Blame it on inflation

When George Slezak Jr. was 23 years old, serving on board the USS Wyoming during World War II, he wrote a letter outlining his goals in life and sealed it with sealing wax. On the envelope, he typed "Private papers of Pl. Sgt. George Slezak Jr., USMC, not to be opened until the 26th day of January, 1961." That was the day he would turn 40.

Well, the Big F day came and went and the former owner of Pointe Hardware didn't open the letter. He felt he had achieved one of his goals. And so the envelope laid there, turning

This year, he turned 65. Goaded by his family, he decided to finally open the letter in what he called his "twilight years." So on March 4, with his wife Marge, children, grandchildren and mother gathered 'round, he asked his daughter to open it and read it aloud.

Dated March 21, 1944, the young platoon sergeant wrote that "with the help of the good Lord," he would have acquired the sum of $100,000 "through honest dealings and sound business ventures" by the time he was 40 years old. For his second goal, he wrote: "It is then . . . if my desire to fulfilled that I intend to retire from active business and live the rest of my life in peace from the income derived from the above-mentioned money. Well, he reached — and surpassed — his first goal. His enterprises include the Shorecrest Motor Inn, the Clique Restaurant and Brulajan Cor-

As far as his second goal, the semi-retired Farms resident smiles. That was a lot of money back in 1944.

Makes you wonder what $1 million will be worth in 40 years.

For members of the Resistance

D-Day - which stands for doomsday or deadline day - is almost here again. And it's as unwelcome as a mosquito buzzing around your ear right after you've sunk in bed and found your spot. As unwelcome as a telephone sales pitch just as you are about to dig into a plateful of food.

What we are talking about, folks, is April 15, the last day for filing taxes. And believe it or not, there are some people out there who have not yet begun to tackle those forms.

To those folks we say, go ahead and wait until the last minute. The post office sub-station behind Grosse Pointe Book Village, at the corner of Kercheval and St. Clair, will stay open until 9 p.m. April 15 to put a postmark on that baby. But don't wait too long. Otherwise you'll have to drive to the main post office downtown, which is open until midnight, to get in under the wire.

But for some people, it's not a matter of putting things off until the last minute; it's more of a protest against giving Uncle Sam any nickels before they absolutely have to. We understand.

The potential turnover in staff won't hit Grosse Pointe as hard as other districts, according to Superintendent John Whritner. There may be administrative changes or reorganization should key retirements occur, but planning in staff development and evaluation as well as work on the system's five-year plan have started to look at the effects of retirements and shortages.

A liquor license for the War Memorial appears to have hit another snag. Officials received notice April 7 from the state Liquor Control Commission that approval of its request for a resort license transfer isn't going automatic.

"We haven't denied it," a representative of the LCC said. "But rule no. 25 states that the commission shall not consider granting the transfer of a resort license where an on-premise license is available.

The Farms has two available Class C licenses. According to population, the city is eligible for seven licenses; four are currently active. The license formerly belonging to the Bronze Door is not active, but the new owners have the right to start a new business using the license. The War Memorial wants to transfer a resort license belonging to Rosemary Lobb of Hillman, Mich.

Waivers of rule no. 25 have been granted in the past. To obtain a waiver, the city must write to the LCC approving and requesting a waiver — but the commission could still deny it. A waiver is normally granted only if the available licenses are already promised, according to the LCC.

Farms Clerk Richard Solak confirmed that the city has received a copy of the LCC letter, but has taken no action on it. "Most likely" the city will wait for a request from the War Memorial before considering action, Solak said.

War Memorial Director Mark Weber doesn't know what the Memorial board will decide to do. 'It brings back the whole situation of going before the council," he said. "Whether we'll meet with them in the future, I just don't know. The Farms council was opposed to the license 5-2 the last time the question came up.
Weber said the board is likely to consider the question soon. "We don't want this to drag on too long," he said. "It's not fair to the people who are trying to sell it."

Whether it was the economy or a pension program that hadn't. seen substantial improvements since 1974, teachers were holding on to their jobs longer. In answer to that, the MEA put together a package of proposals introduced in the Legislature meant to improve the retirement system.

When the legislation was introduced in 1983, teachers who had planned to retire put it off, knowing improvements were coming, Keeling said. They didn't want to get caught in the same situation that in 1974 saw teachers who retired a few days apart end up with up to $1,000 difference in pen-

The package didn't make it through the Legislature until mid-1985, with its provision to take effect in 1986. By then, there were four years' worth of potential retirees in the system.

The prospect of early retirements, combined with a statewide shortage of teachers, may have a number of effects on Grosse Pointe public schools.

Locally, the Board of Education put together an incentive plan in 1983-84 to encourage staff to re-tire. Teachers 55 and older with at least 15 years of experience in Grosse Pointe would receive $300 monthly payments until age 69. over and above the state teacher pension. A number of teachers who were eligible. Administrators were also offered an incentive plan similar to that offered teachers, except the monthly payment would be $400 until age 69. A number of principals and central office administrators opted out under the plan.

Rule of 80

The law that took effect in January opens a three-year window for those whose age and years of experience total 80. They could choose to retire by the end of 1986 and receive a one-time 8 percent increase in their retirement al-

The 8-percent buy-out was to induce teachers and staff who have been looking to retire for the past couple of years to opt out this year, Keeling said. The 8 percent plan is almost equal to a threeyear average compensation formula, one of the provisions for teachers who this fall decide to enter the 4 percent member investment plan.

If the state didn't do something to spread out retirements, it would find itself deluged at the end of the 1986-87 school year, Keeling said. The 8 percent clause gives those retiring this year the same benefits as those retiring next year, without having to hang on, he added.

The three-year window was offered to ease the transition, Keeling said. After it closes, school employees will have to wait until age 55 with at least 30 years of service to retire. However, joining the 4 percent plan allows a teacher to retire after 30 years of service at any age.

Buying into the 4 percent investment plan has other benefits. Final average compensation will be calculated using the last three years instead of the last five, as for those who don't buy in.

Park election up in the air

By Pat Paholsky

It's anyone's guess when the special election in the Park will be held to decide the controversial issue of consolidating the police and fire departments. And both sides — the city and the firefighters — are talking about going to court.

By law, the election must be scheduled between 120 and 130 days after the petitions calling for a referendum are presented to the city clerk. To comply with the law, called the Home Rule Act, City Clerk Nunzio Ortisi selected June 17 for the election.

The date was not approved by the Wayne County Election Commission, however, since it conflicted with another law that prohibits two local elections from bening held within 30 days of each other. The school board election is set for June 9.

"There's no precedent on this," city attorney Herold McC. Deason said. "We have to go to court and say, here's the situation, tell us what to do.

"The legal issue is which statute controls — general election law or the Home Rule Act. That's what the court is being asked to decide.' Deason said he would file a lawsuit this week for a declaratory judgment requesting the court to schedule the election in conjunction with the primary Aug. 5.

And therein lies the rub. The firefighters want the election held before July 1 which is the official start-up date for merging the departments. They say an election after that date is akin to closing the barn door after the horse is gone. Firefighter Joseph Bialk said the firemen purposely chose to collect signatures totaling 20 percent of the last election rather than 5 percent which would also have put the issue on a ballot. With the 5 percent total, the city could schedule an election at its convenience.

"We wanted a special election, a clear-cut, one-item issue on the ballot that couldn't be muddled.' Bialk said. "Our (petition) language says we will maintain separate police and fire departments. It's simple. You can't mess with that."

The firefighters' efforts to secure a special election will be defeated if the city is allowed to schedule the issue with the primary in August, Bialk said. There will be other issues to concern the voters, he says, diluting the singleissue focus.

The Save Our EMS committee plans to petition the court to force Ortisi to schedule an election before July 1.

"The word I'm getting from the election commission is if you can move the election forward, you can move it backward," Bialk said.

Inspections stopped until after election

One of the casualties of the Park resulting from the unrest over consolidation is the temporary cessation of fire inspections. Sgt. Martin Buss, fire inspector, was temporarily relieved of his duties until after the special election regarding the merger of the police and fire departments.

Fire Chief Phillip Costa said he took the action "for his (Buss') benefit and the city's benefit, so he will not be in a position of doing any politicking.

'It's only a temporary holdback, because of the touchy matter of this election," Costa said. "It's not because he's not a good inspector; he's an excellent inspector.

Buss, who spends about onethird of his time inspecting multiple dwellings and commercial buildings, said the action came at the end of the day that a letter to the editor he wrote was published in the Grosse Pointe News. In the letter, printed March 20, Buss defended the record of the Park's ambulance service and questioned its future under consoli-

"He (Costa) said because of my stand on public safety, the city doesn't want me out be-cause I might politic," Buss said. "I told him I never politic on the job.

Buss said he became the city's first state-certified fire inspector by attending classes in Lansing for eight weeks on his

"I did it to better the department and I really put a lot of effort into it," he said. "This is the first time to my knowledge that the city is without inspections. I really feel they did me an injustice.

Grassroots opponents of the proposed Detroit incinerator gathered Sunday at the plant site at Russell and Ferry to dramatize their protest with balloons. Organizer Paula Hindelang of the City said the balloon launch drew several Detroit officials and about 100 protestors and gangs of TV cameras. It was a balloon launch with a message — tied to each balloon was a note saying that wherever the wind may carry a balloon, it could also carry the pollutants from the incinerator. By Tuesday, balloons had already been reported landing in Ontario and New York state. Shading her eyes to keep track of the balloons is Maureen Hindelang, 7, who was accompanied by her cousin, Gretchen Rector of the Shores.

Plans nearing completion for Old Eight Mile bridge improvement

People tend to take the path of least resistance.

Sometimes, however, that path will make some people cross. Such is the case of Old Eight Mile Road at Harper.

Plans for widening the Eight Mile Bridge at I-94 and improving the westbound exit ramp of the expressway are nearly approved. Some believe this improvement will make for safer conditions at ine busy intersection, but others believe the improvement will prove to be a detriment to residents on nearby residential streets.

Woods, for instance, has intolerable amounts of traffic throughout the day because eastbound drivers using Old Eight Mile use the residential street rather than making a right turn onto Harper to Vernier to get to Mack further east, according to Woods officials.

Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) officials disagree with the assessment that widening the Old Eight Mile bridge from two to four lanes and improving the off-ramp will significantly increase the traffic on residential streets.

Bob Reynolds, an MDOT official, said even though the dential streets is high, (counts have proved this) the figures have no way of showing where the people using the roads are coming from or going to.

"Many people live in that neighborhood or are visitng there," Reynolds said.

"The traffic using those roads is local traffic. That's clearly documented in all studies. People going across Brys Drive live in Local city officials disagree. They have fought the state in court and won an injunction forcing the state to file an Environmental Impact Statement. That was last year and the state has now filed a finding of no significant impact. This will be turned over to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, (SEM-COG), which will make final approval on the bridge-widening project.

Part of the problem with reaching a solution to traffic congestion at the Old Eight Mile and Harper intersection, has been that not all of the eight governments or organizations involved have seen headlight to headlight on the question.

Since the majority of the project will be paid for with federal dollars, the federal government and SEMCOG have a direct interest. The Michgian Department of Transportation, Wayne County, Macomb County, Grosse Pointe Woods, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores all have a vested interest in the project too.

Chester Petersen, Woods clerk/ administrator, said that widening the bridge and improving the westbound off ramp at I-94 could be likened to making a bigger hole to feed an already full vessel.

"It is definitely going to put more traffic than presently on our residential streets," Petersen said. "We have been taking traffic counts yearly. Traffic is already unbearable for residential streets. Add that additional traffic and it will be chaos.'

Petersen said the state could help alleviate the residential street traffic by widening the Vernier/I-94 bridge and improving the Vernier/Harper intersection.

Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson agrees with

"Our job is to move traffic through in a reasonable and safe manner," he said. "The expansion of the old Eight Mile Bridge will have an adverse impact on our residential streets. People choose the path of least resistance. They will avoid the major intersections whenever possible. Using the residential streets to avoid the Vernier/Harper inter-

While the Eight Mile Bridge project is near approval, the final okay has not been given by SEM-

Carmine Palumbo, a SEMCOG official, said the approval granted this project to date has been conditional. SEMCOG will give its final approval based on the results of the environmental impact statement from the state.

The state needs to ask us to re-review the plan before it can be approved," Palumbo said. "The municipalities have the problem of cars filtering into residential streets.

SEMCOG, Palumbo said, will have to discuss the impact statement's findings with the municipalities before it gives final approval.

"You (Grosse Pointe Woods) have got a hell of a situation out there," Palumbo said. "The decision may not be as clear-cut as some people think, if everything I've read is right."

Part of the solution to any problem is cooperation, and last month the three local municipalities involved with the Old Eight Mile question, met and agreed to have an engineering firm look in-to making traffic diverters on the residential streets.

According to Harper Woods City Manager Jim Leidlein, the suggestion is a loop system which would prevent motorists from taking residential streets between Harper and Mack.

"It would essentially be a large cul-de-sac, but would not prohibit access of any local traffic or city services vehicles," Leidlein said. "It would make it somewhat inconvenient for local traffic, but would essentially eliminate all outside traffic.

Petersen agrees that the idea is a good one, and the engineering nary plans for perusal by the city managers soon.

The managers will then take the plans to their city councils and if agreeable to them, the matter would be brought up for public hearings. "We need to get that (residential street) traffic back on to the main thoroughfares," Leidlein said. "The situation on many of the side streets is already a problem — with or without the new bridge construction. The loop system is a possible solution.

The problem for residents in that area isn't new. Patterson, who lives there said 20 years ago there was a rule in his household that when 4 p.m. rolled around, his kids had to pay in the yard.

"The situation has gotten worse since then," he said.

MDOT's Reynolds said he had heard about the municipalities' idea about the looping system, but wasn't sure that would be a good idea.

'If they decide to loop those streets, we would have to do some studies before and after to see what kind of impact it would have on the major intersections," Reynolds said. "We would have to see if that would be creating a prob-

He noted there would not be a problem had Grosse Pointe Woods not sold the rights to the Old Eight Mile thoroughfare to a condominium project which now blocks Brys Drive and forces a sharp "S" curve on the road.

"That was where the natural flow of traffic was," he said. "People who wanted to get west of Harper or east of Mack now have to struggle through the local street system.

That, however, is traffic over the bridge, and many residents are fed up.
Should SEMCOG make final approval on the project soon, construction for the bridge project could begin this summer. The cities' plan, if given the nod by the respective councils could be implemented this year, too.

Traffic on Brys Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods is intolerable at current levels, according to city officials. This was the scene Friday afternoon at about 5 p.m. Each time the light changes at Old Eight Mile and Harper, a flood of traffic heads east. Woods and neighboring city officials are looking at a plan to prevent traffic flow between Mack and Harper.

Ferber said the problem started when teenagers were attracted to an ice cream parlor on the Hill and grew when Richard Place opened.

"It started with young girls, 12, 13, 14 — that attracts the older boys," he said last week.

The proposed changes do not address daytime congregating in the same areas, especially during lunch hour at South High School.

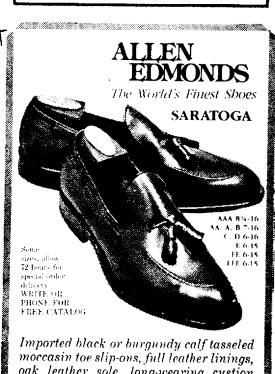

The council agreed to enter the proposed ordinance on the April 21 meeting agenda for discussion.

Grading study to begin soon

The administration will name members to a committee to study the district's grading policies with-in the next two months, according to Superintendent John Whritner.

Since the recommendation in January that the committee be formed, the administration has met with department heads and counselors to discuss the problem, Whritner said. There is enough substance to complaints about the current grading system to warrant the study, he added.

Dr. Joseph Spagnoli, deputy superintendent for instruction, will put together a list of names for possible membership on the committee, including teachers and administrators, Whritner said. Students won't be part of the study committee, but their reaction to the committee's findings will be sought, he

While no definite timetable has been established, the administration would like to get something going this year, with recommendations ready for the board at the end of November, Whritner said. Changes in the system wouldn't be made until 1987-88.

Concern about the grading system was voiced in January in a memo to the board. While the possibility of a weighted grade system was one of the original proposals, the committee will look at all aspects of grading in the system, especially at the high schools, Whritner said.

Possible problems with the present grading system was first brought to light in an October 1984 report from the system's Office of Research and Development.

The report titled "Grade Point Average, College Boards and College Admissions," found that local students received lower grades than students in other districts with similar scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test and other college entrance examinations.

Lower grade point averages of local students hurt them in competitive college admission process, where both test score and grade point where taken into account, the report said. While no recommendations were made in the summary, it was noted that the question would be one for further study.

Psychologist to talk about 'hurried child'

Dr. David Elkind, noted author and psychologist, will speak about his theories concerning "the hurried child syndrome" Monday, April 14, at 7:30 p.m. at the Performing Arts Center of North High Elkin is currently professor of child study and resident scholar at Tufts University in Massachusetts. His best-selling book, "The Hurried Child," offers insight and sugried Child," offers insight and suggestions on ways to help children lessen stress. There is a companion book titled "All Dressed Up and No Place To Go," about teenagers in crisis. Forthcoming is a book titled "The Miseducation of Children: Superkids at Risk."

Elkind's appearance is sponsored by the Substance Abuse Community Council.

Children of the 1980s are hurried children of hurried parents, educa-ted by hurried school systems and bombarded by visual and audio stimuli from a hurried media, according to SAC<sup>2</sup>. By examining the hurried society in which we live, parents may better understand the effects this has on growing children.

SAC<sup>2</sup> has long been concerned with national data that indicates children are being introduced to alcohol and other drugs at younger ages and the social norm for high school students includes their use.

That information reflects society's trend to accelerate the social process and hurry children into adulthood, according to SAC<sup>2</sup>.

SAC<sup>2</sup> has invited Elkin, hoping he may help parents and educators alike to better understand the hurried child. The program is open to the entire community. A donation will be collected at the door. Refreshments will be served.

Community organizations helping SAC<sup>2</sup> to fund the program include PTOs and the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrich-

In the 14th District

It now appears that Grosse Pointers and other residents of the 14th Congressional District will have an opportunity to evaluate for themselves a candidate who is running for Congress as a representative of Lyndon La-Rouche's National Democratic Policy Com-

The committee last week distributed a list of nine Michigan supporters of the quirky committee — which has been disowned by the regular Democratic Party - who are seeking the Democratic nomination for Congress in nine districts, including Rep. Dennis Hertel's 14th District.

The candidate in this district is William Osipoff of Sterling Heights. So far all we know about this Lyndon LaRouche entry is his name, but we assume we'll know more about him before the August primary.

Now that the spotlight of public attention has been turned on the LaRouche movement, perhaps it will decline into the obscurity it deserves. It already has been reported that even some of the candidates it sponsors did not know all of the ramifications of the LaRouche organization which started out as a leftist movement and now has become part of the quirky ultraright.

Of greater importance in the 14th District. however, is the word that the Republican organization is fielding a candidate. Stanley Grot of Hamtramck. He is a native of Poland who runs a popular restaurant and reportedly has a keen interest in public affairs

If both of these candidacies materialize, Hertel will have both primary and general election competition. In one respect that will be a good thing. It will require the congressman to do some campaigning and explain his votes to his constituents.

A start on tax reform?

Like the weather, everyone talks about property tax reform but nobody really does much about it. Now Senate Republican Leader John Engler has said he will appoint a Senate property tax reform committee to study and draft a plan to reduce property taxes. So perhaps something will be done after all about such taxes in Michigan.

Gov. James Blanchard earlier had proposed a tax fairness plan that called for property tax relief but also had included higher taxes on banks, insurance companies and capital gains to offset the losses from additional homestead property tax rebates. Engler proposes to finance additional cuts in property taxes through an increase in the state sales tax from the current 4 percent to perhaps 5 or 6 percent.

At a news conference, Engler said that the problem with the property tax is that it has been a stable resource in generating money, but that it taxes without regard to anybody's ability to pay. A similar complaint could be made, of course, about the sales tax which, as critics have often said, taxes the ability to consume rather than the ability to pay.

Yet the sales tax also does yield revenue from the state's many visitors and tourists whose numbers the state government expects to increase in future years. But a major problem in revising the sales tax is that it is written into the state Constitution at 4 percent and a constitutional amendment would be required to change it. The public might question a rise in the sales tax to pay for lower property taxes on the grounds that the devil they know is preferred to the devil they don't know. Even earmarking the additional sales tax revenue for local governmental purposes might not be all that popular.

It is claimed that Michigan's property tax burden has climbed from 12th highest to sixth highest in just the last eight years. But most of the property taxes are levied on a local basis. They serve as the chief support for local education as well as for the municipalities and the counties of the state. So any additional property tax relief would require some replacement of revenue from the sales tax or some other source.

Some people believe that the benefit to business and industry resulting from a lower property tax would increase revenues to the point that no replacement would be needed but applying such Reaganomics to the revenue problems of local government surely would be unacceptable in the short run and a highly doubtful solution in the long run.

While we think Sen. Engler's proposal deserves consideration, it would be better, in our opinion, if a broader-gauged study could be made of the state's entire tax structure. Boosting and then cutting the income tax, improving the unemployment and workmen's compensation systems and now the proposal for shifting to a heavier dependency on the sales tax are, after all, partial reforms. They tend to serve as band-aids for the moment to alleviate the pain caused by some particularly odious levy, but they do not take into consideration the importance of keeping Michigan in line with its major state competitors with respect to the overall business climate.

Such an overall study ought to concentrate, too, on the needs for state services which seldom are mentioned these days. Instead, most of the emphasis is directed at creating better conditions for economic growth. Too little attention is paid to the appropriate level of spending for education, health, environmental protection, welfare and other services that are so important in determining the quality of life

Yet tax reform has to start somewhere and perhaps Engler's proposal could at least be regarded as a starting point for a broader review of the state's tax situation. His proposal also keeps the tax problem alive for the 1986 campaign - which no doubt was part of his purpose in making it.

Setting the record straight

I would like to set the record straight in response to Elaine Hartmann's letter stating that attendance at the Mayor's Ad Hoc Committee on Traffic was quite good.

My comments in the Grosse Pointe News article of two weeks ago were in reference to the attendance at the last committee meeting. Attendance at that meeting was quite dismal as only three residents of eight residents on the committee were present. Council members and city employees were present. The lack of the other five residents is what constituted poor attendance at this important meeting.

The last committee meeting was very important as the committee was to review an outline submitted by the writer which recommended some changes to the raffic patterns to counts on Moran-McMillan roads. Reducing speeders is good, but traffic count reduction is primary to the problem. We experience high traffic counts because of the corridor which collects non-local traffic all the way from I-94 to the Hill shopping area. Most other streets in Grosse Pointe Farms have some obstacle that breaks traffic and reduces traffic counts (i.e. schools, churches, cul-desac, traffic regulations).

Because of the poor attendance, council members recommended that no decision be made in considering traffic pattern changes on Moran and McMillan roads. It is quite frustrating that in two years, this municipality has not been able to decide on anything to answer the complaints of the 209 residents of Moran and McMillan roads. If our municipal govern-ment moves this slowly, it is unfortunate.

Changes are currently taking place on the Hill with the Cottage Hospital complex and the conversion of the Punch and Judy Theater to increase traffic down our street and our municipality has not taken measures to protect us from these traffic counts. The residents on Moran and McMillan roads do not want to see the traffic count on their narrow streets which are typical of streets like

I hope the above information sets the record straight to the readers of the Grosse Pointe News. I thank you for carrying my response.

The South may rise again

The South may already have dealt the North a major defeat in the 1988 presidential nominating process.

Nine Southern and border states now have voted to hold their presidential primaries on the same date in early 1988, only two weeks after the New Hampshire voting which opens the primary campaign. That means the South could exercise a strong and perhaps decisive influence on the choice of both the Republican and Democratic nominees unless other areas can also organize regional primaries to protect their interests.

The nine Southern states which already have taken action to hold their primaries on the second Tuesday in March, or March 8, 1988, are Mississippi, Maryland, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Oklahoma, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky. Three other states — Texas, Louisiana and North Carolina - are reportedly ready to take the same step and Virginia may do the same. About one-third of all delegates would be up for grabs if these plans materialize.

The Michigan GOP, through its new plan to start the presidential delegate nominating process with the election of precinct delegates in the August 1986, primary, still hopes to improve its clout in the 1988 presidential nominating contest. Vice President George Bush, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and Other GOP presidential hopefuls already have been seeking delegate support in Michigan. So the Michigan

GOP may achieve its aim. Political scientists have been recommending regional primaries for years on the grounds that they could save the candidates time and money. Candidates, for example, might be able to save on TV advertising by broadcasting on regional TV networks to get their messages across. And they could save on travel time and expense by concentrating their activities in a single region.

Ever since the Civil War, the South has been able to form regional alliances to serve political ends and the current strategy is merely an extension of Southern efforts to maximize their political clout through unified action. However, the Southern and border states do have different political agenda. The deep concern of oil states such as Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana over falling oil prices is not shared by all Southern states any more than it is in non-oil producing states in the North, East and West. Nor is the protectionist trade legislation sought by Southern textile states popular among farmers and other interests in the South.

That means the candidates in a Southern regional primary may not be able to use a single message in all the states participating. And those differences in economic and other aims could mean differences in voting patterns that might shatter the unity that the organizers of a Southern presidential primary are seeking. In other words, the South might not unite between one or two candidates in each party.

The New York Times has reported that some Southern Democrats expect the regional primary to increase the prospects of nominating a centrist candidate but other political experts think such an outcome is not a certainty. These experts say that the beneficiary of the Southern regional primary could be the Rev. Jesse Jackson who could win enough black votes to make one of the big winners on the Democratic ticket.

Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, told the Times he expects the adoption of the regional primary will force candidates to start debating the issues right after the 1986 elections, in order to cover both New Hampshire and the Southern states early in 1988. And that leaves out Iowa, with its early caucuses to select presidential delegates, and Michigan, which will begin its delegate selection process

Lacking the motivation that impels the South toward unified action, the other regions of the country are not regarded as likely to reach agreement on regional primaries, say in the Middle West, East or West. But unless they also set common dates for presidential primaries, they are likely to see the South play a bigger and perhaps even a decisive role in the nominating process in one or both of the major political parties.

Politically, at least, it's possible the South

may raise again in 1988.

Consolidation is progress? from our mayor, fire chief, police chief and council members is how our services will be improved under consolidation. It seems awfully strange to me that since our city leaders have started implementing the merger (without the approval of the residents), that they are already cutting services.

Last week the firefighter assigned as fire inspector (who has been very vocal against PSO) was informed that he no longer holds that position and also that the fire inspection project has been abolished. This is progress? And improved services?

I also resent the fact that my tax dollars are being used to promote and advertise an issue that obviously is not what the majority wants (if the petition signatures are any indication).

It makes you stop and ask what other services are going to be abolished in the name of progress and consolidation?

quivocally, yes!

Last week, Jim VandeWynegearde's letter to the editor referred to a program to be presented by the Grosse Pointe Library and the Detroit Gaming Center (a subdivision of the Detroit Department of Recreation). The program, as originally publicized, was titled "Dungeons and Dragons," and Mr. VandeWynegearde expressed grave concerns about the program and the introduction of this game to the Grosse Pointe community.

Jim and I first discussed this program several weeks ago, when the original publicity was released. He expressed many of the same concerns as were expressed in his letter, and I took his concerns to heart. I called Eric Wujcik, director of the Detroit Gaming Center (and presenter of the program), to express these concerns and to explore our options. We both decided that D and D games should be eliminated from the program

There will be no Dungeons and Dragons games; nor will any other games produced by T.S.R. (the company which produces and markets D and D games) be introduced. We will, however, give children a chance to explore the world of "gaming" — participating in fantasy adventures which challenge the mind and intellect without using television, video or anything but the spoken word to capture the imagination.

As a storyteller, I believe such adventures are worthwhile, and that they contribute to the development of faculties we are all-toowilling to abandon when given the option of having the story told to us from beginning to end by a movie or television show. Gaming gives children the chance to create stories, invent new endings, and

After talking to Eric — and Jim (a second time) — I think we are all agreed upon a proper course of action for this program. Now billed as a "Gaming Workshop," the program will consist of an intro-duction to gaming conducted by Eric (whom many of you may recognize as the author of the "Computers" column in the Detroit News), an introduction to role-playing games (again conducted by Eric and his staff), and - finally — an open forum for all to present questions, concerns or problems to either Eric or me. Parents are welcome and encouraged to attend any or all of the above segments.

Dear Marie, Hi, how are you? How's the wife and kids? It's been three months since I've written and, since this is my week for the column, I thought I'd kill two birds with one stone.

How's the weather there these days? The past few here have been the most beautiful I can imagine: warm, sunny and breezy; a typical Mike Michigan spring. But somehow it feels better this year.

It's not been a good winter in Grosse Pointe. Between floods, freezes and blizzards, we've been able to avoid what's become a sad annual event; the fatal alcoholrelated auto accident. To make up for that, what's euphemistically called Sudden Adolescent Death Syndrome, has taken its toll. I don't understand it

Anyway, spring has me a'moving. Last Saturday, instead of writing stories I should have written Friday for the paper, I grabbed my camera and headed for Metropolitan Beach. I went early to do some fishing, but spent a couple hours

New studies implicatecholesterol

It's not news that high cholesterol levels increase an individual's risk of heart disease. But those of us who have been complacent about levels below 200 may have to change our attitude, according to a study presented to an American Heart Association meeting last fall.

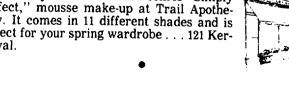

According to the report, the risk increases from levels as low as 182 (milligrams per deciliter of blood). The data removes any doubts about levels in the 182-202 range and their relationship to heart attack, researchers said.

"People in this range are also at increased risk, and not only those with grossly elevated levels over 220," one researcher was quoted as saying.

The study included more than 350,000 men between the ages of 35 and 57 who had never had a heart attack. Their blood cholesterol and blood pressure were measured and a smoking history taken. They were monitored for a period of six years, during which approximately 2,000 heart attack deaths occuredmund L. A.

What our congressmen are hearing from us

By Nancy Parmenter Recent words on everybody's lips: Libya, Honduras/Nicaragua, pollution. When the hot topic has a national or international flavor, Americans tend to bend their congressmen's ears about it.

Grosse Pointers follow that formula, judging from their letters and phone calls to congressmen George Crockett and Dennis Hertel. Both representatives say their constituents get more fed up over Nicaragua than Libya, are more fascinated with terrorism than taxes, and haven't called them about the Detroit incinerator at all.

Last week, some local conservationists were saying that they hoped for assistance from their congressional representatives in the fight to obtain more antipollution equipment on the proposed facility. Both the Audubon and the Sierra clubs had asked the federal Environmental Protection Agency to invalidate the incinerator's permit — and hoped the congressmen would intervene on their behalf.

But it isn't likely to just happen. "I would wait to be asked," said Crockett. He said he prefers to involve himself in local issues only when someone wants him to. Sometimes local officials request his help. If the constituents should ask, "I'd take it up with the city," he said.

Interviews with both congressmen last week indicated that the public has been most interested in the dramatic events surrounding U.S. involvement in the Middle East and Central America. Hertel said he has received some comment on taxes, but that tax reform faces "a long, hot summer and fall" and public interest is likely to increase when the measures come closer to a vote.

Events in recent weeks have apparently solidified the attitudes of both congressmen. Both remain opposed to miliary aid to the Nicaraguan contras, which they expect to come to a vote in the House again within the next week. Crockett expressed continuing suspicion of Reagan administration motives in both Honduras and Libya; Hertel was more supportive in both cases, saying he doubted that the administration was manipulating events.

"I don't like the way the Sandinistas limit freedoms...but I don't see that the contras have the sup-port of the people," Hertel said. "We should work more with other Latin American democracies. All of the allies surrounding Nicaragua are opposed to contra aid." Hertel said that the Nicaraguan want: food for their families... If we're giving $100 million to the contras, we should reflect on how much we're giving to reinforce democracy in friendly countries."

But Crockett doubts that we're getting the straight scoop. "I think the State Department has misled us," he said. "They mislead Congress frequently." The fact that the Honduran president took his family on vacation during the Nicaraguan invasion leads Crockett to doubt the seriousness of the affair, he said. "Something doesn't wash.'

Although Grosse Pointe's congressmen have not changed in their opposition to contra aid, Crockett said he is worried about the outcome of the next vote. "I'm worried that some of my colleagues are too likely to compromise instead of standing on principle," he said. "The administration people "want what all people uses that willingness," playing the House and Senate against each other, he said.

On Libya, Crockett and Hertel are on opposite sides of the fence.

'That was typical of this administration — the bully on the block," said Crockett. "I see problems with the international law. Why wasn't this dispute presented to the United Nations or the World Court? This is the way you back into world wars.

"I'm proud of the great job the men did," Hertel said. "We have the right to keep the sea lanes open. We have to maintain naviga-tion rights for the whole world."

As a member of the House committee that oversees merchant marine affairs, Hertel became particularly interested in the control of terrorism at the time of the hijacking of the Achille Lauro. He said he supports strong anti-terror-ist measures, both domestic and

There are steps the U.S. could take, Hertel said: increased airport security inside the terminal, checkpoints at airport perimeters instead of or in addition to the internal security, for example.

"I tend to favor prevention, like more bomb-sniffing dogs," he said. 'We could stop issuing visas to nations that aren't doing enough to protect travelers. Enough terrible things have happened that we should be looking at the possibili-ties. We're talking about American

GIFTED CLASSES AT THE KINDERGARTEN LEVEL?

At The Grosse Pointe Academy we don't believe that children can or should be labeled gifted at the early ages 3, 4, or 5. We see many students who are bright - in fact, 28 children of our 52 kindergartners last year scored in the 98th or 99th percentile on the composite scores on the Stanford Achievement test for Kindergartners. None of our 52 children scored below the 80th percentile on the test's composite score. Were these gifted students or were they "hot house" kids, with parents who have high vocabularies, who put an emphasis on reading, listening, educational toys and experiences? Our response is "You can't tell yet!" We'd rather have a bright, together child than a precocious prodigy any day, and so would most parents who stop and think about it. Being gifted is a heavy piece of baggage to carry at any age.

The Early School teachers at The Grosse Pointe Academy wish to expand a child's experiences horizontally. We believe children forced to move ahead too quickly can be damaged both socially and emotionally for a short-sighted gain of a year or so of academic knowledge. A child's academic growth comes from interaction with knowledgeable teachers and a rich environment, not from being placed ahead because of a test result.

Kazantzakis, in Zorba The Greek, writes: "I remembered one morning when I discovered a cocoon in the bark of a tree just as the butterfly was making a hole in its case and preparing to come out. I waited a while but it was too long appearing and I was impatient. I bent over it and breathed on it to warm it. I warmed it as quickly as I could and the miracle began to happen before my eyes - faster than life. The case opened, the butterfuly started slowly crawling out, and I shall never forget my horror when I saw how its wings were folded black and crumpled the wretched butterfly tried with its whole trembling body to unfold them. Bending over it, I tried to help it with my breath in vain. It needed to be hatched out patiently and the unfolding of the wings should be a gradual process in the sun. Now it was too late. My breath had forced the butterfly to appear - all crumpled before its time. It struggled desperately and a few seconds later died in the palm of my hand. That little body, I believe, is the greatest weight that I carry on my conscience for I realize today that it is a sin to violate the great laws of nature. We should not hurry. We should not be impatient. But we should confidently obey the eternal rhythm ...

A child's learning, like an emerging butterfly, should not be hurried. Gifted classes at the preschool, kindergarten and primary levels may sound nice, but look into the Montessori educational opportunity before you commit to any program for your child.

MACLD will meet

Michigan Association for Children and Adults With Learning Disabilities will present a program by Linda Treece on Opportunities ir Vocational Education Tuesday, April 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

Treece is chapter advocate for the Birmingham chapter of MACLD, and has been actively involved statewide in the effort to see that all children receive the free and appropriate education to which they are entitled by law. She is currently involved in an effort to upgrade the quality of vocational education offered to children in her home district.

In our increasingly technical society, there is a tremendous need for skilled technicians, but the emphasis in our high schools is still heavily college preparatory. Many L.D. students have difficulty with the academic demands of college prep classes, because of their disability. Good vocational programs offer these students a chance to be successful in high school, and to prepare for a productive life after graduation.

Treece will offer advice on what to expect from a good vocational program, how to tap students' interests and abilities in order to direct them toward a rewarding career, and how to see that their school system fulfills its obligation to provide appropriate career preparation to all its students.

Goats, geese, ducks and chicks milk a cow. The Walt Disney cartoons, "How To Ride A Horse," starring Goofy, and "Reluctant Dragon," will be shown. Hot dogs, popcorn and beverages will be available at a nominal cost.

> Tickets are $3 for children one and up (infants free) and $1.50 for adults, and are available at the War Memorial in advance or at the door. For additional information, call 881-7511.

Dinner dance

The Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue will hold its annual "Person of the Year" dinner-dance Saturday, April 19, at 7 p.m. at the Gourmet House in St. Clair Chosen as this year's Person of the Year is Kathy Forster, of Grosse Pointe Woods, who will be honored for her contributions as chairperson of Mack Avenue U.S.A. Fireworks for the Grosse Pointe communities for the past three years.

Mack Avenue U.S.A. Fireworks is one of the main projects of the association. Each year more Mack Avenue businesses join as sponsors of this event. All business and professional people along Mack Avenue have been invited to the dinner-dance to honor Forster. Community leaders from each of the Grosse Pointes Community leaders have also been invited.

General chairman of the evening is Michael F. Lahey, DDS. Program chairman is Robert Mowbray, of Village Lock & Contractors. Price of the dinner dance is $28 per person, which includes dinner, an open bar and dancing.

Reservations can be made by sending a check to the association, 18000 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe, 48224, or call Lee Meyer at 881-9007

History of the Statue of Liberty

By Marian Trainor

As time draws near for the unveiling of the rebuilt and revitalized Statue of Liberty, it is worthwhile to go back in history and review how that symbol of liberty came to be.

It was, as now, a joint effort of American and French people working together. The completed statue in 1886 was made possible by the contributions of people from both nations. Its reconstruction in 1986 has also been made possible by the pennies and dollars sent in by children and grown-ups from America and France who value the significance of that torch of freedom. Between them they have kept the statue from disintegrating into a rubble of steel and masonry.

In 1870 when the idea was conceived of building a monument, the statue had a particular significance to the French people. It symbolized their respect for the democratic spirit of America. That #### struggles for freedom. He went on to suggest that a memorial be built to American independence, suggesting that it be a group effort.

One of those present was Fredric Bartholdi who volunteered to go to America to spark interest in building a colossal statue to American independence.

When he returned home, he began designing what he thought would be an appropriate symbol. His first effort was a four-foot clay model. The completed model grew to be 151 feet tall.

A noted engineer, Gustave Eiffel who later built the Eiffel Tower, worked with Bartholdi in solving the problems of supporting the weight of the statue. He constructed an iron armature with a method in which weight is distributed inside the framework. It is a technique that allows the statue to contract in the cold and expand in the heat, almost as though it were breathing.

The exterior of the statue was made of hammered copper plates. When it was finished, it was an architectural triumph. It combined the grace and majesty of a statue with the colossal size of a building.

All of this cost money. A French-American Union was formed. Its goal was to raise funds for the statue from the French people. A national lottery was held. More than 200 towns and cities in France contributed and more than 100,000 people sent in small donations.

In this country a committee set about doing its part. Architect Richard Morris Hunt was chosen to design a base. His design called for a base 52 feet high and a pedestal to rise 89 feet above the founda-

But funds for the base came in slowly. The sponsors had a hard time persuading Congress to accept the statue as a gift and to provide a site. Not one wealthy person signed a check, although the cost of $300,000 was no more than that of a private car of many a railroad president.

The project was saved from a certain death by a Hungarian immigrant who had fought in the Civil War and them became a successful journalist. His name was Joseph Pulitzer, owner and publisher of the "world," a daily for working people.

In addition to running a series of stories, Pulitzer published the the child who could afford only a penny. It worked and the statue was saved.

While the pedestal was being built in New York, the statue remained in Paris. For two years it stood majestically above the Paris skyline. When the time came to ship the statue to the United States, the French people were reluctant to see it go.

A group of Americans living in Paris understood. They had a 35-foot model of Bartholdi's statue cast in bronze as a memorial for the French people.

After it was shipped, the enormous task of assembling the parts and anchoring the completed form to the base remained.

When the great day came for the unveiling, it dawned raw and rainy but that didn't stop one million people from gathering along five miles of streets to watch the biggest parade in New York's history. President Grover Cleveland and his cabinet arrived by special train from Washington. The French ambassador and other French dignataries came. The governor of New York and his staff attended and even an Astor and J.P. Morgan who had refused to contribute to the fund vied for seats of promin-

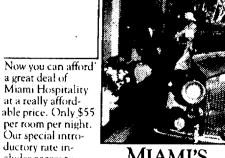

It was difficult to get a good view of the statue because of the rain, but when Bartholdi tugged the cord and the great tricolor fell aside, revealing the gleaming copper face of Liberty, the harbor exploded in a panorama of noise.

When the hubbub died down, President Cleveland in his acceptance speech, spoke the most eloquent words of any of his speeches, ending with . . . "a stream of light shall pierce the darkness of ignorance and man's oppression until Liberty enlightens the world.

When Bartholdi and Eiffel created a monument to liberty in 1886, they thought it would stand forever. They had not foreseen the effects of time on the statue or the damage that water, salt, air, dirt and pollution could cause. In 1970 two committees was formed; the French American Committee for the Restoration of the Statue of Liberty in France and the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation in the United States.

As in the previous century, money was needed to be raised. Lee Iacocca was named to chair the American committee. And just as they had 100 years earlier, thousands of ordinary citizens con-tributed what they could. The French were equally generous.

The task of reconstruction was an enormous undertaking. But on July 4, 1986, the Statue of Liberty will stand bright and beautiful and beckoning, holding aloft a beacon of light signalling to all the world that on these shores there is free-

Lyric baritone William Parker, standing, and composer/pianist/ author Ned Rorem will present a recital of Rorem's songs for Pro Musica Friday, April 18.

Recital is April 18

Composer-pianist Ned Rorem and lyric baritone William Parker will present the Pro Musica Society's final concert this season Friday, April 18, at the Recital Hall of the Detroit Institute of Arts at 8:30 p.m.

In bringing Rorem, who is generally recognized as the world's most priminent living writer of art songs, Pro Musica is continuing a 58-year tradition of presenting the world's leading composers in performances of their own music. Rorem will be the 25th on a list that includes some familiar names - Ravel, Bartok, Prokofiev, Poulenc, Copland, Milhaud, Creston, and most recently George Crumb, to name a few.

The recital program will consist of two groups. The first is a series of French art songs by Claude Debussy which influenced the development of Rorem's style. The balance of the program will be Rorem's settings of poems by Robert Herrick, Paul Goodman and Walt Whitman.

Parker, a frequent star at the New York City Opera and leading regional companies, has been honored in the United States and Europe.

The recital will be followed by a light buffet and social hour in the museum's Romanesque Hall.

Tickets are $15 (half price for students) and can be arranged in advance by calling 885-0793. They will also be available at the door.

Two to run for Pointe education board

Two candidates made the filing deadline for the one seat open in the June 9 Board of Education election.

Board President Jon Gandelot announced his intent to run for a third term last month. Also filing petitions before the Monday, April 7, deadline was Cynthia Pangborn, who finished fourth in a field of four candidates in last June's elec-

A lifelong Grosse Pointe resident, Pangborn is a graduate of Northwood Institute. She has 17 years of experience as a special education, music and Sunday School teacher. She is also a member of the Kerby PTO, Health Education Council, Theatre Arts and is also active in her church.

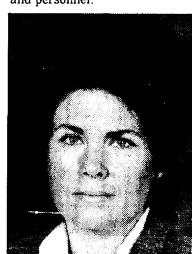

She, husband James and their three children live in the Farms. She was unable to be reached to talk about the upcoming cam-

After the Monday night board meeting, Gandelot said he was not running against Pangborn, but on his record.

"People should judge me on my record," he added.

Gandelot was unopposed when he sought re-election in 1982, but was one of three trustees who fought off a recall attempt in 1984. In each of his eight years on the board, he has served as an officer, including three terms as president and three as treasurer.

The two have until 4 p.m. today to withdraw their nominations if they wish, according to Ronald Tonks, director of labor relations and personnel.

Retirements, shortages mean changes

Those who purchase the membership investment plan will receive a yearly payment equal to 3 percent of their base pension.

In all cases there are improved medical, health and survivor benefits available to retiring school staff under the legislation.

Figuring into the retirement decision is Social Security. While some advise that waiting until the end of the calendar year to retire - the middle of the school year means more in Social Security benefits, Keeling said the difference between the December and June announcement isn't worth the effort.

"My gut feeling is that teachers will wait until the end of the school year to retire," he said. Emotional bonds develop between teacher and class — bonds not easily broken mid-year.

But Grosse Pointe Education Association president Doris Cook disagrees. From those she has talked to about how the benefits are calculated. Cook said she feels it may be better for teachers to retire in December, not June.

The more full years of employment recorded by teachers and staff will translate into higher pension benefits from Social Security, she said. Retiring in June will mean another fraction of a year being calculated into a person's work history.

MEA program

To help teachers figure the best plan for them, the MEA has put out a variety of materials, including a computer program that employees can use to calculate potential pensions.

The program takes employees' current salaries, the age they plan to retire, in how many years they plan to retire, the number of years of service they will have, the annual percent increase in salary and the rate of federal income tax or amount of current taxable income. With that, the computer can calculate what pensions will be under the two plans.

Annual salary increase is up in the air, however. The MEA has committed itself to a 30-60-90 plan. The association would like a starting teacher salary of $30,000 for those with bachelor's degrees and a maximum of $60,000 for those with a master's and 10 years of experience to be in place by 1990.

The growing demand for teachers and outstate recruiters offering starting salaries higher than those in Michigan — already the beginning of the school year at among the nation's highest may force state school districts to raise salary schedules to keep teachers.

Retiring remains a personal decision, not governed by dollars and cents, Keeling said. "At some point, we all know when it's time to retire."

When he's asked, Keeling said he tells people the choice boils down to dollars versus days: Is it worth spending all the time to build up a big pension and have few years to enjoy it or is it preferable to take a smaller pension and have more time.

The state expects the number of teachers retiring this year to double over last year — from about 3,000 to 6,000, Keeling said. That's just catch-up for past years when people weren't retiring, he added.

Local strategy

How the district deals with the retirements depends on how many people retire, Whritner said. There are "shades of the 1950s" in the problem of finding new teachers, with the district trying to develop strategies to sell itself to applicants.

It's been a long time since Grosse Pointe has had to send recruiters to college campuses, but that's a possibility being looked into, he added. It hasn't been since the 1950s, when the first wave of the Baby Boom broke across schools, that teachers have been in such short supply.

"That was one of the things we were all familiar with but something we haven't had to do for a period of time," Whritner said. 'In that sense, it's probably healthy; it's sharpening our sense of salesmanship.

'It's extremely difficult to know what to do until we know what we're looking at," he added.

The number of teachers eligible to retire who should be encouraged to stay is a sticky point. A teacher with a master's degree can earn almost $37,500 while a teacher with a bachelor's can earn almost $33,800 annually.

There are also different salary levels to award teachers for having more education and to encourage present teachers to keep up their education.

New teachers hired by the system, with less education and less experience, could start at salaries almost 40 percent below the maximum. The school system has been offering new teachers credit for years of experience this year and has started some of those hired at salaries higher than the base start-

Districts will save money on salaries, Whritner conceded, adding, "We recognize we're going to lose some really, truly outstanding people and they're going to be replaced with new ones.

"... Obviously, that gives us some flexibility as a system because - it sounds crass to say it - there will be a savings," he

Any savings from retirements should go right back into the schedule, though, according to Cook. The extra money could be used to offer at salaries higher than the base starting salary.

The work of staff development and evaluation committees, two of seven board goals for this school year, has become more important considering the need to keep teachers in classrooms. Educators may find the financial rewards of private industry greater than teaching and leave teaching at a time when there aren't replace-

"We're kind of at a checkpoint here," Whritner said. The district can't go too far in planning programs until the committees' recommendations are in.

Retirements = savings

Retirements among administrators can mean money saved. Salary ranges for positions from maximum to minimum are $12,000 to $18,000. Someone at the maximum who retires could be replaced with a person making considerably less money under the administrative compensation plan approved last year by the school board. The money saved won't be as dramatic as with teacher retirements. There are only 37 administrators, not counting five administrative interns.

Finding future administrators means an extra burden on teaching ranks, since some promotions will be in-house - from classroom to school or board office. Getting qualified administrators to replace those who retired is going to be as challenging as finding new teachers.

The internship program has meant some people who could move up to administrative positions, but there are some problems, Whritner said.

"We have interns, but they're there as sort of quasi-administrators, in place of administrators as a different way of providing a service," he said. "I've indicated that, hopefully as soon as next year, we will be out of the intern business for that reason.

"If we have need of administration, let's put administrators in and have them in place," he

The internship program offers opportunities for career enhancement and advancement for teachers, two positive things, Whritner

Training administrators becomes more important when the number of new teachers coming into the system is considered. Future administrators are going to find they have a greater supervisory role, at least for a while.

"That's going to spill over directly on the teacher supervision area because there's going to be much more of a need for administrators who are well-trained in supervising the teaching process because they're going to be playing a much larger interim role than they ever have," he said.

The district has sent out a newsletter to teachers talking about what's being looked for in future administrators. People will find working in the system can be both positive and negative in the hiring process, Whritner said.

"It's paramount for the system to encourage people inside the system to apply and provide them with the training and support in their endeavors," he said. There needs to be a balance of inside and outside hiring, to keep up the flow of new ideas into the system.

In his Real Talk newsletter to the staff about future hirings, Whritner ended by saying, "... Grosse Pointe has and must always seek and gain the very best. The children of the community deserve no less.

The same applies for teaching candidates.

"I think it's healthy to begin looking further afield than Michigan for teachers," Whritner said.
"A diverse faculty is an advantage. It's healthy for any organization to have new ideas coming in. This will give us an opportunity to go out and look for and have those new ideas and be brought into some of the new research that's coming along currently on effective teaching.

Changes ahead for state schools-

passage of the retirement law for the teacher shortage.

When MEA president Larry Chunovich came to Grosse Pointe in February, he had a decidely different view.

"Really no one new is eligible to retire, but I think many more people will elect to retire because in fact the benefits are there, particularly the health plan," he said. The age of state teachers is only one of four causes for the shortage of teachers.

While 6,000 to 8,000 teachers may retire annually in the next five years, there are only 3,100 students enrolled in teacher colleges in the state, Chunovich said.

Only about half of those in teacher college will go on to classroom teaching jobs. Twenty percent will end up in out-of-state school systems, leaving only 30 percent to fill jobs in Michigan

Colleges of education have almost closed their doors to new students, Chunovich said. "Their departments have dwindled parallel to declining enrollments. Some of them are even suggesting that they're at capacity now and that capacity can't meet the de-

Education departments at state colleges and universities have traditionally been low-priority, fighting for survival in times of increasing costs and decreasing numbers of students, Chunovich said. Some things have to be done to draw people into programs to get the necessary education to become teachers, he added.

Adding to the teacher shortage will be retirement of administrators, more than half of whom statewide could retire in the next five years, Chunovich said. "I would suggest that those positions, if filled, will be filled with those people who are currently practitioners; classroom teachers," he added.

The fourth factor is teachers' salaries, which have to raise to bring people into the field and keep them there, Chunovich said. Just as important as money is the improvement of the image and perception of being a teacher, he added.

"To speak about higher salaries and rewarding careers is one thing, but if young people today don't perceive a change in the image, in the status of teaching, again.

then I don't think they're going to be fooled by rhetoric.

"Kids today are looking for jobs that will offer them a chance to make a contribution," he added. School districts are already competing sharply for available teachers, Chunovich said. There are reports that some districts allow teachers to bring years of experience with them to start at higher rates of pay.

The mobility of teachers has been dramatically stifled in the past, he added. Teachers weren't likely to give up seniority in one district to move to a new system to start at the bottom of the ladder, subject to lay-off if enrollment dropped off.

"The chances of survival in the face of declining enrollment was little to none," Chunovich said. "Now that you have shortages, you're going to see a much more mobile profession.'

Salaries need to increase, not simply to attract new teachers, but to keep current teachers in the classroom, Chunovich said. "We can't have a lot of teachers bailing out on us right now when we're not geared up for a transition that won't jolt the system.

"Teachers are being pulled away because they either want to experience an entrepreneurial venture or they are being attracted by high tech, industry or other areas they had thoughts about going into and, though they really wanted to teach, they found out it wasn't as rewarding as they first thought," he said.

"I certainly think by 1990 or 1995 we'll find a severe shortage across all disciplines, especially the fine arts," he added.

The future

Where will the new teachers come from?

The scenario goes like this. Eventually, college students will see the difference in image and pay for teachers as being signs of a viable, lifetime career. The additional certification require-ments will be seen as adding to the professionalism of teachers, making it more satisfying.

Changes in the workplace, either through training programs or things designed to remove the repetition and drudgery from teaching, will make the working conditions more desirable. People will want to become teachers

The Grosse Pointe Academy's
Action Auction '86

an evening of

Saturday, May 10th

The problem is what to do until 'eventually" comes along.

"We all have to work together to insure that as a result of the shortage, we don't get to a point where we're grabbing warm bodies off the streets and throwing them into a classroom as hap-pened in the 1960s," Chunovich

Grosse Pointe shouldn't have any trouble attracting candidates because of its salary schedule, Whritner said. Good money and a reputation for excellence will help the system continue to draw top candidates for its classrooms.

"Initially, I would anticipate a certain degree of working off of people out there we haven't drawn on in the past," Whritner said. That includes a quickly shrinking pool of substitute teachers, those who hold teaching certificates who haven't used them in classrooms and those looking to reenter the job market, he added.

Chunovich agreed, saying the MEA knows there are a lot of people holding teaching certificates out there who aren't using them. Recertification could mean entrance into a new career at a time when it's a seller's market.

The changing demographics of student populations will also have its effect. There's been a small surge in pre-kindergarten and kindergarten-age kids in districts throughout the state, while the number of high school students continues to fall. High school

couple years because of declining enrollment may look into what it takes to get their elementary educertificate, Chunovich

There's precedent for such a move, he added. In the days when elementary school populations were falling, grade-school teachers were advised to go back to school to get a certification in special education, one of the only fields in which enrollment was increasing, Chunovich said.

Staff development

Staff development is going to become more important in the years to come as the system looks to attract and keep only the best of its candidates, Whritner said. Although there's a shortage, that's no reason for the system to lower its standards and accept performance that isn't adequate. There will also be talk of reinstating the system's orientation program, he added.

There's a repetiveness to the profession that needs to be broken, not only through sabbaticals, but possibly through offering leaves for curriculum or other enrichment work, Whritner said. "In a sense, we've got an opportunity here while the changes are taking place to be looking at different approaches and ways to use our talent," he added.

Although there may be a shortage of teachers, there's no reason to bring untrained people into the teachers facing a pink slip in a classroom to teach, Chunovich think everybody wants to resist bringing warm bodies in off the street. We feel academic training is absolutely essential," he said. "We would still resist trying to get someone out of engineering in industry to come in and handle a few classes here and there without the other kinds of training.

There are a lot of elements that are more subjective than objective that are significant if there is to be some learning going on in that classroom. Many of us remember the days when we dragged in warm bodies because they had certain credentials and I

"It's one of those little signs that the problem isn't resolved. but we have to be doing something right to help build the atmosphere to the way it needs to be," Chunovich said.

NEED MORE ROOM? INVEST IN YOUR PROPERTY

Construction costs have doubted in the past 10 years and real estate values have increased accordingly. If you invest today, in improving your property (residential or commercial) the value of your property will increase immediately and CONTINUE to increase along with the costs of construction and real estate. The real estate you own is today's best investment. What would the value be today, of a luxury automobile purchased 10 years ago? In comparison, an improvement to your property would have DOUBLED in value over the same period!

If you've been thinking of improving your property, DO IT NOW! With financing rates back to an affordable rate and construction costs continuing to rise, why hesitate? Enjoy your new living space while you benefit from the added value of your property! Customcraft will remodel to suit your wants . . . and we do the whole job, from planning to finish.

We have been planning & building additions for 30 years, we are competitive, competent, insured, licensed and we guarantee our work for five years! Call today for a no obligation consultation

A LOT OF OTHER SPORTS SEDANS ARE DRIVEN BY PEOPLE WHO WAITED TOO LONG TO GET A SAAB.

In the last few years, we've had to say "No" to a lot of prospective Saab customers.

We hate to do it, but we've had a lot more customers than cars at times. Imagine the disappointment of a customer who has watched his neighbor fill up to 56 cubic feet of luggage space in his Saab, when he has to settle for a sports sedan with less than a third of that capacity. Maybe he's even ridden in a Saab for long enough to appreciate its superb handling and outstanding comfort, but just didn't move fast enough to get a Saab for himself.

If you want to own a 1986 Saab, you really should see us about it soon.

Consultants will study library expansion

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Two sets of consultants will study the public libraries' space needs and possible construction of an addition to Central Library.

Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library president Dr. Ned Chalat and members of the Friends' committee who looked at the longrange plan for the library system came before the Board of Education Monday night to talk about their proposals.

The cost of the consultants is expected to be about $20,000, half of which will be paid by a donation from the Friends. The rest will be budgeted for in the coming fiscal year's library budget. 'We basically feel the library is living and well and doing a good job in the community," Chalat said. "We do have some concerns and that's why I'm here tonight."

The limited space at the library means no permanent collection, no music collection, no research room, no security system and no computer room, among other things, Chalat said.

Basically, the library functions today as a large reading room," he The long-range planning committee — former library Director William Peters, Frank Slayden needs, how to preserve the architecture of the present building and how to sell the building plan to the and Chalat — met in January to discuss the need for consultants. It was also decided that the Friends would pay half the cost of the

With the victory of the library millage in March, it was decided that this was the time to move on the project, Chalat said. Coming before the board was to forewarn them of the $10,000 allocation in the coming budget.

The Friends decided to go with two sets of consultants to avoid any possible conflict of interest by choosing a single company, Chalat

Among the questions to be answered by the building consultant is whether or where an addition can be made to the central library, what can be done to eliminate crowding of personnel, security, energy conservation and ways to design any new construction so new personnel don't need to be hired for supervision.

The consultants should also deto provide for present and future community.

Needs assessment consultants will be asked why type of services will be needed in the future, what space is needed and whether more staff should be added, how to incorporate non-traditional services into the operation, is there need for more personal service and how computerization fits into the system.

Needs consultants will also have to answer other questions, like funding the project, lack of parking and space, changes in demographics and support for library programs, alternate funding for library programs and what can be learned from other libraries that have faced similar problems.

The consultants will work over this summer on the proposals, which will be presented in September for review by the planning committee. The final draft of any building proposal could be ready for board perusal by February, 1987, with work to begin that July side where book stacks are to be located, how to design the building according to a timeline distributed by the Friends.

Larcenies down in City by 30 percent

By Peter A. Salinas

Larcenies in the city of Grosse Pointe dropped by 30 percent in 1985, down to 152 complaints from 216 in 1984.

The city's year-end report was released by Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy, who said his department increased number of miles it patrolled.

Breaking and enterings, however, increased by 26 percent, -18 reported in 1985 compared to 13

'We has an extra car patrolling this past year to keep an eye on the Village during the night-time hours," he said, noting the increase in break-ins were of the smash-and-grab variety.

"I feel that these types of crimes have for the present been brought under control through the use of stationary plants and increased patrols through the Village shopping area." Kennedy's year-end report stated.

"We met the problem with common sense and we're happy with the results," he said. "But we can't sit back on our laurels."

Part I crimes (the more serious offenses) decreased by 22 percent. Some 203 offenses were reported in 1985, compared to 275 in 1984.

There was one armed robbery in 1985, and no homicides or rapes excessive individual false alarms reported. Auto thefts also declined, from 20 in 1984 to 12 in High visibility, good police work and a little luck helped keep the crime figures down in the 1.4 square mile city last year, according to Kennedy.

"We encourage people to call in whenever there's a problem,' Kennedy said. "They are our eyes and ears out on the streets.'

Kennedy said there was no significant drop in crime from 1984 to '85, and that even a 30 percent drop does not accurately reflect a trend when dealing with a drop from three to two in a particular

"There has been a significant drop in breaking and enterings and larcenies from the early '80s," he said.

One serious problem the city is going to look into in coming months is the number of home and business false police and fire alarms. There were a total of 555 combined police and fire alarms in 1985 and some 534 of those were false alarms.

He noted the department provides a number of services to the city's residents. The department handled over 600 automobile lockouts and regularly assists residents with a hundred of minor problems.

'The false alarms are a problem," he noted. "We are presently averaging about 1.5 a day. It hasn't impacted to the point where it is affecting our ability to perform our jobs, but we are going to look into finding a way to reduce those false alarms.

"A number of the alarms during the course of the year is due to carelessness. Some communities have legislation where it is possible to fine a resident who has more than three false alarms during the course of a year.' On the whole, Kennedy is pleased with the performance of his department. He said there has been no citizens' complaints against members of his department and the first three months of 1986 have gone very smoothly.

"We're on the same course we were last year and that's good," he concluded.

Shores annual report shows crime is low

By Nancy Parmenter

Crimes in Grosse Pointe Shores were as low as ever in 1985, statistics in the annual public safety report show.

'We haven't had any serious, violent crimes, which are the type people worry about," said Public Safety Director Joseph Vitale. "The men are doing a fabulous job and I also give credit to quick reporting on the part of the residents. I hope they keep that up.'

Most police statistics in the Shores were in single or double digits, with the exception of traffic citations (2,114), dog licenses sold (166), disorderly persons (115) and persons investigated

(3,988).The most frequent police activity was checking empty houses whose owners were on vacation. In 1985, the department made 12,705 checks, down from 14,198 in 1984. Checking houses is one method of reducing burglary statistics, Vitale said.

The Shores experienced no murders, no armed robberies, no kidnappings or rapes. There were six breakings and enterings and one attempt, down from 10 and one in 1984. The numbers are so small that rendering them in per-centages is irrelevant, Vitale

The department made 16 house fire runs (seven the year before) and responded to 22 false fire alarms. It received and extended mutual fire aid with other Pointe cities six times.

The department also assisted at 26 accidents, seven automobile

Spring Spectacular

Fontbonne fashion show to pull out stops to benefit St. John Hospital pediatrics

By Elsa Frohman

When the St. John Hospital Fontbonne Auxiliary puts on its Spring Spectacular fashion show and luncheon on April 25 at the Riverview Ballroom in Cobo Hall, no effort will be spared to make this the most memorable show ever.

"This is going to be one of the five major fashion shows in Michigan this year," said Victoria Keys, general chairman for the event. "It was a year and a half in the making."

"We will be making a fresh, new statement," said Patricia Oshtosh, president of the auxiliary. "This will usher in a whole, exciting new era in fashion shows. It will be total entertainment."

Spectacular is a good descriptive word for the program the auxiliary has planned. Staged by Crowley's Department Store, the production will include a 132-runway, a giant video screen, 12 x 19-feet, upbeat music, special effects and professional choreography

Crowley's is taking a large role in the benefit, producing the show at no cost to the auxiliary.

When we started out with this project, our motto was 'We're in this together.' Now, it is 'Working together works.'

- Pat Oshtosh, Fontbonne president

"This is going to be entertainment," said Mark Ratajczak, director of fashions for Crowley's. "There is going to be no narration, or any of those things that bog down a fashion show. It's going to be like watching a play. There will be plenty of music and visuals. We'll be using big props to dramatize the fashions and an elaborate set."

Ratajczak said the show would be unique, never staged before and never to be staged again.

"And there will be a few surprises," he said.

The show will open with a video presentation on the pediatrics units at St. John Hospital, the beneficiary of the program. The presentation was produced by Dennis Codish of D.C. Productions.

Thirty professional models will strut and dance down the runway to the choreography of Bonnie Suder, a nationally known professional

The fashions will include something for almost anybody, from career looks, to men's and children's clothing, to large and half-size fashions.

"I'm sure you've been to some fashion shows that put you to sleep and some that were fun," Ratajczak said. "But we're promising that this one will be fun."

For chairman Keys, the April 25 show will be the culmination of 18 months of planning and hard work. Oshtosh approached her to spearhead the show before the auxiliary's last show even took place.

"She has an effervescent personality," Oshtosh said of Keys. "She is hard working and has a dedicated attitude. She has a lot of good ideas."

"I wanted to do something totally different," Keys said

Keys previous experience includes planning the auxiliary's raffle in 1983. She has been a volunteer for the hospital since May of 1978. She volunteered in the nursing education department for eight years.

"It's been my good fortune to be working with a committee that is not only talented by hard working," Keys said. "This makes our show extra special."

In addition to the regular tickets at $25 per person, the group is selling four levels of patron tickets, silver, gold, diamond and platinum.

"The response (to the patron tickets) has been wonderful," Oshtosh said.

There will be two drawings in connection with the event, the main drawing and a mini drawing. There will also be 600 door prizes. Nearly half the attendees will walk away winners, Keys said.

"Local merchants have been very generous donating prizes," Keys continued.

Among the prizes in the two drawings will be $5,000 in cash, a pearl and amethyst pendant valued at $6,000, an 18-karat gold lady's watch, a-19-inch, remote control color television set and many other items, all donated by local merchants and individuals.

Assisting Keys is Rose Regner, co-chairman, and Zelinda Eugenio, honorary chairman.

Other committee chairmen are Christine Drummy, advisory committee; Catherine Andary, Helen Arends and Barbara Cavanaugh, centerpiece sales; Judy Cousino and Sherry Boyle, decorations; Honoria Roshak and Virginia Ficarra McNamara, door prizes; Mary Tulloch and Phyllis Kozlowski, hostesses; Sister Verenice McZuade, SSJ, director of the Fontbonne Auxiliary; and Oshtosh.

Other committee chairmen include: Pattie Klimchuk and Sharon Snyder, invitations; Mary Lou Le-Fevre and Carolyn Wujek, patrons; Rita Haller and Theresa Paola, program book; Marilee Rinke, Sally Shield and Patricia Gardella, drawing; Mary Matta and Regina Ondrik, mini raffle; Anne Gregorich, secretary; Betty Ireland, Betty Deneau, Mary Lou

Slezaks to host music summer festival preview

With the excitement of celebrating its 29th year, plans are well underway for the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Summer Music Festival. Founded by Alexander Suczek to present quality musical presentation in the outdoor, lake-side setting of the War Memorial, the Monday night concerts will range from the Grosse Pointe Symphony — ala Boston Pops style — the the Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band.

This year the Arts Festival committee chaired by Johanna Gilbert, assisted by Hixie Sanford and Marge Slezak as well as Marge Jewell, Mel Stander, Delores Shaheen, Bill and Joan Quinlan and Harriet Lafer, have arranged an incentive for early purchase of season tickets.

Slezak will open her Windemere Court home on April 17 to Summer Music Festival subscribers who have purchased season tickets by April 14. Seven concerts, lawn seating, are priced at $40; seven concerts, reserved seating is $60. Benefactor tickets for the Summer Music Football and the Summer Seating Music Festival are $300 and include two tickets per concert, picnic suppers, reserved seating as well as program listing. Patrons will receive one ticket per concert, reserved seating and program listing for $100.

To subscribe for season tickets, send your check to the War Memorial written for Summer Music Festival.

Marge Slezak will open her Windemere Court home for a season ticket holders party for the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Summer Music Festival on April 17.

Lakeshore Drive — the former homesite of Henry Ford II — was a dream-come-true for Marge and George Slezak. With their family gone, the Slezaks wanted to remain in the Grosse Pointes but with scaled down housing needs. They were looking for a condominium. When the developer announced plans for the traditional designed, detached cluster condos, the Slezaks were the first to sign up with a deposit.

As the first occupants of Windemere Place, the Slezaks have a commanding view of Lake St. Clair. Decorating by Daniel Clancy of Perlmutter & Freiwald, Inc. accents the Slezaks extensive art collection in the marble foyer and brings waterfront living into the home with its airy, unobstructed flow of color throughout the house, accented with stunning objects d'art as well as whimsical wallcovering. Bright morning glories frame the windows in the break-

Checks should be mailed to the War Memorial to insure your spot on the terrace and lawn for beautiful concerts, as well as an opportunity to see Windemere Court, the beautiful home of George and Marge Slezak.

Women of Wayne plan luncheon

The Grosse Pointe chapter of Women of Wayne will host its annual luncheon Saturday, April 19. Eleanore Yard will highlight the afternoon as she creates floral sculpture interpretations of French composers called "A La Vignette Française.

Yard, a Master of the Ohara School of Ikebana, will bring a visual delight, serenity, humor and inspiration while creating floral works of art.

After studying art at Michigan State University and the Univer-sity of California, Yard remains very active as she is president and founder of the Ann Arbor Chapter of Ohara School of Floral Art, an instructor of Ikebana at University of Michigan Botanical Gardens, and is past president of Ikebaba International.

The noon luncheon will be preceded by cocktails at 11:30 a.m. Reservations at $15 per person may be made by sending remittance payable to Women of Wayne to Mary Younke, 2005 Kenmore, Grosse Pointe Woiods, 48236.

Exchange Club Bowl-A-Thon to help prevent child abuse

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores will sponsor its fourth annual Bowl-A-Thon on Saturday, May 17, from 7 p.m. until midnight at the Shorecrest Lanes, 23117 Harper in St. Clair Shores. The Bowl-A-Thon is open to any individual or team that wishes to participate and bowlers will not be charged for their three games of bowling.

Individual bowlers are asked to obtain pledges from their friends and neighbors. The pledges, usually ranging from 1 cent per pin to 10 cents per pin are then collected by the bowler which is matched against their three game pin count.

All funds are then turned over to The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores, which, in turn, utilizes the funds to help prevent child abuse and other youth-related activities in the local area. All pledges obtained are tax deductible and receipts will be giv-

"This is our fourth year in holding this event. Last year, well over one hundred bowlers participated and we raised almost $5,000. This year we would like to double the number of bowlers and the amount raised," said Ralph DeFour, chair-

Members of regular bowling leagues are also asked to participate, either on May 17 or prior, during one of their league nights. The score for their regular three game series on a league night can be used to obtain pledges. They may obtain pledge sheets by calling Ralph DeFour at 881-8970.

Theater party

Grosse Pointe residents, Frances Sultzman, left, and Evelyn Horn put finishing touches on plans for a theater party which will benefit the Physical Therapy Department at Saratoga Community Hospital. The gala affair will take place at the Attic Theater on Saturday, May 10, with curtain time 9 p.m. The featured play is William Gibson's "Monday after the Miracle." Guests will be greeted after the performance by the cast and invited to tour the back stage. An champagne afterglow party will begin at 11 p.m. Donations for the benefit are $35 per person or $60 per couple. Advance ticket purchase is required. The public is invited to attend. # Dick Johns: Passing on the baton

By Elsa Frohman

On April 13, at 3 p.m., at Parcells Middle School, Dick Johns will conduct his last concert for the Grosse Pointe Community Chorus. On that day, an era of 21 years of music for the plain joy of it will draw to a close. The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus will go on, but no more will Johns be its driving

"I've never been able to travel much," Johns said. "I felt my wife and I needed time to see more of this country." Johns said he intends to remain as choir director for Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church.

"I've enjoyed it," he said. "And it isn't that I'm not enjoying it now. It's just too much.'

Johns has always had a special attachment to music. As a teenager, it seemed he would pursue a career as a professional musician, but after serving in the U.S. Air Force in World War II, more practical concerns overcame him and he made music his avocation, subbordinate to his job in the accounting department at General Electric.

Johns retired from GE last spring, and now hopes to return to his first musical instrument, the violin.

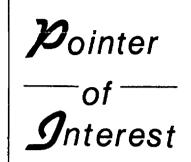

"I haven't touched it (the violin) in 15 years," he said. "But that's another thing I want to do. I want to get back into it and practice."

Johns took his first violin lessons at the age of 11. But instrumental music wasn't his only love and when he was only 16, he became the choir director of his family's Methodist church in Quincy,

"I had gotten into the church choir when I was 14 or 15," Johns said. "My mother and dad were both soloists. The choir director moved away and they needed a new director."

Johns remained as choir director until he entered the service five years later. At the same time, he was developing his skills as a violinist. When he was a senior in high school, he won a contest which admitted him to the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. He also played the violin in Arthur Fiedler's National Youth Administration Symphony for two years.

"Fiedler was a bear to work for," Johns said. "But I was unhappy when the war came and pulled me away."

In 1970, 30 years after he left Fiedler's orchestra, the conductor came to the Detroit area to play a "Pops" concert. Johns went to the concert and afterwards went backstage.

"He turned around and said, 'Yes?' I said, "Mr. Fiedler, you probably don't remember me . . . He said, 'Johns, first violin, fourth stand.' We had a nice conversa-

Over the years since he gave up music as a profession, Johns has continued his involvement in choral music, while his interest in the violin fell away.

"You have to work awfully hard with the violin to keep up," he said. In 1962, Johns was transferred to Detroit. He bought a house in Grosse Pointe. He soon joined the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church and became involved in the choir. It was a change — he had been a Methodist before — but he says the change made little differ-

'When you're in music, denomination doesn't mean as much. I heard the choir and liked the sound. I didn't mean to get so involved. I just wanted to sing and enjoy it," he said. He became director of the choir two years later in 1964.

"I never took any instruction (in directing)," Johns said. "It just came to be naturally."

The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus was founded by Malcolm Johns, (currently of Old Christ Church). Don Simmons, who had been a music teacher in the Grosse Pointe Schools, recommended Johns for the directorship of the chorus when he left the area in 1964. Johns took over in January

"It's an unusual group," Johns said. "We have no auditions. It is for people to enjoy. We want to encourage people to do as fine a job as they can, but not as a task master.'

The group gives two concerts a year and members of the chorus ioin for each concert. There is no continuing obligation.

In addition to providing an for people who want to sing, and concerts for those who want to listen, the chorus has been providing the Grosse Pointe community with sheet music over the years. The group buys all its own music than places it in the Grosse Pointe Public Library, where it is available to anyone who wants to use it.

'We use a lot of sacred music, because that is the best choral music there is," Johns said. "I try to never keep the concert going for more than an hour. I figure that concentration will only be good as long as the seat is comfortable. If they wish it was longer, that's great, because they'll come back next year."

Three months of rehearsals lead up to each of the group's concerts. Meeting weekly, the group has been preparing for this concert since January.

"This time, we're going to have a guitarist and a vocalist," Johns said. The theme of the concert is Americana.

"I went through my concerts from the first one and picked out those numbers we enjoyed the most and came up with a good mix," he said.

Working with amateur singers, Johns approaches the job of choir director differently than the director of a professional group would.

"You have to have a sense of humor," he said. "You have to appreciate the fact that unless we were to change the rules, you are going to be dealing with people who don't read music. You always just let it happen. You have to be willing to work with people and have fun doing it."

The chorus concentrates on singing sacred music, folk songs, show tunes and easy-listening favorites.

"We've never tried a big work," Johns said. "That takes dedication and more professional singers. I've often been asked why we don't do 'The Messiah.' But so many groups do that. We offer something different."

The hallmark of the group's Christmas concert has always been audience participation. Halfway through the concert, the children in the audience are called up on stage to sing Christmas carols with the chorus.

Dick Johns is retiring as director of the Grosse Pointe Community Chorus after 21 years at its helm. His last concert will be Sunday, April 13, at 3 p.m. at Parcells Middle School. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

To attend Sunday's concert, contact any chorus member for tickets, or buy your tickets at the door. There will be refreshments for the audience. Members of the chorus bring cakes and cookies for the social hour after the show. Johns says he will miss his involvement with the chorus.

"It's been an awful lot of fun and has given me an awful lot of satisfaction," he said. "I've enjoyed every minute of it."

UCLA Deb Ball planned

The United Christian Lebanese Association is celebrating its 11th annual Debutante Presentation Ball honoring the debs of 1986. The annual dinner dance will be held at the Thomas Crystal Gardens of Mt. Clemens, Saturday, April 26, sponsored by the UCLA Committee. Through the efforts of the committee 34 students are attending universities through the Michigan areas.

General chairman is Josephine Saigh of Grosse Pointe Park and co-chairman Vicki George. Cocktail service and hors d'oeuvres at 6 p.m. with the presentation and dinner following. Music for the evening will be by Jerry Ross V +

A tea reception was held at the Kingsley Inn of Bloomfield Hills given by chairmen Mr. and Mrs. Gil Mains of Bloomfield Hills.

The debutantes honored senior citizens at St. Marons Social Hall. Chairpersons of this event were Mr. and Mrs. John Francis and cochairmen Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Housey both of St. Clair Shores. James Tamer and Vicki George will host an evening reception at the Thomas Crystal Gardens for the debutantes and their escorts. Dinner reservations for the ball are necessary and may be obtained by calling Mary Matta at 882-6681. Tickets are $35 per person and tax deductible.

Healthy cooking class offered

If you think a heart-healthy diet is dull and tasteless, you are a candidate for Saratoga Community Hospital's Culinary Hearts Cooking Kitchen course. You will learn to prepare meals that are exciting and delicious but low in calories, fat and cholesterol.

The four week course will cover basic principles of nutrition, food selection and preparation. You will be instructed how to modify your favorite recipes, plan menus at home and what to eat when you dine out or entertain at home.

The registered dietitians at Saratoga will demonstrate the Culinary Hearts cooking techniques and you will sample a variety of dishes. The four-week course will be taught on Tuesdays, April 15 - May 6, from 6-8 p.m. Course fee is $15 and pre-registration is required. Call Saratoga Community Hospital at 245-1555.

Peggy O'Connor

The spring sports season has barely begun, but already I have a handful of things to cheer about. Like . . .

Linda Lickfold really wanted to play softball for the South High Blue Devils last season. She didn't quite make the squad, so she spent the spring working hard for the 17-7 Devils as a scorekeeper. But she never gave up the idea of playing.

So she worked throughout the summer and this spring, and her efforts impressed coach John Bruce enough that he just had to find Linda a spot on the squad. "She earned her way onto the team...she worked so hard, it was really something to watch," Bruce said.

Besides, Linda has a dream. And Bruce likes to see dreams come true just as much as the next person.

Linda's dream is to pitch against her old high school, the Mount Clemens Bathers. She transferred from Mount Clemens before last season and this year, as a senior and finally, a member of South's softball team, would love to see the looks on her old friends' faces as they watch her pitch for the Devils.

South faces Mount Clemens on April 30 and May 16, just for the information of those who like to watch dreams come true.

If you liked the movie "Rollerball," you'll love this news: fishing can now be classified as a full-contact sport. At least it is as far as the Woods' Henry Thomas Jr. is con-

Thomas, his brother-in-law Keith Miller and Miller's son Graham, 12, were out in a dinghy enjoying the sun and the water during a trip to the British Virgin Islands in late March. The trio, non-fishermen according to Thomas' wife, Sybil, were bobbing along enjoying themselves, when Thomas turned and spotted a marlin "bigger than the dinghy" leap through the air just a couple of feet from

As Thomas marveled at the size of the marlin, a two-foot-long mackerel jumped through the air, hit Thomas, broke its neck and fell into the boat. Voila: Thomas had his catch of the day.

"The way he figured it, the marlin was probably chasing the mackerel and the smaller fish jumped into the boat to get away from the marlin," Sybil Thomas says. "People just wouldn't believe it to the same than the marling of the same than t ple just wouldn't believe it until my husband showed them the bruise on his back where it hit and the hole in his shirt it made.

"That, and we took lots of pictures of the dead fish.

Thomas was the envy of all the local fishermen, although his wife says that he was just glad that it was the mackerel and not the giant marlin that had decided to take a boat ride that day.

Now THAT would have been some fish story.

It's always nice to see people get what they want and in the case of veteran hockey coach Chris Coury, it's even nicer.

Coury, 39, whose parents, the George A. Courys, live on Pemberton Road, has been hired by the Detroit Red Wings as a full-time scout. His duties so far have been in the low minors, but Coury says he suspects that much of his attention next year will be focused on collegiate hockey.

Coury will be a busy man. In addition to his scouting duties, he says he'll try to keep his hand in coaching, continuing as mentor of the Little Caesars' program. And in the summer when he's not scouting, he'll remain active in his longtime profession of marine surveying. It'll be a busy year for the affable Coury, but one he's looking forward to.

"I'm very excited about this. It's something I've wanted all my life and something I've worked for all my life," he says.

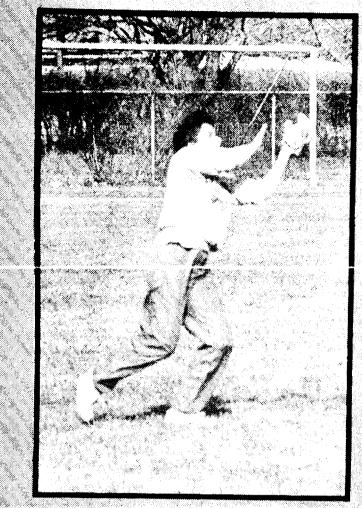

Glowing with pride these days are the track coaches at University Liggett School: Cathy Schmidt, Bob Newvine, Sue Fredericks, Josh Schmidt and Tom Shields. Seems that the ULS program was singled out by Dr. Thomas A. Tutko, co-founder of the Institute of Athletic Motivation and professor of psychology at San Jose State University, as well, a fine example of a psychologically successful program.

Tutko, in his talks at the Neighborhood Club and in discussions with local coaches, was supportive of the ULS program because of its approach, which consists of applying sports to life situations rather than emphasizing winning. He also liked ULS's stress management angle - using athletics as a way of dealing with academic pressures and its time management principles (teaching athletes how to be where they're supposed to be and when).

'Sure it's a great feeling when the approach you take as a coach is given such support," Schmidt says.

ULS must be doing something the kids like: there are more than 50 athletes out for the varsity track programs at Liggett this

And that's something to cheer about.

Spring has sprung

June may not be busting out all over yet, but spring has definitely sprung in Grosse Pointe, as least as far as spring athletes are concerned. The recent spate of wonderful weather let local athletes escape from school gyms for their spring practice. Most spring sports schedules get underway this week and next and our photographer caught North and South athletes gearing up for softball (above, left) the discus (above, right) and track (right). Spring sports previews continue this week on Pages 2C and 3C.

Blue Devil teams eye league titles in three sports

By Peggy O'Connor

When the experts try to rank South High's softball squad in the top 15 or so in the state, coach John Bruce likes to remind them that while he has one of the state's top pitchers in Lynn Vismara returning, South's other eight positions will be filled by girls who didn't start in those spots last sea-

"I'm pleased by the way the girls continue to improve this spring, but people should remember that we have a lot of inexperienced players at these positions. We're going to make mistakes,' Bruce says.

Vismara, a senior, pitched in 25 summer league games and returns a "year older, wiser and more confident," says her coach. She won 15 games in 1985, striking out one batter per inning (135) and finishing with a 1.44 ERA. "She'll pitch 90 percent of our games. But I don't want to overplay the fact that she is such an important part of our team and have her forget that the bottom line is to have fun.

"Shoot, when you're 17 or 18 years old, you have to realize that there are a lot more important things in life than winning or losing softball games," Bruce says.

Sophomores Mary King and Erin Bruce will rotate as backup pitchers, coming up from the junior varsity squad.
Senior Heidi Albrecht will move from last year's second base spot to behind the plate. She batted in the .290 range last season and Bruce says he "thinks a lot of her for making the commitment to learning a new position because we needed her back there.'

Power-hitting senior Lisa Mazur will start at first base. Sophomore Carmina Amezcua, new to softball, is penciled in at second base; junior Katy Turner, a speedy, intelligent player according to her coach, will start at shortstop. Senior Missy Dinverno, whom Bruce says has shown tremendous improvement this year, is the starting third baseman.

They'll face a tough Eastern Michigan League schedule, one of the toughest around, according to

'We had some exposure last summer to many good teams from Michigan, Ohio and Illinois and based on what we saw, it's my opinion that the best softball is played by teams from right here in Wayne and Macomb coun-

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the state champion come from the EML . . . or the Fraser area," he added. (The defending state Class B champs, L'Anse Creuse, return a number of good players and EML foe East Detroit was ranked No. 3 in the state in the pre-sea-

"I'm not counting South out. When you have a pitcher like Lynn Vismara, you can do strange things," Bruce says.

South opens up against East Detroit and would like to begin this season against the highly-touted Shamrocks the way it did against champion L'Anse Creuse last year: with an upset victory.

'We'll find out in a heck of a hurry where we stand, that's for

Kickers vie for title

South's varsity soccer team made it close last year, taking perennial league frontrunner North to the final regular season game before dropping a close decision and the league title to the Norsemen and finishing with an 8-2-1 record. "Experts" are predicting more of the same for the Blue Devils this season.

"I hope we don't let them down,' with a chuckle.

Right now, the possibility of that hinges on a knee injury to tal-ented goalie Marcia Rajt. "We're not sure how long she'll be out,' Case says. Amy Hawkins or Laura Miller will start in Rajt's place.

In the backfield will be Helen Markus, June Langs, Jennifer Smith and Becky Steffes; Langs is an All-State selection. Claire Busse, Colleen Murphy and Sufor Case, with Kim Wood, Sarah in points in '85; senior Carin Sey-

Dow and Tracy Bauman up front. Colleen Rathsburg, Christa Huthwaite, Sally Spilos, Eleanor Allen, Julie Forster, Cameron Yates and Kathleen O'Rourke round out the squad.

Case says he expects South to come through with "the same sort of finish" as last season: a close one. "North and Liggett look good this year.

"Every year we set a goal to win the league championships . . the trouble is, North keeps getting in the way," he laughs.

The girls opened the season at Marian April 8 (after press time) and will host Fitzgerald at 4 p.m. April 10, at Brownell Field.

South wants to go distance

South's distance runners, led by two-time All-State selection Nancy Solterisch, will anchor the girls' varsity track team as it seeks that elusive EML title.

"We have a lot of depth in our distance events this year. It's a very solid group, going back to how well they did in cross country ' coach John Case says last fall," says coach Steve Zar-

> Joining Solterisch in distance events are sophomores Ellen Mayer, Megen Smucker, Micha Song and Wendy Burger, seniors Kelly Riehl and Toby Ott, and ninth grader Toni Tedesco.

Senior Julie Boyt, the top sprinter in 1985, returns to lead the sprint crew this season. Sophomore Reba Uthappa, 1985's top 400 competitor, is back, too. Others are junior Erin Kershaw, zanne Saad will start at midfield a sprinter/hurdler who was No. 2 ler, who has been a top sprinter/ hurdler for four seasons; junior Heather Imel; and transfer student Myreya Amezcua, who will compete in longer sprint events, Zaranek says.

He adds that freshmen Traci Lee and Nicole Tocco have looked good so far this season and will most likely contribute to South's fortunes this year.

Boyt and Imel are South's long jumpers in the field events. Junior Lucia Bridenstine will lead the high jumpers and returning to the shotput and discus events are sophomore Dunrie Greiling and senior Katie Ament. Ament holds the school record in the discus.

Zaranek says he looks for Port Huron, Port Huron Northern, Mount Clemens and South to contend with the EML's top team: Anchor Bay. "They've won the league meet for two straight seasons and look like they've got some talent coming back," he Zaranek says he likes the spirit of his team, which at 60-strong, is the biggest ever. "They're very competitive; a good group to work with. They may not win every meet, but they'll be in every meet.

The veteran coach, who is assisted by Tom Ossy, says that while the Devils will seek to capture that so-far-elusive EML championship, they will retain one goal: to remain consistent.

"Other league teams have been up and down over the years while we've managed to be right up there every year. That's what I want, to keep the quality consistent. The EML is a quality league and I'm happy to be right up there with the best."

Boating

By Margie Reins Smith

Metro Beach Metropark

A clear, sunny Saturday or Sunday in April is a gift-wrapped package for boat owners. April is an unpredictable month, but chances are good that she will tease us with a sunshiny weekend - dangle some 70 degree temperatures within our grasp — or drop an unexpected sultry Sunday in our laps.

For boaters in Lake St. Clair, Metropolitan Beach is a popular nearby destination for a one-day shakedown cruise. Metro Beach Metropark — its official name — is one of the 13 major Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority Metroparks in the five-county area. Metro Beach has been a popular rendezvous spot, cruise destination and launching facility for Detroit area power and sail boaters for nearly 30 years.

Metro Beach is located in northwest Lake St. Clair, two miles south of the Clinton River on 550 acres of land. It's distinguishable on the lake chart by a slender point of land, Point Huron, that projects into the lake. Metro's sandy beach is a crescent-shaped curve west of the point. The marinas are a short distance up the Black Creek. Metro Beach can be reached from I-94, if you're towing your boat. Exit the expressway at the Metro Beach ramp and head east.

By water, the entrance to the Black Creek is marked by a buoy one-half-mile into the lake. The channel is marked further by outer buoys (No. 1 and No. 3) which are lighted. Range lights are located further into the channel. Entrance water is deep enough to accommodate boats with an eight-foot draft, according to Ken Peldo, Park Superintendent. The channel will be even deeper this year, he said, because of Lake St. Clair's unusually high water.

Metro Beach's three marinas will be open from April 12 to Oct. 12. The south marina has 60 well-protected slips for short term docking. Slips vary in width from 14 feet 9 inches to 19 feet 9 inches and lengths up to 50 feet. All 60 wells have 30-amp electrical service and water hookups.

The north shore marina has 49 slips, also with 30-amp electricity and water. Wells range from 14 to 17 feet wide and up to 40 feet long.

An additional 63 slips are available in the north floating marina, each with 20- or 30-amp electrical service.

Boats may also tie up along the seawall, but no utilities are

At the westernmost end of the beach, there is a spot for day sailors as well as a small boat ramp and a sailboard

The park has launching facilities, pump out service, rest rooms, phones, showers, a children's playground, tennis courts an 1-hole golf course, putt putt golf, a large grassy picnic area, several food bars, a beach shop, pool, and, or course, the popular three-quarter-mile long sandy beach. Park rangers are on duty 24 hours a day.

During the summer, Metro Beach will again offer special programs and Saturday night dances with well-known big bands such as Tommy Dorsey (June 29) and Glenn Miller (July 27). These events are free. For more information about weekly dances and events, check your local newspapers.

Boats are allowed to remain in a well for a maximum of five days. Rates are $4.50 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. This includes the use of utilities. An additional $4.50 allows dockage from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m., and another $5.50 is necessary for overnight. The daily total: $14.50.

Boats that dock along the seawall and have no electricity or water are charged $3,75 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and another $3.75 overnight. Pump outs are $4.

For those who wish to tow their boats and launch at Metro Beach, entrance fees are $2 per vehicle; the towed boat is considered another vehicle. Overnight parking ($2 per car) is permitted if you have a boat in the marina. Seasonal entry permits may be purchased for $10.

Peldo said the wells are available on a first-come first-serve basis. There are no reservations. "Secure your boat, then go to any of the three manned harbormaster stations to pay your Peldo said that the marinas will be closed from Sept. 20 through 28, because of the annual Boat Show USA in-the-water boat show. "The docks will probably be unavailable for three days on either side of these dates too," he said, because the display boats will be moving in and out for the show.

"Metro Beach Metropark is a popular area for boaters," Peldo added, "and we're looking forward to a fine boating season."

North seeks to match '85 success

By Peggy O'Connor

North spring sports teams will have to go some to top the success of last season, when the softball, tennis, baseball and soccer teams went the distance in district and regional competition. But the coaches involved think they just might have the talent to pull it off again in 1986.

Coach Bill Taylor's girls' varsity softball squad was 16-8 overall last year, and the Lady Norsemen's 10-2 Bi-County mark was good enough to win a league co-championship with Clintondale. Which is exactly what Taylor seeks this season.

"For us to repeat as league cochamps. I feel we'll really have to battle it out," Taylor says. "And even though we lost three All-League players, I think that we can challenge for the title." Clintondale is a top contender, Taylor says, leaving North and the Dragons to battle it out with a strong, returning Lakeview squad and a "resurgent" L'Anse Creuse team. "With a young team like ours, it's hard to tell how the girls are going to come through. Defensively, I think we're pretty solid. What we must work on is developing a consistent pitcher/catcher combination and if we can do that, we should be okay," Taylor adds.

North will utilize speed this season, relying on the strong bat and quickness of leadoff hitter Lynda Rayos, who hit .455 in that spot in 1985. Rayos, an infielder, and returning outfielder Virginia Sanders, should provide a hefty one-two punch in the batting order, their coach says.

He'll also count on juniors Missy Preston (catcher/infielder) and Julie Cook (second base), who Taylor says are "developing into excellent softball players.

Pitcher Amy Domienik and first baseman Ellen Gouin are the other returning starters. Other juniors in the lineup are catcher/outfielder Jill Cubba, and shortstop/outfielder Leslie Talos. Rounding out the roster are juniors Denise Kowalke, Terry Mott, Kerry Trefzer, Lisa Van Hollebeke and sophomore Mary Lex.

Taylor says he'd like to see the Lady Norsemen place at least six players on the All-League teams, in addition to finishing atop the Bi-County standings. "Obviously, County standings. we'd like to win the district, but we go up against Regina and South High and that'll be tough.

But the kids have been very good to work with this year. It's been a pleasure. Because we carry such a small squad (13), (assistant coach) Gary Bennett and myself have been able to split our tasks and work individually with the girls. They know they have to play more than one position and they've adjusted very well . . . that tells me what kind of team I have.'

Veteran netters look to states

There are a lot of things that won't change for the North High varsity tennis team this spring. Like North winning the Bi-County championship, and finishing high in the regionals.

But coach Tom Berschback veteran coach says. "But now we would also like to see some new twists to North's season this time around.

"We've never won a major tournament. We have three this year and we'd like to win one of those. Because when you do, you get seeds in the state tournament and that's what we're gunning for," he says.

The Norsemen have more experience back this season than in recent years and Berschback would like to see that result in a top 10 finish in the states. "That'll be difficult to do because we don't have any ranked players — there aren't any ranked players on the whole east side — but we think we have the depth to pick up some points at No. 3 and 4 singles and in the doubles events."

John Grierson is North's No. 1 ingles seed Following at and 4 are returning players Chris Herman, K.C. Gutow and Ralph Barbier. Drew McSkimming and Fred Kaleal are the No. 1 doubles duo, with Chris Colfer and Roger Eger at the No. 2 spot.

Fighting it out for the remaining doubles spots are Greg and Brad Cooksey, Dave Colfer and Eric Hess, and Chris Malley and Eric Miller. None of the spots are set in stone, Berschback says, since the interteam qualifying fournaments are still going on.

"We didn't graduate a senior last year, so I expect to be strong. I'd be disappointed not to win the regionals," he says.

North got a boost to its tennis program this year with the addition of a JV squad, led by coach Jeff Woodbury, who played No. 1 singles for North in 1975. This allows Berschback to keep 28 players, including 16 on the JV team. More than 40 kids came out for the squad this season in response to the larger program, Berschback says.

'The tennis, as a result, will get better," he adds.

A notch below?

North girls' varsity soccer coach Guido Regelbrugge was all set to begin the season this week, pretty secure in the knowledge that his lineup was set and prepared to do well in its first three games.

Then last weekend, four of his players - including starters Wendy Claggett and Cindy Bowman were injured in an auto accident. Two of the girls were hurt enough to remain out of the lineup for at least two weeks, Regelbrugge says.

"It's lucky it wasn't more serious and we're thankful for that," the

Spring previews

If things had gone on schedule, North lineup would look like this: Sue Bond in goal; Claggett, Alexa Parmentier, Laura Vititoe and Wendy Blashill on defense; Bowman, Michelle Zrimec and Arabella Black at midfield: and Bridget Brierly, Shannon Arins strong and freshman Laura Ferguson up front.

"This is the first time in 10 seasons of coaching high school soccer here that I don't know where my team is," Regelbrugge says. "Sometimes, you can start a kid who has it in her head that she is a sub, and she'll rise to the occasion. That's a beautiful thing to see and it could very well nappen this North already had faced the prospect of filling in for graduated All-Staters Amelia Dugan and Stephanie Smith. "We will be good, but you don't easily overcome the loss of two All-Staters. Of course, I didn't expect a bonus like Laura Ferguson, a freshman, being able to step right in and play.

"But overall, I would have to say that we are just a notch below what we were last year. But then, No. 6 in the state doesn't happen every year," he says.

Regelbrugge expects North and South to challenge for the east division championship and possibly the league title in the divisional crossover "It's an unspoken thing, but we'd like to win the unofficial Grosse Pointe championship. To do that, we have to beat South and Liggett and if we do that, it would mean a possible division and maybe a league championship.

Beyond that, you know my philosophy is to never expect certain outcomes. You never know what's going to happen in the tournament draw . . . too much hinges on that draw," he adds.

"There are at least six bona fide candidates in our region. But I'll tell you this: we are a good team. Nobody is going to embarrass us and when they play us, they'll know it. The draw being what it is, if we play well, we can end up in the regional final.'

Can 'chemistry' return ULS to top?

By Peggy O'Connor They lost more than 22 hours of practice time because of poor weather, but University Liggett School tennis coach Bob Wood says that the Knights' recent spring trip to Florida was still one of the most successful in ULS history

The main purpose of the trip is to bring the team together and in that respect, this trip was successful. We've developed a mutual respect and understanding that I think will help us this year," Wood says. Like last season, the Knights do not have a ranked player in the top singles spots. And, like last year, the doubles teams are inexperienced. But Wood says that the 1986 squad has something last year's team didn't when ULS' recordsetting 13-year streak of state championships came to an end.

'There's a magic word in sports: chemistry. It was not there in 1985. And I'm not sure, but I think it's back in 1986. I've got good vibes on this season," Wood says. Senior Marc Hunt returns to the No. 1 singles spot. Juniors Mark Fozo and David Barlow will battle it out for the No. 2 and 3 seeds and junior Ashu Nautiyal is penciled in at No. 4.

Seniors John Birgbauer and Kirk Haggarty return to the No. 1 doubles slot. "If John and Kirk work hard, they have the potential to be the best doubles team in the state of Michigan," Wood says.

Fighting it out for the other doubles spots will be the teams of sophomore Frank Karabetsos and freshman Mike Niccolini; seniors Rob Glancy and Tony Malcoun; and senior Jeff Buhl and sophomore Gordie Maitland.

Other than the fact that for the first time in 13 seasons and only the fifth time in 20 years the Knights are not the defending Class C-D champs, ULS' approach to the tennis season remains the same.

"We still play the toughest schedule of any high school in the state," Wood says. "And we still ask the kids to make a total commitment to the program for three months. They've always done it and that's why we've been so successful.

"We're the AP (advanced placement) program of high school tennis. At ULS we're proud of our AP academic programs and just as proud of our level of tennis," he

Wood says the Knights' goals are the same as in previous seasons: to win as many matches as possible, including the regional and the state, and to have fun while doing

On paper, he adds, Detroit Country Day School (third in 1985) has the strongest team and defending champ Kalamazoo Hackett has its top three seeds returning. "But funny things can happen...you don't win state championships on paper.

Tracksters seek 'personal bests'

Cathy Schmidt's girls' varsity track squad focused on attaining personal bests, improving skills and applying the lessons learned in athletics to everyday situations last season...and along the way, finished second in the MIAC with a 15-1 mark.

"We'll still stress applying sports to life...and achieving personal bests, rather than focusing on winning records," Schmidt

Fifteen girls return to the squad this year, including what Schmidt calls a very strong distance crew. Running the distance events for ULS will be two of the tri-captains: Charu Nautiyal and Paula Rodriguez, plus Kavita Sood and Laura Rizzo. Vara Samudrala and Jennifer Van De Graaf will lead the sprint corps.

In the field events, Laura Rizzo will compete at shotput and Nora Stabler at discus. Phan Lam, tricaptain Lydia Alexander and Wendy Willett will compete in the high jump. Hurdlers include Alexander, Sophia Park and Miriam Mueller.

"We're keying on the field events this year," Schmidt says of the coaching staff which splits up and takes on the different event groups during practices. "The girls are very intelligent and seem to be able to pick up instruction ea-

Schmidt says she's excited about the upcoming season and challenging for the championship at the league meet, as well as improving individual efforts.

"Our major goal is that people enjoy themselves. If they do that, then we've done something right.'

Bovs' team young

Football coach Bob Newvine takes over the head coaching reins of a ULS boys' track squad which finished 11-1 last year, but returns just two seniors among the 10 lettermen.

"We're mostly freshman- and sophomore-dominated," Newvine says. "We'll be relying a lot on what our young kids can do. The key is how fast they mature. If they come through, we'll be solid for the next three years," he adds. Letterman Steve Schmidt returns to lead the discus and shot crew. He'll be joined by Mike Dobrzechowski, a 5-2, 210-pounder who bench presses 250 pounds, according to his coach. Schmidt will also do some hurdling.

Football quarterback Bill Listman is ULS's pole vaulter this spring. Mike Prus will lead the high jumpers, with Mark Kozlowski and Dan Shanle at the head of the long jumpers.

A pair of freshman will be what Newvine calls the "heart and soul of the distance" crew. Paul Brigolin and Brendan Dundas will compete in the mile- and two-mile relays and in the mile- and two-mile runs. Dundas is also an 800 runner and high jumper. Freshman Pete Hardy is another freshman Newvine is counting on for all-around skills.

At middle distance, the coach says Chip Davis will be "Mr. Eveverything." And freshman Anthony Hill is emerging as the team's top sprinter.

"We've got a good shot at winning the conference. During the year, the meets don't mean anything in terms of how you finish. We're shooting for the MIAC title at the conference meet at Macomb College on May 10.

"We'd also like to score some points in the regionals. That's what it comes down to: doing well against the tougher teams in the bigger competitions," Newvine

Kickers optimistic

Coach David Backhurst's ULS soccer team won just four games last season, with an underclassthat most of the squad would be back this season with a year of experience under its belt.

He lost just one senior from last year's squad and regained the services of Laura Khelokian, who was an All-League selection as a freshman but opted for lacrosse last spring. "She is an excellent athlete and we will be counting on her to generate our attack. Laura should be able to get the ball up to the for-wards regularly," Backhurst says. Junior co-captain Susan Judge will start in goal after beginning last year at fullback. "She played indoor soccer over the winter; I feel confident with her in goal," the coach says. On defense will be ju-niors Shelly Tibbitts, Eva Dodds and co-captain Cindy Paul and men-laden lineup. But that meant sophomore Beth Birgbauer, who will also alternate at midfield.

Joining Khelokian in midfield will be juniors Susie Davis, Alice Rim and Carolyn Ryan. Backhurst says he hopes to get some scoring punch up front from junior exchange student Tini Riester, who never played soccer in her native Germany, but displayed some good, raw talent in indoor soccer and is fast and aggressive. Other forwards are sophomore Kim Owens, Lexi Lepard and Lynn Connor and freshman Meghan

"If things click, we certainly have a chance to win the division. The girls are young and have confidence in their ability. I think we should set our sights on the top," Backhurst says.

'Rad' may appeal to BMX racing fans — maybe Industry's choruses schedule concert

By Michael Chapp During the opening titles of

"Rad," viewers see some excellent BMX bicycle riding. The riders take their two-wheeled vehicles and turn them into pogo-sticks, skateboards, trampolines and a variety of other things. The sequence really is breathtaking. But after five minutes of thrills, viewers are ready for some other filmic elements - like plot, for instance. So they wait. And wait.

And then they wait some more.

Eventually, 90 minutes have passed and virtually nothing has happened on the screen. Oh sure, there has been plenty of bike-riding, bike-dancing and bike-manipulating, but there has been nothing else. Nothing.

What semblence of plot there is focuses on Cru (Bill Allen), a high school attudent who lives in the school student who lives in the small town that is home to Helltrack, the biggest, baddest, meanest bicycle-racing track on the face of the earth. Cru thinks he's a good enough bike rider to challenge the world's best BMX racers. In fact, he thinks he's so good, he's willing to skip taking his college SATs in order to try to qualify for the big race.

Cru's mother (Talia Shire) isn't too enthused about this. She thinks he's throwing his whole life away for a stupid race. But parents never understand. So Cru finds somebody who does, a champion racer named Christian (Lori Loughlin). Christian tells him things like "No guts, no glory." Well, with coaching like that, how can Cru not

But there's a glitch or two. Standing between Cru and the National Championship are two obstacles. The first is Duke Best (Jack Weston), an unscrupulous business magnate. Best sponsors the world champion racer, and has a lot to lose if his champion loses. So Best does everything within his power to see to it that Cru cannot race. But everything isn't enough, and Cru eventually does race — and quality — of Helltrack.

The second obstacle is the champion racer himself, played by Bart Conner, the real-life olympic gymnastic champion. Like all champions worth their title, this guy thinks he's the cat's meow. He gets all the girls, all the glory and all the money.

But, of course, he's never had to face an opponent like Cru before. Even Best says, "I've never seen such raw determination in a kid as I've seen in that Cru." Gee. Never? Well then, there must be one heck of a race coming

There is, indeed, a lot of time devoted to the race sequences. Easily half the film is spent showing viewers the same race from every imaginable angle, with every imaginable lighting effect, and using every possible film speed. After all, everything is more dramatic in slow motion, the filmmakers must have thought, so they shot a lot of

Actor Bill Allen portrays Cru Jones, a small town BMX bicycle rider who dreams of succeeding in the most dangerous race of all

'Lucas': A film on growing up

By Marian Trainor
The pain of growing up, the need for acceptance by classmates and the devastation of an unrequited first love is poignantly explored in "Lucas." a gentle, tender film.

Lucas Blye (Corey Haim) is an intelligent 14-year-old who spends his summers studying insects. He doesn't collect them "because that would mean killing them," he explains. Small for his age, he is dwarfed by the six-foot jocks at the local high school who give him a hard time. Lucas is not a very attractive character as he trudges along in his shabby clothes, rumpled hair and clouded glasses.

Being the butt of cruel jokes is humiliating, but Lucas has learned that disdain for his tormentors is his best weapon. It is his courage and determination to brush off some of the heartbreaking incidents that endears him to the audience. His defenses work until he meets Maggie (Kerri Green), a new girl in town. Lucas is entranced. She is a lovely girl with red hair, the most expressive eyes and a gentle voice. And wonder of wonders, she thinks Lucas is inter-esting.

Since she is a newcomer, she doesn't know anyone and spends a lot of time with him.

He explains the wonders of the insect world to her. They listen to music together. He tries to impress her with lies about his family and lectures her about how snobbish the community is.

But as Lucas discovers, being friends with a girl and claiming her for a girlfriend are not the same. He is made aware of this on the first day of school. While Maggie still wants to be friends with him and goes out of her way to be nice to him, she also wants to participate in activities at school, make new friends and become part of a group where Lucas has never been accepted.

The crushing blow falls when Maggie falls in love with Cappie (Charlie Sheen), Lucas' hero who has protected him many times from the school bullies.

When the film opens viewers see a cicada emerge from its pupa shell. That scene becomes symbolic of Lucas who hopes one day he will grow and emerge from his shell as something beautiful. Haim is outstanding in his portrayal of Lucas. Audiences will remember his performance of a sensitive boy who puts on a brave front, never backs down and finally proves his worth. Green gives a winning performance as the girl who is the first to appreciate Lucas for what he really is and Sheen manages to make something of his jock role as Lucas' protector and contender for scores high on his first effort.

His portrayal of the high school scene is more realistic than some of the more flamboyant efforts of others. His teen-age characters are pretty much normal kids who like and enjoy school activities. He works magic in giving viewers a long, thoughtful look at what goes on in the mind and heart of a little guy in glasses, intellectually gifted but a zero socially.

Avoid Common Errors on Form 1040 Each year there are some predictable on the space with federal income to the space with the spac trouble spots with federal income tax forms, according to the Internal Revenue Service. These are areas where large numbers of taxpayers make incorrect entries and thereby slow the processing of tax forms. These trouble spots fall into two broad categories: problems that recur each year, such as taxpayers selecting the incorrect figure from the tax tables; and problems that stem from changes in the tax laws and forms from one year to the next, such as the addition of a new line to a form or the shift of an existing line to a new position on the

Not surprisingly, the largest percentage of errors is made on Form 1040 the so-called long form. To assist filers of this form, IRS has compiled the following list of problem areas to double-check: 1. Medical Deductions. This item is not entered on Form 1040, but on a related Schedule A. Because Schedule A was redesigned last year, this item will probably be one of the leaders on the list of last year's most common errors. Due to rule changes on medical deductions, IRS expects problems again this year. Be sure to check the limitation on medical expenses. 2. Figure from Tax Table. Because of the number of pages and figures involved, this item is always high on the list of most common errors for all tax forms. Double check the figure from the tax table for your filing status and enter on line 38.

Check the box for Tax Table. 3. Unemployment compensation. Double-check your figures on the worksheet in the tax instruction booklet (page 10), and make appropriate entries on lines 20a and 20b.

4. Child Care Credit. Read instructions carefully and double-check your computations on Form 2441,

Credit for Child and Disabled Dependent Care Expenses. Enter the figure on line 41 and attach Form 2441 to your return. 5. Balance Due/Refund. This important item usually makes the list of most common errors. If your total tax (line 56) is larger than your ter the difference on line 68, Amount You Owe. Follow the instructions for remitting payment. If the reverse is true, enter the difference on line 65, Overpaid. Enter on line 66, Refunded to You, the portion of the line 65 overpayment that you want refunded to dence.

total payments made (line 64), en-

Claimed. If you are a working parent and have at least one child living with you, and if your adjusted gross income (line 32) is less than $11,000, you probably qualify. See page 16 of the instructions.

7. EIC Error or Not Qualified. Make sure you are qualified. Certain expectations must be met, and you must have a dependent child living with you and you must have worked during the year. Follow the instruction carefully and enter on Dividends. You must complete and attach Schedule B if you have over $400 in dividend income. Enter enter the difference (subtract line 9b from 9a) on line 9c. 9. Income Computation. This is an outgrowth of item 8, since the taxpayers who miscompute their dividend income will have an error on line 23, total income. Double-your total dividends on line 9a;

your exclusion (up to $100 for individual filers, up to $200 for married filing jointly) on line 9b; and check these figures. 10. Income Averaging. Schedule G, Income Averaging, is one of the most difficult forms for individual filers, because of the number of tax years covered. You should have copies of your returns for the preceding three years in order to accurately complete this form. Read and follow instructions carefully and double-check all figures.

Moving? Don't Forget to Tell Post Office and IRS

Taxpayers who move after filing their federal income tax returns and who expect refunds should notify the post office serving the old address, the Internal Revenue says.

The IRS service center where the return was filed should also be notified of the address change. This will help IRS to forward the refund check to the new address as soon as possible. When advising IRS of the address change, the taxpayer's social security number should be included in the correspon-

55 or Older? Home Sale

If you're 55 or older, you could be eligible for a once-in-a-lifetime $125,000 exclusion of gain on the sale of your home, the Internal Revenue Service says.

You qualify if you are 55 years or older on the date of the sale of your home. You must have owned and lived in the home as your principal residence for at least three years out of the five year period ending on the date of sale, and have never excluded gain on the sale of a home after July 26, 1978. If you sold your home on or before July 20, 1981, the maximum exclusion was limited to $100,000. For homes sold after that date, however, the maximum exclusion is $125,000. A principal residence is the home you own and in which you live, whether it be a houseboat, mobile home, condominium, apartment or house. If you own two homes and live in both, your principal residence is the one you reside in most of the time.

Your gain is the selling price of the residence minus selling expenses and the adjusted basis of the home. If you are married, you may not choose to exclude the gain unless your spouse joins you in making the choice. However, if you are married and filing separately, you may choose to exclude no more than $62,500 of the gain. You may make or revoke your decision to exclude the gain from a particular sale or exchange at any time before the latest of: the due date of your return for the year of sale; three years from years from the date the tax was paid. For further information, IRS Publication 523, Tax Information on Selling Your Home, and IRS Form 2119, Sale or Exchange of Principal Residence are available free. To obtain copies, use the handy order form found in your tax package or call the IRS.

the date the return was filed; or, two

Energy Credit

Residential energy tax credits may not be claimed for expenditures made after December 31, 1985. However, prior year credits that were not used because they exceeded tax liability may be claimed through 1987. More information is contained in the federal tax forms package, and in the free IRS Publication 903, "Energy Credits for Individuals."

Expected to contribute to the success of the Albion College women's softball squad this season are returning sophomore Amy Leverenz and junior Lisette Wolfe, both of Grosse Pointe.

A third place finish in the 1000 meters and indoor All-American honors awaited University of Michigan senior Cathy Schmidt of Grosse Pointe Woods as she crossed to the Cathy Schmidt of Grosse Pointe Woods as she crossed to the Cathy Schmidt of Cathy Schmidt sed the finish line at the Indoor NCAA Championships in Oklahoma City last month. Schmidt finished two seconds behind the winner (2:44.83); she had finished first in the preliminary heat. The excellent finish marked the second straight year in which Schmidt has earned indoor All-American recog-

The University of Iowa's women's tennis team is in the thick of its non-conference season. The Hawkeyes have been led by the play of No. 4 singles player Madeleine Willard, of Grosse Pointe, who has a 5-3 record so far this spring. Willard was a member of four state championship teams at South High.

Jack Nelson, of the Farms, earned All-America honors last weekend at the NCAA Division III swimming and diving championships in Canton, Ohio. Nelson, a sophomore tanker at Hamilton College, finished in eighth place in the 1,650-yard freestyle (16: 21.25). It was the second All-America finish for Nelson, who swam to a 12th place in the same event as a freshman.

Central Michigan University sophomore Marty Mitchell played in both ends of CMU's doubleheader wins over Northwood Institute last week. Mitchell, a 6-2, 190-pound first baseman from North High, hit a two-run homer in the second game and was one-for-two on the day with five putouts.

Albion College opened its women's tennis season indoors with a 9-0 victory over Siena Heights College last week. Sophomore Amy Leverenz, of Grosse Pointe, was among the singles winners. Later that week, Leverenz, and teammate Amy Shields combined for a No. 2 doubles victory against Ferris State.

CYO needs help

A campaign is underway to raise $30,000 to purchase two new 15-passenger vans for the Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) of the Archdiocese of Detroit.

The CYO is appealing to those in the community for whom it provided services in the past, including former campers, teen club members, scouts, members of athletic teams, etc.

Contributions may be mailed to Catholic Youth Organization Van Camp-aign, 305 Michigan Ave., Detroit, Mich., 48226.

Osmerus mordax run

what an Osmerus mordax is and you may get a blank stare. Tell him Osmerus mordax is a smelt and he will run — not walk — to his favorite dipping spot, according to AAA Michigan.

Smelt dipping is extremely popular because it is easy to do and requires very little fishing knowledge or equipment. Smelt also are tasty treats. Sportsmen can expect a strong

1986 season, expecially in southwest Michigan and in the far western upper peninsula. Department of Natural Resources officials predict generally strong north. runs again this year. Smelt runs should peak the last two weeks of April in most lower peninsula streams and in late April through early May in the U.P. Warmer would mean later runs by one

Ask the average sportsman span 10 days while other U.P. streams are home to smelt runs for 12 to 15 days.

An expected heavier snow runoff and considerably better hookand-line smelt catches during the winter are positive indicators of strong runs in the U.P. Evidence of a larger smelt population is being found in streams from the Indiana line to Ottawa County in southwest Michigan. The smelt season generally begins in southeast Michigan on the St. Clair River system from Algonac to the Blue Water Bridge in Port Huron and then advances

AAA Michigan's 1986 Smelt Guide lists 64 of the state's most productive locations. The guide also includes two Ontario locations - Pointe Pelee National weather could start the runs a Park and the Wheatley area week earlier while a cooler spring southwest of Detroit. From April 11 through 27, Pointe Pelee will extend its hours from ô a.m. to

When the smelt are running anglers of all ages can be found in or along their favorite streams. Dipping doesn't require as much knowledge as other fishing and basic equipment - besides a fishing license — includes nets, buckets, waders and warm cloth-

Smelt dippers may use hand nets up to one-half mile upstream from any river mouth from March 1 to May 21 south of M-72 and from April 10 to May 31 north of M-72. On some streams, large dip nets up to nine feet square are allowed by permit only. Other pertinent fishing rules may be found in the 1986-87 Michigan Fishing Guide, available free at all DNR field offices.

Many beaches or stream banks are private property so sportsmen should secure permission from the property owner before starting.

Most sportsmen measure their smelt success by the pound or bucket, and the small, silvery fish provide good eating. Besides being simple to clean, smelt can be broiled, pan- or deep-fried.
