A gross story

Park City Manager John Crawford passed along a letter addressed to the Grosse Pointe Park Chamber of Commerce. Mary Murphy, a sixth-grader from Littleton, Colo., wrote a fictional story on how Grosse Pointe Park got its name and asked, in return, for its historical origin. Mary wrote:

"A long, long, long, long, long time ago, in a galaxy far, far, far, far, far away, alien beings came down to earth in their grossmobile. They went from city to city in search of a special environment that would support their life. A gross environment. Upon coming to Michigan, they found a marvelous swamp in which they would live forever. Travelers coming to Michigan saw the swamp and aliens exclaimed, 'Gross!' Well, the name stuck, the swamp grew and became Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan."

We are asking that any reader who knows how Grosse Pointe came to be named call us at 882-0294 and we'll pass the correct information along to Mary. Bet-cha it won't be a colorful as her account though.

Wonder how Littleton got its name?

Starstruck

Movie lovers, keep an eye peeled on the silver screen for Hollywood's latest start, Camille Nowosielski. A communications major at Orchard Lake St. Mary's, our own Camille, who lives in the Park when she isn't shooting, talked her way into a big part in "Murphy's Romance."

Seems Nowosielski headed down to Florence, Ariz., on her spring break to spend some time living with nuns at a mission. By coincidence, Florence, which she says is "known for its drab atmosphere," was also the site of the "Murphy" shoot.

"I was getting restless at the mission," Nowosielski confessed. She hopped on a bike and rode 10 miles out to a ranch to check out James Garner and Sally Field.

She struck up an acquaintance with the gate guard and soon found herself painting sets. Sooner or later it had to happen: Somebody's girlfriend, scheduled to do a bit dancing part, got sick. Go for it, Camille!

"I was just an extra, cowboy-dancing with a guy who tries to pick up Sally Field," Nowosielski said. "And I didn't end up on the cutting room floor."

One little candle

Neighbors of Jim Weber on Lakepointe in the Park had their Christmas brightened this year with illuminari. Weber put out the decorations, candles in paper bag-lanterns, all up and down the street. One of Jim's neighbors called in to say what a lift his efforts gave the area. We know, we know, this happened more than a month ago, but there is no statute of limitations on the nice things people do.

Shaking shook 'em

Shortly after Friday's temblor, the City police switchboard was flooded with more than 60 calls as residents wanted to know what was shaking.

Callers were informed of the earthquake which was centered near Cleveland and were told they weren't the only ones affected.

"I heard there were a lot of calls," dispatcher Paul Onderbeke said, "more calls than when the War Memorial shot off a fireworks display and there hadn't been anything about it in the papers."

Property values go up in Pointes

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It's one of those good news/bad news things.

The good news is, homeowners in the Pointes may find their homes are worth more, because of recently completed sales studies done by Wayne County.

The bad news is, that extra value could translate into higher property taxes should cities and schools not adjust their rates when they begin looking to fund 1986-87 fiscal year budgets.

The preliminary results of the 24-month sales study completed by the Wayne County Assessor's Office shows property values up overall for all the Pointes, ranging from close to 3 percent in the Park to almost 8 percent in the Farms.

The sales studies review home sales for the final nine months of 1983, all of 1984 and the first quarter of 1985, according to George McEachern of the county assessor's office. The reports show almost twice the normal number of home sales in the area.

Grosse Pointe Township residential property is worth about 3 percent more this year than last, McEachern said. Lake Township, which with Grosse Pointe Township makes up the village of Grosse Pointe Shores, is in Macomb County.

In the City, residential property values are up 5.6 percent, while the Farms shows an increase of almost 8 percent, according to the county. The Woods' property values are up about 4.5 percent while the Park records an increase of residential property values of 2.7 percent, according to the county.

The preliminary study does not necessarily mean tax increases or increases in all assessments in each city. Local assessors study the sales data and may make adjustments in subdivisions or in certain categories of properties to reflect sales activities.

In the Shores, that means that some subdivisions will stay at the same level as last year, while others have increases of more than 5 percent. In the Farms, property values will end up rising about 7 percent, but larger homes may see a more substantial increase.

Overall, property values in the county will increase about 1.2 percent, a reflection of the stronger economy, low interest rates and more home sales, according to the county. Because the department is using a 24-month study that only includes the first three months of 1985, it won't be until next year that the strong housing market figures will be reflected in the calculation of assessments.

To come up with factors for each community, the county compares sales price of a home with its assessed valuation. If the sales price is exactly twice the assessed valuation, the community ends up with a factor of 1.

If the sales prices are consistently higher than the assessed values, the county calculates the difference and comes up with a multiplier to reflect the general change in values.

Change-in-assessment notices usually go out to homeowners in the middle of February. Cities schedule board of review hearings to listen to residents' protests of changes in assessments during March.

Special election likely in Park

By Pat Paholsky

Park firefighters this weekend went over the top, collecting more than the required 1,871 signatures in their petition drive, almost assuring that voters will decide whether the police and fire departments should consolidate.

The next hurdle for the firefighters is getting the signatures validated. With 2,100 signatures collected and at least another week of door-to-door visits, firefighter and spokesman Joseph Biak is confident that there will be a special election on the issue this spring.

The petition drive came after the city council approved consolidating the police and fire departments into a public safety unit following a two-year study. The merger was approved Jan. 13 and the firefighters started their drive the next day.

Firefighters have contended that a majority of Park residents want to keep the department separate. They point to a survey they took in October that showed that 78 percent of voters favor separate departments.

Park officials say that a year-long study by a citizens committee recommending consolidation by an 11-2 vote represented an informed and educated choice. It's the business of elected representatives to make decisions on behalf of the citizenry, they say, and their vote in this matter is the result of much information and testimony.

In the meantime, the first group of four police officers have begun the basic firefighting course with Park Fire Chief Phillip Costa. They will complete the 80-hour, two-week course Friday, and on Monday, Feb. 10, another group of four policemen will begin their cross-training.

Costa said the course covers what at one time was the minimum requirement and enables those who complete it to reach the first level of apprentice status. There are four levels to the journeyman status.

"I feel they are very willing to learn," Costa said. "They're absorbing a lot of material and we have done some hands-on in cold weather, which is not the best time to train."

Costa has been handling the cross-training by himself until a circuit court judge decides if there is cause for an injunction sought by the firefighters. They are seeking to preserve the status quo until an unfair labor charge is settled. Arguments for and against the injunction were scheduled to be heard Tuesday, Feb. 4, too late for publication.

Group may oppose millage

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Members of the Tax Advisory Group will meet this week to decide whether to come out for or against the public school system's millage renewal request March 10. The chairman, Joseph Callahan of the Woods, said the group is currently studying the school system before deciding what decision it will make.

"It's not accurate to say we oppose the millage," Callahan said Monday. "That will be decided democratically by the group."

He added he didn't want to predict what position the organization would ultimately take, since as chairman, his personal choice may influence other members.

Callahan said there is opposition to the school's requested renewal for authority to levy 25.35 mills, close to three-quarters of the general fund millage, and 1.3 mills to fund the library system. Many residents have become alarmed at the growing school budget, the high tax schedule and the escalating per-pupil expenditure, he added.

Joe Weaver, who chairs the group's public relations committee, will announce the decision.

The Tax Advisory Group has filed no organization papers with the county Election Commission, but that doesn't mean the group can't operate, Callahan added.

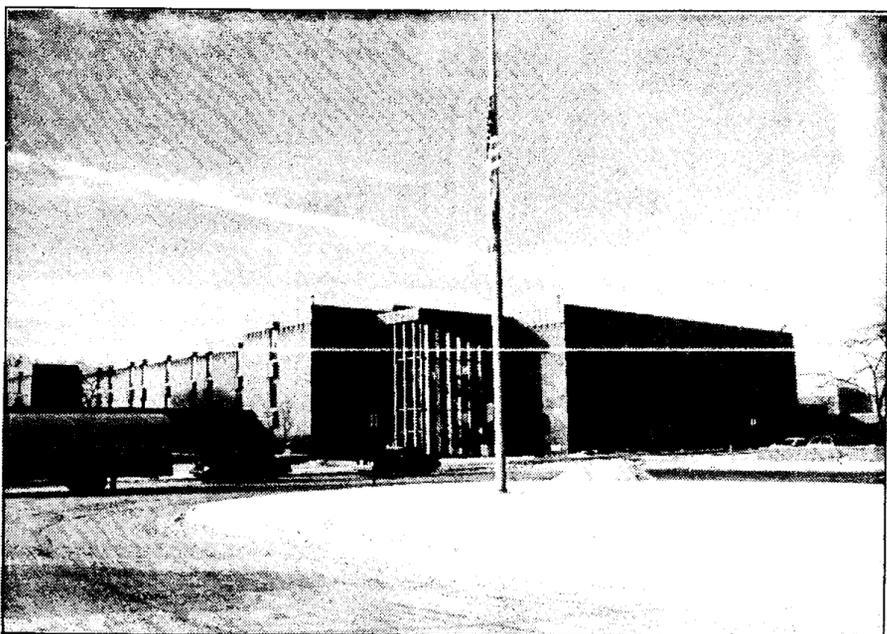

Callahan has been an advocate of school reorganization. He has been a frequent letter-writer and critic of the system's operations in the face of declining enrollment.

On the other side of the millage fence, pro-renewal forces expect to begin telephone work soon to contact frequent voters. Most of the campaigning is expected to come in the last couple of weeks before the election, however.

The school system also got into the act, with the discussion Monday night of a fact sheet concerning the millage.

While the district cannot take an official position either for or against the renewal request, it can publish information about the effects of a failure, using money from its general fund.

Voters have until Monday, Feb. 10, at 5 p.m. to register to vote in the millage election.

Look again . . .

Struck by the other-worldly combination outside of North High School, photographer Richard Kay took this picture of the flag at half-staff, in tribute to the astronauts who died last week — the divergent sky vapors, reminiscent of the ill-fated shuttle — the moon visible between the vapors, signifying the space program — and a school bus parked near the school, summoning thoughts of Christa McAuliffe, the teacher who died in the explosion.

Teacher in space is still a good idea, teachers say

By Nancy Parmenter

Last week's space shuttle tragedy was felt by every American, but perhaps nowhere as strongly as in the nation's teachers' rooms. Thousands of teachers nationwide applied for the position ultimately won by Christa McAuliffe; each must have felt the near brush with fate.

But the accident doesn't seem to have convinced many of them that the teacher's mission in space was a mistake. The subject has been discussed — but not strongly disagreed on — among the Grosse Pointe teachers who initially applied for the program.

"We've been talking about it and all agreed that we would still go," said John Shanle, an English and humanities teacher at South High School. "I'm still very positive on the program."

Shanle said he disagrees with critics who now charge that the teacher in space was a giant public relations ploy by the federal government and that civilians have no proper role in space.

"The teacher was not subjected to that (program) — it was totally voluntary," Shanle said. "Space exploration has benefits for mankind. I still think (exploration) is necessary, and I think that if those people were alive, they would agree."

John Harrold, an aviation science teacher at North, agreed. Like Shanle, he applied for the program nearly a year ago and "wanted very much to make it."

Herrold paraphrased Chuck Yeager, who said that when something goes wrong, you have to fix it, then go ahead. "That's the phase we're in right now," he said.

The problem with any industry like the space project is that it is impossible to measure the safety factors, Herrold said. "There are no statistics on safety, there are only statistics on accidents," he said. "Who knows how many times some guy fixed a little wire so there wasn't an accident?"

It is important that space exploration not be stopped because of an accident, Herrold said. "It would be absurd — it would be insane — to stop now," he said. "Then the loss of life would be a waste."

Everyone involved in the program is sure to understand the risks. He said he had followed McAuliffe closely in the newspapers and had never heard her say anything that would indicate that she was unaware of the risks. "She said the risks were minimized," he said. "She never said there weren't any."

As a flier himself, Herrold said, he is accustomed to having to assess the risk. "I would not have applied for it if I thought it was an unhealthy risk," he said. "Everything significant involves risk."

Those surrounding the teachers must feel a degree of relief that they didn't end up in the program. Herrold said his lengthy application process involved his students too.

"I asked them to come up with ideas and make proposals to me," he said. "The other day, one of my students saw me in the hall and said, 'Mr. Herrold, I'm glad I had a bad idea.'"

Woods man witnesses space shuttle explosion

By Peter A. Salinas

At 50 miles from Cape Canaveral, an exploding shuttle looks about the size of the moon high in the sky, and even at that distance, the orange fire ball can be seen.

Tom Slanec, a Chrysler Corp. automotive designer, was at a college in Orlando, Fla. attending a class when the group went outside to witness the launch of the ill-fated 25th launch of the space shuttle.

Slanec, 43, of the Woods, said he and about 25 others watched the Challenger rise above the trees from a parking lot.

"It was a crystal clear day because it was so cold," Slanec said. "It was spectacular. I was impressed with how much you could see at that distance."

He said it was obvious to everyone watching that something was wrong when the shuttle became a fiery orange ball in the sky.

"I didn't know what to expect," he said, "but one of the guys from Florida said he thought something was wrong. We saw the booster rockets spiraling away and it didn't look right."

Slanec said he expected the Challenger to emerge from the smoke and attempt to land — but, of course, that never happened.

"A secretary came out of the office and screamed that the shuttle had exploded," he said. "I had an awful feeling — like my stomach was in a knot."

Slanec said he had a special interest in this mission since he knew he would be nearby at the time of the launch.

"I had seen 'The Dream is

Alive' at the Detroit Science Center," Slanec said of the movie partly shot on one of the shuttle's missions.

"People come out of their offices, homes and stop their cars when one of the shuttles launch," he said. "Every one is a real big thing down there."

When the group returned to the building and watched the replay on television, he said the mood became very somber.

"It absolutely wiped us out," he said. "We went back to class, but I don't think anybody got much out of it. We went to lunch, but no one had an appetite."

"I called my kids at home that evening. I needed someone to talk to and I figured they did too. You need someone when you're all alone. It's good to talk to your family when something like this happens. It brings us closer together."

Off-duty officer aids in capture of suspects

An off-duty St. Clair Shores police officer was instrumental Friday, Jan. 31, in the apprehension of five juveniles alleged to have participated in a City breaking and entering.

The Shores officer, Tom B. Jenny, was driving with his family near Notre Dame and Maumee when he witnessed two juveniles loading several long guns into the rear of a vehicle, according to City police.

He told police he saw one of the suspects cover the license plate with a snowball, and he followed the vehicle until he could read the plate number. He then reported the incident to police.

The vehicle, containing four juveniles, two girls, one 16 and one 17, from the Grosse Pointes, and two males, both 16, from Detroit, was stopped by Park police. The suspects were taken into custody. After interrogating the suspects, another 16-year-old Detroit youth was taken into custody from his home.

Police investigated the residential area where the vehicle was first spotted and discovered a broken basement window of a nearby residence. Further investigation found the dwelling to have been ransacked.

All the suspects were turned over to their parents and petitions have been filed in Wayne County Juvenile Court.

"It was a nice coordination between the off-duty officer and the two police departments," Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy said.

Every house . . . should have one, Woods Officer John Albrecht tells Mayor George Freeman, at the left, as he explains how easy it is to install. The Alert-a-Lite, being sold at the Woods city office for $16.50, is a three-position switch that replaces the regular porch light. When the switch is put in the down position, the light blinks rapidly, giving a distress signal. It can be used in cases of burglary, vandalism, fire or medical emergency. Albrecht, who is the Woods crime prevention traffic safety officer, said all of the city's public safety officers are aware of the light and will stop whenever it is blinking when they are on patrol. According to the directions, installation does not require any special hardware and can be done in five minutes.

B & E suspect treed in Woods

Woods police officers with assistance from a Detroit police tracking dog located a suspected burglar Saturday, Feb. 1, in a tree following a lengthy chase.

Woods police officers responded to a call from a residence on Oxford, and were told an intruder had been in the home only a few minutes earlier.

Police responded to the scene and called for a tracking dog when foot prints were discovered in the snow.

The tracking dog followed the prints for about one-half mile when the prints stopped at a tree. Officers spotted Shannon B. Burton, 25, of East Detroit about 12 feet up the tree, and after getting him down, took him into custody.

Police believe he is also responsible for a break-in in nearby Grosse Pointe Farms the same night.

Burton was charged with breaking and entering an occupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny.

He was unable to post a $30,000 ten percent bond and was transported to the Wayne County Jail. He is scheduled for preliminary examination Feb. 12 in Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Court.

Woods man faces alcohol charge

A 30-year-old Woods man was arrested early Monday, Jan. 27, and charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor after police located him about one block from his disabled car.

According to Woods police, the man allegedly drove his vehicle off Mack Avenue near Stanhope for about 50 feet, knocking down several road signs. Police said, according to witnesses, that the man attempted to leave the scene after careening his vehicle into a brick wall in the parking lot of Pointe Paint on Mack Avenue.

Witnesses said when the man couldn't move his 1986 BMW because of heavy damage, he left the scene on foot. He was found a short time later by police.

He was taken into custody and later released. He faces arraignment on the charge March 5, in Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Court.

Politics needs to attract more young people, Hertel says

John Hertel

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Public officials have done much in the last three years to revitalize county government, but a more difficult task faces all politicians and public officials in rekindling the interest of young people in public service.

That was the message that Wayne County Commission Chairman John Hertel brought to the Wayne County Civic League last week, an organization that is trying to resurrect itself in this election year.

Hertel, the second-term commissioner whose district includes the Pointes and Harper Woods, told the audience at the civic league's luncheon meeting that the county has come a long way since the charter went into effect four years ago.

The dire prediction that groups would skuttle the charter has not come to pass, he added.

"The results are . . . we eliminated the hospital and its $18-million debt to us each year and replaced it with another hospital program that was in the neighborhood of the indigents and was cheaper for the county to run," Hertel said.

"We initiated programs in the various departments, along with the cooperation of those departments, to modernize them, to computerize them and bring them into a situation where they work more cooperatively with each other," he added.

"In three very short years, we have made real progress in the county of Wayne," Hertel said.

"We are far and away a much more active group of public officials, and a more effective group of public officials than those who have sat in Lansing during the last three years," he added.

When he first announced he was returning to county politics after eight years in the state Senate, Hertel said people often asked whether he thought it was a step down. After three years in the county commission, however, he takes the opposite view.

"Coming to Wayne County government was a step up for me," he said. "I'm very proud of the people I work with there."

There is a disturbing phenomenon in politics, however, Hertel said. The age groups that show the least participation in politics and voter registration are those between 18 and 25. Those are the age groups that will someday replace today's public officials, and they aren't participating in the process, he added.

"We need Jerry Cavanaugh and John Kennedys in terms of inspiring young people but we also need those young people who will come along and be the foot soldiers, the participants, who are going to register," Hertel said.

"We don't have them and I submit to you that that's the real challenge — it may be a more significant challenge that we face in terms of reforming county government," he added.

Hertel, a political science teacher at Lawrence Institute of Technology, said that when he brings up the subject in his classes, his students are cynical about politicians and can recite all the reasons why they don't need to vote or register.

Part of the blame for disillusioning young people about political office has to be borne by the media, Hertel said. They tend to accentuate the negative and ignore or gloss over the positive activities of politicians and public institutions.

"A colleague of mine in the state Senate, Pat McCulloch, worked six years on a bill for all people to go and register to vote at their Secretary of State office," Hertel said. "After six years of work, he got one column about (three inches) long in the Detroit News — that was the only paper that did anything on it — and the column appeared on the obituary page."

"But if Pat — and this part isn't true — had gone out and had a few drinks and celebrated and got pulled over by a police car and given a ticket, he would have been on the front page," Hertel said. "Where is the balance, ladies and gentlemen?"

"I submit to you that that's one of the reasons why young people have the attitude that they do — because they see only the negative about public officials," he concluded.

To combat that, public officials and political organizations have to reach out to young people to get them interested in the political process. As the civic league works to revitalize itself during the upcoming year, now is a good time to come up with a theme to aid in that drive, Hertel said.

"I think that theme ought to be 'let's pass the torch and let's get the young people to pass that torch too,'" Hertel said. "I know you can do it and I'll be very, very happy to help."

The Wayne County Civic League meets Wednesdays at 11:30 a.m. at the Polish American Century Club, 3201 Holbrook, two blocks south of Conant in Hamtramck.

Western end of Park due for traffic changes

By Pat Paholsky

Residents within the area bounded by Mack and Kercheval, and Wayburn and Somerset, can expect some changes in traffic regulations. Planners say the changes will alleviate traffic congestion and parking problems.

The area has been under study by the city administration since the council decided last year that the traffic problems in the western corner of the Park are the most critical.

The following recommendations by the planning commission, submitted to and approved by the city council Jan. 27, are:

— A parking permit program that would allow only residents to park for more than two hours on most of the residential streets.

— Instituting alternate side of the street parking between Jefferson and Mack. Parking would be permitted on one side of the street only.

— Prohibiting right-hand turns for eastbound traffic on Mack Avenue between Wayburn and Somerset.

— Installing a traffic signal at Lakepointe and Charlevoix. The light would be relocated from Buckingham and Vernor.

— Closing Wayburn with the street right-of-way to be used as a parking lot with access to Mack and Wayburn if the parcel bounded by Alter, Mack and Wayburn is redeveloped.

— Changing the traffic lights at Nottingham and Charlevoix and Nottingham and Vernor to a flashing operation between 7 p.m. and 6 a.m. It was recommended that the city add pedestrian signal heads at both intersections.

— Relocating the loading zone for Lou's Party Store to the east of the store on Charlevoix.

— Enforcing loading zone violations and improper loading and unloading of commercial vehicles. The planning commission recommended that the city council set fines for such violations.

— Making Goethe a one-way street. It was also recommended that the city undertake an engineering study to provide parallel parking within the street right-of-way.

Further recommendations were that the city do a before-and-after traffic study to evaluate the recommendations and to develop a plan for a second stage of improvements if the traffic problems continue.

In presenting the plan to the council, City Manager John Crawford said it could be implemented at low cost. Police Chief Richard Caretti would issue a temporary traffic order that would be in effect for 90 days. After the 90-day period, Caretti would assess if the temporary regulations should be made permanent or modified, Crawford said.

It's not known yet when the changes will be made.

Cottage, school district await special residents

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Cottage Hospital is one of three metropolitan Detroit facilities that will temporarily house severely multiply impaired patients from the soon-to-be-closed Warren Village nursing facility.

The 21 residents should begin arriving at the hospital Monday, according to a Cottage spokesman. The unit in which they will be cared for will be closed to other patients until the residents can be found foster care or special group home facilities.

The corporation that operates Warren Village decided last year to no longer care for the severely impaired children at the Warren home, which is also a nursing home for older persons, according to the state Department of Mental Health.

Because there wasn't enough time to find homes for all the residents of the facility, who range in age from under one year old to 24, the state contracted with Lutheran Social Services of Michigan to help place the residents, according to Lindsay Roth of the mental health department.

The state chose LSSM for a couple reasons, Roth said. The agency currently operates a division for the developmentally disabled, so a framework is in place to handle the Warren Village residents. Also, the agency has had experience as a "closing agent" for other facilities and has a good track record, she added.

LSSM leased space in three hospitals to place 96 residents of Warren Village until foster homes can be found, Roth said. Other hospitals involved included Detroit's Mount Carmel-Mercy and Bi-County Hospital in Warren.

LSSM is receiving funds through the mental health department to lease space in hospitals, so some of that will go to Cottage, a hospital spokesman said. LSSM will staff the unit with its own personnel, but the hospital will provide nutri-

Ice damage

Apparently, enormous pressure from shifting ice caused the destruction of this seawall belonging to Dr. Kim and Mado Lie, Windmill Pointe. The Lies noticed some small dirt piles near the wall early Saturday, Jan. 25, and in a matter of hours, the wall was a pile of twisted and broken concrete. That is the Lie's daughter Ariadne, 6, next to the wall. The family has lived at the location for seven years, and had the wall worked on four years ago. They have no estimate of damages at this time.

Talks to begin soon on school facelift

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Grosse Pointe Shores and the Grosse Pointe Historical Society should begin trying to hammer out an agreement this month to cover renovation of the village's Vernier School.

At its January meeting, the village council discussed general policies that should govern its agreement with the society, which last year asked the village for permission and help to renovate the 70-year-old Albert Kahn-designed schoolhouse.

Trustees agreed that a short-term lease with the association — no more than five years — would be preferred to the society's request for a long term lease, which would allow it leverage in seeking foundation grants to cover interior renovation.

If an agreement can be reached, trustees will again take up the matter in February, according to Village Superintendent Michael Kenyon.

Under the proposal, the society asked the village to renovate the exterior of the building, which will decrease deterioration inside while the society works to raise the necessary money through individual contributions and foundation grants.

For its part, the historical society would like to use part of the building as its headquarters. The school could be renovated room-by-room, with additional space going to community organizations.

By using a lease agreement, the village would retain control over building and tenants, Schroeder said. Rent would defray the costs of bringing the building up to current state barrier-free codes as well, trustees agreed.

The village had asked for state money to help it in exterior renovation, but that was denied, Kenyon said. The village will now start looking for alternative funding.

The historical society remains interested in preservation of the school. Secondary to that is its role as renter or renovator, society officers said. The society would like a home in the building because its activities are growing, but will regroup if it can't reach an agreement with the village, officers added.

The historical society first approached the village about the school publicly in September, when members made a pitch for allowance of a long-term lease to help renovate the building.

The village then surveyed residents to get their opinions on what to do with the school. Of the 35 percent of residents responding, most called for renovation of the schoolhouse by the Shores or by a non-profit community organization, and the most frequently mentioned was the historical society.

The building is one of many designed by Kahn in the Pointes, but its value lies in its being a school, historical society members said. Kahn designed a number of residences in the area, including the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, and many factories and other public buildings throughout the state including the Shores village hall. He designed very few schools, however.

Death still under investigation

Grosse Pointe City police are still investigating the shooting death of Jeffrey Carson, 12, of the Woods, according to Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy.

Carson was shot in the head Jan. 24, when a handgun he and another boy were handling discharged in the unidentified boy's Washington Road home.

"There are still some loose ends," Kennedy said, "and we would like to tie those up before we close this case."

The name of the 13-year-old juvenile, Carson's schoolmate at Brownell Middle School, is being withheld because of his age.

Kennedy did not indicate when the investigation might be completed.

Youth dance

Poodle skirts, saddle shoes and leather jackets will be some of the attire worn at the youth dance "At the Hop," on Saturday, Feb. 15, at the War Memorial.

Grosse Pointe students in grades six through eight will do the "twist," "monkey" and the "chicken" to the music of the '50s and '60s at the dance which will be held from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Theme costume is optional and prizes will be awarded to the best dressed.

The date is a change from the published date in the January/February Activity Calendar. Tickets at $3.50 each, must be purchased in advance at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. For additional information, call 881-7511.

For the Record

In the Jan. 30 article on page 4A on the Grosse Pointe Academy's Early School addition, it should have read that architect Michael Kirk directed the Menominee County courthouse and Kresge Foundation headquarters projects for William Kessler Associates.

Fire guts garage

Investigators continue to search for the cause and origin of a fire Monday night, Jan. 27, that gutted a Park garage and destroyed three vehicles in the building.

Park and City firefighters spent nearly 4½ hours at the Balfour three-bay garage, putting out the fire and cleaning up debris. The fire was first reported shortly after 9:30 p.m., but when the first Park units arrived a couple of minutes later, the blaze had lit up the sky over the street, according to Fire Chief Phillip Costa.

Because of the intensity of the blaze and the number of flammable materials normally stored in garages, investigators can't be certain where the blaze began or why it accelerated so quickly, Costa said. Hampering efforts were three vehicles in the garage, a 1978 Plymouth Arrow, a 1973 Honda motorcycle and a 1977 GMC van, which were spewing gasoline. All three vehicles were destroyed in the blaze, according to reports.

There were no injuries to firefighters, Costa said, but one fireman was struck by debris when a wall of the garage collapsed. He was not injured, according to reports.

You speak, I'll sleep

Taffy catches a few winks while Edward M. Lange Jr., general manager of Leader Dogs for the Blind, talks to about 70 people who attended a Friends of Vision luncheon at the Hunt Club Jan. 22. It was a special occasion since the Leader Dog organization does not generally speak outside of its own facility in Rochester. The presentation included a film on the training of dogs and people and a demonstration of Taffy leading Lange around the room. Two pairs of graduates of the program attended the luncheon — Margaret Smith and Arda Perkins and their dogs.

Living Science offers adult ed classes

The Living Science Foundation, the Novi-based educational organization that has made a number of successful presentations for school children in the Grosse Pointe area has scheduled a series of activities for adults this winter.

Co-sponsored with the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, the fee for each session is $5 payable in advance through the Department of Community Education. All presentations will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive.

Those programs remaining in the series titled "Where in the World" include "Alaska" on Feb. 11. Slides and photographs will be used and the geology and natural history of Alaska will be covered. "The American Desert," scheduled for Feb. 18, is an in-depth program on the lives of animals and plants that live in the rigors of the desert. Discover birds, reptiles and mammals, and investigate techniques they employ to survive this enchanted and beautiful world.

"Wildlife Sketching: An Introduction," scheduled for Feb. 25, is offered by wildlife artist John Felsing and Living Science director Tom Joslyn. This is a perfect opportunity to sketch some of the animals of the Living Science Foundation. This class will include a short discussion of formats and techniques, with the remainder of the program devoted to personal sketching with a number of animals.

"Animal Ecology," slated for Feb. 27, introduces the concept of ecology: how animals interact with environment and other animals. Adaptations, how wolves and moose have struck a balance and the pecking order of parrots, are a few of the ecological concepts to be explored. Interaction between Living Science species and our population of homo sapiens will make this introduction to ecology a memorable one.

"Animal Senses," on March 4, is an in-depth program on the methods animals use to perceive and interpret their world. Vision, hearing, smelling, taste and touch as well as other sensing devices will be investigated.

"Animal Behavior," will be held on March 6. Animal behavior will be taught with boa constrictors, parrots and chinchillas for a close-up, hands-on instruction. How scientists study behavior and how the students themselves can use these same techniques in their daily lives will be discussed.

Grow, Maurer join national law firm

Two Grosse Pointe residents, Richard D. Grow of the Farms, and David L. Maurer of the Woods, have joined the Detroit office of the national law firm of Pepper, Hamilton & Scheetz as partners. Both served as partners with the Detroit law firm of Butzel, Long, Gust, Klein & Van Zile.

Grow, who was senior tax partner at his former firm, will manage Pepper, Hamilton's tax, trusts and estates practice in coordination with the firm's Washington, D.C. office. Grow is a graduate of Michigan State University and an honors graduate of Wayne State University's School of Law. He is vice president of the Kenney Michigan Rehabilitation Foundation.

Maurer will head Pepper, Hamilton's environmental law practice. He is a former assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District, served as senior law clerk to Michigan Supreme Court Justice Blair Moody Jr. and is a council member of the Environmental Law Section of the State Bar of Michigan. He graduated from the University of Detroit and the Wayne State University School of Law.

Health center promotes Grueber

Cynthia Grueber of Harper Woods has been appointed vice president for professional and support services for Detroit's Samaritan Health Center. She will be responsible for eight of the center's operating departments, including radiology, rehabilitation services, food and nutrition. Samaritan operates four neighborhood health centers and recently opened a 375-bed complex at Conner and Warren. Grueber has a bachelor of science from Michigan State University and a master's degree in health services administration from the University of Michigan.

Announcing... John C. Emery Jr., former Birmingham municipal judge, has been elected president of the Senior Judges Association of Michigan, succeeding Theodore R. Bohn, former Wayne circuit judge, who has been elected chairman of the board. Both men are Grosse Pointers... ## For whom the bell tolls Since time immemorial, men and women have turned to literature, and especially to poetry, in their search for solace and understanding of puzzling disasters, natural or man-made, that have been visited upon them.

Thus it is not surprising that even in this era of instant communication, people have sought out the words of both ancient and modern writers to help them understand what happened at Cape Canaveral and the reason they feel such a sense of personal loss at the death of the seven victims.

President Reagan, for example, quoted from the poem, "High Flight," by RAF pilot John Gillespie Magee Jr., an American who was killed at 19 in World War II, in his tribute to the astronauts and teacher who died in the disaster. That poem ended this way:

*Up, up the long, delirious, burning blue
I've topped the windswept heights with easy grace
Where never lark, or even eagles flew.
And, while the silent, lifting mind I've trod
The high untrespassed sanctity of space,
Put out my hand, and touched the face of God."*

Magee knew the attractions of space from his own personal experience and yet perhaps the well-known passage from John Donne, the English poet who died more than 350 years ago, explains as well as any written now why it was that not only Americans but people the world over felt such a kinship with the astronauts and why their death is so genuinely mourned.

The passage has become famous because Ernest Hemingway borrowed a phrase from it to use as the title of his novel about the Spanish Civil War, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," but in a larger sense it emphasizes the community of mankind. That was understood by poets such as Shakespeare and Donne long before the age of flight or space exploration. The passage reads as follows:

"No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is piece of continent, a part of the main; if a clod be washed away by the sea, Europe is the less, as well as if a promontory were, as well as if a manor of thy friends or of thine own were; any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind; and therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee."

A uniform poll-closing hour?

Almost lost in the news last week because of the massive coverage of the disaster at Cape Canaveral was the passage by the U.S. House of Representatives of a bill to require that all voting places in the continental United States close at 9 p.m. Eastern Standard Time during presidential elections. The idea is worth trying, we think, even though the major beneficiaries would be West Coast residents.

For those of us on EST, the legislation, if passed by the U.S. Senate and signed by the president, would require polling places in Grosse Pointe and in Michigan to remain open an hour later than the current 8 p.m. closing hour.

The bill grew out of concerns expressed during the 1980 presidential election when President Carter conceded defeat by Ronald Reagan even before the polls had closed in many parts of the country. Carter's concession came after network TV reporters had projected his defeat on the basis of their analysis of exit polls taken of voters around the country.

It was contended that in 1980 many people who had not voted before Carter's concession, and especially those in Pacific time, stayed away from the polls with a resulting loss of voters on local and state contests and ballot issues. The measure passed by the House was supported by a number of West Coast congressmen who felt the uniform closing time would prevent a repetition of the 1980 incident and help protect the integrity of the nation's election process.

Earlier, congressional critics of exit polling and TV's use of the results to project presidential winners had attempted to get the networks to cease using these election tools. But the networks contended that shutting down exit polling and the use of projections until polls had closed across the country would be, in effect, a form of government censorship of news.

However, most networks have pledged that they would not broadcast exit poll results from any state until that state's polls have closed. Some people had asked the networks to withhold broadcast of any exit poll results until polls nationwide have closed but the networks wouldn't go that far. The introduction of the legislation to set a common closing hour then followed.

States would remain free to set their own poll opening hours but some critics have claimed that the federal legislation would not only interfere with states' rights to set their own opening and closing times, but also would cost local governmental units more money to keep polls open for longer voting hours.

The Republican Senate in Washington has not been as interested in the problem as the Democratic House and its general views are as yet unknown. But the idea of a common closing time appears to be worth at least a try, especially since there is little likelihood the TV networks will cease their exit polling because it has enabled them to project how individual states are voting in the presidential election long before the polls close.

Revival of the moderates?

In the current political climate, moderates in both major parties who traditionally had sought the middle of the road are yielding more and more to the continuing demands from the right. But they are also facing new challenges from former supporters who warn they have gone too far to seek the favorable conservative winds.

In Michigan, Democratic Gov. James Blanchard's new conservative stance has angered the Michigan Legislative Black Caucus, made up of 17 members, who charge that the governor's State of the Union address ignored black concerns about social services, mental health, minority business, job training and urban programs.

Nationally, Vice President George Bush's political embrace of the Rev. Jerry Falwell, his appeals to the Conservative Political Action Conference, his shifting of ground on the abortion and school prayer issues and other actions to win conservative backing have disappointed some of his earlier supporters. In short, the moderates think he has gone too far to the right.

In both cases, presumably, these office holders have moved toward what they regard as more popular positions in order to survive the next time they face the polls. If survival is the first law of politics, compromise is the second. The question is whether political leaders who make compromises to attract new conservative followers tend to lose some of their moderate backing. In both of the cases cited, the politicians seem willing to run that risk.

One reason, of course, is that in neither case do the moderates seem to have any other logical place to go at the moment. In Michigan, the moderate Democrats and some of the progressives in that party may be somewhat unhappy with Blanchard but they are hardly likely to find satisfaction in the Republican Party.

There might be an exception, however. Some black Democrats might be willing to support Wayne County Executive William Lucas for governor in the fall but not in the primary when they would have to give up their Democratic votes for other candidates to do so. According to this scenario, they could support Democratic nominees in November and still vote for Lucas, assuming he is the GOP nominee.

There is also a possible exception for moderate Republicans as well. Some might turn to the Democrats as an alternative to the increasing conservatism of their own party and their own candidates, especially now that the governor has moved toward more "Republican" positions on a number of issues. It is conceivable that Blanchard could be re-elected because of moderate GOP support, and, in fact, there is already evidence of some such backing for the Democratic governor.

Nationally, current indications are less meaningful because it still is about two-and-a-half years to the presidential nominating convention. But it may be significant to recall that President Regan's approval rating dipped to a low of 41 percent during the U.S. recession and began bounding back up again only after recovery appeared well on its way. For now, everything seems to be coming up roses for Bush, but a U.S. economic setback in 1987 or early 1988, which some economists are predicting, could spell trouble for the vice president's hopes to be elected the 41st president.

Furthermore, while it is popular these days to say that liberalism is dead, a new recession could have an impact on conservatism, especially if the public were to conclude that a conservative GOP administration is not meeting the public's needs. In fact, if such a scenario should be played out, George Bush might regret his swing to the right and the loss of his moderate followers such as those who helped him carry Michigan in the 1980 presidential primary.

It is true, of course, that we are still in a conservative era but in the United States the political pendulum tends to swing back and forth. Without Ronald Reagan on the ticket to articulate their views, the conservatives may lose some of their momentum in 1988. The moderates in both parties then could seek to recapture the middle of the road and the more successful — either Democrat or Republican — could even elect the next president.

Quick response saved business

Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Jack Patterson, Woods public safety director, by the owner of the Big Boy Restaurant on Mack that had a fire.

I am writing this letter to you and your men, commending you for a job well done. Your department's professionalism and quick response saved our business from burning and our family from heartache.

After seeing how mutual aid works first-hand, I think it is a tremendous success.

We often take our police and firemen for granted until something like this happens. It really makes you open your eyes.

I commend you and all your men who endangered their lives to save our business. It was such a horrifying experience for me to watch what I've worked so hard to build, burn. I count my blessings no one panicked or was seriously hurt.

I would like to put in a special thanks to P.S.O. John Ross, who was coming for breakfast with his wife. He saw what was happening and took complete control. After several attempts to extinguish the fire failed, he very calmly asked everyone to exit the restaurant immediately. I believe his actions saved the lives of my customers and saved anyone from serious injury. I would also like to commend Sgt. Michael Van De Ginste and Sgt. James Fowler for coming to the scene after hearing of our problem. I understand Mike was having lunch and watching the game when he received the news. P.S.O. Rabe and P.S.O. Backlund were the first officers on the scene and kept everyone calm and orderly.

Last, but not least, Sgt. Paul Crook, who showed his outstanding leadership abilities by taking complete control of an explosive situation and bringing it to an end without injury to anyone.

And for you, what can I say???? You got right in there and did not quit 'til it was all over. I thank you for knowing how much this place means to me.

As our thanks for a job well done, we would like to invite you and Mrs. Patterson and all the men who fought the fire and their guests for dinner, Monday, Feb. 3, at 5:30 p.m., at the Big Boy.

My family and I would like to show you our appreciation and gratitude.

Daniel E. Curis
Vice President

Why no senior housing?

To the Editor:

Why are the Grosse Pointes unable to provide senior citizen housing? Why are they so against even trying? Why does everyone you try to talk to just shake their heads and say, "Not a chance."

No room? How about Ghesquiere Park which the young people voted down several years ago? How about our Lakefront Park? How about Verrier Road? How about Barnes School?

I, for one, have lived in the Woods for over 45 years. I have paid my taxes, plus school taxes without a child in school. Now that I can no longer keep up my home and pay my taxes, should I have to look to St. Clair Shores or Harper Woods for a place to live? There are 800 on the waiting list in Harper Woods. You have to live in St. Clair Shores to be eligible for their senior housing.

If St. Clair Shores can do it and Harper Woods can do it, why not Grosse Pointe Woods, or Park, or Shores? I can't believe this!

Look at total environment

To the Editor:

A recent survey shows that the quality of education within the Grosse Pointe School System is rated very high in our community. Our children score very well on the Michigan State Assessment Tests, individual achievement tests, etc., etc. There is no question of the superior academic performance within our district.

While this is fine and good, I, for one, think that perhaps it is time to look not only at intellectual achievement, but at the total picture of our school environment.

I feel that on the whole we have an outstanding teaching staff. Unfortunately, however, there are still some teachers within our district who daily resort to tactics such as classroom belittlement, public degradation and sarcasm.

Many parents in the community are afraid to speak out on this issue for fear of their children being further "blackballed" in front of the class. Perhaps the time has come for us to publicly speak out!!!

We know the importance of peer pressure to children, beginning in the elementary school years. We are also aware that a child's self-esteem is crucial in making important group decisions relating directly to alcohol, drugs, etc. in later years. Public humiliation is always devastating to self-esteem, and the continued use of this technique for even one full school year is a mighty lengthy time in the life of a child.

Along with the achievement tests, perhaps we should look also at the alarming facts on suicide and alcohol abuse within our district.

There are many forms of child abuse. Perhaps its time we studied this one rather than to merely dwell on academic success.

Honduras aid

To the Editor:

I am pleased to inform you that my efforts to assist the people of Honduras through the Christian Medical Society have been aided greatly. A generous donation of money, vitamins and medical supplies have been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Timmis of Grosse Pointe Farms in the name of F & M Distributors.

Other contributions of this nature may be directed to the undersigned for forwarding to this very worthwhile project.

Many people prefer equality, sharing

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the letter written by Julian Maire (Jan. 30) which was written arguing womens' subservience to their husbands and condemning those who believe otherwise.

Many women these days keep their "maiden" names, not because they do not honor their husbands, but because they feel that their names are very much a part of their identities.

Also, if Julian Maire wants to believe that the pain involved in childbirth is a product of God's wrath with Eve and that the husband is to rule over the wife because the Bible says so, that is fine. However, the Bible was written by men, inspired by men — yes, but men subject to the prejudices and beliefs of their time.

Instead of a lord-servant relationship, many people prefer a relationship in which each person has equal rights, equal responsibilities and equal sharing.

Obtain copy of safety plan

To the Editor:

Public Safety is an issue that should command the attention of local residents. Providing a safe community is the objective of our elected officials, although some local firefighters (most of whom are not Park residents) are trying to reverse our city's progress.

Citizens are urged to obtain a copy of the Public Safety Operational Plan. After reviewing the facts, one can feel confident that Public Safety does provide improved services through more effective utilization of current manpower, in addition to reduced costs. Public Safety delivers the level of protection and service we expect and demand.

Philip M. Andrews II

Prevent crime

To the Editor:

Grosse Pointe Park must use all cost-effective measures to prevent any further encroachment of crime. The residents deserve the service and savings that a public safety department can provide. With continued resolve, the Park can become virtually crime-free within the decade.

The motives of firefighters petitioning in opposition to public safety are obvious. They would rather not fight crime.

I urge Park residents to resist any effort opposing public safety.

Residents, non-residents

To the Editor:

You received a letter from Douglas P. Tracy printed in the Grosse Pointe News Dec. 26 referring to Dearborn voting to exclude non-residents from their parks. (My hat off to Dearborn).

Douglas P. Tracy goes on to say that no attention is being given to the long-standing exclusion of non-residents from parks in the Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods. (He has that right).

I would like to suggest that he can solve his problem by purchasing a residence in one of those communities that he would like to have the use of their park facilities.

I wonder has he tried all the beautiful parks and waterfront beach (Belle Isle) available along with many swimming pools in Detroit?

Reuther Archives receives grant

The Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation, Menlo Park, Calif., has given a grant of $17,000 to the Walter P. Reuther Library of Labor and Urban Affairs at Wayne State University.

The grant will permit awards of up to $700 to cover travel and expenses related to research for scholars using the Archives. The program is intended primarily to aid graduate students working on their doctoral dissertations and younger faculty members who need financial assistance in order to undertake research.

The Reuther Archives include the papers of nine major unions, worker organizations and social reform organizations, as well as individuals active in those groups. There is also extensive material relating to urban affairs, women's history, international affairs, radical movements, ethnic minorities, blacks and civil rights.

Persons wishing to apply for awards should contact: Philip P. Mason, Director, Archives of Labor and Urban Affairs, Walter P. Reuther Library, Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich. 48202, 577-4024.

I say

I walked on the moon with Neil Armstrong. I wasn't alone. Nearly every human being with access to a television set shared in the triumph of mankind leaving his home world and making a landing on an alien terrain.

Last week, television brought us a tragedy to match the triumph. We watched the videotape, over and over again, showing the shuttle Challenger take off on what seemed a routinely perfect launch, only to cease to exist in a puff of smoke and fire just more than a minute into flight.

The horror was intensified by the knowledge that a civilian was among the crew. A social studies teacher from New Hampshire died in the air on her way to space and the incongruity of that death seemed to cast doubts on the judgment of the people who conceived of a teacher in space.

But Christa McAuliffe's death was not a crime. It was tragic, but no more so than the deaths of her six crewmates. She was a civilian, but our space program has always belonged to civilians. It is only right that civilians should share in the tragedy as well as the triumph.

The non-military aspect of NASA is one of its greatest virtues. Yes, the astronauts were military men. But the people who planned, designed and controlled the United States development of space were civilians.

The space shuttle program was always meant to be a commercial venture. The satellites it put into orbit belonged to the telephone company and the weather bureau, as well as the Air Force and the Army and the Navy. In recent years, with the push toward more sophisticated surveillance and weapons technology, our military has been taking an active role in the space program.

But the military minds have not taken control of NASA. We had a demonstration of the basic civilian nature of the space agency last year when the military attempted to have a secret mission on the shuttle. The military minds wanted a secret lift-off time for the craft

We were there

By Elsa Frohman

so the Russians wouldn't know just when and into what orbit a new surveillance satellite would be in. If NASA were a military agency, they might have pulled it off.

But NASA has always been oriented toward getting information out, not keeping it in. And the secret mission of the space shuttle was one of the worst-kept secrets of the century. Television covered the lift-off, though from a distance, and newspapers reported the exact nature of the cargo. The military brass fumed, but western civilization does not seem to have crumbled because of the security leak.

Last Tuesday, for a short time, it seemed that the military minds might be taking over at NASA. Within hours of the disaster, nearly every scrap of information about what had happened had been impounded for the official investigation. NASA officials were refusing to speculate about the cause. People were saying that Christa McAuliffe had no right to be aboard the shuttle because the risks of space travel should only be borne by military personnel.

There was some short-lived fear that NASA would stonewall about the accident and the public might never know what really happened.

Such fears were groundless. Before the week was out, NASA had released its own films of the lift-off, showing the fault in the solid rocket booster. Why the rocket failed is still a mystery, but rest assured that when NASA knows, we will know.

Compare NASA's performance with the Soviet space program, where information on missions is only released after the craft has returned safely.

The space program has always belonged to the civilian public in this country. I remember a time before the Mercury program when my family sat outside on a summer night and watched Sputnik cross the sky. It was not secret that the Russians beat us into space with the first artificial satellite. We vowed as a nation to catch up. When I was in grade school, the ultimate ambition was to become an astronaut. I was in elementary school on the day when the first Mercury astronaut went up and came down safely. They played the radio coverage over the PA system and my class listened transfixed.

The primary benefits of the space program have been to the civilian public in the fields of biomedical science, microchips and satellite communications. The most mundane aspects of our lives have been transformed by this technology.

A teacher in space might not be the most efficient use for a space shuttle, but civilians in space are part of the natural order of our space program. Civilian lives are not more valuable or more fragile than military lives. It is our space program and it is all the more important to us because we get to go along.

Hatchlings

Two University of Wisconsin biologists have discovered that turtle eggs incubated at 77 degrees Fahrenheit produce all male hatchlings, while a temperature of 10 degrees higher yields all females, says National Geographic.

Where the affluent meet the effluent

A proposal to use processed effluent for snowmaking at the Killington Ski Resort in Vermont has been presented by officials of the Killington resort and the Sunrise Group condominium developers as a solution to the problem of disposing of excess wastewater.

Killington, like most major resorts in Vermont, already generates more treated effluent than can be legally dumped into the area's streams. Presently, excess effluent is mixed with stream water and spray-irrigated onto forest and meadow lands. Snowmaking would similarly use a mixture of treated effluent and stream water.

The proposal was immediately greeted by satirical humor by those Vermonters opposed to continued growth of ski resorts in the Green Mountains and by criticism from environmentalists who have opposed the spray irrigation method of disposal since its inception.

A bumper sticker displaying the slogan, "Killington: Where the Affluent Meet the Effluent!" achieved immediate and immense popularity in the local area, and the Barre-Montpelier Times Argus published a cartoon showing two skiers carrying a toilet plunger. "Oh, oh," the caption read, "looks like the snowmaking machines are clogged again." Both the cartoon and the bumper sticker prompted law suits.

Despite the elements of comic relief in the controversy, an all-out political war is warming up between ski resort developers and others in the state, environmentalists included, who wish to severely limit development and thus maintain the pristine quality of the Vermont mountains. The controversy is the most important issue on the legislative agenda for 1986, and it may be fought on sharply defined partisan lines with the Republicans in favor of development — and eased restrictions on effluent disposal — and the Democrats in favor of maintaining present environmental restrictions.

A spokesman for the Killington resort, David Dillon, maintained the treated effluent is pure enough to drink, "as state laws require it to be."

Community Events

Broadway Cabaret

Our Lady Star of the Sea High School will present "Broadway Cabaret" Thursday and Friday, Feb. 13 and 14, at 8 p.m.

The show will feature numbers from "George M.", "42nd Street," "Bye Bye Birdie" and "A Chorus Line" set in cabaret style.

Tickets, at $3, will be on sale at the high school or at the door.

March weekend trip

The Amway Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids will be the destination for a two-day, winter getaway weekend, March 1 and 2.

Sponsored by the War Memorial, participants will enjoy the old and new within the hotel, which incorporates crystal chandeliers and elegant furnishings in the 1913 vintage Panthnd Hotel, with sleek, modern beauty in the new 29 story tower.

Included in the weekend will be a side trip to Rockford to explore the quaint craft shops, a visit to the Gerald Ford Museum, Sunday breakfast and a matinee performance of "My Fair Lady" at the Grand Rapids Civic Theatre.

The Grand March Weekend will cost $100 per person, based on double occupancy. A single supplement is available for an additional $40.

Bridal seminar

Planning for a wedding may be the most hectic, yet most enjoyable time in a woman's life, and the War Memorial will hold a Bridal Seminar to provide guidelines and suggestions Tuesday, Feb. 25, at 7 p.m.

Besides a bridal fashion show, participants will be advised of wedding etiquette, the roles and responsibilities of the wedding party, choosing the type of wedding, flowers, entertainment, wine and cake, as well as personalizing the wedding album and how and when to plan a honeymoon.

Representatives from 18 businesses will be present with displays and samples as well as information packets.

Advance tickets are $3.50; $5 at the door. Doors open at 6:30. Call 881-7511.

'Souvenirs' will benefit inter-faith center

The Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice, Inc. will sponsor a special performance of "Souvenirs" for Black History month on Thursday, Feb. 13, at the Detroit Repertory Theatre, 13133 Woodrow Wilson, Detroit.

Ticket price is $12.50 and includes valet parking, a champagne and hors d'oeuvres reception before the show at 7:30 p.m. in the lobby and art gallery of the theater. The performance will begin at 8:30 p.m.

The play written by Sheldon Rosen, using 61 scenes, produces a photographic essay about the contemporary plight and unrest among the black aborigines of Australia. Black magic, voodoo and murder are the elements that command this powerful drama.

An afterglow with the cast will be available following the performance.

Proceeds benefit the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center. For ticket information, call 882-6464.

Millionaire party

De La Salle Collegiate High School will sponsor a Millionaire Party Saturday, Feb. 8, at 8 p.m. at the school, 14600 Common Road, between Hayes and Schoenherr, in Warren. Admission is $2.

Lincoln party

"Lincoln: A Novel" by Gore Vidal will be the focal point of the Lincoln Birthday Party Tuesday, Feb. 11, 7:30 to 9 p.m. at St. Paul School. The book will be reviewed by Professor John DeWitt of Wayne State University.

Participants are invited to bring a dessert to share toward the potluck refreshments. Beverages will be available. The party, sponsored by Book-O-Philes, will be in Room 210.

Paperback copies of the book may be purchased at Grosse Pointe Book Village, 16837 Kercheval, or Hedy's Book and Gift Shop, 19451 Mack.

Classic cookbooks

Jim and Mary Taylor of Grub Street — A Bookery, in conjunction with the Grosse Pointe Community Education Department, will give a lecture on the history of cookbooks written by women, from Harriet Beecher Stowe to Fannie Farmer, on Thursday, Feb. 13, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Barnes School.

Recipes from the cookbooks will be handed out. The fee is $5.

Former Neighborhood Club director

Hooper heads PR at War Memorial

By Peggy O'Connor
As the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's new director of Development and Public Relations, Janet Hooper is charged with presenting a positive War Memorial image to the community. It isn't too different a task than the ones Hooper took on in more than 10 years as a Neighborhood Club director and a coach in the Grosse Pointe school system.

"As a coach, you spend a lot of time being a p.r. person. You learn to deal with the people in your program and with the people you play in front of. It's really no different here. It's part of my job to deal with people and their different wants and needs," Hooper says.

She's been on the job a little more than three weeks now and is beginning to feel at home in the converted bathroom that is her new office. She giggles about a recalcitrant file drawer and a cantankerous phone system and points with pride to the pair of framed collages of team photos and newspaper clippings from her last two varsity volleyball squads at South High.

"I miss coaching, especially working with kids. I care about the kids I coached and I hope they learned enough about working with others and being responsible for themselves to do well in life."

"But I was at a point where I felt I needed a change to keep growing as a person. I was lucky to be a coach for eight years. And I was fortunate to work at the Neighborhood Club. The Neighborhood Club will always be special to me."

Hooper says that her work as a coach, for the non-profit, community service-oriented Neighborhood Club and her collegiate background has helped her step easily into the newly created position of director of development and public relations at the War Memorial.

She is a Grosse Pointe High School graduate who holds undergraduate degrees in anthropology and in recreation from the University of Michigan and Eastern Michigan University and a master's degree in education and recreation from U-M. Hooper began her career at the Neighborhood Club as a sports official and supervisor, and eventually moved to first the program director's position, then the development director's spot.

"The Neighborhood Club, like the War Memorial, is an example of how successful a non-profit organization can be. I believe that you see a better use of funds and better programs and services if the organization is controlled by the people who benefit from it," Hooper says.

"Grosse Pointe is a unique community. If the community sees a need for something, it goes out and starts its own foundation. Or service group. Or sports program. The point is, when there's a need, we seem to develop our own groups and then we support them. So people are used to having a greater input in what they achieve as a community. And that's why a service organization like the War Memorial has to be responsible to people's needs."

At the center, Hooper is responsible for all financial support programs, such as family participation, capital funding and planned giving. She will also oversee the overall public relations activities at the War Memorial. That's where she'll make an effort to see that the War Memorial keeps responding to the community's needs in a positive manner.

"Much of my job is to try to convince people that the (financial) needs of the War Memorial are real. I try to approach that by showing them all the War Memorial does for the community and why we need it. I tell them to think of Grosse Pointe without the War Memorial. If that means nothing to them, fine. But if it does mean something, I let them know that we need their support."

"I know what the War Memorial means to me. I can't walk through this building without seeing the plaques listing the names of those Grosse Pointers who served this country. That's what the War Memorial is trying to be: a living memorial serving the community," Hooper says.

The War Memorial was the focus of some publicity recently, when it attempted to obtain a liquor license. Hooper admits that she has experienced some frustration in her efforts to explain the center's position on the issue.

"We wanted the license simply because we want to control the consumption of liquor - which has taken place on the grounds for years - the best way possible. We feel we can better serve the community if we have that type of control. I've had to explain that to people in addition to making clear that the money spent in the effort to obtain a license was never taken out of funds solicited for programs.

"It's an emotional issue and those are often the most difficult ones to deal with," she says.

Otherwise, she adds, things have gone quite smoothly. Hooper has outlined several immediate goals and is planning for the future, too. She says she'd like to see this year's Family Participation Campaign meet its goal of $220,000 by Memorial Day and begin gearing up for the next campaign by deciding upon a goal that will help meet the center's needs. Plans are also in the works which would see the next campaign run from Veteran's Day to Memorial Day in keeping with the spirit of the War Memorial.

"I also have goals in terms of planned giving, suggesting ways people can plan to help the War Memorial and the community. Then there's the capital fund campaign. It's moving along well, but there's lots of renovation needed and that costs money. Part of my job is to update donors, let them know where their money is going."

It all sounds like a pretty big challenge, but one Hooper says she's eager to meet.

"It won't be boring, I know that for sure," she says with a laugh. "Things change every year and we have to be adaptive to the changing needs. And those needs vary from person to person, but that's what makes it a challenge."

The center's staff has been a great help to her in her efforts, she says. "I like the people a lot. They are warm and caring. I came from a place where you had to care... and I think I've found a place where being a caring person is just as important."

Provide a ride, help a cancer patient

By Elsa Frohman

There are people in Grosse Pointe who desperately need your help. They aren't necessarily needy and the help they need has very little to do with money. They need transportation and almost anyone who can drive a car and has a little bit of time to spare can help.

The Michigan Cancer Foundation desperately needs drivers to drive cancer patients to and from treatment centers. The need is greatest in the Grosse Pointes, on the east side of Detroit and in Macomb County.

Mary Jane Wickland of the City has been driving cancer patients to treatment centers for about 15 years. She urges others with the means and the time to join the program.

"When you do something good like this, it kind of spreads," Wickland said. "I think it's contagious."

Wickland first became involved with the transportation program through her church, Christ United Methodist. Her minister asked her to help out another member of the church who was having trouble finding transportation to her treatments. Later, the Michigan Cancer Foundation contacted her and asked her to do it on a regular basis.

Wickland explained that many cancer patients need help getting to the doctor — some because they are physically unable to drive a car and others because they don't have a family member available to do the driving.

"When you have X-ray treatments, it is every day and that's a drain," Wickland said.

Volunteer drivers don't need to worry about having to handle any kind of medical emergencies, Wickland said.

"Most of the patients are ambulatory, but a few are in wheelchairs," she said. "You might have to help them in and out of the car."

Mary Jane Wickland urges Grosse Pointers with a car and a little bit of time to spare to volunteer to drive local cancer patients to their treatment centers.

The transportation help doesn't have to be time-consuming either. The volunteer can specify whether he wants to take patients to nearby facilities or more distant treatment centers. Wickland generally takes patients to St. John Hospital from areas nearby her Grosse Pointe home. She said it usually takes about an hour from the time she picks up her patient until she takes him back home. She gets complimentary parking at the hospital and a cup of coffee while she waits. However, volunteers with a little more time to spare might be asked to take a patient to Mount Clemens or downtown to Harper Hospital.

Wickland drives about once a week, but the commitment is not long term. The foundation calls and asks for a driver and the volunteer has the option of accepting or declining. Each ride is separate and driving a patient one day does not obligate the volunteer for any other day.

"This is a volunteer service you can do or not do," Wickland said. "If you're going on vacation, you don't have to call and tell them. If they can't get you, they will call someone else."

Recently, the foundation has come up against a shortage of drivers in this area and has had to turn down some patients who need rides.

"I get a pleasure out of this," Wickland said. "I feel like I'm helping someone. I like to let them know someone cares."

Volunteering to drive cancer patients has not put a crimp in any of Wickland's other activities. She is a regular bridge player, is active in her church and in the Newcomers Alumni. She works once a week in her church food pantry interviewing people asking for help. She is also a member of the Town Club and the Questers.

To volunteer or for more information on MCF's transportation program, call MCF's East Regional Service Center, 294-4430. The East Regional Service Center serves cancer patients, their families and members of the communities of eastern Wayne and Macomb counties.

DOES HAVING HENRY FORD HOSPITAL BEHIND US CHANGE YOUR VIEW OF COTTAGE?

IT SHOULD BECAUSE COTTAGE CARE MEANS SPECIAL CARE, NOW MORE THAN EVER.

The new partnership between Cottage Hospital and Henry Ford Hospital means that our traditional personal care plus a wider range of specialty care is now available.

Personal care is what you've come to expect from us at Cottage. And world-class specialty care is what you've come to expect from Henry Ford Hospital.

IT SHOULD BECAUSE OF OUR COMBINED STRENGTHS AND RESOURCES.

Each Cottage patient can now benefit from the combined strengths and resources of both hospitals.

Cottage Hospital: With our bond to the Grosse Pointe community since 1919. Our 24-hour emergency services. Our community-based medical staff, with expertise in specialties ranging from ophthalmology and vascular surgery to cancer treatment. Our psychiatric care. Long-term nursing home care at Cottage-Belmont and Cottage-Rose Villa. Home health care and hospice care. And CHAMP, our unique sports medicine service for both varsity stars and neighborhood joggers.

Henry Ford Hospital: Pioneering techniques in heart and vascular surgery. Research for the medicine of tomorrow. Developing more ways to fight heart disease, stroke, kidney disease, bone disease and cancer.

COTTAGE HOSPITAL WITH HENRY FORD HOSPITAL BEHIND IT. HOW DO WE LOOK TO YOU NOW?

At Cottage Hospital, we feel that our merger with the Henry Ford Health Care Corporation and the special relationship this gives us with Henry Ford Hospital will enable us to strengthen our capabilities and to offer more access to specialty services.

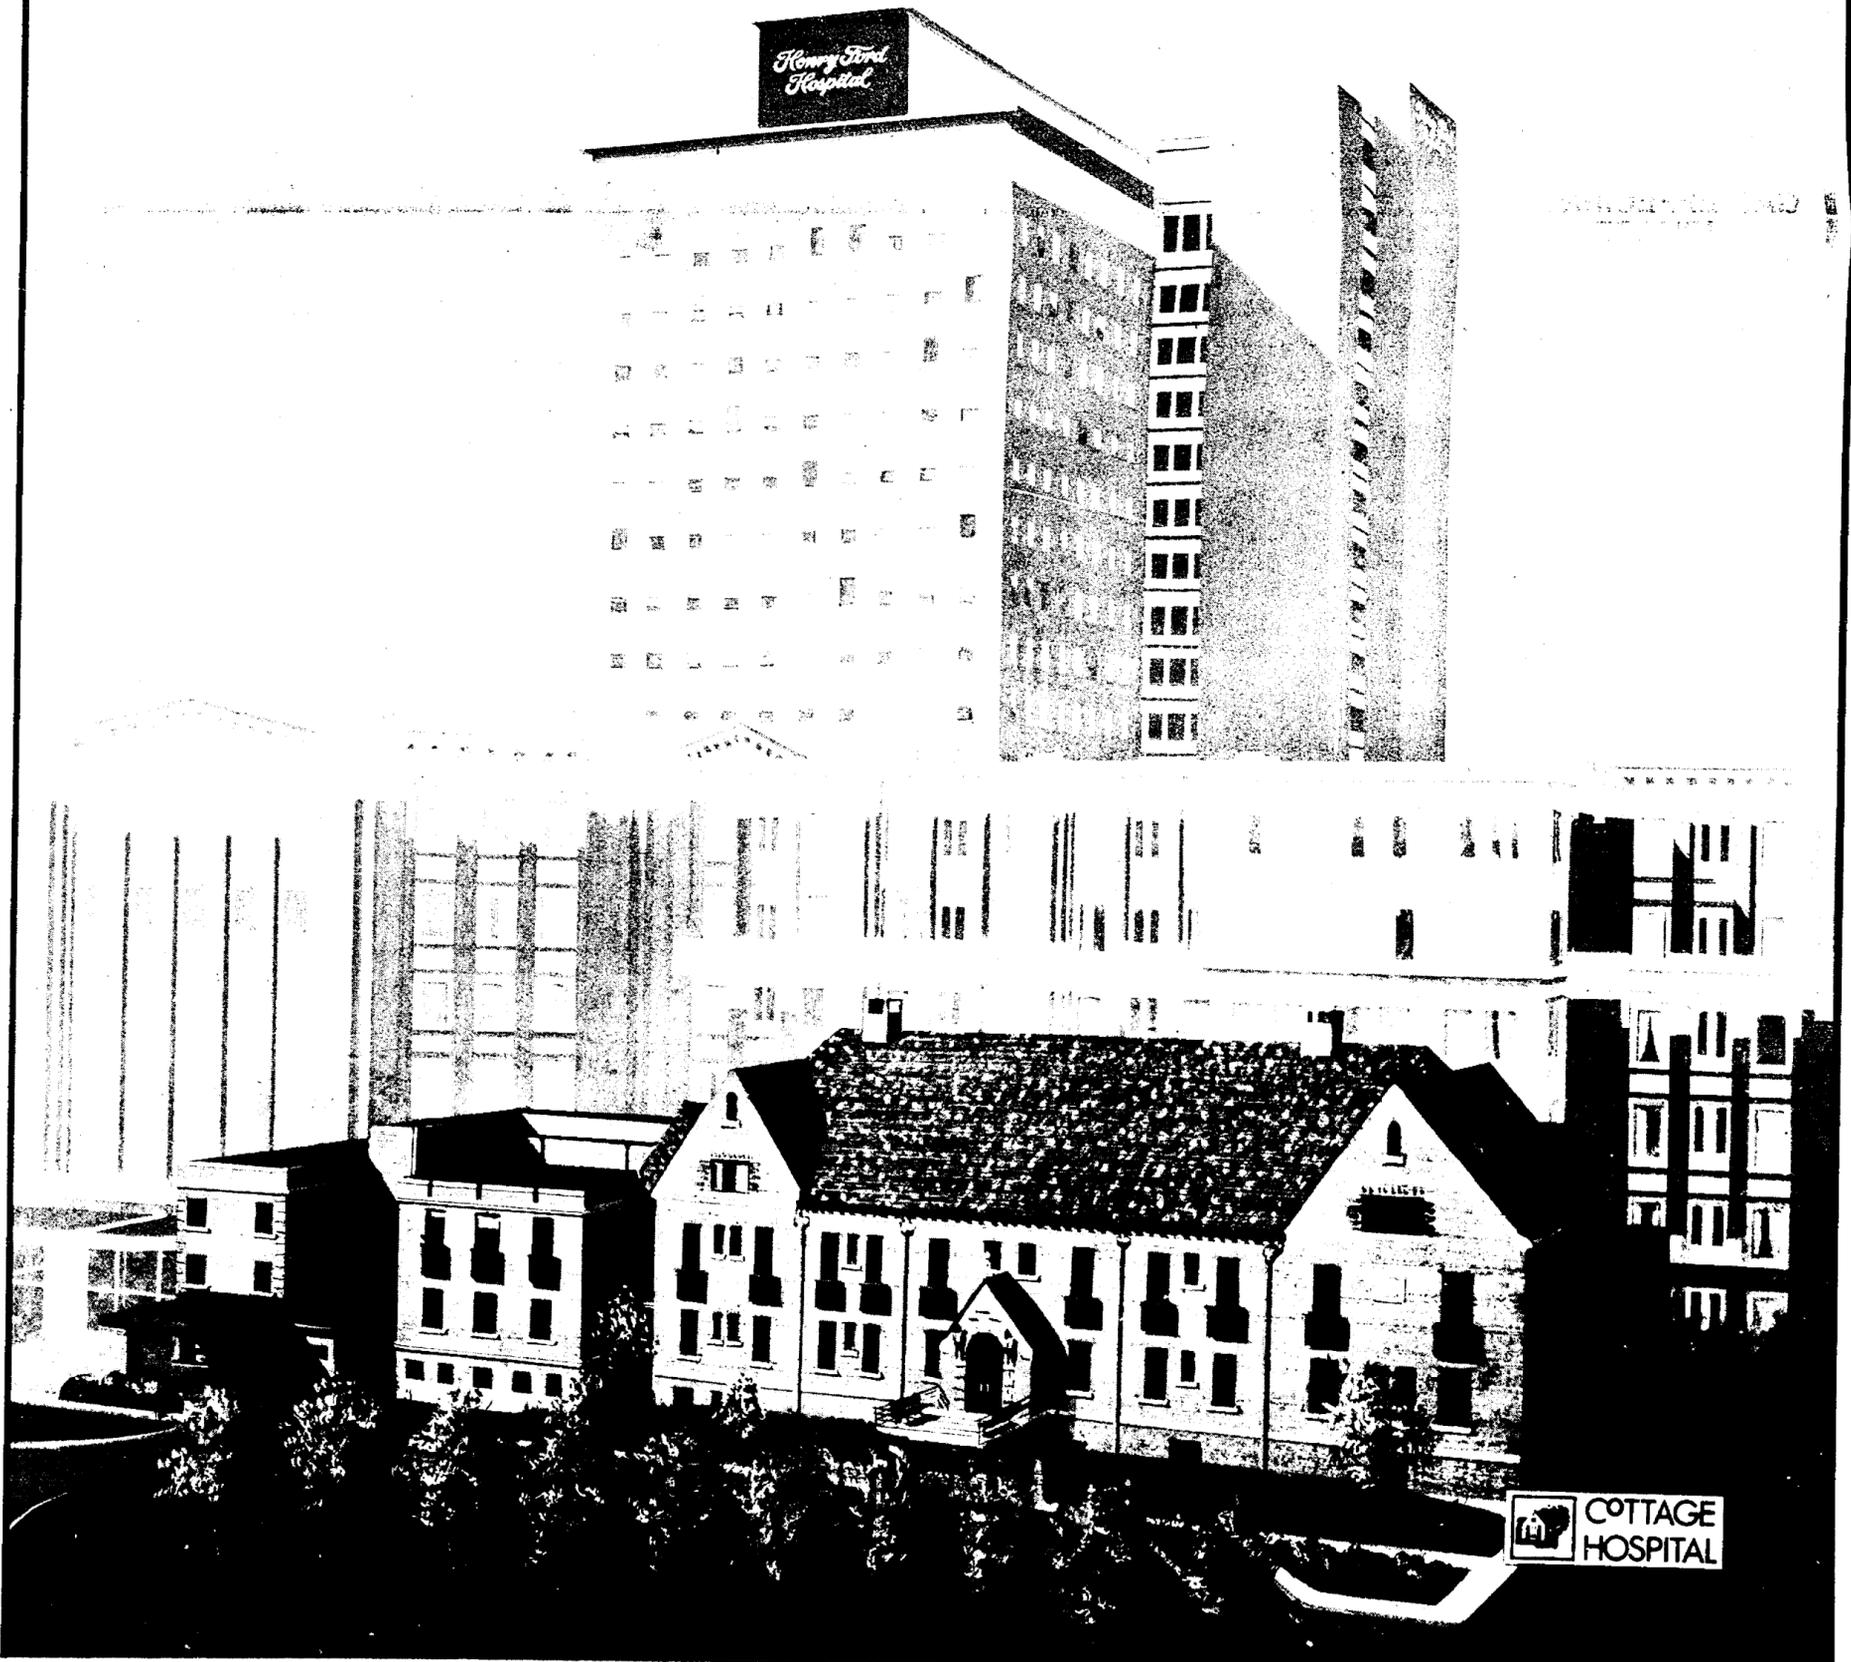

As we renew our commitment to you - our patients, friends and neighbors - we look forward to your continued support.

Spend a semester in Switzerland

University Liggett School announces its affiliation with Swiss Semester in Zermatt. ULS is one of 20 nationwide independent schools that played a role in founding Swiss Semester, an academic program for college preparatory sophomores enrolled in affiliated schools.

For a semester of their sophomore year, college preparatory students from all over the United States come together in Zermatt, Switzerland; they return to their home schools at the end of the semester.

In Zermatt, the students continue their academic studies, with special emphasis upon foreign languages, geology, European history and international affairs which assume a special relevance in Switzerland. In addition, the students take advantage of the Swiss alpine location for skiing, climbing, hiking and travel to other parts of Europe.

For further information, write to Swiss Semester, Box 327, 3920 Zermatt, Switzerland, or contact the Swiss Semester Coordinator at University Liggett School.

Summer in Europe

Local high school students are invited to travel to Europe for 18 days this summer. The group, under the direction of Patti Southlea Kearney, a teacher at Our Lady Star of the Sea, will visit England, France, Switzerland, Austria and Germany.

Trombly students handcuff Park officer

As the kickoff speaker in Trombly Elementary School's Career Awareness Unit for first graders, Officer James Smith of the Grosse Pointe Park Police Department gave the children a better understanding of the role that he and his fellow officers play in the community.

The 42 youngsters in Lillian Katchadourian's and Eleanor Pawluk's classes found it easy to talk to the eight-year police veteran. Having been a part of the School Safety Program for the past five years, Smith anticipated the warm reception he received when he asked if any of the children might like to model his helmet or cap, or even try out his handcuffs.

Smith rotates from the day to the afternoon and the night shift every two weeks, sharing the responsibility for the school safety program with two other Park police officers.

During the year, the three of them are able to visit all of the local elementary schools in the Park, helping students learn to view policemen as friends.

Birthday program

Children from the third- through eighth-graders are welcome to celebrate Laura Ingalls Wilder's birthday at Harper Woods Library at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8. Director Sally Arrivee will lead the 45-minute program with costumes, photographs and the author's own gingerbread recipe.

GIFTED CLASSES AT THE KINDERGARTEN LEVEL?

At The Grosse Pointe Academy we don't believe that children can or should be labeled gifted at the early ages 3, 4, or 5. We see many students who are bright—in fact, 28 children of our 52 kindergartners last year scored in the 98th or 99th percentile on the composite scores on the Stanford Achievement test for kindergartners. None of our 52 children scored below the 80th percentile on the test's composite score. Were these gifted students or were they "hot house" kids, with parents who have high vocabularies, who put an emphasis on reading, listening, educational toys and experiences? Our response is "You can't tell yet!" We'd rather have a bright, together child than a precocious prodigy any day, and so would most parents who stop and think about it. Being gifted is a heavy piece of baggage to carry at any age.

The Early School teachers at The Grosse Pointe Academy wish to expand a child's experiences horizontally. We believe children forced to move ahead too quickly can be damaged both socially and emotionally for a short-sighted gain of a year or so of academic knowledge. A child's academic growth comes from interaction with knowledgeable teachers and a rich environment, not from being placed ahead because of a test result.

Kazantzakis, in Zorba The Greek, writes: "I remembered one morning when I discovered a cocoon in the bark of a tree just as the butterfly was making a hole in its case and preparing to come out. I waited a while but it was too long appearing and I was impatient. I bent over it and breathed on it to warm it. I warmed it as quickly as I could and the miracle began to happen before my eyes—faster than life. The case opened, the butterfly started slowly crawling out, and I shall never forget my horror when I saw how its wings were folded back and crumpled—the wretched butterfly tried with its whole trembling body to unfold them. Bending over it, I tried to help it with my breath in vain. It needed to be hatched out patiently and the unfolding of the wings should be a gradual process in the sun. Now it was too late. My breath had forced the butterfly to appear—all crumpled before its time. It struggled desperately and a few seconds later died in the palm of my hand. That little body, I believe, is the greatest weight that I carry on my conscience for I realize today that it is a sin to violate the great laws of nature. We should not hurry. We should not be impatient. But we should confidently obey the eternal rhythm...."

A child's learning, like an emerging butterfly, should not be hurried. Gifted classes at the preschool, kindergarten and primary levels may sound nice, but look into the Montessori educational opportunity before you commit to any program for your child.

NOTICE OF LAST DAY OF REGISTRATION OF THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF THE GROSSE POINTE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN FOR THE SPECIAL ELECTION TO BE HELD ON MARCH 10, 1986

TO THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF SAID SCHOOL DISTRICT:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that a Special School Election will be held in said School District on Monday, March 10, 1986. At said Special Election the following separate propositions will be submitted to the vote of the qualified electors of the School District:

PROPOSITION I GENERAL OPERATING MILLAGE PROPOSITION

As a renewal and continuation of authority to levy a portion of operating millage previously approved by the electorate, which millage expired in 1985, shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all taxable property in The Grosse Pointe Public School System, Wayne County, Michigan, be increased, for a period of three (3) years, the years 1986 through 1988, both inclusive, by twenty five and thirty five one-hundredths ($.25.35) dollars (25.35 mills) per one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars of the state equalized valuation of all taxable property in the School District, for the exclusive purpose of providing funds to meet general operating expenses of the School District?

PROPOSITION II PUBLIC LIBRARY OPERATING MILLAGE PROPOSITION

As a renewal and continuation of authority to levy a portion of public library operating millage previously approved by the electorate, which millage expired in 1985, shall the limitation of the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all taxable property in The Grosse Pointe Public School System, Wayne County, Michigan, be increased, for a period of three (3) years, the years 1986 through 1988, both inclusive, by one and thirty one-hundredths (1.30) dollars (1.30 mills) per one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars of the state equalized valuation of all taxable property in the School District, for the exclusive purpose of providing funds to meet operating expenses of the Public Library System operated by the Board of Education in the School District?

Section 1052 of Act 451, Public Acts of Michigan, 1976, provides as follows:

"The inspectors of election at any annual or special election shall not receive the vote of a person residing in a registration school district whose name is not registered as an elector in the city or township in which the person resides or whose name is not in the registration file in the precinct in which the person offers to vote when city or township registration records are used in school elections as provided in section 1053."

THE LAST DAY on which persons may register with the appropriate city or township clerk of the city or township in which they reside or at a Secretary of State Drivers License Bureau in order to be eligible to vote at said Special Election is February 10, 1986. Persons registering after 5:00 o'clock P.M., Eastern Standard Time on said February 10, 1986 will not be eligible to vote at said Special School Election.

Under the provisions of Act 451, Public Acts of Michigan, 1976, as amended, registrations will not be taken by school officials, except when deputized by the appropriate city or township clerk, and only persons who have registered as general electors with the appropriate city or township clerks of the city or township in which they reside, or through registration at a Secretary of State Drivers License Bureau, are registered school electors. Persons planning to register with a city or township clerk must ascertain the days and hours on which the clerk's office is open for registration.

Registration of unregistered qualified electors of the School District will be received at the following places:

1. Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe Park shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe Park, 15115 East Jefferson Avenue, City of Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan.
2. Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe, 17150 Maumee, City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan.
3. Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe Farms, 90 Kerby Road, City of Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan.
4. Residents of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods, 20025 Mack Avenue, City of Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan.
5. Residents of the City of Harper Woods shall register at the office of the Clerk of the City of Harper Woods, 19617 Harper Avenue, City of Harper Woods, Michigan.
6. Residents of the Township of Grosse Pointe shall register at the office of the Clerk of the Township of Grosse Pointe, 795 Lake Shore Drive, Village of Grosse Pointe Shores, Michigan.
7. Application for registration may also be made at a Secretary of State Driver's License Bureau.

This notice is given by order of the Board of Education of The Grosse Pointe Public School System, Wayne County, Michigan.

Historical group awarded grant

The Detroit Historical Society will receive a $6,060 special grant from the Great Lakes Gas Transmission Company for National History Day Contest in Michigan.

National History Day is conducted annually in 43 states and its purpose is to encourage students from grades 6 through 12 to take a deeper interest in history. Participating students are invited to develop entries in the form of research papers, video tapes, model building and artistic displays.

After participating in their local communities, students from throughout Michigan will gather at the Detroit Historical Museum in the spring of 1986 and 1987 to compete with each other for the right to participate in the national run-offs in Washington D.C. The Detroit events will be arranged by the Detroit Historical Department.

The Detroit Historical Society has sponsored History Day in Michigan since 1981. The 1986 contest will be of particular importance because it will introduce special plans for 1987 dealing with Michigan's sesquicentennial, the 150th anniversary of statehood.

Park to buy land from state

To comply with state law, the Park city council has agreed to buy from Michigan 4.1 acres of land situated in its two parks and to lease the lake bottom occupied by the marina at Windmill Pointe Park.

The Great Lakes Submerged Lands Act of 1955 requires lake-front owners to buy lake bottoms that have been filled in, since the lake bottom belongs to the state of Michigan. The cost to the Park will be 30 percent of the value of the filled bottom land or the full market value of unfilled bottom land, whichever is greater, according to Department of Natural Resources rules.

The land in question is 2.5 acres at Windmill Pointe Park and 1.6

acres at Patterson Park. The Windmill Pointe property, filled in after 1967, lies between the swimming pool and the bathhouse and the edge of the marina. At Patterson, the parcel is located at the eastern part of the park.

The Submerged Lands Act also requires that operators of marinas lease the lake bottom underneath the marina from the state. Under DNR rules, the lease will cost the city 5 percent annually of typical rental rates in the area.

The resolution adopted by the Park council calls for a 50-year lease agreement with the state.

The cost of the land is not known, since the DNR will not appraise it until after it receives an application from the city. The state agency will also set a rental fee for the marina lake bottom after it receives an application.

"Over the last seven years we have been aware of this obligation," City Manager John Crawford said. "We are one of many communities in the state impacted in the same way."

Computer classes

Spaces still exist in non-credit computer classes for adults offered during February by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Both introductory (beginning Wednesday, Feb. 12) and the word processing class (beginning Monday, Feb. 24) are available on the Apple computer.

Those interested in the IBM computer will find several classes available. "Word Processing on the IBM-PC" begins Tuesday, Feb. 18, as does "Introduction to IBM Software."

"Introduction to Word Processing" begins on Monday, Feb. 24.

These are all evening classes of from three to five weeks' duration. Call community education at 343-2178 for space availability and other details.

Make a tussie-mussie

Create a fragrant nosegay of dried flowers as a special Valentine gift for a mother, grandmother, daughter or friend in a Victorian Bouquet workshop at the War Memorial, 10 a.m. to noon, on Wednesday, Feb. 12.

Called a "tussie mussie," the bouquet is reminiscent of ones carried by Elizabethan and Victorian ladies. The class costs $10 plus $10 for materials. Students should bring clippers to the workshop.

For additional information, call 881-7511.

Making the best of a Michigan winter are AFS exchange students Jacqueline Shneider of Melbourne, Australia, and Joaquin Gonzales-Aleman of Seville, Spain. Jacqui is living with the Gene Francis family of Lakeland, and Joaquin is staying with the Jim Nicholson family of Cloverly Road.

Host families sought

This year 3,400 families will participate in the AFS International/Intercultural Program.

More than 60 Grosse Pointe families have been a part of AFS programs since the chapter was established more than 16 years ago, said Ann Nicholson, chairman of Grosse Pointe's AFS chapter.

In addition to two parents with children of varying ages, single parent families, young couples without children, and older couples with grown children are eligible to host and encouraged to apply. What they have in common is their curiosity about people from other lands, their willingness to accept differences, and their desire to share themselves with a new family member.

"Likewise, the students AFS selects to come to Grosse Pointe are friendly, intelligent and interested young people eager to join a family and learn about our country, community and culture," Nicholson said. "Once they arrive in Grosse Pointe, our chapter volunteers provide support to the student, the family and the school during the year."

One-minute manager workshop is set

As part of its Excellence in Management Series, the Wayne State University Division of Non-credit Programs is presenting a one-day seminar, "Putting the One Minute Manager to Work," on Feb. 11.

The workshop is based on materials designed by the "One Minute Manager" authors Blanchard and Johnson. Participants learn how to use the three secrets to influence employee performance. Managers, supervisors and administrators will discover a systematic method for developing accountability, providing feedback and improving productivity. Participants receive copies of the two best sellers, "The One Minute Manager," and "Putting the One Minute Manager to Work."

Tuition is $125, or $105 for additional registrants from the same company. The fee includes tuition, materials, lunch and reserved parking at the McGregor Memorial Conference Center on the WSU Campus.

For more information and a free brochure describing the Excellence in Management Series, call 577-4665.

The lore of Valentine's Day

By Marian Trainor

Strategically positioned in the middle of the shortest and what has to be the dreariest month of the year is one of the brightest and most personal holidays of the year — Valentine's Day.

With Valentine's Day, our morale would sink to a critical low. Snow is no longer a novelty. We've seen enough of it. Even the dancing, scintillating flakes coming to rest as a downy blanket of white that covers the gray dirty remains of the last snowstorm have lost their power to beguile.

The magic and excitement of Christmas has faded. Gifts that are reminded that no matter what conditions prevail — inclement weather, bills, whatever — we are special to someone and nothing else matters.

The feeling of joy that comes from receiving tokens of love and thoughtfulness would be made even more special if we remember someone who has no one close to send them a valentine. Everyone should be remembered on that day. It is a day that holds memories for everyone; memories of a loving husband or wife who let the person know with a gift or card how much he or she meant to them; of handmade cards brought home from school and presented with pride and eyes shining with love, and even memories of school-days and valentine parties.

While Valentine's Day does give a lift to February doldrums, it did not just come into being for that purpose, and yes, Virginia, there was really a St. Valentine.

Valentine was a priest in Rome 1,700 years ago when Christianity was outlawed. He was put to death for teaching about Christ and was later canonized as a saint.

Like all saints, there are legends that are told about him. He is called the patron saint of lovers. In his time men were ordered not to marry. Emperor Claudius II needed Roman soldiers to fight his wars but he was having trouble recruiting them because husbands did not want to leave their homes. The emperor reasoned that if they had no wives to leave, they would be willing to fight. Young couples turned to Valentine who felt sorry for them and married them secretly.

Another legend tells why messages are sent on Valentine's Day. Valentine raised beautiful flowers which he gave to the children who lived nearby. When he was arrested by the emperor, the children made little bouquets, tied notes to them and tossed the bouquets through his prison window.

When Valentine was put to death, people began to write notes to their friends on the anniversary of his death. They called their greetings "valentines."

Another legend tells that while Valentine was in prison he became friends with a jailer's daughter. She was blind. He prayed for her and she recovered her sight. Before he died, Valentine wrote a letter to the little girl. He signed it, "From your Valentine."

There are other stories of how Valentine's Day came to be, all centered on love. Some historians believe that it grew out of an old Roman holiday, Lupercalia, which had nothing to do with love. It was a celebration to honor the god Lupercua, hoping that he would keep wolves from what was then a village. As Rome grew into a city, the problem with wolves no longer existed. The celebration remained. One of the customs practiced by the young people was name-drawing. The names of Roman girls were written on slips and put into a jar. Each young man drew a slip. The girl whose name he drew was his sweetheart for a year. After Valentine's death when more Romans had become Christians, the name of the festival became St. Valentine's instead of Lupercus.

As Rome became powerful and conquered much of Europe, its celebrations were adopted in the other countries, each country adding its own special custom to the event.

In the Middle Ages, few people could read or write. They recited or sang their valentines. Written valentines began about 1400. A Frenchman, Duke of Orleans, was captured by the English in battle. He was put in prison in the Tower of London. There he wrote valentine poems. Many of them can be seen today in the British Museum.

The idea of paper valentines spread. For a long time, they were made by hand with original verses written by the sender.

In 1800 factories began to make valentines. They were carefully crafted, hand-painted, and trimmed with ribbon, real lace and cloth roses. By the end of the 19th century, valentines began to be stamped out. They were a far cry from the earlier daintier ones.

Ribbons and lace are just part of the valentine lore. In early days, ornaments were attached. Each had a meaning. A fan meant "open up your heart," a ribbon, "you are tied up," lace (latin for net), "you are caught in my net."

One of the most famous symbols of valentines is Cupid with bow and arrow. He goes back to Roman times when he was a happy little god who went around shooting gold-tipped arrows into the hearts of humans who then fell in love.

Valentines probably came to this country with the first English settlers. James Winthrop, the first governor of Massachusetts, wrote a letter dated Feb. 14, 1629 to his wife reading, "Thou must be my valentine."

In the 1700s a Mr. Rowland began to import valentines from England. His daughter Esther began to make some of her own to sell. Her business flourished and she eventually bought machinery to do some of the work. She is credited with making valentines popular in the United States.

Sending valentines got a boost in 1847 when the post office began to sell 5 and 10 cent stamps. That year three million valentines were sold. Today that number has increased many times.

charmed with their newness have been absorbed into our list of belongings, still cherished but nevertheless accepted as every day items now.

And then there are the utility bills that destroy all hope of recovery from the Christmas splurge or of ever balancing a budget. Each year they grow higher, more draining and inescapable. Cave people would have envied the wonderful miracles of light and heat that energy has wrought but they would have had some reservations about exchanging the campfire for the trauma of the cost. Our technological necessities have reached the point where they could also be categorized as luxuries.

And wouldn't you know it, to add to the worry and wear of the dullness of all months, germs mount an attack and we become besieged with what is known as the flu season.

No wonder then that Valentine's Day is such a bright oasis in a desert of gloom. On that day all woes are forgotten as we enter into a holiday which has love as its central theme.

New Park group to focus on Jefferson

By Pat Paholsky
A six-block area of Jefferson in the Park, from Wayburn to Somerset, will be the focus of the newly organized Downtown Development Authority. The group elected officers, defined preliminary goals and drew up by-laws and a budget at its organizational meeting Jan. 15.

"The purpose of the Downtown Development Authority is general revitalization, to make businesses better on Jefferson Avenue," said R. Craig Hupp, assistant city attorney and counsel to the authority. "The focus is commercial development."

The city council, at its Jan. 27 meeting, agreed to loan the Authority $6,700 to finance start-up costs. The proposed six-month budget (through June 30, the end of the city's fiscal year) includes $4,000 for a planning consultant and $2,000 for legal counsel. The rest of the money is for postage, travel expenses, supplies, secretarial and administrative costs and miscellaneous items.

"The ultimate goal of the Authority is to develop a tax increment financing plan," Hupp said, in which part or all of the taxes collected in the designated area after 1986 would be reinvested in the area. The loan from the city would be repaid in 1988.

There was an earlier study of Jefferson done in 1984, paid for by Wayne County Block Grant funds. The city, however, was not successful in financing those programs through grant money, City Manager John Crawford said.

"Because of the earlier planning work done, we are hoping to keep the costs down," Crawford said. "I do see a real opportunity to eliminate our reliance on federal money."

Besides the tax increment financing plan, funds could come from a special assessment on real property in the downtown district, according to a letter sent to council members from the Authority.

Officers are Kirsten Frank, chairman; Gerald Bodendistel, vice chairman; Michael Maher, treasurer; and Joanne Missant, secretary. The group, consisting of business people with a property interest in the area and residential property owners, includes Mayor Palmer Heenan, Diamond Phillips, Dr. Philip Hessburg, Gilbert Waitkus, William Solomon, Adam Konrad and Patricia Forster.

Regular meetings will be held quarterly on the first Wednesday of January, April, July and October in the council chambers. The annual meetings will be held on the first Wednesday in July at which time officers will be elected.

'Midsummer Night's Dream' at Hilberry

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," William Shakespeare's comedy about the madness of love, opens Thursday, Feb. 13, at the Hilberry Theatre, following previews Feb. 7 and 8.

As the love of Duke Theseus and Queen Hippolyta, recently in conflict, is about to be consummated in marriage, the love of their counterparts in fairyland, Oberon and Titania, is interrupted by a dispute that creates chaos in the forest. The sprite Puck bungles and lovers suddenly exchange partners and as suddenly change back. He transforms the lowly Bottom, a weaver, into a monster with an ass's head and Titania falls madly in love with him. Finally, when order returns, the love-madness turns to farce as a troupe of ignorant artisans performs a so-called tragedy about love before the Duke and the reunited lovers.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" features the entire Hilberry acting company. Heading the cast are Larry Greer (Theseus/Oberon), Cheryl Williams (Hippolyta/Titania), George Comiskey (Lysander), Jonathan Nichols (Demetrius), Melanie Metcalf (Hermia), Lynne Kadish (Helena), Gordon Reinhart (Puck) and Paul Amadio (Bottom).

The production is directed by Margaret Spear, with scenery designed by John Wade, costumes designed by Lisa Haynes and lighting designed by Gary M. Witt.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" continues through May 13, in repertory with "Equus" and, later, with "The Misanthrope."

Tickets and information are available at the Hilberry Theatre box office, Cans and Hancock, Detroit; 577-2872. Tickets are also available from any metro AAA office or J.C. Penney stores.

Members of the Michigan Opera Theatre and students from Kerby and Montelth schools present a musical play warning youngsters of the dangers of smoking. The comedy, "The Night Harry Stopped Smoking," was performed at both schools.

Opera teaches kids hazards of smoking

By Nancy Solak
(To the tune of "Are Your Sleep- ing?")

Are you smoking?
Are you smoking?
Are you smoking cigarettes?
Give up that tobacco,
It will make you whacko,
Nasty, old . . . cigarettes.

The Kerby and Montelth parent-teacher organizations recently treated their students to the opera, "The Night Harry Stopped Smoking." The program was presented in cooperation by two non-profit organizations, the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan and the Michigan Opera Theatre's "Overture to Opera" Company. Only two weeks old, the group already has 60 bookings throughout the state.

With story and words written by John Davies, and music by Ross Dabrusin, students spent 45 minutes inside smoker Harry's lungs. Cilia, the cells that clean the lungs, explained to Harry that "Even if we cleaned up this pigpen, your next cigarette would just mess it up again." Besides, their sweepers were broken and their hoses clogged. They'd like to help, but don't have the strength anymore — they're too sick.

Intermittently throughout the opera, the cilia, nerves and alveoli led the children in song to help get Harry to give up the habit.

Later, Harry gets a call. He has to see the pump for making this place a dump. He meets with Pumper, a large heart with eyes and a mouth, and the hearts tells him, "I've been working so hard I'm beat. Get it?" The heart tells Harry how much he's enjoyed being his pumper and Harry is incredulous.

"You really mean that? You are happy to be my heart?"

"Cross my heart . . . I mean cross my pump. I'm full of hope that you and I will live for a very long time."

At last Harry is convinced and decides not to smoke. Then, with great verve, the cast sings "It's a Great Day" and dances a healthful jig.

A nerve cell calls the brain on the telephone and says, "Good news! Harry just said he was going to quit. Tell the cells to get to work right away cleaning up."

Kerby students who assisted the cast, dressed in green costumes depicting alveoli, were Ann Halpin, Courtney Coats, Jessica Fortier, Robbie Joslyn, Kevin Rusch and Jamie Flagler.

Montelth students included Ell Knapp, Mark Levine, Sara Johnson, Katherine Hutton, Paul Dykstra and Christine Angell.

After the opera the cast led a question and answer period. The students, however, restricted this time to comment about the hazards to smoking. Clearly, the point of the opera wasn't lost.

The cast included Grosse Pointe David Ludwig who played three roles, Michael Hendricks, Betsy Bronson, David Riley, and Mark Von Brak as Harry. The accompanist on the piano was Jean Schneider.

Stage manager and administrator for community programs, Mary Cooney, said that the program originated in Syracuse, N.Y., where author John Davies, father of four, decided to counteract the

State recommends shopping for insurance

Consumers looking for the best buys in home and auto insurance can do so more easily by using two new publications by the Michigan Insurance Bureau.

The results of a survey of home and auto insurance rates are contained in two reports, "Do Not Buy Car Insurance Until You Read This," and "Buyer's Guide to Home and Renter's Insurance."

The auto insurance survey gives a brief explanation of no-fault auto insurance coverages and eligibility requirements, and displays rates for four sample driving households in 16 areas of the state. The home insurance survey explains eligibility requirements, describes the coverages provided by the policies in the four sample households, and lists rates charged for each household in 13 areas of the state.

The reports are intended to emphasize the importance of shopping for insurance by making insurance buyers more aware of the coverages they need.

Copies of the new booklet are available at no cost by writing to Auto Survey or Home Survey at the following address: Michigan Insurance Bureau, P.O. Box 30220, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

By Nancy Parmenter

Property crimes were down and violent crimes were up in Grosse Pointe Farms in 1985, according to the annual police report released Jan. 31. Major crimes measured include burglary, larceny, car theft, homicide, rape, assault and arson.

Property crimes, with the exception of auto theft, decreased 22.8 percent. "As a result, during 1985, Grosse Pointe Farms enjoyed a property crime index... not seen since the early 1950s," the report stated.

Balancing the decrease in property crimes was a corresponding rise in violent crime, however. Violent crime as a whole increased 29.4 percent, with robbery leading the way with a 133 percent increase.

There was one rape, five aggravated assaults (a decrease of five from 1984), and 14 robberies (up eight, for the 133 percent increase). There were no criminal homicides in the Farms in 1985.

According to the 1984 FBI Uniform Crime Reports (the most recent year for which statistics are available), the crime rate for each of the major index crimes was higher in Michigan than in the U.S. as a whole. Based on a rate per 100,000 population, homicide, for example, was 9.7 in Michigan and 7.9 in the nation. Rape was 56.1 in Michigan, 35.7 in the nation. Car theft was 737.6 in Michigan, 437.1 in the nation.

Rates in the Farms in most cases were far below the national and state rates, however. There were only 56.8 robberies per 100,000 population in the Farms, compared to 205.4 in the nation and 285.3 in the state. But larcenies and car thefts in the Farms topped those in the state.

Based on the per-100,000 rate, the Farms had 738.9 car thefts to the nation's 437.1. The larceny rate was 3,476.7 in the Farms, 2,791.3 in the nation. The total number of larcenies was 291. The auto theft rate dropped to 625.2 in 1985.

Continuing a five-year trend, more than half (54 percent) of the people arrested for felonies during 1985 were Detroiters. Ten percent lived in Grosse Pointe Farms. More than one-third (38 percent) were juveniles, an increase from 28 percent in 1984.

Drinking and driving arrests continued to increase, although not as fast as in 1984, when they took a dramatic 141 percent upturn. They were up an additional 16 percent in 1985.

Police Chief Robert Ferber sees substance abuse as a major issue in the coming year. Narcotics arrests increased in 1985 by 41 percent (five cocaine arrests), but marijuana continues to be the drug most frequently resulting in arrest, Ferber wrote.

"Rising drug and narcotic use and thereby arrests, will be a multiple-faceted problem which we must begin to again focus on during 1986," he wrote. "It appears that both marijuana and cocaine usage have reached an 'acceptability level' within a certain percentage of our local (Grosse Pointe) population."

The result of that community acceptance is that formal feedback about usage and sale of drugs barely exists, Ferber said. Since police depend on tips, enforcement is more difficult.

Most of the drug arrests stem from traffic arrests at this point, according to Ferber's report. Loss of the Youth Services division has compounded the enforcement problem.

"Our informal feedback, limited as it may be, appears to indicate that marijuana and cocaine use among the 15- to 23-year-old age group may be more prevalent than many would admit or like to believe," Ferber wrote. The department plans a beefed-up enforcement effort from the increased manpower expected if the planned consolidation of the police and fire departments takes place.

A copy of the police department annual report is available at the department for review during business hours.

Farms watercolorist is marine history buff

By Nancy Parmenter

The cold winter wind may blow, but in the world of Jerry Crowley's marine paintings, it is a perennial summer. Steaming in procession around the walls of Crowley's airy studio in the Farms, historic vessels brave the waves of the Great Lakes and long-gone lighthouses stand up to the buffeting of the wind.

Crowley was once a nine-to-five, but six years ago, he took an early retirement from his position in quality control at Chrysler's trim division to devote all of his time to painting. It wasn't a complete shot in the dark. Crowley had been painting for years and was already attracting attention with his marine watercolors.

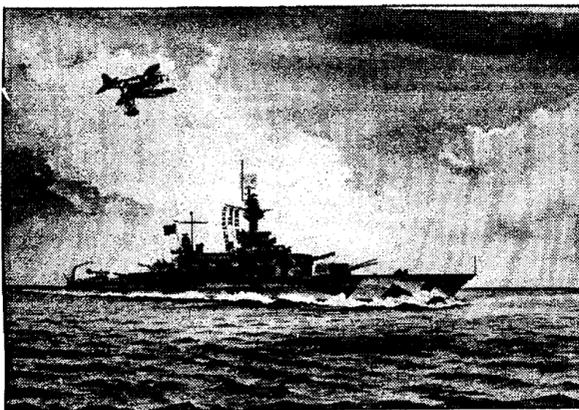

At first glance, his black-and-white work with the fine lines and careful detail, look like precise pen-and-ink drawings. But they are watercolors done with a tiny, pointed brush.

"I use a rigger's brush," Crowley said. "It's a technique peculiar to my style right now. I like it because it gives a pleasing shadow effect."

Crowley likes to paint black line drawings. If a purchaser prefers color, Crowley handcolors his work with a pale watercolor wash. Some of his work is printed in limited editions.

Almost every painting has a marine theme. The lighthouse at Peche Island, now at Marine City. The old car ferries between Detroit and Windsor that were put out of business in the '30s by the bridge and tunnel. Shrimpers off the coast of Texas. The Punch and Judy block.

"I wanted to paint that before the architects start," Crowley said. "I want to show it the way it was."

Crowley's rendition of the USS Colorado was commissioned by a sailor who served aboard the vessel. He painted the ship from a study of a number of photographs.

Marine artist Jerry Crowley of the Farms left his job with Chrysler six years ago to pursue his art work full time. He paints out of his home, mostly on a commission basis.

As a member of the Detroit Marine Historical Society and the Great Lakes Maritime Institute, one of Crowley's passions is the history of the vessels he paints. He goes into the background of every ship, partly because his clients enjoy hearing it, but mostly because it brings the ship alive for him. A tour around the studio is as much a lesson in maritime history as in art.

"When I hear about a ship or a lighthouse, I plan a trip there to sketch it," Crowley said. His travels take him here and there along the Michigan shore, to the Texas Gulf coast, to the coasts of Normandy and England. "I'm never far from water," he said.

Crowley and his wife, Doty, kept an eye on the published ship sailings in the daily papers, but a more valuable resource is their many friends in the shipping business who call to alert them of unusual sailings. Then they "just hop in the boat down at the Pier Park" and sail out to meet it with a sketch pad or camera.

Since many of his subjects no longer exist, Crowley is often forced to paint from photographs or old lithographs. One of his current commissions involves the study of a multitude of photographs from many angles of the World War II battleship, the USS Colorado, which he is painting for a man who served aboard her.

"Those Navy photographs have so many shadows and the camouflage paint complicated it," Crowley said. He poured out details about the history of the Colorado, which was at Tokyo Bay for the Japanese surrender and was scrapped in 1959.

Just before Christmas, he captured the last appearance on the Great Lakes of the Cliffs Victory, an old Liberty ship that was sold to Cleveland Cliffs, lengthened twice, and finally sailed away to China.

Crowley paints at home. At one time, he shared a studio with his artist daughter Patty and other Grosse Pointe artists at the Grosse Pointe Academy.

"Those were wonderful days," Doty Crowley recalled. "They all knew when to be quiet and work and when it was good to break for coffee and talk."

When that studio broke up, several of the artists planned to find a new location where they could continue to work together, but Crowley soon realized he preferred the freedom of working at home. "I was working outside on the porch in my bathing trunks on warm days," he said. "And when your studio is away, every time you get an inspiration, you have to get in the car and drive over there."

Although their daughter now lives in Europe, she and Crowley keep in touch artistically. Her free-form style is in sharp contrast to his precision, but each occasionally adopts elements of the other's style. Recently, their letters crossed in the mail: "Dad, I'm getting more like you," and "Patty, I'm getting more like you."

Crowley has sketchbooks full of ideas waiting to be expressed in watercolor. Great Lakes, lighthouses and coastal scenes from a recent trip to Europe are his current interests.

"I don't lack for ideas," he said. "I lack time to paint them all. I'll probably never finish everything I have planned."

Car event to debut at Greenfield

The debut of Greenfield Village's newest special event, Motor Muster — a first-time salute to the dream machines of the 1930s, '40s and '50s — will be held Aug. 9 and 10.

Unlike September's Old Car Festival, now in its 36th year.

Motor Muster will take a look at more modern modes of transportation dating beyond 1929. Automobiles, motorcycles, trucks, military vehicles and bicycles from across the nation will be highlighted the entire weekend.

One of the more interesting aspects of Motor Muster will be its unusual mix of automobiles, ranging from such '30s classics as the Duesenberg and Cord to hot rods and custom cars of the '40s and '50s.

Judging of the vehicles will be handled by a committee of nationally known authorities on early automobiles. In addition, visitors to the event will cast their own votes to decide the "popular choice" awards.

Related Motor Muster activities will include balloon tire bicycle contests, parades and themed entertainment illustrating the cultural impact of the auto during the three decades.

Those wishing further information or entrance requirements for Motor Muster can contact Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village, P.O. Box 1970, Dearborn 48121, or call 271-1620.

Bridge classes

A series of six Bridge clinics has been scheduled by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System as part of its winter program of offerings for adults.

The first of these, "Defensive Bids," is set for Feb. 7. Other topics are "Pre-Emptive Bids on Feb. 14, "Penalty Double" on Feb. 21, and "Slam Bidding" on Feb. 28. "Play of the Hand" will be held March 7 and the concluding clinic, "Popular Conventions," is set for March 14.

Scheduled for 10 a.m. to noon on Fridays, the fee for each session, to be held at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, is $4.50. Advance registration is required.

For space availability, call 343-2178.

Trade

When Park resident Fred Giesecking, right, found an unused 35-cent adult fare ticket for Boblo dated July 13, 1909, he presented it to Daniel P. Aylward, general manager, for the amusement park's archives. In exchange, he received a 1986 pass for unlimited access and rides. The unused ticket, which was intended for a St. Mark's Sunday School excursion, belonged to Giesecking's mother.

How to cope with irrational people

By Nancy Solak

Everyone has a friend, relative or co-worker who is irrational, Sherwin T. Wine, director for the Center of New Thinking in Birmingham, says. "Everyone is irrational at times, but some people are irrational all of the time."

Wine, in his recent lecture at the War Memorial, said it would be irrational of him to try to give 10 easy solutions on how to make irrational people rational. It's more reasonable, he says, to learn coping skills.

"It's hard dealing with irrational people, partly because we are all irrational occasionally, and we often expect people to change who can't or won't. Also, we have an obligation to our relatives. We all have relatives we'd sooner not see, but we have a moral obligation to include them."

Other challenges to our rational selves include: the times when it is necessary to reverse roles with our parents; when someone makes a totally ridiculous statement, like "The reason we have snow is because the Russians have a giant snow-making machine"; when someone pushes one of our sensitive triggers — a trigger that, when pulled, we go stark-raving mad; when dealing with people who have to be right all of the time; when we feel guilty telling irrational people to be quiet.

How do we make these kinds of people see the light? In most cases we can't, Wine says, and that's where the coping strategies come into play.

Certain things cannot be changed, like the devastating effects of Alzheimer's disease. You can't eliminate your misbehaving grandfather from Christmas dinner. Learn to look at an event with him as "altered," not ruined. You'll have to bring him back to reality over and over — you must accept that, and persist.

When someone makes a totally irrational statement, like the one about the Russian snow-making machine, thank him or her for the information, or say that you find that information very interesting. Patronizing? Yes, but there are times when it is better, morally, to be patronizing than to be cruel and challenge such an irrational person.

Some people have a distorted view of the past, or the present. Understand that these fantasies may be what's keeping that person together. What if Grandma comes to your wedding dressed like a teenager? Should you scold her, send her home? No! She feels young and beautiful. Let people whisper and mumble. No one will forget your wedding.

When irrational people put you on trial, say for instance, your child blames you for his or her wrecked life, let the child work out the anger and make accusations. You can look and listen, but to try to defend yourself may only make matters worse, and will certainly leave you exhausted.

Joining is sometimes better than fighting, like the time Wine was told, "You Jews are trying to take over the world," to which he responded, "That's right, and what is your name?" Don't give people who are paranoid the satisfaction of knowing how much they bother you.

Be careful to avoid people's triggers. As a child Wine had neighbors who always gave him butter cookies. When FDR was elected, the couple went into mourning. Soon after the election young Wine told them how much his parents loved FDR. He not only lost his supply of butter cookies, but his warm relationship with his neighbors. He learned, at a young age, that elections are a volatile trigger.

Winning isn't always important. One university student flunked an anthropology course because he insisted on writing on his final exam that all behavior is determined by genetics, when he clearly understood that his professor held the opposite view, that environment determines behavior. Afterwards, the student defended his behavior as a matter of integrity. Wine asks, do you allow this teacher, who holds all the cards, to decide whether you get into med school or not? Of course not. Don't fall into his game, don't destroy yourself to make a small gain.

It's all right to avoid some people. If the same person, who is not a relative, keeps ruining your parties, exclude him.

Shame has its place. At the last moment, as a young man was about to make his confirmation speech to friends and relatives, he became fearful and kept saying, "I can't do it. I can't do it." Wine knew he'd feel worse later, if he didn't follow through, so he told him, "Everybody's nervous before a speech. That tension will go away as soon as you start. You may be scared, but if you don't go out there, your parents and friends will be enormously humiliated." Wine stands by this technique on the grounds that there are certain situations when there isn't enough time for 18 years of therapy.

Mockery is counter-productive. When your child comes home, say to a conservative household, and announces he's a socialist, don't tell him it's the dumbest thing you ever heard. Most likely, in three to five years, the child will change. The reason he is at school is to learn to assert himself, to become an independent thinker. Listen, but don't mock.

People need to hear themselves when they're irrational. Keep asking them questions — What are your alternatives? What's the worst that can happen? — so they can hear themselves and learn that their statements are irrational.

Consistency is a virtue. Tell a demanding relative who always asks, "Why didn't you call me today?" that you are only going to call on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, for example. When he or she asks, "Why didn't you call me on Tuesday?" simply repeat your decision firmly.

Frequently take a day off from caring for someone who is irrationally demanding. After all, someone has to stay sane. If you don't, you'll lose your own ability to be rational.

Making someone more responsible for their behavior never hurts. Wine referred to a hyperactive student who would inappropriately interrupt his teacher and run around the classroom. Afterwards he always said, "I can't help it," and no one questioned his response. Wine sat him down and said, "I don't doubt that it's difficult. All I can say is, you have this condition and to some degree you are responsible — you have to try harder." Never having been confronted before, the student's behavior did improve.

Sometime you're better off being a spectator, rather than getting yourself involved. In 1950 Wine worked in the tool crib at Ford as an assistant to a volatile boss. The union steward didn't like his boss and his boss felt the same way about the union steward. Every day they would engage themselves in a violent, irrational argument. Initially Wine tried to stop them, and, as mediator, he was always left exhausted. One day he decided to forego his peacemaker role and look at it as a show on Miller Road at Ford. Take a step back, he advises, if you can't do anything about the situation.

Finally, laughing is better than crying. If you distance yourself, you may find the irrational person amusing, in fact, so absurd that laughing is your only hope for survival.

A Boy Scout troop turns 50

'We take the scout oath and hold it up to the light,' — Scoutmaster

By Elsa Frohman

Dave Steele, scoutmaster of Troop 96, counts his avocation as a part of his vocation. An ordained Lutheran minister, Steele looks upon his involvement with Boy Scouts as a ministry.

"It's an opportunity to try to relate to kids and build moral values," Steele said.

Troop 96 will celebrate its 50th anniversary this Sunday as the troop's sponsor, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, holds Scout Sunday. Steele will be on the pulpit at Memorial on Feb. 9, bringing a message of praise on behalf of a half century's Grosse Pointe Scouts.

"This is an example of how the church has been such a good sponsor to the troop," Steele said. "They have done a lot more than give us a place to hold meetings."

Steele has been scoutmaster of Troop 96 for eight years. However, his own involvement in scouting goes back a lot farther.

"I was active in scouting from Cub Scouts through Eagle Scout," Steele said. "I really thought the program was something that I owed a lot to. My father was a soil conservationist and I was tuned in to the outdoors. I also had a commitment to do volunteer work."

When Steele had sons of his own, he made a commitment to Scouting that has lasted beyond the boys' involvement. His sons are now 16 and 18 and only the younger of the two maintains any involvement in Troop 96 currently.

Steele rejoined Scouts as a parent as a den mother in the Cub Scouts.

"I thought it was appropriate to have a male leading a den," Steele said. "But I was one of the few male den mothers."

As his boys got older, Steele stuck with Scouting. Now he scouts, for the most part, without his own children.

"This is a troop I'm pleased and proud to be associated with," Steele said. "It has a rich tradition of parental involvement. The life expectancy of a scoutmaster is not very long, usually. He wears out, unless parents are willing to relieve him of some of the burdens."

Dave Steele looks upon his involvement with Boy Scouts as a community service ministry. He has been scoutmaster of Troop 96 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for eight years. The troop is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

Troop 96 has a very active camping program. The group goes on a camping trip at least once a month, nearly year around. Every summer, the troop goes on a "High Adventure" trip, such as back packing in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

For Steele, being scoutmaster, and working on committee for the local scout council, takes a lot of time. He estimates his scouting involvement to be a three-fifths-time job, in addition to his full-time job as vice president of Lutheran Social Services of Michigan.

"It's a community service ministry," Steele said. "We take the scout oath and law and hold it up to the light and filter through as much as we can. I want to make it live for kids in a way that will have meaning in their lives."

But Steele's Scouting involvement isn't all sacrifice.

"I like the out of doors, so some of it is selfish," he said. "But I really want to tune kids into that. There is something mystical for me in what goes on with the sharing, the working together, and the deep appreciation for the environment. There are moments. Once, we have been climbing a mountain for six hours. When we got to the top, one of the kids said, 'It's times like this when you really know how good God is.'"

Steele believes that his work in Scouting really makes a difference to the young people he comes in contact with.

"There is so much that can be done in the area of values. There is a lot of stuff confronting kids today, like teenage suicide and drinking," he said.

Steele points out that Scouting benefits more than the boys who participate.

"We've (Troop 96) had more than our share of Eagle Scouts over the years," Steele said. In fact, Troop 96 has produced 25 Eagle Scouts in the last eight years — an outstanding record. "To become an Eagle, the boys have to do community service. They have collected clothes and eye glasses, they have painted hydrants, they have done playground renovations, they have assisted with Red Cross blood drives. Because of Scouts, nearly every home in Grosse Pointe Park has emergency phone numbers posted. A lot of what Scouting gives is given back to the community."

Steele has high praise for the support Memorial Church has given the troop over the years.

"They have done a lot for us. Fifty boys are bound to make some noise, but we have never had a complaint. A representative of the troop meets with the Christian Education Committee of the church on a regular basis."

In appreciation of the support of the church, the troop plans to donate a tree to the church in honor of the 50th anniversary.

Steele describes himself as a stern disciplinarian when dealing with the boys, through he is not a despot.

"We don't do a lot of marching," he said. "But we do stand at attention. When you have 50 kids, and it has been as high as 80, you have to have a way of getting their attention. You need a sense of control. Yes, I will be strict — more than some others. But I have never

Try homemade crackers hot from the oven for a nutritious snack food

With so many attractive boxes on every grocery shelf to choose from, few people ever stop to analyze just what ingredients are used to make crackers.

Homemade crackers can be made without salt, from the purest ingredients and fortified with vitamin rich wheatgerm, brewers yeast and other ingredients. They are great for snacks, especially for dieters. Good crisp, crackers can replace sugar laden cookies after school with a glass of cold milk.

To make crisp crackers, the dough must be rolled very thin, usually about 1/8-inch thick. A large, well-floured, canvas pastry cloth is ideal to keep the crackers from sticking. Scorching and burning can occur very quickly, if crackers are not carefully watched during the last few minutes of baking.

The following is a selection of recipes for crackers from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budget wise Kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Rye Crispiers

These unusual crisp bread rounds are a delicious change from the regular rye crackers. Once you have tried them you will love them.

- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup rye flour
- 2 Tbsp. brown sugar
- 2 tsp. caraway seeds
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 cup margarine
- 1/2 cup water

In mixing bowl stir together all-purpose flour, rye flour, brown sugar, caraway seed, baking powder and salt until thoroughly blended. Cut in margarine until the mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Add water all at once; stir until mixture can be gathered into a ball. Turn dough out onto a lightly floured surface. Knead dough gently, 8 to 10 strokes. Divide dough into 12 portions and shape into balls. On floured surface roll each ball to a 4-inch round. Using your index finger make a 1/2-inch hole in the center of each. With a fork prick entire surface of each round. Using a wide spatula place 6 rounds on a lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake in 325-degree oven for 15 minutes. Turn bread over and bake for 7 or 8 minutes more or until crisp. Remove from oven and cool on rack. Repeat rolling and backing remaining dough. Makes 12.

Calories per round about 87. Cholesterol 0.

Wheat Germ Sticks

- 1 Tbsp. honey

- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 1 1/4 cups skim milk
- 2 cups whole wheat flour
- 2 cups wheat germ
- 1/4 tsp. salt

Blend honey, oil and milk together. Stir in remaining ingredients. Knead lightly. Roll out on floured pastry board. Cut into sticks 1-inch by 3-inches. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for about 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes four to five dozen sticks.

Calories about 39 per stick. Cholesterol 0.

Graham Crackers

- 4 cups whole wheat flour
- 1 cup unsalted margarine
- 1 cup raw sugar
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. cream of tartar
- 1/4 cup Egg Beaters, well beaten
- 1/2 cup hot water, approximately

Unbleached white flour. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place the whole wheat flour in a bowl. Cut in the margarine until the mixture is the consistency of coarse oatmeal. Add the sugar, cream of tartar, egg substitute and enough hot water to make a dough that can be rolled like pastry.

Roll out the dough to 1/8 to 1/4-inch thickness on a floured pastry cloth or board (use unbleached flour for rolling). Cut into 3-inch squares. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake 15 to 20 minutes or until done. Remove to rack to cool. Makes about two dozen crackers.

Calories per cracker about 165. Cholesterol 0.

Whole Wheat Peanut Butter Crisps

- 1 cup skim milk
- 1/2 cup cholesterol-free peanut butter
- 4 cups whole wheat flour
- 2 Tbsp. nutritional yeast

- 2 Tbsp. soy flour
- Pinch of salt

Blend milk and peanut butter. Add remaining ingredients. Blend until smooth. Toss onto floured pastry board. Roll very thin. Cut into strips, squares or diamonds. Arrange on oiled cookie sheets. Prick tops with tines of a fork. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes about eight dozen.

Calories about 25 per cracker. Cholesterol 0.

Whole Wheat Soy Crackers

- 1 cup honey
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup hot potato water or water
- 3 1/4 cups whole wheat flour
- 3/4 cup soy flour
- 3 Tbsp. nutritional yeast
- 1/8 tsp. salt

Blend honey, oil and potato water or water. Sift together remaining ingredients and stir into the liquid. Blend well. Toss out floured pastry board. Roll very thin. Cut into strips, squares or diamonds. Arrange on oiled cookie sheets. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes eight dozen small crackers.

Wheat Crackers II

A cracking good snack for TV time. Think health when you eat these gritty-textured crackers that are loaded with nutrition and marked for easy breaking.

- 1 1/4 cups unbleached flour
- 1/4 cup fine cracked wheat (bulgur)
- 1/4 tsp. baking soda
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 cup unsalted margarine
- 1/2 cup plain yogurt
- Coarse salt (optional)

Stir together the flour, cracked wheat, baking soda and regular salt. With a pastry blender cut in the margarine until particles are fine. With a fork stir in the yogurt. Press firmly into a ball. Cut into four equal portions. Shape each portion into a small rectangle and wrap each separately in clear plastic film. Chill if necessary to keep firm enough to roll easily. Work with one portion at a time.

On a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one portion to a 10x7 1/2-inch rectangle; trim edges. Cut into 12 2 1/2-inch squares. With the back of a table knife, mark (do not cut) each square in half. Sprinkle (lightly or generously)

Fashion show benefits Children's

Local models and select members of Zonta Club of Detroit-1 will strut their stuff in a fashion extravaganza presenting the latest in ladies' apparel for casual and career wear, Saturday, Feb. 15, at the Barrister House.

Zonta Club of Detroit-1, a service organization of executive women, is sponsoring its first fashion show to benefit Children's Hospital of Michigan, Interim House, Senior Friends, and other charities.

The afternoon begins with cocktails at 11 a.m. and lunch at noon, followed by the fashion show. Narrating the show is Christine M. Aleski of East Detroit, public relations chairperson for Zonta. Beverly Nesler of Grosse Pointe Farms is chairperson. There will be prizes to win and gifts for everyone.

Barrister House is located at 21801 Harper Avenue in St. Clair Shores.

Tickets for this exciting fashion preview are $22.50 per person, of which $10 is for lunch with cocktails and $12.50 is a donation. For reservations contact Betty Stewart at 937-0183, or Beverly Nesler at 884-6439.

Ethnic connection is looking for volunteers

The International Institute needs volunteers for The Ethnic Connection program that enables volunteers to telephone ethnic senior citizens who need to communicate their concerns in a foreign language or English.

Made possible through a grant from the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, the program is designed to match a foreign speaking volunteer with an ethnic senior citizen who may have trouble communicating in English. Any problems that the seniors have would be referred to social workers at the International Institute.

Volunteers who speak Slovak languages, Greek, Russian, Italian, Spanish, Ukrainian, Polish, and German are needed. Interested volunteers should call Sue Waid at 871-8600 during business hours to be matched to an ethnic senior.

Referrals of senior citizens who need to receive the new Ethnic Connection telephone service are also being taken by the International Institute. Call 871-8600 during business hours to sign up a senior for the program.

The International Institute is a Torch Drive supported agency that provides social services to new immigrants and foreign speaking people as well as cultural and educational programs about the different cultures in Detroit.

brought anyone back from a camping trip hurt.

Steele sees the Boy Scout uniform as an important part of the program.

"When we travel, we travel in uniform," he said. "But when we get to where we're going, the regular clothes come out. There is no point to getting dirty and looking like an army. The uniform is important. There is value in being identified as standing for something. But when the uniform comes off, the scout oath stays on."

Troop 96 is a conventional scout troop, as compared to the co-educational Explorer Posts which have been gaining in popularity in recent years. Steele feels the boys who belong to the troop enjoy it that way.

"The boys who graduate to this troop tend to be what they are," he said. "But I do encourage them to have other interests."

Steele is a 11-year resident of Grosse Pointe City.

"Some of it (this commitment to Scouting) is just being grateful for living in a place like Grosse Pointe," he said. "I like to be able to do some thing for the community."

Miniature show planned for May

The Wee Bee's Spring Miniature show, Michigan's original miniature show, will be held May 2-4 at the Miniature Makers' Workshop, 1725 W. 14 Mile Rd., Royal Oak.

Displays of old and new doll-houses, miniature rooms, minicollectors' treasures and expert demonstrations of new ideas and techniques are planned for Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 4 p.m. The $1.50 admission will benefit the group's charitable projects.

According to show chairman, Elizabeth Lubera of Grosse Pointe, the Wee Bees welcome show entries from all Detroit-area miniaturists. Those interested in submitting an exhibit should call Lubera at 886-6163 or Clarissa Goad at the workshop, 549-0633.

"We hope people will dust off their treasures or complete the half-finished project and share them with us," said Lubera. She is being assisted by Mary Eierman and Yvonne Pessel of Birmingham.

The Wee Bees is the local organization of miniature artists, craftsmen and collectors who belong to the National Association of Miniature Enthusiasts (N.A.M.E.).

Fox Creek Questers

Mrs. Carson Grunewald will be the hostess for the Feb. 6 meeting of the Fox Creek chapter of Questers. Mrs. Kenneth Harle, president, will be her co-hostess. After refreshments, there will be a short business meeting at which time, the nominating committee chairman, Mrs. Raymond Millenger, will present the slate of officers for the coming year. The program for the afternoon will be presented by Mrs. Donald Draper, a study paper on "Perfume Bottles." The paper was inspired by her collection of perfume bottles.

Women in Computing

The Detroit metropolitan chapter of the Association for Women in Computing will meet at 6 p.m. at the Fairlane Club on Tuesday, Feb. 11.

A lecture on "Time Management" will be presented by Dr. Peter J. Haddad of the Health and Lifestyle programs of Henry Ford Hospital. Haddad is an experienced instructor and consultant in the areas of time management, stress management, smoking cessation, weight management and health risk appraisals.

The meeting is open to the public. For reservations and further information, call 886-2336.

AARP

A nostalgic trip back to the good old days is in store for members and their guests at the next monthly meeting of the Grosse Pointe AARP Chapter 3430. The meeting will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Feb. 10, at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, Grosse Pointe.

Angela de Albuquerque, a talented church organist who entertains at many senior citizen centers in the Detroit area will lead the group in a sing-along to commemorate St. Valentine's Day and the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln.

Following the entertainment, dessert refreshments will be served during the social hour.

Crafts Guild

The Grosse Pointe Crafts Guild will hold its monthly meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 12, at the Grosse Pointe Central Library, 10 Kercheval, at 7:30 p.m. After a short business meeting, Virginia Jeffries, member of the Eastside Handweavers Guild will give a talk and demonstration on weaving, followed by a film, "Weaving with Looms You Can Make" featuring practical items made on looms constructed of readily available materials. Everyone interested in crafts is invited to attend. The G.P. Crafts Guild meets the second Wednesday of every month.

Mothers of Multiples

The Eastern Bi-County Mothers of Multiples Club will hold its monthly meeting on Feb. 10, 7:30 p.m., at Charity Lutheran Church, 17220 Kelly Rd. in Detroit (just south of Morang). If you have or are expecting twins, triplets, etc., and would like additional information, contact Becky Holt, 776-2789 or Peggy Mielke, 885-3763.

Women's Association of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church

The Women's Association of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church invites the women of the community to join them next Tuesday, Feb. 11, at 9:30 a.m. in the Fellowship Hall, for the annual "Agape" breakfast. Agape is the Greek word for Christian love.

Donna Johnston, program chairman, will introduce Elise Arndt of Troy. Elise, an author and retreat leader, will share the "specialness of women," with her subject, "More Precious than Rubies," based on Proverbs 31:10. She is the author of "A Mother's Touch" and is currently working on her second manuscript.

Elise's primary profession is that of being a wife and mother to her five children. Her husband, the Rev. Warren Arndt, is pastor of Faith Lutheran Church in Troy, where she is director of Women's Ministries.

Deviotions will be led by Joyce Edwards. Reservations can be made by calling the church office at 882-5330. Child care is available.

Woman's National Farm and Garden Association

The members of the Grosse Pointe Shores branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will meet Friday, Feb. 7, at the Lakeland home of Mrs. Jarvis J. Schmidt. Co-hostesses for the luncheon are Mrs. Peter N. Decker, Mrs. Robert J. Krueger and Mrs. Gilbert Mack. Mrs. Robert C. Choep, president, will conduct the meeting immediately following lunch.

Grosse Pointe Rose Society

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society will hold its first meeting of 1986 on Feb. 12, at 7:45 p.m., at the Neighborhood Club.

The program will feature winners of the American Rose Society annual slide contest for 1985. The slides will include roses in various stages of bloom, miniature and old garden varieties, as well as some of the most beautiful public and private gardens in bloom.

The public is welcome. Hostesses for the evening will be Fernande Biggin, Ruth Moore and Harriett Wheeler.

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society is co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Newcomers

The Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club will hold a Mexican Fiesta at Tequila Willies in Southfield on Saturday, Feb. 8. Chairpersons Don and Annenee Jones and their committee of Joe and Pat Monforte, John and Evelyn Strader, Bob and Susan Tiede and Dick and Merrie Lynn Ruzzin have planned a fun-filled food-fest for their fellow Newcomers.

Couples who are new to the Grosse Pointes within the past two years and would like more information about joining the Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club are invited to call Jim and Lori Everett at 882-4114 or Craig and Margit Jackson at 884-2032.

Alpha Xi Delta

To help chase those winter blues, the Grosse Pointe and Macomb County Alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta will hold a Saturday Brunch on Feb. 15 instead of the usual evening meeting. Guests are welcome at this Saturday spirit-booster, which will be held at 11 a.m. at Bennigan's in Warren.

President of the Group, Pam Lyle, is the co-ordinator of the event. Reservations should be made by Feb. 10 by calling 977-3263.

Singles by the Lake

Singles by the Lake, a group for professional singles from ages 21 to 40, will be sponsoring a Valentine's Dance on Sunday, Feb. 9, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe. A disc jockey will provide music for your enjoyment. Admission is $3 except for ladies who will be admitted for our Ladies Night price of $1. Please join us in the Fellowship Hall from 8 to 11 p.m. Don't forget to dress your best.

Grosse Pointe Garden Center

Members of the board of directors of the Grosse Pointe Garden Club will meet on Friday, Feb. 14, at 10 a.m. in the Garden Center Room located on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Planting dates for the Trial Gardens on the lakeside of the War Memorial will be announced. Mrs. Arthur Blumenstock is president of the garden center.

Under secretary to speak to Navy League

The new president and officers of the Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League will be at the Dearborn Inn, on Feb. 8, when the Metro-Detroit Council sponsors a dinner, highlighting Under Secretary of the Navy James F. Goodrich, who with his aide, Colonel Roger Ryman, USMC, will be flying in from Washington, D.C. to address the two councils.

At a recent luncheon held at the Village Women's Club, the new officers of the Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League were elected. Among the new officers are several from the Grosse Pointe area, all of whom will be attending the Feb. 8 dinner. They are: president, Eileen Doyle; first vice president, Susan Lickfold; second vice president, Jean Kirkman; and third vice president, Marion Qualey; recording secretary, Betty Bradley, all of Grosse Pointe; as is the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Oscar Guensche. Others elected were Lois Nair, treasurer; and Cele L. Mason, historian, from Detroit; and judge advocate, Clara Harter, past president, from Birmingham, and the chaplain, Grosse Pointer Sidonie D. Knighton.

The official host at the Dearborn Inn dinner, honoring Under Secretary of the Navy: James F. Goodrich, a former Michigan resident, and a graduate of the University of Michigan, is the president of the Metro-Detroit Council of the Navy League, James F. Hannigh of Birmingham. He will also introduce the speaker.

Ed Jacques, first vice-president of the Metro-Detroit Council has been in touch with Goodrich in Washington, D.C. — and will be handling special publicity plans.

Goodrich spent 45 years in a professional involvement and personal commitment to the development of the nation's maritime posture. He began by earning a BS degree from the University of Michigan, majoring in Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering. He served in the merchant marine from 1937 to 1939, after which he began his career in shipbuilding as a marine engineer with Bethlehem Steel Company. In 1940 he became Chief Naval Architect and Marine Engineer for the Todd Pacific Shipbuilding Company in Tacoma, Washington, remaining with the Todd Company throughout World War II.

Later Goodrich left Todd to co-found Deep Sea Trawlers, Inc. a company that pioneered the Alaska King Crab Industry. He then returned to the Todd Company serving as assistant general manager and General Superintendent of Todd's Seattle Shipyard.

He has the background to talk on many subjects, and answer many questions from his audience. Rosalind Ellis, state president, and treasurer of the Metro-Detroit Council, and will be at the Dearborn Inn on Feb. 8. She is also taking reservations from her office at 342-5450. Tickets for the dinner are $25 per person. Reservations are limited.

Monte Carlo Party

Bridget McKeever: Making music a universal language of understanding

By Elsa Frohman

Bridget McKeever, a senior at University Liggett School, is an outstanding pianist. But for Bridget, music has been an entrance, rather than an end. Her talent has opened doors to experiences that have waked an interest in the world.

"I would like to go into something in international relations," she said.

Bridget is the 1986 winner of the Rochester Symphony Orchestra Young Artists Competition. Tomorrow evening, she will perform with the orchestra, playing MacDowell's Concerto in D Minor. She was one of 15 students who competed in the competition in early January.

Bridget has been studying piano with Ruth Burczyk of Grosse Pointe Woods for nine years. She devotes several hours a day to practice, but says it doesn't interfere with her social life.

"I practice two hours a day, but if I'm having a really good session, I go on," Bridget said. "It seems like every time I walk by the piano, I stop and play something. During the week like most of the other kids (at ULS) I have a lot of homework. They keep us pretty busy. On the weekends, it's not a problem. It seems like when you have a lot to do, you can do more in less time."

Bridget entered the competition on the suggestion of her music teacher at ULS, James Hohmeyer, who is also the conductor of the Rochester Symphony.

Bridget's mother, Patricia, teaches piano. She has encouraged her daughter to develop her talent.

"She's always been musical," her mother said. "We've always been surrounded by music."

Bridget started seeing beyond the keyboard, toward the world of international relations, through her involvement in music. She has spent four summers at an international music camp at Interlochen.

"There I was really exposed to it (music), and I saw how much I could do with it. I could never give it up. At Interlochen, I was living with kids from other countries. There were two girls from Poland in my cabin one summer. We got along, so I don't know why the nations can't."

Bridget is concentrating on studying French at ULS. She hasn't made up her mind about what college to attend, but wants to find one that offers both a strong performance oriented music program and a substantial academic challenge.

She enjoys classical music, particularly the Romantics, Brahms, Chopin and Tchaikovsky, but also likes to hear some contemporary music, particularly George Winston.

She gives her piano teacher a lot of credit for her success.

"Mrs. Burczyk has been a wonderful teacher," Bridget said. "She has had a big influence on me and why I enjoy playing. She is willing to give everything to her students. But she is demanding. You don't dare go (to a lesson) unprepared."

Bridget says that there were times, when she was younger, when the practice and commitment seemed like a drag. "It took me a while to get hot," she said. But now, the practice is a pleasure. "I don't mind practicing at all now," she concluded.

Bridget is involved in a lot more than playing the piano at school. She has worked on the school literary magazine for two years and is co-editor this year. She worked on the school newspaper in ninth, 10th and 11th grade. She is a four-year member of the French Club and was vice president in 11th grade. She was chairperson of the junior class rummage sale and was on the junior prom committee. She is a four-year member of the Drama Club and a three-year member of the Jazz Choir. She was a regional winner of the American Association of Teachers of French Concours in 1985 and is a member of the French Honor Society.

Her musical honors include Honor Recitalist for the National Music Camp in 1984 and 1985; semi-finalist in the WQRS-Macabees Mutual Quest for Excellence in 1984 and 1985; honorable mention in the Schoolcraft College Honor Recital in 1985; finalist in the University of Michigan School of Music National Music Camp Scholarship Competition in 1985; finalist in the Michigan Youth Arts Festival in 1985; winner of the Tuesday Musicales of Detroit VanHusen Scholarship in 1985; winner of the Michigan Federation of Music Clubs State Piano Scholarship in 1985.

Beth Konrad to speak about fairness of television coverage

Beth Konrad, vice president of community development, WTVS/Channel 56, will discuss "Is the Media Fair on Major Issues: One Woman's Viewpoint," at the Thursday, Feb. 13, Morning Coffee Meeting of the American Association of University Women — Grosse Pointe, scheduled for 9:30 a.m., at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

In addition to her duties with the Channel 56 Community Development department Konrad also serves as the on-air host of the station's "Both Sides Now" program, a WTVS-produced series featuring opposing viewpoints on controversial issues.

Konrad, who received her bachelor's degree from Indiana State University, was affiliated with WDIV/Channel 4 for several years, serving as editorial director, beginning in 1978, and as public affairs director, beginning in 1982. Her other professional posts have included: news director at WCAR/Detroit (now WCXI), news reporter/anchor at KNBR/San Francisco, WLS/Chicago, WRIF/Detroit and news anchor on the ABC-FM radio network.

During her career Konrad has received two Emmys for editorials on insurance redlining and on the controversial racial matching policy used for foster care placements, the latter also winning a United Press International award and the Sigma Delta Chi Distinguished Service Award. Her list of honors also includes a Detroit Press Club Foundation award for an editorial on violence in Detroit schools, as well as a total of 16 additional awards from UPI and Associated Press for news reporting.

At the time she joined Channel 56 in December 1984 the station's president and general manager, Robert Larson, said, "She is the ideal person to fill the post of vice-president of community development. As both a broadcaster and advocate of community issues, Beth Konrad will be an outstanding asset to establish and lead this pioneering division."

The Third Section

Section C
Thursday, February 6, 1986

Peggy O'Connor

It's okay to talk to yourself, my mother always said, as long as you don't start hearing answers. It's a good thing my mother doesn't know that a) I talk to my self; and b) I get lots of answers . . .

So, what's up sport?

Not a lot. I will admit that I watched the entire (snore) Super Bowl a few weeks back. I'll bet there aren't many people who can claim that.

Heck no. Even Mike Ditka didn't watch the whole thing. You must have been pretty bored.

No, not really. It was just sort of a Super Bowl kind of day. Plus, it was the anniversary of the day they first thought of the name "Super Bowl." I always pay attention to anniversaries. And besides, I'd hit kind of a lull, high school sports-wise. Things were pretty slow a few weeks back. Not like now.

Oh yeah? Like what?

Well, there was that once-in-a-lifetime scenario I watched at the North-Clintondale basketball game Jan. 21. It was late in the game when a North substitute forward took the ball, drove inside, ducked in and out of defenders and laid one in. It only cut the Clintondale lead to 61-31, but the grin on the sub's face lit up the whole place. It was worth at least 10 points . . . and for me, it was worth sitting through the rest of the game.

Okay, so you're a softy. What else is new?

Well, talking about basketball reminded me that cage fans around here have been deprived of watching one pretty good basketball player, Rob Skuras. The big center tore up his knee and the Norsemen really miss him. Coach George Olman says it's good seeing Skuras back at school, wheeling around in his wheelchair, but not half as good as it would be seeing him racing around the basketball floor.

That's true. And Skuras had a nicer haircut this year, too. Remember when they called him "Skinhead" in '85?

Hey, watch it. We're saying nice things in this column, remember.

No, YOU'RE saying nice things in this column. I'm just along for the ride . . . and to provide a little devil's advocacy, you know?

Don't start. You'll get me all confused and I'll forget which one of us is talking. Where was I? Oh, yeah. Olman says that the rest of the Norsemen are picking up the slack — including back-up Tom Shehab — and that certainly improves their post-season chances.

Hmmm. All I can say is that if Shehab plays with half the intensity he did last fall in the football playoffs, those tournament teams had better watch out.

What do you know, we agree on something. Okay, since we're on a roll, ask me why I'd never play high school hockey, given half the chance.

Okay, what's the joke? Why wouldn't you?

It's no joke, that's why. I've watched just the practices of North, South and University Liggett School this week and let me tell you, these guys don't fool around. Sure, coaches Tim Zimmerman, Mike Manzella and John Fowler make the practices fun for the kids. But I've also never seen a more tired bunch of kids in my life than those who skated off the ice after those practices. There was one drill that looked like a killer: where the players pull their bodies along the ice with their arms stretched out in front of them, holding sticks. Talk about Marquis de Sade.

Hey, it's worked, hasn't it. Seems to me you were just saying something about how well those three teams are doing this year. Don't mess with success, O'Connor.

Right. Listen, while I was at practice, I had a chance to talk to the guys who play goal for ULS and South. Nice kids, too. And don't ever let anybody tell you that goalies "have to be crazy" to play the position. They might be a little unusual, putting their bodies in front of flying bits of vulcanized rubber; but to a man, they were articulate, polite, witty and a real pleasure to talk to. Their parents should be proud.

My, we are nice today. What gives?

Well, I figured after the lecture I gave in last week's column and how I yelled about pinheads throwing stuff on the ice in the column the week before, I'd better lighten up or people would be turning straight to the obituaries. So this is my lighten up column for the year.

Gee, you should have warned me. I would have dressed up or something.

Surprise!

Winter sports teams teach coaches to expect the unexpected

By Peggy O'Connor

"Victory by an underdog is an aberration of the natural order of the universe." — Dialogue from the film "Best of Times."

Okay, so only a few of Grosse Pointe's prep teams can qualify as underdogs this season. And it wouldn't be nice to call their successes "aberrations." Still, the winter sports squads at South, North, Our Lady Star of the Sea and University Liggett have managed to pull a few surprises and accomplish the unexpected so far this season.

No one has been more surprised by his team than South High hockey coach Tim Zimmerman. After all it wasn't for nothing that South wore "Against All Odds" practice jerseys. "If you would have told me that we would challenge for first in our division going into the last month of the season . . . well, let's just say that I would have questioned your sanity," Zimmerman says of the 9-4-1 Blue Devils.

Zimmerman had no less than eight — count 'em, eight — sophomores in his line-up and it has been the cool, steady performance of those eight and the quick development of the rest of the team that has caught Zimmerman, and the rest of the league by surprise.

"I guess that beating Trenton would have to be the No. 1 shock. That we could do that and go on to defeat Cabrini in our first Metro League game really shocked me. But the chemistry of this team is really something. They are so cool out there . . . they just don't get flustered. They deal with adversity better than their coach does," Zimmerman marvels.

"I tell you, I'd coach this team for nothing."

ULS hockey coach John Fowler has also seen some surprising achievements by underclassmen. They've helped lead ULS to a 10-7 record. But before the season began, Fowler knew he had only one experienced defenseman: returning senior John Birgbauer. The remainder of the defense, was, well, one big question mark.

"That defense had me worried. I knew Birgbauer would come through, but to have three other defensemen play so well and show such an improvement has really been pleasant. They've really come through," Fowler says.

"We have a lot of pride in ourselves and in our team. We knew we had the skill, we just had to develop the confidence in ourselves," explains junior defenseman Chip Davis.

Which is exactly what the North High wrestling squad which coach Larry Aceto described in the pre-season as "incredibly young," had to develop . . . along with gaining more than a few years and pounds in order to keep up with its opponents.

"We knew we had to try to come across our manhood awfully quick, what with our 14-year-olds wrestling against some 18-year-olds," Aceto says.

"But you know what? They're doing it. Sophomore Bill Lewis beat a senior with a 30-12 record. The guy had pinned him last year, but Lewis shut him out, 4-0.

"These guys are beginning to believe in themselves. They see that if they work hard and believe in themselves, they will have some success."

Another example of the "believing in yourself shall set you free" philosophy is the varsity volleyball "bench" at Our Lady Star of the Sea. In a game in which a set lineup almost always rules, Star's "fearsome five" have come off the bench regularly to help lead the Tunas to an 18-3 record at press time.

"That's what has been so nice," says assistant coach Margaret Spindler. "Every game, it's somebody different." Doreen Pellegrum, Mary Beth "Buffy" Stumb, Beth Allor, Kelly Kiefer and Kristi Widgren have been Star's bench strength so far this season.

"It's simply a philosophy we have here. We want to get as many kids into games as possible. We work everybody we can because we want to have a strong 10 or 11 players, not just six or seven.

"That's why I think the bench has been so successful this year, because they've had a chance to play and get that confidence they need," Spindler explains.

While they are not underdogs, nor have they had much problem believing in themselves — both the varsity basketball squads at North and South are in second place in their league — the basketball Blue Devils and Norsemen have managed to catch their coaches off guard this winter. But it hasn't always been pleasant.

"I sure didn't expect Rob Skuras to tear up his knee," says North coach George Olman. "We've had minor injuries and a lot of illness — that you expect. But I can't say I figured on losing the guy who averaged in double figures and was the No. 2 rebounder for us last year.

"On the positive side, Bill Miller has been a pleasant surprise for us.

And Tom Shehab has done a very good job filling in at center."

"Well, we've lost some games we probably should have won," chuckles South coach George Petrouleas. "I tell the kids it was poor coaching."

"No really, we've surprised some teams by the way we've been playing. We really weren't expected to be as high in the league as we've been. And that's due mainly to the progress of our seniors and front-liners. Sean Bruce has really come into his own . . . and that was no surprise," he adds.

North gymnastics coach Gretchen Madison got her surprise nice and early: in the season's first meet. That's when her squad scored 126 points against an experienced Berkeley team. In a manner of speaking, things have been going downhill ever since.

"We're the only team I know that has gotten worse as the year has gone on," Madison jokes. "That first meet was our highest score of the season. Really, though, we're doing pretty well. We've already qualified for the regionals and we expect to do pretty well the rest of the year."

Barring any surprises, that is.

'If you would have told me that we would challenge for first in our division going into the last month of the season . . . well let's just say I'd have questioned your sanity...'

Norsemen bounce back with pair of victories

North's tough loss to Clintondale on Jan. 21 served one good purpose: it has spurred the Norsemen on to two consecutive victories since then. North beat Lakeview on Jan. 24 and trounced L'Anse Creuse, 72-47, on Jan. 31. Against L'Anse Creuse, the Norsemen were down by one point at the end of the first quarter, but got hot and never trailed the rest of the way. Bill Miller led all scorers with 27 points. He also had 11 rebounds. Dave Justice also continued his excellent play, scoring 14 points.

North's next action is Friday, Feb. 7, at Lake Shore.

The JV also topped L'Anse Creuse, 57-37. Carl Schultz was hot as he followed an eight-point first quarter with 14 additional points to lead all scorers with 22 points. Brian Peltz played great defense and Mark Demanigold also played well under the boards. The Norsemen JV face Lake Shore at 6 p.m. Feb. 7.

North's freshman basketball team had a tough week, losing to Bishop Gallagher, 58-56 in double overtime on Jan. 28 and falling to L'Anse Creuse, 38-30, on Jan. 31. The frosh fought a tough Lancer team on Tuesday, only to lose by two points in the second three-minute overtime. Scott Schorer was hot all night, sinking 21 points and grabbing 15 rebounds. Other leaders were Derek Lawson with 12 points and Matt Brady with 11 points and 12 rebounds.

On Friday, North could not control the boards against a fast breaking L'Anse Creuse team. Lawson had 12 points and Brady and Schorer had eight points apiece.

Tankers take one

North's varsity swim team routed Roseville Brablec, 123-46, on Jan. 30. First place finishes came from Brad Cooksey, 200 free; Scott Tenkel, 500 free and 200 IM; Andy Young, 50 and 100 freestyle; Mike Reynolds, diving; Dave Farrell, 100 fly; Ian MacNeil, 100 back; Rob Walters, 100 breast; Ron Jendretzke, Walters, Farrell and Cornell, 200 medley relay; and Dungan, Eliades, MacNeil and Tenkel, 400 free relay.

Best times were recorded by John Baal, 100 breast; Harry Manor, second in the 100 backstroke; Jendretzke, second in the 500 free; Chris Candiliotis, third in the 100 fly; Rob Straske, third in diving; MacNeil, second in the 50 free and Bill Turnbull, second in the 500 free and third in the 200 IM.

The swimmers' next action is Saturday, Feb. 8, against South High. They will swim against South Lake on Thursday, Feb. 13.

Spikers split

North's varsity and JV volleyball teams split their games against L'Anse Creuse last week, with the varsity losing, 14-16, 15-11, 10-15, and the JV winning, 15-13, 15-4.

Bright spots in the varsity loss were Cindy Bowman with 10 kills, Julie Cook, four ace serving, and the all-around play of Virginia Sanders.

North's record is 6-1 in the Bi-County, 11-5 overall. The girls will host Clintondale at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 10.

North's JV beat L'Anse Creuse in two straight. Sue Nichols had 11 serving points and two kills. The victory avenged North's only loss this season and improved the JV's record to 6-1.

North's freshman volleyball team had an up and down week, beating L'Anse Creuse North in three sets and losing to L'Anse Creuse in two sets.

The girls overcame LCN on Jan. 27, 15-8, 8-15, 15-12, as Dawn Redman served 13 points including three in a row, to help win the third game. Mary Spiewak and Heidi Cartwright played well on offense and defense.

L'Anse Creuse topped the North frosh on Jan. 29, 5-15, 8-15. "We played okay, but couldn't get the points when we needed to," said coach Leslie Stange. Tracy Telegades set well for North.

The girls will take their 2-4 record up against L'Anse Creuse North at 6 p.m. Feb. 10.

Wrestlers fare well

North wrestlers finished seventh in the 15-team Andover tournament. Medalists included John Shefferly, fourth at 112; Phil Shefferly, third at 126; Bill Lewis, fourth at 132; Chris Hayes, fifth at 138; Chuck Schultz, fourth at 145; Dean Demotropolous, fourth at 155; and Dave Van Dale, second at 185.

Sports people

Among the top names in collegiate tennis earning berths in the 1986 Rolex National Indoor Intercollegiate Tennis Championship set for this week in Houston, Texas, is South High graduate Megan McMahon, of Yale University. McMahon was a finalist in the Northeast Regional; as such she earned a trip to the championships.

Grosse Pointe resident Neal Shine, senior managing editor of the Detroit Free Press, will be among several University of Detroit alumni honored at U-D's Homecoming '86 festivities this Saturday, Feb. 8. Shine will receive the Tower Award in recognition of his newspaper career and the exceptional service he has given his alma mater. The homecoming celebration begins with a buffet dinner at 5:30 p.m. in the U-D student union, followed by the Titan-Xavier basketball game at Calihan Hall.

Enjoying a soccer tournament in Buffalo, N.Y., recently were three members of the Grosse Pointe South High girls' soccer team: Kim Wood, Claire Busse and June Langs. The girls are members of an under 19 team which plays out of the Lakeshore Soccer Dome.

Mite Division

CANADIENS-SEALS
Benson's Canadiens and the Seals fought to a 1-1 tie in a game highlighted by tight checking and good defense. Ben Debski opened the scoring on a blast to the lower corner on a pass from R. King. Jeff Huebner tied the score on a high shot off a faceoff won by Kenny McIntyre. Seals Frank Zimmer, David Gakstatter and Matt Debski played well as did Canadiens Leo Salvaggio, Kevin Leach and R.J. Wolney.

CANADIENS-BRUIINS
Benson's Canadiens and the Kiwanis Bruins swapped goals in this exciting, 2-2 tie. The Canadiens struck first on Kevin O'Malley's goal from P.A. Brown and J. Huebner. Chris Dettmer tied it up with his unassisted goal and then the Canadiens took a brief lead on Brian Brown's shot from Leach and Davy Presnell. Ian McMillan secured the tie for the Bruins with an unassisted breakaway goal late in the game. The Bruins' Timmy Brady, Justin Lariscy and Matt Lariscy played strong games, as did the Canadiens' Stephen Andris, Georgie Massu and Brian Fehling.

OILERS-MAJOR MAGICS
Teamwork and Joey Berger's strong game in goal led the Oxford Oilers to a 3-2 victory over the Major Magics. Chris Amsden broke a scoreless tie midway through the second period on a pass from Charlie Eldridge. The Magics fought back with a goal by Jonathan Bayko (from Jonathan Solaka). Timmy Kimmel scored for the Oilers in the third period; shortly after Matt Elich scored on a pass from Kevin Baskel to tie it up for the Magics. But Bobby Rahaim got the win for the Oilers when he converted Billy Crandall's set-up. The Oilers' Mark Best and George Andary were tough against hard-skating Billy Faber and Byron Brewer. Ed Follen made some nice stops in goal for the Major Magics.

MAJOR MAGICS-TALONS
The Magics skated to a 6-2 win over the Talons. Scoring for the Magics were Solaka, Bayko, Kevin Baskel (two), Mike Collins, and Donny Tocco. Kevin Collins (two), M. Elich, Chuck Scherivish and Danny Magdowski earned assists. Talons' scorers were Graffius and McNaughton. Playing well for the Talons were Brian Law, Blair Ridder, Brad Klein, and Annie Morris. Booth Platt was in goal for the Talons and David Collins, for the Magics.

SEALS-BRUIINS
After being shut out by the Bruins one week earlier, the Seals bounced back for a 2-0 victory Jan. 31. Behi Rabbani scored first for the Seals, from Jay Ricci; Matt Debski added the second goal on a breakaway. Chris Ford, Andrew Ricci, Frank Zimmer and John Solobodowski kept the Bruins off the board. Greg Ryan, Chris Gibson and Tim Brady also played well.

SEALS-CANADIENS
The teams played hard in this 1-1 tie. Rabbani did a fine job in the nets for the Seals, as did the Canadiens' goalie. Ben Debski scored the Seals' goal. Aron and Nate Ascencio played well on defense.

SEALS-CHIEFS
The Seals moved into first place in the division and put coach Rick Semack on cloud nine with their 2-0 victory over the Chiefs on Feb. 2. Robbie King scored early in the first period and B. Debski made it 2-0. The Chiefs' Michael Lehey played well. Doug Semack and Colin Darke came close to scoring. Lawrence, Crain and the Ascencio brothers were unbeatable.

BRUIINS-CHIEFS
Jason Santo converted passes from Matt Lariscy and Greg Ryan with only 15 seconds left as the Bruins topped the Chiefs, 2-1. Phil Descamps got the first Bruins' goal from Ryan. Alex Bieri scored for the Chiefs, from Nathaniel Cook. Goaltenders Gibson (Bruins) and Chris Coates (Chiefs) played well in the nets. Francois Berube, Andy Scott, Edith Berube, Ryan McCain, Jonathon Romine and Sarke Solomon played well for their teams.

RAIDERS-LIVONIA
The Raiders and Livonia tied 3-3 in this final league game. David Ferguson scored twice and Andy Baskel added a goal for the Raiders. Rashid, Pulis, Gokenbach and Christensen were credited with assists. Joe Pierce was strong on defense and Jamie Bufalino was spectacular in goal.

RAIDERS-OHIO
Mike Anway and Baskel combined on a sterling passing play and Ferguson jammed the puck into the net with seven seconds left in the game as the Raiders took a 2-1 victory over the Toledo AA team. Lucien Hudson scored from Baskel for the Raiders' other goal. Pierce, Christensen and Nate Bayko dominated on defense; Bufalino was again strong in the nets, turning aside 13 of 14 shots.

FLYERS-TALONS
The Flyers shut out the Talons, 3-0, as goalie Joey Lucido turned in an outstanding performance. He got lots of help from the defensive play of Tom Waldron, Brian Holliday, Chris Smith and Patrick Kerwin. Mark Campbell, R. Sawaf and Omar Sawaf scored the Flyers' goals. O. Sawaf, Chris Mitchell, J.C. Tibbits, Tim Miller and Weston Norton drew assists. M.J. Morris, Blair Ridder and Abby Fox played well for the Talons, as did goaltender Ev Meade.

FLYERS-OILERS
The Flyers and Oilers battled to a 3-3 tie, goalies Tim Miller (Flyers) and Charlie Eldridge (Oilers) played well. Ryan Robson opened the scoring for the Oilers, assisted by Mark Best. Joey Lucido put the Flyers on the board from Peter Birgbauer and Tibbits, before Chris Amsden made it 2-1 from Brian Kasiborski and George Andary. Omar Sawaf tied it up for the Flyers and after Billy Crandall had put the Oilers back in front from Bobby Rahaim and Graff, Campbell scored to earn a tie for the Flyers.

Pee Wee Division

RAIDERS-RED WINGS
The Raiders outshot the Red Wings, 37-11, but just managed to squeak by with a 2-1 victory. Wings' goalie Sam Patti had a hot hand, turning back 35 Raiders' shots. Mike Kisskalt scored both Raiders goals; Derek Smith got one assist. Al Fisher's goal for the Wings was unassisted. The Raiders' Dan Strader had his finest game of the season, playing well at both ends of the ice.

RAIDERS-MARLIES
The Raiders and Marlies played to a 2-2 tie in this game, rescheduled from Dec. 17. The tie put the season totals at 3-0-2 for the Raiders. The Marlies opened the scoring on Gideon Redding's goal which just got by goalie Greg Semack. Kisskalt's goal from Jeff Giacobbe tied things up, but the Marlies again took the lead on Juan Ganum's goal from Brad Hea. With one minute to go, Kisskalt took a sharp pass from Jack McSorley and popped it into the net for the tie.

Squirt Division

ISLANDERS-MONROES
A 100 percent effort by the Islanders put them on top of the Monroes, 4-0. Scoring for the Islanders were Peter Gracey (two), Nick Giorgio and Garrett Ryan. Mike Owens, Augustin Yofre, John Wise, Giorgio and Ryan earned assists. Goalies Jason Chevalier and Tom Best, who earned the shutout, played well for their teams. Geoff Everham, Peter Megler and Scott Wiczorkowski played well for the Islanders, as did Billy Burns, Erik Lindsay and Matt Smith for Monroes.

ISLANDERS-CHARGERS
The Islanders defeated the Chargers, 8-0, on goals by Ryan (four), Everham (two), Gracey and S. Wiczorkowski. Robbie Wiczorkowski was playmaker with four assists; also earning assists were Tommy Lee, S. Wiczorkowski and Everham (two each) and Megler. Best got the shutout in goal. John Wise was outstanding on defense for the Islanders. Mike DeNardis worked hard in the nets for the chargers; Mark Waterman, Jeff Adams and Beau Dossin played well.

You thought that the North-South hockey game was intense? Monday night's South-North varsity volleyball game was that and more as the Blue Devils came back from a 7-0 deficit in the first game to nearly tie it up, then take two straight games from the Norsemen to win this year's match-up in front of a large, enthusiastic crowd. At top left, North's Julie Cook gets set for a spike; that's Barb Loeher and Cindy Bowman waiting for the return. Above, South's girls — from left are Megan Keller, Patty Hess, Mary Ann Montagne, who engineered South's comeback with her excellent serving and Barb Van Wingerden — get ready for the game's final point. And that came despite the best efforts of (left) Laura Vititoe, Loeher and Cook. The final score was South in three games, 11-15, 15-8, 15-4. South's record is now 12-2, North's is 11-5.

Blue Devil skaters improve to 9-4-1

By Jennifer McSorley
South High

The Blue Devil hockey team now stands 8-2 in the league, (9-4-1 overall) after adding two wins and a loss to its record last week.

South beat Fraser 5-3 on Jan. 27. Senior Rob Wood scored twice, from juniors Jerry Bourke and John Nicholson. Junior Andy Roy opened the second period with a goal on a pass from Wood, which was followed by a goal from sophomore Rodney Goin (from Nicholson). Nicholson finished up the game's scoring, Roy assisting.

Senior goaltender Bill Tecos "played an outstanding game against Fraser," said Coach Tim Zimmerman. Tecos made 38 saves.

Allen Park Cabrini, the second place team in the tough Michigan Metro League, managed to beat the Devils, 4-2, Jan. 29. Wood scored both South goals. Nicholson, sophomore Tim Jerome and senior Mike Amore drew the assists.

The Devils wiped out Brother Rice, 5-3, Feb. 1. Wood scored the only goal of the first period from Goin, and Roy put two pucks past the Brother Rice goalie in the second period, the first from sophomore Bill Huntington and the second from junior Jeff Lefebvre. In the third period Wood scored unassisted, and junior Mike Irwin scored from sophomore Roger Romine to clinch the victory.

Cagers take fifth

By Stephen Ebner
South High

The Blue Devils have bounced their way to five straight wins, including defeats of L'Anse Creuse North, 62-55, and East Detroit, 66-62, last week.

Statistically, South looked even better than its 6-1 Eastern Michigan League record. Against L'Anse Creuse North, guard Sean Bruce netted 26 points, assisted on three, and stole four. Center Gordie Langs scored 11, rebounded 13, and blocked four shots. Guard Ed Gramling also did his part, netting 16 points.

A poor first half for South was followed by a 16-point deficit at halftime. But the Blue Devils would not quit, tying L'Anse Creuse North, then jumping out to a decisive 18-point lead in the second half.

Last Friday, the Blue Devils' consistency continued at East Detroit. Bruce had 24 points, six assists, four steals and four rebounds. Gramling shot for another 16 points; forward Tim Hudson scored 14 points.

Against East Detroit, foul trouble and missed opportunities narrowed what could have been a dominant lead for South. But Bruce's six straight free-throws in the last two minutes of the game capped South's fifth straight win.

The Blue Devils, 9-4 overall, meet EML leader Mount Clemens tomorrow, Feb. 7, at Mount Clemens. The last meeting of the two was at South, on Jan. 14 when South lost, 66-59.

South's JV began the week with a loss to L'Anse Creuse North, 36-41, but ended it with an impressive win over East Detroit, 36-35.

Roger Drabant was named the Player of the Game against L'Anse Creuse North, not only for his four points, five rebounds and one assist, but for his overall performance which many times sparked the Blue Devils. Other noted efforts were Andre Bielski, 14 points; Jim Johnson, six rebounds; and co-captain Bryan Jones, six assists.

Signifying the whole team's effort at East Detroit, coach Al Devine gave the entire team Player of the Game honors. "Everybody played and everybody's presence was felt in the game," Devine said, leading the way was Bielski with 16 points, and Mike Finch, five assists and seven rebounds.

Along with a total team effort, the East Detroit game had a very lively ending. With four seconds left in the game, and East Detroit in the lead, 35-34, South called time out. "With East Detroit the tallest team in the league, I wasn't about to go down and try to get a shot," Devine explained.

Finch inbounded the ball with a long pass to Bielski. Bielski netted the game-winning basket, with one second left on the clock.

The JV, 3-4 in the EML and 5-8 overall, plays at Mount Clemens tomorrow, Feb. 7.

Swimmers win three

The Blue Devil varsity swimmers were triumphant last week, winning over Notre Dame and East Detroit, 122-97-57, in a tri-meet, and beating Brighton, 98-74.

Blue Devil winners at South's first tri-meet of the season were: Geoff Cenner, 200 free; Dick Clarke, 200 individual medley; Rick Leonard, 50 free; Matt Smith, 100 fly; Billy Thompson, 100 free; Chris Nevison, 100 breast; and Jeff Clark, 100 back, which also qualified him for states.

South also finished first in the 200 medley relay, merging Jeff Clark, Rick Leonard, Matt Smith and Scott Frame. Also taking first place and qualifying for states were Matt Smith, Dick Clarke, Billy Thompson and Rick Leonard in the 400 free relay.

At Brighton, South dominated once again. Individual winners were: Smith, 200 free and 100 fly; Leonard, 50 free; Clarke, 100 free; Ryan Hoeh, 100 breast; and Thompson, qualifying for the states in the 100 back. Clarke, Leonard, Smith, and Frame also combined for first place in the 200 medley relay.

During the Brighton meet, Josh Winquist scored 181 points in the diving competition, his personal best. His performance was especially meaningful because Winquist missed the first few meets of the season.

South's goals are now set towards qualifying as many swimmers as possible for the state finals in two weeks. The Blue Devils meet rival North High on Saturday, Feb. 8 at 2 p.m. at North.

Spikers on streak

South's varsity and JV volleyball teams were victorious in their games last week; the JV also competed in a tournament at Warren Woods Tower.

The Devils' varsity team beat L'Anse Creuse North, 15-6, 15-11. Senior Theresa Schulte and junior Heather Imel each had six kills. Junior Patty Hess had three kills and senior Mary Ann Montagne was good on 46 of 48 sets and added nine service points.

South also beat East Detroit, 15-10, 15-13. Schulte made five kills and had six service points; Imel made four kills and had eight service points and Montagne was perfect on 37 of 37 sets.

The varsity is at 6-1 in the EML, 11-2 overall (By Jennifer McSorley).

South's JV squad topped L'Anse Creuse, 2-15, 15-3, 15-9. Sophomore Erin Duffy scored eight points serving; sophomore Lisa Van Tassel scored seven points serving and freshman Chris Schulte and sophomore Patty Pentecost each scored six points serving. Pentecost also had two kills and five spikes and Schulte had one kill and eight spikes. Sophomore Danielle DeLuca, sophomore Kari Donaldson and Duffy each made a kill. Pentecost and Schulte were also the leading setters.

The girls also beat East Detroit, 3-15, 15-9, 15-7. Pentecost scored 11 service points and Duffy added seven. Sophomore Barb Denler made one kill and six spikes; Schulte made 14 spikes and Donaldson had 12 spikes and two blocks. Coach Amy Argo complimented the play of Pentecost, Schulte and Van Tassel. "Erin Duffy has been doing a real nice job for us," Argo said. Duffy is filling in for Peterson, who is ill.

In the JV tournament last week, the Devils lost to Tower, 15-7, 15-12, tied Dearborn Fordson, 15-8, 8-15, and beat Lakeview, 15-3, 15-2, to take third place in their pool. South finished the day's play with a 11-15, 6-15 loss to Royal Oak Kimball, the second place team in another pool.

The frosh lost to L'Anse Creuse North, 10-15, 15-12, 13-15, and to East Detroit Kelly 15-8, 10-15, 10-15. Rachel Geer served six points and Stephanie Vititoe and Lorrie Geist were strong at the net against LCN. Tracy Lee and Jessica Risher were strong setters, said coach Jan Kuhagen.

'Hannah': Just what you'd expect from Woody Allen

By Mike Andrzejczyk

That little Jewish kid with the crazy hair and the neurotic hang-ups has grown up. Woody Allen's new movie, "Hannah and Her Sisters," is a solid adult comedy in a style distinctively Woody's.

Don't get me wrong. When I say adult comedy, I don't mean Richard Pryor movies. I mean plot twists and jokes that only those who have lost their dreams of beachcombing and Barbados can identify with.

Through Hannah and her sisters, we see two years in the lives of three sisters; Hannah, played by Mia Farrow; Lee, played by Barbara Hershey; and Holly, portrayed by Dianne Wiest.

The two years begin and end at the family's Thanksgiving dinner, with various boyfriends, uncles and cousins gathered in true extended family style. The evening, and movie, begins with Elliot, Hannah's second husband, trying to find a way to seduce Lee, who is living with an aging artist, portrayed by Max Von Sydow.

From beginning to end, the movie weaves love, fidelity and the search for personal worth and a meaning to life into a satisfyingly poignant portrayal of the real world.

From selection of actors to use of Cole Porter to set scenes and foreshadow action, "Hannah" is well-crafted. Gone are the rambling scenes from "Take the Money and Run" or "What's New, Tiger Lily" and the pointlessness of "Casino Royale."

One would expect this kind of substantial product from Allen, who has written and directed 13 other films. He has assembled a large cast of established actors, including Maureen O'Sullivan, the late Lloyd Nolan, Daniel Stern, Michael Caine, Sam Waterston, Carrie Fisher and Julie Kavner. That in part may be why this movie is so good.

Caine comes off as a larger, slightly more rumpled version of Woody's bumbling, morally lost characters of the past. His trembling as he pursued his wife's sister, his fumbling efforts to appear to meet by chance and his guilt afterward are wonderful to watch.

There really isn't a bad character in the movie. The situations, dialogue and setting lend themselves to letting the actors expand into characters they portray so they give performances of living, breathing people. It's a bit like spending selected moments in the lives of the people next door.

Allen himself is looking older but pulls off the neurotic, unsettled, unsure character that he thrives on. Unlike other movies, where he normally ends the film in as bad a situation as when he began — saving his summation for a post-credit soliloquy — Woody acts his age.

There are still enough moments to mark this as a Woody Allen movie, though. There's his love affair with New York, one of his favorite characters in his movies. He uses large portions of the city in "Hannah," from its punk clubs to the East River.

And there are the jokes about sex, drugs, impotence and religion. There are the moments of self-reflection and even a bungled suicide in which a character, twistedly enough, finds the true meaning of life.

There are situations that only Allen could dream up. One character says he would have killed himself long ago — even bought the rifle — but hasn't because of his parents. His parents would take it so badly, he would have to kill them first and he wants to avoid a bloodbath, the character explains.

There's also a scene where Allen's character must ask his best friend and former writing partner, played by Tony Roberts, to father his children because Allen's character is infertile. The interplay of characters — at once trapped by middle class mores and trying to accomplish something — is funny and sad at the same time.

Okay, I'm gushing. It's hard not to with the movie. It combines a strong cast, good acting, an unusual plot and some interesting ideas to make it a movie worth seeing at least once, if not twice.

By the way, I forgot and walked out while the credits were rolling. If I gave a soliloquy, I missed it. With a movie like this on which to comment, if there was one, it had to be good.

I may just go see it again when "Hannah and Her Sisters" opens tomorrow throughout the area.

Local jazz band to perform

The Wolverine Jazz Band, led by Chet Bogan, Grosse Pointe resident and dentist, will perform at a Mardi Gras party at Lido on the Lake Tuesday, Feb. 11. This will be the eighth year the Dixieland band featuring Dixie Belle will appear at the annual event.

The Lido will be dressed in official Mardi Gras colors — gold, green and purple — and the traditional beads will be given to the ladies and doubloons to the gentlemen.

There will be prizes for costumes, but dress is optional. King Rex will be crowned during the Grand March and will reign for one year.

The Lido is located on East Jefferson north of Nine Mile Road. For reservations, call 773-7770.

The band appears at the restaurant every Tuesday night.

Russia travelogue plays at DIA

"Russian Rhapsody," filmed and narrated live by Detroit Institute of Arts World Adventure coordinator Kenard Lawrence, will be shown Thursday, Feb. 13. Showtime will be 10:30 a.m. in the DIA recital hall.

Through Leningrad's famed cathedrals, mosques and formal gardens, the celebrated art collection of The Hermitage, 11th century icons and ancient paintings and visits to the tsars' winter palace, the poet Pushkin's family home and an in-depth tour of the popular Siberian vacation land, filmmaker

Lawrence offers a detailed panorama of this diverse region.

Tickets at $2.75 may be purchased in advance at the ticket office and at the door. For reservations, information and a detailed World Adventure schedule through mid-March, call 832-2730 any day during business hours.

Esser, Bredius in Valentine concert

Phil Marcus Esser and Barbara Bredius will present "Songs of the Heart" at the North Rosedale Park Community House, Scarsdale at Glastonbury in northwest Detroit. There will be three shows: Friday, Feb. 14, and Saturday, Feb. 15, at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 16 at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $6.

This is the sixth time Esser and Bredius will appear at Rosedale Park. In the past, Rosedale Park audiences have been treated to a preview of the shows that Esser later took to various downtown locations.

Tickets can be obtained by calling 272-8099 or 532-4894. Refreshments will be available.

St. Paul's journey

"The Journey of St. Paul" will be presented by World Adventure Series Sunday, Feb. 9, at 2:30 p.m. in The Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium.

Following in the footsteps of the Apostle Paul, the film traces the birth of Christianity; the marvels of the Roman Empire and the mysteries of the ancient Greeks. From his birth in Tarsus to his execution at the Three Fountains in Rome, St. Paul's travels and experience in Asia Minor, Greece and Italy are explored. Points of special interest will include Northern Greece, an area seldom seen by tourists, the recently discovered tomb of King Phillip of Macedon, Mount Olympus, Athens, Crete and the Apian Way to Rome.

Tickets at $4 may be purchased in advance at the Art Institute ticket office and at the door. For reservations, information and a detailed World Adventure schedule through mid-March, call 832-2730 any day during business hours. The Grandparents Ticket Plan is in effect — buy one ticket at regular price, and be allowed to purchase up to four tickets at $1 each for grandchildren to age 18.

'Trip to Bountiful' has courage, compassion, wisdom

By Marian Trainor

An elderly woman's journey back to her birth place becomes a poignant photographic pilgrimage in "A Trip to Bountiful."

In this beautiful, moving film, Geraldine Page gives the performance of her screen career — and she's a seven-time Oscar nominee — as Carrie Watts, a proud, spirited woman who has lived in a small Houston apartment for 20 years with her weak-willed son, Ludie (John Heard) and his shrill demanding wife, Jessie Mae (Carlin Glynn).

The two women subtly do daily battle with each other. Carrie hums, runs instead of walking to do household chores, or just sits quietly (pouts) which annoys Jessie Mae no end. Jessie Mae bullies the older woman with her demands and ultimatums. Ludie, devoted to both, stands helplessly by, caught in the middle of a hopeless situation.

The young people have hope: One day Ludie will get a better job; they will be able to go out once in a while; Jessie Mae will buy some of the dresses she window-shops for.

Carrie has no such future, but she has a past. Her past is in Bountiful, a small town in Texas between Harrison and Cotton, where she grew up, married and buried her husband and two of her children. Carrie is convinced that if she could just go back and visit her old home once again, she would be able to live in the apartment which she has come to hate.

She hides her government check (which she usually has to hand over to Jessie Mae) in her shapeless dress, slaps on a battered old hat, and packs her beaten-up old valise and sets off. This is not her first try. She has done it before but Ludie has always found her and brought her back. This time she eludes him.

Once on the bus, she meets Thelma (Rebecca De Mornay), a lovely, sensitive girl who befriends her and tries to help her on her way.

What might have been a sad story of an aging woman who must come to terms with life and its power to give and to take away becomes a triumphant testimony of the enduring spirit of youth, no matter how old the body is.

Geraldine Page gives Carrie Watts an unforgettable identity. Audiences will not soon forget the determined old woman who called on the resources of the young woman within her to make a final trip home. The role of Carrie could have been written for Geraldine Page, so well does she make it her own. However, it has been played before by another distinguished actress, Lillian Gish, on the Good-year Television Playhouse in 1953. It was later expanded into a play.

Her outstanding performance gets able assistance from Heard's Ludie who displays a quiet control in the struggle between his wife and mother. He never explodes but patiently tries to smooth out touchy situations. He loves them both and he remembers his mother in a way that his wife has never tried to know. Carlin Glynn gives a brassy performance, flashing her eyes and laying out rules. De Mornay is the epitome of gentle sweetness, a direct opposite of the loud and complaining Jessie Mae.

Written by Horton Foote, who also wrote "To Kill a Mocking Bird" and "Tender Mercies," "Bountiful" has all the human qualities that endear us one to another; the courage to try, the compassion to be kind, and the wisdom to compromise. The script, direction, cinematography, sets, music and acting all complement and enhance the splendid performances of the cast.

The Flying Karamazov Brothers

... known for their zany clowning and sophisticated slapstick, will appear at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8, at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts. Tickets at $10 for adults and $8 for students and senior citizens are available at the box office or may be reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222 weekdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

'Youngblood': Violence on the hockey rink

By Michael Chapp

"Youngblood" is a calculated, predictable, demographically safe movie about challenges and the underdog mentality. Indeed, the advance screening of this film was on a double bill with "Rocky IV," and for all practical purposes, it was as if viewers were watching the same film twice.

Like "Rocky IV," "Youngblood" features a handsome leading man (Rob Lowe) up against incredible odds. Lowe, trying to succeed in the icy-cold world of professional hockey, faces a variety of obstacles, including blood-seeking opponents, unhelpful teammates, an unfair coach, and, perhaps most importantly, a lack of the killer instincts needed to succeed in the sport.

But the raison d'être of the movie is, of course, to point out that with pain, perseverance, a propensity for winning, a bit of chutzpah and a lot of hard work, any goal can be met and any challenge overcome.

Nothing new in that respect. Viewers have seen that same premise repeatedly played out in many movies over the past couple years. Take any of the "Rocky" films, either of the "Rambo" pictures, or last year's "Visionquest" for example — sometimes the story unfolds in a boxing ring, sometimes on a battlefield and sometimes on a wrestling mat. The premise is always the same. The only significant difference is that this time the setting is a hockey rink.

Dean Youngblood (Lowe) sees hockey as his only chance to escape the anonymity and difficulty of a farmer's life. He's fast — really fast — and scores so many goals he'd make Wayne Gretzky blush.

His only problem is a lack of fighting ability — certainly an essential skill in the National Hockey League. Dean is a finesse player, not a fighter, and that, the film asserts, means trouble, because one doesn't succeed in life if one cannot out-muscle the other guy.

When Dean's teammate and best friend (Patrick Swayze) gets his head opened on the ice by a mean-spirited opponent, Dean feels it's his duty to avenge the injustice by teaching the adversary a thing or two about honor. In other words, he wants blood. Thus the film's conflict — it's against Dean's nature to fight.

But not for long. Some of the movie's most drawn-out sequences document Dean's training and preparation for the inevitable showdown. Cue up the loud, driving music, take off Lowe's shirt, have him pump some iron with a determined look on his face, and the essence of the film — vengeance — is evident.

The women in the audience will enjoy ogling Lowe's biceps and pectoralis majors (not to mention his gluteous maximus), while male viewers will find the hard-hitting hockey action and fight scenes to their liking. Indeed, the movie is excessively violent and graphic, effectively communicating the competitive spirit of professional athletes.

sports front or elsewhere — isn't what audiences want to see. Viewers generally like a story of an underdog who stands up for himself and his beliefs. They like to see the "bad guy" get beaten while the hero, who has been pushed around from the beginning, finally gets his revenge.

For the careful moviegoer, the film is, at best, a 90-minute escape from reality. There are even some worthwhile moments, such as the expertly edited scenes of Lowe skating his heart out, perfecting his already superior game.

The problem though, is that violent themes like the ones in this movie are potentially damaging to an undiscerning viewer's psyche. Young children inundated with filmic propaganda like this are bound to be affected by it. Parents would do well to be aware of the movie's "R" rating.

Lowe is not challenged to do much in this film, and neither are his co-stars. Swayze is one-dimensional. Cynthia Gibb, as Lowe's girlfriend, is stereotypically supportive, and Ed Lauter, as the coach — though arguably the film's most interesting character — is predictable and routine.

"Youngblood" is a film with skewed values, commercially tested components and an off-the-wall premise. Still, for those who seek nothing special, that's precisely what you'll get.

Woody Herman to appear

Woody Herman, the only maestro from the 'Big Band' era still traveling with his own orchestra, will appear with his "Thundering Herd" band at 7 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 9, at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

With hits from the past like "Woodchopper's Ball" and "Caledonia" still at the top of his repertoire, Herman's current concert swing around the country is billed as his 50th Anniversary Tour.

Herman and his band were scheduled in as added starters to the Macomb Center's 1985-86 Jazz Series. Those to follow include:

- Feb. 21 — Lionel Hampton, the "Vibes President, U.S.A.," now in his 45th year as a musical performer.
- March 15 — The P.M. Singers, performing with Richie Cole, rated in the Downbeat polls as the nation's No. 2 jazz alto saxophonist.
- April 27 — Rob McConnell's Boss Brass, winner of the 1984 Grammy Award in the "Best Performance for a Big Band in the Jazz Category."

Herman, who still plays his clarinet with gusto and sings an occasional number, entered show business at the age of eight as a child prodigy clarinetist and singer.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $8 for students and senior citizens. For more information contact the center's box office, 286-2222.

Theater group seeks members

The Greasepaint Players will hold an open meeting/membership invitation Friday, Feb. 14, at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe South High School auditorium.

Refreshments will be served and there will be theater crafts exhibits. The one-act love story/comedy "Red Carnations" will be presented. There will be no admission charge and everyone is welcome.

The agenda will include announcement of the dates and place of auditions for the first production, "Deadwood Dick," at which two members of the group will actually get married. Tony Tyrer and May Beth Denneffel met during the Greasepaint Players' first production of "Deadwood Dick" at the old Alger Theater in 1979.

There will also be acting workshops with Richard Klautsch and Gary Righetini, both of whom are completing their doctor's degree in theater at Wayne State University.

1C. PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and who you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in perpetual glory. Amen.
Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. T.L.M.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE
Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue, rich in miracles, kinsman of Christ, intercessor of all who invoke your aid in time of need. I pray to you to use your God given powers to aid me in my urgent petition. In return I promise to publish a novena and to make your name known. Say 3 Our Fathers, 3 Hail Marys, 3 Glory Be's. Say for nine days. Thank you. V.E.D.

ST. Jude Novena — May this Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved, and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail.
Publication must be promised. Thank you St. Jude for granting me petition. S.M. 882-3281

All roads lead to room... Paris, forever imprinted on mind and heart

By HELEN KLEIN
 Oscar Wilde once quipped that when "good Americans die they go to Paris," and, indeed, Paris has been a mecca for overseas visitors for over two centuries.

Ben Franklin and Thomas Jefferson made the arduous journey across the Atlantic to Paris, in the late 18th century, to win French support for the American struggle for independence, bringing back with them, not only the urgently needed aid, but the fascination for French culture and lifestyle that has since prevailed in this country.

In the 19th and early 20th centuries, American visitors to Paris ranged from Henry James to Gertrude Stein, Edith Wharton to Ernest Hemingway and F. Scott Fitzgerald. Paris encouraged them to linger, and seduced many of them to stay, some for a lifetime.

And who, indeed, having once absorbed the aura of this city, having walked its boulevards and its narrow, crooked streets; having climbed to the heights of Montmartre and promenaded along the banks of the Seine, does not feel the tug of Paris, a magnetism at once aesthetic, sensual, intellectual and emotional!

It is a city whose geography inscribes itself on the mind and heart, so that rambling through the city's streets becomes a process of self-identification with the city, a means of incorporating its graces into one's inner core.

And, each return visit underlines this almost mystic sense of communion, of becoming a part of Paris and, when departing, taking something of the city away, a treasure at once ephemeral and lasting.

Thus, do visitors to Paris absorb layer upon layer of experience, reverberating memories whose resonance is easily awakened, even years later.

My most recent visit to Paris was after an interval of nine years. Though nearly a decade had passed, crammed full with strange cities, my memory of Paris was surprisingly fresh.

Though I could not always say why I took a certain turning, or followed a particular street, yet I trusted my feet, imbued with a life of their own, to lead me where I wanted to go.

First and grandest of all, there was Notre Dame, its elegant silhouette, graceful yet solid, a mass of stone as delicately worked as lace, its grayness interspersed with the glitter of myriad windows.

Glorious from the outside, it's even more glorious within, where the windows become not merely windows but excursions into the realm of pure color, stained glass of a brilliance and intricacy rarely matched.

Never have I visited Paris without venturing inside Notre Dame; never have I visited Paris without following that experience by climbing Notre Dame's bell towers, to enjoy the view of Paris, the silhouettes of its rooftops framed by the oversized carved stone gargoyles which, looking precipitously down from the parapet, are to me one of the most characteristic and memorable sights in a city which boasts no death of them.

I feel, at Notre Dame, at the heart of Paris and indeed, there, on the Ile de la Cite, nestled gently in the Seine between Left and Right Banks, I am where it all began, hundreds of years ago.

Time has been kind to Paris. Even its oldest buildings seem to glow, gently worn by the passage of centuries, but pure and whole and lovely.

Perhaps the oldest structure in Paris is the Arenes de Lutèce, a Roman remain, once an amphitheater, which is today a bosky park where Sunday mornings mean soccer games.

In the way of Paris, the original structure of the arena has become incorporated into later buildings, becoming the backbone for private residences. Secreted at the far side of Paris' 5th Arrondissement, popularly known as "The Latin Quarter," the Arenes de Lutèce is hardly spectacular, but strangely touching.

But, wherever I go in Paris, I am drawn inevitably to the Seine, arterial river, carrying somehow the lifeblood of the city.

To walk along the quais is a great pleasure, at all hours and in all lights, in the

A GARGOYLE gazes out over the roofscape of Paris, as seen from the bell tower of Notre Dame. In the distance, the Gothic Tour St. Jacques, all that remains of a church that was demolished during the French Revolution. Behind that, the pristine white dome of Sacre Coeur, crowning the Butte Montmartre.

There are thousands of other Parisian pleasures - for each person, his or her own special favorites. And no one visit, no single piece of prose, however long, can do justice to the exquisite tapestry of life, pristine and passionate, present and past, that is Paris. Only Paris can do that.

Perhaps our most candid and revealing interview was given by Talia Shire, the actress-sister of director Francis Coppola. Talia painted a remarkably vivid picture of what it was like to grow up in a traditional Italian family, where the women were always overshadowed by the men, and she spoke of her long battle to express her own creative dreams.

When she won her first major role in The Godfather, which was being directed by her brother, it was because her psychiatrist had pressed her to assert herself within the family. Francis initially turned her down for the part, a move which Talia attributes to his insecurity.

Talia also introduced us to her parents - Carmine, an Academy award-winning composer for his Godfather II score, and Italia, the iron-willed matriarch of the clan. When we met Carmine and Italia at their cluttered San Fernando Valley home, Italia was still fuming over an article in People magazine which, she said, left an unflattering impression of her home furnishings. Needless to say, we began to pay far greater attention to the decor.

When his youngest son, Eric, once complained about the pressures of being Kirk Douglas's son, Kirk shot back: "Then change your name. I changed mine. If you don't want to be Eric Douglas, be Eric Smith. Being the son of a movie star has its advantages and its disadvantages. That's life."

The Douglases have worked together frequently. Michael Douglas's first major success as a producer, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, derived directly from his family connections. Kirk was the one who owned the rights to Ken Kesey's novel, and he turned the project over to Michael after years of futile struggle to find a backer.

Michael got the movie made, and Kirk held on to 7.5 percent of the movie's gross; his percentage eventually earned him $15 million, far more than he had

The making of Hollywood dynasties

By STEPHEN FARBER AND MARC GREEN

So much of Hollywood history is shrouded in gossip, mythology and half-truths that anyone hoping to chronicle the real-life experiences of the movie capital's movers and shakers must go directly to the source.

In writing Hollywood Dynasties, we spoke to dozens of members of the first families of American filmdom, families that have played an ongoing role in the movies - both on and off the screen.

Our very first interview was with Christopher Mankiewicz, son of Joseph L. Mankiewicz, writer-director of the classic All About Eve and the scandal-plagued epic, Cleopatra. Chris was talking about the pressures of growing up as part of a legendary Hollywood clan, and he recalled a recent meeting with two of his childhood chums, Peter Fonda and Bill Hayward (son of agent-producer Leland Hayward and actress Margaret Sullavan).

Mankiewicz was working as an executive at United Artists and Fonda and Hayward were making a film at the studio. During a routine story conference, the three of them became embroiled in a heated argument. Suddenly, Fonda silenced the others and declared, "The three of us shouldn't be arguing. We should drink a toast."

"Why?" Mankiewicz asked, bewildered by this non-sequitur. "Because we survived," Fonda replied. "Don't you realize that all three of our mothers committed suicide?"

The key to a successful book, we knew, was first-hand interviews with members of famous Hollywood families. But we knew, too, that these interviews would be difficult to secure. Not only were we imposing on very busy people, we were asking them to confide some of their deepest feelings, as well as the intimate details of their family lives.

Peter Fonda, for example, took months to pin down. But when he finally did sit down over a few beers in his suite at L'Ermitage he spoke movingly about the problems he had as a son of a famous actor and Jane Fonda's brother. He described Henry's difficulty in expressing love or affection, and the final reconciliation with his father that came just a few years before the elder Fonda's death.

Once Peter had cooperated, it was easier to persuade Jane to grant us an interview. When we first contacted her secretary in April of 1983, we were informed that Jane was completely booked up for the rest of the year! Fortunately, after much prodding, she finally did consent to an interview in July.

She confessed how driven she had been in her determination to prove that she did not owe her acting career to her famous father. Recalling her troubled childhood, Jane referred to the legacy of fame as a "poison" passed down from one generation to the next.

One of the few happy families in Hollywood has been the Douglas clan. All four of Kirk Douglas's sons are working in the movie business, and they have managed to survive without any devastating psychic scars. Perhaps this is attributable to Kirk's hard-headed, commonsensical approach to raising his family.

When his youngest son, Eric, once complained about the pressures of being Kirk Douglas's son, Kirk shot back: "Then change your name. I changed mine. If you don't want to be Eric Douglas, be Eric Smith. Being the son of a movie star has its advantages and its disadvantages. That's life."

You've just been promoted to district manager in the home office of your company. The office is located across country and you decide to rent a truck and move your furniture. A simple scenario, right?

Wrong. The Insurance Information Institute warns do-it-yourself movers that there may be pitfalls in this money-saving type of move. Before you pack your belongings and bid farewell to your family and friends, the I.I.I. suggests that you plan your trip carefully or the money you save may vanish into thin air.

It's essential that you have adequate insurance coverage before you start your move, says the I.I.I. So, ask how much liability, collision and personal injury coverage is provided by the rental company before you rent the truck.

Suppose you turn a corner and sid-swipe a car, a hazard for drivers unaccustomed to driving a wide-body vehicle. Who will pay for the damage in such a case?

If the vehicle is damaged while in the possession of the renter - even though the renter may not be at fault - he or she may be obligated to pay for restoring the vehicle. The rental agreement usually relieves the renter of the responsibility for loss by collision above a certain amount, which may be $1,000.

For a daily fee of approximately $6.00, the renter can purchase the rental company's waiver of this deductible amount. The collision waiver is not insurance and does not guarantee the renter's freedom from liability.

Water damage, improper packing, leakage, shifting of cargo, marring, scratching, loss or damage to furs, antiques, jewelry and art work are also excluded. Therefore, the I.I.I. advises do-it-yourself movers to consider adding more comprehensive coverage by buying a rider for their homeowners policy.

Checking to be sure the truck is in good repair is vital for a safe trip, and it may also prevent costly out-of-pocket repairs on the road. Ask for proof that the vehicle has been serviced recently and ask to test drive the truck so you can check brakes, horn, windshield wipers and lights.

Be sure you know whom to call if you have a problem. Some companies require you to pay for repairs in advance and then be reimbursed. A lengthy wait for repairs may mean you have to pay extra money for food and lodging during your trip. Be sure to find out how repairs will be paid for before you rent the truck.

If you have any questions about the amount of coverage you need, talk to your insurance agent or company representative.

For answers to questions about homeowners and auto insurance, call the I.I.I.'s toll-free Insurance Hotline: 800-221-4954.

Varsity cagers end losing streak

The University Liggett School varsity basketball team snapped a three-game losing streak with a convincing, 82-55 thrashing of Lutheran Northwest on Jan. 31. Four Knight players hit four double figures in the Knights' most balanced attack of the year.

Kirk Haggarty paced the way with 20 points. Kevin Darby added 18. Keith Calcagno scored 16, and Marc Hunt chipped in with 13.

The first quarter was high scoring, as ULS led 21-15. But in the second quarter, Coach Chuck Wright's Knights exploded with 34 points, mostly off fast breaks and steals.

The Knights' record is now 3-10. This week the squad travels to Toledo to play in the annual Maumee Valley Country Day Invitational Tournament Feb. 7 and 8.

seven points in that quarter to secure the victory. Frank Karabetsos led all scorers with 16 points while David Clifton chipped in 14. Dike Ajiri and Bill Lucken added nine points apiece.

On Jan. 31, Coach Domenic Facciolla's squad broke open a close game by outscoring Lutheran Northwest 24-6 in the third quarter in coasting to a 55-30 victory.

Karabetsos once again led the attack with 17 points. Julian Go and Lars Knudson provided excellent rebounding and defensive help.

ULS scrimmages Class A Notre Dame and South Lake this week, before hosting Plymouth Christian and Greenhills in back-to-back home games on Feb. 11 and 12.

Spikers sweep

The University Liggett School varsity volleyball team traveled to Plymouth Christian Jan. 28, capturing two victories. In the first match Coach Shelly Owens' squad defeated Plymouth Christian 15-8, 15-7, and in the second match won, 15-5, 15-2.

On Jan. 31, ULS faced league newcomer Zion Christian, winning 15-4, 15-1 and 15-8, 15-10. A total of 28 sets between co-captain Kathy Bianchi and Cindy Paul, and consistent serving by Julie Ferris led the way to the win.

ULS' record now stands at 6-2. The team travels to Southfield Christian on Thursday, Feb. 6 (By Susan Cleek).

Taking home first place finishes in various categories were Jessica Insana, Stephanie Koller, Kellie Wachlarz, Sarah Malone, Yana Marie Farley and Marie Pronko. Second place ribbons went to Heather Brown, Ana Sarchek and Katie Callahan. Sarah Gen-dron was a fourth place finisher.

The skaters are students under the direction of Monica Clancy, Sandy Kallek, Patricia Lenard and Dianne Samov. All four professionals teach lessons.

JV is 12-1

The ULS JV basketball team improved its record to 12-1 with victories over Oakland Christian, 56-45, and Lutheran Northwest, 55-30.

COVERED

As a home buyer, you face the uncertainty of not knowing whether the major mechanical systems and appliances in the home you're considering are in good working condition. And as a seller, you can spend a lot of time wondering if the new owners of the home you just sold might call — expecting you to pick up the tab for repairs they've just made. The Better Homes and Gardens® Home Protection Plan* offers an important plus for any home: your peace of mind. So whether you're buying or selling a home, the plan can help protect you from unexpected major expenses for repairing or replacing covered items.

The beautiful state of Florida has everything to offer. Mother Nature has seen to that. And now Trafalgar has created outstanding resort communities that have captured the essence of this golden state so that you may enjoy the Florida features that you love the most.

Trafalgar Developers of Florida is a subsidiary of General Electric Company. Since 1976, this relationship has thrived due, in great part, to a shared philosophy of high quality and a common, bright outlook toward the future.

Our communities criss-cross the state from the southern extreme of Miami north to Orlando, and from the Atlantic Ocean west to the Gulf of Mexico. Some are charming country club communities, some secluded yacht club communities, some exclusive cosmopolitan communities. Each is devoted to a different way of living but every Trafalgar community is a total way of life with common land, lakes, clubs, marinas, bike and jogging paths, beaches . . . whatever helps the residents share in the enjoyment of their own special Florida.

Don't just read about us, come visit us! Let us show you first hand just how wonderful Florida living Trafalgar-style really is. We invite you to take advantage of our Vacation Inspection Program, a three day, two night visit that allows you to experience the Trafalgar community of your choice.

For details on this exciting opportunity to visit the community of your choice call Schweitzer Real Estate, Inc./ Better Homes and Gardens at (313) 268-1000 and ask for Julie Doelle.
