The Dew was on his lawn

Remember the item last week about the 25-foot can of Mountain Dew that was stolen from Yorkshire Market? Well, here it is in all its glory on the lawn of the Bell residence on Hampton in the Woods.

Steven Bell woke up one morning about three weeks ago and saw it half in the street and half on his lawn. He called the Woods police who did a double-take and then called for another unit to remove the inflatable can.

It languished at the Woods station for a couple of weeks until someone there read about its theft. Officers immediately returned the big can to the market, according to Roslyn Vitale, sister of store owner Richard.

(Do you think there was a deposit on that can?) Presumably, there's now a little more room at the Woods station.

What's in a name?

The Board of Education did some semantic two-stepping Monday night.

The board was about to approve formation of a Library Building Advisory Committee when trustee Jon Gandelot interjected that the committee name "connoted" a bias toward construction of a new building.

People will see the name of the committee and say, as they already have, that a new building will be constructed, Gandelot argued. The word "building" should be changed to "facility," he opined.

Board President Vincent LoCicero then quipped that people, instead of thinking that a new building was to be constructed, would think a new facility was going up.

Four torturous tries later, Superintendent John Whritner hit on the new name: Library Needs Advisory Committee.

Another euphemism is born.

Count on it

Twins Jamie and Kari Elsil of the Park came home from school one day recently and told mom Katie they married their math books.

They and their classmates in Robert Graham's seventh grade enriched math class at Pierce Middle School had to raise their hands and swear to take their books "for better or for worse, in sickness and in health, through A's or E's..."

We only have one thing to say about that — this is the kind of "marriage" you can count on.

Not-so-amusing park

The hollow rumble at skate-board heaven on Muir Road goes on into the second week after demolition day and the neighbors are raising a chorus of protest. Not only is the wooden ramp noisy, but gawkers are clogging the narrow street, says neighbor Don Sanford.

Ramp owner Nancy Cawley never asked for a place on the Farms agenda, so angry neighbors who showed up at Monday's council meeting had no one to discuss their ire with. A zoning violation and two complaints about noise are being pursued by the city, but Police Chief Bob Ferber acknowledged that the process could take a year or more.

"You've got an amusement park operating back there," protested Sanford, who says errant skateboarders come flying over his stockade fence every once in a while.

"It's getting to the point where they'll have two halves of a skateboard when they go back," he predicted.

Boundary issue near settlement

By Pat Paholsky

The cities of Detroit and Grosse Pointe Park are nearing a boundary agreement that first became an issue in the early 1970s. The settlement will provide for annexation from Detroit by the Park of the lots fronting on Wayburn and Barrington as well as a portion of Windmill Pointe Park.

The council adopted two resolutions Monday night authorizing a settlement in exchange for the annexation of the additional real estate. The agreement will not become effective until the other parties in the case — the Grosse Pointe public schools and Detroit — obtain approval from their governing bodies.

The school board, at its meeting Monday night, unanimously agreed to the move. The city of Detroit was scheduled to meet yesterday, Sept. 10.

The cases have been pending since the late 1970s, city attorney Herold McC. Deason said. "This is the type of settlement we have been looking for," he said. "and it brings to a conclusion something that's taken a lot of effort."

In return for the annexation, the Park will waive its claims to taxes levied by Detroit prior to June 1983. It will also pay Detroit $10,000 a year for the next five years.

As a result, the Park will add a $2.5 million tax base to the city tax rolls and eliminate its liability of about $11,000 a year it pays to Detroit for a portion of Windmill Pointe Park, Deason said. The annexation includes portions of backyards and garages that were within Detroit's boundary as well as part of Windmill Pointe Park.

Deason said the agreement is fair to both sides. By taking the additional tax base and offsetting it with an uncollected judgment on Detroit, Deason said the Park will come out "a tad ahead." The biggest plus is the park will be within the city in its entirety and boundaries have been determined and borders straightened, he said.

Woods' ban of preservers at pool draws protest

By Peter A. Salinas

A decision by Woods officials to no longer allow the use of flotation devices of any sort in Lakefront Park Municipal Pool has sparked a protest by a number of residents.

Prompted by the near-drowning of a young Woods resident earlier this summer, Woods officials banned all such devices from the city pool, according to City Manager Chester Petersen.

"If the child can't swim and is wearing the flotation device, then the parents don't watch as closely," Petersen said.

Petersen said the city was advised to ban the devices by its insurance carrier, Corroon and Black of Livonia. Rubber rafts, water wings, air-filled toys and life jackets were included in the administrative order.

This move prompted a number of parents to complain. A letter was sent to the Grosse Pointe News, and later some 95 signatures were gathered voicing objection to the across-the-board ban.

Linda Farmer, a Woods resident and mother of two small children, said the city's decision showed a disregard to the needs of families with more than one child. She said the move came with no warning at the end of July, a move which she and other parents say have left them with no choice but to not use the pool with their small children.

Farmer said her oldest son, who is five, has been taking swimming lessons since he was three. Because the child has not yet become a competent swimmer, she feels a flotation device gives her a sense of security, and enables her to keep a better eye on her younger child — who is two years old.

This is exactly what city officials are against.

Donald Hallman, director of the Woods' parks and recreation department, said he was just awarded his 35-year badge by the American Red Cross as a lifesaving instructor.

Hallman said not allowing flotation devices is best for the children. He added he wouldn't call what some people consider flotation devices as safety equipment.

"We find some children in the deep water aided only by a 99 cent piece of plastic," he said.

He feels any kind of flotation device should not be allowed in the pool — U.S. Coast Guard-approved life jackets included.

"A life jacket is a piece of emergency equipment and should be used in an emergency only," Hallman said. "Those things can be used incorrectly and they can also become waterlogged and the average person wouldn't know it. It is not worth losing a child."

Kevin Killeen, director of Health and Safety for the American Red Cross, Detroit, said the Red Cross recommends not allowing flotation devices in a "free swim" situation.

Killeen noted that in a controlled learning situation, however, they are often used.

"The Red Cross does recommend using a life jacket in an aquatic situation," Killeen said. "That means while swimming in a lake or while on a boat."

He said the main reason for not recommending flotation devices is that children get into water over their heads, and the devices can slip away from them. He, too, would not consider many of the water toys on the market as safety devices.

"Water wings help children learn how to swim," he said, "but only in a controlled lesson setting."

Killeen added that rafts, inner tubes and other large water toys are often used to allow a child who cannot swim to go into deep water, and they serve to block the vision of a lifeguard. This could prevent a guard from spotting a child in trouble.

Killeen did note that the American Red Cross only makes the recommendation about flotation devices to municipalities and there is no law against them.

Farmer agrees with much of what Killeen and Hallman say, however, she feels banning the use of U.S. Coast Guard-approved life jackets is taking things too far.

She said she talked with Louis DiMarco, of Corroon and Black, and she said he wasn't opposed to the use of the life jackets.

DiMarco didn't agree with that assessment.

"We recommended to the city to discourage the use of flotation devices by children," DiMarco said. "If anything happened to a child using a flotation device in the city pool, the city would be covered. We are only concerned about safety. These devices allow children to go into areas they aren't ready for."

As far as the life jackets are concerned, he said there could be exceptions, but that would be a decision for the city council.

Hallman was more adamant in his opposition to allowing any flotation devices in the pool.

"We should not allow children who cannot swim to go into water over their heads in any way," Hallman said.

He noted that neighboring communities have long had a ban on flotation devices, and that lifeguards and lifesaving instructors are opposed to their use.

"These are professional people dealing with swimming for many years," he said. "They do not want children to drown."

Petersen said although there has

Hospice volunteers find work rewarding

By Nancy Parmenter

The right to an open and dignified death, unsustained by machines, is a fairly new concept in American medicine. The hospice movement, a philosophy that encourages patients and their families to face death as a natural part of life, is not new, but has gained new popularity as the understanding that "it's okay to die" has spread.

"Our society hides death," said Julia Arango, coordinator of volunteers for Cottage Hospital's hospice program. "We try to pretend it isn't happening."

Through Cottage Hospice, terminal patients can be cared for at home, watched over by their families and a team of doctors, nurses, social workers, health care aides and volunteers. For the most part, these patients have completed the medical part of their treatment. They are no longer receiving anything to prolong their lives; they may be receiving palliative medicine for their pain. To take part in the hospice program, they have a life expectancy of six months or less.

Surely volunteering to help people under such discouraging conditions must be disheartening. But not so, say the volunteers. Cottage Hospice has 80 active volunteers to help with an average of 15-20 patients. Three of them got together last week to talk about the program.

All agreed that the volunteering experience doesn't have to be depressing. On the contrary, it is often uplifting.

"I got into this because I had a tragic loss," said Helen Fillion. "After I felt better, I wanted to do something with people experiencing great sadness. I felt I could understand them."

Although volunteers have to be ready to do anything from running errands to changing a bed, most often their role is supportive. Sharing a quiet time with a cup of coffee, looking at family photographs, chatting with the patient or family members are all ways of treating death as a natural consequence.

Hanna Hintzen had a patient with a German background. Since Hintzen, too, speaks German, the two sang German songs together. "It's a way of sharing, of enjoying reminiscences, of saying goodbye," Hintzen said.

An elderly Italian man, one of Fillion's first patients, loved to show her pictures from his album. "He raised those giant zucchinis," Fillion said, "and every time he would show me a picture of him holding a six-foot zucchini."

Looking back at one's life is considered a healthy part of leaving-taking, a way of coming to terms with death. Although many of the patients want to discuss death and make arrangements in preparation for it, there are often times when they prefer to talk about things that have interested them all their lives, Arango said. "Sometimes they just want to talk about the weather."

Family members sometimes have more trouble than the patient in talking about the impending death. The patient needs to discuss the future so that he can feel some confidence that the family will be able to manage; the family frequently is afraid to face it and prefers to gloss over it.

"Surviving members often feel guilty that they aren't going to die," said volunteer Daphne Ottens, who also works as a psychiatric nurse at Cottage. That makes it harder for them to discuss it. "I had one patient who wanted to talk to me about his death, but his wife couldn't handle it."

Sometimes family members want to talk, but don't feel free to do so in front of the patient. So many of the volunteers maintain phone contact with family members at work.

Most of the volunteers have long histories of doing volunteer work.

"When we were raising kids, everybody did volunteer work," said Hintzen. "But I got to the point where I said I would just do the volunteering I want to do. This has been the most satisfying."

Ottens, who said she has worked in the field of psychiatry for many years, said the attitude toward death is much more open than it was in "the olden days" of about 10 years ago. Now psychiatry recognizes that "terminal patients are very, very depressed and have a need to talk about their fears."

Volunteers never push patients to talk, however. "The patient sets the stage," Hintzen said. "Whatever he wants to talk about is okay."

Cottage Hospice is certified by the state and eligible for Medicare. Benefits include nurses, aides, equipment and medicine in a home setting. The hospital also offers five-day respite care to give some relief to family.

"Patients are so grateful to be able to be at home," Hintzen said.

"One of the key things," added Fillion, "is that they have some autonomy. They can eat or not eat. They still have some measure of control."

Attractive front yards sought

The Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission is seeking nominees for front yard beautification efforts. Plaques and certificates will be awarded in October.

Attractive flower beds, flowering trees or shrubs, refurbished landscaping, or new landscaping structures or almost anything that sets a front yard apart from the ordinary are eligible for recognition. Nominating forms are available at the Park city hall, 15115 E. Jefferson.

Nominations can also be made by addressing a card indicating the street address of the residence proposed along with the reason for nomination, according to J.K. Abbs of the commission.

Name and phone number of the nominator should also be included. Nominations must be received by Oct. 5. Send to the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission, 15115 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park 48230.

Cancer care, hospice volunteers sought

Families and friends of cancer patients who want to learn more about the disease, as well as individuals who are interested in becoming hospice volunteers, are invited to attend the Caring Person Program at Cottage Hospital.

The free, four-week session begins Monday, Sept. 15, at 6:30 p.m., in Boardrooms A and B, located on the lower level of the hospital, 159 Kercheval, between Moross and Cadieux roads, in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The Caring Person Program will offer instruction in many aspects of patient care and comfort, including chemotherapy and radiation therapy, prescription management, nutrition, pain control and respiratory problems.

Participants will learn how to lift and position the bedridden patient, as well as to cope with emotional problems related to living with a cancer patient. The goal of the program is to provide basic information and act as a support group, providing participants with a framework for healthy dialogue and an exchange of ideas.

Those who plan to become hospice volunteers receive four additional weeks of training to prepare them for a wide range of family situations and patient conditions.

Hospice volunteers are specially trained to provide physical, emotional and spiritual support to the terminally ill person and the family through the illness, death and bereavement.

For more information or to register, call Julia Arango, hospice volunteer coordinator, at 884-8600, ext. 2464.

GPC's partner may change soon

By Mike Andrzejczyk
The managing partner of Grosse Pointe Cable may change before the end of the year, possibly as early as next month.
The current managing partner, Group W, was sold last year to a consortium of five other companies, including Comcast Cablevision. The five were waiting to see what the federal government did with tax legislation before deciding whether to divide Group W holdings or operate it as a separate company.
The consortium was waiting for action on the general utilities tax. Under the old tax structure, a corporation didn't recognize gains or loss upon distributing its assets to shareholders upon liquidation. That would have allowed the five purchasing companies to parcel up Group W holdings without having to pay taxes on the $1.6 billion in assets.
The conference version of the new tax legislation repeals that tax provision, but puts into place transitional rules that make it advantageous to the consortium to break up Group W before the first of the year, according to cable officials. The consortium began picking and choosing which old Group W franchises each of the five companies would receive after break-up in June.
With Grosse Pointe Cable, however, the cable company that provides management and technical service owns 25 percent of the company stock. The War Memorial Association owns the other 75 percent, holding half of it in trust for the five cities in the franchise — Harper Woods, Grosse Pointe Woods, Farms, City and Park.
The sale hasn't meant many changes for the local company, except that purchases of certain equipment is now approved by Comcast, according to company General Manager Michael DuFour.
But the company's board of directors — three members from the War Memorial Association and a representative from the provider and the cities — has not approved the transfer of stock from Group W to any other company, according to directors. Technically, Group W still exists and is providing service to the local franchise.
There are a number of possibilities ahead for the change of hands of the 25 percent held by the managing partner. The War Memorial Association may decide to purchase the outstanding 25 percent and take the company independent, contracting with a major provider to receive cable programming.
The board of directors may approve transfer of the 25 percent managing partnership to a new provider — most likely Comcast, since it is now the largest cable provider in southeastern Michigan, with 10 franchises in east side communities, including Grosse Pointe Shores and St. Clair Shores.

Another possibility — and the least likely right now — is outright sale of the 25 percent managing partnership and the 75 percent of the company held by the War Memorial Association.
Those involved in the situation say the board of directors is unlikely to abrogate its control over programming by selling the company outright.
Since Comcast already has 100,000 customers in southeastern Michigan, it is the most likely of the five consortium members to take control of the managing partnership of Grosse Pointe Cable, according to Tom Baxter, vice president for the midwestern region for Comcast. Ultimately, Comcast would like to have the local franchise as well, he added.
"We would like to continue to be involved in Grosse Pointe Cable," Baxter said. That depends on whether a satisfactory agreement can be worked out between Comcast and the Grosse Pointe Cable, he added.
It is unclear whether Comcast would be interested in accepting the managing partnership and only 25 percent of the company, however, insiders say. More likely, Comcast would want more than the 25 percent.

Grosse Pointe Cable could go independent, like franchises in other communities such as Wyandotte.
For an immature franchise, there are definite advantages to being aligned with a major cable company, according to cable company officials. Besides technical assistance needed to get the cable up and running, there are also volume discounts available through major providers for certain services.
But Grosse Pointe Cable is no longer a new franchise. It has wired its coverage area and penetration is better than it has been, according to the company. Since volume discounts are offered as a percentage of the locally charged rate, adjustments could be made to the local rate card to counteract any lost discount. Such a move could also stimulate sales and increase viewership.
The company will pay off the $7 million bond issue that paid for building the franchise by 1994, according to Mark Weber, executive director of the War Memorial and member of the cable company board.
The board has had a number of updates on the situation and continues to study the matter, he added.

Dutch elm losses down in Grosse Pointe this year

By Peter A. Salinas and Michael Andrzejczyk

There's a ray of hope that the spread of Dutch elm disease in Grosse Pointe Park has been slowed.
Dr. Gerald Lanier, the Park's contracted tree specialist, gave a glowing report to the city last month indicating a significant decline in the number of trees lost to the disease.
Park residents can expect an even greater decline in the number of trees lost next year if Lanier's estimates hold true.
Dutch elm disease has spread throughout southeastern Michigan in the past 35 years — leaving empty streets and backyards in its wake.
The disease is spread by small bark beetles which are born and bred in diseased trees. When they leave the trees to mate and find new elms to infect, the fungus goes with them. A tree infected with elm disease in this manner will die in two or three years if not treated.
In most cases, however, the cure is removal of the tree. If the tree has contracted the disease by the spread of the fungus from one elm root system to another, the tree will likely die, according to Lanier, who teaches at the State University of New York.

Lanier told the Park council his integrated Dutch elm disease management plan is working. There was a decrease of about nine percent of diseased trees. He has been aided in his effort by securing cooperation from Detroit and Grosse Pointe, both of which border the city. He said that in a biological situation such as the fight against the disease, the war must be fought on all fronts.

Members of the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council in the other Pointes have met with Lanier, and are hoping that a local program coordinating disease-fighting efforts can soon become a reality.
Each city has a number of methods for halting the spread of Dutch elm disease. In the Woods, city officials have emphasized fast removal of diseased trees to cut down the risk of infection to other trees.
Grosse Pointe sprays its trees on public property. The city also offers a volunteer injection program for trees on private property.
It's no longer a question of eliminating Dutch elm disease, according to Chris Matthew of Grosse Pointe City. The battle is to halt the spread of the disease.
Lanier said he and city forester Robert Tarabula made an on-site, on-foot inspection of every elm in the city. Most trees had been checked twice this spring and summer and some trees were visited several times.

The cooperative agreement with the city of Detroit allowed Lanier to trap elm bark beetles and treat a number of diseased elms. He was also able to inject trees with cacodylic acid in Detroit and the city. This turns the diseased tree into a trap tree, and prevents the bark beetles from spreading the fungus.
Lanier said the transmission of the disease is detected in a tree, the sooner it can be pruned or removed — depending on the severity. Most of the trees removed this year in the Park were those infected in 1985 or earlier, says Lanier. The numerous on-site inspections this year has resulted in better early detection of the disease.
Lanier said that he will have a better estimate of losses for next year since he now has more data.
He advised the council to press for removal of diseased elms on private property as soon as the disease is detected. He noted people become emotionally attached to their trees and feel it will get better — even though it won't.

"If they do not have a contract in hand," he told the Park council "then we should give them the name of an arborist right away."
Lanier said that fighting the spread of Dutch elm disease in one municipality will slow it down, but it will not stop the trees from dying. He noted that to be effective a program must be done as a coordinated area program.

Board adopts 10 goals for 1986-87

By Mike Andrzejczyk

The Grosse Pointe Public School System will continue its work on staff development and evaluation, curriculum development and substance abuse this year and will also try to develop a plan for staff recruiting, library needs, guidance counseling and early childhood issues.

Those were among the 10 goals for the coming school year approved Monday night by the Board of Education.

Other activities the system adopted as goals for the 1986-87 school year include continued work on its facilities plan and implications on building use because of changing populations and development of a think-tank for the system to funnel new ideas into the district to aid the board in setting goals in the future.

Superintendent John Whritner presented the goals and a proposed lead statement to the board Sept. 2. He also updated the board on work on the system's seven goals from the previous school year.

Of its seven goals of the previous year, four show up on this year's list. Last year, the system completed a process for curriculum development and will work this year to get the system up and running, Whritner said.

Also, a process will be worked out to put the system's curriculum through a five-year review cycle, he added.

Committees working on evaluation and development of staff began meeting last year. The committees spent last year finding out what other districts offer and what the possibilities were. They will begin building on that foundation this year, Whritner said.

The district began work last year to develop a five-year facilities plan which will put together after final action is taken on setting this year's goals, Whritner said.

Substance abuse work and implementation of the master plan will also continue in the coming year, Whritner said.

"We are kind of on hold in implementing that one pending some clarification of who we can hire as a substance abuse counselor and also our ability to find that person," he said. "Hopefully we can get some action on that one in the not-so-distant future."

Two goals the system completed last year included winning the millage election and finding ways to tell its story, Whritner said. From the plan to better communicate with the community came a survey that has provided a wealth of information for the system, he added.

Besides goal work, the district did a number of other things in the past school year, some of which will be carried over into this year, Whritner said.

Development of new goals really began last school year, with a long-range planning conference that brought together staff, administrators and members of the community to discuss implications and possibilities for the coming year.

From that, the board spent the next day working out priorities for the district and areas that needed to be addressed, Whritner said.

One new goal for the system will be developing and implementing a plan for staff recruitment, Whritner said.

"We all recognize the problem we're going to have finding quality staff," Whritner said. Staff will mean not only teachers and administrators, but qualified support personnel as well.

"In order to maintain our position as a quality system, we're going to have to find the best available people," he added.

Part of the plan will include deciding what staffing needs will be in three to five years and the ways to meet those needs.

A whole host of issues are expected to be raised by the system's study of the needs of its libraries, Whritner said. Among questions to be asked will be the need for computerization, parking, space needs and accessibility. It is a process that began with the hiring of consultants to look at two aspects of the system — facilities needs and computerization, he added.

There is a recognized need to look at the system's guidance counseling system, Whritner said. It had been hoped the district could have hired a coordinator of counseling who would work half-time at each high school, but so far the district hasn't been able to find the right person.

The position would have been an assistant principalship so the candidate had authority to follow through on his or her recommendations, the superintendent added. "We still see this as a major need for the system; to review our current programming and come up with recommendations to this board on ways to improve that program . . . K-12," Whritner said.

During the school year, the 1983 report on early childhood issues will be updated by a committee, which will also be charged with evaluation of this year's Kindergarten program, Whritner said.

The concept of a think-tank will allow the system "to take our long-range plans, to begin to find out what's going on in the whole world of education and keep funneling in new ideas into the system so we can keep ourselves on the cutting edge of what is working in other kinds of communities around the country," Whritner said.

"This is something we can do a awful lot of exciting things with as we begin to look beyond what we are doing now to the concept of what we should be doing," he added.

The district's final goal for the year — studying facilities needs — covers a lot of ground, Whritner said. It will include looking at demographic issues raised now that elementary populations are rising while high school enrollment declines.

The study will look at uses for the central administration building, the Barnes community education building and other facilities. There will also be a study of the middle school schedule, looking at the possibility of offering difference or better programming.

A time line is developed for goal achievement to show which will probably be extended into next year.

Board members were supportive of the goals, saying they represented new ideas formulated in the June planning conference while offering some continuity by furthering work started last school year.

Trustee Carl Anderson, saying Whritner had done a quality job of developing goals, asked whether or not the system may have too many tasks to achieve. Instead, it may be better to select a singular goal, such as asking all involved to do what is necessary to improve the quality of education in the district.

Trustee Joan Hanpeter pointed out that goals are a way of offering direction.

"In my view, a well-run business had a plan — a financial plan and a marketing plan. That sets the chart, that is the course that provides the guidelines for the operation," she added.

With approval of the statements, plans begin to formulate timelines and assign staff to work on goals.

Meet Hertel

Residents with questions or problems about federal issues, will have an opportunity to meet and personally discuss their concerns with Congressman Dennis Hertel (D-Harper Woods) and members of his staff when Hertel hosts "Neighborhood Office Hours" Friday, Sept. 12. Hertel and his staff will be available from 12:30 to 2 p.m. at the Hamtramck City Hall in the council chambers.

According to Hertel, the purpose of the special hours in Hamtramck is to make it more convenient for residents to bring to his attention any federal matter normally handled by his district staff.

He urged residents who are unable to visit to contact his local offices directly, during normal business hours, if they have a problem or request involving the federal government. His district offices are located at:

School system, Woods swap services

When the Grosse Pointe Board of Education approved a service exchange with Grosse Pointe Woods Monday, it approved a textbook example of compromise.

The agreement, with fine print still to be determined, will mean the school system will receive an extra trash pickup at Parcels and North High School. In exchange, it will allow the Woods free use of school buildings for municipal functions.

The agreement started taking shape last winter, according to Superintendent John Whritner. He sent a letter to all city administrators, saying he was interested in getting an extra day of trash collection at some schools and was willing to offer school use in exchange.

There didn't appear to be much interest in the idea, until a recent letter from City Administrator-Clerk Chester Petersen, Dr. Whritner said. The Woods treated the school system's initial request for the extra pickup the way it treats similar requests from commercial interests, Petersen said. If an extra collection is needed, the city tells the business to contract with a private carrier to make the collection. The district has a private firm making pickups at North High School, he added.

It was just the principle of the thing, according to Petersen. The system was asking for something without giving anything in return, but the offer of use of school buildings without charge changed the situation.

The agreement won't cost either party much, both sides say. The city doesn't often request to use school buildings and the extra pickup can be worked into the normal weekly routine.

So far, no other city has said it's interested in a similar arrangement, Whritner said.

'82 gerrymander recalled

Grosse Pointers learned last week that they are part of two congressional districts with special distinctions in the United States — and all because of the 1982 congressional reapportionment in Michigan that was a classic case of gerrymandering.

A new book, "Congressional District Fact Book," said that Michigan's 14th Congressional District — which includes Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Woods and Grosse Pointe Shores as well as more populous adjacent areas — is the third most Polish district in the nation. A total of 21.9 percent of the district's residents claim Polish ancestry.

The same book reported that Michigan's 13th District, which includes Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City as well as more populous Detroit areas, ranks fifth in the United States in percentage of black residents. The 13th District is 67.4 percent black.

The Pointes, of course, do not have large proportions of either Polish or black residents, and thus these percentages illustrate the extent to which Pointe residents now are "minorities" in their own congressional districts.

Perhaps more important, the reapportionment diluted the GOP vote in the Pointes to such an extent that the 13th District ranked sixth in the nation in support of Walter Mondale in 1984, with 84.9 percent of the district's votes going to the Democratic nominee. The Pointes still voted strongly for the winner, Ronald Reagan, of course.

Even George Crockett, the Democratic incumbent in the 13th District, conceded in an interview with the Grosse Pointe News last year that "the Democratic Party did Grosse Pointe an injustice" when it split the community into two congressional districts. In that interview, Crockett added: "All the Pointes identify more with the political philosophy of Macomb and Oakland counties than with Detroit. They should have been left there."

Perhaps in this election year it is well for Pointes to remember that it was the Democrats then in control of the Legislature that enacted a reapportionment plan so favorable to the Democrats that it was vetoed by the then-Republican governor, William Milliken. That action put the reapportionment into the hands of a three-member federal court panel that adopted the Democratic reapportionment plan with few changes — and still split the Pointes into two districts — despite strong GOP objections.

And why do we call it a classic case of gerrymandering?

The words means "to divide into election districts . . . in an unnatural and unfair way with a view to giving a political party an unfair advantage over its opponent . . ."

Initiative 'a last resort'

From the bitter complaints about the state Supreme Court's recent decision upholding a law limiting the time for circulating and signing petitions to put issues on the ballot, an uninformed observer might have thought the court was depriving Michigan voters of an unalienable right designated in the U.S. Constitution. Not so, of course.

It is the Michigan Constitution that establishes the right of the people to petition to initiate legislation, to reject or approve laws passed by the Legislature or to recall public officials. A recent law limits the time frame for circulating petitions under the Constitution to 180 days. It was the constitutionality of that law that was upheld by last week's high court decision.

What some of the critics forget is that the right to petition for initiative referendum and recall is not guaranteed to all American citizens because it is included in only slightly more than half of the states' constitutions. And there are people, even in Michigan, who do not find the right to be necessarily of great public benefit.

One of the problems, for example, is that petition campaigns often are waged to supply simple answers to complex problems. A few years ago the Citizens Lobby started a petition drive to put on the ballot a proposal to eliminate the sales tax on food and prescription drugs. The proposal carried and the sales tax on those items was eliminated. But the Citizens Lobby had contended that savings from eliminating waste and duplication in government could offset the revenue loss.

Unfortunately, that didn't prove to be the case. The eventual result was an increase in the state income tax to replace the revenue lost through the elimination of the sales tax on food and prescription drugs.

A Michigan boost for Bush

Vice President George Bush failed to carry the Grosse Pointes in the GOP precinct delegate contest in the Aug. 5 state primary but on a statewide basis he apparently did elect more delegate candidates who support his presidential candidacy than did his two major rivals. So it appears that Michigan gave an early boost to Bush's 1988 presidential hopes.

The new evidence of a Bush victory came in a Detroit Free Press survey over the Labor Day weekend that found 45 percent of the sample of 403 elected precinct delegates saying they favored or were leaning toward Bush, 21 percent expressing a preference for the Rev. Pat Robertson, the TV evangelist from Virginia, and 16 percent for U.S. Rep Jack Kemp of New York.

After the primary, campaign officials representing Robertson and Kemp as well as Bush had issued conflicting claims about the number of precinct delegates each presidential candidate had won. The Free Press poll indicates that Bush's counting was more accurate and that the claims of both Robertson and Kemp had been inflated.

In the Grosse Pointes, however, the actual head count of precinct delegates elected showed that Kemp had won 16 delegates to 12 for Bush with the other four delegates elected showed that Kemp had won 16 delegates to 12 for Bush with the other four delegates elected in the 32 precincts uncommitted or pledged to other presidential candidates.

If the Free Press poll accurately reflects the views of the more than 8,000 delegates elected, Bush will have obtained a Michigan victory for the second time. The first came in 1980 when he defeated Ronald Reagan in the Michigan presidential primary, which since has been repealed.

If the poll can be regarded as further evidence of Bush's lead in Michigan, it also can be viewed as a blow to the hopes of Robertson whose followers earlier had claimed they had elected as many delegates as Bush had won or

The current case involved efforts to put on the November ballot proposals to reinstate the death penalty and to expand utility regulation. It may well be that backers of statewide petition drives to put issues on the ballot may need more than 180 days to collect the large numbers of names required. And it may be that a full year ought to be allowed, as several legislators have suggested.

But the point is that putting such proposals on the ballot ought not to be made easy. We are indebted to Free Press columnist Hugh McDiarmid who dug out a 1985 opinion of the state Supreme Court written by Justice Dorothy Riley of Grosse Pointe that indicates the court's opinion with respect to that point in a case holding that private shopping mall operators may deny access to signature-gathering petitioners.

The initiative process spelled out in the state Constitution was not intended to be easy to fulfill . . . Instead, the initiative process is intended as a last resort for the people when the Legislature fails to act on issues which so inflame the citizenry on a grass-roots level that there is no need to trespass upon privately-owned property to reach disinterested and unknowing citizens."

In fact, it should not be easy for the people to write laws. That is really the job for the Legislature and Congress under our representative system of government. Ordinarily, if we the people think our legislatures are not representing us properly, we can vote them out of office in regular elections. In unusual situations in Michigan, we can use the initiative, referendum or recall to get them to do our bidding or to get them out of office. But that use should be regarded, as Justice Riley said, "as a last resort."

perhaps even more. It may also put a damper on Robertson's plans to announce further presidential plans at a Sept. 17 rally in Washington that will be broadcast nationally to Robertson's supporters on closed-circuit television.

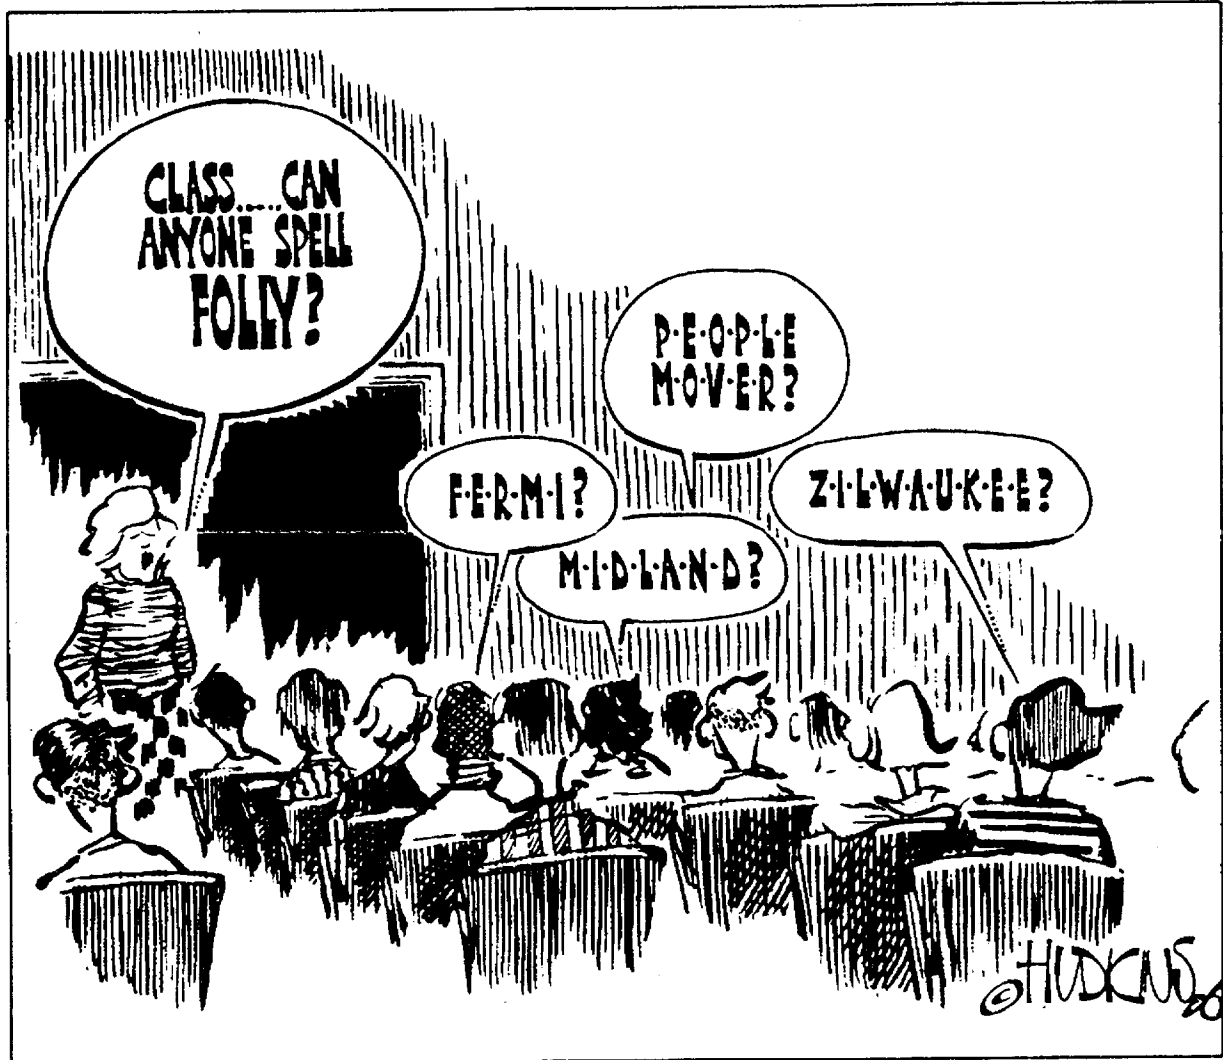

Yet even this good news for Bush must be tempered with caution. The poll did not seek the opinions of about 6,000 precinct delegates who were not elected in the primary but have been and will be named by party officials. So while there is no reason to doubt Bush's victory among the elected precinct delegates, nobody really knows the views of the other 6,000, although it could be assumed that Bush's elected delegate strength would give his followers a major voice in the selection of the appointed delegates.

Bush's victory in the poll was denigrated by W. Clark Durant, the Pointer who heads Kemp's campaign in Michigan. Durant claimed Bush suffered a "devastating loss" because he won fewer than 50 percent of the delegates after claiming he got more than 50 percent. He also contended each candidate won two congressional districts and the rest are up for grabs.

At any rate, being first out of the starting gate in the first test of presidential candidate strength anywhere in the nation could serve to provide new impetus to Bush's campaign for 1988. And his backers can be expected to make the most of it, even though none of the precinct delegates is officially committed to any of the presidential candidates.

Just how well the Bush strength will stand up will be determined when the precinct delegates early in 1988 meet in county and congressional caucuses to pick delegates to the state convention who, in turn, will name Michigan's representative to the party convention that summer.

From the Bush point of view, however, his performance in Michigan can best be described as so far so good, despite some of the questions being raised as to whether he has gone too far in some campaign issues to satisfy the GOP far right.

Investigate, recall, subpoena

To the Editor:

I demand an immediate, top-to-bottom, full-blown investigation into the management practices of the local school district, past and present. That such a person as described by Richard J. Zarenek in his Aug. 27 letter has been influencing the children of Grosse Pointe for almost three decades is totally unacceptable. It must not be permitted to happen again. While the current board must bear the ultimate responsibility, let us not underestimate the role played by their hirelings at South in this travesty of education.

I mean a complete investigation, to the point of recalling each of the 10 superintendents beginning with James Bushong, who initiated this black page in Pointe history, up to and including the current officeholder. Let us not overlook the role played by South's six principals, from Jerry Gerich to Frances French.

The present incumbent may be excused because of his short tenure, but his actions must be scrutinized regularly: Didn't he notice anything? All board members back to 1957 should be subpoenaed and forced to explain their dereliction of duty. (It was a mistake to abandon the medieval practice of scattering the bones of posthumously-revealed heretics.)

Let us also take the steps necessary to break the back of the teachers' union, which probably shielded this . . . this person from his just desserts. If we don't nip this thing in the bud right now, it won't be long before all public and civil servants will be demanding the rights accorded citizens by the Constitu-

Commends Nancy

To the Editor:

I'd like to commend Nancy Parmenter for her story, "Brain Injuries — a Long Road Back for Victims," which you published Aug. 28. Nancy's sensitivities and reporting skills were evident throughout her interviews with me and the patients at Ditty, Lynch and Associates' residential facility in Livonia.

I appreciate this opportunity to share information with our community and welcome any opportunities to be of future help.

I also ask those who read the Grosse Pointe News to reconsider their subscriptions should the ownership of the paper continue their exercise in yellow journalism. To avoid dealing with the picayune complaints of public employees, why not consider selling the school system to a private entrepreneur who could require his private employees to attend seminars conducted by the Dale Carnegie or Norman Vincent Peale foundations so as to learn the joys of positive thinking.

I wonder if Mr. Zarenek regards name-calling as picayune? He is to be congratulated on his ability to read selectively and to obfuscate the basic issue, which is the obstacles that intrude on the quality of education being offered in Grosse Pointe.

Exchange student writes

To the Editor:

Congratulations to the young girl featured in a recent Grosse Pointe News article who is going abroad a year to Japan as an exchange student. It is wonderful that the News recognizes such an achiever, however, it is extremely disappointing to someone like myself who has (just this past year) pursued the overseas experience and has no recognition from her own town paper.

I may not have been the first to stay a year in a foreign country (as well as an unprecedented summer stay) but certainly one of the youngest. I left at 14, just about to enter my sophomore year. I loved it. I was in the wonderful country of Belgium and while she may not seem as exotic as Japan, she has her own fascinating mystery and charm.

I may add that my stay was probably more rigorous than this other girl's may be. I had to become proficient in the three official languages there — French, Dutch and German. American students going to Japan will study in English, not Japanese.

That's all I have to say. I just wanted to get a little bit of what I deserved.

We are failing our children

To the Editor:

Boy is he right! All that was said is gospel except for I am one of those parents who realizes Grosse Pointe teachers are paid very well for their work year. In other parts of the state and country, that may not be true.

Mr. Sommerville's willingness to expose the school board and administration takes courage and I salute him. His remarks regarding other teachers are accurate. I have five children in the Grosse Pointe school system, two of whom have graduated. My respect for the tough good teachers goes without saying.

However, for a good number of lazy, unintelligent teachers, a number of whom I spoke to, it is a disgrace. At Grosse Pointe South the administration has an adversarial role with administrators protecting their job and to hell with the education and it is sanctioned by the school board. The educational system is big business and a cut-throat one. Teachers and their union look out for themselves and usually we vote the wrong people to be on the school board because better qualified people won't run. The administrators give what information they want the board to hear and our board does not protect us by investigating the problem or learning other points of view as it is easier to rubber-stamp the problem.

The cost of all this wasted money, wasted education, poor school environment and of course, one should remember the lower-quality student turned out by these educational factories. No matter how good the window-dressing, we've missed the 3 R's while emphasizing sports. We as a nation are failing our children not vice versa. Education has gone to the bureaucratic system, take care of the bureaucrats first, and what's left goes for the purpose it was intended.

Cartoon misrepresents pro-life

To the Editor:
As a home subscriber over the last couple years, I haven't had any particular reason to write your paper, but with the horrendous misrepresentation conveyed by the editorial picture, "Kill the Abortionists" as stated by a depicted pro-life individual in the Sept. 4 issue, a response is in order.
Obviously, the cartoonist and the Grosse Pointe News has no real comprehension of a typical pro-life member and the pro-life organization on the national, state and local levels. I've been actively involved for the last 12 years in the Right To Life effort and have never, in all those years, met a pro-life member who advocated violence either through destruction of the abortion chamber or killing of the abortionists as depicted in your cartoon.
The national, state and local organizations have a firm policy of non-violence. Please don't hang a rap of violence on us because of a very, very few irresponsible individuals who went overboard and are not members of our organization. Our written policy deprecates the activity.

Violence is not to be tolerated in any format including the violent death to the unborn child that is brought on by the abortionist who you choose to ignore. Get the facts straight about the mission of the pro-life organization before you blatantly depict the pro-life members as kooks. The fact is that they are beautiful, caring, unselfish volunteers who put untold hours into an effort to restore the right to life to all persons of our society from the unborn to the elderly from the moment of conception to natural death.

His classes were filled

To the Editor:
As a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and a former student of Mr. George Sommerville, I was saddened to learn that he is retiring from the school system this year. It is with great fondness that I remember "Western Civ." and a teacher who, day after day, was able to make a room full of 16- and 17-year-olds interested and even enthusiastic about the ancient Greeks, the Crusades and the Reformation.

Mr. Sommerville was always well-liked by his students and his classes were always filled, despite the fact that his was one of the more difficult history electives.

As his students, we knew that he cared about us, not only as members of his class but as individuals. He was always available to us and always willing to talk, whether about the War of the Roses, the choice of a college, or last weekend's Ohio State football game.

I am now the mother of two small children, and it is my hope that when they reach high school, they will encounter professionals of the same quality as Mr. Sommerville who had such a positive effect on my high school days.

Student defends teacher

To the Editor:
As one of George Sommerville's past students, I feel I am qualified to rebut Richard Zaranek's disparaging remarks of Aug. 28.
George Sommerville is one of the best teachers I ever had. He made me think — and that is what school is for, isn't it? (Enjoy your retirement, Mr. S. — you earned it). No negative impact from that teacher on me.
I had been reading Mr. S.'s letter with a great deal of interest, feeling what he said was most likely true and what a shame — our great school system sounding so bad. Then Mr. Zaranek, who I don't know, defends the system by attacking the attacker. Well, people will believe who they want to believe.

But Mr. Zaranek, in whatever business you are in, take away your supplies and equipment, take away any assistant or secretary, and let someone tell you to get your work done, you have another load coming; tell me you wouldn't get frustrated.

Ann Tracy Marr

Sommerville is a superb teacher

To the Editor:
After reading the Aug. 28 editorial by Richard Zaranek, we felt compelled to write.
We are both students in the Western Civilization class taught by Mr. Sommerville. The first matter of which we wish to assure Mr. Zaranek is that Mr. Sommerville's teaching was never adversely influenced by his "frustrations." In our opinion Mr. Sommerville superbly taught not only the subject matter, but essential study skills as well as test-taking skills. Mr. Sommerville's informative lectures brought the material to life as the provided text was useless.

Regarding the "incidental" issue of the copiers: We fail to see how the delay of a test because the test could not be copied can be considered unimportant. This was the case on several occasions in different classes. Fortunately, additional copiers have been purchased, and hopefully this will prevent any future problems.

On the matter of the seven-period day versus the six-period day, the seven-period day was a very good idea. However, the implementation of it was poorly managed. This change caused real problems for both teachers and students because not enough teachers were hired. Some math students were forced to change teachers after the first quarter of school was finished. Students in other courses had to change their schedules as new staff was hired. Similarly teachers were forced to change course loads as well as teaching plans. It is also unfair to both students and teachers that certain classes are too large.

It is true change is a lengthy process, however, implementing changes that have previously been proven ineffective or ignoring problems hardly seems logical. We will readily agree with Mr. Zaranek that the positive attributes of the school district now outweigh the negative, but it is also true that maintenance of a top-notch school district demands creative input from all levels.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

The story last week on the contract bridge refresher at the War Memorial should have said the class begins Sept. 10, not Sept. 30. Due to the error, the center will accept late registration. The class will run Wednesdays through Oct. 29, from 10 a.m. to noon.

I say

Learning from each other

It's been a week since we returned and I'm still dreaming about it. We took a long-planned trip to eastern Europe and it surpassed all of our expectations.

One overriding impression was the American influence. It's everywhere. While I knew that before I went, I was struck by its pervasiveness in countries that have the words Socialist Republic attached to their names. I saw a Lada, the Russian-made car, in East Berlin with one of those Baby on Board signs in the rear window. Instead of a yellow diamond shape, this sign was a white triangle bordered in red with the words: Baby Im Auto.

At the top of the Citadel in Budapest, a muscular, bushy-haired guy speaking a language I couldn't identify walked past me. He was wearing a Detroit Tigers T-shirt.

And french fries, french fries served up with nearly every dinner. It reminded me of the South and grits. Some of our finest meals were sullied by the presence of french fries. Our guide told us at the beginning of the trip that the cooks consider the making of french fries an achievement and that we would probably get them often. He was right.

One night we went to what I figured was a local bar in Warsaw, away from the hotel. The band performed about four American songs for every Polish number. Their rousing, wall-shaking "Blue Suede Shoes" packed the dance floor.

American music appears to permeate the pores of eastern Europeans, at least in the large cities. At every hotel we stayed, we turned on the radio, and American music, especially rock, was always available. I shopped for amber in the state-run Cepalia store in Warsaw to the music of Stevie Wonder.

My husband will say I hit every store in every city we visited, but he exaggerates. I did get to a few, I admit, and I never saw one American T-shirt for sale. It was a hot item on the streets, however. I thought it was interesting that I during the day makes sense. It also saves trees and reduces waste. Can you imagine how many forests would be saved if all of McDonald's patrons brought their own bags for food?

Another habit we should pick up is to buckle up. We covered a lot of ground — 2,100 miles on land — and I never saw one unbuckled driver. And I was looking. So it's the law in Michigan, so what. That seems to be the attitude of many drivers here.

I also like east European courtesy and politeness. The most often-used words are please, thank you and pardon. We also had our health toaster a lot, but that's another story. Maybe politeness is a virtue that comes with patience that comes with standing in those interminable lines. Whatever it is, we don't have a lot of it anymore and I think it's especially true of our young people, who are so rude. We ought to bring back those signs that were always displayed inside DSR buses: Courtesy is contagious.

All of Europe has a dignity that comes with suffering and a proud heritage that reaches back through the centuries, but for me there is one aspect that says this is a highly civilized society.

It's their bedding. Real feather pillows and real feather quilts, big and puffy. Not once did my head touch foam rubber or any non-allergenic abomination. It was like being back in my grandma's bed. I say up with down and down with pillows that don't dent.

spotted more in Prague, which is one of the most repressed cities in the Soviet bloc.

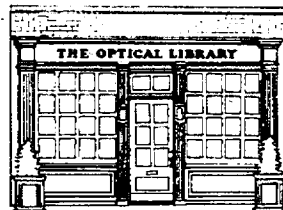

All of this imitation of our lifestyle is flattering, of course. And while the Europeans are adopting American ways, I think we ought to take on some of their traits. Take bags, for instance. The custom of carrying one's own shopping bag for any purchases made

Know the candidates

To the Editor:
Realizing that all too many citizens do not feel it is important to vote in primary elections, I would like to personally thank all Wayne County residents who took the time to vote in this year's August primary election.

I offer special thanks to those who made a special effort to learn as much as they could about candidates in races which routinely garner little or no media coverage — such as the nonpartisan judicial ballot. Instead of simply voting for familiar names, it is clear that a sizable number of the electorate tried to base their vote for future judges upon candidate qualifications.

The only way to assure a quality court system is to select qualified judicial candidates. I sincerely hope that all voters in the upcoming November general election will demand more information about the Wayne County Circuit Court candidates then is contained on a billboard or a bus stop bench advertisement. It is only by demanding more information that we will select qualified judges.

Hope issue is at an end

To the Editor:
On behalf of more than 500 Grosse Pointe Farms residents who signed petitions opposing a public liquor license at the War Memorial Center, we wish to compliment the Grosse Pointe News for its excellent editorial, "Ending a controversy."

The residents of the Grosse Pointes are indeed fortunate in the presence of the Grosse Pointe News which through its skillfully written editorials continues to demonstrate its courageous leadership in its efforts to protect and preserve the best interests of the community.

Like the News we also sincerely hope that this long continued controversy which has been so divisive of this community is now finally at an end.

District needs new director for planetarium

By Mike Andrzejczyk

Wanted: one planetarium director/astronomy teacher. Send resumes to 389 St. Clair, Grosse Pointe 48230.

With the resignation last month of planetarium director Timothy Skonieczny, the public school system has been looking for someone to fill the spot.

Failure to do that so far has meant cancellation of a high school astronomy class. Chances are it could mean cancellation of community education astronomy classes as well.

The district hopes to have someone ready to take over astronomy classes and planetarium duties by the beginning of the second semester, according to Superintendent John Whritner. The district did have one candidate almost signed who pulled out at the last minute, he added.

Cancellation of the first semester astronomy class affected 11 North students and three from South, according to North principal John Kastran. Seventeen students had originally signed up for the class in the planetarium in the Performing Arts building at the high school.

The Department of Community Education will continue to take registrations for its series of astronomy classes that begin later this month, but the program is "basically on hold" unless a new instructor can be found, according to George Eddington, director of community education. The department is hopeful it can find someone to teach the classes.

Skonieczny, now an astronomy and physics teacher at Macomb Community College, handled teaching and planetarium duties for the high schools. He was director of the planetarium since it first opened in October 1982. Its construction was made possible through the bequest from the estate of Benjamin Long.

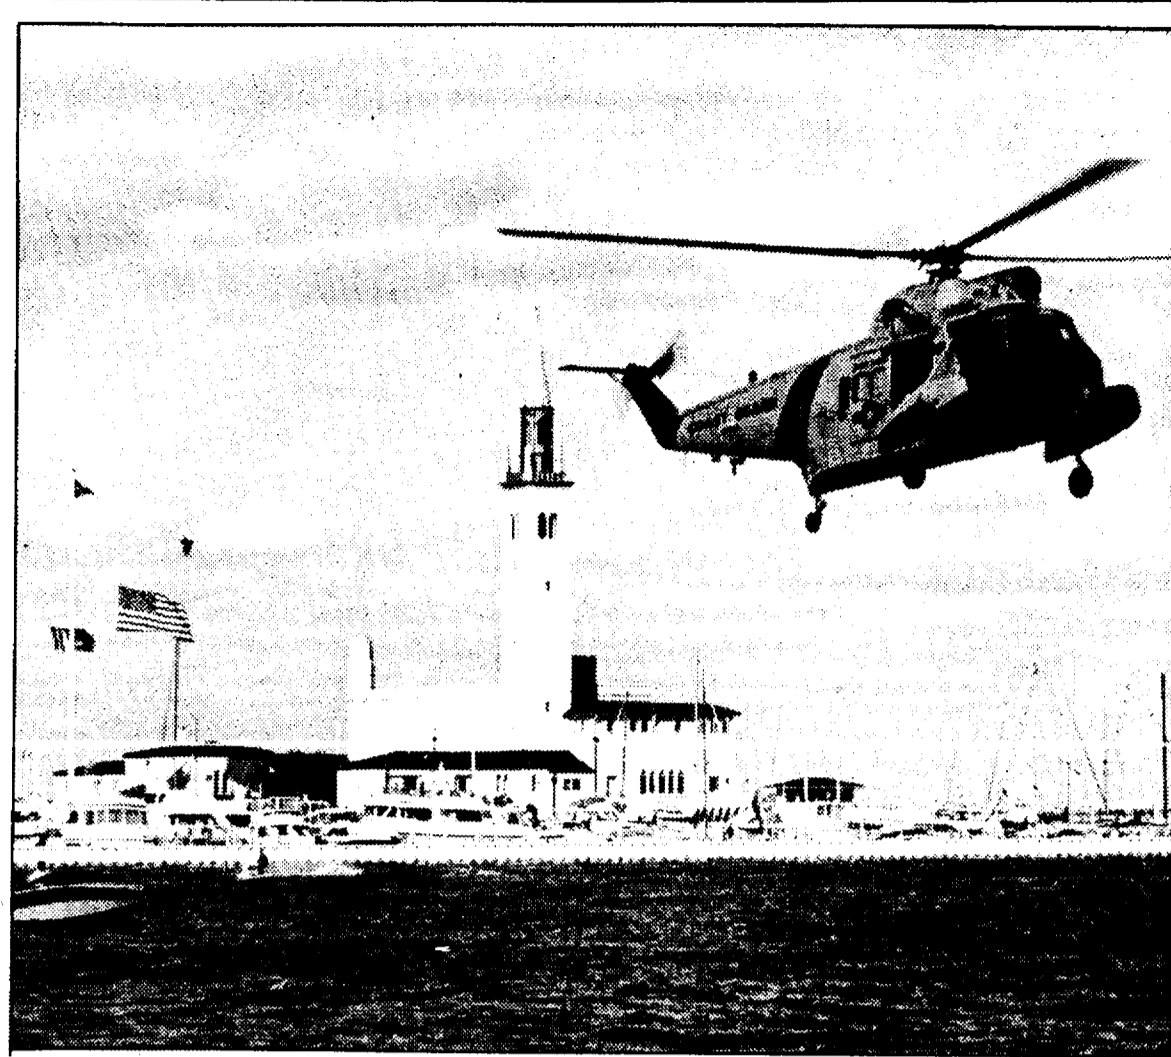

Over the years, a variety of equipment has been added to the planetarium, which has a 24-foot projection dome and seats 38. The latest was a set of laser discs and a player, which were used last school year.

Prowlers caught

Grosse Pointe Farms police apprehended three prowlers on Lakeshore Sept. 1. The men, all from Warren, were found at 3:40 a.m. lying face down in the bushes where they had hidden when they saw the scout car, police reports stated.

They told police they had been sitting down by the lake, drinking, and were walking back to Grosse Pointe Boulevard, where they had parked their car.

Police have asked the prosecutor's office for warrants in the case.

Sky show

Members of the U.S. Coast Guard gave a dramatic demonstration of an air/sea rescue before hundreds of guests along Lakeshore at the Shores' 75th anniversary celebration Sunday. Skydiver Paul Myks, 28, dropped in after jumping out of a plane 4,000 feet high. Myks is a veteran of more than 2,000 jumps.

Obituaries

Robert K. Whiteley M.D.

Funeral services will be held Friday, Sept. 12, at 11 a.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, for Dr. Robert K. Whiteley, 77, of Grosse Pointe City, who died Sept. 7 at Bon Secours Hospital.

Dr. Whiteley was born in Warren, Ariz., before it became a state.

He was a physician with a private practice in obstetrics and gynecology.

He graduated from Stanford University in 1929, and completed medical school at the University of Michigan in 1933.

He was a member of the County Club of Detroit, Detroit Club, Detroit Athletic Club, University Club, past president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education when Grosse Pointe North High School was built; and past president of the Wayne County Medical Society.

He was on staff at Bon Secours, Harper and Jennings Memorial hospitals.

Dr. Whiteley was a major in the U.S. Army from 1940 to 1945, and was awarded the Bronze Star. He was a survivor of Bataan and a prisoner of war, held by the Japanese from 1942 to 1945 at Cabanatuan.

He is survived by two sons, Robert H.K. and Eugene E.; a stepson, Norman G. Tufford; one grandchild; and a sister.

Memorial contributions may be made to Bon Secours Hospital or to the charity of the donor's choice.

Arrangements were handled by Verheyden Funeral Home.

William E. Christian

Private funeral services were held last week for William Edward Christian, 82, of Grosse Pointe Park, who died Aug. 29 at his home.

Mr. Christian was born in Ontario, Canada. He was a resident of the Detroit area for 58 years. He owned E & L Auto Electric on Livernois from 1939 until the time of sale and his retirement in 1971.

He was treasurer of the Grosse Pointe Sail Club; treasurer, National Automotive Radiator Service Association; member Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club; Circumnavigators Club; Masonic Lodge No. 27, Monroe; Detroit Yacht Club; and board member, Detroit River Yachting Association.

Charles J. Forrester
 Funeral services were held Wednesday, Sept. 10, at St. John of Arc Catholic Church for Charles J. Forrester, 79, of Grosse Pointe, who died Sept. 7 at St. John Hospital.
 Mr. Forrester was owner and president of Superior Polishing Company for 30 years.
 He was a member of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, Grosse Pointe Power Squadron, Vismara Knights of Columbus, St. John Hospital Men's Guild, Grosse Pointe Crisis Club, American Electro Platers Society, and Michigan Metal Finishers Association.
 He is survived by his wife Margaret; two sons, William and Michael; eight grandchildren; and two sisters.
 Interment was at Resurrection Cemetery, Clinton Township.
 Arrangements were made by Verheyden Funeral Home.

Marion M. McKaig
 Private services were held last week for Marion M. McKaig, 82, of St. Clair Shores, who died Aug. 18 at St. John Hospital.
 Mrs. McKaig was a teacher at Defer Elementary School for 42 years. She was also a first assistant principal. She taught first and second grades.
 She was a graduate of Wayne State University, College of Education. She was also a graduate Red Cross nurse's aide and worked at Detroit Receiving Hospital in her spare time.
 Mrs. McKaig was a member of the Women of Wayne Alumni, Women's City Club and the education associations.
 She is survived by two sisters, Gladys Ludwig and Claudia Greenhoe; a niece, and a nephew.
 She was preceded in death by her husband, Raymond McKaig.
 She was cremated and her remains were placed in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens.
 Memorial contributions may be made to The Friends of Bon Secours, 468 Cadieux, Grosse Pointe 48230.
 Arrangements were made by Verheyden Funeral Home.

The public school system will appoint a committee to help Director of Libraries Charles Hanson review recommendations to improve library facilities and services.
 The committee, whose formation and recommended membership was approved Monday night by the board of education, will work with consultants hired last school year to analyze their recommendations, which was to study space needs of the library system and what services needed to be added or improved.
 Among those recommended for membership on the committee are Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library President Ned Chalut, South High Principal Edward Shine, Board of Education President Vincent LoCicero, Peter Gast, Phyllis Hewitt, Mabel Hawkins, Doris Brucker, Dr. Julie Corbett, Marietta Taliani, Frank Sladen, Peggy Kitchel, Robin Missant, Kathy Gucwa, Hawkins Ferry and Jane Nutter.
 Superintendent John Whritner will serve as ex-officio member.
 Other members of the community, library staff, administrators, school board trustees or member of the Friends may be added by the board.
 The committee will insure that ideas and opinions about library services and buildings needs are head and evaluated by involving various individuals in the process, Hanson wrote the board.
 A telephone survey was recently completed by King Research, the company studying library needs, Hanson said. The randomly selected sample from the six communities served by the public school system were asked a number of questions to find out if they knew what services the libraries offer, what they used and what they wanted, he said.

 Questions were also asked about the space needs for the system, Hanson said.
 Full results will be revealed at the end of October by the research company, he added.
 On Oct. 13, a report will be made to the board of education on King Research's findings on the needs for the system, Hanson said.
 A library automation company recently signed a contract with the public school system to begin the computerization of the library system, Hanson said.
 The $720,700 contract will be paid over three years. First payment on the five-phase program is $270,000, he added. Signing the contract with CLSI Inc. is the result of findings of the system's computer study.
 The district's current CLSI system of 15 terminals was installed in 1979. The upgrade will automate acquisitions, computerize catalog formats and materials and have more than 100 terminals.
 The contract will also provide the district with CLSI's Datalink, which will allow Grosse Pointe to access databases of other automated libraries and information services, according to the company.
 Each school building will have terminals to access information from the Central Library, Woods and Park branches and other schools' collections. Development begins with computerizing catalogs at the high schools, which will also receive the first terminals.
 Catalogs are now on magnetic tape, Hanson said. The new process will put the catalogs in machine readable, or MARC, format, he added.
 The Grosse Pointe public library system has a collection of about 126,000 volumes and 15,000 audiovisual materials. Holdings at the schools will add 40,000 volumes to that database, according to CLSI.

Are we really what we eat?

Fitness center computer analyzes diet

By Nancy Parmenter

Diet analysis can be a rude shock. Just as rude as a blood cholesterol reading or a lung capacity test. Just when you thought you were A-O-K.

Bon Secours Fitness Center has invested in computer software that will, for a $15 fee, analyze dietary intake and — here's the rude shock — tell you you eat too much fat. At least, that's what it told me.

The analysis is only as accurate as the information submitted to it. "I have to guess how big your tuna sandwich was," said registered dietitian Tom Heinrichs, an instructor in Bon Secours' department of education. "Was the tuna packed in oil or water? How much mayonnaise was used?" If the customer doesn't detail that type of information, Heinrichs uses a standardized figure.

The computer analyzes just three days' food intake. If you usually eat a lot of yogurt — or pickles or brewers yeast or steak — but you skipped it during those three days, your computerized results won't match your usual diet. But if your three days are typical, the analysis can provide a useful look at your dietary deficiencies and strong points.

Results are tabulated and matched against the Food and Drug Administration's recommended daily allowance for your age and sex. It contains some surprises.

For instance, I was a bit embarrassed to admit how much ice cream and candy I eat. But the computer informed me that I eat only 78 percent of the calories allotted for my age and sex. Does this mean that I can chow down some more?

"Look in the mirror," said Heinrichs, leaving the decision up to me.

The computer analysis doesn't address the issue of weight. Heinrichs believes in standard weight-height charts and the mirror, but said he deplores the current emphasis on thinness.

At the same time, though, he said studies are beginning to indicate that thinness and longevity go together. "Rat studies are showing that, as far as calorie levels are concerned, the underfed live longer," Heinrichs said. "They're now investigating whether that holds true in humans."

The printout contains some information that is hard for the consumer to use. Center nutritionists will help with an analysis of the more than 30 items tabulated. For instance, iodine in the food sources is listed, but iodine in the iodized salt that many people use is not listed. So my printout misleadingly told me that I only get 37 percent of the recommended amount of iodine. But moderate use of iodized salt provides all the iodine most people need, Heinrichs said. The computer software just doesn't take that into account.

More immediately useful is the breakdown of the diet into percentages of protein, carbohydrate and fat. Current recommendations are that people should consume 15 percent protein, 55 percent carbohydrate, no more than 30 percent fat. The diet analysis shows how hard that is to do.

Tom Heinrichs

I eat a lot of fruit, vegetables and grain, but was dismayed to find that I was a little over in protein and fat and low in carbohydrate. The analysis is a good reminder that the nightly bowl of ice cream counts, too. Heinrichs wasn't too hard on me, though. His relaxed approach is not to worry so much about it. Just eat a variety of foods and do some weight-bearing exercise. And don't eat too much.

"As a person ages, the basic furnace cools down," he said. "The metabolic rate slows." A good exercise program helps keep the rate higher, but basically, when you're 40 or 50 or 60, you shouldn't be eating the two or three sandwiches for lunch that you did when you were a teenager.

Bon Secours started the diet analysis last spring. The center hasn't been swamped with requests, but "if you're in the business of wellness, this is just part of it that you really have to pick up on," Heinrichs said.

Along with the printout of your own diet comes a list of food sources for various nutrients. So if you're low in molybdenum, as I apparently am, it is helpful to know that I should eat more organ meats, legumes, whole grains and leafy greens.

On the other hand, what does one do with a 400 percent surfeit of fluoride? Heinrichs says it comes from all the tea I drink.

You can't give up everything.

Vandals strike at schools

Two youths were picked up for trespassing, breaking and entering and malicious destruction of property when they reportedly entered Brownell Middle School during the afternoon of Sept. 7. A third boy may also have been involved.

Two Farms officers responded to a call that the youths were on the roof of the school. One got out of the car to investigate on foot. He chased and caught one of the boys and found the other hiding in the bushes, according to the police report.

A fire department ladder truck was brought over to give access to the roof. Two officers from the city of Grosse Pointe joined the search. Police found a broken window on the second story. When they entered the building, they found suspected human feces dried and spread on the wall and floor of the men's room and paper towels strewn over the floor.

This was the week's second incident of damage done to property of a school in Grosse Pointe Farms. On Sept. 2, unknown people poured gasoline or some accelerant on the lawn at Grosse Pointe South.

The pourings, in the shape of the numbers 89, 12 by 15 feet, were then ignited and burned the grass down to the dirt. No one has been charged in the incident.

Fire damages Beaconsfield home

Investigators are trying to determine the cause of a fire in a second floor bedroom of a home on Beaconsfield in the Park that occurred Saturday afternoon, Sept. 6.

Firefighters and apparatus responded to the home in the 900 block of Beaconsfield, at about 4:30 p.m. Using high pressure hoses, they were able to contain the blaze to the bedroom, at the rear of the 2½-story brick veneer home.

Diverters get mixed reviews

By Peter A. Salinas

He said he just wanted everyone to know he was 100 percent in favor of the plan.

"I have seen a lot of tests over the year," said John Melike, a homeowner in the area of the Woods' proposed traffic diverters. "I just hope this one works."

Melike and others jammed the Grosse Pointe Woods council chambers Monday night in the first of two public hearings on the proposed diverter plan.

Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said the plan is basically simple. It calls for placing physical barriers along Canton Avenue which would make a court out of the two connecting streets.

Streets affected in the Woods would be Brys, Roslyn, Hampton, Ridgemont, Hollywood, Hawthorne and Anita.

"The diverter program would be a test," Patterson told the crowd of more than 100 residents. He added later that the barriers which would be put in place at first, would be temporary barrels and rails. If the program was found satisfactory, the barriers would be changed to permanent structures and landscaped.

The plan is designed to alleviate traffic problems on the residential streets, caused by drivers using the side streets to avoid the major intersections at Mack and Vernier and Harper and Vernier. That traffic, coupled with local vehicles, has led to traffic counts as high as 2,200 cars a day on some of these residential streets, officials said.

The meeting was standing-room only. Mayor George Freeman asked that those in favor of the diverters speak first, and those opposed speak at the end of the hearing. The pros and cons appeared to be about the same in number.

Earl Black of Brys Drive said he supported the plan, but had some reservations. He pointed out that drivers could make a series of turns and end up on Helen in St. Clair Shores, then take that street back into the Woods.

"I would hope that St. Clair Shores is thinking of doing the same type of thing in blocking its streets to prevent this," he said.

Those opposed to the move agreed that blocking off the streets would cut off necessary access to Mack and Harper.

One woman noted that the people in favor of the diverters were those who lived in the immediate area. She said this was selfish of them. She said her convenience in getting to nearby stores would be hampered by the diverters.

"That's selfish of me," she said.

"If you can be selfish, so can I." The statement drew general applause from those opposed to the move.

A Hawthorne Avenue resident said that by blocking off the side streets, too much pressure would be put on Vernier. She noted that Mack and Vernier is a school crossing, and mixing that many children with even more cars than are there now would be asking for trouble.

The meeting lasted about an hour. Mayor Freeman asked that a poll be taken. The informal poll tallied 37 people in favor of the project and 41 opposed.

The city has another public hearing scheduled, after which it will meet with the Harper Woods council to discuss findings.

The next hearing is scheduled for Monday, Sept. 15, at the regular city council meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Consul to retire

Canadian Consul General Milton B. Blackwood is retiring from the Canadian Foreign Service, his Detroit office has announced. He has served in the foreign service for 35 years.

The official residence of the consul general of Canada on Stephens Road in Grosse Pointe Farms is a well-known landmark with the Canadian flag flying on the front lawn and a garden planted in red and white Canadian colors.

Blackwood has served in 10 posts from Hong Kong to Djarkata to Mexico City to Johannesburg, as well as Ottawa. He served most recently as consul general in Sydney. During World War II he served in the Royal Canadian Air Force as a navigator in bomber command and participated in 37 missions over Europe.

Blackwood and his wife, Helen, who was a member of the American Foreign Service, plan to summer in Vancouver and winter in southern California.

Park continues contract talks

Union representatives for the newly formed Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Department met with city officials Sept. 5 and responded to the city's proposal for a new contract. There was no action and both sides agreed to meet again Sept. 24, Oct. 8, 9 and 10.

The city first presented its proposals to the public safety officers union, the Fraternal Order of Police, July 10. The union then came back in early August with one demand regarding hours of work. This was the first meeting since then.

City Manager John Crawford said both sides spent several hours going over the demands. "They took our proposal and went through it and responded to each item," he said. "They agreed with 20 to 30 percent of the items."

After setting dates for future talks, they adjourned, Crawford said.

While neither side will comment on the work week issue, it is believed the union is pressing for a 56-hour work week rather than the 40-hour week proposed by the city.

Social dancing class

The Grosse Pointe Department of Community Education will sponsor ballroom and social dance classes with three sessions this term — beginning, intermediate and advanced levels.

The course will run for 10 weeks and will be held at North High School starting Thursday, Sept. 18. New couples of all ages are welcome.

Instructor Rick Dove is widely recognized as an excellent teacher and has conducted classes at many clubs and community centers in this area.

For further information, call 343-2178.

SCS library reduces service

Due to budget cuts and employee layoffs, the St. Clair Shores Public Library will reduce its public service schedule from 56 to 40 hours weekly. The following is now in effect:

Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday, 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Friday.

been a group of parents opposed to the decision, there are a large number of parents backing the administration.

Farmer said she can see no reason why large rafts and inner tubes were ever allowed in the pool to begin with, but sees no justification for not allowing life vests. "I take exception to not allowing the Coast Guard-approved life jackets," she said. "If you are out on a boat or in a lake, you must use them. When they banned those too, that's where I became indignant. I have strong feelings about it, and everyone I've talked to has agreed. There is always the fear of a lawsuit, but at this point, I'm just fighting (for their use)."

Football class

If football season finds you lost in the end zone and you don't know a punt from a pass, you might want to investigate Football Unscrambled, a six week class taught by retired football coach George Duditch at the War Memorial on Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Sept. 11. The fee for the course is $15 per person. For additional information call the center at 881-7511, Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Pointe Players to hold auditions

The Pointe Players from South High School are looking for students between the ages of five to 12 to try out for their production of "The Music Man" Monday, Sept. 22, at 7 p.m. in the auditorium. Performances are scheduled for Nov. 20, 21 and 22.

Support group for aging to meet

V. Allan Bommarito, administrator of a long-term care facility for the aged, will address the support group of Calvary Adult Day Care Center, 4950 Gateshead at Mack Avenue, on Wednesday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m. He will speak on the various levels of care available in institutions for the aged as well as other relevant issues.

Boys, girls 5-11 invited

The Lakeshore Indian Guides/Princesses will hold a Skajuna Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 15 and 16, at South High in the auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The YMCA program will be explained to boys and girls 5 to 11 years old.

There will be a program and slide show. There will also be drawings for a swatch watch and fishing rod both evenings.

Needed is a boy for the part of Winthrop, a girl for the part of Amaryllis and about 10 girls and boys for the chorus.

Music for tryouts is available upon request. Call Mrs. Bown or Mrs. Martin at South at 343-2130.

The support group, organized to share common concerns of aging, and to familiarize residents of the Detroit east side, St. Clair Shores and the Grosse Pointes with the Calvary Adult Day Care Center, is open to the public. Call 881-3374.

Cinema League

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will open its fall series of film programs Monday, Sept. 15, at 8 p.m. in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium. Fern and Rip Zwickley, well known for their films of remote parts of the globe, will present their 16mm film, "Antarctic Adventure."

Antarctica, at the bottom of the world, is the most unusual of the seven continents, with a rugged mountainous coastline, glaciers and giant icebergs. Animal and bird life are seen at close range. Hundred of penguin rookeries dominate the scene.

In the film, scientific stations of five nations are visited as well as three of the famous Falkland Islands. Home base was the icebreaker M/S Lindblad Explorer, which never docked but dropped anchor, with inflated rubber boats used for exploring, since no human being lives permanently in Antarctica.

Guests are welcome. There is a charge of $1.50 for non-members. Memberships are available for $9.

CITY OF Grosse Pointe Farms MICHIGAN

NOTICE OF HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan on:

at 7:30 p.m. to hear the following:

- The appeal of Mr. & Mrs. Edsel Ford, owners of the premises located at 241 Lake Shore Drive, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of a swimming pool to the front of their existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the swimming pool is an accessory structure, proposed to be located in the front yard, and thereby would be in violation of Section 1503, Item 2 of the City's Zoning Ordinance unless a variance is granted to such provision.
- The appeal of Mr. John Laga, owner of the premises located at 322 McMillan, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the addition of an enclosed porch to the rear of his existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the side yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.

The Hearings will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

Richard PTO asks for crossing guard

By Nancy Parmenter
Children crossing Kercheval at Fisher to attend classes at Richard School cannot depend on the presence of an adult crossing guard, parents said Sept. 8. The guard assigned to that corner is a Grosse Pointe City public safety officer who is frequently called away on police business, Richard Parent-Teacher Organization spokesman, the Rev. Margaret Sammons, told the Grosse Pointe Farms council. On behalf of the PTO, she asked the Farms council to provide a guard. The City officer is away from the corner as much as 30 percent of the time, by Sammons' estimate, leaving the fifth grade safety patrol in charge. "If an accident occurs, they could do little to prevent it, but would carry the burden of guilt for the rest of their lives," Sammons said. City Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy disagrees with Sammons' estimate. "We can't positively guarantee that we'll have a police officer there at all times," he said Tuesday. "If a life-threatening situation arises, he is called away. But that doesn't happen that often. And you still have the safety boys. The safety boys handle every other crossing."

Kennedy said the City has hired one other crossing guard to work at the intersection of Kercheval and Cadieux. The Farms has no crossing guards. The PTO parents believe the Farms bears some of the responsibility for the crossing because more than 30 Richard students live in the Farms and because a large measure of the traffic comes from South High School and from the Hill business district. "We are delighted with the health of business in our town," Sammons said, "but it makes it more dangerous for our children." Referring to the high school students, she added, "Their adolescent energy is released into their cars. High school drivers are not known for their caution."

Police Chief Robert Ferber defended the city's traffic safety record and said the Fisher-Kercheval intersection isn't a hazard in terms of numbers of accidents. He raised the question of whether a crossing guard is a city or a school responsibility and said guards are hard to find. "It's difficult to find responsible adults for the kind of dollars we're talking about," he said, pointing out that guards have to tie up mornings and afternoons just to work for two hours. Mayor James Dingeman said the responsibility should fall less on the city. "Parents have a high degree of responsibility for the conduct and safety of their children," he said. Dingeman said liability is a problem for the city, but that if the school system would take the responsibility for hiring and supervising a guard, the city might subsidize the wage. He added a disclaimer, however. "If a subsidy is a one-sided affair or runs into thousands of dollars,

City, resident face off over parking requirements

By Nancy Parmenter
A Grosse Pointe City real estate agent says she has suffered "maneuvering and abuse" from the city in her attempts to construct an office building on Mack Avenue, using part of the lot behind it to provide the required parking. Anne Parker, of Anne Parker Real Estate, says the city has refused her request for a variance and refused to explain its reasons. She has asked for a slot on the Sept. 15 agenda in order to explain her position — and to ask the council to amend the minutes of the last meeting. Several council members joined Crowley in his concern over the problem. Gail Kaess said she intends to follow it up and not wait for the next council meeting. "We're somehow obligated to explore the possibilities," Councilman Bruce Rockwell said. "We have to make some judgment as to how we can help these people — or if in fact, we can."

Parker's side street lot faces on St. Clair and is zoned for parking, but has a non-conforming single-family residence on it. City officials say they are willing to let her use the whole lot, but not to split it. "Splitting it would leave that lot very substandard," Kressbach said. "This is not similar to other variance requests where people meet the spirit and intent of the ordinance, but can't meet the technical aspect for want of a few inches. This is too dramatic."

City planner Brandon Rogers said a split would leave a lot 50 by 100 feet with a house and no garage. The ordinance requires a minimum of 7,500 square feet. "She could take the house down and make a parking lot," Rogers said. "She hasn't come in with an approvable plan. My philosophy is that a deficient home site leads to crowdedness and sets a precedent." Parker, in a widely circulated letter, has complained that the council meeting minutes only summed up Kressbach's remarks opposing her request. "No mention of me, no citations from ordinances, no mention of my statement . . . (M)y faceless nameless defense is not worth mention," she wrote. Kressbach said Parker has been requesting a variance on the same and similar projects for several years. The ordinance requires commercial buildings on Mack to provide off-street parking. The problem is that Parker's lot is small, owing to widening of the street years ago. There is no room for off-street parking, a deficiency she would like to make up by using Several neighbors in attendance at the Aug. 18 meeting were opposed to Parker's request on the grounds that any increase in commercial buildings would lead to an intolerable increase in traffic on their side street. Parker doesn't want to develop the whole lot. She has tenants in the house and said she doesn't want to cause "nice lads" to move. But leaving the Mack lot vacant is an invitation to garbage-dumping and vandalism, according to her letter.

Wheels for Life

Jane Fox of Grosse Pointe Farms receives a service award for her hard work on the St. Jude Hospital Bike-a-Thon from Grosse Pointe bike-a-thon chairman David Friedrichs. The Wheels for Life event will take place Saturday, Sept. 27 at Grosse Pointe South from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Sarah Fox, 4, is able to ride her bike because of successful treatment at St. Jude for acute lymphocytic leukemia, now in remission. To participate in the event, pick up a sponsor form at school or church or call 882-5522.

met after the council meeting to discuss their next move. Tuesday Sammons said the group had decided to take the question to Grosse Pointe City. "What we began to hear from the Farms, amid all the words, was that they don't want the liability, but they might be willing to share the cost," she said. "The fruitful thing would be to have the City hire the person and have the Farms kick in some of the cost." Sammons said the schools had already indicated to the PTO that hiring a guard is the responsibility of the municipality rather than the school board. She said she had talked to City Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy, who has agreed to explore the problem. "I've talked with them and I'll keep on talking with them," Kennedy said Tuesday. "But our conversations are in an embryonic stage. I'd like to get out from under it and get a guard, but if it isn't resolved, we'll just keep on covering the crossing."

Student charges assault

A teenage girl in Grosse Pointe Farms reported being raped by four schoolmates over the Labor Day weekend, Farms police say. No arrests have been made in the case, but charges are expected. The girl, 14, held an impromptu party Sept. 1, according to police reports. About 20 teenagers spent the evening at her house, drinking and talking, first in the front yard, later in the backyard when neighbors complained about the noise. At approximately 11 p.m., the girl's sister, 20, sent them all home. She then left to pick up their mother at Metropolitan Airport. Four youths remained at the house after the others had left. Apparently, they coaxed the girl into the backyard, held her down and assaulted her. Then they took her into the house, where they assaulted her again in an upstairs bedroom. At 11:30 p.m., a friend telephoned and the youths fled. The friend and her parents came to the girl's house, called the police and took her to St. John Hospital. The girl has not identified her attackers, police said, but it is believed that they are students at Grosse Pointe South High School. Police have interviewed almost everyone who attended the party and the investigation continues. Test results from the hospital examination have not yet been returned from the laboratory.

Treasure may be hiding in your own bookcase

By Elsa Frohman

Kay MacKay never buys new books. But used books are another matter entirely.

MacKay is in charge of identifying and tagging the special and collectible books in the American Association of University Women Book Sale. She chooses the books that will be displayed at the auction table, as well as the collectors' item books that will bring a higher price than the average book at the sale.

"I'm always looking for things that will appeal to collectors," she said. "I look for inscribed copies, automotive books, because we have a lot of automotive collectors around here, and unusual Detroit and Michigan items." MacKay also sets aside books with unusually fine leather bindings and books from unusual publishers. "Some people collect certain publishers," she added.

Picking the special books from among the thousands upon thousands of books donated to the sale each year takes a keen eye and a great deal of experience. MacKay has been associated with the sale for the past 22 years. Her yearly volunteer work sorting books for the sale led her first to a book collecting hobby, then to her own business, Mad Hatter Books.

"I've seen this grow from a one-day thing to a whole week," she said.

In her part-time role as an antique book dealer, MacKay visits three antiquarian book shows a year. Later this year she plans to travel to England to find collectible children's books.

"That's how I got started," she said, "with the AAUW, marking books. You handle a lot of books in those garages."

MacKay contends that two kinds of people shop at the AAUW book sale.

"The first is the person who is just looking for a book to read. They may read it and bring it back (for the next year's sale)," she said.

The other shopper is a collector. "He's looking for a book to keep," MacKay said. "It may not necessarily be to read. That's not essential."

Collectors are looking for a particular type of book. They may be looking for fine illustrations, or the artwork of a particular illustrator. Or they may be looking for specially inscribed books or books on a particular subject.

Kay MacKay finds books of value in the thousands donated to AAUW

"That's the finest thing about this avocation," MacKay said. "It will follow any interest you have."

A book collection doesn't have to be of old books, or even expensive books. The most important thing about a book collection is that it be of books the collector likes.

"Any collection has a value," MacKay said. "Some will increase monetarily. If you collected P.G. Wodehouse 10 years ago, the collection will have added value today."

MacKay pointed out that book collectors have done an immeasurable service to libraries public and private over the years.

"All these collections you see in rare book rooms were originally started by some private individual," MacKay said. "They do a great deal in the book world."

There are two prevalent myths about book collecting, MacKay said.

"The first is that old books are rare," she explained. "Age seldom has any consequence (in the value of a book). Just being old has no value. A first edition of Stephen King from five years ago might be worth a couple of hundred dollars."

"The other is that first editions are valuable," she said. "All books are first editions. It has to be the first edition of a book that has a value."

People often keep the wrong books, thinking they will become valuable someday.

"People are always keeping coffee table books," MacKay said. "And they dump the more ephemeral things like pamphlets and paperbacks."

There is a growing market for collectible paperbacks, MacKay explained. Some of the hottest items are science fiction paperbacks.

"Rare books is a misnomer," she said. "You have value when demand exceeds supply. There are many rare books that have no value at all — nobody wants them."

Book collecting is an avocation for people who love books, MacKay said. It isn't necessarily a good investment.

"It's not like playing the stock market," she said. "It's more like playing the horses. You shouldn't set out to collect valuable books. A lot of people do that and a lot of people get took."

MacKay advises aspiring book collectors to start by reading dealers' catalogues and to visit several shows to gain a feel for the relative value of different kinds of books.

"It takes time and experience," she said. "You have to work up to it. Some people think that just because they paid a lot for a book, it should increase in value. It may not. There are fads."

To protect a book's value to a collector, the book must be protected. Leather bindings should be treated with a preservative (though MacKay advises that a small amount of petroleum jelly will do in a pinch) and all books should be stored in a location where sunlight will not fall on them. On hardcover books, the dust jacket should be preserved with care, because most collectors insist on an original dust jacket in mint condition.

MacKay's own favorite collectors' items are books published by Thomas Moser in the 19th century. Moser published low-cost reprints of fine literature. Trouble was, he wasn't too careful about asking for permission before he reprinted and he often neglected to pay royalties to the author.

"He was known as a pirate," MacKay said.

MacKay's involvement with books goes far beyond her involvement with the book sale and her collecting. She works for a local publisher of reference books. She is currently working on a biographical almanac, condensing

The Grosse Pointe Symphony Society's second annual gala, honoring 1986-87 Inner Circle of Musical Chairs donors, will take place on Friday evening, Oct. 3, at the Country Club of Detroit. Some orchestra musicians, seated left to right, Louis Cook, violin; Russell Nahat, trombone; Pamela R. Ford, viola; and Pierre Palmentier, flute; talk over the festive event with committee members, standing left to right, Mary Nolan, co-chairman; Katherine Carrick, promotion; Marjorie Fahim, mailing; and Barbara Robinson, decorations. They all agree that playing musical chairs is fun and a great way to support the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

Inner Circle of Musical Chairs gala planned

Last year the Grosse Pointe Symphony Society, under the leadership of president George C. Vincent, inaugurated the "Inner Circle of Musical Chairs," a unique way for local admirers of classical music to support the Pointes' own symphony orchestra. The idea caught on. The financial benefit to the orchestra was substantial, the gala honoring the donors to the project was a great success and a tradition was born.

This year's gala will be held on Friday, Oct. 3, at the Country Club of Detroit, with cocktails and dinner, to be followed by "Opera a la carte," presented by artists of Michigan Opera Theatre, and later, dancing to the music of the Fascinating Rhythms Trio. The honorary chairman will be Sen. Jack Faxon, who heads up the Senate Arts Committee, and the honored guests will be the Symphony's long-time conductor Felix Resnick and his wife.

The donor of the $150 to the orchestra chooses the chair he or she wishes to endow for the season and, as an Inner Circle of Musical Chairs member, is entitled to two reservations for the Oct. 3 gala. Anyone interested in further information is invited to telephone 886-6244 or 885-2473. The deadline for reservations is Sept. 23.

Alice Reisig and Mary Nolan are this year's co-chairmen, with the assistance of the following committee members: Marjorie Jewell, hosts and hostesses; Lenore Marshall, publicity; Inge Vincent, invitations and dinner programs;

Autumn brings out the apples of our eyes

Ever since Adam and Eve, people have been eating apples. The cultivation of apples dates back to the Stone Age. Countless varieties have been developed over the centuries, and cookbooks for generations have presented recipes using this delectable fruit in literally hundreds of ways.

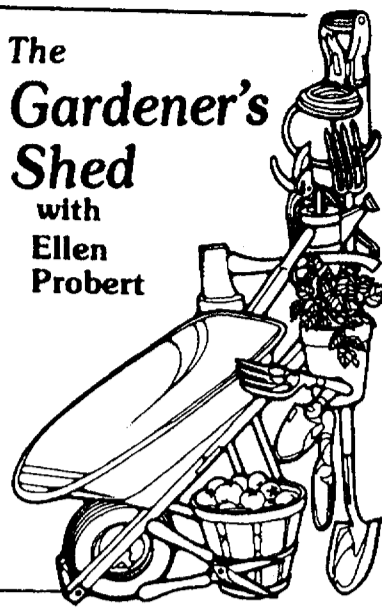

In Michigan, after the heyday of the lumbering years were over, the growing of fruit trees became a major industry, and today our state produces millions of bushels of apples annually, in addition to vast quantities of cherries and peaches. The production of apples and other fruits has been imported and increasing since it was begun in 1841. By 1870 apple orchards covered nearly 238,000 acres.

The legendary character Johnny Applesed who planted nurseries of apple trees in the Ohio River Valley and distributed trees to the Indians, is generally credited with being the founder of southwestern Michigan's extensive fruit culture. His real name was John Chapman.

Grosse Pointe can boast many apple trees in its lovely gardens and the apple orchards; and cider mills in the surrounding countryside have already begun to attract their annual autumn crowds of people who will drink thousands of gallons of cider before the season is over.

There is something about the spectacle of waterwheels and cider presses and the pervading scent of apples adding a tang to the air that is a virtual symbol of the fall season to many Grosse Pointers and as such an annual must as a color tour to see the autumn foliage.

In the time of Ramses III (the 12th century B.C.) apple trees were cultivated in the Nile Valley, and in the Roman world of the 4th century A.D. there were 37 varieties of apples. They are mentioned in the writings of Cato and Pliny. There are several thousand varieties today and they are generally classified on the basis of their time of maturation (summer, autumn, winter) and their color, size, degree of tartness and flavor. Apples are used in uncounted ways as food, and make cider, apple jack and calvados. There really is a basis of truth in the old adage, "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," as apples are used in many remedies and nutritional supplements. They are high in vitamin and mineral content.

In the 16th century pomanders made of oranges or apples were a popular fashion accessory and used to scent rooms and repel moths. They are easy to make and will last for years. They are nice to scent linen closets and blanket chests, and make nice gifts too. Here's how:

Take a large, firm red apple and stick whole cloves into it as close together as you can until the apple is completely covered with cloves. Then roll it in a mixture of powdered cinnamon, allspice, nutmeg and mace in equal proportions. Make a loop of ribbon to hang the pomander with and fasten it at the stem end of the apple with a wooden skewer. Hang it in a cool place where there is a current of air until the apple has dried. It will shrink in size and the cloves will become a solid surface.

Another lovely harbinger of fall is the chrysanthemum, whose glowing colors and spicy scent will highlight gardens throughout the Grosse Pointe area from now until November. The chrysanthemum is the Japanese flower of September, and is the Chinese flower of autumn. In the Victorian Language of Flowers it represented cheerfulness and optimism, and it was used as the insignia of the Old Chinese army.

In the Trial Gardens on the lake side of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial which are planted and maintained by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center the chrysanthemums are always an attraction. The gardens are supported by the Vincent DePetris Fund which was raised several years ago by hundreds of contributors from the Grosse Pointes and nearby areas and named for DePetris, who was an internationally known authority on, and hybridizer of, chrysanthemums. A Grosse Pointe resident for many years, he was one of the founders of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center and had a lifelong interest in its many projects.

Chrysanthemums belong to the Daisy family and are native to China, Japan, northern Africa and southern Europe. Chrysanthemums were cultivated in China at least 500 years before the birth of Christ, and about 1,000 years after that, in Japan. The first blooms arrived in Holland in 1688, but did not survive. Another 100 years passed before cultivated varieties from China were introduced to France, and from there in 1795, to England. Chrysanthemums arrived in America in 1798 with John Stevens, of Hoboken, N.J. In a catalogue dated 1826 a Long Island, N.Y. nurseryman listed 26 varieties.

The Tri-Town Garden Club which meets at the Southland Mall at Eureka Road and Pardee in Taylor, Mich., will have a chrysanthemum show on Oct. 4 and 5. There is no charge to enter and certificates are awarded to the winners. Rosemary Zatkovich, 5975 Janet St., Taylor, Mich. 48180 can supply further details.

Question of the Week: I have a small decorative pond in my garden and I seem to get algae in it very easily. What can I do to prevent the algae from growing?

Answer: Your decorative little pond may be located where the breezes can't get at it. A pond needs breezes and strong enough ones to cause rippling from time to time. Still water becomes stagnant and encourages algae.

If your pond won't ripple you can ripple it yourself with a large plastic sheet and your tank-type vacuum cleaner. Cover the pond with the plastic sheet held down with a few stones around the edge. Adjust your vacuum so it will blow instead of suck. Insert the tube under the plastic and you will create a strong enough breeze to make very satisfactory ripples.

GP Baptist collects relief for Cameroon

On Aug. 21, toxic gas surfaced from a volcanic lake in an area 30 miles north of Bamenda, Cameroon, taking a heavy toll in lives and property.

Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, 21336 Mack Ave., Grosse Pointe Woods, is a member church of the North American Baptist Conference, and as such helps to support missionaries and medical personnel in the west African nation of Cameroon.

Dr. Oryn Mienerts, North American Baptist field secretary in Cameroon, reported by phone on Aug. 26 that about 2,000 people died in the catastrophe. Missionary Ken Priebe and Cameroonian pastor Peter Evande rushed to the area to help organize assistance.

Dr. Helen Marie Schmidt, who spoke with Peter Jennings on ABC's evening news, is organizing medical relief at the Baptist Hospital in Bamenda.

Relief funds are urgently needed for medical care and supplies, food and clothing. Many children were orphaned by the disaster. Donations for Cameroon Relief may be sent to Grosse Pointe Baptist (make checks payable to the church).

The Rev. David Wick, senior pastor at the church, states that all funds received designated for Cameroon Relief will be sent to Africa to be administered by North American Baptist missionaries and Cameroon Baptist pastors.

There will be no "overhead" charge for handling donations by the church. Those interested in more information may phone the church at 881-3343.

 biographies into a single line for listing in the book.
 "We're working with 24,000 names," she said. "It's fascinating to read about someone and condense it into one line."
 MacKay is a member of the Book Club of Detroit and produces the newsletter for that organization. She is also a volunteer for the Detroit Institute of Arts and has been working for the museum for 24 years. She is one of only seven people who have been in the volunteer program since it began.
 For this year's AAUW Book Sale, MacKay has selected 10 special items for the silent auction. Bidders will submit written bids throughout the week-long sale.

"It will be 10 of the most desirable items," MacKay said. "They'll be on exhibit and the bids will be posted. It gets exciting at the last when you will see a bid go up and possibly have just one more chance to bid."
 You don't have to be present to win your bid, if it is the highest, but most bidders keep coming back to check on their item. After all, anybody could have bid anything on that special item, if you don't check.
 "I think the auction has been a good idea," MacKay said. "There are book sales all over, but our auction is unique. Our branch (AAUW-Grosse Pointe) has donated more (to the national organization) than any other chapter in Michigan."

The Grosse Pointe AAUW Book Sale, scheduled for Sept. 23-28 this year, is a mammoth undertaking. AAUW members work nearly year around to keep this sale one of the biggest book events in the metropolitan area.
 "More than 200 of our members actively participate," MacKay said.
 The proceeds from the sale are sent to the national and state organization to be redistributed in the form of scholarships for mature women who want to go to school. Some of the money is allocated locally. Last year, five $1,000 scholarships were given out in this area.
 The book sale will open at 10 a.m. on Sept. 23. The first day is 50 percent markup day and all the books will be more expensive by half. (That means a 50 cent book will now cost 75 cents.) The final day of the sale, Sunday, Sept. 28, is Bag Day, when shoppers can fill a bag with all the books they can fit in, for one low price.

 The AAUW Book sale is located at Salem Memorial Church, on Moross, just east of I-94.
Parcels on dean's list
 David H. Parcels of Grosse Pointe Farms has been named to the dean's list at Northwood Institute for the spring term.
Mullen commissioned
 Mark M. Mullen, son of Frank and Ann Mullen of Grosse Pointe Park, has been commissioned a second lieutenant through the Army ROTC program.

AAUW opens season

A warm welcome and update on activities for the coming year will be the purpose of the Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women when it meets Thursday, Sept. 18. Both old, new and prospective members will gather at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore Rd., at 9:30 a.m. and again at 7:30 p.m. No reservations necessary.
 Baby sitting will be available in the morning for a nominal fee. It is advisable to make arrangements by Sept. 16 by calling 884-0936 after 7 p.m.
 The theme for the year will be "Discover Women's Worth, Celebrate Women's Accomplishments."
 Seventeen study groups make up the activities of the AAUW Branch. There will be a chance to visit each of the groups and meet the chairmen. Carla Teagan, vice president in charge of program development, will show the study groups in action by presenting slides taken last year at some of the meetings.
 The areas of interest are: Art Appreciation, Book Discussion, Bridge Marathon, Chorus, Creative Parenting, Current Books, Day Stitchery, EMS Study, Gourmet Dinner Group, Green Thumb, International Relations, La Causerie, Legislative, Morning Literature, Play Reading, Sit'n Stitch and Stocks and Investments.

 President Ann Nicholson will preside over a short business meeting and Eloise Spencer, vice president in charge of programs, will review the general programs for the year. Elizabeth Schaefer will wear two hats. She is social arrangements chairman and will be part of the program activities. Her contribution will be a brief review of AAUW on the National level from 1881-1978 entitled "AAUW Milestones, 90 Years in History."
 As you can see, this kick-off meeting for 1986-87 will be an informative one. Prospective members are especially welcome. A requirement for membership is a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university or a foreign institution recognized by the International Federation of University Women. For more information call 881-9585.

Pointer Bridge Club
 Members of the Pointer Bridge Club met for their annual Summer Luncheon at The Little Club of Grosse Pointe June 26. The club will begin its year with a luncheon and bridge on Thursday, Sept. 18, at 11 a.m. in the Alger House of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Reservations or cancellations should be made by Sept. 14 by calling 886-7595.

Fisher is Fisher Center chairman

Making an impact through LWV

Making an impact on government — how citizens can effect change, will be the topic of Frances B. Parker, legislative vice president of the League of Women Voters of Michigan, on Wednesday, Sept. 17, at 7 p.m., at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, at a meeting of the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe.

Letting your legislator know what you think about the issues is an important responsibility of citizens in our representative form of government. Lobbying is a major activity for members of the League of Women Voters. The league studies issues selected by the members at convention, comes to consensus after looking at all sides of the issue, publishes a position and acts on it when it is appropriate.

The League of Women Voters is

DRC to hear Angelo

The Detroit-Review Club's first meeting of the season, which will be the start of the 95th club year, will be held at the Village Woman's Club of Bloomfield Hills on Sept. 16, at noon. Cocktails before lunch.

The guest speaker will be a popular return-speaker Frank Angelo, who retired as executive editor of the Detroit Free Press after writing three books and a column, beside his editorial duties.

A historian and fact finder by nature, his three books include "Yesterday's Detroit," "Yesterday's Michigan," and "On Guard, the 150 year history of the Detroit Free Press." He has also just finished a history of Kelly Services, Inc. on the occasion of that company's 40th anniversary.

Since retirement, he has served as a vice-president for the Bob-Lo Leland Company, and as consultant on public relations for other clients, as well as editing the Grocer's Spotlight, a national food industry newspaper.

He has served as a sports writer, as well as starting out as copy boy for the Detroit News. He joined the Navy in December 1941 and served in the Pacific on a destroyer escort, as a supply and communications officer until September 1945.

Angelo has been active in many social services and professional groups. He has been national president of Professional Journalists (Sigma Delta Chi) and president of the Michigan Press Association. He has been presented several awards, including an honorary doctorate of humane letters from Wayne State University and election to the International Institute Heritage Hall of Fame in Detroit.

Official hostess for the kick-off luncheon will be Blanche Kegeen, president of DRC.

known as an organization whose purpose is to increase citizen participation in government. This is done by voter registration drives and by voter service at election time which informs people on the candidates and issues to be voted on. The league never supports or opposes political candidates or parties.

But the league does take a position on issues after study and lobbies hard to see its positions become a part of our public policies through legislation. It is important to know how the legislative system works, how, when and where to make your voice heard and what issues are currently active. This will be part of the discussion at the Sept. 17 meeting.

This particular gathering is held annually by the Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters to inform new members, prospective members, friends, and spouses about matters of league concern. People who are interested in knowing more about League of Women Voters are especially invited. Those wishing to attend may phone 884-1958 or 886-3078.

Grosse Pointe Questers

On Friday, Sept. 12, at 10 a.m. Grosse Pointe Questers 147 will open the season with "Snuff Boxes and Their Successors" a program presented by chapter member Jane Mertz.

Little boxes have always been a favorite with both men and women. They have been made of every conceivable fabric and for numerous uses. They are often richly decorative. Their greatest surge of popularity came at the start of the 18th century when the fad of taking snuff hit the courts of Europe. Little boxes are very popular today. Artisans still strive to make each box unique and appealing.

The program will be held at the home of Jane Mertz of Shorepoint Lane. Violet Champagne and Mary Jane Barthel will co-hostess the luncheon. Members are encouraged to bring in a favorite box for discussion.

Mothers of Multiples

The Eastern Bi-County Mothers of Multiples Club will hold its Semi-Annual Clothing and Equipment Sale on Sept. 13, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sale items include baby and children's clothing, baby equipment and accessories, maternity clothing, toys and more. The sale will be held at St. Peters School, 19800 Anida, (off Vernier Road between I-94 and Beaconsfield) in Harper Woods. Everyone is welcome. Cash only, no checks.

Sigma Kappa

An art fair, sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Kappa Sorority, will be held on Saturday, Sept. 27, at the Alger House of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms. Hours of the show will be from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. More than 25 exhibitors are participating in the juried show with a variety of hand-crafted merchandise including needlework, wood-working, spices and vinegars, pine ducks, lapidary, porcelain dolls, items for the home made of wood with imported Italian tiles, "Personnettes," and much, much more.

Get that early start on your Christmas shopping this year at the Sigma Kappa Arts and Crafts Fair. Admission to the fair is free.

Fort Pontchartrain DAR

Fort Pontchartrain chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will meet on Friday, Sept. 26, at noon for lunch at the Detroit Boat Club on Belle Isle.

Mrs. William Garrett, state librarian, will present a talk on NSDAR "An Established National Resource."

Those attending from this area will be: Mrs. Arthur Elges, Mrs. Paul Honderich, Mrs. Leonard L. Jensen, Mrs. George F. Killeen, Mrs. Edwin Langtry, Mrs. Frank McKinnon, Mrs. Frederick McNamara, Mrs. Charles Ross, Mrs. Frederick Schelter, Mrs. Bernard L. Seitz, and Mrs. Joseph Thomas.

Grosse Pointe Camera Club

Meetings will begin in September for the Grosse Pointe Camera Club. This 49th year of classes and competition for the group will culminate in a banquet and awards night on the first Tuesday in June. The club does not meet in the summer.

Meetings are held on the first, third and fourth Tuesday of each month at Brownell Middle School, at 7:30 p.m. in the music room, C-11.

The first two meetings of each month are devoted to judging and critique of members' work in prints and slides. Miniprograms on photographic techniques precede each of the competitions. The third meeting each month may include a program by a guest expert, a workshop on some aspect of photography, or hosting the Greater Detroit Camera Club Council's competition in prints and slides.

Because of Labor Day and the opening of school, the two September meetings are scheduled for Sept. 16 and Sept. 23.

Since 1964, the club and the Grosse Pointe Department of Community Education have co-sponsored evening classes in photography. Carroll Dennis of Grosse Pointe Park is coordinator for the program. Members of the camera club lecture on their special interests.

The first class of the new term is in basic photography and will be held on Sept. 24 at Brownell Middle School in room A-13, for five weeks. The first class in advanced photography will be on Oct. 29 in room A-13 for four weeks. The classes are held from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

For more information, call Helen Kosy, publicity chairman.

NAIM

The Macomb chapter of NAIM (Widows and Widowers) has its meetings the third Wednesday of each month. Sept. 17 is the next meeting at 7:30 p.m. at St. Barnabas on 10 Mile and Phlox, East Detroit, Mich., (between Hayes and Gratiot). This month there will be a guest speaker, with music following. Donation: $2. For further information call Stella, 892-6458 or Frances, 526-9356.

Eastside Handweavers Guild

The Eastside Handweavers Guild, an association of persons involved in various fiber arts, including weaving, spinning and basketry, will hold its monthly meeting on Monday, Sept. 21, at the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

The program will be presented by Kathy Palombo who will instruct the group in the art of felt making. She will demonstrate the various steps involved in making of felt from wool fleece and in making objects of felt, including a felt hat.

Refreshments and social hour will begin at 7 p.m., with a business meeting at 7:30 p.m., and the program scheduled for 7:45 p.m. For further information you may call Sue Ellison at 881-2906 or Mary Leigh Herdegen at 882-2261.

All persons who are interested in the fiber arts are welcome to attend.

Grosse Pointe Singles

Grosse Pointe Singles will hold open dances at Chaplin's Comedy Club Lounge Restaurant, 34244 Groesbeck, Fraser at 9 p.m. each Friday and Saturday night the weekends of Sept. 12 and Sept. 26.

A big semi-formal dance with the music of the Doug Di Maria trio, featuring the trumpet and song stylings of Billy Mays, will be held Saturday evening, Sept. 20, at 9 p.m. — Prepaid reservations only for this dance. Call 882-0316 or 882-9042 for information.

On Sunday, Sept. 14, at 7 p.m., a Sunday Afternoon Dance Party, with hors d'oeuvres, will be held at Blue Goose Inn, 28911 E. Jefferson, St. Clair Shores.

GPS will have a Wine and Cheese Party at the Grosse Pointe Shores home of a member on Sunday, Sept. 28, at 5 p.m. Prepaid reservations only.

This very active singles group is open to all singles 35 and up living in the area. Ninety day and six-month memberships are being offered for the first time. Our membership now exceeds 400 living in the tri-county area.

For information, call 463-3964 or GPS Hotline 445-1286, anytime.

St. James Lutheran

The Women's Guild of St. James Lutheran Church began its fall calendar of activities with a dinner and fashion show at Bayview Yacht Club. The event was held Wednesday, Sept. 10. La Strega Boutique supplied the stylish clothes. Chairperson Jane Buhl reported the models were all members of the congregation and thoroughly enjoyed their "night on stage." Models included Joyce Blumenstock, Marcia Wilson, Ruth Cullen, Marjorie Fahim, Barbara Mathews, Cathy Lakowski, and Lillian Ferrier. All are Grosse Pointe residents.

Alpha Xi Delta

The Grosse Pointe and Macomb County alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta will hold their first dinner-meeting of the year on Monday, Sept. 15, at 7 p.m.

"Some Like It Hot" will be the theme of the dinner, where the delights of Cincinnati Chili can be discovered at the home of Mrs. John Kloock of St. Clair Shores.

At the business meeting, President Pam Lyle will report on news from the sorority's National Convention this summer and will update the members on planned trips to collegiate chapters of the sorority in Albion and Ann Arbor in later September.

Co-hostesses for the evening are Carla Corio and Pam Lyle. For reservations and information about the dinner and directions to the meeting, call 977-3263.

Money Makers

Eight Grosse Pointe women have begun an investment club — an educational, social and money-making group which will meet on the third Monday of each month. For more information, call Carol Kirkpatrick at 885-8607 or Lee Remick at 886-5128.

Grosse Pointe Woman's Club

Members of the Grosse Pointe Woman's Club and their guests will open the club's season next Wednesday, Sept. 17, with a tea and program starting at 12:30 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Crystal Ball Room where, following a social hour, Rosemary Elias, first vice president and program chairman, will introduce guest speaker, Pat Tinney, well known hypnotist.

Pat Tinney has inspired many, from personnel assertiveness training at the University of Michigan, motivational self awareness at Oakland Community and Madonna Colleges, to master-minding at Redford Union Schools. She is also adept at teaching self-hypnosis.

Lucy Chielens and Lenora Stetzer, Woman's Club social chairmen and their hostesses, Peg Cameron and Peg Craig have planned the tea.

Assisting on the committee are: Dorothy Hill, Ina Hudson, Gertrude Krogh and Clara Petersen. Marian Koch, Dorothy Craig, Edith McKee and Doris Weaver will pour.

Members planning to invite guests are requested to make reservations by contacting the hospitality chairmen at 881-5552 or 884-5440 no later than Sept. 13.

Christ Church

The Episcopal Church Women of Christ Church, Grosse Pointe, will hold their annual tea on Thursday, Sept. 18, from 2-4 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Gilbert E. Gove, 268 Cloverly Road. Babysitting will be provided from 2-4:30 p.m. at Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard, for those attending the tea.

Anyone wishing to attend should telephone her acceptance to the church office, 885-4841, by Sept. 15. The ECW is asking for a donation of a Christmas tree ornament from each attendee. The ornaments will be sold at the ECW's Annual Greens Sale Dec. 4 and 5.

Elizabeth Ketchum Group

The Elizabeth Ketchum Group of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church meets tomorrow, Friday, Sept. 12, at 1 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe Woods home of Florence Lafer. Devotions will be led by Mildred Carroll.

Windmill Pointe Questers

Windmill Pointe Questers Chapter 385 plan to meet at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 15, at the home of Peggy W. Brown for coffee.

Chapter President Gerald Ricard will chair this first meeting of the new season and call the business session to order at 10 a.m.

Charlotte Gorning will present the program "Schools of Yesterday."

Gorning, having both attended a one-room school in her childhood years near Ann Arbor, and later having taught in another, is well versed on this topic. She will highlight the curriculum, text books used, extra activities and anecdotes.

Summer treat

Balloons, hot fudge and strawberry sundaes, piano music by Tom Zeola and a beautiful sunny day made for a delightful afternoon at the 12th annual Midsummer Ice Cream Social on the roof garden at Cottage Hospital. More than 400 employees came to sample the goodies and enjoy the festivities. Wendy Knight and Ron Mueller stand in front of the gazebo having just been served by auxiliaries Maryann Osborne, Ed and Jean Smith and Suzanne Debruyne. The first social was held back in 1975 by the Cottage Hospital Auxiliary as a thank you to the employees.

Mission hosts Clown Festival and Peddlers' Fair

The PIME missionaries, "Clown Festival and Peddlers' Fair" will be held for three days beginning Friday evening, Sept. 12, on the grounds of their 23-acre site in Fraser on Moravian Drive between 15 Mile Road and Utica Road. Friday night will feature music, dancing, Las Vegas games, hot air balloon rides, bingo, snack bars, beer tent and a "mini circus" that includes a dog act, trained monkeys, puppets, a magician, rope spinning, acrobats and clowns. Action begins at 6 p.m. and continues on until 11 p.m.

On Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m., there will be a Peddler's Fair with booths offering craft and gift items for sale. This will be followed at 4 p.m. by the same group of activities as on Friday evening.

On Sunday, beginning at noon and lasting until 7 p.m., in addition to the attractions already listed, there will be special appearances of "Ricky the Clown," music by "Big Daddy," a bake sale, pony rides for the youngsters, Polish dancers, clowns and the annual mostaccioli and meatball dinner which includes salad, rolls, dessert and beverage at $3.50 for adults and $2 for children under 12.

Admission is free and there is ample free parking on the grounds of the PIME Missionaries' Promotions Center on Moravian Drive. The Clown Festival and Peddlers' Fair is being sponsored by friends and Guild members in support of the PIME Missionaries' work in third world countries among the disadvantaged poor.

Co-chairing the benefit are Dick

Rogers of St. Clair Shores, Mary Ellen Barum of Grosse Pointe Woods and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Efimoff of Roseville. Chairmen from the booths and concession stands include Eleanor Wisniewski of Sterling Heights, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Valente of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ruggioli of Grosse Pointe Woods, Jerry Walter of Ypsilanti, Mr. and Mrs. George Berendt of Allen Park, Caroline Kopera and Sharon Repka of Hamtramck, Josephine Ruggioli of Detroit, Anne Freeham of Fraser, Thomasine Jenuwine of Armada, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gorski of Oak Park, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Wend of East Detroit, Robert Bayer of Warren, Kay Hahner and Virginia Szczepanski of Sterling Heights and Peggy Fleming of Utica.

Grosse Pointe Baptist Church has eventful program planned

A number of programs and special events are planned at Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, 21336 Mack Ave., Grosse Pointe Woods, for the coming weeks.

On Friday, Sept. 12, at 7:30 p.m., there will be a special organ concert, to dedicate the recent organ enlargement and modification at the church.

Diane Bish, an organist with a national reputation, will be performing in the sanctuary. She is currently the organist of the Carol Ridge Presbyterian Church in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Recent memorial gifts have enabled the Grosse Pointe Baptist Church to add to its already fine Moller 29-rank pipe organ. A 16-foot diapason and 61-note Trompette en Chamade have enhanced the sound of the instrument.

The public is invited to this free concert.

Beginning on Sept. 14, on Sundays at 9:45 a.m., the church will offer a 14-week seminar taught by Dr. Albert Spalding of the Institute for Study of Christian Values, Wyoming, Mich. The seminar will feature slide presentations, lively discussions of moral and ethical issues and a careful study of the Book of Proverbs. A registration fee of $45 covers the entire series, and provides registrants with a Ryrie Study Bible, a notebook, class notes and reference materials.

Registrations will be accepted on the first day of class.

On Wednesdays, 9:45 a.m. to 11 a.m., beginning Sept. 17, there will be a 10-week Bible study class titled, "God's Formula for Peace," based on Philippians 4. The series will be taught by Jacquelyn Edmonds, who had a popular Bible teaching ministry in California before moving to the Detroit area.

There is no charge for the series and child care will be offered.

For more information on any of these programs, call the church at 881-3343.

Celebrate the harvest with veggies

Enjoy these nutritious recipes whether the vegetables came from your vegetable garden, the farmers' market or one of the delightful roadside stands in front of an elegant farm of our near countryside.

Minestrone Milanese

- 1 can (16 ounces) kidney beans
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 2 cloves garlic, peeled, minced
- 2 Tbsp. olive oil
- 7 beef bouillon cubes
- 3 quarts water
- 2 medium carrots, peeled, diced
- 2 medium potatoes, peeled, diced
- 1 Tbsp. minced parsley
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 2 cups finely shredded Savoy cabbage
- 1-1/2 cups fresh spinach chopped
- 1 can (16 ounces) stewed tomatoes
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
- 1 tsp. Durkee's Italian seasoning
- 2 small zucchini, diced
- 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 cup spaghetti or elbow macaroni

In heavy kettle, saute onions and celery in the olive oil until golden. Add bouillon cubes, water, tomatoes, kidney beans with liquid from can, and all other ingredients but the zucchini, cheese and spaghetti. Place covered pot in a 350-degree oven to simmer for at least an hour or more. Add zucchini, a handful of fresh spinach chopped and the spaghetti or macaroni, cover and simmer for 20 to 25 minutes longer. The cheese may be stirred into the soup or passed individually. Makes 12 servings.

Calories per serving about 215. Cholesterol 0.

Grecian Eggplant

This generous Greek vegetable main dish casserole is so delicious that one doesn't realize that it is meatless.

- 2 large eggplants
- 6 Tbsp. vegetable oil
- 1 Tbsp. coriander
- 1 Tbsp. leaf sage
- 1 tsp. thyme

Ham and Fresh Vegetable Medley

- 1 pound fully cooked boneless ham slice
- 2 large tomatoes
- 1 small green pepper
- 1 small red pepper
- 1 medium onion
- 1 medium yellow straight-neck squash
- 2 medium zucchini (about 1 pound)
- 2 Tbsp. Vermouth
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 envelope chicken-flavored bouillon
- 2 tps. basil
- 1/4 tsp. pepper

Cut ham into 1/4-inch thick strips, about 3 inches long; cut each tomato into eight wedges; cut green and red peppers into 1/2-inch wide strips; cut onion, yellow squash and zucchini into 1/4-inch-wide slices.

In large teflon lined skillet over high heat, saute green and red peppers, onion, yellow squash, zucchini and ham, about three minutes, add the Vermouth. Continue cooking for another two minutes, stirring frequently.

Reduce heat to medium; add water, chicken-flavored bouillon, basil, and pepper. Cook until vegetables are tender-crisp, stirring occasionally, about five minutes. Add tomato wedges and continue until tomatoes are heated through. Makes four main-dish servings.

About 225 calories per serving. Cholesterol about 70 mgs.

- 1 tsp. rosemary
- 1 tsp. cracked black pepper
- 3 cloves garlic, quartered
- 2 slices lemon
- 1 cup vinegar
- 2 cups water
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 3 medium green peppers, seeded
- 2 large onions, sliced lengthwise
- 3 large tomatoes, cut up
- 1 Tbsp. sugar
- Salt to taste

Cut stems off eggplants. Peel off a 1/2-inch wide lengthwise strip of skin, leaving next 1/2-inch skin on. Peel all around for striped effect. Cut eggplants crosswise into 1/4-inch slices.

Heat vegetable oil in large heavy skillet. Quickly saute eggplant slices in oil, then set on paper towels. Combine seasonings, garlic and lemon on a square of cheesecloth. Gather cloth into loose bag and tie at top. Place in same heavy skillet with vinegar, water and olive oil. Bring to a boil.

Split peppers and cut into long, thin strips. Finely slice onions to make long slivers. Coarsely chop tomatoes. Add to skillet with sugar and salt. Mix well, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Remove seasoning bag.

Arrange layer of eggplant slices in large shallow casserole. Cover with sauce. Repeat layers until all ingredients are used, ending with sauce on top. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for one hour. Garnish with sliced black olives, if desired. Makes eight servings.

Calories about 247 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

Grecian Eggplant makes an excellent main dish for a vegetarian meal, especially when accompanied by brown rice-raisin-nut pilaf, a platter of crisp raw vegetables, a tart granita surrounded by chunks of fresh fruits.

Celebrate the harvest with veggies

Enjoy these nutritious recipes whether the vegetables came from your vegetable garden, the farmers' market or one of the delightful roadside stands in front of an elegant farm of our near countryside.

Ham and Fresh Vegetable Medley

- 1 pound fully cooked boneless ham slice
- 2 large tomatoes
- 1 small green pepper
- 1 small red pepper
- 1 medium onion
- 1 medium yellow straight-neck squash
- 2 medium zucchini (about 1 pound)
- 2 Tbsp. Vermouth
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 envelope chicken-flavored bouillon
- 2 tsps. basil
- 1/4 tsp. pepper

Cut ham into 1/4-inch thick strips, about 3 inches long; cut each tomato into eight wedges; cut green and red peppers into 1/2-inch wide strips; cut onion, yellow squash and zucchini into 1/4-inch-wide slices.

In large teflon lined skillet over high heat, saute green and red peppers, onion, yellow squash, zucchini and ham, about three minutes, add the Vermouth. Continue cooking for another two minutes, stirring frequently.

Reduce heat to medium; add water, chicken-flavored bouillon, basil, and pepper. Cook until vegetables are tender-crisp, stirring occasionally, about five minutes. Add tomato wedges and continue until tomatoes are heated through. Makes four main-dish servings.

About 225 calories per serving. Cholesterol about 70 mgs.

Minestrone Milanese

- 1 can (16 ounces) kidney beans
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 2 cloves garlic, peeled, minced
- 2 Tbsp. olive oil
- 7 beef bouillon cubes
- 3 quarts water
- 2 medium carrots, peeled, diced
- 2 medium potatoes, peeled, diced
- 1 Tbsp. minced parsley
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 2 cups finely shredded Savoy cabbage
- 1-1/2 cups fresh spinach chopped
- 1 can (16 ounces) stewed tomatoes
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
- 1 tsp. Durkee's Italian seasoning
- 2 small zucchini, diced
- 1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 cup spaghetti or elbow macaroni

In heavy kettle, saute onions and celery in the olive oil until golden. Add bouillon cubes, water, tomatoes, kidney beans with liquid from can, and all other ingredients but the zucchini, cheese and spaghetti. Place covered pot in a 350-degree oven to simmer for at least an hour or more. Add zucchini, a handful of fresh spinach chopped and the spaghetti or macaroni, cover and simmer for 20 to 25 minutes longer. The cheese may be stirred into the soup or passed individually. Makes 12 servings.

Calories per serving about 215. Cholesterol 0.

Grecian Eggplant

This generous Greek vegetable main dish casserole is so delicious that one doesn't realize that it is meatless.

- 2 large eggplants
- 6 Tbsp. vegetable oil
- 1 Tbsp. coriander
- 1 Tbsp. leaf sage
- 1 tsp. thyme

- 1 tsp. rosemary
- 1 tsp. cracked black pepper
- 3 cloves garlic, quartered
- 2 slices lemon
- 1 cup vinegar
- 2 cups water
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 3 medium green peppers, seeded
- 2 large onions, sliced lengthwise
- 3 large tomatoes, cut up
- 1 Tbsp. sugar
- Salt to taste

Cut stems off eggplants. Peel off a 1/2-inch wide lengthwise strip of skin, leaving next 1/2-inch skin on. Peel all around for striped effect. Cut eggplants crosswise into 1/4-inch slices.

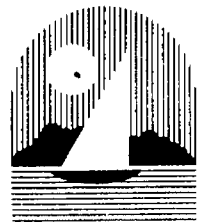

Heat vegetable oil in large heavy skillet. Quickly saute eggplant slices in oil, then set on paper towels. Combine seasonings, garlic and lemon on a square of cheesecloth. Gather cloth into loose bag and tie at top. Place in same heavy skillet with vinegar, water and olive oil. Bring to a boil.

Split peppers and cut into long, thin strips. Finely slice onions to make long slivers. Coarsely chop tomatoes. Add to skillet with sugar and salt. Mix well, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Remove seasoning bag.

Arrange layer of eggplant slices in large shallow casserole. Cover with sauce. Repeat layers until all ingredients are used, ending with sauce on top. Bake in preheated 350-degree preheated oven for one hour. Garnish with sliced black olives, if desired. Makes eight servings.

Calories about 247 per serving. Cholesterol 0.

Grecian Eggplant makes an excellent main dish for a vegetarian meal, especially when accompanied by brown rice-raisin-nut pilaf, a platter of crisp raw vegetables, a tart granita surrounded by chunks of fresh fruits.

The Pettipointe Questers revived a bygone era on Sept. 4 as they celebrated the 20th anniversary of the founding of their chapter of the antique study organization. At the far left, Jean Cornillie, left, at whose home the meeting was held, looks at the chapter scrapbook with Madeline Scranton, chapter president, and Rita Brennan, national president of the Questers. (Brennan is a Grosse Pointer.) At the immediate left, Cornillie pours tea for founding president Shirley Doman, second from left; Mary Lee Rinke, past president; and Maude Lewis, one of the original members of the group. The Pettipointe Questers Chapter 243 was founded in 1966.

First Rehearsal Picnic is a culinary delight

The annual First Rehearsal Picnic for the members and staff of the Detroit Symphony will be hosted by the Women's Association on Tuesday, Sept. 16, at 12:30 p.m. in the Hart Plaza courtyard.

As the orchestra members prepare for opening night, picnic co-chairmen Estelle Kutsche, Trenton, and Charlotte Benjamin, Detroit, will be marshalling their committee members to feed 250 musicians and administrative staff.

Committee members who will assist in laying out the lavish spread are Lucy Debol, Troy; Anne Simons, Detroit; Chloe Rehfield and Deane Taylor, both of Grosse Ile; and Winnie Schafer, Birmingham.

Acting as hostesses for this traditional kick-off for the symphony season will be Marjorie Jewell, Grosse Pointe; Jo Kessler, Huntington Woods; Stephanie Ger-mack, Grosse Pointe; Marcia Wilshire, Bloomfield Hills; Mado Lie, Grosse Pointe; and Alice Haidostian, Birmingham.

The First Rehearsal Picnic has acquired a reputation of a culinary delight as members of the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony whip up family recipes and tote in baskets of home-cooked goodies. Anne Bielawski, Dearborn Heights, is bringing her much-requested Polish sausage and breads. Anne Simons, Detroit, will re-create her beautiful fruit salad, and Alice Haidostian, Birmingham, will introduce the musicians to Armenian hamburgers in pita shells.

With only a morning rehearsal scheduled this year, Maestro Gunther Herbig passed the word to the picnic planners that wine could be added to the 1986 menu. Last year's double rehearsal day mandated a "dry" picnic.

Oktoberfest is planned at Historic Trinity Church

A Detroit tradition continues this year at Historic Trinity Lutheran Church located at 1345 Gratiot in downtown Detroit. An Oktoberfest, a long time Bavarian tradition, will be held in Trinity's community auditorium on Friday, Oct. 3, at 7 p.m. The unique black tie festival of authentic German cuisine, beer by the stein, wine, music, entertainment and dancing, promises to be an exciting event on the Detroit social scene.

The Oktoberfest committee, Julia Holtgreive, Dan Lutzeier, Mrs. Robert Marowske, Otto Rosenbusch, John Scanlon, Thomas Schoenith, and Mrs. Joseph Vance, announce that the Rev. David Eberhard, pastor of Historic Trinity, and Roger Fridholm, president of Strohs, will once again participate in the "Blessing of the Hops." Neal Shine, of the Detroit Free Press, will be the master of ceremonies.

Tom Schoenith, in his usual flair for party planning, promises another gala event. Otto Rosenbusch and John Scanlon are busy transforming the Huegli Auditorium into a Bavarian Castle. German oompah music, yodeling and dancing will round out the evening.

The invitation committee consists of: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Angott, Mr. and Mrs. James Bannon, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Beltaire, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Crain, Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Czamanske, Don Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Franco, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Fridholm, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred R. Glancy, III, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Krandle, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kughn, Mr. and Mrs. John Lambrecht, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Longyear, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Loofbourrow, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Marowske, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Muer, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nine, Mr. and Mrs. Heinz Prechter, Mr. Robert P. Roselle, Mr. and Mrs. Alan E. Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Soave, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stella, Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Stroh, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Vanderkloot, Mr. and Mrs. William Vittoe, Mrs. Victor Wertz, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Williams.

"Historic Trinity is pleased to have so many of Detroit's leading citizens participate in this outstanding annual event. The Oktoberfest is another opportunity Trinity provides for the celebration of life in Detroit," said Eberhard.

Many cultural and community individuals and groups are discovering Trinity as one of the finest jewels of architectural excellence in North America. Trinity's doors are open daily as it serves Metropolitan Detroit as an ecclesiastical, cultural, community resource for all persons regardless of their church affiliation.

Further information and reservations for this gala night of fun and fellowship can be had by calling Edith Miller, 567-3100.

Stroud to speak

Joe Stroud, editor of the Detroit Free Press, will be the guest speaker at the regular service of the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church on Sunday, Sept. 14, at 11 a.m.

Stroud is a thoughtful and thought-provoking speaker. He will be sharing his reflections on the situation in South Africa.

All are cordially invited to this special service. Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church is located at 17150 Maumee, between Neff and St. Clair. Coffee will follow the service.
