The eye of the beholder

Here's further proof that everything is relative and your view depends on where you're standing. Last week's marathon public hearing on the Detroit incinerator started late, ran late (unless you want to call 3 a.m. early) and featured almost four hours of expert testimony before getting to the citizen input. Enraged residents on both sides of the issue heckled speakers and each other, shouted for the police, charged the police with being "goons" and stomped and clapped to entice the commission back into the hearing room after each of three half-hour recesses.

"Wasn't that wonderful?" said Grosse Pointer Nicholas Kachman, an air pollution commission member. "That was democracy in action. Everybody had a say. You wouldn't see that in Russia."

Or would you?
"It was obviously stacked and controlled," Grosse Pointer Joseph Bartell, an Audubon Society member, said. "They used stalling tactics to drive the citizens from the auditorium and to reduce press coverage."

Well, guys, you won't get us to arbitrate that one, but we will stipulate one thing: It was a long meeting and our reporter's beauty sleep almost started before the commute home ended. Next time, bring some coffee.

It's a dog's world . . .

. . . but it shouldn't be. Now that the winter's snows have melted, Mother Nature has uncovered a nasty surprise for pedestrians.

Grosse Pointe is the dog-lovliest city there is — and a census would doubtless substantiate the theory that big dogs win the popularity contest. A lot less popular is what Fido leaves behind.

Residents are starting to get mad enough to complain to the city council, and the pedestrians in town are spending a lot of time wiping their feet in the grass. Come on, folks, there are ordinances governing this stuff. Have a heart — carry your scooper. One of the Farms councilmen was right on when he noted that "it's dangerous out there!"

Smile pretty

Does Towser have stars in his eyes? Does the kitty fancy himself the next Morris? Are your cocktail parties centered around the dog's cute tricks?

Someone out there appreciates the artistic endeavor that has gone into teaching that pup to roll over. The Michigan Humane Society is looking for pets that can do tricks — even begging, which my clever dog learned to do all by himself. Talented and trained pets in the metro area will star in the Humane Society's new commercial, filming this weekend in Southfield.

If your pet has what it takes to be a television star, call the Humane Society Friday, April 18, at 827-8350 to register. And it's not limited to dogs and cats.

What's cookin'?

There's going to be some heavy-duty cooking going on at Cobo Hall April 20-21 when chefs from around the country converge to compete in a cooking showdown. Hors d'oeuvres, pates, cakes, pastries created by chefs and culinary students will be on display.

Food will be judged for its creativity, appearance and the skill involved in making it. But don't expect to eat any — this is an artistic display, and many of the exhibits will be coated with clear aspic gelatin to preserve them from the air and dust.

Incinerator backers, opponents still disagree

By Nancy Parmenter

Last week's decision by the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission to allow Detroit to proceed with its planned incinerator may keep the incinerator on track, but did little to placate opponents of the facility. The hearing left experts and residents divided over technology, risk and builder guarantees to meet clean air standards.

Possible moves by the Environmental Protection Agency and environmentalists to cancel or postpone construction are far from clear. The EPA has issued a statement critical of the plan, but so far has declined to announce any actual sanctions.

Environmentalists, including the Sierra Club, the Detroit Audubon Society and the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan, are talking to their lawyers this week to consider possible court action against the incinerator plans. They feel they have the implicit backing of the ERA through enforcement of the Clean Air Act.

"My understanding is that the third party that intends to sell the steam is in violation of the Clean Air Act," said Grosse Pointer Joseph Bartell, a board member of the Detroit Audubon Society. "You can't enter into a new contract while you are in violation." Bartell said the Audubon board had not yet decided about a lawsuit, but was likely to reach a decision before the May 9 deadline for the start of incinerator construction.

The EPA was asked two weeks ago by the Sierra Club and Audubon Society to invalidate the incinerator's permit. No action has been taken, and EPA staffers were prevented by plane troubles from attending last week's public hearing to present their opinions.

The EPA's testimony would have raised Bartell's point. William MacDowell, chief of the EPA's control technology unit in Chicago, explained that because the incinerator would be located in an area that has not attained federal standards for particulate emissions, and because the city of Detroit is the owner of the Mistersky power plant, which was out of compliance at the time the incinerator was approved, the city cannot enter into a new project without certifying that any plants it operates meet the federal standards. The point is not incontestable, however. MacDowell conceded that both the timing of the violation and the ownership of the plant could be argued.

"The timing is the crucial point," MacDowell said. "It would have to be shown that the state was aware of the Mistersky violation at the time it issued the permit."

Ownership is not a clear-cut issue, either. The city owns the Mistersky power plant, but an authority will operate the trash incinerator.

MacDowell refused to speculate about possible actions by the EPA. If the plant does not get under way by May 9, it will have to request a permit extension. Such an extension requires a public comment period and a new analysis of the best available control technology, MacDowell said.

"They would have to look at technology as it is now," he said. That would mean rethinking the equipment for the control of sulfur dioxide.

That would be good news to the residents of the Cass Corridor, Detroit's east side and Grosse Pointe who spoke at the hearing, attacking the credibility of expert witnesses from both sides.

Walter Nikesch of Grosse Pointe, a radiation physicist and contributor of letters to the editor on the incinerator issue, told the commission that the proposed facility would be 19 times as hazardous as Three Mile Island.

"If the risks from a nuclear facility were this controversial, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission wouldn't allow it to be built in a remote area, let alone in the middle of the city of Detroit," Nikesch said.

Detroit's Heather Connors, 12, summed it up: "I am sick and tired of adults making all these decisions. I want to live to be at least 40 or 50 . . . I'd rather move to the North Pole and not be chemicaled to death."

Not everybody is opposed to the proposed technology for the incinerator, however. A variety of city of Detroit employees and a representative of the Chamber of Commerce spoke in favor of the plan. The League of Women Voters, which had advocated a cautious approach, decided to trust the outside consultants hired by the city.

"The League supports incineration and supports Detroit's efforts to reduce its dependency on landfills," Detroit chapter president Betty Lawrence told the commission. Several members of the Grosse Pointe branch, which has been studying the issue, said they felt they could rely on the plant engineers' guarantees to meet emissions standards.

The air pollution control commission itself was heavily in favor of continuing the permit. However, its 9-1 majority was a break from the complete unanimity that granted the original permit. Kathryn Wurzel, who represents the public on the commission, voted against the permit.

Wurzel, a former DNR toxicologist, was apparently concerned that the permit could be the first in the state to allow a cancer risk factor of greater than one in

Park marina may be power-less this year

By Pat Paholsky

Boat owners who dock at Windmill Point Park Marina can expect, at the very least, to be inconvenienced this season, depending on where their boat well is located. More than 150 boaters crowded into the Park council chambers Monday night to hear a status report on the marina.

The lines for water and electricity for piers 2 and 4 broke this winter and are under water. The money to do the repairs is in the budget, City Manager John Crawford said, but it's a matter of getting a contractor, whom he referred to as "prima donnas this year."

"The two contractors we have used for a long time have not returned our calls — they are so busy. We contacted three other contractors. One has not submitted a proposal and one said we should not do anything until the end of the season and the third will submit a proposal at the end of the week," Crawford said.

There are no potential problems on piers 1, 3 and 5, he said, and city workers have constructed temporary wooden piers over the top of the main pier so it can be used this summer.

Crawford recommended that the city continue its efforts to get permanent repairs. If the city is successful in finding a contractor to do the job, the boats in the construction site would be relocated to other parts of the marina, he said.

One temporary solution is portable generators. "It would not allow the convenience of maintaining electrical service to the boats on a continuing basis," Crawford said, adding that "water could be accommodated by an overhead line, such as a garden-hose type of operation. Those would be the improvements we could make to ease the situation."

The one disastrous event that could occur affecting the entire marina is the potential for flooding. Crawford said the Army Corps of Engineers is predicting that the water level will rise 12 or more inches until July 1 and then drop. The wind could push the water over the main pier and in that case, "there's nothing the city can do," he said.

Resident William Kessler suggested the long-term solution of overhead lines as there are at Jefferson Beach marina. "It would be silly not to contemplate that. It seems to me that a solution is to drop down every four boats instead of every boat."

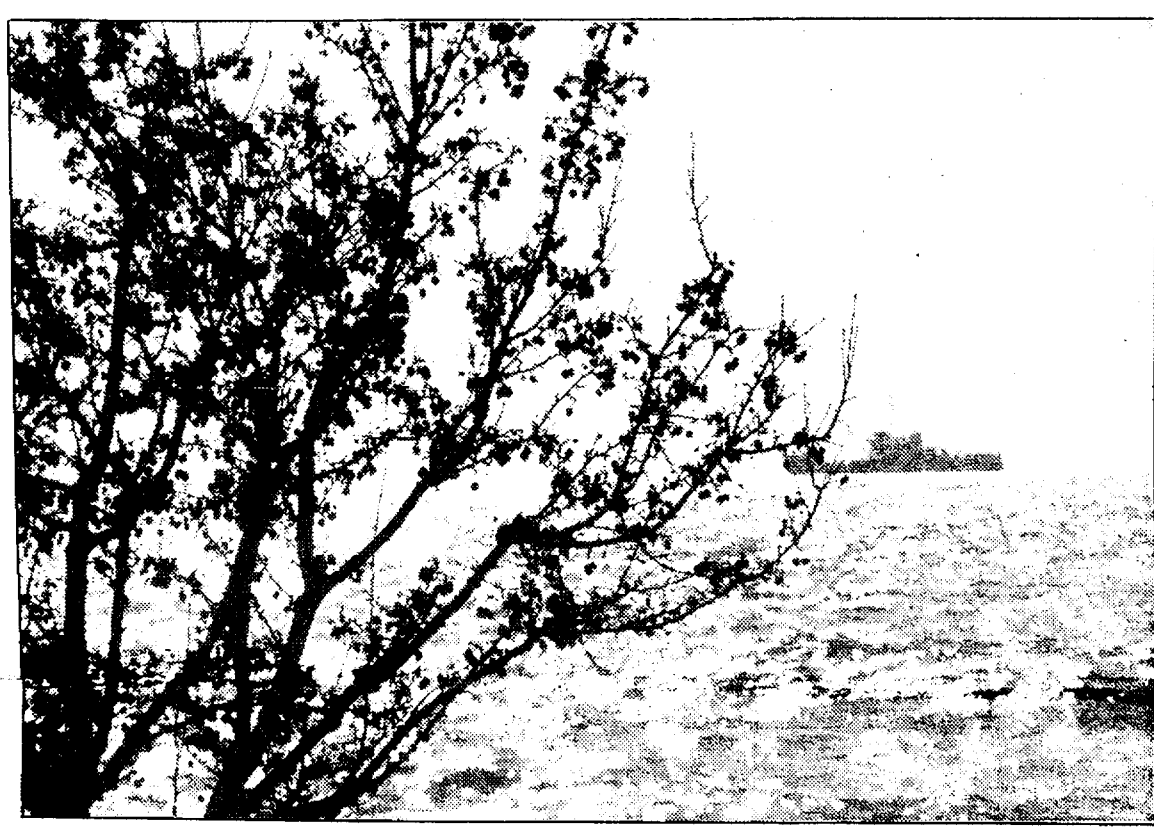

Kessler added, "I'm concerned about the temporary boardwalks. They're shoddy and I'm concerned about public safety."

Another resident suggested floating docks, which Crawford agreed to investigate.

In answer to a resident who asked if she would have to climb over three feet of sandbags to get to her boat, Crawford said about 300 feet of the park has been left open for picnickers. A reserve of sandbags has been put aside to fill in the unprotected area when it's deemed necessary, he said, and at that point, boaters will have to step over three feet of bags. He added, tongue-in-cheek, that they'll be wearing hip waders to get to their boats then.

A resident who said he has had a permit for a well for 35 years said the city should not consider any temporary measure. "We all may have to go through hardship and inconvenience, but we ought to think of putting in a new pier, redoing our entire marina. We have something all our neighbors are envious of."

There are 286 boat owners who have permits for the marina. The discussion lasted about one hour.

Computer to call Woods seniors

By Peter A. Salinas

A senior citizen who lives alone is taking care of his morning chores. The phone rings, he picks it up, and he hears a recording. No, it isn't someone trying to sell him something, but he hangs up anyway and continues with his task.

He has just heard from the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department's latest addition to the staff — a computerized automatic phone dialer.

Were the resident to shout into the phone or make any noise, the dispatcher would send a police car to the resident's home to investigate.

The Woods City Council agreed to spend $5,000 at its April 7 meeting for the voice communication autodialer.

"Our primary use at the beginning will be to communicate from the department to senior citizens who are alone for a while or who live alone," Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said. "It will allow us to check on them, at their request, to find out if they are all right."

Patterson said the system will initially be set up to contact persons during a period of time when they feel they will likely be home — in the morning or early afternoon. Persons who need assistance can make any sound or vocal noise, and have a car dispatched to their home.

"If they drop the phone, it will be a signal to us to go to their home," Patterson said.

It will likely take 30 to 60 days to get the system and a policy for the new equipment operational, he noted.

Other uses for the equipment are as far-reaching as the phone system itself.

Patterson said that if a child were missing and police had reason to believe he were still in the neighborhood, the computer could be programmed to call residents on several blocks, giving a description of the child and a number to call. This would provide on-the-spot information to community residents.

Calls could be made to the business community giving a description of a bad-check passer or a warning about water main breaks and imminent water shut-offs.

"It's a proactive response to the needs of the community rather than a reactive response," Patterson said. "Our crime prevention officer is anxious to be able to use this to send messages about a particular string of burglaries or larcenies which might be occurring in a particular area."

City Clerk Administrator Chester Petersen said that, to his knowledge, the Woods is the only city taking this step toward improving its communications and services for its citizens.

"We wanted to be the first to have this system," Petersen said, following the council meeting. Petersen also told the audience that the phone system could call people who have outstanding warrants out for them or unpaid parking tickets.

"Say there were a high incidence of a specific crime in the community, such as larcenies," Patterson noted. "We could have the system contact people reminding them to keep their garage doors shut, or give the description of a vehicle we believe is involved."

Senior citizens desiring a daily call from the public safety department won't be forced to listen to a computer-generated voice. The voice will be that of a staff member who records the message.

"Sometimes people need reassurance," Patterson said. "This will be a way for people to get a daily check up — they'll know someone is out there who is concerned about them."

Patterson said it will also give peace of mind to the children of elderly residents.

"I don't know how many times we have gotten calls from people who tried to contact a family member but didn't answer the phone. They want us to check on them," Patterson said. "Sometimes it is too late."

The system will be set up for sending messages, but not to receive them. People calling to report a complaint or a crime must still contact the regular Woods police numbers, 343-2400 for emergencies, and 343-2410 for business calls.

"There are many future applications for this system," Patterson noted. "New technology and software will one day allow a system to call your home at 3 a.m., without you hearing it ring, and read your water meter. This is still a long way off, though."

It will take some time for the staff to get all of the phone numbers in the community recorded on floppy discs, but officials note it will be worth it when things are ready to go.

"As soon as we get the system together and have our training period, we will go around to all the senior citizen groups explaining the system and how to get on it," Patterson said.

Youth honored for assisting police

Quick thinking and keen powers of observation by a youngster enabled Woods police to capture two larceny suspects March 22. Paul A. Straske, 12, of the Woods witnessed two men being chased by a third. He saw the two men jump into a car and drive off.

Woods Officer Bruce H. Marone, said Straske "did something that most adults are unable to do. Paul was alert enough to be able to observe and recall what he saw and he gave us valuable information which helped lead to the arrest of the two. Paul gave us a good description of the vehicle, direction of travel, number of occupants and the exact license number."

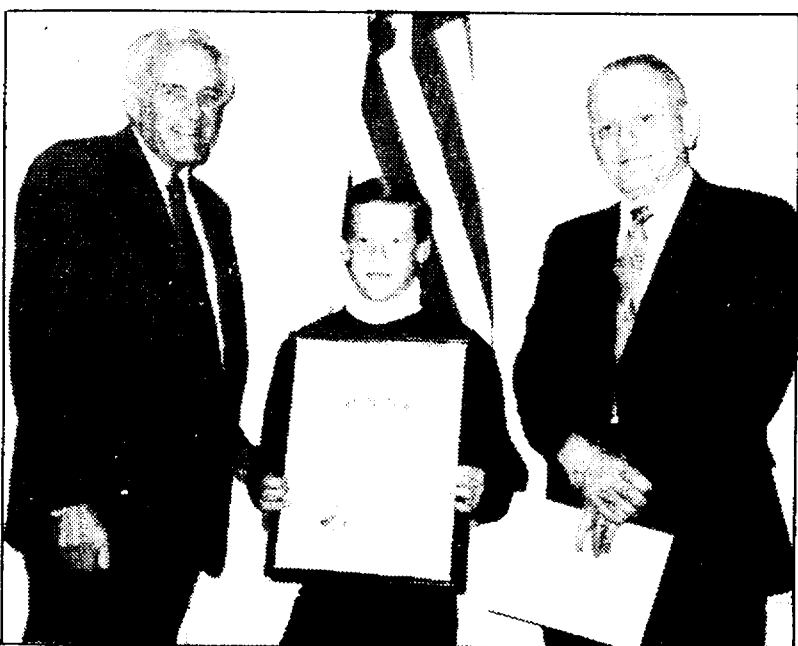

Straske was given a resolution of commendation by the Woods City Council in a short ceremony at the April 7 regular meeting.

The resolution noted, whereas, the actions of Paul Anthony Straske are in the highest tradition of citizen involvement and support of the public safety department of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods . . .

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that the Mayor and City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods do hereby commend, Paul Anthony Straske."

"We were very happy to see him (Straske) get that council resolution," Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said. "We are also appreciative that he came forward and was able to assist us with his accurate information."

New service

The Bon Secours CareVan, a free transportation service linking the community with Bon Secours health care services, rolled into service March 24. Dorothy Verette of Detroit was the first passenger to use the new service, assisted by Frank Soullier, supervisor, Bon Secours Hospital Safety and Security.

By calling 343-1444 at least 24 hours before their scheduled appointment, patients can arrange to be picked up at their homes and shuttled to and from Bon Secours Hospital, Bon Secours Pharmacy and Health Services, Bon Secours Physical Therapy Center and Cardiopulmonary Diagnostic Center free of charge. The CareVan also transports patients who are admitted to the hospital from their staff physician's office or from the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center in St. Clair Shores.

The van operates from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. It serves residents of the Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores, east side of Detroit, Harper Woods, East Detroit and Roseville, who do not have easy access to transportation.

TICKETS FOR THE MICHIGAN LOTTERY'S NEW WEEKLY GAME, SUPER LOTTO, WENT ON SALE APRIL 14 AT $1 EACH. RECENT QUESTIONS FROM COLUMN READERS ON THE NEW GAME INCLUDE:

Q: What is the difference between the regular and Super Lotto games?

A: Regular Lotto asks players to match four, five or six numbers from a field of 40. Super Lotto will ask players to make the same matches from a field of 44. This means longer odds and larger prizes for Super Lotto players.

Q: Is Super Lotto being offered in place of regular Lotto?

A: No. Super Lotto will be a companion to, not replacement for, regular Lotto. Both will be weekly games. Regular 6 of 40 Lotto drawings will be on Wednesdays, while 6 of 44 Super Lotto drawings will be on Saturdays.

Q: What's the minimum Jackpot for Super Lotto?

A: The 6 of 40 Lotto currently has a minimum Jackpot of $1 million. The first Super Lotto Jackpot was guaranteed at $2 million. From then on, the amount of play will determine the Jackpot amount.

Q: If Super Lotto creates larger Jackpots, isn't it better that 20 people each win $1 million than if one person won a $20 million Jackpot?

A: No matter the Jackpot size, there may be more than one winner. The average 6 of 40 Jackpot share has been about $1.7 million.

Q: Since Super Lotto will create longer odds, wouldn't it make sense to give prizes for matching three numbers?

A: Awarding prizes for matching three numbers would decrease the amount of money available for the Jackpot, defeating the game's most popular feature. Both players and the State School Aid Fund would be shortchanged.

Q: How will the new Lotto game affect my current Lotto subscription?

A: No subscription play will be offered for Super Lotto. Current 6 of 40 Lotto subscriptions are now extended to cover the full number of drawings purchased, but on a weekly basis. Subscriber mailings enable players to figure new expiration dates.

For use of their Super Lotto questions, 50 "Winds of Fortune" instant game tickets were sent to Marie Burchard of Eastlake, Dorothy E. Carter of Birmingham, Elaine Cleveland of Lansing, Sandra G. Hodge of South Lyon, Sue Lockwood of Gaylord and Marlene Silbert of Grosse Pointe.

Park firemen focus on EMS as argument against merger

By Pat Paholsky

If the Park merges its police and fire departments into a single unit, fire and medical emergency services will suffer and residents will pay more for fewer personnel. So says the committee against consolidation in a letter sent to all residents. No so, according to officials, who say plans are to upgrade the current level of service.

The letter by the Save our EMS/Fire Department Committee named cities it says have been unsuccessful with public safety and then lists two — Berkley and Kalamazoo — that dropped its ambulance service after consolidating departments. It also says that Grosse Pointe Woods needed a special mileage increase to pay for its EMS department.

"Historically speaking, public safety departments get out of ambulance service," said firefighter and union president Joseph Bialk in a subsequent interview. "It comes down to economics, retraining, scheduling of manpower and the willingness to do all three."

He pointed to a decision last month by officials in Center Line to discontinue its ambulance service temporarily until four more public safety officers are hired and trained as emergency medical technicians. The process will take more than a year, according to a newspaper report quoting the public safety commissioner. A private ambulance service will take over in the meantime, and residents who had received the service through their tax dollars, will be charged on an individual basis.

Expecting a public safety officer to enforce the law, fight fires and provide emergency medical service is expecting too much, the firemen say, and one of the positions will be dropped, due primarily to economics, they claim.

"How are they going to train police officers to be EMTs on an eight-hour shift without paying an exorbitant amount of overtime?" asked firefighter Mike Smith.

To be certified as a basic EMT requires 120 classroom hours and 20 hospital emergency room hours. And an EMT needs 40 additional training hours to be recertified every three years.

"How will they find the time for this when they will be cross-training us? What happens is they don't train and as the firefighters are reduced through attrition, they don't have enough people to staff an ambulance," Smith said.

Police Chief Richard Caretti refutes the charge. "Every single police officer will be EMT trained and certified. As soon as we complete the fire training, we will start EMT training."

He said it will take place at the same time firefighters are being cross-trained to be police officers.

"The only thing they're retraining for is first response — CPR and first aid," Bialk said.

First responders, generally the public safety officer, would administer first aid in an emergency and stay with the victim until an ambulance or qualified professional came, Bialk said, which he says is preferable to tying up an officer with EMT duties that will take him off patrol.

"They find out they don't want to tie up their men for that length of time," he said, adding that this is what happened in Berkley.

John Kiracofe, Berkley city manager, said his city turned over ambulance service to a private firm about a year ago for other reasons.

"We were ready to replace equipment and we considered the cost of operating the ambulance. We considered the fact that we could only provide basic life support and there was a private operator who could provide advanced life support. Now our public safety officers are first responders and merely stabilize a patient until the ambulance arrives," he said, adding that the length of time is about three minutes.

A Berkley public safety officer, who declined to be identified, said the decision to drop ambulance service came down to manpower. "It took someone out of the station and off the road. It made the service slow and impractical," he said.

Kalamazoo, another city the Save Our EMS/Fire Department Committee referred to in its letter, "dropped its EMS after less than a year of disastrous experimenting with public safety."

Capt. Charles Spencer said, however, that Kalamazoo "never had an ambulance per se. We had paramedics in the fire department and they carried over for a short period of time in the PSO program. They would patch you up and a private ambulance would transport you."

Spencer said the city has had a public safety department for about five years. An advanced life support board consisting of doctors selected the private ambulance company that services the city.

Grosse Pointe Woods, which has had a public safety department since the 1940s, is the only city in the Pointes to provide an advanced life support service. It does so through a slightly more complicated system.

Residents voted for the improved service with a special one-half mill in 1981. For civilians were hired, some of whom were advanced EMTs and others who were trained. Working with them are six public safety officers who are basic EMTs. The advanced life support system requires one advanced EMT and one basic EMT on the ambulance. In addition, the six officers are assigned to the fire/ambulance division where they work a 24-hour shift, rather than the eight-hour shift the rest of the public safety officers work.

The proposed operational plan in the Park calls for all officers to work eight-hour shifts.

Park residents pay a base rate of $45 for an ambulance run, Bialk said. He compares it to a private company, such as Ruehle's Ambulance in Macomb County which charges $146.50 base rate. The provider in Kalamazoo, Mall City Ambulance, charges $189 base rate. Mileage and use of materials are extra charges with most services.

One quad in serious condition, others in good shape

By Celia Murray and Peter A. Salinas

One of the Methven quadruplets, born April 10, was in serious condition with a lung problem at St. John Hospital, but his three brothers were listed in fair and good condition on Monday, April 14.

Gail and Norman Methven were told in February that they would be the parents of spontaneous quadruplets. Gail Methven had not been taking fertility drugs.

Grosse Pointe doctors Minu Kashef, chief of obstetrics, and Ali Rabbani, chief of pediatrics, handled the complicated delivery beginning at 12:16 p.m. In only 90 seconds, all four boys, ranging in size from 4 pounds, 1 ounce, to 5 pounds, 2½ ounces, were in the hands of the 12-person delivery team. Birth was by Cesarean section.

Three of the boys were given oxygen the day they were born, but later the condition of James Michael was downgraded from fair to serious. He is receiving oxygen because his lungs were not fully developed at birth, a condition common among premature births. The quads were delivered in the 35th week.

Gail Methven was admitted to St. John Hospital in February and has been there ever since. The petite 5-foot, 125-pound woman gained 55 pounds during her pregnancy and could not walk without assistance. Some 19 pounds of that weight was delivered in the form of four crying boys.

Natural quadruplets are rare. Statistically, there is a one in 730,000 chance of this occurring. There had never been a set of quads delivered at St. John before, and Dr. Kashef quipped, if the statistics held fast, he would have to wait 250 years before it would occur there again.

"My jaw dropped to the floor," said Norman Methven, 26, recalling his reaction to the news. "I was in shock for two or three days."

He is a landscaper and said he has taken another job. He and Gail met at Lakeside Mall where they were both employed. Gail Methven has three children from a previous marriage — all girls.

The eldest, Kristy, 15, now has a room in the basement of the family's three-bedroom duplex in Utica. The other two children, Lesley, 11, and Tracy, 4, also reside in the home.

Gail Methven herself has a twin brother.

The four brothers are named Robert Norman, Jason Matthew, James Michael and Daniel Mark.

When asked at a press conference what preparations he had made for the babies' arrival, Norman Methven said, "Well, the cribs are up." He grinned sheepishly, then repeated, "The cribs are up."

Meade-Johnson and Ross Laboratories each have donated a year's supply of different feeding formulas. St. John Hospital has set up a fund to benefit the family, provided one year of free prescriptions for the children and given them four car seats.

Gail Methven was to leave the hospital this week, but that information was not available at press time.

To contribute to the family fund, send donations to: Methven Children's Fund, Public Relations Department, St. John Hospital, 22101 Moross, Detroit, Mich. 48236, or call 343-4000.

Park grabs three for Detroit police

Park police captured three youths involved in a break-in of a home in Detroit Saturday afternoon, April 12, according to the department.

Officers were called to the area on reports of a suspicious person with a gun roaming through backyards. Officers saw and stopped the three youths, two age 11 and one age 10, and found they were carrying a Polaroid camera, a box of bullets and a silver flashlight.

One of the youths told police the three had broken into a home on Alter Road.

The three were turned over to Detroit police.

Annual paper sale

The Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe is preparing for its annual newspaper sale next week, Thursday, April 24. Members will be selling special editions of the Grosse Pointe News on street corners from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. rain or shine. The money raised through this event helps fund numerous youth activities in the area. Members are, bottom row, from left, Ray

Board faced with concerns about December retirements

By Mike Andrzejczyk
Lower-than-normal retirements and fears that the district's teachers may decide to retire in December — not June — has the Grosse Pointe Board of Education worried.

Trustees talked about ways to minimize disruption to classrooms should teachers decide to retire in December — about the middle of the school year — and not at the end of classes in June.

A December retirement may be beneficial for some teachers because of the way Social Security pensions are figured, according to Grosse Pointe Education Association president Doris Cook. Teachers weren't brought under Social Security until 1957. Because of the way benefits are calculated, some teachers will find it financially worthwhile to wait until the end of the calendar year to retire, getting a larger Social Security payment and still qualifying for the 8 percent increase in teacher pension benefits, Cook said.

But extra months of income don't mean a bigger Social Security pension for all teachers, according to Ronald Tonks, director of labor relations and personnel. Also, teachers who wait until December will miss the 3 percent annual adjustment that comes in September, he added.

Date of special election still unknown in Park

Two residents confronted the Park council Monday night regarding the special election on the merger of the police and fire departments.

Why not hold off for a month? It seems very strange that we are taking this attitude of knocking heads when the community has spoken to you."

"When do you plan to allow us to vote on the issue of consolidation?" asked Andronekey Gragg.

She told Mayor Palmer Heenan that she stood next to him in a market when he referred to the attitude of maintaining separate departments as belonging to "the covered-wagon days."

City attorney Herold McC. Deason said a date has not yet been approved by the county election commission. "The only date available is the Aug. 5 primary. It would obviously reduce the cost to the city (to combine elections). The question is what the court is going to do and we hope it will be fairly soon."

Councilman Vernon Ausherman said if the citizens vote for separate departments, "we will have separate departments. The cross-training will not be lost because frequently police assist firemen and they'll be better equipped. We will derive some benefit."

Victoria Johnides said she was concerned that cross-training was taking place before the people voted on the issue.

Heenan said 18 police officers have been cross-trained to date.

Trustee Joan Hanpeter suggested the administration look into the possibility of offering teachers a financial inducement. Teachers thinking of retiring in December would talk with the central office, which would calculate Social Security benefits based on June and December retirements. The district would make up the difference to entice the teachers to retire, Hanpeter said.

The cost of such a plan, were it to be adopted, would be made up by decreased disruption of classrooms and ease in finding replacements, she added.

Board Treasurer Dorothy Kennel had another suggestion.

Those thinking of retiring in December should remember that the district invariably lays off teachers at the end of the school year, Kennel said. If they retire in June, they will cut the number of their fellow teachers who will be pink-slipped.

The board asked Tonks and Cook to talk with teachers about retirements.

Lucas: An upbeat candidate

If there is one word to describe William Lucas' campaign for the Republican nomination for governor, it is "upbeat."

In an interview with Grosse Pointe News representatives last week, the Wayne County executive showed that he was not only upbeat about his own chances for the nomination, but that he is upbeat about the GOP prospects of holding control of the state Senate and winning control of the House and the governorship.

Lucas claimed the No. 1 position among the GOP contenders for governor but wouldn't criticize or write off any of the other four candidates: Daniel Murphy, Oakland County executive; Richard Chrysler, Brighton businessman; John Lauve, Grosse Pointe Woods engineer, and Colleen Engler, a state representative from Mount Pleasant.

Instead, Lucas made it clear he already is running against the Democratic governor, James Blanchard, and took issue with the governor on matters ranging from his failure to improve the state's business climate to his lack of leadership on the personal liability insurance crisis.

Lucas scoffed at Blanchard's claim that Michigan is the "comeback" state, contending instead that most of Michigan's economic recovery stemmed from the national recovery and that Michigan should not be satisfied just to "come back" to its previous economic mediocrity.

Among 10 topics he discussed on the campaign trail, Lucas said he finds the greatest interest in business and jobs. People are concerned, he claimed, about the loss of the GM Saturn plant to Tennessee, despite the state's "$650 million offer to attract it to Michigan," and about the state's inability to attract more of the Japanese auto plants being built in this country.

Lucas said, however, he is even more concerned about the state's failure to do more to benefit the business and industry already in the state. In fact, he claims the state is offering incentives and tax rebates to companies to come to Michigan to compete against the businesses and industries already located here.

The GOP candidate also claimed that Blanchard has paid little attention to the report by the Governor's Commission on Jobs and Economic Development. He distributed a copy of the recommendations of the commission's Auto Suppliers Working Group, headed by GM chief Roger Smith, that were aimed at cutting the costs of doing business in the state, not only for big corporations but for small businesses.

Lucas believes education should be given top priority among the state's needs. He wants more cooperation between business and education. He thinks the state's research institutions should specialize and avoid wasteful competition which might cause some of Michigan's best talent to leave the state. And he thinks business and industry could get more involved in job training.

But he also sees education as helping to alleviate crime, a problem high on the list of the priorities cited by people he has talked with. He contends that criminals often cannot read and write, are misfits who cannot compete in today's world and, as a consequence, often remain in the cycle of dependency. Joblessness and inadequacies often stem from people's lack of education, in his view.

Asked about earlier statements indicating he favors cutting the state income tax below the current 4.6 percent rate, Lucas claimed that the state is likely to get a windfall of perhaps as much as $320 million from enactment of the president's tax program. He feels that additional revenue would enable the state to cut its tax rate to perhaps as little as 4 percent or 4.1 or 4.2 percent.

Lucas does not share Blanchard's view that Michigan's state government should not finance any of the federal programs now being eliminated or sharply cut back because of the enactment of the Gramm-Rudman act. The Wayne executive believes, instead, that the state should look at the need for some of these programs and not eliminate them without such a review.

The candidate is not taking a position on the 1988 GOP presidential race, nor on the 1986 contest for his own Wayne County executive position. As for the 1986 GOP choice for lieutenant governor, to be made by the state GOP convention after the primary, Lucas believes the party will pick someone who will help the ticket, who can do the job and who will be favored on a regional basis. He suggested no names himself.

Despite his campaign for governor, Lucas claims he is still minding the store in Wayne County. He points out, for example, he still is helping to get signers to petitions to put on the ballot this year the proposal to eliminate the elective office of county drain commissioner if the county board doesn't vote for a referendum on the issue.

Even though Lucas is generally regarded as the GOP front-runner, some observers still have doubts that a black from Wayne County can win the nomination of governor. But Lucas is upbeat about his prospects and his victories in his races for sheriff and county executive prove he is a winner. The nagging doubts, however, are unlikely to be resolved until the people have spoken in the August primary.

Shades of the New Deal!

Not since the New Deal order to "plow under little pigs" more than 50 years ago has the U.S. Department of Agriculture created such a controversy as it has with its current program to slaughter nearly 1.6 million dairy cows.

The slaughter of pigs a half century ago and the slaughter of cows today have the same purpose: to reduce surpluses. But in both cases the adverse public reaction to the government programs surprised the Department of Agriculture and the administration in Washington.

In 1933, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace proclaimed the slaughter of four million pigs and one million piggy sows. According to one account, "although it was strictly an emergency measure, no one was prepared for the public outcry," and then the account continued:

"Misconstrued by the Republican press and the gullible animism of the American people, what farmers deemed a simple restriction of output to raise prices became the horrendous murder of porcine mothers and children. That the pork was destined for relief distribution meant nothing. That the livelihood of thousands of hog raisers and their families depended upon the higher prices was overlooked. It was most foul, bloody murder."

Yet the slaughter of the little pigs did meet with some success. It did put money into the hands of hog raisers at a cost of $33 million, of which 90 percent went to the farmers. It may have helped raise hog prices, although other factors contributed. But while 6.5 million pigs were slaughtered, only 220,000 were piggy sows. The pigs were transformed into a million pounds of dry salt meat distributed to the needy, into 22 million pounds of grease and 8 million pounds of lard sold in commercial channels and into about 12.5 thousand tons of tankage, three-fifths of which was thrown away.

While not entirely successful, the little pig campaign dramatized the plight of farmers during the depression and made farmers more receptive to the idea of production control as a means of raising farm prices.

So what is wrong with the Reagan administration's efforts to slaughter 1.6 million cows in an effort to reduce production of milk, butter and cheese in this country and cut the surpluses that the government is buying under present programs?

As in the pig problem, it apparently depends upon your viewpoint. As part of the cow elimination program, the government ordered the branding of the cheeks of dairy cattle marked for slaughter to make sure they were disposed of as required. But animal rights groups promptly protested that this was cruel and unnecessary treatment of the friendly bossy whose face is apparently the most sensitive part of its body. These protesters even got a judge to delay the start of the branding.

But an even stronger protest arose from the Western ranges. There cattle ranchers estimate that the prospect of the introduction of 1.6 million dairy cows into an already weak market has cut the value of the national beef cattle inventory by $5 billion. They claim that large numbers of cattle operators may be forced out of the business by next winter. The National Cattlemen's Association has filed suit to halt the dairy cattle buyout.

The cattle ranchers are especially annoyed because, aside from some federal controls on beef imports and access by a few ranchers to low-cost federal grazing lands, they insist the beef industry receives none of the direct subsidies the dairy industry and other farmers get from the government.

Dairy subsidies are a hot political issue, especially in the Midwest. The legislation for the dairy cattle buyout does require the industry to cut production by 12.1 billion pounds of milk from April 1 to Aug. 31, 1987. That would reduce the many tons of surplus dried milk, butter and cheese the government has been buying and storing to maintain dairy prices. But farmers claim they need the funds from the cattle buyout to get into other lines of farming.

Unlike auto manufacturers who can halt production when the market becomes satiated, farmers tend to keep on going even when low prices of their products end their profits. Since the depression, the government has been attempting to regulate supply and farm prices through various marketing and production control devices. But the current outcry over the slaughter of the cow — perhaps the most docile and content of domestic animals — shows that government tinkering with the law of supply and demand can cause unexpected results even when the aim is eventual government economy.

Reminiscences of another era

To the Editor:

I read with great sadness last week of the death of John Ciardi, American poet, a gunner in the Army Air Corps in World War II, a much-admired and much-sought-after lecturer, translator of Dante's "Divine Comedy" and Prix de Rome award-winner, longtime contributor to The Saturday Review, and recently a personality of fame on public radio.

Years ago I had a chance to meet him a couple of times and to talk with him briefly, and I read his columns and poetry, but I hadn't seen him for, say, 35 years until I heard him in person in the early 1980s speaking at the U of M in a symposium with mostly much young poets.

It's strange what things leap to one's memory out of a whole lifetime of someone's brilliant writing and speaking. One of them came on that afternoon in Ann Arbor when he said — just factually and in no somber vein — "Of course, you fellows are on the way in; I'm on the way out." I'm sure he was not trying to be prophetic, probably just thinking of the actuarial tables.

The other John Ciardi quotation is for me part of the history of Grosse Pointe, and for it some background is needed. It occurred on Sunday, Aug. 1, 1948 on what was then an empty lot at 1405 Bedford at Charlevoix at a lawn party given by the Progressive Party of Michigan and hosted by my friend Sidney Rosen, who lived next door at 1411 Bedford.

The atmosphere and decorations for the event were not too typical of the Grosse Pointe of 1948. The edges of the lawn, both on Bedford and Charlevoix, were lined by chest-high heavy-paper signs supported at intervals by slim posts. Folding chairs were set up on the lawn. The signs read with such ever-inflammatory slogans as "Jim Crow Must Go," "Peace among the Nations," "Wallace and Taylor in '48."

For this was a Henry-Wallace-for-President rally; and Henry Wallace, having split from the mainstream of the Democratic Party, stood for an end to the then-developing Cold War and for friendly coexistence with the Soviet Union. But Wallace was elsewhere that evening, and the speakers were vice-presidential candidate Glen Taylor and poet John Ciardi.

Taylor, from Idaho, was a vivid,

Lincolnesque political figure and that rarity in politics; someone really representative of the masses of the people. That is, before getting elected to the Senate in 1944 (for one term only!) he had been a carpenter and factory-worker. (He is worth a separate letter in himself sometime).

Well, you can imagine how bizarre an event this developed into, visible and audible and it was to neighbors and to passers-by. The public-address system and slogging signs left no doubt as to what was going on.

Actually, however, what was going on inside was normal enough, merely what could be expected at any enthusiastic rally for any political party anywhere. It was what was beginning to occur outside that was rowdy. At one point an apologetic resident from down the street (a middle-aged gentleman, if memory serves) was shouting "unkind" remarks over the chest-high signs at the edge of the sidewalk. Teen-agers, thinking that the "show" had been imported from Moscow, were whooping up a storm and urging passing drivers to honk their horns.

Inside, the rally proceeded with gusto. Sid Rosen took the microphone at one point and cordially invited those outside to join the guests within. "You'll enjoy meeting this candidate for vice president," he said. But the invitation was not accepted. The hubbub continued off and on.

Taylor's speech was engaging and cheerful. . . Ciardi spoke with great good humor in his booming basso voice. He always had a convincing, winning, plausible way. You liked him. Then in the midst of his words some of his perplexed audience out on the street responded in their own way. I say "perplexed" because one couldn't hear Ciardi without liking him, and the youngsters must have liked the man but knew that they weren't supposed to. In any event, they exploded a giant cherry bomb, to which Ciardi responded, without missing a beat and as if the racket were a musical accompaniment to go with his prepared remarks, "Right! I think Wallace and Taylor are worth a 21-gun salute."

So those are the two quotations and I personally remember from the life of the late John Ciardi — one at the U of M, the other a part of Grosse Pointe history at 1405-1411 Bedford at a Glen Taylor rally in 1948.

Firefighters will be busier

To the Editor:

Upon receiving a Park Fire Department campaign bulk mailing, I must offer counterpoint. As noble as firefighters may be at the scene of a fire, they continue to fail to grasp the basic concept of public safety. Consolidation of police/fire functions is valid, and municipalities are using such a system across the United States. Closer to home, three of the Pointes have consolidated their departments.

What the firefighters are really saying is that consolidation puts them on police patrol when there is no fire; and that they would rather not be on patrol.

As it is now, idle or underused fire department labor is the rule. This is true of most unconsolidated departments in residential towns. With public safety, firefighters will be busier and facing more risk. That's why it benefits the city.

Residents should not "buy" the allegations of inadequate protection under public safety. Firefighters have opposed public safety almost everywhere it has been put in place. It is, however, a better system of service for the residents.

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

Spring, or what passes for spring until the real thing comes along, is traditional clean-up, fix-up time. Walls are washed, carpets cleaned, furniture polished. Minor repairs are made. Yards and gardens are raked and readied for spring planting. Spring wardrobes are brought out of closets and measured up against current fashions. New hairdos are pondered and different shades of make-up considered. Spring is a time of rejuvenation for people as well as nature.

Yet with all this attention focused on appearance, one of the most important inventories is neglected — that of taking a close look at health problems and doing something about them. Winter takes its toll and those nagging little ailments will not go away unless something is done about them.

That something is best determined by your doctor. Even if there is nothing significant bothering you, a spring check-up will insure that there are no hidden disorders working against you.

Take, for instance, a ringing in the ears. No big deal. It doesn't hurt, it's annoying, but after a while you get used to it. Why bother about it?

It should not be so lightly dismissed. Tinnitus is a clinical name for noises in the ear. For some it can be relatively mild. For others it may be a buzzing, hissing, crackling, ringing noise.

Sometimes only one ear is affected; other times both ears are affected. Not only that, a person may hear different sounds in each ear. Sounds may appear to come from different locations inside the head or outside the head. They may even come and go.

Sometimes it can be alleviated by removal of ear wax or treatment of ear infection or high blood pressure, if these are the causes.

One of the causes of tinnitus may be continued exposure to loud noises. Another might be a viral infection or a head injury. Emotional stress, excessive use of alcohol, tobacco or aspirin could be factors.

Dr. George E. Shambaugh of Northwestern University Medical School, Chicago, conducted a study in which 72 percent of 196 patients were helped by treatment of a low salt diet, diuretic drugs and, in some cases, allergic management.

A clinical and research audiologist working with a physician found in a study involving 90 patients that 30 had high blood fat levels. These patients were helped by weight reduction.

Among the other 60 patients, some were found to have hypoglycemia. They found relief by going on a high-protein, low carbony-drate, low-fat diet. Biofeedback techniques were found to be helpful for those suffering from stress.

Another doctor working in the Ear Research Institute in Los Angeles reported success with patients with severe tinnitus by teaching them to relax muscle groups of the forehead.

Another form of relief is a tinnitus masker developed at the Tinnitus Clinic at the University of Oregon in Portland. It is about the size of a hearing aid. Unlike a hearing aid, it does not magnify sound but rather produces its own sound like the hum of an air conditioner, a sound supposedly more acceptable.

One of the aspects of tinnitus is that patients aware of the noises in their ear are unaware of diminished hearing acuity. When this is true, a carefully selected hearing aid affording better reception of external sounds blocks out the tinnitus.

There are roughly 4.5 million people in the United States who have serious hearing impairments. More people are handicapped by hearing loss than the combined total of those with heart disease, cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, multiple sclerosis and blindness. Hearing disorders can be the result of one or more localized symptoms of a disease that affects the person's general health.

The ability to hear high-frequency sounds sometimes diminishes with age. As a result, some words begin to resemble others, or parts of words, or sentences are missed entirely. Other noises such as traffic sounds and television blur conversation. Unable to communicate those afflicted will sometimes lapse into depression and withdrawal. This is unwarranted since a hearing aid might correct any of the problems that caused it.

Another area sometimes put off in a program of health maintenance is one that involves vision. In the plan for making spring a new beginning, it should be included. Hearing problems can be, but are not always, the result of aging. But as we grow older, there is a gradual weakening of the ability to focus on nearby objects. Usually this condition occurs around age 55 and can be overcome with the aid of corrective lenses.

The best-known problem that increases with age is that of cataracts, a cloudy condition in the lens which affects vision as it progresses. While there is no way to prevent cataract formation, not all people require correction of the condition. Only about five percent of those over 65 require surgery. Removal of cataracts is only advised when vision problems interfere with daily activities or when the cataract becomes opaque. When surgery is called for, 90 percent of those who undergo it have improved vision.

A more serious eye condition that progresses slowly without warning is glaucoma. Glaucoma causes higher-than-normal pressure in the eyeball with the result that fluids within the eye do not drain properly, causing damage to the optic nerve and loss of vision.

Symptoms include an unexplained blurring of the vision of one or both eyes, occasional headaches on one side or the other and the seeming presence of halos around the electric lights.

People over 35 should be checked periodically for glaucoma.

Treatment consists of the use of eyedrops and drugs or sometimes surgery. In some cases laser surgery has proved to be an effective treatment. However medical researchers believe that more conventional treatment should be tried since those treated with lasers experience increased eye pressure and temporary inflammation.

Because most cases of glaucoma develop in people over 40, experts recommend a medical check every two years after 40. For those with a family history of glaucoma, an annual eye examination is a good precautionary measure.

I say

If I only had a beer . . . I'd be whilin' away the hours, conversin' with the Tigers — if I only had a beer . . .

Didn't go to Opening Day, but did attend the last Tiger/Blue Jay match-up at home last season. I was singing that song — 30 rows up in the bleachers.

Yelling "Less filling" while the other 5,000 fans on the other side of the stands yelled, "Tastes great" only reminded me there was no way in Cleveland I was going to fight my way through hundreds of bleacher burns to get a shotglassful of LA (little awful) beer.

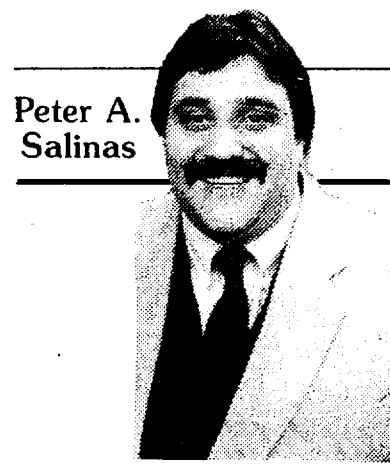

"We pounded a couple Philadelphia-style pretzels, and washed them down with some (this is tough to write) Pepsi.

What is a Ball Park frank without an ice cold Stroh? It's like hitting Barbados with your mother-in-law.

Understand from some who attended last week's opener, the police were out in force, discouraging public drinking outside the stadium. Gatekeepers were filling trash bins with hundreds of those cute little bottles of schnapps.

There may be a solution to the brewless bleacher problem — if the state legislature takes action on the following proposals.

A three-part program would allow beer consumption with some degree of sanity. Perhaps vendors could hawk beer in the stadium again.

Mandatory inebriation determination aisle check lanes and a bleacher seat belt law combined with the installation of ground-to-air beach ball-seeking missiles would allow the safe consumption of alcohol.

Check lanes would be manned by city police who would administer portable breathalyzer tests to those they believe are intoxicated. Those with alcohol levels higher than acceptable — say, .20 — would be carted off to baseball jail, an obstructed view seat. The fine would include obstructed view seats for the next three games the offender sees.

The bleacher seat belt law would be essential. It would prevent fans from leaping up when Evans povers a ball into the right field cheap seats, but would also keep brew-bitten folks from flopping onto the field. This law would also be enforced by city police. They could not, however, give you a breathalyzer test for not being strapped in. Fine would be an afternoon Al Kaine lecture on proper bleacher behavior.

Ground-to-air missiles to prevent beach balls from landing on the field might be a costly proposition. This cost could easily be offset by collecting the empty returnable cans and bottles left outside of the stadium. Those potential revenues are lost now to kids who earn enough money by picking up the empties to follow the Tigers on their west coast road trip — on private jets.

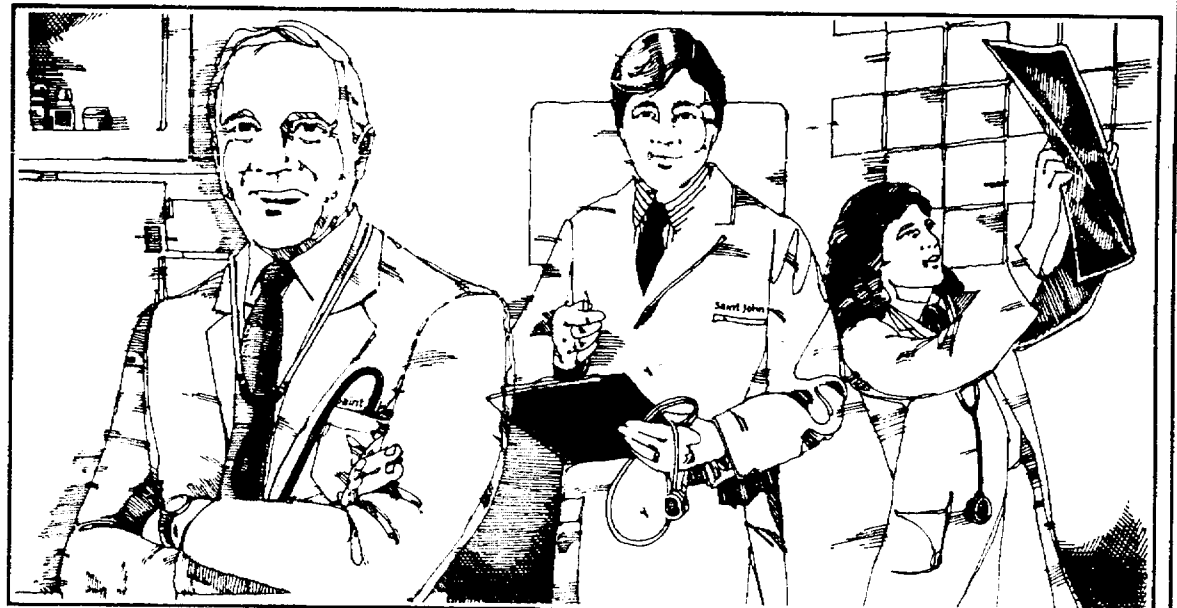

If this funding cannot be located, perhaps President Reagan's strategic defense initiative could be expanded to blast the beach balls. This would take an act of Congress — and not too likely with Gramm-Rudmann.

Institution of the three-part plan would enable beer drinkers to enjoy a game the way they used to — without being thirsty.

Looking forward to a sunny afternoon with the Tiges — and more (gulp) Pepsi.

An unsuitable solution

Whodunit is next GP Theatre offering

A drama set in upper Michigan in 1911 is the subject of Grosse Pointe Theatre's next production at Fries Auditorium, Milan Stitt's

"The Runner Stumbles." This whodunit, with an undercurrent of deep and heartfelt humanism, is loosely based on a trial wherein a priest is accused of murdering a nun, and in uncovering the culprit, the audience views a love story, a psychological maze, and a reflection of the strictures of religion.

Opening Wednesday, April 23, and running through Sunday, April 27, with a second week scheduled April 30 through May 3, "The Runner Stumbles" is directed by long-time GPT actress Lois Bendler, who also directed "Abelard and Heloise" a few seasons back. Producer is Carol Dowdy, with Janie Vreeland as stage manager and Bill Heimke as technical director. Jac Purdon, who designed the sets for "Company" and GPT's international offering "Agnes of God," has created an illusory setting for this northern Michigan town.

Heimke also plays the lead role, that of Father Rivard, with Mirjana Urosev as Sister Rita. Defending attorney Toby Felker is played by Mike Evans, with Nancy Sortor as Mrs. Shandig, housekeeper at the rectory. Donna DiSante, Martin Bufalini II, Karen Haller-Atkin, Wally Maher and Peter Waliko round out the cast.

Chairing the technical crews are Ginger Hupp, costumes; Chuck Sortor, lighting; Kathy Morris, make-up; Mary Lou Olszewski, properties and set dressing; and Don Lockwood, sound. Francis Dall'acqua is apprentice director, and John Guadagnoli serves as assistant producer.

All performances are at the Fries Auditorium of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. Tickets are $6.50, and may be obtained by calling 881-4004. Performances, with the exception of Sunday at 7 p.m., all begin at 8 p.m.

The War Memorial offers free parking and a candlelight buffet Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening of both weeks, and Saturday, April 27, for those holding theater tickets. Patrons may reserve dinners by calling 881-7511.

Two members of the Grosse Pointe Theatre cast of "The Runner Stumbles" are Bill Heimke as Father Rivard and Donna DiSante as Erma Pringle. The play opens April 23 at the War Memorial Fries Auditorium. For ticket information, call 881-4004.

Free tests April 20

Free health screening tests will be available for anyone 18 years of age or older from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 20, at the Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center as part of Project Health-O-Rama.

Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center is located at 22300 Bon Brae in St. Clair Shores, west of Jefferson between 10 and 11 Mile roads. For more information, call 343-1668.

Let's turn 50 together

To celebrate or commiserate their 50th birthday, members of the 1954 graduating class of Southeastern High School in Detroit are planning a get-together on Sept. 27 at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club.

The majority of 1954 graduates were born in 1936 and thus will experience their 50th birthday this year. Rather than having a high school reunion, the planning committee felt that a giant 50th birthday party would be more appropriate. For more information contact Robert Rouston at 522-6928 or Lyle Heavner at 772-9377.

The tests at the Bon Secours Health and Fitness Center include: oral and skin cancer, colon-rectal cancer kits ($2 fee), self exam and instruction, blood panel (21 tests for $8), pulmonary function, medication and nutrition counseling, blood pressure, glaucoma, vision, hearing, height and weight, and general counseling and referring.

Free pocket-size first aid kits will be given to each family. Complimentary valet parking and baby sitting services will also be provided.

Emphysema is topic

Chronic lung disease patients can learn about emphysema at this month's Breathers Club, sponsored by the American Lung Association of Southeastern Michigan.

The group will meet at 2:30 p.m., Monday, April 21, in the Calvary Senior Center's Classroom 3, located at 4950 Gateshead, off Mack, south of Moross, in Detroit.

For more information, call 961-1697.

Forster is Person of the Year

She grew tired of taking her children to other communities in metro Detroit to see fireworks on the Fourth of July.

Kathy Forster went before the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue in 1984 and asked if the association could sponsor a locally held event.

Last year the fireworks were an awesome display complete with accompanying music. The event, held at Parcels Field at Vernier Avenue and Mack, promises to be even bigger than last year.

It is for her year-round efforts in bringing back a fireworks display to Grosse Pointe, that Forster has been named the association's Person of the Year.

She said the fireworks would not have been possible without the cooperation and efforts of many people, especially committee co-chairperson Robbie Curry.

Forster, a Grosse Pointe Park resident, is a graduate of John Carroll University in Cleveland. She and her husband, Ron, have two children. She is a lamp and accessory buyer for the family owned and operated Forster's Interiors, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Lee Meyer, association president, said the selection of a person of the year is an annual event.

"She (Forster) has done a tremendous job over the last three years," Meyer said. "Her committee starts working for the next year the day after the fireworks. It takes literally all year to put the program together."

Fundraising is very instrumental," Forster said when she approached the board, she had every intention of making a fireworks display a reality in Grosse Pointe. The association made her chairman of the fireworks committee.

"My father said there are times when things like this need to be done — someone has to do them," she said. "There was a lot of support from the community."

She noted that support will have to remain strong if the event is to continue.

"Fundraising for this event has been a challenge," she said. "Since funding is solely through voluntary donations, we don't know from one year to the next whether we can continue. We don't want this event to become an endangered species."

This year will mark the third time the event has been sponsored by the association. "Mack Avenue Fireworks & Musical Event" will be held Sunday, June 29. The music, performed by the Austin Moro Band this year, will begin around 8 p.m. A July 3 rain date has been set.

"It is through her efforts that the fireworks event has been an occasion for the association to thank the community for its patronage to our businesses and professionals on Mack Avenue," Meyer said.

A special dinner will be held Saturday, April 19, at 7 p.m. at Schiavi's on Eight Mile Road, Detroit.

Woods flower sale May 16-17

It's that bloomin' time of year again!

Grosse Pointe Woods' Beautification Advisory Commission will be holding its annual flower sale Friday evening, May 16, and all day Saturday, May 17, in front of the Woods City Hall.

Dr. Lee Bryce, commission chairperson, said the "early bird" sale will begin Friday from 5 p.m. to about 8 p.m.

"Last year we had so many people drive by and stop while we were unloading the flowers off the truck we decided to sell them to anyone wishing to buy off the rack," Bryce said.

Some new additions to the line of flowers will be available. In addition to the impatiens, begonias, marigolds, hanging reiger begonias and petunias, there will also be available dusty miller, snapdragons, verbena, sweet alyssum and salvia.

Wholesale price for begonias and impatiens is $8 per flat. Petunias and marigolds are $5.75 per flat. Other prices are not yet known.

Proceeds from the annual sale have gone to many projects in the Woods. Flowers located at various locations around the city are paid for with the proceeds.

"We also had a stained glass window installed in the courtroom and have purchased Christmas decorations for city hall," she said.

There will be no Sunday sale this year, according to Bryce. She said the addition of the Friday early bird sale will be enough to sell all of the flowers.

"The flower sale is what provides flowers for Grosse Pointe Woods," Bryce said. "If you support the sale, you are supporting the city and its beautification."

Clown Corps to meet

The Grosse Pointe Clown Corps will hold a new member registration Wednesday, April 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Woods public safety building, 20025 Mack.

Children and adults from Grosse Pointe, Harper Woods and Macomb County are eligible. For more information, call chairman Arthur Kuehnel at 881-8186.

Cinema League

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will meet Monday, April 21, at 8 p.m. at the War Memorial. Helen Kozy, known in the Grosse Pointe area for her photography, travels behind the Iron Curtain. Her slides, "Volga Cruise," will review Russian history from Ivan the Terrible through Peter the Great to the present.

While wearing a Russian costume, Helen will acquaint viewers with the city of Rostov-on-Don before boarding the cruise ship. Her pictures show the ship's facilities and activities and their shore visits to two uninhabited islands and to six cities.

The presentation includes Volgograd, which has been completely rebuilt after being 90 percent destroyed in World War II, Lenin's birthplace, Togliatti, the Russian automobile manufacturing center, and a Young Pioneers camp at Kazan.

After the cruise, there is a flight to Kiev and St. Sophia Cathedral, and then on to Moscow to visit Red Square, the Kremlin, and some gift shops. Leningrad and the Hermitage are included.

The public is invited. There is a charge of $1 for non-members.

The Cinema League is making plans for its 31st annual banquet with a special program on May 19. The public is welcome to this event.

Italy series

Dr. Stephen Bertman, popular arts and culture lecturer, will present three weekly talks on the "Romantic Cities of Italy," from 7:30 to 9 p.m., beginning Monday, April 21, at the War Memorial.

With visual presentations and commentary, Bertman will present "Rome: The Eternal City" April 21, "Florence: Birthplace of the Renaissance" April 28, and "Venice: Queen of the Mediterranean" May 5.

Tickets for the series of three lectures are $19 per person, while a single lecture is $8. Tickets are available at the center or at the door. For additional information call 881-7511, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

International dance

Maria Thomas of Grosse Pointe Woods, in an Epirotiko Greek costume, will perform with the Hellenic Society for the Performing Arts Greek Dancers at the International Dance Festival Sunday, April 20, 7:30-10:30 p.m., at Northland Center, Northland Mall.

The Hellenic Society for the Performing Arts Greek Dancers along with 21 of the best ethnic performing groups will entertain for three hours on two stages in the mall area. In addition, ethnic foods, wine, desserts, coffee and free valet parking are all included in the festival admission price of $13.50. Tickets are available at The International Institute, TicketWorld Outlets, Hudson ticket offices and AAA. Call 871-8600 during business hours for additional information.

Old, young

The Sherwin Wine lecture series, "Is The Family In Trouble?" will conclude with "The Old and The Young: Coping With Difference," on Wednesday, April 23, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the War Memorial. In this third lecture, Wine will discuss ways in which to bridge the communication gap between generations.

Wine contends that each new generation faces different challenges and problems from the preceding ones, and families need to use creative imagination, not nostalgia, to find solutions to today's situations.

The lecture, presented by the Council of Sponsors, costs $6.50 per person. For additional information, call 881-7511, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Men's Glee Club

The Wayne State University Men's Glee Club will present a concert Sunday, April 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Directed by Dr. Harry M. Langsford, the Glee Club will offer a variety of music, including classical sacred/secular, folk songs, spirituals, and selections by The Broilers.

Last July, this group won the international musical "Eisteddfod," the 809-year-old Welsh men's songfest that draws entrants from around the world. This is the third time that the WSU Men's Glee Club has been proclaimed the finest male chorus in the world: 1968, 1981, 1985.

This latest victory was especially meaningful because it was part of the world tour of celebration of the 40th anniversary of the glee club and of Langsford's 40 years as its conductor.

Tickets, priced at adults, $5; senior citizens, $3; and students, $1; are available at the door. For more information, call 882-5330.

Osteoporosis talk

Dr. Arthur Santora, assistant professor of medicine at Wayne State University, will speak on osteoporosis Wednesday, April 23, at Assumption Cultural Center, 21800 Marter, St. Clair Shores.

Recently transferred from California, Dr. Santora is an expert on bone and calcium metabolism at Harper Grace Hospital. His talk will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Admission is $4. For more information, call 779-6111.

Pancake breakfast

St. Clair Shores Adult and Community Education will serve its third annual Pancake Breakfast Sunday, April 27, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Kennedy School, 23101 Masonic, St. Clair Shores.

Proceeds will be used to sponsor college scholarships for adult graduates. Call 445-4884 for information regarding tickets.

Financial seminar planned in Woods

A financial seminar, sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Woods Senior Citizens Commission, will be given Tuesday, April 22, from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Woods council chambers.

Speakers will be Barbara Bierbusse, financial planning and income taxation; Tom McGann, investments, stocks, bonds, etc.; Charles Pearson, basic life insurance;

Stan Baxter, savings accounts, certificates of deposit and others; and Brian Howe, estate planning.

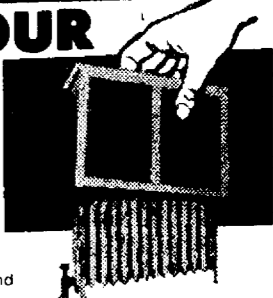

The event is free of charge.

For more information, call Howe at 222-5474 or Janet Newberg, chairman of the Woods commission, at 886-6076.

Top spellers

South students score high in photography contest

Three Grosse Pointe South High School photography students placed in the top 19 of the more than 400 semifinalists in the National Scholastic Art Awards Competition held recently in New York City.

Craig Bagno, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bagno of Kensington, James Fets; son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fets of Kerby, and Laura Plansker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Plansker of Bishop, were among the 15 finalists who received $100 each in the honorable mention category.

In all, the 19 students received $9,000 in cash or scholarships in the national exhibit and competition after their portfolios were judged as being among the best in the regional competition held throughout the country.

Photography students, who entered the portfolio competition, were required to submit at least 10 photos.

All three of the senior students have studied photography for three years at South High School under the direction of Jack Summers, art instructor.

Sales, marketing career program

Grosse Pointe South High School will present a sales and marketing career program Wednesday, April 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the main auditorium.

The featured speakers will be: Kathleen Meade, marketing public relations assistant, The Stroh Brewery Co.; Michael Kramer, small business owner, The Bed, Bath and Linens Store; Donna Santor, senior analyst, Market Opinion Research; and William Lafer, store manager, Jacobson's Store For The Home.

The program is planned to help high school students gain information about the world of work, but all residents are invited to attend. For further information, call the South High Career Center at 343-2302.

South journalists visit Pierce

Kea McKinney, editor of The Tower Newspaper at South High School, and Kathleen Judge, staff member of Imprints, the literary magazine at South, recently visited Shirley LaJoy's enriched reading class at Pierce Middle School.

As a follow-up activity, class members wrote a newspaper article reporting the visit. According to Christopher Marston, "the two South seniors spoke about journalism and its many aspects, as well as poetry and illustrating," Bryan Dumphy noted, "Kea McKinney began her writing career at the Trojan Times, the Pierce Newspaper." Kea's sister, Megan McKinney, said, "Miss Judge had some neat things to say about creative writing and keeping a journal, not a diary."

John Brooks said the visit made him "think about being on a newspaper and maybe making a living doing it."

Alison Black closed her article by writing "the sixth grade class wholeheartedly welcomes them back anytime after their fun and educational visit."

McKinney is top student journalist

Kea McKinney, a senior at South, has been named the top student journalist in Michigan in competition by the Journalist Education Association and will represent the state in national competition.

Selection for the honor was based on a personal essay, a portfolio of her work for the Tower, the school's newspaper, and recommendations by those who know her work as a student journalist.

McKinney is completing her fourth year of journalism training and is editor of the Tower this year. She has previously been honored in three consecutive years in writing competitions sponsored by Michigan Press Women. She placed first for feature writing as a sophomore, third for news writing as a junior, and second for feature writing as a senior.

McKinney also wrote and appeared as the student correspondent in a segment on record ratings for the inaugural broadcast of "Main Street," an NBC news magazine show for young people.

Following graduation in June, McKinney is headed for the University of Michigan.

School events

The following events will take place within the Grosse Pointe Public School System next week:

April 21-27 — Volunteer Week.
Tuesday, April 22 — PTO meeting and slide show presentation at 8 p.m. at Richard.

Wednesday, April 23 — Sales and Marketing, Career Night for high schools, at 7:30 p.m. at South.

Thursday, April 24 — Mothers Club Spring Benefit luncheon and fashion show at 11:30 a.m. at the War Memorial.

Friday, April 25 — Beach Dance at 8:30 p.m. at South.

South wins awards for journalism

Seven student journalists at South High School won four national journalism awards in Gold Circle competition sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association at Columbia University in New York City.

A team of four students placed second for a two-page presentation on a single subject with a special report on teen suicide published in December. Honored were Kea McKinney, Taylor Lincoln, Mark Froelich and Molly Conner.

McKinney, Jay Bonnell and Beth Knight received a Certificate of Merit for a single-page presentation on a single subject with coverage of controversy following announcement of plans for a senior trip to Toronto that was not school-sponsored.

The Gold Circle Awards program is the nation's largest awards competition for individual achievement by student writers, editors, designers and photographers. The contest drew 14,026 entries from colleges and universities, junior and senior high schools throughout the United States.

Students raise $50

More than $50 was raised in the read-a-thon held recently by the seventh-grade English students in Judy Tuschak's class at Pierce Middle School.

The class is donating the proceeds of the activity to the Wayne County Humane Society.

Photography featured

The photography work of Jack O. Summers, a Grosse Pointe South High School art instructor, was recently featured in a special show. Extended Photovisions at Henry Ford Community College.

Statistics prove major league baseball umpires are 99.9-percent accurate.

Board readies tax note sale

The Board of Education April 7 authorized the sale of up to $16.5 million in tax anticipation notes this summer to fund the district's operations until December's tax collections.

Pending federal legislation will force the system to take delivery of the notes three to four weeks later than normal, however, according to Christian Fenton, director of business affairs.

The bonding market is requiring issuers of tax-exempt bonds to meet requirements of a House-passed tax reform bill, which requires that 5 percent of net proceeds of an issue be spent within 30 days of delivery in order to maintain the tax-exempt status for the bonds.

The school system normally sells notes to the lowest bidder and collects the money in July. This year, however, the system would not be able to take delivery so early and still spend the 5 percent in that time, Fenton said.

Although the legislation has only passed the House, there is talk of making its provision retroactive to the beginning of this year. Bond bidders have requested that all issuers meet the requirements of the legislation just in case that happens, Fenton said.

Were the school system not to plan to meet the requirements, there would be no bidders for its bonds, Fenton said. Even banks that do business with the district wouldn't want to tender bids, he added.

While the authorization asked for sale of up to $16.5 million, the district expects selling about $15.7 million, $500,000 more than last year. The increase is caused by inflation, Fenton said.

The district annually sells tax notes to fund operation from June to December. Regulations set by the Municipal Finance Commission, which must authorize the sale, allows a school district to borrow up to half its previous year's tax levy by selling tax notes.

Last year, 11 companies bid on the system's $15.2 million worth of notes. Bidders offer to buy the notes and set an interest rate which the school system will have to pay the bidder. The low bidder is the one that offers the lowest interest rate.

Study gives clues to heart disorder

By Nancy Parmenter
When the New England Journal of Medicine came out in March with word of a new test to detect a hereditary tendency to atherosclerosis, a couple of doctors at Henry Ford Hospital were excited. Although not the developers of the new test, they provided the impetus for the test's development. The two have invested time and energy and medical curiosity in the case of two Detroit sisters with the rare hereditary disorder. Since 1979, Dr. Robert Norum, an internist and specialist in genetics, and Dr. Jeffrey Lakier, a cardiologist, have pondered the cause and treatment of the disease in the two women whose bodies, they discovered, lack the ability to manufacture high density lipoprotein (HDL), the substance that normally carries used cholesterol away from the cells. The sisters came to Ford Hospital with severe heart problems. It was learned that they suffered from extreme atherosclerosis, the deposit of cholesterol in fatty layers along the blood vessels.

The other odd factor in the case was that their bodies were dotted with yellowish bumps. Norum knew that similar bumps, deposits of cholesterol in the skin, are seen in patients with a rare hereditary condition called Tangier disease — but Tangier patients don't have an unusual incidence of atherosclerosis. It got the doctors to thinking about fats in the blood and led them to administer tests that eventually showed that indeed a protein that normally carries that fat through the blood was missing, causing the fat to just pile up in the vessels.

The role of HDL as "good" cholesterol has been "bandied about" — as Lakier says — for some time. Likewise, familial tendencies to heart disease have been known. But this research provided some sound scientific data to support the theories. As the case of the two sisters illustrates, we commonly wait until disease strikes before starting testing procedures. It was only after some study that Norum, a Grosse Pointe resident, got the idea of testing the level of HDL. He believes that the reduced level he found was responsible for the clogged arteries. It was the first strong scientific connection between atherosclerosis and low HDL levels.

The very few people who suffer from such a hereditary disorder will be better off with early detection. "It's worth identifying, because it requires aggressive drug therapy — diet alone won't do it," said Norum. "The test can be used to track down relatives who may also have the same tendency." Norum compared the importance of the new test to that routinely given to newborn babies for phenylketonuria, a metabolic disorder. Untreated, PKU can lead to severe mental retardation, but with treatment, the child can have a normal life. Similarly, therapy can improve the life of a victim of hereditary HDL deficiency.

"That's the good thing about this test — it provides detection at a time when other markers may be entirely normal," Lakier said. "This isn't going to be the only factor for all patients and it may not help these two sisters, but it could have a significant impact on the next generation." There is general agreement that adults should have their total cholesterol checked. Norum believes they should start young and have their HDL level checked too. "You should get the good cholesterol measured as well," he said. "If it's low, even with a moderate level of total cholesterol, there's something in it for you to do something about it."

There are many individuals with half-normal levels of HDL, inherited from one parent, Norum said, but drastic cases like the two sisters are rare. "Tens of thousands of people have been tested,"

There is "nothing magic" about cholesterol levels, Norum says. When measuring total cholesterol, lower is better; in HDLs, higher is better. An HDL level of 50 is average. The American Heart Association has set a total cholesterol target level of 200 milligrams per deciliter of blood. The average in the American population is 210, down from about 230 about 10 years ago, Norum said.

But the whole thing is relative. Targets are selected by measuring levels in the general population, but the American general population consumes a lot of fat and has an elevated cholesterol level compared to some groups.

"In the United States, it's quite normal to die of atherosclerosis," Norum said. In Hong Kong, the average level among adult women is 140, a low level attributed to the low-fat diet.

"The evidence (on diet) is very persuasive," Norum said. "It works for the Chinese, it works very nicely for the Finns (who have used diet to reduce what was once the world's highest heart attack rate). And even with the hereditary deficiency of HDL, there's still some benefit to reducing total cholesterol through diet and weight control."

The development of the new test is an important step, but is not the final answer to heart disease. The test measures the ability of cells to live on a diet of cholesterol. Norum believes the development of a genetic test, one that tests DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid, the basic genetic component that transmits the hereditary patterns), will provide better answers.

Meanwhile, Lakier cautions consumers from expecting too much from the new test. "There's always a lot of enthusiasm early on when something new is on the horizon," he said. "We still have a lot to learn."

Dr. Robert Norum

Norum said, "but only these two have shown up. They are the extreme examples that support the point that HDL is important."

The abnormality shows up more often among heart patients, but usually not to the extent shown by the sisters. Among people who have had coronary artery disease before the age of 60, the abnormality was seen in 32 percent of the cases in one study, according to Lakier. In a random sample, the disorder showed up in only 4 percent of the population.

Dr. Jeffrey Lakier

The oddity was that although their disease was obvious, their cholesterol readings were normal. Long study showed that they were genetically incapable of producing HDL, the so-called "good" cholesterol, a fatty protein manufactured in order to carry used cholesterol through the blood and out of the body.

Norum learned that they had inherited the deficiency from both parents, doubling the problem.

In the last few years, we've had to say "No" to a lot of prospective Saab customers. We hate to do it, but we've had a lot more customers than cars at times. Imagine the disappointment of a customer who has watched his neighbor fill up to 56 cubic feet of luggage space in his Saab, when he has to settle for a sports sedan with less than a third of that capacity. Maybe he's even ridden in a Saab for long enough to appreciate its superb handling and outstanding comfort, but just didn't move fast enough to get a Saab for himself. If you want to own a 1986 Saab, you really should see us about it soon.

Schools honor more than 3,000 volunteers

By Mike Andrzejczyk
If you happen to see someone walking down the halls of a school wearing a red, white and blue ribbon, stop and thank them.
They are among the more than 3,000 volunteers who have given thousands of hours of service for the school system, doing everything from making hot chocolate or coffee at a meeting to helping students in computer labs.
During National Volunteer Week, April 20 to 27, those who give their time to community organizations, hospitals and businesses are recognized for their efforts. Sometimes overlooked are the students, parents and older citizens who lend their expertise in classrooms.
"There are so many things we would have a hard time doing without volunteers in the schools," according to Marjorie Nixon, coordinator of volunteers. "Teachers do the teaching — no question about that — but volunteers are there for extra support."
This week and last, schools have been doing special things to honor their volunteers, Nixon said. This is the third year that the system has urged local schools to show their appreciation to volunteers through any number of events and special activities.
Even the sign outside Parcels Middle School at Mack and Vernier will bear a message thanking volunteers for their work.
Ribbons for volunteers was the idea of the Volunteer Network of Metropolitan Detroit, a network for more than 200 organizations.
All volunteers in the schools will receive ribbons, Nixon said. Those who have given special service will be honored at their schools and the Board of Education in September will select a number of others for special honors for their service to the district.

Parent-volunteers have always done a variety of things in school buildings, helping with enrichment programs, chaperoning on field and camping trips and working in other settings.
Parent-volunteers have also become active in noon-time programs offered at the elementary schools, but some esoteric programs require expertise supplied by older citizens, Nixon said.
Older citizens may spend eight to 10 hours a week in a school building tutoring students or helping with enrichment programs and offering help to those who may need a little one-on-one assistance, Nixon said. The help is not simply remedial, she said. "Sometimes it's definitely enrichment."
One middle school student who this year won a mathematics contest received a little extra boost from an older volunteer with engineering expertise who spent time with the student, Nixon said. That's just one case where volunteers can offer individualized help a student may need.
Classroom volunteers may also help motivate students, Nixon said. Children work harder to please the volunteer. Many volunteers help in the schools' English As A Second Language program, she added.
Students also get involved in volunteer work. High school students act as tutors for younger children, while middle school students help out in branches of the public libraries.

Becoming a volunteer is as easy as making a phone call. Parents who want to become active in the school in which they have students may contact the building or talk with their PTO president, Nixon said.
Those with expertise to share with any school may call Nixon's office at 343-2191. She will match requests from buildings with volunteers.
Groups donate Parcels backstops
The Board of Education April 7 accepted a donation of three installed backstops for athletic fields at Parcels Middle School from the Woods-Shores Babe Ruth League and the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club.
Total cost of the three backstops, for two softball and one baseball field, is not known, but is expected to be more than $10,000, according to David King, director of support services for the school district.
At its June meeting last year, the board approved a Parcels field project which included grading, storm sewer installation and lawn construction. As part of the project, the Field Use Committee, made up of community groups using school system fields, agreed to pay the full cost of reconstructing two softball fields, half the cost of reconstructing a baseball diamond and the full cost of in-

Barnhart to run for 1st District seat

Katherine Barnhart, attorney and historic preservationist, will run for the office of Wayne County commissioner from the 1st District. The district includes all of the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and northeast Detroit.
Barnhart has been practicing law in Detroit for 10 years and has been involved in the restoration of several Detroit buildings, including the Parker House which she purchased and restored with her partners.
She lives in Grosse Pointe

Farms with her husband, attorney F. Philip Colista, and two children, Celia and Joey Colista.
Barnhart worked in the Cavanaugh administration in Detroit from 1965-1968, as a senior social planner with the poverty program, the mayor's development team and the model cities program. She served in the Peace Corps in West Africa from 1962-1964.

Her education includes a B.A. from the University of Michigan in political science, post graduate work in urban planning at Wayne State University and a juris doctorate, cum laude, from Wayne State University School of Law.
She was a founder of the Women's Justice Center as well as the Michigan Women's Campaign Fund. She served as corresponding secretary of Detroit Now and treasurer of Women Lawyer's Association of Michigan.
She was recently appointed by the chief judge of Wayne County Circuit Court to a task force to examine the Wayne County Friend of the Court and was also appointed to serve on the Michigan Child Support Guidelines Committee in Lansing. In 1980, she wrote the domestic relations portion of the bench book used by the Circuit Court of Wayne County.

Board adds summer classes

Eight courses have been added to this year's summer school program.
The Board of Education Monday night, April 7, approved the addition of the courses to the program of studies. The classes are those that teachers have asked to teach and have submitted information detailing the purpose, scope and objectives of the program.
High school students may select an anthropology workshop with Herman Weng for social studies credit; an aviation science workshop with John Herrold for science credit; a design with fibers workshop for art credit with Lorraine Krentzin; and a humanities workshop with Robert Bradley for credit in either English or social studies.
Elementary school students with special needs may select a learning resource center study skills course with Dona Marie Johnson. Also, fourth- and fifth-graders with a good command of multiplication and division may choose Super Numbers, taught by Wayne Bolden.
Mini-courses are offered in Apple computer graphics and are taught by Henry Pichla. Sections are available for third- through sixth-graders and middle school students.

MEDICAL EXCELLENCE AND HUMAN UNDERSTANDING

The oddity was that although their disease was obvious, their cholesterol readings were normal. Long study showed that they were genetically incapable of producing HDL, the so-called "good" cholesterol, a fatty protein manufactured in order to carry used cholesterol through the blood and out of the body.

Norum learned that they had inherited the deficiency from both parents, doubling the problem.

A LOT OF OTHER SPORTS SEDANS ARE DRIVEN BY PEOPLE WHO WAITED TOO LONG TO GET A SAAB.

In the last few years, we've had to say "No" to a lot of prospective Saab customers. We hate to do it, but we've had a lot more customers than cars at times. Imagine the disappointment of a customer who has watched his neighbor fill up to 56 cubic feet of luggage space in his Saab, when he has to settle for a sports sedan with less than a third of that capacity. Maybe he's even ridden in a Saab for long enough to appreciate its superb handling and outstanding comfort, but just didn't move fast enough to get a Saab for himself. If you want to own a 1986 Saab, you really should see us about it soon.

Schools honor more than 3,000 volunteers

By Mike Andrzejczyk
If you happen to see someone walking down the halls of a school wearing a red, white and blue ribbon, stop and thank them. They are among the more than 3,000 volunteers who have given thousands of hours of service for the school system, doing everything from making hot chocolate or coffee at a meeting to helping students in computer labs.

During National Volunteer Week, April 20 to 27, those who give their time to community organizations, hospitals and businesses are recognized for their efforts. Sometimes overlooked are the students, parents and older citizens who lend their expertise in classrooms.

"There are so many things we would have a hard time doing without volunteers in the schools," according to Marjorie Nixon, coordinator of volunteers. "Teachers do the teaching — no question about that — but volunteers are there for extra support."

This week and last, schools have been doing special things to honor their volunteers, Nixon said. This is the third year that the system has urged local schools to show their appreciation to volunteers through any number of events and special activities.

Even the sign outside Parcels Middle School at Mack and Vernier will bear a message thanking volunteers for their work.

Ribbons for volunteers was the idea of the Volunteer Network of Metropolitan Detroit, a network for more than 200 organizations.

All volunteers in the schools will receive ribbons, Nixon said. Those who have given special service will be honored at their schools and the Board of Education in September will select a number of others for special honors for their service to the district.

Parent-volunteers have always done a variety of things in school buildings, helping with enrichment programs, chaperoning on field and camping trips and working in other settings.

Parent-volunteers have also become active in non-time programs offered at the elementary schools, but some esoteric programs require expertise supplied by older citizens, Nixon said.

Older citizens may spend eight to 10 hours a week in a school building tutoring students or helping with enrichment programs and offering help to those who may need a little one-on-one assistance, Nixon said. The help is not simply remedial, she said. "Sometimes it's definitely enrichment."

One middle school student who this year won a mathematics contest received a little extra boost from an older volunteer with engineering expertise who spent time with the student, Nixon said. That's just one case where volunteers can offer individualized help a student may need.

Classroom volunteers may also help motivate students, Nixon said. Children work harder to please the volunteer. Many volunteers help in the schools' English As A Second Language program, she added.

Students also get involved in volunteer work. High school students act as tutors for younger children, while middle school students help out in branches of the public libraries.

Becoming a volunteer is as easy as making a phone call. Parents who want to become active in the school in which they have students may contact the building or talk with their PTO president, Nixon said.

Those with expertise to share with any school may call Nixon's office at 343-2191. She will match requests from buildings with volunteers.

Groups donate Parcels backstops

The Board of Education April 7 accepted a donation of three installed backstops for athletic fields at Parcels Middle School from the Woods-Shores Babe Ruth League and the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club.

Total cost of the three backstops, for two softball and one baseball field, is not known, but is expected to be more than $10,000, according to David King, director of support services for the school district.

At its June meeting last year, the board approved a Parcels field project which included grading, storm sewer installation and lawn construction. As part of the project, the Field Use Committee, made up of community groups using school system fields, agreed to pay the full cost of reconstructing two softball fields, half the cost of reconstructing a baseball diamond and the full cost of in-

Barnhart to run for 1st District seat

Katherine Barnhart, attorney and historic preservationist, will run for the office of Wayne County commissioner from the 1st District. The district includes all of the Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods and northeast Detroit.

Barnhart has been practicing law in Detroit for 10 years and has been involved in the restoration of several Detroit buildings, including the Parker House which she purchased and restored with her partners. She lives in Grosse Pointe Farms with her husband, attorney F. Philip Colista, and two children, Celia and Joey Colista.

Board adds summer classes

Eight courses have been added to this year's summer school program.

The Board of Education Monday night, April 7, approved the addition of the courses to the program of studies. The classes are those that teachers have asked to teach and have submitted information detailing the purpose, scope and objectives of the program.

High school students may select an anthropology workshop with Herman Weng for social studies credit; an aviation science workshop with John Herrold for science credit; a design with fibers workshop for art credit with Lorraine Krentzin; and a humanities workshop with Robert Bradley for credit in either English or social studies.

Elementary school students with special needs may select a learning resource center study skills course with Dona Marie Johnson. Also, fourth- and fifth-graders with a good command of multiplication and division may choose Super Numbers, taught by Wayne Bolden.

Mini-courses are offered in Apple computer graphics and are taught by Henry Pichla. Sections are available for third- through sixth-graders and middle school students.

stalling three backstops. "This is a great example of the school and community groups working together," trustee Carl Anderson said. "I think it's just terrific."

Trustee Joan Hanpeter suggested the school system consider noting on the backstops that they are gifts from the Neighborhood Club and Woods-Shores.

program, the mayor's development team and the model cities program. She served in the Peace Corps in West Africa from 1962-1964.

Her education includes a B.A. from the University of Michigan in political science, post graduate work in urban planning at Wayne State University and a juris doctorate, cum laude, from Wayne State University School of Law.

She was a founder of the Women's Justice Center as well as the Michigan Women's Campaign Fund. She served as corresponding secretary of Detroit Now and treasurer of Women Lawyer's Association of Michigan.

She was recently appointed by the chief judge of Wayne County Circuit Court to a task force to examine the Wayne County Friend of the Court and was also appointed to serve on the Michigan Child Support Guidelines Committee in Lansing. In 1980, she wrote the domestic relations portion of the bench book used by the Circuit Court of Wayne County.

Park police save shooting victim

A 24-year-old man was reported in stable condition at St. John Hospital Monday, April 14, three days after being shot four times in the abdomen in Detroit.

The man, identified by the hospital as Sheldon Hawkins, 24, was found by Park police at Ashland near Mack, calling for help.

Officers on patrol April 11 at about 11:30 p.m. were investigating a report of shots fired in the Wayburn and Mack area. As they neared Mack and Alter, they heard someone calling for help and found Hawkins at Ashland near Mack.

Park officers notified Detroit police and emergency medical technicians, but were told no Detroit units were available. Because of Senator expects hearing on anti-discrimination bill

State Sen. John Kelly says there should be a hearing on his legislation calling for a limit on future state investment in companies in Northern Ireland practicing religious discrimination.

Kelly, whose 1st District includes the Pointes, Harper Woods and northeast Detroit, serves on the Economic Development, Trade and Tourism Committee to which his proposed legislation has been sent. There are enough votes to get the bill out of committee and onto the Senate floor for debate, Kelly says.

The senator unveiled the proposal at a St. Patrick's Day fundraiser this year. He is seeking his third term in the Senate.

The legislation would stop the state from investing in companies doing business in Northern Ireland that don't adhere to the McBride Principles, written by Nobel laureate Sean McBride and outlining ways to end religious discrimination in that country.

In a press release announcing the move, Kelly said Catholics in Northern Ireland are denied many of the freedoms denied blacks in South Africa. The state House has already passed legislation calling for divestiture of stock in companies doing business in South Africa. Kelly would like to attach his Northern Ireland bill to that proposal.

There are about 26 American companies doing business in Northern Ireland, among them Ford Motor Co., General Motors and the Fruehauf Corp.

McBride won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1974 and founded Amnesty International. His principles include nine guidelines that are similar to affirmative action policies adopted in the United States.

They call for increased representation of all religious groups in the workplace, security for religious minorities traveling to and from the workplace and special recruiting and publicity efforts to attract religious minorities to the workforce.

Also, the principles call on companies to abolish practices that discriminate on the basis of religion, ban provocative religious or political symbols from the workplace, develop training programs for minority employees and appoint senior management staff to oversee the implementation of the principles.

Kelly's bill would not require divestment of stock currently held in companies, which he says will make it more attractive to legislators worried about hurting state pension funds which hold large amounts of those companies' stocks.

The Northern Ireland and South African proposals show what effect states can have on foreign policy through their investments, Kelly says. Legislation he hopes to soon introduce will look to establish a "capitalist Peace Corps," using the state's trade resources, technical assistance and educational exchange to export democratic ideals.

Linking private and public sectors in such a venture will serve two purposes, Kelly says. The state can export goods and ideology while making money. Investment in certain foreign countries "becomes a very important tool in the hands of the state," he adds.

There are technologies that can be exported and developed in foreign countries, Kelly says. Such export would mean that the state would also send the equipment and technical assistants to help with the technology.

With the equipment and personnel will go democratic ideals, giving the state a stronger role in developing foreign policy, he adds.

Stove insert starts chimney fire

An improperly used wood-burning heating unit started a chimney fire Saturday afternoon, April 12, in a Buckingham Road home in the Park.

Park firemen used water from two high pressure hoses to douse the blaze. They were called to the home at about 3 p.m. by the homeowners.

The residents had improperly used a stove insert by opening its damper too far and feeding the fire inside too much oxygen. The heat ignited the mantle and creosote on the inside of the chimney, the department said.

There was no available estimate of damage to the home.

Typical starting pay for a radio disc jockey is said to be between $100 and $150 a week.

North may get $300,000 roof

The Board of Education was expected to approve a near-$300,000 roofing project for North High School at its Tuesday night meeting.

The project will mean a new roof for B Building and the hallways between B and C buildings. Instead of the current flat coal tar pitch roof, the school will have a sloped modified asphalt material roof installed.

The district originally allocated $225,000 for a similar roof project at North last year. The bids were awarded last summer, but the project was cancelled because completion by Labor Day could not be guaranteed.

The project was bid out again this year, with low bidder for the recommended work tendering a price of slightly more than $293,000. The district changed the bidding specifications asking for bids on a sloped roof and a modified asphalt material roof.

Sloping will mean a greater life for the new roof with fewer problems caused by standing water that now occurs, according to David King, director of support services. The modified asphalt material will also offer greater durability in the temperature extremes experienced in Michigan, he added.

A coal tar pitch roof becomes brittle at about 40 degrees Fahrenheit and becomes soft again to heal cracks at about 77 degrees, King said. The modified asphalt roof becomes brittle at 0 degrees Fahrenheit and is much more elastic, giving it greater flexibility in temperature changes experienced in spring and fall, he added.

The modified asphalt also comes with a 19-year guarantee, King told the board at its Monday, April 7, conference meeting. The contractor will only offer a two-year guarantee on the coal tar pitch roof.

Coal tar roofs are expected to last about 20 years, King said. The roof at North needs to be replaced after 18 years, he added.

Additional funding for the project will come from the building and site funds requested for the 1986-87 budget year, King said. North's roof may mean a delay in other projects planned for other schools, he added.

one million. "She didn't like the precedent — she was afraid it would open up loopholes," said commission member Nicholas Kachman of Grosse Pointe Farms, who voted with the majority. "Kathy was right, (in that) we need a formal procedure (to assess risk uniformly) so we don't go through another charade like this one."

Three competitions will be going on at once. Chefs from 20 states will compete for a slot in the 1988 Culinary Olympics. Professional chefs from the Great Lakes area will display buffets of cold food and pastries in a competition for points toward recognized chef certification. Students in Michigan food service courses will have a chance to show their stuff.

Grosse Pointe will be there with bells on. Sparky Herbert's is sending three entries; Randy German and George Malfrid to the professional culinary art salon, and William Wolf for the Olympics tryouts. Jeffrey Gabriel of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club is trying out for the Olympics, too. Scott Cummings of Cottage Hospital will compete in the culinary art salon — remember that the next time you need an operation.

And the food service class from North High School will send a contingent to compete for an "Augie" — the culinary world's answer to the Oscar. We won't starve around here.

the state public health department presented wildly differing risk assessments to the commission. Estimates as high as 38 in one million and as low as seven in one million caused the air pollution commission to reopen consideration of the facility.

"We need standardized procedures that we and the public can have confidence in," Kachman said.

Kachman used some of his own sources to try to discover the truth about the incinerator technology, he said. As assistant director of plant pollution control for General Motors, Kachman is a representative of industry on the commission.

GM has a dry scrubber and baghouse at its Buick facility and "hundreds" of electrostatic precipitators, baghouses and scrubbers at various plants throughout the country. "We have 15 to 20 with the exact specifications (of the Detroit incinerator)," Kachman said. None are as large as the Detroit facility, but at least one operates on a 400,000-pound boiler, which Kachman said is as large as the older utility power plant boilers.

Kachman said that the GM engineers he talked to all agreed that baghouses are appropriate technology for coal-fired plants, but that municipal trash incinerators should be equipped with electrostatic precipitators. The incinerator is expected to burn some coal from time to time to keep the temperature up to desired levels and to even the flow of fuel, but Kachman said he believes the amount will be insignificant.

Kachman said he expects the real differences in plant emissions to depend upon the actual operation rather than the cleansing technology. "The difference in air quality impact depends on trained operators and responsible management," he said. Equipment-wise, "the weakest link is the sensors. I want reports on those — if they fail, I want the research to concentrate on better sensors." Kachman said he advocates a continuing flow of operating reports to the DNR for proper oversight.

The guarantees by Combustion Engineering to meet the clean air standards or pay for any changes needed to meet them is standard in the industry, according to Kachman. "The biggest companies all make that guarantee," he said. "They've gone through that costly battle too many times — they know it costs 10 times as much after the fact. That guarantee is contracted for on a continuing everyday basis. The city's got them at every level of that contract."

Acid rain is a real concern, Kachman said, but the emissions expected at the Detroit incinerator are lower than the amounts already permitted in several states. "There are plants in Indiana and Ohio burning coal at 3-4 percent sulfur (emission)," he said. "Michigan utilities are all at 1 percent or less — this plant will be at .02. And coal has every contaminant, every heavy metal you can think of."

Kachman thinks that Detroit is getting a bum rap. "The city went to the DNR and said 'we want to protect our citizens, we want this to be a showplace.' This is the finest. This will be the first five-field electrostatic precipitator in the world. Give them credit for building the very best."

Raspa to be honored by WSU

A Woods resident will be among six Wayne State University faculty members who will receive the President's Award for Excellence in Teaching during the eighth annual university Recognition Day program at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, April 17, in the Community Arts Auditorium on campus.

Richard Raspa, associate professor in the Weekend College Program of the College of Lifelong Learning, is an internationally recognized scholar of folklore. He joined the WSU faculty in 1968. He has also taught at the universities of Sassari and Urbino in Italy, and the University of Utah.

Raspa taught at the University of Sassari from 1974-75 as the result of winning a Fulbright Lectureship. He was also an Ellsworth Visiting Fellow at the Barney School of Business and Public Administration at the University of Hartford.

He co-authored "Italian Folktales in America: The Verbal Art of an Immigrant Woman" (WSU Press) in 1985, and also co-authored two textbooks. He is editor of the "Organizational Folklore Newsletter," a section of the American Folklore Society.

Raspa received his baccalaureate degree from St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia and M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Notre Dame.

Those Absent Were: Mayor James H. Dingeman.

Also Present: Mrs. Kathleen Gallagher Lewis, Counsel, Messrs. Andrew Bremer, Jr., City Manager and Richard G. Solak, City Clerk.

Mayor Pro-Tem Joseph L. Fromm presided at the Meeting.

Mayor James H. Dingeman was excused from attending the Meeting.

The Minutes of the Regular Meeting held on March 17, 1986, were approved as submitted.

The Council, acting as a Zoning Board of Appeals, approved the Minutes of the Public Hearing held March 17, 1986; and further, granted the request of Mr. & Mrs. Timothy Flanagan, thereby authorizing issuance of a building permit to construct an addition to the rear of his existing structure located at 246 Kerby Road; and further, adjourned the Public Hearing of Mr. George Champagne, owner of the premises located at 329 Merriweather to April 21, 1986 at 7:30 p.m.

The Council denied the petition of Mr. Paul Forte of 40 Pine Court to construct a six foot stockade fence along a public walkway.

The Council deferred the request for installation of telephone interface on City right-of-way to Monday, April 21, 1986 at 7:30 p.m.

The Council adopted an ordinance approving Zoning Map Amendment No. 8 to rezone the leased Richard School parking lot area from Community Service (CS) to Vehicular Parking (P-1).

The Council approved payment of a statement from Peter E. O'Rourke, former Prosecuting Attorney, the total amount of $406.00 for services rendered on behalf of the City vs. Rogers and Ricard.

The Council scheduled a Public Hearing for Monday, April 21, 1986 at 7:30 p.m. to consider the formal adoption of revisions to Curfew Ordinance and General Offenses Ordinance.

The Council approved the low bid of the Walter H. Mast Company for the proposed gatehouse at the new Pier Park Entranceway.

The Council further authorized acceptance of the quotation from Jack W. Brown, for preliminary architectural services for the design of certain facility additions to City Hall.

The Council approved the purchase of materials to raise the center dock at the Farms Pier Park at a cost of $6,292.80.

The Council approved the extension of 1985 prices for 1986 curb and catch basin repairs from Vanopdenbosch Construction Company, deferring the sidewalk repairs until another quotation is received.

Following temporary adjournment of the Regular Meeting, A Closed Session was held to discuss the sale or lease of real property and certain personnel matters.

The Council adopted a resolution approving an administrative study by the firm of Coopers and Lybrand at a cost not to exceed $5,500.

The Council adopted a resolution scheduling a Special Closed Meeting of the City Council to discuss certain personnel matters for 7:00 p.m. on Monday, April 14, 1986.

Upon proper motion made, supported and carried, the Meeting adjourned at 8:45 p.m.

Let's hear some 'Cheers for Volunteers'

By Elsa Frohman

You got a $70 billion gift last year. More than 92 million of your friends and neighbors got together to give it to you. Maybe you are one of them.

Statistics show that more than half the people in the United States regularly donate their time and talents to volunteer work. They devote some 9 billion hours of helping others without pay annually. If they were on the government payroll, it would add more than $700 to the tax bill for every taxpayer.

Next week, the community will take time to say thank you to its volunteers. April 20-27 is National Volunteer Week, established by President Richard M. Nixon in 1972. The motto this year is "Cheers for Volunteers."

During the week, participating volunteers will wear red, white and blue ribbons. The week's activities will begin with a Kick-Off Breakfast on Monday, April 21, at 8:30 a.m., at the Lansdowne Restaurant. Neal Shine of the Detroit Free Press will be the keynote speaker.

An estimated 1.6 million people in metropolitan Detroit are volunteers. Recruiting citizens into community service and helping organizations use volunteers more effectively is the mission of the Volunteer Action Center, a department of United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit. VAC receives its funding from the United Foundation.

"Communities are looking more and more to their citizens to fill the human service needs the government can no longer provide," said Kenneth Hollowell, VAC chairman. "As a result, there is a constant and strong demand for volunteers. This in turn creates the on-going need to recruit volunteers and assist agencies in using these people to their highest potential. That is the charge of the Volunteer Action Center."

VAC publishes the "Volunteer Opportunities Guide," a list of more than 200 organizations in the tri-county area in need of volunteer assistance.

"Examples of volunteering are in every area of American life," Hollowell said. There are as many men volunteers as women and the volunteer movement draws on nearly every segment of society. Most volunteers are employed, between the ages of 25 and 54, and volunteer out of a genuine desire to help other people and to strengthen their communities, Hollowell said.

"The people of metro Detroit are rediscovering volunteering as a way to combat our social and economic problems," he said. "And the Volunteer Action Center is helping to prepare these volunteers for the work that lies ahead."

Marion Hyde, staff director of Women for the United Foundation, pointed out the advantages of volunteer work for women, particularly those who are trying to break into the employment market.

"Some (women) are not quite ready," she said. "They can build experience and confidence in themselves to return to the workforce."

One of the major projects Hyde works on is Project Health-O-Rama. Throughout the month of April, health screenings will be held at locations all over the metropolitan Detroit area. Hyde coordinates volunteers for the program, finding the sites that need volunteers and directing people who want to volunteer to the areas where they are needed most.

"What motivates most volunteers is giving of themselves to help others," Hyde said. "You don't have to have a lot of qualifications. People quickly find their level of competency."

In interviewing volunteers and matching them with volunteer jobs, Hyde is looking for certain qualities.

"I've never turned anyone down," she said. "But we are looking for leadership qualities — the ability to work with others, to grasp

Louise Tewalt

Louise Tewalt — when volunteering gets to be a profession

Grosse Pointe Louise Tewalt has been volunteering since she was 12 years old.

"I'm of the generation where everyone volunteered," she said. "My mother and grandmother were both volunteers."

Tewalt had her first volunteer experiences in the settlement houses of Chicago. After earning a degree in social work at the University of Chicago, she returned to the settlement house in the area of the Chicago stockyards.

Today, Tewalt is involved in 17 different organizations.

"I'm a professional volunteer," she said. "That's a word we coined for those of us who can't say no."

Her many commitments keep her busy, as she juggles a schedule of board meetings and committee meetings.

"Monday it's this and Tuesday it's that," she said. "Sometimes, you have to make choices. It takes a lot of adrenalin. I have a commitment to working with people. It's an inherited commitment. It takes energy and an understanding husband."

As a social worker, Tewalt has been on both the paid and unpaid side of the road. She says she enjoys the freedom of volunteer work.

"Volunteer work is more flexible," she said. "Social work isn't nine to five. Now I can work part-time with FLEC (the Family Life Education Council) and work from my home."

She says her many commitments have grown, one out of another.

"You network," she said. "If you're working in one area, pretty soon you're working in another."

Tewalt says there is a volunteer opportunity for everyone who wants to contribute.

"They range from one-time opportunities, like working on a Red Cross Bloodmobile, to monthly

Dean Richardson

Dean Richardson — a lot more than throwing money at problems

As chairman of the board of Manufacturers Bank, Dean Richardson of Grosse Pointe feels he has an obligation to offer his services to the community. However, obligation is not the only thing that keeps him involved in a wide variety of volunteer organizations.

"Some you do because you're expected to, others, you do because you have a vital interest," he said.

Among Richardson's many volunteer positions are: chairman of the board of Harper-Grace Hospital, trustee of Kalamazoo College, trustee for Interlochen Center for the Arts, trustee for the St. Gregory's Abbey Foundation, director and treasurer of the United Foundation.

"I've never thought about it in terms of how much time it takes," he said. "It would take more time to figure it out. I became involved in some organizations because I was interested in what they were doing. For example, I'm interested in music. I believe Interlochen is a great resource for the state of Michigan."

For Richardson, there are more important contributions he can make than writing a check for a financial donation.

"There is more to it than throwing money," he said. "They need somebody to help them operate as a business. Somebody has to do it. I just like to do it."

Richardson says his involvements have grown, one from another.

"It's people to people," he said. "The first thing you know, you are doing more and more. You do it because the person who asked you thinks you can do it."

Richardson says one of the greatest contributions

Maralyn Domzalski

Maralyn Domzalski — getting as much out as went in

"I feel volunteerism is a way of taking some of what would be paid jobs off the community," said Maralyn Domzalski of Grosse Pointe.

Domzalski is a registered nurse and currently volunteers as a site coordinator for Health-O-Rama, a series of health screenings being held at locations around the Detroit area through the month of April.

"Anything that can be done as a volunteer, the city, state or national government won't have to pay for it," she said.

Domzalski has a long history of volunteer commitments, from the local schools to the United Foundation, to the Health-O-Rama. She is a registered nurse and has worked her nursing background into the work she does as a volunteer.

"Sometimes I feel that you get at least as much out of volunteering as you put in," she said. "I can enjoy it and it's not compensated. It's a nice feeling."

Domzalski's role in the Health-O-Rama is primarily administrative.

"I arrange for a facility," she said. "I look over the area and decide where we'll put table and chairs — figure out the physical layout."

A large part of her job is finding enough volunteers to operate the event.

"When the help falls short, you call on your friends and make personal calls. You write letters to people who have volunteered in the past," she said.

Domzalski says her drive for volunteers this year has been highly successful.

"Anyone who volunteers for Health-O-Rama volunteers again," she said. "They just like to do it."

Pasta dishes can be healthy and satisfying

Pastas are no longer the 'bad guys' food of yesterday. Why? Because they contain nutrients, fiber and are low in fat.

Complete carbohydrates are found in plant foods only — the excellent superior choices in the pasta group being whole grain pastas, including millet. Once you have really tried the natural grain foods, you will never return to the nutrient-empty and fiber-empty white ones.

The following is a selection of recipes for pasta from the low-calorie, low cholesterol, budget-wise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Green Pasta and Tomato Sauce

Tagliatelle or green noodles are made with a very thin puree of spinach instead of water. Most supermarkets have them, but the little Italian grocery around the corner will always be well supplied. Try to buy the thin type. For some reason they seem to have less floury taste than the very broad ones.

- 3 large onions
- 2 Tbsp. olive oil
- 1 Tbsp. tomato paste
- 6 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
- 2/3 cups red Cinzano wine
- 1 (8 ounce) can stewed tomatoes
- 2 cloves garlic
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 (1-pound) pkg. green noodles
- 2 Tbsp. margarine

Fry the chopped onions in the oil until slightly limp. Add the rest of the ingredients except noodles and margarine, and gently simmer for 20 minutes. While the sauce is cooking, put the pasta in a large saucepan of boiling salted water and cook gently for 20 minutes until tender. Drain and toss with the margarine. Serve the sauce separately. Makes four servings.

Macaroni Ring

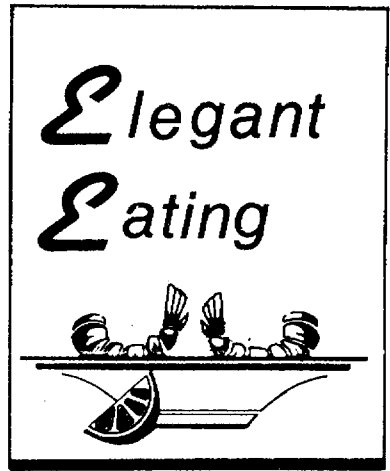

This is spectacular and most delicious at any dinner. Serve with Shrimp Creole, Creamed Salmon or a medley of fresh vegetables in the center and listen to the raves.

- 1 cup cooked macaroni
- 1 cup grated low-calorie cheese
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 cup scalded skim milk
- 1/2 cup egg substitute, well beaten
- 4 Tbsp. finely minced onions
- 4 Tbsp. minced pimiento
- 4 Tbsp. minced parsley

Thoroughly mix all ingredients together until well blended. Spray ring mold generously with oil. Pour in macaroni mixture and pack well with back of spoon.

Place macaroni ring in pan of hot water 1-inch deep. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven until done, about 30 minutes. Remove from oven and let stand for a few minutes before running a silver knife around edges and inverting mold on a serving plate. Garnish with sprigs of parsley. Serves six to eight.

Calories about 136 for each of eight servings. Cholesterol 0.

Fettuccine Alfredo

- 1 pound fettuccine
- 1/4 cup unsalted margarine
- 3/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Cook fettuccine in boiling lightly salted water four to five minutes. Drain, but not too much, pasta should be slightly foamy. Place on warm serving dish and dot with margarine.

Add grated cheese. Mix with fork and spoon until ingredients are well blended. Serve immediately to six.

Calories about 393 per serving. Cholesterol about 16 mgs.

Linguine with Clam Sauce

A delightful Italian dish with a good protein count and is rich in a variety of nutrients.

- 1 large onion chopped
- 3 medium cloves garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup unsalted margarine
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1 cup minced parsley
- 1/8 tsp. oregano
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 2 cans (6-1/2 ounces) chopped clams with juice (about 2 cans)
- 6 ounces mushrooms, sliced about 2 cups
- 8 ounces linguine, cooked and drained

Salt and pepper to taste

1/4 cup Romano cheese grated

1/4 tsp. Italian seasoning

In large skillet saute onion and garlic in margarine and oil until tender. Stir in parsley, oregano, wine, clams with juice, mushrooms; simmer uncovered for five minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Cook linguine according to package instructions and drain. Serve sauce over hot linguine. Sprinkle with Romano cheese. Makes four servings.

Serve with tossed lettuce and cucumber salad with Italian dressing, hard crusted Italian bread and Chianti wine. A lemon fluff dessert or lemon sherbert would be an ideal dessert.

Calories per serving about 384.

Spinach Manicotti

- SAUCE:
- 2 cans (6 ounces each) tomato paste
 - 3 cups water
 - 2 cloves garlic, crushed
 - 1/2 tsp. basil
 - 1/2 tsp. oregano
 - 1/2 cup finely chopped onions
 - Salt and pepper to taste
 - 16 manicotti noodles
- FILLING:
- 2 pkgs. (10 ounces each) frozen chopped spinach, cooked and drained
 - 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
 - 1 container (15 ounces) ricotta cheese
 - 1/4 tsp. nutmeg

Combine all sauce ingredients except noodles in a 2-quart saucepan. Cover and cook over low heat for one hour.

Cook manicotti noodles according to package directions. Drain, rinse with cold water and drain again.

Combine filling ingredients and stuff manicotti noodles with filling.

Place manicotti in baking dish and pour sauce over it. Bake at 350 degrees in preheated oven for 45 minutes. Makes eight servings of two manicotti each.

Calories about 249 per serving. Cholesterol about 43 mgs.

Spinach Pie

- 1 pkg. (10 ounces) frozen pastry shells, thawed
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 Tbsp. vegetable oil
- 1 pkg. (10 ounces) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
- 1 cup crumbled feta cheese (4 ounces)
- 1 cup low-cal cottage cheese
- 1 egg beaten
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper

Roll out each pastry shell between sheets of waxed paper to form 7-1/2-inch circles. Chill well.

In saucepan saute onion in oil until tender. Add spinach. Cook and stir until all liquid evaporates. Set aside and cool. Stir in cheese, egg, salt and pepper.

Taking one pastry shell at a time from refrigerator, carefully remove waxed paper. (If pastry sticks to paper, place in freezer for a few minutes.) Place 1/2 cup of the spinach mixture in center of pastry. Fold over to form semi-circle. Fold edges over and press well to seal. Carefully transfer to ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake in preheated 400-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes or until pastry is golden brown. Serve immediately to six.

Calories about 365 per serving. Cholesterol about 53 mgs.

Pepper prices soaring

April shoppers will want to take a special look at the meat case this month. The reason being that the tender cuts best for grilling will likely increase in price seasonally now that outdoor grilling weather is on the horizon.

Rib steaks, T-bone steaks, porterhouse and sirloin steaks are especially sensitive to the season price increase. Meat prices in general are showing little movement in either direction. Record supplies of broilers mean they will remain an economical choice for outdoor grilling or other cooking methods.

Egg production will soon return to last year's level. Look for the price of eggs this month to be a bit under current prices.

First it was vanilla, then coffee. What is in especially tight supply now? Black pepper, that's what. The price of Indonesian peppercorns at New York has moved up to a record high of $2.40 a pound, compared to $1.26 a year ago.

Poor crops in India, Indonesia and Malaysia, the major world producers, could result in even higher prices by late spring or summer. White pepper prices are moving up as well — probably because both types are made from the same berries. Trivia enthusiasts may be interested in knowing that the black peppercorns are picked immature and dried with skins on; the white are picked ripe and the skins removed before drying.

April is the month shoppers really get serious about eating more fresh vegetables. New crop potatoes are favorites now, because old crop potatoes start sprouting at this time of year. Red potato production is pegged at 12 percent more this year and harvesting is at peak levels in Florida.

Cheers for volunteers . . .

a situation and take quick action, a knowledge of people, and the ability to enroll others."

Volunteers fill an important niche in our community, Hyde said. "There are a lot of things that would not happen if there weren't volunteers," she said. "The government is not paying for these things these days. They are cutting back. It's up to us to raise funds to cover what the government will not pay for."

You don't have to have a lot of time to spare to volunteer, Hyde said. Most volunteers are employed, at least part-time, and volunteer opportunities are designed to take advantage of whatever time the individual can offer.

"There are many flex-time opportunities," Hyde said. "They are allowed to control their own time."

For more information on the Volunteer Action Center, call 833-0622, extension 71-74.

opportunities, like the Tribute Fund, to regular commitments, like working at the Travelers' Aid Society," she said. "It all depends on how much time you have to commit and what you want to do. There is a whole gamut of jobs."

However, Tewalt cautions against promising more than you can deliver.

"I do say no, sometimes," she said. "I don't believe you should volunteer unless you can give your time."

Volunteer work often gives as much to the volunteer as the volunteer is contributing, Tewalt said.

"There is a new approach to volunteering now," she said. "Many colleges suggest students volunteer to get career exposure. Women can try out different areas (of the workforce)."

But no matter how many people volunteer, more are always needed.

"We're short on volunteers and are looking to other sources," she said. "There are many men — retired — who could work in hospitals, at the Red Cross and with Boys and Girls Clubs. There are a lot of senior citizens who are only involved in their own church or in their own area. There is a whole gamut of people who could get involved."

Tewalt believes that there is an opportunity for everyone.

"Everyone has a skill," she said. "Everyone can find a niche. I like to talk about volunteer opportunities. It's exciting what people can do. It does a lot of good for you."

Tewalt's board appointments include: Children's Center of Wayne County, Traveler's Aid Society, American Red Cross, Detroit Industrial School, Smith College Club, Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe, the Tribute Fund, Camp Fowler, United Foundation Advisory Board, Rehabilitation Institute Auxiliary Board, Metropolitan Camp Council, and American Cancer Society. She is also involved with the John Lake Scholarship Committee, Community Education Advisory Committee, Community Information Service, and many other community organizations.

he can make in encouraging others to contribute. "People don't give to causes," he said. "They give to people who ask them to."

Richardson says his success at volunteerism comes from applying himself to the problems at hand, whatever they may be.

"You work hard and that gets noticed," he said. "When I was first asked to help out with the United Foundation, I didn't even know what the United Foundation was. I went to some training, and I must have done something right."

Richardson sees a special value in the volunteer movement.

"There is great merit in using volunteers," he said. "A true, dedicated interest can be evolved, rather than using some bureaucrat, doing it because it is his job. You've got to have a true interest."

Domzalski — getting a lot out . . .

Domzalski. She has honed her managerial skills.

"When you raise a family of six, you need to be organized," she said. "But the first time you take on responsibility, it can be intimidating. The easiest part is to be an Indian. The most difficult position is to have other people helping out."

For those just getting involved in volunteerism, Domzalski recommends doing what they enjoy and know best.

"You can be most effective in the things you like to do," she said. "Maybe you like to type . . . or maybe you can drive, then you could work with Meals on Wheels."

One of the most important considerations is whether you can finish what you start.

"You've got to realize, even though it is a volunteer commitment, you have to try your best to carry it through. When you volunteer to help, you're depended upon as much as someone who's being paid. It's not a loose commitment," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartoszewicz

Pearson-Bartoszewicz

Diane Elizabeth Pearson, daughter of Douglas and Marlys Pearson of East Lansing, and Leonard Joseph Bartoszewicz, son of Leonard and Joan Bartoszewicz of Grosse Pointe Farms, were married on Oct. 5 at the Michigan State University Alumni Chapel in East Lansing.

The Rev. Virgil Elliott and Father John Schwind officiated at the 7 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a champagne breakfast at Long's of Lansing.

The bride wore a dress of white lace with iridescent beading and a tiered taffeta skirt and train. She wore a beaded, fanned headpiece and veil and carried a bouquet of stephanotis and coral roses.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Janet Kay Pearson. Bridesmaids were Andrea Bartoszewicz Montague, sister of the groom, Grosse Pointe Farms; Debbie King, friend of the bride, Chicago; and Jennifer Sugar, friend of the bride, Chappaqua, N.Y. They wore dresses of coral crushed silk with tiered tea-length skirts and carried white mums and coral roses.

The best man was Larry Bartoszewicz, brother of the groom, Grosse Pointe Farms. Ushers were Michael Bartoszewicz, brother of the groom, Grosse Pointe Farms; John Wade, friend of the groom, Chicago; Kevin Patterson, friend of the groom, Chicago; and Tom Gibson, friend of the groom, Chicago.

The mother of the bride wore a tea-length gown of ivory silk, accented with a gardenia corsage.

The mother of the groom wore a gray beaded silk tea-length gown. Her corsage was also a gardenia.

The couple honeymooned in Canada and New England.

The bride is a graduate of East Lansing High School and has a degree in economics from the University of Michigan. She is employed in institutional sales at the First National Bank of Chicago.

The groom graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School and earned a degree in biology at the University of Michigan. He expects to graduate from Northwestern University School of Dentistry in June.

Garden library

Mrs. H. Hudson Mead (above) researches garden information in the extensive library of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The library has an extensive collection of new and beautifully illustrated volumes on every phase of gardening lore, in addition to pictorial books on great gardens of the world; herbals; books on landscape design and much more. A recent acquisition is the large collection of books and periodicals donated by the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council. Periodicals of the Bonsai Society and other groups as well as current seed catalogues are available. For Garden Center members it is a circulating library, but its resources are available to anyone in the community for reference and browsing. The Garden Center is open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For information, call 881-4594 on those days.

Last week, the Grosse Pointe News inadvertently ran the Garden Club picture with a story about the summer music festival preview, to be held today at the Windemere Place home of George and Marge Slezak (below). Our apologies to all concerned.

O'Rourke is DIC president

Susan G. O'Rourke of Grosse Pointe Farms has been elected president of the Detroit Institute for Children, an outpatient treatment center for developmentally disabled children.

A certified financial planner, O'Rourke is a financial planning consultant with Pannell Kerr Forster Certified Public Accountants. She has been active in the affairs of the Detroit Institute for Children for four years, serving as a trustee since 1982, and as board vice president since 1985.

The institute specializes in the evaluation, diagnosis, prescription, treatment, training and research for the benefit of physically and neurologically impaired youngsters.

Other officers elected for 1986-87 include: Lynn Day, vice president; Edsel B. Ford II, general marketing manager, Lincoln-Mercury Division, Ford Motor Company, vice president; William B. Krag, staff consultant, Giffels Associates, vice president; David Lawrence Jr., publisher and chairman, The Detroit Free Press, vice president; Walter R. Murphy, retired executive director of the public relations staff of Ford Motor Company, vice president; Joseph G. Standart Jr., retired senior vice president of Young & Rubicam, Inc., vice president; Elizabeth Dance, secretary; Waverlyn Burdell-Williams, program director, Adolescent Program, Rubicon Odyssey House, treasurer; and Arden W. Shafer Jr., director, Finance and Information Systems, Amicare Home Health Services, assistant treasurer.

Elected to the board for three-year terms were: Carolyn L. Drummond, director of strategic planning, Providence Hospital; Gail Schneider; Cynthia Semple; Arden W. Shafer Jr.; Nancy Timmis; and Alice Valk.

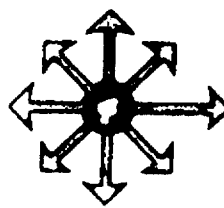

Those re-elected to three year terms were: Polly Begg, David Lawrence Jr., and Walter R. Murphy.

An evening with the editors

The Friends of the Detroit Public Library will present an evening with the editors on Wednesday, April 30 at 7:30 p.m. in the Friends Auditorium of the Main Library, 5201 Woodward in the Cultural Center.

An evening of insight into the world of books is promised as the book editors of The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press share their thoughts and expertise on the problems and future of books in today's computerized world. Ruth Pollock Coughlin of The Detroit News and Robert McKelvey of the Detroit Free Press will discuss the current condition of books versus television and how they cope with the problem of the declining interest of young readers, and the recent awareness of the tragedy of illiteracy in our society — which makes their job most difficult as they attempt to provide information and enlightenment to the general public about books in their pages.

Tickets are $3 and may be reserved by telephone in advance or purchased at the door. The Friends of the Library can be reached at 833-4048 weekdays.

Weddings

Krynsinski-Fitzgerald exchange vows

Margaret Krynsinski, daughter of Virginia and Edwin Krynsinski of Grosse Pointe Woods, and Brian Thomas Fitzgerald, son of Moira and Frank Fitzgerald of Detroit, were married on Oct. 12 at St. Paul on-the-Lake Church.

Monsignor Francis X Canfield officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Readings were given by the bride's father and the groom's sister, Eleanor Fitzgerald of Columbus, Ohio.

The bride wore a dress of white French silk with a portrait neckline and puff sleeves, adorned with appliques of linen embroidery and white satin rosebuds at the neck and waist. She wore a fingertip veil falling from a wreath of white silk rosebuds and carried a hand-tied bouquet of pale pink Princess Diana roses and white lilies.

The best man was John K. Fitzgerald, brother of the groom, of

Ushers were Paul E. Krynsinski, brother of the bride, Detroit; Mark P. Krynsinski, brother of the bride, Detroit; and Jeffrey T. Krynsinski, brother of the bride, Hingham, Mass.

The mother of the bride wore a tea-length dress of pale pink watered silk with a wrap-style, accordion-pleated skirt.

The mother of the groom wore a tea-length, dusty-blue chiffon dress with a satin belt.

The couple honeymooned on Nantucket Island, Mass. They will live in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan State University. She works at the Detroit Public Library as a library pre-professional assistant and is a master's candidate at the University of Michigan School of Library Science.

The groom is an accounting graduate of the University of Detroit. He is employed as a credit analyst at Manufacturers National Bank.

Club and Church News

Eastside Handweavers Guild

The Eastside Handweavers Guild, an association of persons involved in various fiber arts, including weaving, spinning, and basketry, will hold its monthly meeting on Monday, April 21, at the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

The program will consist of a demonstration of handspinning by several members who will spin wool, silk, and angora on different types of wheels. Kathryn Palombo, a teacher of spinning and felting, will bring one of her angora rabbits to the meeting and discuss the raising and breeding of these beautiful creatures.

Refreshments and social hour will begin at 7 p.m. with a business meeting at 7:30 p.m., and the program scheduled for 7:45 p.m. For further information you may call Sue Ellison at 881-2906 or Mary Leigh Herdegen at 882-2261.

All persons who are interested in the fiber arts are welcome to attend.

Alpha Xi Delta

Members of the Grosse Pointe and Macomb County Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Xi Delta will be hostesses at the sorority's annual Founders Day Luncheon to be held on Saturday, April 19, at 11:30 a.m. at the Lochmoor Club. The observance is held jointly with alumnae chapters from Oakland County, Western Wayne County, Detroit, and five of the collegiate chapters in Michigan as it honors the founders of the national sorority.

Alpha Xi Delta, one of the original 10 sororities in the National Pan Hellenic Conference, was founded in 1893.

Mary McMath Bierlein, president of Phi Province of the sorority, will be the honored guest at the luncheon. General chairman is Pam Benken Lyle and reservation chairman is Karla Pecnik Corio. For information, call 526-4764.

Valparaiso Guild

"Swing Into Spring" will be the theme for the Detroit chapter of the Valparaiso University Guild's luncheon and fashion show, to be held on April 25, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, noon. Donation is $12.50.

Reservations may be made through your key persons, or by calling Mrs. Henry Gieseking at 822-6441. Chapter members will model the fashions provided by Miners Grosse Pointe. Party chairpersons are Mrs. Robert Marowske and Mrs. A.K. Jacoby. All members and guests are cordially invited.

Windmill Pointe Questers

Mrs. Edward Wells will be hostess in her home, on April 21, for the Windmill Pointe Questers. There will be a coffee hour at 9:30 a.m. and a business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Carl Kasza.

The program for the day will be given by Kasza. Her subject will be the life of Peter Carl Faberge.

Faberge was appointed as the personal jeweler for the last czar of Russia. He reached his height of fame between the years of 1900-1913.

At Easter, Faberge would make beautifully decorated, gold spun eggs, that the czar would give as gifts. Some of the eggs are still in existence and are an obsession with collectors.

The Faberge company is still in business, but no longer manufacturing jewelry. They make perfume and use the Faberge name.

Louisa St. Clair DAR

The Louisa St. Clair chapter, NSDAR, will hold its April 24 meeting at the University Club, Detroit. Mrs. George T. Edson, Regent, will call the meeting to order at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. Norman L. Parker is the hostess.

Delegates and alternate voters of the chapter returned this past week from Awards Day at the Kellogg Center, Lansing, with Certificates of Award for American Heritage, Mrs. Frank S. Clark, chairman; American Indians, Mrs. John Kuhn, chairman; Americanism, Mrs. Frederic M. Hindley, chairman; Service to Veteran Patients, Mrs. Kenneth J. Brown, chairman; and the Flag of the United States of America, Mrs. George F. Ryckman, chairman.

Mrs. B. Thomas Weyhing, III, participated in a skit titled, "We'll Never Miss Honor Roll, Again."

Following the April luncheon, Louisa members and guests have been invited by Mrs. Robert C. Palmer of the Detroit Garden Club to visit the Moross House.

The Chapter recently contributed border plantings to enhance the walks of this historic house through the efforts of Mrs. Robert J. DeSandy, conservation chairman. Mrs. Charles E. Marchessault and Mrs. Frank Glass will accept luncheon reservations.

St. Joseph Auxiliary Lilac Luncheon

The St. Joseph Auxiliary of the Little Sisters of the Poor will host the 28th annual Lilac Luncheon on Tuesday, May 6, at the Fairlane Manor, 19000 Hubbard Drive, Dearborn. The festivities will begin at 11 a.m. with a social hour, followed by the luncheon, served at noon. A fashion show presented by Alvin's will be featured after lunch.

Tickets can be obtained by telephoning, Mrs. James E. Murray (TE 4-9238) or Mrs. Sam Haddad (886-3520). Proceeds will assist the Little Sisters of the Poor in the purchase of a van for the Burtha Fisher Home.

St. James Rummage Sale

League to lease Sibley House

The Junior League of Detroit made a major commitment to the revitalization of Detroit by voting to negotiate a long-term lease for historic Sibley House at 976 E. Jefferson Ave.

The vote took place at a special general membership meeting April 10. Passage of this project includes a commitment of $125,000 of League funds over the next five years toward the restoration.

The League plans to complete the house for use as a community center, to provide low-cost office space for non-profit agencies and to provide an elegant setting for business meetings, conferences, board meetings and social events.

Sibley House, owned by Christ Episcopal Church, Detroit, is under the direction of the Sibley House Board of Trustees who have initiated restoration efforts. It is one of the finest examples of Greek Revival architecture in the Midwest and is the oldest frame building in Detroit. It is listed in the National Register of Historic Places and was the family residence of one of the founding fathers of Detroit, Judge Solomon Sibley.

The structure is located two blocks from the Renaissance Center at the entrance to I-75.

"The Junior League is delighted to have this visible presence in the city," said Mary Kathryn Ducharme, president. "The riverfront area has been a focus of League activities for the past 13 years, and our association with Sibley House demonstrates our commitment to be both an anchor and a constructive force in the Detroit community."

TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES OF ERA

GROSSE POINTE OFFICE
884-6200
ST. CLAIR SHORES OFFICE
775-6200

BUYERS AND SELLERS THROUGHOUT OUR MARKETING TERRITORY ARE DISCOVERING THE ERA® DIFFERENCE. THEY ARE COMING TO TAPPAN BECAUSE OF OUR EXCLUSIVE PROGRAMS LIKE THE ONES LISTED BELOW. THESE, PLUS MANY MORE THAT WE HAVE AVAILABLE PROVIDE OUR CUSTOMERS WITH "ONE STOP" SHOPPING FOR ALL OF THEIR REAL ESTATE NEEDS. SHOULDN'T YOU GET THE "MUSCLE" OF TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES OF ERA WORKING FOR YOU?

*It's because of exclusive programs like the ones listed below. They're just six of the many reasons our ERA affiliation benefits you when you buy or sell.

1. TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES EXCLUSIVE ERA BUYER/SELLER PROTECTION PLAN

"ERA Protects you from unexpected major repair bills"
The ERA Buyer/Seller Protection Plan protects you as the seller from 2 weeks after you list your home until the day of sale or for a maximum of 165 days. It also protects you as a buyer for up to one full year after the date of closing. It removes the biggest fear of most home buyers — that you'll be hit with a costly repair bill and when they've already stretched their budget to buy and move into a new home.

What's covered? All major mechanical systems including heating and air conditioning, plumbing and electric, and most included appliances to name just a few. What makes ERA's plan different? It covers up to 100% of the full replacement value of a covered item that cannot be repaired. The only thing the seller or buyer would pay would be the $100 deductible. Since 1973 ERA has protected sales and buyers from the unexpected by paying out over 20 million dollars in claims.

2. TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES "IF WE DON'T SELL YOUR HOME, WE'LL BUY IT"

"With the exclusive ERA Sellers Security Plan"
That's the promise of ERA Sellers Security Plan. The Sellers Security Plan is a combination equity advanced guaranteed sales program that gives you the maximum flexibility to make a move with the Sellers Security Plan. ERA can advance you up to $100,000 in equity on your old home to use as a down payment on a new house.

And, if ERA doesn't sell your home within 210 days, they'll buy it at a price agreed upon by you, the seller. No longer do you have to sell your old home before buying a new one. And you don't have to worry about a long string of double house payments. Because ERA puts an end to those worries — the Sellers Security Plan will get you moving.

*Some limitations and conditions apply. See your participating ERA Real Estate Specialist to review the Sellers Security Plan contract.

3. TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES EXCLUSIVE ERA MOVING MACHINE

"We have a way to show your home coast to coast in minutes"
The ERA Moving Machine is the only computerized national referral system that can show your home to the 40% of home buyers who come from out of town.

In just minutes, potential buyers in any of our 3,000 offices nationwide can see a photograph and description of your home. It's like having a national multi-list — and only ERA has this system. It's just another way your ERA Real Estate Specialist can take the worry out of selling a home.

4. TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES ERA MORTGAGE SERVICES

"You're worth more House now"
Introducing affordable ERA® Mortgages. They're the custom-tailored home loans from ERA Mortgage Services that fit your lifestyle — especially your budget. Since eligibility is based on your ability to make a lower-than-usual monthly payment, you can now qualify for more house on the same income. In fact, you can even set your own limit on payments!

Plus, ERA Mortgages have very competitive interest rates, thanks to the same financial muscle and nationwide resources that ERA Real Estate puts to work to find the house of your dreams.

ERA loans are fast and convenient. There's no juggling schedules to match bank hours, no dealing with a stranger. You just come back to the ERA office and apply for your loan there. You work with someone who knows you, someone interested in seeing your loan go through without delay.

5. TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES ERA NATIONWIDE REFERRAL NETWORK

"Consistent service nationwide, wherever you might move"
Transferred? Moving South... or North? No matter where your new location might be, Tappan and Associates of ERA can help you find your new home with the least amount of time and worry. We've joined forces with over 3,000 quality, member brokers, from Maine to California, from North Dakota to Florida, who will provide you with the same professional service that Tappan has provided the Grosse Pointe Community for over 40 years.

Combine this with the ERA Moving Machine and you'll be receiving the best service in the industry.

6. TAPPAN AND ASSOCIATES ERA'S AGENT TRAINING PROGRAM

"For the best service, pick the best agent."
Now, as ERA members, our sales agents have available to them continuing education courses that keep our skills sharp and up to date. Courses on marketing, local housing trends, and the latest financing plans all geared to help sell your home fast, and for the best price.

Our goal has always been to give the best possible service to our clients. We feel that with better trained sales agents we can deliver the products and services that the public demands and that this will give you a complete edge in the marketplace.

Ruth Neville: Making a piece of music ideal

By Elsa Frohman
Ruth Neville has only the vaguest memory of her grandfather, Ottilio DePalma, who was once a violinist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

"He died when I was two years old," she said. "I have a memory of a man who I believe to have been my grandfather. I imagine that man was him. It is like a dream. I hope it was him. It is from one of the first moments when I was consciously aware of my surroundings."

Today, Neville is carrying on her grandfather's musical heritage. On April 19, she will give a concert at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, along with her friend Ingrid Matthiessen.

Neville is a pianist and a teacher of piano, though today she has become involved in another aspect of music. She is booking and touring coordinator for the Renaissance Center Chamber Players. However, she hasn't given up her first love, performing. She performs regularly on the Nightcap with Mozart Series.

"Performing is where my heart lies," she said. "It's the spice in life — to get involved with a piece of music and work it to your ideal. It makes me feel alive."

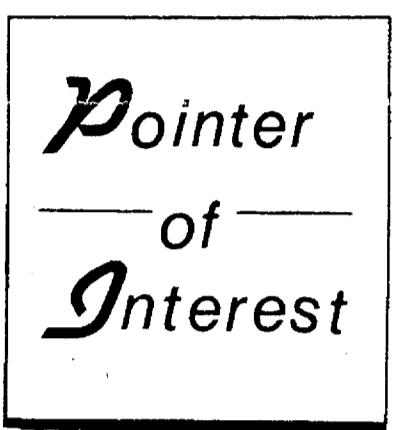

Neville grew up in Grosse Pointe, the daughter of James Neville, a long-time teacher at Richard Elementary School. She attended the Academy of the Sacred Heart, now known as Grosse Pointe Academy. She earned a bachelor of music degree in performance at the University of Michigan in 1976 and a master of music in piano performance at Oakland University in 1982.

She has been a piano teacher, taking both private students and working through music schools from the Grosse Pointe Conservatory, to the Detroit Community Music School.

"I've been teaching for nine years," she said. "I have many students in this area. I'm sure I'll go back to teaching someday. I have an obligation to share what I know and what I have learned."

Most of Neville's students have been young children, some as young as four years old. She believes that all children have potential.

"They are all worthwhile," she said. "They all deserve to have the experience. It doesn't hurt me to spend the time drilling the elements — though sometimes I could scream."

Neville's own musical training started when she was a child. It wasn't all smooth, but in the end, it was her own determination that kept her working.

"I remember one day when I was 13 years old when my mother said, the choice is yours. I was devastated to think that this might be the end," she said.

She says her mother was supportive, but in a quiet way.

"She said, if you're going to do this, you're going to have to put some time in. You have to take it seriously if you're going to do it at all," Neville said.

The long hours of practice can be frustrating for a young child, but Neville says they didn't faze her.

"I must have been getting something out of it, because I never felt deprived," she said.

In her current position with the Renaissance City Chamber Players, Neville says she took the job for the opportunity to work with Misha Rachlevsky, director of the chamber orchestra.

"It was a departure," she said. "I saw it was an opportunity to work with a man who is doing great things with chamber music. This is, after all, a business."

She says she has learned a great deal in her current administrative position.

"I've learned a lot in terms of chamber music as a business," she said. "I've learned that the most important element is desire, then the ability to fulfill the requirements of the job. Then there is the energy to see it through to completion. You really have to be a self-starter and very determined. You make the concerts happen. Misha has created his audience and I intend to do the same."

Next Saturday's concert is the result of a friendship that sprung up between Neville and Matthiessen while they were participating in the International Institute for Chamber Music in Munich, Germany. Matthiessen is a violinist. She will be coming from New York to play the concert.

In the future, Neville wants to expand her performing experience, as well as return to teaching.

"I don't limit myself to anything," she said. "I hope to always be ready for any opportuni-

FLEC Friends plan cocktail fundraiser

Friends of the Family Life Education Council is holding its annual spring cocktail party fundraiser on April 26. The gala event will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Getto.

While looking over Lake St. Clair, the guests will enjoy cocktails and hors d'oeuvres; a silent mini-auction; and an informal fashion show by Enchante, with hair fashions by Tresses. Music will be provided by Mark Brace.

FLEC is celebrating its 20th anniversary. Friends of FLEC, the fundraising auxiliary of Family Life Education Council, has raised money for FLEC since 1978.

FLEC has served the Grosse Pointe communities since its inception in 1966. At that time, community leaders felt young people needed educational programs and services to respond to their concerns and crisis.

FLEC's programs, then and now, focus on the education and prevention of problems among youth.

The Alcohol Awareness Program, now its 10th year, provides education to elementary school students regarding alcohol abuse so they can make responsible decisions when faced with peer pressure and the use of alcohol. Parenting Workshops, held every three months, help parents learn and practice effective communication and problem solving skills while gaining insight into the specific concerns of adolescents. Children alone at home after school can find someone to talk to or someone to help them with a problem by calling PhoneFriend, FLEC's Latchkey "warm line." The newest program, the Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods Youth Assistance Program, will assist youth referred from each of the police departments.

FLEC's other programs and services continue to offer counseling, medical, legal, information and referral services to youth and their families.

Come help them celebrate on April 26. Reservations are $50 per person. Please call 885-3510 for more information.

What I like about baseball

Lately, no matter what newspaper or magazine I pick up, I find at least one "tribute to baseball"-type story, detailing the glories and memories connected with Opening Day and chock-full of smarmy "I love baseball because..." prose.

Well, you won't see that kind of stuff here, folks. Because, while I like springtime and baseball and hot dogs and the green, green grass of the outfield just as much as the next person, I'm not going to fall all over myself getting Robert Burnsish about it. More like George Burns, maybe.

Because what I like about baseball, is, well, a little out of the ordinary.

I like to park at Irene's, at the end of Elizabeth, just two blocks down from the Tiger Stadium entrance gates. "You Can Get Out Anytime," the sign in front of Irene's proclaims. And you can, too, provided "Pops" — who is either Irene's husband, father or brother — remembers where he put your car. Irene only raises her prices on Opening Day, for doubleheaders or in the thick of a pennant race. She even used to provide restroom facilities for her clients, until the city put a stop to that. Irene is okay in my book, though, partly because she's so friendly (calls everybody "Hon") but mostly because her lot allows easy, rapid access back to Michigan Ave. when the Tigers are down by five in the ninth.

I like to buy hot dogs from Tiger Stadium concession stands, mainly because there, they appear to be reasonably fresh. I purchase a hot dog from a vendor in the stands only in case of an absolute emergency (more than two men on and less than two outs and after going more than three innings without the aforementioned wiener). Have you ever seen the brine in the bottom of those mobile hot dog containers? It resembles stuff you'd see in most marina boatwells and I think they change it only when the Tigers wind up in the World Series.

I like trying to guess the ages of some of the vendors who work at the stadium. It seems like they give the easier jobs (peddling programs instead of lugging laggers) to the guys who have been around longest, but sometimes I wonder. I once watched a vendor (whose future, to put it nicely, was behind him) wearily climb to the top of the lower deck stands, drop his popcorn container heavily to the floor and fall into a seat. Then he quietly took what appeared to be a nitroglycerin tablet from his pocket, popped it into his mouth, rested awhile, then went trudging on his way.

And they say all the action is on the field.

I like baseball because where else could you find stories like the one I picked up from my sports fact calendar? Seems that back in 1948, Philadelphia A's manager Connie Mack, 84, challenged Washington Senators' owner Clark Griffith, 78, to a foot race, starting at third base and running the 90 feet to home plate. They wound up in a tie, so the story goes.

One wonders how Mack and Griffith would do as Tiger Stadium popcorn vendors.

I like watching the nuts come out during rain delays at the stadium. Pass days at the local happy haven have nothing on the hot, July Friday nights at Tiger Stadium when the natives have gotten restless waiting out two-hour rain delays. They start out with obscene chants, graduate to fights in the stands and progress to performing world-class gymnastics and complicated dance routines on the rain-soaked, tarp-covered infield. (That's usually the time I start wondering about the benefits of a Valium concession stand at the stadium. Better life through chemicals, you know.)

I like to mention Kirk Gibson's name in my column as often as possible because it makes people mad.

I like to catch a mid-April Tiger game, when the stadium is populated by 10 or 11 thousand chilly, but dedicated Tiger fans. None of this let's-see-how-many-people-we-can-throw-up-on-at-Opening-Day kind of behavior at those games, only serious baseball.

I like to listen to TV broadcasters get down on certain players. It's especially entertaining when the network guys — the ones whose only playing experience was back in third grade for the St. Cunagunda Grade School team — start ragging on players like Alan Trammell or Lou Whitaker.

I like the annual North-South baseball doubleheader. It usually means two good teams, coached by two very good coaches, fighting it out in two excellent games. This year will probably be no different, with Frank Sumbera's Norsemen ranked No. 10 and Dan Griesbaum's Blue Devils rated No. 5 in Class A.

But in that doubleheader on May 17 at South High, they'll be playing like it was for the No. 1 spot.

Some road trip

Women's lacrosse teams in Wales find it just as tough to get good competition as teams in the U.S. do, but that wasn't the purpose of last week's visit by the Monmouth, Wales lacrosse team to University Liggett School. It was purely for fun, (as the ULS and Monmouth girls in the photo at left prove) with a little bit of competition thrown in for good measure. Coach Gerry Rowland and 19 girls toured New York, Ohio, Michigan and Canada and had what Rowland called a "tremendous" time. More photos and game results are inside.

Ouch!

Pointe soccer squads hit by rash of early-season injuries

By Peggy O'Connor

For a while last week, it looked as if there'd be more girls on the injured list than on the soccer fields at North and South.

North started the season last Monday without the services of four girls injured in an auto accident the day before and South, which began the schedule without experienced goalie Marcia Rajt (knee injury), saw two more girls go down by week's end.

All told, North has lost starters Cindy Bowman and Wendy Claggett and South is missing Rajt. All-State player Kim Wood and JV replacement Cathy Johnston. Bowman had surgery on her shoulder Monday and will probably be sidelined for the season; Wood, Johnston, Claggett and Rajt are out indefinitely.

"I can sympathize with them (South)," says North coach Regelbrugge. "I know what it's like to plan your lineup and then have to juggle it around because of injuries. To lose so many key players really makes you change your expectations.

"Not to mention how it taxes your ability as a coach," he adds.

South replacement goalie Amy Hawkins was under tremendous pressure in South's opener last week, her coach says, but she bounced back to play an excellent game in a 0-0 tie with Fitzgerald on April 10. "We should have beaten Fitzgerald, but at least our minds were in the game more than in the first match with Marian," South's Case says.

Both Case and Regelbrugge managed to find replacements for the injured girls, but it hasn't been easy ... or permanent.

"I brought Johnston up from the JV because she is very quick, very aggressive. She played well, and then she came up with a bad muscle pull. I have a lot of backups ... at least five girls are competent enough to play on the varsity.

"But you don't like to bring them up and see them get hurt, too," Case adds.

Wood, who injured her shoulder in the opener, is receiving therapy daily and will be back as soon as doctors allow. And despite her loss, South's girls have a "pretty good attitude right now," according to Case.

"Me, I just take one game at a time," he adds.

Still, it's tough to replace such soccer talent, Regelbrugge explains. "Cindy is as important to us as Kim Wood is to South. There's no way you replace players like that. You can put someone in there and even if they do a nice job, you've taken them away from another key position.

"The result is that you end up only half as good as if you had both of them playing at the proper positions," he says.

North has managed to overcome its losses, at least so far, beating three teams and outscoring opponents, 29-10. "We're doing great so far, but what will happen when we must face the better teams without key players and with other players performing out of position? We haven't been tested yet," Regelbrugge admits.

There is a bright side: both Case and Regelbrugge have found girls who have responded to the challenge of filling in for the injured players. Sara Wasinger has played very well for South, as Johnston did until her injury, Case says. And Laura Ferguson and Beth Elezcko have blossomed for the Lady Norsemen, their coach says.

Still, area soccer fans have been deprived of seeing some fine players show their stuff, even if it turns out to be only for a few weeks.

"It's putting two teams (North and South) that were runaway favorites behind their pace. The better teams are now going to have an edge on us," Regelbrugge says.

"But adversity is something that must be faced, in sports as in life. And so far, the kids are rising to the occasion."

Boating Safety

Boating safety is a serious matter. "Almost 100 percent of boating fatalities are due to operator negligence," says Tony Ban, safety officer for the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 12-12 for the last two years. "Accidents are caused by unskilled operators and operators under the influence of drugs or alcohol. That's statistical fact," he said. "Pleasure boaters should remember that operating a boat is serious business."

The four coast guard stations in this area (Port Huron, St. Clair Flats, St. Clair Shores and Belle Isle) responded to over 1400 calls for help during the 1985 season. Petty Officer Tollefson, of the Port Huron Coast Guard, estimated that 15 to 20 percent of these calls were real emergencies — sinkings, collisions, fires and medical emergencies.

"Federal requirements should be regarded as absolute bare minimum standards for safe boating," Ban says. Federal law has, in fact, comparatively few requirements for boat operators. Laws concern personal flotation devices (PFDs — the official term for life preservers) fire extinguishers, distress signals, proper navigation lights, hull identification numbers and the proper venting of engine compartments in power boats. That's all.

Pilots are not required to be licensed. They're not required to have any knowledge whatsoever about piloting, weather, rules of the waterways or charting. Boaters do not have to carry an anchor, a radio or any lines.

For boats under 16 feet, federal law requires a PFD for each person aboard. PFDs are classified I, II and III (wearable) or IV (throwable). On boats larger than 16 feet, a type I, II, or III PFD is required for each person, as well as a throwable device.

Boats under 26 feet must carry one B-I fire extinguisher. Boats 26 to 40 feet must carry two B-I or one B-II extinguisher. Boats from 40 to 65 feet must have three B-I extinguishers, or a B-II and a B-I. These extinguishers must be CO₂, dry chemical or Halon, but must be current and charged. The B-I and B-II classifications refer to extinguisher size.

Federal requirements say boats must be properly ventilated. "This means bilges, engine and fuel tank compartments must be properly vented and not clogged," Ban advises.

All boats must carry audible and visible distress signals suitable for daytime and nighttime. For boats under 16 feet, a nighttime visual signal is required only if the boat is used after dark. Boats over 16 feet must carry both day and night signals at all times. The visual day signal is an orange flag (at least 3 feet by 3 feet) with a black square above a black circle. For night use, at least three hand-held flares are required — or a distress light which automatically emits the international distress signal. Flashlights are no longer acceptable.

Audible distress signals are not necessary on boats under 16 feet. Sixteen to 26 foot boats must have a mouth, hand or power signal that is audible for one-half mile. This can be a whistle, hand-held air horn or an electronic boat horn. Whistles are not acceptable on larger boats. Boats from 26 to 40 feet need a hand or power signal that is audible for one mile. Boats larger than 40 feet must have a power signal audible for one mile. All boats over 26 feet are also required to carry a bell.

Power boats are required to have an approved backflame arrester, which prevents flameups when the engine backfires.

All vessels must have proper navigation lights when operating at night. All boats must also display their hull identification — this is referred to in Michigan as the MC number.

Finally, federal law requires a capacity plate on each boat that displays the boat's maximum capacity in regard to number of people and number of pounds, as well as the highest legal engine horsepower allowed on an outboard craft.

According to Ban, those federal laws cover the barest minimum. If you wish to pass a courtesy marine examination (CME) and receive a sticker from a Coast Guard auxiliary examiner, more stringent rules apply. CMEs are free of charge and are given only at the request of the owner. Suggestions only — not citations — are issued for lack of compliance. "CMEs are a good way for boaters to assure themselves that their boats are equipped for safety," Ban says.

To pass a CME, all federal requirements must be met. In addition, PFDs must be readily accessible — not tucked away in a box in the bilge someplace or encased in the manufacturer's plastic bags. If the boat has a galley stove, it must be securely mounted and out of the way of any potentially flammable materials, like curtains or extra fuel. The fuel tank must be clear, securely mounted and with open vents. Portable fuel tanks must be sturdy, secure, labeled and stored in the open air on deck. Boats of all sizes are required to carry an audible distress signal, an anchor and a suitable amount of anchor line. The general housekeeping of the boat must pass inspection.

Even with a CME sticker, Ban says he would — if he could — require even more safety measures for boaters. "I would require an operator's license," he said. "This is a controversial subject, and is not likely to happen in the near future. So, in lieu of a license, I would settle for a certificate from a boating safety school — either from the Coast Guard Auxiliary, the Power Squadron, or a private school — saying the operator has completed a basic boating safety course.

"I'd like to require VHF radios on all boats too," he adds.

"Any boater who would like a CME can ask any uniformed member of the Coast Guard Auxiliary at any local marina, or you can call your local Coast Guard station for further information.

Fitness run next week

One of the first "fair weather" races offered in the area this season is the Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan Fitness Runs/Walk set for next Saturday, April 26, in downtown Detroit.

Distances and starting times for the races are 9 a.m. for the 5K run (3.1 mile); 9:05 a.m. for the 5K walk (3.1 mile); 9:30 a.m. for the 10K run (6.2 mile); 10:30 a.m. for the open mile run.

Blue Cross will present plaques to the three top female and male finishers, medals to the 25 top female and male corporate winners and family teams awards to the top three finishing teams at a combined awards ceremony/party after the races.

All entries must be received by Monday, April 21. Call 225-8421 for more information.

Busy spring for Ski Club

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club is planning a tennis party Saturday, May 24, from 6 p.m. to midnight at the Eastpointe Tennis House. A buffet, refreshments and a variety of activities for those who do not wish to participate in racquet sports will be available. Further information may be obtained by calling the Spencers at 882-1207.

On June 28, Ski Club members and friends will travel to Pennsylvania for a raft trip on the Youghiogheny River. Call the Cotalings at 886-5972 for more information.

Soccer sign-up still open

The Neighborhood Club is still taking registrations for girls' soccer in grades 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8. An evaluation tryout will be held at North High School from 7 to 8:30 p.m., tonight, April 17. Come dressed for soccer activity.

Devils sweep baseball openers

By Stephen Ebner
South High

The Blue Devil varsity baseball team swept a doubleheader over visiting Anchor Bay, 9-4 and 7-3, to open the 1986 season on April 12.

Pitcher Rico Cordova relieved starter Rick Leonard in the fourth inning, striking out six, walking two and allowing no hits in three innings to earn a save. Leonard got the victory. Cordova led the offense as well, going 3-for-4 with a single, double and a home run. He had five RBI on the day.

First baseman Tom Fellows went 2-for-3, with a single and a double. Junior shortstop Sean Bruce hit a solo homer.

Jerry Joliet started on the mound for South in the second game, allowing just three runs and five hits, while striking out six in his five-inning stint. Reliever Scott Tucker got the save.

South catcher Steve Kinsley's first inning two-run homer highlighted another South battering of Tars' pitching. Kinsley went 2-for-4, as did outfielder Dave Fellows and first baseman Tom Fellows.

The JV also topped Anchor Bay twice, holding the Tars to two runs in two games in taking 9-1 and 3-1 wins.

A four-run second inning put South on top for good in the first game. Shortstop Marty Saad added two runs with his fifth-inning double. Mark Wysocki started and worked six solid innings before being relieved by Andre Biel-ski. Wysocki struck out eight batters and walked one.

In the second game, South scored two runs on two wild pitches in the second inning. The Devils added another run in the third inning. Starter Nick Saros worked five innings; Reuven Ascencio pitched the final two innings. Saros struck out two, walked three and gave up three hits.

0-0 tie with Fitzgerald. Senior Claire Busse scored South's only goal against Marian. Junior Julie Forester got the assist.

South held Fitzgerald to just one shot in last Thursday's tie, and while the Devils had a number of shots on the Fitzgerald goal, an apparent score by junior Sarah Dow was disallowed.

The JV opened its season with two wins last week, topping Troy and Chippewa Valley.

The girls outscored Troy, 3-1, behind goals from Cathy Johnston, Roseann MacConnachie and Mary Lou Stone. Four girls scored against Chippewa Valley in a 4-3 victory: freshman Julie Gayman, sophomore Jenny Stanchish (two), and sophomores Erin Duffy and Jamie Ghazal. (By Jennifer McSorley)

Tracksters come close

South's boys' track team missed third place by just one point at the Quad Meet in Highland Park last week.

Highlighting the meet for South were senior Matt Winqvist, who won the 3200 (10:37); junior Kevin English, who took the 800 (2:10); senior Chris Astfalk, second in the mile (4:49); senior Jeff Van Tassel, second in the shotput (46 feet, 6 1/2 inches); and the 800 relay team of Mark Gall, freshman Andy Cox, senior Paul Srebernak and sophomore Eric Younker. Girls win again

The Blue Devil girls' varsity track team conquered Regina, 88-40, last week. The squad outscored Regina 27-5 in the distance events, 29-13 in the sprints, 12-6 in hurdles, and 19-17 in the field competition.

The 3200 meter relay team of sophomore Wendy Berger, Rebecca Wasinger, Micha Song and Megan Smucker took first place and the distance runners swept the 1600 and 800 dashes, as well as taking two of the top spots in the 3200 run.

Senior Nancy Solterisch won the 1600, followed by sophomores Ellen Mayer and Stephanie Dinka. Senior Kelly Riehl took the 800; Song was second and freshman Toni Tedesco finished third. Junior Mary Beth Hicks finished second and sophomore Elizabeth Lazarowitz was third in the 3200.

"Reba Uthappa and Myreya Amezcua highlighted the meet with a one-two finish in the 400 meter dash, with times of 64.0 and 65.5; then the two came back and made up a 10-second deficit in the 1600 meter relay — the final event of the day — to give South a win in the event," explained coach Steve Zaraneck. Also sprinting well for South were freshmen Traci Lee and Nicole Tocco, who placed first for South in three events, including the 400 relay.

Senior Carin Seyler placed in both hurdle races and led off South's winning 400 meter relay team while junior Erin Kershaw won the 100 hurdles and anchored the relay team. Sophomore Durnie Greiling also had a fine day, giving South a first in the discus and a second in the shotput. Also placing in field events were junior Lucia Bridenstine in the high jump and sophomore Danielle Deluca in the shot. (Jennifer McSorley)

South netters face challenge of EML

By Peggy O'Connor

South High's boys' varsity tennis team, long the class of the Eastern Michigan League, will compete for the league title against at least two vastly-improved foes, according to veteran coach Don Zysk.

"The Port Huron schools came back with tennis last season and this season, they should be improved. It looks like a more balanced league, with South and Port Huron fighting it out for the top spot," Zysk says.

South will contend with the upgraded level of tennis with a young squad, after losing five of last year's starters to graduation.

No. 1 seed Thad Angyal is back, however, to lead South in singles. ULS transfer Scott Watson is the No. 2 seed, with Rob Hackman at No. 3 and Bill Wheeler at No. 4. Joe Mooney and Tom Witt are the No. 1 doubles duo at the moment, with Don McKnight and John Lamb at No. 2 and Dave Burgess and Bill Huntington at No. 3.

"Those sports are subject to change, since we haven't really had enough playing time outdoors to make them certainties," Zysk says.

According to Zysk, several singles players are also talented (Continued on Page 3C)

Cleveland race entry is open

Area runners planning to sign-up for the 1986 Revco-Cleveland Marathon & 10K now have their chance: entry blanks for this year's races are available at local Revco Discount Drug Centers.

The $10 entry fee covers registration and certification. Each entrant will receive an official long-sleeved race shirt, entrance to a pre-race Running Seminar and Fitness Expo, a runner's packet filled with valuable merchandise and coupons, a post-race brunch, and an issue of Ohio Runner with the 1986 race results.

More than 10,000 people are expected to compete in the ninth annual Revco-Cleveland Marathon & 10K on Sunday, May 18.

For more information about the Revco-Cleveland road races, runners should contact Race Director Reno Starnoni, PO Box 46604, Bedford, Ohio, 44146, or race sponsor Revco D.S., Inc., 1925 Enterprise Parkway, Twinsburg, Ohio, 44087, (216-425-9811).

Despite a cold, blustery day, the action (left and right) was hot and heavy on the girls' lacrosse field at University Liggett School last week. A Monmouth, Wales team of 19 girls, their coach and two chaperones raised much of the funds necessary to make a playing tour of the United States, including a stop for a 15-11 win over Liggett (plaid skirts in photos). The Monmouth girls visited Trapper's Alley while in the area, exchanged gifts with their ULS counterparts and billeted with local families. ULS got goals from Allison Fitzsimons, Faye Howenstein, Kara Van Dellen (two), Becky Ingall (three) and Tricia Petzold (four) in nearly edging out the more experienced Monmouth squad.

Knights' track, baseball, soccer teams off to a great start

Timely hitting by Dale Werkema and Pahl Zinn led the way as the University Liggett School varsity baseball Knights took two of their three games last week.

The Knights opened their season at home April 9 by edging Huron Valley Lutheran, 8-7. ULS trailed 7-2 going into the bottom of the seventh frame but four walks, a Huron Valley infield error, and singles by Tom Vallone and Mike Navarro brought the Knights within two runs and set stage for some heroics. Werkema came to bat and cracked a two-out, game-winning, bases-loaded triple. Varsity newcomer Andrew Galsterer got credit for the win in relief of starter Mike Isip.

The bright spot for the Knights was Zinn's two-run homer which cleared the left field fence at the 330 foot mark.

ULS - 18, Glen Lake 17!
"Both teams made a few errors and walked too many people, but the game was exciting. Our kids sure came through at the end," said ULS coach Glynn Conley.

The big blows for the Knights in the April 12 game came in the seventh inning. Zinn boomed a bases-loaded triple to deep leftfield to get the Knights to within a run. For the second time in one week, Werkema delivered the game ending hit. Werkema's single drove in the tying and winning runs. Freshman Bill Lucken, pitching for the first time in a varsity game, picked up the win.

ULS hosts Zion Christian at 4:30 p.m. Friday, April 18.

Three in a row

For the third straight year and the fourth out of the last five, the University Liggett School boys' varsity tennis team won the Kalamazoo Central Invitational Tour-namment. The Knights scored 76 points to easily outdistance second place East Grand Rapids' 56 points. Portage Northern finished third with 49, followed by Kalamazoo Loy Norrix 25, Kalamazoo Central 14 and Three Rivers with 7.

ULS had four flight winners and three runners-up. Flight winners were David Barlow, No. 2 singles; Ashu Nautiyal, No. 4 singles; John Birgbauer and Kirk Haggarty, No. 1 doubles; and Frank Karabetos and Mike Niccolini, No. 2 doubles. Flight runners-up were: Marc Hunt, No. 1 singles; Mike Fozo, No. 2 singles; and Rob Glancy and Gordie Maitland at No. 3 doubles.

Earlier in the week the Knights were crushed by Redford Catholic Central, 7-0.

This weekend the Knights travel to East Grand Rapids to play in the very tough East Grand Rapids Invitational.

The ULS boys' junior varsity tennis team began its 1986 season with a 5-1 victory over Greenhills School April 11, on the Knights' home courts.

Personal bests

The ULS girls' varsity track and field team opened its season April 11, with a 72-56 win over South Lake High School. Coaches Cathy Schmidt and Sue Frederick praised the 26-member team for its 22 "personal bests."

Tri-captain Lydia Alexander and newcomer Sylvia Ristic led the Lady Knights with 11 points each. Alexander won the 100 hurdles, and took second in both the long jump and high jump. Despite a sore leg, Ristic notched wins in the 200 and the 400, with a third place in the high jump.

Tri-captain Paula Rodriguez collected 10 points with victories in the "distance double" the 1600 and the 3200; while tri-captain Charu Nautiyal won the 800, took second in the discus, and third in the 3200, for 9 points.

Veteran Nora Staebler won the discus event, and freshman Sharyl Stein picked up her first points ever by taking first in the shotput. Other ULS tallies came from Sophia Park, Alycia Giles, Elena Hunt, Laura Rizzo, Miriam Mueller, Diann Imbriaco and Jennifer Van De Graaf.

Kamina Brandon, Phan Lam, Rachel Kneeshaw, Alexis Collins, Elizabeth Mannino, Liz Gilbert, Vara Samudrala, Heather Diehl, Mueller, Imbriaco, Ristic, Van De Graaf, Stein and Rizzo secured personal victories on Friday by achieving personal bests.

Kickers 1-1

The ULS girls' varsity soccer team is off to an exciting start this year with a 1-1 mark.

Coach David Backhurst's team opened the season by losing to Dearborn High School, 4-2.

Junior Laura Khelokian scored both goals assisted by German exchange student Timi Riestler and freshman Meghan Brady. Junior Shelly Tibbitts and junior co-captain Cindy Paul both had strong defensive games.

On April 10, the team traveled to Detroit Country Day School, coming with a 4-0 victory and the first shutout of the season for junior goalie and co-captain Susan Judge. Khelokian again scored two goals, while sophomores Kim Owens and Lexi Leopard each added one. Leopard's goal was superbly headed into the goal off a corner kick by Khelokian.

Norsemen start baseball year with doubleheader split

By Josh Abbott
North High

The North High varsity baseball team, ranked as high as No. 6 in the state in some pre-season polls, opened its season April 12 with a doubleheader split with the Sterling Heights Stallions. The Norsemen dropped the opener, 4-3, but came back strong with a 9-4 victory in the second game.

Senior Craig Como sparked the offense with a double, a triple, two stolen bases and two RBI. Senior Ken Straske got the victory on the mound in the nightcap.

North is idle this week, but will resume action on April 21 against Bi-County rival Clintondale.

After a series of postponements due to cold weather, North JV baseball squad began the season with a doubleheader in Sterling Heights.

North trailed, 3-1, in the sixth, but rallied to tie the score on a sacrifice fly by pitcher Russell Rice and an RBI double by left-fielder Dave Sauter. In the top of the seventh, third baseman Dino Vento doubled with two out and after an intentional walk, first baseman Rick Regalado smacked a clutch single to give North a 4-3 win.

Rice got the victory on the mound. Regalado and Josh Abbott had two hits and one RBI apiece. Sterling Heights got revenge in the second game, beating North 12-0. The JV hosts Fraser on April 19.

Kickers 3-0

North's varsity soccer team was devastatingly impressive in its first week of play, rolling to three lopsided wins.

On April 8, the Lady Norsemen hosted Dearborn Fordson, cruising to a 9-0 win. Shannon Armstrong had four goals, Krissy Drummy had two and Laura Ferguson, Bridget Briery and Stephanie Schaefer added one goal each. Cranbrook/Kingswood was North's next victim, 13-0. Armstrong again paced North, scoring five. Alexa Parmentier and Briery chipped in with two each as goalie Sue Bond racked up her second straight shutout.

Last Saturday, North made it three wins in a row with a 7-1 victory over Belleville. Armstrong raised her goal total to 14 with five more goals.

Tracksters positive

On April 8, North hosted Warren Woods Tower, breezing to an 81-47 win. Junior Mike Wujek and senior Brian Bergeron starred for the Norsemen, capturing two events apiece. Wujek won the 100 meters (11.5) and took the long jump (19 feet, 6 1/2 inches); Bergeron was first in the shotput (45 feet, 11 inches) and in the discus (144 feet, 1 inch).

Other highlights of that meet included a first in the 1600 meter relay (3:39.06) by the team of Bob Straske, sophomore Dan MacDougall, junior Alan Thomalla and senior Larry David.

Two days later, North and Utica Ford braved the biting cold to meet, with the Norsemen coming out on top, 69-68. Bergeron's 46 feet, 6 3/4 inches won the shot event; he also finished first in the discus (143 feet, 11 inches). Wujek won the long jump (20 feet, 4 inches) and teamed with Straske, MacDougall and junior Baik Hur to take the 800 meters (1:37:02). Straske, MacDougall, Thomalla and David improved their 1600 relay time to 3:37.02

Girls unbeaten

North's girls' track team is also unbeaten, defeating Tower and Utica Ford last week by identical 72-56 scores to stand at 2-0.

Against Tower, seniors Lisa Kopacka and Jill Dornback led the Lady Norsemen by winning two events apiece. In the meet against Utica Ford, senior Barb Labadie was the star, winning three events.

doubles players, so South's tough non-league schedule will help determine where the boys will finally play. "We play ULS and in the invitationals they play in. Facing top-ranked teams is the only way we can tell how well we'll do come tournament time," he adds.

"Our first goal is to win the league. In the regionals, North has to be favored. They have all their kids back and they beat us out in the region last season.

"Overall, I'm encouraged by our team. I like the attitude of our kids so far. They seem eager and willing to work," Zysk says.

More than 50 kids came out for the squad this spring, he adds. And most of them were 9th and 10th graders. "That's encouraging because this year's team is mostly juniors and we'll need the young kids to build for the future.

"There kids came out and wanted to practice and play... and that's a good sign."

Star kickers young

The varsity soccer team at Our Lady Star of the Sea High School won just one game last year and the 1986 squad has set its sights on improving that total this season. The Tunas' new coach, Julie Uryasz, says she thinks they can do that and more.

"I don't think they realize they have the talent to play well enough to have a 500 season. I think they do," she says.

"They're a real good group, good hustlers... hard working."

Defender Marissa Bautista is the only senior on the Tunas and she is only a third-year player herself, as soccer was introduced at Star just three seasons ago. Junior goalie Doreen Pellegrino and defender Tracey Walker are the other experienced players on a squad which features a "strong" 10th grade group, according to Uryasz. And that bodes well for the future.

But right now, the team which will challenge such Class A and B entries as Marian, Ladywood, Regina and Bishop Gallagher, also includes Beth Mercier, Buffy Stumb, Ro Bellanca, Beth Allor, Donna Hanshaw and Holly McHugh on defense; and Monica Grady, Cathy Jarvis, Kate McCarthy, Nicole Rinehart, Theresa Schena, Nancy Schulte, Michelle Van Elslander, Diana Wehrmann and Colleen Weir on offense.

"We're a young team and the girls haven't had a chance to play together much... but I'm pleased with their improvement so far this season," Uryasz says. "We've got a lot of speed and there is some good, raw talent... so I'm encouraged."

Star opened the season against Marian on April 15 (after press time).

Lacrosse

So far, coach Laura Sharpless likes what she sees.

This is Sharpless' first year at the helm of the University Liggett School girls' varsity lacrosse team and for awhile at least, she is content to observe.

"I'm new to this area, so I'm interested in seeing how widespread the interest in lacrosse is. I'm also interested in seeing how much the girls can do. So far, I'm quite impressed with their stick-work," Sharpless said last week.

This weekend, Sharpless will get an even better opportunity to see what her team can do when it travels to a sports camp in Sauk Valley (near the Irish Hills) for two days of scrimmages and practices. "It will give me a chance to observe our girls against teams we will be playing. I can sit back and watch for the other teams' strengths and weaknesses, as well."

ULS begins its Private School League competition on April 22 against Detroit Country Day School. League members Liggett, DCDS, Cranbrook-Kingswood and the Academy of the Sacred Heart are the only Michigan schools with varsity level lacrosse. The girls will also travel to Ohio for single games against Laurel and Hathaway Brown. The climax of the 10-game season will be the Midwest Tournament at Cranbrook-Kingswood on May 17 and 18.

The Michigan and Ohio schools, plus teams from New York and Pennsylvania, will participate in the tournament. "The Midwest Tournament is the culmination of all our efforts," Sharpless said. "And it will be a difficult test. Last year, ULS was undefeated in the league, but didn't win the tournament."

"But I think we are strong this year and we'll certainly challenge," she added.

Captain's II wins Neighborhood Club cage title

The team from Captain's II won the Neighborhood Club's Over 30 basketball championship last month with a 57-51 victory over Sine Realty. It was the seventh straight playoff victory for Captain's II.

Grosse Pointers on this year's team included Mike Kingsley, Frank Rosso, John McLellan, Mike Smith, Rick Pine, Charles Pfeiffer, Ed Tili, Ted Huebner and Peter Farago. Doc Waldeck and Eddie Taflinger coached the squad.

Author of 'Split Second' at Birmingham has local ties

By Marian Trainor
Dennis McIntyre's powerful "Split Second" at the Birmingham Theatre is a play that lingers in the mind long after it ends. Questions are raised, explored and left to be pondered — the basic one being should an individual who commits a crime in a burst of passion pay for that lapse of control the rest of his life? Although the theme of white versus black runs through the play, the central focus remains on the basic moral dilemma of what is right versus what is expedient.

Val Johnson (John Danelle), a black police officer, apprehends a white punk stealing a car. He chases him into an alley, handcuffs him and radios for a car.

The fast-talking punk, obviously a small-time crook, tries to convince Val he should let him go. He even tries to bribe him. When that fails he regails Val with racial insults, taunting him and daring him to make him stop. Val docs. He whips out his revolver and shoots him dead.

To cover up his crime, Val removes the handcuffs from the dead man, and puts a knife in his hand to make it look like self-defense.

The scene is set. The die is cast. The self-confident, cocky cop we met at the beginning is now a haunted man, faced with a momentous decision; to stand firm on his contrived alibi or to admit his guilt and, along with his own ruin, bring sorrow and suffering to his wife, Alea (Cherron Hoye).

Questioned by a sharp departmental interrogator, Val sticks to his story in spite of the doubting innuendoes thrown at him.

To ease the stress of his ordeal and some affirmation that covering up his act was the only way to go, he seeks out his fellow officer and friend, Charlie (Jerome Preston). He has come to the right person. Charlie gives him one more reason to guard his secret, pointing out that if he confesses, whites as well as blacks will hate him.

The whites will be horrified by a black police officer shooting a white man; and the blacks will be suspect whenever there is an incident involving a white person. And furthermore Charlie says: "The creep was a flea. Why ruin your career by admitting to a flea?" As it turns out, Charlie is an expert at rationalization, having applied it to an incident of his own.

Val's next stop is home where he repeats his story with some reservations to his wife. She listens. She also prods, and Val admits to what he has previously held back. The guy was handcuffed. She, more than Val, realizes the seriousness of the situation and in no uncertain terms, points out the need for silence.

When Val turns to his father, Rusty Johnson (John Amos) a retired policeman who walked the beat in a tough Philadelphia area during his career and suffered through racial slurs and insults, he is confronted with the true nature of his crime. He has violated the trust put in him as a police officer. Rusty puts it to him straight. There is only one solution. Tell the truth.

It is a truth Val cannot accept nor can he understand his father's lack of sympathy. What he did in one split second was vent a lifetime of rage against white oppressors.

"Split Second" is a tightly written drama that presents a crucial dilemma with force and is well served by a cast that realistically and sympathetically projects its roles.

There is no doubt that Dennis McIntyre has established himself as a serious writer who has something to say and knows how to make it relevant. He created sympathetic characters and he writes with economy, power and a little humor to relieve the tension.

"Split Second" is of special interest to local playgoers. The author, Dennis McIntyre, grew up in Detroit and teaches playwriting at the University of Michigan.

His mother, Kathleen McIntyre, lives in Detroit. She taught Latin in Detroit schools. Dennis' father was a noted public relations man in Detroit. His uncle, Frank W. Donovan, an attorney, lives in Grosse Pointe.

Since writing "Split Second," McIntyre has been busy. He spent last year in Hollywood writing a screenplay for Sidney Poitier and the screen version of "Split Second." His new play, "National Anthem," will open in Chicago this fall, and that should be of local interest also. It is set in Birmingham, Mich.

The play runs through May 4. For ticket information, call the box office at 644-3533.

Big River

... the seven-Tony award-winning musical that opened yesterday and continues through Sunday, April 20, at the Masonic Temple Theatre has a local connection. Former Grosse Pointe resident Michael David is one of the partners of Dodger Productions, producer of the play. The musical is based on Mark Twain's novel, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." Here, Brian Lane Green is Huck and Ron Richardson is Jim. For ticket information, call 832-5900. Tickets are also available at all TicketWorld outlets.

Comedy to debut at Bonstelle

Tennessee Williams' "Period of Adjustment" will make its Bonstelle Theatre debut April 25, showcasing Williams' playwriting talents in an unexpected kind of play for him — romantic comedy. Performances are Friday and Saturday, April 25-26 and May 2-3, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, April 27 and May 4, at 2 p.m.

"Period of Adjustment" takes place on Christmas Eve and centers on the relationships of two couples whose marriages are breaking up. The two husbands, former Korean War buddies, try to help each other effect a reconciliation. In this attempt, which is successful, they also make humorous and often touching discoveries about themselves and their friendship.

Noted for intense drama handled with extraordinary candor and deftness, Williams wrote "Period of Adjustment" in part to confound those critics who charged that his plays reflected excessive realism.

The play enjoyed both critical and box office acclaim on its European tour and marks the first time that Williams had a hit in England. It was made into a movie in 1962, starring Jane Fonda and Tony Franciosa, and directed by George Roy Hill, the play's original Broadway director.

The Bonstelle cast includes Robert Roy (Ann Arbor) as Ralph Bates, Erit Gill (Southfield) as Isabel Haverstick, Gerard L.A. Smith (Capac) as George Haverstick, Victoria Schmitt (Royal Oak) as Mrs. McGillicuddy, Craig S. Martin (Sandusky) as Mr. McGillicuddy, Anne Adcock (Detroit) as Dorothea Bates, Stacy Penelope Wilkes (Detroit) as Susie, and Rodney Masserman (Southfield) as the police officer. "Period of Adjustment" is directed by Robert T. Hazzard, with scenic design by Dan Long, costumes by Bobby Pearce, and lighting by Loren Brame.

Tickets and information are available at the box office, Cass and Hancock, or call 577-2962. Tickets are also available at any metro AAA office or J.C. Penney store.

'Carousel' to open

"Carousel," by Rodgers and Hammerstein, will be presented at the R.H. Schaublin auditorium in St. Clair Shores April 18, 19, 25 and 26 at 8 p.m. The auditorium is located at 21100 11 Mile Road.

The production is comprised of Lakeview elementary, middle and high school students plus teachers and alumni. It will feature a full-scale carousel and a carnival atmosphere with balloons, peanuts, popcorn and cotton candy onstage and off.

The event is co-sponsored by the Lakeview Public Schools and the Lakeview Education Association. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for children under 12 and senior citizens.

For more information, call 445-4092.

'Band of Hand' suffers from identity crisis

By Michael Chapp
Those who know about such things have been saying from the beginning that "Miami Vice" would make a great movie. "Band of the Hand," a new film from the creative forces behind that popular TV show, does not boast the presence of Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas. But it does have about the same amount of substance as its small screen counterpart.

Auditions

There will be open auditions at the Henry Ford Museum Theater Monday, April 21, from 7 to 10 p.m.
A cast of four women, five men and two children will be chosen for "Belvedere" by Gwen Davenport, to be performed June 6, 7, 13, 14, 20, 21, 27, 28 and July 11, 12, 18 and 19.

All positions, except for children's roles, are salaried. Rehearsals are scheduled to begin Monday, May 5. Director will be Mary Bremer.
Bring a photograph and resume. Audition will be from the script and the scenes will be posted at the audition. Copies of the script will be available at auditions only.

Quilt show

The Ladies Guild of Lutheran High School North in Mount Clemens is sponsoring the Fifth Great Lakes State Biennial Quilt Contest and Exhibit to be held June 25 through 28.
Any resident of the United States is eligible to enter the contest, which pays a $1,000 award for best-of-show along with ribbon awards for first, second, third and honorable mention.
Hours for the show are June 25, noon-9 p.m., June 26 through 28, 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Continuous luncheon and snacks are available in the cafeteria. Admission is $3.
Workshops and quilting styles and techniques will be held and quilting supplies will be available.
For further information, entry forms or workshop registrations send a stamped addressed envelope to Marilyn Albrecht, 221 Lonesome Oak, Rochester, MI 48064.

The 17-year-old girl spends more money on shoes than does any woman in any other age bracket, according to the market researchers.

has a soundtrack that is sure to keep toes tapping throughout. But the gritty edge that the picture tries so hard to achieve is lost very quickly, making it nothing more than a big screen adaptation of television fare.

Not that everything in this movie could be shown on commercial television. Hardly. The movie is violent, even sadistic at times. But the picture loses its credibility and effectiveness by making viewers laugh when a chuckle is not called for. That, ultimately, is the movie's most prominent — and fatal — mistake.

A group of five juvenile delinquents is taken out of their prison cells for a rehabilitation project. They are dropped in the middle of the Everglades, where an ex-military commando teaches them how to survive under adverse conditions. Although hostile at first, the group eventually settles down, and, with a little prompting from nature — like bears and snakes — form a bond that cannot be broken.

That task done, their commando leader brings them to Miami, where they are charged with cleaning up a crumbling neighborhood? Well, at first, that is their job. They are supposed to demonstrate their teamwork by painting, hammering and welding a dilapidated neighborhood back into shape.

But really, one knows these guys didn't go through life-and-death training in the Everglades to become neighborhood handymen. There must be something more here.

And so there is. A lot more. The local kingpin on the Miami drug scene has been lording it over the city, being an all-around rotten guy. When he has one of his thugs threaten the "band," the group takes it upon themselves to wage war with him. Their final catalyst for revenge is the murder of their commando leader at the hands of the pusher. They devise an elaborate scheme to break into his drug-fortress and "finish him off." Though the movie is full of gratuitous vices, like violence, cold-blooded killing and drug use, it would be acceptable fare for adults if it weren't for its big error. If the film is indeed supposed to have the rough, gritty, steamy edge of a violent crime drama, then the comic relief is completely uncalled for.

When the young criminals are learning to fend for themselves in the Everglades, for example, it is completely detrimental to the film's credibility to have one of them ask where the closest toilet is. Such a line may elicit a few laughs from the audience, but it also causes the audience to lose the sense of animalistic adventure that otherwise would have been present.

Suffering from such an identity crisis, the odds of "Band of the Hand" making much of itself were very slim.

And in this case, the odds were right on the money.

THE BEST JAGUAR EVER BUILT:

Breeding tells. While trends in automotive design come and go, the 1986 Jaguar XJ6 remains defiantly true to its heritage: lithe, graceful and utterly distinctive.

Jaguar XJ6 Vanden Plas

It is the nature of automotive styling to be transient. And it is the nature of Jaguar to create cars of classic grace: cars whose beauty endures long after the fads are forgotten. Such a car is the Series III. Combining beauty of form with quick response and notable luxury, the XJ6 rewards its driver in many ways. Come in and experience the pleasures that have been bred into the best Jaguar ever built.

Substitute transportation now available. Falvey Motors will leave a vehicle for your use when we pick up your Jaguar at your home or office. After servicing your Jaguar we'll return it to your doorstep.
