The response was better

... than we expected. We are still recording entries for the Name the Building contest that ended two weeks ago. We received nearly 400 suggestions and the judges are taking their time deciding on the winning name for the former Punch and Judy theater building. It's a heavy decision.

We hope to announce the winner next week. We will also tell you what the most common choices for names were and we will reprint a couple of the interesting letters we receive.

A silent majority?

What if someone held an election and nobody came? Grosse Pointe Shores almost found out May 20.

Village Clerk James Wright, President Gerald Schroeder, and trustees Patricia Galvin, Edmund Brady Jr. and C. Bradford Lundy were unopposed for re-election that day. Fewer than 90 of the registered voters in the village turned up at the polls to cast ballots. That's about 3.85 percent of the voters.

After being sworn in for his new term at the May 27 council meeting, Schroeder told the audience there could be two explanations for the exceptionally low turnout.

"Either you don't care very much, or you've given us a vote of confidence," he said, adding, "We prefer the latter" reason.

A 'world-famous' nice guy

Remember Dr. James Fisher, the Woods' pediatrician who was the subject of an "I Say" column in the May 22 Grosse Pointe News? Well, Dr. Fisher, who says he normally pores over the News every Thursday, just happened to pick May 22 to get very busy at the office and miss his chance to sit down with the paper.

The next day, he walked into St. John Hospital's pediatric ward for rounds, only to find the nurses on duty bowing to him and teasing him about being the hospital's "world-famous" pediatrician. Seems the column had been clipped and posted on the bulletin board, so that everybody could read about the getting-more-popular-every-day Dr. Fisher.

The good doctor took it all in stride: he even walked down to the News last week to visit his former patient and says thanks for the kind words.

Hey, no problem, doc. Anything for a nice guy.

She can cut the mustard

Mrs. Maurine J. Frischkorn of Newton Upper Falls, Mass. recently sent a letter and enclosed a check for a subscription to the Grosse Pointe News.

She wrote: "In August I will be 92 years old. Don't know when I will be too old to be interested, though today I'm still kicking stars out of the sky."

Sounds like this lady will never be too old for anything.

Hot stuff

Overheard Friday in the municipal parking lot on the Hill: "It was hot yesterday. I don't get hot, so when I get hot, it's hot."

Only one thing you can say about that — when you're hot, you're hot and when you're not, you're not.

And yes, you can blame the heat for this item.

Local cities evaluated for recycling project

By Nancy Parmenter

Results of a state-funded study of the feasibility of recycling in 15 Wayne County communities will be released in August. The study is being conducted for the county planning department by an independent consultant. Among the cities being evaluated are Grosse Pointe City and Harper Woods.

"I think it's kind of interesting because they're both members of an incinerator authority," said Jonathon Dreyfus of Resource Recycling Systems, the consultant carrying out the study. Both communities are members of the eight-member Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Authority, which operates an incinerator in Clinton Township.

"If we try to do recycling, that agency would have to be actively involved — or at least be supportive," said Robert Matthews, Harper Woods community development director. "The authority depends on a certain amount of waste stream. Our contract says all our trash has to go out there."

Nevertheless, Matthews said, Harper Woods finds the idea of recycling attractive. Participation in the study does not commit the city to any project.

"We can't do anything alone (that is, without the other authority members), but we're supportive of their efforts," Matthews said.

Robert Nugent, Grosse Pointe City councilman and representative on the incinerator authority board, has been one of the city's contacts with Resource Recycling. He says one of the big problems with recycling is cost.

"The old glass recycling of 10 years ago was run by Boy Scouts and community groups and it worked fine as long as it was free," Nugent said. "but the recycled value (of many materials) is very low, so as a competitor to present methods, it needs to bridge the gap somehow."

There could be some value to a recycling project designed to reduce dependence on the incinerator, whether or not the recycled materials are directly profitable.

"If there were segregated pickups, a way could be devised to have stations on the incinerator property," Nugent said. "But once it's been compacted, it's impossible to pick it apart. I don't know if you could convince people to separate it (at home). It would take a lot of public education."

The incinerator is nearing its capacity. It is currently on a five-day burn schedule, so one immediate possibility for expanding capacity would be to extend the schedule to six or seven days, Nugent said.

"At some point, we will have to consider adding more capacity or going to a recycling plan," he said.

"We're concerned about the fact that people are making more trash than ever before — with no reason that we can see. We've had surges before, and we don't know if this is a trend or a surge."

In the short term, although Nugent says he supports the general idea of recycling, he doesn't expect to see the plan implemented very soon. "There are an awful lot of numbers that have to be put together," he said.

The city of Ann Arbor implemented monthly curbside pick-up of recyclable materials in most of its residential neighborhoods two years ago. The project is a joint service contract between the city and Ecology Center, which has also operated a drop-off center for 15 years.

Ann Arbor levies a three-mill trash tax to cover trash pick-up and landfill operation, according to Jim Frey of Ecology Center. The tax also covers the curbside recycling operating subsidy, he said.

By comparison, in the city of Grosse Pointe Farms, which pays for pick-up and incineration out of its operating levy, the cost comes to something over two mills, estimated city Comptroller Carrol Lock.

The cost of the curbside recycling is lower than if it were collected as trash, but "it's not a freebie from the city's point of view," Frey said. "It's a serious commitment to a major program."

About 25 percent of the households in the pick-up areas now participate in the curbside project, which, however, only accounts for seven percent of the total residential waste stream. Frey said the center has set a goal of 25 percent of the waste stream.

Ecology Center uses block coordinators to pass out monthly reminders of the recycling pick-up and to promote the project. Under consideration is the use of identifiable containers to separate the recyclables at the source. The idea is being tried out in one neighborhood currently.

"The separate containers have some P.R. value," Frey said. "All your neighbors can see if you're not recycling."

Although recycling is hardly fashionable these days, there are Grosse Pointers who carry their recyclables all the way to Ann Arbor.

Looking for Grosse Pointe's beauty

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It's been two years, Grosse Pointe. Two years of new construction, master facade plans, landscaped medians and streetscapes.

It's also been two years of boxed bushes, green outdoor carpeting on porches, peeling paint and unkempt lawns.

It's been two years and Gerald Luedtke is still watching you, Grosse Pointe. He sees a lot that's beautiful, but there's stuff that needs improving.

Luedtke, who lives in the City, is an urban planner who's been honored five times by the Michigan Society of Planning Officials for his work in his 22-year career.

He has done much work in Grosse Pointe, including the study of blight along Mack Avenue through the Pointes. He has also done work in Birmingham, West Bloomfield, Dearborn, Berkley, Lathrup Village, Wayne and other outstate communities.

All five Grosse Pointes are doing a good job planning and carrying out beautification projects. He qualifies that by saying that all the work isn't necessarily being done by cities. Residents and civic foundations are doing their share of keeping Grosse Pointe grand.

The Shores' Lakeshore beautification project is a good example of the foundations' importance in promoting beautification. The Shores Improvement Foundation has handled the landscaping and crowning of medians near Vernier along Lakeshore and has also paid for entrance and exit signs to the village.

When pressed, Luedtke says the signs, which have stirred up some trouble in the Shores, are well-planned. Personally, he says, he would have preferred a simpler arrangement that complements the beauty of the lake and simplicity of its view.

But, let's get back to beautification. He says the Farms work at Richard Place, an entranceway of sorts to the Hill, is a good example of what can be done with community development block grant money. The City has done some really nice things on Kercheval and St. Clair with its special landscaping and sidewalk treatment, he adds. The Park has its treatment of Mack businesses near its southern border to put in the beautification category.

All the projects beautify the entranceways to either the city or major sites of the community, Luedtke says. All the cities have wisely chosen projects that help upgrade and maintain the property values of their communities.

What does an attractive entranceway do for a city? According to Luedtke, studies show that cities which have beautiful entrances to the community and maintain those properties experience less crime than those that don't.

One problem facing cities is the cut-off of block grant money by the federal government, which has gone into a number of municipal projects. It's going to put a crimp in beautification work and make the role of the civic foundation even more important, Luedtke says.

One other problem facing the Pointes is they are all mature communities, with homes averaging in age from 30 to 50 years, Luedtke says. While cities are looking to maintain their infrastructures, they should look at beautification as a necessary part of that maintenance. That goes for homeowners as well, who may live in homes that need more than a simple coat of paint, he said.

But homeowners and businessmen who make improvements find themselves on the horns of a dilemma. The improvements — a new facade or renovated interior — mean higher property values. That means higher taxes as well.

Communities may need some kind of tax incentive to offer residents and businesses that make major improvements or renovations just to maintain their infrastructure, Luedtke says. If the infrastructure of a mature community begins to collapse, the whole community will go with it.

So, strap yourself in, Grosse Pointe. Here's a whirlwind tour of the beautiful and not-so in the area.

The first stop is along Kercheval on the Hill (where the Grosse Pointe News building is located) and the first site to be stared at is the News' new building.

Luedtke calls it very handsome, with a distinctive architecture and design that will no doubt make it a Hill landmark.

He adds he'd liked to have seen wooden columns in front of the building, instead of aluminum ones.

Splitting the Hill is Richard Place, which Luedtke calls very attractive and important, because it's a distinctive gateway to the two shopping districts along the Hill.

There are some areas that need improvements along the Hill, Luedtke says. A lot of businesses could use a coat of paint, he says.

Even a new coat of paint (in some places) can't help the walkway between the old News building and Perry Drugs.

Luedtke has little good to say about the walkway, which he says is the major pedestrian passage-way from the municipal parking lot to the shopping district. Words like "barren," "bleak," "deteriorating" and "colorless" come up.

Ways to improve it would be to add some landscaping and some places to sit, Luedtke says. At least get a better bike rack.

Down to the Central Library and at the back, Luedtke points out deteriorating paint and brickwork. That kind of thing can be found all around the building, not just in back, he adds.

It's off to his home, which is undergoing major renovation and landscape work. That's the kind of thing that many residents will find themselves forced to do, Luedtke says. But, he adds, some residents find themselves house-poor, living in large homes they can't afford to maintain or renovate.

It's also a chance to look at a landscaped center island of a cul-de-sac, which Luedtke says was developed and maintained by residents along the street.

It's a voluntary effort to pay for the work and pick up the bills for watering, but, he adds, if you've

8 injured in 3-car collision

Eight people were injured, several seriously, when three cars collided Monday evening, May 26, at the intersection of Cadieux and Charlevoix in the City.

Police said a car driven by Bregetta G. Hunt, 24, of St. Clair Shores, carrying four passengers, allegedly failed to stop for a traffic signal at 7:45 p.m. while northbound on Cadieux. Hunt was cited for the moving violation.

Hunt's vehicle was struck by a vehicle eastbound on Charlevoix and struck a car westbound on Charlevoix simultaneously.

The collision was reportedly heard as far away as Fisher Road by an off-duty police officer. There were no skid marks at the scene — apparently all three vehicles collided without slowing down.

The eastbound vehicle was driven by Margaret Blair, 64, of St. Clair Shores. She suffered a broken arm and numerous lacerations. She had no passengers.

Kristin P. Rentschler, of Grosse Pointe Farms, was the driver of the westbound vehicle. She suffered facial, leg and hip injuries. Her passenger, Irene Schieman, 80, of Detroit, suffered a serious laceration at the top of her head.

Passengers in Hunt's vehicle, Mark Marchan, 21, Melissa Jolin, 21, of St. Clair Shores, Michelle Hunt, 20, of St. Clair Shores and James McMahon, 19, of Harper Woods all suffered assorted injuries. Bregetta Hunt reportedly suffered a serious head injury when her head went through the windshield.

All eight were transported by two Grosse Pointe Park ambulances to Bon Secours Hospital.

City Public Safety Officer Art Maes said traffic was tied up for about 45 minutes while the vehicles and debris were cleared from the scene.

No other citations were issued.

Men's Guild dinner a success

Approximately 1,500 men and women attended the 26th Annual St. John Hospital Men's Guild Dinner Party at the Westin Hotel on May 22 — the second largest crowd in the history of the event. Guests were treated to a "western night" theme which included a gourmet steak dinner and entertainment by country-western singer Roy Clark. George Parish of St. Clair Shores was the lucky winner of a 1986 Dodge Van Conversion donated by Ken Meade of Pointe Chrysler/Dodge. In addition, 20 lucky guests each won a 14k gold money clip with a $20 Liberty gold coin. "The Men's Guild dinner party is considered one of the largest fund-raising events of its kind in our area," said George Cueter of Grosse Pointe Woods, chairman of the event. "We expect to raise $175,000 from this year's dinner." All proceeds will be donated to the St. John Hospital Radiation Therapy Department for the purchase of a new linear accelerator used in the treatment of cancer patients. Students published Three students from Parcels Middle School won awards in a Cricket magazine competition. Heenan, Bialk air views on Park's public safety issue

By Pat Paholsky

Representatives from the city of Grosse Pointe Park and the fire department met separately at the Grosse Pointe News office last week to discuss their views on public safety.

The special election is Tuesday, June 17, and the proposal on the ballot will read: "Shall the charter of the city of Grosse Pointe Park be amended to require the city council to provide a separate police department, which shall provide law enforcement-related services, and a separate fire department, which shall provide fire-related and emergency medical services?"

A yes vote will keep the departments as they are now and a no vote will permit their merger into a single public safety unit.

Speaking for the city was Mayor Palmer Heenan who brought along Jerome Abbs, a member of the Park Beautification Commission. Representing the fire department was Joseph Bialk, firefighter and union president. He was accompanied by Louis Mleczo, a minority member of the citizens commission that studied public safety for one year.

The questions they were asked and their answers follow:

Q: Why do you believe public safety should be implemented?

Heenan: The real reason I ran for mayor was to make our city safer for all citizens and I felt public safety was the vehicle where we could get increased police patrols. The fascinating thing was where we could get six additional patrol people, the real benefit comes to fire and emergency services. . . I'm so proud of the police. Every policeman on our staff has taken 66 hours of fire training, including the police chief. That means now we will have 44 trained firemen to put out a fire. They'll carry fire extinguishers in the scout cars. We have more than doubled the fire protection. . . We have the simplest types of fires — no chemicals, heavy industrial. What we need is more patrolmen on the street.

Q: Why do you believe public safety should not be implemented?

Bialk: I felt at the beginning and now even more so that there will be a reduction in services and no savings. It appears there will be an increase in cost to operate a public safety department. There's the promise of giving more service, but a lot of our facts and figures show there are a lot of weaknesses.

Q: Are there circumstances where public safety wouldn't work?

Heenan: I think it's effective in towns under 50,000. The firemen keep pointing out Durham, N.C.

(as an example of failure) where there are 200,000 people. I want the benefits of the other three communities. The first 2 to 3 minutes of a fire is when people die. We had a man from Wayne State University do a time study — he studies public safety and he's been analyzing our community. The firemen spend 2.3 percent of their time out of the firehouse, 33 minutes a day. I need pro-active employees.

Q: Are there circumstances where public safety would work? Bialk: In the Grosse Pointes, there are public safety departments that are working. I don't know if they can work as efficiently as separate departments. Mutual aid is relied on heavily where there's a major fire. We are sending them fully trained firefighters and if the word mutual aid is mutual aid, we give more than what we get (in return).

Q: If the ballot proposal to maintain separate departments prevails, what do you think it will mean for the city?

Heenan: I've always been able to adapt to the circumstances, but I expect the proposal to fail.

Q: If the ballot proposal to maintain separate departments fails, and consolidation begins, what do you think it will mean for the city?

Bialk: From all the studies and facts I have, I've found they cannot deliver. There's no way they're going to have 38 emergency medical technicians. The police department volunteered to me across the table that half of their department is not suited. They have no intention of having 100 percent (EMTs). Not all of us are cut out (to be EMTs).

Q: Your opponents say that with public safety, service will be eroded, that it is not possible for one person to learn and more important, keep up with all the latest techniques in the fields of law enforcement, firefighting and emergency medical training. What is your response?

Heenan: They do it in other communities. They learn all the other jobs and it seems to me they can learn here to patrol the streets. They all have two jobs.

Q: The city says that public safety is cost-effective, that it will provide more efficient use of manpower, that consolidation is the wave of the future. What is your response?

Mleczo: On the financial aspect, when the commission (Citizens Commission on Public Safety) was holding fact-finding, we heard from a number of communities and the average national was a 10 to 15 percent increase (in cities that consolidated departments). The reason is cities have to pay more because they're asking employees to perform two jobs. The increase is separate from the costs of job training. At the beginning (of the commission's hearings) there was interest that there would be a cost savings because the city would be eliminating some duplication — fire chief, police chief — and getting more maximized use of employees, but it became apparent it would remain at best a wash. I think the city is blinded by being so oriented to controlling crime.

My original inclination was toward public safety. I swung the other way when I heard testimony. The immediate attention is crime patrol. What they don't realize is the level fire protection deteriorates. In effect, firefighters become police officers with the secondary idea that if there is a fire, we will handle it.

In other discussions, Heenan charged that the firefighters are concerned with protecting the union and their second jobs. He said at least 10 of the 18 firefighters have extra jobs, such as landscaping, boat repairs, part-time painting, wall-washing, furnace repair, gardening and heavy maintenance.

Heenan also said that he believes most of the firefighters will not be able to qualify for police training due to health. "The average age of our firemen is 47 years old and I think they would find it difficult to be policemen. We'll always need three men in the fire station and they'll be specialists until they choose to retire. We're hoping to get four to five of them (to be police officers)."

Bialk agreed that the firefighters will be at a disadvantage since they will have to pass a written test and a test for agility before being accepted in the police academy. Police officers, on the other hand, are only required to complete 66 hours of what Bialk called television training for basic firefighting. Bialk blamed the Legislature for being unwilling to upgrade standards for firefighters in the state.

In response to the mayor's charge that firefighters are protecting their second jobs, Bialk said that under a public safety department, the men would still be able to work another job.

He took exception to Heenan's contention that fires in the Park are simple because there are no chemical or heavy industrial plants. A house fire is the most dangerous, Bialk said, due to all the plastic in the average household. It is an uncontrolled situation, he said, compared to a factory where it is known if and what type of chemicals are used and is therefore easier to control.

Heenan said the firefighters have misrepresented the issues in the campaign. "What they have done is terrorize older people by saying we are going to eliminate emergency medical service. We're going to improve things and I think it's an outrage to frighten people into voting for the firemen."

Heenan also said he believed it was "debilitating to sit in the firehouse for 24 hours waiting for something to happen. I think the stimulation and variety of the work (public safety) is much more appealing to college people."

Both Heenan and Bialk agreed that, from the feedback they have received, there are a number of residents who are still undecided.

Lighting up Wayburn

Pedestrian lights are now being installed in front of all the homes in the 1400 block of Wayburn in the Park. City officials hope that by using the street as a demonstration block, other neighborhoods will follow suit. The lights, besides being aesthetically pleasing, deter crime. Here Tim Manley, an employee of Colonial Lamplighter of Ferndale installs one of the lights.

Long-time city worker dies

Richard Whitford, 48, a Grosse Pointe City employee for 26 years, died suddenly June 2, after being taken to Bon Secours Hospital. He had become ill at work.

According to Jeanne Darlington, executive secretary, Mr. Whitford was "a jovial, friendly person, who was well-known to nearly every resident in the city."

"He will be missed by everyone who knew him," Darlington said. "He was an excellent employee."

Mr. Whitford was employed in the public works department, handling refuse vehicles and the city street sweepers.

He is survived by his wife, Joy, and two children, Laurie and Tracey.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete at press time.

The Hill — alive with new businesses

By Nancy Parmenter

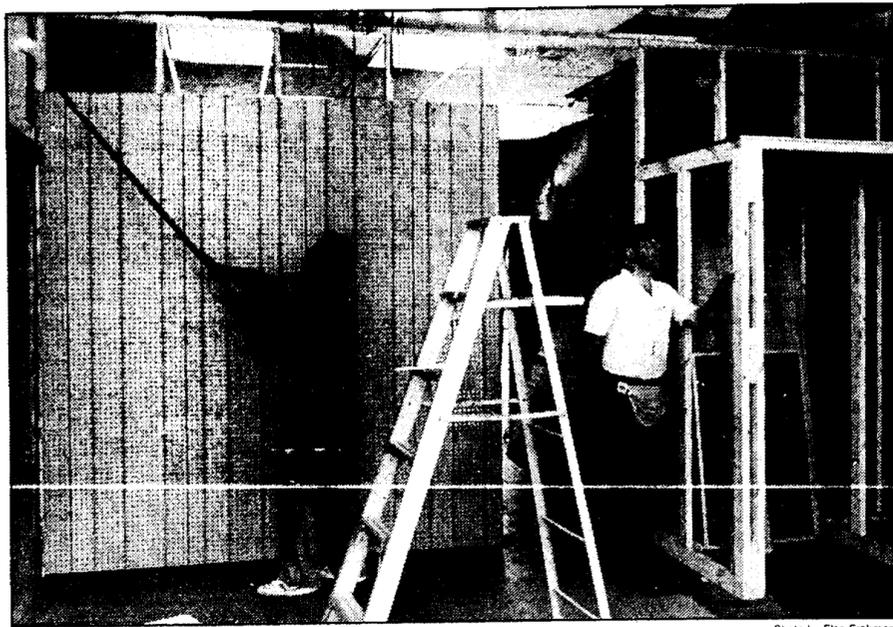

After years of inactivity, the Hill business district stands poised on the brink of development that could bring some much-needed excitement to the area, backers say.

"Grosse Pointers are too nice — they don't complain enough," said Leon Sehoyan, one of the business people planning a move to the Hill. "They need more restaurants, more appealing businesses. The Hill could use a little excitement."

Last week the Hill rang with the sound of hammers as three businesses raced to meet their completion deadlines. The area's first speculative building in two decades is set to break ground later this month and builders are only waiting for the go-ahead from the architect to start renovating the old Punch and Judy building. Talk of leases with national retail chains is circulating.

In spite of complaints about parking and acknowledgement that Hill commercial rents are high, business people speak of locating on the Hill as the realization of a dream.

"We've always wanted to be on the Hill and this looked like the right opportunity," said Marguerite Annessa, co-owner of Sports on the Hill, which this week moved up the block to the space vacated by Picard-Norton. "It was a spur-of-the-moment decision," Annessa said she and her husband, Frank, who also own the 300 Pro Shop in St. Clair Shores, timed their move out of the Punch and Judy block because of uncertainty over the building renovation.

Owner Frank Annessa, left, assisted by his brother-in-law, Lionel Montagne, rushes on Friday to get his new location of Sports on the Hill ready to receive merchandise and customers Monday morning. They made it.

"The Hill is looking like a good place to do business," Annessa said. The new location will offer more display space for the shop's expanded lines.

In December, Leon Sehoyan bought the building that once housed The Bookshelf for a new "high-tech" version of his present hair salon on Mack Avenue. He has been transforming the building ever since, and plans to be open by the end of June.

"I'll be sticking basically with what we have — it's done well for me," he said of the new shop. The building is only half the size of his present facility, but Sehoyan said he is expanding his staff and going into shifts. He said he will offer new techniques, a new hair color and new tools, as well as new hairdressers.

Standing in the street in front of the new building, Sehoyan enthusiastically predicted an improved business climate on the Hill. "Look down there," he said, pointing down Kercheval. "There's nobody there! There should be people walking." He promised to inject an additional 600 customers into the retail scene.

Sehoyan pooh-poohed the idea that the Hill will be top-heavy with hairdressers. "I'm just another good hairdresser coming where other good hairdressers are," he said. "Grosse Pointe women are fortunate to have so many excellent beauty salons."

Between the two new stores is an old store with new management. Phoebe Weinberg and Lee Wulfmeier, both Grosse Pointers, have bought Greatways Travel, where Weinberg was manager for five years.

"We plan no changes whatsoever," Weinberg said. "We'll continue to serve the best way we can." Weinberg was picked a few months ago as the best travel agent in Detroit by Detroit Monthly and the agency received a similar accolade from Town and Country magazine last year.

Two new investment firms have opened offices on the block. The three-room suite on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe News building has been leased to a firm too new to have a name. Still forming last week from a combination of mergers and joint ventures, the firm has New York roots.

Across the street, a branch office of Roney and Co. is doing interior construction with an eye to a late June occupancy. Office director Vann Fleming said it will be a full-service branch with some "unique visual concepts" to illustrate the full range of investment options.

Fleming said the office opening means new staff. The first person was hired a year ago and two more came in last month. "We'll start with five brokers and hope to expand within a year," he said.

Developer Robert Edgar is in the talking stages on leases for the old Grosse Pointe News building and the Punch and Judy building. A national retail chain has shown some interest in the Punch, he said.

The number of offices and retail space in the Punch building is not yet established. Edgar said he plans to keep the layout fluid so that prospective occupants may combine spaces as necessary. Interior renovation is expected to start this summer.

Developer Peter Bologna has also interested a national retailer in his Standard Federal building.

'No' to Park firefighters

True to its tradition of waging highly publicized campaigns over controversial issues, the city of Grosse Pointe Park is sharply split over the proposed consolidation of its separate fire and police departments into a single public safety department which will be put to a vote June 17.

On one side are Mayor Palmer T. Heenan and all of the other members of the Park council; 11 of the 13-member special City Commission on Public Safety which recommended the consolidation; members of the Park Citizens for Public Safety, a group supporting the council action; the fire and police chiefs in the Park, and other interested people and groups.

Ranged against the consolidation are Joseph Biak, president, and the other members of the International Association of Fire Fighters, Local 533, in the Park; two members of the special City Commission who opposed the consolidation favored by the other 11; members of the Save Our EMS/Fire Department, a citizens' group opposed to consolidation, and other residents of the Park.

In essence, the issue boils down to the question of whether the proposed consolidation will improve police and fire protection as well as emergency medical service in the Park, or whether consolidating the fire and police departments into a single public safety agency will weaken current services.

Mayor Heenan and his backers say the consolidation eventually will add six patrolmen to the current 30-member police force, increase the number of trained firefighters from 18 to 45, make 38 trained EMS technicians available as compared with the 12 now on duty, and, in general, increase the efficiency of these municipal services.

Biak and his backers insist the consolidation will reduce manpower by 8 percent, dilute the professionalism of the firemen, policemen and emergency medical technicians, reduce the five-man firefighting platoons to three-man platoons, and, in general, reduce service and increase costs.

The controversy is complicated by the wording on the ballot which reflects the question on the petitions circulated by the firefighters to require the election. People who support the consolidation will have to vote "No" on June 17 because the ballot asks Park residents to amend the city charter to require separate police and fire departments. In effect, the election seeks to reverse the action already taken by the council.

After separate interviews with the mayor and Biak, the Grosse Pointe News feels both sides are sincere in the positions they take. Mayor Heenan ran for re-election last year as a sponsor of the consolidation and believes his victory represented an endorsement of his policies, including his support for a public safety department. Biak expressed the opinion there are so many differences between the police and firefighting professions that the effectiveness of both services, as well as the Emergency Medical Service, will decline if the consolidation takes place.

Yet in this newspaper's opinion, the most compelling and persuasive arguments are on the side of the consolidation. A survey by Prof.

Kenneth Chelst of Wayne State University offered supporting evidence. He found that Park firefighters on the average are spending only 33 minutes of each working day outside of the fire station, a finding supporting the mayor's contention that consolidation could lead to more efficient use of the firefighters' manpower.

As for Biak's argument that it is not possible for one person to learn and keep up with the latest techniques in law enforcement, firefighting and emergency medical training, Heenan points out that at least 10 firefighters now perform more than one job by working in such civilian tasks as painting, boat repair, and garden and yard work in their off-duty time.

But perhaps the strongest argument for consolidation is that the proposal was studied at length and in depth by the special Citizens Commission on Public Safety which voted 11 to 2 in January 1985, to recommend formation of a public safety department. Then the council studied and held hearings for another year before finally unanimously adopting the recommendation in early 1986.

Under our form of government, our elected representatives have the responsibility to act on behalf of their constituents on many issues. In adopting the public safety recommendation after its own study and the work of the special commission, the council was acting in the public's interest and it was acting responsibly.

As for the highly publicized contention by the firefighters that a survey showed 78 percent of Park citizens favored retention of separate fire and police departments, it was hardly an objective poll of public opinion in the Park. The survey was taken by firefighters, their relatives and their friends, and respondents were not questioned in depth as to their opinions about a consolidated public safety department.

As in many political campaigns, there have been exaggerations, half-truths and misrepresentations by both sides. Yet there is something to the mayor's complaint that the firefighters have "terrorized" some older citizens by contending that the consolidation will eliminate the Emergency Medical Service and by using the slogan, "Save Our EMS/Fire Department," even though both the EMS and the fire protection would be expanded under a public safety department.

If the voters of the Park defeat the firefighters' proposal and support consolidation, the Park will become the fourth of the Pointe communities to adopt a public safety department. Statements by public safety directors and mayors of Grosse Pointe Woods, Grosse Pointe City and Grosse Pointe Shores strongly endorse the concept and contend their citizens are well satisfied with the flexibility provided by their public safety departments.

If and when all the Pointe communities have adopted public safety departments, cooperation among officials ought to be improved, too, with benefits to all the Pointes in better fire and police protection and emergency medical service. This is an additional argument for Park residents to vote down the firefighters' proposal to require separate police and fire departments, and thus enable the council to continue development of the single public safety department.

To Chrysler, with Lauve

John Lauve, the Grosse Pointe Woods resident who withdrew last week as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, sometimes must think he was born under an unlucky political star.

In pulling out of the governor's race, Lauve announced that he is asking his followers to vote in the August primary for Richard Chrysler, the Brighton businessman, on the grounds that Chrysler has the best chance among the remaining four GOP candidates of defeating the Democratic governor, James Blanchard, in the fall.

But the day before Lauve made his announcement, the Detroit Free Press and other state papers had carried critical stories about Chrysler's personal and business life that seemed to cast a shadow over his campaign for the gubernatorial nomination.

Lauve's own withdrawal from the governor's race was not his first political setback, of course. Over the years, the GM engineer has made unsuccessful bids for a number of other elective offices and also failed in an attempt to recall Blanchard. But his endorsement of Chrysler appeared to be a masterpiece of bad timing.

In announcing his support for Chrysler, Lauve also labeled the articles about Chrysler's personal and business life "yellow journalism" and attacked the media for publishing them in terms that not even Chrysler had used, so far as we know.

Yet it can be argued, as the Free Press did in an editorial, that the scrutiny that Chrysler's campaign is now getting "is simply the normal white light of publicity" that is turned on every candidate for a major elective office.

In the case of Chrysler, the scrutiny was perhaps more intensive than in some other cases because he had no previous record in public office and had not been exactly forthcoming in responding to requests from the media for information about his personal and business life.

As we see it, the recent spate of news stories, including the uncomplimentary ones that cast the candidate in a questionable light, helped to round out a more complete picture of Chrysler's background. And if the unflattering implications in the news stories contrasted sharply with the image that Chrysler's political advertising had sought to deliver, well, that's the way politics and the elective system often work in this country.

In Chrysler's case, an expensive series of TV commercials had sought to portray the candidate as a self-made man in the Horatio Alger tradition. They cited his rise from a $1.50-an-hour floor sweeper to his ownership of a lucrative car customizing business that made him Livingston County's largest employer and presumably an attractive candidate for governor.

Those commercials obviously did not tell the whole story of Chrysler's life. Yet the public is entitled to know about the blemishes on his record as well as the achievements of his career. In fact, one of the important responsibilities of the news media is to try to provide the more complete picture the public needs if it is to make a fair judgment when it goes to the polls.

True, the public may still accept the opinion of Chrysler's press secretary that the stories "say a lot about his (Chrysler's) character — all of it good" and that Chrysler has been "forthright and open." Chrysler's campaign staff also may offer additional explanations and different versions of the unflattering events reported that may lighten the blemishes on the candidate's record.

At the moment, however, Chrysler's campaign is in deep trouble and it is difficult to believe it can regain its former momentum with the help of John Lauve or anybody else.

Our readers say Might be time for tough love

To the Editor:
... while not serious when compared to the problem in other districts... the total attendance problem is having an increasingly adverse effect on classroom education in the Grosse Pointe school system. It is a rare day at South when the list of students unexcused for a single class, two or more classes, or for the entire day totals less than 150. On Fridays the figure is likely to be well over 200... students, that is, not the sum total of their collective "skips."
This is the unexcused list; there is no "excused" list. If an absence is not designated as "unexcused" it is presumed to be excused, the parents apparently having called in to verify that the student's absence is covered in the catalog of legitimate reasons.

The appointment in November 1985 of an administrative intern to deal with the attendance problem has had little discernible effect, though it has probably not been the fault of the intern. An insoluble problem handled by one person rather than by several remains insoluble unless the necessary authority and support is provided.
Now one reads (Grosse Pointe News, 5/22/86) that "... four of the five staff to be added — costing about $45,000 — will be assigned to assist principals at the high schools and give them a better chance of getting to students who take unexcused absences..." But this will not necessarily solve the fundamental problem. Will whatever the attendance policy is be enforced? Will the parents support the Board of Education? Will the Board support the administrators? Unless the answers are in the affirmative, considerable time and money will be wasted. The time may be right for some "tough love."

Solution to the People Mover dilemma

To the Editor:
This is a tongue-in-cheek proposal to resolve the People Mover dilemma. I have lived in Grosse Pointe Park since last September and am paying Detroit income tax. I had been keeping up with the People Mover while living in Madison, Wisconsin. There the bus system was subsidized about the same amount per person as the People Mover. But the buses ran.
Dear Mayor Young:

pay for the People Mover. This thinking is the reverse of the above-ground systems, where underestimates are the goal — well achieved.
Once the subway system is approved, it is important to pick someone with tunnel vision to oversee the project. This person must crack down on the contractors, rather than vice versa, which is now the case. The above-ground system currently has us (and Henney Penny of "The Sky is Falling") cracked up.

the subway tunnel could be used as a burial site for the People Mover. With all of the salt beneath the city of Detroit, this would be considered pouring our wounds into our salt. After the People Mover and the subway are completed, we could try a Low Orbit Shuttle System — L.O.S.S. for short.
If we Blitz this project — as we did with the buses — Detroit could become the L.O.S.S. Leader.
Steve Ganshert
Grosse Pointe Park

This is a letter to discuss a deeply moving subject — the Detroit subway system. While you may think this proposal is beneath you, it is proposed anyway.

The subway system I am proposing must have the following design characteristics:

- No concrete on either side of the tracks — to qualify for uncurbed subsidies.
- One track higher than the other to allow for unparalleled costs.
- The two systems running in opposite directions — one clockwise, the other counterclockwise — to allow both left- and right-handed users to unwind at the end of a hard day.
- Circular tracks to allow completion "when we get around to it." The round tracks would also allow politicians associated with the project to practice their circumlocution, and they would be safe from fallout from the other system.
- Elliptical tracks should be considered only if completion of the subway — like its counterpart, the People Mover, is scheduled to coincide with the next visit of Halley's Comet.

- Having both systems would ensure success in mass transit. If one system were down, the other would be up, and vice versa.
- If neither system is completed,

Every runner is a winner

To the Editor:
Hurray, hurray, hurray — for Terry Lizza's letter about the marathon coming through Grosse Pointe. I live in neighboring St. Clair Shores, and I've never missed an opportunity to take both my young sons to participate in the sideline thrill of the race. We don't run, but the spectators chat as if we're old friends and we cheer all of the efforts of those who are competing.
I feel my boys are learning an early lesson of sportsmanship. I tell them everyone running is a winner!
I hope that the race officials will listen to the majority of Grosse Pointers — all of those who love it. Let's not let a small inconvenience on one day and a few petty complaints stand in the way of the greater good — community togetherness and great sportsmanship!

Firing torpedos in a war of words

To the Editor:

I read with interest the statements of candidate Jon Gandelot on May 29 in the Grosse Pointe News. He commented about the drug and alcohol awareness program that "we got torpedoed by the union on that one" and in regard to his hoped-for accomplishments in the next year "... like to see better relations with the union leadership." These are contradictory statements.

As an attorney, he should know that a labor contract is a mutual agreement reached between parties which specifies the respective rights and obligations of the parties. When either an individual, the union or the administration exercises the rights under the agreement, it is a legitimate process and not a "torpedoing" of the other party.

An arbitrator ruled that the Board of Education and its agents had violated the labor contract. However, his comments lend weight to an impression that the administration and the board perceive as merely oppositional any action taken under the agreement.

The arbitrators award stated that the administration and board had violated its own personnel policies when it ignored its posting for a School Social Worker at South High. The posting was not for a system-wide substance abuse counselor/co-ordinator who would develop a master plan for the district. Dr. John Whritner's proposed committee to study the need for such a program had not yet been appointed. Only with the loss of the arbitrators decision did the board announce its intention to make a real commitment to develop a drug/alcohol program.

If Gandelot is serious about improving relations with the Grosse Pointe Education Association leadership then he cannot be using words such as "We got torpedoed by the union" when the association exercises its rights in a responsible manner.

A story of liberty and love

By Michael Chapp

I've got a little story to tell. It's a story of caring and believing. A story of true altruism and brotherhood. A story of large crowds with large hearts. It's a story about a human chain.

But most of all, it's a story about liberty and love.

I was recently asked — no, I was privileged — to be a part of Hands Across America, the fundraising project for the poor people of our nation. Five million participants paid $10 each to join hands and form a human chain from sea to shining sea. The proceeds were to go — not to Africa or overseas — but right here to the victims of poverty who live down the street, around the block and across town.

I, along with my companions for the event, questioned the likelihood of gathering enough people to cover so many miles. Not that we thought it would be impossible. Just unlikely.

Still, we traveled down to Route 6, approximately 50 miles east of Toledo — in the middle of nowhere — with high hopes. Those hopes were not shattered.

It's true that there were many miles — like in the desert for example — where nobody stood. In those areas, there were long ropes to fill the gaps so that the chain was indeed unbroken. But in our area, as far as we could see in either direction there were people joined with hands high in the air.

First there was a feeling of awe. So many people. So many miles. Three time zones. There I was, on a corn field in Ohio, holding hands with five million other people.

I held hands with a valley girl in California eating tofu.

A cowboy in Amarillo who was standing in 100-degree heat.

A grandmother in St. Louis who was under the Gateway Arch.

A college student in Chicago on Lakeshore Drive.

A race fan at the rain-delayed Indianapolis 500.

A Mudhen in Toledo on the Maumee River.

A couple in Baltimore who were married on the line.

And a little girl in New York under the shadow of the Statue of Liberty.

The freedom from impoverishment.

That's what the day was all about. And as that thought entered my head, the awe turned to an overwhelming feeling of responsibility. And awareness.

And then a few tears.

Waving hands, the group sang "We are the world," "Hands Across America" and "America the Beautiful." The biggest chorus in the United States.

New friends were made. And so were commitments to help the needy in America.

Will the feelings of altruism last? One can only hope.

Was the event a success? Let's just say that even in retrospect when I think about the 30-minute love-in, I still get goose-pimples and my eyes still well up in tears. And I'm sure — I'd risk everything I have on this — that I'm not the only one who feels that way. There are five million others out there who share my feelings about this story.

A story of liberty.

A story of love.

I say

It was man against machine last night. Score — Machine 1, Man 0.

I hate it when Machine wins, but after all, tomorrow is another day.

Scarlett O'Hara would never have said that, if she had to cut the lawn around Tara with a Toro.

Lawnmowers have a way of knowing when I am going to use them. I don't like to anthropomorphize, but the lawncutters don't like me. They refuse to work when I pull their starting cords or turn their keys. If I do, by some sort of mechanical miracle, manage to get them to roar to life, the blades have an uncanny sense for locating the largest hidden rock on the lawn — a gut-wrenching, scraping sound of heavy metal on rock, a sudden lurch and then... silence.

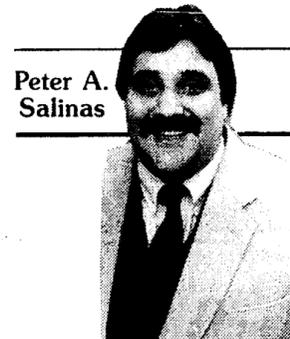

The lawnmower is an instrument of terror and torture that would rival any innovation the Marquis deSade devised.

Whoever invented the lawnmower decided to inflict serious pain on the mowee. Grass cannot be cut when it is wet or damp with dew. That precludes cutting the grass in the morning or late evening when it is cooler.

This, of course, means you must sweat it out during the hottest times of day. Little grass clippings swirl about you as your ankles are bitten to bits by mosquitoes who are infuriated at your destroying their home. Those clippings stick to your body, slip down your shorts and get trapped in your nose and the back of your throat. Kidneys suffer debilitating vibrations, and, more often than not, a rock or twig jets out of the shoot and leaves a shin or two a bloody mess.

If you are lucky enough to have a clipping catcher, you must stop every five to eight minutes to empty the bag. This means the lawnmower will not start again until you have given it a 20-minute rest. You can fill the down-time with such fun activities as taking the handclipper to the areas where the mower blade can't reach. This usually means getting your skin scraped by a sadistic garage, fence, tree or juniper bush.

Lawnmowers won't start if you are wearing gloves. Gloves are a great idea in theory, but in reality, the mowers like the feel of sweaty hands on their metal handles. Gasoline must make them kinky.

Petrol is often a problem. You never have enough to finish the lawn. Going to the gas station, smelling like watermelon and hydrocarbons, dripping like an 18th century faucet and being covered with clippings has never been the high point of my weekend. Pouring the go-juice into the mower usually means getting the stuff all over its deck. I will never, ever, understand why they don't make the gas tank opening on mowers in the shape of funnel. Too practical? Probably.

Green cement is looking good

Lawnmowers beget the spread of weeds. In the old days when you pushed a handmower over a fuzzy dandelion, the little seeds floated gently into the air and blew away in the breeze. Power mowers rocket the seeds through the air and push them deep into the grass — perfect resting places until they germinate and turn into full-blown, mowerblade-resistant weeds.

Mower repairmen are the nastiest creatures on this earth.

Usually about halfway through the lawn, the mower will die for no apparent reason and will refuse to start. You immediately take the mower to Mr. Mower Repairman. He usually has the largest advertisement in the Yellow Pages — says a lot about his earning power.

If you walk into his shop pushing the mower through the door, he has you. He will immediately leave the mower he is repairing, ask you what happened to make it quit and begin taking your machine apart. Soon he will announce that it cannot be fixed right away, and you had better not move it, because it is in 30 pieces and most of those will get lost if you try to fix it yourself.

Two weeks later, after several calls from city officials about the length of your lawn, you walk back into his shop and he says it will be ready tomorrow.

The mulcher.

This innovation in mower technology was designed by a kind-hearted scientist, who thought it would be great to eliminate some of the tortures of lawn-cutting.

There are some serious flaws with the mulching school of thought. The problem here is the installation of the mulcher adapter itself. It calls for flipping a mower on its side — something lawnmowers despise. The directions tell you to tape the vent hole in the too-small gas cap, but tell you nothing about the flood of oil into the machine's air filter.

Then there is the problem of removing the grass which has solidified on the underside of the deck into the hardest substance known to man. The directions say to use a scraper and a wire brush, but a diamond-edged chainsaw would dull quickly.

Mulchers are only good when the grass is short and dry — a condition which is not likely to occur more than once a summer. If you ever try to use a mulcher when the grass is tall and wet, you will soon visit Mr. Mower Repairman.

Green cement is looking better and better.

Courts survey is under way

To the Editor:

The Michigan Supreme Court has appointed a blue-ribbon citizens' commission to recommend ways to improve Michigan's court system.

As part of this study, a public opinion survey is being conducted to determine how Michigan citizens feel about their courts. About 750 Michigan adults are being interviewed by telephone by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research to measure what they know and think about their courts.

Readers of this newspaper who would like to express their opinion on Michigan courts, but are not interviewed as part of the poll, are invited to put their views in writing and send them to the commission. The address is Court, P.O. Box 30052-N, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

The commission is particularly interested in hearing from persons who have had personal experiences in court — crime victims, jurors, witnesses and persons who have been involved in a lawsuit.

Down at the city pump How a city maintains its sewer system

By Pat Paholsky

It's early Friday afternoon at the Neff pump station located at Neff and Charlevoix in the City. The sun's white hot rays are penetrating everything they touch. The air is still. There is no activity outside any of the houses in the area. Even the birds have taken refuge from the heat.

A peaceful, lazy summer afternoon? On the surface perhaps.

The ground underneath, however, is teeming with activity. All of the city's wastewater — from automatic washers, toilets, dishwashers, bathtubs, garbage disposals — is flowing to the pump station. And when it rains, the storm water collected from eaves troughs, roof drains and catch basins from the northern one-third of the city — from Charlevoix to Mack — rushes to the station.

Inside the 57-year-old brick building, the pumps do what pumps are supposed to do. They take what comes in, lift it up and pump it out. It's sent to the Fox Creek interceptor which sends it to other points. It eventually ends up in the Rouge River where it is treated. The automated equipment at the Neff station silently records, with blinking lights, the activity. A digital read-out shows the constantly fluctuating water level.

Everything that once had to be tended to manually is now adjusted and corrected automatically. When a caretaker and his wife lived in the pump station years ago, they'd be roused out of their sleep by bells that went off when the water level got too high.

Now the pumps do their job aided by machines. The information is relayed to the public safety department which has a monitoring panel at the office. When it storms, however, City Manager Thomas Kressbach said a city worker is physically on the premises as added insurance.

Inside the solid structure, the concrete floor holds a series of pumps, some just for wastewater and some that handle only storm water. The pumps are impressive pieces of machinery, about four feet high, but like an iceberg, what is visible is only the tip. They extend down, not one or two, but nearly three floors, in the earth.

The floor of the second story down is made of steel grating, revealing massive pipes and equipment underneath. The pipes carrying water in and out are so large that two people wrapping their arms around one would not touch each other.

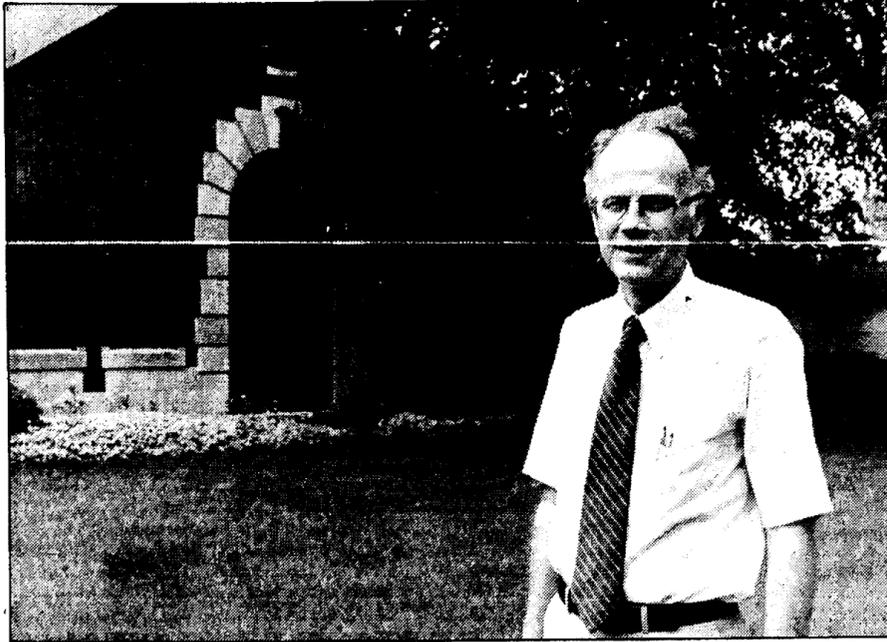

the heating and ventilating equipment.

The city wanted to know what to do when a station gets old and the engineers made a number of long-range recommendations, Kressbach said.

He said the city has implement-the existing pumps, Kressbach said. It will be a first-line pump that will provide what the engineers call a firm pumping capacity, which is equal to the capacity of the sewer system to deliver flow.

"If one pump conks out, you still

City Manager Thomas Kressbach stands in front of the Neff pump station. A small addition to house a new pump will likely be constructed in the corner of the building at the right.

This is clearly not the stuff of romance novels, but like indoor plumbing, it's one of the benchmarks of an advanced society. And woe to a city when its residents' basements flood because the sewer system breaks down somewhere.

Keeping in mind that the building and its equipment, including the pumps, date back to 1929, city officials contracted for a study of the station in 1982. Engineers McNamee, Porter and Seeley looked at the condition of the pumps and motors, piping and valves, the building structure, the electrical and instrumentation systems and ed three of the recommendations. A second power line was installed with automatic load transferring equipment so that the station will continue to operate in the event of a power failure. Then the automatic equipment that was installed in 1965 was replaced with a new wet well level control and pump control panel. All of that cost the city $150,000.

The city has just finished paying off the bonds for the $1.5 million project completed in 1966 in which the sewer system was improved and automated.

The next major project is a new pump that will not replace any of have a back-up," Kressbach said, referring to the original 1929 pumps. "Even if the new one goes out, we'll have the old one."

It will take at least 14 months before the new pump, estimated to cost $325,000, will be in operation. The engineering is estimated at $40,000.

"We have to figure out where to put it," Kressbach said, explaining that pumps have to be placed a certain distance from each other. He said the building will probably be extended at the northwest corner to house the new pump. The spot is now marked by a tree. The addition will square off the structure.

The new equipment will have the capacity to pump about 44,000 gallons per minute. Using as an example a fire truck that can pump 1,000 gallons a minute with four 2 1/2-inch hoses, Kressbach said the new pump would have a capacity equivalent in volume to 44 fire trucks.

"Our pumps are in good condition now and we hope they continue until we get the new pump in. It will be a tremendous improvement," he said.

Fiscal problems

The Republic of Texas was so poor in its first years, the late 1830s, that its minister to France pawned his watches to pay bills, says National Geographic.

My dog's better contest is Sunday

The community is invited to view a potpourri of perky pooches who will parry for prizes at the third annual My Dog's Better Than Your Dog day. Grosse Pointe's largest tongue-in-cheek, canine competition will take place at the War Memorial on Sunday, June 8, from noon to 2 p.m.

Pups of all shapes, sizes and breeds are encouraged to compete in this all-fun event. A $2 entry fee per pooch is required at registration. There is no charge to spectators. Pre-registration is preferred.

A prestigious panel of judges including War Memorial board members Charlie Davis Jr. and John "Pete" Durno as well as Park Councilwoman Carroll Evola, Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber, Farms Councilwoman Gail Kaess and City Councilman John Youngblood will evaluate the canine competitors and award first, second and third place ribbons in each class.

Dr. Lester Faremouth from Harvey Animal Hospital will act as resident veterinarian, while War Memorial Executive Director Mark Weber will perform the duties of emcee. "Gunther" Weber will again put his best paw forward in his duties as host. Refreshments will be available.

The competition is expected to be keen as the entrants vie for the coveted ribbons in such classes as youngest and oldest, dog and owner look-alike, cutest mutt and most friendly, as well as most unusual and best trick. A discerning eye on the part of the judges will be required to select winners in the largest dog, smallest dog, longest tail, biggest and smallest paws categories.

Registration forms are available at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore. For additional information, call 881-7511.

a. The residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the rear yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.

b. The proposed addition would encroach into the rear yard space of 30', leaving a rear yard at the addition's maximum encroachment of approximately 21 feet, the therefore requiring a variance from the rear yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

3. The appeal of Mr. & Mrs. Doug Fiedler, owners of the premises located at 123 Cloverly, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of an addition to the side of their existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. b. The proposed addition would further infringe upon the minimum setback requirements on Kercheval Avenue of 25 feet, leaving a setback of 10.9 feet and thereby requiring a variance from the provisions of Article II, Section 200, Item 50 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

4. The appeal of Mr. David O. Wagner, owner of the premises located at 84 Mapleton, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the addition of a family room and bath to the rear of their existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. b. The proposed addition would further infringe upon the required rear yard of 30 feet, leaving a rear yard of 20.6 feet and requiring a variance from the rear yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

c. The proposed addition would exceed the maximum allowed lot coverage of 35% by 55 sq. feet, thereby requiring a variance from Article XIII, Section 1300, Schedule of Regulations of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

5. The appeal of Dr. & Mrs. William Riddell, owners of the premises located at 25 Radnor Circle, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the addition of a greenhouse to the rear of their existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that:

a. The residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the rear yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.

b. The proposed greenhouse would encroach further upon the required rear yard setback of 30 feet, leaving a rear yard of 16.5 feet and thereby requiring a variance from the rear yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

We need Jon to continue to serve us on our Board of Education. We need his enthusiasm, his knowledge, his experience and his integrity. We need his positive perspective and his ability to make intelligent and informed decisions. We urge you to join us in re-electing JON B. Woods seeks alternate financing for parks

By Peter A. Salinas

Grosse Pointe Woods is in the process of seeking alternate financing for major improvements at Lakefront and Ghesquire parks. The city is currently in the midst of examining plans submitted by planner James C. Scott and Associates.

A meeting was held May 27 to establish priorities and determine costs estimates on each improvement included in both project plans.

The city is looking at revamping its Lakefront Park boat docks, and installing new bridges at the location to allow full use of all docks. The plan at Lakefront calls for upgrading its current recreation facilities and substantially improving the entire park.

New construction at Ghesquire may include a new, large community center, and upgrading park facilities.

Substantial landscaping projects are being considered for both parks.

According to Councilwoman Jean Rice, the committee of the whole met May 27, but City Administrator/Clerk Chester Petersen explained there may be more practical ways of financing the multi-million dollar projects than asking for a millage.

Rice noted that everything in both plans cannot be included, since costs would make it prohibitive. Once plans were finalized, voters were to be asked to approve a millage hike, which would eventually pay for the new facilities over a period of years.

Petersen said that perhaps a bond issue might be a better way of financing the projects.

"A bond issue is how we financed Lakefront Park," Rice said. "Phasing (the current proposals) would take a long time, seven or eight years, and the parks would be torn up all the time."

Petersen noted that if the council were to decide to ask voters to approve a one mill increase for the parks, it would take several years before the city had enough money to fund the work on the boat docks — one of the city's higher priority projects.

"The advantage to a bond issue is to be able to do the high priority projects in the first or second year, without having to wait several years to accumulate the money," Petersen said.

He added that over time the cost of the projects would likely increase as much as 4.25 percent

'Gondoliers' at Christ Church Sunday

Gilbert and Sullivan return to Grosse Pointe when "The Gondoliers" is performed in the Rose Garden at Christ Church Sunday, June 8.

Following in the footsteps of "The Mikado," "H.M.S. Pinafore" and "Pirates of Penzance" of previous years, the familiar melange of abductions and searches, weddings and mistaken identities, Venice and Barataria, dukes and duchesses, princes and villains, and boatmen and peasant girls entertain and enlighten their audience. A grand inquisitor leads tension, and the Choirs of Men, Boys and Girls provide high spirits and voice.

Writing in the age of the rhymed couplet, Gilbert and Sullivan successfully developed this form of extravagant burlesque of contemporary behavior. Their operettas were entertaining spoofs of Victorian manners and foibles that delighted London audiences, then and now. Characterizations still are reflections of contemporary society.

The Choirs of Men and boys will portray Venetian gondoliers and the Girl Choir will play peasants. Soloists include Roger Fitch as each year, given the current rate of inflation.

"A bond issue could be spread out over 15 years," Rice said. "It would also be paid for by those who are using the parks, and not by those who may move out of the city in the years to come."

Petersen said he believes it may cost voters less than one mill a year for a bond issue, but added he would first have to check with the city's bond counsel for a determination.

Currently one mill generates $329,000 in revenue for the city, Petersen said. The city would have to levy at least one mill for the next 10 years to take care of the high priority items at Lakefront and Ghesquire.

Both Petersen and Rice noted that the alternate method of financing is just in the discussion stage at this time, and the council will make the final determination after all the facts are in.

"The last I knew," Petersen said, "The city had a AA bond rating. Our debt ratio is very, very small to what is allowable. I think the bond issue is a practical alternative approach, and we're looking at it."

Grand Inquisitor, and David and Jeanne Heller Ludwig as Guiseppe Palmieri and Gianetta. Kathy Prost and James Gray perform duchess and duke roles. Lisa Scott, Peg Clapborn and Rob Numez play Casilda, Tessa and Marco, all looking for the King of Barataria. The play is under the direction of Frederic DeHaven and support staff.

North all-night party is June 12

The cost is $15 and a check, made out to the Grosse Pointe

North Parent Club, can be sent to the school, attention All-Night Party, or mailed to Joy Ward, 792 E. Rosedale Court, Grosse Pointe Woods 48236.

Mleczo to chair campaign committee

Louis Mleczo was elected chairman of the Save Our EMS/Fire Department Citizens Committee May 27 when the group met to map strategy for the special election June 17 in the Park.

Mleczo, a member of the Citizens Commission on Public Safety, was one of two dissenting votes when that group recommended the consolidation of the police and fire departments to the council in January 1985. After a year-long study, the commission voted 11-2 to recommend the merger.

The next meeting of the Save Our EMS committee is Tuesday, June 3, at 7 p.m. at St. Ambrose Hall, Hampton and Maryland. For more information, call Jean or Lee Fallieres at 821-6769.

Children's classes offered at Assumption

The summer program for children at Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center begins June 16 and continues through Aug. 8.

There are programs for children from 12 months to 2½ years old and from 3 to 6 years old that center around dinosaurs, science, music and art and other themes. Classes are from 9 a.m. to noon and full day care is available from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Highlights for the 7 to 11 age group include a new computer program designed to provide individualized classes; a cooking class; charcoal drawing; and a science class in which students will learn how to etch metal, clean leather and dye yarn.

For children who will enter kindergarten this fall, there is a kindergarten brush-up course, taught by Judy Christian, who has a master's degree in early childhood education.

The center is located at 22150 Marter Road. For more information, call 772-4477.

COTTAGE HOSPITAL'S EMERGENCY DEPARTMENT HAS JUST MADE 3 IMPORTANT MEDICAL DISCOVERIES:

Dr. John L. Stephenson

Dr. Laura Benedetto

WE'VE DISCOVERED THREE HIGHLY TRAINED EMERGENCY CARE PHYSICIANS.

John L. Stephenson, M.D., earned his medical degree from the University of Michigan Medical School. An experienced medical director, Dr. Stephenson says about Cottage Hospital Emergency Care: "There is more of a direct patient relationship than exists at many higher-volume emergency rooms. We take the time to see people, to question them, to check their medical history and to do an in-depth physical exam."

Laura Benedetto, D.O., earned her medical degree from the New York College of Osteopathic Medicine. Prior to joining Cottage, Dr. Benedetto was an emergency care physician in Macomb County. She feels that, "No emergency is too small to warrant our full attention. If a person feels an injury or illness is significant enough to get checked out, that person deserves prompt professional treatment."

Michael McMillin, M.D., earned his medical degree from Wayne State University Medical School. An experienced primary care physician from Bon Secours and St. John hospitals, Dr. McMillin thinks, "Cottage Hospital's emergency department offers high-quality medical care along with a high degree of personal care for each patient. Patients are treated here in a friendly and efficient manner, without undue delays, and I think they appreciate that."

In addition to our new additions, Cottage Hospital's Emergency Care Department has 12 registered nurses and specialists in anesthesiology, radiology, cardiology, internal medicine, surgery, pediatrics and psychiatry who are always on call.

YOU'LL DISCOVER SPECIAL CARE... AND SPECIAL CARING.

We select our emergency care staff for their skill with people as well as for their skill in medicine. So any emergency, minor or major, receives intensive caring at Cottage Hospital. As part of that caring, our emergency physicians will contact the doctor of your choice and follow up with him or her.

YOU'LL DISCOVER THAT YOUR CONNECTION TO HENRY FORD HOSPITAL AND THEIR 550 SPECIALISTS CAN BE A VITAL LINK.

When you need extraordinary medical care, your Cottage Hospital Emergency physician is just a phone call away from Henry Ford Hospital's world renowned experts in more than 40 specialties. It's this partnership with Henry Ford Hospital that helps Cottage Hospital make a big difference in an emergency. It's what makes Cottage Hospital the community hospital with the specialty connection. And it helps make Cottage Hospital a great medical discovery for you.

High speed chase ends in arrest of one

Two juveniles were involved in a high-speed chase through Grosse Pointe Woods early May 29. They led police on a yard-to-yard chase through the city after slamming the stolen vehicle they were driving against a metal utility pole at Mack and Cook roads.

Only one of the two occupants, a 16-year-old Detroit boy, was captured. Woods Lt. Pete Thomas said the department has the name of a second man, but the captured juvenile was the car's driver.

Police spotted the stolen vehicle, activated the squad car's overhead lights and pursued the car. The car was registered to a Grosse Pointe City resident.

The car ran a stop sign, and proceeded northbound on Mack Avenue until it struck a metal pole at Cook Road.

The two males fled on foot, and police gave chase through several yards before losing them. An alert citizen spotted one of the suspects and called police. He was later arrested.

School board starts five-year planning

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Tomorrow afternoon, about 90 administrators, school board members, teachers, parents and members of the general public will meet at North High School to begin laying the foundations of the board's planning for the school district's look in five years.

The workshop, which begins at 4:30 p.m. and runs until 9:30, is open to the public.

Superintendent John Whritner said the workshop is meant to give the district a "clear picture of all the possibilities of what we're looking at."

After registration at 4:30 p.m. the participants will get an overview of the problems facing school districts. After dinner, the participants will be broken into seven subgroups who will discuss and rank certain items they feel most important that should be dealt with by the local school board in its future-planning.

Those priorities will then be used by the board when it meets the following day in Wayne at 9 a.m. at the Wayne County Intermediate School District to begin goal formulation discussions.

The format for the Friday morning workshop is a good process meant to get maximum involvement by those attending, Whritner said. While the workshop is to work on the five-year plan, its purpose is to give direction to the board, not to formulate a final document, he added.

Participants have all been sent a planning document, which is split into two main sections. The first contains assumptions about education-related issues, including changes in students, staff, community and school facilities.

There are also assumptions made about the economy, financing for schools and the curriculum and program offered.

The second part of the report moves into implications based on the assumptions should they prove true. Part of the evening's work will be for participants to wade through the document and the 10 supporting information papers to discuss the data that supports the assumptions.

Among the appendixes are some reports, previously sent to the board during public sessions. Others, however, have been prepared especially for the long-range planning.

For instance, the system projects an enrollment of 7,216 students in 1990-91, very near what it is this school year, when 7,346 students attend classes.

Elementary school populations are expected to increase by 240 by 1990-91, according to the report. Populations at the middle school will also rise by 160 or so students, but the high schools, where about a third of the district's population is concentrated, are expected to drop from 3,068 this year, to 2,565 in 1990-91.

Accordingly, the district will find itself hiring teachers. How many will depend on what class sizes it seeks to maintain at the three levels, according to one supporting document, which details staffing needs.

The report also projects potential retirements over the next five years for the district, which could include 58 elementary teachers, 17 special education teachers, 34 middle school teachers, seven from elementary special subjects and 71 teachers from the high schools.

Other information documents include a summary of last year's community survey, a breakdown of space requirements in the administration building, space available in classrooms, future directions for the elementary, secondary and special education departments and some national studies on student population, programs and problems.

The Saturday meeting at the country intermediate school district, 33500 Van Born Road, was planned for a couple of reasons, according to board President Jon Gandelot.

The ISD has facilities that are well-suited for the board's needs, Gandelot said. Also, it was felt the board needed to distance itself from Grosse Pointe for a day while it began working on the goals, he added.

The Saturday meeting begins at 9 a.m.

'Sugar' is GP Theatre season finale

"Sugar," the musical version of "Some Like It Hot," is the season finale for Grosse Pointe Theatre. Performances are June 10-15 and 17-21. This now-classic Billy Wilder production about two musicians who witness the St. Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago and take refuge in an all-girl band traveling to Florida transfers all the fun from the silver screen to the stage.

The stage version features several exciting tap dance numbers with original choreography by Sandi Phelan and Charles Doyle.

Directing "Sugar" is Dennis Wickline, long-time member who also produces and frequently directs dinner theater at the Golden Lion and other locations in the area. Wickline also designed the art deco sets reminiscent of the early 1930s. Production staff members are Marge Chesnick, producer; Dick Vreeland, stage manager; Mary Lou Johnson, technical director; and John Dickinson, musical director.

The two fleeing musicians are played by Anthony Amato (Joe/Josephine) and Dan Castle (Jerry/Daphne), with Judith Gieseking as the innocently seductive Sugar (the role played on the screen by Marilyn Monroe). Clarke Scholes plays the smitten Osgood Fielding who thinks Daphne is the mate for him, with Arlene Marie Schoenherr as Sweet Sue, the hard-as-nails leader of the all-girl orchestra.

Al Bertel plays Bienstock, her manager, and Michael Edick is Spats, the leader of the band of tap-dancing hoods searching the country for the two musicians. Lance Bosley makes his debut as the Coarse Actor, a man of a thousand roles.

Chorus members include Timothy Higgins, David Carroll, Anthony Zaia and David Tworek as the tap-dancing hoods, with additional singers and dancers Nancy Fisher, Lucille Berkey, Janet Roney, Patricia Ellis, Donna Grundman, Erin Conway-Disante, A.W. Lombardini, Stan Newman, Don Cilluffo, Geoff Proven, Molly Johnson-Dodge, Denyse Wickline, Darlene Haselwood, Judi Thompson and choreographer Sandi Phelan, filling in for an injured dancer.

The original costumes for the production were designed by Rosemarie DiRita, with makeup, including pink wigs, by Gwenn Samuel. Fran Bommarito handles properties, Steve Linne chairs lighting, and David Hertzberg and Don Lockwood are in charge of sound. Set dressing for the production is by Nell and Sally LePla and Gretchen Morris. Jac Purdon is scenic artist, and Eleanor Tuttle is assistant stage manager. Marcy Kazmirowski and Don Ross are dance coaches.

An eleventh performance has been scheduled for "Sugar" due to the demand for tickets. Tuesday, June 10 is the additional night, and good seats are currently available by calling 881-4004. Tickets are $8. Curtain is at 8 p.m. for all performances except Sunday, June 15, which is at 7 p.m.

Candlelight buffet suppers before many of the performances will be offered to those holding tickets for the evening. Reservations must be made separately at the War Memorial by calling 881-7511. Buffets are $10, and parking is free.

Candidates reveal no surprises at forum

By Mike Andrzejczyk

There were no surprises at the League of Women Voters forum Thursday night, May 29, at the War Memorial. Board candidates Jon Gandelot and Cynthia Pangborn stuck to their earlier positions throughout the 1½-hour forum.

Pangborn and Gandelot are both seeking the single four-year term to be filled on the Grosse Pointe Board of Education Monday, June 9.

Gandelot, currently board president and a two-term incumbent, reiterated his position that he is running on his experience and integrity. The system is running well and he would like to be a part of it, he added.

Pangborn, a Farms resident, is making her second attempt at the board in as many years. She has a variety of teaching and volunteer experiences.

Pangborn said the board's priorities continue to be misplaced, that it is not financially prudent and that the leadership on the board is stagnant.

The forum drew perhaps 60 people, many of them school or board officials and regular board watchers. A scheduling glitch put the only major voter information forum this election up against two school events.

Both candidates read opening statements before fielding questions from the audience.

When asked about fiscal responsibility, Pangborn said the most obvious example to the board's failure was with Barnes School.

"I think the most obvious priority I have been upset with has been the statement that the closing of Barnes School would result in tax savings," she said. "As a matter of fact, it hasn't resulted in any savings."

"The rental spaces we have there do not pay for the maintenance of the building. We have in the last year spent over $13,500 on renovating Barnes space and we're also going to be spending $20,000 this year on the parking lot, with an additional $20,000 requested next year to complete the project."

"... They have not saved us money. The school was not closed; they kicked the children out," she added.

Gandelot responded that the closing of the school two years ago was for educational, not financial reasons. He added that Pangborn was "totally incorrect" that the closing of Barnes as an elementary school hadn't saved the system money.

"We have eliminated one elementary school principal, which costs us in excess of $60,000. We have eliminated one secretary, which costs us in excess of $20,000. We have increased our revenues in rental of a portion of the facility to the tune of $20,000," Gandelot said.

"That's over $100,000 per year in savings and income. So, in fact, Barnes has saved us money," he concluded, adding the board has also showed its fiscal responsibility by not levying the full millage it is authorized.

Asked about the small number of counselors at the middle school, both candidates said they thought more counseling was important. Gandelot said the board had responded, but he felt more emphasis should be placed on eliminating clerical tasks for counselors to give them more time with students. The emphasis of counseling should be done at the high schools, he added.

Pangborn disagreed, saying middle school was the time of the biggest transition, and that middle school counseling would set the tone for the district's counseling effort.

On the seven-period day the candidates also disagreed. Gandelot said he advocated the program before a national study said students needed more class time. The seven periods give students more chances to take classes, he added.

Pangborn said the program needed to be evaluated, since there has been a drop in the number of students taking seven classes. Also, because class time is shorter, the high schools no longer participate in the Detroit Science Fair because of the shortage of classroom time.

Pangborn said the system's use of county intermediate school district computers made no sense, given the system's computer expertise. In addition, she said the high school attendance program was woefully inadequate, relating experiences she had with her son.

"We have a lot of flaws," she concluded. "We need help there."

Gandelot said the attendance program was not very good, but the board was spending money to improve it in the coming year.

"With the advent of smaller computers, better software and better technology, we are going to get a handle on the attendance program," he added.

Responding to a question about policy inhibiting teacher productivity, Pangborn said that teachers, over the past 15 years, have not had input into programs until after the curriculum has been set.

"I see some positive things happening with Dr. Whritner with the five-year plan and his statements he's made to the teachers about including them on curriculum studies," she said. "This is the first time we've had this going on in the last 15 years."

Gandelot retorted by saying the district has made an effort to get more teachers involved in the curriculum development process, which he said he thought was a wise thing to do.

"But to say that teachers have not been involved in curriculum development for the last 15 years is simply not true," he added.

Responding to a question directed at both candidates, Pangborn said she thought there should be limits on the amount of time a trustee may serve on the board.

"I believe you need to get new blood (and) new ideas. When there is a time limit, it stops any intimidation of most people who are afraid to go to run for an office," she said. "When there is more turnover, I think you get more community support and more people active in school affairs."

Gandelot — who served two terms already — disagreed, saying very few offices held limits on terms of service.

"I believe what the people in this community have to look at is the experience of the people running for office," he continued. "If a person is running for three terms or four terms and doing a good job, has the knowledge and has the dedication and the desire to do that job, I don't see any reason why that person shouldn't continue doing it. That's the reason I'm running."

Gandelot later had a chance to rebut Pangborn's charges of misplaced priorities by the board. After she had answered a question directed to her about misplaced priorities, Gandelot, in his two-minute response, said he took "very strong exception" to the charge.

"Anyone who looks at the priorities and the philosophy statement and the goals and objectives drawn up by the board of education knows that the number-one goal of this school system is to educate children," he said.

"I also take strong exception to the allegation we have overcrowded classrooms," he continued. "When I ran for the Board of Education for the first time in 1978, the chances were one in four that if you had a student in grades K-5, then your student was in a classroom that had in excess of 28 students."

"This year, in 1986, there... is virtually no chance you will have a student in a classroom of 27 or 28 in the elementary schools," he concluded.

The candidates agreed the system's Community Education program was excellent, but disagreed on detail. Pangborn said she wasn't sure the program needed to be housed at Barnes, because it was just as good when offered in other buildings. Gandelot said the use of Barnes for community education had helped increase enrollment in the program.

In the area of substance abuse, Pangborn proposed education of students in middle school, before they get to the high schools.

She decried the system's work in the area, saying that the system is "two years late" in the game because of its bungling of the hiring of Gail Erickson.

Erickson was hired as a social worker for the high school and began a number of excellent programs there, but she didn't hold a master's degree in social work, as required by the job description. The district lost the matter in arbitration with the Grosse Pointe Education Association and reassigned Erickson as substance abuse coordinator for the system.

"We have been very slow in keeping up with the growth of substance abuse problems," she added. "I'm very glad to see we're finally recognizing it for the problem it is and I wish we had better emphasis in the middle schools before we get to the high schools."

Gandelot, who had been involved in getting training sessions for teachers about substance abuse, said the system is putting together a master plan on substance abuse for the school system. He said he hoped the plan would be ready for board review and action by the fall.

"I think the major problem right now is educating parents and the teaching staff to recognize indications of substance abuse," he added. "If I learned anything in my training, that's the one thing I've learned: to pick up the indications of substance abuse."

The two agreed on the need for the system to add a weighted grade point average and to reopen contacts with colleges to make sure they know the kind of educational product the schools turn out.

"I'm running for trustee of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education," he said. "The key element of that is trust. That means being upfront, respecting people, speaking my mind clearly and openly and not being afraid of having my name associated with a stand and to do it openly and publicly."

Pangborn ended by saying this was a time for the change on the board, in its policies and spending habits. "I believe we need a change and I hope you do, too," she concluded.

got a big investment in your home, you should be willing to put up that extra bit of cash.

Also in the city is an example of what Luedtke calls an attractive, well planned sub-dividing of an old estate; Dodge Place. It's carefully laid out, so homes have large lots and there is a sense of privacy, he says.

On the way up Lakeshore into the Farms, Luedtke points to the beauty of the lake. The simplicity of plantings along the shore complements the beauty of the lake. Nothing, he says, can compete with the lake, so why try?

Also along Lakeshore is another old estate subdivision; Windemere Place. Luedtke says that the improvements to be made on the site, being worked on by landscape architect and his friend John Grissim, should make some big improvements on the site.

Farther up Lakeshore, another Grissim project comes up; the Shores entrance sign. While the sign and landscaping are well-planned, Luedtke points out again there is a certain elegance to the simplicity of the lakeshore. The sign is a higher density development along a low-density area, but all in all, is a well designed group, he adds.

Farther up Lakeshore — at Oxford — is a beautification project that Luedtke calls a good beginning. The gatehouse, which two years ago was split and collapsing, has been realigned. But, although the side facing Lakeshore looks good, a trip behind the structure shows some weeds growing from the roof and a slate tile or two missing.

An example of simplicity of development and improvements along Lakeshore comes from the clean, straight look of the Vernier-Lakeshore landscaping, Luedtke says. The simplicity doesn't detract from the beauty of the surrounding area, he adds.

The next stop is the Woods' northend Mack shopping district, which draws good reviews from Luedtke. The city's master storefront plan's adherents, including Mr. C's Deli, have done a lot to add an attractive element to the shopping district.

The tree plantings and lawns along the strip in the lower couple of blocks are also very nice, he adds.

Farther down Mack comes a parking lot that could use some plantings or landscaping to somehow lessen the drabness of asphalt, Luedtke says. But, since parking has always been at a premium along Mack, things added to the lot may not be the best answer. The area might consider some sidewalk development to break up the large expanse of concrete.

Heading into residential neighborhoods, Luedtke comes across another CDBG project that he thinks is great; landscaped traffic islands in the Woods.

The city should be complimented for its work on the spots — which normally are neglected — that include perennial plantings and evergreens to add color year around, he says.

Also in the residential neighborhoods, Luedtke illustrates a couple of his pet peeves; black plastic edging around trees that's been pushed an inch or two above the lawn surface and bushes that have been carved into geometric shapes.

While the Mack-Moross beautification work isn't new, Luedtke says it's important for another reason; three cities and a private institution had to work together to get the work done.

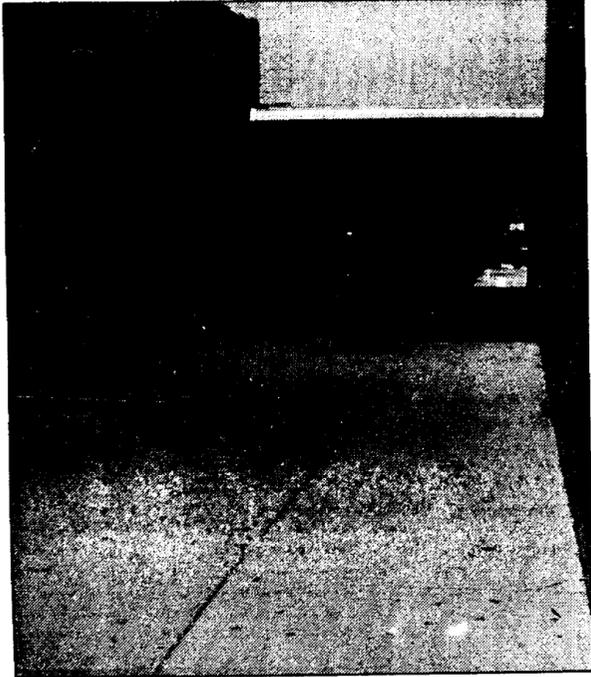

And businesses on the Detroit side of Mack across from the Farms draw some good comments from Luedtke for their storefront work and tree plantings. The businesses have helped continue the theme of the intersection beautification by doing work to their buildings, he adds.

The Farms needs some serious help for its Mack businesses, Luedtke says. A master plan for storefronts should be developed and implemented soon, because the emerging development is becoming a cacophony of architectural styles and treatments, he says.

The storefronts pick right up in the City, he adds.

The big showcase of Mack has to be down in the Park, in the Callaghan's in the Park block, Luedtke says.

The improvements to the businesses and their linking by the

The major pedestrian walkway to the Farms' Kercheval shopping district is barren, bleak and uninviting. It could use some landscaping or furniture, planner Gerald Luedtke says, and at the least, there should be a new bike rack.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of April was at elevation 576.21 feet or 54 inches above chart datum. This was about the same as one year ago, and the April monthly mean of 576.22 feet was 33 inches above its long term average for April. The Great Lakes forecast shows that Lake St. Clair is expected to be 57 inches above chart datum or at elevation 576.44 feet at the end of May.

Looking for Grosse Pointe's beauty . . .

block sets him off. Cul-de-sacs should be installed for a certain purpose and only after a study of traffic flow in the area, Luedtke says. When you have a city of streets laid out in a grid fashion, closing off one end of that grid can mean problems throughout.

Urban planner Gerald Luedtke, who gave us his personal opinion about beauty in the Pointes, kneels in his backyard with some of his own major renovation and landscape work.

Pet peeves

Gerald Luedtke has some pet peeves; things he doesn't like to see in Grosse Pointe or anywhere, for that matter.

- Overpacked subdivisions on old estates. When the old homes go down, developers sometimes try to pack in every house possible, making for a cluttered subdivision, he says.

- Municipal art. "Hagar and Garfield are fun, but where's the serious civic art?" he asks. There needs to be some more examples of serious art, like the sculpture that stands in front of the Central Library.

- Indoor-outdoor carpet on porches. "Carpeting belongs inside, concrete belongs outside," he says.

- Plastic edging to keep lawns out of landscaping. It gets ugly after a couple of years when frost forces it inches above turf level, he says. Use anything else; bricks, rocks or an edging tool.

- Merchants who don't maintain the lawns and shrubs in front of their businesses (or behind their businesses). Enough said about that.

- Boxed bushes. People sometimes have an urge to trim their bushes into strictly geometric shapes, Luedtke says. Some trimming is necessary, but let the bush have a more natural look.

Traffic is also the subject as Luedtke heads down Cadieux into the Village.

There appears to be an inordinate amount of through traffic in the Pointes, Luedtke says. This isn't traffic that is heading to or from a location in the community; it's passing through.

That amount of traffic can have a blighted effect in the community, he adds. It destroys the tranquility of an area. The cities should look into development of a plan for better traffic flow around the community, he adds.

Once in the Village, Luedtke points to another good project that could use some improvements to make it better.

The sidewalk treatment and landscaping along St. Clair across from Jacobson's is delightful, Luedtke says. But add some more street vendors, a piece of furniture or two and a sidewalk cafe, and you've got a real winner, he adds.

Along the residential streets in the City, he points to examples of a problem that faces all the cities; deteriorating homes in otherwise well-maintained blocks. Cities may have to begin "mini-urban renewal projects" to eliminate some of those homes, he says, adding that in some western suburbs, those homes would be razed and a townhouse would sprout in no time.

Labor first

FCC cracks down on CB illegal linear amplifiers

The Federal Communications Commission has announced that it plans to increase its efforts to combat the illegal sale and use of linear amplifiers used to boost citizens band (CB) transmitter power. The FCC will concentrate on strongly enforcing rules regarding the marketing and use of "linears."

Last summer, the Field Operations Bureau conducted a study of cases reported to local FCC offices concerning CB interference to home electronic entertainment equipment. It was found that 57 percent of those cases could be attributed to overpowered CB stations . . . 91 percent involved linear amplifiers.

The FCC is stepping up several activities to decrease these numbers. All FOB offices will take an active interest in locating and closing down stations using linear amplifiers and other illegal transmitters. Field personnel will attempt to determine the sources of any linears found during the inspections in order to locate major manufacturers and distributors. These violators will be targeted for fines and criminal prosecution, if necessary. A related activity will be rigorous enforcement of FCC regulations upon unscrupulous dealers and service technicians who modify or repair modified equipment.

Anyone who has information concerning the illegal manufacture, marketing or use of CB linear amplifiers is encouraged to telephone Constance Rodgers, Field Public Service Specialist, Detroit District Office, at 226-3688, during the hours of 8:15 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

Ecology Center's drop-off center is located at 2050 South Industrial, at the State Street exit from I-94. It is open Fridays and Saturdays between 9:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. It accepts bundled newspaper, glass sorted by color, crushed tin cans, bundled corrugated cardboard, used motor oil and aluminums of all kinds.

In the other direction, Marietta Crabtree, a school board member in the Utica Community Schools, has operated a drop-off center in Shelby Township for 15 years. Shelby-Utica Recycling Center is located behind Frank's Nursery on Van Dyke just north of 21 Mile Road.

The center accepts newspaper, glass jars and bottles, aluminum doors and siding and TV dinner trays. It is open Saturday mornings.

Glass and aluminum collections at drop-off centers are down since passage of the bottle bill, "but you have to remember that the recycling is actually up," Crabtree said. She said there is still a hard core of interested recyclers, even though the issue is no longer trendy.

"There's a segment of the population who have environmental awareness and concern and feel a responsibility to future generations," she said.

ULS phones vandalized

University Liggett School was broken into last weekend and the computerized phone system was vandalized, causing an estimated $500 in damage.

According to Grosse Pointe Woods police, a security guard discovered an open door and later found the damage to the system May 31.

The culprit made his way through the basement to the small computer room. A circuit breaker was turned off and a computer unplugged before wires were torn out of the equipment panel board.

Repairs were made on the equipment.

Police are investigating.

Going for the gold

GPYC's Gabriel is tops in the competitive kitchen

By Elsa Frohman

Jeffrey Gabriel, executive chef at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, has been cooking on the run lately. But that's not to say he has been cooking fast food.

During the month of May, Gabriel took honors in cooking competitions in Singapore and Chicago. In April, he took Best of Show here in Detroit at Cobo Hall. He is a former and future member of the United States Culinary Olympics Team.

"At first," Gabriel said, "the point to competing is the medals. It's very exciting. But after a while, it's the professional development and the learning experiences. When you compete against other chefs, it forces you to do your best and it forces you to learn new ideas. The medal is not that important."

The Culinary Olympics are put on by the World Association of Chefs and the International Chef's Association. They are held once every four years, in the same year as the regular Olympics, always in Frankfurt, Germany.

Cobo Hall in April was the first half of the try-outs for the Olympic Team under the auspices of the Hospitality Industry Culinary Arts Salon.

The competition at Cobo Hall was primarily for the visual aspects of the food presented.

"In a cold food competition, the food is both cold and hot, but the hot food is displayed cold," Gabriel explained. However, even though the food is not eaten, it has to be genuine. "They look to see that it has been prepared properly. You can't use a fake sauce. They look for new ways of preparing dishes and new ideas and for color contrast and textures and flavors."

Gabriel entered three buffet platters for eight people each. Included were seafood platters and a wild game platter. With Best of Show, first place in the Cold Food category and a berth at the second half of the try-outs planned for Chicago, Gabriel moved on to competition in Singapore.

The Singapore contest was an international competition, though not directly a part of the Olympics. Gabriel was a member of a United States alumni team, consisting of chefs who had previously competed for the United States in the Olympics.

"In Singapore, they tasted all the food," Gabriel said. "It's getting much harder."

The point in these competitions is to come up with a dish that not only tastes good — it's got to look good too.

"You have to have a culinary artistic ability. I'm no sculptor, but I try to be artistic with food," he said. "If you do it properly, the end result will be beautiful."

In Singapore, Gabriel re-presented two of the platters he had developed for the competition at Cobo Hall — with improvements. It was an eight-day competition, with most of every day spent in the kitchen.

"The majority of it was work," Gabriel said. "I would go to market every morning and buy my food fresh. I would look for fresh produce and seafood and herbs."

The markets of Singapore were disappointing, Gabriel said.

"There were a lot of things I couldn't get there," he said. "There were things I wished I had brought."

While seafood and many Oriental specialties were plentiful at the market, Gabriel found the quality of the produce poor.

"The green vegetables aren't very green there," he said. "In Singapore, they don't grow their own produce. It's all shipped in. But the seafood was excellent. A lot of it was still jumping around."

Outside of the competition itself, Gabriel says he learned a lot working with the Chinese cooks in the hotel kitchens.

"I ate at the best Chinese restaurant in Singapore," he said. "It was amazing. Labor is so cheap that every restaurant has its own artist. They brought a giant white sweet potato-sculpture of a dragon to the table. I was impressed, then I saw that all the tables had sculptures and they weren't all the same."

Gabriel enjoyed eating as well as cooking while he was in Singapore.

"The food is excellent — Indonesian with Chinese. It's a bit on the hot side, but it's excellent," he said.

Singapore was a triumph for both Gabriel and the team. Gabriel was awarded an individual gold medal for his cold platters, and the team won a gold medal for its effort. The United States tied with Canada for first place in the competition.

The same day Gabriel returned from Singapore, he was off to Chicago for the second half of the Olympic tryouts. It was the toughest competition, yet.

"In Chicago we were given a surprise box," Gabriel said. The box contains basic and specialty ingredients that the chef doesn't get to see until the beginning of competition. He then has five hours to prepare a four course meal for 30 people. Five portions go to the judges and 25 go to the people attending the competition. It is a high pressure contest. The chefs work behind a glass wall and are graded on how they conduct themselves in the kitchen as well as how good the food they cook tastes and looks.

"The box had four main meats in it," Gabriel said. "There was lamb, duck, swordfish and tilefish. I'd never worked with tilefish before."

Gabriel had the option of sending one of the meats back. Everything else in the box had to be used.

"I sent the lamb back," Gabriel said. "I felt it was an expensive cut. The duckling was cheaper. I wanted to show them that I could make an elegant dish inexpensively."

The four courses were to be soup, seafood, salad and an entree. Gabriel opened with a red bell pepper soup with duck stock. He then made a watercress mousse with the tailfish and piped it onto the swordfish and gently steamed the combo. It was served with dill cream and a fresh zucchini garnish.

The salad was based on Boston lettuce and asparagus, cucumbers and a variety of other fresh vegetables in shallot vinaigrette dressing.

The entree was "Breast of Duckling, New Garden Style." Gabriel boned the ducklings and made the leg meat into a mousse that he stuffed into the breast with sauteed fresh baby corn, mushrooms, carrots and other vegetables for a garden stuffing. The breast was then wrapped in the skin for cooking. The duckling was served with a potato and leek cake and a vegetable medley.

"I lost some points because I was five minutes late," Gabriel said. "But I still scored high enough to be in the gold and to make the team. They made me captain of the regional team."

The regional team will compete alongside the regular team in Frankfurt in 1988. It acts as a backup team.

"We're all one team. We have to help one another," Gabriel said.

In Germany, the team will be preparing 200 portions of food for competition. One hundred will be seafood and 100 will be meat.

"They judge you not only on looks and taste but on how you work in the kitchen," he said.

The team will be preparing for Frankfurt for the next two years. There will be several non-Olympic international competitions in the meantime. The U.S. team generally makes a very good showing at the Olympics. In the last competition, the United States finished second, behind Canada.

Gabriel says the competitions have improved his work as chef at GPYC.

Summer Music Festival to be light and lively

The 29th Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival will put on a new face this year with a lighter musical format and an attractive new ticket package. At a reception at the home of George and Marge Slezak, Johanna Gilbert, 1986 festival chairperson, announced this year's schedule, which will have an international festival of arts flavor.

Instrumental, lyrical and dance offerings will range from West Indies steel drum music, to Russian folk, to Dixieland jazz and renditions from popular songwriters and showtunes.

The classics will be represented in the person of James Tocco, noted concert pianist, and selected works from the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

The festival will begin its Monday evening concerts at the War Memorial on June 23 with an electrifying show of style and dance from Hugh Borde's Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band. Back by popular demand, this lively group was one of the favorites at last year's festival.

The season will continue on June 30 with the allure of the Balalaika Orchestra and Dancers, one of the few groups of its kind outside of Russia. After a break for the July 4 holiday, the Michigan Opera Theatre Quarter will perform on July 14, with a light-hearted look at operetta and a tribute to songwriter, Jerome Kern.

The vocal and instrumental versatility of the New Reformation Dixieland Jazz Band will impress the audience on July 21, when these seven scamps start their toe-tapping and hand-clapping routine.

On July 28, the Summer Music Festival will move into the Fries Auditorium for the only scheduled indoor performance. James Tocco, an internationally acclaimed pianist, whose talents have their

Davies gets Lake Scholarship

Melinda Davies of Grosse Pointe Woods, a member of the June graduating class of Grosse Pointe North High School, is this year's recipient of the annual John Lake Scholarship, named to honor the late executive director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

After transferring from a Wisconsin high school to North for her senior year, Melinda is ranked sixth in a graduating class of 348 students. Her honor point average at the end of her junior year was 3.9.

This fall she will be a student of the Honors College of the University of Michigan, with emphasis at the outset on the liberal arts. Law and politics currently have the most appeal for her as later specialty fields.

Melinda's extracurricular high school activities have included forensics, French Club, yearbook and literary magazine staff, tennis, anti-vandalism and SADD groups and the Grosse Pointe North commencement committee.

"Never in my experience has a student come in from another school and adjusted as well as Melinda and been as well accepted as she has been. She has performed here in a way commensurate with her performance at her previous school. She was very well recommended," said Geraldine Bertovick, Melinda's counselor this year.

The John Lake Scholarship is given annually as a tuition grant to a worthy graduate of Grosse Pointe North or Grosse Pointe

Melinda Davies

South High Schools, alternating between the two. Over several years the fund has been augmented through a series of benefits held at the War Memorial, the most recent being a spring recital by pianist Fedora Horowitz.

Louise TeWait, who chairs the John Lake Scholarship planning committee, presented the prize to Melinda at North's Awards Assembly on May 19.

Local gardens inspire a flood of purple prose

During the past two weeks in Grosse Pointe, "The Color Purple" has been more than a film title. With violets, wisteria, rhododendrons, azaleas, lilacs and iris running the gamut of shades of purple and lavender in all directions, the lovely color has been a dominant note in the floral display all around us.

The lilacs just inside the gate at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House and the magnificent wisteria which towers over the house at the corner of Yorkshire and Jefferson have been very special examples.

Wisteria comes in other colors too. The white wisteria trees at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial always produce a magnificent display and this spring has been no exception. They have attracted many people who have come to admire them, camera in hand, and several artists have been observed immortalizing the hanging blossoms with pastel or watercolor.

And then there was the phone call from a Grosse Pointe business executive who called the Garden Center from a downtown barber-shop to settle an argument among the clients who were not sure what the wisteria trees really were.

The Trial Gardens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial which are maintained by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center and its affiliated garden clubs, and the adjoining hillside and perennial gardens are already showing promise of a beautiful summer. Exciting plans are being made by the Trowel and Error Garden Club for the planting of a new wildflower garden near by. Hundreds of people come every year to enjoy the Trial Gardens which, this year, have as their theme, "A Palette of Color" with each plot displaying a different hue to complete the color wheel.

When you go to the War Memorial to see the lovely exhibit of floral paintings in the Art Gallery which is one of the attractions offered by this year's Garden Club Council Garden Tour on June 20, 21 and 22, be sure to visit the Trial Gardens too. The paintings are presented by the Grosse Pointe Artists' Association under the chairmanship of Corinne Dolega.

Tomorrow, Friday, June 6, is this year's date for the annual party given by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center for members, guests and prospective members. It is now too late to make reservations for the tea, but the display and sale of herbs and herbal concoctions from potpourri to wreaths organized for the Garden Center by the Grosse Pointe Unit of the Herb Society of America is rewarding in itself. The party is from 1 to 3 p.m. at the War Memorial. Dottie Westfall is chairman.

Thinking ahead to making potpourri in the fall might be a good idea. If you start now with violets, peonies and other scented flowers as they appear in your garden throughout the summer, dry the petals and store them in a large, wide-mouthed stoppered glass jar, by October you will have a bountiful supply of fragrant petals, including as many varieties of roses as you can collect, to mix with spices and oils to create your own personal potpourri.

Don't forget to mark your calendar for June 12 when the Men's Garden Club will host its Spring Horticulture Show at the Brownell School.

Question of the Week: What can you tell me about the care of lilacs?

Answer: Lilacs are one of the most rewarding shrubs to grow, but to flower properly they need full sun, well-drained soil and should be fed now, just after the blooms have faded. Lilacs will flower next spring on the wood that grows this year. Too much shade and root competition from other plants could cause a lack of bloom.

A near neutral soil is best. Many people save fireplace ashes and put them about the base of lilacs now. Or use a general garden fertilizer. Cutting of blooms after they fade prevents seed pod formation, which can take strength from the shrubs. To rejuvenate old shrubs prune out about one third of the old wood now. Watch for the telltale hollowing out of old wood caused by borers, a serious lilac problem.

Pruning out old wood may eliminate borer damage.

Did you know that the iris is the flower most often depicted in medieval tapestries competing with roses and lilies for this distinction. The iris, in the language of flowers, is the symbol of faith, wisdom, hope, eloquence, promise and power. It is also the flower symbol of France (Fleur-de-Lis). It is the astrological Herb of the Moon and the Japanese emblem of the warrior.

It was considered by the ancient Egyptians as a symbol of power and was placed on the forehead of the Sphinx. It has been depicted on the sceptors of kings for centuries because the three petals are symbolic of faith, wisdom and valor, and gets its name from iris, the Greek goddess of the multi-colored rainbow.

The Neighborhood Club will be the setting this year for the annual Rose Show presented by the Grosse Pointe Rose Society. This event is always spectacular and a must for anyone who loves roses, and that includes just about everyone. Admission is free and the dates are June 20 and 21. Rosarians will be on hand to answer questions and the show will be judged by accredited flower show judges.

Bonsai enthusiasts will be interested in the lectures and workshops offered on June 21 and 22 at the Campus Inn in Ann Arbor under the auspices of the Michigan Bonsai Society. Featured speaker will be the internationally renowned Bonsai teacher John Naka who will come from California. Representatives from the Grosse Pointe Bonsai group which is affiliated with the Garden Center will be Mary Alice Beyerly, JoAnne Bahr and Starr Hamman.

And of course you will be attending this year's Garden Club Council Garden Tour with a beautiful array of Grosse Pointe Gardens to visit rain or shine. Tickets and a brochure with a map are available at the Grosse Pointe Garden Center. All in all, its going to be a big weekend.

Local garden clubs plan activities for the coming weeks

Grosse Pointe Park Garden Club

The Monday, June 9, meeting of the Grosse Pointe Park Garden Club will be at the home of Mrs. Walter Levick, with Mrs. Richard Larwin assisting.

After the noon luncheon and business meeting there will be a tour of members' gardens.

The newly-elected officers for 1986-87 are Mrs. Herbert Mainwaring, president; Mrs. Robert C. Palmer and Mrs. David Crowe, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Walter Levick, recording secretary; Mrs. Hillaire Van Hollebeke, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Pierre Heftler, treasurer. Mrs. Frederick Schumann will continue to serve as parliamentarian.

Windmill Pointe Garden Club

The May meeting of Windmill Pointe Garden Club was held on May 7, at the home of Dorothy Guy, whose co-hostess for the day was Hanna Mammen.

Kevin Kimberly of Kimberly Flowers skillfully demonstrated the art of arranging a variety of forms, among which silk, cut spring flowers and an English garden proved most interesting.

Barbara Malley, president, conducted the business meeting where plans for a field trip to Golden Walsh Greenhouses in Pontiac were formed. Plans were finalized for the club's annual garden Party to be held this year at the home of Murray and Pauline Thomas.

Grosse Pointe Garden Center

The board of trustees of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center will hold its regular monthly meeting at 10 a.m. on Friday, June 13, in the Garden Center on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The agenda will include discussion and planning for early fall events to be held at the center.

Mrs. Arthur Blumenstock is president of the Garden Center, which is open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The phone number is 881-4594.

Deeplands Garden Club

On June 9, Garden Club members will picnic at the Farms. Pier as a final touch to a year of interesting meetings and activities.

Garden Club Council donates $6,000

The Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council announces for the second year that more than $6,000 has been allocated for beautification of Grosse Pointe.

This endeavor has been made possible from the proceeds of last year's Garden Tour. For the past 38 years, education, conservation and beautification have been the prime concerns of the council.

Targets of interest for this year will be: $4,000 to the Beautification Advisory Commission of Grosse Pointe Woods for Fairford Boulevard; $500 to Maire School; $300 to Pierce School; $500 to Brownell Jr. High; $700 for planting, fertilizing and maintenance of Lakeshore Drive. In addition to these allotments, a gift of $200 has been made for three trees to be planted on Lakeshore Drive.

It is only through the efforts of 20 garden clubs that comprise the Garden Club Council that the annual garden tours have been successful. The 1986 Garden Tour is set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 20, 21 and 22 from 1-5 p.m.

Tickets are $5 and can be purchased in advance at the following locations: Garden Center Room, Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Dr., 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday; Vintage Pointe, 16941 Kercheval; Grosse Pointe Florists, 174 Kerby Road or by calling either of the ticket chairmen, Mrs. Douglas Borden, 884-2775 or Mrs. Eberhard Mammen, 884-0966.

Gabriel is tops . . .

"I get a lot of my ideas for menus in competition. Most of the things we prepare in competition would be served in a restaurant. I have to do Gourmet Nights here and I get a lot of those ideas from competition."

If you've started to wonder about the "Jeffrey Gabriel Cookbook," it may be forthcoming.

"I'm giving it a lot of consideration," he said. "I'd like to do a Garde Manger book. That is, special cold hors d'oeuvres and cold presentations. But it's hard to find time."

Gabriel's favorite dishes are for game, especially birds. "I like working with game, especially feathered game," he said. "I'm a hunter. I enjoy getting out there close to nature."

For those wondering how it must be to be married to a chef, Gabriel doesn't compete with his wife in the kitchen.

"I very seldom cook at home. My wife is an excellent cook," he said. "She's Chinese, from Taiwan. I've learned a lot of Chinese cooking from her."

Being a super-chef does have its pitfalls, however. Gabriel's friends seem a bit intimidated when it comes to inviting him over for dinner.

"I don't get asked too often," he said. "It's a shame. I like just about any kind of food, and sometimes I'd like just some simple pork chops."

Satisfying meal uses 'veggies' for substance

Experts say medicine is not our hope for future health, but it is diet that will finally predict our destiny.

Vegetarian cooking is a step in the right direction, although it may not be the total ultimate solution. Even partially turning to vegetarian cooking is a step in the right direction in today's markets. This excellent meal is delicious. Learning to make crackers is a plus to the health minded chef. They are easy to make — and do not contain excess salt, hydrogenated fats and additives — just the natural goodness of whole grains.

The following recipes are from the low-cholesterol, low calorie, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

MENU:

- Vichyssoise
- Millet Crackers
- Grapes in Cottage Cheese Salad
- Ratatouille Supreme
- Peach Oatmeal Muffins

Vichyssoise

A luciously rich creamy soup, delightful served icy cold on a sweltering hot summer day.

- 2 Tbsp. margarine
 - 1/2 cups leeks (white part only) sliced
 - 1 medium onion, chopped
 - 6 cups vegetable broth
 - 4 medium potatoes, peeled and diced
 - 1/2 cup skim milk
 - 1/2 cup evaporated skim milk
 - Minced chives for garnish
- Melt margarine in large kettle. Add leeks and onions and saute until onion is transparent. (Do not let mixture become too brown.) Add potatoes and broth and cook, partially covered, for 40 minutes until the potatoes are tender. Cool.

Pour half the mixture into blender container and blend at high speed until mixture is pureed. Pour into a large bowl. Blend the other half of the mixture in blender, add to other portion of the mixture. Stir in skim milk and evaporated skim milk. Refrigerate and cool thoroughly.

Before serving process in blender at high speed for one minute. Serve to six garnished with fresh minced chives.

Calories per serving about 141. Cholesterol about 4 mgs. CARROT VICHYSOISE: Substitute six large carrots, peel ed and diced for the potatoes in the above recipe. Cook the carrots in a small amount of water until very tender. Drain carrots, and proceed as above, adding 1/8 teaspoon of garlic powder and 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg. Serve hot or cold with nutmeg garnish.

Calories per serving about 99. Cholesterol about 4 mgs.

Millet Crackers

- 1 cake or 1 Tbsp. dried yeast
 - 1/2 cup lukewarm potato water
 - 1/2 cup boiling water
 - 1 cup dried fruits, cut fine
 - 1 cup vegetable oil
 - 3 cups millet flour
 - 1 cup wholewheat flour (about)
 - 3 Tbsp. soy flour
- Soften yeast in lukewarm liquid. Pour boiling water over fruit. Let stand 15 minutes. Combine yeast and fruit mixtures. Stir in oil and flours. If necessary, add more wholewheat flour to make a stiff dough. Roll out thin on floured pastry board. Cut into squares. Arrange on oiled cookie sheet. Let stand for 15 minutes, then bake in preheated 250 degree oven for about 30 minutes. Makes four dozen crackers.

Calories per cracker about 82. Cholesterol 0.

Grapes in Cottage Cheese

- 1 cup low fat cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup skim milk
- 1/2 cup low-fat yogurt
- 1/2 cup salad dressing
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 4 Tbsp. lemon juice
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 Tbsp. plain gelatin
- 1 cup seedless grapes, halved
- 1 cup dark grapes, halved

In blender combine cottage cheese, skim milk, yogurt, salad dressing, salt and lemon juice; blend until smooth.

Sprinkle gelatin over water and heat gently, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved. Add to blender and mix. Pour into a bowl and chill.

When cottage cheese mixture begins to thicken, add grapes and pour the mixture into a five-cup mold or divide between individual molds. Chill thoroughly. To unmold, loosen edges, set in warm water briefly, then reverse on a plate. Garnish with additional grapes. Makes seven servings.

Calories per serving about 116. Cholesterol about 2 mgs.

Ratatouille Supreme

- This is a supremely tasty vegetarian dish, subtly flavored, yet for vegetables very robust.
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup safflower oil
- 1/2 tsp. marjoram
- 1/2 tsp. oregano
- 1/4 tsp. dill weed
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- Dash Tabasco sauce
- 2 pkgs. (10 ounces each) frozen sliced yellow squash, partially thawed
- 1 medium eggplant, peeled and cubed

- 1 cup thinly sliced Bermuda onion
- 4 medium firm-ripe tomatoes, peeled and sliced
- 2 green peppers cut into slivers
- Dash Worcestershire sauce

Thoroughly mix garlic, oil and seasonings. Let stand to blend flavors while preparing vegetables. Thoroughly oil 2 1/2 to 3-quart casserole. Layer vegetables in casserole, beginning and ending with squash. Sprinkle each vegetable layer with seasoning mixture before adding another layer. Cover, bake in preheated 350 degree oven for one hour. Uncover, sprinkle on some freshly cracked pepper, and bake 15 minutes. Serve either hot or cold. Makes six servings.

Calories about 156 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

Peach Oatmeal Muffins

Fruit is a natural food and so are warm breads. Here is a wonderful combination that is loaded with healthful nutrition.

- 1 can (16 ounces) sliced peaches
- 2 cups whole wheat flour
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 3 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. baking soda
- 1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
- 1 cup quick or old-fashioned oats
- 1/2 cup Egg Beaters, well beaten
- 1 cup skim milk
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil

Drain peaches and cut into small pieces. Set aside. In large mixing bowl, stir together flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, baking soda, cinnamon and nutmeg. Stir in oats and peaches. Stir to coat peaches.

Stir together well beaten egg substitute, skim milk and oil. Add to flour mixture, stirring just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill greased muffin tins approximately 3/4 full with batter. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 35 minutes or until done. Cool in pan five minutes. Remove to wire rack or serve immediately. Makes 12 large muffins.

Calories about 208 per muffin. Cholesterol 0.

Peggy O'Connor

Sorry, Steven, not this time . . .

It's spring sports awards time, that long-awaited point in the season in which nobody escapes, er, is left out of my completely irreverent, occasionally irrelevant annual awards presentation. Except maybe Steven Spielberg, who, while he is an awfully good sport, isn't going to get any awards this time, either.

The Grin and Bear It Award: To South High senior soccer player Claire Busse, for doing just that despite playing in an unfamiliar position this season.

The Nanook of the North Award: To 6-year-old Jim Wood, brother of South athletes Rob and Kim Wood. Jimmy showed up at South's regional semifinal soccer game dressed in his snowsuit and was a lot more comfortable in the wind and rain than the rest of those in attendance. (We'll let Jim's mom, Sharon Wood, share the honors for supplying the suit.)

The 35-5 Award: This one's for North High's baseball team, which, despite winning 21 ballgames this spring, failed to capture the Bi-County League championship for the first time in eight seasons. The Norsemen also didn't survive pre-district competition, leaving some fickle fans wailing the familiar "what-have-you-done-for-me-lately" tune . . . which North doesn't deserve.

The Vanna White Award: To the tracksters at the recent regionals at South who managed, despite the heat of the day — not to mention the competition — to keep their hair looking good.

The Better-Late-Than-Never Award: To the Michigan high school hockey powers-that-be, who released their 1985-86 All-State team during the second-last week in May. Which probably didn't bother South High goalie Bill Tecos — a first team member — one little bit.

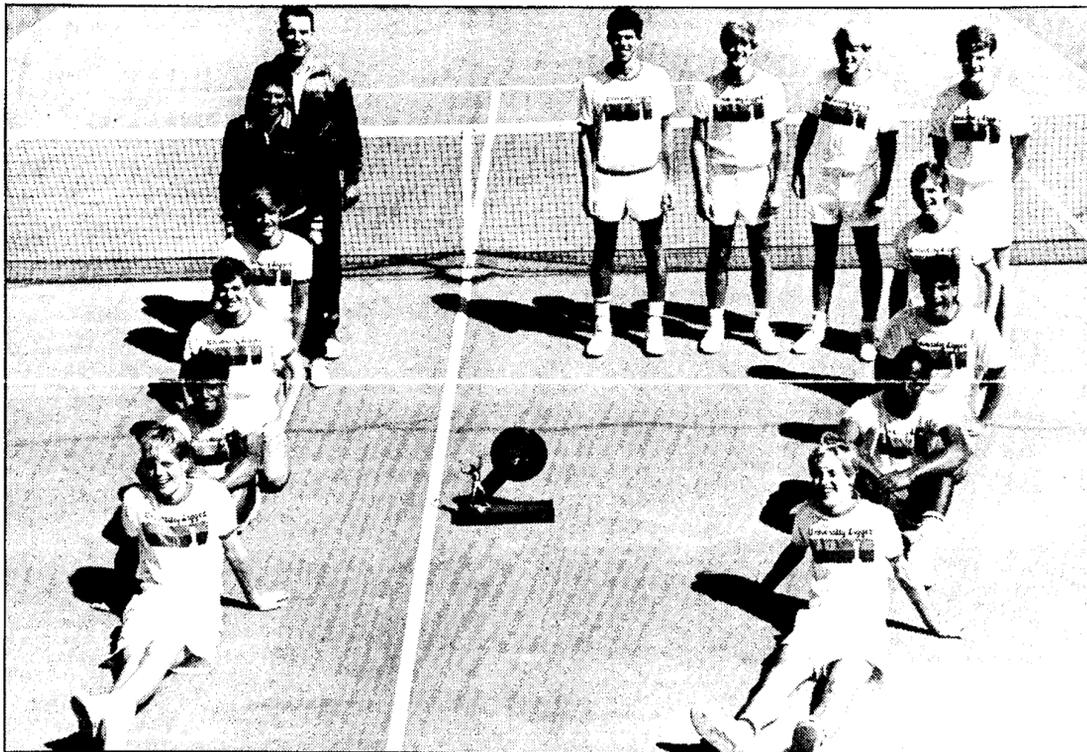

The Ansel Adams Heir-Apparent Award: To Ed Langs, who spent all spring charging up and down the sidelines at South, North and ULS soccer games, snapping his camera for all he was worth and letting the G.P. News use some of the nicest sports photos seen in these parts for some time. Langs confesses to more than a passing interest in soccer, especially South soccer — daughter June just finished her All-State career there — but he also promises to try to continue his fine photojournalistic efforts after June's graduation.

Langs and G.P. News photographer Peter Salinas were running neck-and-neck for this honor until last Saturday, when Salinas, covering the baseball districts at North High, dropped his camera and ended up with a broken filter, a two-base error and no award. Sorry, Peter.

The Worked Well Under Pressure Award: The student journalists at South and North — namely Jennifer McSorley, Stephen Ebner, Josh Abbott, Mark Moore and Bill Hoover — get this one for their invaluable contributions to the News' sports section. Another great job, gang. Thanks.

The Guido Regelbrugge Golden Throat Award: This one goes to the coach who manages to come up with the most fascinating, entertaining, informative and extensive answers to just one question, thereby making my job a piece of cake. This season's winner is South softball coach John Bruce. To say that Bruce loves to get excited . . .

Champs once more . . .

. . . and spelling out the fact that last weekend's Class C-D state championship victory over Detroit Country Day School marked the 17th time in 21 years that University Liggett School has won a state title are members of the ULS Knights: (top to bottom, left) head coach Bob Wood, assistant coach Chuck Wright, Mike Niccolini, David Barlow, Ashu Nautiyal and Frank Karabetos; (top to bottom, right) Kirk Haggarty, Mike Fozo, Rob Glancy, John Birgbauer, Jeff Buhl, Tony Malcoun, Marc Hunt and Gordie Maitland. League merger will benefit North, AD says

By Peggy O'Connor

A long-time dream of area coaches and athletic directors is about to be realized.

The 10-team Macomb Athletic Conference and the seven-team Bi-County League will merge in the fall of 1987, forming the Macomb Area Conference (MAC) and providing a much-needed solution to the problem of declining school enrollment and its effect on athletics.

Committees comprised of athletic directors and principals from the schools involved — Clintondale, Roseville Brablec, North High, L'Anse Creuse, Lakeview, South Lake and Lake Shore from the Bi-County and Sterling Heights, Sterling Heights Stevenson, Warren Woods Tower, Utica Ford, Romeo, Utica, Warren Cousino, Fraser, Utica Eisenhower and Chippewa Valley in the MAC — are hard at work on various committees, determining the particulars of the merger.

North High principal Dr. John Kastran and athletic administrator Thomas Gauerke are on the constitutional and budget and finance committees, respectively. Gauerke says that representatives from each school involved have been encouraged to participate in the planning stages of this much-anticipated merger.

"We think this is a great idea because it allows schools which are changing in size because of changing enrollments to have greater flexibility within their athletic conference," Gauerke says.

In the case of contact sports, the question of school size is crucial. "In athletics, numbers have a great effect on the level of competition. We are very concerned about providing safe sports programs . . . and that means that we don't want to put one team on the field against a team which has three times the number of students to draw from," Gauerke explains.

According to Gauerke, a similar merger was devised by a group of Grand Rapids-area schools a few years ago in response to declining school enrollment in Kent and Ottawa counties. The OK Conference is made up of 32 teams and has served as sort of a model for the proposed MAC, Gauerke says. The OK Conference also serves more than just athletics, he adds.

"We'd like to try to emulate what they've done and band together to do things in other areas besides athletics: things like band days, debates and art festivals," Gauerke says. "One of the people we talked to up there said, 'can you imagine 17 schools getting together and taking over a local mall with their art festival?'"

"I think it has terrific possibilities." The merger comes at a time when projected enrollment for the schools involved shows a marked difference in numbers. For example, the 1986-87 enrollment at South Lake is expected to be around 640, while at Clintondale and North, the figure is closer to 1,000. That disparity is expected to increase by 1990, when projections have South Lake at around 425 students, with North more than twice that size at 1,000 students, Gauerke says.

"Over the long haul, a 2,000-student school will definitely create a problem for say, an 800-student school, sports-wise. You have a serious problem with safety in a case like that . . . and safety of our

Boating

Safe Boating Week

"Be Smart. Take a Boating Course" is the theme for national Safe Boating Week, June 1-7. Safe Boating Week is one of the major activities sponsored by the National Safe Boating Council, an umbrella organization of over 40 national groups such as the American Red Cross, Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts of America, the United States Power Squadrons, the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, the Canadian Power Squadrons, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the National Ocean Survey, the National Park Service, the National Safety Council, and more.

In Michigan, the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and the United States Power Squadrons (USPS) shoulder the lion's share of responsibility for public boating education — most of it through free or nominally-priced public boating classes held in the fall and winter at local schools.

Safe boating week is being promoted in 1986 with the help of cartoon character Popeye as spokesman for safe boating messages. Robert A. Green, chairman of the National Safe Boating Week committee, Rear Commander of USPS and chairman of the national safety committee for the USPS, said, "This year, interest and response from local groups is outstanding; the greatest in the history of safe boating week."

The National Safe Boating Council's $30,000 budget was used to print promotional materials — most of them featuring Popeye cartoons — and mail them to local groups. "Local organizations are urged to come up with programs on safe boating suitable for their areas . . . to take the material and run with it," Green said.

"We printed 30,000 bumper stickers, posters and cards. We've run out," he added. "Our action manual has been mailed to 7,800 people in the U.S., Canada, Australia, and New Zealand."

Green credits the unlimited use of Popeye cartoons, courtesy of King Features Syndicate, as a major promotional tool in the safe boating campaign. "Popeye appeals to children and adults. We have lots of camera-ready graphic materials and artwork at our disposal," he said. Comic strips, brochures, bumper stickers, business cards, posters, radio and TV spots, and booklets zero in on specific boating safety tips such as: using life jackets, the dangers of an overloaded boat, the proper choice and placement of outboard motors, dangers of drinking while operating a boat, and the 1986 theme: boating education.

Fran Cooper, staff officer for public affairs for Division 12 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary said his group has planned some local events especially for safe boating week. A summer class in basic skills and seamanship is being offered beginning June 23 at Seaholm High School in Birmingham. Cost is for materials only. For more information, call 545-8138. Auxiliary and USPS courses are generally only offered during non-boating seasons, fall and winter. "But we've planned this one during boating season, especially because of this year's safe boating week theme," Cooper said.

The Auxiliary also offers a one-session class for groups of grade school children called "Water and Kids," concerning all types of water safety precautions and procedures. It's being given for a Troy Brownie troop during the week, but any group can request the class by calling 348-6455.

U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary personnel are offering extra Courtesy Marine Examinations (CME's) for boaters in several locations this week: June 5 and 6 at Metro Beach Metropark; June 7 at the South River Road launch in Mount Clemens and the Nine Mile ramp and the Ten Mile ramp in St. Clair Shores. An auxiliary examiner will be available at these locations all day. CME's are free and confidential safety checks designed to help boaters.

If your boat passes, you'll receive a CME decal for your windshield. If your boat fails, you'll receive suggestions for bringing it up to safety standards recommended by the Auxiliary. No tickets or citations are issued. For information about future dates and places for CME's, Call 284-3558.

For information about a boating course near you call 800-336-B-O-A-T.

Registration

Tryouts for boys and girls in the under 10 division born in 1977 and 1978 will be held from noon to 2 p.m. Sunday, June 8. Tryouts for under 12 (birth years of 1975 and 1976) will be held from noon to 1 p.m. and for under 14 (1973 and 1974) from 1 to 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 15. A registration table will be set up at the same time for ALL soccer registration for fall travel and house leagues (1973 through 1980 birth years).

New players should remember to bring a copy of their birth certificate. All players must bring a check for $35 and one photograph of themselves in order to register.

League merger . . .

athletes is a primary concern." Every sport at North will participate in the MAC merger, with the exception of hockey. Because so few schools in the area offer ice hockey, North will remain in the Michigan Metro League, as it has the three previous seasons, in order to have enough league competition.

Decisions about possible divisional alignment within the MAC have not been made since committees are just beginning their work. A possibility of the existence of a petitioning system wherein teams might change divisions based upon their enrollment changes also exists and is being studied by the constitutional committee, according to Gauerke.

North coaches have been very receptive to the idea of the merger, Gauerke says. "I haven't heard a negative thing from any one of our coaches. We're all looking forward to it."

That may be because one benefit of the merger should be an increase in the quality of competition across the board. While North has traditionally been strong in swimming and tennis, the Bi-County has not offered much in the way of competition in those two sports. That will change in 1987.

"The merger will give us tougher competition, that's for sure," Gauerke says. "It'll be harder for us to win league championships. But I think this will really be an advantage to the non-revenue sports . . . since it looks like we'll have strength in just about every sport."

"Actually, I really don't see any problems with this merger. We're pretty excited about it."

The Marcel Marceau Award: Conversely, this honor is bestowed upon the local coach, player or fan who makes the famous French mime look like a blabbermouth. This year's prize goes to none other than South soccer mentor John Case, who occasionally surprises me and gives me more than five-word answers to my questions. Luckily, they're five pretty well-chosen words.

The Caesar Gutierrez Award: South outfielder Pete Muer might have gone seven-for-seven (in two games) in last weekend's district baseball competition, just like the famous Detroit Tiger infielder did in the 1970s, if it wasn't for a bit of hard luck. Muer hit four of the hardest shots this season against Lake Shore, only three of them were right at somebody. Hang in there Pete, there's always this Saturday's regionals.

The Worst Kept Secret Award: South High girls' soccer parents, players and fans may share this one for letting nearly everybody know what the "BS" on the backs of their warm-up jackets stood for. Well, almost everybody. Those who don't know had better not ask me . . . I'm in the running for next year's Marcel Marceau Award.

Devils make history: teams win softball, baseball districts

By Stephen Ebner
South High

Last weekend, South High's varsity baseball team accomplished what no other team in South history had done: win a district tournament.

The Blue Devils beat Lake Shore, 9-2, in the first of two district match-ups. Pitcher Rick Leonard (8-1) struck out 15 batters in six innings, allowing just three hits enroute to the victory. At the plate, leftfielder Mike MacMichael and second baseman Rob Wood each homered for the Devils.

In the district final, South "beDeviled" Notre Dame, 11-3. Rico Cordova (6-2, two saves) struck out six and allowed five hits. Catcher Dave Arnold slammed two home runs and third baseman Doug Lucas and MacMichael added homers.

The Devils advance to the regionals at North High this Saturday, June 7, against Birmingham Brother Rice at 10 a.m. Competing at 12:30 p.m. will be Fraser and Martin Luther King; the finals follow at 3 p.m.

The Eastern Michigan League title is still questionable, since Port Huron has one game to go. If Port Huron loses, then the Big Red and South will finish in a tie for first; if they win, the Devils end up in second place. South, after winning nine of its last 10, is 21-9 overall, 11-3 in the league.

Vismara leads girls

South's girls' softball team finished the regular season with another Lynn Vismara no-hitter, then continued on to win the district championship for the first time in South history.

The Blue Devils finished the EML season in a first-place tie with East Detroit after beating Anchor Bay, 3-0, on May 29. Vismara retired the first 15 batters to achieve her no-hitter.

At the districts last Saturday,

Vismara fought the 91-degree heat and pitched a pair of outstanding games. South beat rival North High, 6-1, in the first game as Vismara struck out five, allowed two hits and didn't give up a walk. Katy Turner led the offense with a two-for-three day; Vismara belted a three-run homer to help her own cause.

In the district final, the Blue Devils defeated Regina, 11-9, in a tough fight. The girls jumped out to a 7-0 lead on centerfielder Carmina Amezcua's three-run triple in the first inning. But heat and exhaustion began to get to Vismara and in the fifth, she gave up five runs. She managed to hang in here, though, and wound up finishing the game and getting the victory.

South plays Utica Ford on June 7 in the first game of the regionals at East Detroit. The winner of that game faces the winner of the Fraser-Royal Oak game for the regional championship.

Vismara and East Detroit pitching ace Gina Menta were named co-Most Valuable players at the league meeting last week. Heidi Albrecht, Turner and Vismara were also named to the All-League squad. Earning All-League honorable mention are Lisa Mazur, Patty Molloy and Barb VanWingerden.

Netters end year

South's boys' tennis season ended at the finals in Midland last week when Redford Catholic Central won the state title.

"Real good effort," said coach Don Zysk. "We scored three more points than some teams did." First round winners Thad Angyal (No. 1 singles), Bill Wheeler (No. 3 singles) and Jerry Bourke and Bill Huntington (No. 3 doubles) were point-getters.

"We will be a lot stronger next year," Zysk said of the 6-0, EML-champ Devils. "We'll have eight (out of 10) guys coming back."

It wasn't even close, this play at the plate, not to mention last Saturday's 9-2 win by South over Lake Shore. That's Mike Mac-

Michael sliding in with a run. South won the second game, 11-3, to take the district title.

Track records

South High

Eight girls and two boys from South competed at the state track finals in Flint last weekend, setting three new girls' records (school marks).

South's girls' 400 meter relay team of juniors Erin Kershaw and Heather Imel, senior Julie Boyl and freshman Traci Lee lowered their mark to 51.8, placing in the top 10. The same team had already broken South's 1978 mark of 52.6 with its 52.2 in the regionals.

The 800 relay team of Boyl, Im-el, sophomore Reba Uthappa and Lee also ran its fastest time of the year, finishing 12th in 1:42.02. South's 1600 relay team of junior Myreya Amezcua, sophomore Wendy Berger, Uthappa and Lee took three seconds off the 4:09.02 record they set at the regional, which had broken the previous mark of 4:09.09. The girls finished in the top 10 in the state.

Uthappa also finished in the top 10 in the 400 meter dash with her time of 59.3. The previous record was set by Meg Moisen in 1983. Also running a personal best time of 11:34.02 in the two mile was senior Nancy Solterisch, who finished 10th.

For the boys, senior Chris Astfalk set a new senior record in the 1600 with his time of 4:28. Junior Brian Stratton ran the 400 in 51.4 seconds.

Frosh finish

Wrapping up its season, South's boys' freshman track team beat Romeo Junior High, 106-26, last week.

The 3200 meter relay team of Lew Echlin, Phil Orton, Brad Van Tien and Ethan Dettmer placed first in its event, breaking the old record of 9:53 with their finish of 9:23.07.

Dettmer, Derek Field and Aaron

Romine went one-two-three in the 400; Kyle Schomaker was first in the 800; Kevin Dietz, Neil Combs and Jeff MacChagnone finished one-two-three in the low hurdles; and Mark Makowiecki took a first in the 100.

In the field events, Jeremy Dixon placed first in the shot put and the discus; Pat Bruce took first in the high jump; Dietz was first in the long jump.

In last week's Blue Devil Invitational, the 800 relay team of Schomaker, Mike Pote, Wes Degielmier and Andy Cox broke the 1979 record of 1:38.02 with its time of 1:37.07.

ULS tennis championship: No. 17 is special

The Knights are back on top.

Last weekend the ULS boys' varsity tennis team won the state Class C-D tennis championship for the 14th time in the last 15 years. In fact, this was their 17th state championship along with three runner-up positions in the last 21 years. ULS finished with 29 points, followed by Detroit Country Day School 26, Kalamazoo Hackett 23, North Muskegon 16, Almont 11, and 18 other schools in the finals at Holland.

Individual state champions for ULS were: Ashu Nautiyal at No. 4 singles and John Birgbauer and Kirk Haggarty at No. 1 doubles. The rest of the Knights' team also played major roles in bringing the state championship back to ULS. David Barlow as a semifinalist at No. 2 singles; Marc Hunt at No. 1 singles, Mike Fozo at No. 3 singles, Frank Karabetos and Mike Nic-colini at No. 2 doubles and Rob Glancy and Tony Malcoun at No. 3 doubles were all finalists.

"A special championship indeed," said ULS coach Bob Wood. "We had a special feeling about this team after our 21st annual spring Florida trip. Even after we lost to DCDS 5-2 early in the season, we thought with a little extra effort we still had a chance. When we won the regional championship (for the 19th time in 21 years) and reversed two earlier losses to DCDS at No. 3 singles and No. 4 singles, we gained a lot of confidence."

"The only question was, Could we do it again at the state finals?" Wood continued. "Immediately following the regional, we told the boys exactly what they had to do in order for us to win the state championship. Every singles player and doubles team did exactly what was projected for them two weeks ago.

"Once again it was the total program that made this championship possible. There is no doubt in my mind that we would not have won the regional or the state championship without the assistance of coach Chuck Wright," Wood added. "He added another dimension to an already solid program. The support we have received for many years from the school administration, parents and players has also played a very important part in the overall success of our program."

In 21 years ULS has achieved 17 state championships, three runners-up in the states; 19 regional championships and 30 invitational wins.

JV wins

The ULS JV boys' tennis team finished its season with a 4-3 win over Grosse Pointe North on May 23. The Knights ended their 1986 schedule with a 6-6 record.

In singles, North's Pat Hopper nipped Ray Tumacder, 7-6, 7-6; ULS' Dike Ajiri whipped Tony Guimette, 6-1, 6-0; North's Chris Malley defeated Ted Evans, 6-4, 6-1; and Dave Kim of ULS beat John Farrel, 6-0, 6-2.

ULS won the first two doubles matches for the team victory. Ryan Strowger and Mike Africa edged James Kim and James Lee, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4; and John Shanle and Julian Go held off Mike Sharkey and Paul Anderson, 1-6, 6-2, 6-1. North's No. 3 doubles team of Kevin Ritter and John Karle defeated Peter Sripinyo and Jon Poland, 6-3, 1-6, 7-5.

The ULS Most Valuable Player was Dike Ajiri; Most Improved Player was Ryan Strowger.

Norsemen end baseball year on high note

By Josh Abbott
North High

North's varsity baseball squad wrapped up the 1986 season on May 28 with an 8-0 whitewash of L'Anse Creuse. Despite losing to Notre Dame, 3-0, the weekend before in pre-district action, the Norsemen had to make up a rainout with the Lancers.

Senior righthander Bill Miller, outstanding on the mound for North all season, fired a no-hitter to get the victory. Senior Steve Pochmara had two doubles and scored three runs. Junior Dave Kopitzke ripped a three-run homer.

Despite missing an eighth straight Bi-County League title and falling early in post-season action, North turned in a superb season, compiling a 21-14 record. The Norsemen won the Alpena Tournament and notched that 21-win year behind the pitching efforts of seniors Miller and Craig Engel and the offensive strength of seniors Pochmara and Craig Como. North returns 10 of 18 players and looks to return to the top of the Bi-County in 1987.

Varsity track

North senior Brian Bergeron put the finishing touches on an outstanding high school career by placing second in the states in the discus at the state finals in Flint May 31. Bergeron threw the discus 162 feet, 2 inches — a personal best.

Senior Jill Dornbrock also fared well in the state meet, taking seventh in the long jump. It was a banner year all-around for the Norsemen tracksters; the boys were undefeated in dual meets and won the Bi-County and the girls were 10-1 and took home their third consecutive league championship.

Rounding out the playoff weekend, North's varsity tennis team finished 13th in the Class A state finals. Coach Bill Collins' North girls' softball team lost, 6-1, to rival South High in the districts at East Detroit.

Regionals

Grosse Pointe North will host the state Class A regional baseball tournament on June 7. South, Fraser, Birmingham Brother Rice and Detroit Martin Luther King qualified for the tournament.

The first game is at 10 a.m. and will feature South versus Brother Rice. King and Fraser will meet in the second game at 12:30 p.m. and the championship contest at 3 p.m. will pit the winners of the first games against one another.

Admission of $1.50 is good for the entire day.

Grosse Pointe Cable shows World Cup

Grosse Pointe Cable is making coverage of the entire World Cup soccer tournament available to its cable customers in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. Every match will be shown in its entirety from now through the championship final on June 20.

Every match — except those which are scheduled for the same time and will be presented on tape delay — will be aired live on G.P. Cable channel 20.

'Cobra' is Stallone all the way

By Michael Chapp
In "Cobra," Sylvester Stallone plays a violent, rough-edged cop who wants to singlehandedly rid the world of crime and who talks more with his weapons than with his mouth.
Not one to mess with a proven formula, that Stallone!
But seriously, Stallone says more during the first 20 seconds of "Cobra" than he does in the entire length of "Rambo," and not once does he take off his shirt in this film. Perhaps he's seeking new challenges in his films — like talking and wearing clothes — so that his audience will not be aware that the product he's giving them is so bad.

Those who can see past the quick editing and sadistic intensity of this film though will see it for what it really is. And 'bad' pretty much sums things up.
Granted, those who like action pictures may get a kick or two from "Cobra." But there is nothing here — nothing — that hasn't been done before — and better — by someone else.

Marion Cobretti, better known as Cobra (Stallone) is a Dirty Harry-type of cop — he does all of the dirty jobs no one else wants. In doing so, he uses some unusual, not to mention illegal, methods. But he always gets his man.
So when a string of serial killings takes place in the city, Cobra is assigned to the case. He is supposed to protect the witness, Ingrid (Brigitte Nielsen), who can identify the killers, and thus come face to face with the whole lot of them — an army of killers.
But hey, that's no problem for Stallone. He specializes in battling armies. The film's climax features the star versus no less than 25 opponents. And it's not very difficult to figure out who's gonna win.

Nothing is difficult to figure out in this movie because everything works according to the formula. Here's Stallone, the cop who chews on a matchstick and "looks for trouble" in his free time. Here's Nielsen, a love interest who's willing to put up with his unusual habits because she sees what a great guy he is underneath it all. Here are the bad guys, led by a really bad bad guy so scummy one wants him to be blown away. And here are the weapons to do it. Not just pistols anymore. No sir. Now there's automatic rifles and machine guns — and even some hand grenades — to do the job. Indeed, the script could have been written in someone's sleep. It probably was.
One senses that the producers must have felt audiences will respond to this character because of the immense popularity of Clint Eastwood's "Dirty Harry" films. But there's a big difference. All four of Eastwood's movies were more politically oriented, and dealt more with the character of Harry Callahan and his place in the world. "Cobra," on the other hand, tells nothing about the cop at its center. As a result, the film's center-of-attention is a one-dimensional fighting machine with a warped sense of law. Cobra is nothing but brute toughness; he's not a character.

Fine and dandy. But will Stallone fans like this movie? It's very likely they will. The film is full of action, albeit old and rehearsed, and Stallone says some neat things. "You're a disease," he tells an armed robber, "and I'm the cure." And later, just as he's about to throw a match on one of the members of the killer-army, he announces, "You have the right to remain silent."
Frankly, it's getting tiring to have so many movies with the same plot and the same gimmicks hoarding up movie screens. But there will undoubtedly be more of them, because that's the way the formula goes.
And there will definitely be a "Cobra" sequel.
Take that one to the bank.

'Quiet Earth' is science fiction with a difference

By Marian Trainor
One summer morning, Zak Hobson (Bruno Lawrence) wakes up to what appears to be the beginning of an ordinary day. He puzzles over why the clock has stopped, the radio sputters static and no one answers his telephone calls.
He dresses for work. Along the way he stops for gas. There is no attendant at the station. He observes that the streets are strangely deserted. When he arrives at work where he is employed as a high-level scientist by a multinational space project, the offices are deserted.
As he moves around the building he discovers what he has suspected. The assignment he has been working on, "Project Flashback", has misfired. It has erased every living thing on earth — except him. He apparently is the last man alive — but is he really alive?
Yesterday he had not only resigned his job but he had decided to end his life. Is he back now to face the consequences of a horrible miscarriage of scientific arrangement?
Unable to rationalize his position, he becomes irrational. He moves into a luxurious mansion, enjoys the amenities a while and then wrecks the house. He goes to the best shops, picks out the most expensive clothes and then drives a car through the front windows.

His rampage comes to an end when, rifle in hand, he turns a corner and is confronted by Joanne (Alison Routledge) who has a gun aimed at him. He has come upon the last woman on earth.
Together they decide to go searching for other possible survivors. They find Api (Peter Smith), who is a Maori. He joins the search.
As they go, Zak carries his scientific barometers with him to keep in touch with any other possible repercussions from the disaster. He finds that not only has the whole earth been wiped clean, but the whole structure of the universe is crumbling.
Together the group devises a scheme which they hope will forestall the earth's complete destruction. Whether it works is something that will have to be seen.
This imaginative film is set in New Zealand. James Bartie's photography is stunning. The movie opens with one of the most beautiful sunsets on film. The visual effects showing the sun as it trembles and shakes in the stratosphere are outstanding.

Bruno Lawrence gives a memorable performance as Zak sunk in the despair of isolation and later, as a resolute leader of the group.
Alison Routledge as the girl-woman who eludes Zak, who has fallen in love with her, is ethereal and lovely. She looks like a vision with her burnished red hair, lovely face and expressive eyes. And indeed as it turns out, she may well be a vision.
The third member of the group, Api, tempers anger and fierceness with an unexpected dimension of straightforwardness and gentleness.
While much of the film seems to be removed from reality, there are some scenes that are in touch with the human side of life, such as one where Joanne, dressed in pink, dances in the grass with Zak, as Api plays a piano. If they are the last people on earth and if total destruction is imminent, they are still able to enjoy life.

And this is what this elusive story is about — man's capacity to hope, to fight back and to make the best of happy times.
"The Quiet Earth" is science fiction but with a difference. There is suspense, terrifying disaster and threatening chaos, but the emphasis is not on the ruins which are all around, but rather on the personal, the psychological, emotional and spiritual.
"Quiet Earth" is a vivid and fresh presentation of the dangers that are courted when experimentation is irresponsible.

'Absolute Beginners:' Post-war England

By Marian Trainor

MTV comes to Hollywood in "Absolute Beginners," a bold and different musical about teenagers in the '30s in England. Like MTV it flashes with bright lights, color, distorted images and rock 'n' roll at a fever pitch.

"Yanks invented teenagers," the hero says. Perhaps, but their English counterparts really move into it in this film.

As youngsters they had grown up in the dark days of war. They were ready now to cut loose and the marketing gurus were willing and able to help them express all those pent-up yearnings and to cater to their most fantastic means of expression — the wild hair-dos, the weird clothes, the uninhibited dances.

All this is celebrated in Richard Burridge's screen adaptation of Colin MacInnes' cult novel.

Music-video director Julien Temple takes the audience immediately to Soho rock 'n' roll hangout.

One of the frequenters is Colin (Eddie O'Connell), an aspiring photographer who is hoping to make a name with his realistic pictures of the mods and the crumbling neighborhood in general.

Colin is in love with Suzette, a fashion designer who has her sights on "having it all," the title of a song she throatily croons into the camera that accentuates her sexy voice and movements.

They are a pair of innocents operating in a jungle of off-the-wall freaks, slum landlords and music moguls.

For a while, the film is a merry romp against a background of pop music featuring Ray Davies. Sade and Tenpole Tudor.

David Bowie appears in an elaborate production in which he tap dances on a jumbo typewriter. Sade's slow-burning song, "Killer Blow," is a standout. Kinks' Ray Davies performs a savage number called "Quiet Life".

Things begin to change. Colin's "Crepes Suzette" makes good on the title of her song to "have it all" and walks out on him to marry a rich effete dressmaker (James Fox) for his money.

About this time Colin's prospects as a successful photographer begin to look brighter. It looks like he may be able to move from the crumbling tenement. But without Suzette, it means nothing.

At about this point, the focus of the film begins to change. What looked like a tour of Soho with some hot music as background and a love story for interest, now takes off on a social commentary about corrupt housing developments and fascist schemes to keep England white. It finally erupts in a vicious race riot, a replay of Britain's ugly Nottig Hill uprising. The street melees staged as a ballet are reminiscent of "West Side Story."

There are some fascinating characters in "Absolute Beginners," not all of them admirable. One interesting combination is the Kinks' Ray Davies and Mandy Rice-Davies of Profumo-scandal fame playing man and wife.

O'Connell is straight and without guile. He provides a nice contrast to the rest of the cast. Patsy Kensit as the materialistic Suzette is innocent in her misguided choices.

"Absolute Beginners" is a celebratory story of teens breaking free of the drabness of post-war life. It is presented in such a lively, spirited manner that viewers are glad to join in that celebration.

New Center series begins

New Center Swings, a summer-long series of free out-door concerts in Detroit's New Center area, opens its 1986 season Thursday, June 5, at 5:30 p.m. The first concert will be a street party on Second Avenue between Milwaukee and W. Grand Boulevard featuring Alexander Zonjic, Steve King and the Dittilies and the Sun Messengers.

The series will then run every Thursday from 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. through Sept. 11 at New Center Park on the corner of Second and W. Grand Boulevard.

The park is currently undergoing expansion and renovation and is expected to be completed in early June. The park is being redesigned to include a permanent stage with a colorful overhead canopy and a sloped, grassy amphitheatre for concerts and special events.

The series will feature J.C. Heard, Orange Lake Drive, Domino, the Trinidad Tripoli Steel Band, the Urbations and others.

New Center Swings will also present its first ticketed event with Maynard Ferguson on July 10. Ticket information is available by calling 872-0188.

Free parking for all evening performances is available behind the Normandie building with access off Milwaukee between Second and Third. Refreshments are available at all concerts.

Producing the series is the New Center Foundation, the charitable, sister organization to the New Center Area Council which works to revitalize and promote the New Center Area.

Attic debuts new comedy

Coming July 18 to the Attic Theatre, Third at West Grand Boulevard, is a new musical comedy, "The Ballad of Conrad and Loretta" by Christopher Reed and Ronald Martell. The show replaces the originally scheduled comedy, "The Miss Firecracker Contest" by Beth Henley.

"The Ballad of Conrad and Loretta" is the whimsical tale of two down-and-outers, a rangy, singing cowboy who plays a mean guitar, and an ex-lady-of-the-night intent on a career in show business. They meet in a diner, fall in love, become country-western stars, fall out of love, face terrible obstacles, fall back in love and live happily ever after, all in just six days!

On the way they encounter a galaxy of larger-than-life characters amidst outrageous situations. This crazy cartoon of a show is interspersed with songs that range from country to rock to old-fashioned show tunes.

The show is scheduled to run through Aug. 17 with a possible extension through the end of August. Performance times are Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 5:30 and 9 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 and 6:30 p.m. For tickets and information, call 875-8284.

'Belvedere' at Henry Ford Theater

"Belvedere," the stage version of the 1948 movie, "Sitting Pretty," which introduced Clifton Webb as the overbearing Lynn Belvedere, will be presented at Henry Ford Museum Theater June 6 through July 19 (except July 4 and 5). The play, originally produced in 1949, is by Gwen Davenport.

Belvedere, a self-proclaimed genius author, hires out as a babysitter in exchange for free lodging while he writes his great life work. Hilarious complications develop because he really despises children, considering himself above the hubbub of normal family life.

Performances are Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $6 each for reserved seats. For information, call 271-1620. A combination dinner and theater package, at $19.95 per person, is also available.

ULS tennis title special; sports teams honored

dale College for the Class D State Finals on May 31.
Even though she did not bring home a medal, Alexander had success. In her first race of the day, she zipped through pre-lims into the semi-finals. After watching Alexander fail to qualify for finals, coach Cathy Schmidt praised the hurdler. "Lydia has worked hard all year. We never thought that she would make so much progress in one season. It's terrific that she made it to states this year, and it's terrific that she made it into the semis. We're pleased!"
At the close of the day, Alexander was ready with plans and goals. "Next year, I want a medal," said the determined athlete. "I guess I'd better go out for cross country and work hard in the weight room."

Letter winners

On Tuesday, May 27, the ULS Department of Interscholastic Athletics and Physical Education hosted its 42nd Annual Father-Son Athletic Banquet. Tony Gant, an All-Big 10 defensive back for the University of Michigan football team, spoke to the assembled group on "Combining Academics and Athletics at a Major University." Gant, a Pre-Law major, holds a 3.75 average.

Coach Glynn Conley awarded the letters to the varsity baseball team. Conley chose Andrew Galsler as the Most Improved Player and Pahl Zinn as Most Valuable. For junior varsity baseball, coach Jay Howland announced that Kamran Jafri was Most Improved. Sanders Chae won the MVP award.

Adam Levinson collected MIP honors in lacrosse from Coach John Fowler. MVP for the stickmen was Ian Jones.
Coach Bob Wood gave the Class

C-D state champion tennis team members their letters. Ashu Nautiyal picked up MIP; MVP went to Kirk Haggarty. In JV tennis, Ryan Strowger won MIP from coach Mike Murphy; Dike Ajiri was awarded MVP.
Two track and field lettermen tied for the MIP award as coach Bob Newvine split the honors between Paul Brigolin and Brendan Dundas. MVP went to Blasko Ristic.

The U-Club award for Most Valuable Athlete was given to senior athlete John Birgbauer, whose presence will be sorely missed next year.

Lady Knights honored at banquet

The Girls' Athletics Department of University Liggett School held its annual Athletic Banquet and Song Contest May 22.
Coaches Laura Sharpless and Mary Fish awarded letters to the varsity and junior varsity lacrosse teams. Mara Vorhees won the Most Improved Player award for the junior varsity, while Meredith Jones was Most Valuable. For the varsity, Allison FitzSimons was Most Improved, and Tricia Petzold, MVP.
For the junior varsity and varsity soccer teams, coaches Pedro Arango and Dave Backhurst announced the letter winners. MIP was Kelly Bailer and MVP went to Laurie Khelokian. Backhurst also announced All-Division Players: Khelokian and Shelly Tibbitts, first team; Cindy Paul and Susan Judge, second team; and Kim Owens, honorable mention. All-Conference Players included Khelokian, first team; Tibbitts, second team; and Judge, honorable mention.

Track coaches Cathy and Josh Schmidt and Sue Frederick gave letters to the junior varsity and varsity Michigan Independent Athletic Conference champion track and field athletes. Diann Imbriaco carried home the MIP trophy, while Lydia Alexander was MVP for the second year in a row.

Freshmen Sylvia Ristic and Elena Hunt won awards from the President's Council on Physical Fitness. The Freshman Class took the Muriel E. Brock Spirit Cup for their 51 percent participation in interscholastic sports this year. Class Athletic Cups were awarded to Dana Warnez (8th grade), Lesley MacLeod (10th), Kathy Bianchi (11th), and Fay Howenstein (12th).
The Joyce Tolleson Memorial Award went to Kara Van Dellen. Given in memory of Tolleson by the ULS Class of 1974, the award represents Tolleson's spirit, humor and dedication to athletics. Van Dellen was cited by Athletic Director Brock for her skillful, dedicated and unselfish participation in field hockey, volleyball and lacrosse.

Athletic Honor Society pins went to athletes who had participated in two or more varsity sports for two or more years. Recipients included Amy Gordon, Howenstein, Becky Ingall, VanDellen, Bianchi, Khelokian, Petzold and Sophia Park.
At the conclusion of the ceremony, music teacher Jim Hohmeyer announced that the junior class had won the highly-competitive, traditional song contest.
