G.P. is a C.I.

For the fifth year in a row, the city of Grosse Pointe has been designated as a conscientious injector and it has nothing to do with religious beliefs. The Elm Research Institute in New Jersey honors those cities that maintain a conscientious - how else? — elm injection program.

Administrative Assistant Chris Matthews said the institute mispelled the designation, however, as conscious iniector. No big thing. Grosse Pointe is consciously conscientious. Easy to say three times real fast, but just try spelling it.

Thorns to a rose thief

Margaret Young of McMillan Road is feeling downhearted these days and it's no wonder. She and her husband Henry work hard all summer cultivating the rose garden at the main library on Kercheval. They use their own equipment and donate their own time, saying they "just want it to look nice for everyone." They've been doing it for nine years.

They took care of the flowers on Friday and when they returned on Sunday, they found that every rose had been carefully cut — not torn — off. Shame on the person who took the roses intended for everyone's enjoyment.

A fine piece of work

Family photos are probably the least expensive and most valued possessions. A few weeks ago, some out-of-towners lost theirs, but Victor and Noel Benjamin of the Farms helped get them back.

The Benjamins were out for a stroll on Kerby Road when they found some "fairly weathered" snapshots lying by the curb. Using information printed on the packet, they figured out that the prints had been processed in a drugstore in a small town in Oregon.

They mailed the photos and a cover letter — and last week, they heard from Linda Barker of Portland, Ore. "Thanks for the detective work," Barker wrote. Seems she and her family had been visiting the in-laws here when they lost the packet with some photos they hoped to blow up and frame.

Looks like the Benjamins saved the day.

Consolidation to proceed

Park officials begin union negotiation

By Pat Paholsky

Now that the election in the Park is over, and with it the last obstacle to consolidating the police and fire departments, city officials are understandably relieved. There's a few more hurdles, however, that have to be overcome before their relief is complete.

Four of the seven unfair labor charges that firefighters filed are still pending, scheduled to be heard this week.

Then there's the matter of contract negotiations. The firefighters have been working without a contract for a year and talks have been at an impasse since before the election. The issues of public safety and minimum manpower raised by the firefighters before no longer apply, City Manager John Crawford said.

'The only issue relevant now is wages, so I think we can conclude negotiations," he said.

The next stop is selecting a union to represent the combined public safety department. Crawford said he will recognize the union that re-ceives at least 51 percent approval by the police officers and firefighters combined. Since the police officers outnumber the firefighters 30 to 18, it's almost certain that the Fraternal Order of Police will be the exclusive bargaining agent.

Crawford said he hopes to begin negotiations Friday, June 27, in a combined session with both sides represented. He added that he expects negotiations to be difficult.

The city has already offered a bonus of $750 to each person who is cross-trained. And July 1, the of-there's no question in my mind that their professionalism will now show through," he said. "I believe they'll be cooperative, hard-working and will continue to provide the same high level of service. It's time to move on and I think they feel the same way.

All of the police officers including Police Chief Richard Caretti have completed 80 hours of fire training. The next step, Caretti said, is to train four police officers and two firefighters as emergency medical technicians.

The training, totaling 120 hours including hospital time, will begin in July. Firefighter Tom Court will be certified by the state as an EMT trainer June 26, Caretti said, and therefore, most of the training will be in-house.

Caretti said four spots have been reserved for firefighters in the police academy class that will be held at Macomb Community College in September. The course is 14 weeks long. The tough part, he said, is passing the physical agiliy test and written exam in order to be accepted into the academy.

We'll see how many volunteers we have and we will go on the basis of seniority to fill the first four spots," he said.

Reacting to his selection by the Los Angeles Kings in the National Hockey League's entry draft Saturday is Jimmy Carson, of Grosse Pointe Woods. Carson's father, Charles, is in the foreground, along with Lynn Malboeuf, public relations for Carson's junior hockey team, the Verdun Canadiens. More photos and the draft story are on Page 1C.

Former resident helps restore the Lady

Before coppersmiths could fabricate metal to replace damaged areas of the huge copper sculpture, a small crew was selected to make that the election is behind them. molds of the areas damaged by 100 They put up a battle in terms of years of weathering — mainly on preserving what they felt best and the Lady's face.

Thomas Donahue, a Grosse Pointe North graduate, was part of that five-person crew, which made the delicate molds.

Donahue, 28, makes the borough of Queens his home. He is a painter, who takes on contractual jobs to help his income.

We were contracted to make a mold over the nose, eyes, one curl of the hair and a fold in the fabric of the statue's dress," Donahue said from his New York apart-still in good shape, says Donahue, who spent two weeks atop France's gift to the United States. Areas such as the face, where water collects or serves as run-off paths for rain or melting snow and ice had become damaged and were in need of replacement.

Donahue said he, Vanessa and Bruce Hoheb and Steven Simonak, had worked together at the Metropolitan Museum in New York restoring priceless works of art and making replicas of artifacts found in King Tut's tomb. They, along with Jesus Figigerao, were selected from numerous bidders for the job of the outside mold-forming. Donahue graduated from North in 1975. His mentor, he says, was art teacher Eileen Hayes. "She was instrumental in having me get a portfolio of my work together,'' he said.

Donahue was the recipient of a five-year scholarship to Pratt University in Brooklyn, N.Y. After he graduated in 1980 he opened his own studio in New York City.

"Well, the only way to describe him," Hayes said, "is John Boy Walton. Honest to God, he was like that. He was a fine, upstanding kid. He came from a very close-knit

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Donahue of the Woods. "He was one of the most talented we had come through the department." Hayes added.

Donahue's team had to climb up the outside stairs of the world's largest free-standing scaffolding built especially for the restoration project.

"The scaffold was built close to the face," he said. "I don't like heights a lot, but you didn't have a sense of being up so high because it was kind of enclosed. Climbing up and down the stairs was scary. We had to wear mountain climbing gear and were clipped on to the statue at all times.

Their job was to make perfect molds of the damaged areas of the face. This meant insuring there would be no discoloration or further damage to the statue. The team had to cover the front of the statue with a 40 by 40 foot bib to orotect against anything falling on its breast. "It was kind of humorous installing this enormous bib around the neck," Donahue laughed. "The Goodyear blimp flew by that day — right at eye level. There were always camera crews up there documenting our work. It was rather crowded at times.'

The crew used a highly sensitive rubbery substance to make the precise molds.

'We had to use a substance that

Five teens charged with breaking, entering

By Nancy Parmenter

Five South High School June graduates are being charged with breaking and entering in a June 17 attempted theft of computer hardware from the high school. Farms police went to the Wayne County prosecutor June 23 for warrants.

"He recommended B&E warrants on all five," said Farms Detective George Van Tiem. "But because they have no previous records, they will probably qualify for diversion.

Van Tiem said the diversion program was established to give a second chance to offenders with no previous record. The teens may be allowed to plead guilty and serve a probation period.
"Then, if they stay as pure as snow, their record will be cleared," Van Tiem said.

Van Tiem emphasized that the young men are in the Wayne County Circuit Court system, "the same as any felon," and that their participation in the diversion plan is not yet definite. They will not participate in the Harper Woods-Grosse Pointe Youth Assistance program, which is designed for ju-

The teens are charged with entering South High School and removing 16 pieces of computer hardware: four monitors, four disk drives, two keyboards, a printer, printer paper and assorted cords and connections. They were seen by a resident, coming and going in a vellow Oldsmobile and getting in and out of the car during the late afternoon on Tuesday.

The resident called police at 5:30 p.m., according to the police report, at which time the youths were told to clear the scene. Police found the door to the band room standing open, wedged with a blue trash can. The hardware was scattered near the band room, behind the industrial arts building.
The teens were apparently all

'A' students and intended to go to college, according to Van Tiem. Whether being on probation for breaking and entering will affect those plans is not clear.

Dwarfed by the face of the Statue of Liberty, Thomas Donahue, who now resides in Queens, shows off the work area he and his team, and often camera crews, had to work in to make molds of damaged areas of the face.

School district may crack down on skippi

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Grosse Pointe's public high schools will get tougher with students who skip classes if the Board of Education approves a new set of attendance regulations proposed by the principals at the two schools.

The plan, sent to the board for discussion June 16, would call for possible corrective action after a single absence, with a second unexcused absence possibly drawing a three-hour Saturday detention. The third level of corrective action calls for withdrawal from the class, loss of credit and a failing grade on the student's record, to be determined by the building administrator.

The number of absences to trigger corrective action isn't specified in the new regulations. That's to let students know that something is going to happen after their first unexcused absence from class, according to South Principal Edward Shine.

Under the current policy, which North Principal John Kastran called very liberal, a student may have up to six unexcused absences from a class before being dropped. That's been interpreted by students to mean they have six free absences before something hap-

The new regulations will emphasize attendance, Kastran said. The tougher regulations may get kids who otherwise might take one of the six "free skips" to stay in

"Kids lose education through absences," he said. The new policy is "trying to encourage kids to go to class so they get an education." Although the board wasn't keen tions for absences, the new regulations received a generally favorable response, Shine said.

The perception of an attendance problem at the high schools has been around for years, according to Robert Welch, director of secondary curriculum. The policy developed five or six years ago called for faster checking of attendance so students who missed classes or a day of school would be discovered quickly, he added.

The plan depends on the use of the Wayne County Intermediate School District's computer system, however, Welch said. Compilation of attendance records doesn't take high priority on the list for computer time demands.

The local district has been told on assignment of Saturday deten- by the ISD that more time will be made available for attendance work, Welch said. Also, the district is looking to develop its own attendance enforcement computer pro-

The new regulations tighten attendance in other areas. An absence will be considered excused only for student illness; illness in the family, necessitating the student stay home; death in the family; family and religious observances; or school-approved activi-

The idea is to cut down on excused absences before and after vacations, the high school principals said. Some classes have so few students the week before or after spring break that teachers are unable to properly conduct class, they added.

In its philosophy of attendance, the regulations say students are responsible to attend every class, to motivate themselves to make good attendance a personal priority, and to monitor their own requests for participation in educational trips and other school activities requiring absences from

"Parents have the responsibili-ty to establish home priorities which support education, to require regular attendance at school, to provide home guidance when irregularities are discovered. and to support the efforts of the school to improve student attendance," according to the philosophy statement.

Teachers, counselors and administrators also have a responsibility to promote good attendance, "one of the most important single factors which contributes toward success in school and the world of work," the philosophy statement reads.

The district looked at the attendance policies from a number of other school districts before it put together its new regulations, according to Kastran. Most districts are tightening up their policies, he

There will be a day-long excursion to two unique towns near London, Ontario, Canada, on Thurs-day, July 31. The harbor village of Port Stanley will be the first stop where travelers will see Moore Water Gardens, Canada's oldest and largest gardens of water lilies and aquatic plants.

After lunch at the Kettle Creek Inn, a restored home built in 1849, the group will take time to shop and explore the antiques, pottery and bake shops before a tour of the Kettle Creek Canvas Company. The tour will show the design, cutting and serging of goods done by this establishment, which began as a small shop and has mushroomed into 39 stores that trade in all cotton casual ware.

A visit to the quiet hamlet of Sparta will follow. Settled by Pennsylvania Quakers in the eary 1800s, Sparta is one of Canada's oldest Quaker settlements that still provide examples of early Ontario architecture and life. After time to explore, the group will have tea and scones at The Village Tea Room.

The bus will leave the center at 8 a.m. and return at 7 p.m. Tickets are $33 per person and participants must bring proof of citizenship (voters registration, birth certificate or passport).

A victory for public safety

Even though there are still hurdles ahead, consolidation of the police, firefighters and ambulance services in Grosse Pointe Park into a single public safety department now appears to be likely in the near future.

The legal brambles that must be cleared away include the unfair labor practice charges filed by the firefighters and the negotiation of a new labor contract for the members of the combined department. But the efforts to complete the consolidation will be spurred by the decisive vote of the people of the community in the June 17 election.

With 3,699 votes cast, 2,140 or 58 percent voted against the efforts of the firefighters to retain separate police and fire departments and 1,551 or 42 percent supported the proposed charter amendment.

Afterward, Mayor Palmer Heenan reiterated his campaign view that the consolidation will improve services and expressed opinion that the firefighters "are decent, intelligent men" who, once they are trained, "will strengthen our police patrol." Cross-training police also will make more trained emergency medical technicians and firefighters available, in the mayor's opinion.

The victory belongs chiefly to the mayor and the council members who unanimously supported the consolidated department, but credit also must go to the citizens volunteer committee which helped promote the benefits of the single public safety unit. And surely credit also must go to the special commission that studied the consolidation for a year before recommending, by an 11 to 2 margin, a single public safety department.

Joseph Bialk, president of the Grosse Pointe Park Fire Fighters Association, afterward expressed his disappointment with the outcome. He claimed the people "believed the promises of the city officials instead of the facts we were showing them." And he contended that the city 'can't maintain the quality of services that city's residents had been used to.'

Bialk's disappointment is understandable, but now that the community has spoken, most Park residents no doubt hope that the campaign differences can be forgotten, the consolidation continue to achievement, and the firefighters join in making the new public safety unit a GOP captive of far right?

Wayne County Executive William Lucas may look back on last week as the turning point in his campaign for the GOP nomination for governor — and yet, paradoxically, what happened may also have weakened his chances to be elected.

It was last week that Lucas and state election officials reached agreement on his application for state campaign matching funds that freed $106,000 in state funds to bolster his campaign. In addition, the Rev. Pat Robertson, the TV evangelist who is an unannounced candidate for president, threw his support to Lucas as the man best able to win in the fall against Gov. James Blanchard. And the Michigan Right-to-Life organization reiterated its support for Lucas over his three GOP rivals.

All those moves may well help Lucas win the nomination for governor. Yet there is another side to all three of these occurrences that were welcomed by Lucas and his supporters.

In the first place, Lucas weakens his own criticism of the state Democratic administration for its delaying tactics on the approval of the matching funds. More important, by accepting the endorsement of Robertson and the state Right-to-Life organization, Lucas offers evidence that tends to support Blanchard's contention that Michigan Republicans "are the captives of the far right — the religious right."

True, the GOP state chairman, Spencer

Abraham, and the four candidates for the GOP gubernatorial nomination tried to rebut Blanchard. They attacked the governor's own record, denied the GOP had been taken over by the far right and listened approvingly as another GOP leader contended the Democratic Party is "a captive of organized labor . . . and a few fringe groups." That proved that both sides can issue tough charges.

Yet it is clear that Blanchard is seeking to occupy the middle of the political road in his campaign for re-election. The Republicans make it easier for him to win converts to his cause by moving to the right and shunning Republican political moderates. If the governor can make his charges stick, the state may see a repeat of the 1982 election in which Blanchard defeated the GOP right-winger, Richard Headlee.

There was another bright spot for Lucas in the campaign last week. The Detroit Free Press, in a pool of a cross-section of the candidates seeking election as GOP precinct delegates in the Aug. 5 primary, found that 34 percent favored or were leaning toward Lucas, 20 percent expressed similar support for Richard Chrysler, the Brighton businessman and fewer than 10 percent backed the other two candidates, Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy or state Rep. Colleen Engler of Mount Pleasant.

But there was also a thorn in this bouquet for Lucas. Another 36 percent of the precinct candidates polled said they had no preference for any of the four candidates. And that total wa even larger than the figure for the front-running Lucas. The size of that uncommitted vote with the primary only about six weeks away ought to worry Lucas as well as the other trio of GOP hopefuls.

The precinct delegates obviously do not reflect state opinion. But their views about the candidates — and the lack of strong support from some Republican moderates who fear their own party is drifting too far to the right.

When the law is 'a ass'

The asininity of the Gramm-Rudman act that requires across-the-board budget cuts for practically all federally financed activities is illustrated in two recent cases.

In one case, funds have run out, because of the legislation, for jury trials in federal district courts in Michigan. In another, Congress abandoned in March its tradition of providing the public with free copies of congressional documents. For everyone other than members of Congress and their staffs, the prices of documents would range from $1 to $44 per document, depending on size.

Fortunately, a compromise eased but did not solve the free document problem. Under new rules, effective early this month, anybody can obtain one free copy of bills, reports or related documents. Additional copies can be purchased for a fee of 2 to 3 cents a page, depending on

But there's still a catch. Committees which before the enactment of Gramm-Rudman received 1,000 copies of proposals, hearing transcripts, etc., were restricted to 300 under the original rules and the revised rules. Some committees have said they will need to keep the entire allocation of 300 for internal use. Others have said a limited number of copies will be made available for free. And in some cases additional copies may be printed.

Once a committee runs out of a document, however, anyone wanting a copy will have to purchase it from the General Printing Office's Congressional Sales Office. A modest fee will be charged.

But charging any fee restricts access of important information to those able to pay, and works a hardship on poor people as well as libraries, academic organizations and other groups with limited resources. It is also an inconvenience to reporters and news organizations. Even the revised rules are likely to result in a more poorly informed citizenry.

As for the budget crunch on jury trials in Michigan's two judicial districts, what that means is a further delay in reaching verdicts in most cases. The cases won't go away. They'll just pile up on the dockets. And in these cases, justice delayed is justice denied.

In both the Eastern and Western districts in Michigan, federal judges criticized the action, predicting problems in managing complex cases and raising questions about possible breaches of litigants' rights. U.S. District Judge Richard Enslen said, "If you don't have a jury, you don't have a right.

Mr. Bumble, in Dickens' "Oliver Twist," said: "If the law supposes that, the law is a ass, a idiot." The same terms could be applied to the authors of Gramm-Rudman.

To the Editor:

I have always felt that people who run for office in small cities did so because of a desire to serve the best interests of their citizens. The Grosse Pointe Farms council obviously does not subscribe to that theory.

They spent several thousand dollars to have a professional firm make a study of the traffic problems in the city. This clearly showed that several residential streets, such as McMillan Road, had far too much traffic. The council has done nothing in over a year to alleviate these problems, except appoint a committee which also did

Teach people respect

To the Editor:

I can't help but write this letter in response to you concerning the article on the front page last week in regard to the parks and Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice. I have lived in the Park for 10 years and have had to show my pass every time I have entered one of our parks. The I.F.C.F.R.J. stated in the article that some white people were allowed to enter the park without showing their passes while a black girl was asked to show hers. I have friends who enter the park without showing their pass because they are frequent users of the park. This does not bother me. What bothers me is the attitude of the I.F.C.F.R.J. In an article the previous week, they stated that the people of Grosse Pointe should have more contact and be educated on the black people. It seems to me the people who need to be educated are the 450 members of the I.F.C.F.R.J.

Just as soon as something is mentioned or done to a black. groups like this jump on the bandwagon again.

After working 25 years in the streets of the inner city of Detroit and traveling abroad to see where my great-great grandparents fought for justice of the Flemish people, I have come to believe that there are not different classes of people, but rather different cultures. My grandparents came here to be able to pick the culture they wish to live in.

I respect the culture of my black, white and green friends and they respect mine. If the people living in this community are trying to get away from the black culture, they are living in the wrong place.

The I.F.C.F.R.J. should spend its efforts teaching people respect

Incident on Fisher

To the Editor:

In line with the publicity of the behavior of some of our Grosse Pointe youths, an incident occurred last Thursday, the 12th, on Fisher Road, opposite Grosse Pointe South. An older woman, leaving the beauty salon there, walking to her car, was pelted with water-filled balloons by some of our elite youths in a large, black car (obviously parental) and shocked and drenched her. Being a person with a heart condition, it could have had disastrous results

Woods is a living community

To the Editor:

Shame on the old curmudgeon "Name Withheld By Request Grosse Pointe Woods" who is whining about having to share our magnificent pool with the young folks and children. (Grosse Pointe News, June 19). We are also retired and go to the pool to swim laps. We have been pleased with the way the lifeguards crack down on rowdiness and keep non-lappers out of the lap swimming area.

Keep in mind, sir, that Grosse Pointe Woods is a living community, not an old folks' home. It's the kind of place where three generations of some families remain in town. Part of the reason they do is that pool. If you can't stand being splashed, stay away from the water.

Our kids rode those Kiwanis Club buses to the old pool and we're glad to see the grandkids doing the same. Of course, we've only been here 25 years but we go back far enough to remember how upset some of the mothers were when the concession stand was put in. Now, the youngsters had to have money when they went to the pool!

We urge the taxpayers of Grosse Pointe Woods to join us at the polls to support the millage for park improvements.

Public apology is in order

To the Editor: Last night (June 12) our family attended a very enjoyable occasion - our daughter's commencement at North High. Suddenly out of the blue, an airplane started circling overhead. Attached to the plane was a banner which read, "The real graduation was last night." The plane, with its noise, not only disrupted everyone's concentration, but also took a precious moment away from Ms. Geibel's solo, which really was a shame! As if that wasn't bad enough, the plane circled the area five times -

slowly! My message is to South High. Friendly competition is one thing, but trying to ruin a milestone in one's life is another. I think a public apology is in order.

I would not like for my name to be printed because if they could afford to hire a plane, what could they do to me.

Make the theory work

To the Editor:

Now that Public Safety has been approved by the voters of Grosse Pointe Park, after being advanced by council and a citizens' commission, it is my recommendation to the city administration and to the electorate to very carefully scrutinize the progress of the implementation.

Public Safety has failed primarily where the resolve of the implementers has been less entrenched than the resolve of the employees. This is not to say that the relationship must continue as an adversarial one, rather the employees must be made to realize that the "will" of the city is strong in bringing the results of consolidation to pass. We have not sacrificed anything in adopting Public Safety. Our protective services will be the best we choose to make them. Let's make the theory work.

The club of some 250 radio amateurs from various eastside communities holds regular meetings at Grosse Pointe North High School, but once a year joins thousands of other hams in a 24-hour field test.

The operation requires the setting up of a number of radio stations in trailers, vans, tents using only emergency power from small generators, batteries, etc. Members take turns operating the sta-

I say

How little we know of one another.

Cleveland and Detroit, two aging rustbelt cities, less than a halfday's drive apart. Two posh suburbs, home of CEOs and some regular folks, both communities with the main aim of staying as good as they were.

But mostly what we know of each other is superficial. Mostly images. In terms of Shaker Heights, that means a place that used to be ritzy, but isn't what it used to be.

I used to live in the Cleveland area. I've driven through Shaker Heights a few times, including once or twice in recent years. So I knew that, externally, at least, Shaker Heights hadn't suffered too terribly over the years. I went there expecting to find some

One of the interesting aspects of the assignment, though, was the reaction of nearly everyone when they heard about it. From Grosse Pointers and Shakerites alike came the question: Why? "Shaker Heights isn't what it used to be,' said the Grosse Pointers. "Grosse Pointe is so country-clubby," said the Shakerites.

People in Shaker Heights directed me to North and South Park drives "where the Grosse Pointe-type houses are." So they are, home to the CEOs of Cleveland-based companies like TRW. Cleveland Electric Illuminating, and Standard Oil of Ohio (the original one, founded by John D. himself, several people reminded me).

But there are Grosse Pointe-type houses everywhere in Shaker Heights, from the old two-families in the Moreland area to the substantial brick Onaway houses. From Wayburn to Lakeshore, Shaker Heights has it all. The difference is that people outside of Grosse Pointe don't realize that Grosse Pointe has it all, too. And some Grosse Pointers would like to

Officials in Shaker Heights are surprisingly willing to discuss more than one side of issues. While never neglecting the public relations opportunity of talking to an out-of-town paper, they were relatively candid about the city's problems. True, nobody at the schools told me about their narrow escape from a $45,000 EPA fine for failure to comply with asbestos reporting requirements. But they and everyone else were ready to discuss integration in all of its ramifications and that is really the issue in

Shaker Heights. Geographically Grosse Pointe is out-of-the-way. Nobody has to go through it to reach any other place. That seclusion has allowed Grosse Pointe the luxury of remaining a collection of small towns, unhampered by traffic and untrammeled by modern controversies. The seclusion has been criticized as a fortress mentality, but it can also be envied for its privacy, its peace, its nostalgic comfort.

Shaker Heights can't get away with that. While its neighborhoods are set off in quiet privacy, the city itself is on the way to everywhere. Eastsiders commute through Shaker Heights on their way downtown every day. The transit system ties in with the entire metropolitan area far more efficiently than anything we have in

Whether it likes it or not, Shaker Heights is in the midst of the action. The attitude of both residents and officials seems to be that they will make the most of it.

Grosse Pointe has chosen to stay as good as it always was by staying the same. Shaker Heights is taking the opposite tack.

The city planning department is out actively looking for big projects to increase the tax base. In stark contrast to Grosse Pointe, where the $7 million three-story Bologna/Standard Federal Building is the first speculative building in two decades — and was more allowed than enticed — Shaker Heights planners took the lead in putting together a package for a $100 million dual office tower project that the city may participate in as a major investor.

Rather than passively allowing integration to take place, the city took an active role in promoting peaceful integration through its housing office. Instead of wringing its hands over the deterioration of aging housing, the city has put in city to accomplish.

place a network of loan, assistance and information programs, guidelines and inspections to give a boost to maintaining the housing stock. When the water and sewer systems became overloaded, the city didn't wait for federal funds. They floated a bond issue and went ahead on their own.

Whether or not all this activism is good lies in the eye of the beholder. Certainly it is easier for one unified city to take action than it is for a group of towns linked together by a school system and a trash disposal authority.

Approval of the city's active role is not universal in Shaker Heights. either. People who didn't approve of the integrative housing program moved away. A group of merchants is threatening to sue over the office complex. Another group of merchants is unhappy at the neglect they feel the city shows to their center. One was quoted in the local paper: "We hear during every election that Shaker is about excellence. They should be ashamed if (this) is their standard.

But at the same time, I have never seen a city where boosterism is so rampant among the residents. It is as if everyone realizes that the city has been, and will have to continue, making an all-out effort to achieve its own standards of excellence. If I heard it once, I heard it every day: "I'm proud of Shaker Heights.

The American garden is a little patch of paradise

Smithsonian News Service

As seductively sunny days warm the land, chances are good that you might be lured down the primrose path. But don't be surprised if it's rather crowded. Last year, according to an annual Gallup survey, gardening was once again the number one outdoor leisure activity in America. And interest in all varieties of gardening - including such offshoots as American garden history — is growing all the time.

From the tree-borne temptations of that First Garden to the ecological enticements of the local nursery, man and woman have been fascinated by the fruits - not to mention the vegetables, herbs, flowers, shrubs and trees - of the earth. Horticulture, the cultivation of plants, is one of humankind's oldest pursuits. Neolithic gardens grew apples and ancient Egyptian growers knew their onions. Famed in Texas, the yellow rose was first grown long ago by Persian plantsmen. Celery is mentioned in the 'Odyssey.'

The tomato and the pineapple were created from wild species by the Aztecs and the Incas. In North American gardens, such Indian peoples as the Cherokee and the Iroquois grew maize, beans, pumpkins, squash, tobacco, grapes, plums, sunflowers and roses. To the American Eden, European settlers carried their own horticultural contributions. Columbus himself, by some accounts, planted peas in the New World.

The Pilgrims, in their first American spring of 1621, sowed "garden seeds" they had brought over on the Mayflower. Peter Stuyvesant, governor of what is now New York state, in 1647 brought pear trees - minus partridges — in tubs from Holland. For 200 years, Americans would look to Europe for seeds, plants and gardening inspiration.

New England's gardens in the 17th and early-18th centures were much like English cottage and farmhouse gardens — a practical bouquet of flowers, fruit, vegetables and herbs wrapped neatly in a white picket fence. Virginia growers, however, had a cash crop the mother country lacked, and in their enthusiasm to plant tobacco, they may have placed less emphasis on other horticultural endeavors. At any rate, in 1629, the Virginia Company in London passed a law compelling Jamestown settlers to plant gerdene. Surely for love of the soil and not English law, many of America's finest gardens came to flower in Virginia.

One such horticultural treasure - dating from 1680 — was unearthed recently at Bacon's Castle, a 17th-century manor house not far from Williamsburg. Excavations conducted by the Virginia but in grafting the fruits of indus-Research Center for Archaeology revealed what archaeologist Nicholas Luccketti calls "the earliest, largest, best-preserved and most sophisticated garden ever to be found in English North America." quities, owners of Bacon's Castle, and the Garden Club of Virginia, which sponsored the dig, hope that one day when research is completed, the original garden can be restored and replanted, allowing it to tell its colorful and fragrant tale.

Garden archaeology has become a fertile field for historians. The garden is part of a historical whole," James Buckler, director of the Smithsonian Institute's Office of Horticulture, observes. 'You can't fully understand a house and the people who lived in it without knowing what the garden was like."

Historical spadework continues to provide insight and guidance in the restoration and reconstruction of the gardens at Mount Vernon and Monticello where founding gardeners Washington and Jefferson were in inspiration to other horticulturists of their day. The Father of Our Country may never have chopped down a cherry tree, but he planted several. His diaries record "Black May Heart Cherries," "Chantilly Pears,"
"Portugal Peaches" and "Golden Pippin Apples." When away from home, he longed for his "Vine and

From 1766 to 1824, Jefferson recorded in his "Garden Book" the appearance of spring's first purple hyacinth and every natural observation and horticultural activity at Monticello. The third president wrote to artist and naturalist Charles Willson Peale, "No occupation is so delightful to me as the culture of the earth and no culture comparable to that of the garden.'

In creating their personal Edens, Washington and Jefferson and other American gardeners were influenced both by 17thcentury French formal garden tradition and 18th-century English naturalistic garden design. In the 19th century, some gardens had symmetrical walks and artistically arranged flower beds; others had meandering paths with trees and flowers planted in a "natural" setting, and many were a potpourri of

During the horticultural heyday at century's end, late-Victorian delights featured plants of all descriptions, pools, fountains, statuary, elaborate cast-iron furniture and classical flower-filled urns and vases. Italian-style terraces, Oriental bridges and French-style parterres — fan-cifully shaped and intricately planted flower beds — mingled ecumenically and exuberantly.
"Americans looked over the gardens of the world and decided they wanted most of them" garden designer and historian

Ellen Samuels says.

America's contribution to trialization onto the pastoral ideal. When this country's pristine wilderness paradise disappeared, Americans continued to believe that true virtue and happiness lay in the bond between people and land. But as industrialization spread in the 19th century, millions of Americans moved to cities and were separated from the soil. Happily, paradise could be found again in the urban and suburban garden, which flourished in the rich mulch of modern science, mobility, mechanization, mass production and marketing.

Popular literature acclaimed the garden as an antidote to urban ills. Andrew Jackson Downing, America's first great landscape gardener, in 1847 urged upon women "this labor, not severe, but gently exciting." Along with lightweight gardening tools for ladies, miniature rakes, hoes and spades were manufactured for young horticulturists parents were advised, would, if kept in the garden, be ketp off the streets. Before the large-scale manufacturing of lawnmowers in the late-19th century, grass was cut by hand with a scythe. With new easy-care lawns, many families now could play croquet

Botanical explorations around the world vielded such exotic plants as the popular bleeding heart from China. Scientific breading of new plant varieties brought, as one wag put it, "more berries now than churches." A Salem, Mass., grower offered 1,000 varieties of pears. Greenhouses, nurseries and seedhouses sprouted in and around cities. Companies like D.M. Ferry and Co. of Detroit tempted gardens with the knowledge that they too could grow the faultless fruits and flawless flowers emblazoned on colorful seed packets, posters, trade cards and catalogs. All plants would prosper with fer-tilizers like "Peruvian Sea Fowl Guano." And no snake or other pest could survive in this personal paradise as long as "Powder of Persia" and other insecticides were available. horticultural Blossoming societies exchanges botanical information, distributed free seeds and plants and held fairs and exhibitions -- a tradition continued to this day by such organizations as the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society and the National Gardening Association. As urban land grew scarce in the late-19th century, city dwellers were given vacant lots to till. Today, in a burgeoning community garden movement, the American Community Gardening Association helps the landless would-be gardener find a spot of soil.

'Our first American parks were cemeteries," the Smithsonian's Buckler says. Victorian horticultural societies landscaped burial grounds so that people could get out and enjoy nature. "But between World War I and the 1960s, the emphasis on the importance of public parks and gardens was lost. The automobile and the suburbs changed family outings." Today, however, people are back in the parks and also visiting both public and open-byinvitation private gardens. Ellen Samuels, who describes some of these natural ornaments in The American Woman's Garden, feels that "Americans are now able to accept the notion that time spent in a garden is not only an acceptable pleasure but an essential

"The human spirit is encouraged and uplifted by plants and flowers" is the way Buckler puts it. Buckler and his horticultural colleagues currently are bringing to life a "romantic 19th century garden" which, come fall, will be blooming behind the Smithsonian 'Castles" in Washington, D.C. The 4.2-acre Enid A. Haupt Garden, 15 years in the making in terms of research, the gathering of rare 19th-century cast-iron furnishings and the collecting of plants, will be a place where weary museum visitors can relax among horticultural pleasures.

Some Americans these days are looking less to exotic flora than to native roots. The Brazos Symposium, a group also known as The Texas Rose Rustlers, hunts down the propagates old Texas roses. And Monticello's Historical Plant Center, which will open next year, plans eventually to have available "offspring" from bulbs actually planted by Jeffer-

Parents who wish to avoid tuition increases and guarantee their children a four-year prepaid college education may do so under a University of Detroit endowed tuition program.

The pre-pay plan, instituted primarily to help U of D alumni and friends finance their children's educations, is the only one of its kind currently offered in the De-

It will result in savings of 30 percent to 93 percent off the full tuition rate for the participants, the first of whose beneficiaries will begin their freshman year under the plan in the fall of 1987.

To take advantage of the current discount schedule, subscribers would have to sign up for the program by Aug. 1, regardless of when the child would be enrolling in the university. Payment for the plan can either be in a lump sum for the four years or under a privately arranged loan program.

The university will accept a maximum of 645 subscribers each year. The endowed tuition plan is based on the child's age at the time the tuition sum is paid and a projection of what four year undergraduate tuitio would cost for the year when the child would enter college. The more in advance the family invests the greater the sav-ings. For instance a child born in 1986 whose parents invest $6,412 now will guarantee their child, starting in 2004, a college education at that figure, rather than the 2004 projected figure of $91,841.

Savings would be substantial, though less, for the parents of a 17 year old who would enroll as a freshman in 1987. The 1987 freshman would have an education at $20,284 rather than the normal tuition rate projected as $29,075.

Called by Forbes Magazine "the most innovative development in college tuition financing since the G.I. Bill," the endowed tuition plan was conceived by a Pennsylvania

Balalaika Orchestra of Detroit

Summer music festival to hold Russian concert

Music Festival will continue with its international flavor when the Balalaika Orchestra of Detroit will perform in an outdoor concert Monday, June 30, at 8 p.m. Staged on the terrace of the War Memorial, the unique instruments will combine with native folk dancing to transport the audience to

A Russian picnic buffet will precede the concert for those who purchase picnic suppers through the center. Picnics cost $6.50 per person and may be reserved with a paid reservation at least three days prior to the performance. The buffet will include chicken with plum sauce, cucumbers and sour cream, salad Olivier and Armenian salad, crudites and red cherry

The Grosse Pointe Summer troit, under the direction of William Goldes, is the oldest balalaika orchestra outside of the Soviet Union today. Considered to be the top ensemble of its kind in this country, it originated in Detroit in 1926, and has maintained its primary purpose of enjoying, performing and perpetuating the musical heritage of old Russia that its founding members brought from their homeland. The 1986-87 concert series will mark the 60th anniversary of the orchestra.

Today, the orchestra's concert repertoire includes classical works as well as folk music that ranges from the sad and beautiful Russian lyric to the wildly exuberant Gypsy dance. The group performs extensively in the Detroit area and in recent years has received ovations The Balalaika Orchestra of De- in cities such as Atlanta, San Francisco, Champagne, Glassboro and Stockton, and will travel to Vancouver later this summer.

The balalaika and its cousin, the domra, are Russian stringed instruments that date back to the 13th century.

William Goldes, whose father was one of the orchestra's founders, has been a member for nearly 20 years, and director since 1979. He has added new arrangements to the orchestra's repertoire while retaining the pure classical elegance of Russian folk music. Unlike the original group of 1926 whose membership was totally of Russian ancestry, the current musicians represent several ethnic origins and participate in the orchestra as an avocation and a dedication to balalaika music.

Monday's concert will have the added dimension of authentic Russian dancing by the Neva Dancers under the direction of Marion Roth.

Tickets are available at the War Memorial, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Reserved seats are $10 per person and lawn admission is $6.50 per person. Ticket packages are available for group savings.

Coming attractions for the Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival include a night of light operetta and salute to Jerome Kern by Michigan Opera Theatre Quartet on July 14, New Reformation Dixieland Jazz Band on July 21, a concert by pianist James Tocco in the Fries Auditorium on July 28, and a pops concert by the Grosse Pointe Symphony on Aug. 4.

YE'VE DISCOVERED THREE HIGHLY TRAINED EMERGENCY CARE PHYSICIANS

John L. Stephenson, M.D., earned his medical degree from the University of Michigan Medical School. An experienced medical director, Dr. Stephenson says about Cottage Hospital Emergency Care: "There is more of a direct patient relationship than exists at many higher-volume emergency rooms. We take the time to see people, to question them, to check their medical history and to do an in-depth physical exam.

Laura Benedetto, D.O., earned her medical degree from the New York College of Osteopathic Medicine. Prior to joining Cottage, Dr. Benedetto was an emergency care physician in Macomb County. She feels that, "No emergency is too small to warrant our full attention. If a person feels an injury or illness is significant enough to get checked out, that person deserves prompt professional treatment."

Michael McMillin, M.D., earned his medical degree from Wayne State University Medical School. An experienced primary care physician from Bon Secours and St. John hospitals, Dr. McMillin thinks, "Cottage Hospital's emergency department offers high-quality medical care along with a high degree of personal care for each patient. Patients are treated here in a friendly and efficient manner, without undue delays, and I think they appreciate that.'

In addition to our new additions, Cottage Hospital's Emergency Care Department has 12 registered nurses and specialists in anesthesiology, radiology, cardiology, internal medicine, surgery, pediatrics and psychiatry who are always on call.

YOU'LL DISCOVER SPECIAL CARE ... AND SPECIAL CARING.

We select our emergency care staff for their skill with people as well as for their skill in medicine. So any emergency, minor or major, receives intensive caring at Cottage Hospital. As part of that caring, our emergency physicians will contact the doctor of your choice and follow up with him

JOU'LL DISCOVER THAT OUR CONNECTION TO HENRY FORD HOSPITAL AND THEIR 550 SPECIALISTS CAN BE A VITAL LINK.

When you need extraordinary medical care, your Cottage Hospital Emergency physician is just a phone call away from Henry Ford Hospital's world renowned experts in more than 40 specialties. It's this partnership with Henry Ford Hospital that helps Cottage Hospital make a big difference in an emergency. It's what makes Cottage Hospital the community hospital with the specialty connection. And it helps make Cottage Hospital a great medical discovery for you.

At the fireworks Sunday

The Austin Moro Band will provide the musical part of the Mack Avenue USA Fireworks and Musical Event Sunday. Festivities kick off at 8 p.m. at Parcells playfield at Mack and Vernier. The evening will include playing of the National Anthem and presentation of the colors by the United States Coast Guard, St. Clair Shores division, and introduction of special guests. Master of ceremonies is Gene Taylor. Music coordinator is James Hohmeyer. Fireworks are expected to begin at full dark, but a rain date of Thursday, July 3, is also scheduled. The event is sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue.

St. Paul will offer youth summer Bible school

"I am the vine, you are the branches" is the coordinating theme of the Bible School experience at St. Paul School this summer. Sessions with the Bible lesson, crafts, music and drama will be held each day, Aug. 11-15, 9 to 11:30 a.m. The children will meet in the cafeteria for a common experience and orientation toward the day and will meet there again before going

The program includes children of kindergarten (those who are five by Dec. 1, 1986) through grade six. Registration with the $6 fee should be mailed to the Religious Education Office, 170 Grosse Pointe Boulevard, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236, by the end of July. Registration forms can be obtained at the side entrance to St. Paul Church, 157 Lakeshore.

The program is open to all in the community.

Daily themes for all the children expressed on their own levels are: Everyone is a Person, Everyone Needs to Care and Be Cared For,

Jesus Came to be Like Us, Everyone Makes Mistakes and Needs Forgiveness, and Jesus Brings All People Together. The experience will culminate with the 10 a.m. mass and a balloon launch on Aug.

Home health care training is offered

Prompted by an increasing need in the community for home health care services. the American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Chapter is offering a training program titled Home Health Aide. The course will be offered at the Red Cross Chapter House, 100 Mack Ave. in Detroit. Classes are held eight hours a day, three times a week, from July 7 through Aug. 1.

The Home Health Aide program will train individuals in the skills necessary for employment with an agency specializing in home health care. Students will be certified upon successful completion of the course.

The cost of the course is $125 per person. For more information or to register, call 494-2876.

Nutrition assessed

The Bon Secours Hospital Health and Fitness Center offers a nutrition assessment program, "Nutri-Tech," that uses a computer to analyze a person's food intake over a three-day period.

The computer tells:

• how the participant's intake of 30 important nutrients compares with the recommended daily allowance for those nutrients;

• the percentage intake of protein, carbohydrates, fat and alcohol for comparison with current guidelines; • which nutrients in the participant's diet are less than 50 percent of the recommended daily allowance; and • which nutrients are 150 percent or more than the recommended daily allowance. The cost is $15. For more information, call 779-7040.

Like the 19th and 20th century paintings by Paul Cezanne and Henri Matisse, the 17th century oak stairway, the 13th century Pisano marble statue. Many paintings, hundreds of antiques ...all the furnishings of an era. Come visit the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. See something old you missed the last time you were here. Or wander through the gardens designed by Jens Jenson. There's no time like the present to live in the past for awhile.

MASTERPIECES AND MEMORIES

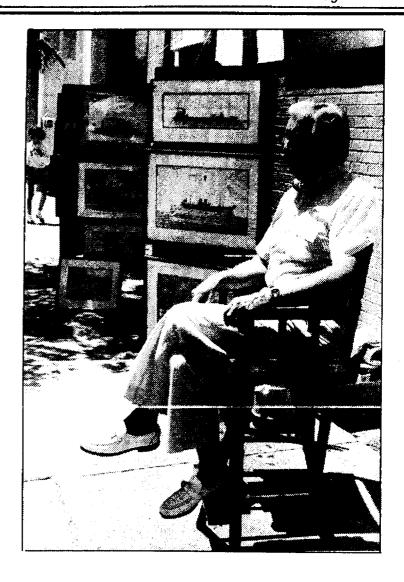

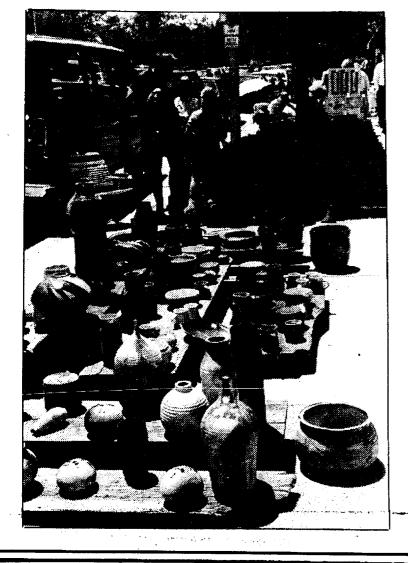

The Hill Association sponsored a two-day event this weekend and the hot, sunny days brought shoppers and browsers out by the droves. Woods resident Claudia Fraser Stieber weaves a basket at the left near a display of her work. Jerry Crowley, at the right, of the Farms, watches the people who look over his watercolors.

Log cabin quilt

Arthur Bodeau, president of Services for Older Citizens (SOC), examines the work of the women of the Eastland Village Activities Group with members Gladys De Waele and Helen Snyder. The group recently presented its log cabin-design quilt to SOC for a drawing on Independence Day. Tickets may be obtained from the SOC offices at Ferry School or call Helen Salbert at 882-5699. Tickets are $1, or six for $5. The drawing will take place outside of the school, on the corner of Morningside and Roslyn Roads, at 10 a.m. on Friday, July 4. SOC is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping older citizens maintain their lives in independence and dignity.

Youth invited to enter public speaking contest

Future orators are invited to enter the Youth Public Speaking Contest at the 1986 Michigan State

Healthy women needed for bone study

More than 100 healthy white women aged 40 to 60 are needed to participate in medical research on osteoporosis, the bone-thinning disease that affects about one-third of all white women over 60.

Henry Ford Hospital's Division of Diagnostic Radiology and Divison of Bone and Mineral Metabolism are jointly sponsoring the study, which involves women's undergoing a painless 20-minute bone mass measurement performed in the hospital's Detroit campus. Participants will be paid $20.

More than 150 women have already undergone the test, results of which will be used to further knowledge of characteristics associated with osteoporosis and its early stages. Those with low bone density — who are therefore a candidate for osteoporsis or who have the disease but have not been diagnosed - will be notified.

To volunteer to participate in the study, call Debi at 876-1192.

Tour U of M this summer

High school juniors and their parents who are interested in making a campus visit of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor may do so this summer if they wish, according to Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal for student services at Grosse Pointe South High

"Small group meetings for prospective freshmen are offered by the Undergraduate Admissions Office staff at U of M most weekday mornings from May through December and on Saturday mornings from mid-September through mid-November," Luttinen said.

Students may request an individual interview, but admissions officers think that the small groups of 6 to 8 are more effective in providing information concerning the

Tour of the central campus, conducted by volunteer students, are available several times on most weekdays and on Saturdays.

Information may be requested from the Undergraduate Admissions Office or the U of M Alumni Association. Appointments for campus visits and tours may be made by calling 1-764-7433.

RSVP needs volunteers

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program of Wayne County is seeking volunteers 60 and over.

Opportunities include tutoring adults through the literacy program who have reading and/or writing problems; teaching youngsters the dangers of alco-holism through the BABES program (Beginning Alcohol and Addictions Basic Education Studies); or, providing respite care for families who have homebound, ailing seniors, through the Care-Sharing program.

Reimbursement for meals and transportation may be provided. Volunteers choose their own program and set their own hours. Training will be taking place during June and July.

COLLIE DRUG

21444 Harper Avenue • St. Clair Shores, MI 48080 • (313) 776-6122

An open letter to all Chrysler salaried employees and retirees - From Bernie, Joe and Martha of Collie Drug.

Thank you for allowing us to be your pharmacists in the past and hopefully (with your help) in the future. Starting July 1, 1986, Chrysler Corporation has decided to direct you to a level of pharmaceutical service that Collie Drug will not be able to accept. We would have to lower the level of service that you have been accustomed to receiving. Because we believe it is our duty do give everyone the same professional service. Collie Drug will not join the new Chrysler plan.

You as employees have, in the past, worked together to gain a safe place to work and descent working conditions. Your complaints can force Chrysler management to heed the warnings of health professionals who are concerned with your welfare.

Proper pharmaceutical care is less expensive in the long run. Unfortunately, many companies have only initiated safety measures for their employees when pressured to do so. Today, Chrysler is not listening to Professional Pharmasists who have your safety at

It is important for you to contact your company in writing to let them know you insist on quality Pharmaceutical care.

Shaker Heights and Grosse Pointe

The twins still look alike, but they're developing

Houses line one side of the smallest of the Shaker Lakes. Most of the lakes are in park land — and all are home to Canada geese.

An overview

This is a story of impressions. Of winding tree-lined streets, of the hum of suburban lawn-service mowers. Of joggers and BMWs and elegant homes. Shaker Heights looks just like Grosse Pointe.

There is no lakefront, but there is a chain of lakes. More than seven percent of the land in Shaker Heights is in open space.

The commercial areas are more scattered. Slice Mack Avenue into short pieces and criss-cross it and you have the commercial strips on Van Aken and Lee and Chagrin. Shaker Square is more cosmo-politan and eclectic and less posh than the Village.

Shaker residents take their city seriously. Civic involvement is the word of the day. "We've got committees coming out of our ears,' says former Mayor Walter Kelley.

There is an abundance of people eager to tell "the Shaker story." The Shaker story is one of contrasts. It is a quarter-century of integration in a city that was founded on restrictive covenants against Jews, blacks, Catholics and Italians. It is a city lavishly proud of its parks - which belong to the City of Cleveland. It is a conservative community turned liberal, a program of maintaining integration that critics call reverse steering, award-winning schools that focus efforts on underachievers.

Shaker residents still form the backbone of private schools and country clubs. Shaker Country Club lies within the city's borders and The Country Club, so exclusive it needs no other name, is nearby. Private college-preparatory schools like Laurel, University and Hathaway-Brown draw 16 percent of Shaker's school-age students. But the country-club image has shifted. As one observer put it, "Muffy has moved to Beachwood."

What is the Shaker Heights population like? Mayor Stephen Alfred: They are "talented, capable, articulate, gentlemanly, and the state of the state o capable, articulate, gentlemany, accepting of diversity, sophisticated, well-educated." Black community activist and former councilman Dr. Winston Richie: "People who want success, movers and shakers, educated." City housing official Donald De-Marco: "This community is full of folks whose sense of worth is tied to accomplishment — it's not related to who is excluded from the community.'

Grosse Pointer Steve Nelson, director of the Detroit Community Music School, has lived in Shaker Heights. "Shaker is more diverse economically," he said. "There are many distinctly working and middle-class people. It's more of a melting pot

"Grosse Pointe is the most splendid residential community I've ever seen. Shaker doesn't have the sense of community that Grosse Pointe does. On the other hand, Grosse Pointe doesn't have the diversity of people, so it's easier to be cohesive.

Census statistics from the 1950s and '60s show that Shaker Heights was both wealthier and more educated than Grosse Pointe. By 1970, Grosse Pointe Farms had closed the educational gap and pulled ahead in wealth. By 1980, most of the Pointes had pulled ahead in education as well.

Blacks in Shaker fare less well in the statistics. Although civic boards are replete with black Ph.D.'d professionals, the black community as a whole is less educated and poorer than the white. On the other hand, when compared to United States statistics for the population as a whole, Shaker blacks come out ahead. Nineteen percent of black Shakerites have completed four years of college, compared to 17 percent of U.S. whites and eight percent of U.S. blacks. The 1980 black median family income of $26,982 compared favorably to Macomb County's Blacks make up one-quarter of Shaker Heights' population — an exact match with the population of the county as a whole. But they are not evenly distributed.

"There are those of us who dream of a society that's all mixed together." said Richie, whose family was the second to integrate the Ludlow area in the late 1950s. "It does not exist in Shaker to the extent I would like.

"Integration in Shaker works pretty well," said black councilman Peter Lawson Jones. "The fact that we have to have integration maintenance programs speaks to the fact that it doesn't take care of itself. We're always walking a precarious balance. The schools are at a precarious balance right now. In a community that is one-fourth black, the schools are 44 percent black. Officials who want to sell the city and the schools as an attractive community package are worried.

Not that they are about to give up. They have worked too hard for that. Dr. Richie again: "Shaker is a city that has met the problem head-on. It really wants to stay integrated. Every year that's the number one issue. "There is a feeling among the residents that Shaker Heights is a very special place to live and they're willing to put a lot of effort into keeping it that way," said former councilwoman Kathleen Bar-

The schools are seen as the gem of the city's crown. Honored five of the last seven years for its academic program, the high school was featured most recently in the June issue of Town and Country magazine, the same issue that mentioned Grosse Pointe South and De-troit's Renaissance High for their academic excellence. The school of nearly 2,000 students "has been on nearly every list of good schools since 1956," according to USA To-

But black students figure disproportionately among the schools' underachievers. "It was thought. that when they had the advantages of the good Shaker schools, they would do well," said Barber, an assistant professor of political science at John Carroll University.

"It's a concern."

It's a school failure to address several black/white issues, according to Barbara Drossin, a school critic. She charges that the schools have not figured out flow it address an attitude among black students that academic success is a threat to their identity as blacks.

There are some real concerns regarding peer pressure, especially in upper level classes," acknowledged school Superintendent Peter Horoschak. "We're trying to develop support systems.

Mutual support systems characterize Shaker Heights life. The city is organized in nine neighborhoods named for the elementary schools. Each neighborhood has a residents' association - some more active than others.

Ask the city officials what makes Shaker an attractive place to live and they mention the schools. Ask the schools and they tell you about city services. Ask the residents and they name backyard garbage collection. Ask the city's prointegrative housing service director Don DeMarco and he responds, "We don't sell integration, we sell housing and schools. It's the best way to maintain an interracial situation.

Introduction

A great many changes have come to the inner ring of American suburbs during the last 30 years. Two weeks ago, the Grosse Pointe News went to Shaker Heights, Ohio, once the richest suburb in the United States, to see how the city has fared. We looked at schools, housing stock, crime rates and parks, and talked to residents and officials alike. What we found was a mix of contrasts and a population both cheering and fearing the changes. Shaker Heights is very like Grosse Points and completely unlike it.

Integration — a different definition

Integration means whites and blacks living together. But the common notion that the more blacks there are in a neighborhood, the more integrated it is, just isn't true - not the way Shaker Heights looks at it. Once a neighborhood has gone over a certain black percentage, it is resegregating.

Shaker has a strict criterion to go on. It applies the county-wide black population percentage to its own situation.

The city can't be considered in a vacuum. In a county that is onequarter black, it is bounded by three Cleveland neighborhoods ranging from 60 to 98 percent black. On the south is Warrensville Heights, a blue collar suburb now 75 percent black, on the north is Cleveland Heights, an older sub-urb, now, like Shaker Heights, about 25 percent black. To the east is the affluent and largely white

suburb of Beachwood.

as a whole."

"Whites are as necessary an ingredient of integration as are blacks," states one of the housing department's premises. "If Cuyahoga County's black families were distributed according to income and affordable housing throughout the county, Shaker's black population would be about 15 percent. Whites are under-represented in Shaker . . . and whites are under-represented in the school district was established to promote integrative housing choices. What that means is that white prospects are shown houses in three predominantly black neighborhoods, while blacks are shown the other six neighborhoods.

But that isn't steering, insists Director Donald DeMarco. "Steer-ing limits choices," he says. "We use our influence to increase integration, to balance living patterns. You can't get there without raceconscious means.'

Nobody is required to use the city's housing service. Blacks can move to black areas, whites to white, but they have to do it through a realty agent, not through

Last year, the office saw about 1,600 rental prospects and concluded arrangements with about 25 percent of them. It also handled about 400 single-family transactions. A paid staff of 18 and a corps of 25 volunteers keeps records and show prospects around But "the people who contact us aren't thinking integrated anything," DeMarco said. "They're attracted to distinguished housing and a school system that turns out Merit scholars. They're attracted by the aura of Shaker more than by a desire to participate in a noble experiment.

The service works with local real estate agencies, not in competition with them. It collects no commissions, and its entire $450,000 budget is provided by the city.

A new program now in the formation stages will provide lowinterest loans to prospective buyers making what the department calls "pro-integrative" choices. Up to $3,500 will be made available for a down payment, an interest rate buy-down or a mortgage supplement. The loans will be made through local banks and backed by private donations and grants to the Fund for the Future of Shaker Heights.

But it doesn't stop there. Black pressure on the cities of Shaker Heights, Cleveland Heights and University Heights prompted the three communities and their school districts to form a consortium to encourage black families to consider living in other east side communities. The Fund for the Future grants apply there as well:

Last year, the East Suburban Housing Service opened an office in nearly all-white Lyndhurst. Dr. Winston Richie is the executive di-

"We're taking the pressure off Shaker by pointing blacks toward other cities," he said. The service has been better received than expected. "Most concern exists be fore blacks move in," Richie said. "But a real live black comes in and mows the lawn and paints the house and the concern evaporates."

"The loans are not meant to subsidize anyone who can't afford to move into the area," explained Marilyn Brown, who directs the Lyndhurst office. "It's an incentive." Houses in the so-called Hillcrest area range in price from $50,000 to $350,000, according to Brown.

Neither of the two housing programs is meant in any way to direct people where to live, their proponents say. "We don't place people," Brown said. "We expand their options and they place themselves where they feel comfortable."

Two decades of political change

Shaker Heights was once a Republican enclave. Throughout the '60s, even as racial changes began to occur, there was only one Democrat on the seven-member city council.

Then in the late '60s, Stephen Alfred, a white lawyer, and Dr. Winston Richie, a black dentist who was one of the first blacks to integrate the city, both ran for the 'Democratic seat.'' Democrats feared they could not both win and that they would bleed support from one another. There were urgings for one to drop from the race.

Both men won - and started a trend. Now there is only one Republican on the council.

Since Richie was elected to council, there has always been a black in office. But the current office holder, Peter Lawson Jones, denies that it is a black seat.

"Some misguided people may see it as a black seat," he said. "It would be difficult to elect two blacks. But if you campaign diligently and have the credentials, you can win. I like to think that the day is not too far away when we could have two blacks on the council . . . There is probably a minority who would prefer to see none.

Such a sea of change in less than 20 years is difficult to explain. To some extent, it is because the population has changed. There are more blacks and Jews in the city now. Conservatives who could not accept the changes -- most visibly, integration - have left.

"Most people just grow with society's changes," said Alfred, who is now the Shaker Heights

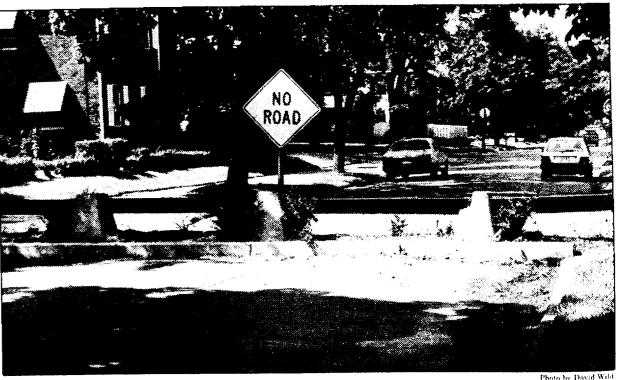

"There were lots of things in the '60s for liberals to unite on," says former councilwoman and political science professor Kathleen Barber. "The Democrats (in Shaker Heights) were very highly organized when they were the minority party. They're weak now. They've lost their sense of mission."

Integration has been the number one issue in the city ever since a black home was bombed in the late '50s. "People were shocked that such violence could happen in this community," Barber said.
But integration hasn't been the only issue. In recent years, the residents have become exercised over an abortion clinic (it stayed in Cleveland where it was), a group home (it eventually came in, with no neighborhood opposition), and an effort to expand grocery store hours by ordinance.

"The largest turnout we ever had was over the grocery store hours," said Barber, who proposed the ordinance when she was on the council. "The question was whether you could legislate closing hours. There was a big brouhaha — people were spilling out into the parking lot and insulting each

In recent months, Shaker Heights has made front-page news for its legal battle with Cleveland over street closings. In what it calls an effort to control traffic, the city closed several street and restricted turns at other intersections. Politicians in Cleveland charged racism and threatened to torpedo a county-wide 911 emergency system. The case is now before the Ohio Supreme Court.

Shaker Heights and Cleveland have battled all the way up to the Ohio Supreme Court over Shaker's right to close off streets to control traffic. "It was one of my greater learning experiences in community action," says former councilman Tom Webb, the originator of the plan. Cleveland has charged that the barricades are racially motivated; Shaker claims they had everything to do with diminishing the flow of 45,000 cars a day through the neighborhood, and nothing to do with racism.

Sally and Robert Burton have only lived outside Shaker Heights for five years of their life together.

Sally Burton was born into a Shaker Heights family that dated to 1928, five years after the planned community was founded. Bob Burton, as a son of former U.S. Supreme Court justice and Cleveland Mayor Harold H. Burton, lived in Cleveland near Shaker Square — and inside the Shaker Heights school district.

"We really feel roots here," said Sally Burton. "I feel proud of the way (Shaker Heights) has met the challenge of integration. Basically, most of the people in Shaker want it to work.

Like many Shakerites, the Burtons feel concern for the future if the black population in the schools goes over 50 percent. It stood at about 20 percent when their children were students in the system. But they see hope in the fact that there are many new young families with children in their neighborhood.

One of the big advantages of Shaker as they see it is its proximity to the city. Bob Burton rides the rapid transit downtown to work and they go often to plays and the symphony.

"We're afraid that if we lived out farther, we'd go less frequently,'

They also like the way the city works out its problems.

"The council listens and evaluates," Sally Burton said. "Intelligent people argue on both sides and find a reasonable solution. Even with the school closing that's always such an emotional issue — but it was carefully thought out. The board tried to reach out and involve people.'

One of the ways the city has attracted dedicated and thoughtful people to serve on its boards is illustrated in the schools' citizens' committee, once chaired by Bob Burton. It functions as a search committee for quality school board candidates, giving them encouragement to run, as well as the more practical consideration of assistance with campaign financing.
"It resulted in dedicated people who knew they had support," Burton said. "Almost without exception, they were elected.'

After most of a lifetime spent in a town they love, the Burtons say they have no intention of leaving. "If we look for a smaller house," Burton said, "we'd look in Shaker

JoAn Perkins takes it in stride. She and the other sixth-grade room mothers calmly pass out cupcakes and watermelon and watch the kids horse around.

She loves Shaker Heights. She and her husband came from Cleve-land 24 years ago and have raised their family here.

"It's a friendly community," Perkins said. "It's like my hometown - I know everybody.

The Perkins were the second black family on their Moreland neighborhood street and never had any problems, she says. She pauses and laughs, without visible sign of rancor.

Of course, everybody moved out when we came.'

The family has several white neighbors, but most of the area is black now. "I wish Shaker had started the program sooner," Per-kins said. "I'd like to live in a completely integrated community.'

Their youngest son, Jonathon, takes part in the school district's voluntary busing program. He has spent three years at Shaker's On-away School because, his mother says, "he wasn't working hard enough at the old school." This year, Jonathon received an award for academic achievement.

Jonathon had better do well. His parents are interested and his father is a perfectionist, says JoAn Perkins. After watching his father spend so much time and effort on the minute details of scraping paint off his house that he almost brought city ordinance enforcers down on himself, Jonathon wrote an essay on "The Perfect Father" and his expectations for his son.

JoAn Perkins' big interest is community involvement. An officer in most of her neighborhood organizations, she believes in communication between residents and officials. She works with police in a program of home safety checks and block watch, in an effort to keep crime down to a level people can live with.

"I hope we never get to the point wnere we're airaid to go out oi our houses," she said. The main community issues now are traffic and auto thefts in nearby neighbor-

. Barry and Eileen Gordon came back to Shaker 10 years ago because they wanted the diversity.

We wanted to move to a community that was dealing with we thought were important," Eileen Gordon said. "Of course, we were also interested in affordable housing and the quality of family life. They all came together here."

.But there are limits to the success of Shaker's integration, the Gordons feel. "We are successfully integrated to a limited degree," said Barry Gordon. There's a precarious balance.

There are whole sections of the community that don't worry about negative effects of integration because the cost of their housing is so high, said Gordon. "Our section is walking a tightrope. As far as we're concerned, 50-50 is great, but people get scared when it tips more than that.'

"Comfortable integration is not the appropriate word here," added his wife. "It's worrisome integration, even for liberals like us who moved here looking for it.

.The Gordons found their house through the Shaker Heights housing office, which helps families make "pro-integrative" moves. As a white family, they were shown houses in three of the city's nine neighborhoods. They selected a city-designated "landmark" house, one of the architectural models built in the heyday of the Shaker planned community, located on a street in the Lomond area that borders Cleveland.

The three neighborhoods on the Cleveland border are under in-creased stress from traffic and crime and have more blacks than whites enrolled in their schools. These factors tend to make choosing a house in another section of Shaker Heights an easy, safe, attractive option for many buyers, the Gordons feel.

"There's almost a $30,000 disparity in the price of a similar tracks," said Eileen Gordon. "We have to worry that buyers in our neighborhood won't have the money to keep up their property.'

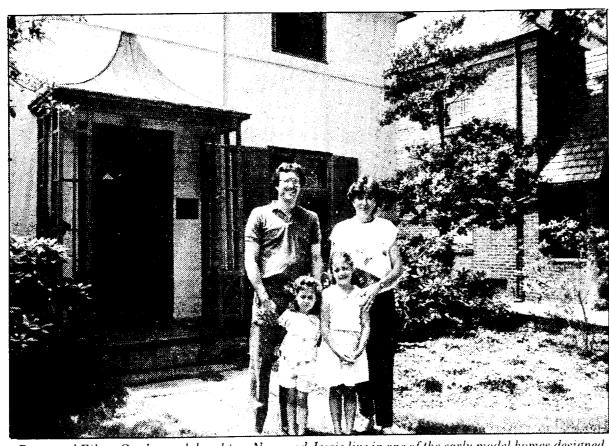

They had nothing but praise for the efforts of the police in their neighborhood. Last year, mistakenly thinking someone had entered their house at night, they called the police, who not only responded in "a couple minutes," but kept the phone line open, giving the Gordons moment-by-moment instructions.

By contrast, I once called the Cleveland police about a patient of mine who was holed up in his apartment with a gun. I wanted to alert them to a potential danger," Barry Gordon said. "They wanted me to go over to his apartment and talk him out.' Their concerns have not diminished their enthusiasm for the city, however. When they move, they will stay within Shaker Heights, they said. The positive side to the diversity is powerful.

"We went to the Shaker Square celebration last night," Eileen Gordon said. "They had opera, a black rock/soul band, some Middle Eastern singing and a school children's choir. I was proud of Shaker

Shaker Lakes

Shaker Heights is proud beyond measure of its park system. A chain of dammed lakes connected by the meandering Doan Brook, the Shaker Lakes provide a marsh walk and nature center, a picnic ground and trails for low-level recreational walking and crosscountry skiing, open for the most part to residents of any communi-

Threatened two decades ago by a 16-lane expressway, the lakes are protected fiercely by an adoring public. A freeway planner at the time inadvertently fanned the fanaticism when he wondered aloud at a meeting "why people are making such a fuss over some rinky-dink duck ponds when 100,000 people a day could admire this beautiful scenery.

Nuff said Committees now hodge the "rinky-dink duck ponds" with safeguards.

But there isn't much that can guard against the fact that the land all belongs to Cleveland. Whether it was deeded by John D. Rockefeller or the Van Sweringens seems lost in the mist of time, but the fact is that Shaker Heights leases the park property on leases scheduled to expire before the end of the cen-

Former Mayor Walter Kelley heads an ad hoc committee to explore Shaker's options. The committee has looked into the possibility of entering the land into the regional metropark system, but that has been a dead end.

"I don't know what we can do unless there's something that Cleveland wants from Shaker and we could work a trade-off," Kelley said. "The Cleveland council has a bad attitude toward the suburbs. They like to rhetorically dig Shaker Heights in the back whenever they can.'

In spite of the ongoing court battle with Cleveland over traffic barricades, Kelly is optimistic that the big city will one day do the right thing. For one thing, Cleveland residents use the parks.

"In the public mind, they are parklands," he said. "There would be a hue and cry if the park nature were destroyed. And I can't see Cleveland being so crass and brutal as to destroy those lands.

Everybody loves to feed the geese at Shaker Lakes. A group of teenagers made it their first stop when school got out last week.

Life changes

Prime time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

Life seems to be a struggle from beginning to end. A baby struggles to be born. Once here, the child struggles to adjust to the world about him; the people, the cold, the heat, the noise, the food that nourishes his body. And so it goes, constant adaptation to new experiences, some of them good, some bad, some frightening, some reassuring.

As the years go by, it is reasonable to expect that change should come easier. Yet as people grow older, it appears to be harder to accept. Much as people arrange a room so it is comfortable and cozy, a refuge from stress, so do they arrange their lives and for the same

We see this in families. A routine is built around the needs and activities of children in conversations, sports the children participate in, trips together — all part of the fabric of family life that has been carefully woven over years of shared experiences.

It is such a precious tapestry that it is almost impossible to believe that one day it will grow thin and finally unravel as each member moves out of the picture to create his or her own concept of life's portrait.

For the parents left behind with the dangling threads of a once busy and boisterous life, it is difficult at first to begin again on a new version of the old. For although it is torn, the main theme that held it together remains. The family that comprised the woof and the warp are still the mainstay.

The work remains to pick up the threads and weave a picture that will convey the new life of mom and dad, one that will be satisfying and pleasing in light of the interests they will evolve as a two-

Children move too far away for frequent visits; friends move to warmer climates to retire and the body begins to age in ways that drain energy and limit activity. They are subtle changes that are not major enough to warrant a complete redesign of life's pattern, but rather an adaptation to the un-avoidable, a reworking of one's attitudes, personal strength, a mixture of courage and acceptance that longevity has its rewards, but it also carries a price tag.

The rewards are memories of what has been accomplished, happy times with families and friends and the satisfaction of still being part of the world and able to participate in it.

The price tag differs with individuals. For those who have lost a husband or wife, it may be loneliness. For those on a limited income, it may be a curtailment of a lifestyle. For others it may be ill

The first two, loss of a life partner or a decreased income, do not affect all older people.

Unfortunately, due to the aging process, most older people will not enjoy the same level of energy nor the same quality of health that blessed their younger years.

While we are living longer, we are also experiencing more debilitating health problems, so much so that the situation has spawned a whole new medical, sociological and psychological area under the umbrella termed gerontology, devoted to helping those who must cope with the various afflictions that are part of the aging process.

"Cope" is a key word, because while "cure" is not possible in many cases, learning how to deal with a disease can make the difference between maintaining a normal life and just living life out.

For instance, many older people have arthritis. Although it also strikes younger people, the majority of those affected are older. It is currently the nation's number one crippling disease. More than 35 million Americans have arthritis.

The term arthritis actually refers to more than 100 diseases. If prompt and continuing treatment is sought, many forms of the disease can be brought under con-

Most people who develop arthritis can continue to lead productive lives — if they see a doctor soon after noticing the warning signs, follow their treatment plan closely and keep a positive look on life.

Remarkable progress has been made recently in fighting the effects of rheumatic disease. Early recognition and control of the different forms of the diseases have resulted in far fewer people developing problems.

Since early treatment is so important, it is well to know some of the warning signs. The Arthritis Foundation cites the following: swelling in one or more joints, recurring pain or tenderness in any joint, obvious redness and warmth in a joint, symptoms like these persisting for more than two

Taking medication is part of the treatment for most types of arthritis, but it must be prescribed by your doctor. When used incorrectly, it can be dangerous.

There are other factors that influence the control of pain. Stress contributes to pain, as does fatigue and depression.

Many people find that they can control their pain by taking their medication on schedule and by exercising, keeping a positive attitude and taking special care to protect their joints. Quack remedies should be avoided.

The field of rheumatology has come a long way in a short time. Before 1940 many of the diseases that are now recognized as rheumatic diseases had not yet been clearly identified and could not be distinguished from each other. Most of the drugs correctly used in treating rheumatic diseases had not been invented, were not used as they are today, or were still experimental.

Today most people with rheumatic diseases can live far better than they would have in the previous generation.

For those interested in knowing more about arthritis, the Arthritis Foundation has several publications that provide information on the causes, ways and cures for the different rheumatic diseases.

There is a Michigan chapter. The address is 23400 Michigan Ave. Suite 605, Dearborn, Mich. 48124.

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education set aside $20,000 June 16 to be used to pay administrators' bonuses this year.

The request from Superintendent John Whritner establishes a $20,000 "pool" which administrators will share in based on the number of performance points they earn in evaluation this year.

The bonus plan is an interim step until a pay-for-performance system is put into place next school year, Whritner said. The pool will be used this year only.

pay-for-performance evaluation system was recommended in an administrative organization and salary plan adopted by the board last school year.

Under the plan this year, administrators who earn evaluation points over a set minimum will share in the bonus pool proportionate to their overall point total. Those who have received a higher number of points will receive more bonus dollars. Some administrators may receive no bonus, Whritner told the board.

In the past three years, the bonuses paid out to administrators have totaled between $16,120 and $22,690, according to school offi-

Whritner and Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli plan to complete administrative evaluations during June. Performance points are granted on a number of criteria, including their assigned work on goals set by the board, Whritner said.

Obituaries

Josephine Carmody Fitzsimons

A memorial service will be held at St. Peter and Paul Jesuit Church on East Jefferson Friday, June 27, at 10 a.m. for Mrs. Fitzsimons of LaJolla, Calif., formerly of Grosse Pointe City, who died June 11 in California.

Mrs. Fitzsimons was born in Grand Rapids.

She was a successful businesswoman, who worked in industrial sales in the Detroit area until her

She was a member of the St. Paul Catholic Church Altar Society, League of Catholic Women and the Jesuit Society

She is survived by three daughters, Ann Gotfredson, Joan Barry and Mary Kirchner; two sons, Charles C. and Thomas M.; 15 grandchildren; and 19 greatgrandchildren.

Mrs. Fitzsimons was preceded in death by her husband, Court-

Interment will be at Mount Olivet Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to St. Peter and Paul Jesuit Church or to the charity of the donor's choice.

Marie G. Lathrop

Funeral services were held Friday, June 13, at Christ Church for Marie G. Lathrop, 98, a lifelong resident of Grosse Pointe, who died June 11 at Moroun Nursing Home, Mrs. Lathrop was born in Michigan, and was a pet buyer for J.L. Hudson Co. for 35 years. She attended Liggett School and Oakmere School, Long Island, N.Y.

She was a member of Christ Church and active with Planned Parenthood. She is survived by a daughter,

William R. Hamilton Company, Groesbeck Chapel. Older

By 2030, there will be about 65 million older people, two and one-half times their number in 1980. If current fertility and im-migration levels remain stable, the only age groups to experience significant growth in the next century will be those past age 55.

Thomas Joseph Wachter

Funeral services will be held for Thomas Joseph Wachter at 10 a.m. Friday, June 27, at St. Paul Catholic Church, 157 Lakeshore.

Wachter, 44, a long-time Grosse Pointe resident, died June 21 at his home in Bay Shore after a long illness. For a number of years Wachter taught mathematics and coached baseball at Martin De Porres High School. He then left teaching for a career in construction where he was a licensed builder and an estimator locally and in Northern Michigan.

A graduate of St. Paul Grade School and Austin Preparatory High School, he also received a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics from St. Bernard College of Cullman, Ala.

An avid golfer and sportsman, Wachter was also a member of the Detroit Builders Exchange and the Audubon Society.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Kathryn; two sons, Brian Russell and Thomas J. Jr.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood W. Wachter; and two brothers, Ellwood W. Jr. and John Charles.

Visitation will be held Thursday, June 26, from 6 to 9 p.m. at A.H. Peters Funeral Home, Mack and Vernier. An 8 p.m. prayer service will be conducted by the Rev. Jerry Singer.

The family asks that in lieu of flowers donations be made to the Thomas J. Wachter Memorial Nursing Education Fund of the Northern Michigan Health Foundation, c/o Northern Michigan Hospitals, Petoskey, Mich. 49770.

Ernest Alden

Funeral services were held Friday, June 20, at A.H. Peters Funeral Home for Ernest J. Alden, 60, of Grosse Pointe, who died June 17 at St. John Hospital. Mr. Alden had been a school teacher in the Grosse Pointe Public School System for 30 years prior to his retirement in July 1983.

He was born in New Haven, Conn. and graduated from Wayne State University with a masters degree in education in 1959.

He was a member of the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe, the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library and the Grosse Pointe Association for Retarded Citizens.

He is survived by his mother. Agnes Hamilton Alden; a son, David; two daughters, Barbara Young and Nancy Pecar; five grandchildren; and a brother, John Kenneth.

Interment was at Grandlawn Cemetery.

Saad wins scholarship

Suzanne Saad was recently awarded a $1,000 University of Michigan Regents' Alumni Scholarship. Edward J. Shine, South principal, presented the scholarship to her. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Saad of the Park.

North student wins trip to Mexico

North High School sophomore Rohit Krishna is a firm believer in planning ahead — even if it means it makes life a little inconvenient right now

During this school year he's carried seven courses so he can "get ahead," and he's planning to take a SAT course this summer even though it means he'll have to delay a trip to Mexico given him as the first place winner for the State of Michigan on the National Spanish Examination.

The test, administered by teachers and sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese, was given earlier this year. Krishna's score of 73 correct responses out of 80 carried him through the state competition to be named the winner of a nine-day trip to Mexico City and Acapulco.

Krishna is not a newcomer to traveling. A former resident of New York, California and Brazil, he's had the opportunity to visit most of the South American countries, India and Mexico. However, he insists that having been to Mexico doesn't lesson the excitement of having won a trip back there again. This summer's plans to take an SAT course has delayed the excursion to the summer of '87. Krishna began his study of Spanish when he lived in California and plans to continue with it throughout high school. While he understands his parents when they speak Hindi, he says he would be hard-pressed to respond.

North's Herman heads to Duke Landers awarded St. Paul scholarship

Christopher Herman has been accepted to the Duke University pre-college program for the academically talented. He will be at Durham, N.C., for six and one-half weeks this summer.

Richard Matt Reynolds

The program is designed to provide the scholastic challenge of college-level courses to highly qualified students and to help them prepare for the adjustments they will be making as college fresh-

Only one of every 20 students who apply are accepted for this program.

Brownell holds recognition day

More than half the students at Brownell Middle School were honored May 23 for their academic accomplishments for the 1985-86 school year.

Donald Messing, principal of Brownell Middle School, and Jon Gandelot, president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, awarded certificates to students for the following achievements:

Presidential Academic Fitness Award, presented to eighth graders only; Academic Achievement and Citizenship Awards; Free Press Writing Awards; Martin Luther King Award of Recognition: Spelling Bee Certificates; Michigan Education Assessment Program Certificates; Michigan Mathematics League Certificates; and Awards of the French Institute of Detroit.

The awards were presented to the students during a luncheon at which they were invited to participate because of their outstanding achievement. Many parents and grandparents were on hand to congratulate the students.

Herman will enroll in two courses consisting of lectures, discussions and laboratory sessions. He will have access to all of Duke's libraries and athletic facilities. The course will be taught by members of the Duke faculty.

There will also be time for concerts, cookouts, movies, speakers, sports and field trips. One such field trip opportunity will be a trip to the Duke University Marine

John Kastran, North High School principal, said, "This is a very demanding academic program. We are proud that Chris Herman has been selected and wish him well.'

Megan Landers, an eighth grade student at St. Paul Elementary School, has been chosen the reci-pient of the 1986 St. Paul Parish Scholarship.

As the winner, Megan will receive $400 toward her tuition at Regina High School. By maintaining at least a "B" academic average, she will be eligible for consecutive payments of $400 for each year of high school.

Megan is the daughter of Sharon Landers and the late Michael Landers. She was born in Brussels. Belgium and moved to the United States when she was 12.

She has one sister, Karen, who is a student at the University of Michigan. Her grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Landers of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Runners-up in the 1986 competition were Brendan Henry, who attends University of Detroit Academy, and Christine Rondini, who attends St. Paul School.
The St. Paul Parish Scholarship competition is open to any eighth grader in the parish who plans to attend a Catholic high school. Last year's winner was Dorothy DeFauw, who has maintained a 4.0 average at Regina High School and has qualified for the second installment of her award. The scholarship is funded by the St. Paul Educational Trust Fund.

47 bells ring in harmony in Memorial carillon

The largest bells in the Memorial Church carillon were installed when the tower was built in 1927. These eight bells form the bottom octave of the carillon. Thirty-nine more bells were added in 1952, making the chimes a carillon. Below, William De Turk plays a tune at the console in the tower room, one level below the bells. De Turk is also the official carillonneur for the University of Michigan. He is only the fourth carillonneur to hold the position.

Carillonneurs mark 50th anniversary with chiming performances

By Elsa Frohman

Twenty-three bells make a carillon, but it takes a carillonneur to make music. This year, the Guild of Carillonneurs in North America will celebrate its 50th anniversary — and my won't the bells ring for that celebration.

William De Turk, director of music at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, has been a carillonneur for 18 years. He plays not only the 47-bell carillon in the tower of the church, but is also the official carillonneur for the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

On Tuesday, July 8, Memorial Church will host a performance of the world's largest traveling cartable carillon.

Yes, a traveling carillon. Though traditionally a carillon must be mounted in a tower and would be difficult to move as much as an inch, let alone taken on a national tour, the Olsen Nauen carillon is a notable exception. Built in 1984 and mounted on a truck, the Norwegian traveling carillon has 52 cast bronze bells visibly hung in a self-contained steel frame designed for easy mo-

"It's so big, it's classed as an oversized vehicle," De Turk said. 'They've had to get special permits to take it from state to state.'

The traveling carillon provides a special opportunity to actually see the belis as they are played. The carillon is in Detroit in coniunction with the World Carillon Federation's seventh International Congress in Ann Arbor and Bloomfield Hills.

Carillonneurs are a special breed. They play the largest and the most massive musical instrument imaginable, yet the results can be as delicate and melodious as any instrument made. De Turk became interested in the carillon while working on a masters degree in organ at the University of Michigan.

"Why does anyone start playing a musical instrument?" De Turk said. "Because you like the sound."

De Turk explained that learning the carillon is not difficult for anyone with a solid background in piano and organ. The instrument is played on a console of levers arranged like the white and black keys of a piano, with the notes in the lower ranges duplicated on foot pedals like an organ.

"We think of a piano as a stan-dardized instrument," De Turk said. "It always has 88 keys. But carillons vary greatly in size and sound. It must have a minimum of 23 bells, covering two octaves (Continued on Page 4B)

Carillon concert . . .

A true carillon must also have an "expressive" keyboard, according to De Turk. Some bells are played by electric or electronically assisted keyboards that eliminate the variations in intensity that can be produced with a mechanical system.

An astounding variety of carillons are located in the immediate Detroit area, De Turk said. The carillon at Kirk in the Hills, in Bloomfield Hills is the largest in the world, consisting of 77 bells. However, the number of bells is only one measure of a carillon. The instruments are also rated by the weight of the bells — an indication of how low the music can go. The largest bell at Kirk in the Hills is a light-weight, compared to the largest bell in the Ann Arbor carillon on the university campus. The largest carillon in the world in weight is in the Riverside Church in New York City.

The carillon at Memorial Church is average, neither a heavy-weight, nor a feather-weight. The largest bell there weighs 4,700 pounds, playing a C-sharp. There are 47 bells in all, the smallest weighing 15 pounds. The largest bell is more than 4 feet in diameter and the clapper weighs 50 pounds by itself.

Memorial Church gained its carillon in 1952 on the 25th anniversary of the completion of the church building. The church tower originally contained a set of eight chimes, the eight lowest bells in the current carillon. For the 25th anniversary, 39 more utes this to an over-popularity of bells were added to make the chimes in the 19th century. chimes into a carillon.

system to bring the sound of the bells into the room. De Turk's carillon classes made a practice keyboard necessary, because the less than perfect music of students often bothered the church's neighbors. The practice board is a duplicate of the console, with small chimes attached to the levers, simulating the music - quietly.

The carillon is really a public instrument," De Turk said. "You can't just play it for yourself."

Carillons were first developed in Europe as part of the town clock. At first, it was just the hours that were chimed. Then a short tune was added to alert listeners that the hours would be counted. The next step was to add fractional hours. In some towns, the clock would chime as often as every seven and a half minutes.

"It was often the only way peo-ple had to tell time," De Turk

As more bells were added to make the tunes more elaborate, musicians thought of the idea of making the carillon a "playable" instrument.

The first clock carillons were played by a music box mechanism with a rotating cylinder with protruding pegs to play the notes. The town carillonneur would arrange the pegs to play whatever tune was called for. Later, the keyboard was designed to make direct playing possible.

Many Americans have heard music from bell towers that seemed unmelodious and sometimes even unpleasant. De Turk attrib-

The movement of the 50-pound clappers on the largest bells are assisted by springs, but beyond that, the force of the carillonneur's arm is the only energy in the system.

The demonstration of the transportable carillon at Memorial Church on July 8 at 7:30 p.m. will be free to the public. Carillonneur will be Timothy Hurd, national carillonneur of New Zeland and Scandinavian Carillon School faculty member. Sydney Shep, carillonneur of Toronto University will also perform.

A store full of furniture is not necessarily a furniture store. We at Forster's believe there is much more to it than that. And the fact that we have been in business for nearly half a century indicates we are right.

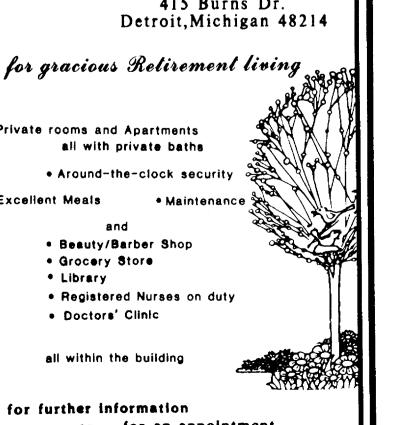

At Forster's we believe in the best...furniture of the best quality...accessories in the best taste...best selection on our sales floors...best interior design service...best lines of home furnishings and accessories, including Drexel-Heritage, Herend, Mottahedeh, LaBarge, Ebeling & Reuss, Frederick Cooper, Wildwood and others. We don't think there is anything better.

And...if you think that's fussy, you should see how carefully we select our staff. We will have only qualified and experienced people who have the ability, concern and disposition to totally dedicate themselves to the needs of the customer.

Yes...we're picky. We have to be...because you, the customer with discriminating taste, must be picky too.

Founders Day

The Grosse Pointe Alumnae Chapter of Delta Gamma Sorority celebrated Founders Day on March 8. Members gathered in the trophy room at the Detroit Yacht Club on Belle Isle. Guest speaker, Dr. Phillip C. Hessburg, addressed the Grosse Pointe Chapter as well as Birmingham and Detroit West Suburban Delta Gammas, with a presentation on "Ocular Poppycock." Jane Schneider and Barbara Trost, both of the Woods, served as co-hostesses. Pictured, left to right, are Jan Hankins, president Detroit West Suburban chapter; Ann Baxter, president Grosse Pointe chapter; Dr. Phillip C. Hessburg; and Gwen Lane, president Birmingham Delta Gamma chapter.

Clarification

In last week's Gardener's Shed column, it was stated that the Grosse Pointe Rose Society takes care of the rose garden in front of the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

We received several calls afterward, pointing out that it is not the Rose Society, but an individual who cares for the roses - Margaret Young, who lives on McMillan Road in the

We checked into this and out found that everybody was correct. The Rose Society does donate the plants and other materials to maintain the garden. However, it is Young who does the work. She and her husband have been maintaining the roses for the past nine years.

Young is a member of the Grosse Pointe Rose Society and deserves commendation for this long standing contribu-tion to the beauty of our community.

It's nice to observe that sometimes a correction isn't a matter of wrong and right, but rather right and right.

The prizes were $10,000, $2,000 and $1,000 and were awarded at a gala party in the school on Saturday, May 31. Shown presenting the check is Eugene Gargaro, a member of the school's Board of Trustees who served with Neil Georgi, also a board member, as co-chairman of the ticket committee. Barnes and Moore each held one-fourth interest, with two other staff members from Liggett, in one of the winning tickets in the 500 ticket lottery. Other winners were William Darby, Leeann Konrad and Beth Birgbauer. Proceeds from the lottery and party will benefit the school.

Molded salads add a special touch to any meal

Healthful salads with eyeappeal lend a festive note to everyday meals as well as the superb buffet gatherings. Prepared ahead, a molded salad is ready to pop on the table at mealtime with no extra trouble.

The following selection of molded salads is from the low-calorie. low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Cranberry-Orange Relish Mold

A most refreshing and delightful salad especially with roast turkey, duck or any other fowl. Its bright red color enhances any buffet

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1/2 cup boiling water 1 small orange, cut up (including peel)
- 3 cups fresh cranberries, washed and drained In blender container over cold water, sprinkle gelatin and let stand three to four minutes. Add boiling water, cover and process at stir (low) until gelatin dissolves, about two minutes. Add sugar and cut up orange, cover and process at grind (high) until finely chopped. Add cranberries, cover and process two to three cycles or until finely chopped.

Pour into a four-cup mold or eight individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on frilly lettuce leaves and garnish with half 3 Tblsp. gelatin orange slices and fresh cran-

Wreath Salad

- 2 cans jellied cranberry sauce 1 Tblsp. granulated gelatin 1/4 cup cold water
- Small bunch Tokay grapes 1 small can crushed pineapple 1/2 cup chopped nuts

Turn the cranberry sauce out of the cans into the top of the double boiler and break it up very fine with a fork. Place over hot water for a few moments, until melted. Soak the gelatin in the cold water for five minutes, and dissolve by placing the cup in hot water for a minute or so. Add to the cranberry sauce and let cool.

Seed enough grapes to make one cup. Drain the pineapple well. Add the fruits and nuts to the gelatin mixture. Chill until it begins to thicken, then turn into a ring mold which has been slightly oiled with salad oil. Refrigerate until set.

It is best to make this salad the day before to insure firmness. An hour or so before serving turn molded salad onto a large serving platter and garnish with watercress leaves and red cinnamon candies, to look like a holly wreath. Pass a dish of mayonnaise thinned with the pineapple syrup. Serves eight.

Gingerale Salad

- 4 Tblsp. cold water
- 1/3 cup boiling water 2 cups low-calorie gingerale
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 2 Tblsp. sugar 1 cup finely chopped tart apple
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 1 cup crushed pineapple, drained 1/4 cup crystallized ginger, very finely chopped

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water and let stand 15 minutes. Add boiling water and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Stir in gingerale, lemon juice and sugar until thoroughly blended. Let stand in refrigerator until it begins to thicken. Then stir in apples, celery, pineapple and ginger. Pour into a mold. Preserved kumquats add a bright note of color to a delicious salad when used as a garnish. Makes eight cups. In saucepan, combine syrup servings.

Calories about 72 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

Strawberry Ring

- 2 pkgs. (3 ounce) low-cal strawberry gelatin
- 2 cups boiling water 2 pkgs. frozen sliced strawberries
- 1-1/2 cups crushed pineapple 2 large fully ripe bananas, finely
- diced

2 Tblsp. lemon juice Dissolve gelatin in water. Add strawberries, stirring occasionally until thawed. Stir in pineapple, banana and lemon juice. Pour into well oiled 6-1/2 cup mold. Chill until firm about five to six hours. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Serves eight.

Yogurt Dressing

- 1 carton (8 ounces) low-cal plain yogurt
- 1 tsp. sugar 2 Tblsp. very finely diced candied

ginger Thoroughly combine all ingredients and serve with the Strawberry Ring. Makes one cup.

Spiced Mandarin Ring

- 1 can (11 ounces) mandarin orange sections
- 6 inches stick cinnamon 1/2 tsp. whole cloves
- 2 pkgs. low-cal orange gelatin 2 cups cold water
- 3 Tblsp. lemon juice 1/3 cup coarsely chopped English walnuts

Drain oranges reserving syrup. Add water to syrup to make 1-3/4 mixture and spices. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Remove from heat and let stand covered to steep.

Add gelatin to syrup mixture. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Add cold water and lemon juice. Chill until partially set. Stir in oranges and nuts; turn into well oiled six cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold onto plate of crisp greens. Makes eight serv-

Dill Pickled Beet Salad

The piquancy of the dill beets impart an unusually delicious flavor to this quick and easy salad. Garnish with a wreath of crisp, fresh parsley and cucumber half moons, it is a beauty to behold.

- 1 jar (16 ounces) dill pickled sliced beets
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup beet liquid
- 1/2 cup boiling water 1/2 cup cold water
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 cup shredded green cabbage 1/2 cup thinly sliced green onions
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery

Drain beets, reserving 1/2 cup liquid. Cut beet slices into julienne strips and set aside. Soak gelatin in beet liquid for five minutes. Add to boiling water, stirring until dissolved. Stir in cold water and lemon juice. Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in vegetables. Spoon salad into a six or eight cup mold. Unmold to serve to six.

Calories about 67 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

LINC members look back at a productive year past and beginnings for graduates, bridal couples and organizations like Operation LINC. For those directly involved it brings the bittersweet experience of leaving something special behind and welcoming something new and exciting.

This year LINC members took some time to evaluate their organization, to question goals, the purpose and methods. After considerable deliberation it was decided that LINC is just as vital and necessary now as it was 15 years ago when it was organized by the Junior League of Detroit.

This year LINC distributed $200,000 worth of goods to 90 different agencies. For a decade and a half they have been providing everything from building materials to diapers for the homeless, abused and forgotten of the metropolitan area. Other organizations do similar work but no one provides services and merchandise free of charge.

Because of this unique quality of LINC's, it sometimes has a difficult time making ends meet. Fundraisers are as predictable as the change of seasons at LINC and this year's events were fun

June is the month of endings and profitable as well. The fall winetasting party, winter Monte Carlo Party, spring flower sale and Memorial Day rummage sale were all satisfying projects for both LINC volunteers and the public.

Through these events and other non-profitmaking activities like the East Warren Parade, the Grosse Pointe Thanksgiving Parade and talks to civic groups like the Grosse Pointe Woods Lions Club, LINC endeavors to acquaint others with its chief enterprise: linking individuals to needs in the community — acting as a conduit from the donor to the needy.

Perhaps the most well known of these efforts is the annual Foster Care Program. This year Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods school children donated more than 1,800 Christmas gifts which LINC in turn distributed to foster care children in the metro area. Obviously, efforts like these are valuable to both the givers and the receivers.

At Eastertime LINC was fortunate to receive over 300 Easter baskets from the Michigan Candy Dealers Association which again brought a glow to many happy children's faces.

porations like Comerica find small organizations like LINC as they did this spring when they asked LINC to find homes for 500 stuffed animals and 3,000 posters which had been produced for the Olympics at Sarajevo. And in turn, it is most heartwarming when the Detroit Recreation Department's Partners Program selects LINC to receive an award of appreciation for its contributions to the department's programs as it did at a dinner on June 24.

This year, and every year, LINC endeavors to touch the community, the corporate world and its own volunteers. Opportunities to organize fundraisers, write grant proposals, operate the computer, speak to groups, recruit new volunteers, interview new agencies, work in the office, write news articles, or simply be an Indian for someone else's chief are all available options for the LINC volunteer.

Every opportunity for a volunteer is an opportunity for LINC because its volunteers bring so much of themselves to the organization. This year the Outstanding

It is gratifying when large cor- Volunteer Award was presented to Sylvia Russell whose consistent hard work over the couse of many years has provided the means toward many ends on the fundraising staff. LINC is also indebted to the enthusiastic patrons in the community who have contributed gifts of every description.

At the beginning of the year the group decided that all the activities that LINC sponsors and all the cooperation between donor and receiver that LINC generates, and all the good work and good will that LINC accomplishes are worth the hard work, frustrations and pitfalls that may be encountered along the way.

In July LINC begins its new fiscal year with a very optimistic forecast. The future planning committee has been meeting for weeks to structure short and two year goals which bode the best possible outlook for LINC. Christine Litka, the outgoing president, invites anyone with time and energy to join her and the new board and all the members of LINC in continuing the very worthy tradition of LINC in service to the community.

Bits and pieces of an unusual week

It's been a funny week, what with covering hockey in June and some rather interesting submissions from the News' legion Little League and soccer correspondents. Check this out . .

Attended my very first National Hockey League entry draft in Montreal last weekend. It's a pretty interesting process, what with representatives from all 21 teams seated at tables in the middle of an historic hockey arena like the Montreal Forum, wheeling and dealing right down to the last minute before the draft.

... Something like 4,000 people PAID their way into the Forum to watch the proceedings - more than I've seen at some Red Wing games.

The Woods' Jimmy Carson, the No. 2 pick of the draft, has played away from home for three years now. I've seen him skate against some rather formidable junior hockey defenses and never get as nervous as he was before the draft last week. The kid has a lot of poise, though, smiling and answering the same questions from the army of radio, TV and print media which dogged his every step before, during and after the draft.

... Best name of the draft: Zarley Zalapski, chosen No. 4 in the draft by the Pittsburgh Penguins. (I want to be in the Zarley Zalapski Fan Club).

... The "We Know Why He Was Picked" entry: Everett Sanipass, who played on Carson's junior team in Verdun, Quebec. Sanipass had 320 penalty minutes in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League; that was something like 190 more minutes more than the next-most penalized player chosen in the top 21. Really, though, NHL experts peg Sanipass to play well for the Chicago Blackhawks; he racked up 89 assists last season at left wing . . . not bad considering his pugilistic prowess kept him off the ice a

You've got to love Montreal Canadiens' fans. They cheered loudly every time the video screen showed anything remotely connected with the Stanley Cup champs and booed viciously whenever a Quebec-Nordique was shown on the screen. You know, just like what happens at most North-South contests.

What boggled my mind most in watching the draft proceedings was not that these 17- and 18-year-old kids were on the verge of becoming very wealthy and very famous (after all, they deserve whatever they can get since most of them have been working toward it since about age 6), but rather that a room full of otherw polite, well-mannered reporters and broadcast media people can lay waste to a pretty table full of finger-food quicker than you can say "Zarley Zalapski." We're talking piranhas, here.

Anyway, it was great fun and I'll be back for next year's draft, which will be held in the friendly confines of Joe Louis

Steve Ganshert, who spends his weekends hunched over, pen and paper in hand, trying to collate tons of Little League runs, hits, walks and errors into a few recognizable sentences for publication in this paper, has obviously been out in the sun too long. Before ne's put his typewriter away after typing up last week's Little League summary, Ganshert dashed off this tongue-incheek story:

Last night's game between _ was another bottom-bruising exhibition (for the scorer on the hard bench). While it was cold, at least it was raining to complete the standard weather for one of these games. The game started late so it could end late, making up for all the excitement.

It was strictly a defensive battle; won by a score of 27-23. It was highlighted by effective pitching — only 37 walks and three hit batters, a hit umpire, two bystanders struck by wild pitches and one near-miss by lightning. The "mercy rule" was invoked four times in the fiveinning marathon.

_ won the "Golden Glove" award for the game; he didn't drop a thrown or hit ball . . . because none were thrown or hit in his direction. Parents, as always, remained quiet, uninvolved and made no comment about the umpiring, coaching, play at the field or at the plate.

At the end of the game, the scorer realized with optimism that he only had 10 more years of pleasures of this sort to look forward to. In three weeks of games, the "whether" rule has only been invoked once . . . I don't know whether or not I can stand to sit through a whole game.

I have a nifty photo of a local soccer team sitting on my desk, complete with the names of each player written on the back. It's a nice photo, but there isn't much I can do with it until somebody tells me what team it is, what they did this year, etc., you know, all the unimportant details. Call me at 882-0294 and let me know, okay?

Hollywood-bound High-scoring Pointe product will skate for NHL's Los Angeles Kings

By Peggy O'Connor

The home of the stars has a brand new one: Grosse Pointe's Jimmy Carson.

Hockey fans know by now that the 17-year-old high scoring center for the Verdun Junior Canadiens was chosen No. 2 overall by the Los Angeles Kings in last weekend's National Hockey League Entry Draft. But they might not know that the 6-0, 185-pound Carson was a "star" way back in his Grosse Pointe Hockey Association Mite

The Mite House Stars was Carson's first GPHA team, back in 1974-75. Even then, he played above his age level, said Alan Henchel, who managed Carson's Blue Devils Mite Travel 1975-76.

"I remember that we hosted a Squirt tournament one year and we invited Redford's second-year Squirt team to play. They turned out to be the state champs that year and we met them in the finals of this invitational and ended up beating them in overtime.

"Jimmy got the winning goal, I think. And he was an 8-year-old playing against 10-year-olds. But that was Jimmy, always playing one year above his age level . . . and yet fitting in very well," Hen-

At 16, Carson left his Compuware Midget team after scoring 80 goals and 165 points to move to Montreal and play at the Junior A level. That year (1984-85) he broke the league's rookie scoring record of 96 points set by future No. 1 draft Mario Lemieux. Carson finished with 110 points.

This past winter, he was again among the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's leading scorers with 70 goals and 83 assists for 153 points - a performance that earned him a No. 2 ranking in the NHL's Central Scouting Bureau.

CARSON IS fluent in French and enjoyed his two years in Montreal. He grew up as a "rink rat" in Detroit, hanging around Olympia Stadium and Joe Louis Arena, following the careers of Los Angeles Kings' veteran center Marcel Dionne and of his idol, Montreal great Guy LaFleur. The Canadiens have long been favorites of Carson.

Montreal was determined to get Carson in last week's draft, attempting until the last hours before the draft to get the Kings draft choice in a trade.

But Kings' general manager Rogie Vachon refused to swap and to the surprise of almost no one, chose Carson telling reporters that the high-scoring center would fit in well in L.A. Dionne is nearing the end of his career and Carson is widely mentioned as his successor.

Carson, who had admitted one day earlier that the trade talk and switching of pre-draft rankings had left him a little anxious, smiled slowly and accepted congratulations from his parents Chuck and Maria, his sister Kalli a North High senior, and Junior Canadiens public relations director Lynn Malbouef when Vachon made him the down from the crowded Forum stands to the cheers of the partisan Montreal fans, donned a Kings' Jersey with his name and the No. 3 emblazoned on the back, and was immediately besieged by radio, TV and newspaper reporters.

"I'm very, very happy. I think it'll be great to play in Los Angeles," Carson said. "I'm excited . . . to be chosen second overall is quite an honor. And to play in the NHL is a dream come true

It is unusual for an 18-year-old player (Carson turns 18 in July) with junior eligibility remaining to step right into the NHL and play regularly, but Carson feels that it is a challenge he can meet.

"I'll give it a shot and work hard in training camp to make it happen," he said.

He added that the extensive travel Los Angeles must endure during the grueling 80-game season probably won't bother him much. "That's not surprising," said Carson's father. "He's always been a travel-horse . . . he just loves to get on a plane and go to

The Carsons say they will try to get out to see Jimmy play as often as possible. "I'll miss him a lot when he goes out there," said Kalli Carson. "We're 14 months apart and we've always been close. But I want him to do well; whatever is best for Jimmyu is okay with me,

"WE'RE VERY happy for him," said his father. "This is a proud day, the culmination of lots of years of hard work."

Another proud observer of Saturday's draft, via the newspapers, was Henchel, who said he felt that although it might be difficult at first for Carson to adjust to the pro game, that he would eventually be "When they're Mites, you just help teach them the game. You hope that you have some input into their success, but you really have no idea where they will go.

'Something like this, well, it makes you feel awfully proud.'

YANKEES-TIGERS

The Yankees emerged from a defensive duel with the top-notch Farms-City Tigers with a 3-1 victory. Chris Nixon made two superb defensive plays at second to start the game. Carl Melchior scored the first Yankee run on Kevin Rauch's second inning double. Matt Recht and Josh Christ batted in the other runs, scoring Sean Recht and Kyle Hoye, who had walked. Hoye got the win, giving up two hits and striking out three in three scoreless innings. M. Recht struck out five of the 13 Tigers he faced in three innings. Tiger catcher Brad Dunlap played well defensively and scored the Tigers' only run in the sixth. Dunlap, Tucker and Barfield hit singles. Maycock and Tucker pitched for the Tigers.

ORIOLES-CARDINALS The Orioles outscored the Cards, 20-8. Matt Jacklyn, Matt Bentley and Aaron McNally pitched for the Orioles; Donny DeSeranno, Danny Commer and Danny Paull threw for the Cards. Hitting for the Orioles were Tom Rajt (homer, single, three RBI), Tim Jogan (two RBI, singles, home run), Scott Lupo, Jacklyn and Jesse Jarvis (doubles), and Aaron Bookvich, Aaron McNally and John Prom (singles). Commer doubled for the Cards, who also got hits from Chad Shomaker, Kevin Barnes, DeSeranno (three) Commer, Eddie Dorda, Ryan McCartney and Chris Holly.

NOTRE DAME-MICHIGAN

Notre Dame handed Michigan its first loss of the season, 8-2. Andy Crowley (two innings) and Kevin Schroeder (four) pitched well. Don Leal (triple) and Cory Schroeder (single, triple) led the offense; Justin Braun and Robbie Bacon chipped in with doubles. Ryan Hathaway and Eric Vreland played well in the field. For Michigan, John Rutherford (21/3 inning), Jason Jodway (13/3 inning) and Dave Cusmano pitched well. Cusmano also doubled and Jodway added a triple for Michigan; Ryan McCain and Chris Dettmer played well defensively, keeping Michigan in striking distance.

WISCONSIN-MICHIGAN STATE Wisconsin edged MSU, 10-9, behind the complete game pitching of Terry

Campagna. Brian Brenner (double, two singles) and Richard Spencer (dou-ble) led the offense and Jeff Nyenhuis and Tony Patanella played well on defense, turning in a double play. Kevin Fitzgerald pitched a complete game for Michigan State. Charles O'Laughlin (triple), Chris Dobranski (triple) and Matt Moser (two singles) led the of-fense; John O'Laughlin and Greg Miller were outstanding defensively. WISCONSIN-OHIO STATE

Brenner pitched a complete game for Wisconsin as it edged Ohio State, 15-14. Patanella (two doubles, single), and Nyenhuis (game-winning double), Campagna and Spencer (two singles each) and John Scheff (three singles) led the offense. Ohio State pitchers Paul Sippola, Joe Bourgeault, John Brooks and Adam Rhodes threw well; Tim Addy (double, two singles), Sippola (triple, two singles) and Rhodes (three singles) led the offense.
NOTRE DAME-ILLINOIS

Notre Dame beat Illinois, 14-6, behind the pitching of Braun (three innings), Crowley (two innings) and K. Schroeder (one inning). Leal (double, single), Crowley (double), Chris Hyatt, Mark Campbell and Vreland (singles) got the ND hits. Leal turned in an unassisted double play in the third. NAVY-RANGERS

Navy outlasted the Rangers, 18-15, as Ryan Berg's homer in the sixth sparked a Navy rally which gave them the lead. Joe Calarco had a hit in every at bat for the Rangers. Joey Suski turned in an excellent job defensively, including an unassisted double play.

AIR FORCE-RANGERS Air Force defeated the Rangers, 24-16, behind the offensive punch of Mike Lahey, Alex Bieri (home runs), and Ryan Morrison, Jon Van Hoek and Lahey (triples). The Rangers' Jeff Verlinden and Calarco had extra base hits.

AIR FORCE-NAVY Air Force topped Navy, 24-14. Kyle McCarthy (home run), Van Hoek and Jason Peralta (triples) led the Air Force hitting attack. Suski (three doubles) and Aaron Pokorny had hits in each at bat for Navy ARMY-RANGERS

David Pulis, Brian Degnore and Tom Chouinard were perfect at the plate and Ryan Juif turned in a double play in the field to help Army beat the Rangers, 27-21. Steve King and Jack Ryan had big days at the plate for the Rangers.

COAST GUARD-RANGERS
Home runs by Billy Faber and Jimm Michael and doubles by John Moxey, Joey Williamson and Dan Bruechert helped Coast Guard overpower the Rangers, 21-9. Jack Ryan, Tim Kimmel and Matt Farr had extra base hits for the Rangers.
MARINES-ARMY

The Marines took an 8-2 victory over Army, behind the pitching efforts of Billy Sumner, Matt Weaver, Todd Mc-Cain and Kelly Taylor. David Pulis and Eddie Fuller threw for Army. Alan Behler pulled off a fourth inning double play for the Marines, who also got runs from Carrie Price, Behler, Jeremy Price, Steve Smihal and Taylor (two each) and Weaver. Chouinard and Juif scored for Army.

Farms-City Majors

INDIANS-ASTROS The Indians held off a last inning rally by the Astros to take a 16-14 win. Dan Teranes was the winning pitcher; he also had four hits, including a double and a triple. John Jungwerth got the save, striking out the last batter to end the rally. The Indians' offense also featured a home run, double and single by Kevin Brennen and four hits by Tom Kolojeski. Bobby Steffes led the Astros with three hits; Brit Stebbins, Jay Harrington, Dan LeFebvre and Michael Gandelot had two hits apiece. TIGERS-DODGERS

John Maycock drove in the winning run in the bottom of the sixth as the Tigers topped the Dodgers, 10-9. Maycock, Lanny Tracy and Matt Galnot pitched for the Tigers; Jeff Osborne and Andy Van Deweghe threw for the Dodgers. Leading off Tigers' offense were Colin Fitzsimons (home run, double, single), Dunlap and Pat Meehan (double and single). Ken Barfield and David Auld added doubles and Scott VanAlmen, David Tucker and Maycock had singles. Hitting for the Dodgers were Ryan Molitor (two doubles), Brian Crane (two singles), Fitz Ollison (double) and Van Deweghe, Mike Miller, Osborne and Tom Davis (singles). INDIANS-PIRATES

The Indians shut out the Pirates, 10-0, on the two-hit pitching of Brennen and Teranes. Robby Tiede (two hits), Ryan Messacar, Brennan, Chris Oliver, Scott Rice and Jungwerth led the Indians' attack. Mike Whelan and Jason Hall had base hits for the Pirates.

ASTROS-PHILS Jay Berschback pitched a four-hitter as the Astros defeated the Phils, 13-11. Gandelot, LeFebvre, Beth Weyhing and Brenn Schoenherr had key hits for the Astros. Brett Brownscombe hit a grand slam and Scott Cairo scored three runs for the Phils.

DODGE-WHITE SOX The Dodgers beat the White Sox, 16-3, as Kenny Prather went the distance. Andy Bramlage, Fritz Coyro and Charlie Lickfold threw for the Sox. Leading the Dodgers on offense were Osborne (two doubles, two singles) Prather (two singles, double), Molitor (two doubles) and Van Deweghe (two singles); Crane (double and Will and Andy Donnelly (singles) also had hits. Hitting for the Sox were John Herman (double, single) and Bramlage and Scott Aardema (singles).

Farms-City AAA

ANGELS-GIANTS
The Angels beat the Giants, 12-9, behind the strong pitching of Dan Whitney and Brian Louisell. Mike Hendrie and Louisell led the Angels' attack with two hits each; Whitney's bases-loaded triple proved to be the margin of victory. Jeff Wheeler pitched well for the Giants, who got key hits from Wheeler and Van Auken. Bo Dawson played well defensively for the Giants.

ANGELS-BLUE JAYS A strong offense and tough defense helped the Angels to a 13-3 victory. Pitchers Steve Stroehler, Whitney (three perfect innings) and Louisell kept the Jays' bats quiet. Louisell (two hits), Kip Gotfredson (two hits) and Tyler Brownscombe (three RBI) paced the Angels. Billy Starrs, Jason Hubbarth and Mike Werner had hits for the Jays. Jed Dorian and Ryan Allard pitched

well for the Jays. RANGERS-CUBS

The Cubs' Bob Gray pitched 3% innings, giving up just one hit and one run to pace his team to a 17-1 victory over the Rangers. Brian Nugent came on in relief, pitching a perfect 21/3 inings for the save. The Rangers' Nate Smith had his team's only hit, a single; Brandon Kahlich scored the Rangers' run. Hitting and scoring for the Cubs were Joslyn Kramer, Ricci, Gray, Santo, Columbo, Melchoire and Kavanaugh. BRAVES-A's Outfielder M.J. Morris' perfect peg to third base cut down the potential tying run in the bottom of the sixth and saved the Braves' 3-2 win over the A's.

The A's, held scoreless for five innings, rallied for a pair of runs in the final in-ning on RBI hits by George Christensen and Adam Hogan. Skye Ho batted in two runs to pace the Braves.
RANGERS-BRAVES

Pat Alle smacked three hits and teammates S. Ho and Casey Ho slammed two apiece to help the Braves outlast the Rangers, 16-13. Andrew Dreschler scored a key run in the fourth for the Braves; Chris Janke, Tom Best and Mike Owens scored two runs each. John Combs crossed the plate three times for the Rangers; Max Prokop added two hits. Damon Smith scored twice for the Rangers.

RANGERS-EXPOS The Rangers scored four times in the top of the sixth, then held off an Expo rally to nip the expos, 6-4. Smith and Reynolds kept the Expos in check most of the game, while Len Cugliari was overpowering in the first three innings, allowing just one runner to reach base. Crain, John Cugliari, Kotsis, Matt Tipple, Smith, Reinke, Razetto, Kuhl and Reynolds chipped in for the Rangers. Gian Giuliani helped the Expos with good base-running.
A's-EXPOS

The A's defeated the Expos, 1-0, in a game in which the teams combined for ust four hits. Adam Hogan and Mark Rossman pitched exceptionally well for the A's, giving up one hit each. L. Cugliari pitched four innings, holding the A's to doubles by Rossman and Robby Franzino, which led to the game's only run. Jordan Jones pitched a perfect inning for the Expos.

A's-CUBS The A's beat the Cubs, 12-3, behind the fine pitching of Rossman and Hogan. Hogan also went three-for-three at the plate with two singles and a triple. Rossman was three-for-four, with a triple and two singles. Mike Shock was three-for-four, with his single, double and triple. Franzino, Greg Hogan and Stash Capponi singled twice each; Adam Filkin, Peter Spivak, Mark Pin-ney, David Shock and Christensen also contributed hits. Jay Ricci homered for the Cubs, who also got hits from Rob-by Joslyn (double), Mike Formolo, Richard Colombo, Nino Melchoire, Kevin Elliot, Matt Kramer and Brian

ERIE-TOLEDO

Erie scored in each inning to beat Toledo, 25-12. Tom Stroble, Jimmy Meyers, Ricci, Chris Ford, Magreta and Tim Sandercott were each threefor-four for Erie; Ricci, Ford, Magreta each. Meyers also homered twice. For Toledo, Paul Tylenda was three-forthree and Robbie King was two-for-two.

Tylenda, King and Kile Zeller scored two runs each for Toledo.

MIAMI-ERIE Miami scored five first-ining runs, but Erie came back for a 22-10 victory. Scott VanDevusse was three-for-three and scored two runs for Miami; A. McCroskery, M. Shepard, B. Reynolds, J. Vlasak, C. Perry, P. Michaels and B. Leroy also scored for Miami. For Erie, Meyers, Ricci and Ford were four-forfour at the plate; Meyers had two singles and two doubles, Ricci had two singles, a double and a triple, and Ford added three singles and a home run. Sandercott and Molly Butterly also played well for Erie.

ALBANY-ERIE

Joey Schmidt rammed a three-run homer and teammates Mark Conrad and William Stentz each had three hits to pace Albanyu's 12-4 victory. Brandon Curtis scored a rare defensive "triple" by making all three put-outs at third during Erie's third inning. Ford and Stroble had key doubles for Erie; Ford also pulled off an unassisted double play by snaring Nick Joseph's liner and stepping on second to nip the runner.
TOLEDO-ALBANY

Andy Smith ripped three hits and scored three runs to lead Albany to a 17-6 win over Toledo. Conrad, Jamie Olzmann, Jeff Case and Brad Hohlfeldt scored two runs each for Albany. Sean Courtney blasted two hits for Toledo, while teammates Christensen, David Curry and King each scored. COLUMBUS-TOLEDO

Peter Birgbauer ripped a two-run homer in the fifth inning and team-mates Tom Shumaker, Jan-Michael Stump and Christine Galnor struck three hits apiece to lead Columbus past Toledo, 18-8. Brian Beck and Jeff Smythe knocked in two runs each for Columbus. Ryan Zeller blasted a bases-loaded triple in Toledo's five-run second inning rally. Curry, K. Keller and Arthur Scott contributed three hits each to Toledo's attack.

COLUMBUS-MIAMI Columbus struck for eight runs in the final two innings to take a come-from-behind, 17-7 win over Miami. Eric Dillaman's fifth inning single drove in the tying run; Clayton Busbey's RBI single put Columbus ahead to stay. Smythe had two Columbus hits. Tim Reynolds rapped a sixth-inning homer for Miami; Brian Leroy drove in two runs with his bases-loaded singles. C. Perry, John Vlasak and Mike Shepard had three hits each for Miami.

Boating with pets

Boating with a dog or cat can be a source of enjoyment for the owner and the pet . . . or it can be miserable for everyone.

W. Howard Nurse, D.V.M.; says dogs are individuals just like people. Some love being aboard a boat; they relish the fresh breezes, the new sounds and smells and enjoy being anywhere with the people they love. On the other hand, some dogs are nervous, shaky and seasick. They whine and complain and refuse to eat or to behave normally until they're back on shore.

Dr. Nurse has been a boat owner for over 25 years and he's had several dogs that enjoyed boating right along with the rest of the family. He's also had some dogs that were better off left at

His primary recommendation for cruising pets is that they wear a harness while aboard. "Dogs don't need life jackets," he said. "They swim better than we do and they have better sea legs than we do. If a dog goes overboard, however, it's very difficult to get him back on the boat."

For dogs under 20 pounds or so, Dr. Nurse recommends a good-fitting harness with a ring on the back. A boat hook can be slipped into the ring to lift the dog back on the boat. It's a good idea to practice this maneuver on land.

Dogs don't often slip overboard, Dr. Nurse said, but they're inclined to jump if they see another dog on shore or aboard another boat. If your boat's freeboard is high and you don't have a swim platform or a ladder, it's very difficult — if not impossible — to get a large dog back into the boat.

A cat who falls overboard can often be enticed back by holding a heavy piece of carpet over the side of the boat and dragging it in the water. He may climb up onto the carpet.

Dr. Nurse said that most cats are not good seafarers. "I don't know of anyone who brings a cat aboard," he said. "Cats are easy to leave at home along for a few days - with plenty of food and water and a litter box — so maybe that's why people don't take them on cruises. There's always the chance he will escape." Sometimes a frightened cat will hide aboard the boat, or he may leave the boat while you're docked in a strange marina and you won't be able to find him in time to go home.

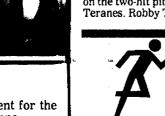

For a small dog that's paper trained, the length of the cruise doesn't matter. But if you're boating with a larger dog you must plan to make shore stops to accommodate the dog's bladder. 'The length of the trip is only as long as the size of the dog's bladder," Dr. Nurse said.

He recommends a mild tranquilizer for pets who are nervous about boating. Tranquilizers are available from a veterinarian and are often necessary only on the first day of cruising. Once the animal becomes accustomed to the new environment, the boat's rolling motion, and the vibration of the motor, he'll probably settle down and be his usual companionable self.

"Tranquilizers are like martinis," Dr. Nurse said. "They affect everyone differently. It's best to try the tranquilizer at home, before you actually spend a day on the boat. See how it affects your pet. The dose can be adjusted accordingly. It should not put him to sleep, just calm him. Remember also, that a tranquilizer given after the dog is under stress will affect him differently than if it's given while he's calm. I recommend giving the tranquilizer at home, an hour before you take the dog to the

Be sure your cruising pet has an identification tag and a license. If you're taking him on a long cruise, consider a tag containing a home-bound friend's telephone number. In case your pet is lost — then found — you won't spend time looking for him while the finder makes futile phone calls to your empty home.

If you are boating in Canada with a pet, be sure to carry proof that he's had a rabies vaccination within the last three years. It's wise to protect your dog with an annual distemper shot also, especially if you'll be cruising into remote areas where wild animals live.

Cheerleading camp

The Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) is sponsoring instructional day camps for cheerleaders this summer

The eastside camp will be held at St. Paul's School Aug. 11-13. Cost per camper or coach is $20 each for the three-day session, if registration is received by July 15, $25 after that date. The camp will consist of instruction from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.; campers must bring their own lunches.

The camps are for grade school girls who are or may become cheerleaders. Instructors are high school cheerleading coaches and camp specialists; there is no competition at the camps, therefore campers are not required to prepare any material or cheers.

For more information or registration, call the CYO athletic department at 963-7172.

Firecracker run

The Metro Macomb Runners will present their annual Selfridge ANG Base Firecracker 10K and Mile fun runs on Sunday, June 6, at the base in Mount Clemens. The race begins at 9 a.m. and features categories for 13 and under through 60 and older. The $7 race fee includes a shirt, watch or cap plus trophy. For more information, call Joe Smetanka at 792-4563.

GPSC celebrates

The Grosse Pointe Sail Club will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its Tuesday Night Sundown Series with a Silver Anniversary Race on Tuesday, July 1. Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan will present the club with a special burgee, which will be flown for the remainder of the GPSC's races this season. The festivities will be led by Commodore Cormac M. O'Bryne.

Woods man joins Cup crew

Stu Argo of Grosse Pointe Woods is a crew member about the "Heart of America," the 12-meter boat based in the midwest which is currently in training for the 1987 America's Cup competition in Perth, Australia.

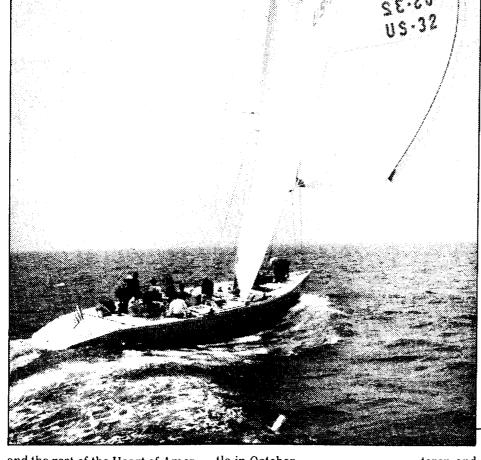

Heart of America was launched in Newport, R.I. in early May and christened May 30 in Chicago. Argo, a jib trimmer/tailer on the boat, and the 16 other crew members including skipper Buddy Melges — a two-time Olympic medalist, three-time Yachtsman of the Year winner and winner of numerous national sailing championships - traveled to Santa Cruz, Calif., on June 8 to begin two months of training against Canadian boats and other American syndicates.

They will return to Chicago, the syndicate's home port, in August to continue training on their prac-tice boat "Clipper," while Heart of America is shipped to Australia. The current training schedule calls for seven-day-perweek workouts in order that the crew might be prepared for the six-day sailing sessions in Australia.

Argo, 25, is a Grosse Pointe North High School graduate who has sailed in three Canada's Cup series, most recently in 1984 on Bill Martin's "Stars and Stripes" out of Bayview Yacht Club. He

South batters split Mack games

Grosse Pointe South's Connie Mack team split four games last week to run its season record to

On June 18, the Blue Devils nipped defending national champion Utica TSI, 4-3. Rich Cordova went the distance, scattering seven hits and three unearned runs. He fanned five, walking only one. He also aided his own cause with an RBI single. Tom Fellows had a double to drive in another run. Pete Muer and Sean Bruce accounted for the winners' other hits. Ted Kolp raced home on a wild pitch in the seventh for the winning run.

Arnold, Doug Lucas and Steve Kinsley collected the only hits. Starter Jerry Joliet was tagged with the loss.

GPS split a double header with Sterling Heights (No. 1) on Sunday, winning the opener, 5-2, and dropping the nightcap, 8-6. Rick Leonard got the decision, although he needed relief help from Kolp in the fifth. Kolp faced only nine batters in three innings, fanning four, to register the save.

Fellows' two hits included an RBI double; Mark Carl's triple knocked in two runs, while Kinsley's two-bagger accounted for Utica drubbed South, 10-1, in a another marker, Lucas and Bill return match on June 20. Dave Adlhoch notched the Devils' other

In the nightcap, South could muster only one hit — a seventh inning double by Adlhoch — although the Devils put together six walks and five Sterling Heights errors to come up with six runs. Scott Tucker, who gave way to Kolp in the fourth, was tagged with the loss.

On June 27, South journeys to Chippewa Valley for a 6:15 p.m. game. On Saturday, June 28, South hosts Sterling Heights (No. 2) for a doubleheader at Kerby Field, starting at 1 p.m. Next Tuesday, South faces Warren at Macomb County College at 6:15

'Legal Eagles' is half-good, half-bad

By Michael Chapp

There's some good news and some bad news about "Legal Eagles," the new film pairing Robert Redford and Debra Winger: The good news is half of the movie is absolutely wonderful the kind of stuff that makes for a really enjoyable experience at the movies. The bad news is the other half is ... well, not absolutely wonderful - the kind of stuff that makes for a rather disappointing time at the movies. Whether or not one can ultimately play the optimine of the standard or th ist and say that the film is "halfgood" is largely dependent on the following question: Is the good half good enough to make the bad half acceptable?

Tom Logan, played by the per-ennial pretty boy Redford, is a crack Manhattan prosecuting attorney. He's only one step away from the office of assistant district attorney. Laura Kelly (Winger) is an up-and-coming defense attorney. She's only one step away from getting way over her head in a case involving fraud, arson and murder. She's defending Chelsea Deardon (Daryl Hannah), the daughter of a deceased artist, who's only one step away from being institutionalized. Collectively, the three of them are flirting with some major Hannah seeks help from Winger when she's arrested for trying to steal her late father's prize painting. She claims that the work of art had been a gift to her and was lost in her childhood. Redford is the prosecutor assigned to the case. During the pre-trial proceedings however, he learns some things which back up the defendant's story. Together with Winger, he investigates the case and eventually believes Hannah to be innocent. That's the first complication.

Shortly thereafter, Redford and Hannah are caught in bed together. That's the second complication. The big one. Redford loses his job and is told he can kiss the D.A. position goodbye.

Out of work and more than a little bit upset with himself, Redford agrees to form a temporary partnership with Winger to work on the Hannah case. Working together, they go to court and try to clear their client of the alleged wrongdoing. This, unfortunately, is the sorry half of the picture. For a movie supposedly so hot on legal intrigue, not much exists. A number of complications are thrown in, but from the midpoint on, viewers will have the case solved and the verdict in. One will be sorely disappointed if they expect a "Jagged Edge" type potboiler from "Eagles."

On the other hand, the picture is saved by the perfect chemistry of its stars. Winger and Redford are dynamic together, throwing off sparks like a match rubbing flint. Redford, with his baby blue eyes and his clumisly endearing character traits is appealing to the audience. And Winger, whose penetrating eyes are offset only by her unique voice — raspy in just the right places — is as humanly likable here as she was in her Academy-nominated role in "Terms of Endearment." Here, as in "Terms," Winger demonstrates her ability to be appealing to the audience even when she is physically at her worst — like after getting thrown off a moving forklift into the river, or after spending an entire night eating everything in her refrigerator, and paying for it the following morning.

Together, Redford and Winger are as perfectly matched as any couple on the screen. When the two of them agree to go into a partnership, Winger insists on knowing whether Redford plans on sleeping with their client any more. The audience knows as well as Winger that she's asking as much for personal reasons as professional ones. Their ever-budding romantic relationship builds throughout the film, adding a tension which makes up for what the legal part of the story fails to give.

As Chelsea, the completely neurotic defendant, Hannah is convincingly off-center. From the first time viewers see her on screen, it is hinted that something is different about her. When she takes the audience through a hauntingly surrealistic autobiographical demonstration - replete with burning props and life-size mannequincorpses — it is obvious that she is living on a different plane of thought. Hannah is captivating in her role, as much because of her chilling performance as because of her increasing screen presence.

Brian Dennehy and Terence
Stamp throw their hats in the proverbial ring too, giving excellent supporting performances as a detective with something to hide and an art dealer with something to hide, respectively.

The optimist, it is said, will look at a glass of water and say that it's half-full. A pessimist will look at the same glass of water and say that it's half-empty.

Viewers will look at "Legal Eagles" and say that it's not

The story begins as David (Hunter Carson) sights a spaceship landing in his backyard. When he goes looking for it, it has disappeared in a sandhill. When his father (Timothy Bottoms), and then his mother (Laraine New-Andrew. This and other historic man), go looking, they return as churches will be visited on the Stroh River place, the site of the first Monday of the month walking automatons. David is perplexed and scared. Hunter Carson as David brings to his role a wide-eyed calmness that makes credible his exploits. He is believable even when he demands to see the back of the general's neck before he will discuss what he has seen.

It is interesting to note that Jim Hunt, who played David in the original film, plays the police chief in this remake. Also, Karen Black, the nurse and David's friend, is his mother in real life.

Louise Fletcher is a properly despicable Mrs. McKettch and the creatures are huge, gross beasties with protruding eyes and slobbering mouths. Only in a parody would anyone approach them as did one of the scientists, and try to make friends with them.

While the new "Invaders" follows the formula of true science fiction, it is meant to be taken as a take-off on the real thing and enjoyed as such. For all of it irreverency, it will probably be a standard on future late shows.

The Missing LINC

Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!
