Bring back the tin cans

Our apologies to everyone who called Monday. Our phones were out. Seems we were struck by lightning and — zappo, our phone system bit the dust.

We couldn't call out on the single lines, but our multi-lines were operational.

That wasn't the bad part, however. The phones would ring and no one would be on the other end. Some unlucky Grosse Pointe family with the last name of Marshall was in a bad situation too. Seems we were getting all their calls for a while.

Then there was the problem with people picking up the phone, and being smack dab in the middle of one of our calls.

Gee... No GTE or is it RCA or is it ATT or is it Michigan Bell...?

Attack cat

Sam the cat is getting a reputation. More than just a cat's cat, this guy is just plain mean. Even his owner said so.

A few months ago, he bit a DPW worker. Last week, Sam the cat showed his mettle again. He strolled into a Shores backyard and attacked a Labrador retriever. This little cat bit this huge dog in the neck.

Talk about a shock. But anybody who has been bitten by a cat has to sympathize with the pooch. It made him sick. He is being treated for an infected bite wound.

The cat owner offered to pay the vet bills, according to Shores police, but that made neither the dog nor his owner feel any better. The cat is up to date on his shots, but with a personality like that, even his owner is talking about final solutions.

Meanwhile, according to the report, the dog owner "might feel a need" to sue if the dog dies. What we need here is a mediator.

Love is in the air

Cupid is alive and well and living in the newsroom at the Grosse Pointe News. Three staffers have been recent targets of the little guy's love arrows.

Sports Editor Peggy O'Connor and education reporter Mike Andrzejczyk are planning an April wedding. To each other.

And she says people are always misspelling her name now as e-r instead of o-r in O'Connor. But the real litmus test is not that she can spell Andrzejczyk correctly three times in a row — anyone can do that with a little practice — it's whether she can pronounce it.

And the third person walking around with stars in his eyes these days is staff photographer and reporter Peter Salinas. He and his betrothed, Marlene Pilch of Canton will say their vows this October.

We're blaming Anne Mulherin who tacked on a Silva to her name last month. She started the whole thing and we can't wait to see where it will all end.

Lease lot sale details questioned

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It's one down and one to go for parking lots owned by the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

Two weeks ago, Cottage Hospital offered the school district $118,000 for the lot next to Messner Field. That lot was owned by the district and operated by the Farms as a permit-parking-only lot under a defunct lease agreement.

Cottage is still working out the details of the sale, according to Kathleen Maslanka, director of public relations at the hospital. The hospital expects to continue operating it as a parking lot, she added.

Details of how the lot will operate are still being worked out by the hospital, Maslanka said.

The city sells permits to park in the lot for $30. The permits are good for three months, with the next period ending in September.

Cottage expressed interest in buying the lot early on, when the school system first said last year it would consider selling the property, Maslanka said.

Hospital representatives met with the Board of Education to make the market value offer for the lot, school officials said. The district decided against open bidding for the property to maintain a continuity of service provided there. School officials have been told the lot will be available for parking for those who are using Messner field, officials added.

The hospital and the school system will probably have to wait until December to see if the property goes back on the tax rolls, according to Farms officials.

Whether or not the parking lot is put on the tax rolls will depend on how it's used, according to Carol Lock, Farms assessor. The hospital is tax-exempt as a non-profit institution and should it operate the lot accordingly — non-profit — that lot stays off the rolls, he said.

Were the hospital to make money from the operation of the lot, the city would have to add it to the rolls and assess the hospital taxes on the property. Better than half of all property tax dollars collected in the Pointes go to the school system.

Hospital and Farms officials continue to discuss parking issues, city officials said.

The school system has now turned its attention to sale of its second lot — behind Kroger's in the Village.

Board members July 14, while approving the sale of the Farms lot, said the system should expedite the sale of the City lot, possibly by looking for interested outside parties.

Grosse Pointe City remains interested in buying the lot, which it maintains under a lease out of date for almost as long as the Farms' agreement, but there are many more variables in the equation complicating the sale, according to City manager Thomas Kressbach.

The city is still talking with businessmen in the area about the lot purchase and solving traffic problems in back of the business strip from Cadieux to Notre Dame, Kressbach said.

For businessmen to consider buying the lot, there has to be some incentive in the profit column. Also, there's the long-term expense of having the lot put on their tax bills. Were the city to buy the lot, it would have to use money from its parking fund, which is replenished through revenues from parking meters and fees. Fees would need to be hiked to offset the expense, Kressbach said. He didn't rule out the possibility of a joint purchase by the city and a consortium of businesses.

Delegates — politics at the grass roots

By Peter A. Salinas

They're friends, neighbors and relatives. They live down the block, across the street and they're often at the workplace.

There is something a little different about them though. Instead of discussing a recent movie release, they'd likely want to chat about party politics. Rather than trade recipes, they'd rather discuss campaign strategy for getting a member of their party into the Senate.

To the man or woman, they want to get involved. Why let someone else make decisions, when they can be an active participant in the decision-making process?

These people are precinct delegates.

Many people, including some of the candidates for precinct delegates readily admit they know little about delegate's duties. One of the candidates admitted that last year at this time, she didn't know what a delegate did or what the position was. In fact, many people don't.

A definition of a precinct delegate is relatively easy. A definition of what they do is a little tougher.

A precinct delegate is a liaison between the party structure and the voters in his or her voting precinct.

How they are elected and what they do at the local and state level is governed by state statute in both parties, Democrat and Republican.

Delegates are elected every two years. Once elected they are automatically members of the county or district conventions.

At the county or district convention the delegates vote for members of the district or county executive committee. This is the same for both parties. During the local conventions, delegates to the state convention are selected.

Each delegate to the state convention gets to vote on the party's nominee for lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, two justices to the state supreme court, two members to the governing boards of Michigan State University and University of Michigan and two candidates to the state board of education.

There are some 5,000 voting precincts in Michigan. Based on the number of registered voters in a precinct, there may be one, two or three precinct delegates. In about half of Michigan's precincts no one chooses to run, and therefore that precinct is not represented by a delegate.

Delegates to the national convention are selected at both the state and district conventions. At the national level, of course, the delegates nominate the party's candidate for president and vice president and hammer out the party's national platform.

Michigan Republican party officials generated some excitement in the political arena this year when it was announced that the delegates chosen in 1986 would take part in the selection of delegates to the 1988 national convention.

The decision made this year's election of delegates important to the Republicans who are intending to run for president in 1988. Obviously, the more delegates, the better the chance to be the party's nominee.

The rules governing the national delegate selection process, and what happens at the national convention are changed from election to election. The rules are determined by the state, central and national committees.

Most of those elected as a precinct delegate take part in the state convention.

A local precinct delegate is a party worker at the grassroots level. He or she may be active or inactive.

Although a precinct delegate is a statutory office which makes the delegates a quasi-public official, the only designated function he must perform is to cast a vote at the county or district convention.

Of course, many go beyond that. They may go door-to-door, seeking the advice of their neighbors in making a decision about who to nominate for a state office.

They may become active in supporting a candidate that they find suitable. They may become involved in district or county politics. Each county or district has a party committee with a chairman, and up to 14 other officers.

Because of the Republican party's decision to make this year's delegates a part of the presidential selection process, there has been an overwhelming interest among those running for the position. In the five Grosse Pointes there are about 80 people seeking some 36 delegate spots.

James G. Miller of Grosse Pointe Woods has been a precinct delegate three times, and is running for a fourth term in the 12th precinct.

Miller, 48, says he is for George Bush in 1988. He is treasurer for his

A castle in Europe?

No, but this is a foreign scene. The town hall in Stratford, Ontario, overlooks the Avon River. Most of us are familiar with the Stratford Festival, one of the best-known Shakespeare festivals in North America. But nearby Ontario has a lot more to offer for theater enthusiasts. Features Editor Elsa Frohman recently took a theater tour of southwestern Ontario at the invitation of the Canadian government. This week, a two-part series on theater-oriented vacations in Ontario begins on Page 5C. This issue will feature the western half of the area, from Lake Huron to Stratford. Next week, we will look at the theaters and attractions from Kitchener-Waterloo to Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Lady cop drives a beat in Grosse Pointe Shores

By Nancy Parmenter

The scout car cruises slowly in the hot sun, up one Grosse Pointe Shores street and down another. Sometimes we take a circular detour into the driveway of one of the thousands of houses the police check for residents every year.

Public Safety Officer Jacquelyn C. Renard has already made an arrest. Twenty-eight minutes after she started work, she stopped a man for speeding and found he was wanted for assault in Warren. By the time she picks me up at 9:15 a.m., she has already made her arrest, brought the man to the station to make arrangements to post bond, typed up her report and gone back out on the road.

"That could be the only thing that happens today," she says as we start off. "On the other hand, something could happen at any minute... You can never treat any situation as routine. The majority of police officers who get hurt or killed are on a 'routine' traffic stop."

There doesn't seem to be much traffic. Drivers mosey along Lakeshore admiring the sparkling wavelets. Lawn crews sweat on manicured front yards and the occasional jogger trots by. Life looks normal in the Shores.

Two cars patrol all day every day. The residents love it. "It's nice to drive down the street and get waves," Renard says. "Officers in other cities have bottles and cans thrown at them. We get waves."

Once in a while, Shores residents are known to snipe that the police there don't have anything to do. Renard takes the criticism with equanimity.

"We're doing something right," she says. "Our crime rate speaks for itself."

Renard is one of several women in the department, but she is the only female patrol officer. She was the first woman ever in the department when she hired in as a dispatcher four years ago.

"I've wanted to be a police officer ever since I can remember — and I'm talking five years old here," she said. "I wanted to come to a place where I could have rapport with the community."

Community rapport is the Shores' strong point. It's obviously no place for a cop who wants to be Kojak. Service to residents comes in the form of checking houses while the owners are away, letting raccoons out of garages, smoothing over neighbors' disputes, checking out false alarms, and only once in a while dealing with car theft or drugs. No murders. No rapes. The police are proud of the fact that their constant presence holds down crime.

"We all come into the field basically to help people and make the world a better place to live," Renard said. "We're making this a better place to live and (the residents) in turn appreciate us."

We turn up and down streets at random, looking for things out of their usual order: cars that don't belong, people Renard has never seen before. She has traveled these streets so many times that she knows addresses and names. She points out new landscaping, houses undergoing decorating changes, a vegetable garden cultivated by a man who sends gift vegetables to the officers.

At 10 a.m. we drive to the Woods border where a scout car meets us to make an interdepartmental mail drop. Woods Officer Kirk Risk hands over some information on a crime suspect.

"Nice haircut," he tells Renard. "Thanks. You going to the picnic?" They exchange small talk for a minute.

We start cruising again and Renard tells me about raccoons. The critters make themselves at home in yards and garages and even in houses. Residents complain and the police do their best, but it's hard to one-up a raccoon.

"Basically, all we do is shoo them away," she said. The department has a live trap, but even moving a raccoon some distance from home is no guarantee it won't find its way back. Officers remember fondly the "kamikaze" raccoon who popped his head out of the scout car trunk to watch the landscaper roll by. When he liked the view, he just leaped out.

At 10:20, a radio broadcast causes Renard to speed up. Woods police have received a report that a disoriented-looking man is wandering around near the border of the two communities. We drive around blocks looking for him.

"In heat like this, you have to worry about heat stroke," Renard says. "It could be a landscaper suffering from heat exhaustion." We don't see anybody.

Hitch honored by Optimists

Dr. Charles Hitch recently received the 1986 Excellence in Education Award from the Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe.

Charles Hitch

Hitch has been with the Grosse Pointe Public School System since September 1965, and has served as classroom teacher, coordinator of vocational education services and chairman of the business education department at South High School.

Hitch was presented his award at the June 10 Board of Education meeting by board President Jon Gandelot.

During his tenure at South, the cooperative program, in which students experience a work-study program, had grown in enrollment to 144 students, according to the school district. Courses of study in business education have also been updated to include electronic office tools.

Hitch is also co-chairman of the committee studying staff supervision, which was charged with the responsibility of recommending a supervision program for local schools.

Costello is court candidate

Robert K. Costello, 39, attorney and Farms resident, is a candidate in the Wayne County circuit judicial race.

He earned degrees from the University of Detroit, Wayne State University and the Detroit College of Law. Costello works at Dietrich and Cassavaugh, a law firm in the Ford Building. He is a member of six legal associations, including the Italian-American Bar Association and the Catholic Lawyers Society.

Costello said the most important problem facing the Wayne County Circuit Court is that people have to wait three years to have cases heard. Another problem, he says, is the inconsistency in criminal sentencing.

He and his wife, the former Michelle Ducharme, have a 7-year-old son and are expecting another child in September. They are members of Sacred Heart Parish in Detroit and have lived in the Farms for seven years.

Park man arraigned for break-in

A 26-year-old Grosse Pointe Park man pleaded innocent in Park Municipal Court July 14 to a charge of breaking and entering a building other than a home.

Gregory Heenan of Nottingham was remanded to Wayne County Circuit Court after waiving examination. He was being held in county jail pending the posting of bond, set at $15,000.

Police allege Heenan and a second man — still at large — may have been responsible for 22 offenses, including larceny, breaking and entering of both homes and garages, unlawful driving away of an automobile and malicious destruction to automobiles.

Heenan was arrested earlier July 14, several blocks from a garage break-in. He answered the description given by witnesses of a man who was seen collecting tools and other items and putting them in the back of a car at the site of one of the break-ins, police said.

Hospital, doctors lend a hand to heal children

By Nancy Parmenter

Guatemala is a long way from Grosse Pointe, but the nationwide Heal the Children program has made it possible for two Guatemalan youngsters to come to local hospitals for medical help this summer.

Although both youths have endured their conditions for some years, when help came, it came fast. Neither had much warning. They found themselves in a foreign country this week, waiting to see if American advanced surgery can help where other methods have failed.

Heal the Children is an all-volunteer program that matches up hospitals and doctors to the medical problems; in this case, an eye specialist from Cottage Hospital and a plastic surgeon from Bon Secours volunteered their expertise and the hospitals donated their space and equipment.

Juan Solano, 11, suffered trauma to the right eye when he was hit with a stone from a slingshot two years ago. He has had six operations in Guatemala, but still can see only shadows. He has been referred to a retina specialist and a neurological ophthalmologist to a team of doctors, all members of the Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe, who are donating their time and knowledge to the case. The club itself paid Rigoberto's travel expenses.

The hope now is that surgery and medication can close the ulcer. "He can cope with the deformity," Tsangalias said.

Not everyone helped through Heal the Children is from Guatemala, but that country has a particularly strong and aware local agency that refers cases to the organization, Linsdeau said.

"There are people on the scene there who know how to get things done," she said. "For instance, Rigoberto didn't know he was coming until the day before. Somebody had to organize his passport and visa in one day."

Heal the Children was started in 1979 in Spokane, Wash., and has spread to 14 states. In the metropolitan Detroit area, Linsdeau does it all. She is responsible for matching up sick kids with hospitals, doctors and host families and for finding funds to pay for transportation. Some of the children stay in the United States for long periods to receive a series of operations; a burn patient, also from Guatemala, has been living with Linsdeau and her family for nearly a year.

"I'd love to be able to do down there and see it all for myself," Linsdeau said. "I make these phone calls and I visualize it. One number I call, you can hear the children in the background."

Linsdeau is in the process now of organizing an escort system to meet incoming children at their ports of entry and accompany them to the city where they will receive treatment. Anyone interested in helping with this or any other aspect of Heal the Children may call Linsdeau at 775-2949.

Meanwhile, Juan and Rigoberto wait and hope. People have been generous about bringing Mexican cookies and suggesting Spanish-language broadcasts on the radio. Rigoberto says he isn't bored sitting there in the hospital.

"All I want is to get better," he said.

It took two cranes to pull this 1986 Dodge out of the lake July 23. The car was dumped in the lake off Provençal by suspected car thieves within three hours of being stolen in Roseville, Farms police said. A crane was brought in to fish it out, but a hydraulic line broke. Police and onlookers waited for a couple of hours while a second crane was brought in from Clinton Township to complete the job.

see if his condition is operable.

"It looks favorable," said Pam Linsdeau of St. Clair Shores, the local Heal the Children coordinator. "His optic nerve is working."

Help for the children comes in all forms. Host families, drivers, airport escorts, doctors, dentists, linguists all have talents needed by Heal the Children. Linsdeau has been busy lining up Spanish speakers to stop by the hospitals for a chat with the boys.

Rigoberto Veliz is a little less bewildered than he was last week. He has been in America only five days and is already taking reporters in stride, with the translating assistance of Bon Secours licensed practical nurse Theresa Perez. This is the 17-year-old's first time away from family in the tiny mountain village of Taxiseo; he has already written a letter home.

Rigoberto can walk on his swollen, deformed leg, but a wound sustained 13 years ago refuses to heal. When he was four, he chased a ball into the street. He was hit by a truck and dragged, stripping the flesh from his leg bones, he told Perez. Ever since then the leg is "como muerta," numb and lifeless.

After three years in the hospital and 10 skin grafts, the medical establishment in Rigoberto's little town had run out of options. They sent him home with an ulcerated leg and some ointment. Now, they would like to amputate.

"In the mountains of Guatemala, a peg leg is not the easiest thing to carry around," said Rigoberto's doctor, Steven Tsangalias. "A prosthesis with an above-the-knee amputation is worse than the condition he has now."

Tsangalias said he is only one of

Warren woman found in lake

The body of a woman found floating in Lake St. Clair Sunday morning was identified the next day as that of Bonnie Suzanne Leggo of Warren.

Customer cars target of petty vandalism

An irate ex-employee is suspected of going on a spite binge at the Farms gas station where he once worked. Over the weekend of July 19-21, someone vandalized cars and station property and sent a threatening letter, according to police reports.

License plates were stolen from three cars owned by customers parked in the station lot. The plate on a fourth car was twisted and two headlights were broken. Someone also wrote on the restroom walls and sent a threatening letter to the station owner.

The owner told police he suspects a former employee, who was fired two weeks ago. Police are investigating.

Teens to be charged in curfew violation

Grosse Pointe Farms police have issued the first violations under the new teen curfew ordinance. Two juveniles will be charged through Wayne County Probate Court, according to police reports.

The two youths, both Park residents, were found loitering on the South High School baseball diamond July 23 at 2 a.m. They were taken back to the police station to be questioned and turned over to their parents.

They were uncooperative, however. One gave police a false telephone number, then "bolted out the front door," according to the report. The other youth refused to name his companion.

Both youths will be charged through the county juvenile justice system.

11 Mile about 6 a.m. July 27. Her body was seen floating off the breakwall at Harbor Hill park four hours later.

A Farms officer on routine patrol was hailed at 10 a.m. by a passerby walking along the grass near the breakwall, according to police reports. The resident had seen the body of a young red-haired woman wearing a blue waitress uniform floating face down 40 feet offshore against the wall.

Medics were called to pull her out of the water. Her body temperature had not fallen below 90 degrees, so cardiopulmonary resuscitation was started. She was taken to St. John Hospital, where she was pronounced dead.

The woman was not carrying any identification, but police were able to identify her through missing persons reports from other departments. Her van was found parked on Warner near Lakeshore about 11 a.m. by residents returning home from church, but police were not able to connect her with it until the next day.

Police said Leggo had water in her lungs. An autopsy was performed, but results were not available as the Grosse Pointe News went to press.

The GOP opportunity

When leading Michigan Republicans welcomed Wayne County Executive William Lucas into their ranks and pledged their support for his campaign for the GOP nomination for governor, they were optimistic about his chances for victory on Aug. 5 and in November.

Some of the GOP leaders who welcomed Lucas' candidacy are still optimistic, but it is clear that they did not provide the extensive campaign financing that he had expected. In addition, the Democrats in charge of the state campaign machinery delayed as long as they could the granting of state funds to the Lucas candidacy. As a consequence, Bill Lucas has not made the race for the GOP nomination a runaway, even though he still may be the front-runner in some polls.

Instead, it appears that it now is a three-way and perhaps even a four-way race for the nomination. Brighton businessman Dick Chrysler has far outspent everyone else in the race and his investment apparently has paid off. Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy, widely written off earlier as a one-county candidate, has also begun an aggressive media campaign. And even Rep. Colleen Engler of Mount Pleasant has started a late fundraising drive that may lift her campaign into a more prominent position.

Nor do the prospects appear to be quite as bright for November as GOP leaders had thought earlier. Gov. James Blanchard was regarded by the GOP as an easy target because of the controversy over his recommendation of a 38 percent income tax hike back in 1983. And when Michigan appeared to be lagging in the national economic recovery, it was easy to blame the Democratic governor. Even when Michigan's economy improved somewhat, Republicans gave the credit to the national Republican administration in Washington, not the Democratic governor in Lansing. But somehow Blanchard's fortunes have turned around. Now even many Republicans are saying that with the income tax rate back to 4.6 percent, the Blanchard administration proposing a further cut and the Michigan economy improving, even if not as well as everyone had hoped, the governor will be tough to beat.

In fact, Blanchard is a cinch to be renominated. He faces only the opposition of one Henry Hank Wilson, a disciple of extremist Lyndon LaRouche who has little support and no public record. So the question for the Republicans is: Who is the best candidate among their quartet to beat Blanchard?

This newspaper has no crystal ball and doesn't take public opinion polls. So it doesn't profess to know for certain the answer to that question or the identity of the candidate favored by Michigan Republicans as the primary approaches. But we do have some thoughts about the various contenders.

Chrysler says that as the only businessman in the GOP race, he is different from the other three candidates. So he is. But while his experience as a businessman may be helpful to him as a candidate and even as a nominee, it is experience that gives him a limited perspective on the needs of all the people of the state. His answers to a series of questions in the Detroit Free Press stressed the needs for reform of workmen's compensation and unemployment compensation laws, the single business tax and liability insurance. He urged lower income taxes, a reform of property taxes and other measures to provide incentives to business. But he showed little compassion for the unfortunate in society in his replies with respect to welfare, mental health, prison sentencing and other social issues.

Murphy's campaign emphasizes his 23 years of service to Oakland County, which provides efficient and commendable government to its residents. He stresses that government should provide things that people can't provide for themselves as well as the services that hold communities together. As governor, he told the Free Press he would provide more help to small business just as Oakland County has done. He said there is duplication of state environmental agencies, he supports the petition campaign to put the capital punishment issue on the ballot, and he wants more leadership in the governor's office. An effective county administrator, he still appears to be chiefly a one-county candidate.

Rep. Engler has been praised by her Grosse Pointe colleague in the House, Rep. William R. Bryant Jr., as the "best qualified candidate" for governor. On the basis of her service in the state Legislature, Bryant may well be correct. And it is true that service in the Legislature is good preparation for the governorship, as well as for running for governor. If nominated and elected, she would become Michigan's first woman governor. Her votes indicate she is a moderate Republican and Bryant vouches for her character, intelligence, experience, natural ability and political astuteness. But her late-developing campaign appears unlikely to win her the nomination.

This assessment of the GOP hopefuls now brings us to Bill Lucas. On the important issue of crime and related law enforcement problems, he deserves a superior rating because of his experience as a lawyer, FBI agent and Wayne County sheriff. But his outstanding record as the first elected Wayne County executive stands as his strongest asset. He brought order out of the chaos of county government, took tough bargaining positions against county employee unions, balanced the county's budget (with help from state government), led the successful fight to eliminate the inefficient and hack-ridden Wayne County Road Commission, helped persuade the county board to put on the November ballot the issue of eliminating another costly political appendage, the county drain commissioner's office, and, in general, made government under the new charter a success.

True, he has made some missteps along the way. He showed too much confidence in some of his top aides who betrayed his trust. He welcomed too readily the proffered support of the right wing TV evangelist Pat Robertson of Virginia, who wants to be president. We do not fully agree with Lucas' opinions about welfare, abortion and other social issues. And we have doubts about whether enough black Democrats in Wayne County and elsewhere and white out-state Republicans can be rallied to his cause to win him the GOP nomination.

Even if he is nominated, Lucas still will be underdog against Gov. Blanchard. But that campaign lies ahead in the months between August and November. If he is nominated, Lucas could be expected to move closer to the middle of the road that Blanchard is trying to stake out for his candidacy. If elected, Lucas would become the nation's first black governor since Reconstruction. Perhaps more important, with his strong ties to the Reagan administration, he would bring Michigan new political clout in Washington, an asset that cannot be exploited by the Democratic Blanchard administration.

So, overall, we think Lucas offers the Republicans the best opportunity to win, even though it would be an uphill battle if he is nominated. And, of course, we could be wrong on both counts.

Denying news crew entry is censorship

To the Editor:

The Channel 7 news crew should have been admitted to Windmill Pointe Park (July 10 issue). Contrary to reader Clinton Andrews' contention, the denial of admission to the park bordered on censorship.

Mr. Andrews argued that since the news crew was uninvited and not covering a breaking story, it had no right to be admitted. Such criteria would amount to an effective form of censorship.

If city officials felt a news report might reflect unfavorably upon the city, they certainly wouldn't invite the media to explore the park. Had the Channel 7 crew been doing a feature on, for example, a volunteer who helps keep the park beautiful, city officials might have taken a different view. The news crew might have received an invitation.

Mr. Andrews differentiates between breaking stories and "background" pieces. Sidebars, features and background stories add depth to common news stories. They help broaden our understanding. Their importance cannot be disputed.

The media are supposed to be the people's representatives. It would be impractical for President Ronald Reagan to answer questions from the entire nation. The media are granted a special privilege, the right to attend presidential press conferences.

In recognition of the role the media play, they receive access to people, places and events not open to the public. This fits with their role as public informant.

Unfortunately, some journalists misuse these privileges. Their ranks are dwindling. Such abuses are frowned upon by most professionals.

Mr. Andrews attempted to equate the news crew's pursuit of a story with an unethical freebie. Such a comparison is weak. The TV crew was doing a story, not seeking to picnic in the park.

Commission's action is clear

To the Editor:

We have received word from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission that the Commission has rejected the latest attempt by the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association to obtain a public liquor license at the Center.

This rejection is the result of an order issued by the Commission on May 18 and subsequently amended denying the request of the War Memorial because of its failure to obtain favorable recommendation of the local legislative body, the proximity of the Association to the Grosse Pointe Memorial adjacent church, and the numerous protests from local residents.

The Commission order is a binding and official order and we have been informed by the Commission that they have advised the War Memorial Association that an appeal from the Commission's order would be of little benefit, if any, under the circumstances. It appears that the Commission's order is a final disposition of this matter which has involved repeated denials by the Farms Council of the War Memorial's request for a public liquor license and in our opinion it represents a proper resolution in the best interests of the community.

The action of the Commission is perfectly clear and unambiguous and any statement that the Commission order carries "no official weight" is unwarranted and incorrect.

Unfortunately the continued agitation of this matter by the War Memorial Association has been very divisive and disruptive to the community and in the light of this Commission ruling we sincerely hope that the Association will now recognize the substantial community opposition and that their efforts in this regard will now cease in the best interest of all concerned and that the matter will be accorded a well-deserved rest.

Woods parking restrictive

Editor's note: The writer requested that we reprint this letter he sent to Clara Mack, Grosse Pointe Woods Parking Commission chairwoman.

I recently returned a questionnaire regarding parking in Grosse Pointe Woods. I mentioned that I seldom shop in the Woods because such restricted and enforced parking is not present in most shopping areas — so I go elsewhere.

I was pleased with your concern and decided Saturday to take house guests from Washington, D.C. to the Pancake House. I drove up the alley and parked.

I placed money in the meter and took the shortest route to the restaurant.

After breakfast, we returned to the car to find a ticket for not parking in front of my car pointed at the meter. After walking 30 or 40 feet, I did see a sign (in the middle) of the parking lot. The only way I would have seen this sign is if I had taken the longest route to the restaurant door.

I will not get another ticket in the Woods soon. I can find restaurants, shops, services elsewhere — and I will — I refuse to support local merchants and be punished for it!

Burn garbage

To the Editor:

May I make a suggestion for the garbage disposal: Why not burn it? Right where it is.

Provide police protection by forming block-groups of citizens to watch over the fires, to protect the children and neighborhood — a total team effort. It can be organized. It is far simpler to sweep up a bushel of ashes than to haul thousands of tons of plastic bags.

I shall be honored to submit my further thinking and my personal help if you want me.

Let's get rid of the garbage!

Supporting the 55 mph limit

Despite the increasing clamor for speed limits higher than the federal 55-miles-per-hour restriction, the National Safety Council is standing firm in its belief that the limit "is still this nation's best single device for saving lives and preventing injuries from motor vehicle accidents."

The clamor is increasing in Michigan and even more so in lightly populated Western states. The major argument seems to be that the 55 mph limit should be abandoned now that oil supplies are plentiful, gasoline prices are declining and fewer drivers are obeying the law.

But in a statement, the National Safety Council reiterates its strong support for the national 55 mph speed limit and adds: "Our only interest in the issue of lowered speeds is one dictated by our purpose and charter: We want to reduce accidents and to save lives." The council estimates that without the 55 mph limit, about 80,000 more deaths would have occurred in auto accidents from 1974, when the national limit was enacted, through 1985 than actually occurred.

In support of the limitation, the council cites the following additional data:

- The mileage death rate on the nation's highways for 1973, prior to enactment of the limit, was 4.24 per 100-million miles traveled, compared to the 1985 mileage death rate of 2.58.

- Although the number of miles driven has increased since 1973, the rate of deaths per mile driven actually has decreased by 37 percent.

- On the interstate system, the mileage death rate has dropped from 2.4 per 100-million miles driven to 2 per 100-million miles driven.

- Paralyzing spinal cord injuries are down 60 percent as a result of the reduced speed limit, according to the American Medical Association.

In addition, younger drivers and new drivers not experienced in driving cars at higher speeds would be liable to be involved in even more accidents if the limit were increased, the council contends.

Furthermore, many cars made and sold during the past decade are smaller than those produced in earlier years and give motorists less protection in crashes, the council adds.

While support for the 55-mile-per-hour limit obviously has declined, a poll published by USA Today earlier this year reported that 50.4 percent of the respondents prefer speeds ranging from 51 mph to 55 mph.

The council, in the opinion of this newspaper, has made a convincing case for retention of the 55 mph limit despite the clamor for increasing it.

One View from the Capitol

By Rep. William R. Bryant

There are honest elections and dishonest elections. Watch out for this Aug. 5 election for precinct delegates.

I support George Bush. However, I used to, until now, at least respect Jack Kemp. Not now.

Unfortunately, Kemp must take clear responsibility for the fraudulent effort in his behalf by the so-called "Michigan Opportunity Society." That effort has chosen to try to fool voters into thinking that President Reagan is endorsing delegate candidates being supported by Kemp's Michigan Opportunity Society.

The campaign for precinct delegates to county convention, favorable to Kemp, has chosen to use a totally dishonest piece of literature.

The Kemp people want you to think that President Reagan endorses their delegate candidates. President Reagan does not endorse any delegate candidate. This piece of literature with Reagan's picture on it has been disowned and blasted by Reagan. Reagan tried to get the Kemp people to not use it. They claimed it was too late to stop the use of it, that it had already been mailed.

Well, I got one on my doorstep on Sunday, July 27. It was not mailed. So, it appears these false pieces of literature could have been stopped. Was another lie told?

Voters have a tough enough time figuring out whom to vote for. This year the delegate to county convention races involve high stakes, 1988 presidential nomination importance. It is really too bad when those confronted with high stakes efforts can't proceed in honesty and integrity.

In this case, Jack Kemp must take full responsibility for allowing or perpetrating an attempt on his behalf to fool voters. What does that say about Mr. Kemp?

George Bush endorsed various precinct delegate candidates through the "Fund for America's Future" and hoped and expected those candidates to support his views and his candidacy, if Bush decides to seek the presidential nomination in 1988.

What does Kemp do? His group, the Michigan Opportunity Society, the group working to further Kemp's chances for a nomination in 1988, sends this grossly false and intentionally misleading piece.

How bad is it? What did they do? First, there is Reagan's picture, not with Kemp, but by himself. Then, there is a quote from Reagan endorsing, supposedly, the idea of an "American Opportunity Society."

The second thing it says "President Reagan needs you to keep the cause alive," followed by the words, not in quotes on the piece: "Help me to do it — Elect..." and the name of the candidate the Kemp people want to see elected.

"Then it says, in supposed handwriting, (actually printed) "Dear Neighbor, let's keep the Reagan Revolution alive!"

Next it says "Show your support for President Reagan. After you vote, mail this card with your signature and... we will mail it on to the President."

And what does this little tear-off card say? It says, "Primary 1986 voter — Mr. President, I supported (the name of the Kemp-supported delegate candidate is printed here) Republican precinct delegate candidate."

Again, Reagan has not endorsed any delegate candidates.

Is there any doubt in your mind what the Kemp people are trying to do with this piece?

The words which appear to be a personal call, endorsement, wish, desire, whatever by Reagan to see this Kemp supporter elected are never in quotes in the piece. Cute! Big difference! The clear inference is there, by the words, by the placement of the words. And it simply is not true.

Why can't Kemp endorse his own people himself? That's the honest way. That's what Bush is doing.

I say

This column is for everyone who has ever, or ever plans to submit information to the Grosse Pointe News, or any other newspaper for that matter. The secrets herein revealed are closely guarded by the mystical brotherhood of newspaper editors, so whatever you do, don't tell anyone that I told you these things.

Today, I'm going to tell you how to write and submit a news release. Actually, it's easy. Anyone can do it. Newspapers accept information in almost any form. I actually once took a news release written on a used paper plate in crayon (there had been a hot dog and baked beans on the plate before it became a news release). However, if you will take a few techniques to heart, your news release can be the one on the top of the pile that the editor works on right away, instead of the one at the bottom of the "other" pile (the pile the editor keeps hoping will disappear when he isn't looking).

The first rule is use a typewriter. I know, not everyone has access to a typewriter. Knowing that, I have never rejected a release because it wasn't typed. However, anything that comes across my desk that isn't typed, has to be typed — by me. That means, if a bunch of people submit handwritten releases, I get to spend several hours deciphering their handwriting and typing their releases. I hate that and I haven't met a journalist yet who enjoyed it. Therefore, handwritten releases tend to end up in my "I'll get to that later" file.

It doesn't matter if you're a rotten typist. I'll tell you a real secret — if I had to make my living as a secretary, I'd starve. You can't possibly be a worse typist than I am and your copy can't possibly look messier than mine.

If you make a mistake when

South schedules enrollment period

A special five-day summer enrollment period has been established for students who are new to the Grosse Pointe South High School attendance area, Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal-Student Services, said.

A counselor will be on duty at South on Monday, Aug. 11, Tuesday, Aug. 12, Wednesday, Aug. 13, Monday, Aug. 18, and Tuesday, Aug. 19, for the purpose of assisting new students with the selection of their courses for the 1986-87 school year.

Enrollment hours will be from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on each of these days with the exception of Tuesday, Aug. 19, when enrollments will end at 5 p.m.

High school students, who are new to the South High School attendance area, should call Nancy Nordstrom at 343-2151 to schedule an enrollment conference.

Students and/or parents should bring a transcript of grades from the school attended previously, or the last report card, if it is not possible to get a transcript in time. Health records are also needed at the time of enrollment.

Bring on the clowns... A new collection of hand-painted metal clowns with gold from six inches to 12 inches on marble bases are livening the scene at Trail Apothecary, 110 Kercheval.

Matching party and picnic paper... plastic and vinyl accessories including red check and yellow check table covers, napkins, glasses, bags and trays are waiting for your entertaining plans at Seasons of Paper, 115 Kercheval.

Chic examples... of the Hauber wool knit line for fall are seen in the window of Maria Dinon, 11 Kercheval. The combination of beige and purple is great for the next season. A beige knit skirt pleated center front and back is topped with a beige and purple knit. Little purple flowers look like squares for the over-all pattern. Hauber's chestnut brown knit skirt pairs with a brown patterned top and matching coat for a perfect ensemble. See them all at Maria Dinon.

Enroll your child in kindergarten

Enrollments in the Grosse Pointe Public School System's kindergarten classes for 1986-87 are still being accepted.

Parents who have not yet registered their kindergarten-age children for 1986-87 may contact the office of their local elementary school or the Office of Elementary Curriculum in the administration building at 389 St. Clair Avenue.

Enrollments in other elementary grades are also being accepted for 1986-87. Registration information is available in all elementary school offices.

Fitness weekend

Assumption Cultural Center has scheduled a fitness camp weekend from Friday through Sunday, Aug. 22-24. The camp will take place in Rose City.

The team who will host the weekend of exercise, nutrition and special programs is headed by Dr. Lawrence Power, Wayne State University professor of medicine and director of the Metabolic Center, and Barb Otul, director of Kalosomatics for the center.

For information or reservations, call 779-6111.

Q. What proportion of your body length is your head supposed to be? A. At birth, about one fourth. At age 25, one ninth.

you're typing, just cross it out with a pen and write in the correction. Don't rip the paper out of the typewriter and start over — if I did that, I would never have finished a story in my entire career.

Rule Two — double space everything. When I get a typed release, I "mark it up." That means, I make marks on the page that tell the typesetters at our print shop exactly how to handle the item. I will go through the piece and make changes to make the item conform to our style. For all this, I need space on the paper so the typesetter can read what I write. So leave me some space between the lines.

Rule Three — leave the top third of the first page blank. That is, put your name, and a phone number where I can reach you or someone knowledgeable about the release, during the working day, in the upper right-hand corner, then skip down about a third of the way on the page. It might seem like a waste of paper, but I need that space for more of the little things I write to the typesetters.

And while we're at it, that phone number is important. There is nothing more frustrating for an editor than to have a question about a release and not to be able to reach anyone who knows anything about the organization or event. At this point, a silly clerical error (you wrote Sunday, July 28, when Sunday is July 27) can keep your release out of the paper all together. (We're not going to try to guess whether you got the date or the day wrong.)

Rule Four — use standard, letter-size paper. That is, 8 1/2 x 11-inch, white, bond paper. Onion skin is flimsy, hard to read and flutters off the editor's desk in the slightest breeze. Editors hate that. Little tiny pieces of paper flutter out of file folders and get lost. Bright colored papers are hard on the eyes and annoy the editor. Great big pieces of paper won't fit in a file folder unless they are folded, and that makes the stack messy.

That about covers the technical aspects of writing a release. But there are a few more things to keep in mind.

By Elsa Frohman

Find out about deadlines. Every newspaper, and every department at a newspaper, has its own deadlines. Deadlines are important. If I turn down your release because you brought it in after the deadline, it isn't because I don't want your news or because I'm not willing to do you a favor. It's because our deadlines are set to accommodate our print shop and without the print shop, there is no print.

Deadline for the Second Section is 3 p.m. Friday for the following Thursday. The news and sports sections have noon Monday for their deadline. Obituaries should be in by 5 p.m. Monday.

If you're not sure what section you are submitting to, call and ask. Whatever you do, don't stand next to my desk with that foreboding look on your face and say "I didn't know the deadline was Friday." I'm sorry. I can't do anything about that. Another thing — somehow this nasty rumor has been circulating that newspapers like to have their news releases typed with all capital letters. If I ever find out who is telling people that, I'm going to kill him. There are few things more annoying than having to go all the way through a release marking which letters should be capitals and which should be lower case. Use both the big and little letters on your typewriter when you type a release.

But what about what you say in a release? That's a little more difficult. The main thing to keep in mind is say what you mean. Try to keep it brief, but if you "run on," don't worry about it. Trimming a release is easier than trying to make it longer.

When you refer to your organization use the third person. That is, you are "they" for print purposes. You are not "we" or "us." That's because everything printed in the newspaper is coming from "us," the newspaper staff. If you say "We went to a luncheon," meaning "The Questers went to a luncheon," in the paper it will mean "The Grosse Pointe News staff went to a luncheon." Chances are, we didn't. Think of it this way, you are they and we are us.

Another thing, organizations are "its" not "them." Example — "The DAR held its annual meeting," not "The DAR held their annual meeting."

If you follow the above guidelines, you will earn the gratitude and cooperation of any editor you submit material to.

Of course, there is one more thing you can do to win the affection of the editor. When you come in and drop off your release, smile.

The Editor needs to see more smiling faces.

Oh, no!

Two of the workers who had intended to have a leisurely day installing a boiler at Grosse Pointe Academy Tuesday, July 29, got more than they bargained for. A truck parked at the door of the Academy in the Farms, slipped out of gear, rolled down the large lawn, missing several trees, bounced across Lakeshore Drive and ended up in Lake St. Clair. Sister Camille DeMario, principal at the Academy's early school, saw the truck headed across the lawn as she was exiting St. Paul's church. She ran to Lakeshore to stop traffic. No one was injured, but we're told three marigolds met their maker.

Hike Isle Royale's forests

The Living Science Foundation, a Novi-based non-profit organization dedicated to the understanding of science through hands-on experience, invites interested persons 12 and older to hike and study in Isle Royale National Park.

The Living Science Foundation has provided a number of programs in the Grosse Pointe Public School System during the last two years. In addition to presentations in all the elementary schools, the foundation has conducted week-long camps featuring hands-on experience with live animals, as well as this year's successful air and space camps, in cooperation with the Department of Community Education.

Two naturalists will lead the exploration of Isle Royale's forests. Tour leader Shelly Meston has spent four summers researching the effects of acid rain on the island's vegetation and Living Science senior interpreter Terri Brewer has five years experience presenting hands-on science programs to students.

Four days and nights will be spent on Isle Royale hiking the island's trails and studying its plants and animals, its glacial history and man's impact on its ecology. There will also be time for fishing and photography.

The trip includes stops at Mackinac Bridge, selected scenic spots in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, and overnight visits in the historic copper mining town of Houghton and at Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore.

The trip is from Sunday, Aug. 17, through Sunday, Aug. 24. The cost is $300 per hiker and includes all meals, tents, stoves and water filters as well as transportation from Novi. Space is limited to 15 persons, so early registration is recommended.

To register, or for more details, call the foundation at 348-1985 or the Department of Community Education at 343-2178.

MDA telethon seeks volunteers

Volunteers from Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Monroe, and mid-eastern Washtenaw counties are needed to answer phones for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon — Sunday, Aug. 31 and Monday, Sept. 1.

More than 2,000 volunteers are needed to work five-hour shifts at 12 pledge centers throughout the five-county area.

Channel 2 Eyewitness News anchorman George Sells, local host of the Jerry Lewis Telethon, made an appeal to area residents asking for their time to staff the 22-hour show. "It's a great way to share yourself with others," he said. "A gift of time, especially over a busy holiday weekend, is a gift of self."

Interested volunteers who are 18 or older, can register for a shift for one of the following centers: Cobo Hall, Detroit; Holiday Inn, Dearborn; Presidential Inn, Southgate; Holiday Inn, Southfield; Sheraton Oaks, Novi; Merrill-Lynch, Pontiac/Bloomfield; Winchester Mall, Rochester; V.F.W. Mt. Clemens; Eastland Mall, Harper Woods; Moose Lodge, Ypsilanti; Marriott, Ann Arbor; and a site to be named in Monroe, by calling 476-2920.

The 21st annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon will be televised on WJBK, Channel 2 beginning Sunday, August 31, at 8:30 p.m. and continuing until 6:30 p.m., Monday, Sept. 1.

Gimme that old-time rock 'n' roll

Hundreds lined up behind Village Records & Tapes in the Village last Thursday to pick up tickets for one of Bob Seger's five shows at Pine Knob. Reportedly, Seger set a Pine Knob record by selling out more than 70,000 tickets in five hours. Some camped out behind the ticket outlet for 24 hours.

ULS middle school students win language honors

Five French and eight Latin students at University Liggett Middle School were winners on two national language tests.

The National French Contest, sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of French, took one hour to answer 80 questions. Thirteen ULS middle students in an advanced eighth grade class competed on the ninth grade level of this contest. Five students placed in the top 10 locally out of 704, and one student was also a regional winner. Kara Kennedy received Honorable Mention, Arne Knudson finished in sixth place, David Castanien and Stacey Westley tied for fifth place, and James Combs took third place.

These students were awarded book prizes by the Detroit Chapter of the AATF; they were also honored at the June Academic Awards Assembly at ULS with certificates. At the same assembly it was announced that James Combs also placed 7th in the East Central Region VI, composed of Detroit, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia. His score placed him 9th in the United States. He received a "laureat" pin for his regional placement, and ULS honored him with a book for his national achievement.

About 20 eighth-grade Latin students in the required eighth grade Latin course took the National Latin Exam; eight were recognized for their outstanding performance by the American Classical League and the Junior Classical League, sponsors of the contest.

Erika Teitge received a Cum Laude certificate at the Academic Awards Assembly in June. Magna Cum Laude certificates were given to Sarah Stackpoole and Kara Kennedy. Maxima Cum Laude certificates and also silver medals were awarded to Stacey Westley, James Combs, John Dodds, Jenifer Schaupter. The highest award was presented to Michael Coello a Summa Cum Laude certificate and a gold medal.

At the June assembly, six other students were honored by the French Institute of Detroit, a local branch of the international Alliance Francaise. Books and certificates were awarded for outstanding classroom achievement in French to sixth-grader Kiran Mishra, seventh-graders Sammy Khatib, Julee Mertz and Hari Rao, and eighth-graders Jenifer Schaupter and James Combs. Each student had maintained an E or E+ average throughout the year and held the highest average in his/her respective class.

Hiroshima service

Dr. Michio Kaku, lecturer and professor of Theoretical Physics City College in New York, will speak at Christ Church, 960 E. Jefferson, Detroit, Wednesday, Aug. 6, at 7:30 p.m. Dr. Kaku, served as an expert witness during the Williams International trials and has personal insight into the Hiroshima/Nagasaki tragedy.

His book "To Win A Nuclear War the Secret Plan of the Pentagon" will be published in October 1986.

The event will also include a march with candlelight lanterns from Christ Church to Hart Plaza as well as a first time showing of the movie "Hellfire" after the march. The event is sponsored by Physicians for Social Responsibility and the Detroit Area Nuclear Weapons Freeze as well as other labor groups and organizations.

Admission is by lantern or $3 donation. For information, call 577-5053.

Marketing for small business

"Marketing for Small Business," a one-day workshop for current and prospective small business owners, will take place Friday, Aug. 8, at the McGregor Conference Center on the Wayne State University Campus.

The seminar is designed to provide information useful for developing a marketing plan to suit individual businesses and budgets. Topics include: the role of marketing, working the marketing plan and effective promotion methods and means.

Fee of $45 includes luncheon and materials. For registration information, call 577-4665.

Eye program to be presented

A program on common problems of the aging eye will be presented Wednesday, Aug. 6, at 6:15 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

The free program will be presented by Janice Piazza, educational coordinator, and Sue Knap-sky, technologist. The purpose is to heighten awareness of common eye problems, point out danger signals and explain cataracts and glaucoma.

Pockets full of dreams

Volunteers are honored

More than 50 community volunteers were honored by the board of Education at a luncheon at Barnes School in May for their many hours of service to the Grosse Pointe public school system this year.

The luncheon recognized senior citizens who participate in a number of programs in the Grosse Pointe public schools.

Community volunteers serve as "grandpersons" in elementary classrooms and as tutors in the middle schools as well as helpers in various other school programs.

Jerry McCarthy was recognized for having served the longest as a grandperson volunteer. He began in December 1981 at Ferry School and now volunteers in Wayne Bolden's class at Mason School.

Pauline Cleminson, a volunteer at Trombly School, and Vera Rustmann, a volunteer at Kerby School, were recognized for having the most volunteer hours in the 1985-86 school year.

Grosse Pointe pins were awarded to: Anne Beever, Trudy Miller, Mark Demcheck, Trudy Munro, Lillian Ferrier, Eleanor Rodefeld, Nancy Grove, Cordelia Shorter, Emma Hutchinson, Peggy Weber, Emily Kelly, Louise Young and Mary Manos.

Second-year certificated awarded to those who have already received a pin were: Grace Farnen, Dorothy Layher, Jack Frey, George Spaulding and Irene Galeota.

Third-year certificated awarded to those who have already received a pin were: Mary Bartone, Florence Heath, Lucile Barty, Beatrice Hines, Beulah Beauregard, Jerry McCarthy, Pauline Cleminson, Edgar Meathe, Katherine Crnkovich, Vera Rustmann, Gladys DeWaele, George Salbert, Ruth Dicey, Helen Salbert, Bert Francis, Lorrie Schulte, Helen Francis, Alfred Taylor, Stella Fox, Bernard Wetering, Florence Heath and A. Lynn Zwickley.

Certificates were also awarded to: Wanda Cynbay, Tom Moehring, Martha Mast, Shari Rewalt, John McLellan and Nancy Wolfram.

Bible students to journey to Narnia

Vacation Bible School at Memorial Church is a unique experience for 200 children and nearly 80 teachers and helpers. "Journey to Narnia" will be the theme of this year's school held Aug. 4-8.

"The Chronicles of Narnia," a series of books by C.S. Lewis, describes an imaginary world entered mysteriously by real-world children. These children encounter the full range of human problems but are strongly aided in resolving these difficulties through the intercession of Aslan, a lion (who may also appear as a lamb). Lewis, a lay theologian of England in the '30s uses the lion figure to represent Christ.

The story will be presented as a mimed play over the five days, along with activities of what children would experience if they lived in Bible times; tents, a well, caravans, rope-making, brick-making, spinning and weaving, encounters with the tax collector — and the beggar.

Instead of remaining with a single adult in a small group for the Narnian journey, the children will belong to a tribe with tribal leaders who will travel with the children on their caravan route from their tent to the activities and then home to their tent again.

Refreshment time will incorporate foods from Bible times, with a trip to the well for a drink. Activities will be occurring throughout the church and grounds.

Julie Mazer-Schmidt is the Special Children's Events coordinator, Mary Garlough is music director, Carol Marks is co-ordinating the mimed play, Nancy Dundas is co-ordinator of Training, Supplies, and Materials, Anne Berry is costume co-ordinator and has scripted the book and Gust Jahnke is Tax Collector.

Wolverine Jazz Band to appear at War Memorial

Chet Bogan and the Wolverine Jazz Band will appear on the terrace of the War Memorial from 7:30 to 10 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 13. Classic Dixieland tunes, the Big Band sound, and the sparkle of vocalist Dixie Belle, will be enhanced by the outdoor cabaret setting and dancing under the stars. The band will be augmented with Bernie Katz on piano.

Tables and chairs will be set up on the green for those who come early with their picnics. Pop and ice will be available for a nominal charge.

Grosse Pointe resident Bogan, who is a dentist by day, has honed his talent as a musician, composer, director and arranger for more than 30 years. He has performed with many notable bands including those of Pee Wee Hunt, Tom Saunderson's Surfside Six, the Tailgate Ramblers, and Alexander's Ragtime Band and formed the Wolverines in 1971.

Tickets for the Dixieland concert cost $6 in advance and $6.50 on the day of the concert. Purchase them at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. For additional information, call 881-7511.

Friends School to hold open house

Friends School will have an open house Wednesday, Aug. 6, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Founded in 1965, Friends School follows the Quaker traditions of commitment to the individual and equality for all.

It is a college preparatory, private school that offers programs at the nursery, pre-school, elementary and high school levels.

(NOTE: Following is the text of Ordinance No. 242 adopted by the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe at a regular meeting held July 21, 1986.)

CITY OF Grosse Pointe MICHIGAN ORDINANCE NO. 242

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND SECTION 5.231 OF CHAPTER 52 OF TITLE V OF THE CODE OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE SO THAT SAID SECTION 5.231 SHALL PROVIDE AS FOLLOWS, AND TO ADD NEW SECTION, WHICH NEW SECTION SHALL BE DESIGNATED AS SECTION 5.232 OF CHAPTER 52 OF TITLE V OF SAID CODE.

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE ORDAINS:

1. That Section 5.231 of Chapter 52 of Title V of the Grosse Pointe City Code is hereby repealed and the following Section 5.231 substituted therefor:

5.231 Enforcement (1) The Building Inspector shall not issue building or repair permits for any structure located on a lot in any subdivision the plat of which has neither been fully approved and recorded prior to the effective date of this Code, nor been fully approved in accordance with the provisions contained herein. No building or repair permit shall be issued for a structure located on a lot in any such subdivision which has been sold or transferred by metes and bounds if the deed for such lot was recorded after the date of the adoption of Ordinance 107 (August 21, 1961), unless approved by the City Council as provided for in Section 5.232. "Metes and bounds," for the purpose hereof, is a method used to describe a tract of urban land intended to be used for dwelling or other purposes as contrasted with the description of a part of a properly approved and recorded subdivision plat by the lot and block number of the subdivision. (2) Any person who sells or attempts to sell a lot in any such subdivision by metes and bounds or otherwise shall be guilty of a violation of this Code and shall be subject to penalties as hereinbefore provided at Section 1.12 of Grosse Pointe City Code.

2. That Chapter 52 of Title V of Grosse Pointe City Code is hereby amended to add thereto the following Section 5.232:

5.232 Lot Splits (1) No lot, outlot or other parcel of land in a recorded plat shall be further partitioned or divided unless it is in conformity with the provisions set forth herein. (2) The owner of a platted lot who wishes to split the lot, or his/her agent, shall submit to the City Manager six (6) copies of the owner's Application for Lot Split at least thirty (30) days prior to the next regularly scheduled City Council Meeting at which time the Application is proposed to be acted upon. A drawing of the proposed lot split, including adjacent platted lots and properties within 200 feet, shall be included with the Application and be prepared by a registered civil engineer or registered land surveyor and be drawn to scale. (3) The lot split drawing shall contain the following information: (a) Names and addresses of the owners and engineer or surveyor; (b) Date, north arrow and scale, written and graphic; (c) Names and addresses of the owners of the abutting property, including owners across the street from the proposed split lots and abutting lots; (d) Street names, right-of-way and roadway widths of all existing and proposed streets within and adjacent to the proposed lot splits; (e) Proposed and existing storm and sanitary sewers and water mains including location and size; (f) All existing structures and other physical features which would influence the layout and design of the lot split; (g) Location, width and purpose of existing and proposed easements; (h) Existing and proposed lot lines and lot numbers. (4) The City Manager shall transmit a copy of the Application for Lot Split to the City Planner, Building Inspector and City Assessor for review and comment. (5) Upon receipt of recommendations from the City Planner, Building Inspector and City Assessor, the City Manager shall set the date and time for the public hearing at which the Application shall be acted upon. (6) Notice of hearing shall be given in accordance with provisions of Section 5.197 of the Grosse Pointe City Code. (7) The Application for Lot Split shall be considered by the City Council at the scheduled public hearing. Amendments to the Application may also be considered at said hearing. A two-thirds (2/3) vote of all members of the City Council is required to adopt a resolution approving the lot split.

3. The within Ordinance No. 242 shall have immediate effect and it is hereby declared that said Ordinance involves an emergency affecting the public peace, health or safety.

Braille Volunteers hold annual meeting

The Braille Volunteers of Grosse Pointe met recently at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial for the 18th annual spring luncheon. The event was arranged by Ruth McNamara with the help of Sue Steiger and June Betzing. The guest speaker was Alicia McGibben, a Detroit native and blind mother of five children, two of whom are also visually impaired.

McGibben presented a candid view of growing up blind and outlined some of the hurdles that face a visually impaired mother. She said she owed much to her own blind mother, who had high expectations for her two blind children.

McGibben attended the Michigan School for the Blind in Lansing and Wayne State University.

"It wasn't easy," she said. "I felt like I was wearing a sign. I'm different."

McGibben spoke to the importance of braille books during her college years. She enrolled in acting classes and earned a bachelor's degree in public speaking and social studies. She later served as a vocational rehabilitation counselor, training the multiple-handicapped for jobs in a sheltered workshop.

Braille still plays an important part in her daily routine, she said. Phone numbers, recipes, shopping lists and reminders are all jotted down in braille. She specifically thanked the volunteers for the many transcribed books that she could read aloud to her children.

The group also paid special tribute to May Fox, mother of June Betzing, in honor of her 90th birthday.

McNamara presented a review of the past year's work. Despite members retiring and leaving, the group continues to provide textbooks, scripts for plays, recipes and appliance manuals, fiction for children and adults or whatever is needed at no charge to the person requesting the material.

During the past year, the volunteers have transcribed and bound more than 4,000 pages of braille.

The Braille Volunteers are indebted to Catherine Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Peeler, Emily Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. George Santoro and Preceptor Alpha Eta Sorority, whose generous contributions during the past year have helped members not only to produce a greater volume of bound books, but to do so without interrupting their work to solicit financial aid.

Braille transcription classes resume in September at the War Memorial with McNamara as teacher. She has been teaching braille transcription for 18 years. For information or to register for the course, call 881-9566.

Past presidents

More than 300 members of the Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe attended a luncheon meeting at the War Memorial July 22 when the group's living past presidents were honored. They are, front row, from left, John D. King, John H. Carter, Thomas A. Cooper, Fred J. Flom and Louis O. Decker; back row, from left, Frank J. Welcenbach, William O. Bradley Jr., Dr. Kennard L. Jones and Herbert N. Bumpus. Not pictured is Harold J. Meinke, who lives in Des Moines, Wash.

Thomas B. Adams, retired chairman of Campbell-Ewald, was the speaker. The club operates exclusively for charitable, literary, social and educational purposes. It was founded in 1959 and current membership is more than 1,100. Luncheon meetings are held the second and fourth Tuesday of each month and any senior male resident of one of the five Pointes, who has retired, is eligible for election to membership.

Woods, Farms honored for pedestrian safety

Grosse Pointe Woods and Grosse Pointe Farms have been named two of the nation's safest cities for pedestrians by the American Automobile Association, according to AAA Michigan.

Grosse Pointe Woods won the first-place Award for Excellence in AAA's 47th annual Pedestrian Protection Program. The award is in recognition of the city's outstanding pedestrian safety program and low pedestrian death and injury rates in 1985.

Grosse Pointe Woods competed against 1,000 communities in the 10,000 to 25,000 population group. It had no pedestrian fatalities and a pedestrian injury rate of six per 100,000 population. The average injury rate for that population group is 41.

Grosse Pointe Woods has won the Award for Excellence 16 times previously and has earned the Grand Award — the highest recognition given to cities — seven times. Trenton is the only other Michigan city to receive the Award for Excellence. Only 28 such awards were given nationwide.

Grosse Pointe Farms received the Special Citation for Outstanding Pedestrian Program Activities. The citation is awarded to cities which have outstanding pedestrian safety programming and effective accident record systems, sponsor specific pedestrian-control legislation and efficiently enforce laws regarding pedestrian and driver behavior.

The community also competed in the 10,000 to 25,000 population group. It had no pedestrian deaths and a pedestrian injury rate of 18 per 100,000 population in 1985.

Grosse Pointe Farms has been the recipient of numerous AAA pedestrian safety awards in past years, including the Award for Excellence and the second-place Award of Merit.

An awards ceremony will be held at a later date.

A total of 40 Michigan communities were honored by AAA for last year's pedestrian safety achievements.

Pointe Pre-Kindergarten accredited

Grosse Pointe Pre-Kindergarten has been accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood Programs as meeting national standards of quality in early childhood education.

In order to meet standards for accreditation, the program, which is located at 17150 Maumee and serves 240 children from 6 months to 2 years, completed a nine-month process of self-study. It also successfully completed an on-site visit by early childhood professionals and a review by a three-person national commission.

The National Academy of Early Childhood Programs is a division of the National Association for the Education of Young Children, the country's largest organization of early childhood professionals. The accreditation program, launched in September 1985, is a first in the field. Now early childhood programs nationwide can participate in a program designed not only to measure quality, but also to encourage improvement in those programs.

The academy's standards, which were developed over a three-year period with input from educators and administrators throughout the field, are designed to support state licensing and address areas of quality which licensing often cannot. Some of these areas include how teachers interact with children, planned learning activities and materials, and communication with parents. Other areas are administration, staff qualifications, health, safety and nutrition.

For information about fall enrollment, call Barbara Lawrence at 886-4747 or 881-1948.

district committee in Wayne County.
"I want to be active in Republican politics," Miller said. "I feel it is necessary to keep the country running well, and I enjoy it socially."
"I think it was a good idea to bring the delegate selection process this year into the 1988 nomination process," Miller, a veteran of three state conventions and the 1984 Republican National Convention in Texas.
He added that most people don't understand the delegate process. "It's a very complicated process and the rules do change," he said. "I've been involved every year for the last 10 years, and I still am finding things out."
Congressman Dennis Hertel's — D. Harper Woods, executive administrative assistant Paul Donahue has been involved in Michigan politics since 1960.
Donahue said there is no way of knowing at this point whether the Democratic delegates selected at this coming election will pick delegates to the 1988 Democratic National Convention.

"One of the problems is that the rules change with every election," Donahue said. "The Republicans were smart to have made their decision now. It helps all the local candidates since they will get help from the presidential candidates with their fundraisers, and it has made for some interesting races."
Stephanie J. Smyly, a candidate for Republican precinct delegate in Grosse Pointe, said that one year ago she didn't know much about party politics.
"I was asked to participate in a political survey last year and felt like a very uninformed person," she said.
"There are enough controversial issues — family values, abortions, homosexual issues and public education — that I felt it was about time for me to become involved," she said.
She said she is actively campaigning, but is not committed to any particular candidate at the local or the state level.

Donald Sorter of Grosse Pointe Park was an alternate delegate who took the place of the actual delegate at the state convention in 1984.
"All my life I never had a delegate tell me or ask me about who he was going to vote for and why," Sorter said. "I decided I would like to have a say."
Sorter, a Bush supporter, said he thinks politics begins at the grassroots level and wanted to get involved.
On the Republican side, there are several candidates for every precinct delegate spot. The same is not true with the Democrats, so the interest is not nearly as intense.
Grace Farnen has been a precinct delegate to the 14th district three times.
"I like to contribute to the Democratic party and want to represent it," she said. "I am active in the United Auto Workers."
Although she hasn't been at a state convention, she feels strongly about what her party represents.

"I am interested in certain things regarding the labor movement," she said. "Unions are not able to get proper responses from the Republican party."
She said she would "love to see (Lee) Iacocca run for president" but doesn't think he'd take a nomination.
Barbara Jean Gulevich of the City of Grosse Pointe's third precinct, said she has been a member of the Democratic State Central Committee.
"We need to make changes," she said. "I don't like the Republican spending, and the Republicans are too interested in war."
She said she will go door-to-door and talk to as many people in the neighborhood as she can.
"Some people think the precinct delegates have too much say," she said, "but I think politics at the grassroots is good."
At this point she would like to see Gary Hart, Mario Cuomo or Lee Iacocca run for the Democratic nomination.

A lady cop drives a beat in Shores . . .

A lost driver hails the scout car to ask for directions. He had been driving east on Eight Mile and ran out of land before he found his turn.
The day shift can be the slowest shift. Nights and weekends there are more speeders and more people up to no good. Officers rotate through the three shifts in two-week stints.
Renard is still pumped up from last month's backyard scramble after three alleged car thieves. She was on duty when a car speeded by her scout car, then took off through side streets trying to escape her, finally crashing into a house on Ballantyne. She says the adrenaline still pumps when she thinks about it.

physical requirements of the police and fire academies easier to handle. Police academy emphasized self-defense and ways to handle potentially explosive situations, but fire academy was much more demanding physically, she said.
"We were rolling hose in full turn-out gear. That was hard, really hard," Renard had to pass all the same physical tests that the men did. None of the exercises were modified for women.
"I did my 45 push-ups and I wasn't the last one done, either," she said. "Everywhere I've been, everything's equal, right down the line. I've worked hard to get where I am and I deserve it."

While there is no departmental requirement for continuing education, most of the officers are enrolled in classes. Renard says she has never stopped going to school since she graduated from high school in Sterling Heights.
She is certified to operate a breathalyzer and a radar. She handles the department's access to the state computerized Law Enforcement Information Network. She is one of the department's youth officers. She has finished her police classes and is now studying psychology.
"I hope some day to work part-time with the prosecutor's office, counseling rape victims," she said.

"And it would be helpful to the department, too, with family problems."
The psychology classes may have already given Renard some insight into the feelings of the arrested person. "Sometimes people are so overwhelmed by something that has happened (that they drive erratically)," she said. "It's no excuse for breaking the law, but I'm human too. Sometimes a warning suffices as well as a ticket. It's a traumatic thing being stopped — all those lights and the siren."
But drivers in the Shores needn't think they've found a soft touch. "If you get stopped again," Renard says, "shame on you."

"They were going at least 80 and losing control on the curves," she said. "When they hit the house, they were out of the car in all directions. The family, the neighbors, everybody came pouring out. I never thought I could get over a fence so fast. It was just like Star-sky and Hutch."
Renard was on her own during the chase and in the backyard pursuit until officers from the Woods and Shores could join her. It was one time she was glad she has stayed in shape.
"I really wasn't worried, because they split in different directions," she said. "I knew I could handle them one on one."
Nevertheless, the first thing she did when she got off duty was head for Vic Tanny's to work off the stress.

Lease lot sale details . . .

The City considers the lot an important part of its municipal parking system, which serves the merchants and customers of the area and has allowed businesses to expand there, Kressbach added.
The city's parking lot fund, financed by revenues from the attendant lot and parking meters, is paying off a $1 million bond issue of 12 years ago that was used to finance a number of improvements in the area, Kressbach said. The city refinanced another debt at that time as well.
"The city just doesn't have a pot of money to dip into to pay for the lot," Kressbach said. Besides financing new parking, the parking fund pays for maintenance of present lots and payment of debts.

The city has to keep parking rates reasonable so customers continue to use the municipal parking and patronize local businesses.
That's something the city has expressed to the school system; the need to maintain healthy businesses, Kressbach said. Healthy businesses expand and add more dollars to the tax rolls, which adds more dollars to city and school coffers.
"We have a joint interest in maintaining that tax base," Kressbach said.
The Village revitalization project, to which the City has allocated Community Development Block Grant money, has meant close to 400,000 for the school system in property taxes over the last 10 years, according to city officials.

The City is working on ways to solve some of the traffic problems in the lot and hopes to work out a joint approach for its solution, Kressbach said.
It will probably be fall before plans are ready and everyone is ready to get together and discuss the lot sale, school and city officials agree.

Smoke and sweat

Firefighters remove a portion of a wall to get at a fire started by painting contractors using blowtorches July 23. Workmen removing old paint on the second story of a house on Voltaire Place started the wall to smoldering about noon. Firefighters from the Farms and the City responded to the fire, which turned out not to be serious, according to reports. There were no injuries. Estimates of the damage are not available.

Walkers welcome at Eastland

Opening day of the Eastland Mall Milers Club walking program is Monday, Aug. 4. The program will be sponsored by the American Heart Association of Michigan, Eastland Mall management, local hospitals and other organizations.

Membership cards for the free program will be available at the showcase board that will be located near Lane Bryant. Educational brochures, which will include tips on walking and a map outlining the suggested half-mile course, will also be available at the showcase.

The Eastland Mall Mailers Club is informal and members will have unlimited access to the mall from 6:30 a.m. until 9:30 a.m. Lockers can be rented for 25 cents and are located at the entrances of the mall.

Members can rely on mall security officers and a climate-controlled environment, which makes Eastland Mall a safe and comfortable year-round haven for walking enthusiasts.

For more information, call the American Heart Association at 557-9500.

Park home robbed

Thieves pushed in a screen window of a family room on a Bedford home in the early morning July 18, entered through the open window and removed a video cassette recorder, police said.

The incident was reported at 3:56 a.m. by the homeowners, according to police. The inside window was open, according to reports.

Hanpeter named president of ISD board for 1986-87

By Mike Andrzejczyk

It was an office she knew she would eventually attain, and Joan Hanpeter has some goals for herself as president of the Wayne County Intermediate School District Board of Education.

Hanpeter, also a trustee of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, was recently elected to serve as president for 1986-87. The ISD board has five members, elected by school boards of 34 districts in Wayne County.

Hanpeter has served on the ISD board since 1983. The position of president of the board traditionally rotates among the five members, she added.

She is the first Grosse Pointe trustee to serve as president of the county board.

Besides providing a sense of leadership for the board, Hanpeter says she would like to develop the understanding of county residents about the services provided by the ISD. She would also like to see a process developed by the ISD to determine whether it is meeting the needs of local school districts.

County residents are charged one mill on property tax bills to help fund special education services in Wayne. Those funds are administered by the intermediate school district, which provides for center programs, training and other services for those with special learning needs, Hanpeter said.

But the ISD can also act as a resource center for local school districts for research on educational issues, Hanpeter said.

By disseminating information, the ISD can keep local districts from "reinventing the wheel" when problems arise, Hanpeter said.

Because people of the area support the ISD with their tax dollars, they should be more aware of how it operates, Hanpeter said.

"Grosse Pointe is unique in some ways. We represent a quality school district where a high proportion of students go on to higher education," Hanpeter said. "I think it's good to hear a voice from a school district where there are high academic standards."

The intermediate school district is the educational service agency that is the middle step between the local school district and the state department of education, Hanpeter said. As such, it is able to handle problems — including border disputes — and deliver educational services a local district may not have the resources to provide for itself.

The ISD acts as purchasing agent for a number of goods. It also provides training programs for staff and administration. The ISD regularly runs programs for residents to teach them how to win millage campaigns.

The Wayne ISD is currently offering training for administrators in the application of high technology in vocational education programs, Hanpeter said. It also operates Operation Headstart, a program dealing with early childhood education.

Data from Operation Headstart can be of great value to Grosse Pointe because the board has expressed an interest to develop early childhood education programs, Hanpeter added.

The ISD also offers computer equipment and data processing time to local districts.

She is sometimes able to use her position on the ISD board to directly benefit Grosse Pointe schools, Hanpeter said. Earlier this year, local officials were saying the county computers weren't processing the district's attendance data fast enough. By making a call or two, she was able to put Grosse Pointe administrators in touch with the proper county people, Hanpeter said.

The ISD also brings state and educational aid into the area. Last school year, the local district began looking for ways to use MSTAR programming — provided by the ISD through a grant from the state.

Important to the role of the ISD is communication, according to Hanpeter. She said she would like the ISD board to set goals that it can articulate to other school districts.

The role of the ISD as a research pool for use by local districts requires closer communication with local officials, she added.

At the July 14 Grosse Pointe school board organizational meeting, Hanpeter told her fellow trustees she would not accept a position as officer of the local board because of her involvement with the county. Service with the ISD may mean being able to solve specific problems for her home district.

A management consultant for Jannotta Bray and Associates, Hanpeter has served on the Grosse Pointe Board of Education since 1972, holding all offices, including four terms as president.

Joining her on the ISD board are Boyd Arthurs of Trenton, vice president; Charles Akey of Northville, secretary; Mary Blackmon of Detroit, treasurer; and Armen Barsamian of Garden City, trustee. Hanpeter succeeds Barsamian as president.

Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra

Fireworks at Grosse Pointe Symphony performance

The Grosse Pointe Summer Music Festival will draw the curtain on another musical season on Monday, Aug. 4, but the final performance will be a celebration of sights and sounds when the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra presents an outdoor pops concert. The orchestra's final number will be the spirited "Stars and Stripes Forever" punctuated with a colorful fireworks display over the lake.

Monday's concert will include selections from a century of music, from universal favorites such as Berlioz' "Hungarian March," Mendelssohn's "Midsummers Night's Dream," Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty Ballet," and Strauss' "Gypsy Baron Overture" in today's show-stoppers like "Star Wars" and "La Cage Aux Folles." Bridging the gap will be "Colonel Bogey's March," Her-man's "George M. Cohan Salute" and of course, the Sousa finale number.

Tickets for Monday's 8 p.m. concert are for sale at Village Record and Tapes, 17118 Kercheval, and at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore. Reserved seats cost $10 per person, lawn admission is $6.50 per person and tickets for children under 12 are half-price.

Those who wish to make an evening of it may picnic on the grounds beginning at 6 p.m., and may bring their own fare or order box suppers from the War Memorial with a prepaid reservation by Friday. Box suppers cost $6.50 each.

For information or to be placed on next year's Summer Music Festival mailing list, call the center at 881-7511, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Morshead elected president of MACTE post

Many recommendations of the recent national study groups to improve the quality of teacher education are already in place in Michigan, says the president-elect of a statewide teacher education organization.

"A good many of those recommendations, while applicable to most of the country, are not nearly as applicable to the state of Michigan, which has always been a leader in education, especially in teacher education," according to Richard Morshead, dean of the division of education at the University of Michigan Dearborn.

Morshead, a resident of Grosse Pointe, has been the head of the teacher education program at UMD since 1969. He was recently elected as the president for 1987-88 of the Michigan Association of Colleges of Teacher Education. He is serving the 1986-87 year as president elect.

Morshead has had a lifelong commitment to education. In the 1950s, he was a teacher at Defer Elementary School in Grosse Pointe and also served as a school psychologist in the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

MACTE, an affiliate of the American Association for Colleges of Teacher Education, is a professional organization representing teacher education programs at 24 state public and private colleges and universities.

As president, Morshead will be responsible for coordination of the organization's activities through the state. He will also chair the executive board, which sets the policy for the body.

Although it is the most extensive organization representing teacher education programs in the state, MACTE's principal power is through persuasion, Morshead says. It works closely with the heads of teacher education programs and is also able to work through the state Board of Education.

The organization initiated a periodic review of teacher education programs throughout the state, a project endorsed by the state board. Morshead co-chaired the committee that prepared the preliminary report, which is expected to be released in the fall.

Also serving on the MACTE study committee was Doris Cook, president of the Grosse Pointe Education Association and a delegate from Local One of the Michigan Education Association.

National reports by the Holmes Group — a body of college deans — and the Carnegie Task Force on Teaching as a Profession, said that the quality of teaching throughout the country needs to be drastically upgraded.

"Virtually all (teacher education programs) in Michigan have increased admission requirements," with the average rising from a C to a C+, Morshead says.

"It typically takes the student longer than four years to complete a teacher preparation program in Michigan. Students often accomplish this by going several summer terms," he adds.

He is pleased the Holmes Group focused attention on the importance of research into teaching, Morshead says.

MACTE members have already agreed that they will not allow their enrollments to increase and training slip to turn out a large number of teachers to meet the state's coming shortage, Morshead says. The colleges and universities want to avoid the situation of the 1950s when vast numbers of teachers were put through programs and inadequately prepared for classroom work, he adds.

The state is considering legislation that would require all teachers to be tested in basic skills prior to participating in student teaching. Students at various schools are already required to take the National Teachers Exam, administered by the Educational Testing Service.

Another recommendation, to eliminate undergraduate majors in education, is also largely irrelevant in Michigan, according to Morshead. Virtually no education program in the state offers an education major per se, he adds, saying students major and minor in subject areas.

There are few, if any, teacher preparation programs in the state that students can complete within the traditional four years and 120 credit hours, Morshead says. Calls by national groups for an extension of education training beyond four years are already being addressed in Michigan, he added.

An MACTE study is being conducted now to see if the enrollment increases being experienced in teacher education programs is large enough to pull the state through the coming shortage. Morshead says it's his preliminary feeling — "and it's just a feeling" — that the increase will meet the demand for new teachers for one or two years, but not for the long run.

Maintaining the quality and high professionalism of the state's teachers remains a central concern for MACTE, he adds.

"Courses have been cleaned up and programs cleared out and an effort made to maintain the high quality that has been attained," he adds.

The enrollment increase in teacher education programs shows that students are once again considering careers in education, Morshead says.

Morshead hopes a growing number of citizens in the state will begin to recognize the high quality of teacher education generally provided by the schools and departments of education at the state's colleges and universities.

Assistance League

The Bon Secours Assistance League held its annual meeting on May 19 at Bon Secours Hospital's Science Hall and presented a check for $180,000 from fundraising efforts during the past year. Pictured is Mickey Schaefer, assistance league president, and Christopher Carney, chief executive officer, Bon Secours Hospital, who accepted the check for the Sisters of Bon Secours. The donation will support Bon Secours Hospital services in various ways: $84,000 will go toward the Sr. Rosalia Buesching Hospice Fund to support the Bon Secours Hospice Home Care Program, $91,000 will go toward the purchase of echocardiogram equipment for the Cardiopulmonary Diagnostic Center, and $5,000 to Meals for the Homebound. The Bon Secours Assistance League supports Bon Secours Hospital by sponsoring the Celebrity Series program at Parcels School, operating the hospital gift shop, and through other fundraising activities.

Brunch, jazz to benefit Bon Secours nursing home

The Bon Secours Nursing Care Center will present Jazz and Brunch with flutist Alexander Zonjic on Sunday, Aug. 17, in the atrium at Bon Secours Nursing Care Center.

As the leader of his own quintet, Zonjic has been in constant demand for performances in the Detroit area for several years. His jazz talents have been recognized through regular appearances at Baker's Keyboard Lounge, several Montreux-Detroit Jazz Festivals, and the P'Jazz series. He has been a featured guest on Dennis Whaley's PBS-TV show "Latenight America" and on PM Magazine.

There will be two performances by Zonjic and his group at the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center; a 9:30 a.m. brunch followed by a 10:30 a.m. performance, and 12:45 brunch followed by a 1:15 p.m. performance.

Tickets are $35 per person which includes brunch and valet parking. All proceeds will go to the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center Auxiliary which supports the Nursing Care Center. For ticket information, call 779-7018 between 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Nominate for Woods beautification awards

The Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Advisory Committee is seeking businesses, churches, schools and individual residents to be nominated for 1986 Beautification Awards. Contenders include those persons who have made extensive renovations, repairs or additions to their buildings, homes or landscaping between Aug. 1, 1985 and Aug. 1, 1986.

Nomination forms are available at the Grosse Pointe Woods City Hall and public safety office. Or, simply jot down the name, address and phone number of your nominee, along with a short description of the improvements, and send it to the Beautification Commission, 20025 Mack Plaza, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236. Photos are helpful but not necessary.

"In the past we have mailed nomination forms to all of the businesses in the city," said Michael Zolik, Awards Night chairperson. "This year we'd like to have input from everyone in the community who is interested in rewarding our residents and business people for their efforts."

Three mayor's trophies and three honorable mention certificates will be awarded at the discretion of the commission. Also, a specially designed Pewabic tile may be presented for an outstanding home renovation. The awards are given at a reception held in November.

Second space camp offered

Because of popular demand, an additional "Air and Space Camp," co-sponsored by the Living Science Foundation and the Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, has been scheduled the week of Aug. 18.

"The Air and Space Day Camp," for students 7 to 12, will be held Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Barnes School, 2090 Morningside Drive in the Woods. Fee for the five-day camp is $125.

Each day will concentrate on a different aspect of air and space, building on concepts learned the previous day. The program will incorporate living animals, a new portable planetarium, laser video disks, and high technology to bring the campers a lasting and memorable program. Each day will also include related crafts and experiments — along with healthy snacks.

Monday's theme will be "First Flight." Campers will explore principles of flight with the animals who do it naturally, receive an introduction to the constellations and begin week-long projects.

"Manned Flight" is Tuesday's theme, with students experimenting with the forces of nature and learning ways to conquer them.

"Rocketry," Wednesday's theme, will find campers constructing their own rockets, then observe actual NASA space equipment and artifacts.

On Thursday, with "Orbit" as the theme, campers will complete their rockets and launch them, experiencing actual flight preparations.

Friday's theme, "Astronomy," will provide a culmination of the week's activities. With the tools learned the preceding four days, students will visit outer space in the planetarium, operate their own space laboratory, and eat authentic space food.

Call the Department of Community Education at 343-2178 for information.

Friday Night Live

... turned out to be Friday Night Wet as the rain and winds moved merchants back inside during the Village's annual sidewalk sale event. Saturday, however, dawned bright and beautiful, as these photos show. At the left is Laura Grego, a junior at South High. The flowers marked the first time Kroger's joined the other merchants in the sidewalk sales. Because of the rain, the two-day event will be held again this Friday and Saturday, Aug. 1 and 2. Organizer Beverly Leinweber said it will be merchants' choice, meaning not all of the businesses will participate in the rescheduled event.

Get vehicle exhaust tested early

Lines at Secretary of State branch offices in the Detroit area may be longer this summer because vehicle owners are waiting until the last minute to obtain the auto exhaust test needed to purchase their license plate tab, according to a department spokesman.

Owners can avoid the long lines by getting their vehicle tested early and using the department's renewal by mail service. The certificate issued by the auto exhaust testing station is valid for six months. It takes about 10 days to renew a license plate by mail.

Auto exhaust testing, which is required by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, began Jan. 1, 1986 for residents of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Precinct delegate candidates take a stand — or not

Voters in the Aug. 5 primary will find the names of candidates for precinct delegate at the bottom of the Republican, Democratic and other party tickets. There has been considerable interest this year in the delegates who may help select presidential candidates for their respective parties. A story on their function appears elsewhere in this edition.

To assist voters, the Grosse Pointe News sent questionnaires to 85 Republican candidates for precinct delegate. Democratic candidates will also be listed below, but since the interest now is focused mainly on possible Republican presidential candidates, such as George Bush, Jack Kemp or Pat Robertson, we concentrated on that party.

They were asked to check one of the following:

- I am not committed to any candidate at this time.
- I am not committed, but I am leaning toward (blank).
- I am a (blank) supporter.

Warrants to be issued on 12 youthful vandals

By Nancy Parmenter

A Grosse Pointe Farms resident fed up with vandalism by neighborhood teens has decided to press charges and make them stick. She said last week that she has asked police to issue warrants on 12 youths age 14 to 16.

"The thing that shocked us the most is that (after the damage came to light) only one parent brought a boy over to apologize to us and offer to make restitution," she said. "We haven't heard word one from the others."

All but two of the 12 are Grosse Pointe teens. The others are cousins from Brighton, police said. "They appear to be from good families," the resident said. "What are they doing out so late at night anyway? It's incredible that parents don't know what their children are doing. We can't understand it."

The youths are charged with trespassing, larceny and malicious destruction of property in a week-long spree July 7-14, police said. They are alleged to have entered the resident's yard, turned on the water supply for the pool sliding board, stolen a small stone rabbit from the garden and broken pickets off the fence.

"They've thrown furniture in the pool and I've had to pick up more than a case of empty beer cans," the resident said. "I have found drug paraphernalia that I don't even know what it is. We came out every morning and the yard looked like a battlefield."

The problem was only solved when the resident hired an off-duty Farms policeman to hide in the

An Open Letter from Paul Willax to the People of Metropolitan Detroit

Dear Friends:

By now I'm sure you've heard the Big E is ready to "go public." That means that Empire of America will be owned by stockholders.

As always, we'll continue to give you the same competitive rates on your deposits and loans, FSLIC protection on your deposits up to $100,000 and the high level of service you've come to expect from the Big E. But now, you also will have the opportunity to buy Big E stock.

In fact, we'll be holding investor meetings to personally tell you our story.

If you would like more information on "getting your share" of Big E stock, visit the office nearest you. Or call 1-800-521-3014, 9 a.m.-8 p.m., Monday thru Friday, and 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Saturday. We will provide you with a copy of our Subscription Offering Circular at your request. Carefully review the offering circular and make any investment decision based on its contents only. We want valued friends and neighbors like you to have this opportunity because we're not just looking for investors — we're looking for partners.

Playwright

Bookshop owner breaks into drama with original Golden Lion script

By Elsa Frohman

"I've been writing since I was six years old," said Gwenn Bashara-Samuel. On Sept. 12, a product of her pen, "Daddy's Girls," a play in two acts, will debut at the Golden Lion restaurant in Dennis Wickline's dinner theater.

This is Bashara-Samuel's first play to be performed professionally, though reading, writing and drama have been central to her life as far back as she can remember. As proprietor of the Book Village, she is constantly surrounded by books.

"I was in a used bookstore recently," she said. "I picked up a copy of Proem (the Pierce Junior High School literary publication) and there was something I wrote when I was in junior high."

Bashara-Samuel has done freelance writing for various magazines over the years, and her master's thesis in society at Wayne State University was in the form of a play. However, "Daddy's Girls" is a major dramatic departure for the long-time member of the Grosse Pointe Theater.

"I'm a techie," Bashara-Samuel said. "I like to make things happen behind the scenes."

The Grosse Pointe Theater was the breeding ground for "Daddy's Girls." Bashara-Samuel wrote the first act as a workshop for the group.

"The Grosse Pointe Theater has a wonderful workshop program," she said. "It's good for actors and directors and people who just want to get on stage for the first time. About 10 times in the last 15 years I've written workshops. But I hadn't done that for a while because of all the work from the bookstore."

One day, her literary inactivity got to her and she decided to do something about it.

"I said, I'm going to write a play, and I set a deadline," Bashara-Samuel said.

When the first act was finished, she got the opportunity to produce the script as a workshop. The workshop worked as much on refining the script as on rehearsing it.

"I rewrote Act I five times as I found flaws," she said. "I was very fortunate to have input from these very experienced theatrical people."

In April 1985, Act I was performed before the membership of the Grosse Pointe Theater. The performance was videotaped so Bashara-Samuel could review it after the emotion-wrought opening night.

"It received the very warmest of welcomes," she said of the first-act

"It's the second to the last rite of passage. It's when you finally know you're an adult. It makes a change like no other."

— Gwenn Bashara-Samuel

only performance. "Everyone said they couldn't wait to see Act II."

One of the admirers of that first act was Dennis Wickline, producer of the dinner-theater plays at the Golden Lion. Though a long-time member of the Grosse Pointe Theater, Wickline couldn't make it to the Act I performance but saw the videotape during a party at Bashara-Samuel's home.

"He loved it," she said. "Dennis decided he would like to do it at the Lion."

Bashara-Samuel set about writing a second act which had its first performance, much as Act I, by the Grosse Pointe Theater in June of this year.

But as she goes into rehearsals for the play's first beginning to end performance, Bashara-Samuel plans to make more changes in the script.

"In the next two weeks, I think I'll rewrite it one more time," she said.

"Daddy's Girls" presented Bashara-Samuel with the challenge of presenting universal experiences and emotions in an entertaining dramatic framework.

"It's a comedy about death," she said.

"The story tells of the effects of the death of a strong man on the women in his life. The principals are his three daughters, his sister, his wife and the men in their lives."

"It's a woman's show," Bashara-Samuel said.

She believes that a comedic approach to appropriate for this usually less-than-funny subject.

"Comedy and tragedy are so close," she said. "How we get through tragedy is laughing."

Wickline said he decided to do the play because it touched him emotionally.

"It's true to life," he said. "It made me laugh, but it was so real that it reminded me of the loss of my own father."

"As a writer, you have to write about things you know," Bashara-Samuel said. "Families and feelings are something we all know. At my age, most of my friends are experiencing the loss of a parent. It's the second to the last rite of passage. It's when you finally know you're an adult. It makes a change like no other."

Bashara-Samuel said she was writing her own experience, but found in the performance of the feelings, that other people had experienced the same things.

"People in the audience came up to me and said, did you feel that way too? It's a universal experience. The feelings were not just mine," she said.

However, she is quick to point out that the characters in the play are not based on particular people.

"I had to make it interesting and give it twists," she said. "What came out was exaggerated. There are few real people in the play. They are people based on common experiences. The feelings are real."

Gwenn Bashara-Samuel, proprietor of the Book Village on Kercheval in The Village for the past 11½ years, has written an original play that will be produced by Dennis Wickline in the Golden Lion Dinner Theater in September and October this year. "Daddy's Girls" marks Bashara-Samuel's first professionally produced play, as well as the first original dramatic production for the dinner theater.

For Wickline, producing "Daddy's Girls" represents a calculated risk. It will be his first original dramatic production in the Golden Lion dinner theater. Dinner theater audiences tend to expect familiar works.

"I've taken chances before," he said. "I produced 'The Elephant Man' and I've done three Gilbert and Sullivan pieces and people came. If you don't take a chance, you won't find out what might happen."

"Daddy's Girls" will be a very Grosse Pointe production. Five of the eight cast members, Maureen Bruce, Jane Vreeland, Shirley Shepherd, Nick Dara and John Casey, are Grosse Pointers. Wickline himself is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South. Bashara-Samuel is a life-long Grosse Pointer who grew up on Balfour in Grosse Pointe Park.

"Daddy's Girls" will premiere on Sept. 12, and run on Fridays and Saturdays for the following seven weeks.

Vegetables add substance to summer gardens

How does your garden grow? Your vegetable garden, that is. For vegetable garden enthusiasts nothing quite equals the excitement of growing the biggest tomato or the most symmetrical squash, and a perfect head of lettuce may be compared to the perfection of a lovely rose.

Anyone can have a vegetable garden. All you need is a patch of soil. Some people grow vegetable gardens in alleys or vacant lots in the inner city, or in window boxes or bushel baskets full of soil on roofs of apartment buildings. If you have a very small yard you can grow lettuce or carrots or parsley in borders, or spinach, which loves shade, may be grown as a border under evergreens or other shady trees.

A few peppers can be decorative among the blooms in your flower beds. Some vegetables can be grown in hanging baskets too, and three baskets hung at different levels in a small sunny spot could produce a bumper crop of miniature varieties of tomatoes, cucumbers or carrots, as well as leaf lettuce, radishes and beets.

Strawberry "barrels" or planter jars can be attractive in a patio or on a porch. And of course pots of chives or sage can flourish on a sunny kitchen window sill.

Did you know that the tomato, the pepper and the eggplant are all members of the nightshade family although they are not at all like their sinister relative, that bane of the gardener, Deadly Nightshade with its yellow and purple flowers and trailing vines.

Tomatoes were called by earlier generations "love apples" and were considered poisonous, although they were grown as ornamental borders in gardens. The eggplant too was for a long time obscured by superstition for it was once believed that eating eggplant would cause insanity. Fortunately we are now more enlightened and use these products of the garden in many delectable recipes. Incidentally, don't plant pumpkins and squash near each other because they will cross-pollinate and you will get some odd looking pumpquashes.

But sometime you might try growing a Sakurajima radish. They take about 70 days to grow but are the size of a watermelon and often weigh more than 15 pounds. Impressive to say the least!

Here's a new way to scare marauding raccoons or rabbits out of your vegetable garden. Put a small portable radio in a plastic bag to protect it from the vagaries of the weather, tune it up a bit loud and set it at a 24 hour news station. Place it in the middle of your vegetable garden. The midnight news will probably be bad enough to scare everything away.

To make the biggest rose you ever saw for a table decoration or centerpiece, take a red cabbage and fold the leaves back one by one. With a little creativity you can make a beautiful giant rose. (If you don't like the result you can always eat it).

Everyone has cookbooks discussing in tremendous detail the preparation of vegetables for the dinner table, but cooking with flowers, which in past centuries was an accepted culinary procedure, is a new thought to many of us today. Many of us who have daylilies in our gardens consider the lovely colors and graceful shapes a feast for the eyes, but few people realize that it is possible to feast upon them in any other way.

The Chinese have eaten daylilies for centuries and they are grown as a cash crop by Chinese farmers. Dried daylilies are exported to Chinese grocery stores world-wide under the names Gumjum or Gumtsoy.

Daylilies are very hardy and have superior ability to withstand drought and compete with weeds. They require almost no care and are often regarded almost as wild plants. So prolific are their blooms that few people are aware that each one lasts only a single day.

The elegance of daylilies lends itself to all flower arrangements from the Williamsburg-type mass bouquets to the sophisticated simplicity of a Japanese arrangement. Their flavor is similar to that of lima beans or chestnuts but a trifle sweeter, and they have a high content of protein, vitamins and minerals.

Wash the blossoms gently and remove the stamens and pistils. Be careful not to overcook them.

Chop the blossoms and add them to scrambled eggs or omelets. Place the buds in the juice from dill pickles and refrigerate overnight and serve with sliced cold meats. Torn blossoms are a nice addition to a tossed salad. Or use daylilies as cups in which to serve chicken salad. Here are two recipes to try:

Buttered Daylilies

8 daylily blossoms
1 cup chicken broth
3 tablespoons butter
salt and pepper to taste
Simmer and daylilies for four minutes in the broth. Drain. Add butter and seasoning and serve.

Sliced Pork with Daylilies

3/4 cup onion rings
3 tablespoons butter
1 clove garlic, mashed
8 very thin slices of pork
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1/4 teaspoon powdered ginger
1 tablespoon white wine
salt and pepper to taste
2 cups chopped daylilies

Saute onions in butter until translucent. With a slotted spoon remove onions and reserve. To the remaining butter add the garlic and pork slices; cook quickly on both sides. Remove the pork to a warm serving dish.

Stir the cornstarch into the soy sauce until smooth and then add to the pan juices with ginger, wine, and pepper. Cook and stir until thickened and clear. Add reserved onions and daylilies. Stir for two minutes. Taste to see if you need salt (soy sauce is quite salty). Pour over pork and serve.

More about wildflowers. (Have you seen Trowell and Error Garden Club's lovely wildflower garden adjacent to the Grosse Pointe Garden Center's Trial Gardens at the War Memorial?)

Eleanor Moran, whose charming garden on Moross has beautiful Orchids and other ferns, has many wildflowers including Solomon's Seal, Hyacinth, May Apple and rare yellow violets, would be interested to know of anyone who would like seedlings or cuttings of these plants. Call her at 884-3995.

Question of the Week: Why does my lettuce keep going to seed before its big enough to eat?

Answer: Your lettuce is getting too much heat. Shad it a bit by putting gauze over it. And next time plant it earlier before hot weather is likely and tray a variety that is slower to bolt.

Women's Advertising Club

The Women's Advertising Club of Detroit announces the installation of its new board of directors for the 1986-1987 season. W.A.C.'s new officers are: Eleanor Tuttle, president, of Grosse Pointe; Carole Beyma, vice president; Diane Depodesta, recording secretary; Michelle Bailey, corresponding secretary; Denise A. Robinson, treasurer; Susan Barber, director, Grosse Pointe Woods; Mary Ann Gideon, director; Barbara Kennedy, director; Nora Steffen, director.

Established in 1923, the prestigious Women's Advertising Club is celebrating its 63rd year. W.A.C. has continuously offered women in the fields of advertising and communications a forum for interchange of industry-related experience and ideas.

Monthly meetings are scheduled the fourth Monday evening of every month. Membership is open to women who manage, perform, administrate or teach one or more of the recognized creative or administrative functions of the advertising and communications professions. Or, through their similarity of interests in advertising or the communications field desire to participate in club activities.

Membership information and applications are available by calling Diane Markey, at Crain Communications, 446-0313.

Grosse Pointe Singles

The Widow and Widower's group of the Grosse Pointe Singles will have an orientation "Get Acquainted Lawn Party/Barbeque" open to all prospective members, Aug. 30 at 5 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe City home of a member. For reservations, call Mary at 882-0316 or Charlotte at 882-9042.

Grosse Pointe Singles will hold open dances at 9 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 2, 9, 16 and 23, in the Stephan's Room of the Continental Lanes, 31055 Gratiot, Roseville.

Sunday Afternoon Dance Parties, with hor d'oeuvres, will be held at 7 p.m. Aug. 10 and 24 and 31, at the Blue Goose Inn, 28911 E. Jefferson, St. Clair Shores.

Reservations are now being accepted for the Big Wine and Cheese Party at the Harsens Island home of a GPS member, Sunday, Aug. 17 at 1 p.m.

This very active singles group is open to all singles 35 and up. For information, call GPS Hotline 445-1286.

Detroit Boat Club

On Wednesday, Aug. 13, the fantastic Hawaiian Luau at the Detroit Boat Club, will transport you to the island of flowers and sunshine. Everyone will be greeted by Cia Bridenstine with a traditional Hawaiian silk lei, that will be yours to keep.

Featured during the cocktail hour starting at 6 p.m., will be a delicious Mai Tai special. A traditional Hawaiian buffet with its succulent and exotic foods will be served at 7 p.m., ending with Tangerine Fantasy Freeze pie for dessert.

A spectacular one-hour floor show, following dinner, will have lovely maidens wishing you "Aloha," with their hula dancing. The culmination of the entertainment will be a traditional Polynesian "Fire Dance." The John Needham trio will play for your dancing and listening pleasure, starting at 9 p.m. Come in your favorite Hawaiian outfits or resort wear.

Co-chairmen Lucia Bridenstine and Marilyn McCafferty will be assisted by Ginny Adams, Kay Baird, Joyce Campbell, Dorothy Carty, Jan Engel, Ella Lewis, Ann Melville, Mary Lou Miller, Lorraine Primeau, Theone Psihas, Barbara Romzick and Mary Helen Yost.

As this party is always a sellout, call for early reservations at The Detroit Boat Club, 331-0020, for the Hawaiian Luau to be held outside around the pool and bandshell on Aug. 13.

GP Questers mark 25 years

Tables of antiques and collectibles filled the undercroft of Christ Church of Grosse Pointe on May 9 as Grosse Pointe Questers Chapter 147 celebrated its 25th anniversary.

It was 25 years ago on June 29 when Mable Van Dagens opened her home to organize the chapter. Lillian Pear, who was past National President, and Clara Schumann, second state president were present.

Members of local chapters were invited to the tea at Christ Church. Honored guests attending were: Rita Brennan, national president, and Alice Wyland, Michigan state president.

Continuous music on an antique dulcimer and Celtic Harp called the "Tara" used before battles in Ireland was played by Cecelia Webster.

An 1870 Russian samovar, 1886 Statue of Liberty shelf clock, 18th century Japanese Tansu chest, a 1792 singing Society Songbook and a Victorian hair picture were some of the items on display.

The "Guess What It Is" item turned out to be a 19th century buggy jack.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Clarke

Christen-Clarke

Polly Jean Christen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Christen of Orchard Lake, and Michael Sullivan Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Clarke of Grosse Pointe Park, were married on March 1, at St. James Episcopal Church, Birmingham.

The bride wore a traditional white gown and veil and carried white roses with baby's breath.

The matron of honor was Jennifer Lefanowicz of Austin, Texas. Maid of honor was Nancy Dahl of Birmingham. Bridesmaids were Sharon Levinson of Rochester, N.Y.; Wendy Stetten of Venice, Calif.; Michele Miller of Troy; Mary Murphy of Birmingham; and Charisse Smith of New York, N.Y. They wore long gowns of burgandy and carried rubrum lilies.

The best man was William Krausmann. Ushers were Thomas Clarke, Duncan MacEachern, Jay Truba and Mike Dowdall of Grosse Pointe, and Daan Zilstra of San Diego, Calif. John Spain, nephew of the groom, was the ringbearer.

Following the candlelight ceremony, a reception dinner-dance was held at the Troy Hilton. The couple honeymooned with a Caribbean cruise.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan State University. She is a territory manager for Newell Window Furnishings.

The groom, also a Michigan State University graduate, is a sales representative for Armour Pharmaceutical.

Endicott-Leonard

Elizabeth Jean Endicott, daughter of Mrs. Charles M. Endicott of Grosse Pointe Shores and the late Charles Endicott, and Nathaniel Erick Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Leonard of Hudson, Ohio, were married on July 19 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The Rev. Dr. James Carroll officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Country Club of Detroit.

The maid of honor was Katharine Endicott, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Lynn Holland and Barbara Rands, cousin of the bride, both of Grosse Pointe; Jacqueline Jannotta, Boca Raton, Fla.; Emily Leonard, sister of the groom, Hudson, Ohio. The flower girl was Sarah Jean Torma, cousin of the bride, San Diego, Calif.

The best man was Henry B. Leonard, father of the groom. Ushers were Eric Buehler, Aurora, Ohio; William J. Jennings, Hudson, Ohio; William Page, Marblehead, Mass.; J. Sanborn Foster, Marblehead, Mass.; Scott

Mrs. Nathaniel Leonard

Therrien, Rochester, Mich.; Robert Keim, Pittsburgh, Pa.; and Christopher Loughridge, New York, N.Y.

The bride wore a gown of tissue taffeta with a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace edged with Alencon lace. Her veil fell from an Alencon lace cap. Her cathedral-length train featured an inset of Chantilly lace and Alencon lace edging. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis, eucharist lilies and ivy.

The bridesmaids wore coral taffeta with pleated skirts and pinafeta tops. They carried coral and peach roses and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore beige Chantilly lace over pale coral silk. The mother of the groom wore lemon yellow silk with a pleated skirt.

The couple honeymooned with a trip to England and Scotland. They will live in Darien, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. James Charles

Kasunic-Charles

Diane M. Kasunic, daughter of David and Joyce Kasunic of Grosse Pointe Park, and James Allan Charles, son of William and Marian Charles of Flint, were married on June 21 at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Grand Rapids.

The Rev. Frederick Adrian officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Press Club of Grand Rapids.

The maid of honor was Lora Kasunic, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Lisa Charles, sister of the groom, Flint; and Cynthia Grebe, friend of the bride, Midland, Mich. The flower girl was Kelly Kasunic, niece of the bride, Cleveland, Ohio.

The best man was Brian Bremer, friend of the groom, Flint. Ushers were Mike Schulte, friend of the couple, Grosse Pointe; Steven Eddy, nephew of the groom, Grand Blanc.

The mother of the bride wore peach chiffon with a pearl belt. The mother of the groom wore off-white crepe with a flowered satin jacket.

The couple honeymooned with a trip to New England. They will live in Grand Rapids.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and Central Michigan University. She is a television producer with WOTV-Grand Rapids.

The groom is a graduate of Flint Carmen High School and Central Michigan University. He is the traffic manager for H.H. Cutler, Co., Grand Rapids.

Robertson-Estabrook

Loretta Lynn Robertson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Robertson of Lake Havasu City, Ariz., and Robert Allen Estabrook Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Estabrook of Grosse Pointe Woods, were married July 12 during a double ring ceremony at the Queen's Bay Country Club in Lake Havasu City, Ariz.

The Rev. Douglas Pender officiated the ceremony and music was provided by Elaine Palmer for the ceremony and reception which followed at the Country Club.

The bride wore a ballerina-length gown with lace-capped sleeves and Victorian neckline. She carried a silk bouquet of pink and white carnations and rose buds.

The maid of honor was Angela Shafer of Wapello, Iowa. Debbie Robertson, sister of the bride, and Danielle Couch, step-sister of the bride, both of Lake Havasu City, were bridesmaids and Christina Robertson was flower girl for her sister.

Michael Lugo of Las Vegas, Nevada stood as the groom's best man. Ushers were Bob Clawges of Lake Havasu City, and brother of the groom, Steve Estabrook of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The couple will make their home in Las Vegas, Nev.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Currier

McCombs-Currier

Amy S. McCombs became the bride of Grosse Pointer Frederick P. Currier during a July 10 ceremony at the Little Stone Church on Mackinac Island.

The bride is president and general manager of WDIV-TV, Channel 4 in Detroit. The groom is chairman of the board of Market Opinion Research, also in Detroit.

They were married by the Rev. Homer Nye.

Beverly Beltaire was matron of honor. The groom's brother Dr. Robert Currier, served as best man.

Following the wedding, an intimate family reception was held at the Grand Hotel.

Pointer to conduct Detroit Symphony Pops concert

Charles Greenwell of Grosse Pointe Woods, the midday music host and music director of WQRS-FM, Detroit's classical music station, will conduct the Detroit Symphony Pops in an evening of Viennese favorites at the Meadow Brook Music Festival, Saturday, Aug. 9, at 8 p.m.

After studies at Michigan State University, where he received a bachelor and master of music degrees, Greenwell received a master of music degree at the Royal College of Music in London, England, where he was a student of the great conductor Sir Adrian Boult.

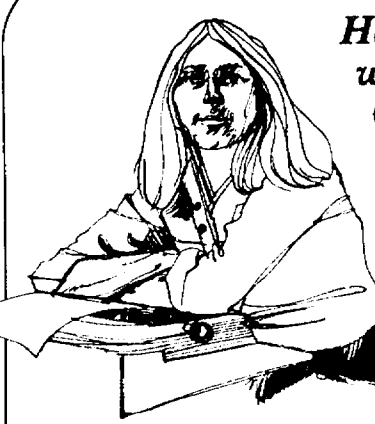

Before joining the staff of WQRS, Greenwell worked for many years as a pianist, oboist, singer and conductor in New York City, and sang for a number of years with the Gregg Smith Singers.

Besides his duties at WQRS, Greenwell still has time for his musical interests, and has been named music director of the Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra. This year he will also guest conduct the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra during their regular season.

"We are all very proud of Charles and his accomplishments," says WQRS Program Director Dave Wagner. "People know Charles from his daily radio program, but they may not realize just how accomplished a musician he really is. This station is very fortunate to have an individual of his calibre who knows everything about music. His concert at Meadow Brook will be a delightful evening for the entire family."

John Ingall: Relieving pain

By Elsa Frohman

The patient is in pain. He can't stand to be touched, so sensitive is the affected limb. He wraps the arm or hand or leg or foot in a warm stocking or sweater, even though it is July and the temperature is sweltering to everyone else. He has been to doctor after doctor and has had examinations and X-rays and every conceivable test, though no physical cause for the pain has been found. When all other avenues have been explored, he finally comes to the Gertrude Levin Pain Clinic, a cooperative program of Harper Hospital and University Hospital, and he sees Dr. John Ingall.

"Pain is a function of consciousness," Ingall said. "It is difficult to show by crude methods such as X-rays. They show shadows, not pain."

For many people with chronic, difficult to isolate pain, Ingall has the answer. He calls the condition reflex sympathetic dystrophy and for patients positively identified and treated in the early stages of the condition, he has a 95 percent success rate.

"This is nothing new," Ingall said. "It's being developed on a national basis. But it takes a long time to gain acceptance. It is a common problem, but it is difficult to recognize and needs greater emphasis in medical teaching and better diagnosis."

When a patient suffering chronic pain arrives at the Gertrude Levin Pain Clinic, he is carefully evaluated to rule out any other cause for the pain.

"We take a careful history," Ingall said. "There is a full psychiatric review for depression (or any psychological cause for the pain)." The patient's medication is also carefully evaluated.

"People are very naive about drugs," Ingall said. "They combine prescriptions and don't tell one doctor what the other one gave them. And over the counter medicines. People believe everything they see on television. We find people taking 17 medications a day and the average is eight. Some of them are mutually antagonistic." After the medical history and medication review, the patient is given any physical tests that he has not previously had.

"We try not to repeat anything if the evidence is adequate. People can't afford that," he said. "These patients have been investigated to death."

Pointer of Interest

After all the tests are complete, Ingall and his staff of physicians discuss the patient's overall condition. In many cases the patient is identified as having reflex sympathetic dystrophy.

Though the condition may seem mysterious — pain without physical cause — Ingall has demonstrated a physical basis for the condition, and though the mechanism of the condition is not understood, a positive diagnosis can be made.

Researchers have found that the temperature of a body area affected by reflex sympathetic dystrophy is lower than a normal area. Using thermography, pictures that record temperature rather than light, the difference between a painful hand, arm, leg or foot and a normal limb can be demonstrated clearly.

The term, reflex sympathetic dystrophy, refers to the sympathetic nervous system, a set of nerves that control certain involuntary functions of the body, such as constriction of blood vessels and perspiration. According to Ingall, it seems to be a malfunction of the sympathetic nervous system that causes the problem.

To treat the condition, Ingall will administer an anesthetic block to the sympathetic nervous system. In some cases, that action alone will cure the pain. In other cases, the pain is temporarily cured and can be permanently cured by removing a section of the sympathetic nervous system that controls that part of the body.

"Once it (the section of the sympathetic nervous system) is removed, the limb becomes very warm. But it's not only warm, it is not painful and it doesn't sweat."

Ingall said that the best success in treating the condition comes when it is diagnosed early, in the first three months if possible. However, the condition is seldom diagnosed early, because physicians are not aware of its existence.

"There is no way of knowing how many people are suffering from it," Ingall said.

Ingall became interested in chronic pain as an adjunct to his work with cancer pain. He is on the board of the World Federation for Cancer Care and the International Hospice Institute.

Educated at Westminster Hospital in England, Ingall came to the United States in 1968 to participate in a study on breast cancer. Today, he is a U.S. citizen. He moved to Grosse Pointe in 1978 when he came to the Detroit area to work with the cancer outreach program of the National Cancer Institute.

"I just got interested in pain," he said. "It's a neglected area. When it can't be dealt with, it's frustrating."

Ingall's interest in cancer and pain is practical, not theoretical. His involvement with the World Federation For Cancer Care demonstrates that. The organization concerns itself primarily with hands on care of cancer patients.

"Hands on care is terribly important," he said. "It's (WFFCC) an investment in good hands on care. There are so many suffering. We have more than 50 countries involved."

John Ingall, M.D., of the Gertrude Levin Pain Clinic, recently gave a paper on reflex sympathetic dystrophy at the International Pain Clinic, a meeting in Lille, France. He has had considerable success at treating a chronically painful and often overlooked condition by disabling portions of the sympathetic nervous system which controls constriction of blood vessels.

Founders Junior Council elects officers

Founders Junior Council, the largest auxiliary of the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts, recently elected officers for 1986-87: Douglas E. Busbey of Grosse Pointe Farms was re-elected president; while Cara L. Kazanowski of Orchard Lake was elected vice president; Michael Zieck of Birmingham, treasurer; and Deborah O'Neill of Redford, secretary.

Founders Junior Council, together with Hudson's, annually sponsors Fashion Bash, this year Wednesday, Aug. 13, 5 p.m., at the Westin Hotel fourth level ballroom, Renaissance Center.

Fashion Bash '86 will feature a Hudson's men's and women's fall fashion show, live and silent auctions, dancing and cocktails. Tax-deductible tickets at $20 are on sale at Hudson's and other Ticket World outlets and at the door.

Proceeds from this party that annually attracts 3,000 people are spent on DIA acquisitions and projects.

Correction

In a recent article on the restoration of the commanding officer's residence at Historic Fort Wayne, the name of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in the State of Michigan was inadvertently shortened.

Assumption sponsors fitness camp

Plan now to treat yourself to three days of fresh air and sunshine, fitness activities and health-oriented programs conducted by Kalosomatics Exercise Director Barb Otul and guest speaker Dr. Lawrence Power, in the heart of Michigan's north woods near Rose City, Aug. 22, 23, 24.

Dr. Power, Wayne State University professor and director of Southfield Metabolic Center will motivate and change your lifestyle for a healthier and truly fit you. Departing Friday morning by air-conditioned motorcoach, you arrive to accommodations that accent comfort on a rustic theme — with log cabins alongside a private lake and quiet, sand beaches. Otul has lined up an outstanding program that starts off with a personal fitness evaluation and body composition analysis from physical therapists, Pipp and Gilboe Associates, P.C.

Moving on to more group action, join in the daily Kalosomatics exercise-to-music work-outs for beginning or advanced levels of fitness. Follow up with yoga, walking, running and jogging — you can set your own pace — or just relax and enjoy being outdoors.

For total relaxation, therapeutic massage is available along with water sports, swimming and canoeing. And what goes with exercise? Hearty appetites and the nutritious, well-planned menus designed to fill you up — but not out.

Call now to Assumption Cultural Center, 779-6111, to reserve your spot at the Summer Fitness Camp, a unique pleasure for body and mind.

Thibodeau exhibited

Virginia D. Thibodeau of Grosse Pointe is currently exhibiting three pieces of her work, miniature portraits, in the International Miniature Art Show in Marietta, Ga. The show will run from July 10 to Aug. 3.

Peggy O'Connor

Me and my big mouth . . .

I've really put my foot in it now.

My previous errors in judgement, (i.e., making fun of golfers, getting North and South fans riled up, taunting soccer parents) were child's play compared to what I've gotten myself into now. See, tonight, I will lead (?) a band of brave but not-so-athletic Grosse Pointe News staffers in a volleyball match against University Liggett School football coach Bob Newwine and his crew of ULS day camp counselors.

It all started when I threw out a little item in last week's column about how I wished somebody — anybody — would challenge the Grosse Pointe News to a friendly volleyball match. I never actually considered that anyone would take me up on it. (Okay, I'd thought that we might be able to assemble a GP News group strong enough to outlast the Little Sisters of the Poor in a two-out-of-three contest).

But when I heard ULS teacher/coach/publications expert Cathy Schmidt chuckling on the other end of the telephone last Thursday, I knew it was put up or shut up time.

Soooo, I had to get down on my hands and knees, explain the whole situation to my beloved co-workers (I lied through my teeth, told 'em it was for charity) and beg for their help (I actually had to promise my first-born child and a lifetime supply of M & M's but we won't talk about that). Oddly enough, most of them agreed to play (obviously, lost souls in dire need of psychiatric help).

We've got tough competition — Newwine once played for the USFL's Michigan Panthers and his squad, no doubt, is comprised of healthy, trim, tanned 21-year-olds who pump iron and eat wheat germ.

On the other hand, we at the Grosse Pointe News aren't a bunch of panty-waists, either. We've SEEN a Michigan Panthers game and we eat iron and pump wheat germ. So there.

Game time is 7 p.m. at University Liggett. And, while ULS has the home court advantage, they also have to contend with quite a formidable lineup, including: team captain Steve "Spike 'Em" Kulick, Chris "Spaceman" Dellas, the "Hurricane" Hages family: Roger and Diana, and Kim "Killer" Kozlowski, from Display Advertising; Mary "Bump" Broedell, Margaret "Blue Jeans" Friedman, Carol "I'll Just Watch" Fischer, Anne "Can I Stand in Back?" Mulherin, and Eve Marie "Boom-Boom" Burcar, from Classified Advertising; and from the newsroom, Peter "Take No Prisoners" Salinas, Mike "The Unmerciful" Andrzejczyk, and me, "Address Unknown" O'Connor.

We've even got a ringer: a 6-4 electrician known only as Mike "Conan" Garza. And we're sponsored by Metro Ski and Sports . . . who no doubt will sue to get their money back.

Full results, lots of embarrassing pictures and the injury report will run in next week's News (if I still have a job here).

One more Mackinac story:

Seems that the Lootens' family, who sailed to a sixth place finish in their class, 27th in their division aboard "Asylum," came back with a funny story.

Crewmember Ann Lootens, daughter of skipper Dr. Richard Lootens, smuggled aboard a box of animal crackers, as is the Lootens' yearly Mackinac custom. But she didn't bother to break them out until the crew was muddling its way through the race's traditional pea-soup fog.

Thing was, Ann wouldn't let anyone eat his cracker until they'd first made the sound of the animal on the cracker. So there they were, on a boat named Asylum, mooing and quacking away in the fog out on Lake Huron.

They sound like a fun bunch. Wonder if they play volleyball?

Owner/driver Bob Kaiser (inset) has piloted his G-K Systems Cougar Catamaran to a top ranking on the national offshore racing circuit.

Offshore racer powers way to top

'you really have to hang it on the edge to win races . . .

—Bob Kaiser

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Bob Kaiser got hooked on boat racing when he watched a powerboat race on the Detroit River a few years ago and decided it was something he wanted to try.

Now the 29-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms native — who now lives in downtown Detroit, overlooking the site of his racing inspiration — leads the Open Class of the American Power Boat Association 1986 national offshore racing circuit. A win in Pointe Pleasant, N.J., July 23 moved Kaiser and crewmate Errol Lanier from number three to number one in points on the circuit.

Kaiser, executive vice president of Gallagher-Kaiser Corp., brings his No. 1 ranking to Michigan in August for two races: Aug. 9 in Grand Haven and Aug. 24 in Northport.

He was also in town last week-end with his 37-foot aluminum Cougar Cat for the first Macomb Daily Offshore Challenge Race in Lake St. Clair off Selfridge Air National Guard Base.

Kaiser and Lanier, throttleman and a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., resident, have been tearing up the water in the very competitive open class this year. In the past, one boat was often able to dominate the class, but no longer, Kaiser says. Experience and equipment have made the division tougher than ever.

Kaiser and Lanier were ranked number three going into Pointe Pleasant last week, dropping a spot after a miscue in a Sarasota race. A three-minute delay because of a spin-out put them far enough down in the finish to cost them the spot, Kaiser says.

For each victory, a team receives 400 points toward the championship. The number two team is only 20 points behind Kaiser and Lanier. So far, six of 13 boats in the circuit are in striking distance of the championship.

THE COUGAR Cat requires two crew to operate, according to Kaiser. Lanier, as throttleman, is responsible for keeping the boat in the water, working the throttle to keep up maximum speed and to cut power when the boat goes airborne to keep from burning out the engines.

Kaiser is navigator and driver along the course, which runs from 135 to 160 statute miles in the open class. The driver's concentration has to be so high to keep the course markers in sight that it would be impossible for a single person to handle all the boat's needs, he adds.

Boats in the class can attain speeds of 120 mph when the sea and swells cooperate. The Gallagher-Kaiser boat is powered by two, 482-cubic-inch Mercury motors that produce close to 1,500 horsepower.

The boat carries 220 pounds of aviation fuel to finish the 160-mile race, Kaiser says. This year, the boat is averaging close to 105 miles an hour over the course of a race, one of a few that are maintaining those speeds.

The GK-Corp. boat is rigged for heavier water than most, Kaiser says. That's just because of the unpredictability of conditions a boat may face over the course of a race, he adds.

"You just don't know what a circuit's going to be like," he adds.

Swells on ocean courses are slower, so a boat can "fly" from one swell to another, he says. Fresh water is more unpredictable, he adds.

It was off Northport last year that Kaiser and two crew escaped serious injury when their 38-foot

VHF radio

The VHF or marine radio offers boat operators a system of communications from ship to ship and from ship to shore. It gives access to weather information and emergency assistance. VHF radios are relatively inexpensive and a cinch to install. Plenty of channels are available for use by pleasure boaters. The entire system is regulated by the FCC.

On a sunny summer weekend or holiday, however, the system is, at best, overused. At its worst, according to Fred Schriever, it is "a disaster and a verbal cesspool."

Fred Schriever has been a boater for more than 25 years. He's past commander of the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron and an officer of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. Over the years, Schriever has taught a variety of educational boating courses for the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron, including one on the proper operation of marine radios. He owns a 47-foot Chris Craft Commander, which he says he uses nearly every weekend and holiday.

"Marine radio communication problems have only gotten worse during the last two years," Schriever said. "This year it's a jungle. People talk on the calling channel. They interfere with Mayday calls and distress calls. They don't use call signals. They call more than twice when there's no response. Fishermen monopolize Channel 9. Sarnia Coast Guard constantly reminds, 'No radio checks on Channel 16.' People use explicit four-letter words. It's a verbal cesspool."

"During a Mayday in Lake St. Clair at the beginning of the season, people were constantly cutting in on Channel 16 with calls and conversation, making the Coast Guard's difficult job even more difficult."

Mike Rhine, inspection specialist for the FCC, said the system has deteriorated recently because there are more and more boaters using it. In the Detroit River — Lake St. Clair — St. Clair River area, he said, there are probably more private boaters than anywhere else in the country.

The FCC system of rules and regulations is designed for efficient use of the marine radio by all boaters, with priorities given to emergency and distress calls. The rules make sense. They involve sharing and taking turns. But in order to work effectively, all VHF radio users must follow the regulations.

Rhine said the biggest problem, from the FCC's standpoint, is callers who don't use their call letters. It's difficult to issue a violation or a warning to a boat owner who doesn't identify himself on the radio with call letters. The violator can be tracked down, Rhine said, by using a computer and tracing him through his boat's name. But it's a time-consuming task.

"The moment you buy a radio," Rhine said, "you have temporary call letters and a temporary license. They come with the radio. All you have to do is mail Form 506, which also comes with the radio. Within a month, you'll receive your license and your permanent call letters by mail. There is no fee."

The second most serious offense, he added, is use of the wrong channel. Channel 16 is designated as the international calling and emergency channel. Boaters are supposed to initiate calls on Channel 16, then switch to a working channel for conversation, once contact is made. Many people don't switch, and this ties up the calling channel for everybody.

The third most common abuse of the marine radio, according to Rhine, is repeated calling. Regulations allow 30 seconds to call another boat. If no contact is made, the caller must wait at least two minutes before repeating the call. Many people don't quit.

The FCC mails notices of violations to VHF users. The most frequent notifications are called advisories, and are mailed to radio operators if their radio is slightly off frequency or is creating harmful interference with other channels.

The worst offense is called a Notice of Apparent Liability. This means the operator is creating a safety hazard. Depending on the severity of the offense, fines range from $100 to $2,000.

Fred Schriever thinks the FCC should step in more firmly and crack down on those who are misusing the marine radio. The rules should be more strictly enforced, he said. "I love boating, and radio communication is part of boating. When I get up into Georgian Bay, the radio broadcasting is as refreshing as the air."

Rhine advises VHF radio operators to: 1) Have your radio checked by a licensed technician at least once a year for frequency, modulation, and power; 2) Always identify your call letters; 3) Know the uses of each channel — Channel 16 is for calling and for emergencies, Channel 9 is a commercial channel for communicating with docks and marinas, and so on; 4) Keep conversations to a minimum.

A free publication, "VHF Marine Radio Information for Recreational Boaters," is available to anyone who writes the FCC office: 24897 Hathaway, Farmington Hills, Mich. 48018. Or call 226-6078.

Gun Lake triathlon

The third annual Gun Lake triathlon will be held Saturday, Aug. 9, at Yankee Springs State Park near Kalamazoo. Registration begins at 6:30 a.m. with the race starting at 8.

Individuals or three-member teams compete in a one-mile swim, 26-mile bike ride and a 10K run. The swim is in Gun Lake; bike and run portions are through Yankee Springs.

Pre-registration is $12 a person, $30 a team. Send inquiries to Carol Messer, 639 129th Avenue, Shelbyville, Mich. 49344. For a registration form, call 1-616-792-9795.

The park is located halfway between Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo, about seven miles east of the Bradley US 131 exit.

Closer to home

The Emily-Faygo Detroit Run will be held Saturday, Sept. 13, beginning at 10:30 a.m. starting and finishing in Hart Plaza in downtown Detroit.

The 10K race will cost $10, with a pre-registration deadline Sept. 4. Entry fee includes refreshments, T-shirt and a party, besides the run. There is no race-day registration.

For a registration form, try calling Emily Gail at 824-3279 or writing Emily & Faygo Detroit Run, 873 Iroquois, Detroit 48214.

Still more running

The 15th annual Stony Creek distance run will be held Thursday, Aug. 7, at 6 p.m. at the metropark, located near Rochester/Utica.

There are six divisions and distances: 1-13, one mile; 14-18, 2 1/2 miles; 19-30, 2 1/2 miles; 31-45, 2 1/2 miles; 46 and over, 2 1/2 miles; open division, five miles.

Entry fees are: before Aug. 1, aged 1 to 10, $3.50; 11 and older, $4.50. After that, fees are $5 and $6, respectively. Entry forms are available at most metroparks.

For registration forms or more information, call the park office at 781-4242 or 1-800-24-PARKS. Try writing Stony Creek Metropark, attn. Distance Run, 4300 Main Park Road, Washington, Mich. 48094.

Awards go to the first 10 finishers in each division.

Pointe teams battle it out in Ruth tourney

Kerby Field was the site for the Babe Ruth League District Tournament July 11-15. Teams of 14- and 15-year-olds from L'Anse Creuse, L'Anse Creuse North, Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores and Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park (two) were represented in the double-elimination tourney.

With the pleasant dilemma of too many All-Star caliber players available for the limited roster size, Farms-City-Park League officials determined they would support two teams and their decision proved correct as both teams won their first two games and ended up in the finals against one another.

In game one, Farms-City-Park No. 1 defeated Woods-Shores, 3-2, as Adam Franco pitched six strong innings for the winners. Franco allowed only one hit for the first five innings and gave way to Nick Saros for the save. The big bat for the winners belonged to Jason Whelan who had a two-out, two-run double in the sixth for the winning margin. Dale Wilson's RBI single in the fifth had tied the game for the winners. Houle and Zenow pitched well for the Woods-Shores All-Stars. Jamie Accord and Scott Shorer had RBI singles for the Woods-Shores and DeYonker had two hits also.

Game two saw the Farms-City-Park No. 2 defeat L'Anse Creuse North, 8-5 in 12 innings. Jamie Cimini scored three runs, Lance Harding knocked in the game winning runs and Billy Leonard provided two RBI on two hits for the winners. Cimini (seven innings), Leonard (three) and Sean Von Schwarz (two) were the successful pitchers.

Grosse Pointe No. 2 continued its winning ways by defeating L'Anse Creuse, 3-2. Von Schwarz pitched the first three and the last two innings for the win, while Leonard pitched three strong middle innings. Barry Brookes scored two runs and Cimini added two hits; Renato Roxas singled to start the last inning and ended up scoring the winning run when a walk forced him in.

The showdown of the two undefeated teams ended up as few had expected: the Farms-City-Park No. 1 versus the Farms-City-Park No. 2 — both with no losses. The No. 1 team sent Jim Johnson to the mound; he pitched a no-hit shutout in his last league playoff game. Cimini was the pitcher for Team No. 2. Both pitchers were pitching well and the score was 3-2 in favor of Team No. 2 in the fourth when Cimini was injured going for a foul ball and had to leave the game.

Von Schwarz entered the game for Team No. 2 and was immediately greeted with the game tying single by Nick Saros. Team No. 1 exploded for three more runs in the following inning highlighted by Dave Hall's two RBI on a line drive single. That provided the eventual 7-3 winning margin for Farms-City-Park No. 1. Johnson, with relief help by Saros, was the winning pitcher. Johnson and Whelan each scored two runs, Saros had two hits and Hall had three RBI to lead the offense. Brookes had a double and triple for Team No. 2.

The next game saw the Farms-City-Park No. 2 face the Woods-Shores with the winner advancing to the final round of play and the loser being eliminated. The favorite was the Woods-Shores but someone forgot to tell the Farms-City-Park No. 2 team. The underdogs built a commanding 8-1 lead by the sixth inning. Jeff Hays was a pitcher in command all the way, giving up only two hits in the first six innings before tiring in the seventh and giving way to Leonard in relief to save the 8-5 win.

Hays retired 12 of the first 13 batters he faced while Kevin Dietz provided strong batting support with two timely hits.

The stage was now set for an unusual final: two All-Star teams from the same league facing each other. Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park No. 2 needed to beat the Team No. 1 team twice to win the tournament. Players who played on the same team all year were now on opposite sides and the competition was spirited. Team No. 2 had something to prove and it did.

Game one of the final saw the lead change hands several times with Team No. 2 finally pulling out a 9-8 win in extra innings. The game stretched over 13 innings and took nearly five hours to play.

Team No. 1 sent Dan Monahan, Ferit Nazarko, Saros and Whelan to the mound while Team No. 2 sent Cimini to the mound for seven innings in relief of starter Von Schwarz who went six innings. Cimini got the win for Team No. 2. Team No. 1 was led by Ian Thompson with three hits; Thompson, Dave Hall and Joe Caldwell provided two RBI each. Cimini, Brookes and Dietz each chipped in with two hits for the winners. Team No. 2's victory gave each squad one loss and forced the deciding game the next day.

In the final, Team No. 1 had its ace pitcher Franco well rested and he met the challenge of a determined Team No. 2 by not only winning the game, but limiting the opposition to only one hit over the first six innings. Franco also struck out six along the way and knocked in two runs to supply the only offense he needed.

John Whall scored two runs, Thompson had two hits and Caldwell, Whelan, Saros and Hall all provided RBI for the winners. For the tournament runner-up, Brookes continued his torrid hitting with two more hits and Robert Feola's sacrifice provided Team No. 2 with its only run. The final score showed Team No. 1 from the Farms-City-Park a 7-1 winner and district champion.

Team No. 1 was coached by Mark Nowinski and Paul Pellerito and managed by John Hoben. Members of the team are Ian Thompson, Jason Whelan, Joe Caldwell, Nick Saros, Dale Wilson, John Whall, Sean Cleland, Mike Henry, Chris Markus, Matt Montagne, Dave Hall, Jim Johnson, Dan Monahan, Ferit Nazarko and Adam Franco.

Team No. 2 from the Farms-City-Park was coached by Fran Feola and Chuck Matthews and managed by Gene Wysocki. Members of that team included Jamie Cimini, Sean Von Schwarz, Robert Feola, Steve Horn, Jim Morris, Scott Adlhoch, Barry Brookes, Billy Leonard, Jeff Hays, Kevin Dietz, Renato Roxas, Chris Stebbins, Matt Wysocki, Mike Montagne and Lance Harding.

The tournament winners went on to represent the district at the Babe Ruth League State Championships July 18-23 in Lansing. The Pointe team lost to Alpena in the finals. Details will follow in a future Grosse Pointe News.

Mini Session at Assumption

Assumption Cultural Center will offer summer "Mini Session" programs to close out the season.

Headlining the list for fitness fun is Kalosomatics, which is offered at the beginning, advanced and slower moderation levels.

For more details and registration information, call 779-6111. Assumption Cultural Center is located at the edge of Grosse Pointe Woods in St. Clair Shores at 21800 Marter Rd.

South wins title

GPYC runs streak to 68

The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club's swim team captured wins number 66, 67 and 68 this season against the Country Club of Detroit (612-378), Red Run Golf Club (517-390), and Dearborn Country Club (567-399). These wins concluded this year's dual meet schedule. Rain terminated a meet with Lochmoor Club.

On July 3, the GPYC swimmers challenged CCD, winning several firsts and seconds. Among the first place winners were Kathryn Tusa, Pat Kirchner, Eric DeMeulemeester, Chris Nevison, Kathleen Storen, Alicia Cytacki, Mike Kirchner, Kathy Kilgus, Ashley Moran, Jon Sleber, Kelly Bartach and Amanda Hanley.

Debbie Anderson, Dave Gracey and Peggy Storen.

Red Run was the challenge on July 15. Emarie DeMeulemeester, Ted Stedem, Suzanne Toledo, Katie Tompkins, Jame Mertz, Kris Youngblood, Eric Steiner, Amanda Defever, Stephanie LaFond, and Jennifer Paolucci were among the 32 first place winners. Other strong swimmers in this meet were Sean Gardella, Hadley Creech, Blair Ballard, Kelli Haarz, John Tipp, Robin Wheeler, Peter Mertz, Charlie Tompkins, Brady Schoenheer, Alex Toledo, Susan Cornille, Chad Defever, Abby Hume, Lindsey Youngblood, Jamie Kelley, Bill Turnbull, Julie and Jenny Taylor.

GPYC traveled to Dearborn on July 17 and walked away with more than 25 firsts. Some of the blue ribbon winners that night were Ann Tipp, Sandy Smith, Mark Bickenbach, Jenny Smith, Brenn Schoenherr, Brad Stedem and Chris Keane.

Local rower is No. 2 . . . and trying harder

By Peggy O'Connor

You'd think that the City's Brian Benz would be thrilled with the silver medal he won at the Goodwill Games in Moscow July 20. Think again.

True, the 23-year-old South High graduate came in second. But it was a two-man match race between the U.S. and the USSR. And finishing second in a two-man race is, well, nothing much to write home about. Still, there's a bright side.

"It wasn't one of my better races," Benz concedes. "But it was my first time in international competition and the best thing is, I've really learned a lot from the whole experience."

Benz said he was satisfied with his 7:28 finish in the single light-weight skulling event, some nine seconds after the Russian rower. "But there's a fine line between being satisfied and being happy . . . and I'm not happy with that time."

The self-employed painter was pleased with the knowledge he gained during his nine-day stay in Moscow.

"There are a lot of different things you have to adjust to in international competition. If you aren't able to adjust to them 100 percent and you wind up, say, at 98 percent . . . that can cost you five or six seconds in a major race. And I think that was the case in Moscow," Benz said.

"Of course, I could have just gotten my (tail) kicked."

Benz said he will use the lessons he learned in Moscow to help achieve his goal: to make the U.S. National Rowing team. To do that, he'll have to win the trial race scheduled for next June. And, despite his runner-up status in the Goodwill Games, a spot on the national team is not at all unrealistic. He finished third in the men's nationals in Indianapolis in June, which won him the spot on the Goodwill Games team. (The top two finishers in the nationals opted not to attend).

"I learned the importance of relaxing, and of staying close to an opponent during a race like this. Not only do they have the winning edge when they get ahead of you, but they win a psychological edge as well," Benz said.

"I also learned to deal with the changes in time, the environment, the food and the actual racing conditions which I must face in international competition. I definitely feel that this was a great experience overall. I'm very glad I did it."

Add to that the sheer enjoyment of seeing an historic city like Moscow and meeting athletes from different cultures and the entire experience was a rewarding one, according to Benz.

Once he recovers from the jet lag he incurred after flying back to the states just two days after his race, Benz said he'll begin to concentrate on his goal to make the national squad. He will compete in a big race in St. Catherine's, Ontario, in three weeks. "I've got a lot of in-water work, plus running, weight training and mental training ahead of me," said the Aquinas College alumnus.

"I'm also entertaining thoughts of a real job. It is possible to work full time and get in the rowing work necessary, especially if you have an understanding employer. I know a lot of guys who are able to work it out."

"Then again, maybe I won't. I'll have to see what happens. I will definitely continue to row, though."

Offshore racer powers way to top fiberglass Active cat barrel-rolled and cart-wheeled after flying off a wave and going airborne.

EVEN WITH the accident that year, Kaiser and G-K finished fourth in the national open class. He won sportsman of the year honors last year as well. In his first year as a driver, Kaiser finished fourth in the national superbowl class in 1984.

He's happy to be coming back to Michigan for the Grand Haven and Northport races this year, Kaiser says. His parents, Joseph and Marguerite, still live in the Farms and his brother and business partner, Joseph Jr., is a Shores resident.

He grew up on boats, always having a powerboat on which to ride. In later years, he owned and operated cigar boats on the lake and raced modified boats on inland lakes in the area.

Racing, however, is just part-time work for him, Kaiser says. It's still work as an officer of Gallagher-Kaiser Corp. that takes up the bulk of his week.

"I don't spend all my time down here . . ." he adds. "I don't miss work. It was through G-K that Kaiser was able to pick up the contingent sponsorship of Mercury Outboard. G-K provides painting equipment and pollution control systems for the automobile industry. It was through work with Chrysler Corp. that Kaiser made contact with Mercury.

The marine manufacturer is a big boost for the boat. Mercury provides two new drive systems for the cat after each race and even field tests the boat on its Florida test Lake X, Kaiser says.

Offshore racing is a benefit to G-K as well, Kaiser says. The boat figures prominently on company advertisements. G-K has also been looking to break into the marine paint field, providing marine manufacturers with spray systems and pollution equipment that the automobile industry has been using for years, he adds.

RACING IS physically demanding, so Kaiser — a 6-foot-4, 205-pound former water skier — keeps in shape with weight training and by competing in other sports, including softball and downhill skiing. He is also an avid swimmer.

Although he's had one accident, Kaiser says there's no time to be worried about crashing. "Basically, if you're thinking about it, you're not going fast enough," he adds.

"There's no time to be scared," he says. "I thought about it the first couple of times out (after the Northport accident) but I'm beyond that. You don't want to be thinking about anything else except racing."

"You really have to hang it on the edge to win races," he adds.

Rain can't stop Caulkins tournament

The Neighborhood Club's annual Henry L. Caulkins II tennis tournament was held July 7 through 11 and despite a rainy week, the over 60 Grosse Pointe youngsters who participated were able to get every match in. Champions and runners-up in the various categories included:

12 girls' singles: Shannon Byrne, champion; Carrie Birgbauer, runner-up.

14 girls' singles: Beth Bonanni, champion; Heather Heidel, runner-up. 14 girls' singles consolation: Elizabeth Thomas, champion; Lucy Allison, runner-up.

12 boys' singles: Christophe Schilling, champion; Jeff Huntington, runner-up. 12 boys' singles consolation: Andy Loreda, champion; Rob Duross, runner-up.

14 boys' singles: Matt Smucker, champion; John Olmstead, runner-up. 14 boys' singles consolation: David Vier, champion; Tim Sacka, runner-up.

12 boys' doubles: Matthew Bentley and Schilling, champions; Patrick Keane and Huntington, runners-up. 12 boys' doubles consolation: Todd Frederickson and Patrick Alle, champions; Brian DiLaura and Duross, runners-up.

"Best overall" trophies for the male and female players demonstrating the best sportsmanship and etiquette on the courts were awarded to Tom Rajt and to Elizabeth Thomas.

Meryl Streep calls the house contractor as an angry Jack Nicholson listens in "Heartburn."

Acting gives 'Heartburn' heart

By Michael Chapp

In one of the many realistic moments of "Heartburn," newlyweds Jack Nicholson and Meryl Streep share a pizza and sing all the songs they can recall about having babies. Streep has just learned that she's pregnant, and she and Nicholson are celebrating. They are not the only ones who should celebrate. Any moviegoer who appreciates more from a film than teenage sexual antics at summer camp will revel in "Heartburn," for here is an intelligent and well-crafted adult comedy drama; a film that will remind audiences what good cinema really is. The script is top notch, the photography and direction are magnificent and the acting is . . .

well, exactly what one would expect from Streep and Nicholson.

Nicholson plays Mark Forman, a Washington-based newspaper columnist who delights in the mystique of the opposite sex. Streep plays Rachel Samstat, a food writer for a New York magazine. She's been through a divorce, and, as a result, is leary about getting into another marriage. Nicholson, fresh from his brilliant performance in "Prizzi's Honor," is wonderful as the philandering writer. But, make no mistake, this film belongs to Streep. She sets the tone, she sets the pace and, ultimately, she makes it work.

From the film's opening frames, one can feel the romantic tension between the two stars. At the wedding of a mutual friend, they express much more interest in each other than in the happy couple. Immediately hitting it off, they decide to get married themselves. Streep, knowing that 50 percent of all marriages end in divorce, is more than a little bit worried about the prospect of becoming part of that statistic. But she decides to give it a try anyway, and 10 minutes into the movie, Streep and Nicholson are living in a state of matrimonial bliss.

But alas, the bliss doesn't last for long. Indeed, the couple start having problems even before the contractors have completed the renovations on their suburban Washington home. A short time later, with one child creeping about and another one the way, Streep learns that Nicholson is having an affair. Distraught, she leaves him and returns to New York.

It is here, especially, that the film allows Streep to shine. During the separation, Streep is followed closely and keenly, and audiences are given peeks into her feelings. These feelings are demonstrated as only Streep can do.

In one scene she stares at herself in a beauty parlor mirror while the other ladies aimlessly gossip. Through nothing but her eyes, Streep speaks more than all of the babblers combined. When she rushes home, hairdo half complete, she communicates with body language and facial expressions exactly what she feels. Few actresses working in film today can pull off such a difficult task so flawlessly. And with such ease.

Nicholson, too, is not afraid to do difficult things with his characters — both who they are and what they do. Deep down, Mark Forman is not a very likable man. Nicholson conveys this with the same style and bravado that have distinguished him throughout his career. In the scene where Streep confronts him about his infidelity, Nicholson sits on a bedroom chair, with no pants on, and tries to respond. He can't, and viewers feel his helplessness — and his shame. To say that Nicholson's performance is good is an understatement; it is fabulously detailed and remarkably layered. Here again, Nicholson has proven why he has a high place on Hollywood's acting ladder.

And Streep, for her part, couldn't turn in a bad performance if she were playing a tree in the third grade pageant. So remarkable is she in this movie that she almost steals the show from her co-star, which is no easy task. Streep is perfection on the screen. This role, which is not quite on the

Relief sale

The 20th Annual Northern Michigan Relief Sale will be held Saturday, Aug. 2 at Fairview. The Menominites, Brethren and Amish churches of Northern Michigan sponsor the sale, located at the county fairgrounds, three miles west of Fairview, off M-33.

A variety of shops and concessions are located on the grounds. Of special interest are the handmade quilts, comforters and afghans offered for auction. Other items are a handcrafted grandfather clock, a child's playhouse, collectibles, firewood, furniture, wood carvings by local residents, a calico corner, imported crafts, a country store, house plants, a children's world (with items priced for children and sold by children), and a clock shop are among the shops displaying items for sale.

Apple butter will be made on the grounds. Prior to Saturday's main auction, visitors may view the articles on display during open house on Friday, Aug. 1 at 5 p.m. They are welcome to enjoy a bean soup supper prepared by Art Perry of Bay Port, and cheesecake for dessert. A musical program will be given in the evening.

A breakfast of pancakes and sausage will start at 6 p.m. Barbecued chicken will be offered at noon. A variety of other foods will be available.

Last year, about $66,000 was raised for world and U.S. relief. For more information, call Reull Detweiler, chairman, at 517-848-2305.

In 'Pirates,' Matthau is most memorable

By Marian Trainor

Pirates have always been fascinating screen subjects. Their lives and exploits have provided vicarious adventures and thrills for both young and old.

Films that have taken to the seas have made famous such characters as Captain Kidd and Long John Silver. Gene Kelly was a musical pirate and there even was a female pirate, "Anne of the Indies." There have been comic pirates and most have been successful, but none of them approaches the splendor, the grandeur, the all-out excess of Roman Polanski's simply titled "Pirates." Every scene is bigger than life and twice as compelling.

Don't look for any quiet scenes in this film. It is action all the way as Captain Red (Walter Matthau) plots to make off with a gold throne secreted in the bottom of a Spanish galleon, the Neptune. And speaking of excess, that replica cost $8 million to create. It is a ship of stunning beauty as it sails across the horizon in the glow of a setting sun.

The cost is large, but for all who perform, there is only one who counts — Walter Matthau. Without him, in spite of its elaborate scenes, the film would have been just another attempt at what used to be called an epic.

From the time we see him pushing back his hat from his face after waking from a sleep on a raft in the middle of the ocean with his only companion Frog (Chris Campion), we know that this is going to be his show.

The hair is scraggly and uncombed, the beard is bushy and untended but when he screws up those eyes in the characteristic quizzical inimitable way of his, we know it's Matthau.

And that means along with the blood and gore, there is going to be humor, and there is. Captain Red is so depraved, so greedy, so amoral, that he is often perceived as a comedian rather than the villain he is.

It is never clear how Frog came under his tutelage because Campion's Frog is rather a quiet, attractive boy who does Red's bidding without question, but stops short of rape.

Things look grim for the two on the raft until they spot a galleon over the horizon. Rowing for all they're worth, they reach it and climb aboard. They are not welcome visitors and are thrown into a hole below deck where they make the acquaintance of another prisoner, Boomako (Olu Jacobs), who tells them about the treasure.

Campion delivers a restrained, polished performance as Frog, and is a nice contrast to the blustering old rum-swilling captain. Charlotte Lewis, as Dolores, the niece being returned to her uncle is a lovely, wide-eyed, gentle beauty who engages the fancy and protection of Frog.

But it is Walter Matthau who dominates — wheedling to ingratiate himself, threatening, blustering, storming when he is on top, stumping along on a wooden leg, making a legend of one more classic film pirate — and he seems to have such a good time doing it.

Selfridge open house, air show

Selfridge ANG Base will have an open house and air show Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 2 and 3, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission and parking are free.

All military services based at Selfridge — Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard — will take part in the displays and demonstrations. The Warbirds and Yankee Air Force will fly and display World War II aircraft.

Army helicopters and Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve aircraft, including the A-7D Corsair, the C-130 Hercules and the F-4 Phantom, will fly in the air show. Demonstrating military parachute techniques will be jumpers from the Michigan Army National Guard's 425th Infantry.

Spectators will see a simulated air-to-air refueling by tanker aircraft. Michigan Air National Guard F-4s will demonstrate tactical maneuvers and A-7s will simulate an interdiction operation.

The public may enter the base at the main gate at Hall Road (M-59) and Jefferson, or at the gate off North River Road west of Bridgeview. To reach the main gate from I-94, exit at Hall Road and travel east to the gate. Visitors may also exit I-94 at 21 Mile Road and travel east to Jefferson, then south to the main gate. (Only northbound traffic may exit I-94 at Hall Road.)

To reach the North River Road gate, travel east from Mount Clemens (or the Mount Clemens exit from I-94) on North River Road to the marked entrance gate. Once on base, follow the signs and instructions of parking attendants to the designated parking areas.

Pointes East picnic to benefit soup kitchen

The Pointes East Restaurant Association will host the second Taste Pointes East picnic Saturday, Aug. 16, from noon until 6 p.m. The fundraiser will be held at Memorial Park, 20205 Beaconsfield behind Eastland Center between Moross and Vernier roads.

All proceeds will go to the Capuchin Community Center Soup Kitchen. Admission is free and there will be prizes, pony rides, pin ball games, clowns, mimes, a Dixieland band and Mr. Inflation (The Balloon Man). Nearly all of the food is being donated by the restaurants in the association so that contributions will provide food for the needy.

Members of the Pointes East Restaurant Association are Sparky Herbert's, Blue Pointe Restaurant, Captains II, Little Tony's Lounge in the Woods, Pirate's Cove, Wimpy's, Cadieux Cafe, Callaghan's, Eastside Charley's, Tom's Oyster Bar, Woolly Bully's, Park Place Cafe, Cal's Pizza, Irish Coffee, Pinky's Blvd. Club, Jay's Paper Station, Sierra Station, Mallard Pub, Front Page Saloon and Club 500-Sabre Lancer.

Tickets for the drawings are on sale at all member establishments.

Fifth season announced by Macomb Center

The Macomb Center for the Performing Arts fifth season program lineup features a blend of new faces along with some familiar ones who figured prominently in the theater's early success years.

Those returning include the Irish Rovers, Boots Randolph, Rob McConnell's Boss Brass, the Canadian Brass, Lionel Hampton, The Lettermen, the Hi-Lo's, the P.M. Singers, the Vienna Choir Boys, the Tamburitians, Maynard Ferguson, the Four Freshmen, the Flying Karamazov Brothers, Ferrante & Teicher, the Mantovani Orchestra and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Newcomers to the center include the Count Basie Orchestra, Tex Beneke, the Harmonicats, the Gatlin Brothers, Frankie Laine, Kay Starr, pianist Roger Williams, P.D.Q. Bach, Pat Boone with his Christmas Show and Stars from the Lawrence Welk show, including accordion virtuoso Myron Floren.

The season, which starts Sept. 11 and runs through June 11 of next year, features some 60 events in nine series categories, including a continuation of the popular Dennis Glen Cooper travelogues and an expansion of the Saturday Sunshine (Children's) Series.

The all-new Broadway Series is made up of nationally touring productions of "Evita," "One Mo' Time," "Fiddler On The Roof" and "Can Can" plus a presentation of "Guys and Dolls" by the Macomb Community College Music Theater Department.

The Macomb Center is located on the College's Center Campus at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township. Ticket and program information is available by calling the Center's box office at 286-2222, Monday through Friday,

The play's the thing in neighborly southern Ontario

By Elsa Frohman

When you're deciding where to drive to with the unusually cheap gasoline this summer, the Ontario Ministry of Tourism and Recreation hopes you will consider Canada. All within an easy drive from Detroit, southwestern Ontario has a surprising variety of cultural and recreational experiences to offer.

I had an opportunity to sample summer theater festivals from Grand Bend (less than an hour from Port Huron) to Niagara-on-the-Lake at the invitation of the government of Canada recently. John Copus, a Canadian tourism agent, took a group of journalists from the Detroit and Cleveland areas on a four-day trip that included six plays and sightseeing in nine Canadian towns.

We found the welcome mat fully unrolled wherever we went. Volunteers from local tourist information bureaus met us in each location and went out of their way to give us the flavor and unique history of each town.

The theaters were first rate, though each provides a very different approach to summer entertainment. The sheer number of theater festivals in this small area is surprising in itself, however. "It's something that has been coming to the fore in the last 10 years," said Milton Blackwood, Consul General of Canada and an adopted Grosse Pointer. As consul, Blackwood serves the interests of Canadians living in Michigan and Indiana and works to promote trade and tourism across the border. There are 13 Canadian consulates in the United States.

Blackwood pointed out that not only to the summer theaters offer a selection of old favorites, many of the theaters are trying out new plays — many written by Canadians.

"It's good that they are using more Canadian plays," Blackwood said. "It's part of our culture. But it's also important for tourism. When you're staying in one of the smaller centers, it's a pleasant extra. There is also excellent theater in Toronto, but on a larger scale. The production of 'Cats' in Toronto is one of the best anywhere in the world."

For U.S. citizens, travel in Canada presents little in the way of red tape. Passports and visas are not required. The current currency exchange rate (hovering between 70 and 75 cents American per Canadian dollar this summer) makes Canadian travel a bargain much of the time. In many of the restaurants and motels we visited, American dollars were discounted more favorably than the exchange rate.

This week and next week, we will be featuring some of the tourist attractions and theaters visited on the tour. These are only a few of the places you can go in Canada this summer.

Grand Bend — A playhouse in a historic barn

As the house lights go down at the Huron County Playhouse near Grand Bend, Ontario, the sunset sparkles in through the cracks between the siding boards of the more than 100-year-old barn that houses the theater. But that's not to say that there is anything countrified or hayseed about the performances on stage. In its 15th season, the Huron County Playhouse has found its stride and puts on a thoroughly professional production.

The theater complex centers on the historic barn, but much of the structure is new, carefully built to match the original building.

The playhouse comprises two stages. The plays are selected for their popularity and entertainment value. The lead roles are played by professionals, while chorus and children's roles are played by young people from the area.

"We try to give opportunities to local kids," said general manager Heather Reddick. "Any of the kids who get on the stage get the bug."

However, the first consideration is quality and the playhouse has high standards for its local cast members. "All the chorus voices are strong," Reddick said. The group also has its own eight-piece orchestra which accompanies musical programs.

Grand Bend is close by and by no means too far for a day trip from the Detroit area. However, Reddick advises that advance tickets are always a good idea. The playhouse has been running close to capacity for both stages this summer, and while they seldom turn anyone away — it has happened.

The schedules for the remainder of the summer includes "The Black Bonspiel of Wullie MacCrimmon," through July 26 on the main stage; "Salt-Water Moon," a romantic comedy, July 29-Aug. 9, main stage; "Annie," Aug. 5-16, main stage; "Bernstein on Broadway," July 15-26, Playhouse II; "The Melville Boys," Aug. 5-16, Playhouse II. There are numerous special programs on other dates.

For more information and tickets write to The Huron County Playhouse, R.R. 1, Grand Bend, Ontario, N0M 1T0, or phone (519) 238-8451.

This week:

Stratford and the Stratford Festival.
Blythe and the Blythe Festival.
Goderich, the prettiest town in Canada.
Bayfield, a pleasant break from traveling.

Next week:

St. Jacob, heart of Mennonite County.
Port Dover and the Lighthouse Festival Theatre.
Niagara Falls, Niagara-on-the-Lake and the Shaw Festival.

Goderich — Where the sun sets twice daily

The sun may never set on the British Empire, but in Goderich on the shores of Lake Huron, they claim the sun sets twice — daily.

If Goderich seems blessed with extra solar benefits, perhaps it is because of the town's patroness, Queen Victoria, who declared Goderich "The prettiest town in Canada," during a visit. Goderich makes the most of that royal decree. Flowers bloom on almost every street corner and bluffs on the westside of the town provide a spectacular view of the lake.

The bluffs, overgrown with wild lavender and overlooking the city's man-made harbor, provide the town's extra sunset. Public beaches at the foot are the location for the first performance. Visitors can then drive or walk to the top of the bluffs and watch an instant replay in the city's Lighthouse Park. Signs at the top and bottom of the bluffs announce the times for the sunsets daily.

Tourism is a major industry, but not the only industry in this county seat city of 7,200 people. Goderich is a center for manufacturing road machinery, salt mining, printing, writing instruments, exhaust systems and grain handling.

Of interest to visitors will be the Huron County Pioneer Museum, the Huron Historic Jail and the Marine Museum.

The Pioneer Museum is a unique storehouse of information on the lives and lifestyles of the people who first settled western Ontario. The displays include many working models demonstrating the changing methods for making flour, sawing lumber, maple-sugaring, harvesting and making salt. The collection began with 1,000 items gathered by the late J.H. Neill, first curator of the museum. Today, it has increased to more than 12,000 necessitating five additions to the museum. The museum is open from May 1 through Oct. 31.

The Huron Historic Jail was constructed between 1839 and 1842. It has served as a jail, a home for the aged, an insane asylum, a poorhouse and today as a museum. The unique octagonal building was considered a state-of-the-art prison when it was built.

The Marine Museum is housed in the former pilot house of the S.S. Jay C. Morse. It overlooks the Goderich Harbor and houses a collection of memorabilia from many ships that have sailed the Great Lakes.

Goderich boasts an extensive system of public beaches with an interconnecting boardwalk, picnic shelters and a lakeside pagoda. The area provides excellent fishing, swimming and boating, according to the mayor, Eileen Palmer.

Photos by Elsa Frohman

Lighthouse Park, high atop the bluffs looking over Lake Huron in Goderich, is the location to view the second sunset of the evening. Signs posted at the top and bottom of the bluffs tell the times for the sunsets nightly.

"Panoramic bluff-top views of Lake Huron, breathtaking floral displays, stately heritage homes with beautifully landscaped lawns and over a quarter of the town's area being dedicated to park land are just a few of the credentials directly related to our reputation as "The prettiest town in Canada," Palmer said.

During the winter months, Goderich also sports a community theater, The Livery, housed in an old stable.

For more information on vacations in Goderich, contact Tourism Goderich, 168 The Square, Goderich, Ontario N7A 1N1.

Bayfield — Shopping, lodgings with atmosphere

Bayfield is one of those places that got passed by, but in the final analysis, disadvantage has been turned to advantage, and the town has triumphed over time.

Bayfield was founded in the early 19th century as a fishing village. It is named for an early resident, Henry Holsey Bayfield.

But it seemed that the town had reached a dead end when the railroad bypassed the area in the late 1800s.

Some 25 years ago, a new industry started to rival commercial fishing for supremacy in Bayfield. The new industry was tourism.

Today, Bayfield is a pleasant stop off the beaten track. The main street is lined with quaint shops, many specializing in arts and crafts. The old buildings have been restored and the area has the ambience of a 19th century village.

Commercial fishing is still big business in Bayfield, however. An impressive fleet of fishing tugs makes its home in the town's harbor, and fresh fish is a staple on the menus of local restaurants.

The Little Inn is a special feature for visitors to Bayfield. The oldest continuously operating inn in Ontario, it features 23 rooms, completely restored with 19th century themes and motifs.

Patrick and Gayle Waters are the innkeepers. They have worked to preserve the special atmosphere of the hotel. The game room on the first floor is an old saloon reworked as a common room for guests. The rooms are individually decorated, each carrying through a theme from the period.

One of the most distinctive rooms in the widow's walk suite on the top floor of the old building. The widow's walk, a small cupola at the apex of the roof, is an original feature of the hotel building, however, the Waters made structural changes to make the windowed peak a part of a guestroom.

The inn offers bed and breakfast plans, and a package plan that includes dinner as well. The dining room is well-known for its home-made jams and special sauces used in the dinner fare. The jams and sauces are available for purchase in a small shop attached to the inn, along with locally made pottery and curios.

For reservations, write The Little Inn, P.O. Box 100, Bayfield, Ontario, N0M 1G0.

Blythe — New plays in an old town hall setting, a treat for the adventurous

It's different, no doubt about that. You will find no "old chestnuts" roasting on the stage at the Blyth Festival.

In its 12th year, the Blyth Festival presents a selection of the best new plays being written by Canadians. It's not the place to go if you want to see "Oklahoma," or "The Music Man." But if you enjoy innovative drama and are willing to take a risk on an unfamiliar property, Blyth is your theatrical home.

The theater is in the Blyth Memorial Hall, a historic townhall in the center of this town of 1,000 people. The festival originated with a movement to save, restore and find a new use for the hall. The first season in 1975 included only two plays, Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap," considered a "safe" choice, and a play by a local writer, Harry J. Boyle, called "Mostly in Clover." To the surprise of the promoters, the Canadian play sold more tickets than the Agatha Christie play and since then the festival has concentrated on producing Canadian plays.

In addition to its local focus, the Blyth Festival has gained a reputation for theater with a rural focus. There are five plays on this year's schedule. All will be presented at different times through the month of August and the first two weeks in September.

"Another Season's Promise," by Anne Shislett and Keith Roulston, is the story of a successful farmer of more than 40 years who is struggling to keep from going bankrupt. "Drift," by Rex Deverell, is the story of an immigrant woman who marries a Canadian farmer in the 1930s and faces the challenges of a changing world through the '40s and '50s.

"Gone to Glory," by Suzanne Finlay, is the story of two elderly women living in a ramshackle riverside cabin. "Lilly, Alta," by Kenneth Dyba, tells of the attempts of a pair of lovers to free themselves from an obsessive matriarch in Lilly, Alberta.

Finally, "Cake-Walk" by Colleen Curran, is a return engagement of a play that was the hit of the 1984 season. It is the story of five unlikely contestants in a cake-baking contest.

Tickets may be purchased at the box office 30 minutes before each performance, but advance tickets are advised. Tickets may be purchased by telephone at (519) 523-9300, or by mail: Box Office, Blyth Festival, Box 10, Blyth, Ontario, N0M 1H0. A guide to Bed and Breakfasts in the area and Dining and Accommodations is available by mail.

Stratford — Lodgings and theater with an English flair not far from home

Stratford, where else can you stroll down the banks of the Avon River, watch swans drift under arched bridges, wander through formal gardens and see a play in the Shakespeare tradition?

Stratford has built its reputation as the bard's home in North America. In its 34th season, the Stratford festival is one of the most respected theater festivals anywhere.

You can make an easy day trip to Stratford. Plan on seeing a matinee, strolling through the parks along the river, have dinner, then drive home.

But if you really want to experience Stratford, make it an overnighter. Make reservations at a bed and breakfast, and enjoy a truly English atmosphere.

Bed and breakfasts have become the mainstay of the lodging industry in Stratford. Located in the heart of the city, many are in historic homes and all impart a special, intimate flavor to a visit.

Peggy Mullock is in her third season of providing rooms for Stratford theatergoers. Her Church Street Pensione has three rooms to rent in a historically designated, 19th century Italianate home.

For Mullock, running a bed and breakfast is as much an avocation as a vocation. She and her husband operated a resort hotel for some 25 years before retiring to travel. However, retirement didn't suit her.

"We didn't know what to do with ourselves," Mullock said. "Our son was living here (in Stratford), so I said, why don't we move down there and start a bed and breakfast."

The Mullock's son, David, operates the Beefeater restaurant in the Stratford Hotel.

The Mullocks had traveled to England and stayed in bed and breakfasts there and were intrigued by the idea. The home they selected in Stratford had been partially restored by a young couple who had to move away before the job was complete. The Mullocks moved in and started decorating, finishing just in time to open for their first season in 1984 — the year of Canada's bicentennial.

"We were lucky to find people to come and do the work right away," Mullock said.

The Church Street Pensione was an instant success. "I was amazed," Mullock said. She had expected little business in her first year, but found herself serving breakfast to a full house most of the time. Many of her customers today are people who come back again and again.

But the Mullocks are taking care not to become too serious about running a hotel in their home.

"This is just a little fun thing," Mullock said. "The good thing about it is you can do what you want. If my children come to visit, I don't take any guests for the weekend."

One of Mullock's favorite things about operating a bed and breakfast in Stratford is living in Stratford itself.

"It's a nice town, not too big or too small," she said. "We (the bed and breakfast operators) help each other out. If I'm full, I send people to other places and they do the same."

Mullock is a theater enthusiast and makes the most of living near the Stratford Festival. She has been to the theater 25 times so far this year and loves to discuss the plays with her guests over breakfast in the morning.

The bed and breakfast experience isn't for everyone, Mullock said. Most B&B rooms don't have private baths and the traveler in a hurry may appreciate the efficiency of a hotel or motel.

But for friendly atmosphere, bed and breakfasts can't be beat.

"We all sit here and talk about the plays," Mullock said. "People get to be good friends."

For information on bed and breakfast lodgings, contact the Stratford Area Visitors' and Convention Bureau, 38 Albert Street, Stratford, Ontario, N5A 3K3, or call (519) 271-5140.

This year's Stratford Festival includes 10 plays in three theaters. The Festival Theatre is presenting "The Boys from Syracuse," "Pericles," "Cymbeline," and "The Winter's Tale." The Avon Theater presents "Hamlet," "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern are Dead," "Henry VIII," and "A Man for All Seasons." The Third Stage, The Young Company, presents "Macbeth," and "The Resistible Rise of Arturo Ui."

Tickets are available by phone in the Detroit area by calling 964-4668.

13. REAL ESTATE — GENERAL

HOME AT A LOSS I am a 75 year old white, hard working, highly successful businessman, along with my older sister, both under heavy medication, with my UNPRECEDENTED philosophy in the congressional record in Washington D.C. in May of 1958. Yet, somehow the United States government has bluntly and unhumanly missed the boat. I am treated as a Communist, which is utterly false. I associated with Communists in my school days. I ask in God's name whom of us haven't associated with Communists. As has been said, if we don't learn to live together surely we shall die together. Due to deliberate vandalism, I have moved from home to home. Even moved to Arizona where I developed 80 acres of industrial buildings out of barren sand and cottonfields. Yet, even there, a bomb threat was falsely placed against me. Our new era, which is my hobby, are deeds — not propaganda. I have $85,000 invested at 5222 Marseilles in the Cadieux/Moross area. In the rear of this most humble showplace his once cherished dream is covered with black tar and must be sold at a loss. Home includes: three bedrooms, finished basement, two enclosed patios, enclosed front porch, fireplace, new 3 car garage, two 10x16 storage garages, complete new driveway and his lifelong land in landscaping — said MOST HUMBLE showplace. STEVE MODLA 882-7404

Heart Answers

WHAT IS CHOLESTEROL?
Cholesterol is a fatty substance found in animal tissue. Primary sources of cholesterol in the American diet are fatty meats, egg yolks, and whole milk dairy products. Cholesterol is essential for certain body processes, but the amount the body manufactures is sufficient for these needs. High levels of cholesterol in the bloodstream are associated with a higher risk of heart disease and stroke. This risk can be reduced by adopting an eating pattern moderate in cholesterol-containing foods and saturated (animal) fats that can increase the cholesterol level in the blood. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.

Mixed doubles...

... was the name of the game in March, as the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club hosted the Western Division Indoor Mixed Doubles Tennis Championship. Murphy Jensen, of Grand Rapids, and Stephanie Lightvoet, of Kalamazoo, made up the winning team. This year, the championship event was a fundraiser for the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association. Posting courtside at the championships (left to right at left) are G.P. Hunt Club president William Cox, Alzheimer's Association board of directors member Lin Cargo, Alzheimer's executive director Dian Wilkins, tournament chairman James Alle and Jensen.

Krickstein to play in exhibition

Aaron Krickstein of Grosse Pointe will play Henrik Sundstrom of Bjarred, Sweden, in this year's annual tennis exhibition Monday, August 4, at 8 p.m. in Stowe Tennis Stadium on the campus of Kalamazoo College.

The exhibition is held in conjunction with the opening ceremonies of the USTA Boys 18 and 16 Championships.

Krickstein is returning to the place where he won the 16 and under 18 and under age division championships in the successive years of 1982 and 1983. At the age of 16, Krickstein became the youngest player ever to win the 18's. That same summer he turned professional.

This year in singles play, Krickstein reached the quarter-finals of the U.S. Open Clay Court Tournament in Indianapolis, Ind. In 1985, he reached the finals of the Seiko Hong Kong Tennis Classics where he was defeated by Andres Gomez of Mexico. He also reached the semi-finals in both the WCI Tournament of Champions and the Monte Carlo Open losing to Ivan Lendl and Mats Wilander, respectively. Currently his APT world singles ranking is #36.

In tournament play this year, Sundstrom won the Athens International defeating Francisco Maciel and reached the finals of the Italian Open losing to Andres Gomez. Sundstrom will play in the exhibition for the second time in recent years.

Exhibition, reserved seats and general admission tickets will be available at MC Sporting Goods, V & A Bootery, downtown, the Kalamazoo College Bookstore, and area tennis clubs; Centre Court, West Hills, Kalamazoo YMCA and Minges Creek in Battle Creek. For ticket information call (616) 383-8615.

JAGUAR

Vanden Plas

From a heritage of coachbuilders to kings and the sporting aristocracy of Europe comes the most exclusive Jaguar sedan you can own.

Jaguar XJ6 Vanden Plas

The Vanden Plas is a limited edition of the Jaguar Series III sedan. It shares the Series III's superb racebred double overhead cam six, its athletic handling equipment, its uncanny smoothness and silence in motion. Inside, however, the Vanden Plas is unique even among Jaguars. It cossets you with soft leather, exotic burled walnut panels and individually contoured seats front and rear.

Substitute transportation now available. Falvey Motors will leave a vehicle for your use when we pick up your Jaguar at your home or office. After servicing your Jaguar we'll return it to your doorstep.
