Scary Jerry purloined

Missing: One large scarecrow. Last seen wearing a straw hat, blue sweater, construction worker's gloves, Jordache jeans and a Jerry Ford mask. Approximately six foot-six inches tall weighing 50 pounds. Distinguishing characteristics? The Jerry Ford mask has a sinister smile.

Seems Vincent Buscemi, of Oxford Road in the Woods, had his scarecrow stolen recently. He said people were constantly doing double-takes when they passed the crow-chaser, but alas, it was purloined.

Vince said he'd like the old guy back, and would appreciate any help he could get.

With that Ford mask on, it will likely be found in a sand trap at Lochmoor Country Club or falling off airplane steps at Metro.

A home store finds a home

Employees coming to work two weeks ago at Jacobson's Store for the Home found a kitten on their doorstep. It was in a box lined with children's clothes, some cat food and a new food and water dish. Marked on the carton was the message: Please find this kitten a good home.

William Lafer, store manager, said the first customer who came in took it home. He said it was a cute allwhite kitten, but he added that he hopes the incident doesn't inspire others to deposit unwanted pets at their door.

Have you wondered...

. . what ever happened with the chemical treatment of the Farms harbor at Pier Park? Two state agencies had failed to swap critical information on swimming and drinking safety during the first two years of the application of chemicals to kill

At the 11th hour, the DNR and the state health department took a look at each other's maps and charts and decided that there "probably" was no cause for concern, since the current hugs the shore and the drinking water intake is at least a quarter-mile off the harbor

As to swimming in the area where the current hugs the shore, nobody ever checked into that. The county health department monitors the Farms beach for fecal coliform, but has no mandate to take chemical readings unless the DNR tells them to. The chemical company posted noswimming notices (24-hour) as required by state regulation.

Nobody got sick, so the chemical must have stayed in the harbor as was hoped. But we'd feel better if someone had run a test.

A giant step

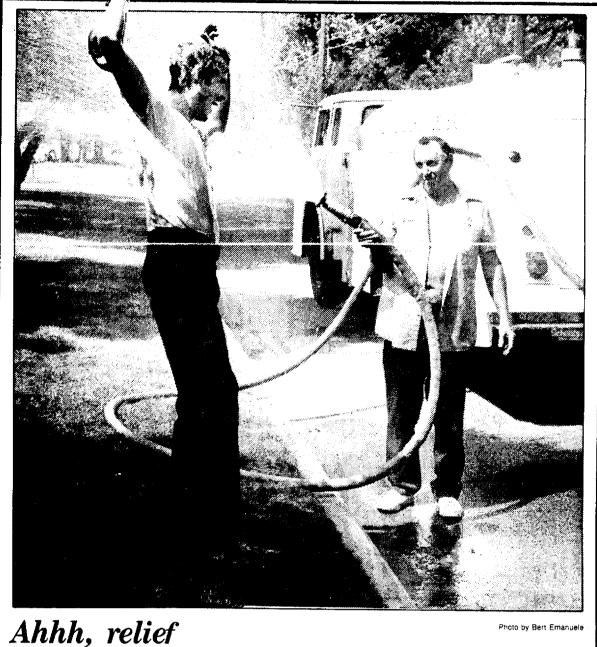

The Farms resident dropped by the office last week to tell us that he and his wife were going to be in Wapakoneta, Ohio, this past weekend to take part in the celebration of the 17th anniversary of the flight of Apollo 1. Wapakoneta is the hometown of Neil Armstrong, the first man to set foot on the moon.

And the name of the space buff who said he wouldn't miss the annual event? It's Buck Rogers and he says that's his real name.

Can you believe it's been 17 years since that historic, electrifying moment?

Liquor license appeal languishing

By Nancy Parmenter

An administrative memoran-dum between offices of the Liquor Control Commission stating that there is no good cause for granting a resort license waiver to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial has raised hopes in the opponents'

"I hope this will put the issue to bed," said Paul Marco, the spokesman for the opposition.

The memorandum carries no official weight. War Memorial attorney John Rickel said that until the commission itself actually denies the appeal, the War Memorial will continue to pursue it.

"We are proceeding," he said. "There are various avenues. The most well-developed one is the appeal to the commission."

The War Memorial has asked the LCC to grant a waiver of its rules on resort licenses. According to LCC regulations, a resort license shall not be transferred if there are other quota licenses available, unless the local government favors the transfer. The city of Grosse Pointe Farms turned down the request for transfer and said nothing to the commission about a waiver.

Although the memorandum orders that the request for waiver be denied because: the Farms failed to make a favorable recommendation, local residents have protested, and the War Memorial is located too close to a church, the issue will not actually be decided until a hearing, according to Rickel.

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church gave a letter to the War Memorial more than a year ago stating that its board has no objection to a liq-uor license at the center, accord-ing to War Memorial Director Mark Weber

"They haven't objected to the temporary licenses that we've had for the last 20 years.'

Exactly who the objecting neighbors are is not clear. Individual members of the church could be among those who have protested in writing. In a June 26 letter to the LCC, Marco said that 525 "neighbors and concerned residents" had signed petitions against the

In the same letter, Marco told the LCC that the War Memorial, if it had a license, would "attempt to operate the public license as a restricted or club license for the benefit of special groups . . . and not for the benefit of the public generally," a use he called "discriminatory." War Memorial of ficials have repeatedly stated that their operation would not change if

Weber said the War Memorial board has not had an opportunity to review the memorandum. "My understanding is that (the memo) is saying that because the Farms hasn't approved it, an appeal may be futile," he said. "We won't know what we'll do until the board dis-

Volunteers keep cities blooming

By Peter A. Salinas

There is a movement blossoming in the Grosse Pointes - one that has passersby smiling a bit more and perhaps feeling good about their surroundings.

The cities are beautifying public areas in front of municipal buildings, at intersections, at the entrances to the cities and wherever

The cities are spending some of the taxpayers' money on making the public areas more beautiful, but for the most part, funds are raised by a sale of some sort and most of the labor is donated.

Clement Wicker is a shining. exuberant example. Between bobbing to his left and right, making wild hand gestures and expelling pent-up energy in other ways, Wicker talks garden-

Wicker, 72, has been on the Woods Beautification Committee for two years. He says he got "roped into it" when the committee gave him a general appearance award for his house.

"They gave me an award, and then asked me to join the committee," Wicker smiled, as he did throughout the entire interview.

He and Allen Dickinson, also a Woods resident, have been taking care of the large Woods' logo in front of the municipal building for several years. Wicker plants the flowers and silvermound, which spell out "GPW" in five-foot letters. Dickinson keeps the silvermound trimmed and looking neat.

"I love it," Wicker said of gardening. "My wife Margaret loves it too. She does a lot of the work Keeping the logo looking good is just a side job for the septuagenarian. He does the gardening at a local estate and has been restoring homes in Indian Village in De"It is just part of me," Wicker said. "Mr. Dickinson helped me get involved with the committee. Dickinson, a former Woods Beautification Committee chairman, said he has been on the committee for five years now.

"I think it's the appearance that is important to me," Dickinson

When you enjoy gardening as much as Allen Dickinson, left, and Clement Wicker do, well it just can't be considered a chore. The two are responsible for planting and caring for the Grosse Pointe Woods logo on a small berm in front of the municipal office building. Other volunteers around the Pointes do their share to make municipal property pleasing to the eye. For more photos, turn to Page 13A.

The jury found him guilty of the three tax evasion charges and not guilty of the two charges of obstruction to justice (the same charges on which Crane's previous jury had deadlocked.) The maximum sentence is five years each on the two previous evasion counts, two years on the new tax evasion count and three years for committing a crime while on pro-

The amount of money evaded was not in question during the trial. "We stipulated that; it's not an issue," Carlisle said three weeks ago. "Our defense is intent. We contend that he became confused because the government was badgering him. The government's conduct confused him to the point that he thought the government was Satan ... It's an original

At that time, Carlisle was predicting "the upset of the decade." Now he is planning an appeal based on the contention that the judge erred in allowing the case to be retired after being dismissed. He said he will also appeal several points of the trial.

"A lot of 1977 and 1978 stuff was brought into evidence," he said. "If the jury hears the bad stuff, they should hear the good stuff too, instead of having to guess."

Crane is a former professor of economics at Bob Jones University and the owner of three innercity motels. Carlisle said he had played down the Bob Jones connection during this trial because the government was trying to portray him as an arch-conservative. It's my position that they were trying his political and religious beliefs."

Delonis, the prosecutor, said the trial had been fair. "Basically, we're back to where we were two years ago," he said.

Now that's seniority!

Within the past three months, live officers with Grosse Pointe's public safety department have retired. The five represent 174 years of service, and according to City Manager Thomas Kressbach, it's the largest turnover of personnel in the history of the department.

They are Robert Marshall, fire chief and deputy director, 30 years; Duncan MacEachern, lieutenant, 37 years; George Brackx, sergeant, 34 years; Edward Behrend, sergeant, 40 years; and Virgil Beaupre, public safety officer, 33 years.

Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy said that Officer Alfred Fincham has been promoted to lieutenant effective July 22 to fill the command vacancy.

New hires are James Fox, Paul Onderbeke and Edward Tujaka, all on probation as public safety officers. Paul Weitzel was hired for the traffic and parking maintenance divi-

Teen electrocuted

Wayne County Medical Examiner officials are calling the July 19 electrocution death of Nicole Shammas, 13, of Grosse Pointe Woods accidental County officials would give no further details, but according to Woods police reports, Miss Shammas was using an electric lawnmower loaned to her by Dr. Emily Seydel to cut the doctor's lawn, at 655 S. Rosedale.

The report indicated Miss Shammas' mower was not operating. Seydel told police she loaned the girl hers to cut the lawn.

That was at about 10:30 a.m. At about 10:50 a.m. John Gimpert, 34, of St. Clair Shores was passing by and found her lying on the ground. A long orange extension cord was wrapped over her shoulder bandolier-style.

Woods officials did not feel Miss Shammas had cut the extension cord with the mower blade, but had wrapped the cord around herself to avoid just such an occurrence.

Police on the scene said the extension cord and the mower appeared to be in "very poor condition." The cords and mower were placed in police custody and brought to the medical examiner's office for testing. Those test results were not released.

Miss Shammas was an A student at University Liggett Middle School. She was a soccer player and a talented musician.

Muriel Brock, a college counselor and head of Liggett's day camp and physical education program said Miss Shammas was "vivacious, outgoing . . . a real leader.

'She was a fine athlete and pianist," Brock said, "a skilled soccer Gimpert pounded on Seydel's player, too. We will miss her very much.

She is survived by her parents. Elizabeth and Robert Shammas and an older brother, Philip.

Taking the oath

Trustee Jon Gandelot, left, shakes hands with Wayne County Circuit Judge Henry Szymanski after taking the oath of office for the Grosse Pointe Board of Education. Gandelot, elected in June, started his third, four-year term July 14.

Classes start next week

Midsummer opportunities for children and youth to participate in a series of learning activities will be offered beginning July 28 by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Two week-long classes starting Monday, July 28, include "Classics for Kids" and "Cooking for Kids: Easy-to-Prepare Menus." Patricia Junker will instruct the daily sessions in classical music which appeals to young people, while Pat Pompi's cooking class will offer recipes for snacks, desserts and nutritious meals.

Also starting July 28 for two weeks are two classes in "Junior Great Books: An Introduction" to be taught by Deanna Stephens. One class will be held for students in grades two and three, another for grades six and seven. Junior Great books is a program of interpretive reading and discussion for young people which teaches them to formulate and ask questions as well as answer them. Students purchase texts in class.

Other classes for children meeting daily for two weeks include "French" for grades three to five, "Jazz Dance" for grades six to eight, and "Introduction to Dance" for 4- and 5-year olds. Louise Tewalt will teach French, while Anna Marie Gasali will instruct the dance classes.

Tour Bangkok and Hong Kong

The War Memorial will sponsor a 10-day tour of Bangkok and Hong Kong Nov. 8-17. An information meeting to discuss the itinerary and details of the trip will be held Tuesday, July 29, at 7:30 p.m.

The trip will begin with four days in Bangkok, Thailand, where there will be scheduled visits to the Royal Grand Palace, the Golden Cheddi, the Pantheon of Kings and Tower of Nine Planets. While in Bangkok, the group will also see the Emerald Buddha and visit the Damnernsaduak Market, where merchants barter their wares from boats while shoppers cruise along the canal. Accommodations in Bangkok will be at the Royal Orchid Sheraton Hotel which is situated on the shores of the fabled "River of Four additional days will be spent in Hong Kong, where accommodations will be at the Hotel The popular two-week offering, "Pre-School Story and Crafts Class," taught by Nancy Schulte, basis, "Italy 100 and 100 begins July 28 and will meet for two hours daily for two weeks. This consists of activities designed not only to motivate interest on the part of pre-schools in appropriate stories told in a variety of manners, but it also focuses on related follow-up activities for the children.

"Tae Kwon Do" for students from age 8-up and taught by Yu's Tae Kwon Do Academy will be held daily for two weeks beginning July 28. Tae Kwon Do can be considered an art, a sport, a philosophy and an effective system of self-defense. It is characterized by powerful kicks, high kicks and spinning kicks as well as by straight line punches and blocks.

"Art Appreciation" for students in grades five to seven is a singleweek class to be held daily begin-ning Aug. 4. Taught by local resident and art historian Carol Gray, each of the sessions will be devoted to helping students look at modern art. Each session will center on an easy-to-understand theme, such as pets, circus performers, farm animals and wild animals. Traditional treatments will be compared to modern approaches to each

Be cool-Debate on air conditioner variances rages polit

By Nancy Parmenter

They are as dependable as the fishfly hatch or Fourth of July picnics. Every year, warm weather brings them out, filling up the agenda of the Farms council meetings with requests for a variance on the air conditioner ordinance.

Since the first air conditioner clause was added to the city zoning ordinance in the late '70s, no summer month has passed without at least one resident appearing before the council to ask permission to do it his way.

The original ordinance was passed in response to concerns from next door neighbors that central air conditioner compressors placed along the sides of houses were too noisy and could be heard especially at night, most especially on hot nights when folks were having trouble sleeping anyway. Until that time, there was no restriction on placement of heat pumps or refrigeration equipment. During the cold months of 1984, the council realized that people trying to comply with the zoning procedures were being put out more than necessary and created a separate air conditioning ordinance with a little less paperwork. But the placement requirements were the same: no compressors in the front yard, no compressors in the side yard where they're going to bug the neighbors.

A request to place a compressor anywhere in the forbidden zones does not require council members to put on their zoning board of appeals hats, but the effect is the same. Members must consider and weigh the comfort of one neighbor against another. This is not done

Whether the request is for a family room, a garage, a greenhouse or an air conditioner, most council members make a point of going to the home of the petitioner and seeing the lay of the land for themselves. Then they follow it up with a lot of questions. Will the unit be located near neighbors' bedrooms, might it be heard from the street or adjoining yards. In the case of a structure, will it block anyone's view? Will it be set back far enough from property lines? Will it be screened with bushes or a fence?

'You really have to take into consideration the way the neighbors will be affected," said councilwoman Gail Kaess. "You can't tell where it is without going to their yard.'

The choices are sometimes difficult, Kaess says. "You have to make exceptions. Usually it works out that there's some solution

A variance hearing is like a courtroom mini-drama. Nervous petitioners arrive armed with stacks of papers, handfuls of photographs, letters from neighbors who don't object to the proposal. They bring diagrams with overlays. One man with an unusual proposal for a garage brought a cardboard scale model big enough to park a Tonka truck

Many cases are settled easily. There may be no houses nearby or the next-door house has few windows on the facing side. A few scof-agreeable to everyone. But if there's a legitimate complaint, the request should be denied."

flaws settle their compressor placement by skipping council alogether. Clerk Richard Solak says the city runs into one or two of those every year. It's a no-no.

Some cases are a little trickier. On a hot summer night, neighbors strain to remain neighborly while disagreeing.

Mayor James Dingeman reflects the small-town quality that is one of the strengths of Grosse Pointe. 'Your neighbor speaks very highly of you," he tells one petitioner.

Yes, she's known me since I was quite young.

The man's air conditioner compressor is located too far away and doesn't work very well. He wants to move it to the side of his house, not the back, because there is a patio in the back and no one wants to listen to the unit while trying to

But the neighbor's kitchen is located just across the driveway. They don't want to listen to it,

The council discusses whether noise is an aesthetic issue. Furthermore, should aesthetic issues be taken into consideration?

"That's why we have the or-dinance," says Mayor Pro Tem Joseph Fromm. "If we're going to grant variances for aesthetic reasons, we shouldn't have the ordinance at all.'

"It's a matter of discomfort," says Dingeman. "It has nothing to do with aesthetics.'

The neighbors spar over whether the kitchen door is usually open or not. They both have central air conditioning, but one uses it more than the other. The petitioner grows discouraged and throws himself in a chair.

The neighbor fears the council is tipping in favor of the petitioner. "We'll have to suffer because he doesn't want it in his patio," he suggests.

The petitioner throws one last "My other neighbor has punch. this and I don't suffer," he says, then concedes, "but then, I'm not in the kitchen all day — my wife

The council ponders. Sometimes Solomonic measures are needed and they have to order the child cut in two.

Councilman John Crowley takes the bit and proposes a compromise. He feels on firm ground; he puts it in the form of a motion. The petitioner is to move the unit back from the neighbor's kitchen door. It will be closer to his own patio, but still on the side of the house.

Both sides sigh, but say they can live with it. More council members approve than disapprove and the deed is done. Council has spent 35 minutes ensuring that the desires of one neighbor do not trample the rights of another.

Some governments refuse to suggest compromises on the grounds that their role is only to permit or deny, not to suggest ways to handle a situation — lest it come back in their faces. The Farms council regularly mulls the alternatives and clearly sees the smooth function of the zoning rules as one of its more important duties.

'It's probably not the most important thing we do, but it plays a tremendous part in our agenda,' says Kaess.

Ortisi winds up 28 years with Park

By Pat Paholsky

He's been trying to retire now for 18 months, and Nunzio Ortisi, clerk-comptroller of the Park for 28 years, is finally winding up the last month of his career. His replacement has been hired and he says he will leave with good feelings about his work with the city and especially all of the friend-ships he built over the years.

After he graduated from Cass Tech, he planned to study mechanical engineering at Wayne University (now Wayne State University). "It didn't seem to fit my character, so I went into husiness

After graduation, he became a certified public accountant and went to work for an accounting firm. One of the clients was the Grosse Pointe school system and Ortisi was in charge of the audit for a number of years.

"I'll always remember the accounting system they had," he said. "It would take me three days to get a trial balance. They're very sophisticated now," he added.

It was his experience with the schools that gave him a feel for the public sector, he said, and helped him when he applied for a job with the Park as comptroller. Back then, few accountants had the opportunity to work in the public sector, he said, a situation that is reversed today.

"More people now are getting involved with the public sector of finance because under recent legislation, all municipalities have to have audits, especially if they are getting federal funding." The Park has always had an annual audit, he added, because the city charter requires it.

There have been many changes since he started. "There was a parochialism about us in the community that changed with the times and we became more dependent on government - state and federal - rules and regulations, he said. "The demographics changed. People here in the old days were more traditional, more homogenous. There's quite a mixture of people now and they have different viewpoints and cultures. It's more challenging and quite interesting. It's a lot more difficult from a manager's standpoint.

Ortisi, who has worked for four mayors and has a reputation for working well with officials, said he tries to understand a person's philosophy and goals. "If I can understand what someone's trying to do and I see the merits, I'm flexible enough to support that in-

Some of the high points that ocurred during his tenure was the Ortisi's retirement plans "over curred during his tenure was the acquisition of the McMillan estate in the '60s that became what is now Patterson Park. He credits Mayor Kenneth Cunningham for the purchase which at that time cost the city $63,000.

An upgrading of recreational facilities followed along with an expansion of the marina which he said was "quite an accomplishment" of then-City Manager Robert Slone.

More progress was made under Mayor Matthew Patterson. "We got involved with block grants and accomplished a lot of things," he

This was the period of transition from the parochial past to the federal and state involvement of the present, Ortisi said, and people were reluctant to accept federal money. "They felt there were strings attached and it was very hard to make this transition in terms of philosophy," he said.

The city has been successful in that regard, he added, making major improvements along Ker-cheval and Mack. The credit belongs to City Manager John Crawford and the mayors and councils who have supported the programs, Ortisi said.

Another highlight was the passing of the occupancy permit requirement that upgraded housing. That was about 1972, he said, adding, "I think we were pioneers in Grosse Pointe in that regard."

Probably the lowest point of the city during his employment was the recent recession five or six

And it's a close-knit family life he enjoys. He and his wife of 30 years, Josephine, have three children and one grandson, whose picture sits on his desk next to his adding machine.

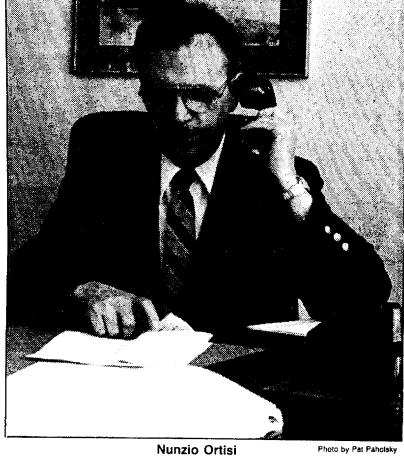

Ortisi is the oldest of six children, all of whom have remained eastsiders along with his 87-yearold father who lives in East Detroit. Every Sunday is open house at his father's home and it's a tradition, he said, for all of the families to gather there every week.

He says he is a fortunate man with his family and his career. "I always felt that instead of working for management, I've worked with management as a team and it's been very rewarding.

Grosse Pointe Farms police will file complaints against four Grosse Pointe youths for drug possession in an incident two weeks ago.

"I'd like to go with possession with intent to deliver, with the amount they had," said Farms Sgt. Sam Cardella, the first officer on the scene. He said the case was currently with the Wayne County prosecutor.

The four were discovered in a house left empty while the residents were on vacation. One of the arrested youths is the son of the resident; he was under orders to stay away from the house, Cardella said.

A neighbor who was in charge of watching the house noticed two of the youths sleeping on an enclosed porch. Their white 1978 Chrysler was parked in front of the house.

He called police, who found the sleepers surrounded by drug paraphernalia in plain view, according to the police report. There was bags of suspected marijuana, rolling papers and a red plastic cigarette roller lying on the floor. In a brown paper bag were four hash pipes, screens and papers.

Correction

The name of Farms DPW union secretary Greg Ocelnik was misspelled in last week's Grosse Pointe News. Our apologies.

Information contained in last week's article about a pipe bombing at the Chicken Shack Restaurant in Warren was incorrect.

Bradley Scott Holz, 17, the man alleged to have detonated the bomb, was not an employee nor had he ever been an employee of the restaurant, according to the restaurant owner.

floor manager for pages in the U.S. House of Representatives, supervising four other youngsters. Their task was to run correspondence between three complexes and two annexes constituting a maze of offices and committee rooms where elected officials do the bulk of their work. He got the job when Congressman John Conyers Jr. (D-1st District) asked University of Detroit High School to nominate a student for the program. The head of the guidance department there selected Taylor for the job. Taylor says there are numerous benefits in the job, among them a chance to be on your own, to develop a camaraderie with the other 60-plus pages, and to take on responsibilities usually encountered later in life, like balancing a checkbook and sticking to a budget. In addition, he says, it's important for people to be knowledgeable about how our government works.

Pages do not forego their regular classroom studies while in Washington. In addition to his Congressional duties, Taylor took courses in geometry, chemistry, world literature and French.

One would think he'd take the summer off, but that's not Taylor's style. Last Sunday he returned to Washington to participate in a de-bate workshop at The American University, an activity separate from the Congressional page program. He will have to prepare to debate both the affirmative as well as the negative sides of the farm crisis issue and its effect on our society. Last year he debated ways to improve water quality at a

Other businesses that do not react appropriately to the market often find themselves out of business for good. The government may have to take away its support and farmers will have to deal with it like everybody else does.

In the spirit of a good debater though, Taylor quickly adds that "some might think it's wrong to punish the farmer because farmers have to deal with the natural elements. Companies do not have to deal with destruction from an outside source, namely, the weather."

Looking toward the future, Tay lor is considering law school fol-lowed by working in a Congressman's office — perhaps even running for political office someday. "I see things and think of how they could be improved. I'd just like to try to help with some of that improvement."

Under Gramm-Rudman, there is a possibility that the $800 per month stipend pages receive, a portion of which is subtracted from their room and board may be their room and board, may be withdrawn. If this does happen, Taylor would urge citizens to write to their representatives to have the stipends reinstated. "The gains from the program," he says. "far outweigh the cost."

A plethora of candidates

With 10 candidates filed for each office, the contests for Wayne County executive and 1st District county commissioner are among the most unpredictable races which Grosse Pointers will help decide in the Aug. 5 primary.

The big enrollment of candidates is explained by the fact that both incumbents are seeking higher office rather than re-election. County Executive William Lucas is among the leading candidates for the GOP nomination for governor and 1st District Commissioner John Hertel is running for county executive.

Most of the candidates for both executive and commissioner filed on the Democratic ticket which is not surprising since in the county and in the 1st District, Detroit's heavily Democratic voters are usually dominant.

However, five of the candidates for commissioner are Grosse Pointers, four on the Democratic ticket and one on the Republican. On the Democratic ticket are Katherine Barnhart, Grosse Pointe Farms; David P. Cavanagh and Claude A. Richards, Grosse Pointe Woods and George S. Fitzgerald, Grosse Pointe Shores. None of them is well known although Cavanagh and Fitzgerald bear political names that have been popular in the state.

The other Democrats in the 1st District race are Cynthia C. Fondriest, Theodore J. Piascik, Janice M. Slosek and Judith E. Stopczynski, all of Detroit. Running for the GOP nomination are Philip M. Andrews II, Grosse Pointe Park, and David Pochmara, Harper Woods.

Nine of the candidates for county executive filed on the Democratic ticket. One, Bob Murphy of Detroit, filed as a Republican and is assured of the GOP nomination.

John Hertel of Harper Woods, current 1st District commissioner and Wayne County Board chairman, is regarded as one of the leading candidates for the Democratic nomination for county executive. But he is being challenged by Mayor Edward H. McNamara of Livonia, Sheriff Robert Ficano, and two Detroiters, County Commissioner Samuel Turner and Frank Wilkerson, assistant Wayne County executive.

Others seeking the Democratic nomination are Thomas J. Gondek, treasurer of Sumter Township; Gerald Berg, a follower of Lyndon LaRouche who lives in Belleville; and Charles J. Nemeth and Michael Tifrea, both of Dearborn.

The state legislators who represent the Pointes will escape contests in the primary, although both will face competitors in the fall. Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. is unopposed for the GOP nomination for 13th District state representative, but will face Nancy L. Resowski, Grosse Pointe Park, the unopposed Democratic candidate in November. Sen. John Kelly, Detroit, is unopposed in the Democratic primary but will face the winner of the contest between John Lauve, Grosse Pointe Woods, and A. Jack Boland, in the 1st District state Senate race in November.

Both congressmen who represent the Grosse Pointes — George W. Crockett Jr. in the 13th District, and Dennis M. Hertel in the 14th District — will face primary opposition and, assuming their renomination, GOP opposition in Opposing Crockett, whose district covers Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City, as well as a large chunk of Detroit, are Alonzo Bates and Lucy Bell Randolph, both of Detroit. The GOP nomination is sought by five other Detroiters, David B. Fleury, Emily Gail, Mary Griffin, Willie J. Lenard and John W. Savage II.

Hertel's foe in the 14th District, which includes Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Shores and Grosse Pointe Woods as well as other eastside areas, is William Osipoff, reportedly a candidate of the extremist LaRouche fac-tion. If renominated, Hertel in November will face Stanley T. Grot, Hamtramck restaurateur, who is the lone GOP candidate.

The large number of candidates makes it impossible for the Grosse Pointe News to conduct individual interviews but the paper will carry news stories based on information sought from candidates for selected offices. We will endorse only in the contest for the Republican nomination for governor, but we urge readers to inform themselves as fully as possible about all candidates before going to the polls.

Primaries tend to attract a small percentage of the eligible voters and the large number of candidates to pick and choose from explain the low turnout. Yet this means well organized groups representing special interests often can nominate their favorites and defeat better qualified candidates. So taking part in a primary is an important part of every citizen's responsi-

To the Editor:

The July 10 edition of the Grosse Pointe News contained an item in the FYI column titled, "Bittersweet Ending." This piece leaves the unfortunate impression that the praise the United States Secret Service conveyed to the Grosse Pointe Shores Public Safety Department for its support and performance during the Vice President's visit to a private home in the Shores on April 28, 1986 was cynically linked to a lack of reim-bursement by the Secret Service to the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores for overtime expenditures the village incurred at that time.

In fact, the United States Secret Service depends on the cooperation and support of state and local law enforcement agencies in order to best fulfill its protective missions. Mindful of the fact that, just as the Secret Service is responsible to the Congress for its appropriation, these state and local agencies are also responsible to governments for their expenses. The Secret Service recognizes that these protective missions often place serious financial burdens on local jurisdictions involved in implementing these security arrangements. Because the Secret Service is not able to reimburse these local agencies for their security expenditures, a careful mutual review of the protective requirements, and each agency's capacity to participate, forms part of the basis for the advance arrangements for any visit of this nature. Thus, "up front," each agency participating in the security arrangements does so with full awareness of what will be

Since all of this is so, our letter of commendation to the Grosse Pointe Shores Public Safety De-partment had everything to do with its excellent performance on April 28, and nothing to do with an aftempt to take the sting out of overtime costs. Our recognition of the dedication and professionalism of the Grosse Pointe Public Safety Department was sincere and should not be adulterated by mixing it with other issues as presented in your newspaper.

I realize perhaps you were making some interesting comparisons to yesteryear's education, but I would like to give you the rest of the story.

Matthew has made an extensive study of the presidents. It does not just include 40 names, but includes terms of office, vice presidents, wives, details of campaigns, family, etc. For example, Matthew knows who was president when you were born, also when your father, grandfather and Uncle Harry were

Perhaps of greater interest is that Matthew began his study as a 6-year-old first-grader. He has studied from all sources including 24 volumes of encyclopedias. Further, Matthew has made this study completely on his own initiative following the recognition of Washington and Lincoln's birthday in 1985, by his first-grade teacher.

A respectful achievement, I believe, for any 6- and 7-year-old

STATUS OF SAFETY BELT USE LEGISLATION

July 1986

Seat belts do save lives

Most observers believe that the Michigan safety belt use law has been an unqualified success in saving lives in motor vehicle accidents - but there still are some critics who do not believe that the state should dictate seat belt us-

In the first year of its operation in Michigan, the seat belt law is credited with having saved 95 lives of vehicle occupants with belts available. That figure was arrived at by comparing the 933 fatalities for the year ending July 1 with the 1,028 total for the previous year, when the law was not yet in effect.

That decline obviously is strong evidence of success for the controversial law. The Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use was pleased at the results of the first year of mandatory seat belt use law, but expressed the hope that "all Michigan motorists see the effects of the law and buckle up.

The coalition has reason to be concerned because of the growing number of motorists who do not buckle up. The proportion of those using belts has dropped from 58.4 percent in July 1985, when the law became effective, to 43.7 percent this year. That comparison reflects a major decline even though the proportion of those buckling up is far above the 19.8 percent using belts before the law became effective.

Some people are not yet convinced of the need for the state law. Rep. Michael Nye of Litchfield told the Detroit News seat belts have saved him from serious injury or death in three auto accidents - but he is still opposed to having the state mandate seat belt use. He thinks everyone should buckle up for his own safety but doesn't want the state to require it.

But more and more states are adopting mandatory seat belt use laws. Now 26 states and the District of Columbia have joined Michigan in enactment of such statutes. In addition, tougher enforcement and tougher laws are being recommended in a number of states, including Michigan.

State laws requiring the use of seat belts may be a limitation on personal freedom but it is the same kind of restriction that is imposed by traffic lights and other traffic controls in the interest of safety. Whether motorists are critical of the law or not, they are doing themselves, their relatives and the state a favor when they buckle up. And more people should do so.

Focus on past governors

Prime Time for senior citizens

By Marian Trainor

The prediction is that fewer than 17 percent of the registered voters will cast ballots in the August primary. With such a small turnout, it becomes even more expedient for candidates to reach out to every segment of the constituency to cull every possible vote from the relatively few who will be going to the polls on primary day.

With such a light turnout, the margin of victory will be close and every means of communication will be brought into play by candidates. The airways will resound with criticisms of what has been done and how it could be done better. Newspapers will report, analyze and deliver opinion. Bill-boards, posters and banners will decorate the landscape.

There will be accusations, denials, promises and inflated accounts of past accomplishments. A mild fever and a subdued excitement will enliven the dusty, dull, hot and humid days of August. The primary is not the big one when final votes are counted and a winning candidate is named, but like all elimination contests, it has moments of glory; some sad because there are many who fail to win a place on the ballot.

But for the two who are picked to run against each other, it is a heady time when the winner looks straight ahead on a path that seems to have no bumps or detours and is bright with the sunlight of sure success. Never mind that it's really not over, that it is a two-person race. The worst is over and surely the luck, the hard work, the support of loyal friends that brought the candidate this far will carry him the rest of the way.

In Michigan, there are many prizes to be won; state senator, state representatives, commissioners among others. But the biggest, most influential and most prestigious and powerful is the governorship.

Candidates from both the Democratic and Republican parties have experience in government service and some have business and organizational skills in other areas. Voters will have an opportunity in the next few weeks to hear them declare themselves on issues and problems and offer solutions.

The problems of today are not those of yesteryear, yet looking back into history, we find that often they are much the same overlapping here, coinciding there. With this in mind it becomes a matter of interest to look at what others who have held that office have considered their problems and achievements.

In an interview conducted by David Lewis, professor of business history at the University of Michigan, he asked four ex-governors, Murray Van Wagoner, who died recently, G. Mennen Williams, John Swainson and George Romney to evaluate their term of office.

These four sought the office by different routes. Van Wagoner, an engineer, served as Oakland County drain commissioner. He ran for governor in 1940 to promote highways. At that time there was a Republican legislature and it seemed likely that all the highway money would be turned over to the Republican county road commission. Electing Van Wagoner was one way to stop that. As governor he would hold a veto over such a proposal and the road program would be saved.

G. Mennen Williams served six terms from 1949 to 1961. From boyhood he was imbued with a desire to serve people. By the time he got to college, he was determined to be governor of Michigan.

John Swainson was inspired by his law school training to enter public life. As a part of a group of veterans from World War II, he was more questioning of the law and its application. He was elected to the state senate in 1951 and became minority leader in his second time

George Romney became interested in government while still in high school. He served as secretary to Massachusetts Sen. David I. Walsh. While president of American Motors (1954-1962), he organized citizens for Michigan which in turn promoted a new state constitution. In order to keep the convention from being destroyed by factions, he became a Republican candidate for governor.

A problem for them, even as for those running today, was raising campaign funds and support. But there was a difference. It didn't require the money that is needed

When Van Wagoner ran, there was no television. The most expensive thing was radio. Williams recalls a primary and general campaign that cost $16,000 each. Swainson turned to a cross-section of people and to labor for support Romney left the fundraising to Max Fisher to avoid commitments to any group.

All of them faced budget problems.

When Van Wagoner was elected, the state was $27 million in the red. When he left, it was $27 million in the black. This was accomplished by vetoing every bill that needed money to back it.

Romney met the problem by instituting a sale tax, Swainson added a nuisance tax and Williams made a move on an income tax made a move on an income tax.

All four had special problems in addition to the routine duties inherent in being governor.

Van Wagoner had to help warrelated plants keep operating in the face of strikes. Williams claimed his biggest priority was to bring Michigan into the 20th century; to take it out of the country club and bring it back to the people. Romney cites getting the state reestablished fiscally. All four had to work with a legislature controlled by the opposite party by the opposite party.

What are the key factors in being a successful governor?

Mennen "Soapy" Williams said that being lucky and being a leader is important, and having able, loyal and dedicated people around you who can get the job done. George Romney agreed, adding: "You need to be prepared." John B. Swainson concurred and added, "You have to be in excellent physical shape." "The whole secret of doing a good job," asserted Van Wagoner, "is having good people working for you."

working for you."

When it came to achievements, Van Wagoner pointed out his success at settling strikes and keeping people at work during World War II. Williams cited the opening of the Mackinac Bridge, increased support for mental health care and accelerated highway construction. Swainson mentioned reform of the criminal justice system and expanded treatment for the mentally ill and aged. Romney pointed to the passage and implementation of the new state constitution, tax reform, and increased expenditures for higher education and social reforms.

When it came to mistakes, Van Wagoner remembers vetoing a bill without explaining why to the person who introduced it. Mennen Williams wonders whether he erred in not running for the U.S. Senate in 1958. Swainson thought he made a mistake by signing the bill that imposed a tax on suburbanites working in Detroit. Romney was less explicit, saying, "A lot of things I'd like to have seen done that were not done."

Frustrations plagued three of the four: Van Wagoner, the strikes; Williams and Swainson, the inability to push through a state income tax. Only Romney disavowed any, saying: "The things I went in to get, I got."

Two of the four, Williams and Romney, gave up the governorship voluntarily. Van Wagoner and Swainson were defeated. Van Wagoner blames his defeat on the farmers' displeasure at his acceptance of daylight savings time. Swainson dismissed his by pointing to his opponent who was supported by the business and industrial community of the state.

They all left office optimistic about Michigan's future. Romney focused in on the problems of the automobile industry and the need to meet the Japanese competition and pointed out the need for diversification saying, "Automobile employment is never going to be what it was in the past." Van Wagoner termed Michigan the greatest state in the union, citing its good water as its prime asset.

Williams also singled out the need for diversification and emphasized the value of the water resources. Swainson recalled that Michigan had faced great challenges would be overcome.

Looking back at the governorships of these four men, those seeking that office today should note that many of the problems they faced still need to be worked out among them a balanced budget, tax relief, unemployment and social reforms.

I say

Four birdies!

People see what they want to see, hear what they want to hear and read what they want to read. The social scientists call it selective perception. We in the newspaper business are made acutely aware of this time after time.

Write a story on a divisive issue and then hear the readers from each side tell us that we slanted the story to favor the other side. That, of course, is impossible to do at the same time and that's when we know we've done our job. Better yet is the rare occasion when both sides call to say we presented the issue fairly. That's not only possible, it's something most of us strive for and again, it's confirmation that the writer did his job well.

We have had an interesting mix of reactions to our recent series on Shaker Heights and it points up that people digest information differently. Some callers enjoyed the stories and others were convinced that we were promoting immediate and rapid integration. Then there was the man who was sure that we were promoting segregation by warning residents what could happen. The liberals must be very upset with us, he said. And there was the woman who accused writer Nancy Parmenter of subliminal activism.

Well, all I can say is I would never have dreamed of pairing those words together. On a serious level, I would have to say that we performed one of our duties as a newspaper and that is to make readers think. We might make you hopping mad, but this is not a church bulletin.

We have one regular caller (in reality she's quite irregular), who calls to scream obscenities whenever there's a picture of a black person in the paper. She's convinced we have no "standards" and in a classic example of selective perception, convinced she saw something that wasn't there. Last week we ran a photo on the front page of two teenagers who do volunteer work at a hospital. Both girls were white and one had a deep tan and yep, you guessed it. My caller, whom I've named The Sweetheart, yelled into the receiver, "You did it again."

What has all of this to do with a column titled Four Birdies? It's the idea that we read what we want to read and there are probably more than a few readers who will think it's a reference to golf. Well, I gotcha this time. It's about baby birds, also known as birdies. And sure enough, the word is in the dictionary.

It all started on the Memorial

Clown Corps

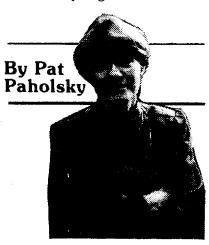

The Grosse Pointe Clown Corps will hold a new member registration Thursday, July 31, at 7:30 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe Woods city council chambers.

The corps will appear Saturday, Aug. 23, at the Farms/City Fishing Rodeo. The organization will also take part in the Metropolitan Club Field Day at Brownell Middle School Aug. 30.

A new member registration will also be held Aug. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the Woods City

Day weekend when I was lingering over a late breakfast. Some birds on our porch were making such a din, I though something happened. It turned out to be two barn swallows, chattering away and flying around the porch. What I didn't realize was they were checking out the location and discussing whether it was a good place to raise their young.

Well, they liked the neighborhood and began building a nest on our porch light. It's a round globe surrounded by a decorative wrought iron piece. They worked pretty hard, dropping tiny bits of mud on the light. They missed half of the time and the floor underneath had as much mud as the globe.

We use our porch light all the time and it occurred to me that the heat might bake those babies, and so I put the light on during the day to let them know what they were getting into. They perched on the wrought iron and discussed it between themselves for awhile and then continued construction. We kept track of their progress, and one day there was this wonderful pebble and twig nest held together

Then came the waiting. Every day the mother sat in the nest and the father perched on the wooden hanging sign, occasionally chasing a robin or some other bird that got too close. We all became bird watchers.

It was a Sunday when my husband announced that there were four babies poking their heads up. We were all so proud. It didn't matter that we didn't have a thing to do with it. They were our birds. They tolerated our comings and goings and even let us admire their offspring if we didn't get too close.

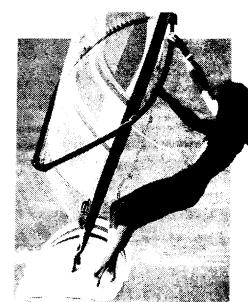

We'd stand at the door or window for long periods, watching them tentatively extending their wings out of the nest and flexing them. We watched the parents feed them and saw each one trying to stick its neck out higher than the others. We saw their fuzz turn to feathers, and finally, we caught them making short flights out of the nest. They hurried back in when it was feeding time. When all four of them were out of their nest they made so much noise, it reminded me of the first time when their parents were scouting building sites. They had come full circle.

Now they're off, making their way in the world, and the nest is empty. It reminds me that I too will experience the empty nest soon. One child has gone and the other two are getting close to leaving. I feel a little sad thinking about it, but then I hear the chattering on the porch. It's been weeks, but they still come back. Every morning and evening there are anywhere from three to six birds perched on the sign. The message I'm getting is even though they go, they're not gone. That's because I think what I want

MCF party features Hawaiian theme

By Elsa Frohman

The atmosphere was unquestionably tropical last Saturday night at the home of Ron and Mary Lamparter on Lakeshore Drive. The Lamparters were hosts of a Hawaiian-theme gathering for the Michigan Cancer Society Circle of Fellows and even the weather was reminiscent of a tropical isle.

The Circle of Fellows is a group of generous individuals who have pledged $500 per couple or more annually to the research and education programs of the Michigan Cancer Society. Members of the elite group are invited to four to six parties a year in the homes of their fellow members.

The special guest at the Lam-parter's party last weekend was John Schuck, well-known for his roles on television and in the movies. Schuck is best remembered for his portrayal of Sgt. Enright on the "McMillan and Wife" television series, and for his role as a dentist in M*A*S*H. Schuck entertained the guests on the Lamparter's lakeside terrace with a short, but humorous aria, sung a cappella.

Schuck said he agreed to come to Grosse Pointe especially for the party because he is familiar with the work done by MCF.

"MCF has helped friends of my family," Schuck said. He explained that his in-laws are originally from Michigan, though they now live in California. Spending a total of three days in Detroit, between finishing a film with Shelley Long and starting rehearsals for the roll of Captain Hook in a California theater, Schuck toured the MCF research facility here.

"This is really a unique facility," Schuck said. "There is very important research being carried on here. It's an extraordinary complex."

Schuck has recently completed filming of two movies. Around Christmas this year, he will be seen in "Star Trek IV." "I play the Klingon ambassa-

"I play the Klingon ambassador," he said. Schuck admits some ignorance of the Star Trek cult, yet enjoyed his role as the ambassador.

"This is a very angry individual," he said. "The ambassador comes in at the beginning and sort of brings us up to date on what has happened between the end of Star Trek III and the beginning of this film."

Schuck wore heavy makeup for the Klingon role and had to be on the set at 3:30 a.m. each morning for four hours of costuming and makeup.

"He has green skin and a very expensive wardrobe," Schuck said. "I think they spent more on the costume than they paid me."

Schuck's other recent film project is a Touchstone Film for the Walt Disney Studios titled "Outrageous Fortune." Schuck shares the film with Shelley Long of "Cheers" fame and Bette Middler.

"It's kind of a buddy film," Schuck said. "Only the buddies are women." Filming took place all over the United States and Schuck finished the project just a week before his Grosse Pointe appearance.

"We spent the last day shooting at the Los Angeles airport on a night shoot," he said. "It was a chase scene on the luggage conveyor belts. It was sort of strange. I spent the entire evening riding the baggage conveyors with Shelley Long and Bette Middler throwing luggage at me. It still have the bruises to show for it." Schuck pointed out a bruise on his arm, but indicated that there were some in places he couldn't show as well.

Schuck's next role will be Captain Hook in a live stage production of Peter Pan in California. He says he enjoys stage work most of all.

"My entire background is in repertoire theater," he said. "Those skills are very stentorian. I've had a lot of television exposure playing roles that are rather close to my own personality. But in the theater you get to assume a new personality. I like that."

The gathering at the Lamparters featured a luau menu and Hawaiian music by the Coral Islanders and Maui Maidens. Guests gathered on the terrace overlooking Lake St. Clair and enjoyed drinks, food and good company.

The host committee for the par-

The host committee for the party included Mary and Ron Lamparter, Judy and Randy Agley, Dale and Don Austin, Sandra and Bill Baer, Marlene and John Boll, Stephanie and Frank Germack, Elizabeth and James Klein, Bev and Roy Leinweber, Linda and Barry Solomon, Kathleen and Samuel Valenti, Sue and Bill Vititoe and Lucille Wertz.

There are more than 300 members of the Circle of Fellows. For information on joining the group, contact the Michigan Cancer Foundation, 110 E. Warren Ave., Detroit, Mich., 48201-1379, or call 833-0710.

Enjoying the tropical breezes at the Hawaiian-theme gathering of the Michigan Cancer Foundation Circle of Fellows last Saturday evening were Cynthia Birch, Ron Lamparter, Mary Lamparter, John Schuck and Lotti Magya. The Lamparters have been members of the Circle of Fellows for about six months. They volunteered to host the Hawaiian party because of the appropriateness of the theme to their home. "It's alway been a summer, rather than a winter, kind of house," Ron said. Fresh flowers, including the leis worn by guests, were donated by Don Jensen of The Arrangement.

Love Is Great. But It Won't Carry Her Up The Stairs.

When it comes to your elderly parents or relatives there may be no limit to your love. Unfortunately, there are limits to your strength and limits to your time. You can't always be there when they need your help. But you can make sure they're cared for by making one of Cottage Hospital's Nursing Homes their new home.

And Cottage Nursing Homes are just that—homes. With comfortable, home-like rooms, nutritious meals and a warm, friendly atmosphere. Registered nurses, skilled aides, therapists, social workers, dietitians and Cottage Hospital physicians see to it that residents not only get the expert medical care they need but also the personal care they deserve.

And you can come see for yourself just about any-time. We keep flexible, convenient visiting hours to encourage frequent visits from family and friends.

COTTAGE CONTINUING CARE Private pay residents also will find Cottage Hospital Nursing Homes surprisingly affordable.

June lunch brings pals together

On June 12, 20 students from Jan Thompson's third grade class at Kerby Elementary School met their senior citizen pen pals from the Food and Friendship program at Ferry Elementary School. Bringing their lunch and a name tag for their pen pal was the highlight of three months of letter-writing between the two groups.

The students wrote the first letter, part of a language arts assignment, and the whole group of letters was sent to the Food and Friendship location. Interested seniors chose a letter at random and the letter exchange began. This was the second pen pal exchange that Jan Thompson has planned with the help of Marge Nixon, coordinator of volunteers in the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Two years ago when the Food and Friendship group met at Brownell, they exchanged letters and then walked to Brownell Middle School to meet their pen pals. This year, several mothers of the students in the class drove students to Ferry Elementary

They enjoyed seeing the pen pals finally meet face to face. One mother commented that her children did not have grandparents nearby and that she appreciated the opportunity for interaction with seniors.

After the students and their pen pals had lunch with other par-ticipants in the Food and Friendship program, the Kerby class entertained everyone by singing songs from their performance at the Kerby Spring Concert. Judy Bailey, vocal music teacher, was there to accompany them.

This pen pal exchange was one of two that took place in the school system this spring. Student council members from Trombly Elementary School, and their sponsor, Learning Resource center teacher Ann Meyers, exchanged letters with a group of seniors from other locations. Their party was held June 11 at Trombly Elementary School.

Piano workshop, concert series begin July 27

More than 100 pianists from throughout southeastern Michigan will gather at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts for the second piano workshop.

Directed by pianist and music educator Wesley Fishwick, the workshop will begin July 27 and run through Aug. 2. It is open to pianists six years of age through adults, at all levels of achievement.

"Each student will receive private instruction, supervised practice, clinics, masters classes, Kodaly ear-training, keyboard arts classes and performance opportunities," Fishwick said.

In addition, all students will receive free admission to the Summer Piano Workshop Concert Series which will run concurrently at the Macomb Center with the workshop itself.

Highlight of the concert series will be the closing all-Chopin recital on Friday, Aug. 1, by Mischa Kottler, Michigan's master pianist and mentor. A graduate of the Moscow Conservatory, he is a former pianist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and is chairperson of the Piano Department at Wayne State University.

Other concerts in the series include the Ken Koenig Jazz Trio on July 28, the Great Lakes Trio fea-turing Detroit Symphony musicians Geoffrey Applegate and Haden McKay on July 29, the piano duo of Fishwick and Harvey Kahl on July 30 and the workshop's Student Recital on July 31.

The concerts, which begin at 8 p.m., are $5. Both ticket and workshop information may be obtained by calling Nancy Kramarczyk at 286-2198.

The Workshop and Concert Series are supported in part by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and the classical music radio station WQRS.

If you trusted us with your heart attack, why go anywhere else for a sprained ankle?

Saint John Hospital has always been considered one of the finest emergency facilities on the eastside of Detroit for major injuries or serious illnesses.

One of the problems with having this kind of reputation, however, is that so many patients with serious problems come to see us that those with minor emergencies are sometimes left waiting.

No one likes to wait and we know that . . . which is why we established our new Express Care Center.

With Express Care, you receive the same expert medical attention for minor ailments such as coughs, colds, earaches and sprained ankles, as you would for the treatment of major emergencies...without the wait.

So, the next time you are faced with an emergency of any kind, keep us in mind. After all, if you trusted us with your major emergencies, why go anywhere else for those minor aches and pains?

NOTICE TO THE ELECTORS

OF THE CITY OF Grosse Hointe Moods Michigan and

USERS OF THE CITY'S WATER SUPPLY AND SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM OF NOTICE OF INTENT TO ISSUE WATER SUPPLY AND SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM REVENUE BONDS PAYABLE SOLELY FROM THE REVENUES OF SAID SYSTEM AND THE RIGHT OF REFERENDUM RELATING THERETO

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods intends to authorize the issuance and sale of Water Supply and Sewage Disposal System Revenue Bonds pursuant to Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended, in the principal amount of not to exceed in total Two Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars ($2,500,000), for the purpose of paying part of the cost of constructing extensions and improvements to the City's water supply and sewage disposal system.

Said bonds will mature in annual installments not to exceed thirty (30) in number, with interest rates to be determined at public sale but in no event to exceed thirteen percent (13%) or such higher rate as may be permitted by law on the unpaid balance from time to time remaining outstanding on said bonds.

SOURCE OF PAYMENTS OF REVENUE BONDS

THE PRINCIPAL OF AND INTEREST ON SAID REVENUE BONDS shall be payable solely from the net revenues derived from the operation of the City's water and sewage disposal supply system. Said revenues consist of rates and charges for services supplied by the system which may from time to time be increased in order to provide sufficient revenues to meet expenses of operating and maintaining said system and to pay the principal of and interest on said bonds, and future issues of Water Supply and Sewage Disposal System Revenue Bonds, if issued, and to provide reserves therefor. A schedule of said rates and charges currently in effect is on file in the office of the City Clerk.

RIGHT OF REFERENDUM

THE REVENUE BONDS will be issued without vote of the electors unless a petition signed by not less than 10% of the registered electors of the City is filed with the City Clerk within forty-five (45) days after publication of this Notice. If such a petition is filed, the bonds may not be issued unless approved by a majority vote of the electors of the City voting on the question of their issuance.

THIS NOTICE is given pursuant to the requirements of Section 33 of Act 94, Public Acts of Michigan, 1933, as amended.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION will be furnished at the office of the City Clerk upon request.

Thieves break in car, steal clothes, cash

A man visiting his children in Grosse Pointe Shores received a rude surprise July 14 when thieves broke into his car, stealing clothes, papers and cash.

. Sometime during the night, someone cut the rear window out of the man's 1977 Mercedes convertible, Shores police said. The car was parked with the doors locked in the driveway of the family's Roslyn Road house.

The theft was discovered the next morning when the man went out to his car and found it unlocked. Missing were clothes on hangers and in department store bags, a $3,000 car telephone, personal checks, credit cards and papers, and approximately $2,300 in cash

Apparently, the thief or thieves had cut the window out with a knife or razor blade, crawled through and unlocked the cars doors from the inside. Neighbors heard a car speed, turn around, then stop for a time in front of the house at about 1 a.m., but could not see the occupants.

Police are investigating.

St. Paul to offer Bible school

Board sells tax notes

have its $15.5 million worth of tax anticipation notes sold this year by Michigan National Bank of Detroit, low bidder for the note sale this year.

Michigan National offered the lowest interest rate — 4 percent — of 11 bidders, according to Christian Fenton, director of business affairs.

The winning bid by the bank will also mean some changes in banking habits of the school district as well, according to school officials. There is a policy in the school system that requires the district's general fund commercial accounts be handled by the local bank that is the winning bidder on the tax

The clause hasn't been necessary for the past few years, because local banks haven't won the bond bidding, Fenton said. The district has maintained those accounts with National Bank of Detroit, but will have to switch

The system sells notes annually to fund operations from June to December, when tax collection begins. State regulations allow a district to sell notes equally half its previous year's tax levy.
This year, the district had to contend with federal legislation that changed the provisions for the sale of tax exempt bonds. The legislation requires that 5 percent of the principal issue be spent within 30 days of issuance.

Normally, the district takes delivery of its money around July 1, investing it and earning extra money that way. This year, it will take delivery of the money July 28.

One of the factors in receiving such a low interest rate was the drop of the prime lending rate, Fenton told the board. He added that the drop in interest rates was a "two-edged sword" since the lower interest rates mean the system won't earn as much from investment of the money.

Trustee Jon Gandelot said he was delighted at the interest rate the system was able to get on its notes. The district had expected to pay as much as 4.5 percent and had budgeted for that figure, Fenton

Petersen is the city manager in the Woods, and said he wanted to give something back to the community for all it has given him.

He and his wife donated all the funds for the project, which includes landscaping, a flag pole and flag and a monument with a plaque honoring all veterans and anyone who has served the country in any way.

"We do all the planting and bought everything ourselves," Petersen said. "We have to go out there at least one hour a week to do some weeding or watering.

The Petersens have even set up a perpetual care fund, so that the Circle of Honor will remain after they have gone.

Elizabeth S. Kuhlman, a Shores village trustee, has that kind of enthusiasm for making public areas as nice and as aesthetically pleasing as possible.

She is council representative to the Shores Beautification Commit-

Much of the landscaping around the remodeled municipal building at Vernier and Lakeshore was done by a professional landscape architect, but it is through the efforts of the council and volunteers, that plantings around the facility and at the park and intersections look so nice this summer.

Ruth Truhol is the recently named beautification chairman. She said it is the volunteers who get out there in the spring to prepare the ground and plant the annuals who make things happen.

Kuhlman is a master gardener and she likes to get out and help with the work.

White impatiens now set off the landscaping around the building, and flowers have been planted at either end of the Village on Lake-

Perhaps the most eyecatching bit of work is the circle at the intersection of Lakeshore and Vernier. Truhol and Kuhlman did the work there. Dusty Miller, geraniums and other annuals make the inter-

The trough which had facilities for watering horses, animals and people, is now a central landmark, adorned with flowers and surrounded with landscaping.

The wooden barrels are filled with spikes, geraniums and petunias. The city has purchased several of the barrels, and the move is catching on by business

Elizabeth S. Kuhlman and Ruth Truhol, both of the Shores, show off the fruits of their labor the annuals they planted at the intersection of Vernier and Jefferson.

Historically in Grosse Pointe, the garden clubs have been making things pleasant to the eye. Kuhlman notes that the clubs are giving donations to the various city beautification commissions and the result has been tremendous.

There is a movement in other quarters of the Pointes.

Johann Grobben of the Park, sells flowers in the Village. He has entered into an agreement with the city and local merchants to place barrels decorated with flowers in people who are purchasing the barrels.

"I like to do it," Grobben said. "It is something I can do to beautify a small area."

WSU seeks alumni

A first-time reunion of radio. television, film and theater alumni of Wayne State University has been scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 20 and 21, according to Paul E. Andrews, executive director of the Alumni Association.

A WSU staff committee has been working since the first of the year to plan this event and to identify as many people as possible who have studied and/or participated in these areas.

The committee estimates that there are hundreds of "lost" alumni whose addresses they do not have. They are asking for help from the community to find as many of these as possible. All graduates and former students qualify as radio, TV, film or theater alumni for this reunion.

"Lost" alumni and anyone knowing the addresses of any of these former WSU performers are asked to call Mona Torp at Alumni Relations, 577-2167. Invitations will be sent later in the summer.

The primary election is less than dates. Working with my attentive two weeks away and candidates in and respected associates throughout the county, I can insure a working relationship that will result in progressive, fair and accountable government for my constituents. They need solutions and ideas that only a uniquely qualified candidate, as I, can provide.

Statement: Implement the 1981 Home Rule Charter by appropriately allocating the resources Wayne County. A Wayne County commissioner needs to be responsive and responsible to the people, thereby improving the quality of senior citizens health care, law enforcement, juvenile justice, courts and the maintenance of the infra-structure systems. The future of Wayne County demands greater Detroitsuburban cooperation to help join labor and business for expanding employment opportunities. I have provided leadership to my community and shall work to improve quality of Wayne County government serving the 1st District. I have lived, attended school and worked on the east side all my life. I have 17 years of state government experience as a vocational rehabilitation specialist serving the visually handicapped. I can make the difference, because I care and I can get results by working within the system.

Wayne County needs leaders who not only understand our economic and social problems, but can provide specific, creative ways of alleviating them. That is why I seek election to the county commission. As a lifelong county resident and active participant in church and civic groups, I've acquired far more than a textbook grasp of the issues that concern us all: friends have been victimized by crime and some neighbors have been unemployed for months. "Talk" doesn't help pay their bills, or apprehend and prosecute burglars and dope pushers. Only specific action can do that. The state of Michigan, for example, is initiating a program (AFIS) which will provide automatic fingerprint retrieval, significantly reducing the time it takes to By typing into this system, Wayne County will gain one more tool to assist law enforcement officers in the swift apprehension of criminals. Through concrete programs

Maryland Employment: Political and economic consultant

Previous political experience: Candidate for Congress of Illinois in 1984; candidate for Detroit City Council 1985; deputy campaign director for lieutenant governor of Illinois 1986

Statement: We must declare an all-out war on drugs on all fronts. Social work will not stop Dope, Inc. Money-laundering of dope pro-fits must be made a felony punishable by jail sentence and forfeiture of 100 percent of laundered money. The banks and brokerage houses and citizens above suspicion must be nailed along with the pushers in the schoolyards. Since valient leaders in South America are risking their lives in this fight, the very least we can do is quit being two-faced phonies and back them up with a real war on dope here. The billions of dollars seized in a crackdown on money-laundering could finance a Marshall Plan for southeastern Michigan that would repair our collapsing infrastructure and end all budget worries. A war on disease is also essential, especially AIDS raging out of control. AIDS has grown well beyond the fruits and nuts to be the deadliest epidemic since the bubonic plaque. To protect the public and gain a precise picture of the situation, everyone should be tested, as we would for TB, and the finest of medical quarantine provided for victims.

the Drain Commissioner. The successful elimination of the Road Commission and the passage of my ballot proposal to abolish the Drain Commission will save taxpayers millions of dollars. My administra-tion would be directed at providing the citizens of Wayne County with cost-efficient services. As chairman of the Commission, I supported the sale of Wayne County General Hospital which resulted in an annual savings of $18 million dollars and the creation of health care satellite offices where the people

In addition, I would improve the maintenance of county roads and parks by appointing department heads whose major goals would be to serve the public rather than their own political careers. Also, some county parks can be trans-ferred to the Huron-Clinton Park Authority. This transfer would save county tax dollars and HCMA would run the parks more actively and efficiently for the leisure and recreational enjoyment of Wayne County residents.

Edward H. McNamara Livonia

Education: Ph.D. University of Detroit; post-graduate study at U of D Law School

Employment: Mayor of Livonia since 1970

Previous political experience: Livonia city councilman 10 years; two-page list of boards, councils and government groups.

Statement: Wayne County has to be run on a much more efficient basis, with a balanced budget and no tax increase. The county is now facing a $30 million deficit, largely because of a $55 million annual bill from hospitals for indigent care. Most of these bills get to the county two years after they are incurred and the county has failed to do any auditing of those expenses as they are incurred. The entire system is designed for waste and overspending. In Livonia, in 16 years as mayor, we have delivered a high level of services while keeping our city tax rate among the lowest in Michigan. And we have not had a budget deficit. The county should be run with the same efficiency and that's what I intend to do as Wayne County executive.

Charles J. Nemeth Dearborn

Age: 68 Employment: Smiley Real

Previous political experience: Manager for candidates; candidate for sheriff, U.S. Congress 16th District, mayor of Dearborn, city clerk, state representative Statement: Establish sound fis-cal policies with efficient administration. Fight federal cutbacks, reduce cost of county government. Curb the power of the county executive, regarding the elimination of an entire elected commission. As an example, the drain commission - if the elected head is incompetent, have him recalled - not the elimination of the entire commission as an elected office. The drain commission is the county environmentalist, the only force to stop polluters and radioactive waste from contaminating the county. The county drain commission should have subpoena powers. Stop the attempt to store hazard-ous waste into the salt mines that are under the city of Melvindale, Allen Park, southwest Detroit. Put user fees to work at our airports. Fulfill the needs of the poor and elderly. County-wide Lotto same as state Lotto except you could buy tickets in four parts — 25 cents, 50 cents, 75 cents, $1 — all this money would be kept in the county.

Statement: I want to be county executive to improve and streamline county government. Five major issues that I will tackle are improved anti-crime measures through increased detention facilities and expanded programs for minor adult and youth offenders; health concerns through development of improved health, mental health, infant mortality reduction, toxic and polluted waste reduction and preventive care for the indigent operations in the county; industrial and commercial growth through development or marketing incentives, Port Authority, development agencies and recreational and educational facilities for growth potential; recreational goals through invitation to recreational programs from independent developers and improvement of security'and park activities; and county efficiency through the elimination of the budget deficit, solicitation of federal and state funding grants, improve employee training and provide updated equipment.

Statement: I operate Wayne County with a balanced budget and continue the reorganization of Wayne County government. Specifically, 1 will work to have the $34 million cost of probate court and indigent legal fees folded into court reorganization; I will cut the operating costs of the executive and legislative branch of government by $1 million; and I will provide leadership to galvanize community sup-port for an attack on illiteracy, juvenile delinquency and infant death mortality. I will develop a program to enhance the growth of small business in Wayne County which provides 80 percent of our jobs; and I will act to improve the quality of life in Wayne County with regional transportation that will lead to economic development and jobs for our citizens.

Previous political experience: Metro Detroit coordinator, 1984 Michigan with Hart campaign; post-campaign work, Americans with Hart; volunteer coordinator, 1984 Levin Senate Re-election Campaign; precinct delegate; member, Michigan Democratic Party Century Fund

Statement: For the future of the district and Michigan, It is most important for our state representative to have a commitment to efficiency in statefunded programs. It is no longer enough to scrutinize the state budget with an accountant's pen. We must question the content and effectiveness of large established programs. State spending must be evaluated like investments, by the value returned to the state and the community, and not only by the initial cost of the investment. As investors, we demand return on our dollar. We should be able to expect the same from our state tax dollar.

Michigan's future will depend on its ability to adapt and respond to the reality of diminishing federal funds, without raising taxes. The state's elected officials must be able to meet the challenge of fiscal restraint with innovative and pragmatic solutions to government problems.

To that end, the state representative from our district must approach these challenges with renewed energy, independent action, and the ability to put aside party ideology for the good of the state.

Lic #BA-0266

Employment: State senator since 1978; adjunct professor University of Detroit and Mercy College, 1983 to present

Statement: The next four years is a period of unprecedented promise for Michigan. We are solvent, economically vibrant and turning outward as an industrial giant to capture our part of the world. All of the potential that our collective people, confident businesses and individual genius has to offer — can be realized in a very short time. To move our destiny forward will be a challenge because typically we require a "crisis" to force us to adapt. I want to be the leadership showing us the way to creative new ideas to direct our resources and talents to solve our perennial problems without "doom" being the motivator of change. We have it within our reach to rebuild our urban centers, to retool our manufacturing capacity, to educate the literate and to raise the quality of life for us all, if we approach it positively as possible, a manageable problem. It can be accomplished!

Typically, however, progress has been conditioned on spending tax dollars. In my case that has not been the way. A 1983 study by M.S.U. on legislative voting patterns characterized me as the third most conservative spender in the entire Senate. Sure, I voted to restore financial solvency to our state, but I have never been one to squander previous tax dollars. For eight years now, I have lived with the Senate through our crisis of economic depression and the tumult of financial crisis. Through these lean years, I have maintained my integrity and independence. Four more years of constructive opportunity to map the future for our children will fulfill my ambition to serve the people.

Statement: 🕺 Establishing a better relationship between Washington and the 13th District. Attempt to find a more harmonious and equitable manner for decisions regarding federal funding priorities. Neighborhood groups, small business owners in the commercial strips and corporate leaders need to be making these decisions together. As a pub-lic official, I would create the opportunity for more input from all special interest groups and a program for educating special interest groups on what's available to them. The development of Detroit west of Grosse Pointe Park is an example of areas that need input from both Detroit and Grosse Pointe Park as to the redevelop-ment. I would provide that opportunity. A more positive image of Detroit and its surrounding communities both nationally and internationally. This would be a formal extension of what I've been doing ad hoc since 1969 as a business person in Detroit. Tax reform that removes the burden off the middle class, single people and small businesses. Accessibility to my constituents so as to determine on an ongoing basis the issues that are affecting their lives and how I can best represent them. A concerted effort to represent the entire 13th District and not limiting representation to the Detroit city limits.

As chair of the Task Force on Waste, Abuse and Fraud in the Department of Defense, I have succeeded in making many changes in military spending procedures including an amendment to last year's Defense Authorization Bill which created criminal penalties for contractors who repeatedly submit bills for costs they did not incur. Cutting wasteful defense spending practices will help keep our military strong and viable and save tax-

I support reducing the deficit but without a tax increase. The deficit can be reduced through economic growth and reductions in federal spending. The incumbent voted against virtually all aspects of President Reagan's economic recovery program. The economic base of this district is cars. Under the Reagan Economic Plan, this base has grown and expanded. I would work to help the auto industry by keeping interest rates low and reducing import barriers imposed by foreign countries. St. Paul's gets a new organ using technology from the past

By Elsa Frohman

Dave Wagner plays the organ for an 8:30 a.m. mass at St. Paul's Catholic Church every morning. The sound is rich and full and the parishioners sitting below his organ loft are hardly aware that he is sitting in the midst of power tools and sawdust and partially assembled mechanisms, and that the organ he is playing is really only about half complete. The organ sounds like an organ and only Wagner is aware that the music he plays this month is only a promise of the music the instrument will produce when it is finished.

St. Paul's is getting a new organ, but not just any ordinary church organ. It is one of a kind and the only example of its breed in the Detroit area. The St. Paul's organ, custom built by Karl Wilhelm, Inc., of Canada, is entirely mechanical, with no electronic or electric parts except the air compressor. Like the great European church organs, each key moves a wooden lever, which opens an apperture, which allows compressed air to reverberate through a pipe. The organist's hands directly move the mechanisms that make the music, and according to Wagner, that makes all the difference in the world.

"This is an older type of system," Wagner said. "Then, organs were built to be used for 300 or 400 years. This organ was built to provide that sort of service."

Most American church organs are electro-pneumatic, that is, when the organist presses a key, he is activating a switch that turns on a motor that allows air to pass through the pipe. Wagner credits humanitarian Albert Schweitzer with starting the trend back toward mechanical organs.

"Schweitzer said we were losing track of what an organ was," Wagner said. "He called for a return to mechanical movements."

World War II also played a part in creating an interest in mechanical organs. During the war, many American organists were in Europe and heard the great European organs for the first time. They began to wonder what (Continued on Page 4B)

Above, Dave Wagner, music director at St. Paul's Catholic Church, strikes a chord on the new, partially complete Whilhelm organ. The action of the keyboard is completely mechanical. The keys activate small levers inside the console, which in turn allow air to pass through the pipes. At the left, Martin Pasi, a skilled organ voicer, trims tiny slivers from the pipe to tune it perfectly. Voicing is a critical operation — a tiny bit too much trimmed from a pipe can ruin it. At the right, the main bank of pipes of the new organ. These pipes are located directly have the console. Though the organ looks complete from the main floor of the church, there are still more than 1,000 pipes to install. The organ will be finished sometime in late August.

St. Paul's Catholic Church gets a new-old organ . . .

'An organ like this doesn't create an earthshattering crescendo," Wagner said. "But it has a clarity and beauty of sound like fine cut crystal.'

Karl Whilhelm, builder of the St. Paul organ, apprenticed in organ building in Switzerland. He emigrated to Canada in 1960 to head the mechanical action division of a Canadian organ company. Later, he founded his own organ company in the Montreal area. Whilhelm's company builds only mechanical action organs. The St. Paul organ is the 100th organ built by Whilhelm.

The St. Paul organ was completely assembled in Whilhelm's Canadian factory, then disassembled and shipped to the church, where a team of technicians, including Whilhelm himself, reassembled the instrument. The organ weighs eight and a half tons and has 2,500 pipes.

"Everything is handmade," Wagner said. "They do everything but grow the trees.

The organ is built of the same materials used in the organs of the 18th and 19th centuries. The action is built entirely of wood, the keys are made of wood and bone. The black keys are made of ebony. The draw knobs are carved out of rosewood. The case is handcarved from white oak. While Whilhelm's craftsmen use modern powertools, they are duplicating a technology perfected hundreds of years ago. Even the metal that forms the pipes is entirely manufactured in the organ factory. The metal starts as ingots and is melted and alloyed and hamemred to form the sheetmetal that is rolled to form the pipes. The process has a definite effect on the sound of the finished instrument.

"They've found that hammering draws out the molecules in the metal and makes it vibrate better," Wagner said.

Pipes with different sound qualities are made from different metals, some having a highly polished surface, others having a mottled surface and others still having a dull surface.

The pipes range from 10 and 12-feet-long, with diameters of four and five inches, to tiny pipes with a diameter of about a quarter-inch. There are even two "special effect" pipes that are built upsidedown and bubble their sound through water.

The 2,500 pipes are organized in 47 "ranks," or groups, and are controlled by 33 stops. The stops control which pipes will be activated by which keys. If all the stops are pushed in, no pipes will be used and the organ makes no sound. If one stop is pulled out, the pipes in that group are played. More stops can be added to swell, or change

A pipe organ is not like the "synthesiser" organs most people buy for home user, Wagner explained. While different pipes can be used for different effects, the effects do not precisely imitate other musical instruments. The sound is always that of an organ, not a full orchestra.

"The organ is a baroque instru-ment," Wagner said. He explained that there is no way to play loud and soft. Sounding a pipe makes a certain sound and musical effects like swelling to a crescendo must be created by other means than striking harder and softer, as a pianist does. One method is the use of a "swell box," or a group of pipes built inside a box with louvers. Opening or closing the louvers can make the music seem louder or softer. Another method is to add stops, letting a larger variety of pipes carry a fuller sound.

Though work will continue on the organ through the middle of August, the organ is playable, and indeed, Wagner has been playing

Assembling the organ is a precise and slow task. The workers complete about one stop a day, some stops taking several days to install. Each pipe must be "voiced" as it is installed. That is, a skilled craftsman trims minute shavings of metal off the pipe to tune it precisely to blend with the

An organ of this type is specifically designed for the location where it will be played. Each of the organs Whilhelm has built is unique. The St. Paul organ was designed with the size of the church and the organ loft in mind. Wagner worked withWhilhelm for many months before the final design was approved. Different arrangements of pipes and cases were considered and rejected before the current configuration was arrived upon.

The new organ is the culminachurch has needed an organ since the disastrous fire of 1978 when the roof of the church was destroyed.

"The old organ was not destroyed in the fire," Wagner explained. "But it sat in the cold and the rain and it took its toll on the machinery. We had a lot of mechanical problems with the organ.'

The organ at St. Paul's must be able to stand up to a lot of use, Wagner said. The instrument is used several times daily.

"This is such an important historical church," Wagner said. 'And this is such a busy place, we really need an industrial strength organ. Sometimes the organ goes for hours everyday. It can't be a fussy piece of equipment."

The new organ is a delight to both the eye and ear. Its ornately carved case is built to complement the loft and the window at the back of the church.

"I'm really pleased," Wagner said. "This is a big step for the church.'

The organ will have its first major concert on the third Sunday in October when James Kibbie of the University of Michigan will be playing. There will be special

Operation LINC plans softball benefit program

A celebrity benefit softball extravaganza is happening Sunday, July 27, at Palmer Park. The Lawrence Johnson/Thomas Hearns Hit Team will battle the Detroit Police Department's 15th Precinct softball team.

The Hearns Hit Team will include the celebrity line-up of Thomas Hearns, Emanuel Steward, Milton McCrory, Hilmer Kenty (boxers); John Long, Earl Cureton and Vennie Johnson of the Detroit Pistons; Ron Banks of the Dramatics and many, many more.

Starting at 5 p.m. on Diamond #1, the undefeated 15th Precinct Softball team managed by Commander Mack Douglas (with the assistance of Commander Gil Hill of the Major Crimes Division, known for his part in the movie "Beverly Hills Cop" will take on the Hearn's Hit Team for the benefit of the needy families of Detroit. The game is open to the general public. Admission will be as many canned and dry goods as you can bring. LINC has been chosen to coordinate the collection and distribution of all foodstuffs donated to help feed needy families of Detroit.

Come see a great softball game and support the cause by bringing your food donations July 27. Anyone interested in making donations other than the day of the game, can call the LINC office at 882-6100.

Members of the 1986-87 board of Operation LINC include, Martha Brosky, president; Trisha Fishman. second vice president; Carole Selmo, first vice president; and Barb Earl, treasurer.

planning the present year's projects are Martha Brosky, LINC's president for 1986-87; Trisha Fishman, second vice president in charge of publicity and public relations; first vice president, Carole Selmo will handle corporate planning; Paddy Griem is recording secretary: and treasurer, Barb Earl, in charge of finance. These individuals only comprise a small portion of the expertise and volunteer base it takes to accomplish LINC's goals. Additional areas of responsibility include fundraising, research, volunteers, resources and future planning. We welcome interested individuals to contact us for more information on how you can lend a helping hand.

There is a new year starting for committee. Kicking-off the new many organizations. LINC welcomes a new group to the eastside, the Lula Bell Stewart Center, located at 9641 Harper in the Harper/Gratiot Multi-Service Center. The Stewart Center has been operating on the westside of Detroit for quite some time, however, it has recently opened this location to become more accessible for the eastside clients. At this time, Irma Hill, supervisor of the branch, asks that individuals making referrals do so through the west office at 867-2372 so that individual needs can be coordinated appropriately.

The Lula Bell Center has a multitude of assistance programs. Those individuals in need of pre-GED (general equivalent diplomas) and GED classes can call. Classes begin the last week in August. Counselors are available for home calls and office appointments in the areas of pre- and postnatal care, job training, stress management of pregnancy and parenting.

Jack Liang: Bringing professional management skills to volunteerism

By Elsa Frohman

Jack Liang's tenure as president of the executive board of the Northeast Guidance Center was a period of upheaval and change for the center. But at the end of his two-year term, Liang is able to look back on a number of positive accomplishments.

Liang, who was recently honored as an outstanding volunteer by the Michigan chapter of the National Society of Fund Raising Executives, lead the Northeast Guidance Center through the process of selecting a new executive director. He also instituted a "Platinum Management Plan," a system of identifying and reaching management goals for the center.

'Soon after I came to Michigan, the Northeast Guidance Center was looking for a liason with the health care community," Liang said. Liang came to Grosse Pointe in 1980 from Ithica, N.Y., after he was appointed vice president of the St. Clair Ambulatory Care Corporation, a division of St. John Hospital. Liang joined the board of the Northeast Guidance Center in 1981.

When the previous director, John York, left the center for another position, the problem of selecting a new director surfaced. Liang had newly taken over the office of president.

"It was a difficult time," he said.
"But there were two things we wanted to accomplish (in selecting a new director). We wanted to include the staff, the board, and the community in the process, and we wanted to select the best person possible.

A search committee was formed and prerequisites were developed for candidates.

"We decided that it would be a national search," Liang said. "We decided on minimum professional and educational requirements for the position. We wanted any candidate to have experience in community mental health and for him to have demonstrated ability to work in a diverse community."

Pointer Interest

The committee finally chose Walter Beck to be the new executive director.
"Walter is outstanding," Liang

But in addition to the one-time task of selecting a new director, Liang instituted procedures that he hopes will help the center meet its goals for many years to come. Platinum management planning is a system of deciding what needs to be done and how to do it.

"I took them through the process of developing a five-year plan," he said. "It's a planning procedure where you look at your strengths and weaknesses, the opportunities and the threats to your operation."

That five-year plan takes into account some of the major challenges facing the Northeast Guidance Center and every community mental health facility.

The major challenge is a lack of funding," Liang said. "There has been a move to de-institutionalize clients, to move them out of state institutions. At the same time, there are inadequate resources to follow up on their care. One of the biggest things we will be facing is continued lack of adequate funds to take care of increasing numbers of community clients. We must look for alternative funding and expand the spectrum of services we offer."

Liang looks to expansion of privately paid services and links to health maintenance organizations as viable alternatives to the funding crunch.

"We can also provide contracts for mental health services to local industries," he said.

Liang looks for more cooperative programs between different mental health facilities in the future.

"Rather than reinvent the wheel, we need to bring our expertise to each other," he said.

Though he is no longer president of the Northeast Guidance Center, Liang still involves himself with the center as a volunteer.

"There are two things I can look back on," he said. "I have helped

Jack Liang, vice president of the St. Clair Ambulatory Care Corporation at St. John Hospital, was president of the Northeast Guidance Center through the period when a new executive director was the center through its management search, and I have left in place a management plan that the Northeast Guidance Center will use every year for some time to come. I enjoyed my term because I had the opportunity to give those things. You don't always have the opportunity to have that kind of

Heartline picnic set

Members of St. John Hospital's Second Chance Heartline Unit are sponsoring a picnic and drawing to be held on Sunday, Aug. 10, at the St. Clair Shores Recreation Park.

The drawing will feature a ladies' Omega watch (valued at $1,000) as first prize. Second prize is $200 cash and third prize is $100

Tickets for the drawing are $1 each or six tickets for $5. Second Chance members will be selling tickets at the St. John Hospital cafeteria and at local area super-

Proceeds from this year's raffle will be used toward programs in the St. John Hospital Cardiac Catheterization Lab and Cardio-Vascular areas, according to picnic chairman Russ Santoro.

The Second Chance Heartline Unit is comprised of former St. John Hospital cardiac patients who have undergone open heart surgery and who now provide emotional support to others going through the same procedure.

For more information regarding the picnic and raffle, call Santoro at 771-4314, Marvin Ninneman at 264-5728 or Beverly McNutt, St. John Hospital Administration, at 343-3300.

Remember me?

I'm feeling a little like Wally Pipp these

Pipp, if I remember correctly, was the starting first baseman for the Yankees way back in the late 1920s. He played every day . until one day, when circumstances forced him onto the bench. His replacement?

Lou Gehrig, who proceeded to set the major league record for most consecutive games played, thereby condemning Pipp to eternity on the bench, not to mention as the answer to a baseball trivia question.

As to why I feel like Pipp; well, I left some three weeks back for a two-week (G.P. News edition-wise) vacation. Education beat reporter Mike Andrzejczyk took my place. And, while I've been able to pry him away from my electric typewriter, I was a bit worried that he might play Gehrig and refuse to relinquish the sports editors' job.

"I like writing sports," he told me. "It's a lot of fun."

I know. And that's a secret I'm able to keep for 49 weeks per year. It's when I must take my allotted three weeks of vacation that I get worried that others will find out why I stick to the sports beat. What made it harder was that Mike did a pretty good job ... and managed to have fun, darn him.

He got the soccer photos in that I had failed to publish, despite two weeks of promises. He reeled off a couple of interesting stories, a pair of funny columns and even dashed up to Port Huron to cover the start of the Mack-inac Race. It wasn't Lou Gehrig, but all in all, a tough act to follow. But heck, I'll give it a shot. (And if I blow it, I'll just retire and open up a business marketing Wally Pipp Bench Pillows).

I'll lead off my first back-from-vacation column with a cute, catchy headline. Something like: My Back From Vacation

... Went fishing for the very first time in my life. And guess what? I loved it. Which is pretty strong stuff coming from someone who was such a neophyte angler that I once identified a 27-inch long fish in a sports photo as a perch. After a relaxing, enjoyable and fun three hours out on Lake St. Clair in a nifty little 16-footer, I now know better than to do things like that. I'm no Mort Neff, but I learned how to cast off and reel in, how to watch a line for snags and when a fish might be biting. Someday maybe, I'll even catch

... I also played volleyball on my vacation and discovered — to my horror — that after nearly a year away from my second favorite participatory sport, I'm a little rusty. Somebody, please, challenge me and my GP News cohorts to a friendly match. I'm sure I can convince some co-workers to be crazy, um, kind enough to play.

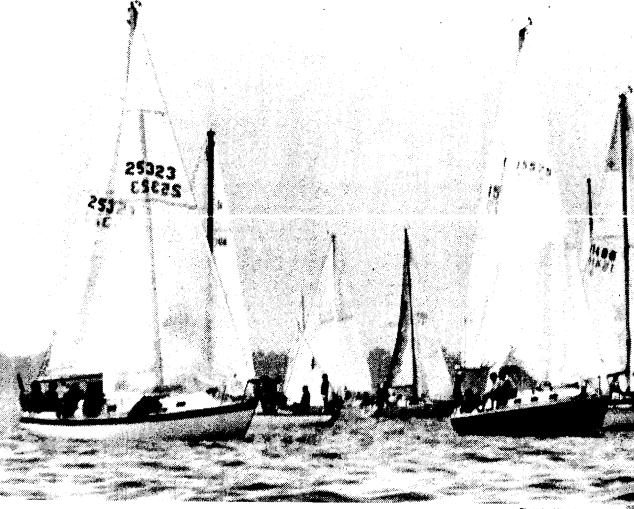

Things I didn't do on vacation: Watch the All-Star Game (you've seen one, you've seen 'em all, you know?); go to a Tiger game or even watch one on TV (hey, I was on vacation, you know?); do anything that in any way, shape or form constituted exertion. (Sipping lemonade out by the pool doesn't

. . One thing I didn't miss was the continuing tussle between the various Little League, Babe Ruth League and soccer leagues from the Grosse Pointes. For some reason, folks from the cities who are highly competitive with one another think that we here at the News favor one city (or team, or player, etc.) over another.

We don't. Items are published in the paper 1) if they are newsworthy; 2) if they concern Grosse Pointe and/or Grosse Pointers; 3) depending upon the space available. That's it. No favoritism, no favors.

But you have to give us the complete and correct information. A case in point was the 13-15 year-old Park Babe Ruth team, the Orioles, which won the World Series championship over the Park's Tigers. Only the press release we received didn't quite contain enough information . . . mainly, how important a win this was.

So, when the release was edited for space (Continued on Back Page)

The start of the 62nd Bayview Port Huron to Mackinac race was plagued by light winds.

'Absolutely incredible'

Pointe skipper's boat beats the rest of field to Mackinac

John Stevens thought he was doing pretty well when his IOR-B Sprint finished second in its division in last year's Port Huron to Mackinac race, the roughest in memory. But he hadn't seen anything yet.

Stevens, of Grosse Pointe City, sailed what he called a "straightforward" race — not deviating much from the norm line — to a first place finish overall in last weekend's 62nd Bayview Yacht Club event. Sprint's corrected time of 31:25:00 was 22 minutes better than the next fastest boat.

"It was an absolutely incredible race for us. Very fast, too. It's a big, big win for us," a tired Stevens said from a Mackinac Island pay phone on Tuesday morning.

After a slow start in light winds on a hot Saturday afternoon, Sprint ran into a storm that Stevens said he knew was coming up. "I'd been to the FAA office at Detroit City Airport on Friday afternoon and

Saturday morning, so I knew we'd run into the storm. I also knew that it didn't have much power to it.'

But lightning off Harbor Beach and Port Sanilac, Stevens added, was "incredible." "Actually, it was quite beautiful. We'd never seen anything like it." Getting a bird's-eye view of the lightning was Pat Lietaert, a first-time crewmember aboard Sprint, who had to scurry up into the rigging to clear the halyard right in the middle of the storm. His work enabled Stevens to douse the jib and sail successfully through the storm.

"But that was typical of our crew; we really had a good crew. It's difficult to get a crew that works together well, but we did this year," Stevens said. America's Cup sailors Larry Klein and Mark Szymanski crewed on Sprint. as did Larry Mahieu, Frank Piku. Ron Sherry, Don Ross, Chris Clark and navigator Dave Dow.

The key to the victory, Stevens said, was knowing pretty much when the final wind shift would occur. "I felt that it would probably happen just after we hit Cove Island (the approximate halfway point in the 298-mile race). And it did about 20 minutes later. I saw lots of boats go to the Canadian side, thinking that the wind would shift to the southeast, but we stayed where we were and benefitted from the wind remaining from the North."

As the boats converged on Mackinac, Stevens said he felt that he had a pretty good chance to win, despite the proximity of Stars & Stripes, and IOR-A boats Fujimo and Nitissima.

Stars & Stripes was close, but we had enough boat speed to beat her and the big boats had to give us time. From Cove Island on, it was a matter of protecting our wind and not letting anyone get ahead of us.

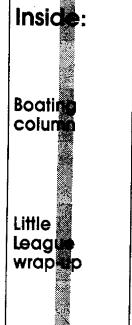

"And that's what we did. Sprint didn't let us down."

- Peggy O'Connor

More than 200 boats set sail from Port Huron last Saturday for the 62nd Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac Invitational Race. They battled a light air start and a Saturday evening storm - minor aggravations compared to 1985, the roughest Mackinac in history. Grosse Pointe-based boats made up more than 20 percent of the field; following are the finishing times of those boats, (available at press time) including their rank in both class and division.

Little League

Woods-Shores Minors

The 1986 Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores Little League season drew to a close with an exciting Minor League World Series between American Division Champion Tuscon and National League Champion Miami.

The National League championship was a close race throughout the entire season. Toronto, managed by Doug Luttenberger, and Buffalo, managed by Bill Eldridge, were tied with Miami until the last game of the season. Both teams posted records of 9-3 while Miami, managed by Maureen Leehr and Mike Zolik, finished the regular season at 10-2.

J.R. Lovelace was the starting pitcher in the World Series game for Tuscon and held Miami scoreless in the first inning. Jeff Young took the mound for Miami and posted seven strikeouts, caught a pop fly and assisted on a ground ball to first base.

Tuscon's Ron Eisenhart scored from second base when Steve Collins singled in the first inning. Brandon Stander hit one to the second baseman, but failed to score. In the second inning, Miami's Bobby Rabbani hit a ground ball which forced Jay Disser out at second but earned an RBI, scoring Maureen Zolik from second. Jeff Young and Robert Backlund followed with singles and scored as did Charlie Beaupre and Nate Pierantoni.

Marty Leehr got the third inning going for Miami with a stand up triple and scored along with Mike Collins on Tom Reinhard's single. With some fine work by pitcher Ron Eisenhart and other great defensive play by shortshop Hahn, John Trout behind the plate, Jimmy Pugel in rightfield and Craig Tracey at second, Miami's scoring was stopped. This defensive unit held Rabbani and Young at second and third while Eisenhart struck out the next three batters to end the third inning.

Matt Carrier came on in the fourth inning to pitch for Miami. Robert Schwab made a fine catch in centerfield and Eric Damore covered rightfield well. In the fifth inning, William Stephens, Ron Eisenhart and Steve Collins scored for Tuscon. Carrier held the 9-4 Miami lead until the sixth inning. when Mitchell Rankins and Eisenhart were on base and Steve Collins hit a massive out-of-the-park home run to narrow the score to

With Michael Marks and J.R. Lovelace on base representing the tying run, Carrier fired a kneehigh fastball for a called third strike and Miami had the championship.

Tuscon's Craig Tracy did a fine job at second and third base while Alex Tracy and David Zoltowski covered rightfield ably. The efforts of Miami's Erick Maks, Craig Elder and Tuscon's Chris Moisides were missed during this game, but they played well all season. Both teams deserved the game-ending applause for their winning sea-

Werner Lueckhoff presented the Franklin-Saad Memorial Trophy to Miami and Bill Lindemann assisted in the presentation of trophies to all team members.

Sports people

Three University Liggett School players have been named to the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association All-State boys tennis team for Class C-D. Making the team, whose members were named July 13 at the semi-annual coaches meeting, were John Birgbauer, Kirk Haggarty and Marc Hunt.

Russell Collins, of Lakeview Avenue in the Farms, will be head varsity basketball coach at Hamtramek High School this fall, athletic director Eugene Snider announced last week.

A graduate of Wayne State University, Collins will head a team that walked through an undefeated season before bowing to Detroit Northern in the playoffs last year.

Collins, who graduated from South in 1964, has been involved in basketball coaching since 1975, mainly in the Catholic League. His assignments included St. Martin DePorres, St. Florian, DeLaSalle and, most recently, Bishop Foley.

His success at St. Florian in Hamtramck in 1980 first brought him to the attention of Snider. Collins team finished 13-8 that year, good enough for second place in divisions. More remarkable was that the team was 5-16 the year before under another coach.

Representing the University of Iowa at the 1986 National Olympic Festival next month in Houston, Texas will be basketball player Jolynn Schneider of Grosse Pointe.

Schneider is among eight Hawkeyes invited to represent the school in the annual celebration of amateur sports.

North High student John Drummy, of Grosse Pointe Woods, has been named captain of the Michigan State Select under 151/2 soccer team. Drummy plays midfield and defense for the state select squad (the same positions he fills for the Norsemen). The state select team recently traveled to Bowling Green, Ohio, where it met teams from seven other states for training and games.

Connie Mack team wins five

Due to the rainy weather of two weeks ago, Grosse Pointe South's Connie Mack team was forced to play six games last week, winning five and losing only one.

On July 14, the South squad whipped Mount Clemens, 9-5. South scored five runs in the first inning and added two more in the fifth and sixth. Steve Kinsley had three hits — including two doubles to pace the hitters. Rich Cordova added a double and a single to drive in three runs; Doug Lucas hit an RBI triple, and Tim Nugent accounted for three RBI on a double and a sacrifice fly. Scott

Tucker was credited with the win. Rick Leonard tossed a threehitter on July 16, as GPS won the first of three decisions over Sterling Heights (No. 2), 7-1. Another five-run rally, this time in the second inning, was more than enough to gain the win. Bill Adlhoch had three hits, including two doubles and scored three runs. Kinsley other hits. knocked in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly.

Trailing 5-3, South came up with seven runs in the top of the seventh to gain a 10-5 verdict over Mount Clemens on July 17. Cordova's triple was one of five hits that inning, and it drove in what proved to be the tying and winning runs. Lucas and Mark Carl had two hits apiece; Carl's blows drove in three runs. Ted Kolp, who relieved starter Cordova in the sixth, was credited with the win. He faced only six batters in his one and twothirds inning stint on the mound and didn't yield a hit.

South dropped a 2-1 decision to league-leading Utica on July 19.
Lucas went the distance and was tagged with the loss. He gave up five hits. Kinsley had two hits and drove in the South's only run. Adlhoch and Dave Arnold had the Sterling Heights (No. 2) was the victim of a twin killing on July 20, as South won 3-2 and 6-5. The first game went eight innings, with Carl's single scoring pinch-runner Tucker with the winner. Leonard again went the route for the victory, scattering nine hits and fanning eight and walking only one. Arnold had two hits; Nugent tripled Dave Fellows' sixth inning single tied the game at 2-2.

In the nightcap, Fellows doubled to score Arnold in the sixth inning with the go-ahead run. Cordova had a homer and a single for three RBI; Arnold had two hits and scored twice. Tucker went the distance, relinquishing six hits and three earned runs.

The league playoffs began this week, but pairings were unavailable at press time.

Boating

Port O'Call Marina

Boblo Island — located on the Canadian side of the southern portion of the Detroit River — has been one of the Detroit area's recreational assets for almost 90 years. The island is currently an amusement park, best known for its splashy water ride and double corkscrew roller coaster. Boblo can be reached only on one of seven passenger boats with depart from three locations several times daily during the summer season.

Unless you have your own boat.

Boblo Island is also the site of Port O'Call Marina. Port O'Call can be a destination in itself for boaters visiting the amusement park. Or it can be convenient stopover for boaters cruising between Lake Erie and lakes St. Clair and Huron.

The marina is located on the west side of Bois Blanc Island, east of the Livingston Channel, across from the southern tip of Docks are available for about 100 boats inside the well-marked harbor entrance. The south dock has approximately 38 wells for boats 24 feet and under. The middle dock will accommodate 50 boats between 26 and 35 feet. The north dock has room for larger boats. Boats are also allowed to anchor in the harbor, but boaters must provide their own transportation to and from shore. During the week, docking facilities are plentiful, but during weekends and holidays, advance reservations are advisable. Groups of boaters or boat clubs planning rendezvous at Boblo may reserve wells together. Advance payment of $2.50 (U.S.) or $3 (Can.) per boat will guarantee dock space and will be deducted from each boat's dock fee at the end of the visit.

Fees are 50 cents (U.S.) or 65 cents (Can.) per foot for a 24-hour period. On weekdays only, reservations of 10 or more boats entitle you to a discount of 25 cents (U.S.) or 30 cents (Can.) per foot per boat.

Water hook-ups, garbage pick-up, rest rooms, pay phones and a small convenience store are available at the marina, but there are no showers, no pump outs, fuel, or repair facilities. Security guards patrol the marina around the clock.

Laura Lawicki, marina reservations coordinator, said that electrical power, unfortunately, is an on-again, off-again situation on each dock because of the high water level this season.

Electricity is turned off for safety reasons if docks are under water. "The water fluctuates according to wind direction," Lawicki said. "One day one dock will be under water, the next day it will be high and dry and another dock will be flooded." She advises boaters to bring wading boots and to prepared to do without electricity if necessary.

Boblo Island is in Canada. Lawicki warns American boaters that Canadian officials are very strict about alcohol being consumed aboard a moving boat in Canadian waters. "Don't drink and drive, or you might be stopped by the Canadian Coast Guard," she said. "A small amount of alcohol may be brought to Canada for consumption only by the people aboard your boat while it is tied up at the marina.'

All U.S. boaters are required to call Canada Customs after docking at Port O'Call Marina.

For those who wish to enter Boblo Island's amusement park, a Ride All Day ticket costs $6.50 (U.S.) or $7.95 (Can.) and is good for all rides and shows on the Island, except miniature golf, midway games and transportation on one of the Boblo boats Admission to the park after 4 p.m. is $3.95 (U.S.) or $4.95 (Can.) Non-transferrable season passes are also available for frequent Boblo visitors: $29.95 (U.S.) or $34.95 (Can.)

The Pointers, who finished the regular season with a record of 13-8, drew a tough Utica TSI team in the first round of the playoffs held on July 17 and 18. Grosse Pointe lost to Utica, 5-4, in a tight, hard-fought and dispute-marred game. Marc Wysocki started on the mound for Grosse Pointe and allowed only five hits in 5% innings. Dino Vento came in the sixth and shut Utica out for the rest of the game.

Utica jumped out to a 2-0 lead with two walks, two passed balls, three errors and only one hit in the top of the first inning. Grosse Pointe narrowed the gap in the bottom of the third on a walk to Wysocki and an RBI double by designated hitter Mark Belanger.

Grosse Pointe tied the game in its half of the fourth after leftfielder Rusty Knowles reached base on an error, rightfielder Marty VanAlmen walked, and second baseman Marty Saad drove in Knowles with a line drive single to leftfield.

The flood gates opened in the sixth, however, amidst a Utica outburst of four hits and two walks and three controversial calls by the umpires. Utica opened the inning with a double and single, and later a walk and a two-run double. The Pointers thought they escaped

With Saad at the plate, the Utica pitcher balked, sending in the fourth Grosse Pointe run and closing the gap to 5-4. But that's where the score stayed as the Pointers dropped the opening game in the double elimination tournament.

> Grosse Pointe drew Central Macomb on July 18. John Joliet was the starting pitcher for Grosse Pointe and went all of the way in a very strong performance; but it was not enough to overcome a 3-1 Macomb lead as Pointe bats were muffled by the two Macomb pitchers. Grosse Pointe missed a golden opportunity in the first inning when it loaded the bases on lead-off singles by Saad, Belanger and shortstop Chris Dudeck, but couldn't send them home. Another opportunity was wasted in the third when Saad singled but was erased on an inning-ending double

Meanwhile Macomb, unable to hit Joliet, began bunting and beat out three for hits in the fourth inning. Coupled with two throwing errors, the bunts were all Macomb the inning without harm on at least needed to take a 2-0 lead. They rallies were thwarted by solid defensive plays by the Pointe, including two sparkling inningending double plays turned by Saad, Dudeck and first baseman Russ Rice, and by Joliet, Saad and catcher Mike Paull. The Pointers could not match the effort on offense, getting only one run on a walk to VanAlmen in the fifth, followed by Wysocki's solid RBI double.

The 3-1 loss handed Grosse Pointe its second playoff setback and knocked it out of the tourney. Grosse Pointe team finished the season with an overall record of 14-10 in tough Mickey Mantle com-

Grosse Pointe was led by South junior varsity manager Mike Johnson and coaches Matt Reno (who also serves as a coach for the South varsity baseball team) and Phil Guastello (longtime Babe Ruth League coach). Johnson molded a solid team with players from the Park, Farms, City and Woods, and junior varsity players from North and South high schools, who will be competing for varsity spots next The Grosse Pointe entry in the Mickey Mantle League was led by several members of this year's South JV team which finished with a best-ever school record of 19-3, and several players from the North varsity and junior varsity. On loan from South were catcher Mike Paull (rated as one of the man Brian Jones, all of whom were leaders on the 1985 Grosse Pointe Park team that won the Babe Ruth League state championship and went to the final game of the national regionals in Kentucky.

Also from the South JV were three important contributors in the regular season who were forced to miss the playoffs last week due to their selection for the Grosse Pointe Babe Ruth All-Star team that won a district championship. These players include outfielder Matt Montagne, infielder/out-fielder Nick Saros and outfielder Jim Johnson. Montagne and Saros were also members of the 1985 state championship team. Other players from South: relief pitcher Knowles, outfielder VanAlmen and outfielder Ruben Ascensio. John Joliet, who was one of the Pointers' most effective pitchers in the Mickey Mantle competition, was a member of the South varsity Players from North include hustling shortstop Dudeck, outfielder Chuck Thomas, first baseman/pitcher Rice, infielder Josh Abbott, outfielder Matt Stephens, and reliever Vento. Outfielderpitcher-designated hitter Belanger, whose usually strong hitting was hampered by late-season injuries, is from De LaSalle. He also played on the 1984 Farms Babe Ruth state championship team.

University Liggett School will hold soccer clinics

In August, University Liggett School will hold three, one-week soccer clinics. The first session will run from Aug. 4 to 9; the second from Aug. 11 to 16; and the third from Aug. 18 to 23.

All sessions will go from 9 a.m.

to 3 p.m. and will be open to boys and girls ages 6 to 16. The program is coordinated by David Backhurst, coach of both the ULS girls' and boys' varsity soccer teams.

The program includes basic skills and tactics instructions, dai-

Farms man wins fishing tournament

By Mike Andrzejczyk

How do you go about landing a 625-pound Tiger shark? Ask Marcel Verstraete and he'll probably say, "very carefully."

The Farms resident hooked his first-place-winning fish during the 13th annual U.S. Open Shark Tournament held in Jacksonville, Fla. July 3 through 6. Verstraete's fish measured out at 11 feet, nine and three-quarters inches.

This is the third year he has competed in the tournament, but this is the largest fish he's hooked so far, Verstraete says. The prizewinning shark took close to five hours to beach, even though he was using 100-pound test line and a heavy action rod

It took a while for the fish to realize he was hooked, but after that, it put up a strong fight, making three or four runs at the beach before heading off for deeper water, Verstraete says.

Fishing for shark off the beach is a little different than your normal, every day fishing, according to Verstraete. First, there's the equipment; oversize salt water reels spooled with hundreds of yards of heavy-duty line and stiff action rods.

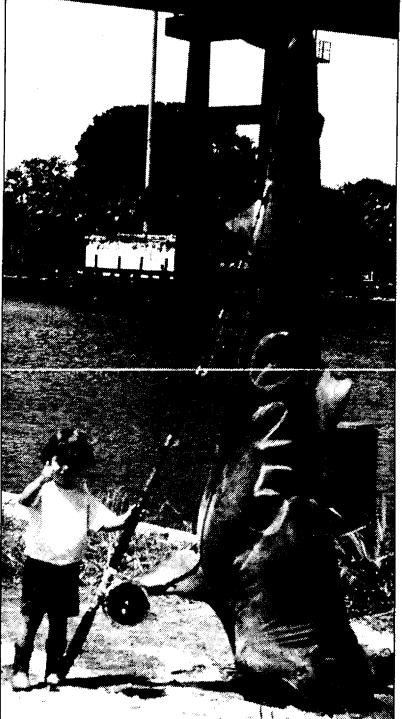

Then there's the way the bait is set. Instead of casting out lines, boats are used to carry the bait off-shore. After the first is laid, hundreds of yards offshore, the second is put out even deeper, Verstraete says. Amberjack, a popular sport fish in Florida, is sectioned into chunks and used as bait, he adds.

Also taking part in the three-day tournament with him were George Sarkees and Ed Palumbo, Verstraete says. The three placed first, fifth and sixth in the Florida Shark Club-sponsored contest.

While 625 pounds may sound large, the tournament had a bonus prize — a 1986 Ford pick-up truck - for the fisherman who landed a Tiger weighing more than 1,000

Learn backstroke in backyard

By Mike Andrzejczyk

So you want your child to learn to swim but don't want to send him or her off to one of the large summer programs, not knowing what kind of supervision and instruction he'll get?

Shirley Abram and Marie Martino of Lakeshore YMCA have the answer for you with the Backyard Swimming Program.

For the same amount it'll cost you to send the kids to a regular Ysponsored swimming class, you can call Martino at 778-5811 and schedule to have two swimming instructors give six, 45-minute lessons to between seven and 10 kids in the backyard pool.

Sounds easy? Well, except for a few minor details, it is. When you make the call, Martino will work out where you fit on the schedule of other backyard swimming instruction programs. You should have a pool that's got at least 31/2 feet of water in it as well, she adds.

After the forms come through, all you have to do is follow instructions and line up between seven and 10 kids to take part, Martino ing to swim at home is also easier says. Seven is the minimum, but 10 seems to be the top end for allowing instructors Jim Smith and Lisa Southwell to have enough time for

The class will be split into two groups by age and ability level, Martino says. Instructors will take. children through the whole Yapproved swimming class, from learning to float, basic strokes, to water safety.

The class is also variable depending on how skilled the kids are, Martino says. A more advanced group may benefit from pointers given on their various specialty strokes, she adds.

The course leans heavily to safety, one of the class' selling points, she adds. She calls the program, revived this year at the Y, "an ideal opportunity. All you have to have is a pool and some kids. This is a way to bring safety into your backyard pool.

Learning to swim at a large, indoor pool is fine, Martino says, but the safety rules there don't often apply to the backyard pool. Learn-and more comfortable for both parents and children, she adds.

The YMCA also offers insurance coverage for those who sponsor the backyard swimming instruction in their home pools, Abram says. Because the Y covers East Detroit, Roseville, St. Clair Shores and Harper Woods as well as the Pointes, the geographic logistics have to be worked out in scheduling the instructors' time, Martino says. The classes begin one hour apart, so the locations have to be close together to give the instructors travel time.

The sessions are on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with Friday as a make-up day for any rain-outs over two weeks, Martino

The YMCA also sponsors a variety of other swimming classes, from beginner classes to swimming for fitness. There are also programs for arthritic people, Abram says.

For more information about the backyard swim instruction, call the Lakeshore YMCA at 778-5811.

Improvements planned for sports fields

Athletes and spectators will notice some improvements at the high schools when the fall sports season begins.

The Board of Education in the past two months has approved bids and accepted donations to replace the coating on the track at North, add an outfield fence and refurbish the backstop at North's baseball diamond and improve the sound system at South's track.

The baseball field fence project was approved in June and is almost complete, according to the school system. For several years, baseball groups and boosters at the school have been requesting a fence for the diamond, but it was never high enough on the priority list to make it into the budget.

This year, with the support of trustee Carl Anderson and a $5,000 contribution from the North Boosters, the project has gotten off the ground. The school has about $19,500 to handle the project, which was given to Mehlenbacher Fence Company after its bid of $16,728.

The school system is also planning to have the track recoated with a protective sealant in the coming year.

The work is like caring for a wooden floor, school officials say. Every so often, the old wax has to be removed and a new coat put down. In the case of the track, the recoating should be done every seven years or so to maintain the quality of the surface.

While the track is being recoated, some cracks in the surface will be repaired and new lines put down.

The South Class of 1986 donated $1,000 to the school to pay part of the improvement of the sound system at the school's football field.

The district may add as many as six low-power outdoor wide-angle speakers on the top rail of the bleachers to cover the whole spectator area. None of the speakers will need to run at full power to deliver good quality sound, according to the school system.

'Aliens': A must-see film for science fiction-horror fans

By Michael Chapp

In space, audiences have been told, nobody can hear you scream. But in movie theaters, you can be heard — and indeed will be heard screaming through most of "Aliens," the sequel to Ridley Scott's 1979 horror scream-a-thon, "Alien." With only one small exception, this film has all of the intensity and shocking, gritty realism of the first movie. And then some.

Those who saw the original film will recall that Ripley (Sigourney Weaver) was the only survivor of a space mission to LV-426, a planet somewhere in the far reaches of the galaxy from which a distress signal was received. The rest of her crew was wiped out by an alien which incubated inside one of their bodies and then made an explosive appearance. At the end of that out what the problem is.

Still a little shaky from film, Ripley managed to destroy the alien, and end her nightmare. Or so she thought.

"Aliens" takes place some 57 years later. Ripley, who has been frozen in a state of suspended animation, is pulled in by a salvage crew who, by luck, happen upon her ship in space. Though she is physically unharmed, she suffers from nightmares of the fateful voyage. Fighting a barrage of red tape, she tries to convince a skeptical bureaucracy that what she experienced half a century earlier was real, and that the race of aliens must be destroyed. Before she has a chance to sway them, however, she is informed that communication has been lost with colonists on LV-426, and that the Marines are being sent in to find

Still a little shaky from her last space trip, Rippley agrees to accompany them, as long as she is guaranteed that the aliens will be destroyed, not brought back for

Upon reaching LV-426, it is discovered that the colonists were indeed wiped out by the same type of aliens that wreaked havoc on the Nostromo so many years earlier. And immediately, the horror begins again. One by one each of the members of the Marine assault team is killed. And to make matters worse, the survivors are stranded on the planet, their shuttle having crash-landed. Ripley, again, is a sitting duck, and it will take everything she has — both physically and intellectually — to get the remaining crew members out of the mess in one piece.

"Aliens" duplicates the intense isolation of the first film admirably. Most of the horror, in fact, comes from the aloneness of the situation. As scary as the aliens are, they're even scarier when they must be battled hundreds of light years from home. Adding to the feeling is the production design, magnificently handled by Peter Lamont. The dark, expansive interiors in the film are as hair-raising as they were in the original. Truly, audiences will believe they're on another world.

Also scarier in this installment are the sheer numbers of the aliens. There was only one to worry about in the first film. This time there are hundreds to deal with; which is only fair, because this time the Marines have more than their share of heavy artillery. Indeed, if it weren't for the magnitude of aliens, much of the horror would be lost, because the aliens seem much more vincible in this film that in the first. One is apt to feel that as long as the crew members have their guns, they have nothing to worry about. Aliens are shot down like ducks during hunting season. But, there are more aliens, so the danger is every bit as real as before.

Like any good sequel, "Aliens" covers new ground as well as old material. Ripley's character is further expanded, and audiences see, simultaneously, her deepest aggressive instincts and her most tender maternal instincts. In one of the film's most offbeat, and, in its own way, sensitive moments, Ripley communicates with the omnipotent mother alien. They "speak" not so much as mortal enemies, but as two opposing forces trying to understand each other. Each of them seems to be acutely aware of the loss the other is feeling, because of the universal sensitivities all mothers share.

Also helping to bring out Ripley's soft side is Newt (Carrie Henn), a nine-year-old survivor of the colony. Henn's childly simplistic portrayal of Newt is a perfect complement to Weaver's usually gritty reading of Ripley. In a film which demands Ripley to be as tough as nails and as hard and steady as a rock, the Newt-Ripley relationship adds a nice touch.

"Aliens" is thoroughly entertaining and is a must-see for all fans of the science fiction-horror genre. Because of its intensity, viewers are strongly encouraged to take note of its "R" rating. Not for the faint of heart is this film.

"Aliens" is out of this world.

Toe-tappin' - naw, footstompin' and hand-clappin' is what you call the down-home music that dominates "The Ballad of Conrad and Loretta." And stamp their feet - and whistle - is what Friday's opening night audience at the Attic Theatre did.

From the moment the cowboyhatted Greek chorus, in the form of a four man country band, opened the show, the audience was in the right mood. Never mind the show's authors' disclaimer that it isn't country. It is, all the way, with a couple of excursions into punk rock to keep the action excitingly off-balance.

The story of Conrad and Loretta, two down-and-out losers on their way to Hollywood, is pure corn pone. Nothing original here—she's a hooker with a heart of gold, for heaven's sake, but an endearing one. He's a little two low-key to inspire much emotion, but let's give him some leeway: He's only been in the play for a week.

The best part of the show is the show's PR calls is a "musical carsulous," which is simply faarbulous, dahling Any time you have the chance to see Robert to Grossman, Paul Hopper, Beth Taylor or Joseph Reed, grab it. All four make the most of deliciously hammy roles that do more than support the action. More often than not, they are the action; when they're offstage, you wait hopefully for more.

The show is an off-Broadway hopeful making its world premiere at the Attic. Whether a show weighted so heavily on the supporting cast can make it in New York is a question, but the whole point of an out-of-town trial is to make changes.

The authors are already on record as saying they aren't much interested in what the reviewers have to say - they're looking for audience reaction. Based on the opening night reaction, they should be fairly satisfied. I was fairly satisfied, but.

Writers Christopher Reed and Ronald Martell should squirt on their main characters some of that magical juice they were so liberal with on the supporting cast. The tured to be real, but not far out enough to keep you gasping.

The show has apparently gone through several rewrites and additions of songs. The music is good. In a device borrowed from opera and the classical theater, the lyrics advance the story. Except when they're just plain dumb, in which case they seem to be doing nothing more than demonstrating that Loretta and Conrad are just plain

Disney's 'Mouse Detective' for adults

By Marian Trainor

For more than 60 years, parents have counted on the Walt Disney studio to come through with a summer movie. And it's off to the movie house, the children delighted at the prospect of meeting a new Disney character or renewing acquaintances with an old one and the grownups resigned to the fact that sometimes sacrifices must be made for the privilege of being parents.

"The Great Mouse Detective" will come as a surprise for those parents who will enjoy this film as much as the kids. It has charm, humor and truly original characters.

One of them is Basil the mouse, son on the screen.

There is a rat villain in the screen story who dislikes being a rat and tries to pass as a mouse a big old mouse. When he's not

The rat is aided and abetted in his dire deeds by a peg-legged bat with a gravelly voice.

Set in Victorian England, the story begins with a gentle scene between a toymaker and his little daughter. He has made her a pretty little toy that looks like a flower and opens up when wound to become a graceful ballet dancer. The dancer's performance is rudely interrupted by a pounding on the door and the entrance of the rat who has come to carry off the toymaker.

The next sequence takes us to 22 Baker St. and the dapper little detective, Basil, and his kind, chubby assistant, Dawson.

The toymaker's daughter has come there to get help in tracking down her father's kidnapper.

At first Basil shows no interest in her case. But when he hears who the kidnapper is, he jumps up and immediately busies himself with

Before the contest is over, viewers are treated to some magical scenes and triumphs of imagination, chief among them a waterfront dive where Sherlock and Dawson go looking for the bat who supposedly frequents the

There is a scene in the toy workshop where all the big, intricate toys become activated. It is a delightful one that will make young audiences want to jump up from their seats and join the fun.

Another memorable scene is a Rube Goldberg torture chamber. It is fascinating and deliciously frightening as it is set into motion to execute Rat's deadly purpose.

But the highlight of them all is the race to death around Big Ben's innards, a rather dazzling bit of imaginative invention and one in keeping with the high standards of the new group of Disney animators.

- CONTRACTS PURCHASED HERITAGE
- REALVEST CORP. 773-9300
- HOME AT A LOSS I am a 75 year old white, hard working, highly successful business man, along with my older sister, both under heavy medication, whose unprecedented philosophy is in the congressional record
- in Washington D.C. in May of 1958. Yet, somehow the United States government has bluntly and unhuman-ly missed the boat.
- am treated as a Communist, which is utterly false. I associated with Communists in my school days. I ask in God's name whom of us haven't associated with Communists. As has been said, if we don't learn to live together surely we shall die
- together. Due to deliberate vandalism, I have moved from home to home. Even moved to Arizona where I developed 80 acres of industrial buildings out of barren sand and cottonfields. Yet, even there, a bomb threat was falsely placed
- against me. Our new era, which is my Hobby, are deeds not propaganda.
- I have $85,000 invested at 5222 Marseillas in the Cadieux/Moross area. In the rear of his most humble showplace his once cherished dream is covered with black tar and must be sold at
- a loss. Home includes: three bedrooms, finished basement, two enclosed patios, enclosed front porch, fireplace, new 3 car garage, two 10x16 storage garages, complete new drive-way and his lifesblood in landscaping — said MOST HUMBLE MOST showplace.

Biking for burns

A benefit for burn treatment and bicycle safety will be sponsored by Detroit Receiving Hospital and University Health Center and the Wolverine Sports Club on Saturday, Aug. 2, at Hines Drive in Detroit.

The Detroit "Great Lakes Biking for Burns," is one of seven bike-athons held simultaneously throughout the state, sponsored by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan.

The Detroit bikeathon will give cyclists of all ages an opportunity to ride at any time between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. All forms of human powered vehicles are welcome, from tricycles and tandems to 10-speed racers. Riders may collect pledges or submit flat-rate donations to participate.

The 12-mile course begins at the Telegraph and Ann Arbor Trail entrance to Hines Drive. A shorter course will also be offered. A special "Golden Mile" ride is available for those who wish to participate but prefer a shorter distance. The "Challenge Ride" obstacle course will challenge experienced riders to use all of their

All bicycles will be inspected at the event to prevent injuries. Helmets are strongly recommended.

An award ceremony will follow the day's events. Awards will be given to riders raising the most pledges. Riders earning $75 or more will receive an official bikeathon hat. All riders will receive a 'Biking for Burns" patch uponcompletion of the course.

For more information, contact Dennis Archambault, director of public relations, Detroit Receiving Hospital and University Health Center, at 745-4717.

Now that's talent

seconds, then teamed up with Amezcua, Berger and Lee to slash more than three seconds off the 1600 relay mark: 4:06.09. Solterisch, a two-year All-State cross country runner, ran a personal best 11:34.2 in the two mile; the 400 meter relay team of Kershaw, Boyt, Imel and Lee raced to a 51.8 to become the first South team to finish under 52 seconds. This was the largest contingent of state qualifiers ever for South, which was undefeated in dual meet competition this year.

and some info omitted, Orioles' fans thought we were being biased, mean, etc., etc., etc. When we finally tracked down the missing information, we found out that the Orioles had indeed won the World Series, and did it by coming back from a 5-1 deficit in the final

The Orioles' John Whelan pitched five no-hit innings to lead the Orioles into the finals by beating the Red Sox, 7-5. Then in the finals, the Orioles came back after the Tigers' Dan Monahan hit a grand slam off Orioles' ace Sean Von Schwartz. Von Schwartz went on to finish the game, allowing just three more hits and shutting out the Tigers as Chris Markus (three doubles), Steve Horn (two doubles), Lance Harding and Von Schwartz (doubles) and Dale Wilson and Tim Miller (singles) led the comeback on offense. According to coaches, it was a fine effort by a team of high achievers. And that's nice to hear.

And now that the feathers have been unruffled, it's nice to be back.

BEST OF ALL...IT'S A CADILLAC.
