuts and bolts — no sit-down formal meeting, just casual conversation. Knowing what I know of Grosse Pointe, they may need to expand because of growth in Clinton and Mount Clemens. It would be economical to share (a facility)."

The SMDA has been discussing construction of an incinerator for nearly a year, as space at its primary landfill in Washington Township runs out. Carpenter said the group is conducting a site search and narrowing down consulting firms, but is having organizational problems. "We're stymied because Warren has kind of pulled out on us," he said.

Although Whedon said the authority has no expansion plans "at the moment," Mitchell said the board is studying it.

"We're discussing the optimum method if we have to expand," he said. "We don't want to make a panic decision. It's like considering the purchase of a new refrigerator when you hear the old one squeaking. When the old one quits one day, you're ready."

Although grass, leaves and shrub clippings are a burden on the plant, which was designed in the late '60s with then-current technology, not all of the grass in the Pointes finds its way to the incinerator. Local ordinances mandate that landscape maintenance contractors haul away all debris from the yards they work on.

Each of the more than 100 contractors operating in the Pointes must make his own landfill arrangements. Bill Whetstone of Greater Detroit Landscaping Service, which has customers in all of the Pointes, has two destinations for debris collected by his trucks.

Light debris, such as grass, leaves and branches, is taken to the

Belleville dump via City Disposal, a holding area at Harper and

cent of the residents cut their own grass, which is then picked up by Foreman Michael Wolford checks the furnace through the tiny viewing window. Both furnaces have been replaced during the last two years as part of the continuing updating program. They burn refuse at 1800 degrees, operating around the clock.

Chene. Heavy debris, as when sod is removed or the landscaper cleans up after a construction project and has loads of dirt and masonry, is taken to the old Marsack gravel pit at 14 Mile Road in Roseville, Whetstone said.

Whetstone said he averages five truckloads a week between the two locations, each truck carrying 18 to 20 yards of debris. "There's a tremendous amount of debris being hauled out of Grosse Pointe every day," he said. "The worst season is fall, when we sometimes carry three or four truckloads of leaves from one yard and send two or three trucks a day to the dumps."

Carrying the debris to the dumps reduces the burden on the incinerator, but at the same time increases the cities' dependence on landfilling, which was intended to be cut out with the construction of the incinerator.

Clinton Township is beginning to take steps to reduce the volume it sends to the incinerator. The township refuse committee plans to start discussions of a composting system recommended last year.

Robert Steiner, a Clinton representative to both the incinerator authority and the township refuse committee, said he would like to see the township start advance resource separation and composting. Both would reduce the township's waste stream, thereby reducing costs, and both would be ecologically sound, he said.

"If Clinton continues to grow the way it is, we might have trouble getting everything burned," Steiner said. "It could be a squeaker in the summer months."

Steiner said the incinerator is sending 15 to 20 percent of its volume by weight to landfills now. "There's no doubt that there's concern," he said. "But it's hard to crystal-ball it."

No one is making any serious attempts at composting in the Pointes. Tom Maison, director of the Department of Public Works in the Shores, estimated that 75 percent of the residents cut their own grass, which is then picked up by nerator. But Maison said he couldn't imagine the village doing anything different with the lawn clippings.

"The incinerator is so handy," he said. If the clippings were landfilled elsewhere, "then you'd have to figure the man hours and cost of trucks."

Whedon agreed that it would be costly to handle the grass any differently. Although the authority has enough space to compost, equipment to turn and aerate the pile is expensive. Charles Lewis, the originator of the composting proposal in Clinton Township, said such a machine, similar to a large piece of farm machinery, could cost $100,000.

"The best way to do separation is source separation," Whedon said. "The householder would have to separate it and the city would have to separate trucks. It's difficult to educate the population, and only a certain percentage cooperates. We're such an affluent society, people want to take the easy way out."

Meanwhile, more than 7,000 tons of ash, approximately five percent of the total volume, is landfilled every year. "We're working with the state to get it declared inert," said Mitchell. "Then it could be used for roads and landfill cover. The problem is, we don't know from month to month what it's constituted of."

Lewis, who has seen his composting proposal languish for a year before being taken up by the refuse committee, is skeptical that recycling or expansion will occur before events force action. "We're notoriously a people of crisis," he said. "It's ingrained in our culture."

cause of the new retirement benefits, what their effect on Grosse Pointe will be isn't known yet, he added.

The state's retirement benefits are coming at a time of a growing teacher shortage, and while Grosse Pointe schools will be able to attract good teachers, there are some districts that are having trouble finding good mathematics and science teachers, Whritner said.

Another facet to the retirement question is where those retirements are taking place, Whritner said. If they happen at the high school level, they may offset layoffs as students population drops at the secondary school, he said.

"If everybody decides to leave the elementary schools where we've already stabilized, then we'll be getting a lot of new people in," Whritner said. "If it happens at the secondary level, it could be that will help us from having to have additional layoffs."

"It will have to be a continuing process," he added. "We all need to be working together to find the best ways of teaching."

Whritner likened the need for staff upgrading its skills to the medical profession, where continuing education is mandatory to stay on top of the changes in that area.

Key to the district's goal of curriculum development is staff involvement, Whritner said. During his coffee with parents, staff and administrators, almost 80 topics were brought up, running from the need for better continuity and articulation of curriculum to the consideration of vocational education for high ability students.

The need for curriculum development for K-12 was a result of recommendation in the North Central evaluations done at the high schools last year. One considered weakness of the system was its lack of curriculum articulation and continuity — how well the classes build on each other and how they mesh from grade to middle to high school.

"It's a question of who's involved in the process, developing a process that is bottom-up and that addresses teachers' areas of concern," Whritner said of curriculum development. How the curriculum will be administered depends on what kind of process is developed, he added.

The district hopes to complete by the end of next school year a comprehensive plan of what the system should ideally look like in five years. By the 1990s, enrollment declines will have worked their way through the system and a period of relative stability will follow for a few years, Whritner said. The system can take advantage of that by deciding what the ideal school system should look like and how it can achieve that, he added.

Part of the five-year facilities plan may be the development of criteria which the system can use when deciding to close a building, Whritner said. Other topics that will become a part of the program will be curriculum needs, transportation, equipment, housing of central administration and what the system should do with its leased properties, he said.

"It should give us an idea of what the system will look like in 1991 and what it should look like going into the next century," Whritner said. "Backing off from that, then, we can begin to look at how many buildings we're going to need and what will be the criteria for keeping buildings open."

"Rather than looking ahead a year and saying 'Okay, the numbers are such we should close a school', let's look out five years and back off from that," he added.

There are many more questions that have to be answered as well in the plan, Whritner added.

What process will be used to develop the five-year plan hasn't been decided, either, he said. Whether the district will again convene a committee like its Excess Space Committee of two years ago, or leave the problem to a single person to put together a plan that will be used as a base for discussion is still undecided, he added.

A plan to move the district beyond its staff workshops on substance abuse is another part of the plan for the coming school year, Whritner said. While it will be distinct from a program being developed as part of a new set of student policies, Whritner said he didn't want to go too far with the program until after the staff input process has been put together and is functioning.

All seven of the proposed goals can easily be completed in the coming school year if the proper staff is chosen and schedules are prepared, Whritner said.

Not all the work in the coming year will be on meeting goals, however. Whritner listed 15 matters the system needs to work on in the coming year as well.

While some of them are related to the goals being developed, others, like evaluation of the seven-period day, are more suited to study by the district.

A number of the items have already begun to be addressed, Whritner said. The district is working on development of an attendance policy as part of board action taken July 8 in passage of a set of student policies. In addition, consideration of library computerization was begun at the same meeting with awarding of a bid for a consultant's study of library computer systems. The district also needs to keep concern for its high school students not going on to college near the top of its priorities by continuing to look at vocational education, Whritner said. Another area of concern will be location and staffing of central administrative functions.

If the system is able to complete its goals in the coming year, those goals will help the system continue to plan for the future and meet the needs of its community, he added.

Clinton looks to composting as alternative

A 1983 proposal for a composting program in Clinton Township is being taken up this summer by the township refuse committee. The project is intended to reduce the township's dependence on the Grosse Pointes-Clinton incinerator.

Since the incinerator opened 13 years ago, Clinton's share of the refuse has increased from approximately one-third to one-half, according to Charles Lewis, the township's liaison to the refuse committee and originator of the proposal.

"It is projected that 50 to 60 percent of the rubbish generated between May and October consists of grass clippings, branches and leaves," Lewis stated in his presentation to the township board. "It is also known that the moisture content of green grass, leaves and branches prohibits complete burning when incinerated. . . . (We) are in effect paying for moisture content . . . which we already know won't burn completely."

Composting would help contain Clinton's burning costs and provide township residents with free compost and wood chips, Lewis said. He presented figures for April-June, 1983, showing that, through composting, Clinton's incinerator tonnage could have been reduced from 12,649 to 6,324 at a savings of $159,850.

"These savings would allow the township to invest . . . in a grinder designed for the composting of leaves, grass clippings and small branches which would reduce composting time," Lewis said. "Equipment is available on the market today that can give you a finished product within a 45-day period."

He said the length of time required for composting depends upon the number of times the compost is turned and aerated.

The program would require vacant land for the operation, equipment for collection and processing, and education of the residents.

Lewis said that cable television would provide a vehicle for education.

"I have no doubt that if we inform and educate our residents as to the benefits of composting and potential stabilization of refuse rates, they will be more than willing to cooperate in helping us achieve a successful program," Lewis said.

During the 13 years since the formation of the refuse authority, the population of the Grosse Pointes has shrunk slightly, while Clinton's has burgeoned. While Clinton's population is recognized as the greatest threat to the incinerator's capacity, composting by any member community would reduce its dependence on the facility.

Incinerator General Manager Edwin Whedon said the authority owns enough property to carry on a composting project on site, but the problems attendant on separate treatment of compostable materials would probably be too great.

Helen Santiz

She may be perplexed, but . . .

Helen Santiz is almost never puzzled

By Tom Greenwood
When it's time to pick up the pieces, you can always count on Helen Santiz — especially if those pieces are oddly shaped, come in a box and number at least 1,000.

Santiz, of the City, will be competing in the National Jigsaw Puzzle Championships contest in Athens, Ohio next month, along with partner Rande Sorscher, of Oak Park.

This will be the second year of competition for Santiz, a math teacher at the Dearborn campus of the University of Michigan.

"We came within five minutes of making it into the finals last year," she said. "They take the first 15 to finish for the next day's competition. We came so close, it was really frustrating."

The contest is sponsored by Hallmark Cards and has been growing in popularity for the past eight years.

"Athens decided to stage the contest initially, then it really took off when Hallmark became involved," Santiz said. "We use only Springbok puzzles, which were originally made in Europe, until Hallmark bought the company. The puzzles are gorgeous. Some of the most beautiful photography you've ever seen."

Santiz entered when she substituted for another teacher who moved out of state. Jigsaw, word puzzles and the quirky side of mathematics have always fascinated her. The contest was a natural.

"Rande and I make a pretty good team," she said. "We balance each other. I see things mathematically. She sees them humanistically. One piece to me would look geometric. To her it looks like a man running."

"I also like to start with the edges and work my way in. She starts in the middle and works her way out. I think we're a good combination."

On competition day, Santiz and partner will compete against 179 other teams in a converted cow barn in downtown Athens. The puzzles, of 1,000 pieces each, will be the same for all the contestants.

Ninety tables will fill the floor, with two teams per table. "There's a one-foot-high wall that runs the length of the table," Santiz said. "You work one side, they work the other. You're not allowed to disturb anyone else, although casual conversation is allowed. Nobody tries to fool anyone else. There may be psychological ploys pulled on others when you're off the floor, but not during the contest itself.

"You're competing against yourself, not anyone else directly. It's not like chess where you're eyeball-to-eyeball."

As might be expected, the competition is fierce. "Some contestants are really uptight and take it very seriously," Santiz said. "Others are in it more or less for fun, but that doesn't mean they want to lose. There are a lot of family teams as well. Last year's winners were a mother/son team. They should do well again this year."

Once in the finals, the puzzles get a bit tougher. "There's a lot of secrecy involved too," Santiz said. "Those puzzles are kept under lock and key and aren't seen until the competition. For an added bit of drama, they had a sky diver float them in last year."

"The puzzles are pretty unique too. They're always throwing you curves. One puzzle during the finals wasn't the usual rectangle everyone expected. It was a giant candy bar with a bite missing. The bite was built right into the puzzle. Another was made of six smaller puzzles. They also include straight edges that fit within the puzzle. You think all along it goes on an edge, but it really doesn't. Oh, they can be pretty tricky."

Those competing in the singles division wrestle with puzzles containing 500 pieces, but they're just as difficult.

"The puzzles take hours to put together," Santiz said. "It's difficult to maintain that kind of mental discipline and intensity. Plus, it's physically draining. You're on your feet the whole time, bent over the table. It kills your back."

"You have to play your hunches. Sometimes it just seems like a piece should fit in this particular spot, and often it does. You don't have time to study. If it doesn't fit, you've got to move on."

Competitors even have different ways of emptying their boxes, according to Santiz.

"Some just dump them on the table, while others take out the pieces bit by bit," she said. "That's what I do. I don't like to waste time turning them all over when they're in a big pile."

Once the puzzle is completed, competitors move from the table and yell "Jigsaw." Judges scurry over to make sure the puzzle is completed correctly.

"It's really frustrating to be so close, with just one spot in the finals left, and then hear someone else yell those words," said Santiz with a smile. "It's like playing Bingo. I've seen more than one team get into a fight after it's all over when they're not competing, contestants can watch others vying on the floor, view a display of antique puzzles or cheer their children on in a kiddie competition."

"Rande practices all the time," Santiz said. "She's always got a puzzle going. I don't. I own perhaps 10 really good puzzles that I take out once a year. But once I start one, I have to finish it then and there. None of this leaving it on the table for awhile."

"And there are so many different types. There's crossword puzzle puzzles. You assemble them and it's a giant crossword puzzle complete with a booklet of questions. There are also puzzles within puzzles. Some are just gorgeous. There's a sealant that can be sprayed on the puzzle, so it hardens and can be hung on the wall like a photo. There's also a comy any that will turn your favorite photo into a puzzle," Santiz said. "I really think they've become an artform in themselves."

Great books class for young students

"Junior Great Books: An Introduction" will be scheduled this summer for students who have completed grades two through six by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Two sections will be offered beginning Monday, July 29, and ending Friday, Aug. 9. Second- and third-graders will meet from 9 to 10:30 a.m., while students in grades four through six will convene from 10:30 to noon.

Junior Great Books, a program of interpretive reading and discussion, teaches young people to formulate and ask questions as well as answer them. Students are taught to read interpretively and to think reflectively, to figure out an author's meaning by examining their own responses as they read, and learn to test their responses through "shared inquiry," a method of discussion developed by the Great Books Foundation.

Students discuss what genuinely puzzles them in what they read and try out explanations of the meaning of a piece to realize that false turns and "wrong" answers are an essential part of the interpretive process.

The classes, taught by Deanna Stephens, will be held at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, in the Woods. Fee for the two-week session is $26.25. In addition, students will purchase a text for $8.25. Call 343-2178 for space availability.

Michigan History

Did you know that forest fires in Michigan have been the cause of a number of shipwrecks or that the "sawtooth" reef near Eagle River in Michigan's western Upper Peninsula contains the greatest concentration of shipwrecks in the Great Lakes?

These "strange as it seems" facts, along with stories of shipwreck salvage, grave-stone rubbing and the state's new Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) museum at Higgins Lake are included in the July-August issue of Michigan History, the state's official historical publication.

The Eagle River Shoals, nicknamed "sawtooth ridge" is a five-mile long strip of jagged rock one mile off the Keweenaw Peninsula that has sunk or stranded 15 ships. Smoke from forest fires blanketing that area of Lake Superior and the light of one forest fire, mistaken for a lighthouse, contributed to the wrecks.

In addition to articles on the Great Lakes, the publication also features the history of Lapeer County and architect Albert Kahn who designed the porch of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island and the Ford Highland Park plant.

Published by the Bureau of History of the Department of State, Michigan History is available in single copies for $2 each or subscriptions for $9.95 per year. It is also available on newsstands. Checks should be made payable to the State of Michigan, and sent to the Michigan Bureau of History, Department of State, Lansing, Michigan, 48918.

Overseas employment

Overseas jobs with American employers are sometimes listed at local offices of state job service or employment security agencies, especially in large cities where home offices of major corporations are based. Check your telephone directory, under state government listing, for "Job Service," "employment service," or "employment security," according to a U.S. Department of Labor fact sheet.

Teachers, board divided on proposed changes

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Depending on who's talking, proposed changes in teacher certification that the state Board of Education will take up this fall will either increase professional development of teachers or unfairly single them out by forcing them to recertify every five years.

The first view comes from the state Board of Education, which held a series of public hearings on the certification changes in June. The second comes from the president of the Grosse Pointe Education Association, Doris Cook who is also a member of the board of directors for the Michigan Education Association, representing

The proposed changes in the teacher certification code would require all future teachers — those who receive their certificates after Sept. 1, 1988 — to renew their certificates every five years.

Also, all new middle school teachers in grades six, seven and eight, will only be able to teach subjects in which they have major or minor degrees. The only exception will be for teachers who teach all subjects in those grades in a self-contained classroom.

The rule changes will affect new teachers only, according to Robert Trezise, superintendent of teacher preparation and certification. All teachers who receive their degrees after September 1988 will need continuing education coursework in college or professional development programs in order to have their certificates renewed.

Professional development programs can come in a variety of forms, Trezise said. A French teacher may get continuing education credit for a trip to France, or the local school system may put together professional development programs approved by the state board, he added.

"This is the first time that certification will be related to something other than university work," Trezise said.

The board decided on the middle school change as a way of improving professional development, he said. In some districts, teachers can be assigned to classes in middle school with little or no training in the subject they will be teaching.

Exceptions are to accommodate small school districts and non-public schools, he added.

The proposals came from a commission appointed two years ago by the state board to look into the problem, Trezise said. The commission made a number of recommendations on which the code proposals are based.

The results will go to the state board in early fall, Trezise said. The board can then either adopt the rules, kill them, or modify them in some way, he added.

"These changes will only affect new teachers," Trezise said. "They will not affect presently certified teachers."

"The board will have a lot of problems dealing with (certification) because the rules are very complex and controversial," he added. The MEA has come out against the proposals, he added.

The MEA isn't against the testing of teachers before certification, but is opposed to asking teachers to return to "pre-certification status" every five years, according to GPEA's Cook. No other profession is asked to reapply for periodic certification and this requirement may steer people away from teaching careers, she added.

At this month's annual National Education Association convention, delegates passed a resolution supporting examinations for teachers before certification, Cook said. Other professionals, like lawyers and doctors, also take such exams before certification, she noted.

"If there can be a valid and non-discriminatory examination given, then we will support that," she said. "We do not support the testing of teachers who are currently practicing their profession."

"You don't ask lawyers to go back and take the bar exam every five years; you don't ask doctors to go back and take their boards every five years. Retesting will not insure teacher quality," she added.

Professional development programs should be the top priority, Cook said. A recommendation for the development of such programs was contained in Gov. James Blanchard's education task force report, she added.

State funding should be made available for programs that will help teachers update their skills. There should also be programs available for principals and administrators as well, Cook said. Surveys show that if professional development programs were available, local teachers would enroll in them, she added.

"Teachers have to be a part of developing these programs and we need sufficient release time to take part in them," Cook said. Often, programs are planned during or after the school day, when teachers are not in the classroom, she said.

not affect Grosse Pointe if enacted because the system already has a system of local qualifications in place, Cook said. The pay scales set locally along which teachers can't advance unless they have some supplementary education, she added.

MEA representatives made their objections to the changes known at the public hearing held by the state board, Cook said. What will come of their objections is unknown, she added. "We expect our voice to be heard, as we have always been heard," she said.

Mickey Mouse was featured in two silent movies before he broke into the big time in 1928 — "Steamboat Willie" and "Gallop 'n' Gauch'o."

The Detroit Committee of the Archives of American Art/Smithsonian Institution and Jacobson's will present Jewelry Auction-1985 and Collage of International Fashions, a benefit for the Archives, on Wednesday, Sept. 11, at the Westin Hotel in Renaissance Center.

Chairman of the event is Mrs. Victor Wertz who, with her committee, is busy addressing invitations and collecting unique, high-quality jewelry from donors, to be auctioned off by John Block, of Sotheby's. All proceeds will go to further the Archives' national program of collecting and preserving original papers, photographs and taped interviews that document the history of the visual arts in America from Colonial times to the present.

The evening will begin at 6 p.m., with a two-hour cocktail party, preview of the jewelry to be auctioned and sampling of international cuisine. The auction will be followed at 9 p.m. by Jacobson's fashion presentation, after which desserts will be served.

Pointers participating with Lucille Wertz in preparations for this special night are Mrs. J. Addison Bartush, Mrs. Bogdan Baynert, Mrs. Mark Beltaire, Mrs. William Dahling, Mrs. Ernest DuMouchelle, Mrs. Charles Endicott, Mrs. Frank Germack, Mrs. Hugh Harness, Mrs. Richard Kughn, Mrs. Thomas Schoenith, Richard Manoogian and Mrs. Keith Crain.

Tickets for the benefit, at $75 per person, can be purchased from Archives members or by calling the Archives Office, 226-7544. That's also the number to call if you'd like to donate jewelry — and if you do, the Archives will be VERY pleased to hear from you.

* 4 *

Metropolitan Detroit support for the Archives of American Art has always been very strong, for the Archives began in Detroit, in 1954, becoming a bureau of the Smithsonian 16 years later, in 1970. It holds the largest collection of material in the world pertinent to the study of the art and cultural history of America — not only the papers of painters, sculptors, craftsmen, collectors and dealers, but also those of historians, curators, critics, museums, societies and institutions: the persons and places which have had to do with art in America.

The Archives is partially supported by Federal appropriations . . . but gifts and contributions fund the comprehensive national collecting activities which search for and find important records of our cultural heritage before they are inadvertently lost or destroyed forever.

Hence the Detroit Committee's Jewelry Auction/International Fashion Collage benefit. It's a beautiful way to begin the fall season, and a beautiful way to support an incomparable national resource.

Grosse Pointe blooms for July Garden Tour

It's midsummer blooming time in The Pointes — a perfect time for the 12th Annual Garden Tour sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council. It's a three-day tour, opening tomorrow, Friday, July 19, and running through Sunday, July 21, rain or shine. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. all three days, when tickets, at $5 per person, will be available at the gardens featured this year. They are:

- The Blumenstock Garden — 30 Moorland Drive.
- The Cooper Garden — 24 South Edgewood Drive.
- The Dolega Garden — 366 Moross Road.
- The Earle Garden — 166 Cloverly Road.
- The Reghanti Garden — 94 Cloverly Road.
- The Ruffner Garden — 221 Lewiston Road.
- The Herb Gardens on the Grounds of the Grosse Pointe Academy.
- The Trial Gardens on the Lakeside Lawn of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.
- The Gies Garden — 821 Harcourt Road.
- The McCoy Garden — 1014 Buckingham Road.

Although tickets will be available at all these gardens during the tour hours, you can purchase them in advance today, before 4 p.m., in the Garden Center Room at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Each ticket comes with a brochure, on the back of which is a map showing the garden locations in relation to Lake St. Clair and the I-94 Expressway. Tour proceeds will, as always, be used for beautification of The Five Grosse Pointes.

Miss Fleming is May bride

At home on Nottingham Road are Mr. and Mrs. Derek John Stratelak, who cruised to Bermuda following their late spring wedding in Saint Clare of Montefalco Church.

Mrs. Stratelak is the former Eileen Anne Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, of Audubon Road. Mr. Stratelak is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Stratelak, of Anita Avenue.

The 5:30 o'clock rites Saturday, May 25, at which Father John J. Burkhardt, O.S.A., presided were followed by a reception at Valentino's Hall.

The bride's gown of candlelight ivory satin and marquisette sheer, accented with re-embroidered Alencon lace and seed pearls, was made by a friend, Charlotte Mullen, of Allen Park.

Mrs. Mullen also fashioned the bridal headpiece, a cap of matching lace appliques with seed pearl accents, holding a fingertip veil. Miniature carnations pink and white roses and baby's-breath formed the bridal bouquet.

All members of both the bride and bridegroom's immediate families were included in the wedding party. Beth Anne Fleming, honor attendant for her sister, wore a tea length dress of pink lace, sashed in grey, and carried three long-stemmed, pink roses, with baby's-breath.

Bridesmaids Terese Fleming, their sister-in-law, Rose Tom-Mirjah, Pamela Horne, Prudy Mocerri, Paula Rinke, Nancy Stimer, Sylvia Villarroel and Lisa Garbin-Cornack, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in pink-sashed dresses of pale grey lace, each carried a single, long-stemmed, pink rose, with baby's-breath.

Best man was Edward Fleming Jr., brother of the bride. The bridegroom's twin brothers, Gerald Stratelak, of Hinsdale, Ill., and Taras Stratelak, of San Bernardino, Calif. ushered, as did the bride's brothers, Michael Patrick, Terence and Timothy Fleming, with Otto Coppen and Patrick McCarroll. Readings were given by Susan and Patrick McCarroll.

Mrs. Fleming selected a tea length dress of pale green silk, styled with short, loose sleeves, for her daughter's wedding. The bridegroom's mother's long-sleeved dress of periwinkle blue chiffon was also tea length. Each mother wore a wrist corsage of pink and white miniature roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Derek J. Stratelak

Out-of-town guests included the bride's uncles and aunts, Mr. and Mrs. James Fleming, of Philadelphia, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fleming, of Berwyn, Pa., Mrs. Ann McGarry, of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nunes, of Newport, R.I.

More were her great-uncle and great-aunts, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fleming, of Corcroft, Del., and Sister Edward Anita, S.S.J., of Short Hills, N.J., and her step-grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Moran, who came with her sister, Sister James Marie, I.H.M., from Philadelphia.

From Philadelphia, too, came the bride's cousins Maryellen, Suzann, James, Edward and Daniel McGarry; Kathleen, Mary Anne, Peter, John, Lisa and James Fleming and Joseph Sable. More cousins of the bride who traveled from Pennsylvania to attend the wedding were Matthew and Robert Fleming, of Berwyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Neil McGarry, of Lansdale.

Other out-of-town guests included Kathleen Mattingly, of Brookfield, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Mario Garbin and John Cornack, of Pittsburgh, Wendy Tom, of Long Island, N.Y., Blaise Chaplow, of Coral Springs, Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cornack, of Dublin, Ohio.

Miss Bidigare speaks vows

A gown of white satin, styled with an overskirt of white chiffon appliqued with Alencon lace and featuring a chapel train, was Cecilia Mary Bidigare's choice for her winter wedding to Gregory Joseph Harvey.

Her hip length veil was caught by a lace Juliet cap. She carried an arrangement of white roses, Fuji mums, white and lavender statice and baby's-breath, outlined with fern.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Bidigare, of Edmondton Drive. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Harvey, of Dearborn, are the bridegroom's parents.

The Reverend Vincent W. Bryce, O.P., pastor of Saint Gertrude Church, St. Clair Shores, presided at the 3 o'clock rites Saturday, February 23, in Saint Gertrude's. A reception followed at Lakeland Manor, after which the newlyweds left to vacation at Niagara Falls. They are at home in Allen Park.

The bride made her own gown and veil and the mauve satin, pouff-sleeved gowns of her attendants, her sisters Barbara Ann Bidigare, of Haslett, who served as maid of honor, and bridesmaid Carol Susan Bidigare, of Arlington, Tex.

Each carried an arrangement of Lavon roses, white Fuji mums, lavender statice and mauve and white miniature chrysanthemums.

Best man was Robert J. Bemben, of Dearborn Daniel J. Harvey, of Allen Park, the bridegroom's brother, ushered.

The mother of the bride, in plum chiffon crepe, wore a wrist corsage of mauve roses and white statice. The bridegroom's mother selected a dress of crepe print on a beige background and a wristlet arrangement of tea roses and statice.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory J. Harvey

The new Mrs. Harvey, an instructor of Nursing at Mercy College, is attending Wayne State University, working toward a Masters degree in Nursing. The bridegroom is studying for his Doctorate in Toxicology at the University of Michigan.

Gregory J. Chancey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Chancey, of Grand Marais Boulevard, received a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration from Ferris State College. He also was awarded an Associate degree in Marketing and a certificate in Statutory Real Estate. Gregory is currently working toward a masters degree at Ferris.

Anne Bauhof

Miss Bauhof to be married

The engagement of Anne Romeyn Bauhof and Gerard Russell Fancovic was announced recently at a family dinner party at the Detroit Athletic Club. A September wedding is planned.

Miss Bauhof, daughter of Mrs. Joyce Alef Bauhof, of Lincoln Road, and Richard M. Bauhof, of West Bloomfield, is descended from two of Detroit's original families. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. M.J. Alef, of Grosse Pointe, and the late Mr. Alef, financier, and of Mrs. Martin Bauhof, of Cleveland, Ohio, and the late Mr. Bauhof.

She is an alumna of the Grosse Pointe Academy and University Liggett School, holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics and Business Administration, International Commerce Concentration, from Kalamazoo College, where she was awarded a Senior Fellowship in Economics and named to the Dean's List, and studied for six months in Clermont-Ferrand, France.

A member of Alpha Lambda Delta honor society, she is a marketing analyst with the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Fancovic, of Coleman, Mich., is a graduate of Coleman High School, where he was a member of the National Honor Society and received the John Philip Sousa Band Award.

He, too, holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics and Business Administration, International Commerce Concentration, from Kalamazoo College, was awarded a Senior Fellowship in Economics and named to the Dean's List, and is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta honor society. He studied in Hannover, West Germany, for three months.

He is currently an office manager with the Illinois Institute for Continuing Legal Education.

Carol Ann Smith

Cross-Smith rites planned

Early November wedding plans are being made by Grosse Pointe Public Schools teacher Carol Ann Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert G. Smith, of Tecumseh, and Wallace E. Cross III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace E. Cross Jr., of Deerfield Beach, Fla.

Bliss Smith is a graduate of Western Michigan University. Her fiance, an East Detroit High School alumnus, attended Michigan State University. He is president of Ullman Sails Ltd., St. Clair Shores.

Elisabeth Montague

Make August wedding date

August wedding plans are being made by Elisabeth Montague and Kevin Edward Dillingham whose engagement has been announced by her parents, The Reverend and Mrs. Eugene B. Montague, former Pointers who now make their home in Howell.

Miss Montague was graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School and the University of Michigan Medical School. She completed a residency in Emergency Medicine at Geisinger Medical Center, Danville, Pa., and is currently an associate in Emergency Medicine with the Geisinger Medical Group-Wilkes Barre, Pa.

Mr. Dillingham, son of Mrs. Florence Dillingham, of Palm Bay, Fla., and the late Martin A. Dillingham, was graduated from Highland Falls High School, Highland Falls, N.Y., and holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Aeronautical Studies from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University.

He served with the United States Army in Vietnam and is currently employed by Omniflight Airways as a helicopter pilot for Life Flight, based at Geisinger Medical Center.

Nancy Steyer

Nancy Steyer to say vows

Mid-October wedding plans are being made by Nancy R. Steyer and Douglas B. Stapleton whose engagement has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Steyer, of Lakeside Court.

Miss Steyer, a Grosse Pointe South High School alumna, holds an Associates degree in Business Administration from Western Michigan University.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stapleton, of Detroit, is an Austin Catholic Prep School graduate and received his Bachelors degree in Engineering from Wayne State University. He is a project engineer with Design Systems, Inc., of Farmington Hills.

Fall wedding date is made

Early September wedding plans are being made by Barbara E. Graham and James W. Robinson III whose engagement has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Graham, of Owosso Township.

Miss Graham, an Owosso High School graduate, received a Bachelor of Science degree in Merchandising Management from Michigan State University in March.

Mr. Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Robinson Jr., of Lincoln Road, was graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School and is currently manager of Studio Camera, located in Birmingham where his fiance is employed at The Tailbots.

Enjoying Artists Market 'Auto Suggestions'

Hosts and hostesses at the Detroit Artists Market "Auto Suggestions" opening reception included (left to right) Barbara Fisher, Cynthia Ford, Alfred Fisher IV, Alfred Fisher III, Edsel Ford and William Chapin. The exhibit, which features five installations in the Lower Gallery by local artists Jorg Erichsen, Al Hebert, Jim Pallas, John Slick and Ann Treadwell, plus a "Body Shop" of multiple art works for sale, runs through tomorrow, Friday, July 19, at the non-profit gallery which shows the work of artists living/working within a 70-mile radius of Detroit, including Essex County, Canada. In conjunction with "Auto Suggestions," a photographic exhibition juried by Dorothy Manty of the Detroit Public Library, on view in the Upper Gallery, focuses on automotive world images. The Artists Market is located on Randolph Street in Detroit's Harmonie Park area. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

MOT issues call for kids

Michigan Opera Theatre will hold auditions tomorrow, Friday, July 19, for boys and girls, ages 8 to 13, interested in singing in the children's chorus of Leonecavallo's "I Pagliacci" or the solo boy role in Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi."

Interested children should prepare two contrasting musical selections of their choice and must call the MOT Production Office, W-3717, for an appointment no later than today, Thursday, July 18.

MOT's 15th anniversary 1985-86 season sees the company moving from Music Hall to the Fisher Theatre where the first production, a double bill of "Gianni Schicchi" and "I Pagliacci," will run Oct. 11 through 19.

MOT's fall season also includes the revival of von Flotow's romantic comedy "Martha" Nov. 1 through 9, followed by Bernstein's award-winning "West Side Story" Nov. 15 to Dec. 1.

The season will conclude with three performances of Puccini's grand opera "Turandot" Mar. 5 through 8, 1986, at the Masonic Temple.

Information on the 1985-86 season is available by contacting the MOT Subscription Office, 963-0920.

Take in Ann Arbor Art Fair the easy way

Educational Travel Coordinator Wanda Gierlach has announced that this is the last week to reserve space on the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's day trip to Ann Arbor's Art Festival next Wednesday, July 24.

"The advantage of this package," Mrs. Gierlach says, "is that art fanciers can travel via air-conditioned motorcoach and leave their parking worries at home."

The bus will leave the War Memorial at 8:45 a.m. Complimentary coffee will be served along the way. Once in Ann Arbor, day-trippers can meander at their own pace through the exhibits; later, they will meet at the Campus Inn for a lunch of Canadian cheese soup, spinach and chicken salad and Baked Alaska.

There will be additional time after lunch to shop. The bus will return to the War Memorial at 5 p.m.

Cost is $23 per person, including transportation and luncheon. To reserve space, send a check or money order to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236 — or stop in and sign-up in person.

Saturday luncheon for Josiah Harmar

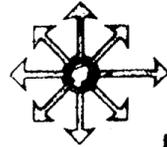

The Grosse Pointe General! Josiah Harmar Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet for luncheon at 12:30 p.m. this Saturday, July 20, at the Garfield Street home of Mrs. John S. Buchanan.

Co-hostesses are Mrs. Walter Fysh and Mrs. Jack Blom. Speaker Sarah Davis, of Lakeville, will give the history of "Miss Liberty."

Bon Secours gets $190,000 'assistance'

William L. Hurlley, Bon Secours Hospital's director of Development and Community Relations, smiles his appreciation as Sister Anne Marie Mack, C.B.S. (center), accepts the Bon Secours Assistance League's donation of $190,000 to the hospital. Presenting the check, representing proceeds from the Assistance League's 1984-85 fund-raising efforts, is Jane Bodeau, the League's outgoing president. Of the total, $145,000 is allocated for advanced equipment for Bon Secours' laboratory and Cardiopulmonary Diagnostic Center in St. Clair Shores. The Sister Rosaria Buesching Hospice Fund will receive $40,000, and $5,000 will go towards the Delivered Meals Program. The presentation was made at the Assistance League's year-end meeting in May, during which outgoing officers were thanked and incoming officers introduced. The new officers are Mickey Schaefer, president; Patricia Shea, president-elect; Margaret Guertler, second vice-president; Jean Kennary, recording secretary, Evelyn Schrage, corresponding secretary; Gertrude La Ferte, treasurer; and Gabrielle Healy, treasurer-elect.

First Society aids children

The First Society of Detroit's annual summer benefit drew more than 250 single, young adults to Hillcrest Country Club on the last Sunday of June, and resulted in a donation of $2500 to the Foundation for Exceptional Children.

The Foundation provides assistance and training to mentally and physically impaired children in the Detroit metropolitan area, aimed at preparing them for future public school placements.

First Society funds will be used to send children to Camp Ozanam in Lexington, and to purchase special orthopedic equipment.

Working Artists of The Pointe

The just-published "Directory of American Portrait Artists," produced by the non-profit American Portrait Society, is another valuable resource for all those interested in art: a listing by state of currently working portrait artists, with biographies and photographs of their work.

Three of the nine Michigan listees are Pointers. There's Cynthia Brooks, whose subjects range from corporate executives to baseball star Al Kaline. She travels throughout the country, meeting with clients on their home ground, taking photographs and making sketches, then returns to complete her portraits in her Grosse Pointe studio.

Cynthia is a member of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association. One of the founders of the GPAA is another American Portrait Artists Directory listee, V. Durbin Thibodeau, a former board member of the Michigan Academy of Sciences, Arts and Letters who has had 21 one-woman shows, including an invitational in her native Toledo Museum of Art and the United States Senate.

Ginny, head of the Art Department at the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Grosse Pointe, for 19 years, is an invited member of the National Miniature Painters, Sculptors and Engravers Society of Washington, D.C. She works in pastel, oil, terra cotta and bronze, and has won awards in the United States, France and Italy.

Thomas John Viviano, the Directory's third Pointe listee, often signs his work "Gaetano." He has studied with such nationally-known portraitists as Daniel E. Greene, N.A., who came to The Pointe last year at Ginny Thibodeau's invitation for a week-long residency at the Grosse Pointe Academy.

Viviano/Gaetano has been painting oil portraits for more than 20 years. He's depicted men, children, even pets, but admits his favorite subjects are women, of all ages. His technique is realistic, his colors impressionistic, and he does everything from small, head-and-shoulders compositions to mantel-size family groups.

Dossin Museum Turns Twenty-Five

The BIG museum anniversary in Detroit this year is, of course, the Detroit Institute of Arts' Centennial — but commercial and recreational vessels passing the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle next Wednesday, July 24, will be giving the traditional salute (three long, two short) in celebration of Dossin's 25th anniversary.

Ashore, during the museum's special extended hours of 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., there'll be a program of festivities, free birthday cake and a prize for every 25th visitor. Other special gifts will be dispersed in the Great Lakes by Ford Fleet during July.

The Dossin Great Lakes Museum became a reality through the efforts of Grosse Pointe's Ernest J. Dossin family. It opened on July 24, 1960. Since then, via exhibits and programs, the museum has promoted greater public awareness of Detroit's and Michigan's maritime history.

Popular attractions include the Miss Pepsi hydroplane, the restored lounge of the City of Detroit III and a reconstructed pilot house. A current exhibit, Michigan's Nautical Time Capsules, examines Great Lakes shipwrecks as examples of marine culture. The museum is operated by the Detroit Historical Department and is open year-round, Wednesday through Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is by voluntary donation.

Thanksgiving Season Treat Ahead

Looking past summer ... be advised that there's a Thanksgiving Season treat in store for you this year. A select group of area designers will display their creative talents at "The Festival of Trees," a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan, from Tuesday, Nov. 26, through Sunday, Dec. 1, in Cobo Hall's Riverview Room.

The display will feature 100 beautifully-decorated, permanent holiday trees. Each designer will select a theme and develop it on his/her tree. Seven special Festival Design Awards will be presented at the Preview Party on Nov. 26, including A Child's Dream, The Spirit of Detroit, A Christmas Remembered, Holiday Spirit, The Best of Festival, The People's Choice and Designer's Choice.

For Everything, There Is A Season ...

... and what can I say? This is the last column I shall be writing for the Grosse Pointe News. Is it a case of: "Panicked at the thought of another House Tour, she ran screaming from the newsroom ...?" Perhaps, partly. But the real reason is: for everything there is a season, and although my season at the NEWS has been lovely, it's time for a new season. Love you all — Janet.

Plan Vacation Bible School

Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, located on Mack Avenue, has scheduled its annual Vacation Bible School for the week of Aug. 5 through 3. The program will run from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. each day, and is open to all children age 4 and up. Cost is $5 per child, not to exceed $12 per family.

This year's theme is "God's People Pray." Each day the children will have one hour of class time, followed by an hour of snacks, games, singing and movies. On Friday there will be a special program and lunch for the children and their families.

School coordinators are Shirley Goolsby and Lynda Grippi. Teachers and helpers are Betty Dornbrook, Jan Lane, Linda Safran, Tammy Donahue, Sue Greene, Chris Miller, Helen Szazama, Dolores Bolden, Joanne Spencer, Alberta Craik, Lizzie Bolden, Kathy Bakeman, Judy Wilcox, Carol Easton, Nan Strandhagen, Theresa Arnold, Evelyn Donahue, Sue Fujita, Yvette Delaurier, Donna Weible, Marlene Linthicum and Jack DeForest.

Further information may be obtained and registration made by calling the church office, 886-4300.

Two Meadow Brook dates

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Chrysler Concert Series at Meadow Brook continues with concerts led by Polish conductor Jerzy Semkow tonight, Thursday, July 18, and Sunday, July 21, at 8 p.m.

This evening's soloist is DSO principal cellist Italo Babin, who will play the Detroit premier of the Maurice Gendron edition of Concerto for Cello and Orchestra in B flat, G. 482, by 18th century composer Luigi Boccherini.

Sunday's guest artist is violinist Ruggiero Ricci, a veteran of over 5,000 performances in 64 countries, with more than 500 recordings to his credit. He will play Paganini's Violin Concerto No. 1.

Both performances open with Rossini's Overture to "L'Italiana in Algeri" and close with Schumann's Symphony No. 2. Tickets, ranging in price from $10 (lawn seating) to $16, are available at the Meadow Brook Box Office, 377-2010, Hudson's and other Ticket World locations and all AAA branch offices.

'Souper' night for Capuchins

Balloons lift our spirits... and that's why it will be "Up, Up, and Away!" on Friday, July 26, at the Premier Center in Sterling Heights for the Capuchin Souper Summer Celebration co-sponsored by Edmund Ahee Jewelers, the Premier Center and R. Lowell Ahee Jewelers.

There'll be free admission to the balloon-decorated party headquarters, beginning at 8 p.m. plus free snacks, a cash bar and live entertainment by the Jerry Ross Band. There'll be special prizes, for which tickets can be purchased at both Ahee jewelers, the Premier Center and the Capuchin Community Center.

All proceeds from the fourth annual fund raiser will help the Capuchins support their center and continue to provide clothing, food packages, household goods and counseling in addition to the 700 meals served daily in their "soup kitchen."

Further information on the Souper Celebration is available by calling 886-4602 Monday through Saturday, or by contacting the Capuchin Center, 579-1330.

Birthday date at Ft. Wayne

Detroit will be 284 years old next Wednesday, July 24, and Historic Fort Wayne, located at Livernois and West Jefferson Avenue off I-75, will celebrate the occasion with an evening concert — and birthday cake for the first 500 persons who show up for it.

The free concert, featuring light classics and "pops," will begin at 7:30 p.m. on the Parade Ground of Detroit's Civil War fort. On-site, lighted parking is available. Additional information may be obtained by calling 297-9360.

Woman's Health

Is Menstruation a Pain for You?

By William T. Mixson, M.D., President
The American College of Obstetrician and Gynecologists

Menstrual cramps: more than half of all women who menstruate have had to contend with this painful condition sometime during their life. In fact, about 10 percent of women have such severe cramps that they may be unable to function one or two days each month.

After centuries of blaming this condition on everything from devils to problems with femininity, and trying as many treatments, medicine has finally traced a connection for many women between painful cramps and high levels of chemicals called prostaglandins in the body during menstruation.

Those women whose painful cramps start shortly after their first menstrual period have what is known as primary dysmenorrhea. The cramps usually begin right before or with the beginning of the menstrual period, and can be accompanied by diarrhea, nausea, vomiting, leg and back pain, chills and dizziness.

This may last from a few hours up to three days. The good news is that dysmenorrhea may decrease over the years, and often is less severe after pregnancy.

Women who suffer from dysmenorrhea produce an excess of certain chemicals called prostaglandins that cause the uterus to contract in a way similar to labor contractions. These chemicals also reduce the blood flow to the pelvic organs, which increases the pain.

Luckily, there are now medications available that reduce the prostaglandins and relieve the pain with few side effects. You should talk to your doctor about which one may work best for you.

If the drugs are not effective for you another alternative may be the birth control pill, which reduces or eliminates cramps. Mild cramps are often helped by aspirin, or other over-the-counter menstrual pain medicines, and home remedies such as heating pads, massage, an alcoholic beverage (which relaxes the muscles and opens the blood vessels) or mild exercise.

Menstrual cramps may signify a problem when they develop later in a woman's life. Known as secondary dysmenorrhea, cramps that begin in a woman's 20s or 30s may be caused by such conditions as endometriosis or pelvic inflammatory disease. If you are an adult woman and have recently developed cramps that are occurring with some regularity, see your doctor.

Women will continue to have menstrual cramps... but today there is no reason why you should have to suffer their pain and inconvenience. If your cramps are still giving you a "pain," see your doctor.

Single, free copies of "Dysmenorrhea" (p-046) are available by sending a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope along with the name of the booklet to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center, 600 Maryland Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20024.

Trying to go it alone?

Christ Jesus, the man with the most demanding job in all history, didn't try to go it alone. He looked to his Father constantly. In fact, he said, "The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do."

Like Jesus, you can rely on God's love and power.

This is what worship services are about at the Christian Science church — each Sunday morning and Wednesday evening.

You're invited to come and explore God's goodness with us.

THREE DISTINGUISHED HOMES

• $1,000,000 wouldn't buy this fine house in many areas. You and your family can move in for much less than half that figure. This distinguished historical house, featured in Ferry's Buildings of Detroit, is located on one of Grosse Pointe's best streets • Living room fireplace wall for Standish Place — London c. 1670 • Dining room paneling and carved column from Halilton Palace — Scotland c. 1590 • Two carved Adam fireplace mantles c. 1740 • Walnut parquet and random width oak floors • Extensive utility updating and custom storm windows • Six bedrooms and six bathrooms. library conservatory, greenhouse.

Designed by Yamasaki and hidden away on a one and six tenths acre wooded lot at the end of a secluded cul-de-sac, this architectural gem is one of the Pointe's most distinguished homes. The large windows and attractive atrium brings abundant light into the house even on cloudy days. The ingeniously designed floor plan allows for family activities or entertaining while simultaneously affording privacy in other areas. Economical use of space is achieved by the extensive use of built-in cabinets and drawers. Six-seven bedrooms — five baths — family room — wood deck and much more. Located in the Farms, the Yamasaki name, its location and superb design make this a great investment as well as a fine family home.

Originally built for a governor of Michigan, this fine house is situated on a secluded brick street near the lake. Classic oak parquet and herringbone floors grace many of the spacious rooms five of which have a fireplace. Recent improvements included new roof, gutters, custom storm windows and doors and insulation in attic, walls and basement. Eight bedrooms and five and one-half baths.

Grosse Pointe's gardens are earthly delights

At top and bottom right are views of the Blumenstock Garden, one of eight private gardens to be open this weekend, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 19, 20 and 21, from 1 to 5 p.m. for the Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council's 12th Annual Grosse Pointe Garden Tour. Also featured on the tour are two "community" gardens: the Herb Gardens on the grounds of the Grosse Pointe Academy, dedicated to the memory of their planner, Lottie Crawley (her memorial tablet is pictured at bottom left), and the Trial Gardens on the Lakeside Lawn of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Each garden on the tour will be marked with a yellow flag. For a list of the tour gardens, and information on how to get tour tickets, turn to Page One of The Second Section. And enjoy!

Busy theatre year ahead for Wayne State

Fourteen productions in three houses, by playwrights ranging from Shakespeare and Moliere to George S. Kaufman and Tennessee Williams, are scheduled for Wayne State University's Hilberry, Bonstelle and Studio Theatres in 1985-86.

The Hilberry plays, performed in rotating repertory, and their official opening dates are:

- Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," directed by Robert Emmett McGill, Oct. 17.
- "Step, Look and Listen," a British music hall revue conceived by director Robert T. Hazzard and choreographer Nira Pullin, Oct. 18.
- Kaufman and Edna Ferber's American comedy classic "The Royal Family," directed by Mc-Gill, Nov. 21.

- Peter Shaffer's "Equus," directed by Anthony Schmitt, Dec. 19.
- Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," directed by Margaret Spear, Feb. 13.
- Moliere's "Misanthrope," directed by Joseph Calarco, Mar. 27.
- Murray Schisgal's long-running Broadway comedy "All Over Town," directed by Schmitt, Apr. 24.

The Bonstelle plays, presented for two weekends each, and their opening dates are:

- Feydeau's "Cat Among the Pigeons," directed by Schmitt, Oct. 18.
- A special holiday production of Barrie's "Peter Pan," directed by

Open Designerhome as benefit for MS

A $500,000 Bloomfield Hills home, its interiors decorated by members of the Interior Design Society, will be open for viewing by the public from next Tuesday, July 23, through Sunday, Aug. 18.

All monies collected in ticket sales will directly benefit the Michigan Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The Designerhome is located on Hickory Grove in the Chestnut Run development, between Lahser and Telegraph, just south of Square Lake Road. It will be open Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. and Sundays from noon to 6 p.m. Mondays, the Designerhome will be closed.

The house includes a master bedroom and guest suites, five bathrooms, cathedral ceilings, bay windows and wooded decks. It will be decorated in a totally eclectic style, with peach, teal blue and taupe as the harmonizing colors.

A large display of Michigan artwork will be featured in the foyer. Tickets are $5 at the door, but may be obtained for $4 before July 23. Information on how to get advance tickets is available by calling 967-2211.

Calarco, Dec. 6.

- "Return from Harlem," WSU English Professor Alvin Aubert's dramatization of Paul Laurence Dunbar's "The Sport of the Gods," directed by Von H. Washington, Jan. 24.
- Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing," directed by McGill, Mar. 7.
- Tennessee Williams' "Period of Adjustment," directed by Hazard, Apr. 25.

Studio productions, each playing for two weeks Thursday through Sunday, and their opening dates are:

- "In My Father's House," two one-act plays, one by Ted Shine, one by Von H. Washington, director, Nov. 7.
- P.S. Porter to Springsteen, an original revue highlighting songs of the past decades, directed by Philip Fox, Jan. 16.

Announcement of the season was made last month by Howard Burman, whose appointment as director of the Wayne State University Theatres began June 3. Free brochures with complete information on plays, schedules and tickets may be obtained by calling the Hilberry Theatre box office, 577-2972.

Handbook focuses on women's rights

Women's legal rights as they pertain to jobs and job opportunities have changed significantly in the past two decades. Yet many working women are still uncertain about these rights and about the protection and sources of assistance offered them under Federal and State law.

A recent publication by the United States Department of Labor outlines women's legal rights as they apply to employment and explains how women can assert their job rights.

The guide covers on-the-job rights; dealing with promotions; training; maternity leave; sexual harassment; union participation;

Social Security; retirement and more.

It provides explanations of what women should do if they believe their legal rights are being denied and lists the names and addresses of Federal and State Agencies responsible for enforcing women's rights. Samples of official complaint forms are also included.

The handbook has been prepared for today's working woman in government or private industry, and to prepare women about to enter the job market. Employers and supervisors will find it an aid in their day today dealings with employees.

Elegant Eating

A selection of recipes from the low-calorie, low cholesterol — and penny wise — collection of Thyla Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth featuring, this week, dishes utilizing a variety of HERBS and SPICES.

Herbs and spices are excellent, flavorful substitutes for salt, sugar and fat — the culprits associated with a variety of ailments. Early cookbooks used only the blandest of seasonings but, after World War II, herb and spice books flooded the market. Today, more than 200 million pounds of herbs and spices are consumed annually in the United States alone.

BEST-EVER BARBECUED CHICKEN

- 6 chicken breasts, split
- 6 Tbsp. margarine, melted
- 1/2 cup herbed wine vinegar
- 1 Tbsp. dry mustard
- 2 Tbsp. grated onion
- 1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 cup tomato catsup
- 2 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/8 tsp. salt (optional)
- 1 1/2 tsp. sugar
- 1/4 tsp. dill weed
- 1/2 tsp. parsley, dried
- 1/2 tsp. poultry seasoning

Skin the chicken breasts and remove as much fat as possible. Wash in cold water; place flesh side up in large, shallow baking dish. Slide under broiler for 5 minutes; turn and broil 5 minutes on other side.

Meanwhile, prepare sauce in small saucepan. Melt margarine over low flame; add remaining ingredients. Simmer about 10 minutes to blend flavors.

At end of the broiling time, baste chicken with barbeque sauce, then put in preheated 350° oven to bake 10 minutes. While baking, baste chicken generously and frequently with the sauce; the success of barbequed chicken lies in steeping it in plenty. Makes 3 or will be nice and

HOT CABBAGE SLAW

- 2 Tbsp. sugar
- 1 Tbsp. minced onion
- 1/2 tsp. caraway seed
- 1/2 tsp. dry mustard
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper
- 3 Tbsp. white vinegar
- 2 Tbsp. margarine
- 4 cups finely shredded cabbage
- 1 cup unpeeled diced apple

Combine sugar, onion, caraway seed, dry mustard, pepper and vinegar. Blend thoroughly; set aside. Melt margarine in a large skillet. Add cabbage and apple and saute over medium heat 3 minutes. Stir in vinegar mixture and simmer on low heat, stirring occasionally, until apples and cabbage are tender, about 5 minutes. Makes 7 servings.

SPICED GRAPES

- Tokay, Emperor or Thompson seedless green grapes
- 5 whole cloves
- 5 whole allspice
- 2-inch stick cinnamon
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 cup white vinegar

Select firm, not over-ripe, grapes; leave on stems; snip into small clusters; wash and drain. Tightly pack grapes and spices into a clean pint jar, being careful not to bruise fruit. Combine sugar and vinegar; heat, stirring until sugar dissolves; boil 5 minutes. Pour hot syrup over grapes; cover tightly. Refrigerate one or two days. Drain before serving. Makes 1 pint.

Sports Week

By Peggy O'Connor

Behind the scenes

They're everywhere.

They coach. They manage. They run the concession stands at both high school basketball games and North High baseball games, help control the crowd at hockey games and soccer matches, now the fields, groom the pitchers' mounds and apply the odd coat of paint. Without "them," Grosse Pointe's coaches, athletic administrators and sports programs would be up the proverbial creek... because the "they" in this instance — the Pointe's many sports volunteers — are usually the ones with the paddles.

Take the Neighborhood Club, hub of athletic activity in this little burg. Try as they might, the nice folks who run the Club couldn't possibly manage without the yeoman-like efforts of volunteers. Neither could the folks at the prep sports level, in Little League, or Babe Ruth League, or the Grosse Pointe Soccer and Hockey Associations or just about any other sports program, for that matter.

"Oh, you'd better believe our volunteers are essential. Without them, we couldn't run anywhere near the breadth of programs we do," says Neighborhood Club executive director John Bruce. "In our case, it's primarily coaches. We do not pay our coaches. The men and women who sacrifice so much time for the kids of Grosse Pointe are NOT paid to do it. But even if we could pay them, what kind of price could we put on the level of commitment we get from some of these people?"

What makes a good volunteer? Well, they have to be patient (as patient as possible given the fact that teaching 25 6-year-olds how to kick a soccer ball demands a lot in the surplus patience department), kind, thoughtful, thick-skinned and devoted to the max. There aren't enough Boy Scouts (they fit most of the bill as described above) around, so parents (who already have a lot invested in their OWN kids and kid-problems) are usually the ones who put that hand tentatively into the air when the call "Any volunteers?" goes out.

And what do they get for their devoted volunteer efforts? No money, not much glory and occasionally, the beginnings of an industrial-strength headache when things don't go as well as planned. See, it's a little easier to be a volunteer when your own kids are involved in a program, or when the kids involved are so little that a minimum of work is required, or when the nearest non-volunteers haven't gotten around to beefing about what they consider as job "not well done."

Things get a little tougher when the kids get older, the work doubles and both kids and parents become a little more competitive. Which is why I want to know why "they" bother?

"Lord knows," says out-going Park Little League president Sue Petersmarck, herself an "aw, gee, don't make a big deal out of what I do" — type volunteer. "Take a guy like Larry Harding. He has no child in our Little League program anymore, but he's out there coaching and turning the sprinklers on the fields at 5 a.m. and staying until the last hose is put away after the games at night. I don't know why he does it... but I'm sure glad he does it for us," Petersmarck says.

In my quest to discover what motivates the many Pointe volunteers (guilt? masochism? wives and/or husbands who are world class naggers? therapy?) the closest thing to an answer I got from the volunteers themselves was "we enjoy it."

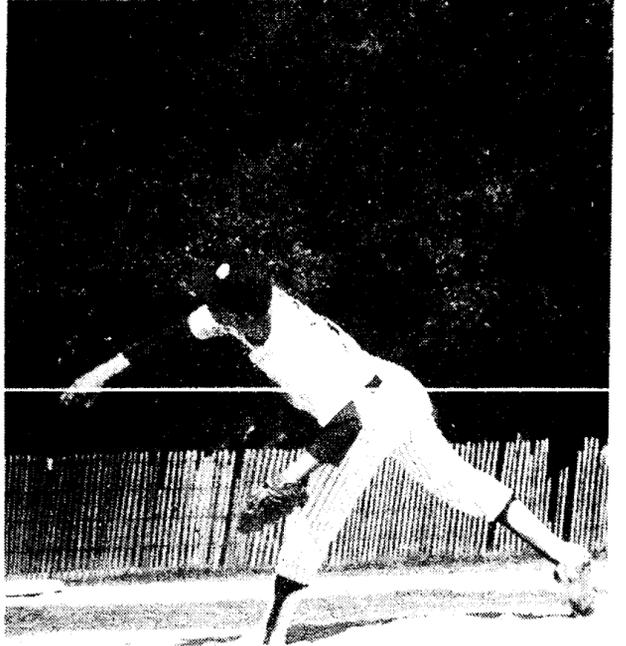

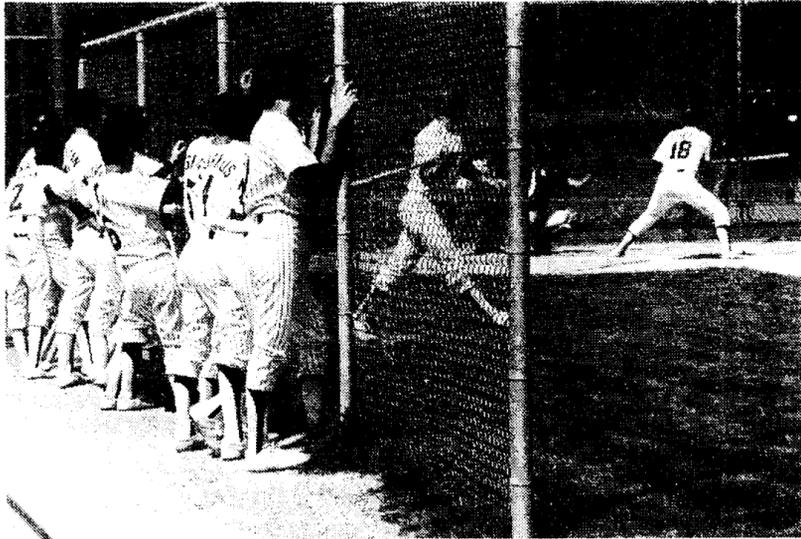

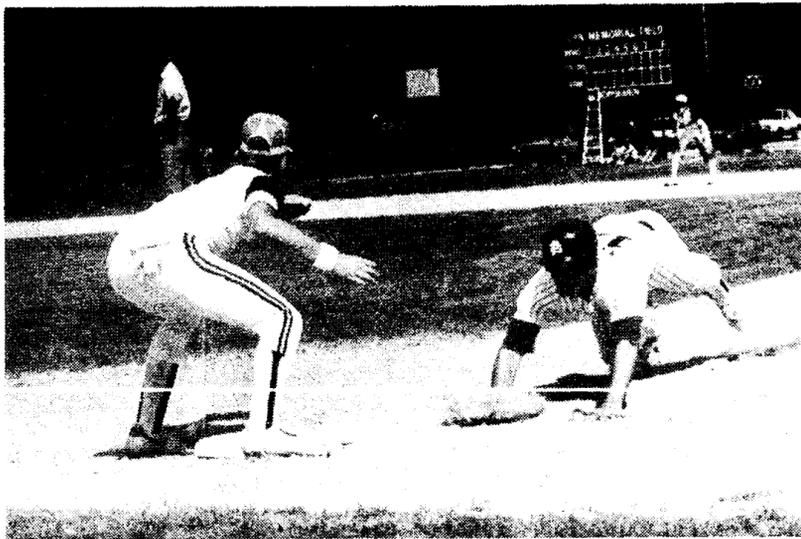

From those who benefit from the work of volunteers, I got names. Names of folks who have helped out with sports in Grosse Pointe since, well, since they've been needed. Names like Bruce Keigen, John Drummv, Stu Dow. Names like Werner Leuckhoff, who has spent more than 25 years making sure Little League runs right in the Woods and Shores. Or Mike Johnson, who does the same thing in the Farms-City. And so many more.

Folks who, for almost nothing in return, devote what most of them have so little of and what in these times, is surely one of the most precious possessions a person has: time. And the beneficiaries of that gift are absolutely THE most precious possessions a person has: kids.

So, while I may never discover WHY volunteers do that voodoo that they do so well, I have found one thing out. It sure isn't a matter of ego. Volunteers with oversized egos would last about a month around here.

Because even an egotist of epic proportions would have to go some to stand up to the schedule of a Grosse Pointe volunteer. They coach. They manage. They run the concession stands, help control crowds, mow lawns and apply the odd coat of paint. And once and a while, when they see what their volunteer work has made possible, they can take time out and smile.

We named just a few volunteer "heroes" this week. Any more out there? Drop me a line and get your favorite sports/volunteer some recognition.

Park's All-Stars win district; head for state play

The Park's Babe Ruth team will play in the state tourney on Saturday

Grosse Pointe Park's Babe Ruth All-Star team won three games in three days last week to capture the District No. 2 championship for the second straight year. Teams from the Park, Woods, Farms and L'Anse Creuse participated in the tournament, held at North High.

The Park's tournament victory qualified the squad for the state tournament, set for this weekend in Lansing. The tournament schedule was not available at press time, but the Park will compete with eight other teams from Michigan's other districts.

In the opening game last Friday, the Park lopped L'Anse Creuse North, 3-1, behind the eight-hit pitching of Doug Lucas. Lucas went all the way for the victory, striking out eight and walking none. Marcus Wysocki had two doubles and two RBI to pace the Park. Dave Salkowski, Jason Whelan and Mike Paul got the other Park hits.

On Saturday, the Park beat the Farms, 4-0, as Wysocki turned in a two-hit pitching performance. He struck out five and walked three and aided his own cause with a single at the plate. Brian Jones' double had scored Salkowski in the first inning with what proved to be the winning run. He added a single in the third; Lucas, Matt Montagne and Jamie Cimini had the other Park hits. Alex Dillon and Mark Belanger had hits for the Farms.

The outcome of Sunday's game was never in doubt as the Park took a lead and drubbed L'Anse Creuse, 8-2. Marty Saad collected three hits, including a two-run homer in the first inning. Lucas had two hits and four RBI, including his three-run homer in the third inning. Jones, Paul and Montagne added the other hits. Salkowski, Jones and Nick Saros shared the pitching chores, with Jones gaining credit for the win.

Pointe soccer team tours Europe

A soccer tour of Europe was much more than two and one-half weeks of fun, games, and booting a ball around for the 18 Grosse Pointe area young men involved.

As ambassadors for Detroit, they spread the word to "Say Yes! to Michigan" with their host teams in West Germany, France, Switzerland and Austria after their departure on July 5.

The 18-member team was made up of seven University Liggett School varsity soccer players and others from schools including Grosse Pointe North, the University of Detroit and Hotchkiss School. Head Coach David Backhurst, a ULS history teacher and varsity soccer coach, was assisted on the tour by 1984 ULS graduate Dan Bowen and Paul Butler, formerly of Grosse Pointe, now living in Louisville, Ky. The tour and competition were arranged by Dewald Travel of Warren. The players, coaches and others assisting on the tour cruised the Rhine River, rode a cable car up Mount Pilatus in Switzerland and visited the Nymphenberg Palace near Munich in addition to playing seven soccer matches against European opponents.

District 6 tournament this weekend

Fifteen teams from Hamtramck to Shelby Township will battle for the coveted crown of District 6 champion when the annual eastern Wayne-Macomb County Little League tournament begins Saturday, July 20, at Harper Woods Memorial Park.

Arthur H. Getz, who has been administering the operations of the district for the past 25 years, recently announced the pairings for this year's double-elimination tournament.

Getz's tournament assistant, Werner Lueckhoff, president of the Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores Little League, said umpires from Grosse Pointe and East Detroit will handle the on-field duties.

The district tournament will run through July 29. The sectional tournament will see the winner of District 6 play District 7 (northern Macomb-St. Clair County area) at Harper Woods.

"We've had basically the same teams playing in the tournament for the past 30 years," said Getz. "The young men who will be playing in Harper Woods are the cream of the crop from their respective leagues. They are extremely talented and give 100 percent. The tournament draws large crowds because of the excitement Little League baseball generates."

The Clinton Valley Nationals (Chippewa Valley School District) have won the District 6 title the past two years. Pairings for the opening round are: 9:30 a.m., Grosse Pointe City-Farms vs L'Anse Creuse (Harrison Township) American and Clintondale (southern Clinton Township) vs

Shelby-Utica National; noon, Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores American vs Harper Woods and Hamtramck American vs L'Anse Creuse National; 2:30 p.m., Clinton Valley American vs Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores National and Clinton Valley National vs Grosse Pointe Park; and 5 p.m., L'Anse Creuse North vs Shelby-Utica American. Hamtramck National, which drew a bye in the first round, will play at 9:30 a.m. July 21.

Winners and losers also will play on July 21.

The playing fields are located in back of Harper Woods High School, Beaconsfield one-half mile north of Vernier (Eight Mile Road).

The Little League Junior (13 years olds) and Senior Tournament (14 and 15 year olds) also will be played at Harper Woods the weekend of July 20.

G.P. Little League

Park Majors

After losing Game One of the Park Majors World Series, 21-5, the Orioles came back to beat the Cards, 6-5 and 14-11, to win the league's World Series last week. The three-game series was an exciting crowd-pleaser and a tribute to the talent of the players on both squads, organizers said.

The deciding game featured a gutsy performance by Oriole pitcher Aaron McNally, as well as the power hitting of Kelly Graves and Tim Gramling. McNally pitched very little during the regular season, but was called on by manager Dane Lupo to start this crucial contest when the Orioles' regular starters had used up their eligibility. Aaron was equal to the task, pitching five strong innings in chalking up his first win of the season.

Graves knocked in seven runs with two homers, a three-run blast in the first inning and a grand slam in the third. Gramling hit a three-run shot in the second and played sparkling defense at shortstop. The Orioles got top performances from Mike Spanich, John Haise (two hits) and Matt Jacklyn and key run-producing hits by Darren Havern and Scott Lupo.

The Cardinals loaded the bases in the final inning on base hits by Bill Saylor and Dan Commer and a walk to Don DeSeranno after two were out, but reliever Kelly Graves got Card hitting star Jim Pote to line one to Gramling for the final out. Pote led the Cards' attack, going 4-for-5 with a home run. Other hitters were Lance DeBets (home run), Ed Dorda, DeSeranno, Chip Peterson, Saylor and Commer.

Contributing to the Orioles' fine season were manager Lupo and coach Ed Gramling, who, with Cards' manager Pat Coffey and coach Larry Harding, deserve recognition for the many hours of personal dedication they have devoted to Little League in the Park.

Also making the season a success for the entire Park League was outgoing president Sue Petersmarck and the many volunteers, including concessions manager Laura Pote.

Farms-City Class C

Led by the four-hit pitching of Carl Trost and Robert Hostetter, Erie defeated Albany, 9-3, to win the Farms-City Class C championship. Erie finished in fourth place during the regular season, but beat first-place Columbus and second-place Albany in the playoffs to capture the championship.

Erie struck for nine runs in the first three innings before being shut down by the excellent pitching of Albany's Brian Nugent. Erie's offense was led by Chris Ford (two hits), and Doug Martin (three hits). In the second inning, Erie tallied four times when Robbie Zur-Schmiede doubled home two runs, followed by Andrew McCrosky's, single and Scott Pheur's double.

In the third inning, Erie added four more runs as Aaron Zur-Schmiede, Trost, Doug Martin and Jason Santo scored.

Albany scored twice in the bottom of the fourth on hits from Joe Cera and Nugent, but the rally ended when Nino Melchiorre speared a line drive in centerfield. Erie's defense held Albany at bay in the fifth and sixth, despite fine hits from Colista and Morris.

Triathlon's next stop is Detroit area

The sixth stop in the 1985 Bud Light U.S. Triathlon Series will be in the Detroit area on July 21. The Park's Jeanne Bocci is race director of the 1.5K swim, 40K hike, 10K run event, which is presented by the F & G Life Insurance Company. Triathlons in Ft. Lauderdale, San Francisco, Phoenix, Baltimore, Portland, Denver, Los Angeles, Chicago, Boston, Houston and San Diego will lead to the invitation-only National Triathlon Championship on Sept. 28 in Hilton Head Island, S.C.

in is from 5 to 6:30 a.m. on July 21, with the start at 7:30 a.m.

A mandatory bike safety check will be held July 15 through 19 at the Total Runner in Southfield and a day of triathlon-related events will take place at the Troy Hilton on Saturday, July 20.

Encore, encore

So you've finished as runner-up in your varsity baseball league, winning 21 of the 31 games you've played. You've got hitters and pitchers who are rated among the area's best, including one hitter who earned a spot on the All-State team. What do you do for an encore, assuming you don't want to fade into the obscurity of summer?

If you're South High's varsity baseball squad, you become one of the few "intact" teams to make the switch from spring high school baseball to the under 19 Connie Mack Summer League variety. And if you're South High, you also manage to do it very, very well.

"This experience will be very beneficial to our club next season," says South High coach Dan Griesbaum. "For a pitcher like Rick Leonard to get the work in and be seen by major league scouts... that's invaluable to him and to us."

The Connie Mack League is a 12-team league and only South is intact from the 1985 varsity season. South includes the underclassmen and June graduates Rick Waugaman, Anthony Eugenio and Mike Hennessey. The other teams are made up of players from several schools; for example, Bishop Gallagher players play for Roseville and for Utica and St. Clair Shores, North's Dan Kopitzke and 1984 North High graduate Dave Waldeck play for Utica, etc.

"It's a significant accomplishment, really, because essentially South is playing teams of All-Stars," adds coach Bill Adlloch. As of July 15, South had managed a 10-6 record, including five losses by one run.

South's Tom Fellows, Bill Adlloch, Steve Kinsley, Rico Cordova and Mike Hennessey are the team's leading run producers. Against L'Anse Creuse, a team combined of players from the L'Anse Creuse system and from other area schools, Cordova was 8-for-9 with a home run and three triples in a recent doubleheader, Jerry Joliet. Scott Tucker, Cordova and Leonard have been pitching very well, Griesbaum says. And according to coach Adlloch, South High pitchers outdueled Steve DuCharme (Roseville) and Mike Erickson (Utica), who pitched very well this season for the Class A state champion Bishop Gallagher Lancers.

"There have been scouts at almost all of the games. That bodes well for our pitchers. And for an old-timer like me, to see Hal Newhouse (former Tiger great) who scouts for the Houston Astros, at our games, is just a great feeling.

"What it boils down to, I guess, is that South is a very good team in a very good league," Adlloch adds.

South will begin Connie Mack playoffs on July 25 at a yet-to-be-determined site and time. The Blue Devils play at 6 p.m. July 19 at Kerby against Clintondale and have a doubleheader with the Warren All-Stars at 1 p.m. this Sunday, July 21, at Kerby Field.

Farms plans regatta

Next weekend, July 27 and 28, is the biggest weekend of the summer, at least as far as the Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club is concerned. That's the weekend of the Farm's 33rd annual Boat Club Regatta and Farms residents are invited to participate in two full days of events.

Sunday, July 28:
1 p.m. — theregatta parade from the Kerby Field parking lot along Chalfonte, Moran, McMillan, Kercheval and Moross to the Pier Park (parade features a one-man band); 1:45 p.m. — the welcoming ceremonies featuring Farms Boat Club Commodore Ray Dresden and Farms Mayor James H. Dingeman; 2 to 4 p.m. — entertainment by the Banio Belles; 2 p.m. — rubber raft races; 3 p.m. — synchronized swimming by members of the Farms' Synchronized Swim Team; 5 p.m. — presentation of awards and raffle ticket drawing

GPYC swim team wins

Grosse Pointe Yacht Club (GPYC) swimmers won their first meet of the season on June 23, beating Oakland Hills Country Club, 607-375. New GPYC coach Fred Michalik, who joined the club this summer with years of coaching experience in the Pointes, said he was pleased with the results. Michalik pointed out that the GPYC's depth was an important factor in the win. GPYC won its second meet of the Interclub swim season on June 27, topping the team from the Country Club of Detroit, (CCD) 592-397.

In the Oakland Hills meet, all six relay teams contributed, scoring 96 points. Members of those teams are Elizabeth Bursick, Lauren Kordas, Suzanne Toledo and Stephanie LaFond, in the girls' 8 and under; Chris Brown Borden, David Collins, Kai Bickenbach and Mark Bickenbach in the boys' 8 and under.

The girls' all ages freestyle relay was won by GPYC's Ashley Moran, Ellie Rice, Kristen Youngblood and Kelly Bartsch and the boys' event by Geoff Brieden, Brad Stedem, Ted Stedem and Jamie Mertz. The girls' medley relay of Katie Tompkins, Sandy Smith, Buffy Stumb and Amy Austin finished in 2:28.5 and the boys' medley relay team of Mike Kirschner, Chris Nevison, Brieden and Peter Mertz was the final winning squad of the day.

Other blue ribbon winners against Oakland Hills were Lauren Kordas, Ashley Moran, Patrick Kirschner, Ted Stedem, Chris Nevison, Elizabeth Bursick, Tim Reynaert, Jamie Mertz, Mike Kirschner, Kelly Bartsch, Stephanie LaFond, Jon Sieber, Brad Stedem and Heather Heidel.

Taking home competitor ribbons from the meet against CCD were Katie Blake, Susan Cornille, Amy Gmeiner, Christina Guastello, Kelly Haarz, Lindsey Hart, Abby Hume, Katie Huettman, Amanda Hanley, Missy Kordas, Carrie Martin, Julie Mertz, Dana Mertz, Trisha Morrow, Carrie O'Keefe, Jamie Taylor, Jenny Taylor, Julie Taylor, Jeannine Taylor, Katherine Tusa, Erin Tusa, Mollie Rice, Amy Rice, Brady Schoenherr, Liz Sie-

north grass area, including a watermelon eating contest, a ladies' shoe toss, water balloon toss, boutique fantasy and tug-of-war; 5:30 p.m. — the Miss Grosse Pointe Farms Pageant; 8:30 p.m. — the annual regatta dance to the live music of the Neon Trio.

Sunday, July 28:
1 p.m. — theregatta parade from the Kerby Field parking lot along Chalfonte, Moran, McMillan, Kercheval and Moross to the Pier Park (parade features a one-man band); 1:45 p.m. — the welcoming ceremonies featuring Farms Boat Club Commodore Ray Dresden and Farms Mayor James H. ber, Kathleen Storen, Robin Wheeler, Lindsay Youngblood, Sean Gardella, Scott Gregory, Tim Hanley, Billy Johnston, Eric Matthews, Mike Reynaert, Willie Tipp, John Tipp, Alex Toledo, Ryan Robson, Sonny Swantek, T.R. Youngblood and C.J. Williamson.

New to the GPYC swim team this season are Ted and Brad Stedem, Erika Teige and Kai and Mark Bickenbach.

The squad will continue daily workouts with coach Michalik and the staff in preparation for the finals set for the last weekend in July at the Western Golf and Country Club.

Bocci heads for national sports fest

The Park's Jeanne Bocci, of the Motor City Striders, will represent the north at the National Sports Festival, July 23 through 29 in Baton Rouge, La., as a result of her ninth place finish in the 10K walk at the National Championships in Indianapolis, Ind., June 15.

Her time of 53:28.98 put her in the top two from the north; the top two finishers from the north, south, east and west made the national team. It also qualified Bocci to attend the U.S. Olympic Training camp in Lake Placid, N.Y., in July and earned her a spot on the national team for women's 10K walking.

"I am very pleased with my place and time," Bocci said.

Gunners: always on target

When it comes to winning, the Grosse Pointe Gunners are always on target. The boys' 16 and under Addidas team entry in the Michigan Youth Soccer League followed up first place finishes in the fall and winter indoor soccer leagues with a perfect, 10-0 mark in the spring soccer league.

The Gunners, coached by Abe Van Der Wyngaard, a veteran of European soccer, and assistant coach Charlie Johnston, outscored this spring's opponents, 29-0. And that's just about as close to perfect as a soccer team can get.

"It was the defense, really, and the togetherness of all the boys that made our season a success," said coach Van Der Wyngaard. "Our competition was tough, but yet they ended up trying so hard just to score on us, never mind about trying to beat us."

"We're kind of a young team, but the boys were very coachable and that made the season even better."

As it was, it was an extraordinary season.

At the Canadian Soccerfest Tournament June 29 through July 1 in St. Thomas, Ont., the Gunners reached the semi-finals despite missing five regulars from their line-up. A total of 11 teams competed in the Gunners' 16 and under class.

The G.P. Gunners — pictured at right — are managed by Judy Steinhebel. Most of the boys will play soccer for South High this fall.

Bayview Yacht Club juniors win opener

Bayview Yacht Club dominated the opening Junior Sailing Regatta for the DRYA season, taking first place in the older skippers division and first and second in the younger skippers division. Second in the older division (Division I) and third in Division II for the younger sailors was Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. Crescent Sail Yacht Club captured third in Division I.

Andy DenBaas and Dean Balcirak led the BYC Division I sailors with two firsts and a second place and a third in the four race series. Bayview's Paul Hulsey and Stuart Gooden swept all first places in Division II.

Runner-up crew in Division I was GPYC's Justin Palm and C. Murray while the younger age group runner-up team was BYC's Oliver Baer and Greg Semack.

Other top performers included DYC's Steve Gmeiner and Scott Pierce, the Grosse Pointe Club's Stevie Stepley and Raquel Chapin, GLYC's Danielle DeLuca and Carrie Donaldson, Crescent's Ross Decker and Matt Janke.

The DRYA Junior series features weekly Wednesday races hosted by each of the yacht clubs with junior sailing programs. While class leaders receive awards for their victories, each club competes for the season championship based on the overall performance of both Divisions. Other awards will go to the clubs for the best overall training program and best sportsmanship throughout the year.

Junior sailing is supported by the local clubs to foster growth and skills in sailing and seamanship. Many of the top sailors on the lakes today — including many who have taken part in collegiate and international competition — are graduates of the DRYA Junior Sailing program.

Know the law before diving for 'treasure'

You're cruising the lake near the shipping channel when you decide to try out that diving gear you got for Christmas. So you and your partner set the anchor and the proper buoys and head down.

Off to the left, obscured by a growth of weeds, you see a hulking shape. It looks like a boat and it looks old. What should you do?

The best thing to do is head back into shore, get on the phone and call the Submerged Land Unit of the Division of Land Resource Programs of the state Department of Natural Resources. You may need a permit before you pick up anything, under a 1980 state law meant to preserve abandoned property on the bottomlands of the Great Lakes and surrounding water system.

A permit is required if you're going to recover, alter or destroy any abandoned property more than 30 years old which is on, in, under or over the bottomlands of the lakes. The DNR and the Department of State, administering the program jointly, review the permit to determine the recreational aspects and historical significance of the abandoned property you've located.

Applications are available by calling the Submerged Lands Unit at (517) 373-1950 or writing them at Submerged Lands Unit, Division of Land Resource Programs, Department of Natural Resources, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing 48909. You can also get information and applications from the Michigan History Division's Museum Section, Department of State, 528 North Capitol Avenue, Lansing 48918. Call them at (517) 373-0515.

The departments will approve or disapprove the application within 30 days. The application can be unconditionally approved or certain conditions may be imposed. They may include protection and preservation of the abandoned property to be recovered and the recreational area in which recovery is being accomplished, assurance of reasonable public access to the abandoned property after recovery or compliance with rules applying to activities within the Great Lakes bottomlands preserve.

The state has designated three areas of bottom land preserves. They are the area of Lake Superior near Alger, the Straits of Mackinac and Thunder Bay in Lake Huron.

A bottomland preserve has been designed for special protection of the abandoned property at the bottom that may be of historical, educational or ecological value. These preserves are meant to protect historical artifacts that may be destroyed by removal or may quickly deteriorate if removed from the water to open air.

If your appeal is turned down or you are injured by one of the conditions given for approval, you can appeal for a review. That request needs to be filed 90 days after you filed your application or within 60 days of receiving approval.

Within 10 days of recovering the property for which you received a permit, you have to report the recovery in writing to the DNR or Secretary of State. You also should give the State Department and the DNR 90 days in which they can examine the recovered property if they want.

Fishing champs

Organizers of the 32nd annual Grosse Pointe Park Fishing Rodeo say the event was a success, with over 60 participants spending the morning battling to catch prize-winning fish.

Barret Hazelwood landed the largest fish and the Safadi family — Eddie, Ramon and Edward — took home prizes for smallest fish, first fish and most fish caught. Melissa Dom also took home the "most fish" prize, tying Edward Safadi with eight.

Steve Lochhiler pulled in the last fish and craziest catch honors went to Val Leavell and Joey Suski.

Mad Max; Beyond Thunderdome — Max with a message

By Mike Andrzejczyk
I'm a Mad Max fanatic; I admit it. I've seen Mad Max and Road Warrior a dozen times all told and am still dumfounded by the post-Apocalypse High Plains Drifter. It was that fanaticism that made me brave the late show on opening day Wednesday of the third movie in the trilogy, Mad Max: Beyond Thunderdome. I found myself surrounded by a teenage crowd looking for two more hours of action from their Road Warrior.

What they got may have left some die-hards dissatisfied. While some elements of the earlier movies were there — cars, mohawked, leather-bedecked crazies with names like Ironbar and Blaster, and death by fiery crash — the screenplay by George Miller and Terry Hayes plays out a post-Holocaust Shane against a richer canvas.

Don't get me wrong, it's not a richer world in which Max lives. Most of the movie centers on Barter Town, a city aptly enough run on pig feces, and the politics of controlling it. After the cheapness of Mad Max and the wastelands of Road Warrior, Thunderdome has the richness of detail that Blade Runner did and, like Blade Runner, often overwhelms the viewer.

And, compared with the first two movies, the plot is frenetic in pace and complex. Gone is the bash 'em-crash 'em of Mad Max and the plodding of Road Warrior. Thunderdome is like two short stories linked by Mel Gibson's Max.

Finally, there is the message. In the first two movies, the world was given to viewers without judgment; a wasteland in which survivors of the Holocaust attempted to keep surviving. In Thunderdome, there is no doubt about this world. It is run by pig feces. It's a world where a man faces life at hard labor for killing a pig to feed his family. There is, according to Miller and Hayes, something fundamentally wrong with this world.

One thing remains the same: Max. He is harder in Thunderdome, but essentially the same Max who crashed his way through the first movie and Road Warrior. Although gray at the temples, Max does what we expect he will do: spirits weapons into places he's not supposed to have them, fights off the bad guys and sets bombs only he can disarm.

The first scenes of the movie tell you this is a different world than the earlier movies. Max is riding a vehicle pulled by camels and he resembles a Bedouin nomad more than his renegade highway patrolman of earlier movies. Gone are the supercharged cars and the never-ending struggle for the next tank of gasoline.

Bruce Spence repeats his role as the wretched-wonderful Jedediah the Gliderman and makes a good counterpoint to Max's calm self-confidence.

Tina Turner pulls off her role of Aunt Entity, the queen of Barter Town, with admirable style. Her throaty intonation of "Welcome to another edition of Thunderdome" as Max faces death in the strap-steel half moon ("Two men enter; one man leaves.") is almost worth the price of admission.

There is a smaller selection of baddies this time, but they are well done. Angry Anderson as Ironbar is to Thunderdome what Wez was to Road Warrior. Ted Hodgeman's work as the huckster — master of ceremonies of Barter Town, Dr.

Dealgood, with his two leather-skirted sidekicks, is also a bit of comic relief. His explanation of justice is worth the ticket.

What makes Thunderdome a good movie is its escape from the Lucas Syndrome. The Lucas Syndrome says: When doing a series of movies, find a formula and repeat it. That's what made Return of the Jedi tedious. Miller and co-director George Oglivie add something to the Mad Max saga with this movie and leave the door open, again, for Mad Max IV.

A word to the wise; a woman sitting behind me brought her pre-teen daughter along to the movie and after the first half-hour, left in a huff. The movie is rated PG-13 for a reason. When Max and Aunt Entity discuss what makes Barter Town run, they don't use the word "feces," folks. And parents may have trouble explaining some of the hand gestures made in the movie as well.

In short, if you're looking for a bunch of mohawked crazies shooting bolts into each other, you'll find yourself bored by Thunderdome. But if you want to see Max do his stuff and finally find out what Apocalypse finished the modern world, Thunderdome is worth the evening. It is the best of the trilogy so far, combining message with its Mad Max.

Piano competition winner shows promise

By Alex Sucek
The winner of the 1985 Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival Piano Competition proved his right to the title last Monday, July 8. David Strickland, who took both the recital and concerto awards last April, enthralled his audience in the Fries Auditorium at the War Memorial with a recital program that would challenge even the most seasoned concert artist. And the enthusiastic applause demonstrated the unanimous judgment that he had earned his honors.

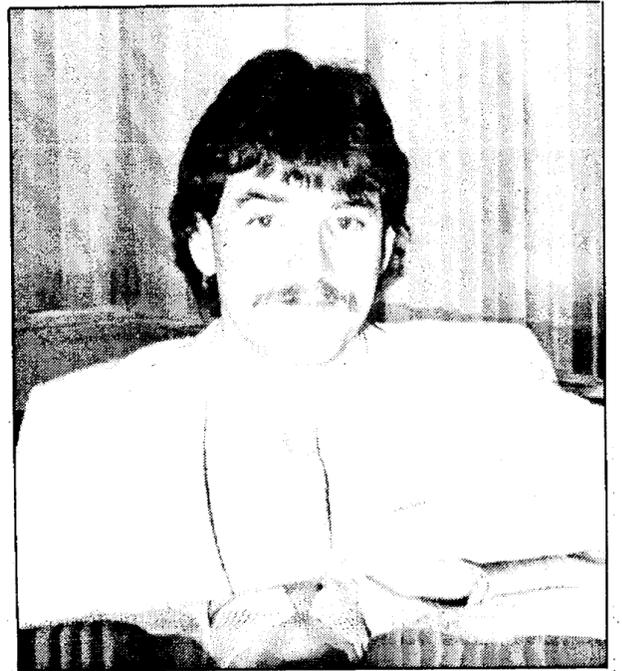

It also suggests that the Grosse

Pointe Symphony audience can look forward to a gratifying experience next season when Strickland gives his concerto award performance with that organization.

Strickland opened with a Bach prelude and fugue in A minor transcribed for piano by Franz Liszt. It proved to be no mere warm-up. The interpretation was youthful and romantic and the viously innate sense of musical expression and dramatic timing.

Although his need for more years of experience seemed to be reflected in the care he had to take in the mid-section of the last movement, he showed disdain for the occasional false note and brought out the many moods of the different variations on the finale's majestic main theme with elan.

Theatre-North

Theatre North Summer Stock will present three, one-act plays at the Center for Performing Arts, 707 Vernier Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, on Wednesday, July 24, at 11:30 a.m. and Thursday, July 25 at 7 p.m.

Directed by Merrie Gay Ayrault, the students in the summer stock program will present a comedy, "If Men Played Cards As Women Do"; a melodrama, "Virtue Is Her Own Reward"; and a mystery farce, "A Case For Two Detectives." These plays are for all ages and tickets — $2 per adults, $1 for children — will be sold at the door.

Members of the group include: Anne-Martine Hupkins van der Elst, Justin Frähm, Kristin Hart, Brian Nettle, Donna Oldenburg, Latha Ravi, Holly Smith, Valerie Ziebron, Eleonore Ellerno, Christopher Heath, Joe Weidenbach and Frank Vento.

More than a fourth of the matrimonial break-ups occur in the first three years, statisticians report.

rhythm sure, but not strict. And the delineation of the voices in the fugue was crystal-clear with the bass pedal line ranging from a faint throb to thundering power.

He concluded the first half with Beethoven's famous Waldstein Sonata (no. 21, opus.53), a challenging work for the greatest artist. Strickland set a tempo of a pro and never flagged. He played with the assurance and drive of a mature artist commanding audience attention and admiration for his ob-

The youthful artist's stage presence and good judgment in programming were increasingly evident as the program continued. His choice of Chopin's Nocturne No. 18, Impromptu Opus 29 and Etude No. 1 Opus 10 was a welcome contrast to the drama of Beethoven and enabled him to demonstrate his skill at bringing out the different moods of these three pieces. The Nocturne, as its name suggests, was suitably thoughtful and dreamlike; the Impromptu sprightly and happy; and the Etude a brilliant display of technical skills. Throughout, Strickland appeared calm and controlled, and in touch with his audience.

He concluded with the pulsating, stark and forceful Sonata No. 7 Opus 83 by Prokofiev. Yet even in this modern work, Strickland, the youthful romantic, managed to bring out an underlying lyricism. In the second movement, one could hear the church bells of Russia alternating with the inexorable march of revolution.

In response to insistent applause at the end, Strickland performed an encore, a waltz of his own composition. It is a song-like tune, unsophisticated and enchanting, re-stated several times in variations and changing contemporary harmonies.

The audience finally left the hall, well satisfied, with repeated comments on the remarkable promise of future greatness that they had just witnessed in a 19-year-old youth who admitted that this was only the third formal, full-length recital he had ever played.

Present for the occasion was A. David Mikesell, president of the Michigan Foundation for the Arts which provides the $1,000 award that makes this competition and concert possible.

FALVEY JAGUAR

Vanden Plas

From a heritage of coachbuilders to kings and the sporting aristocracy of Europe comes the most exclusive Jaguar sedan you can own.

The Vanden Plas is a limited edition of the Jaguar Series III sedan. It shares the Series III's superb racebred double overhead cam six, its athletic handling equipment, its uncanny smoothness and silence in motion. Inside, however, the Vanden Plas is unique even among Jaguars. It cossets you with soft leather, exotic burled walnut panels and individually contoured seats front and rear.
