Skip the bird seed

Well, it looks like they're back. "They" are the bald eagles, golden eagles or whatever predatory bird it is that seems to visit the Pointe every year about this time.

I fielded a call from Ralph Tobby, of S. Renaud Road, who reported two large eagles in his backyard on Thursday of last week

He said one of the two, apparently the youngest bird, had a wingspan of about two or three feet and stood perhaps 18 inches tall.

One of the eagles killed a squirrel and ate it in the backyard. They later took off, then returned about an hour later to perch on a nearby lightpole.

Some of you may remember last winter when Park City Manager John Crawford reported surprising one bird on a sidewalk near Lakeshore Road. It, too, was dining on a squirrel and Crawford said it had at least a five-foot wingspan.

A quick call to the Michigan DNR said it could be possible, since mirgrating eagles use the Great Lakes' shoreline as sort of a Route 66 to the south.

One squirrel down, six million to go.

Mighty Michael

Five-year-old Michael Hin-delang is one lucky kid. Just ask his parents, Paula and Bob, or his brothers and sisters, Marianne, Maureen, Mat-thew and Mark.

They all got to share in the eight-foot-long Christmas stocking Michael won at the Clairepointe Restaurant recently. Chef Vito de Palma called to say that there were 3,000 entries in his Christmas stocking giveaway contest. The drawing was held at the restaurant on Saturday, Dec. 21, and six-year-old Allison Motyka of St. Clair Shores drew Michael's name.

Unfortunately, Michael and his family weren't there. But

Board discusses AIDS guidelines

By Mike Andrzejczyk The Grosse Pointe Board of Education Monday night took up for discussion a policy to cover stu-dents and staff afflicted by Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

The policy calls for formation of an advisory committee composed of a physician paid by the school system, parent or guardian, teachers and possibly others, to recommend to the board the best educational setting for a student infected with AIDS

Unless more testing is required, the board is to receive the recommendation within 20 days of appointment of the committee and make its decision within 10 days, according to the proposed policy.

The guidelines allow the system to react to each case as it arises, Superintendent John Whritner said.

The draft policy presented to the board Monday night will undergo some revision before being brought up for possible adoption in February. Already, some strengthening of language has occurred to cover the possibility of staff members developing the disease, school officials said.

Staff members with the disease will be granted temporary special leave at full pay while an advisory committee, similar to the one for student victims, meets to recommend the next step. The board will then act on the recommendation within 10 days.

As the incidence of AIDS has continued to grow, the federal Centers for Disease Control and the state Department of Education recommended that school districts begin developing policies to handle cases of students or staff infected with the disease.

The Wayne Intermediate School District recently completed its work in developing a dozen factors that districts should take into consideration when developing their policies, according to Ray Tell-man, who headed the ISD committee. Those factors have been sent out to school districts in the county, he added.

Factors to be considered include users. The virus believed involved in the disease has been found in certain bodily fluids like saliva and urine.

No reported infections have occurred because of contact with saliva. The ability of the child to control excretions and behavior such as biting or spitting should be taken into account when making a recommendation about a child, according to the policy draft.

Also to be considered are the risks and benefits to both the infected student or staff member and others in the school. The disease destroys a person's ability to stave off infections, so a sufferer may pick up a possibly fatal illness while attending school. In their brief discussion on the proposed policy, trustees suggest-ed strengthening language about staff members infected with the disease and to consider adding an educational program for students and the community to disseminate information about the illness.

Park firemen to begin petition drive

By Pat Paholsky

If all goes as expected, the Park city council will approve an operational plan Monday night for com-bining the police and fire depart-ments. And Tuesday morning, the Park firefighters will begin their door-to-door petition drive to force a special election on the issue.

The firefighters have to collect 1,871 signatures in order to put the question to a vote and they are aiming for an amendment to the city charter that will provide for separate police and fire depart-ments. There is nothing in the charter now that addresses the issue reason the firefighters want their own proposal is to preserve the status quo which is inefficient and does not provide the taxpayers with the best service for their money. Public safety will have better and expanded EMS service, better police patrols and more fire response capability.

The 42-year-old Bialk said he is looking to the people for a decision. "Let's get the referendum in and over with. I'm tired of having my career in their (council's) hands. He said residents who want to help them can call Jean or Lee Fallieres at 821-6769.

Rest in pieces

No, the Grosse Pointe News did not steer you wrong. There really is, or was, a giant 13-foottall snowman on Balfour Road as we reported on the front page of last week's paper.

It seems that sometime during the evening of Monday, Dec. 30, some pinheads in a car came along, drove over the lawn and knocked Frosty down.

It took four people seven hours to put that baby together and they only did it to bring a smile to everyone's face. Don't you just detest crumbums who pull something like this? It's no big deal. I know. There are worse things in the world, but people like that tick me off.

Just a bunch of smirking airheads who think they're really cool. C'mon guys, isn't there an orphanage you could spray paint somewhere instead?

Critics say Moran traffic solution is no solution By Nancy Parmenter

The blinking traffic signal at the intersection of Mack and Moran has ruffled local drivers' tempers as much as it has eased the traffic congestion on several through streets to Kercheval.

The light was put in a blinking mode for a 90-day trial period beginning Nov. 16 as part of the Farms' response to complaints by residents on McKinley, McMillan and Moran that speeding through traffic between Mack and Kercheval was dangerous and noisy. Since that time, traffic on Moran has apparently eased, but drivers attempting to negotiate the turn from Mack onto Moran without the aid of a red light are swamping the city with complaints.

The traffic island on Mack is narrow, so that cars waiting for traffic to clear often protrude into the driving lanes. Drivers also complain of poor visibility because of parked cars and trucks. Most of the complainants are Farms residents, according to Councilwoman Gail Kaess, chairwoman of the traffic study committee.

"They are so upset with that light, it's incredible," Kaess said. 'You can sit right there and watch - every third car that wants to turn at Moran ends up going past, crossing over and coming back."

It isn't only the inconvenience that bothers the drivers. Most of the complainants have reported near-misses Businessman Joe Ricci, who operates an auto dealership at the corner, estimates that there are seven to 10 nearmisses a day. He said a driver had hit one of his dealership's cars. parked on a side street.

Î

Ricci also said there have been tersection, which is policed by both fender-bender in which a driver as many as 24 accidents since the light began blinking Nov. 16. "The accidents aren't related to crossing the intersection, but to how confusing it is since the light was put on blink," he said.

bureau representative. But he said he lives in the Mack-Moran area and is not aware of any rise in accidents. "That blinking light hasn't changed my driving habits any," he said.

Ferber said he is concerned about the near-misses. "Judging from the complaints, it appears to be a hazard for people who are intent on following the Moran to Canyon route to the expressway," he said.

The city had hoped that putting the light in a blinking mode would make turning at Moran sufficienty inconvenient that drivers would change their routes, thus reducing Moran traffic. Unfortunately, there are no hard facts to substantiate traffic volume on Moran.

'I have the feeling that (the blinker) has improved traffic on Moran, but there hasn't been a count, so there's no way to know," Ferber said. Counts were taken on the three streets last summer, but the Farms council did not authorize a follow-up study.

The traffic committee has continued meeting during the 90-day trial period in order to evaluate progress. The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 20. There are no current plans to shorten the trial period, but at this point, the blinker light looks doomed.

'I think we'll have to change it," Kaess said. "We're getting more complaints about the light than we ever did about the traffic."

Ferber asked that residents with opinions about the blinker and the traffic send written comments to him at 90 Kerby. "I honestly want ait the input I can get," he said,

An accident Jan. 3 on Mack at Moran occurred when a DOT bus stopped to let off passengers and a car full of teenagers rear-ended the bus. There were no serious injuries, but the car was severely damaged. An observer blames a recent rash of near-misses on "confusion" caused by changing the traffic signal to the blinking mode.

Leader dogs to be discussed

Leader dogs will be discussed at a luncheon meeting Wednesday, Jan. 22, at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. People interested in leader dogs and their training are welcome, as well as those who are interested in acquiring a leader dog.

The discussion will be led by Edward M. Lange Jr., kennel man-ager for the Leader Dog School at Rochester, Mich. He has supervised leader dog training at the institution since 1951. He will bring one of his trained dogs to the meeting so that persons attending the session will receive first-hand information on how leader dogs are taught and their capabilities.

The event is sponsored by the Friends of Vision of the Detroit In-stitute of Ophthalmology.

A cash bar will open at 11:30 a.m. Lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m. Reservations should be made either by calling Neal Waddell, 882-2519, or Judy Dara, 824-4710. The cost is $12.50 per person. Deadline for making reservations is Jan. 16.

Know your charity before you contribute

The public should be cautious in giving financial donations to unfamiliar charities – or charities with familiar-sounding names. Detroit-area residents received at least two questionable mailings from charities with names similar to well-known heart and cancer groups.

A questionnaire and plea for financial support were sent from the American Heart Research Foundation and the American Cancer Research Fund, both listing the same address in New Jersey.

Local agencies are concerned that the public will confuse their groups with the two New Jersey "research funds," both of which are under investigation by federal and state authorities in several states, according to Dr. Albert Sparrow, president of the American Heart Association of Michigan, headquartered in Lathrup Village.

"The American Heart Association has no desire to harm any legitimate non-profit agency," Sparrow said. "However, we have been unsuccessful in obtaining in-formation concerning AHRF's operations

Sparrow suggests that donors who are not certain about the legitimacy of any non-profit organization either contact the Better Business Bureau, which keeps a list of non-profit agencies that operate according to standard fundraising practices, or ask to see a taxexempt letter from the Internal Revenue Service.

Schools get high marks in survey By Mike Andrzejczyk

More than 84 percent of 443 residents interviewed in November's survey about Grosse Pointe public schools gave the district an A or B grade. Respondents also said schools need more emphasis on reading, writing and math and should offer more help to sub-stance-abusing students.

Those contacted supported the seven-period day but said the system erred by moving sixthgraders into middle school. Respondents also favored further school closings.

The survey, costing about $5,000, used telephone volunteers to conduct the 55-question interviews with 443 randomly selected residents of the school district. It was designed by William Banach and Associates of Romeo, who designed a smiliar survey for the Macomb Intermediate School District

Those interviewed were asked 19 questions on school-related issues and topics; to decide if 16 programs and services listed needed more or less attention; to agree or disagree with 14 statements about classrooms, curriculum and community; and five demographic questions.

Superintendent John Whritner presented the results and a summary prepared by Banach and Associates to school board trustees at the Jan. 6 special meeting.

Forty-four percent of those contacted gave the district an A while almost 41 percent gave the system a B grade. That's almost twice as high as the rating given public schools in the national Gallup survey annually commissioned by the National Education Association, according to the survey.

Only about 6 percent of those asked gave the system a C grade or lower, with only one person saying the system deserved a failing mark. About 10 percent had no opinion.

Sixty-eight percent of those asked said they thought the sevenperiod day was a good idea, while 19 percent said it wasn't. Twentytwo percent had no opinion on it.

Asked why it was a bad idea, respondents said the seven-period day wasn't necessary, cut into extracurricular activities or made for too-short class periods. Nearly 65 percent had either no opinion or gave responses listed under the category "other," according to the survey

Forty percent of those surveyed-

By Mike Andrzejczyk A couple dozen South High School students came to the Monday night special Board of Education meeting to ask trustees to finda way to keep Gail Erickson at the said moving sixth-graders into middle schools was a bad idea, while 39 percent supported the move. Twenty-two percent had no opinion. The reason most often given for the move being a bad one was because sixth-graders are too young, according to the survey.

That finding contradicts an earlier study by the school system which found strong support among parents, teachers and students for the move. In the district's November report, of 117 parents of sixthgraders asked, 66 percent favored the middle school program. Eighty-seven precent of students asked like the move while 84 percent of teachers were in favor of it.

The groups surveyed were dif-ferent, however. The school system asked the parents of students who were sixth-graders in the 1984-85 school year. The typical respondent in the Banach survey was female, over age 61, in a business or profession who had completed a college or trade school. Only about one-third of the respondents in the Banach survey had children of school age or younger living at home, according to the summary.

The single greatest problem facing local schools is declining enrollment, according to 12 percent of respondents. Following closely is abuse of alcohol, drugs and tobacco, according to 11 percent of those asked. Five percent said the district had no problems, while 32 percent had no response.

Asked what the single best thing about the school was, 20 percent of those contacted said teachers and staff, 17 percent said the curriculum, 16 percent said the high standards and 9 percent said every-thing. Twenty-two percent gave re-sponses not listed and 10 percent had no response.

Programs that need more attention in the schools, according to those asked, include reading, mathematics, grammar and writing, helping students choose careers, training them for jobs, drug and alcohol abuse, problemsolving skills, computers and programs for gifted and talented youngsters.

Seventy-six percent of respondents thought a senior citizen center for the area was a good idea. Twelve percent said they didn't like that idea and 7 percent had no opinion. Funding for the program should come from municipalities, according to 28 percent. Seventeen percent said those using the program should pay for it, while 6 percent thought the schools should pay and 7 percent thought the school system and cities should jointly fund the program.

Public schools should offer a preschool and daycare program, according to 46 percent of respondents. Another 25 percent said such a program should be offered, but only if those using it pay for it. Another 24 percent said the schools shouldn't offer day care or preschools programs and 4 percent had no opinion.

Forty-six percent of those asked favored closing one school to save money or because of declining enrollment, according to the survey. Opposing school closing were 42 percent of the respondents, with 7 percent having no response.

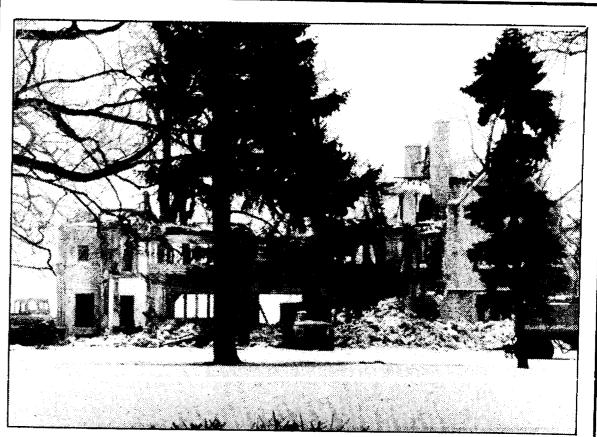

These opposed to closing schools said they wanted neighborhood schools, children would have too far to walk to the next nearest school, the move wasn't necessary and closing one school would overcrowd others, according to the survey.

Respondents tended to agree that homes are worth more in a community with good schools; the reputation of the local system influenced their decision to move to the area; they would recommend the school system to others; they were pleased with the quality of public education in Grosse Pointe; and would support a millage renewal March 10.

Those asked tended to agree that the curriculum challenges students; the system needs to offer more courses for those not going on to college; students with learning problems get the extra help they need; classrooms are well disciplined; and students receive enough individual attention.

Respondents disagreed with statements that the curriculum contained too many frills and that teachers assigned too much homework. Those asked also agreed that students who participate in extracurricular activities and sports should have to meet minimum academic standards.

Of the residents interviewed, 10 percent came from the City, 20 percent from the Park, 18 percent from the Farms, 4 percent from the Shores, 35 percent from the Woods and 13 percent from Harper Woods. The survey has a confidence level of 95 percent at the 50:50 split, according to the summary.

Erickson's background and experience made her a good candidate for helping the system develop a master plan to combat substance abuse and help set up an educational program, Zinn added. ## Park ready to computerize

Park officials are hoping the computer system that will eventually tie in with the other Pointes and Harper Woods will be de-livered by the middle of this month. That will be the easy part, however. The tough part will be backfilling it with a year's worth of police and fire records and then training personnel in its operation.

The council last month approved the expenditure of $17,205 for a system from Logic Industries Inc., the low bidder of three companies.

Topic is pornography

A pornography awareness seminar will be held Sunday, Jan. 12, from 2:30 to 5 p.m. at Lake Shore Presbyterian Church, 27801 Jefferson, one block north of 11 Mile Road, in St. Clair Shores.

There will be speakers by way of VCR and live telephone. Registration is $2 at the door and the seminar is open to the public.

For more information, call Ken Olson at 773-1864.

The council also approved an additional $5,145 for software.

Police Chief Richard Caretti said he and other city officials were meeting with representatives from Logic this week to review the various packages "to determine which are the most applicable to our operation and which we would prefer to change that would be more advantageous to us."

The basic package, he explained, was developed for Grosse Pointe Woods which was the first of the six communities to go on line last year. Since the Woods has a public safety department while the Park has separate police and fire departments, Caretti said the original package has to be altered to fit the Park's situation.

The Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods formed a coalition to obtain a grant from Metropolitan Affairs Corporation, which is part of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, to develop a computer system that would be compatible with each other to facilitate information.

The Park will be the second of the six communities to go on line, however Caretti said to didn't know when that would be.

Both Erickson and the school social worker awarded the South post are members of the Grosse Pointe Education Association, Cook said. She told trustees she supported the development of a substance abuse counseling position for Erickson and expanding her responsibility to include North High as well.

Before going into closed session to decide what to do about the arbitrator's ruling, board President Jon Gandelot said "the board is very concerned about ... students" and would take their point of view into consideration when making a decision.

The dispute over Erickson's hiring to the South school social worker post began in 1984 with the retirement of the school's social worker. The system posted to fill the position, saying candidates should have a master's in social work and substance abuse counseling experience.

Erickson was chosen over another candidate for the position because of her overwhelming expertise in substance abuse counseling, even though she didn't have a master's degree in social work, school officials said.

The union filed a grievance in the case and followed it through to arbitration, arguing that the system ignored its own posting in choosing a candidate. The artibrator ruled for the union and granted the relief requested by the union; appointment of the second candidate to the South post.

State law requires a school social worker to have a master's degree in social work to perform special education duties, requiring the school system to bring in other social workers to handle those tasks officials said.

The administration will continue to look at the problem this week, according to Superintendent John Whritner, who said he will recommend Monday night that the board hire a social worker for Mason and Parcells schools. The board will also be asked to retain Erickson at South for at least part of her assignment to maintain the substance abuse support group program there and considering expanding the program to North, he added.

The board will also be asked to consider putting together its substance abuse program plan as well, Whritner said.

Development key to Farms' future

By Nancy Parmenter So many factors that affect the operation of local government are beyond that government's control, and cities are doing well just to keep their noses above water. Inflation, insurance costs, federal revenue sharing, workers' compensation regulations, overtime rules are all outside influences impervious to the opinion of local officials.

"We're just a little rowboat on the ocean," says Farms Comptroller and assistant City Manager Carrol Lock.

It's tempting in the face of that lack of control to focus on the minutiae that one can control, but Lock says that's a mistake. "It's typical of the federal government approach to say that paving a parking lot is progress," he said. Paving a parking lot is not a goal - it's one way to enhance and maintain standards. What I can say is that, in spite of a lot of negatives, we have maintained our desirability as a residential community. But there were a lot of bumps along the way.

There are some concrete ways to gauge the maintaining of standards. City Clerk Richard Solak lumps them into two broad categories - developmental and infrastructure maintenance.

This year, the Farms completed and dedicated Richard Place, a parking lot-cum-park that links the upper and lower Hill districts. The area provided some much-needed parking, intended to alleviate current pressures and perhaps spur additional development, while its benches and gazebo gave strollers and lunchers an attractive spot to rest.

Two Hill development projects saw the first light of day after years of planning. The Bologna-Standard Federal project will provide office and retail space, fueled by a parking structure to be built by Cottage Hospital. It will offer parking space to hospital and project employees as well as Hill shoppers.

At the other end of the Hill, the Punch and Judy Theater building will anchor the business district with more office and retail space.

"We're excited," Solak said. "We expect to see more (such development) in the future. It should help the business climate on #### the Hill,"

Next summer should see some activity on two other projects approved by the Farms council this year, Solak said. The Pier Park entranceway is to be rebuilt for longer deceleration lanes, a new gatehouse and landscaping. "It's in the contract that work is to be completed by Memorial Day," Solak said, so the construction will not interfere with recreation.

Beautification of the city hall will take longer, but some effects will be noticeable next summer. On the agenda are paving the parking lot created by the demolition of the Old Kerby School and landscaping the entrance. Further ahead, the main building entrance, which now faces Kerby Road, will

'We are an aging community and it's important to keep abreast of things," Solak said.

While the specifics may add up to progress, the long-term trends are not so favorable. All cities face a crisis in the cost of liability insurance, fast becoming the biggest single budget item. In December, the Farms joined the growing march toward an insurance pool.

'It's a sign of the last year that I have no trouble thinking of low points, but can't think at all what the high points are," said Lock. who was immersed in the ining things on an individual basis just means on an erratic basis.

The inability of the state legislature to come up with solid programs to regulate liability insurance or workers' compensation are taking a heavy toll on cities. Lock said. The federal reinterpretation of the law governing wages and hours fell on cities "like an instant snap of the fingers," leaving little time for pain.

The best thing any city can do in the face of fickle outside influences is to be consistent. "What's important for the Hill is to have a reasonable city policy and to provide services," Lock said. "Those are more important than the physical building.

be moved to face the parking lot. The city plans to phase the costs of the program into two budget years, Solak said.

The city has also entered into expanded maintenance of its infrastructure. 1985 was the second year of a three-year cycle to repair or. replace all of the broken sidewalks in the city. This year, the Farms

Lock is hopeful that Congress will make the hard choices on the deficit, the budget, the federal programs and regulations that affect cities. "After all, what are they giving away to the city?" he said. "They're giving us debt. It's nice to be a sugar daddy, but you sould be able to pay for it.'

Lock took special aim at high-minded programs that fail to accomplish their good intentions, at the general willingness to accept federal money as if it were free ("if we really need it locally, maybe we should finance it locally"). and at inconsistent state policies that have "created turmoil" for cities.

"There's a general atmosphere of not knowing what will happen next," he said. "We're figuring it out as we go along. Being inconsis-

Lock and Solak both pointed out that the Farms has an interest in Mack Avenue businesses as well as the Hill district. "Associating the Farms with the Hill isn't fair,' Lock said. "Mack is a viable area.

Year-to-year consistency, "not a one-year shot," is the key to main-taining Mack, Lock said. "For instance, Village Foods made a big expansion a couple of years ago, he said. "They did that because they can count on long-term consistency."

The Farms is also concentrating more on clean-up in the area. A code enforcement officer makes regular visits to merchants and the city has put the owner of the parking lot behind Sears on notice that if he doesn't keep the lot clean, the city will - and send him the bill. # An A- for the schools

That 1985 survey of adult households in the Grosse Pointe School District - reported in detail elsewhere in today's issue of the Grosse Pointe News – showed the kind of strong support for the school system that residents of the community have come to expect.

In fact, most of the findings corroborated the general beliefs that people in the community hold about their school system and the way it operates. Thus it is not surprising that respondents approved the school system not only for its educational programs but also for helping to maintain property values. Overall, almost 85 percent of the respondents gave the system an A or B.

Yet it is also true that the respondents, when asked about specific programs and services offered by the Grosse Pointe schools, did propose some improvements. In view of the criticism of all schools in recent years, it was not surprising that respondents recommended the schools give more attention to the basic three "R's" meaning reading, writing and arithmetic (mathematics in this context).

A majority of respondents also backed giving more attention to students in choosing their careers, in combatting drug and alcohol abuse, in helping them think and solve problems, and in learning more about computers. The survey was skewed in several respects.

however. More than 68 percent of the respon-dents were women and only 26.3 percent were men (with 5.67 percent not answering the question). In addition, the survey showed that almost 37 percent of the residents were more than 61 years of age, which also is slightly higher than the census figures for the Pointes. The heavy preponderence of women and the larger percentage of older people surveyed probably came about because the survey was made of households and was taken by telephone.

Yet the strong support for the schools apparently came from the older as well as the younger respondents. Overall, 89 percent of respondents said they would vote in favor of the millage renewal on March 10, and only 5 percent said they would vote against it. The other 7 percent either had no opinion or didn't say how they would vote. The question did assume, however, that the tax rate would remain at its current level even though the school board will not actually set it until Jan. 13.

Satisfaction with the schools was expressed and analy at the SIMPLANT.

in several ways, with the majority agreeing with statements saying that the schools challenge students, that students who have learning problems can get extra help, and that the school buildings are well maintained. At the same time, the majority expressed disagreement with the statement that the curciculum contains too many frills.

Asked to point to the biggest single problem facing the schools, the respondents offered a wide variety of answers, with the 12.56 percent expressing concern about the declining enrollment topping the list. But the enrollment in 1985 has shown a slight increase, although it is too early to say whether it is a continuing trend.

Use of drugs, substance abuse, alcohol and smoking -a single item in the survey -wasfound to be the biggest problem by 10.99 percent of the respondents but no other concerns reached double figures. And almost one-third said they couldn't say what if any problems faced the schools or gave no response to the inquiry.

More than three-quarters of those polled thought it would be "a good idea" to start a senior citizen center, perhaps in a school building, and almost one-half of those surveyed also thought the schools should offer preschool and day care programs. In both cases, however, there were differences among the respondents about whether such programs should be financed by the school sytem or by those served.

Two other conclusions might be noted. More than half of the respondents favored more courses for students not planning to attend college, even though a large proportion of Grosse Pointe graduates do go on to college. And a large majority — 92 percent of respondents — agreed that students taking part in sports and other extracurricular activities should meet minimum academic standards.

Overall, the survey did express a sweeping endorsement of the school system and the way it is operated. Yet is also offered some valid suggestions to the school administrators and the school board about changes and improve-ments that might be adopted in the future. In sum, the sample of the community appeared to reiterate the long-standing view that the residents of the Pointes are strongly committed to excellence in education and that the present academic program, with some exceptions, is meeting the challenge to provide that excellence.

China's Man of the Year

Kudos for school reporting

Is the new mix of capitalism and Marxism that appears to be emerging in the People's Republic of China the wave of the future?

Obviously it's too early to say but Time raises that possibility by naming Deng Xiaoping as the 1985 Man of the Year, the second time Communist China's leader has been awarded that distinction in the last eight years. Time contends that Deng is redefining communism through reforms that now are beginning to emphasize a market economy.

"Perhaps Deng is trying to mate two ideologies that are inherently incompatible." Time says. "But maybe, just maybe, the leader of the world's oldest and most populous nation has discovered a new path that will literally change the world.'

The Man of the Year award is, of course, a Time gimmick to promote the magazine. Even so, the choice is made, after a pool of the magazine's correspondents and staff, by Time's top editor, Henry Grunwald. Time admitted, in its documentary on how the selection is made, that a poll in November had put Mikhail Gorbachev into the top spot. But Grunwald, just back from a trip to the Orient, overruled his colleagues.

But who knows? Time and Grunwald may be right with Deng, even though the magazine's crystal ball as well as its news stories do not always prove to be accurate. Time loves to scoff at its chief competitor, Newsweek, and that publication's parent, the Washington Post, but it was the late Post publisher, Philip Graham, who wisely described news as "the first rough draft of history." And everyone knows that first drafts are error prone.

Yet in the eyes of the Chinese themselves, their country since ancient times has been regarded as the center of the universe. So if a modernized China sets a path for economic development that will blaze a new trial in the universe, it will be aoing no more than winning world standing for a nation that its own citizens already regard as No. 1.

At any rate, for whatever reasons, Dong now joins the panoply of foreign and U.S. leaders - political and otherwise - who have achieved Man of the Year distinction. The domestic list includes every U.S. president since F.D.R. save one - Michigan's own Geraid Ford -- plus two automakers. Walter P. Chrysler and Harlow Curtice (although neither Henry Ford nor Henry Ford II made the list), plus an assorted collection of other Americans.

Foreign leaders of our time named as Man of Year in the past included Mohandas K. Gandhi, Pierre Laval, Haile Selassie, Gen. and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, Adolf Hitler, Joseph Stalin, Winston Churchill, Mohammed Mosssadegh, Queen Elizabeth II, Konrad Adenauer, Nikita Khruschev, Charles De-Gaulle, Pope John XXIII, Willy Brandt, King Faisal, Anwar Sadat, Ayatullah Khomeini and Lech Walesa. Note that while the recognition is still termed "man of the year," several women have made the list.

Journalists, critics say, now often set the political agenda in the United States. If so, perhaps Time will now persuade the United States perhaps again to pay more attention to China, as it did back when Time publisher Henry Luce was backing the Chiangs against the Communists. This time, however, Americans will be watching to see whether China will become increasingly "soft on capitalism" or whether it will revert to the more traditional communism of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. Whatever happens, the world's largest nation - whose population of one billion dwarfs the United States - will have a continuing and increasing impact on world affairs.

travels fast here. But I just discovered a secret, comparatively speaking, that seems to punctuate an encouraging trend in our town. It's a remarkable, exceptional restaurant newly open for dinner.

The trend for interesting and genuinely good restaurants to open and survive in the Pointes has been on the upswing in recent years, an encouraging trend in a town long dominated by eating at the club. And it has seemed long overdue.

But it reached a new high in my experience last Friday evening, and although this new supper spot may not be everybody's cup of tea, it should be a source of special joy to some very discriminating diners.

Picture, if you will, a classically simple French Provincial decor, candlelight, discreet and efficient waiters, an intimate ambience and a casual elegance. A Beethoven violin sonata, Chopin etudes and a Mozart concerto ring softly in the background without hampering conversation.

The house wines, available by the glass, include an excellent Beaujolais and a very clean, dry Macon Village.

And the food is truly distinguished - still-warm crusty French bread, a crisp green salad vinaigrette, subtly sauced scallops of ultra-tender veal (it must be tenderloin) and medium rare breast of duck seasoned with Grand Marnier postponed disturbing it with my fork so as to enjoy it first as a work of art.

The cheese course that followed was a gourmet's delight. A perfectly ripe Brie (you can hardly find one any more, they're all stabilized by radiation for long shelf life) a creamy French goat cheese and a Stilton that all begged for another glass of Beaujolais to wash them down. And the desserts were no less a temptation.

In total it was a near-perfect restaurnat experience. Conversation flowed, the food was savored and commented on at every bite, and because it's still a secret, the place was uncrowded. We enjoyed ourselves for a couple of hours

I'm not suggesting that everyone should rush down to the Cafe le Chat because I just discovered it's open for dinner. Crowds would spoil the special atmosphere and stress the obviously dedicated and skillful chef. Save it for a special occasion - an evening when you want to savor an exceptional meal in an exceptional atmosphere, and relax and talk.

But let's count our blessings, Grosse Pointe. We can add a very special restaurant to our growing roster of places to eat out and we can be proud. It's really special. So it's a secret no longer! But it would have come out soon anyhow. Alex Suczek

Do something to help someone. (Quote taken from a sermon by Dr. Louis J. Prues - former senior minister of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.)

At this special time of year when we traditionally send season's greetings and best wishes for the new year, we want to take a moment to thank everyone who has been so supportive of us throughout the past year. All of your prayers and cards, letters, phone calls, gifts, raffle tickets, bike-athon sponsors and participants both for Sarah as well as for St. Jude Children's Hospital have been greatly appreciated. You should see the children's faces light up when they play on the new "Little Tykes" equipment in the clinic waiting area of St. Jude Hospital. The new toys were made possible through the money raised by Cub Scout Pack 481 -Kerby School - through a drawing last spring.

We are so very fortunate to be a part of this special community whose many individuals have shown that is possible to keep the spirit of Christmas alive all year long. We thank all of you for your love and continued support. Our best wishes to you for a happy, healthy 1986!

Prime Time for senior citizens By Marian Trainor

The newspaper lands against the storm door with a thud. You carefully open it just enough to reach your hand out to retrieve it. The idea being to keep the minimum of cold out and the maximum of heat in. Now that you have it in your hands, what is the first item of interest that you turn to: Probably the weather and then, more than likely, the horoscope for the day.

Now we are about to add to these two points of interest. Before long our daily printed link with both the immediate and far-flung world will carry another important message that will help us to plan our day and to operate at peak efficiency. Right along with what the weather has in store and what the stars predict will be a run-down on how today's weather will affect your health.

Example: Expect a mixture of freezing rain and snow all day, accompanied by strong, gusty winds. High only in the low 30s, barometer 29.1 and falling. Health Index: Look for greater energy and endurance, but watch out for increased aggression, sleepiness and sensibility to pain. General medical complaints 3 percent above average.

Correlating the weather with the index, it is easy to accept "in-creased sleepiness." What better way to spend such a day than to stay inside and eat, read and take frequent naps.

The pain threshold sounds logical. What is described is typical arthritis weather.

Endurance is needed to navigate in such a climate, but energy that's the jarring note. How are you going to have any left after you've spent it fighting the elements?

The above index seems to be pretty much on target, and is at least as accurate as many weather predictions and more reliable than horoscopes. We'd all be living In Utopia if what the stars promised came about!

At the very least, the index will provide a medical excuse for not performing as well as usual on bad weather days. But what can we use as an excuse when the weather is wonderful and we are not? Maybe we could find an alibi in the horoscope section.

Whatever, this alignment of weather and its effect on your health is no joke. Since 1952, West Germany has legally required its weather service to make health and hospitals. The doctors there day may be associated with yester-day's weather. This seems to indicate a need for a weekly file of re-ports so that you can check back to see why you feel down on a day when the skies are blue and the sun shines. According to the code it should be an up day.

The answer, experts say, is that weather, especially air tempera-ture, humidity and sunshine or lack of it, may aggravate pre-existing disorders, trigger illnesses or change your behavior. Studies have shown that because of the weather, you may tire easily or be unable to sleep. Under other conditions you may find yourself taking inordinate amounts of medication to control weather-induced aches and pains.

For instance, on a cool, rainy day you're likely to anger easily and be more sensitive to pain. You probably won't sleep as well and your arthritis or ulcers will cause distress. Cool, clear days, on the other hand, decrease your chances of getting a migraine, asthma attack or stroke.

One of the worst weather conditions that occurs is a warm, humid partly sunny day on which rain is expected. Such weather conditons cause you to feel sleepy, lazy, out of it. You may even have a headache.

If you are susceptible, those same weather conditions are right for cramps, stomach upsets, glaucoma attacks, fevers, climatic pain, bronchitis and heart attacks. There is an addendum to all of this. Two-thirds of the people react to weather conditions. The rest do not. People in the middle range of almost everything do not.

The others are categorized as weather-keen people. This starcrossed group is composed of female, young or elderly, slender or overweight, nervous, excitable or shy, and either in the upper or lower income groups.

Now that you know who you are, you are prepared to deal with weather conditions that affect you. Half of solving a problem is knowing the problem.

For instance, it's a hot, very bright, dry windy day. That means it's more than likely that your re-action time will be slower than normal. You won't be able to concentrate easily and you'll have more medical complaints than usual. What to do!

For one, recognize that your reflexes will be slower. Be very attentive when driving or working predictions available to doctors around the kitchen at home. Write yourself reminders to shut off lights, take keys out of car, etc. Schedule breaks in your routine to handle medical complaints. Just as the weather can slow you down, so it can also make you feel good. Studies show that the primary weather that gives pleasure is - you guessed it - sunshine! If it's a cool, dry, sunny day, you should feel great. There is a slight but important drawback to depending on the sun to make us feel good, perform all tasks well and not get tied up with stress - those months when we see so little of it. People are still trying to pull out of the debilitating gray November when the sun became an illusive stranger. December was a little better but not enough to revive any bursts of energy. Only the spirit of Christmas prevented us from sinking into an abyss of doldrums.

We can't go into hibernation and sleep the days and nights away until the sun breaks through the sullen clouds of winter. Economics will not permit it. Duty calls which involves getting up and going to work no matter what the weather conditions. But even the routine of going and coming and staying in out of the weather as much as possible can get too restrictive. Tensions build.

There are ways to relieve tensions. One of them is exercise such as walking or running but that doesn't have much appeal when each footfall could land you bottom-side down on a sneaky piece of ice that evaded removal. Health clubs and exercise classes may be too structured. What's left? Walking the malls. It's warm, has music for diversion, and is long enough to chalk up mileage.

Senior citizens and heart patients are often advised by their doctors to exercise in the malls to avoid temperature extremes and other stresses of outdoor walking. And, as one walker remarked: 'You don't have to watch for cars, dogs or holes in the sidewalks.

I say

As a kid, I used to hear older folks complain about "Murphy's Law" whenever nagging little things went wrong in their lives. I went blithely along, however, safe in the knowledge that since my name wasn't Murphy. I was exempt from such small disasters. Until one day in kindergarten when I learned to jump rope.

Unfortunately, that was also the day the class nemesis discovered that he could get his kicks by slid- Peggy ing building blocks beneath the O'Connor feet of novice rope jumpers. After my nose stopped bleeding, it dawned on me that sometimes, no matter how hard you try to prevent it, certain things are bound to happen to you. Even if your name isn't Murphy.

Since then, I've kept sort of a running list of the inevitable, at least as far as I'm concerned. Some call it Murphy's Law, some call it fate, and others just think of it as had luck Me? All I know is

Woods spent 1985 building, improving

By Tom Greenwood

All in all, 1985 was a pretty good year for Grosse Pointe Woods and its residents, according to Woods City Administrator-Clerk Chester Petersen.

The city was successful in 1985 in having the lowest tax rate for all the Pointes, without cutting back on city services," Petersen said. "It's been a pretty good year for the Woods.

Petersen said the city kept busy with its capital improvements projects throughout the community, with heavy emphasis on street. sidewalk, sewer and water main maintenance.

We completed the reconstruction of two streets this past year," Petersen said, "Manchester and Crestwood were completely removed and replaced at a cost of $186,892. The project was started in July

Other capital improvement plans included: concrete repair to numerous streets at $170,904; repairs to sidewalks, $160,545; asphalt repairs to streets at $106,500;

"We also replaced $216,400 worth of sewers in the city," Petersen

During 1985, the Woods also resurfaced and color-coded eight tennis courts at its lakeside park for $25,231 and planted 125 trees throughout the city, most on street rights of way, at a cost of $14,500.

Petersen is especially pleased

"With improvements to our water supplies and improved fire equipment, we're hoping the city will be regraded into a lower classification and save our residents money on fire insurance."

Closer to home, Petersen said the Woods, in cooperation with other local cities, had become the first community to completely computerize all of its police and fire records.

"Our public safety department is now completely computerized." he said. "From what we understand, our software is the most comprehensive to date and this system should go nationwide, with Petersen said the Woods also scored well in quality of life.

"In the coming year, the Woods will again be the host city for the third annual Fourth of July fireworks," he said. "The event has been tremendously successful and we feel the Woods is partly responsible for it. It takes place at Parcells Middle School and we contribute our police, fire and ambulance services to the event, as well as a $500 contribution. I don't think any other city in Grosse Pointe out the city, including Cook and Chalfonte, Morningside and Lochmoor, Fairholme and Morningside, and Morningside and Sunningdale.

"We're happy to say that response from residents in those areas has been very favorable," Petersen said.

The city also received an honorary mention from the Michigan Municipal League for its senior citizens awareness program in 1985 and has expanded its taxi program for older residents, providing them with taxi and bus transportation to special events, such as

Over the past year, the city constructed several beautification projects at intersections through-

"Finally, the Woods has won 12 national safety awards for pedestrian traffic," Petersen said. "We hope to win again for 1985, because, once again, we haven't had any pedestrian traffic deaths.

"I must admit we didn't win one last year, although we qualified,' Petersen said, with a smile. "We simply forgot to fill out the application. After all, nobody's perfect, although the Woods tries hard."

ocal experts look at economic future By Nancy Parmenter

Look-ahead assessments of the local economy for 1986 by participants in southeastern Michigan retail, construction, automobile and financial fields are cautious and not entirely optimistic. The state's economic health is seen as heavily dependent on outside factors: namely, the deficit, inflation, interest rates and international trade

Speaking to a December joint meeting of the Economic Club of Detroit and the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, three of the four hands-on experts rated performance in 1985 and 1986 high, at least compared to the doldrums year of 1982. The fourth, Grosse Pointer E. Paul Casey, president and chief executive officer of Ex-Cell-O Corp., warned of the imminent demise of automobile manufacturing in the United States unless the industry and its suppliers pull up their socks.

In anticipating a slow year for car sales in 1986, Casey told his audience that quick fixes for one year are ineffective. He called for a long-range approach to revamp the industry and reform the relationship between suppliers and manufacturers.

(At) issue is the survival of the domestic automotive industry," he said. The small-car segment of the industry has been virtually written off. "I believe (the) larger upscale car market represents the battle ground on which the survival of the automotive industry will be fought.

Critical to the fight are cost and quality, the two issues on which the imports have been gaining market share. U.S. producers may have to reduce their costs by one-quarter in five years in order to remain competitive. One way to accomplish that is automation, which Casey said has been increasingly relied on by suppliers as well as manufacturers.

'For example, Ex-Cell-O's Davidson Rubber subsidiary is using robotic water jet processes to trim instrument panel pads, Casey said. "The method saves time and cost, and the product quality is consistently high.

But a "significant opportunity" looms: an improved relationship between supplier and manufacturer. Quality and cost efficiencies stem from suppliers' efforts, Casey said, and "the auto companies now recognize this. Our re-lationship with them is evolving from historically adversarial role to one of partnership. Concepts of fewer suppliers, more dependence on sole-sourcing, earlier design and engineering involvement, and target-cost pricing are all being developed.

Economic forecasting is at best an inexact science. One national expert places its reliability "somewhere between meteorology and astrology." One of the Economic Club speakers, banker Charles T.

either, for the fourth year of a business recovery.

Some segments of the economy look spectacular in comparison with the recent bust years. Larry Barton, president of Barton & Barton, a construction firm, spoke of the "turnaround" in Michigan's economy.

"(T)here were more single family homes built in southeastern Michigan this year than were built in the entire state during 1982," Barton said. Likewise, commercial development continues "undaunted.'' Barton said the growth in places like Rochester Hills and Ann Arbor is "potential-packed" and ascribed the current boom in construction to the low rate of inflation

But housing is tied to the interest rate, something over which developers have no control. "Contractors are grateful for acceptable interest rates and steadying costs," Barton said, "(but) someone, some day will have to deal with our country's budgetary shortcomings. Inflation and higher interest rates - these could wreak havoc on one of construction's major gains during the past few years - relatively favorable labor settlements.

Industry unemployment was 59 percent in 1983, Barton said. That figure has dropped to 7 percent, partially because many workers left the industry, leaving an actual shortage of skilled labor at the present time.

Michigan retailing has a less favorable outlook. Bernard M. Fauber, chairman of Kmart Corp.,

said he doesn't expect consumers to further loosen their pursestrings

"(Ř)egardless of all the debate as to the consumers' ability to spend, their inclination to spend has dropped off and will probably remain flattish for most of 1986. In other words, the tremendous stimulus of tax cuts and other fiscal measures which drove the economy out of recession at the end of 1982 has about run its course,' Faubér said.

There are two major trends shaping retail markets over the long run, Fauber said. The purchase of services is increasing as a percentage of total income, a fact he attributes to the increase in working women. At the same time, consumers are demanding better quality products and are sensitive to price.

The one constant in all of this is change," Fauber said. "The consumer is demanding more, for less, at an accelerated pace.'

The engine driving all this is interest rates and inflation. NBD's Fisher said that although consumer debt is not so burdensome as originally thought, it is high enough to limit purchasing power.

Interest rates, however, may be safe for a while, as loan demand will not be strong enough to drive rates substantially higher. Fisher also said he expects inflation to be held to 1 percent by reduction in the value of the dollar.

The key - and unanswerable questions are whether the current low inflation and interest rates are a short-term fluke or a permanent

Test exhaust, law says

Okay, you probably know you have to have your car's exhaust tested before you get this year's license plate or tab. You know why the Environmental Protection Agency ordered the program for Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties

What you want to know is where to go to get the test done.

Of 15 auto repair and service businesses with Grosse Pointe addresses listed in the Grosse Pointes neighborhood directory yellow pages, only two say they aren't performing the tests. Eleven others say they will have the equipment ready — if they haven't got it already — in the next couple of weeks.

The two companies who aren't doing the testing now are Krausmann Service on Kercheval in the Park and Ray Summers Service on Mack in the City. Two others -Cueter Bros. Service and Doher Service - didn't answer when called Friday afternoon.

Administrators' titles, duties get shuffled

Some titles and duties will change under a central office reorganization plan discussed Monday night by the Board of Education.

The plan, recommended by Superintendent John Whritner, will put Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli in charge of "learning areas;" will make Assistant Director of Support Services and Personnel David King director of support services; and will move personnel assistant Fred Baker into the assistant directorship of the personnel department.

Reasons for the reorganization are three-fold, Whritner said. Under the present system, all lines of communication ran through the deputy superintendent's office to the superintendent. Splitting the areas of responsibility will increase the administrative efficiency, he said.

Spagnoli's new title will be deputy superintendent for learning. Building principals and directors of curriculum, special education and research and development report to Spagnoli, who in turn will report to Whritner.

Splitting duties into learning and support areas will emphasize the instructional work of the system, Whritner said.

Reporting directly to Whritner will be the directors of community education, libraries, personnel and labor relations, business affairs and support services.

King's title change to director of support services and Baker's move into the assistant personnel directorship will clarify the roles of those central office administrators, Whritner said.

King has been doing the duties of the support services director since the retirement of Benjamin Zenn at the end of the 1983-84 school year. Baker came to the central office as personnel assistant last year to help with election work. He had been an administrative intern at Parcells Middle School for half of the 1984-85 school year. The change will cost $3,000 to $4,000 when Baker becomes a

Work on the approximately $60,000 to $90,000 addition will start in early spring ing on Fisher Road. The addition will be one large open area on one floor with a basement.

The primary feature of the room will be a 15-foot "pit-drop," according to theater member Art Thompson, who has shepherded the addition through the planning and approval stages. "It will allow us to paint drops in the ver-tical position," he explained.

Until now, the group has painted drops at the War Memor-ial, laying them on the driveway and crawling around them. An obvious obstacle has been the

The drops will be attached to a moveable frame-work that allows the painter to stand at ground level. It's "pretty sophisticated" equipment for a sophisticated" equipment for a community theater group.

In addition, the basement will provide dry storage space. Damp-ness in the existing basement has damaged technical equipment, props, costumes and stage curtains.

The Fisher Road building, a former nursing home, has space devoted to rehearsal and meeting rooms, a library and some storage. Large items will continue to be stored at the War Memorial, Thompson said.

A theoretical issue in the City's approval process was the granting of a further parking variance of four spaces. Since no perfor-mances are mounted at Fisher Road, however, parking is not school district will be asked March 10 to renew three-quarters of the system's general fund millage and all of the library millage rate. Both requests will be for three years. The school system will seek renewal of 25.35 mills for general fund operations. The county allows the district to levy another 7.65 mills, bringing the total maximum rate for the general fund to 33 mills.

One mill is worth $1 for every $1,000 of state equalized value on property in the school district. For a person with a $50,000 home, the renewal means a possible general fund tax bill of $633.75. Districtwide, the renewal request represents about $25 million of the $33 million general fund.

The 1.3 mills for the library raises about $1.4 million.

Although authorized by voters to levy up to the 25.35 mills, the Board of Education this school year is levying only about 23 mills. The board has been authorized to levy 25.35 mills since March 1983.

The total rate of 32.62 mills The total rate of 32.62 mills levied by the school system in-cludes the voter-approved and county-allowed millages for the general fund, the library millage general fund, the library millage and a debt fund levy of little more than 1 mill.

The school board will officially set the election date at the Jan. 13 meeting. It discussed the millage requests Jan. 6.

The renewal requests will be separate on the ballot, with the first proposition being the general fund renewal, and the second the library renewal.

The last day of registration for the election will be Monday, Feb. 10, at the city halls of the six cities in the school district.

This will be the second election using the system's new precincts. Doris Jahnke and her husband, Gust, have seen a lot of the world. But for Doris, loving to travel has gone beyond the enjoyment of an annual vacation in an exotic locale. In her spare time, Doris arranges as many as 10 foreign tours a year - not for profit, but to help others enjoy world travel as much as she has.

Doris and Martha Kiely, wife of the minister emeritus of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, work together to arrange tours under the umbrella of "Journeys to Understanding." "We do this as volunteers on a non-profit basis," Doris said. . The idea began more than 20 years ago when the Presbyterian church promoted tours for church members who wanted to see the usual tourists attractions, but also wanted to have personal contacts with people in the countries they were visiting. The official church travel program was discontinued in the late 1960s because of a shortage of funds, but Doris and Martha, who were friends before either came to Grosse Pointe, decided to work together to continue the trips on an unofficial basis.

The first tour that Doris arranged was from Grosse Pointe in 1972. Since then, she has been doing it on a regular basis. The Journeys to Understanding are arranged from Doris' and Martha's kitchen table offices, but include all the niceties of a professionally arranged tour. In more than 10 years of setting up tours, she has developed contacts throughout the world.

"We want the trips to be people to people relationships," Doris said

The tour leaders are people who are familiar with the area being visited. Some are people who

Journey to Understanding . . .

(Continued from Page 1B) have visited the area before, but others are the children of missionaries who lived or were born in the area or are natives of the area in question.

After Doris establishes a leader for the area, she attempts to tailor the trip to the people who sign up for it. She tries to line up hospital visits for doctors and school visits for teachers. The goal is to allow people to meet people in the country they are visiting who are in the same line of work

"We have them meet for dinner and have some dialog, then arrange for a visit to a clinic, hospital, school or store," Doris said.

The contacts have led to longterm friendships. Many of the foreign group leaders have followed up the trips by visiting their counterparts in the United States.

Though Doris only accompanies one trip a year, her travel arrangements have led to adventures. In October 1984, a spur of the moment trip to Italy to check out accommodations for an upcoming trip became an unique experience when she and Martha were booked onto a charter flight with 400 Catholic priests

"If I ever write about it I'm going to call it 'Martha and Me and 400 Priests," Doris said.

The trip came about when the airline called and said just two seats were available on a charter flight on which the priests were visiting the pope in Rome.

"We were the last two to be seated on the plane," Doris said. "The girls taking the tickets asked us if we were sure we were getting on the right plane.

The travelers on Doris' tours come from all over the United States, though there are a good number of Grosse Pointers among them.

"I have a mailing list of about 1,500 people who have inquired about the trips," Doris said.

This year's tours include east-ern Canada and Nova Scotia, eastern Europe, a seminar on gospel and culture in Geneva, Russia, Turkey and Syria, Egypt. and a trip to Portugal led by the Jahnkes. Prices range from $1,137 for the Geneva seminar, to $2,298 for Russia. Prices are based on double occupancy, but partners can be arranged for singles who want to go along.

Some people are worried about foreign travel because of recent terrorist attacks. But Doris doesn't intend to let those fears curb her travel plans.

The chances of an accident on the way to the airport are greater than that you will meet a terrorist," she said. "But of all the tours planned, this year, the trip to Canada is filling up the most quickly.

Doris isn't particular about where she travels to, though she has taken particular pleasure in her visits to Portugal and Egypt.

"You learn something wher-ever you go," she said. "This is God's gift that you can travel in a day's time to anyplace on the globe.

Wanda Lincoln: Teaching the teachers teaching techniques

By Elsa Frohman George Bernard Shaw said. those who can, do; those who can't, teach. Wanda Lincoln of Grosse Pointe Woods disagrees.

"Teaching is one of the hardest things to do well," she said. "There are a lot of smart people in the classrooms, and it's not the common perception.

Lincoln is making a career of helping teachers do their job better. She is the author of a number of resource books for classroom teachers and travels throughout the western hemisphere to give seminars on teaching methods.

There is currently a nationwide scrutiny of education courses," Lincoln said. "But if there is a crisis in education, it is that for years women have subsidized education.

She explained that in the past. teaching was considered one of the "women's" professions and salaries were low.

"When the women's movement started opening doors, women took a long look at the long hours and low pay and said. 'I can do other things.' The question now is how in the next 10 years when there is going to be a teacher shortage, how to attract the best and brightest people to do something as important as teaching," Lincoln said. "People who work with children are not seen as having a status job. But to teach and do it well is exciting. It's never boring.

Despite low pay and low status, Lincoln has embraced teaching as her vocation and avocation. Among her qualifications as a teaching consultant, she lists 19 years of classroom experience.

After growing up in western Michigan, Lincoln attended the University of Michigan. She didn't begin with the idea of becoming a teacher.

"My father said he would send me to U of M if I could come out with something useful," she said. Something useful turned out to be a teaching certificate. Her first teaching job was in Puerto Rico. Over the years, a practical decision to earn a living as a teacher became dedication to the profession.

"What I like to do best is teach school," she said. Today, Lincoln's students tend to be a bit older as she speaks to practicing teachers, administrators and parents. The transition from teaching students to teaching teachers was gradual. Until a little more than two years ago, she was on the faculty of the National College of Education in Evanston, Ill., where she taught undergraduate and graduate education classes in the evening and taught elementary school children in the college's demonstration school during the day.

She left the elementary classroom when she married Dick Chadwell and moved to Grosse Pointe Woods. (Lincoln has retained her maiden name). Since settling in the Pointes, she has worked exclusively as a consultant, traveling to give one-day semin-

Lincoln's specialty is language arts, but her primary goal is to get teachers to think about what they are doing.

"I'm against the mindless use of ing teachers to think before they do. Don't be mindless.

Lincoln points to teachers' own language skills as a barrier to literacy in today's schools.

"We need to get teachers into the classroom who can write, and we need to stop compartmentalizing reading off from the other language arts. It is the rare school that combines reading and writing," Lincoln said.

Lincoln advocates regular practice in writing in elementary schools. "But it doesn't have to be 'My Life as an Ice Cream Cone,' she said

Lincoln blames the slights given to writing skills in American schools on the difficulty in quantifying the results.

"In the United States we have a zest for testing," Lincoln said. "Everything is numbers."

She points to the educational theory that breaks reading down into 582 sub-skills, then attempts to teach each sub-skill separately.

'The kid is going to be 52 before he learns all the sub-skills," she said. "It leads to workbooks where the student is supposed to circle the ducky that looks to the left. That's not reading. You need to read to the kids. But you can't measure that. There is more of a fascination with statistics than aesthetics.

Lincoln said when she teaches teachers to teach writing, she also teaches teachers to write, and think, clearly.

'When I was in school, I did a lot of sentence diagramming. But, you know, as an adult, I hardly ever diagram a sentence," she said.

Lincoln's approach to teaching writing is to give "recipes" for different types of communications, then have the students practice writing their own.

Along with giving specific techniques for improving teaching proficiency, Lincoln attempts to improve teachers' attitude about their profession.

'No one can tell you what to do,' she said. "But they can give you alternatives. I know what it means to look out and see 30 pairs of eyes looking at you.

While some say the Japanese education system is outpacing American system because of a longer school year and more drill, Lincoln disagrees.

"They say the American schools are doing a poor job, so they want them to do it more? That doesn't make sense. It's not a matter of time. It's a matter of quality. Two

Stuck in slow idle ...

My car seems to be doing it a lot these days, so it comes as no surprise to me that during these boring, anticlimactic, post-holidays that I should become stuck in s-l-o-o-w idle, too. And when that happens, there's no telling what I'll come up with ...

You want interesting characters? I give you George E. Van, of the Farms, longtime sailor, boating writer and my favorite interview subject of 1985. Van is an old salt with a bawdy sense of humor and tons of sailing tales. He's my kind of guy: says when he got married he did it "between races in Nassau."

... Where are all the North-South basketball fans? After the great crowds at the football, baseball and hockey versions of the last few North-South skirmishes, I have to admit I'm puzzled as to why more fans didn't show up for the basketball rivalry this year. The teams have played a pair of exciting games against one another the past two seasons, with South squeaking one out last year and the Norsemen winning on Dave Justice's shot at the buzzer this season.

So why the no-shows?

... Speaking of basketball, I got a kick out of scanning the pro box scores in last Sunday's papers. Seems the Houston Rockets the team with those 7-footers they call the "Twin Towers": Akeem Olajuwon and Ralph Sampson — ran their home record to 17-0 with a victory last Saturday night. Ah, but the Rockets are only 5-12 away from Houston, leading one to wonder. Do the Twin Towers get shorter on the road or something?

Don't ask me why, but I think that the outcome of the South-North hockey game Jan. 18 will come down to goaltending. Matt Dennis is a large part of North's success this season and South's Bill Tecos has been "Mr. Everything" for the Devils for three seasons. Each team is capable of scoring its share of goals, but I've.got a hunch the goalies will rule in this one.

... How do I know these things? They don't call me "Howie Meeker" O'Connor for nothing, you know.

... Nobody asked me, but I think the Detroit Red Wings made a great move when they brought Brad Park in to coach. The two Wings' games I saw this season were glaring displays of a team with some talent, but without much discipline, not to mention a lack of basic defensive skills. Maybe Park, an All-Star defenseman who made the playoffs every year of his 17-season career, might be the one to supply those necessary ingredients.

Gymnasts look toward improved 1986

By Peggy O'Connor

Coach Gretchen Madison's North High gymnastics team improved a lot in 1984-85 and the veteran coach looks for more of the same this season.

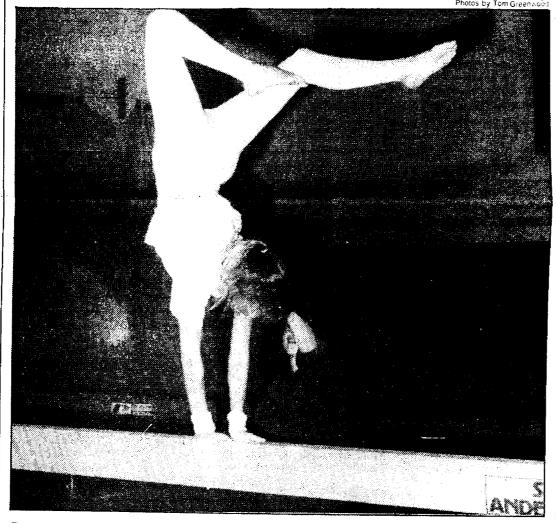

"By the time we have a couple of meets under our belts, we should begin to really do well," Madison says.

The Lady Norsemen will be led this season by seniors Cindy Dundon and Jill Boardman, whom Madison calls her "steady allarounders." Dundon has been a rising star for North since she was a freshman, qualifying for regionals in the past three seasons, and Boardman enters this season in good health, after injury and illness held her back as a junior.

"We have more depth than in past seasons, plus our two top scorers (Dundon and Boardman) back from a year ago. But a lot will depend upon what our No. 3 and 4 girls can do. point-wise," Madison says.

On vault for North as its opens the season at home Jan. 10 against Berkley are junior Nicole Lehman, Sue Haskell, Tina Francis and freshman Shanna Sine. Francis joins senior Jill Dornbrock and Sharon Frakes on the parallel bars; Frakes and Dornbrock will compete on the balance beam. Frakes, Haskell, Lehman and Stacy Tsangalias round out the individual lineup on the floor exercise

Helping the North gymnastics squad improve this season are senior Jill Boardman (at right on the parallel bars) and junior Sharon Frakes (below, with coach Gretchen Madison).

They'll be facing an even-more improved league, including the one-two league finishers from a season ago: Fraser and Dearborn Edsel Ford.

"Neither one lost much to graduation as far as I know," Madison says. "I don't know how well we'll do until I find out what our third and fourth scorers can do this year."

Madison says she'd like to see North win the league — by beating out Fraser and Edsel Ford, naturally — and qualify for the regionals as a team. "I think we should qualify handily, but whether we beat out the rest of the league for the championship depends on us and how well the other teams get out of the gate," Madison adds.

"I'd also like to see Cindy and Jill go to the states. Any more than that, well, great. But right now we're looking forward to meeting Fraser and Edsel Ford. I hope that it's a close meet with both teams, that'll make it a lot of fun.

"They'll be tough meets, that's for sure. But that's nice for my top girls because it enables them to see where they stack up against the other teams' best," Madison says.

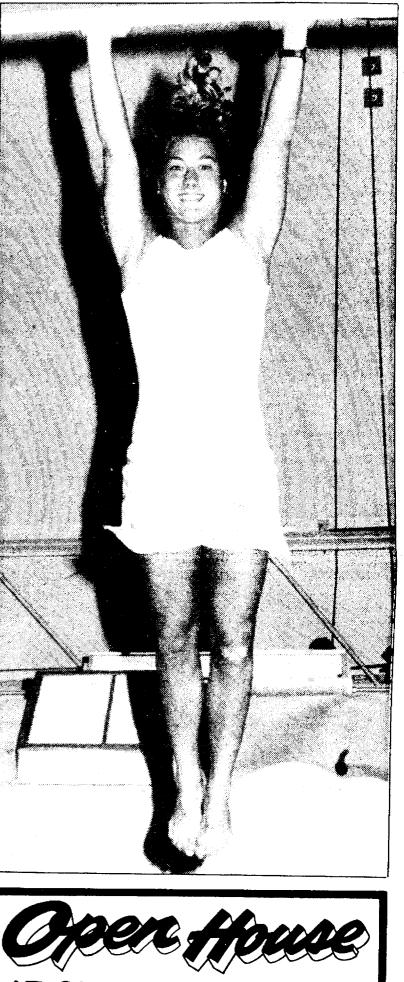

"I think we're in for a fun season. We have lots of talent up front and the rest is just beginning to slip into place." AT SOUTH, the four girls who

AT SOUTH, the four girls who qualified for regionals last season are gone, but coach Janice Mason's spirit remains undaunted. "We're going to be pretty strong, but our competition will also be the toughest ever,' she laughs. Individually, South looks to be Individually, South looks to be strong as ever, with eight returning gymnasts, including three seniors. Senior Kathy Trefzer will compete in the vault and on the floor, with senior Sonja Shellum on the vault, bars and balance beam and senior Carin Seyler on the floor exercise.

Monica McDermott and Karen Trefzer will be on the Blue Devils' all-around threat, with Heather Selig on the vault, Anne Marie Medwid on the balance beam, and Heidi Heilman on the vault, beam and floor exercise. Amy Tyrer will be on the bars and floor exercise; Amy Caswell on the floor, Lucia Bridenstine on the bars, beam and floor; Shannon Sterbling and Cassie Lewis on the balance beam; and Lisa LoCicero and Jenny Dahl on the beam and floor exercise.

"We're pretty much equal on every event," Mason says. "We're (Continued on Page 2C)

... Wondering about Grosse Pointe's best bets for a high school state championship this winter? Don't tell anybody, but I think the odds-on favorite is the South High swim team. The Devils are No. 5 in the state, but swimming consistently in the top three. Except that now I've probably gone and jinxed them. Forget I mentioned it.

... Don't look now, but the long-awaited rematch between the cage squads at North High and Clintondale is coming up Jan. 21 at North. Fans will recall that the Norsemen handed eventual Bi-County champ Clintondale its first loss last season, 75-73, and took the Dragons into overtime in the second game before falling, 63-61. And that game featured a bench-clearing brawl. The two teams are again fighting for the league lead and the Jan. 21 contest should draw a crowd (at least you'd think it would). I know I'll be there.

One added incentive for the league rivals just might be that the Clintondale players and their fans might remember what the North football team did to the Dragons in THEIR showdown this past fall.

... Is there life after Kirk Gibson? Only time will tell. But Detroit Tiger GM Bill Lajoie should know that there's an interested group of baseball fanatics over here at 99 Kercheval who thought his reported threeyear, $3.9 million contract offer to the Park's Gibby was, well, better than a sharp stick in the eye. They'd pounce on it in a minute, they said. (And I think their strikeout ratio is lower, too).

Best wishes to departing South High volleyball coach Jan Hooper in her new job. South JV basketball coach Cindy Sharp will guide the Blue Devil spikers the rest of this season.

The Woods' Jim Carson found last week's World Junior Hockey Championships a bit different brand of hockey than he's used to in the Quebec Junior Hockey League, says his mother Maria, who watched the tournament with her husband, Chuck, in Hamilton, Ontario. It seems Jim adjusted well enough, though, scoring four goals and one assist in the seven-game series against the world's best juniors. Carson and the U.S. team wound up with the bronze medal after beating Sweden, 5-1, on Saturday. Then it was back to Verdun, Quebec, to play in his Junior Canadiens' game on Sunday night. Carson. by the way, is third in the league in scoring with 93 points in 40 games.

Nice to hear that somebody isn't "stuck in idle."

South on target, North a year away from glory?

By Peggy O'Connor The Blue Devils are serious about swimming this winter.

Not that the South High tankers weren't serious last year, when they finished seventh in the state. But with 11 seniors returning this year and an up-and-coming group underclassmen, Coach Fred Michalik's squad is shooting for a top three finish in 1986.

'I think we have a legitimate chance. East Kentwood, East Lansing and Andover are very good, but I think we're right in there," Michalik says.

South is currently ranked No. 5 in the state after beating Catholic Central and Brother Rice and finishing second in the Rochester Relays and third in the Troy Relays. Andover won the Rochester event and finished one-two with East Kentwood in the Troy meet.

"We've been working really hard - double workouts all during the holiday break - but the real test will come this weekend when we swim Ann Arbor Huron and Seaholm back-to-back.

Then we'll see how we stack up

Michalik says he feels that South is strong in nearly every respect. with the exception of sprints and diving, where three freshmen compete. "We need to improve a lot in those areas, but the freshmen divers (Josh Winquist, Norman Florance and Neil Combs) are coming along well," he adds.

Qualifying for state competition is one of South's main goals this season, Michalik says. The medley relay - Jeff Clark, Rick Leonard, Matt Smith and Scott Frame has already qualified and Leonard (100 breast) and Dickie Clarke (500 free) have qualified individually.

AMONG THE talented seniors returning to the South lineup this season are Craig Bagno, backstroke: Geoff Centner, 50 and 100 freestyle: Jeff Clark, backstroke and medley relay; Richard Clarke, 200 free and IM, 500 free; Ryan Hoeh, backstroke, individual medley: Wally Guevara, sprints: Frame. 50 free: Leonard, backstroke: Jeff McKean, 100 breast; Bobby Owens, 200 and 500 free; Matt Smith, 100 fly and medley relay; and Chris Soltis, 50 free.

Michalik says he hopes for Bagno. Centner, Richard Clarke, and McKean to qualify; Clarke has the added pressure of being the only returning member of the freestyle relay team which finished third in the state last season.

In fact, South's lofty status so early this season translates to a lot of pressure on every swimmer. "I try not to put pressure on the kids . only when they're in the water. They know what they have to do and I'm pretty happy with where they are now," Michalik says.

South has a large squad this winter, partly because Michalik dislikes cutting those who come out for the team and also because he wants to build for the future. And that future lies with a crop of talented underclassmen, including sophomores Chris Nevison, 100 breaststroke; Billy Thompson, who qualified for the states as a freshman in the backstroke; his brother Ian, who hopes to qualify in the butterfly are making it to the states in the 100 fly last season; and freshman Paul Wilson, who Michalik feels may qualify in the 100 backstroke. "WE'VE ALSO got some young kids who are coming along well. We expect to see some points from them this year," he adds. They are junior Bill Finazzo, sophomores Jerry Bocci, Tim Crain, John Ledyard and Eric Steiner and freshmen Chris Clarke, Barclay Crenshaw, David Fuger, Ron Mucciali, Jamie Osborn, Brad Stedem, and Jay Simpson and Justin Palms.

"This is going to be a team effort. We're not going to rely on three or four people to score points for us and the kids are aware of that. We need to get as many kids possible qualified for the states. Once you get in there, you've got a good chance to make a move if your people are finishing in the top 12 and earning some points for you," Michalik says.

Michalik sounds confident in his squad this season, and with good reason. "They are a fantastic group, a good group to work with. They'll do anything you ask. They've been working out around  $5^{1}_{2}$  hours per day and that's a lot of hours.

"I really like our chances." AT NORTH the term

'developmental year'' is not necessarily synonymous with the 'give it up, no state championship here, going-through-the motions' kind of year many high school sports fans think. At least, not as far as the North High varsity swim team is concerned.

"We may not do well against the super teams. We realize we can't compete with the Ann Arbor Hurons, the East Kentwoods, the South Highs . . . but looking at the attitudes this group has and the amount of work it has put in, we should be able to improve tremendously. And that's what we're working for this year," says North coach Les Roddis.

"I see us as being one year away. Last year was a rebuilding year and even though we made a lot of noise as far as individual times at the state meet, we still had no juniors. We were young. This year, we've got six juniors and if we keep improving we should be a very good team next year," he added.

Which is not to say that Roddis has written this season off - far from it. The Norsemen were 3-2 at press time, including one close loss to Henry Ford II High on Dec. 19, when because of a holiday concert, they couldn't fill out the second half of the meet with swimmers. Roddis has some high hopes for this season, which continues with a home meet tonight against highly-ranked Dearborn.

'We'd like to see as many juniors and sophomores qualify for the states as possible. Realistically, as young as we are, that would mean about six swimmers. As far as our competition, we are going to look at each meet to see our percentage of improvement and to see what percentage of the against those difficult teams - and team is able to improve meet by meet. Those are the kinds of things we're gearing for this year," Roddis says.

"We'd like to win the Bi-County League again and do it by going undefeated. We feel that realistically, we can accomplish that," he adds.

To do it, Roddis will have to rely on 16 returning swimmers, plus what he calls a "good-looking" crop of freshmen and first-time swimmers. Only two seniors, divers Mike Reynolds and Chris Tapper, are in the North lineup this season

REYNOLDS FINISHED ninth in the state last year and Roddis says he has a good chance of becoming the 1986 Class A diving champ. "His dives are all 2.5 degree of difficulty or better and that's exceptional for a high school diver. He's also going for Mike Brown's pool record and I think he's got a shot at that," Roddis says. (Brown, the 1978 state diving champ, set a North record of 333 points that season).

Tapper is returning from an injury. He was fourth in the league in 1985 and may move up into the top two this year, Roddis adds.

NORTH BEGINS the January portion of its schedule with tough meets against highly-rated Dearborn, Ann Arbor Huron and Brother Rice, with South and Ann Arbor Pioneer to follow. Leading the way improved Bi-County opponents South Lake and Lake Shore -- will be junior co-captains Andy Young and Brad Cooksey. Roddis says Young should qualify for the states in the 50 and 100 freestyle after coming close last season. Cooksey, he adds, swims the 500, the 100 fly and the 200 IM for North and has a shot at state times in all three.

Rob Walters is North's junior breaststroker who was third last season and should lead the squad in 1986. Ian MacNeil, fourth in the league last year, swims the 50 and 100 free and is the No. 2 man behind Young. Jeff Cornell is the other freestyler and junior Dave Farell swims the 100 fly and 100 back, in which he should place in the top three in the league.

Six sophomores return to the lineup this winter, led by Greg Cooksey. Cooksey has already qualified for the states in the 100 back (57.5), was part of the state final relay team last year and Roddis says he should qualify in the 200 freestyle or IM this season.

Drew Dungan is a 50/100 freestyle specialist who is making the switch to the 200 free. "He's doing well, dropping his time and growing, as well. He may make the states next time around," Roddis

Other sophs are Jeff Williams, swimming the 500 and 200 free and with a chance to qualify in both those and in the 100 backstroke;

Scott Tenkel, who has already bettered his times in the 200/500 free and, according to Roddis, should finish in the top three in the league; Ron Jendretzke, a returning letterman who has improved his times in the 200 IM and 100 back and is also trying to develop a butterfly stoke; and newcomers Peter Eliades and Chris Caldwell.

Eliades is a first-time varsity swimmer who competes in the freestyle and Caldwell, a novice diver who scored more points in three exhibition dives than regular divers did in six events in a meet earlier this year, according to Rod-

PROMISING FRESHMEN Bob Straske, Bill Turnbull, Chris Candiliotis, Harry Manos, Jason Demeyer and John Baal round out the lineup.

"Our specialty strokes are our real weakness right now. We've been doing so much stroke practice that we don't get as much endurance training into our workouts as I'd like,'' Roddis admits. "As a result, our breaststroke, back, fly and IM are our Achilles' heel right now. We just don't have the back-up to be stronger in that area.

"But, overall this is probably the best group I've ever had. I don't say that because of the talent factor, but because they are all highly-motivated. There are no problems, only good attitudes. And in the long run, that means a lot to a team.'

periods, before Arthur Hill took control with five third period goals three on power plays — to take the 7-2 victory.

The first period ended in a 1-1 tie on junior Jerry Bourke's goal from Huntington. The second period came to an end with the teams in a 2-2 deadlock after LeFebvre's shot from the blue line found the mark. Wood assisted on that goal.

The third period was South's downfall as Arthur Hill had more shots in that one period than South could muster in the entire contest. Sophomore goalie Mike Semack played his first complete game of the season, making 38 saves and keeping South in the game most of the way

"I am satisfied with the team's progress so far . . . but there is still a lot of work to do," said South coach Tim Zimmerman.

(Continued from Page 1C) not extremely strong or weak in any area and that's pretty nice. We have to have at least four competing and in most cases, we have five or six which is a good indication of our depth.

One thing that's different about South's 1986 squad is that the girls won't be able to rely on one person for the team scoring as was the case with Gwen Adik and Karen Howe in recent seasons. "Everyone has to do well and I think everyone can do well this year," Mason says.

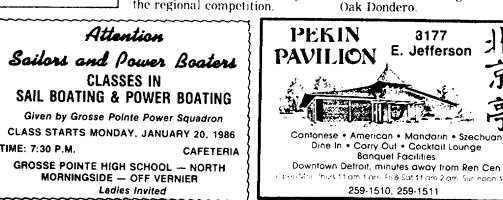

Despite a more complicated scoring system (the addition of one high superior score to the old system of three superiors and four mediums). Mason says she hopes for a number of girls to qualify for the regional competition.

"That puts more pressure on the girls who are high school gymnasts and not club competitors, but I think we can qualify some girls for the regionals.

"I'd also like to improve our record (3-6 in 1985) in the league, but Fraser and Edsel Ford will be tough, as will North High." Mason adds

'But I'm looking forward to the season. This is a good team, considering that we don't have girls who compete in clubs. And we've accomplished so much already. For example, every one of the girls with the exception of one or two is new to the bars and it has been rewarding to see how much they have achieved.

A new and improved model of the vehicle, "Romancing the Stone," is cruising to the same success its predecessor enjoyed. It is Jewel of the Nile.

Where "Romancing the Stone" mixed adventure and comedy, "Jewel of the Nile," under the direction of Lewis Teague, relies on a mix of one-liners and bright repartee to add interest to the high adventure of Joan Wilder (Kathleen Turner) and high-risk adventurer Jack Colton (Michael Douglas)

The time span between "Jewel" and "Stone" is six months. The handsome couple are spending a six-month vacation on a boat. But there is trouble in paradise. Jack wants to continue the idyllic arrangement and sail to Greece. Joan has other ideas. She is determined to accept an offer to write the biography of Omar, an Arab Potentate (Spiros Focas).

Too proud to urge her to stay, Douglas wishes her luck and starts making plans to go to Greece alone

In the meantime, Joan discovers that Omar is not the charmer she thought him to be nor is he inter- movie fans, too.

"Greater Tuna," a comedy by Jaston Williams, Joe Sears and Ed Howard, is the next offering at the Attic Theatre. The show runs from Jan. 10 to Feb. 9.

brings along his nemesis Ralph (Danny De Vito).

Their rescue mission is a riot of automatic weapon fire, explosions, chases and torture sequences. The trio also comes up against a gentle holy man (Avner Eisenberg), a group of Sufis (The Five Flying Karamazov Brothers) and the National Dance Company of Senegal. Fans of "Romancing the Stone" will enjoy more of the same in , 'The Jewel of the Nile.'

Turner is delightful. Douglas is dashing. De Vito's low-life gab adds zest as the irascible Ralph and Eisenberg is a holy man who is not above humor. The soundtrack is upbeat and ingenious and the costumes and scenery are eyecatching.

With a small $17 million budget compared to $50 million to $100 million spent for other films, "Jewel of the Nile" will undoubtedly turn out to be a jewel of an investment for the producers. It's a good investment in pleasure for

'Dance With Stranger' based on true story

By Marian Trainor "Dance With A Stranger" is an intense, dark movie in which every nuance, every word, every movement is integral to the film.

Attention to such detail is the key to understanding for the story is more concerned with what goes on in the mind of the hapless Ruth Ellis, played with astounding authority by newcomer Miranda Richardson.

The darkness of her tragic love is matched by the darkness of the sets against which her story is played: a dark. smoke-filled nightclub, the dark rooms where the lovers meet and the dark streets they walk.

Somewhere along the line, Mrs. Ellis has been misused by life, making her a bitter person. She hides her hatred for the world well, as she moves gracefully among the frequenters of the nightclub, exchanging greetings in a gentile. well-modulated voice.

Exhibit of platters at Pewabic Pottery

"Platters" by five American artists, Tom Coleman, John Donoghue, Ken Ferguson, Wally Mason and Don Reitz, will be exhibited at Pewabic Pottery Jan. 10 through Feb. 1. An opening reception will be held Friday, Jan. 10, from 6 to 9 p.m. Regular gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The exhibition will demonstrate five perspectives within the limitations of the platter. Tom Coleman of Canby, Ore., will exhibit a new body of work exploring the uncontrollable and accidental. He is including new organic materials into the wood and salt firings of his porcelain platters. The new work accentuates freedom of form and texture.

sion, Kan., is one of the leading figures in functional pottery. His work is distinguished by a sensuality of form and surface. His work reflects the fine art of traditional craft.

Wally Mason of Burlington, Vt., will exhibit a new series of work titled "Safety and Numbers." His current imagery concentrates on his response to daily life where the subconscious process takes over, borrowing from everyday shapes and forms. These platters are hand-built of terra cotta and fired at low temperature six to 14 times. Don Reitz of Marshall, Wis., will exhibit his hand-built platters, painted with bright colored slips with graffito markings on black clay. His ongoing series of work will explore the immediacy of a childlike being using symbols and words. In conjunction with this exhibit, a group of platters will be shown in the consignment gallery. Among the artists exhibiting are Sylvia Mitchell of Grosse Pointe, Susan McGraw, graduate student at Cranbrook, Alan Vigland of Ben-zonia, and Marcia Armstrong of Columbus, Ohio. Pewabic Pottery, a historic and contemporary ceramics center, is located at 10125 East Jefferson, and so wined and operated by the non-profit, tax-exempt Pewabic Society. The pottery is funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts.

GROSSE POINTE NEWS

U.S. Savings Bonds now pay higher variable interest rates like money market accounts! At the current rate, you could double your money in less than seven years.

Hold your Savings Bonds for five years and you automatically get the higher variable rates that change every May 1 and November 1. Plus, you get a guaranteed return. You'll probably earn a lot more—but never less than 7½%. Money market rates. A guaranteed return. You couldn't ask for better reasons to buy Savings Bonds. And Bonds are still a great way to keep America strong.

Savings Bonds are easy to buy, too. Purchase them at almost any financial institution. Or easier still, through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Start today.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Variable rates apply to Bonds purchased on and after 11/1782 and held at least 5 years. Bonds purchased before 11/1782 earn variable rates when held beyond 10/31/87. Bonds held less than 5 years earn lower interest.
